THEY ARE ALL DEAD

Dr. Jose Congosto Says No Reconcentrados Are Left.

He Claims There Was No Sufficient Reason for the Surrender of Santiago.

Among the passengers who arrived in New York on the steamer City of Washington, from Favana, were Dr. Jose Congosto and Capt. Fred Sharp, of the Merritt & Chapman Wrecking Company.

Dr. Congosto said: "The evacuation of Cuba by Spain is a matter of time, but when I left Havana everything was progressing well. I do not care to enter into all the reasons for the delay, but one of the principal causes is the fact that we have over 6,000 sick, who must be taken care of, and cannot be left behind.

"The problem of the future of the sland is a difficult one, and I have studied it without prejudice, and as a result of this study of years, I believe that it is a social problem and not a political one. Of course poli-tics will enter into the solution, but the great question is how to bring the most prosperity and the greatest happiness to the people of Cuba. It is probable that there will be a large wick voted on the question, but it is emigration to the island, and this emigration may assist in solving the prob-lem. Of course, a difficulty will be that cast on previous occasions, as met in view of the dangers of fever and the climate."

condition of the reconcentrados. "There are no reconcentrados now," enormous majorities against in Monhe answered with a smile, next question "They're gone."

"Where?"

"God knows," was the reply. "Do you mean to say they are all "That probably explains it bette than I can. It is a subject which prefer not to discuss." When asked as to the establishmen of a new navy for Spain, Dr. Congosto said: "Spain is still a great country and she ought to have a great navyand probably will."

Discussing the fall of Santiago and the surrender of Gen. Toral, Dr. Con gosto said: "There were brave soldiers at Santiago, and if their leade lacked courage he deserves to be punished. Santiago should not have fallen as it did, and if Toral had no entered into negotiations with the enemy it is likely that there would have been a different story to tell today. It is not true that the Spanish army there lacked supplies and ammunition, for they had plenty of both, which they turned over to the Americans. If Toral had pushed forward instead of retreating toward the city, he certainly would have caused a repulse. There are things which he will have to explain."

STORMS AT SEA

Steamer and Schooner Encounter Heavy Gales-Captain Nordland Drowned.

Port Townsend, Wash., Sept. 30.-The steamship Faralon has arrived from H Lynn Canal ports, bringing 70 passengers from various sections of Southwestern Alaska.

Sept. 26 the Faralon picked up the wreck of the schooner Capella on Sea-forth Channel, and towed her to Bella Della. The Capella sailed from Seat-tle for Wrangel, and on Sept. 20, when 300 miles of Cape Flattery, a heavy gale was encountered. The lit-tle schooner's boats and passengers were carried away, and Capt. James Nordland was washed overboard and drowned.

H. Linso, a sailor, was struck by a boom, and had several ribs broken. When the schooner was picked up she was in a waterlogged and all the supplies aboard were

Little Gordon Farrow Has an Arm Torn Off.

Was Struck by a Yard Engine at the Burwell Street Orossing-Fatal Result Feared.

The Burwell street crossing of the G. T. R. was the scene of a serious accident last night, by which little Gordon Farrow, the 9-year-old son of Mr. John M. Farrow, railway mail clerk, may lose his life.

How the accident happened is somewhat of a mystery, but it appears that Gordon, with another small companion, was playing in the vicinity of the crossing, and was running across the track, when a yard engine struck him. The force of the blow tore the lad's arm from the shoulder.

The attention of the watchman was attracted by the agonized cries of the little fellow, who lay in a heap on the track. He was removed to the Maltland street shanty, where everything possible was done to relieve his sufferings until the arrival of the ambulance and Dr. Drake. The lad was then removed to the hospital, and the attendant staff held out little hopes for his recovery. But the boy rested quietly last night, and this morning it is thought that his recovery is probable

A GOOD MAN GONE.

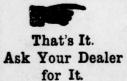

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 30.-Col. Joseph M. Bennett, a philanthropist, died yesterday morning at his home in this city, of Bright's disease, aged 82 years. Col. Bennett began his work of philanthropy in 1880, when he donoted 40 acres, in what is now a section of Fairmont Park, valued at $400,000, for the erection of the Methodist Orphanage, and afterwards contributed largely to its support. He also donated valuable properties to the University of Pennsylvania, the Deaf and Dumb Institute and the Methodist Deaconesses. His property is said to be worth $3,000,000, and it is estimated that Col. Bennett's charity amounted to $1,000,000.

A Dundas Street Barber Describes a Dramatic Scene.

Says Tuttle Had a Knife With Which He Threatened to Attack Emerson.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON,

When the court resumed after lunch the room was filled to overflowing, every available inch of standing room being taken up, and women, unable to secure seats, occupied the steps leading to the judge's room and crowded into the aisles. Then the doors were closed and no more admitted. This had the effect of filling the corridors outside, and young men and boys climbed up on the window-sills and stood on chairs, eagerly endeavoring to get a look at the prisoner. During the afternoon the prisoner's baby daughter was brought into the court by lady friends. She was clad in snowy white garments, and wore a pretty little bonnet which enhanced the beauty of the little face, and she smiled knowingly the instant she set eyes on her father. The child was carried to the back of the prisoner's dock, where she leaned over, patted her father on the head, and with a winning smile called "Papa! papa!" The eyes of all in court, not even excepting those of the judge and jury, were turned towards the little one, who seemed to be endeavoring to cheer her father's drooping spirits. Mrs. Emerson has the sympathy of all who know anything about her heartbreaking trouble. Those who know her best say that as a faithful and loving wife she has no superior. Mrs. Emer-son, in her professional career, has times repeated the lines: "A woman's place is by her husband's side, no matter where that may be," and her life is a practical illustration of the sentiment

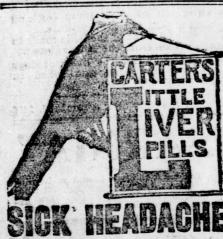

BECHER FURNESS.

Examined by Mr. Hyde, witness said ne was on the stage of the Music Hall on the night of the shooting. He had seen Tuttle come on the stage by the east door. Emerson was walking up and down the stage, with his hands on his hips; Tuttle approached, and Emerson said he wanted his money. Tuttle said the coming Sunday was pay day, according to me arrangements, and he could be seen any time. Emerson then refused to go on with the play unless his salary were paid Tuttle then advanced and dealt Emerson a blow on the mouth. The prisoner went back about three feet and the next instant there was a shot and a flash from Emerson's direction. Emerson said he did it in self-defense, and asked that an officer be sent for, as he wanted to give himself up. Witness, in the meantime, went to Tuttle, who lay bleeding on the floor. Emerson at the time was, he thought a little excited.

Cross-examined by Mr. Johnston, vitness said he was certain as to the ength of time that lapsed from the was struck until the blow shot was fired. He admitted the blow was a heavy one, as Tuttle was a big man, and dealt the blow while very angry. Behind Tuttle, to the best of recollection, stood Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Booth. The shot might, so far as he knew, hit Mrs. Emerson or Mrs. Booth had it not struck Tuttle. He would not swear just how far away Emerson was from Tuttle when the shot was fired. Mr. Johnston cornered the witness as to the lapse of time between the blow and the flash, witness said about three Referring again to the disseconds. tance between Emerson and Tuttle, because he could not remember. witness said Tuttle was quite close enough to have struck another blow, if he had wanted to. After the shooting witness looked at the table, but could not say whether anything was missing therefrom or not. He would swear positively that the words used by Emerson after he shot Tuttle were: "Gentlemen, you see I did this in self-defense." These words were spoken directly afterwards. When asked as to Emerson's dress on the night in question, the witness was somewhat befogged, and said, if he remembered correctly, Emerson wore a black hat, black coat, top boots, with a belt around his waist. He would not be sure of the top boots, and was informed by prisoner's coun-sel that there seemed to be a great deal he knew very little about.

CHARLES G. DREW

was a member of the Wesley Stock Company, joining the troupe at Brantford, where he put up at the American Hotel, kept by James Tuttle's father. He played at Tilsonburg, returned to Brantford, and then came to Lon-Gon. On Friday, April 1, he was on the stage at the Music Hall when Tuttle came up to see Emerson. Witness knew there was a table set for a breakfast scene, but could not say what was on it beyond knives and forks. He had seen Tuttle come on the stage, when he said to Emerson, "Do you want to see me?" Prisoner "Yes," and then told Mr. Tuttle that he would not go on if he did not get his money. Then Tuttle said, "Then you will not get it." Tuttle said,

He had about recovered when the flash came, and he said, "You see, I did it in self-defense." The flash appeared to come from Emerson's right hand, which was at his hip. The table we's slightly disarranged, as though it ad been pulled. Cross-examined by prisoner's counsel, Mr. Drew said he knew of ne reason for the blow which Tuttle gav. Emerson, and which was dealt without warning. He would say that it was a knock-out blow; he afterwards saw blood running from prisoner's lips. After dealing the blow, Tuttle took a step backward toward the table. He appeared to be in the act of approaching Mr. Emerson a second time when the shot was fired, and Tuttle fropped to the floor. Witness acknowledged that the lapse of time generally could not be judged with accuracy, as everybody was more or less excited. When the shot was fired, Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Booth were a little behind Tuttle, and were in a dangerous position. Re-examined by Mr. Heyd, witness still adhered to his statement that Tuttle appeared to be in the act of going towards Emerson when the latter fired.

stage carpenter of the Brantford Opera House, said he was property man of the Wesley Company. He was present on the occasion when Emerson, in conversation, spoke of how revolvers were used in the United States navy. Emerson said the eye war riveted on the object mark, and the re-volver held in the hand. While thus held, the barrel of the pictol pointed to the same mark as that upon which the eye rested. Witness had seen Wesley pay the two nights' salary to Mr. Emerson and Mr. Booth, but this did not satisfy Emerson. Wesley did not satisfy Emerson. then sent witness down to the box office to tell Tuttle. Witness stayed down stairs and Tuttle went up stairs to see Emerson.

Mr. Johnston then asked the witness, who was talking about the shooting in the navy on the occasion referred to, whether it was Emerson, or a general talk. Witness-A general talk. All the boys were talking about it. A moment after the witness corrected the statement, and said only Emer-son was talking of shooting. When asked regarding it, witness said: "I let it slip out." Mr. Johnston-Are you in the habit of doing that?

"Sometimes," replied the witness,

"especially when one gets up here."
"And sometimes the truth slips out?" queried the prisoner's counsel. "Sometimes it does," answered the

Q .- Were not all the boys talking about the shooting? Which is the truth? A .- Now, I can't tell which is the truth. (Laughter.) When asked about the audience, Lee said they were very noisy, and hissed the piano player. There was a revolver used in "The Octoroon," but Mrs. Emerson, he said, carried it. The revolver was produced, but witness said it was not the property of

JOHN WEAVER.

John Weaver, a stage hand, was on the stage when Wesley sent Lee for Tuttle. He saw Emerson walking up and down. When Tuttle came up witness heard Emerson ask Tuttle for his salary to date. Witness described the shooting, and said when Tuttle fell he did not strike nor did he touch the table. When Tuttle struck Emerson, witness got scared, he said, and ran out. The table was disarranged by the

In the cross-examination by Mr. Johnston, witness admitted that his recollection of the occurrences on the night of April 1 was a little befogged, and when asked to state positively whether or not Tuttle touched the table he admitted that he could not say, Witness swore positively that he did not see the flash. Mr. Johnston then read from the evidence which Weaver had given at the coroner's inquest, which witness had signed as correct, where he had said he saw the flash and heard the report.

Q-And this was given the day after the occurrence? A .- Yes. Q .- If it was true then, it is true now? A .- Yes, sir.

Q.-Then you would not like to swear that your memory regarding these things is correct, because you may be mistaken in many of the things you have said? Witness admitted that it would not be well to rely on his memory.

GEORGE GRISMAN. George Grisman, Adelaide street. & helper on the stage, went over practically the same ground as the other witnesses. He saw Emerson and Tuttle talking over money matters, when the latter struck Emerson. Immediately after the blow, witness saw Tuttle's left hand on the table, and his right hand raised up. He turned to go out when the men came to blows, and did not look at either again until the shot was fired. Mr. Johnston, in his cross-examination, failed to alter materially Grisman's testimony. Witness said he remembered the occurrences as well now as he did the day after, at the coroner's inquest.

P. C. EGELTON was on duty in front of the Music Hall on the night of the murder, and went up when he was informed of the affair He passed along to the dressing-rooms and was met by Emerson, who said: "I had to do this. I had to do something to protect myself." Witness took him back to the dressing-room. When in the act of searching the prisoner, he pointed to the revolver and said: 'There it is." The revolver was produced, and witness recognized it as the one taken from Emerson's room, with four chambers full and one empty. It had been in his possession since April 1. When he got to the station witness noticed the Emerson's lips were cut and bleeding. He thought Emerson was about 5 feet 10 inches, and would weight 175 pounds. The deceased was a powerful man of about 210 pounds. Mr. Johnston first asked the constable whether or not he had ever made the statement that Tuttle was a powerful man. The constable's answer was a positive "No." Prisoner's counsel read from Egelton's testimony before the coroner, in which he said that he had seen Tuttle before, and that he was a powerful man and weighed about 215 pounds. Witness said he had had considerable experience in handling men, but could say nothing about their strength until he got hold of them. Witness then described the place, and how he took the prisoner to the police station, through the back way. When asked ute. There was snow on the roof at distance, the policeman's calculation was somewhat out. He was asked if Emerson's lips were swollen when they arrived at the police station. Of this he was not sure. His statement made at the coroner's jury was read, in which Mr. Egelton said they were swollen and bleeding. Before leaving the Music Hall prisoner asked that he be allowed to take his wife and child to the police station.

DETECTIVE RIDER.

Detective Rider gave evidence regarding the searching of Tuttle's body. He took from deceased's clothes $182 61 in money, and some jewelry. Witness believed that Tuttle weighed between 200 and 300 pounds. Tuttle was to all appearances a powerful man.

DR. DRAKE.

Dr. Drake said he was called immediately after the shooting, and arrived there about ten minutes later. found Tuttle lying on the floor with a bullet hole in his right eye and his face covered with blood. He had made the post-mortem examination.

To Mr. Johnston the doctor said the course of the bullet had been upward and backward through the bony orbit of the skull, which had severed the chief of the arteries at the base of the brain. To all appearances Tuttle was an athletic young man, heavy, and with muscles well developed

DR. CAMPBELL. Dr. J. B. Campbell corroborated the evidence of Dr. Drake regarding the post-mortem. This concluded the case for the crown.

The Defense. PAUL COX.

Paul Cox, painter and sign writer of West London, was the first witness called on behalf of the prisoner. On Friday night, April 1, witness had gone to the Music Hall for the purpose of collecting an account from Mr. Tuttle. found Mr. Tuttle in the box office about Prisoner's counsel-While you were there did you see anybody come down. A .- Yes, sir, one of the company. Q.-What did Mr. Tuttle do? A.-He turned down the lights and went up-

Q.-What was his condition at that time? A .- He seemed to be very much excited. Mr. Heyd did not cross-examine the witness to any extent.

T. SHUNK. Mr. T. Shunk, who took the part of the "first old man" in the plays, said that a night or two preceeding the tragedy, while the members of the company were talking together, Mr. Tuttle came over to where they were and told Wesley to go and get a policeman to keep order, as there was too much noise in the house. Wesley walked away without saying anything. Tuttle turned round and said "now he's sore"-meaning that Wesley was offended. Nearby was a knife used in the plays, about 15 or 16 inches long, an inch wide, and a quarter of an inch thick. Tuttle picked this up and said split his head with this knife. Witness had every reason to believe that he meant what he said.

Cross-examined by Mr. Heyd, witness said he would not like to swear that Tuttle was any too good-natured, nor that he would be the first to assist one if he got into trouble. He had only known Tuttle a short time. The he threatened to break in the office

WM. McLAUGHLIN.

Wm. McLaughlin, barber, of Dundas street, made a statement that surprised a good many. He said that he and his wife were in the habit of taking a glass of beer at night before retiring. On April 1 he went to Tomlinson's sathrough the back way. After getting the beer his attention was attracted by the shouts up in the Music Hall, and thinking it was a funny passage in the show, he climbed up on the shed in the rear to see. When he got up to the window, which looks out from the stage, he saw men close together. The man most distant from the window said something; he could not hear what it was. The other man said, "You won't, won't you?" and then drew back and struck somebody. The blow knocked the one who had received it back a little, so that he could not be seen, and the one who dealt it came back a step or two. As he did so, he extended his left hand towards the table and grasped a knife. He made an effort to advance in the direction of the man whom he struck, with the knife in the left hand, and his right slightly raised, at the same time say--, I'll kill you.' A shot followed this remark, and Tuttle fell to the floor. Witness did not wait any longer, but got down, took his beer, and went into his home, near the Music Hall.

Mr. Heyd, for the crown, put the witness through a most rigid cross-examination. When asked how much beer he had drunk that night, witness said. "Two glasses," and in response to the question as to whether or not he enjoyed it, said he did not remember whether he did or not, but thought he

Q.-How much beer did you buy? A. -A nickel's worth. Witness was asked why he had not made these facts known before. His reason was that he did not like to, as people might have "guyed" him about doing things on the cheap, and climbing up on the roof to see the show. In answer to questions, he said he was telling the truth upon his oath. He would never have told anyone about it had he not been summoned as a witness at the trial. He supposed that some of his friends had said something to Mr. Flock, and told him that he (witness) knew something about the shooting. The court adjourned until o o'clock

Wm. Laughlin, who was on stand when the court adjourned last night, was put in the box again this morning, and Mr. Heyd, crown proscontinued his cross-examination. Laughlin, whose voice is weak explained that during his life he had had over 100 hemorrhages. Mr. Heyd went over the details of witness' trip from the saloon to the top of the barn at the rear of the Music Hall, which witness said took him about a min-

how long it was from the time of Emerson's arrest until he got to the police station, Mr. Egelton said ten minutes. When asked regarding the and that he had never heard a greater noise, even when the audience ap-planded. He had not been on the roof for a long time previous to that night, and only once since, when he went with Mr. Flock, prisoner's solicitor.

Re-examined by Mr. Johnston, Laughlin said the ascent to the top of the barn was easily accomplished. Mr. Flock had made it easily enough also, and he had seen many people there at different times, some this morning. When coming down from the roof, Mr. Tomlinson's, bartender (Jimmy something, could not remember his name) spoke to him. When asked how Mr. Flock came in possession of the Flock came in possession of the knowledge that he knew anything about it, witness said prisoner's soli-citor had sent for him. Mr. Flock had asked him what he knew about the matter. Witness had told him only a portion of what he knew.

To the judge witness described his position at the window, and how the stage appeared. He had seen the people on the stage, and distinctly heard Tuttle call Emerson the vile name. When the judge asked: "Can you account for half a dozen people on the inside not hearing the vile language?" witness said he could not account

JAMES McCAUSLAND. James McCausland, bar-tender at Tomlinson's hotel, was the next witness. He described the bar in the rear of the hotel. He had been out in the rear yard between 8 and 9 o'clock on the night of April 1, when he saw Wm. Laughlin, the previous witness, getting off the roof of the barn. Laughlin spoke to him and told him about the shooting. There was no one else in the yard at the time. After speaking to Laughlin, he went into the bar to his work. Witness had seen people on the barn at different times. They could get up easily, and this morning he saw Mr. Flock, Architect McBride and others up there. They were looking through the window on to the stage of the music hall. Mr. Heyd re-examined the witness. When witness went out in the yard it was for wood; when there he saw Laughlin; witness at first could not say at what time he went, but afterwards said it was before 8 o'clock. A few questions were put regarding this, and witness became very positive about

Mr. Heyd-It was before 8 o'clock? A .- Yes. eir. Q .- You are sure about the time? A.

-Yes. sir. Q. Positive of that as you would be if you had the watch in your hand? A.

In reply to other questions, witness said he knew Laughlin was a delicate man, but did not think it a strange thing for a man who had had about 100 hemorrhages to go out and sit on the roof in the snow. Laughlin had spoken to him about the shooting in the yard and in the bar. In answer to questions by the judge, McCausland said he did not talk this matter over with Laughlin, and did not know he was going to be a witness until last night. Mrs. Laughlin was called and said her husband had spoken to her about the shooting after he came in with the beer. Ordinarily it only took four or five minutes, but that night it was about fifteen minutes. Other questions as to what Laughlin said and what he did on that evening the judge considered irrelevant, and witness was permitted to leave the stand.

Mr. Johnston, addressing the judge, said he did not wish to ask anything the court did not think material. Counsel could not see the end of the only other violent exhibition of temper he had seen Tuttle display was when could be possibly brought out should

His lordship said he did not wish to shut out anything which would help either side.

MISS ROBINSON. Miss Robinson, a member of the company, described to the prisoner's counsel what took place on the stage on the night of the tragedy. She had heard Emerson ask Wesley for the money, and Wesley replied that he had better go and see Tuttle himself. Witneso said she, as well as Emerson, was owed money by Tuttle; had seen Tuttle as he came on the stage: he passed witness as he went along towards Emerson; the latter was cool, but seemed determined not to play unless he got his money up to date. Witness was sitting near the table when Tuttle and Emerson started to talk about the money; Emerson said he would not go on until paid; Tuttle said "You won't?" Emerson said "No." Tuttle then thrust his arm towards Emerson's face, and said, in a very objectionable way, "Well, you won't for the purpose of committing the get it." The blow fell short of Emerson's face. Witness knew trouble was coming, and got down behind the table; while in that position she heard the shot and the shuffling of feet; witness got out and saw Tuttle lying on the floor. She had not disturbed the table to the best of her recollec-

Mr. Heyd objected to the witness statement about the revolver. Mr. Johnston claimed that as the crown had charged that the revolver had been placed in Emerson's pocket crime, he was entitled to show just how the revolver came there. The judge ruled that the evidence was admissible. Witness said she knew nothing about the shooting, not having seen it. Both the judge and Mr. Heyd asked a few questions as to how she fixed the dates, and her reply was: "From memory.

He described the U. S. regulation pistol as a 16-inch barrel. These were carried and used by the men on the ship. He had resigned after five years' service, having graduated at the naval academy, and took up stage life, traveling as an actor with many companies. He joined the Wesley Stock Company at Brantford on Feb. 27, and took the part of leading man, and his wife played leading woman They played ten nights at Brantford, two at Tilsonburg, and four at London. During all this time he had never had any arguments with Tuttle. On one occasion, after coming to London, he complained to Tuttle about the hotel accommodation, and Mr. Tuttle changed hotels. Regarding his money, prisoner said that while at Tilsonburg, Wesley had posted a notice that he would pay on the following Monday morning. On Wednesday morning he wanted some money to pay a laundry bill, and Tuttle promised to bring it on the stage that night, but did not do so. On Friday morning, Mrs. Emerson had lost her purse, containing ninety some odd dollars, and this left them about stranded. She came to him on Friday night and spoke to him about the revolver. He got paid that night for two nights' play at Tilsonburg. Referring to his dress, he said he did not have topboots or a belt on. When questioned as to the revolver, he said he had always carried one throughout his theatrical experiences. The reason was that he was often on the streets in different places at a late hour, from necessity, and as a rule, the rear entrances of theaters were only gained after passing through dark alleys. His wife also carried a revolver-a goldmounted one-which she mad received from her mother. Since Mrs. Emerson was married, three years ago, she had always carried the revolver. He did not deny that it was a shot from his revolver that killed Tuttle.

Emerson went over the conversation that he had with Wesley. He asked

RECORD BREAKING. Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29.—The chief event of the Driving and Fair Asso-ciation's meet today, the 2:05 pace, was the occasion of excellent sport, a bad smashup and some broken records, which include the fastest paced heat of the year. The race was won by Directly in straight heats. The third heat saw the accident, and the fastest time of the year. As the horses were coming into the stretch Bumps' sulky ran against that of Frank Bogash, and was overturned. Planet and Annanias ran into it. They were also overturned. Fred Keys, the driver of Annanias, had his right foot wrench-, ed, while Dick Wilson, who handled Bumps, beside a dislocated shoulder, suffered severe internal injuries. He was removed to a hospital. Directly won the heat easily from Anaconda, the time being 2:031/4, the track record, and the fastest heat paced in a race this year with the exception of the Toronto, Sept. 26.-The motormen and the conductors in the Toronto Street Railway Company's employ are most intelligent, shrewd and respectable body of men. It is no easy task to impose upon them in any way.

When these facts are considered, it will at once be seen that the evidence of these men, regarding the wonderful efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, must carry the very greatest weight. A great many of them have been cured of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills, after all other medical efforts had failed. There is no wonder the boys pin their faith so firmly to "Dodd's."

We have bicycles for road and track work and we have rowing machines in the gymnasium, but now we are to have the two combined.

A machine designed practically for acquatic and general physical training is soon to be exhibited in New York. The machine is propelled by carlike attachments, and is steered, brake applied, gearing changed and bell rung without changing the position of the ELEUTERIO BETANCES. May Be First President of the Repu of Cuba Soon to Be Established.

Eleuterio Betances, the noted savant. Hellenist and oculist of Paris, is being talked of for the Presidency of the Cuban Republic. Dr. Betances is an ancient enemy of Spain in the West Indies and one of the men who have had most to do with the downfall of Spanish power in those islands. He is a native of Puerto Rico, but has long lived in Europe, where his skill as a surgeon and his ability as a man of letters have given him great fame and fortune. His tather was wealthy, and the Doctor was educated abroad. On his return to Puerto Rico he was soon the possessor of a great practice in his specialty. He did not believe in slavery, but did not preach against it. At the same time he manifested his disapproval of the institution by buying a negro slave baby every month, and then presenting its mother with its freedom papers. The course made him very unpopular with Spanish officials, and he was at last forced to leave the island. He traveled in Cuba, Hayti and other parts of the group and practiced medicine with great success. He later visited the United States and made a special study of their political, economical and educational institutions. His practice in Paris has made millions of dollars for him, some of which he has drawn from the pockets of even Spaniards. He has consistently fought Spain with his influence and his wealth, and his name is well known to thousands of Cubans who never saw him. Dr. Betances is 78 years

Yesterday's Voting.

A plebiscite is not legislation. It is simply an expression of opinion.

To ascertain the mind of the people, over Canada, we must look at figures pointed to the guilt of Guillemain, as indicated by yesterday's vote all comparatively.

The total vote cast-combining those for and those against prohibition-is very much below the total combined vote cast in the previous plebiscites of several years ago.

In the total vote in favor of pronibition, there has been a great falling off, in comparison with the previous provincial plebiscite. This decrease has occurred in every prov-

All that is cerain, meantime, is that a much smaller percentage of the total vote turned out to exercise the privilege in the plebiscite, than usually turns out to vote in

The cities of Ontario and Quebec, with one exception, declined to make expressions in favor of prohibition. Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, Hamilton, London, Kingston, Windsor, Chatham, St. Thomas, Stratford, Victoria, St. Catharines, all said No, with majorities ranging from Montreal's negative 10,000, downward.

The cities of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick seem generally to have expressed themselves in favor of prohi-

The Province of Quebec goes against prohibition by a majority of 40,000.

In all the other Provinces, the plebiscite expression and majority in favor of prohibition, as compared with the provincial plebiscites of several years since, are much diminished. For example, in the last Ontario plebiscite, the popular majority For was over 80,-000; this year only 10,000, more or less. So far from being any measureable unanimthat the most practicable method dealing with the evils growing out of the use of intoxicating liquors is prohibition, opinion, throughout the Dominion as a whole, is not very unequally divided; while the second most important Province of the Dominion goes heavily against the idea. Take Ontario and Quebec Provinces togeth-

There seems to be one main lesson, now that prohibition, at all events at any early date, is apparently a legislative and electoral impossibility, and that is, that all those who desire to diminish the evils of the liquor traffic should get together on the platform of the practicable. Nor, in view of the magnificent progress made in Ontario in the last 25 years, under license enactments-which can, if need be, be made more efficient-is there any room for men and women of breadth of vision to be cast down.

The lessons of yesterday's plebiscite, while not of a character to please extremists on either side, are also not of a character to suggest presumption on the part of those engaged in the liquor traffic, nor of a character to suggest despondency to those who have the mental perspective to keep in view the significant advances made during the last quarter of a century.

An Unfounded Criticism.

The Hamilton Spectator publishes an article copied from Saturday's Ottawa Journal, in which Hon. David Mills is criticised for "yielding to French influence" in recommending the commutation of Guillemain's sentence of death to one of imprisonment for life.

We are credibly informed that there is not a particle of foundation for the statements made in the Journal, that Guillemain's sentence was not commuted on account of his youth, and the Spectator's statement is as void of truth as the Journal's. The truth is that the feeling amongst the French-Canadians was very strongly against Guillemain. They were of the impression that he murdered his uncle, La Plante, and that the sentence ought to have been carried into execution against him. The evidence, we understand, presented difficulties that were not explained, and although there was a great deal of it that there were some portions of it that seemed to point strongly in the other direction. We do not favor the notion that newspapers should indulge in criticism of the conduct of ministers in respect of the exercise of the clemency of the Crown, when these newspapers have neither evidence nor facts before them. Such critican have very little value, and is certainly not candid. To say that Mr. Mills' French-Canadian colleagues desired to screen Guillemain is, we believe, absolutely void of all foundation. We believe there is no case in the history of this country,

conduct of the Minister of Justice

The leading manufacturer of boots and shoes in the great shoemaking distriet of Northampton, England, is now second visit to Canada and the United States. His return to this continent reminds us that in the interval a revolution has been effected in the great foot-cover industry in the British Isles. A little over a dozen years ago, this enterprising manufacturer came to America. He had been told that the New England boot and shoe manufacturers were certain to capture not only the boot and shoe trade of the foreign and colonial markets, but of Great Britain itself, by virtue of their use of mechanical devices in production, and he was determined to see for himself. He visited Lynn and other great boot and shoe manufacturing centers, and closely inestigated the wonderful machines that were then novelties to him and to other Englishmen; and he recrossed the Atlantic, firmly convinced that what had been reported was true-that unless machinery of the modern type replaced ordinary hand-production, the British boot and shoe industry would be sent to the wall by the enterprising Yankee. He communicated this discovery to his men, but as is generally the case when machinery is introduced into an industry, hitherto largely carried on by hand, the operatives were decidedly skeptical, and, refusing to believe their employer, went on strike against the introduction of machinery. The strike lasted over six months, and cost the manufacturer a great sum. But so firmly was he convinced that the view he entertained was the correct one, that he resolutely held to his original deter-It was admitted on all hands, premination in that unfortunate struggle. ous to yesterday's voting, that the Other firms followed his example in a short time, and today everywhere throughout Great Britain the best known machinery is in use, and the at one time threatened capture of the British market by the enterprising United States manufacturers was averted all along the line.

The workers, in view of the afterevents, now wonder how they ever came to oppose a revolution so necessary to the maintenance of a great British industry in face of the keen competition of their shrewd and advantageously placed New England competitors. Everywhere throughout Great Britain today, the newest and most improved methods in the production of boots and shoes have been adopted. Indeed, the tables are turned, and the British manufacturer who, in earlier days, came to the United States to obtain the machines so cleverly invented by mechanical geniuses in the neighboring republic has himself turned inventor, and brings to this country a machine which he claims beats all the contrivances for speedy the market. This machine, which is patented by the English manufacturer, who was the first to recognize that the boot and shoe industry of Britain had to be conducted largely by machinery, or would have to succumb to Yankee ingenuity, is made to perform a remakes the iron or copper pegs that are put into the soles of boots and shoes, and it drives them into their places as effectively as if done by hand, but with infinitely greater speed. This adaptability to new conditions shows that the enterprising Englishman is not exactly the slow-going, behind-the-age, unduly conservative individual that he has been represented to be. At least, the English boot and ehoe trade has been kept in the van, and now it has undertaken to lead the procession. As the British boot and shoe maker can often buy his leather Much of the information this paper on this side of the Atlantic consider- contained puzzled him greatly, and he

United States boot and shoe manufacturer, he has another strong advantage in many countries of the world. And if he is only ready to make and market the descriptions of boots and shoes which the people desire, he can distance all competitors.

Canadians can learn from the experlences herein related the elements that make for success in the keen struggle to obtain and to hold fast markets either at home or abroad. Under the modern competitive system, where would the British boot and shoe trade be today if the opponents of production with the aid of machinery had succeeded in preventing the use of these laborsaving appliances throughout the United Kingdom? The use of the very best mechanical contrivances has alone saved to Great Britain her great boot and shoe industry.

A MODERN ROMANCE

Frenchman Who Was King of the Cannibals in Australia-His Queer Experiences.

[London Spectator.]

The chief, or rather the most popular and exciting event in the meeting of the British Association at Bristol this week has been the strange tale told by M. de Rougemont, who declares that he lived for 30 years among cannibal tribes in Australia, and was treated by them as a chief or king. The genuineness of his statement has been challenged, but we note that the experts at the British Association, including some Australians, appear his narrative, and that what seemed his most "difficult" statement -i.e., the riding on a turtle, the steer-ing being done by kicking the turtle in the eye-has been vouched for by an admiral. Admiral Moresby's letter in Wednesday's Daily Chronicle shows that turtle riding is a well recognized mode of water progression among midshipmen on the Australian station. We gather, indeed, from Admiral Morseby's statement that a midshipman "sitting well back" on a turtle is far safer than waen engaged in the production that has yet been placed on ways insists on taking when he gets was that he appeared one day in

M. de Rougemont's regular paper was read at the meeting of the geo-graphical section on Monday, and described how he was shipwrecked in he year 1865, and how he wandered about the northern part of the Australian continent for many years, trying to make his way back to civimarkable feat. By one operation, it lization. He once or twice met parties of white explorers, but being stark naked and smeared with black, greasy clay, he was always taken for a savand generally fired at. At last he got tired of the hopeless search, and determined to live in solitude. His savage friends, however, suggested that instead he should be king among them. He accepted the offer, and for twenty years "ruled a king the pathless wilds" of Northern Australia. Then came the influenza and destroyed his wife and children. Thus left alone he determined to once more try to reach civilization, and this time suced by M. de Rougemont is very pictof any enlightened government with turesque. Fashoda Affair.

The French Placed in a Difficult Position.

Execution of the Plotters Against China's Emperor.

The Powers' Ultimatum Laid Before the Porte.

English Press Comment on the Plebiscite Proceedings

London, Sept. 30 .- The London correspondent of the Birmingham Post learns that nothing will be done by the government in the matter of the French occupation of Fashoda until Lord Cromer, the British diplomatic agent in Egypt, who left here on Monday, arrives in Cairo, where the first stage of the negotiations will be carried on. The French ministers apparently desire to remove the arena of discussion as far as possible from Paris. In Paris it is considered necessary in diplomatic circles that the Egyptian question should be sifted to the bottom, and a modus vivendi established in order to reach an equitable and logical solution.

The Chronicle says it fears that while Englishmen and Frenchmen are speculating as to the outcome of the Fashoda affair there is little left to speculate about. The contingency of Major Marchand's arrival was anticipated and provided against weeks ago, and everything has since passed exactly as was arranged. There is nothing in British or Egyptian law to prevent Major Marchand from displaying the tricolored flag so long as he refrains from hostility, but presence of the flag is as destitute of international meaning as would be the British flag flying from an English shop in Paris. The real significance of the situation is that the French placed themselves in a difficult position, from which Great Britain has every desire to assist in extricating The next move, in any event, will be taken by France, and short of the withdrawal of the French ambassador from London and a declaration of war, there is no alternative but to accept the situation. Great Britain will not allow armed reinforcements to reach Major Marchand, whose return will accordingly be a mere matter of time. When France has accepted the inevitable at Fashoda it is probable that Great Britain will assent to the neutralization of the Nile from its mouth to the lakes, thus extending the principle on which the international status of the Suez Canal was established.

CONSPIRATORS BEHEADED.

London, Sept. 30 .- The Pekin correspondent of the Times says: Six reformists, namely-Kang Yuwei's brother, one censor and four head clerks of the cabinet, including a son of the governor of Hu Poi-were executed on Thursday for alleged conspiracy against the dowager empress. There is no excitement here and everything is proceeding as usual.

EMPEROR'S DEATH EXPECTED. The announcement of the emperor's death is expected soon, and the dowager empress is likely to appoint a figurehead as his successor, retaining the real power herself. One report says the empress has strong views regarding Russian aggression in Manchuria, and that though she is likely to restore Li Hung Chang to power, she is not likely to countenance his Russian leanings. PEKIN PALACE AFFAIRS.

Pekin, Sept. 27, via Shanghai, Sept. 29.-The developments of palace affairs confirms the belief that the emperor, by the radical reforms which he had decreed, prepared himself for the blow struck by the dowager empress; the successive edicts furnish a history of the trend of affairs. The emperor' chief adviser, Kang Yuwei, obtained unbounded influence over him, and inspired the reforms. The official classes opposed him, and consulted the dowager empress as to the means for nullifying these reforms.

DOWNFALL DUE TO DRESS. The current story is that the immedihorse-riding expeditions which he al- ate cause of the emperor's downfall European clothes. This offense, it appears, was aggravated by the arrival in China of the Marquis Ito, the Japanese statesman, which alarmed palace officials as foreshadowing Japanese domination in the empire's councils. Thereupon, the dowager emprees acted with wonderful promptness and deresed her nephew before the Pekin powers were aware that she had left the summer palace. Kang Yuwei, foreseeing trouble, fled two days before the crisis. His followers were arrested to-

LONDON DETECTIVES

How They Are Trained in the Great Metropolis.

It is an article of faith with most people connected with the criminal investigation department that detectives are born, not made. The process of selection followed by the authorities at Scotland Yard will not permit of any "duffers" finding their way into a body which has been recently described by a French magistrate as most effective force in Europe." "the examination of the books at headquarters will show, that the smartest men in the detective service at the present day have been evolved from the rawest material. In most cases they have been recruited from the working-classes throughout the country, from the towns and villages of England, Scotland, and Wales. London, which is the great nursery of crime and the place of sanctuary for evildoers from all parts of the world, supplies only the smallest proportion of the men who are responsible for maintaining the law among Cockneys. Some of the greatest detectives of the age have been Irishmen, but only very few are accepted by the authorities nowadays. New Star-Cole Line Steamer To Be Great Boat.

Detroit, Sept. 30.-C. F. Bielman, manager of the Star-Cole line, has recently returned from New York, where he spent considerable time in inspecting the different classes of passenger boats with a view to choosing a model for the new one for his line. He was much impressed with those on the Hudson River. He speaks particularly of the steel steamer New York, and it is likely the new Star-Cole boat will be fashioned after her. She is 375 feet long, 75 foot beam and carries 4.000 passengers. There is little doubt that the new boat will be built at Wyandotte and be completed for the season

September Meeting of the Executive Committee Budget of Business Transacted.

The September meeting of the executive committee of the Synod of the Diocese of Huron was held in Bishop Cronyn Hall yesterday afternoon and evening.

The bishop took the chair at 2:30 p.m., and among those present were the Very Rev. Dean Innis, Archdeacon Davis, Canon Richardson, Revs. Mc-Cosh, Canon Brown, Robinson, Lowe, Hodgins, Canon Davis, Sage, Newton, Thomas, Gunne, Farthing, Ridley, Wright, Miles, Deacon, Mackenzie, Moorhouse, Canon Young, Hicks, Canon Hincks, Canon Hincks, Canon Hincks on Hincks, Canon Hill, Canon Smith; ssrs. Matters referred by the synod to the executive committee, viz., the canon on the mission and surplus commutation funds, the widows' and orphans' fund, and the superannuation fund, were referred to a special committee, to consist of eight clergy and seven laymen, to be appointed by the bishop, and to report from time to The consideration of the canon on the discipline of the clergy was deferred until December. Amendments to canon 31 were deferred to the aforenamed committee. The report of the committee on unused churches, was considered, and the bishop was requested to send a commissioner to visit certain places, and report. The matter of printing the annual report of the executive committee in the convening circulars of synod was considered and found impracticable, as the final meeting of the executive was not held until the day previous to the meeting of synod. The vestry of Listowel asked permission to raise an additional $1,000 for building purposes. Rev. H. W. Jeanes was heard in support. Granted. The vestry of Wiarton asked permission to transfer the loan obtained from one loan company to another. Rev. W. Henderson was heard in support.

The vestry of Newbury asked permission to obtain a loan on security of the church. The committee was unable to comply. The election of a mission committee was then proceeded with. Rev. C. R. Gunne and Mr. L. Skey were appointed scrutineers, and the election result-ed as follows: Clerical—Dean Innes, Archdeacan Davis, Canon Young and Canon Brown, the last two being equal. Canon Young having retired, was subsequently appointed by the bishop, together with Rural Dean Hicks. Laymen-Messrs. Jenkins. Luscombe and

Wilson. The bishop added the names of Messrs. J. D. Noble and R. Bayly. The report of the finance committee showed the accounts paid and to be paid. Report adopted. The mission committee recommended that the application from Brookholm be not entertained, and that the assessment on Kirkton parish be reduced by $50 from May 1 last, on account of the reduction of the number of services. Adopted. The report of the land and investment committee showed the amounts invested and on hand, and that the funds were in a satisfactory state. Adopted. The auditors, Messrs. Jewell and Complin, presented an elaborate report on the manner of administering the funds, commending the methods adopted as being praiseworthy and in accordance with the rules of the synod. The report was considered eminently satisfactory, and was ordered to be printed for circulation. The committee on income and expenditure referred to the work of Rev. F. E. Roy, financial agent of the synod, as being eminently satisfactory, having secured creditable sums and subscriptions from the poorer congregations at Lion's Head and elsewhere in the north; secondly, that the bishop be requested to send a commissioner from outside the county to visit parishes which contribute but little to the funds of the synod; thirdly, that the local missions committee be not requested to assess the various parishes, but that -Our Fall Stock of-

Noble, Clarke, Dymond, Luscombe, Harrison, Wilson,

Bayly and Judge Ermatinger. The committee on the matter of the parish boundaries of St. John's, London township, reported that the synod has power to distribute the endowment over the whole township, and recommended that Emmanuel Church be joined to that parish, but to be assessed for such sum as the committee should think proper. Adopted.

EVENING SESSION. The report of the committee appointed to consider the case of clergymen not having charge of a parish, in regard to their claim on the widows' and orphans' fund, advised that such claim could not be allowed. Adopted. A reorganization of the parish of Irwin's, Raleigh and Charing Cross, was confirmed. The supply of services was left in the hands of the bishop. Rev. W. E. Scott applied for a renewal of grant for another year, on the ground that his health was not yet fully restored. Granted for six months. Rev. J. churches. A request was presented from the vestry of Maxwell regarding the sale of lots. Sale agreed to, proceeds to be held in trust by the synod. Rev. Rural Dean Hinde requested leave to bor-row money on mortgage for the purchase of cemetery lots. Granted, subject to approval of the vestry.

Owen Sound vestry asked leave to borrow on security of the new school house to finish payment on the same.

Granted. St. George's Church, London, asked for a redistribution of the London rectory surplus. Owing to prospective changes in the same regarding St. Matthew's Church, action was deferred. After other minor matters, the committee adjourned at 12 o'clock.

No Change Made in the Local Cut Rates-Traffic Returns.

D. McNicol, passenger traffic manager of the C. P. R., and W. E. Davis, general passenger agent of the G. T. R., have returned to Montreal from New York, where they were attending meetings of the passenger agents, which had under consideration a number of important railway matters. As to the intentions of the C. P. R. in regard to cut rates, Mr. Nichol said the matter stands just where it did when the local cut was put in force.

Traffic returns of the C. P. R. for the last eight months are as follows: August, 1898, gross earnings, $2,210,865; working expenses, $1,327,838; net profits, $883,027. In August, 1897, and for the eight months ended Aug. 31, 1898, the figures are as follows: Gross earnings. $15,858,248; working expenses, $10,000, 855; net profits, $5,767.393. For the eight months ended Aug. 31, 1897, there was a net profit of $5,585,959. The decrease in net profits over the same period last year is, therefore, for August, $121,380, and from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31, there was an increase of $181,433.

The Advantages to Be Derived From the Abolition of Chairs.

eminent English physician, Sir James Crichton Browne, who has wonderful aptitude for making medical subjects interesting to the public at large, announces that men and women would derive great benefit from sitting on the floor instead of chairs. Women would benefit even more than men by the practice. The position of sitting on the floor or the ground is more natural than that of sitting on a chair. It was once general with the entire human race. It is both healthy and natural. The exercise of getting up from and down to the floor is beneficial. Through the general adoption of the sitting position among the civilized races many muscles have become stiff or obsolete. Persons who sit on the floor have strong back and thigh muscles. Turks, tailors and shoe-makers are examples of this fact. If you sit on the floor, you can change your attitude as often as you please and can enjoy an endless variety of pose, and, however often you alter it and however you may place yourself, there is never any chance of your falling off. If you sit on the floor, you can achieve all kinds of comfortable positions which it is impossible to obtain even with the easiest of easy chairs. The influx of visitors need never cause anxiety to the well constitutioned mind on the subject of chairs. All he has to provide is a quantity of cushions-cushions of every size and shape. Let guests select any they please, and it will be their own fault if they are not comfortable and

The Umbrella Conscience.

"You may bank on a guilty conscience almost every time when an umbrella is in question," said a New Orleans drummer. You see this one? Well, it came into my possession quite recently by what they call the 'right of conquest' in a protocol. I was caught out in the rain after lunch and wondering what the deuce I would do when I noticed a chap under an awning trying to raise an umbrella. It was clear he didn't understand the fastening, and as the umbrella itself was not new the circumstantial evidence against him was con-

A Pair of Bulls.

A very quaint reason, says a writer in the London Telegraph, was advanced by a domestic servant for thinking that the place she was in was in every way desirable. "Are yez in a good place, Mary?" asked one of her friends. "Oh, a mighty foine place irely," she replied. "Shure, me mistress is so rich that all her flannel petticoats is made of silk!" The Fate of Reformers in "Fair Cathay."

Li Hung Chang's Opponent Bounced and Banished-Crown Prince of Corea Seriously Ill.

London, Sept. 30 .- The correspondent of the Globe at Hong Kong says: Kang Yuwei, the Cantonese reformer, in interviews since his escape from Pekin, has said he fled because the emperor informed him of a plot and kill the reform leaders. His majesty, the reform leader added, wanted Kang Yuwei to escape while there was time for him to do so, and commissioned him to endeavor to obtain protection for the emperor and the empire. Hong Kong, Sept. 30.-Kang Yuwei has arrived here on board the steaer Allart, which was escorted by the British second-class cruiser Bonaventure. He was landed and lodged at the police barracks. Upon sighting two Chinese cruisers on her way here, the Bona-

A FERVENT TRIBUTE

To the Late Hon. M. C. Cameron by His Pastor-The Excellent Funeral Arrangements.

Mr. John Ferguson, of this city, had charge of the funeral of the late Lieutenant-Governor Cameron. He accompanied the remains to Goderich to superintend the burial, and the taste and tact which marked all the arrangements were favorably commented on. At the grave, an eloquent tribute to the deceased was paid by his pastor, Rev. James A. Anderson, who said in part:

"Friends, a great man has fallen in our midst. A prominent figure in the history of our Dominion has passed away. The voice that was wont to thrill assembled multitudes in the legislative assemblies and popular halls of our land is stilled. We shall hear that voice no more. Having borne the burden and brunt of many battles, in which victory most frequently, and defeat occasionally, were the results, he at length went down before the terrible onset of that foe which shall assail us, every one. Arriving at that period in his public life when we all in common anticipated for him a season of comparative rest, the drum-beat of the Almighty sounded in his ears, 'Arise ye and depart, for this is not your rest.' It is natural for us all to seek to make this world our rest; but the wise Creator never intended it for this purpose. Had he done so, it would be a different world to what it is, and we would be differently constituted to what we are. But though there is no

EARLY USES OF GLASS.

Known First to the Egyptians, but Brought to Perfection by the Romans.

In an interesting article on "Ornamental Glass In All Ages" in The Woman's Home Companion Orlena L. Shackleford has this to say of the antiquity of glass: "The Egyptians used glass ornaments largely for personal decoration. Necklaces, bracelets, beads, scarabæi, etc., of exquisite beauty have been discovered in their tombs. It also served to bedeck clothing, and innumerable domestic objects were made of it for daily use. Indeed this accommodating medium was adapted by them to an infinity of purposes, being blown, cast, rolled, wrought or cut, as the worker willed, whether into statues of their gods or as glass eyes for the sightless sockets of their mummies, to express the wish of the soul to arrive safe and whole at the end of its journey. The Romans excelled the Egyptians as extensive users of glass. It served them for decoration to walls and floors, for all sorts of domestic vessels, cinerary urns and coffins (the Egyptians buried Alexander the Great in a glass coffin), for ornaments, toys, dice, draughts, chessmen and water clocks. We read of a table of solid emerald that was carried off by the Goths when they sacked the Eternal City, but it is now considered not to have been of precious stone, only fine green glass or jasper, yet deemed sufficiently valuable to be set with pearls and mounted in gold.

These great builders, the most practical of antiquity, were not slow to realize the value of this transparent medium as a means for transmitting light into their palaces and temples, but their window panes were only from 7 to 10 inches square, and the glass was more green than white, lacking the crystal clearness of our modern productions. Glass mirrors were known to the Egyptians and Romans. Specimens have been found in the tombs of the former, and documentary evidence from Pliny, Seneca, Lucretius and others undoubtedly proves their possession by the latter. Glass was used for lamps in Pompeli, but we have no evidence of its being applied to such a purpose in Egypt, where it was appropriated more largely to ornamental and decorative rather than domestic purposes.'

Fifty years ago the population of Europe was about 250,000,000; it is today considerably over 360,000,000. "Misery loves company," thought the philosopher. Whereupon in the good-ness of his heart he went out into the world and searched until he had found misery. And he was happy. If your grocer is telling you the truth when he says he is "just out" of Monsoon Indo-Ceylon Tea, he must impress you with the fact that Monsoon is selling faster than all others. That's a fair assumption—if he is telling the truth. MISS BROWN, TEACHER OF SINGING, Conservatory of Music, gives instruction in voice production, cultivation and style. held, speeches were made, and the CITY PLAYGROUNDS.

How the Roofs of Houses May Be Utilized to Advantage.

The ordinary yard of an ordinary house in town is usually too small, damp and generally unattractive to offer much inducement as a playground to any self respecting boy. Over the house top, however, the air circulates freely, and the sunshine purifies and invigorates, and it is but following the custom of the oldest civilizations in the world to make of the house tops outdoor centers of rest and recreation. A flat can be made with a wooden flooring over the tin roof, strong posts with bars between set all about it along the four sides, and over posts and bars good, heavy wire netting, such as is used in pcultry yards, and thus the framework of the boys' roof playground is complete. The interior may be furnished in many different ways to suit the tastes of the three or four boys who may compose the family. The boy carpenter may erect a shed at one end of the flat, a part of which can be used as a receptacle for carpentering and gardening tools, and in the larger part rabbits may be kept, and also varieties of pigeons. Horizontal bars, quoits, a seesaw and other games and the much prized sand heap for the younger ones, all find a place in the list of outdoor amusements, and the flat can be made beautiful as well by adding to it the loveliness of the garden. This can readily be done with flower seeds and cuttings, patience and a few soap boxes. The boys can take care of these flowers under parental direction, and a deeper interest is added if each is apportioned his own boxes or "garden." warm summer days an awning may be put up over part of the space and beneath it arranged a hammock, comfortable chairs and a table for books or more quiet games. The winter days bring also many pleasures, as the animals and birds live cozily in comfortable surroundings, and the boys have the usual games on clean, fresh snow in which to play and a better, purer atmosphere, both for their physical and psychical improvement, than is obtainable in the streets of a city.—City and State.

A BRITISH GUARDSMAN.

What It Costs to Belong to a Crack English Regiment.

The actual surroundings of a guardsman's daily life are simple. If quartered in London, unless at the Tower, he will live at the Guards club, as the mess at the Tower is the only one maintained by the Foot guards in London, and his expenses at the club will compare favorably with the expenses of any other club in town. If the battalion to which he belongs is quartered at Chelsea barracks, he may very possibly have a room in the barracks. If his people live in town, as is often the case, he may live at home, or he may prefer the freedom of a couple of rooms in the neighborhood of Jermyn street or St. James'.

The entrance fee to the Guards club is 80 guineas, and he will have to pay an annual subscription of £11. A fair average of the living expenses of the club may be taken as some £20 a month, though, if of extravagant tastes, it may be much higher, and the rent of his rooms will depend almost entirely on what he chooses to pay. So that it is clear that the necessary expenses of life in the Foot guards are not nearly as prohibitory as is generally supposed. The guardsman receives the same pay as officers of corresponding rank in the line, with the addition of £70 a year guard's pay, so that it is possible for a youngster of an economical turn to live in the guard on an allowance of £300 a year in addition to his pay.

As we have just shown, it is possible, but I must admit that it is not often done. The young guardsman is very seldom contented with one club or even with two, and the brigade will be found to be fairly strongly represented at the Bachelors', White's and the best service clubs. The lovers of cricket and tennis proper are mostly habitues of Prince's, and the majority belong to the principal racing clubs, such as Sandown Park, and the horsy, or rather "pony," clubs of Hurlingham and the newer Ranelagh.-A British Offcer in Harper's Magazine.

Just within the edifice, Gerard stood waiting her. All the gravity had vanished from his features; never had he looked handsomer, happier. Those two years, with their trouble, had fied from his brow. A man may talk love for a week, yet fail to express its pure intensity as much as he may by a single glance.

So with the earl-his eyes beamed with fond pride, as, his blushing bride on his arm, he led her to the altar. Once more Lucille listened to the marriage rite, but now as a principal. Then she, as had Esmer Mortmain, rose up Countess of Lethrington. None of that indescribable depression from which Esmer had suffered was hers; yet she was to be subjected to a brief but trying ordeal before all was concluded. It came as she leaned over the register to sign her name.

Abruptly the pen trembled in her fingers-it fell from them-while every vestige of color fled from her cheek. Gerard, alarmed lest she was about to faint, approached to support her; but turning from him, in a hurried whis-per, she addressed the Marquis:

"My lord," she said, "what name am I to sign?" "Not Brand, of course, my love—but Westbrook; the one the laws of the country have made yours. Since then It is your only name and no other.

Lucille drew a long breath, evidently of relief, retook the pen, and in firm characters for a bride, wrote "Lucille Westbrook."

So recently returned from the continent, it had been arranged that the honeymoon should be spent at the English lakes, and concluded at Lethring-

In all the days to come, Gerard and Lucille never enjoyed more exquisite happiness than at that period, when, each the sole but all-sufficient companion of the other, they wandered on the margin of the silvery lakes, or sat dreamily side by side on some heathery hill, with a panorama of exquisite loyeliness spread before their gaze, all g warmed by golden sunshine, or softened cape. into purple by advancing twilight. During this time, the earl, imagining that it would please his wife, had suggested her visiting his old home, where triumphal arches, flower-strewn roads, and a prosperous tenantry were waiting to receive them. As Lucille sat by her husband's side, tears in her beautiful eyes, her cheeks to Burlington House. The year's exhiglowing with delight, she murmured: "Oh, Gerard, I am so happy! The tenantry are mine now. It shall be my and countess strolled through the endeavor to make them love me as they rooms love you.' Then the husband and wife found repose within the hall, when she, leaning on his arm, with fond, natural pride, Gerard escorted her over Lethrington, resting on the terrace overlooking the lawn, belted by ancient oaks, also the centuries-old avenue on the left, and to the right the pretty village of Lethrington, a mile away, with its little church on the hillside. keeping as it were spiritual watch and Lucille sighed as her eyes rested on the latter.

'Poor Lady Esmer!" she murmured; "how, Gerard, dearest, she would have enjoyed this moment, even as I?" The earl, too, sighed as his arm stole gently round his wife's slender waist. "You are mietaken, darling," he re-foined. "Fate destined the poor, unfortunate child to enjoy nothing. Nature had implanted in her breast a poison to embitter all her existence. She could hope; she was ambitious; but its realization palled." "She loved you, Gerard!" exclaimed his wife, raising her wondering eyes. 'I know not-I fear not. Hers was a sad, brief life, rendered so by her own disposition. Why, my dearest, should you not know it, and what time could be better than this?"

Drawing her closer yet, he told her everything. "And you did not promise?" she inquired, wistfully, as he concluded. "No. darling; heaven willed it otherwise unaware of the happiness it had in store for me, though so unworthy.'

'Unworthy, my Gerard!" She laid her cheek fondly against his breast, and lovingly he kissed the perfumed hair so near his lips.

The weeks glided on, neither husband nor wife tiring of the calm, uneventful existence at the hall, until one day Gerard, entering the countess' boudoir, coming and leaning over her chair,

"My darling, this lotus-eating life of ours is doomed to cease. Here," and he held them forth, "is a sheaf of angry letters, calling me recreant, sluggard, enervated Capuan, I know not what, for slighting my parliamentary duties, especially at such a period. What shall

I do? Burn them, or—"
"Obey?" she smiled, bending back to place her arm about his neck. "The latter, dearest. I am no Omphale, to wish my Hercules to play a distaff, nor a Delilah to wish him to lose his strength, and be derided by his enemies. No, I am too proud of him. Ger-ard, we have been selfish too long; no one in this world should live for himself alone. We will go to town." So the earl's house in Mayfair having been already put in order for their reception, Gerard and his bride quitted the hall for it. They had been in London about a week, when, as they sat at breakfast, Lucille, looking up from a newspaper she had been reading, said: "Are you particularly engaged this afternoon, Gerard? If not, I should be so glad if you would accompany me to the Royal Academy. Here is the second notice, and it speaks so highly of Mil-lais' picture that I long to see it.' "Well, my love, the fact is, unfortunately, that I have much correspondence today. Also, I have to examine a motion which our party in the Lower House laid on the table last night. If any other afternoon would suit you "Do not say another word, Gerard. Of course, any day will suit me equally as well. Pray do not look so re-pentant," she smiled. "Think no more of the matter."

If women were wise, they would per-ceive, though Lucille did it from no such motive, such that a sweet, ready compliance, such a recognition that a husband may have weightier matters to attend to at times than escorting his wife to amusement, were the very means for them to obtain what they desire.

Thus, instead of the earl's not thinking of it again, an hour later, joining his wife in the morning room, he said: "Lucifle, we will go to Burlington House this afternoon. Nay, no demur; I have made all arrangements. My secretary can see to most of the correspondence. There was but one way a wife could answer such a fond attention to her wish, and Lucille adopted that. If she had only known to what this yielding on his part was to lead, she would have cowered beneath his gaze, shrunk from his touch; instead, smiling, she an-

"I will not be ungrateful enough to blame, but thank you. I shall enjoy the pictures more than ever now, and it is so glorious a day. Ah---'

Hardly had she uttered the words than the sunshine in the room gave place to a chill, gray gloom. Lucille shivered and turned pale. "If I were superstitious, I should take that as prophetic," she remarked, forcing a smile,

"Silly child," laughed her husband;

"it is but a passing cloud—see, the sun yet shines behind." He drew her to the window, and there before the luminary of day was a splendid mass of dark cloud, its edges all golden, however, like a beadle's

"If sorrow must come, let us always remember, love, there are golden lin-ings. Behold, let this be prophetic, too, my superstitious little wife." As he concluded, the cloud had drifted away, and a flood of glorious sunshine enveloped the two. The luncheon ended, they were driven bition was a remarkably good one, and with real appreciative delight, the earl

"You must really have some refreshment, now, Lucille," remarked Gerard, as they turned to retrace their steps. "Though pleasureable, nothing is so fatiguing as picture-gazing. I am sure you must be faint." A protest was on her lips, when across the other side of the doorway they were approaching there passed a gentleman at whose appearance Lucille's tongue grew paralyzed. Her eyes became dilated with horror and surprise; the color dropped from her cheeks, leaving them bloodless. At the same instant a gentleman following the other, clapping him on the shoulder, exclaimed gayly: "I say, Selwyn, my right noble captain, where are your eyes? You have passed Alma Tadema's picture after sickness. Neg-lect of the minor troubles causes serious complications. The irregularities, the burning, dragging ache, the debilitating drains that mark the progress of feminine diseases, are passed lightly over er are borne in ignorance of their cause. Their continuance means death or insanity. This is all unnecessary. So-called female weak-ness can be cured. It can be cured quickly and permanently, and right in the privacy of the home without the humiliating local treatment so universally insisted upon by physicians. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does this and more. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned and makes them strong and healthy. It banishes the usual discomforts of the expectant period and makes baby's coming easy and almost painless. It tones and strengthens the nerves. At all medicine stores. W. R. day, not so much as had the colic; she is hearty and stout, and pretty as a picture—pretty because she is healthy, and we very much blame Dr. Pierce's family medicing for it.

We have been married almost three years and 'have called a physician into my family but one time—at birth of our baby." Rosy cheeks. The rich, pure, red blood of health makes them. Wireless Explosion of a Powerful Submarine Mine.

New and Curious Application of Electricity to Purposes of Warfare Recently Exhibited at London-An Experiment Which May Lead to Marvelous Results-The Method Described.

The latest wonder of wireless telegraphy is the explosion of a submarine mine by clectrical waves from a transmitter used in wireless telegraphy. In a showcase in one part of a building is placed an automatic transmitter, which is insulated. A storage battery of four cells is placed in the lower part of the case, which feeds the primary of a fourinch spark coil, the current from the battery first passing through an automatic circuit breaker.

This automatic circuit breaker is so arranged that it will make and break the circuit in the same manner as a telegraph operator would when manipulating his Morse key in the act of calling. In this way it will be seen that the sparks from the secondary of the coil are intermittent, and their duration is governed by the length of time during which the automatic circuit breaker allows the circuit to be closed while making the dots and dashes. Immediately in front of the induction coil is placed the improved oscillator, which consists of two solid brass balls about four inches in diameter, mounted so that the distance between them is adjustable.

Ontside these balls are placed two smaller balls about an inch and a half in diameter attached to sliding brass rods, en the outer end of which are other balls one inch in diameter, so that the distance between the large and the small balls can be easily adjusted. The secondary terminals of the coil are connected to binding posts on the base of the oscillator. The distance between the balls being properly adjusted and the current turned on from the battery, the sound of the secondary sparks passing between the balls can quite easily be recognized as the dots and dashes of the signal.

In another part of the building, directly opposite and about two hundred feet distant, is placed the receiver, which consists of a Clarke coherer relay and receiving instrument, which has a large sixinch bell connected up in the local circuit, in addition to the telegraph sounder. This six-inch bell is continually ringing out the Morse signals, and by holding down the hammer of the bell the sounder can be distinctly heard repeating the same call. In the centre of a garden is placed large tank of water, and a miniature warship is placed in this tank and floated over a submarine mine, which is connected to a coherer relay and battery placed immediately outside of the tank. One terminal of the coherer is connected to the earth and the other to an insulated wire rising about ten feet in the air.

When the time comes for exploding the mine under the ship, the oscillator is stopped and connection made in the tank between the coherer and the vibrating bell which is used for testing purposes. The oscillator is now started for an instant, to see if the bell at the tank rings, thus proving that the coherer is in proper adjustment. The bell is now disconnected and connection made to the submarine mine instead, and at a signal from the attendant the man at the transmitter again presses the button, which throws the current into the oscillator. The coherer completes the local circuit and the mine instantly explodes, breaking the warship into splinters and throwing it and the water high in the air. Of course, it is understood that the mine is provided with an ordinary electric fuse.

The Returns in Detail-South London the Only "Dry" Spot-Receiving the News.

A comparison of the total number of voters on the lists in London, with the number of votes polled yesterday shows that there were many stay-at-homes. Very little excitement was caused in the city, and the quiet, almost deserted condition of the polls throughout the day, was remarkable. The antiprohibitionists had the largest number of rigs out, and the most thorough organization. The results were disappointing for the prohibitionists. Long before the polls were closed the workers for prohibition realized that a full vote would not be forthcoming, and when the returns came in they at-

The Advertiser bulletins attracted the crowd, as usual. From the time the first sub-division figures could be learned, a few minutes after 5 o'clock, until late in the night, when the approximate result of the vote throughout the Dominion was at hand, Richmond street, in front of The Advertiser office, was thronged. The returns were awaited with curiosity and received with good-nature. At no time was there much vociferation. The crowd lacked the usual election enthusiasm The returns from the city sub-divisions were obtained by messengers, and those from all parts of the Dominion came promptly by special wire. That the service gave every satisfaction was proven by the crowd of spectators retained throughout the evening.

Majority against prohibition in full city vote 985 AT PROHIBITION HEADQUAR-

A special wire at the Auditorium brought the news from the country to a fair-sized gathering of ardent local prohibition workers. The result in the city had been disappointing, and its effect was not disguised, but the news of victories in the Maritime Provinces and throughout the rural districts was received with great enthusiasm. Several spirited speeches of a most hopeful tone were delivered, and interspersed with these were selections by the Imperial Quartet and the reading of the returns. Mr. James H. Bowman was chairman. The speakers were Rev. Ira Smith, Rev. Dr. Saunders, Rev. A. G. Harris, Mrs. Gordon Wright, Mrs.

AMUSEMENTS SOL SMITH RUSSELL IN A NEW

Sol Smith Russell has worked a perfect triumph in his new comedy, "Uncle Dick," and is drawing enormous audiences all along the line. In fact, the success of the new play is so great that Mr. Russell and his manager have decided to abandon their plan of playing any of his old comedies during the exceedingly clever and furnis present tour, but confine himself entirely to "Uncle Dick." Mr. Russell's engagement here will take place at the Grand on Monday evening. The advance sale of seats will begin at the usual time, and, of course, Mr. Russell will meet with his usual crowded

"HUMANITY" AT THE GRAND TO-

NIGHT. The Grand will have for its attraction tonight Sutton Vane's military drama entitled "Humanity," which met with great success last season. It will be placed upon the stage here on the same elaborate scale as before. The company includes 25 artists. The entire production is under the direction of Mr. Ross O'Neal. The combat between Ross O'Neal, the hero, and Sergt. John Feake is said to be dangerous work for both combatants. The combat is fought on no fixed movements, as are most stage combats, but is a thrilling display of sword play and clever horsemanship

"A BACHELOR'S HONEYMOON." There have been few things given at Hoyt's Theater that pleased so much as "A Bachelor's Honeymoon" last night," so says the New York Herald. 'With such a company as presented it, there is not anything to be wanting in the entire evening in the way of talent to present it, or a more clever comedy was never seen at this popular It is one of the brightest and wilthal one of the most enjoyable comedies it has been our good pleasure to see. It is of extremely farcical style. The cast is an exceptionally good one and finely balanced. It will doubtless have a long run." Mr. George F. Nash will play the leading roll, assisted by Vella McLeod (of this city), Mr. William Jefferson, son of Joseph Jefferson, and others.

"MR. BEANE FROM BOSTON." Those popular entertainers, the Gorman Bros., John, James and George. and their talented company of specialty artists and comedians, will present their new version of Mr. James Gorman's successful musical comedy, "Mr. Beane from Boston," at the Grand tomorrow matinee and night. The company is most competent in every respect and includes Jos. Harrington, the well-known reconteur; Archie Gillies, the celebrated mimic: Frank Onslow, the famous lyric tenor; Harry Osborne, the clever character comedian; Dorothy Decker, the charming chausonette: Luella Millar, the bright and clever ingenne, and the petite, winsome and artistic Barrow Sisters, in their remarkably clever character change

LAST NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE. Society was at the Grand in force last night; and society laughed goodnaturedly at seeing its foibles and vanities clearly satired; sorrowed in sympathy with the fair young society bride, who sees her idol shattered at righteous indignation at the society young man who had to reap his crop of wild oats in public shame and disgrace, and felt a condescending pity for the unhappy young person who loved not wisely but too well. "The Moth and the Flame" is very clever, very pretty, and quite conventional. It deals with the social evil and the double standard of morality. The reformed young man suffered not because he sinned against a woman, but because he struck her. Not the libertine but the coward is punished. This, too, is satire. Never has any production in this city been more superbly staged. The costumes were something to rave over. The dialogue is bright, racy and thoroughly up-to-date. The two stars, Herbert Kelcey and Miss Effie Shannon, played their different roles of reformed rake and outraged innocence respectively with strength and delicacy. Miss Marion Abbot, as the much divorced Mrs. Lorimer, was of the comedy element. The remainder of the caste was in capable hands and the whole well balanced.

London Foundry Company Complain That the King Street Bridge Has Done Them $2,000 Damage.

A brief session of the board of works was held last evening, and some small matters disposed of.

Messrs. Metherall and Denney petitioned for a mosaic stone walk in front of their business premises, in East London, and agreed to pay for same if allowed the cost of a plank walk. Mr. W. J. Reid made a similar request for the east side of Welling. ton street, in front of his new residence. Both were granted. A number of accounts and the paysheet, amounting to $267 48, were passed.

SEWER COMMITTEE. The sewer committee then met. The only matter before the meeting was the London Foundry's claim for damages, in consequence of the erection of the King street bridge. The company was represented by Mr. R. K. Cowan and Manager Noble. Mr. Noble showed, in detail, the damage that had and would result from the erection of the bridge, and thought that his company had been damaged to the extent of $2,000. Mr. Cowan also spoke of the bridge as a catch for ice bergs, which in the spring would melt, and the water flow into the foundry.

The bridge was to have passed through the foundry property, in the first instance, but Mr. Noble said only one proposition, and that one perfectly absurd, had been made to him. Chairman Cooper said it had cost the city $10,000 by not going through the property. The chairman, Ald. Dreaney and Ald. Carrothers will visit the property and report. They will also report on the Lordon Rowing Club's right of way. All the members were present.

A Small Vote and Not Much Excitement

Majority Against Prohibition 985 in the Six Wards.

The Returns in Detail-South London the Only "Dry" Spot-Receiving the News.

A comparison of the total number of voters on the lists in London, with the number of votes polled yesterday shows that there were many stay-at-homes. Very little excitement was caused in the city, and the quiet, almost deserted condition of the polls throughout the day, was remarkable. The antiprohibitionists had the largest number of rigs out, and the most thorough organization. The results were disappointing for the prohibitionists. Long before the polls were closed the workers for prohibition realized that a full vote would not be forthcoming, and when the returns came in they attributed their defeat to the unmarked

The Advertiser bulletins attracted the crowd, as usual. From the time the first sub-division figures could be learned, a few minutes after 5 o'clock, until late in the night, when the approximate result of the vote throughout the Dominion was at hand, Richmond street, in front of The Advertiser office, was thronged. The returns were awaited with curiosity and received with good-nature. At no time was there much vociferation. The crowd lacked the usual election enthusiasm. The returns from the city sub-divisions were obtained by messengers, and those from all parts of the Dominion came promptly by special wire. That the service gave every satisfaction was proven by the crowd of spectators retained throughout the even-

TERS. A special wire at the Auditorium brought the news from the country to a fair-sized gathering of ardent local prohibition workers. The result in the city had been disappointing, and its effect was not disguised, but the news of victories in the Maritime Provinces and throughout the rural districts was received with great enthusiasm. Several spirited speeches of a most hopeful tone were delivered, and interspersed with these were selections by the Imperial Quartet and the reading of the returns. Mr. James H. Bowman was chairman. The speakers were Rev. Ira Smith, Rev. Dr. Saunders, Rev. A. G. Harris, Mrs. Gordon Wright, Mrs.

AMUSEMENTS

SOL SMITH RUSSELL IN A NEW

Sol Smith Russell has worked a perect triumph in his new comedy, "Uncle Dick," and is drawing enormous audiences all along the line. In fact, the success of the new play is so great that innocence respectively with strength Mr. Russell and his manager have decided to abandon their plan of playing any of his old comedies during present tour, but confine himself en-tirely to "Uncle Dick." Mr. Russell's engagement here will take place at the Grand on Monday evening. The advance sale of seats will begin at the usual time, and, of course, Mr. Russell will meet with his usual crowded house.

"HUMANITY" AT THE GRAND TO-

NIGHT. The Grand will have for its attraction tonight Sutton Vane's military drama entitled "Humanity," which met with great success last season. It will be placed upon the stage here on the same elaborate scale as before. The company includes 25 artists. The entire production is under the direction of Mr. Ross O'Neal. The combat between Ross O'Neal, the hero, and Sergt. John Feake is said to be dangerous work for both combatants. The combat is fought on no fixed movements, as are most stage combats, but is a thrilling display of sword play and clever horsemanship.

"A BACHELOR'S HONEYMOON." There have been few things given at Hoyt's Theater that pleased so much as "A Bachelor's Honeymoon" last night," so says the New York Herald. With such a company as presented it, there is not anything to be wanting in the entire evening in the way of talent to present it, or a more clever comedy was never seen at this popular house. It is one of the brightest and wilthal one of the most enjoyable comedies it has been our good pleasure to see. It is of extremely farcical style. The cast is an exceptionally good one and finely balanced. It will doubtless have a long run." Mr. George F. Nash will play the leading roll, assisted by Vella McLeod (of this city), Mr. William Jefferson, son of Joseph Jefferson, and others.

"MR. BEANE FROM BOSTON." Those popular entertainers, the Gorman Bros., John, James and George, and their talented company of specialty artists and comedians, will present their new version of Mr. James Gorman's successful musical comedy, Beane from Boston," at the Grand tomorrow matinee and night. The company is most competent in every respect and includes Jos. Harrington, the well-known reconteur; Archie Gillies, the celebrated mimic; Frank Onslow, the famous lyric tenor; Harry Osborne, the clever character comedian; Dorothy Decker, the charming chausonette; Luella Millar, the bright and clever ingenne, and the petite, winsome and artistic Barrow Sisters, in their remarkably clever character change

LAST NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE. Society was at the Grand in force last night; and society laughed goodnaturedly at seeing its foibles and vanities clearly satired; sorrowed in sympathy with the fair young society bride, who sees her idol shattered at the steps of the altar; thrilled with righteous indignation at the society young man who had to reap his crop of wild oats in public shame and disgrace, and felt a condescending pity for the unhappy young person who loved not wisely but too well. "The Moth and the Flame" is very clever, very pretty, and quite conventional. It deals with the social evil and the double standard of morality. The reformed young man suffered not because he sinned against a woman, but because he struck her. Not the liber-tine but the coward is punished. This, too, is satire. Never has any production in this city been more superbly staged. The costumes were something to rave over. The dialogue is bright, racy and thoroughly up-to-date. The two stars, Herbert Kelcey and Miss Effie Shannon, played their different roles of reformed rake and outraged and delicacy. Miss Marion Abbot, as the much divorced Mrs. Lorimer, was the exceedingly clever and furi of the comedy element. The remainder of the caste was in capable hands and the whole well balanced.

WANT DAMAGES

London Foundry Company Complain That the King Street Bridge Has Done Them $2,000 Damage.

A brief session of the board of works was held last evening, and some small matters disposed of. Messrs. Metherall and Denney petitioned for a mosaic stone walk in front of their business premises, in East London, and agreed to pay for same if allowed the cost of a plank walk. Mr. W. J. Reid made a similar request for the east side of Wellington street, in front of his new residence. Both were granted. A number of accounts and the pay-sheet, amounting to $267 48, were passed.

SEWER COMMITTEE. The sewer committee then met. The only matter before the meeting was the London Foundry's claim for damages, in consequence of the erection of the King street bridge. The company was represented by Mr. R. K. Cowan and Manager Noble. Mr. Noble showed, in detail, the damage that had and would result from the erection of the bridge, and thought that his company had been damaged to the extent of $2,000. Mr. Cowan also spoke of the bridge as a catch for ice bergs, which in the spring would melt, and The bridge was to have passed through the foundry property, in the first instance, but Mr. Noble said only one proposition, and that one perfectly absurd, had been made to him. Chairman Cooper said it had cost the city $10,000 by not going through the property. The chairman, Ald. Dreaney and Ald. Carrothers will visit the property and They will also report on the Lordon Rowing Club's right of way.
