Pure Blood is Absolutely Necessary To Health

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" PURIFIES

These Wonderful Tablets, Made of Fruit Juices, Are the Best of All Tonics To Purify And Enrich The Blood.

Pure, rich blood can flow only in a clean body. Now, a clean body is one in which the waste matter is regularly and naturally eliminated from the system. The blood cannot be pure when the skin action is weak, when the stomach does not digest the food properly, when the bowels do not move regularly, when the kidneys are strained or overworked.

Pure blood is the result of perfect health and harmony of stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives", by their wonderful action on all these organs, keeps the whole system as clean as Nature intended our bodies to be clean.

"Fruit-a-tives" tones up, invigorates, strengthens, purifies, cleans and gives pure, rich, clean blood that is, in truth, the stream of life.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 5 for $2.50 trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

NOTE AND COMMENT
Canada shows no nervousness on the subject of invasion; no doubt it is felt that Germany has a long waiting list.—Springfield Republican.

Perhaps the next story to scare England will be that the Germans are making arrangements to fit out soldiers of an immense army with diving suits and march them across on the bottom of the Channel.—Boston Globe.

In old-fashioned war the armies would usually go into winter quarters when cold weather came on; but the indications are that there will be no let up in the great war during this winter. It may be a cold day when Germany gets left; but more probably the warm weather will return before a decisive result is reached.

The Government is preparing to put into force the legislation of the last session to prevent undue increases in the cost of living, and will make it an indictable offense punishable by fine or imprisonment for any person to unduly enhance the price of a staple commodity. An order—council is being prepared to allow complaints against dealers believed to be guilty of unduly enhancing prices to be laid before a magistrate. Numerous complaints have been received from all parts of Canada.

There are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamed in the philosophy of the Berlin professor who writes that there "can be no neutrals" in this war, since Germany is "the most perfect creation that history has recorded," and the Kaiser is the "delight of the human race." Some one ought to tell him of the professional who was beaten at golf by an amateur, seven up and six to play, and who said: "It is impossible, but it is a fact."

According to an Austrian newspaper published in the United States, copies of which have been received in Canada, Lord Roberts did not die of pneumonia, but was stabbed by an Indian officer. It is alleged by the Austrian paper that the Indians had mutilated and that Lord Roberts had been sent over to France to pacify them. When he approached the Indian regiments one of the privates stepped out of the ranks and stabbed him through the lungs, causing his death. This is a sample of the stories used by pro-German and pro-Austrian papers in the United States.

Of the native-born population of Canada five years of age and over, 880 males and 896 females in every 1,000 of each sex can read and write. By provinces, the ratio per 1,000 was:—British Columbia 868 males and 834 females; Alberta, 851 males and 797 females; Saskatchewan, 874 males and 822 females; Manitoba, 885 males and 875 females; Ontario, 926 males and 939 females; Quebec, 845 males and 882 females; New Brunswick, 836 males and 861 females; Nova Scotia, 887 males and 890 females, and Prince Edward Island 913 males and 914 females in every 1,000 of the population of each sex were able to read and write.

It is gratifying to know that the Canadian Peace Centenary Association is proceeding with its educational work, that literature is being prepared for the schools, that prizes will be offered for the best essays on Anglo-American relations, that church services will be held on February 14, next and that the organization is being kept intact with a view of holding public festivities after the conclusion of the war. The relations between Canada and the United States have for some years past been more than friendly, and the attitude of a large majority of Americans towards Great Britain, in the conflict which has been thrust upon her by German greed and aggression is such today, that if a great celebration between ourselves and neighbor can be arranged, it will elicit the warmest enthusiasm on both sides of the boundary.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

War and Liberty
Out of all this trouble a new emerge imbued, more than ever, with the idea that unity comes from freedom and self-government. Towards that goal it has moved for generations, learning from the stern lessons of experience, compelled to move by the pressure of the national opinion of which it was the creator. Unwittingly at the time, Britain itself disseminated the seeds of local patriotism not only in the colonies peopled by its own people, but in the dependencies won by the power of the sword. This war will initiate no new development, but it will undoubtedly hasten the time when self-government will be extended to the dependencies that have been hitherto under tutelage. Britain will be less of a governor and more of a guide.

German militarists were totally unable to understand, much less to appreciate the qualities that have slowly built up the British Empire as it exists today. What they deemed and stigmatized as weakness was really a growing recognition that national sentiment needed only to be directed, not crushed. Prussia never learned that the Poles might have become a bulwark of Germany instead of a menace. Russia has proved more amenable to the teaching of experience, and freed from Prussian influence may now give greater latitude to the natural tolerance of the Russian people. This war may prove to be the opening of a new era, when the nations will at last realize that strength lies not in the repression but in the encouragement of the spirit of nationality.

On Being Fat
"Don't worry because you're fat," says Marie Dressler, actress, whose weight, like her age, is beyond telling. "No matter how stout you are, Heaven alone is to blame. You can't help yourself, so make the best of it. Whenever you think you are too stout, smile a while; and while you smile, others smile, and soon there'll be miles and miles of smiles." Miss Dressler says she has tried out 28 different plans to reduce her weight, and all were failures. Why cannot people be content to remain fat and hearty? Fat people have advantages not to be despised. Over in Sweden a tax is levied on fat people in order that they may not enjoy superior blessings without some compensation to the less fortunate portion of the community.

It is strange, says an exchange, how large a part of humanity are never satisfied with what they have, but must be forever worrying and fretting and striving and starving to get something or other that somebody else is just as dissatisfied with. Half the people in the world wish they had more fat; the other half wish they had less. Lots of people devote a lot of their time to stewing and fretting because they are not more fat or more lean. It seems to be a universal quality of human nature to want for things we have not and to be something other than what we are.

The horse standing with its head over the fence, with ears drooping and mouth drooling for the grass in the next field, which is really not a whit better than that in its own field, is a good type of the host of human beings who are always pining for the things which are different than what they have.

Foot and Mouth Disease
In view of the recent serious outbreak of foot and mouth disease in the United States, with its subsequent serious losses and necessity for stringent measures, Canadian stock owners should acquaint themselves with the particulars of this disease. A seven-page pamphlet, prepared by Dr. J. G. Rutherford, formerly Veterinary Director General for Canada, outlines the symptoms and appearance of the disease with its treatment and preventative measures. In view of the fact that it is one of the most infectious diseases known, attacking nearly all species of farm animals, and that the many different ways in which its germs can be conveyed from place to place render it very difficult to prevent its spread once it has made its appearance, preventative measures of the utmost importance. In this pamphlet a number of such measures have been outlined by Dr. Rutherford, a knowledge of which should prove of great value should the disease make its appearance in Canada. Copies of this pamphlet, which is No. 9 of the Health and Animals Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, can be obtained by making application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Too Much For Him
A Methodist bishop in the Northwest tells of a conversation he once had with a Wyoming man touching certain difficulties of the latter's religious tenets. "Bishop," said this native Westerner, "I do not refuse to believe the story of the ark. I can accept the ark's great size, its odd shape, and the vast number of animals it contained; but when I am asked to believe that the children of Israel carried this unwieldy thing for forty years in the wilderness, I must confess that my faith breaks down."

Among the wounded who treated at Dinard, mostly 1 women acting as nurses, were three African soldiers, accustomed to the usual diet of corn and meat, who were puzzled how to comfort their American hosts. One of the soldiers presented to one of the nurses a delicious dish of American corn. He stared at it, waving his arms like windmills and a torrent of unintelligible words translated, ran thus:
"Am I a horse that I should eat this? This woman is desecrating the earth with her animal, for she knoweth not a man's stomach!"
Thereupon he threw the head of the woman on the pillows.

 Snapshots Taken During the Summer Make Charming Little Calendars and Bookmarks When Artistically Treated—Bandbox For Baby's Bonnet.
 It is none too soon to begin on the Christmas work if dainty remembrances are to be made by hand with brush or needle. Girls who have a supply of interesting snapshots taken during the summer vacation can make charming calendars and bookmarks with them. These will be especially pretty if the prints are slightly tinted with Japanese colors, the special colors that come for tinting photographs. Be sure to apply the tints very delicately and lay the print, wet thoroughly in clear water, on a piece of glass while it is being tinted. Allow it to dry on the glass until the covers begin to curl up, then remove it and dry between blotters. Make long, narrow bookmarks or calendar mounts of

HOME HINTS
 The longer I live the more I am convinced that after all the one thing worth living for and dying for is the privilege of making some being more happy and more useful. No man who does anything to lift his fellows ever makes a sacrifice.
 A true husband will receive his wife into the most confiding partnership. Woman is neither superior nor inferior to man. She is different. A man may have a professional secret from his wife, but never a personal secret. It is well to confide to wives business matters. Woman has an instinct at times superior to man's reason.
 No parent, however rich, can be certain that his child will never come to poverty. There is absolutely no guarantee against the vanishing of riches. The best insurance any parent can give his children, is to teach them to work. The ability to work is the best asset any youth can have. It makes him a self-sustaining dependable citizen and such citizens are the most permanent asset of any country. When boys are taught to work there is no need for anxiety regarding their usefulness as adult citizens.
 Do you treat your child with as much respect as you treat friends? Example is stronger than precept, and if you treat him with respect he will respect himself. Do you provide amusement for your children at home? If not they will seek it elsewhere. Provide them with good literature, but be careful not to place within their reach the life history of an outlaw. Help your children with their games and their studies; be kind, yet firm, and though your home has been a rude log cabin, the children will not stray from the place where love dwells.
 "Home's not merely four square walls, Though hung with pictures nicely gilded; Home is where affection calls, Filled with the shrines the heart has builded."

CONSTIPATION RELIEVED ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK.
 Unless Rexall Orderlies relieve your bowel troubles and make you feel like coming back to thank us for telling you about them, then come back anyway, and ask us to give you back your money. This is just as strong as we can make this guarantee, and we want to make it strong, because we believe that Rexall Orderlies are the best bowel remedy made.
 Soothing and easy in action, they cleanse the bowels, thoroughly toning and strengthening them, and make you feel great. They promote easy and regular bowel action, help to promptly relieve constipation and overcome its cause. In these things they differ from old-fashioned, harsh, disagreeable salts and other physics which usually give only temporary relief and often leave the bowels in worse condition than ever. They taste like candy and even children like them. They are particularly good for children and for delicate and aged people. In vest pocket tin boxes: 10c, 25c, 50c.

 Mr. and Mrs. Frank Childs, of Alvington, and their two children were badly cut and shaken up, when as they were returning from a visit with Rev. Mr. Ashton, in Sarnia, their car jumped into a deep ditch and turned over twice. The accident was caused by Mr. Ellis, who was driving, trying to put on his gloves without stopping the car. His mother, Mrs. Ellis, was badly cut by being thrown against the wind shield and one of the Childs' children had his foot and his leg painfully injured.
 Albert Taylor, of the 12th line of Brooke, appeared before Police Magistrate McKenzie at Petrolia on Friday, charged with assaulting Robert Hunt, a young Englishman, 21 years of age, who had been employed by him during the last summer as a farm laborer. A fine of $10 and costs was imposed. Hunt had agreed to work for the defendant for $50 a year and board. After working for four months at this rate he got an offer of a better job and accepted it. He was returning to Taylor's house for his clothes when he was met by the latter, who proceeded to give him a thrashing.

You'll Find the Irish There
 (Winnipeg Saturday Post)
 Where the war drums beat to action,
 Where the cruisers outward bear,
 Forgetting feud and faction,
 You will find the Irish there.
 For they dearly love a ruction,
 And enjoy one when they can;
 But when the Empire needs them,
 You will find them in the van.
 There'll be boys from Down and Austrim,
 There'll be lads from Cork and Clare,
 From the wilds of Connemara,
 From the valleys of Kildare.
 They are marching in their thousands,
 Who have heard the battle call,
 From the sea-swept capes of Wexford,
 And the hills of Donegal.
 Och! the colleens will be waving,
 As the transports leave the quay,
 To the gossoms who are leaving
 For the front in Germany;
 And the gallant French will greet them
 With a rousing Gallic cheer,
 Shouting: "Now is all plain sailing,
 For the Irish boys are here."
 When la petite Parisienne
 Runs out the troops to cheer,
 To shower them with gay bouquets,
 To kiss and call them dear;
 They'll meet the rush right gallantly,
 With bearing debonaire;
 Sure! they'll never need twice asking—
 The Irish will be there.
 If you've watched them in their element
 At country dance or fair,
 You'll see them gallantly flying
 At Kerry, Cork or Clare,
 You will know, when joins the battle,
 And its thunders smite the air,
 Where fiercest rolls the fighting,
 You will find the Irish there.

Everybody Votes But Mother
 (J. W. Bengough.)
 Everybody votes but mother,
 She used to vote once too,
 But when she got married to father
 The law said it wouldn't do.
 When mother was just a spinster,
 Like my spectacled sister Ann,
 She had a right to the ballot,
 But alas! she married a man!
 So everybody votes but mother:
 Father, Sister Ann, and I,
 My widowed aunt and my brother,
 And mother wants to know why!
 Everybody votes but mother,
 'Cause mother she changed her name,
 'Looks as though, somehow or other,
 Getting married must be a shame;
 They take away votes from fellows
 Who have been convicted in court,
 And it seems that women who marry
 Are bracketed with that sort,
 So that's where they rank poor mother:
 They've struck her name from the roll,
 While sister and aunt and father
 And I all go to the poll.
 Everybody votes but mother,
 Through our stupid and senseless law,
 And there's not on the list another
 Who needs the vote more than maw;
 She cares for the home and the children
 And she has a good right to a say
 On the laws that effect a household
 In any possible way.
 So we must have a vote for mother,
 Without waiting for dad to die;
 For the wife, as well as the widow
 And spinster or we'll know why.

 Baby's bandbox is one of the most fascinating of the holiday gifts which are now being made in large numbers. The gift includes a beautiful cap or bonnet for the small infant and a perfectly darling hatbox made of cardboard painted in water colors, with pictures of cupids and flower garlands or bouquets or with smiling baby faces or designs of little rabbits, birds or kittens. The box itself is usually white, but sometimes it is painted in blue or pale pink. Then the decoration is in the contrasting color—pink buds on a faint blue background, pale yellow chickens on a pale blue ground, little garlands of white daisies on a pink box or white and pink cupids on pink, blue or white.
 The boxes are not very heavily decorated. The idea is to keep the designs small and light, such as seem particularly suitable to the infantile recipient. Sometimes the word "Baby," wreathed in tiny blossoms, is painted on one side of the box and constitutes the only decoration. The baby's monogram also may be used in a floral wreath.
 The boxes are shaped like small handboxes and have lids, which are sometimes attached to the box by a ribbon. Inside the box nestles the cap which is to set off baby's charms.

 A Christmas pie of noble proportions is the one served at Horwick Hall, Northumberland, England, when Lord Grey spends the festival at his ancestral home. The Horwick Christmas pie is made according to recipe some 150 years old; it is a veritable giant among pies, being about nine feet in circumference, and weighing it is said, about 200 pounds. It is fitted into a wooden case, upon four wheels, so that it can be wheeled about the table. According to the old recipe the pie calls for several bushels of flour, 20 pounds of butter, four geese, two rabbits, six wild ducks, six woodcocks, a dozen snipe, three brace of partridges, two neat's tongues, seven blackbirds, six pigeons, and six curlews—certainly a noble dish to set before an Earl.

Electricity in War
 Few people know the important and varied use of electricity in this great war of the nations. The great navies of the warring nations could hardly be operated without electricity. It carries the wireless signal from ship to ship, from station to station. It revolves the gun turrets, manipulates the guns, carries the ammunition and controls the gun fire. Every part of the boat is connected by telephone and signal systems. It lights the searchlights, drives the submarines beneath the waves, and sparks and motors for the air craft. It is even used for cooking the food on a modern battleship.
 In the field with the great armies electricity is no less useful and important. Here it is extensively used for portable wireless stations to establish lines of communication and divisions, between the firing lines the supply bases. Buzzer signal systems, telephones and telegraphs are also used for this purpose. Portable searchlights are carried by the infantry. Thousands of horses are still used by the armies in Europe, but huge auto trucks and automobiles are employed wherever possible.
 Of course these cars could not be used without electricity to ignite the gas. This is equally true of the huge air craft and flying machines. Electricity is used to fire mines and dynamite charges where there are railroads, bridges, etc., to destroy.
 Electricity is also an important factor in the hospital service, where it is used in the X-ray machines to locate bullets and for various other surgical operations.

 The primary room contest was between the girls and boys, the judges awarding first place to the boys.
 The second contest was between pupils of the First and Second books, the First book children being awarded first prize.
 The Third and Fourth book scholars competed for the next prize, which was awarded to the Third Book pupils.
 There are two prizes in each case, and the training of the different classes had been so well done that the judges found some difficulty in deciding. The teachers are to be congratulated on the thoroughness of the training and the exercises cannot fail to be of inestimable benefit to the physical well-being of the pupils.
 The judges were Col. Kenward, T. Harris and F. T. Dodds, Inspector McDougall, Dr. Kelly and Mr. E. D. Swift were also present.

At a meeting of the Forest Board of Health a resolution was passed requesting the Town Council to pass a by-law fixing a nominal fee for the sale of meat and milk in town.

Long and Short
 Two members of the county council, now in session here—a tall man and a short man—occupied the same room at the Hotel Northern last night. This morning the short man got up and left the city on the early morning train, and in his haste put on the tall man's trousers. A couple of hours later the tall man got up, and when he put on his trousers was surprised at their shortness. In fact, they were so short that the tall councillor was ashamed to appear at the meeting of the council in such abbreviated attire, and remained indoors until a better fitting pair of pants could be secured.—SARNA OBSERVER.

The Late Rev. J. A. Baldwin

In the passing of Rev. J. A. Baldwin there has gone another of those pioneer preachers who have done so much to influence this district. For some months Mr. Baldwin's health had been failing, and a few weeks ago he was taken from Arkona, where he had been making his home with his son, to the home of his daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Lamb, of Pentwater, Mich. From there he was removed to Muskegon for hospital treatment, in the hope that help might be found for a throat trouble. Monday morning Nov. 30th, he entered into rest, at the age of seventy-six years.

The funeral services were conducted in the Arkona Baptist Church, of which the deceased was the honorary pastor, Thursday afternoon, Dec. 3rd. A large congregation gathered to show their regard for Mr. Baldwin, and sympathy for the relatives who mourn their loss. Rev. H. W. Wright, pastor of the church, had charge of the service. Rev. W. M. Walker, M. A., pastor of Watley Road Baptist Church, London, the senior pastor of Middlesex and Lambton Baptist churches, brought sympathetic messages from the Baptist ministers of London; and preached from the text "For me to live is Christ, to die is gain." Rev. T. M. Mead, of Watford, expressed the appreciation of several neighboring Baptist churches, which Mr. Baldwin had served, during the past half century; and referred especially to the Calvary Baptist Church, which was started during Mr. Baldwin's pastorate at Forest. Rev. H. J. Fair, of the Methodist church, and Rev. A. W. Hare, Presbyterian minister, also took part in the service.

Rev. J. A. Baldwin has labored with great acceptance, and marked success in the following Baptist churches of this district, besides pastorates held in other parts of Ontario; Sarnia Township, Forest, Uttoxeter, Calvary, Watford, Wyoming, Alvinston, Brooke, Theford and Arkona. Of the family who remain to mourn their loss there are three daughters and two sons, Rev. J. R. Baldwin, pastor of Baptist church Cornwall, Mrs. McDonald, of Toronto; Mrs. Iler, of Detroit; Mrs. Lamb, of Pentwater, and Wm. F. Baldwin, of Arkona, and their respective families. The pall bearers were Messrs John McLeish, George Stoner, H. Stoner, W. Percy, T. F. Murray and W. J. George, all members of the Arkona Baptist Church.

JOHN WHITE

Forest, on Thursday, Nov. 29th, a very pretty wedding took place, when her daughter, Isla May, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Riggs, of Arkona, a prosperous young fruit farmer of that community. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Moorehouse. The bride who was given away by her uncle Mr. Hugh Russell, of Bosanquet, was becomingly attired in a navy-blue suit, with hat to match. Miss Carrie Riggs sister of the groom played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bride was the recipient of a number of beautiful presents, including a bracelet from the groom. The happy couple motored to Camlachie and left on the afternoon train for Grand Rapids and Bailey, Mich. They will be at home to their friends at Arkona after January 1st.

MOTHERS OF DELICATE CHILDREN

Should Read the Following Letter—Mrs. Slack's Story About Her Child's Recovery Is Entirely Reliable.

Palmyra, Pa.—"Three years ago my little girl had black measles which left her with a chronic cough and so awfully thin you could count all her ribs, and she coughed so much she had no appetite. 'Nothing we gave her seemed to help her at all until one day Mrs. Neubert told me how much good Vinol had done her little girl, so I decided to try it for my little one, and it has done her so much good she is hungry all the time, her cough is gone, she is stouter and more healthy in color and this is the first winter she has been able to play out in the snow, coasting and snow-balling without any ill effects.'—Mrs. ALFRED SLACK, Palmyra, Pa.

We know Vinol will build up your little ones and make them healthy, strong and robust, therefore we ask parents of every frail and sickly child in this vicinity to try a bottle of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, without oil.

If we can induce you to try a bottle of Vinol as a body-builder and strength-giver for your child, and you do not find it all we claim, we will return your money on demand.

The Rivals

They Were an Old Bachelor and a Young Sailor

By F. A. MITCHEL

When John Gorman died he left his daughter Helen an orphan with no income. Richard Hunter, a bachelor friend of Gorman's, had lent him $3,000, taking a mortgage on his farm for security. Hunter did not ask for the security; Gorman insisted on giving it.

Helen Gorman was but seventeen years old when her father died and knew nothing about his affairs, but Gorman had talked with his friend about the matter.

"Dick," he said, "Helen at my death will have nothing but the farm, and you hold a mortgage on that for pretty near all it is worth. There's only one thing that would give me any comfort at leaving her, and that's out of the question."

"What is it?" asked Hunter. "If I could see you and Helen married before I die I wouldn't feel worried about her."

A faint flush came over Hunter's face and a light of pleasure in his eye, but it was transient.

"That can't be," he replied sadly, "on account of the difference in our ages. Helen is but sixteen, and I'm thirty-eight."

"That's not an impassable barrier. But there is another reason why I can't see my little girl provided for as I would like. She's given her heart to a young sailor."

Hunter looked grave at this and asked if the lover would not be able to take care of Helen. Whereupon Gorman told him that the youngster was wild, without ambition and would not be likely even to take care of any one, not even himself.

Gorman died without again referring to the matter. Helen had the good sense to send for Hunter and ask him to take charge of her affairs. There being no funds, he provided for her immediate wants out of his own pocket, concealing the fact from her. After her father's funeral she consulted Hunter as to what she should do. He told her that there was no income for her, but said nothing about the mortgage he held.

"When the fields for self support for women were not open to them as they are now, Helen looked very much troubled.

"It seems to me," said Hunter, "that you had better be married. Isn't there some one you would like to marry?" "Yes," was the reply, "there is. But he couldn't support a wife just yet. Besides, he is at sea all the while, and I should be left alone."

"It is a pity that I and so much older than you. I would be only too glad to provide for you as my wife." Helen made no reply to this, and Hunter left her. At the end of every month he gave her $50. She asked him if the property had produced the amount, and he told her that it might produce the total during the year, but the income was not regular. This was saved from being a falsehood only by the word "might."

Since Brackett, the sailor, did not return—and there was nothing to be expected from him when he did—Helen made up her mind to marry Richard Hunter. He was kind—and she did not know how kind—and she took comfort in having him for a protector. She also felt companionable with him. But she had built up an imaginary idol out of the sailor boy, and it would not crumble. Her decision to give herself to Hunter was therefore made reluctantly and after a copious flow of tears.

Hunter flushed with pleasure when she told him that she would marry him. She had made a resolution to banish young Brackett from her mind and acted a loverlike part toward Hunter so well that he was deceived into thinking that she was quite content, if not possibly happy, in her decision. But he did not hurry her, preferring that she should have plenty of time to be off with the old love before taking on a new one.

As time wore on Helen seemed to grow more and more satisfied with her decision, and at times Hunter thought he could perceive a glimmer of true love in her treatment of him. Indeed, so encouraged was he that he asked her to name the day. She did so quite willingly.

Hunter, though not sheering off so far from the truth as to leave it entirely, convinced her that she was living on her own income and when the wedding day was fixed contrived to make her believe that a windfall had come to her property, which would pay for a trousseau. This was especially pleasing to her, for nature has not yet produced a woman who would be indifferent to this accessory to her marriage. Helen made her purchases and went to work with a will in the construction of a wardrobe.

Suddenly there came a thunderclap from a clear sky. Bob Brackett returned from his voyage with a fine sum of prize money, his share of the salvage of a disabled ship that his vessel had towed into port. He burst in upon Helen, not knowing of the change that had come over her, with the news, finishing with the words, "Now, sweetheart, let us be married at once."

When Hunter heard of his rival's return he went to Helen and said to her: "I wish you to consider yourself released and to feel perfectly free to marry the man who has returned to you."

"I have given you my promise," was the reply, "and I will keep it."

But Hunter saw that her heart was not in her words. He asked her to tell him truthfully whether he or the sailor possessed it. She tried to evade the question, but Hunter would not be put off. At last he forced her to tell the truth. Her heart had been given to Brackett, and she was unable, if she would, to take it back again.

Hunter at once withdrew in favor of his rival. With an effort he succeeded in concealing from Helen what a crushing blow had fallen upon him in his loss. One matter puzzled him. Now that another was to be her husband, the fact that Hunter had been supplying her with the wherewithal to live, that he had deceived her in the matter of the windfall for the trousseau, that he held a mortgage on her farm for all it was worth, must come out. How should he break the fact to her?

Hunter was a very sensitive man. He was much broken by his disappointment, and, though he had been resolute in giving up his bride expectant, he was vacillating in the matter of how to let her know that instead of possessing property she was a pauper. Worry made him ill, and he was confined to his bed.

Helen, who, importuned by the sailor, had accepted her release and agreed to marry Brackett before he sailed again, went on with the preparations for a wedding in which there was to be a change of grooms. She seemed to regret the disappointment she had occasioned Hunter, and Brackett in order that her break with his rival should be complete proposed that a transfer of the care of her property should be made to him. Helen reluctantly consented.

Brackett went to see Hunter, whom he found in bed, and asked for an accounting of Helen's estate. Hunter was too ill to invent any more subtleties and was obliged to make a clean breast of the matter. Brackett returned to Helen with the information that she had nothing and that all she had received had been given her by Hunter.

"I believe," added Brackett, "that the fellow has contrived to get your property into his own possession."

Helen looked at him like one dazed. Then suddenly, without a word, she went out and strode rapidly in the direction of Hunter's house. Brackett, who did not know what action she would take, watched her till she had passed out of sight, then went into the house to await developments.

Hunter was lying alone in his misery when suddenly the girl he loved hurried into his room, sank on her knees by his bed, put her arms around him and moaned:

"Forgive me."

Renewed vigor ran through the sick man's weakened body. He sat up, took the girl in his arms, and there were caresses such as had never passed between them before.

"Send some one," she said presently, "to tell him to go away."

An hour later Richard Hunter, walking with a tread that had received a powerful stimulus, appeared at Helen Gorman's home. Brackett, who was awaiting Helen's return, saw him coming. Having left Hunter a short time before ill in bed, he wondered. A dread took possession of him. Hunter came up to him and said:

"I am commissioned by Miss Gorman to tell you that she has come to a final decision between you and me and in my favor."

Brackett was thunderstruck. He made no reply for some time, then said:

"If Miss Gorman will say that to me or write it I will accept it as the truth."

Hunter drew a bit of paper from his pocket and handed it to the sailor. He read it, tore it into bits, turned on his heel and left the house.

On the evening that Hunter married Helen the returned sailor spent the prize money he had brought home in an orgy and the next day went on another voyage.

Dissolve one ounce of sugar of lead in two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, add one pint of water that has been boiled, but must be added after cooling. Use only externally. Don't leave where children can handle it. This is to be rubbed on affected parts.

SOME THEATER BORES.

Haven't you been annoyed at the theater— By the enthusiastic friend who nudged you when there was an especially funny or telling point in the play?

By some one who insisted on telling the plot to a companion while you were listening to the actors on the stage? By the man or woman in front who dodged about so you could scarcely get a glimpse of the stage?

By the criticisms or explanations of some one who had seen the play before? By persons who came bustling in late, making you miss the opening of the play? By the stranger who borrowed your opera glass or insisted on loaning you his or hers against your will?

If there wasn't so much mis-placed confidence there would be fewer breach of promise suits.

About Swimming

Strangely enough man is the only animal to whom swimming does not come natural. Drop a mouse into a bucket of water and he will swim round and round his prison until his strength fails him. Turn a cargo of pigs overboard in midstream and they will strike out lustily for shore. But a man may drown helplessly within full sight of an equally helpless crowd because neither he nor they have thought it worth their while to acquire the simple art of swimming. The reason why we cannot swim, we are sometimes reminded, is because our ape-like ancestors as they swung from branch to branch in the tree-tops did not require to move the arms or the legs together. At all events, be that as it may, to human beings swimming is an art, and it is an art which most healthy boys under proper conditions are anxious to acquire.

Submarines

Submarines have played quite an important part in the naval war as average opinion has expected of them. Some critics nook-pooed them altogether, and others believed that the battleships would have to be sent to the marine stores. With the assistance of mines they have enabled the German fleet to remain safely ensconced in the Kiel Harbor without fear of British raids, which, but for the submarine threat, would certainly have been carried out. Credit must be given the German submarine sailors for their daring. The exploit of entering Deal harbor showed as much nerve as any admiralty could desire. Naturally the British public wonder how far the Germans may be able to go in submarine practice, and they would like to see a bit of retaliation. That will come in good time.

People who had thought themselves safe from all dangers, in the midst of a world devoted to the cause of peace, now find that across a narrow strip of sea a great armed power is gnashing its teeth in untrained Anglophobia, and desiring nothing so much as to cut the throat of the British nation. From a day to day persual of the German press it is quite clear the German hatred for France and Russia is a faint and lukewarm sentiment compared with German hatred for Britain. We have spoiled her time table; we have cut in before she was quite ready to tackle us; and therefore their hatred is two-fold. We have foiled so far, their present plan, but, above all, we are foiling their future plan, which was nothing less than to destroy and supplant the British Empire. Therefore if the Germans could they would work far more terrible havoc in England than they have wrought in poor, harmless, innocent Belgium. The British nation is waking up to the fact of this hatred which sings out cheek, like a blast from hell, across these narrow seas.--Editorial in the London Morning.

Pills for Nervous Troubles.—The stomach is the centre of the nervous system, and when the stomach suspends healthy action the result is manifest in disturbances of the nerves. If allowed to persist, nervous debility, a dangerous ailment, may ensue. The first consideration is to restore the stomach to proper action, and there is no readier remedy for this than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Thousands can attest the virtue of these pills in curing nervous disorders.

A Parable

A correspondent of the Outlook, New York, gives a hard knock to Germany's treatment of Belgium and to Prof. Munsterburg's defence of it in this brief communication:—

"I have a pleasant home and am blessed with stalwart sons and a corps of faithful and efficient servants. Our house is now too small for our growing needs, and I am about to cut openings in the partition wall which separates me from the adjoining house. The house is owned by a delicate widow with one small child. If she remains peaceable I shall allow her to occupy the hall bedroom on the third floor of her home. If she proves disagreeable I shall kill her and her baby and burn her furniture. I am justified in this course of action by a distinguished instructor of youth in one of our largest universities. I feel confident of universal approval."

Useful in Camp.—Explorers, surveyors, prospectors and hunters will find Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil very useful in camp. When the feet and legs are wet and cold it is well to rub them freely with the Oil and the result will be the prevention of pains in the muscles, and should a cut, or confusion, or sprain be sustained, nothing could be better as a dressing or lotion.

Water the Plants

Water house plants thoroughly, but do not keep the pots in saucers filled with water. The saucers are good to keep the water from running through to the floor, but that is all. Apply water until it begins to run through and then stop. Do not water again until the plant needs it. Plants with their tops cut back require less water than those with a large, full top. Remember that flowers can be killed by giving too much water as easily as by not giving enough. As a general rule the temperature of a room in which window plants are growing should not fall below 50 degrees F. at nights nor go above 75 to 80 degrees in the day time.

A 20-ton balanced rock overhangs the village of Thomary in France.

Miller's Worm Powders are a pleasant medicine for worm-infested children, and they will take it without objection. When directions are followed it will not injure the most delicate child, as there is nothing of an injurious nature in its composition. They will speedily rid a child of worms and restore the health of the little sufferers whose vitality has become impaired by the attacks of these internal pests.
