Horrible Fate Of Yukon Party.

Net Death Sailing Down River on a Scow. Huge Jam Below Narrows—Walls of Ice 15 to 20 Feet High.

DAWSON CITY, April 3.—Geo. H. Finnegan, a woodman on the lower river, is in Dawson on business, and brings a detailed description of the ice trap which probably carried to death and destruction the entire Sinclair party of Dawsonites on Jan. 26 last.

Mr. Finnegan's description of conditions at the jam, of the jam half broken, narrowed the river into a current, ending in a vast maelstrom which sucked down vast cakes of ice, is vivid and striking. He said:

"Had the devil and all his imp enlisted all the powers of nature to construct and maintain an absolutely invincible death-trap, he could not have done better than at Cliff creek just prior to the arrival there of the Dawson party in their scow."

"I and a party of choppers camped on the scene the night of January 27, and so diabolically perfect was the natural trap we explored it thoroughly by daylight."

"Let me describe it to you if I can for I and my companions at that time remarked that never had we seen anything so deathlike, so invincible, so certain. Nothing made by man could have survived had it been caught anywhere within three miles of the last end of the trap."

"Let me explain, then, that at Cliff creek the Yukon narrows. Along about January 20th, I should judge, there had been a terrible jam just below the narrows. The ice had been caught and piled up further and further up the river, reaching finally to a point three miles above the narrows. I speak of. Then this collision of ice had given way, but not the real jam, the accumulated ice and water finding an outlet under the centre of the jam."

"The result was diabolical. We explored every inch. Here is what any boat would find in passing down the river. Three miles above the jam it would be observed that the river commenced rapidly to narrow; sheer walls of ice fifteen to twenty feet high, had appeared, the current flowing steadily between. Not a thing to indicate that the death trap had been entered and that death was now as certain as if the axe had fallen. Gradually, without a break, the walls pinched together, in the form of an elongated V. like Miles Canyon, only indefinitely worse, for men had been known to climb out of the canyon, but nothing could land in that V-trap and climb out. Nor would there be any indication of the terrible danger ahead—none whatever, for the appearance was as if some jam had given way and gone down river, leaving a lane of open water. The bend at the narrows concealed everything, and even diverted the ominous sounds. Gradually the water grew swifter and the V got narrower. Evidently the towering ice walls were grounded and absolutely confined the water. When I stood on top of that chasm in the ice and looked down at the foaming waters, it was like looking down a well."

"The last mile of the trap rushed like a millrace. Natural canyons are nothing in comparison. The V ended at the jam proper, in a whirlpool 60 feet across. Into this whirlpool the crazy current dashed and went down. Vast cakes of ice ran into it with the speed of a railway train, upended in an instant, and passed beneath the jam to reappear in three-quarters of a mile all churned into the finest of mush. The whole river dashed beneath the jam at that point and nothing afloat could have hesitated an instant in taking the inevitable plunge."

"Not a thing struck the jam for the whirlpool could not be crossed. In fact, it was not a whirlpool, but a hole in the river, down which everything rushed with a frightful velocity."

Even the water when it reappeared beyond the jam, was just foam.

"I don't know that the Sinclair party met its fate there—nobody knows. This I know. If that scow entered that gorge three miles above the pool, it went down that hole in the water with every soul aboard. Not a dog could have escaped. The party left Dawson on January 26th, and the indications were that the conditions I saw had been the same for several days. I knew of no wreck when I was there, but myself and companions were struck with the infernal ingenuity with which nature had fashioned that death-trap, and remarked it and explored it. A steamer would have gone down that hole in the water just as certainly. Nothing could have stemmed the current, made fast to the icy sides of the gorge or have made a landing on top of it."

Damp Spring Weather Ruinous To Health

Causes Weakness, Headaches and Feeling of Unrest; the Cure is Simple.

That peculiar weakness so common in the spring, is demoralizing to body and mind alike.

Stupid, absent-minded and dull.—You feel the need of a stimulating tonic. To impart quickness and great vitality to the entire system nothing acts like Ferrozene.

In a short time it makes you feel fit and fine, creates a feeling of youth and strength that's surprising.

Ferrozene revives and braces the sickly because it nourishes and builds up the organs that are weak. As a spring tonic appetizer and blood-strengthening it is unequalled.

A well known resident of Utopia, Ont., Mr. H. H. Postle, writes: "From long experience I am convinced that everyone requires medicine in the spring. As a rule the blood is thin and impure and the whole system is congested with poisons that should be carried off. I use Ferrozene because it clears up the system, gives you an appetite and makes you sleep well. One winter I had serious palpitation of the heart, nervous headaches, and an extreme tired feeling. Sleep was not restful and by spring I was in bad shape. I took six boxes of Ferrozene and was made the picture of health."

Ferrozene makes permanent cures. Absolutely safe because it is purely vegetable and contains no alcohol. Concentrated cure in tablet form.—that's Ferrozene 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

Local paragraphs give the information that a representative Baptist denomination presented the wife of a withdrawing minister with a set of diamonds. Despatches the other day intimated that a version of the Methodist Book of discipline was near at hand, with the possibility that dancing and cards would no longer be under the extreme ban of members of that denomination. Laws for the better observance of the Lord's day are under project for the Canadian parliament. There is, therefore, still ground for belief that the average of worldliness may be legally retained. CHATHAM EN FETE FOR BISHOP BARRY.

Town Gala With Bunting to Celebrate Prelate's Return From Rome.

Long Procession of Civic Officials, Clergy and Citizens March to Pro-Cathedral (Where Addresses and Purse is Presented to His Lordship

CHATHAM, N. B., April 4.—Chatham signalled the return of Bishop Barry from Rome at noon today by a great display of bunting. The reception committee met the party at Chatham Junction, and the order of the long procession from the depot to the pro-cathedral, where his lordship was received by Rev. Father O'Keef, with the marshals, Citizens Band, mayor and aldermen, reception committee, Bishop Barry and his secretary, Rev. Dr. Louis O'Leary, clergymen of the diocese, and citizens. Upon arriving at the pro-cathedral, his lordship addressed a few words to the people.

The pro-cathedral was tastefully and appropriately decorated with the Bishop's colors—yellow, white and purple—and its seating capacity was taxed to its utmost when James Desmond presented to his lordship a purse containing a large sum of money in gold, accompanied by a hearty and eloquent address of welcome, read by Dr. Cox and signed by Judge Connors and Dr. Cox on behalf of the congregation.

His lordship expressed his pleasure in again being home, and referred to his two audiences, one in November, the other in March, with the Pope. The success of his mission to Rome and to the loss the church had sustained and his personal loss in the death of Archbishop O'Brien, of Halifax.

He thanked the congregation for their very generous contribution, and said he could only accept it on the same condition on which he had just accepted a similar gift from the clergymen of the diocese, namely, that he be allowed to hand it over to the new cathedral building committee to be used in the work of erecting the new cathedral.

His lordship then imparted the papal blessing, after which there was Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, when the Te Deum was sung.

Among the visiting clergymen in the sanctuary were Vicar-General Pelletier, of St. Louis, Kent county, the oldest clergymen in the diocese; Monsignor Richard, of Rogersville; Rev. Dr. Henry O'Leary, of Bathurst; Father Stanislaus Doucet, of Shippegan, and Rev. Father Cronley of Bathurst.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. ### TO MAKE SPAIN AN ISLAND.

An extraordinary scheme is being planned by France, one that if carried out, will give her a great commercial and naval advantage. This is the plan of building an immense canal to connect the Atlantic and the Mediterranean ports without subjecting itself to the guns of Gibraltar. The canal exists already for canal boats and small coasters. To enlarge it for war ships and merchantmen is no mere dream. Since 1878 "the canal of the two seas" has been fully planned by engineers. Three parliamentary commissions have made estimates upon it and now M. Gauthier, minister of public works, has sent his own commission to make final studies of the scheme. Its conclusions are to be submitted to the lower house for action. To complete this enormous work eight years will be required, and the cost is estimated at a minimum of $160,000,000. But about the new canal there will be two features of more than passing interest. One of these will be the fact that locomotives will be used for towing the huge vessels through the canal. The other is that instead of ordinary locks it is suggested that ship elevators be employed. This device consists of two huge metallic basins. Imagine one at the top of its lock, the other at the bottom. An ascending ship is towed into the upper basin. The weights are almost counterbalanced. To make the upper basin descend and lift the lower one by its superior weight in descending it will be necessary only to turn an extra quantity of water into it. The principle is that of the old-fashioned lock. The improvement will consist of saving time and water.

TWO ACCIDENTS ON THE I. C. R.

Wilbur's Special Smashed up at Humphrey's—Run-off Near Harcourt.

MONCTON, April 4.—Two accidents took place yesterday on the I. C. R. The first, a smash in Con. Wilbur's freight special at Humphrey's Mills, resulted in considerable damage to a number of cars, while the second, the run-off of Con. Card's special at Harcourt, was not attended by serious consequences.
The accident at Humphrey's occurred in the early morning hours, but it was not until afternoon that the line was cleared. Some shunting was being done, when the train parted and a minute later the two sections crashed together. A couple of cars of coal were smashed and the rest spilled and other cars more or less damaged. An auxiliary was sent out and the damage repaired.
Late yesterday afternoon three or four cars on Con. Card's east bound special left the rails near Harcourt, occasioning a bad mixup, resulting in a blockade of the road till after midnight. The run-off occurred about four or five o'clock, and the auxiliary crew was sent out from Moncton to the scene. No person was injured seriously, but Con. Card and Brakeman Hatchey were pretty badly shaken up. The cars were considerably damaged and the track torn up. The Maritime express for Montreal was delayed about two hours and a half by the blockade. The line was clear this morning and the track repaired. Driver Geo. Stone was in the cab.

EASTERN CANADIAN MAGAZINE.

The distinguishing feature of the Eastern Canadian Magazine is a series of pictures in colour representing scenes from the life of "The Man of Newbride" as depicted by such great artists as Guido Reni, Murillo, Veronese, Rubens, Van Dyck, H. J. Hunt and Blakeley. Accompanying this is an article on the work of a Canadian artist, Mr. F. S. Challenger, some of whose pictures are also printed in colour. There is an exhaustive article on the Grand Trunk Pacific, with a map of the route, pictures of the directors, and photographs from the country through which this new transcontinental road will pass. This article also discusses the difficulties and possibilities of the road and other pertinent details. G. M. L. Brown contributes a travel article on "The Orinoco," the great Venezuela river, which is described as a "wasted waterway." This is profusely illustrated. The celebrity of the month is Mr. W. D. Lighthall of Montreal. Mr. E. C. Drury gives in very forcible language the farmer's view of the tariff policy which Canada should pursue. There are stories by W. A. Fraser, Herman Whitson and Mrs. Campbell Praed, Marjorie Jones and Marie Merrill. The departments are well illustrated and full of readable material. The special cover is attractive.

April Magazine

The April Designer is full of the tidings of spring's approach, not only with dainty apparel for women and young folks, but with fiction, verse and illustrations particularly appropriate for the time of year. Easter brides will find designs for wedding toilettes and for pretty lingerie for the trousseau, and a special article shows how to arrange the bridal veil. Advance suggestions and photographs of spring hats will also prove useful. Easter in Moravia, by Julia Davis Chandler; Making Easter Novelties, by Winnifred Fales, and Butterflies by Craig S. Thoms are three charmingly illustrated articles, and a snappy story, the milk of human kindness by Ada Marie Peck, has Easter for its keynote. Among the decidedly practical contributions this month are Amateur Collections, by Mary Kelsey; The Utility House-Cleaner, in In The Interest of Bread Winning series, by Bertha Hasbrook; What to do With Leisure Hours, in Our American daughters, by Bertha Gaud; Making a Becoming Bonnet, by Amy Hunt Coulhard, and Making Lingerie Blouses, under Points on Dress-making.

REDUCED A HARD SWELLING.
Mr. Gas E. Groux, writing from Pembroke, tells how he was injured in a lumber camp. "A heavy log rolled against my leg and I was laid up with stiffness and a hard swelling. When I applied Polson's Nerve-Liniment I got relief. A few rubbings with this good liniment cured me." In the bush, Nerve-Liniment is indispensable; it cures neuralgia, colds, rheumatism and internal disorders too. No person can afford to be without Nerve-Liniment. Useful for all internal pain. ### YES—THEY ARE.

We have talked so strongly about "Fruit-a-tives" being a liver tonic, and curing Constipation and Biliousness, that some may think they are not for anything else. Well, they are. "Fruit-a-tives" are a grand, good tonic for the whole system. One "Fruit-a-tives" tablet three times a day, makes rich, red blood and firm flesh. The same daily treatment and a sensible diet takes away dyspepsia and gives you sound digestion, and good appetite. "Fruit-a-tives" clear the skin of pimples and blotches—make the complexion fresh and rosy. Get "Fruit-a-tives"—take them the right way—and see how you improve.
50c. a box. At all druggists.

NEWCASTLE, APRIL 11, 1906.

THE CIVIC ELECTION.

Before the next issue of The Advocate will have reached our readers the electors of our Town will have been called upon to decide who is to represent them at the Council Board during the ensuing year.

Only a few score days are left within which prospective candidates may file their papers.

Among the Aldermen there seems to be a very great apathy for office. Several of them declare their intention of dropping out entirely, while more are busy trying to get others to run in their stead. They complain of the unthankful positions in which they are placed and do not care longer to be made, as it were, targets for unreasonable factions. Some complain of the unjust criticisms hurled against them by persons who are either pessimistic, or culpably ignorant of the facts and circumstances. We regret exceedingly that the columns of The Advocate should in any way be the cause of some of our best men refusing longer to serve the town interests at the Council Board. Our censure, if censure you may call it, was directed purely at those who had failed to do their duty as the representatives of the people, and no one will doubt that there is some such in office at present.

It is a notorious fact that some committees have been entirely negligent in their town duties; and work which should have been complete months ago is not yet begun. But the chairman of one committee cannot be held responsible because the chairman of some other Committee has failed to discharge the duties imposed upon him.

We trust, therefore, that our good men will not now desert the barque and render it a derelict, and that the electorate will seize upon the present opportunity to place at the Council Board men who, from experience and character, are best capable and most liable to fulfil the duties imposed upon them and not to allow petty personal prejudices and private favor to stand in the way of public advancement and public good. They have it in their power, and we trust they will exercise it, to see that the business of the town shall be conducted along business lines. To do this they should withhold their support from any candidate for municipal honors who does not enjoy the confidence and respect of the people generally, and bestow it upon those who are qualified by experience to watch over the people's interests. They should not re-elect to office any alderman who has proved himself unworthy of the trust confided in him, but direct their sympathy and support to the candidates who have the welfare of the Town most at heart and who are best capable of looking after it.

Ladies and Gentlemen, Electors of the Town of Newcastle respond to the call, come forth and do your duty as citizen.

A PUBLIC NUISANCE.

The spring is coming. The white carpet is rapidly vanishing beneath the blazing April sun; the days grow longer; the ice yields upon the shore of the river, the waters rise and cover it and soon it will break its chains and rush forward to find a grave in the briny ocean. The birds are beginning to show themselves and warble in the trees during the bright sunny mornings and all Nature is proclaiming in one prolonged shout that "Spring is coming."

And while our migratory birds sit and warble in the branches above a migratory crowd of idlers assemble at the bases of the trees in the most public places in our Town, while others select for a leaning post, a more firm support—the Post Office. This beautiful stone structure has every day more of idlers who apparently have no better occupation and no more respect for the travelling public than squirts tobacco juice about the street. Ladies in particular have ample reasons for complaining of this form of vulgarity among many of our citizens while, to men who do not make this improper use of tobacco the sight is equally disgusting.

The sidewalk around the post office is literally covered with tobacco juice while the gang about add to the salivary flood from their too responsive organs.

To render even more abominable this inhuman practice, the language of many of these carbuncle generals has certainly not been distilled from any eternal fluid. Indeed it often would do credit to the potentate of great sulphur pit.

Here and there, too, as if to add variety to the scene, one not infrequently finds a drunken man attempting to hold dialogue with any person whom he can hail and who would probably be able to advance him a dime with which to procure another drink.

We trust that it will only be necessary to call the attention of the Town Police to these gentlemen of leisure to have the evil remedied and the corners cleared. In St. John and other cities there is a bye law prohibiting spitting on the public streets. It might not be amiss for the chairman of the bye laws committee to introduce a bye law to that effect here. It would prove a blessing to many and an injury to none.

In the appointment of John E. T. Lindon, to the Office of Town Clerk the Council made a wise choice. Mr. Lindon is a very popular and a most brilliant accountant, and we feel will discharge with dignity to himself and credit to the Town the responsibilities imposed upon him. He is the son of John Lindon, the section foreman on the I. C. R. here and has been for a number of years in the employ of Mr. Manny.

THE VACANT SENATORSHIPS.

There is no doubt that Premier Laurier has laid his plans for the appointment of a Frenchman to one of the two vacant seats in the Senate for this Province and would no doubt have carried them into effect before now had not unforeseen difficulties supervened. It was thought that Hon. Mr. Costigan had been provided for, it appears he is not satisfied, and some scheme must be devised to prevent him from returning to his first love. When this matured the coast will be partially cleared. Several Frenchmen are named as having strong claims and no little effort it is said has been put forth in respect of each. Mr. LeBlanc, of Kent, has left no stone unturned to secure the coveted vacancy. It would be very difficult to show any well founded claims that he or his friends could present. It is true that he was for many years a member of the local Legislature, but he was nothing more than a voting machine. His voice was never heard in the Assembly nor has it been nor will it ever be, heard in Parliament.

Whatever personal efforts he has put forth in his legislative capacity, and they are not few, have been in the interest of Mr. LaBlanc. Hon. C. H. LaBillon is a man of very different stamp. He has been an active and useful member of the House and of the Government for over 15 years, has identified himself with its various measures and has besides initiated and successfully carried through measures of much importance. He is a fluent and ready speaker in both languages and can impress his views with much force and clearness in either. He would bring new life and vigor to the Senate of which it stands very much in need. In the administration of his office as Chief Commissioner of Public Works he has proved himself not only a capable administrator but an officer who can conduct public affairs without partiality, dishonesty or selfishness. If a Frenchman is to be appointed on his merit we feel assured that Sir Wilfrid will make no mistake either as regards himself or the public interest in giving that seat to the Hon. C. H. LaBillon.—Tribune.

Ladies and Gentlemen, Electors of the Town of Newcastle respond to the call, come forth and do your duty as citizen.

THE SUNDAY OBSERVANCE BILL

TORONTO, April 5.—At a meeting of the parliamentary committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, held yesterday, it was decided to make a strong representation to the Minister of Justice regarding the Lord's Day Alliance bill, which Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick has introduced in the House of Commons. It was felt no legislation should be passed which would prevent the operation on Sundays of blast furnaces, etc. It was also considered the Minister of Justice should strike out from his bill any clause restricting the running of freight trains carrying perishable and export freight.

IMPROVEMENTS AT CREAGHAN'S STORE

Many Changes Made Which add to Appearance of Store.

The J. D. Creaghan Co's Newcastle store has been undergoing extensive alterations for the past two months and now is a much improved and enlarged premises. The ground floor has been enlarged by the removal of the hallway to the second story and the walls and ceiling are covered with steel. The floors are all of hardwood. The first floor will be devoted to dry goods of all classes. The office which is spacious and neat is to the rear, commanding a view of the entire floor. Silent salesmen are expected this week which will add to the appearance of this floor. The second floor is not yet completed, but when finished will contain a gentlemen's clothing department, a ladies fitting department, with carpet rooms, etc. When all these alterations are made the Creaghan Co's store here will be one of the finest in the province.

Train Despatches Now Here.

First Move in Making Newcastle a Divisional Point Inaugurated.

District Superintendent Price and Chief Despatcher Bray of Campbellton were here on Monday inaugurating a despatchers office here. It is the intention of the officials to have despatchers here handle the Fredericton Branch as well as a portion of the work on the main line. A temporary board has been set up but we understand that the upper story of the depot here is to be converted into suitable quarters. Despatchers Ingram of Campbellton and McNutt and McCarron of Fredericton and Hutchison of Moncton, are at present on duty here, despatcher Ingram having the first duty which commenced yesterday. We trust this is the first move in making Newcastle a divisional point. T. V. Toner now of Campbellton will return to Campbellton.

CANADA'S REVENUE OVER $57,000,000

Ottawa, April 6—(Special)—Canada's revenue for the nine months of the fiscal year ended March last shows a total of $57,013,582, an increase of $5,354,794 over the same time last year. The ordinary expenditure was $41,705,380 an increase of $2,986,015. The capital expenditure was $9,146,337, an increase of $751,308. All classes of revenue shows large increases. In the expenditures bounties show an increase of about $400,000 and railways an increase of over $1,000,000. There was a decrease of about $600,000 in subsidies. For the month of March there was an increase in the revenue of $1,329,000 and an increase in the expenditure of $1,315,032. There was a decrease in the expenditure of capital account.

CENTRAL ROUTE IS FAVORED ONE

Will cost less to Build and Open up Fine Country for Settlement.

Ottawa, April 6th.—A return presented to parliament to-night contained the report of Mr. Lumsden, to chief engineer of the transcontinental railway, on the proposed two routes in New Brunswick. On April 29, 1905, Mr. Lumsden reported that the back route was seventeen miles shorter than the river route. The section between Grand Falls and Edmundston was common to both routes.

On the back route the final location line will be shorter than the preliminary by at least six miles, whereas the location would lengthen the river route, say five miles, making the back route twenty-eight miles shorter than the river route. The difference in bridging and minor structures would be very great. The river route crosses the St. John river twice, calling for 2,000 feet of bridge, and as it also crosses all the lateral drainage of the country close to the St. John river, all the minor structures would be larger and more costly than on the back line. The earth work would be lighter on the back route as compared with the river route. The difference in cost would not be less than $1,500,000.

OBITUARY.

MRS. SARAH ACTKINS
Mrs. Sarah Actkins of Whiteville on March 26th passed calmly and peacefully away to that rest which remains for the people of God. In her demise the Church of which she was a member has sustained a loss for she was an active member in all things pertaining to the welfare of the Church, being Superintendent of the Sabbath School for a number of years. As a neighbor, she was kind and considerate in sickness, always willing to aid and alleviate distress so far as laid in her power. Her remains were laid to rest in the Presbyterian Cemetery, Whiteville, followed by a large cortege of relatives and friends showing the esteem in which she had been held by all with whom she was acquainted. Deceased was 77 years of age. She leaves a number of children and grandchildren to mourn the loss of a loving and affectionate mother.

MURDER IN WESTMINSTER.

A crime of mysterious character was committed last night at 16 Godolphin street, one of the old fashioned and secluded rows of eighteenth century houses which lie between the river and the abbey, almost in the shadow of the great tower of the houses of parliament. This small but select mansion has been inhabited for some years by Mr. Eduardo Lucas, well known in society circles both on account of his charming personality and because he has the well deserved reputation of being one of the best amateur tennis players in the country. Mr. Lucas is an unmarried man, thirty-four years of age, and his establishment consists of Mrs. Fringle, an elderly housekeeper, and of Milton, his valet. The former retires early and sleeps at the top of the house. The valet was out for the evening, visiting a friend in Hammer-smith. From a check against Mr. Lucas had the house to himself. What occurred during that time has not yet transpired, but at a quarter to twelve Constable Barrett, passing near Godolphin street, observed that the door of No. 16 was ajar. He knocked, but received no answer. Perceiving a light in the front room, he advanced into the passage and again knocked, but without reply. He then pushed open the door and entered. The room was in a state of wild disorder, the furniture being all swept to one side and one chair lying on its back in the center. Beside this chair and still grasping one of its legs lay the unfortunate tenant of the house. He had been stabbed to the heart and must have died instantly. The knife with which the crime had been committed was a curved Indian dagger, blued down from a trophy of oriental arms which adorned one of the walls. Robbery does not appear to have been the motive of the crime, for there had been no attempt to remove the valuable contents of the room. Mr. Eduardo Lucas was so well known and popular that his violent and mysterious fate will arouse painful interest and intense sympathy in a wide circle of friends.

"Well, Watson, what do you make of this?" asked Holmes after a long pause.

"It is an amazing coincidence."

"A coincidence? Here is one of the three men whom we had named as possible actors in this drama, and he meets a violent death during the very hours when we know that that drama was being enacted. The odds are enormous against its being coincidence. No figures could express them. No, my dear Watson, the two events were connected—must be connected. It is for us to find the connection."

"But now the official police must know all."

"Not at all. They know all they see at Godolphin street. They know—and shall know—nothing of Whitehall terrace. Only we know both events and can trace the relation between them. There is one obvious point which would in any case have turned my suspicions toward Lucas. Godolphin street, Westminster, is only a few minutes' walk from Whitehall terrace. The other secret agents whom I have named live in the extreme west end. It was easier, therefore, for Lucas than for the others to establish a connection or receive a message from the European secretary's household—a small thing, and yet it may prove essential. Hello! What have we here?"

Mrs. Hilda Trelawney Hope, with a lady's curl upon her silver, Holmes glanced at it, raised his eyebrows and handed it over to me.

"Ask Lady Hilda Trelawney Hope if she will be kind enough to step up," said he.

A moment later our modest apartment, already distinguished that morning, was further honored by the entrance of the most lovely woman in London. I had often heard of the beauty of the youngest daughter of the Duke of Helminster, but no description of it had prepared me for the subtle, delicate charm and the beautiful coloring of that exquisite head. And as we saw it that autumn morning it was not its beauty which would be the first thing to impress the observer. The cheek was lovely, but it was paled with emotion; the eyes were bright, but it was the brightness of fever; the sensitive mouth was tight and drawn in an effort after self command. Terror—its beauty—was what sprang first to my eye.

"Has my husband been here, Mr. Holmes?"

"Yes, madam, he has been here."

"Mr. Holmes, I implore you not to tell him that I came here." Holmes bowed and motioned her to a chair.

"Your ladyship places me in a very delicate position. I beg that you will sit down and tell me what you desire, but I fear that I cannot make any unconditional promise."

"I swept across the room and seated myself with her back to the window. There was a queenly presence—tall, graceful and intensely womanly."

"Mr. Holmes," she said, and her gloved hands clasped and unclasped as she spoke. "I will speak frankly to you in the hopes that it may give you a complete confidence between my husband and me on all matters of importance. That one is political. On this subject I am silent. He tells me nothing. Now, I am aware that there was a most deplorable occurrence in our household last night. I know that a paper had been pushed. But because the matter is of such a delicate nature, I refuse to tell you into his complete confidence. Now, it is essential—essential, I say—that I should thoroughly understand it. You are the only other person, save only these politicians, who knows the facts. I beg you then, Mr. Holmes, tell me exactly what has happened and what it will lead to. Tell me all, Mr. Holmes. Let me regard your own interests and keep you silent for I know you that you will not, if I would only see it, would be best served by taking me into his complete confidence. What was this paper which was stolen?"

"Madam, what you ask me is really impossible."

"She groaned and sank her face in her hands."

"You must see that this is so, madam. If your husband thinks fit to keep you in the dark over this matter, is it for me, who have only learned the true facts under the pledge of professional secrecy, to tell what he has withheld? It is not fair to ask it. It is his own whom you must ask."

"I have asked him. I came to you as a last resource. But without your telling me anything definite, Mr. Holmes, you may do a great service if you would enlighten me on one point."

"What is it, madam?"

"Is my husband's political career likely to suffer through this incident?"

"Well, madam, unless it is set right it may certainly have a very unfortunate effect."

"Ah!" She drew in her breath sharply, as one whose doubts are resolved.

"One more question, Mr. Holmes. From an expression which my husband dropped in the first shock of this disaster I understood that terrible public consequences might arise from the loss of this document."

"If he said so I certainly cannot deny it."

"Of what nature are they?"

"Nay, madam; there again you ask me more than I can possibly answer."

"Then I will take up no more of your time. I cannot blame you, Mr. Holmes, for having refused to speak more freely, and you on your side will not, I am sure, think the worse of me because I desire, even against his will, to share my husband's anxieties. Once more I beg that you will say nothing of my visit."

She looked back at us from the door, and I had a last impression of that beautiful, haunted face, the startled eyes and the drawn mouth. Then she was gone.

"Now, Watson, the fair sex is your department," said Holmes, with a smile, when the drizzling front door of skirts had ended in the slam of the front door. "What was the fair lady's game? What did she really want?"

"Surely her own statement is clear and her anxiety very natural."

"Hum! Think of her appearance, Watson—her restlessness, her eagerness in asking questions. Remember that she comes of a caste who do not lightly show emotion."

"She was certainly much moved."

"Remember also the curious earnestness with which she assured us that it was best for her husband that she should know all. What did she mean by that? And you must have observed, Watson, how she maneuvered to have the light at her back. She did not wish us to read her expression."

"Yes, she chose the one chair in the room."

"And yet the motives of women are so inscrutable. You remember the woman at Margate whom I suspected for the same reason. No powder on her nose—that proved to be the correct solution. How can you build on such a quicksand? Their most trivial action may mean volumes, or the most extraordinary conduct may depend upon a hairpin or a curling tong. Good morning, Watson."

"You are off?"

"Yes, I will write away the morning at Godolphin street with our friends of the regular establishment. With Eduardo Lucas lies the solution of our problem, though I must admit that I have not an inkling as to what form it may take. It is a capital mistake to theorize in advance of the facts. Do you stay on guard, my good Watson, and receive any fresh visitors. I'll join you at lunch if I am able."

All that day and the next and next Mr. Holmes was in a mood which his friends would call taciturn and others morose. He ran out and ran in, smoked incessantly, played snatches on his violin, sank into reveries, devoured sandwiches at irregular hours and hardly answered the casual questions which I put to him. It was evident to me that things were not going well with him or his quest. He would say nothing of the case, and it was from the papers that I learned the particulars of the inquest and the arrest, with the subsequent release of John Milton, the valet of the deceased. The coroner's jury brought in the obvious "willful murder," but the parties remained as unknown as ever. No motive was suggested. The room was full of articles of value, but none had been taken. The dead man's papers had not been tampered with. They were carefully examined and showed that he was a keen student of international politics, an indefatigable and a remarkable linguist and an untiring letter writer. He had been on intimate terms with the leading politicians of several countries, but nothing of national was discussed among the elements which filled his drawers. As to his relations with women, they appeared to have been promiscuous, but perfect. He had many acquaintances among them, but few friends, and one whom he had known since his regular, his conduct inoffensive.

death was an absolute mystery and likely to remain so.

As to the arrest of John Milton, the valet, it was a council of despair as an alternative to absolute inaction. But no case could be sustained against him. He had visited friends in Hammer-smith that night. The alibi was complete. It is true that he started home at an hour which should have brought him to Westminster before the time when the crime was discovered, but his own explanation that he had walked part of the way seemed probable enough in view of the fitness of the night. He had actually arrived at 12 o'clock and appeared to be overwhelmed by the unexpected tragedy. He had always been on good terms with his master. Several of the dead man's possessions, notably a small case of razors, had been found in the valet's boxes, but he explained that they had been presents from the deceased, and the housekeeper was able to corroborate the story. Milton had been in Lucas' employment for three years. It was noticeable that Lucas did not take Milton on the continent with him. Sometimes he visited Paris for three months on end, but Milton was left in charge of the Godolphin street house. As to the housekeeper, she heard nothing on the night of the crime. If her master had a visitor he had himself admitted him.

So for three mornings the mystery remained, so far as I could follow it in the papers. If Holmes knew more, he kept his own counsel, but as he told me that Inspector Lestrade had been brought into his confidence in the case I knew that he was in close touch with every development. Upon the fourth day there appeared a long telegram from Paris which seemed to solve the whole question.

"A discovery which has just been made by the Parisian police," said the Daily Telegraph, "which raises the veil which hangs round the tragic fate of Mr. Eduardo Lucas, who met his death by violence last Monday night in Godolphin street, Westminster. Our readers will remember that the deceased gentleman was found stabbed in his room and that some suspicion attached to his valet, but that the case broke down on an alibi. Yesterday a lady, who has been known as Mme. Henri Fournaye, occupying a small villa in the Rue Austerlitz, was reported to the authorities by her servants as being insane. An examination showed she had indeed developed mania of a dangerous and permanent form. On inquiry the police have discovered that Mme. Henri Fournaye only returned from a journey on Tuesday last, and there is evidence to connect her with the crime at Westminster. A comparison of photographs has proved conclusively that M. Henri Fournaye and Eduardo Lucas were really one and the same person and that the deceased had for some reason lived a double life in London and Paris. Mme. Fournaye, who is of creole origin, is of an extremely excitable nature and has suffered in the past from attacks of jealousy which have amounted to frenzy. It is conjectured that it was in one of these that she committed the terrible crime which has caused such a sensation in London. Her movements upon the Monday night have not yet been traced, but it is undoubted that a woman answering to her description attracted much attention at Charing Cross station on Tuesday morning by the wildness of her appearance and the violence of her gestures. It is probable, therefore, that the crime was either committed when insane or that its immediate effect was to drive the unhappy woman out of her mind. At present she is unable to give any coherent account of the past, and the doctors hold out no hopes of the re-establishment of her reason. There is evidence that a woman, who might have been Mme. Fournaye, was seen for some hours upon Monday night watching the house in Godolphin street."

"What do you think of that, Holmes?"

"I had read the account aloud to him while he finished his breakfast."

"My dear Watson," said he as he rose from the table and paced up and down the room, "you are most long suffering, but if I have told you nothing in the last three days it is because there is nothing to tell. Even now this report from Paris does not help us much."

"Surely it is final as regards the man's death?"

"The man's death is a mere incident, a trivial episode, in comparison with the great task, which is to trace this man's movements. Only one important thing has happened in the last three days, and that is that nothing has happened. I have not slept almost hourly from the moment that it is certain that no more news is there any sign of trouble. Now, if this letter were loose, it would be loose—but if it isn't loose, how can it be? Who has it? Who is it? It is a question that has been in my brain like a hammer. I am, indeed, a collector of clues. I must meet his death on the night that his letter disappeared. But the question is, how can I find it? If I find it, I can solve the mystery of it, and I can solve the mystery of it, and I can solve the mystery of it."

"French police having their suspicions on the subject. It is a case, my dear Watson, where the law is as dangerous to us as the criminal. Every man's hand is against us, and yet the interests at stake are colossal. Should I bring it to a successful conclusion it will certainly represent the crowning glory of my career. Ah, here is my hat from the front!" He glanced at the note which had been handed in. "Hello! Lestrade seems to have observed something of interest. Put on your hat, Watson, and we will sit down together to Westminster."

It was my first visit to the scene of the crime—a high, dingy, narrow cheaped house, prim, formal and solid, like the century which gave it birth. Lestrade's building features gazed out at us from the front window, and he greeted us warmly when a big constable had opened the door and let us in. The room into which we were shown was that in which the crime had been committed, but no trace of it now remained save an ugly, irregular stain upon the carpet. This carpet was a small square drugged in the center of the room, surrounded by a broad expanse of beautiful, old fashioned wood flooring in square blocks highly polished. Over the fireplace was a magnificent trophy of weapons, one of which had been used on that tragic night. In the window was a sumptuous writing desk, and every detail of the apartment, the pictures, the rugs and the hangings, all pointed to a taste which was luxurious to the verge of effeminacy.

"Seen the Paris news?" asked Lestrade.

Holmes nodded.

"Our French friends seem to have touched the spot this time. No doubt it's just as they say. She knocked at the door—surprise visit, I guess, for he kept his life in water tight compartments—he let her in, couldn't keep her in the street. She told him how she had traced him, reproached him; one thing led to another, and then with that dagger so handy the end soon came. It wasn't all done in an instant, though, for these chairs were all swept over yonder, and he had one in his hand as he had tried to hold her off with it. We've got it all clear as if we had seen it."

Holmes raised his eyebrows.

"And yet you have sent for me?"

"Ah, yes, that's another matter; a mere trifle, but the sort of thing you take an interest in—queer, you know, and what you might call freakish. It has nothing to do with the main fact—can't have, on the face of it."

"What is it, then?"

"Well, you know, after a crime of this sort we are very careful to keep things in their position. Nothing has been moved. Officer in charge here day and night. This morning, as the man was buried and the investigation over—so far as this room is concerned—we thought we could tidy up a bit. This carpet—you see, it is not fastened down, only just laid there. We had occasion to raise it. We found—"

"Yes? You found?"

"Holmes' face grew tense with anxiety."

P. H. Heine past grand master of the Orange Order of N. B. will visit the local Lodge No. 47 next Monday evening. On this occasion Mr. Heine will present the Lodge with an Alter of his own construction. The members of No. 47 are making preparation for a social evening. Empire and True Blue Lodge's are to be invited and members are to be allowed to bring a friend if they wish.

A curious case of alleged infanticide has been reported by the police. Some short time ago a well known character became the mother of what would appear to be an illegitimate child. A few days ago the infant was reported missing, but nothing serious was thought of it as it is not uncommon for children of this type to be handed over by the mother to the Indians to be cared for. The case was reported to the police, however, and officer Gallish went in search and found the remains of an infant in a heap of dirt near the house of the woman's father. The Coroner was immediately notified and later the remains were removed to Mr. Malby's undertaking shop. Dr. Desmond at once decided to hold an inquest and a Coroner's jury was summoned and sworn. The investigation was then adjourned until Wednesday at three o'clock, p. m. to take place at the Police Court in the Town Hall. In the meantime doctors will examine the remains.

Mr. David Miller of London, England, president of Mr. Miller's Tanning Extract Co., is here looking over the site of the new back factory, soon to be rebuilt in Millerton. He is the guest of his nephew Mr. J. W. Miller.

A new French paper will make its appearance this week. Mr. Chas. Greville of Montreal is the Editor and Andrew Ross, the publisher. The want of such a journal has been long felt by the French residents of New Brunswick, Lunenburg, Fredericton, and the Gaspe counties and the publishers have frequently been approached with reference to the publication of such a journal. After interviewing many prominent residents of this territory and carefully inquiring into the matter we have decided to commence publication. The paper will appear at present as a four page six column journal, but will be enlarged, and other improvements made as business warrants. Branch offices will be open at Bathurst and Campbellton, and at a number of Gaspe coast points.

G. N. O'Neil, Manager for the Singer Sewing Machine Co. here, has been promoted to the position of Manager of Company's office in Montreal. Although Mr. O'Neil has been in the employ of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. for a year and a half, he has charge of their largest store in the Maritime Western division. Mr. J. Buote, will succeed Mr. O'Neil in the management of the office here.

"PROTECTION vs. FREE TRADE"—Which?

An all-important question, truly, but TO YOU the PROTECTION AFFORDED by the Canada Life Policies is of greater urgency. None Better; Few, if any, Quite as Good.

PROTECTION against Accidents and Sickness is another subject of vital importance. The Imperial Guarantee and Accident Insurance Company issues, without exception, The Best Policy on the Market. It will pay you to look into it. All being well, I intend being in Newcastle two days every week hereafter (oftener if necessary) and shall be delighted to give you information on the above matters, or anything connected with Insurance of any kind, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE. A postal will bring me to you. ERNEST SCOTT PEACOCK, Everything in Insurance. Law Chambers, Chatham, N. B.
