The Viper of Milan.

A ROMANCE OF LOMBARDY. BY MARJORIE BOWEN.

(Continued.) "Heaven save Milan!" he gasped. "Veronica has fallen!" The shouts and the clatter from the courtyard had penetrated faintly to the banquet hall, and Visconti paused a moment, listening. Valentine listened, too, and thought of Conrad. But she noise died away, and Visconti turned to the Duke of Orleans with a laugh. "My soldiers revel in your honor," he said, "and we will drink my sister's health, my lord."

CANADIAN SECURITIES

Opportunity for the Profitable Investment of Millions at Home.

Securities listed on the Canadian stock exchanges, whilst showing effects of the money stringency, have, in comparison with American issues, stood the stress exceptionally well. Owing to the absence of purchasing power in the market, business during the last quarter fell away from the volume of transactions in the first quarter of either 1906 or 1905. The declines in stocks have been gradual and sacrifice offerings have been avoided to a remarkable degree. The average decline in the eight most active stocks since January 1 have been six and one-half points, and the extreme losses in every case are in those stocks which are also listed on the New York exchange. The eight most active stocks during the first three months of this year have been Mackay common, Rio, Twin City, Canada Permanent, Sao Paulo, General Electric, Medical Foods, and Nova Scotia Steel, in order named. The first three and five of the eight, are foreign securities, and transactions in the first three were double those in the other five. This is sufficient proof that many Canadian investors still feel more too kindly towards home securities. The reasons for this attitude are well known, but they are gradually passing away. The country now offers opportunities for the profitable investment of millions of money more than can be supplied, and in going far afield the Canadian investor is apt to overlook the advantages at home. Total dealings in the stock exchange for the first three months of 1905, 1906 and 1907 compare as follows:

First Quarter Ends With Business Ahead of Last Year—Delayed Deliveries the Only Source of Anxiety.

(Toronto Globe). The first quarter of the year ends with no apparent diminution of the volume of business, and with trade generally in advance of last year's corresponding record. The slackening in the demand for textiles and the cancellation of orders owing to high prices or delayed deliveries produced in some quarters a few months ago, has undoubtedly been the largest in years, and the spring season is now daily adding to its volume. The large mail indications point to small stocks throughout the country, mail orders being one of the most prominent features during the past week. So far, however, the industry has improved, and the credit men of the large houses express themselves as satisfied with the outlook.

MARKET SITUATION

(N. Y. Commercial). At the beginning of the second quarter of the year the New York financial market finds itself settling into relatively quiet conditions after one of the most extraordinary experiences in its history. What is needed beyond everything else is a period of rest and recuperation, and in the judgment of many competent observers such a period is at hand—subject, however, to the renewal from time to time of efforts to depress prices in order to the downward movement of the last fortnight. These people would not hesitate to turn the tables in order to roast the pig they have stolen from him.

THE PRESBYTERY

At the quarterly meeting of the St. John Presbytery yesterday, the nineteen articles of faith put forward by a committee as the creed for the union of the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists, were discussed and endorsed as "giving a brief statement of evangelical truth." Graham were appointed to strike standing committees and report at the July meeting. The election of commissioners to the general assembly was held in the afternoon. The following ministers were chosen: Rev. James Ross, Rev. Gordon Dickie, Rev. D. Macdonald, Rev. J. W. McLean, Rev. W. McDonald, Rev. D. Lang and Rev. J. J. McCaskill as substitutes. The following are the elders who were elected: Hon. J. G. Forbes, J. A. Moore, Peter Campbell, with W. C. Whittaker, C. S. Everett and Robert Reid substitutes.

Therefore the publication of an old letter in which Harriman wrote that Roosevelt in 1904 had asked him to raise a campaign fund of $200,000, and had made certain promises to be carried out when the goods were delivered, has called forth a very long and very forceful letter of denial, in which the president says in effect that Harriman's statement was utterly and wilfully false.

The police inspector of Gotham was on the stand.
"Your salary is $3,500?" gently inquired the spokesman of the Graft Committee.
"Yes, sir."
"And out of this you saved $50,000 after living at the rate of $2,500 a month?"
"That's my story."

DISAPPOINTED THEM.

"How are getting along?" asked a traveling man of an acquaintance who had gone on the stage.
"Oh, I have met with a share of success. I played Hamlet for the first time."
"Did you get through all right?"
"Yess, except that I happened to stumble and fall into Ophelia's grave."
"That must have been embarrassing."
"It was; but I wouldn't have minded it if the audience hadn't seemed so disappointed when I got up."

A WOMAN'S STORY.

Once there was a woman who went away to visit. Her relatives and remained a year. Her husband kept bachelor's hall and did his own cooking. When the woman returned home after the long absence she discovered a giant mountain that loomed up from the back yard and overshadowed the house.
"Gracious, John!" she exclaimed in awe.
"What in the world is that?"
John smiled.
"John, madam," he replied, blandly, "is a mountain of dishes. I have been keeping them up there and waiting for you to come home and wash them."
Which goes to show that John was not different from other men who keep bachelor's hall.—Chicago News.

SKETCH OF THE CAREER OF WINSTON CHURCHILL
Who Will Be One of the Interesting Figures in the Imperial Conference of Premiers --- Has Seen Service in Many Wars.

(By Capt. H. S. Scott-Harden.)
The man who will ask more questions and have more to say than anyone else at the forthcoming conference of premiers in London, England, will undoubtedly be Mr. Churchill, the under-secretary of state for the colonies. This brilliant young politician who is not yet thirty-three, is, as everyone knows, the eldest son of the late Lord Randolph Churchill, who married the clever and beautiful Miss Jerome of New York.
Winston Spencer Churchill was brought up in a political atmosphere, and early in life showed signs of following his father's footsteps, for at Harrow and at Sandhurst he developed extraordinary powers of oratory, was brilliant with his pen and always had the courage of his opinions. Winston Churchill entered the army when he was twenty, and soon afterwards his regiment sailed for India. He has lived every day of his life and got every ounce out of his brains. In India he was never idle. When he was not busy with his regimental duties, or playing polo, he used to read and write, and he was equally clever for (he is a first-rate polo player) at work and play. While on leave he journeyed to Cuba with a brother officer and served with the Spanish forces and was awarded a Spanish order of military merit. In 1897 he went to the Indian frontier as a war correspondent and got attached to the Malakand Field Force and was present during several engagements. He soon afterwards published his story of the campaign, his first book, which gave a graphic description of the country and the fighting.
The next year he was appointed orderly officer to Sir William Lockhart and accompanied the commander-in-chief to the Tihah. In this way he became thoroughly acquainted with the Indian army and their movements in the field. During Lord Kitchener's Egyptian campaign Churchill got himself attached to the 21st Lancers, and rode through the Derivahs at the battle of Omdurman, and returned to write "The River War," which was admitted to be one of the best books of the expedition up the Nile and the defeat of the Khalifa.
But it was in South Africa that Churchill really first made his name. Going out as correspondent to The Morning Post, he at once proceeded to Natal, and whilst endeavoring, in the interests of the journal, to represent, to see all he could, he was taken prisoner on the 15th of November at Chieveley, when the armored train was captured. On this occasion Churchill behaved with the greatest gallantry, and there is no doubt that had he been a fighting man instead of a journalist he would have been awarded the Victoria Cross; for, when able to get away, he returned to his comrades amidst a hail of bullets and stood by them to the end. The account of Churchill's escape from Pretoria is a matter of history, but it showed the sort of stuff he was made of, and the pluck he has inherited from his race.
On returning to the seat of war Churchill once more became a fighting man and Marvelous Cancer Cure in Welsh.

Two Welsh peasants have been astonishing England with what seems to be genuine cures of dangerous cases of cancer by methods entirely outside the usual practice of medicine or surgery. The two Welshmen are named Evans, and neither of them make any pretence of understanding medicine. They are brothers, and the older Evans became subject to cancer and the disease made terrible progress in his system. As no medical treatment seemed to help him, they began to study the effects of various simple herbs, and more by accident than any other way, they claim to have found certain herbs that cure many forms of cancer.
Hundreds of sufferers from cancer, lupus and similar diseases have begun to go to Cardigan, Wales, near their home, since the reports of their cures have been printed in the English newspapers. In all cases the treatment is the same, and the Evans brothers have so far not started to make any charges for treating the sick. A liquid or ointment is made by the Evans brothers in the kitchen of their humble cottage, and it is said to come only from fresh herbs. This ointment is painted on the parts infected by the cancer, and then fresh green leaves, bruised by being rolled with a glass bottle on a common kitchen table are pressed over the sores.
These two ordinary, uneducated Welsh peasants are said to have cured cancers which had been given up by the best physicians in England. They have no explanation to offer. Several London specialists are reported to have arranged for some of their patients to take the new treatment, and they will attempt to see if by accident these ignorant men have really made a profound medical discovery of incalculable value to suffering humanity.

QUEBEC MAY BUILD CARS
Promotion of Car Building Discussed by Joint Industrial Committee and Hon. S. N. Parent.

(Quebec Telegraph)
With a view of promoting car building here, the members of the Joint Industrial Committee met last evening at the residence of Hon. S. N. Parent, president of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, and discussed the same yesterday afternoon. The members of the committee present were Aldermen O. W. DeLard, Nap. Drouin, and M. Foley, and Messrs. Ed. Morin, M. D. W. H. Wiggs, Jos. Pharo, Jules Laroche, L. A. Moisan, and the secretary of the committee.
Alderman DeLard laid before him the object of his visit. They wished to know if, in the event of a company being formed in Quebec to manufacture freight cars, with the possibility of later extending its work to cars of other descriptions, the company could rely upon a share of the patronage of the Transcontinental Railway.
Hon. Mr. Parent, in reply, said that he considered that there was a great field for the manufacture of such an industry in Quebec, provided that it was started under the direction of competent men, and he thought that under the conditions it would not possibly be a failure. The proposed factory would, of course, have to have an extensive foundry plant for the manufacture of the iron parts necessary for the construction of the cars. He was of opinion that flat and box cars might be manufactured under exceptionally favorable circumstances owing to the unlimited supply of wood at hand for the purpose. The present car manufacturers of the province are unable to supply the present demand. He mentioned the fact that a few days ago a railway which needed 200 cars was unable to place his order owing to the car builders being too busy. It had taken two months to get the special car of the commission repaired owing to the same cause. He stated that the company in question in Quebec could certainly rely upon a share of the Transcontinental business provided prices and conditions were reasonable. He stated that the route from Montreal to the people who employ with the Transcontinental, as with other companies, it was a matter of dollars and cents. He regretted that the members of the Joint Industrial Committee on their excellent project and strongly counselled them to carry it out immediately by organizing a company to manufacture cars. Letters patent should be secured and the work of subscribing the necessary capital started at once. He thought that the capital would not be necessary to start with, as the company would only engage in the manufacture of freight cars, and capital could be increased when they undertook the construction of passenger and other cars. He assured the committee that they could rely upon the support of the province on the south shore as well as the C. P. R. The demand for freight cars was increasing, and every day more and more cars were being bound to do for many years to come.

SOCIALISM IN AUSTRALIA
It Is Said to Be the Principal Issue in the Politics of that Country.

Walker Duthie, M. P., of Sydney, Australia, in a recent interview, gave an interesting statement concerning socialism in the politics of the commonwealth. We quote from the interview:
"The principal issue in Australia today may be said to be Socialism against anti-socialism. The labor party stands for collective ownership of all the means of production, distribution and exchange, but this was modified at the general election into the nationalization of monopolies. There is no doubt as to the ultimate purpose in view, however. The declaration was made long ago that they would not be satisfied until they had made collective property of every knitting needle and every laying beam in the country."
"Do you think such a policy practicable in Australia?"
"Oh, no! I don't for a moment suppose the people would tolerate such extremes. The election proved conclusively that, notwithstanding their splendid electoral majority, the labor party have not in their favor, the labor party gained nothing. The political machinery of the Australian labor party is about as perfect as anything that has been devised. The labor candidates are required to sign a pledge in which they bind themselves to advocate all the measures named in the declaration. They are also pledged to abide by the decision of the party caucus in all matters of policy. The party is bound to consult over the details of each measure submitted to parliament, and after the question has been discussed the minority are obliged to accept the views of the majority. No liberty of action is allowed to the individual. In fact, the idea is to annihilate individualism in everything."
"One of the effects of the Socialist propaganda has been that there is much bitterness of feeling between employers and employed, for naturally employers have little liking for men whose avowed purpose is to deprive them of their property."
"How do you account for the low price of Australian securities in the London market at the present time? Is the country in a prosperous condition?"
"Australia is very prosperous. It is not the fear of bad times that are affecting the stocks. It is the misgivings that exist with regard to the Socialist doctrine. The labor party was badly beaten in the senate elections, but there seems to be a fear in England that they will get on the top of the heap by and bye. This is in fact the reason why they are so nervous. I do not think they ever will, because as people acquire property, their socialist prejudices seem to lose strength, but the thing is a menace to the public well, a noxious growth that many of us would like to see plucked out root and branch."
"Sneak thieves were busy about the city on Monday night, and visited the houses of T. D. Widder, on Duke street, and H. C. Tilly, on Germain. Nothing of any account was taken, but citizens are said to be in future to see that their lower windows are closed and fastened and nothing left unprotected."
"It has been reported for about three weeks that the New Brunswick Southern has passed into the hands of Col. H. H. McLean, who, however, when asked, declined to treat the matter seriously. The rumor revives the old story that the C. P. R. is after the road."

Times Classified Ads Pay BILL TO AID RAILWAYS PASSES HOUSE 21 TO 10

FREDERICTON, April 2.—When the house resumed this afternoon the debate was continued on Mr. Tweeddale's resolution in opposition to the New Brunswick Land and Railway Company's bill, and asking for legislation which would perpetuate to the people who comply with the game laws the right to hunt on all forest lands of the province. The matter was discussed by Messrs. Whitehead, Pugsley and Hazen, and Mr. Tweeddale withdrew his resolution.
Hon. Mr. Pugsley in answer to Mr. Maxwell's enquiry said: The enquiry consists of two parts. In answer to the first part—Has the government made any reply to the Temperance Federation regarding the introduction of a prohibitory law into the province of New Brunswick? I might say, no; but a further explanation is necessary. The communication from the Temperance Federation was addressed to the government, while Mr. Tweeddale was premier and had not been disposed when he became governor. Since the matter came into my hands we have been very busy but have given the question a great deal of consideration. It is one that honorable gentlemen will realize cannot be determined off-hand which requires the greatest consideration. In dealing with such a question the government would require to be sure that the legislation suggested would be of a permanent character. We have not given an answer to the Temperance Federation, but I trust we will be able to do so shortly, perhaps not before the close of the session, but very soon afterwards.
Regarding the second part of the enquiry touching complaints against the provincial commissioners and inspectors of St. John I would say that no complaints have been made to the government respecting the inspector or commissioners of St. John. The government have received several petitions asking that the provisions of the act of last year should be carried out but there have been no complaints of violations of the law. At a very important meeting at which the Temperance Federation and other temperance bodies were represented reference was made to the law not being vigorously enforced, but no complaint was made to the government. Had any such complaint been made it would have received the most careful attention.
The house went into committee on the bill to give aid to certain railways. Hon. Mr. Pugsley explained that he had a section to add to sub-section 1 for the protection of the province, the effect of which would be that if the C. N. R. should utilize one of its subsidiary companies to build this road the C. N. R. must either enter into direct covenant with the crown to pay the principal and interest on the bonds guaranteed or lease the line for 99 years at a rental sufficient to pay interest on the bonds at 4 per cent. This refers to the St. John River Valley Railway.
The premier then took up the question of the International Railway and explained that the amount of bonds to be guaranteed on this road would be $8,000 a mile.
Premier Pugsley explained the further provisions of the bill and voiced his belief that the International Railway would speedily become a paying proposition.
Mr. Hazen, William Currie, Hon. Geo. J. Hill, Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Hon. Mr. LaBillette, Mr. Maxwell, Mr. Grimmer, Mr. Smith, Mr. Burns, and Mr. Tweeddale continued the debate. The bill was then carried by the following vote:
Yes—Hon. Messrs Pugsley, Robinson, Sweeney, LaBillette, Parris, Jones, Messrs. King, Copp, Scott, Murray, Campbell, Burden, Currie, Ruddick, Tweeddale, Robertson, Burns, Young, Burgess, Leger, Martin—21.
Nays—Hill, Hazen, Flemming, Smith, Grimmer, Morrisey, Glasier, Maxwell, Harris, Morrison—10.

Smith, of Victoria Temple, addressing the young men of the section, said that not only was the section pledge useful in making sober men but also as a recommendation in obtaining a situation. S. E. Bricktop and the Twins Catch a Burglar

(By Helena Davis.) Mr. and Mrs. Perkins decided to make a visit out of town, leaving Bricktop in charge of the house. Of course, Maggie, the maid of all work, would be there to look after the housekeeping end, but the real responsibility of the place would rest on the shoulders of Bricktop, to be assisted by The Twins.

“Sure, I’m afraid we’ll have trouble here while your pa and ma’s away. I’m afraid of burglars.” Then, feeling the importance of her startling words, which made The Twins’ eyes open and Bricktop down his coffee cup, Maggie drew herself aside and leaned against the wall, looking first at one child and then at another, watching the effect of her communication. “Yes, sir,” she nodded emphatically, “burglars!”

“But why do you fear such?” asked Bricktop, now busy with his breakfast. He thought Maggie an excitable Irish girl whose fears could have no foundation. “Well, you all see, it’s this way,” said Maggie, coming a bit closer to the table. “Last night as I was returning from the ball, where I’d bin with my friend Lizzie—Smith’s cook, you know—was comin’ in by our back gate—I had the kitchen door key, you recollect—when Lizzie says to me, ‘Hist, there’s a man creepin’ up to your house as sure as Satan’s a sin house. Gosh, it was that scared I most dropped in my tracks, an’ I give a little scream. Then the man—fur I see him with my own eyes a creepin’ toward our kitchen door—turned an’ run as fast as his feet could carry him right round the house and out at the front gate.’

“Well, Kiddies,” said Bricktop, “I guess everything is going to run along smoothly during papa’s and mamma’s absence. When they come home they’ll find the barnyard and its inhabitants clean and thriving. And I’m sure the house will be in apple-pie order since you young ladies are so superintending.”

“And none in the back, either,” declared Maggie. “I done cleaned it all away early yesterday morning. But I’m glad you see the tracks for yourself, Master Brick. You’ll know I’m not tellin’ no yarn out of my head.”

“No, you saw the man all right,” admitted Bricktop. “Well, we’ll be on the lookout tonight—in fact, every night—I’ll show myself again.”

“May we help you, brother?” asked Bricktop to question her. “Well,” she replied at Bricktop’s inquiry, “I went down to see my friend Lizzie and to talk over the grand ball this afternoon. After a little while Lizzie says to me of a sudden, ‘Say, they had a burglar at Albright’s that night of the ball. An’ I’ll bet he was the same scamp what we seen in the back yard of the Perkinses.’ Then she goes on to say ‘at Mr. Albright followed the foot tracks in the snow to old Mrs. Peter’s house. He didn’t do nothin’, for he had no proods, for the burglar got away before they got out of bed. He had chum in at the kitchen window and the noise waked up Mrs. Albright,’ who hollered out ‘Who’s there?’ So away went the burglar lickety-split. ‘But it’s pretty certain ‘at it’s old Mrs. Peter’s grandson Nick.’

QUEENS OF ENGLAND

Isabella, of France, queen consort of Edward II, was born in France in the year 1295. She was the eleventh queen of England, counting from the Norman conquest, and with but one exception was of a higher rank than had ever been espoused by a king of England, her father being Philip le Bel, King of France, and her mother, Jeanne, being Queen of Navarre.

WISE OLD GREY TAIL BY MAUD WALKER.

Old Grey Tail sat on a limb near to the door of his house. It was a round little door, just big enough for Old Grey Tail to get through. It led into a big tree, whose interior was quite hollow to quite a depth. At the bottom of the hollow place which was Old Grey Tail's home, there was a fine store of nuts which Old Grey Tail had put there early in the fall.

“Why didn't you lend some of your winter's supply to Mrs. Brown Fur?” asked Old Grey Tail, turning a keen eye on Master Gay. “Well, to confess the truth,” said Master Gay, lightly and laughingly, “I have just about enough to run me through the winter. And I've got to eat judiciously at that or I'll find myself in the same straits that our lady friend and her family are in—that is to say, short of feed.”

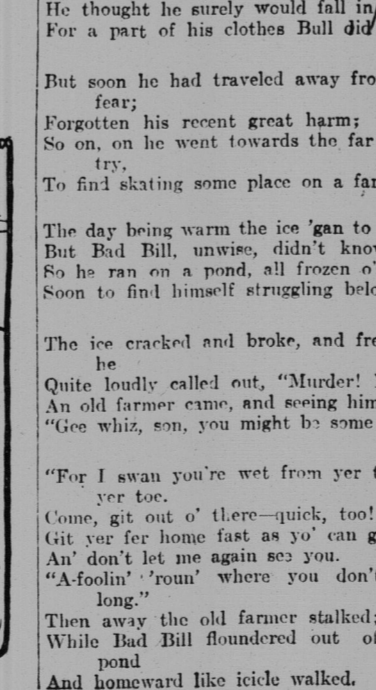

LITTLE BAD BILL.

Little Bad Bill was naughty, you know; Played hockey from school one day; Hid round the corner when the play was; Then skipped off alone for a prying.

LITTLE BAD BILL.

I'm not for a jolly good time, d'ntcher know; But I don't like playing alone; Bad Bill ran away for life's sake; He thought he surely would fall in a fit; For a part of his clothes Bad Bill did take.

and could not get his mind on his studies where there had been a terrible accident. Nothing could induce the fellow to return to the mine to work since then, and for several months he had been out of work save as Mrs. Perkins would employ him now and then about the barnyard and garden.

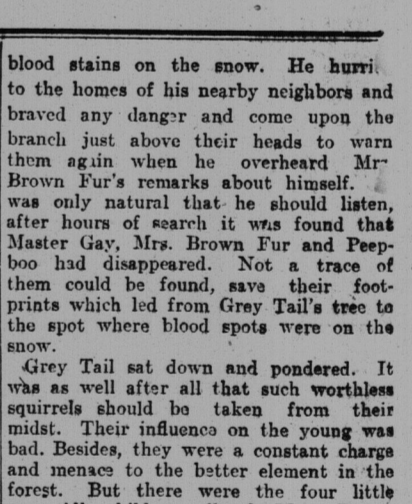

“Say, Kiddies,” said Bricktop, laying down his book and addressing The Twins, “I’ve a mind to go on and have a private talk with Nick Peters. I’ll just tell him what charges are laid at his door, only waiting for proof to convict him of burglary, or attempted burglary. What you think of it?”

“You’re the best friend, ‘cept granny ever had. Forso God, I promise to never—never the least anything again, nor ever to let it come into my head. You’ve made me honest by your kindness to me.”

in’ the truth. Granny an’ I hasn’t had nuthin’ ter eat for two days ‘cept some ole scraps I found in a barrel behind Albright’s house last night. Don’t, Al, don’t have me took. What would become of old granny?”

Then passed half an hour’s conversation between them. The Twins busy the year while packing a basket with food. Everything Brick said to Nick that night was never forgotten by the poor fellow, who had been on the very verge of ruin. He could scarcely understand the enormity of the crime of entering other people’s houses to steal. He only knew that his old granny was ill and hungry, and that he could not get work; he was so unfortun’ to cope with the world.

“You’re the best friend, ‘cept granny ever had. Forso God, I promise to never—never the least anything again, nor ever to let it come into my head. You’ve made me honest by your kindness to me.”

AN OLD TIME TRAGEDY

Details of the Doyle Murder Which Occurred on November 2nd 1873 as Told in An Old Issue of the Daily Telegraph.

The following description of the Doyle murder, referred to in last Saturday's Times, is taken from a long article which appeared in the Daily Telegraph on Monday morning, November 3, 1873—the day after the tragedy occurred.

Shortly before the murder occurred, Doyle and his wife were seen to cross Germain street from the direction of Queen Square, the woman clasping her husband's arm with both hands. Few persons were in the vicinity, and they attracted little attention until the shooting had taken place.

Particulars of the tragedy were furnished by Miss Maud Anderson, who was returning from Trinity Sunday school at the time, and Henry Harvey, both of whom were eye-witnesses.

Doyle and his wife had crossed the street opposite Dr. Preston's house, on Queen street, when, without any movement or warning that could be observed, while the woman was anxiously conversing with him, the woman heard a pistol shot. Both stopped, and the woman threw up one hand, still clinging to the man's arm with the other, when he disengaged himself and pushed her back with both hands. She had been tottering before he thrust her away, and when he pushed her she fell to the sidewalk on her back and side, with her head bent backward some what, after which she did not move, the shot having had a deadly effect. Harvey, who had witnessed the tragedy from a window, rushed to the street. Doyle placed the pistol to his breast and fired, but the shot had not the desired effect, for he stood for a few moments, then hastily laid himself down, and after looking again at his murdered victim, placed the pistol to his head and pulled the trigger, but the cartridge failed to explode. Again he cocked the weapon and placing it near the right ear, fired, the shot taking sufficient effect to produce apparent insensibility.

It all occurred so quickly that Harvey had not time to cross the street until all was over. He quickly summoned Dr. Preston, who hastened to the scene in his dressing gown. The news spread rapidly and in an incredibly short time policemen, doctors, Coroner Earle, and a large crowd of citizens had assembled.

The man was taken to Dr. Preston's office, and thence to the hospital in a wagon procured from George Stockford. The dead woman was removed to the coach house near Dr. Preston's home. Only a few persons were allowed to enter and view the body, and the crowd was kept out by Police Sergeant Ryder and Policeman McKenzie, who kept the gates closed.

None could recognize the woman, who is described as tall, rather slight, with light brown hair, and rather prepossessing in appearance. Her face was thin and wore an expression of pain. She wore a dark stuff dress, dark brownish colored shawl. She had a white cloud around her neck, and wore high pruned boots—in fact was well and tastefully dressed. The wedding ring was taken charge of by the coroner, and the body was taken, later, to the dead house.

Meantime Miss Anderson, overcome by what she had seen, fainted, while on her way home, and was taken into Mr. Henry's residence and later assisted to her home. It was rumored that she also had been shot.

The work of identification was at once begun, and investigation revealed the fact that they had occupied room 82 in the Barnes Hotel, whither they were driven on the night before the tragedy by Robert Blackall and registered as "John F. Doyle and wife, Boston." It was also evident that jealousy of his wife had caused Doyle to commit the crime.

Doyle's wounds were examined at the hospital by Drs. Bartheaux and Earle. The murderer and suicide regained consciousness, but would not discuss the matter beyond the statement that it was his wife's fault. Doyle died on the morning of November 4, at 12:40 o'clock.

The body of Mrs. Doyle was sent to her brother, Wm. Hicks, Napanee, Ontario; the casket having been furnished by Mr. N. Powers. Doyle's remains were interred in the Alms House burial ground.

The inquest on the body of Mary (Carroll) Doyle was commenced on Tuesday, November 4, at 2 o'clock, before Coroner Earle. The jurors were Elias R. Lawrence, Simon Jones, Jas. W. Lancaster, John Welch, Samuel Smith, Charles Clarke, and W. K. Dimock. The witnesses were Henry Harvey, Frederick A. Jones, Robert Ritchie, Miss Zara Maud Anderson, Clarence Barnes and Dr. James Christie.

The jury brought in a verdict of death from shooting.

The inquest on Doyle was held in the hospital, also before Coroner Earle. The jurors were Robert Carson, Walter B. Lyons, Samuel Smith, Andrew McEvoy, James Duke, Abram E. Munde, and John Winter.

The witnesses were Henry Harvey, Zara Maud Anderson and Dr. Bartheaux.

The jury returned a verdict of suicide.

Doyle was a native of River John, N. S., and his wife was born in Napanee, Ontario.

Another paper of the same date says that the affair was not witnessed by more than half a dozen persons: Mrs. Harvey and her son; Thos. Ritchie and Mr. Partridge; and Miss Anderson. The same paper states that Dr. Bayard was on the scene shortly after the tragedy was enacted.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Samuel Miller
Mrs. Samuel Miller, a respected resident of Baywater, died just before midnight last night, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Miller was 55 years of age, and had been ailing for about eighteen months, although it was only recently that her nose became sufficiently serious to confine her to her bed.

The deceased lady, who numbered a large circle of friends, and who was held in high esteem by all, was twice married. Her first husband being the late Thomas Southern, by whom she leaves one son, William Southern, in Providence, R. I. Her second husband, who survives her, is Samuel Miller, of Baywater, and by him she leaves one daughter, Miss Gertrude Miller, and two sons, Charles and Edgar Miller, all residing at Baywater. The sorrowing husband and family have the sincere sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock on Friday afternoon from her late residence at Baywater.

Mrs. Elizabeth Clarkson
The death occurred this morning at 4 o'clock of Mrs. Elizabeth Clarkson, wife of John R. Clarkson, of Lancaster Heights. Heart trouble was the cause of death. Besides her husband the deceased is survived by three sons and one brother.

WEDDED IN BOSTON

Miss Estelle Gleason of This City Becomes Mrs. Rodney MacDonough.

The Boston Herald of April 2 publishes an excellent picture of Mrs. Rodney MacDonough formerly Miss Estelle Gleason of this city with the following account of her wedding: When the friends of Rodney MacDonough heard yesterday of his marriage they looked upon it as an April fool joke. For Mr. MacDonough has for years measured up to all the requirements of the confirmed bachelor.

The bride is Miss Estelle Gleason, a charming girl from St. John, who has been living at Young's Hotel. She is a sister of Mr. F. K. Smith of East Boston.

Mr. MacDonough is a grandson of the famous old Commodore MacDonough, for whom one of the swiftest torpedo boat destroyers in the navy was named. He is well known as a clubman, being a member of the Algonquin and the City clubs and the Society of the American Revolution.

Mrs. MacDonough has made many friends since she came to Boston, and all day yesterday she was busy receiving congratulations over the telephone.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonough will live at 84 Huntington avenue.

THE NORTH END BAZAAR

The bazaar in Union Hall last night was well patronized. Great interest was taken in the voting contest. Ald. McGoldrick, as an exponent of the ward system, was slight ahead of Ald. Vanart, the representative opposing the system, at the end of the evening. All sorts of guesses were made in the guessing contest, in which those present were asked to guess the circulation figures of the four city dailies for the eight days of the fair, and a year's subscription to the prize.

Last night Miss Alice Campbell won the door prize, a cake box; at the nine pins R. Mackay won a pair of slippers, and Miss Andrews won a similar prize in the ladies' air gun contest. The men's air gun prize, a razor, was won by St. Clair McKel.

The Carleton Cornet Band furnished the music.

SEAMEN'S MISSION

At the adjourned annual meeting of the Seamen's Mission last night reports were handed in. It was decided that the mission will be closed for four months after the completion of the winter port season when the manager, S. L. Gorbill will take a vacation.

As the mission has to vacate the old Chipman house May 1, a small committee was appointed to look about for suitable quarters in case the institute is not successful in buying a building or starting the erection of one.

Manager Gorbill said in his report the total receipts of the institution in 1899 were $2,679.40, and that the expenditures were $2,637.13. Balance $22.27.

TAKEN TO ASYLUM

Charles Humphrey of Fairville was placed in the Provincial Hospital by Policeman Lawson, about 9:20 o'clock last night. The patient is not more than twenty-four years old and his case is a particularly sad one. He is a son of Matthew Humphrey and has been employed by A. P. Barnhill.

He was sent to jail a short time ago for begging, but was released at the solicitation of his father and taken home.

Last night he showed unmistakable signs of violent insanity. Policeman Lawson was called and took him to the lock-up and thence to the asylum.

When in prison some fifteen days ago, Humphrey gave evidence of insanity, the mania having displayed itself in a desire to take human life.
