GOVT. FACES REAL "EMERGENCY" MR. BORDEN SENDS FOR WHITNEY TO HELP HIM FIND A WAY OUT

Liberals Will Never Surrender, Declares Chief Whip of Opposition.

ELECTION NEAR IS THE FEELING

Labor Member Wants Canadian-Built Ships—Funny Incidents of Last Night's Vigil.

[Canadian Press.]

Ottawa, March 8.—Sir James Whitney arrived here this morning in his private car.

Sir James emphatically declined to give any hint as to his mission to Ottawa. Mr. Borden has been at the Commons all day, and so far has not seen the provincial premier.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, March 8.—Premier Borden is now confronted with a real "emergency." The life of his Government is at stake. Liberals concluded the last long night vigil of the week in eager, confident spirits. As day dawned and the relief shift came in to take their places, the temper of the men who had carried through the long vigil, found hearty and yet serious expression in the singing of "O Canada" and the National Anthem immediately after leaving the chamber. It is a battle to the end.

Sends For Whitney.

Conservatives are frankly worrying over the situation. So great is now their anxiety that it is reported that Premier Borden last night telegraphed Sir James Whitney, urgently asking him to hasten to Ottawa with the view of consulting him as to the Ontario situation. Despite the fact that the Legislature is sitting, Sir James is expected in Ottawa on the morning train. The Government is getting timid about attempting its closure plans, and is eagerly seeking a way out. Chief Liberal Whip Pardee, who was on duty all night, said at daybreak there would be no let-up to militant Liberalism on this issue. It must go to the people.

Last Night's Vigil.

Last night's vigil was carried through by Messrs. Pardee, Boivin, Bourassa, Warneck and Mulloy. Particularly effective was the stirring speech of Boivin, the eloquent young French-Canadian. He charged the Government with responsibility for the blockade. For seeking to force through the contribution clause after less than two hours' discussion. At midnight Mr. Lapointe's question of order as to whether the House could sit on a Saturday without a special resolution demonstrated the panicky condition of the Government forces. Conservative members were dragged from their beds by telephone and messenger and hurried to the House in sleighs and taxis. Premier Borden himself was brought to the House, and all the ministers. Arrived there they gravely declared that Saturday was Monday, and Mr. Boivin smilingly continued his speech. It was a bad case of "nerves."

Mr. Jameson came into the chamber in a gay bathrobe, took off his boots, collar and tie, and stretched out on a couple of chairs for the night. Mr. Stevens, of Vancouver, came to the front with a blanket.

Pugsley Queries Again.

At 6 o'clock this morning Dr. Pugsley repeated his application to the Government for the information concerning the cost of battleship construction in Britain, in the United States and an accurate estimate of the cost in Canada. This, he said, was the cause of all the trouble. Parliament could not be expected to vote $35,000,000 until it had proper information as to what it was voting for.

Labor Fight the Bill.

There was no response from the Government to the demand for information so Mr. Verville, the labor member for Maisoneuve, took the floor and in a short speech said he proposed to join forces with the minority in Parliament to try and compel the majority in Parliament to do what the majority in the country wanted done. He said that if the ships were built in Canada, Canadian workmen would get the benefit of at least twenty million dollars expenditure.

Mr. Nesbit of Oxford followed.

The belief at Ottawa this morning is that an election is coming and that the dissolution of Parliament will come within a few days. The absence of the Senate will not prevent prorogation, as Earl Grey set a precedent by dissolving the last Parliament on a Saturday, when the Senate was away from Ottawa and the Commons were not sitting.

Bathrobes and Cat Calls.

The gaily-ornamented bathrobe made its appearance in the House last night.

Subway Proposal Will Start Live Agitation

For many years South London has had to bolt its dinner and take off an extra ten minutes for fear of cars being held up at the Richmond street crossing of the Grand Trunk.

Despite every effort it seems impossible for the railway to keep the crossing clear and often the cars of four lines—Belt, Oxford, Wellington and Ottaway—are congested in the block above Horton street.

The proposal to relieve the difficulty in so far as South London is concerned, by cutting down the "gas house hill" and running the car beneath the tracks is being seriously considered. It meets with almost unanimous approval in South London, and will be a live agitation within a short time.

HOCKEY FANS ASK FOR CELEBRATION FOR TEAM MONDAY

Mr. R. Simpson Suggests That Band Be Secured and That Mayor Make a Speech.

Points to Manner in Which Orillia Honored Its Victorious Hockey Team.

The accompanying communication, which speaks for itself, was addressed to the sporting editor of The Advertiser today. He thoroughly agrees with the sentiment contained therein.

Dear Sir—Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper in regard to an item I read in regard to the game in Orilla with Woodstock.

After the game the mayor of the town stepped on the ice and made an address and congratulated the winners. The band was called out and there was a loyal tribute paid to the team. Then they finished the evening by being entertained to a supper.

Give the Boys Credit.

Now, what I want to say is, why can we not pay some tribute to our excellent team that we are backing this year?

If they prove winners, which I think no doubt they will why not have a band for Monday night and have a rousing celebration after the game and let them see what we think of them and how we appreciate the class of hockey we have been treated to this season.

Mayor To Be Invited.

I am sure our mayor would only be too glad to be on hand to say a praising word and make things interesting for the final game of the year so far as the championship goes. Hoping you will see fit to publish this little item and also hoping the directors of our team will see fit to have some little demonstration prepared for Monday night. I remain, as ever,

A LOYAL HOCKEY FAN,
R. SIMPSON.

FOUR PERISH IN A QUEBEC FIRE

Aged Man and Three Children Caught by Flames While Asleep.

STOVE WAS OVERHEATED

Building Was of Frame and High Wind Sent Flames Roaring Through the House

[Canadian Press.]

Huntingdon, Que., March 8.—Henry McConneville, aged 85, and three children, aged 9, 10, and 12 years old, were burned to death in a fire which broke out last night in the house of Olivier Robidoux, near the Chateauguay River. Mr. and Mrs. Robidoux were able to escape with a two-year-old child, which was sleeping with them.

Desperate efforts were made to get the old man and the remainder of the children out of the building.

The high wind blowing sent the flames roaring through the house, which was of frame construction, so that it was soon impossible to stand within fifty feet of it.

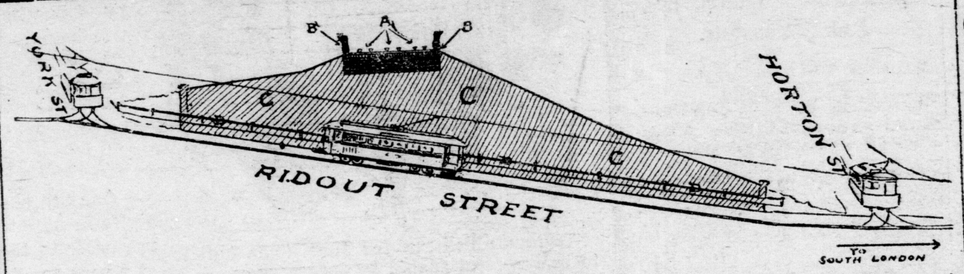

McConneville was Mrs. Robidoux's father.

It is believed that the fire was started by an overheated stove.

JOSEPH BROWN WANTS PUBLICITY JOB FOR CITY

It is understood that Mr. Joseph Brown, auctioneer, is an applicant for the position of publicity agent of London, which will be vacant when Mr. Grant Henderson goes to Hamilton about April 1. Mr. Brown has spoken to a number of his friends regarding the matter and is asking their support.

Would Ridout Street Subway Solve South London Trolley Problem?

The above is a cross-section sketch of the proposed Ridout street subway. (A) represents the Grand Trunk tracks; (B) represents the bridge, and (C) the concreteretaining walls. Cars could run either along Ridout street to Dundas, or turn on York street, though the former plan is most favored.

RIDOUT STREET SUBWAY WOULD BE BOON TO PEOPLE OF SOUTH LONDON

Proposal Made by Dr. H. A. Stevenson Meets With Much Approval Amongst Aldermen and Citizens Generally—Trouble Caused by Railway Blockades Obviated.

The suggestion made by Dr. H. A. Stevenson that in order to relieve the street car congestion from South London below the Grand Trunk tracks, a subway be constructed at Ridout street, has been widely discussed since the matter was brought forward in The Advertiser.

South London Wants Subway

South London, which has suffered for years (if the minutes could be added up) of delay at the Grand Trunk tracks on Belt Line cars, would be a unit for the move. While the street railway does not seem to be enthusiastic for the scheme, it is admitted that clear right of way without blocking by railroad traffic, would improve the Belt service one hundred per cent.

Deep Cutting All Required

The plan as advanced by Dr. Stevenson would be to cut down the hill running from the Grand Trunk tracks to Horton street on the south and York street on the north. The street cars would run beneath the tracks, and concrete retaining walls would be built on either side.

The whole thing would be a matter of excavation, according to the authorities, and there would be no serious difficulties to an engineer.

That the railway commission would apportion a share of the cost to the street railway and the Grand Trunk is the view most generally held.

Progressives to Join Agitation

The proposal will be taken up by the South London Progressive Association at its next meeting, and it will also come up in the city council, and a motion asking for an investigation into the cost will likely be introduced.

Liked the Idea.

Ald. Wm. Spittal stated that he had been struck with the value of Dr. Stevenson's suggestion. He thought the matter of securing a subway for Ridout street should be brought up at the next meeting of the council, and he had thought of bringing the matter forward.

As a former resident of South London he knew that the congestion of street cars on Richmond street below the Grand Trunk tracks was one of the things that kept people from living in South London.

G. T. R. Would Help.

"It would be largely a matter of digging out the hill," he said. "Provision could be made in the foundation for

MICROBE-LADENED ROLLER TOWELS AND DRINKING CUPS TO BE CHASED FROM CITY

Board of Health Plans Discussion of Means of Prevention of Spread of Communicable Diseases in Public Places—But One Opinion Expressed by Members.

London Board of Health meeting on Tuesday next, will sit in judgment upon "ye olde-fashioned roller towel," and the little tin drinking-cup, which were severely censured and resoluted against at the meeting of the provincial board of health in Toronto on Friday.

Out in the townships, in the quaint, oblong, red brick farmhouses, with heavy green shutters and slatted concave-roofed verandahs, that nestle cosily between their lilac shrubberies and wind-breaks of poplars and willows, the roller towel may be tolerated for as much as another decade.

Romantic Memories.

Fond memories cling to it, and romance entwines about it, and creaks unmistakably in the warped and worn old rollers on the back kitchen door. The big tin dipper or the granite cup that fits like a policeman's helmet on the old, red pump in the dooryard may be left to rattle in the wind and rain for years to come. But the tin cup in the railway train and public drinking-places in the city, the roller towel in the dark, dingy washroom of the second-rate hotel, perhaps even that pet aversion of the humorist, the office towel, must go.

Back to Dust.

They are relegated to the dust-heap of the centuries. Progress has outlived them. The junkman and the ragpicker will call for them tomorrow. In their stead will enter the fragile folding paper cup, at so much a dozen, and the thick, porous paper towel that looks like an endless sheet of blotting-paper that you tear off and throw away with your chirographical impressions and inky thumb-prints indelibly impressed.

Up-to-date detectives who want to discover who cheated the infallible cash register and the time-locking safe, may be poking around in waste-baskets for clues.

Banished Is Decree.

"The roller towel and the tin drinking-cup must be done away with," said Dr. F. L. Burdon, chairman of the local board of health, today. "They have already generally disappeared in the United States. They are removed from all trains on reaching the American side, and paper towels and cups substituted in their stead."

Relative to the opinion of members of the Provincial Board of Health that doctors should be paid a fee for each case of communicable disease reported to the municipal authorities, Dr. Burdon said that the doctors should be enough interested in public welfare to report such cases without any fee. The payment of a fee, however, might be the means of having a greater number of cases.

The provincial board also proposed more rigid inspection and sanitary regulations for barber shops.

After Barber Shops.

"The London barber shops are very excellent," said Dr. Burdon, "but in the smaller towns and cities generally many of the shops are badly in need of inspection. In the local shops clean paper head rests, and fresh towels are largely used, and this is as it should be."

"The matter will be taken up thoroughly at Tuesday's meeting of the board, and the action of the provincial board will be fully discussed. To inspect or regulate barber shops, public towels and drinking cups, the council would have to pass a bylaw. The recommendation of such a bylaw is a step that might be taken by the local board of health.

But That Roller Towel.

"The local barber shops are excellent," said James R. Haslett, another members of the local board, "but the roller towel and common drinking cup are a great source of danger."

"The existence of the roller towel, more especially, I regard as dangerous to public health and safety," said Mr. W. H. Abbott. Dr. Hutchinson, M. H. O., observed that he advocated the disuse of common towels and drinking cups several years ago. Following his advice the board of education installed drinking fountains in the public schools.

"Most dangerous of all," said Dr. Hutchinson, "is the roller towel in use in hotels. Ophthalmia and other eye diseases are chiefly communicated by the roller towel."

ON THE BATTLE LINE

JOHN PERNOKIS, London man who fought with Greek army which entered Janina on Thursday.

MAJOR BEATTIE TO REFRAIN FROM NEXT ELECTION CONTEST

In Event of Battle On Naval Issue He Will Not Be in the Running.

Said To Be an Aspirant For Senate Honors—Possible Substitutes.

In the event of an election on the naval issue, the probability of which is being seriously considered by both political parties in London at present, Major Thomas Beattie will not be a candidate.

Major Beattie has definitely announced to members of the Government that he will not run again. As everyone knows, the major is anxious to get into the Senate.

Possible Candidates.

A number of names as to who would succeed him as a candidate have been suggested. Mr. T. G. Meredith, K. C., city solicitor, is spoken of as a possible choice, though there are a number of others anxious to enter the field.

Ald. Percy Moore and Mr. Marshall Graydon have been mentioned at different times, and it is said that either would accept the nomination.

Conservatives have also suggested that Mayor C. M. R. Graham "has ambitions."

Site For the Dray Stand—The special dray stand committee appointed by the city council to consider sites for a new dray stand will meet Monday night. It has been suggested that the property in the rear of the Hotel Cecil on York street would be suitable.

WANTED-$100,000 OF LOCAL MONEY FOR NEW HOTEL

Chicago and New York Capitalists Plan the Erection of $600,000 Structure.

Publicity Commissioner Talks Over Proposition With a Toronto Promoter.

Representing Chicago and New York capitalists, who have under consideration the erection of a $600,000 hotel in London, J. M. MacDonald, of Toronto, accompanied by Architect Cooper, one of the leading hotel architects in America, were in London on Friday afternoon and conferred with Industrial Commissioner Grant Henderson and several local capitalists.

"I think that in order to secure the hotel," said Mr. Henderson, "London investors would have to subscribe $100,000 of the capital. The Chicago and New York men behind the project would supply the remainder of the capital."

Messrs. MacDonald and Cooper are to return to London next Wednesday.

Mayor Graham met the capitalists, who were in London a short time ago with a view to locating a big hotel here. The project is still under consideration, but they, too, would like local men to subscribe a part of the capital.

LONDON GREEK IN ARMY THAT TOOK JANINA FORTRESS

John Pernokis Wounded While Serving in Besieging Army.

Brother Wires Congratulations—Celebration May Be Held Here.

In the victorious Greek army that entered the city of Janina in European Turkey on Thursday morning after a desperate siege of months, was John Pernokis, brother of Louis Pernokis, proprietor of the Parisian Cafe. He left London with a number of his countrymen when the war broke out.

Mr. Pernokis has been with the besiegers for some time, and was recently wounded in the head, apparently during a sortie by the Turkish garrison. He was able to continue in the battles, however.

"Some Metal in the Head."

His brother received a letter Friday stating that he had been with the army for some time, and that he had received "some metal in the head," but that he was not seriously incapacitated.

He anticipated that he fortress would fall before long and said that the Greeks from Canada and the United States were proving their love for their country by being given favorite positions in the army where they might see the most service. The Greek army is in splendid shape and the war will not end until greater victories have been won.

Sends Congratulations.

Mr. Louis Pernokis Friday sent a cablegram to his brother, to congratulate him upon being with the victorious army, and inquiring as to whether he was recovering from his wound. An answer has not been received at 3 o'clock today. The cablegram had a journey of thousands of miles, and the cost was more than $6.

It is believed that several of the other London men who went to the war were with the army, but no word has been received from them recently. None of them have fallen, it is believed by their fellow countrymen in this city.

London Greeks May Celebrate.

It is possible that a celebration may be arranged because of the victory at Janina. This was one of the most important Turkish fortresses, and is situated on the border between Albania and Greece. The Greeks have doggedly stuck to the siege, keeping up a constant bombardment, and they have been given great praise in England for the victory.

SMALLPOX OUTBREAK 20 CASES AT EXETER

All Cases Isolated by Provincial Health Officer Who Is Handling Epidemic—Cases Were First Supposed To Be Chickenpox.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Exeter, March 8. — Smallpox has broken out in 20 Exeter homes. What was thought to be chickenpox has been prevalent for the past two months, but suspicions were first aroused as to the disease being smallpox, in the case of Reginald Taylor, 12-year-old son of ex-Reeve John Taylor.

Dr. Quackenbush was called to attend young Taylor on Wednesday, and fearing that the disease was more serious than chickenpox, summoned Drs. McGillicuddy and Hyndman.

On Thursday Dr. McNally, of Owen Sound, district health officer, was called. He in turn sent for Dr. Bell, provincial health officer, Toronto, who, after consultation, pronounced the disease smallpox. It is supposed that it was brought to town by a young man who recently returned from Manitoba to his home in Stephen Township.

Dr. McGillicuddy stated to The Advertiser that none of the cases were severe, and that all the patients are under strict quarantine and all are doing nicely.

The town authorities are taking every precaution to prevent the disease spreading.

OTTAWA MINISTERS OBLIGED TO FACE SERIOUS CHARGES

Mr. Tancred Marcil's Accusations in Connection With Hochelaga Elections.

Says That Dead Men Voted and $22,000 Was Spent to Win Seat for Government.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Montreal, March 8.—"Not only one crown minister, but three of the members of Hon. Mr. Borden's Cabinet will have to face direct charges in connection with the last Hochelaga by-election."

Such was the open statement made to your correspondent by Mr. Tancrede Marcil, one of the Opposition leaders in the fight which resulted in the re-election of Hon. Louis Coderre last November.

Sworn Affidavits.

It has been rumored for some time past that the Opposition had in its hands sworn affidavits which would cause one of the biggest political scandals the country has ever known. The official note which was communicated to the Parliamentary reporters on Thursday last, announcing that the Opposition was about to make some definite charges of electoral corruption against one of the ministers of the crown, has brought the matter to a climax.

Mr. Marcil Speaks.

Suspecting that Mr. Tancrede Marcil, whose bitter opposition to Mr. Coderre during the by-election is well known, might be well informed on the subject, we called on him and after showing him the clippings from the various newspapers, we bluntly asked:

"Do you know something about this, Mr. Marcil?"

"I do, because I am the man who discovered the nigger behind the wood-pile."

"Who is the nigger?"

A "Well-Oiled Machine."

Here Mr. Marcil answered that not only one but three ministers would be implicated in the charges to be laid before the House Monday. Then he went on to say: "It was a well-oiled machine that helped our opponents to turn a sure defeat into a dishonorable victory in Hochelaga.

"The plans were skilfully laid. An able man who I was told had picked up experience in Saskatchewan, and a silent confederate hailing from the mountainous Laurentide regions, put their heads together and managed and financed the game.

Says the Dead Voted.

"Absent men, sick men, dead men, all voted 'early and often,' and, of course, their votes were all right.

"Everything went on smoothly and fine all day; but trouble came with the reckoning hour. Either the 'lieutenants' had received no reward, or if a reward was given, they had annexed it, is not clearly known, but the real 'workers' were not satisfied and soon after they raised a big kick.

"I had some direct information at the time, but nothing tangible.

"It is only when some of the dissatisfied ones dropped into my office to relate their tale of woe that I came upon the hornets. Soon after, I was in possession of an affidavit signed by three telegraphers who admitted having served in the ranks."

The Men "Higher Up."

"Where is the affidavit?"

"It is safe in the pocket of one of the Oppositon leaders who will know how to use it."

"But what is the value of an affidavit sworn to by such men?"

"Such men, as you call them, have received written promises signed by a big man, in which it is stated that the position they could fill in Ottawa would be theirs for the asking. These letters have been handed to me and they were at once photographed so that the members on the left side of the House could admire them at their hearts' 'content.' This, I think, will fill the bill should the Government want to challenge the sworn statement."

"To what figures did the telegraphing amount to?"

"Many hundreds. It is not so much, seeing that the whole election cost the ministerials the trifling sum of $22,000. Incidentally, I state that the parties concerned, the organizers, are wondering now where the pile went to. Of course, the cost of living is increasing every day."

"But, may we ask, why you, a Nationalist, should inform against your former friends?"

"In the first place, because they have used us as step-ladder to obtain the power, and then betrayed the promises made at our sides to the electorate. In the second place, I consider it the duty of all citizens to denounce all corrupt practices when he becomes aware of them.

"By a curious coincidence, it was on Feb. 15, the very day that Rainville, Paquet, Sevigny, Pelletier, Nantel, Blondin, Forget, Lesperance and the others, betrayed the Nationalist to whom they owed their election that I obtained absolute proof of the dirty work which had been carried on in Hochelaga."

Mr. T. Marcil, who was defeated in Bagot in the last general election, is one of the first recruits in the Nationalist ranks. Formerly a journalist, widely known in this province, he now deals in real estate.

RESTAURANTS CLEAN DECLARES INSPECTOR

Mr. Lutman Finds Conditions to His Liking After Investigation.

Inspector Lutman stated to The Advertiser today that he had concluded his inspection of London restaurants, and had found them all in sanitary condition. His tour included every place where cooked foods are sold, and he found no uncleanliness.

TOO MUCH NOISE FROM AUTOMOBILES

Bill Before Legislature Suggests Important Changes in Regulations.

INSURANCE DISCUSSION

Measure Asks That Onus of Proving Age Be Placed on the Companies.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, March 7. — An interesting discussion was excited in the Legislature yesterday afternoon over a bill introduced by Mr. C. R. McKeown (Dufferin) providing that insurance companies should be compelled to accept age of the insured at the time the policy is taken. Speaking for his bill, Mr. McKeown said the provision would serve to obviate much difficulty in the settlement of death claims by the insurance companies, and that it was much easier to get proof of the age of an applicant while he or she was alive than after he or she had died.

Onus on Companies.

Mr. A. E. Donovan (Brockville), who is connected with a large insurance company, opposed the bill, saying it would serve to throw too much onus upon the companies. After considerable discussion by members of both sides of the House, Hon. J. J. Foy, the attorney-general, moved that a special committee, composed of the following members, be appointed to give the matter careful consideration, before the bill was passed: Hon. W. H. Hearst, and Messrs. S. Charters, T. W. McGarry, J. W. Johnson, C. M. Bowman, Thomas Marshall and G. Pattinson.

The Government is evidently not afraid of "the abolition of the home, family and religion," for one of its members, Mr. H. A. C. Machin (Kenora), secured a second reading for his bill giving to certain municipalities further local option in taxation as far as it applies to statute labor.

Mr. J. C. Elliott (West Middlesex) secured the second reading of his bill to enable a justice of the peace the same power of administering affidavits as now enjoyed by a commissioner.

A bill introduced by Mr. W. McDonald (Centre Bruce) to provide that those attaining twenty-one years of age after the voters' lists are made up should be entitled to vote at the ensuing elections, was withdrawn after a short discussion. The provincial secretary thought there was little hardship under the present act, as anyone becoming of age up to October 10. The bill was withdrawn.

Searching of Titles.

Mr. J. C. Elliott urged the second reading of a bill to simplify the searching of titles by providing that no claim could be made for down after the deed had been registered for ten years. The Attorney-General took the view that this would impose a hardship in certain cases, and the bill was accordingly withdrawn.

Two bills to amend the statute labor act to increase the computed value of statute labor were given a second reading and sent to the committee. One introduced by Mr. W. McDonald (Centre Bruce) would increase the amount from $1.00 to $1.50 per day, another by Capt. A. H. C. Machin (Kenora) to $2.50 per day.

Capt. Machin's bill to increase the number of persons qualified to administer oaths under the wolf bounty act was advanced through the second reading.

Automobile Bills.

Mr. Geo. H. Gooderham (South Toronto), has introduced a bill to amend the motor vehicles act, which seeks to overcome, in a large measure, many of the abuses not attendant upon automobile traffic. In the first place Mr. Gooderham wants every driver of a motor vehicle to be licensed. Where councils in cities have the power to regulate vehicular traffic, the bill provides that they may, if they insist upon all vehicles carrying side lights, prohibit motor vehicles from carrying headlights.

Another clause seeks to permit an interchange of automobile courtesies between the Province and the neighboring states. About 2,000 licenses are issued every year to non-resident owners. By permitting a thirty-day interchange of license privileges, Mr. Gooderham contends that tourist parties would be induced to travel through the Province. Parties of four and five persons going from place to place are bound to spend money, and even the amount required for motor supplies would make the traffic worth while.

The bill also provides for altering the present law with regard to automobiles overtaking street cars having to stop until the car moves on. The bill changes this so that the motor is compelled to stop while passengers are boarding or alighting from the street car and must remain stationery until the passenger has reached the side of the road or the car safely. Under the present clause, the motor must not proceed until the street car has started, and this causes undue delays at street car intersections, as well as congestion of traffic in crowded sections of the city.

A much-needed improvement is sought in a clause that prohibits the unnecessary sounding of a horn or other signal device, as well as the unnecessary use of the "muffler cut-out," which is often employed with nerve-racking frequency. Along with this, the bill proposes to place a penalty on allowing the exhaust to operate so as to create a heavy pall of dense smoke on crowded thoroughfares and leave an offensive odor behind the car.

If these suggested changes are enacted into law offenders, unless the act otherwise provides, will be recoverable under the summary convictions' act before a police magistrate.

If Bad Water Causes Diarrhoea Use Some 'Nerviline'

Prompt Relief Is Instantly Assured, and Thousands Use Nerviline on This Account.

A TRAVELLER'S EXPERIENCE RELATED.

The experience of Mr. Norman P. Hendricks is not an unusual one. Writing from Prince Albert, he says: "My business calls me from one place to another, and I am frequently up against the bad water problem of the Canadian Northwest. In so many places the water disagrees with me, and I used to be kept very miserable on that account. An old settler told me one day that nothing is so useful to newcomers as Nerviline, and he explained to me how valuable it proved to him under similar circumstances twenty-five years ago. You would hardly believe how happy and comfortable my trips are since I learned of Nerviline. I look upon 'Nerviline' as my trusty friend, and give it a place of honor in my hand bag. In fact, I wouldn't think of being without it in a country like this. It cures any little stomach trouble or digestive disturbances and relieves a cramp in ten seconds. To cure Neuralgia, Earache, Toothache, or pain in your muscles like Rheumatism, you simply can't beat Nerviline."

To cure little ills before they grow big and to relieve the aches and pains of the whole family get Nerviline today. Family size, 50c; trial size, 25c; at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

PAULINE JOHNSON TAKEN BY DEATH

The Noted Indian Poetress Succumbs to a Long Illness at Vancouver.

Vancouver, March 7.—Pauline Johnson, the Indian poetess, died today.

Miss E. Pauline Johnson was the daughter of the late George H. M. Johnson, head chief of the Mohawk Indians, and his wife, Emily S. Howland, a native of Bristol, England. She was born at "Chiefswood," her father's residence on the Six Nations Indian reserve near Brantford, Ont., and received her education by private tuition at the Brantford Model School. Early in life she showed a natural aptitude as a poetess, and her first verses appeared in "The Gems of Poetry," New York, and since that time she has been a frequent contributor to the Canadian and United States periodical press. "Her best poems," writes one of her biographers,' the ones in which there is the greatest life, are those on Indian subjects, canoeing, Canadian scenery, etc. Into her poems of this class, 'The Death Cry,' 'A Cry From an Indian Wife,' 'As Red Men Die,' 'The Idler,' 'In the Shadows,' 'In April,' she has thrown all her heart. They possess an irresistible passion and ardor. Nothing stronger than 'As Red Men Die' was ever published in Canada; nothing more sympathetic with nature, and hence more thoroughly artistic than 'In April.' And as regards prose one has but to read such a sketch as 'Prince on the Earth' to appreciate Miss Johnson's power and delicacy of touch upon the harp strings of human nature."

Visited England.

Miss Johnson visited England in 1894, and while there published "The White Wampum," a collection of about two-score poems. She made her first appearance as a reciter of her own poems in 1891, and since then had appeared in many Canadian and American cities. During the season 1893-94, she gave the remarkable number of 125 recitals in 50 different places. More recently she had recited in the United States and on the Pacific coast.

In 1896, she won the first prize of the three offered by the Industrial League for the best campaign song for the Dominion general elections. It was entitled "The Good, Old N. P." Miss Johnson made a host of friends, and the announcement of her death is a shock.

CAUSED FATHER'S DEATH AND GIVEN FIVE YEARS

Cobourg, March 7.—After being out about one hour, the jury in the case of Bruce Flindall, charged with manslaughter in killing his father, Reuben Flindall, brought in a verdict of "Guilty, with a recommendation to mercy."

Mr. Justice Middleton sentenced the young man to five years in the penitentiary. His counsel will in all probability consult with the Minister of Justice, asking for clemency upon the ground of the recommendation for mercy.

200 PASSENGERS LOST

Constantinople, March 7.—The British steamship Calvados foundered during a blizzard in the Sea of Marmora on March 1. The crew and 300 passengers were lost.

GUILTY OF MISDEMEANOR

Home Secretary Had No Legal Right To Release Suffragette.

London, March 7.—The Law Journal, in discussing the action of Home Secretary McKenna in releasing Miss Lenton, who was remanded by the magistrates for having set fire to the pavilion at Kew Gardens, says that the cabinet minister was technically guilty of a misdemeanor in aiding a prisoner to escape. Her crime could be punished by a maximum sentence of seven years' penal servitude.

ASQUITH'S RISE TO PREMIERSHIP TOLD BY O'CONNOR

Achievements of Great Liberal Leader, Who Took Mantle of Campbell-Bannerman.

Welded the Pro-Boers and Imperialists—Is Beloved by Irish Nationalists.

[Special to The Advertiser by T. P. O'Connor, M. P.]

London, March 8.—In the ever-moving scene of the House of Commons—as restless and as continuous and as capricious as the figures on a cinematograph—you constantly find everything in flux; and that nothing is more in flux there than the fortunes of its chief figures. All the future of a great personal figure in Parliament may be changed, for good or for evil, in the course of one half-hour of Parliamentary time. And thus it is that you have to keep watch constantly on the action and interaction of the House on its main figures.

What man has gone through greater changes of fortune during the last seven years than Mr. Asquth? It will be remembered that when the smashing Liberal victory of 1906 came Mr. Asquith was still a doubtful quantity. There had been some doubt as to whether poor old C. B. should admit him into the cabinet or not; all the passion and rancor of the old split between the pro-Boers and the Liberal imperialists has not yet exhausted itself, and when the general election gave C. B. so astounding a verdict of perfect confidence in him and in his policy, there were some good pro-Boers who thought he had been too generous in his gift of offices to the old Liberal imperialists' wing. And this feeling was intensified by some rumors as to the trouble to which C. B. had been put in the making of his cabinet.

An Atmosphere of Suspicion.

Mr. Asquith had to face a Parliament in which Liberals were in tremendous majority, but Liberals among whom the old pro-Boers were especially strong. Their suspicion he had to face. He had to face also the deeper suspicion of the Irish Nationalists, for he had been associated for some years with Lord Rosebery, and by that time Lord Rosebery had already vacated his place among the advocates of Irish liberty. And Mr. Asquith himself seemed to feel the forlornness of his position, for he is underneath his typical Yorkshire exterior of great phlegm, a very sensitive and a very shy man; and sensitive and shy men often increase their own difficulties by keeping apart from those who suspect them; they are too proud to make advances, and so misunderstanding grows and the gulf deepens.

For the first year after C. B. came to power the personal position of Mr. Asquith influenced his Parliamentary life. Though he held the great office of Chancellor of the Exchequer, he made but few appearances in the House, he seemed to wander about the place rather as a stray ghost than as a great political influence, he spoke when he had to, but he never spoke unless he was compelled. It looked as if he were deliberately cutting himself off from Parliamentary life and from his colleagues in the ministry.

Then came the illness of C. B., and Mr. Asquith was forced, whether he willed or no, to rush into a position of prominence as conspicuous as his obscurity, if I may use that paradox, for the previous months. It was seen to be inevitable that if C. B. had to leave that Mr. Asquith must be his successor, and it was known that this was C. B.'s own wish, for the winning personality of the two men, their great good sense, their absolute freedom from mean or vindictive or small feeling had brought about an understanding and a friendship so complete as to blot out all their previous misunderstandings. When the resignation of C. B. came and immediately after the summons to Biarritz to see the King, everybody knew that Mr. Asquith was to be the first minister; he had reached almost the dizziest eminence that it is possible for a human being to attain. When he spoke the words of farewell to the lost leader, everybody realized that the House was in the presence of a strong, dignified, and an eloquent leader, who would make a record in his great office.

Perils Only Beginning.

But the perils and difficulties of Mr. Asquith were, as a matter of fact, not at an end, but only beginning; there was the long-drawn-out misunderstanding between the Liberal Ministry and the Irish party with regard to the proper tactics for dealing with the House of Lords; there were other differences of opinion in the cabinet on momentous questions—such as the increase of the navy, and, in short, Mr. Asquith had a difficult and anxious time. Anybody looking at his tell-tale face could have seen palpable traces of these anxieties, for he often looked drawn, pale, and depressed. There were moments when his ministry seemed tottering to its fall, and when it was quite possible that he would disappear from Parliament history as one of the shortest-lived and most unsuccessful of prime ministers. It is difficult to realize these things today, but there is no harm in recalling them, for they help to bring into greater relief the very difficult position in which Mr. Asquith stands today.

The turn in his fortunes came when the Parliament bill got under way. It was then that the great and almost unparalleled gifts of Mr. Asquith as a parliamentarian were revealed. It was a difficult act to pass. It excited intense political passion. Everybody will remember how on one occasion Mr. Asquith was howled down by a preconcerted outburst of Unionist rowdyism. But throughout the whole struggle Mr. Asquith maintained his unassailable dignity and his imperturbable temper. And he revealed above all, that gift in which he stands unsurpassed over all parliamentarians, past or present, the gift of terse, logical, unanswerable argument. When Mr. Asquith made a speech, though it were only twenty minutes in length, everybody felt that there was nothing more to be said. His conclusion seemed to have the inevitability of a law of nature. Mr. Balfour might weave agreeable and well-expressed sophistries, Mr. Bonar Law might rail amid thunderous Unionist cheers, but the speech of Mr. Asquith remained unanswered. He had beaten the enemy to a rout.

Human and Accessible.

And as fortune began to smile on Mr. Asquith, there came a subtle change, not only in the attitude of his followers to him, but in his attitude toward his followers. Shy, reserved, proud, Mr. Asquith passed for a man whom it was rather dangerous to approach, and his followers were content to admire him at a distance. But as time went on, it was realized that he was the most human and the most accessible of men. And one quality stood out in especial prominence, and that was his absolute simplicity, his unaffected modesty. Holding this dazzling position, he never seemed to realize it. The humblest member of his party was as free to speak to him, it was found, as the proudest, and he was certain of the same genial and friendly reception. It was at last understood that the real Mr. Asquith was not the Asquith that had been created by misunderstanding and want of communication between him and his friends.

And at the same time there grew deeper and deeper another impression, which had existed long before, namely, that there could be no man more trustworthy, straighter, more the slave of his given word or pledge. In this man there were no devious ways; no sharp tricks; no sudden change of front. He was a square man, who knew nothing in politics but the square deal. And thus was that whenever the enemy began an attack, the supporters of Mr. Asquith always got an instinctive confidence in him. The attack might be eloquent or biting or effective, no Liberal felt uneasy; they knew that when Mr. Asquith got up there would come, as from an automatic gun, the right fusillade of good-tempered but unanswerable logic, and that his rise would retrieve any situation even when it looked most formidable.

Loved by the Irish.

And at the same time there came another and even greater transformation in his position. That attitude of vigilance and even distrust which had been that of the Irish party, disappeared the moment the home rule bill was approached. To the surprise of some of them, Mr. Asquith was found to have the clearest, the most fearless and the most thorough opinions on the solution of the complex Irish problem. If there were any doubt about any of the many vexed and difficult problems that came up for solution, Mr. Asquith was always found to give Ireland the benefit of the doubt; his mind was clear and his heart was generous; at last the real Asquith was revealed, and from that hour the confidence in him of the Irish party went on increasing, until today all regard him as the rock on whose firm foundations their hope of the resurrection of the country is based.

And thus it is that today Mr. Asquith occupies in the democratic ranks a position of almost unequalled supremacy. Whenever there is any doubt or difficulty with regard to any of the perplexing problems which constantly arise in the House of Commons, the first question which instinctively rises to every Liberal's mind is "How will this affect the position of Mr. Asquith?" and they take their choice to the one road or to the other, as this question answers itself. It is at once a tremendous responsibility for him, and on the other hand, it is the surest and strongest guarantee of that unity and loyalty of the democratic parties which is all that is require dto add some years more of Liberal power and democratic achievement to the fruitful seven years already passed.

THE EASY WAY TO GET FAT

A Safe, Simple, Reliable Method Which Puts Flesh on Thin Folks, Makes Skinny Men and Scrawny Women Plump and Attractive.

FIFTY-CENT PACKAGE FREE TO PROVE IT.

Thin Folks Get the Cold Shoulder, Socially and in a Business Way.

Modern scientific skill has at last been successful in devising a simple home treatment which works wonders in making undeveloped men and bony women gain flesh rapidly, even if they have been thin and scrawny for years.

This seems too good to be true, you say? Well, the test is Free, and surely the test will tell. You see it is this way with thin folks: Most thin persons eat enough, many eat too much, but the trouble is that they do not assimilate their food properly.

Assimilation is the process which turns food into flesh. Let any scrawny woman gain this power to properly assimilate her food and she should quickly develop a figure which will be the admiration of passers-by. On the other hand, let any fat, jolly, happy-go-lucky man lose this power of assimilation, and his flesh will quickly leave him.

This marvellous new discovery, Sargol, seems to have the power of causing all kinds of thin folks to assimilate their food properly, then, of course, nature takes care of the rest, and they fat up to proper weight quickly. No severe diet stunts, no dosing. When Sargol once gets the body machinery working properly, the rest is easy. Take Sargol and you may, like many others, gain five or six pounds a week steadily.

It is truly remarkable the way that Sargol gets busy putting on good, solid flesh, almost from the first dose. Take the case of Harry Rumford, of East and One Hundred and Thirty-seventh streets, New York, for instance. His report shows a gain of four pounds in less than ten days. Or the case of Mrs. Gray, of Camden, Me., who went from 132 pounds to 142 pounds in less than two weeks, or Mr. J. F. Shields, of Pittsburg, who gained five pounds in the first week and fifteen pounds by the time he had taken one treatment.

A man from Portland, Me., in sending for a second package of Sargol, happily christened this marvellous new discovery "THE THIN MAN'S FRIEND." A mighty good name, for we all know that thin, scrawny folks need friends, more than fat, happy-go-lucky people do.

Thin folks are pushed to one side in this day and age. It is the well-developed ones that make the money and have the fun. Dress will not hide skin and bones.

Arrangements have been effected whereby thin folks can make a private test of Sargol free of charge. Send your name and address to Sargol Co., 467-C, Herald building, Binghamton, N. Y. Pin this coupon to your letter and inclose ten cents to help pay distribution expenses and they will send you a full-size 50 cent package in plain wrapper at once. Do it now and get your weigh up where it should be before Easter.

Free Sargol Coupon

This certificate, with ten cents, to help pay postage and distribution expenses, entitles the holder to one 50-cent package of Sargol, the Flesh-Builder, 467-C, Herald building, Binghamton, N. Y.

THE JUST AND THE UNJUST

By Vaughan Kester

Author of The Prodigal Judge

Copyright, 1912, The Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"I've agreed to watch at the house, Andy," said Colonel Harbison. "I want you and Watt to come with me."

The gambler lighted a fresh cigar and the three men left the store.

On the Square groups of men discussed the murder. Though none was permitted to enter the store, the windows permitted occasional glimpses of the little group of officials within, until a policeman closed and fastened the heavy wooden shutters. Then the crowd slowly and reluctantly dispersed.

Meanwhile the town marshal, under cover of the excitement, had descended on the gas house, where tramps congregated of winter nights for warmth and shelter. Here he found, shivering over a can of beer, two homeless wretches, whom he arrested as suspicious characters. After this official activity languished, for the official mind could think of nothing more to do.

With the scattering of the crowd on the Square, Shrimplin climbed into his cart and drove off home. The smother of wind-laden snow still enveloped the town, the very air seemed charged with mystery and horror, and before the little lamplighter's eyes was ever the haunting vision of the murdered man.

He drove into the alley back of his house, unhitched Bill and led him into the barn. His torch made the gloom of the place more terrifying than utter darkness would have been. Suppose the murderer should be hiding there! Mr. Shrimplin's mind fastened on the haymow as the most likely place of concealment, and the cold sweat ran from him in icy streams; he could almost see the murderer's evil eyes fixed upon him from the blackness above. But at last Bill was stripped of his harness, and the little lamplighter, escaping from the barn with its fancied terrors, hurried across his small backyard to his kitchen door.

"Well," said Mrs. Shrimplin, as he entered the room, "I was beginning to wonder if you'd ever think it worth your while to come home."

"What's the bell been ringing for?" asked Custer. Mrs. Shrimplin was seated by the table, which was littered with her sewing; Custer occupied his usual chair by the stove, and it was evident that they knew nothing of the tragedy in which Mr. Shrimplin had played so important, and as he now felt, so worthy a part.

"I suppose I've been out quite a time, and I may say I've seen times, too! I guess there ain't no one in the town fitter to say they seen times than just me!"

The light and comfort of his own pleasant kitchen had quite restored Mr. Shrimplin.

"I may say I seen times!" he repeated significantly. "There's something doing in this here old town after all! I take back a heap of the hard things I've said about it; a feller can scare up a little excitement if he knows where to look for it. I ain't bragging none, but I guess you'll hear my name mentioned—I guess you'll even see it in print in the newspapers." He warmed his cold hands over the stove. "Throw in a little more coal, sonny. I'm half froze but I guess that's the worst any one can say of me."

"You make much of it, whatever it is," said Mrs. Shrimplin.

"Maybe I do and maybe I don't," equivocated Mr. Shrimplin genially.

"Maybe you're not above telling a body what kept you out half the night?" inquired his wife.

"If you done and seen what I've did and saw," replied Mr. Shrimplin impressively, "you'd look for a little respect in your own home."

"I'd be a heap quicker telling about it," said Mrs. Shrimplin.

Mr. Shrimplin turned to Custer.

"I guess you're thinking it was a burglar; but, sonny, it wasn't no burglar—so you've got another guess coming to you," he concluded benevolently.

"I know!" cried Custer. "Someone's been killed!"

"Exactly!" said Mr. Shrimplin, with increasing benevolence. "Someone has been killed!"

"You done it!" cried Custer.

"I found the party," admitted Mr. Shrimplin with calm dignity.

"Oh!" But perhaps Custer's first emotion was on the whole one of disappointment.

"How you talk!" said Mrs. Shrimplin.

"I reckon I might say more, most anyone would," retorted Mr. Shrimplin quietly. "It was old man McBride—someone's murdered him for his money; I never seen the town so on end over anything before, but whoever wants to be well posted's got to come to me for the particulars. I seen the old man before Colonel Harbison can't tell 'em and Andy Gilmore seen him, I seen him before Andy Gilmore seen him, I seen him before the coroner seen him, or the sheriff or anyone seen him! I was on the spot ahead of 'em all. If anyone wants to know how he looked just after he was killed, they got to come to me to find out. Colonel Harbison can't tell 'em and Andy Gilmore can't tell 'em; it's only me knows them particulars."

The effect of this stirring declaration was quite all that he had hoped for. Out of the tail of his eye he saw that Mrs. Shrimplin was, as she afterward freely confessed, taken aback. As for Custer, he had forgotten his disappointment that a death by violence had occurred for which his father was not directly responsible.

"Did you see the man that killed old Mr. McBride?" asked Custer, breaking the breathless spell that was upon him.

"No; if I'd been just about fifteen minutes sooner I'd have seen him; but I was just about that much too late, sonny. I guess he's a whole lot better off, though."

"What would you have done if you'd seen him?" Custer's voice sank to a whisper.

"Well, I don't pack a gun for nothing. If I'd seen him there he'd had to go 'round to the jail with me. I guess I could have coaxed him there; I was ready to offer extra inducements."

"And does everybody know you seen old Mr. McBride the first of any?"

"I guess they do; I ain't afraid about that. Colonel Harbison's too much of a gentleman to claim any credit that ain't his; he'd be the first one to own up that he don't deserve no credit."

"What took you into McBride's store? You hadn't no errand there." Mrs. Shrimplin was a careful and acquisitive wife.

"I allow I made an errand there," said Mr. Shrimplin bridling. "I reckon many another man might have thought he hadn't no errand there either, but I feel different about them things. I was just turned into the Square when along comes young John North——"

"What was he doing there?" suddenly asked Mrs. Shrimplin.

"I expect he was attending strictly to his own business," retorted Mr. Shrimplin, offended by the utter irrelevancy of the question.

"Go on, pa!" begged Custer.

He felt that his mother's interruptions were positively cruel, and—so like a woman!

"Me and young John North passed the time of day," continued Mr. Shrimplin, thus abjured, "and I started around the north side of the Square to light the lamp on old man McBride's own corner. If I'd knowed then——" he paused impressively, "if I'd just knowed then, that was my time! I could have laid hands on the murderer. He was there somewheres, most likely he was watching me; well, maybe it was all for the best; I don't know as a married man's got any right to take chances. Anyway, I got to within—I should say, thirty feet of that lamppost, when all of a sudden Bill began to act up. You never saw a horse act up like he done! He rose in his britching and then the other end of him come up and he acted like he wanted to set down on the singletree!"

"Why did he do that?" asked Custer.

"Well, I guess you've got some few things to learn, Custer," said Mr. Shrimplin indulgently. "He smelt blood—that's what he smelt!"

CHINESE LIKE REAL OLD CACKLE BERRIES

Celestials Say They Are Imported From China and Kept for Years.

NONE CONSUMED IN CITY

Large Consignments Shipped to Toronto and Other Canadian Cities.

"Personally, I prefer an egg when it is not less than six months old," said Wing Long, a comfortably-established Chinese merchant, who sells preserved bamboo shoots, canned bitter melons, tea, soap, and other commodities, at 359 Clarence street.

"No, we don't handle any Chinese eggs," he explained, when interviewed as to an unquieting rumor that ancient Chinese eggs were being imported into Canada for the consumption of Canadians as well as Celestials.

Toronto Gets Them.

"But large consignments are sent to Toronto. The Chinese prefer duck eggs. They are coated with thick Chinese mud and packed in boxes for export. They have a fine flavor, when they are about one year old.

"No, they don't serve Chinese eggs in the Chinese restaurants. The importation is almost exclusively for the consumption of Chinese in Canada.

None Sold Here.

"I don't think you could get any of these eggs in London."

Inquiry at two other Chinese grocery stores and several restaurants bore out Wing Long's comforting assurance that this class of eggs were not being consumed in London.

The Chinese in America pay as high as 75 cents and $1 per dozen for eggs ranging in age from six months to a year. They are considered prime delicacies.

GREAT BRITAIN SOON TO ANNEX EGYPT

Farcical Connection of Country With Turkish Sultan Is To Be Severed.

London, March 7.—The report, current a few months ago, that Great Britain was about to annex Egypt is renewed, and with a particularity which suggests that before long the formalities needed to accomplish this purpose may be carried out. If they are, their performance will mark the end of a farce which Great Britain has played with an imperturbabe face for practically thirty years.

Neither in form nor in fact is Egypt really one of the Sultan's tributaries. For the last quarter of a century a Turkish commissioner has resided in Egypt as representative of the Sultan, but he has been under strict orders not to interfere in the slightest degree with the British administration, and the British administration in turn gravely pretends to do all things in the name of the Khedive. The Khedive has his ministry, and that ministry puts into decrees the memoranda passed it by the British resident consul-general, who is the source of all governing authority.

It may seem at first glance a matter of indifference to Turkey that the British should now carry out a long-postponed formality, but the final separation of the slender thread which has bound Egypt to Constantinople carries with it the snapping of a prestige terribly impaired in consequence of the Balkan war.

MURDERED BY JERSIAN.

Teheran, Persia, March 8. — Madame Constant, the wife of the Belgian director of customs at the port of Bushire, was murdered last night by an unknown Persian, who also severely wounded M. Constant.

M. and Mme. Constant were driving after dinner, when their assailant ran from behind their carriage, and emptied a revolver into the occupants.

To Improve Expression as Well as Complexion

[From Beauty's Mirror.]

No face is really beautiful that lacks expression. Do you realize that continual use of powders and creams tends to spoil pliancy of skin and elasticity of expression. Why not quit cosmetics and use something better, which won't clog the pores or make the skin either dry or pasty. Ordinary mercolized wax acts quite differently from any cosmetic. It wonderfully improves any complexion, giving it life and expression. By gradually, harmlessly peeling off the thin veil of outer surface skin, it brings to view a pure, soft, spotless complexion, delicately beautiful and youthful. Every druggist has this wax; it is seldom more than one ounce is needed. It is spread on nightly like cold cream, and washed off mornings. In a week or two the transformation is complete.

Wrinkles do not, of course, enhance the expression. Neither do the pasty things many use to eradicate them. A treatment free from all objection is made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered saxolite in half pint witch hazel; use as a wash lotion. This soon removes even the most obstinate wrinkles.

"Stopped My Cough And Gave Me Health"

MRS. ILA BENJAMIN.

Says Mrs. Ila Benjamin, who calls it "The grandest medicine ever made." It cured her of a cold when her doctor could give her no relief, and built up her weak, run-down system after years of poor health.

"It is with great pleasure I write to tell you what I think of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I sincerely believe it is the grandest medicine ever made. It relieved me of a cough that my doctor could not stop. I had been in poor health three years. I took lots of medicine, but none of it seemed to do me any good, till I heard of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and got three bottles and took it. Now I am better and I tell everyone how it helped me."—Mrs. Ila Benjamin, Woodhull, N. Y.

MR. ELLIOTT ADVISES AN INCREMENT TAX

Interesting Suggestion Thrown Out by Member For West Middlesex in Legislature.

Toronto, March 8. — There is considerable discussion over the suggestion by Mr. Elliott, of West Middlesex, that the Legislature should consider the advisability of an increment tax. He called attention to the conditions which had especially risen in Toronto, where land had risen enormously in value through no labor, mental or physical, and no expenditure by the landowners, but on account of the increase in population.

Mr. Elliott thought that such increases were a suitable object for taxation in future, so that the revenue could be applied to the social and economic needs of the incoming population.

Weak, Tired Folks Given New Vigor

Strength Returns, Health Renewed, Vitality of Youth Re-created.

Exhaustion and Bodily Tiredness Every Day Being Turned Into Vigor and Ambition by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

From Cheboque Point, N. S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds: "A year ago my health began to fail. I lost appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down. I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and had black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me, and when springtime arrived I was in the 'blues.' I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1, at all druggists and storekeepers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

ALDERMEN SCENT TRICK IN MAYOR'S STATEMENT

Solidly in Favor of Securing Steam Expert to Report On L. and P. S. R. and Will See That One Is Named.

Despite his statements that he has been told by unnamed persons that a steam operation expert was not needed on the London and Port Stanley Railway, Mayor Graham will find that the council will demand that one be secured.

Practically all of the aldermen are determined that the situation be looked into from every angle, and if the mayor tries to sidetrack the investigation he will likely find himself solidly opposed.

"What the people of London want," said Ald. Richter, "is a written report from an expert on the steam operation of the road. It is very easy for the mayor to come back from Windsor and say that experts whom he saw said a report was unnecessary. The people should have in their hands a signed report from men who are competent to make one. There should be a report on the steam operation of the road, and also a report by an experienced tariff man."

"I feel that the council is in favor of a steam report," said Ald. William Robinson.

ALD. RICHTER NAILS LIE IN MISLEADING ARTICLE

Story That He Moved for Fixed Salaries of $1,500 for Board of Control Not True.

Ald. Richter characterizes as "made out of whole cloth," an article in a local paper two days ago stating among other things that he moved that the salaries of the members of the board of control be fixed at $1,500.

"The Ontario act governing an elective board of control," he said, "fixes the minimum salary at $1,500. For a board of control appointed by the council the maximum salary is fixed at $400.

Not Any Motion.

"There was no motion by anyone to the effect that the salaries be fixed at $1,500. The city solicitor simply incorporated into his draft of the City of London bill the words of the act fixing the maximum salary for members of an elective board of control in a city of from 45,000 to 100,000, at $1,500.

"Their actual salaries will be fixed by the council before or after their election by the people. Personally, I think the salary should be a nominal one, with perhaps a fee for attendance at meetings.

"First-class heads of departments, who would submit their reports to the board of control should be appointed.

Want Efficient Men.

"We cannot get thoroughly efficient men to give us their full time at $1,500 a year, and yet it is large enough to attract inefficient men simply for the sake of the salary.

"We would not be able to increase the salary when London has a population approaching 100,000. It would not be reasonable for a city of only 50,000 or thereabouts to pay a maximum of $1,500, which would not be increased when the population was 99,000.

A Better Plan.

"It would be a wiser plan to elect strong men, as we do to the water or parks commissions, to give the city as much of their time as they could arrange. They could be paid on the same plan as boards of directors, a nominal salary of a few hundred dollars a year and a fee for each meeting they were able to attend."

Clandeboye, March 8.—Apparently the farmers in this vicinity cannot be discouraged in the bean business. The past season being of such a wet nature, the crop was badly damaged, and few were salable. Nevertheless, those who have been growing them, and several other new men, are going into it on a heavier scale than ever, and there will be a large acreage in this district.

QUINCY NOT GUILTY

Judge Directs to Declare Him Innocent of Attempt to Defraud.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, N. Y., March 7. — Federal Judge Mayer, before whom Julian Hawthorne, Josiah Quincy and others are on trial here on charges of using the mails to defraud, today directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty in the case of Quincy, on all the counts of all five indictments found against him, except the eleventh count of indictment No. 2. This count charges conspiracy.

As to the other three defendants, Judge Mayer instructed the jury to deliberate as to their guilt or innocence on all events of all indictments, except such as have already been eliminated during the course of the long trial. These instructions from the court were given on motions made yesterday by the defendants' counsel, who today began summing up.

LONDON, SATURDAY, MARCH 8.

THE CRISIS.

The Opposition has held out the week without any sign of exhaustion either in argument or in physique.

There is no longer a doubt that it is in a position to prevent the passage of the naval bill without violating the rules of order.

It is hinted that the Government will now give up the attempt to force the bill through and will try first to gag the members by closure.

How is this to be carried any more easily than the naval bill itself?

To be regular it must be shaped as a bill and put through committee. If there were any rule to limit members in committee to one speech on the question, it would be a different matter. But there is no warrant for cutting off discussion in committee.

Only by over-riding the rules and arbitrarily closing debate can the Government carry a closure law. If the Government can close debate in order to get the right to close it, why seek to obtain the right? Why not close the naval debate itself without delaying to bring in and pass a closure bill?

But arbitrary measures will not be tolerated. We have been told by good authority that "the subject who is truly loyal to the Chief Magistrate will neither advise nor submit to arbitrary measures." The Opposition will show which is the loyal party in this country when it resists any attempt of the Government to over-ride the privileges of Parliament.

In view of the Government's refusal to carry out its own pledges and submit its policy to the people, the Opposition is justified in its present course. The Government is attempting a political revolution, and is assaulting the basic principles of self-government. If to this it adds an illegal breach of parliamentary procedure, there will be a state of war, at the least an intolerable crisis.

The Opposition may have to refuse to abide by the ruling of a Speaker who is a tool of tyranny. It will have every right to resist an illegal ejection from the House. A closure of debate will have to be constitutionally brought about, or not at all.

CANADA'S BROKEN PLEDGE.

Senator Pearce, Australian Minister of Defence, reproaches Canada for betrayal of the Commonwealth. In a recent speech he recited the understanding reached by the three self-governing colonies with the Pacific seaboards—Canada, Australia and New Zealand—at the Imperial Conference in 1909. Australia has kept faith, has gone ahead, and is rapidly completing her fleet unit, but the Borden Government has abandoned the Canadian naval policy. New Zealand has compromised by contributing a Dreadnought to the Admiralty, in return for certain smaller ships to be sent to New Zealand by the Admiralty, the Dreadnought also to be sent there on annual cruises.

Senator Pearce makes it plain that the scheme of co-operation agreed upon in 1909 originated with the Admiralty; nor has the Admiralty changed its mind. Senator Pearce adds:

"Having reached this position, the Australian Government is of opinion that it would be advantageous if Canada and New Zealand could see their way to come to an agreement as to the defence of British interests in the Pacific."

Canada can co-operate with Australia only by mending her broken pledge and establishing a squadron in Pacific waters. The logic of circumstances is irresistibly in favor of the Laurier policy, which is the Australian policy. It is the truly Imperial policy; Canada will return to it when she gets the opportunity.

SIR WILLIAM RAMSAY'S DISCOVERY.

A wonderful scientific achievement is that lately made by Sir William Ramsay, Dr. Collie and Mr. Patterson. Passing an electrical discharge from a vacuum tube through pure hydrogen, they found after a time considerable traces of helium and neon, two gases mixed with the hydrogen. Their conclusion is that either (1) transmutation of hydrogen or of one of the elements of the vacuum tube took place, or (2) the two gases were directly generated by the electric charge itself.

The latter supposition is not surprising to those who have kept track of the recent developments in physical theory. For some time it has been held by physicists that the elementary atom is itself a complex of electrical units, negative and positive, called electrons. That is, matter is itself es-activity and complication. We are in-activit yand complication. We are informed, for example, that an atom of hydrogen, weak and inert, consists of 700 electrons, an atom of radium, strong and active, of 160,000. What the British scientists have done is to demonstrate this theory that the various elements of matter are so many forms of electrical energy. Whether the helium and neon they generated were the direct transformation of the electrical current or built up from hydrogen by the addition of more electric force to atoms poor in electrons, the theory is to some extent established.

Already scientists have decided that the elements, being reducible to electrons, must be rather degrees of energy than distinct forms. Some transmutation of elements had been made, illustrating the view of an evolving series, in which the elements are so many terms linked each to each like the orders of plant and animal life. This latest experiment makes it all the clearer that, as metaphysicians have discovered, and as the old Greek physicists held, there is a one universal and primordial something in which all created nature consists. The troublesome opposition of matter to spirit may disappear in some common unity. Dualism may be abolished from even our religion.

But not to drift into a consideration of results to philosophy, the success of science in actually creating "matter" out of what seems just energy suggests a far-reaching discovery of new sources of power. When a physicist coagulates energy into matter, what he does is to start little systems of force. The electrons of an atom revolve and rotate with reference to one another, so it is believed, as systematically as the polar systems of space.

The complicated power of such systems is almost incalculable, taken in the mass. If science can build these little worlds of force, let it only unbuild them, translate their concentrated motions into power for human use. In that event, vast stores of intra-atomic energy, incomparably greater than any which we derive from fuel or waterfalls, will become available. The world will be revolutionized by such an invention. Our little day of steam and water power will dwindle to nothing when the greater time comes, in which the elements and their atoms will be at the mercy of science.

MR. BECK'S BACKDOWN.

The Mayor of Stratford has received a letter from Hon. Adam Beck, in regard to the project of publicly-owned electric railways throughout Ontario. Mr. Beck says:

"Various municipalities are urging this matter. However, at this time I am not in a position to give you any information regarding the same, the Government not having come to any conclusion in so far as they are concerned."

This is contrary to the impression Mr. Beck has given by his public advocacy of the scheme. It could only be inferred that he spoke for the Government. The Conservative press has assumed as much and has been showering Mr. Beck and the Government with praise. Until Sir James Whitney the other day threw cold water on the plan, the municipalities had every reason to believe it had taken definite shape. They have been misled by Mr. Beck. He had no right to take the lead in the movement when the cabinet had framed no policy, and when the Premier was actually hostile. The irregularity of his conduct has apparently been impressed upon him by his chieftain, for Mr. Beck now backs down.

Co-operation, not contribution.

Australia rightly regards the present Canadian Government as a backslider.

The Ottawa Opposition wants an election; the Ottawa Government doesn't. Who's afraid?

The Ottawa Citizen says that Laurier is trying to "sacrifice the young life of Canada to the maw of militarized greed." Mr. Bourassa couldn't improve on that.

There are Canadians whose idea of Imperialism is to have British sailors to defend Canadian shores at 25 cents a day, while Canadians look on and contribute three cheers.

The Free Press says that The Advertiser admitted that were the Scott act operative in Ontario generally it would obviate the necessity of Mr. Rowell's abolish the bar platform. The Advertiser admitted no such thing. County prohibition would be at the best no substitute for provincial prohibition.

The London Daily News and Leader, the leading Liberal newspaper in the metropolis, calls Mr. Borden's navy bill "bad Imperialism," and advises him to consult the people. As a matter of fact, the British friends of peace and promoters of an Anglo-German entente regard the proposed Canadian Dreadnoughts as white elephants.

Pauline Johnson was one of the sweetest singers in the choir of Canadian poesy. There are few gold mines on Parnassus, and she died poor. But she was cheered in her long, last illness by renewed proofs of the appreciation of her genius by her fellow-countrymen. The recent publication of her collected poems by the Women's Canadian Club of Vancouver, was a crowning act of kindness.

Sir Charles Tupper at 92 has planned to recross the ocean in May. It was Sir Charles who wrote to the Montreal Star on Nov. 11, 1909, as follows:

"Allow me to say that in my opinion your journal is making a serious mistake in attacking the deliberate judgment of the Canadian House of Commons, who have unanimously pledged themselves to proceed vigorously with the construction of a Canadian navy, and on the lines that the Imperial Government has decided is better calculated to provide for the security of the Empire than the construction of Dreadnoughts."

[Ottawa Citizen.]

There is no greater or more insidious curse than that of cocaine. It approaches stealthily and grips with a power that is almost irresistible. It gives artificial relief from cravings which are rendered greater by its use. It is worse than the drink habit, fetters its victims more securely and fastens upon new victims more easily.

In every city on this continent, as every student of sociology knows; there are scores or even hundreds of men and women, who are addicted to this fearful habit. The trail of the habit may be traced on hundreds of human paths that lead to the penitentiary. It is the ally of vice. It is the mementary paralysis of conscience and the better self. It is the veritable dope of death.

Everything must be done to resist the encroachment of this drug habit upon normal Canadian life. It is worse than any invasion of an alien army. It threatens worse than death to those who fall into its power.

—Capt. Scott's Diary.

Things came out against us—
The legions of the night,
The blind hosts of the blunder-god,
Impossible to fight;
Cruel things, monstrous things,
Walking all in white.

They were less than we were,
These things beyond control;
But they came out against us
In the deserts round the Pole,
Where things may crush our mortal clay,
Yet never touch the soul.

From the white, unheard-of mountains
They swept down like a wind,
Challenging us to save ourselves
And leave the lost behind;
Then—against them, too, things came out,
And we stayed—with the doom assigned.

Conquered, we shall conquer!
They have not hurt the soul!
For there is another Captain
Whose legions round us roll,
Battling across the wastes of death
To conquer a darker Pole.

The things that bludgeoned us in the dark,
We have proved they are less than He,
So we can await His trumpets
Through all the years to be,
Secure in the honor of England,
Secure of victory.

WEST MIDDLESEX MEMBER SCORES SIR JAMES WHITNEY

Shows Up Manner in Which the Prime Minister Deceived the Legislature and Misrepresented High Court Judges—Unjustifiable Additions to Bench.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, March 8.—Members of the Legislature are still talking of the slashing attack by Mr. Elliott, of West Middlesex, on Sir James Whitney for the appointment of two unnecessary high court judges at an anual cost of $14,000, and the deception he practiced on the House in connection with this business.

Mr. Rowell's bill to cancel the act for the appointment of the two judges was introduced into the Legislature on March 22 of last year. Mr. Elliott showed that at this time Sir James Whitney and the Attorney-General knew that the high court judges did not want the additions to the bench. The Government had been so informed by Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, and by the late Chief Justice Moss. The latter had written that the increase of the county court jurisdiction had reduced the number of high court cases by 40 per cent. in two years.

Refused Chief Justice's Suggestion.

On February 28, 1912, Chief Justice Moss suggested to the Attorney-General that he (Sir Charles Moss) call a council of the judges in order to get their consensus on the question. For the first time in the history of the Attorney-General's department a letter was answered on the day of its receipt. The Attorney-General sent back a letter to the chief justice, telling him not to summon the judges, that he saw no necessity for it.

This was a proof that the Attorney-General knew that the judges were opposed to the appointments, and did not wish to have their opinion formally before him.

The Prime Minister's Deception.

Mr. Rowell's bill was discussed in the Legislature on March 22, 1912. Mr. Elliott showed by the newspaper reports of the following day that the Prime Minister had conveyed the impression to the House that the judges had not shanged their minds since 1909, when they recommended that two new judges be appointed. "It would be a remarkable thing," said Sir James, "if the judges had changed their opinion and had not let us know it."

At that very time Sir James and the Attorney-General knew perfectly well what the judges thought, but they were determined to add two members to the bench for political purposes.

Immediately after Sir James' statement, the judges felt called upon to assert that they had been misrepresented by the Premier, and twelve of them signed statements to that effect. Sir James made no attempt to reply to Mr. Elliott's damaging attack.

BALLOTS WERE CHANGED SAYS EXPERT AT CLINTON

Judge Holt Will Ask for a Government Investigation—Sensational Evidence Was Given at Local Option Hearing.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Clinton, March 7.—A big sensation in connection with the local option case was sprung in court here today when O. B. Stanton, of Toronto, handwriting expert, gave evidence to the effect that several of the ballots had been tampered with and that ballots which were originally marked for the bylaw had been changed to appear as against the bylaw.

Judge Holt, of Goderich, had adjourned the court until today, and James Heverson took charge of the case for the hotelkeepers, and was assisted by Mr. Garrow, of Goderich. W. Proudfoot, K. C., appeared for the local option people.

Mandamus Secured.

A mandamus had been secured from the high court ordering the county judge to take the evidence tendered previously regarding certain alleged irregularities in St. John's Ward, and it was for this the court was held today.

D. L. MacPherson, the town clerk, was the first witness, and stated that he had put the ballots and papers in their respective boxes and placed them in a cell at the rear of the hall, the key of each box being left hanging to the box. One lock was used to fasten the cell door. He stated that it had been the custom for several years to put the boxes away in the same manner, and also that the building was always open day and night.

No Night Watch.

Constable R. Welsh, upon being examined, stated that he was doing day duty at the time of the election and the following week, so that there was no night watchman for some time.

Poll Clerk Alexander and Scrutineer G. Street and W. Cochrane swore that the original returns of the vote as given by Deputy Returning Officer J. C. McMath were correct.

The testimony of Mr. Stanton was sensational. He swore that he had made a careful examination of the ballots with strong glasses. Eleven ballots had undoubtedly been tampered with and the crosses which had been placed opposite the space "For the bylaw" rubbed out and another cross put opposite "Against." The new crosses were clearly the work of one hand. The two ballots which were marked both for and against had crosses which indicated that they were not both made by the one person. He suggested that if these ballots were photographed and enlarged it would be very clear to all as to the erasing, and he had no hesitation in saying that enough ballots had been changed to account for the difference in the returns.

A Detestable Case.

Mr. Proudfoot argued that the court should hold that on the evidence produced the original returns of Deputy Returning Officer McMath should be accepted and the bylaw declared carried. It did not even need the eye of an expert to show that the ballots had been tampered with, he said.

Mr. James Haverson said the case rested largely upon whether the deputy had properly read out the result of each ballot, as evidently there was so much confidence placed in him that little or no care had been taken to see that he had done his part correctly. He regarded the testimony of experts generally as a joke, but in this case it would appear as if certain ballots had been changed. The expert was unable to state, however, when and how these changes had taken place.

Judge Holt said that to deliberately interfere with the will of the people by changing their ballots was a detestable crime, and he would like to see the Government conduct an investigation in the case. It was the most unpleasant case he had had before him in twelve years, and would adjourn the court till March 22 at Goderich and report to the Government.

UNIONISTS CLAMOR FOR CONSCRIPTION

English Jingoes Are Demanding an Increase of the Land Forces.

IS A GREAT WAR NEAR?

Outbreak of Militarism in Europe Makes Perilous Position—Two By-Elections at Ha nd.

[Canadian Press.]

London, March 8.—Two by-elections which were caused by the deaths of House members will give the country opportunity within the next fortnight of expressing its views, and the Liberals look forward with complete unanimity to the result, feeling sure of winning one in spite of a triangular fight, because of a Liberal and Labor candidate, as well as a Unionist one.

They even hope to win the other, although the seat is held mainly by the Unionists.

All of these internal conflicts in England are somewhat overshadowed by the tremendous outburst of militarism in Germany and France.

The Radicals and Socialists of both countries protest against this gigantic and intolerable addition to the burdens of the peoples and the fierce aggravation of national passions, and they prophesy that such things must inevitably lead to national bankruptcy or an international war.

An echo of these startling results of course, follows in all of the countries of Europe, but England up to the present takes it fairly coolly. The opinion among the Liberals remains that England's sole duty is to make its fleet iresistible and Winston Churchill will find no difficulty in getting his big naval estimates accepted.

Want Conscription.

The Unionist jingoes find in the action of Germany, and even more in the action of France, which is now regarded as England's ally against Germany, strong arguments in favor of increasing England's forces as well, and the movement in favor of conscription is being pressed with greater zeal.

At the same time the general opinion in England is, that though the present situation is enormously perilous and likely to lead to a tremendous outbreak later on, no serious immediate danger exists of a great war.

This optimism is increased by the approach of the close of the Balkan war and by the Greeks striking victory at Janina.

One question remains outstanding which will cause much trouble and some delay. That is the demand of the Balkan states for an indemnity which Turkey neither is willing nor able to pay, and which the great powers will probably not support.

All of the ministers have returned to London, including Lloyd George and Winston Churchill, who were both on the Riviera.

CASE ADJOURNED; MUST COMPLY WITH LAW

Father Whose Children Were Absent From School Given Another Chance.

The case against James A. Dodds, who was charged in police court by Truant Officer Weir with neglecting to send his children to school, was adjourned for two weeks to allow him to comply with the law.

The evidence was heard on Wednesday morning, Dodds claiming that he had been advised by the family physician not to send the children to school, as they were suffering from tonsilitis.

The physician was in court this morning, and testified that the children had recovered. Dodds was ordered to send them to school.

Cruelty Punished.

Abraham Rosenfelt paid a fine of $2 and costs for cruelty to animals, in allowing his horse and a crate of live chickens to stand unprotected for half an hour in the bitter cold of Friday.

John Donahue and James Fox were each fined $10 or 21 days for their part in certain festivities held in a chicken coop on Pall Mall street last week. Donahue repeated the offence while the first case was pending, and was fined $10 or 21 days on Thursday morning. The two sentences will run concurrently.

DIVER'S CLOSE CALL FROM SUFFOCATION

Sarnia, March 8. — While repairing a water main in Black River at Port Huron, Diver Bennett, employed by the Reid Wrecking Company, had a narow escape from death. Bennett was down in his suit working around the main, and in some manner became entangled in a chain that had been lowered down to be wrapped about the pipe. He at once sent signals of distress to the men on the raft and was hauled up just in time to escape being suffocated.

BONUSING TEACHERS TO PUNISH PUPILS

Committee of Board of Education Discusses Extra Salary Paid at Collegiate.

"The point is that the board pays a man to punish pupils," said Trustee Shaw at the meeting of No. 1 committee of the board of education Friday, referring to the fact that W. T. T. Mooney receives an additional grant of $100 because he stays in with the pupils who are detained after 4 p.m. at the Collegiate Institute for coming late, loitering in the halls between periods, and other misdemeanors.

"No position like that should be there at all," said Dr. Shaw.

When the question of salaries came up Dr. Shaw moved that Mr. Mooney continue to receive $1,800 a year, of which $1,700 is his regular salary, but that he be relieved of the duties for which he receives the extra $100.

"I hold that it is not strictly legitimate, to engage teachers to work after hours, for any reason, and, furthermore this arrangement encourages teachers to keep pupils in after four o'clock."

Thought It Unfair.

Dr. Mugan pointed out that it would be equivalent to raising Mr. Mooney's salary, and unfair to the other teachers to add the $100 onto his regular salary. Trustee Greenlees pointed out that Mr. Mooney is appointed to his extra duties by Principal McCutcheon, the board simply making the grant for the purpose, and that it would be further unfair to the other teachers, in that they would lose an opportunity for one of them to receive the extra $100. Trustee Gunn said the board could not leave Mr. Mooney's salary at $1,800 if it relieved him of his duties after 4.

Retain Punishment.

Dr. Teasdall was not in favor of abolishing all forms of punishment. "But have we the right to spend money for that purpose?" asked Dr. Shaw. "Each teacher should deal with his own pupils."

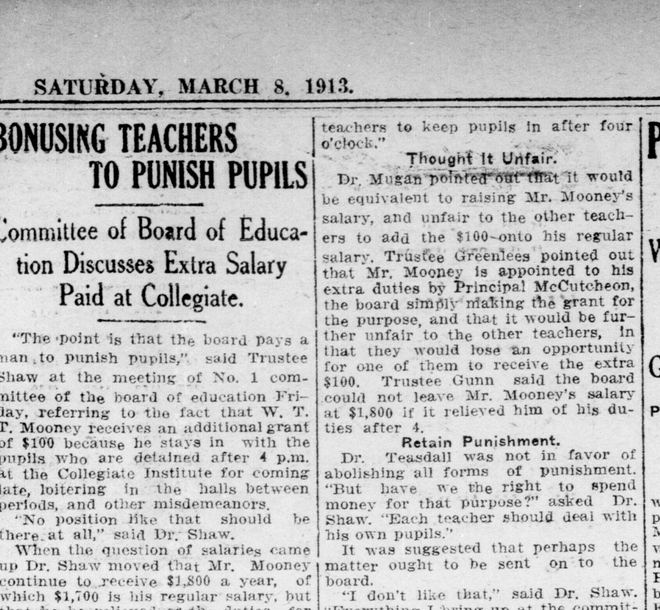

It was suggested that perhaps the matter ought to be sent on to the board.

"I don't like that," said Dr. Shaw. "Everything I bring up at the committee is sent to the board, and everything I bring up at the board is sent to the committee. It looks like shelving."

Dr. Shaw's motion was lost on a vote of two to one.

Enjoys Fishing and Shooting After Being Invalid in Bed

GIN PILLS Brought Strength Back Again to New Brunswick Sportsman

Kidney and Bladder trouble may quickly bring you to the sad state Alex. W. Stevenson was in.

He was an invalid using a crutch and cane for sixteen months. In this state he sought and found relief in GIN PILLS. Now he goes shooting and fishing as of yore.

The first state leading to the invalid's bed may be the very time when you recognize the first symptoms of Kidney and Bladder trouble, when you have constant Headaches, Pains in the Joints, Swollen Hands and Ankles, frequent desire to urinate. It may be when you feel the urine hot and scalding or when you have specks floating in front of your eyes.

These are the times when the marvellous results of GIN GILLS are appreciated. These are the very periods when they should be used. Don't wait for repeated occurrences of these signs. Take GIN PILLS at once. Keep the invalid's bed as far away as possible. Get close to the health which allows you to enjoy your outdoor life, and which makes your indoor time also a pleasure.

PERTH, N. B.

For two years I was an invalid, incapable of work of any kind, sixteen months of this time I was unable to move without the assistance of a crutch and a cane. During this time I was treated by all our local doctors as well as taking treatment from a specialist in Chicago, but did not improve any, and had about given up hope of ever being of any use again, when a friend advised me to try GIN PILLS. This I did, and with a two months' treatment was as well as ever I was. This was four years ago, and I have had no return of my trouble since.

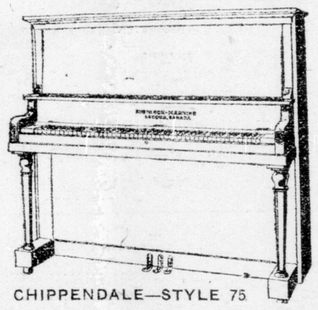

I still use a box or two a year as a preventative and am enabled to go fishing and shooting in the Spring and Fall, and lie out on the ground at night without any inconvenience. It is a wonderful medicine and I take great pleasure in recommending it to all sufferers from Rheumatism.

ALEX. W. STEVENSON.

POULTRYMEN HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

William McNeil Presented With Handsome Loving Cup by Admirers.

GOOD ADVICE BY EXPERT

Professor Graham, of Guelph Agricultural College, Advocates Uniformity of Quality.

In consideration of the fact that he was the first poultryman to be elected president of the Guelph Winter Fair, Mr. William McNeil was presented with a handsome loving cup by the members of the London Pet Stock and Poultry Association at their annual banquet held in the Albion Block on Friday evening.

The gift was accompanied by an address which was read by Mr. J. Nash, vice-president of the association. He supplemented it with a few words of the warmest praise for "Uncle Billy," as he styled Mr. McNeil, who is a past president of the association.

Fitting Reply.

Although taken completely by surprise, Mr. McNeil replied suitably, thanking the members for their expression of goodwill, and assuring them that he would always greatly treasure their gift.

Fully two hundred and fifty of the members and friends of the association were present at the banquet, and the affair was a great success.

Professor Graham, of the Guelph Agricultural College, was the principal speaker, and his remarks on "The Poultry Industry of Canada" were listened to with great interest by the large number of poultrymen present.

Uniform Quality.

To secure a uniform product throughout Canada, both of eggs and poultry, should be the aim of all poultrymen, he declared.

The Agricultural Department of Ontario is working out several schemes, he stated, with this end in view.

The first one that is being put forward is an educational campaign to demonstrate to the farmers, who, he said, rule the poultry trade and the market price, the advantages of maintaining a uniform breed of poultry, thus insuring in some measure at least uniformity of egg production.

"Less than 10 per cent of the average farm flocks are pure bred at the present time," he declared. "In Canada no product is put on the market in worse condition than poultry and eggs, and 20 per cent of the eggs marketed in this country are unfit for food," he continued.

The Second Step.

The aim of the department is to correct these evils, and its educational scheme will be followed up with a breeding scheme, and also a definte marketing scheme.

Denmark's success as an agricultural country is due, he said, to the fact that they produce a uniform product in large quantities.

Danish butter has a large sale in England, he pointed out, because the people can always depend on its quality being the same.

"There's lots of Canadian butter sold over there that's better," he added. "but they can't always bank on Canadian butter, and, therefore, the people fight shy of it."

He applied the same principle to poultry and eggs, stating that it was for this reason that the market in the United States was in such bad shape.

Over Production in States.

"The United States is on the verge of over-production, and the quality of their product must be greatly improved, if they are to maintain the demand of the consumers."

He also touched briefly upon the problem of keeping boys in rural occupations. "We're trying to interest them in poultry-rasing, and with this end in view have developed a scheme to distribute eggs among the boys of the rural schools, let them raise the chickens themselves, and then offer prizes at a local fair to the boys who have the best chickens, their entries to be judged entirely by the way in which he chickens have been raised.

He praised he work of the association in the past, and expressed the hope that much would be accomplished in the future towards developing the important industry of poultry-raising.

Praises Publicity.

Ald. S. F. Glass, who followed Mr. Graham, drew attention to the significance of the publicity campaign recently inaugurated in Middlesex.

"We want to let the people of the world know the immense resources of the county," he said. "We are just awakening to its possibilities. We think we have attractions enough to bring settlers not only from the old land, but even from the United States.

He spoke of the pamphlet that is being prepared, advertising the resources of the county, and assured the poultrymen that a section of it would be devoted to the interests of poultry-raising. He also expressed the belief that the annual grant of $200 made by the city council to the Thanksgiving poultry show was too small, and he would like to see it increased.

Toast Responses.

A number of brief but interesting addresses were delivered in response to various toasts.

Mr. William McNeil, past president of the association, gave a short sketch of the wonderful progress made by the association since its inception 30 years ago.

He attributed much of its success to the fact that there were no politics connected with it, and the members all worked together in perfect harmony.

Dr. Niven's speech was also reminiscent in character, and he expressed the hope that the younger members of the association would continue to uphold the traditions of the past.

The toast to the city of London was responded to by Dr. W. J. Stevenson and Ald. J. H. Saunders. Mr. James McCormick, another past president of the association, responded fittingly when called upon, as did also Mr. Logan, of Wiarton; Mr. Thompson, of Wodstock, and Mr. Donovan, of the Canadian Poultry Review, who paid a warm tribute to the work accomplished by Mr. McNeil, saying that he was known in Toronto and elsewhere as "Uncle Billy, the Booster."

Musical Numbers.

The program was liberally provided with musical numbers, which were greatly enjoyed. They consisted of solos by Messrs. E. Van, Wheatcroft, Snelling, and J. Nash, and instrumental selections by Masters Slesson and Shortt Bros., and Messrs. Horner, Flavin and L. Sage. A monologue by Mr. Sage was also entertaining.

The duties of chairman were ably undertaken by Mr. J. W. Jarvis, the president.

SCHOOL PHYSICIAN MAY BE APPOINTED

Matter of Another Nurse Left Over for Adjourned Session.

The board of education did not appoint a second school nurse on Friday, but left the appointment over until a special meeting, which will be called to deal with unfinished business.

"You want a medical man appointed instead, don't you, Dr. Shaw?" asked one of the other trustees.

"Yes, if it's going to stop epidemics in the schools, it will have to be a medical man." Dr. Shaw called attention to the fact that in a class of 58 pupils in one of the city schools, 27 were at home with the whooping-cough.

BRUCE PRESBYTERY CONVENED AT PAISLEY

Resignation of Rev. Mr. Tibb, of Glammis, Was Received and Accepted.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Paisley, March 8. — The Presbytery of Bruce met in Knox Church here recently. Rev. G. C. Little, B. A., was appointed moderator for the ensuing six months. The following delegates were appointed to attend the general assembly in June: Rev. McNab of Underwood, McLean of Hanover, and Leslie of Elmwood, elders from Burgoyne, Southampton and Tiverton. The resignation of Rev. Mr. Tibb, pastor of Glammis, was received and accepted, owing to ill health.

Mr. John Jacques has sold his residence, Queen street north, to Mrs. D. Galbraith.

Notwithstanding the very stormy evening, the hockey match between Port Elgin and Paisley was largely attended. The game resulted in a victory for the home team, 6-2. The skating race between Wm. Wench and J. Davis was won by the former.

Miss Jean McPhee, honor graduate in household science, gave a most interesting demonstration of bread and pastry making under the auspices of the Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon in the town hall. There were about 50 ladies in attendance. The stormy day prevented many from attending.

Miss Cook, of Elma, is the new milliner with Ballackey, Laidlaw & Co. and Miss Foley, of Toronto, is in W. H. McFarlane's millinery department.

Miss Hannah Armstrong, a former resident of Paisley, died in Toronto recently. She was a sister of Mrs. Leask, Albert street.

Mr. Percy McAndrew, of Edinburgh, Scotland, is a guest at the home of his cousin, Mr. Duncan McArthur, Rowe street.

COUNTRY ROADS ARE ALMOST IMPASSABLE

Farmers Unable to Come Out With Big Loads in Many Places.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ingersoll, March 8. — Many of the country roads to the south and north have been almost impassable in places in consequence of the continued storm this week. Exciting experiences have been related by a number of persons, who found it necessary to make somewhat long drives before the roads had been opened. In several instances there were upsets, with all the attendant hard work of making a path for the almost jaded horses. With many people who enjoy the rigors of winter, these experiences are not taken seriously. With others they are considered a real hardship.

A number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Sherlock pleasantly surprised them last evening owing to the occasion being their 35th wedding anniversary. The invasion was wholly unexpected by Mr. and Mrs. Sherlock, but with their characteristic geniality they soon made their visitors feel at home. In the course of the evening Mr. and Mrs. Sherlock were the recipients of a china shower, as a token of the esteem in which they are held.

Interest in the final game of the intermediate hockey series between the London Tecumsehs and Collingwood in the Forest City on Monday night is very keen. Ingersoll fans have followed the work of the Londoners with unusual interest, and there will be a representative number at London on Monday night to witness the deciding struggle.

MAINE'S CHURCH ROW

Compromise Bill Would Not Better Layman's Position, Say French-Americans.

[Canadian Press.]

Biddeford, Me., March 8.—The compromise bill to be recommended to the Maine Legislature by the judiciary committee, which has been considering the request of French-speaking Catholics in this state against the corporation sole system of administering the affairs of the church, does not meet with the approval of all parties, as it was anticipated that it would.

The French-Americans who were interdicted last year by the Bishop of Portland for their attempts to abolish the corporation sole, and to substitute the Quebec parish system, which they think would enable them to get French-speaking instead of English-speaking priests, when interviewed today, said that under the new law they would practically have no more supervision over the financial affairs of their churches than they have now. They insist that the only measure that will satisfy them is the power to appoint three laymen to the parish corporation.

The measure, it is understood here, will come up at Augusta before the Legislature next Tuesday.

DR. SHAW EXPLAINS RECENT STATEMENTS

Says He Based Assertions on Report of Matriculation Examinations.

There were no increases in salary voted to any of the city teachers at the meeting of No. 1 committee of the board of education Friday. Ald. Greenlees moved that the communication of the male teachers protesting against Dr. Shaw's reflections be filed, and it was decided to make no increases in salary at present.

"I have been accused," said Dr. Shaw, "of singling out one teacher as the only one deserving of an increase. One member of the board has gone so far as to say that an investigation should be made. I have based my criticism on the results of the honor matriculation examinations, which I regard as very important. In one department, mathematics, there were no less than ten students winning honors; five firsts, three seconds, and two thirds. In no other department were there more than three honors won, nor more than one first."

Matriculation Report.

Secretary McElheran pointed out that the honor matriculation results in the annual report were not complete.

"Why is the report published, then?" asked Dr. Shaw.

"I don't think that it is fair for the teachers to ask for increases in the face of such an unfavorable report," said Dr. Shaw.

Dr. Mugan said that in the question of increasing the teachers' salaries the board should be unanimous before taking action. If the salaries at present were large enough to retain an efficient staff, all right. If they were not high enough, he was in favor of paying more, if it was necessary, in order to retain the services of the present efficient staff.

Salaries High Enough.

Trustee John M. Gunn thought the local collegiate salaries compared favorably with those paid in other cities.

The question of continuing the playgrounds grant evoked a good deal of discussion. Trustee Greenlees favored continuing the grant of $125 a month, but dividing it among the assistants, instead of paying it to an extra supervisor. Dr. Shaw asked if such a grant was legal. Trustee Gunn suggested that the grant be appropriated as previously, but that the Playgrounds Association be asked to confer with the committee as to the use of the money.

It was pointed out that the amount was larger than the school act permitted school boards to expend on gymnasties and recreation. Only $200 a year was allowed for every 3,000 pupils enrolled.

Playgrounds Committee.

A motion was finally carried to have a small committee from the Playgrounds Association confer with the committee relative to the proposed grant.

No action was taken in regard to the Saturday art classes at the Industrial School. They are attended by public school pupils and the question of charging a fee had been raised.

The question of an advance in the male assistants' maximum salary, which at present is $1,200, was left in abeyance. Only three teachers would benefit by an increase this year. Trustee Greenlees moved that the maximum be increased to $1,300, but his motion was not voted upon. Dr. Teasdall suggested that perhaps these three teachers might be offered grants equivalent to increases for this year from the playgrounds grant. Several of the male assistants are already assistant playgrounds supervisors.

The question of a salary advance for the physical instructor at the collegiate, Mr. A. W. Slatter, was also left in abeyance. It may be that a lady instructor will be appointed to teach physical drill to the girls at the collegiate.

Trustee Greenlees submitted estimates on the cost of the cadets' uniforms. He had received samples and prices from a Hamilton firm. Dr. Mugan asked why a local firm had not been given an opportunity to tender for the uniforms. Trustee Greenlees will ask the local firms for estimates and samples, which will be turned over to the secretary for the consideration of the committee.

ORDER AT JANINA

Extraordinary Scenes When the Greeks Marched Into the Fortress.

[Canadian Press.]

Athens, March 8. — The telegraph line to Janina, which was captured by the Greeks on Thursday, has been restored. The first message received was to the minister of war. It announced that Crown Prince Constantine entered the town at noon, surrounded by 15,000 citizens, who went out to meet him.

The dispatch adds that there were extraordinary scenes as the Greek cavalry and infantry marched into the city, the populace crying, cheering and embracing the soldiers. Six thousand wounded or sick Turkish soldiers were found in Janina. It is reported that the Turkish troops who escaped pillaged the shops of Christians before leaving.

Perfect order now reigns in Janina.

EUROPE UNEASY

Some Fear That France May See Fit to Launch a War.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, March 8.—A cable to the Tribune from London says:

"There can be no doubt that there is at the present moment a good deal of uneasiness among thinking men in England in regard to the European situation." Thus declares the Spectator in a remarkable article which appears today. The writer continues as follows:

"The reawakening of France and the evidence of her power and alertness have given some immense satisfaction in this country, but that satisfaction is tempered in many cases by anxious thought. There is a feeling here that France may now find the temptation of 'now or never' too great for her, and may feel that her national interests demand that a European struggle shall be fought this year."

To resist this feeling, the Spectator points out, any attempt to carry out a now-or-never policy, would forfeit the support probably of Russia, and certainly of Great Britain, and if Great Britain were not with France, French communications with Tunis, Algiers, and Morocco might be severed by a German-Austro-Italian fleet, and the French flank turned by a German invasion of French territory.

German sea power, it is added, is in reality directed as much against France as against Great Britain, and for these reasons France is not in the least likely to provoke a war this year, as she is not going to knock her head against a brick wall, nor, concludes the Spectator, is Germany likely to deliberately provoke a conflict.

Mr. James Dobson.

Bronte, Ont., March 1st, 1912.

"Fruit-a-tives has made a complete cure in my case of Rheumatism that had at least five years' standing before I commenced the treatment. The trouble was principally in my right hip and shoulder; the pain from it was almost unedurable. Not being able to sleep on that side, if I chanced to turn on my right side while asleep, the pain would immediately awaken me. This kept up until I started taking "Fruit-a-tives." I started by taking one or two tablets with a large glass of water, in the morning before breakfast, and experienced pronounced relief very shortly. After a continued treatment for about six months, I was cured and am now in first-class health. This I attribute to my persistent use of 'Fruit-a-tives,' and I heartily recommend your remedy to any Rheumatic sufferers."

London Team, After Holding Collingwood to One Goal Lead On Home Ice, Confident of Winning Intermediate Hockey Honors

COLLINGWOOD FADING FAST, SAYS JINX, IN THE FINAL MOMENTS OF A HARD GAME

London Scored Two Goals in Last Two Minutes of Play—Hard Going For Local Boys at Some Stages.

WARDROPE SAVED DAY FOR LONDON REID STRONG ON THE SCORING END

Fryer Does Wonderful Stick Work For Northern Town and Upon Him Was Placed Heavy Task—Large Ice Favors His Work.

[Special to The Advertiser, by Jinx.]

Collingwood, March 7.—London Intermediates sprang the biggest kind of a surprise on the Collingwood seven tonight, by holding the fast northerners to a score of 6 to 5 on their own ice, in the first game of the finals. It was the fastest and best game Collingwood has seen this season.

The London seven on tonight's showing should cop the championship, and the London delegation who witnessed the game are already planning a place to store the silverware this summer. Although the London team was far lighter than the locals, the visitors put up a plucky battle, and had there been a few minutes more to play they would probably have tied the score and won out.

WERE FADING FAST.

When full time sounded Collingwood was fading fast, and the London forwards were beginning to get their brilliant combination working. The score was 6 to 3 for Collingwood, with only three minutes left to play. Then the Indians woke up. The heavier Collingwood players could not stop them, and they made an onslaught on Cook that netted two goals before the game ended. Only some remarkable work by the Collingwood defence saved the score from being tied, for Grannary and McAvoy, in the last minute of play, carried the puck right to the Collingwood nets and lost it on an offside. It was an offside by inches only, and undoubtedly cost a goal.

FAST, CLEAN GAME.

The game was fast and clean. Collingwood has a wonderful player in Fryer, and his work alone kept the northerners in the running. He did nearly all the shooting for his team, the puck being passed to him at every opportunity. He was a trifle wild, however, and missed a few easy chances to net a goal.

The work of Wardrope also kept the score down. Wardrope was the hero of the contest, if any one man on the team can be termed a hero. He stopped shots that came in so fast they fairly sizzled, and all through maintained a calmness and coolness that would have done credit to a veteran.

BLOCKS OF EMPTY SEATS.

In the last half he was particularly good, and to his work London owes its good showing on Collingwood ice. The smallest crowd that ever witnessed a final O. H. A. game was present at the rink. There were several blocks of empty seats. Paid admissions totalled less than 700.

Collingwood fans say that the townspeople are sore on the team because the players have not been taking an interest in the game. Albeit they were in great condition, and appeared to be playing the game of their lives.

On the puck-off the plays was rushed into Collingwood territory, but it was soon rushed back, and Collingwood took a couple of shots. Wardrope took care of these, and the play shifted to the other end of the rink Walden and Reid making shots on Cook.

LONDON SCORES FIRST.

The first goal of the game was notched by London, Reid turning the trick after seven minutes of play. He bored in close to the nets and easily beat Cook. Collingwood came back with a rush, and the London defence was almost swept off its feet. Wardrope was bombarded with shots but he stopped dozens. Reid as sent off for loafing, and Walden for tripping. With five men against them Collingwood could not score, although London had many narrow escapes.

The northerners tried combination. Larence shot the first goal in ten minutes. For the next five minutes Wardrope spent a busy time, the Collingwood players passing to Fryer, and letting him do all the shooting. It was bush league hockey, but it demoralized the London team for a while, and had the shots been in close they might have proved dangerous.

As it was Wardrope was catching them as though they were liners off a bat, and the next goal did not come until fifteen minutes of play had expired, Fryer finally locating the nets. Five minutes more of the same kind of tactics with London occasionally rushing the puck to the other end, elapsed before Lawrence made it three for Collingwood.

LONDON SCORES AGAIN.

Walden and Burns were penalized for chopping at each other, and while they were off Davy Reid and Gillies rushed Laurie, carrying the puck and passing to Reid, who scored. Just before the half end Burns was hit on the nose by one of Grannary's shots and he retired, taking Walden with him to even up. Half time score, 3 to 2.

During the interval the big rink, probably the biggest that London has played on this year, was foggy with the smoke sent up from tobacco-using fans. The atmosphere was quite thick when play resumed.

Burns and Walden were on, and during the first few minutes of play both teams fought hard to score, each having several opportunities, but failing on the shooting. Borland tied the score in five minutes, when he and McAvoy comoined in a rush, McAvoy drawing Cook out of the nets, then passing to Borland, who only had the empty goal in front of him.

The game then became fast, and shots were rained on both goals, Collingwood having much the better of the play. The Collingwood timekeepers' watch refused to work at this stage, and the game was delayed while it was fixed.

WARDROPE KEPT BUSY.

Reid went off for tripping a minute later, and in his absence McKinnon scored for Collingwood in twelve minutes. Wardrope had the busiest time of the night now, the London defence seeming to go to pieces temporarily, and the little goalkeeper doing much of the work.

Borland and Grannary came to life, however, and both made some nice individual rushes down the ice, but were checked before getting near the nets.

Fryer scored in fifteen minutes on a nice bit of stick work, and four minutes later he duplicated. Then London began to come. The team work that has made them famous this season was put in operation. So far there had not been a penalty in this half, but now Walden and Burns went off for chopping. McKinnon was also sent off, and with only three minutes to play Reid scored for London on a puck-off near the Collingwood nets.

A minute later he and Borland dashed down the ice, the latter carrying the rubber, then passing to Dave, who scored the last goal of the game. London was again pressing hard when the contest ended.

For Collingwood, Fryer was undoubtedly the star. His wonderful stick work fooled London, but on the smaller home ice should be easy to check. McKinnon, Dance and Lawrence werealso good, while Cook did not show anything out of the ordinary in goal.

ALL PLAYED WELL.

For London, Wardrope, Gillies, Borland, McAvoy and Reid were prominant, with the other members of the team so close behind them that there was little choice among them. On London ice they should bring the championship to London. Referee Caldwell was good. The line-up was as follows:

Official, Gren. Caldwell, referee, Barrie; timekeepers, K. Murray, London, J. Cort, Collingwood; penalty timekeeper, W. A. Hewitt; goal umpires, Follus, Collingwood, W. Legg, London; penalties, London, 16 minutes, Reid 6, Walden 6, Grannary 2, Gillies 2; Collingwood, 10 minutes, Burns 2, Dance 2, Lawrence 2, McKinnon 2, Hall.

TORONTO PAPERS CHOOSE LONDON

Globe Says It Looks Like Local Team for the Next Championship.

CLOSE PINCH FOR C'WOOD

London Carried Battle All the Way, According to the Newspaper Writers.

London the New Champions.

The Toronto Globe says: The London intermediates handed the Collingwood team one sweet surprise tonight in the first game of the O. H. A. intermediate finals. The home team could only get a lead of one goal, which will scarcely be enought to land them the championship. Unless Collingwood shows a remarkable reversal of forms when the teams meet in the Forest City on Monday night, the Londoners will be the new champions.

London checked like a lot of terriers and the home team could not get away with any of their famous combination rushes. Fryer and Burns were marked men, and Hall also came in for a large share of attention. Cook stopped scores of shots from all angles, and prevented the visitors from piling up a lead.

Borland and Reid played excellent games for London. In speed the teams were about evenly matched. It was expected that the home team would pile up a big margin of goals here and then hold London to a close score in the latter city.

Made It Interesting.

The Toronto World says: It was one of the best games ever witnessed in Collingwood, as the 6 to 5 score would indicate.

London made it interesting every inch of the way, and it was only the good defensive work of the home-brews that saved the day. Both goalkeepers were in excellent form, and turned aside shots that looked like sure scores.

The return game will be played in London on Monday night, and it is just a toss-up who will be returned champions. Collingwood will send a big crowd to London on Monday.

The ice was in perfect condition and the game was fast and clean throughout. London will be slight favorites for the return game, but Collingwood will not be lacking for backing.

London Finishes Strong.

Toronto Mail and Empire: The London team were much stronger than the local seven anticipated, and though the big ice space here bothered them for a time, they finished strong, scoring the last two goals in the last three minutes of play.

The game was fast all the way through, and both teams played good, clean hockey. Only a few penalties were handed out.

LOOK FOR LONDON TO WIN TOP PLACE IN HOCKEY HONORS

Even Collingwood Fans Are Not Hopeful For Victory Monday Night.

Poor Patronage Impressed Visitors—Reid and Wardrope Stars of London Lineup.

[Special From Jinx.]

Collingwood, March 8.—The members of the London team, the O. H. A officials, the fans who accompanied London, and even many of the Collingwood folks are strong in the belief that the Forest City will claim the intermediate hockey honors for 1913.

Collingwood confidently expected to establish a four or five-goal lead last night. They were prepared to mix it up if necessary, but the London boys did not give them a chance.

Play in Collingwood End.

The visiting defence was more than equal to the onslaughts of the northern team, and although there was one extra goal, the play was drawn to the Collingwood end of the rink through much of the game.

Collingwood depended on Fryer to win the game by his vicious shooting, but Wardrope and Borland and Grannary were too much for him, and the forward line was on the job every minute with close checking. There were moments when London lagged and did not seem to have the ginger the team usually shows, but they were equal to the strain in the long run.

A Pair of Stars.

Possibly Wardrope and Reid should be picked out as the individual stars. One prevented a great score from being piled up and the other did most of the notching for London.

The size of the Collingwood crowd was one of the features of the game. Between 600 and 700 were present, and their enthusiasm was not wonderful to behold.

London may look for a battle royal Monday night. The chances seem all in favor of the London team.

WHOLE CITY'S HEART WITH BOYS WHO PUT UP SO GAME A FIGHT

Hundreds and Hundreds of Telephone Calls Received by The Advertiser—Everyone Confident That Close Score Indicates a Victory.

Though only a handful of loyal London rooters was able to go with the hockey team to Collingwood, there were thousands who were in their hearts cheering the boys.

In no more striking way could the interest of the citizens, old and young, of both sexes, be demonstrated than by the hundreds of calls that were received by The Advertiser. Four trunk lines running into the office switchboard were crowded with calls from 8:45 o'clock until 11:30 o'clock. An operator did not leave the board for one moment, and each line was busy practically the whole of the time.

When it was learned that in the first few minutes of play Collingwood was in the lead, there were mournful expressions, but usually the inquirer made the comment, "We'll be there in the second half."

Putting Up a Fight.

As the score crept up the expressions became more cheerful. The home boys were putting up the fight that everyone expected. There was a thrill in the news even at the second half, when it was known that London was down only one goal. The teams played with equal results in the second half, and the Indians again demonstrated superior form.

When it was announced that the game had been won by Collingwood, it was regarded by the fans as anything but a defeat for London. If the team could show such form on the northern ice patch, they would be able to win the series in London.

Few events have aroused the interest of the sport-loving public in recent years. It is doubtful if baseball has more enthusiastic followers in London than the real Canadian game, and with a championship team in prospect there are great expectations.

London's Old Hoodoo.

In the past Collingwood has proven a hoodoo to London. In 1908 London went into the semi-finals and stacked up against Collingwood. Soft ice alone prevented the London team winning out on that occasion, the Collingwood aggregation being a much heavier one. Again in the season of 1909-10, London went into the finals and Collingwood put them out by a two-goal margin, the game in London being played on ice that was totally unfitted for hockey or anything else. London won by 6 to 4 at home, but in the game at Collingwood lost out in the last few minutes of play by the score of 5 to 1.

Expect to Spring Surprise.

This year, however, London is confident the old order of things will be reversed, that the London Intermediates are going right through to the championship is the belief of every hockey fan in this city. The London team has only been beaten once this season. This was at Paris in the district schedule. However, London got ample revenge for this defeat. Four members of the London team are eligible for Junior O. H. A. hockey, the players being Gillies, Reid, McAvoy and Wardrope.

George Wardrope, goal-keeper of the London team, broke into O. H. A. hockey last winter when he played goal for the London Junior O. H. A. team. He is only 18 years of age and is regarded as the best net guardian in Western Ontario. His work this season has been sensational. He lived in Belleville at one time and learned the game there. The family moved to London two years ago

Comes From Winnipeg.

William Borland, point player of the London team, is a Winnipeg boy. He has just passed his twentieth birthday. He was spare man on the Winnipeg Monarch line-up two years ago. He came to London about a year ago on a trip with a couple of London boys who had been playing football with the Winnipeg Tigers. He remained here to play Rugby in the O. R. F. U., and little was known of his hockey ability until he turned out to practice with the local team. Since then he has been one of the stars of the team.

James Grannary, cover and captain of the London team, Jimmy is an Irishman, and was born in Montreal. He is a machinist, and came to London last winter. He was signed up on the Empire Brass team in the Manufacturers' League of this city earlier in the year, but his ability being recognized, was given a try-out with the O. H. A. aspirants. He weighs about 170, and is the heaviest man on the London team. He is a nice stick handler and fast skater, and plays his position at cover-point well.

Ambrose Still a Youngster.

Ambrose McAvoy, rover, is 19 years of age, and one of the best and fastest players on the London team. He played with the London Intermediates last season, coming to this city about two years ago from Copper Cliff in Northern Ontario. He is a marvellous stick handler, and his great speed makes him one of the most dangerous men on the London team.

Ralph Reid, centre, is a Seaforth boy, and his home is in that town. He is 19 years of age, and one of the hardest checkers in the London team. He is a fast skater and marvellous shot, and is after the puck in centre ice every moment.

Laurie Gillies, left wing, was born in London 19 years ago, and his home is still in this city. He broke into O. H. A. hockey in the winter of 1909-10, and played with the London Juniors for two seasons. Last winter he played with the Detroit Arena seven in some of their games. He is a fast man, although a trifle light, but plays good combination and is an excellent stick handler. He is particularly good on a big ice surface.

A Wicked Shot.

Leland Walden, right wing player. He was born in London 21 years ago and learned to play the game in this city. He is one of the hardest workers on the London team, and never seems to be content unless he is checking two and three men at a time. He is a particularly wicked shot and bores in on the goal whenever he gets the puck. He broke into O. H. A. hockey two years ago with the London Juniors. Last year he was over age and played in the local Church League.

Mitchell

You ought to see every car in the Automobile Show if you're going to buy one; it's worth the trouble.

Put your best time in at the Mitchell exhibit, though. Make careful comparisons with the other moderate-priced cars. Study what they offer you. You will come back to the Mitchell. There is nothing equal to it in value; not another car at anywhere near the price has so many things you will want in your new automobile.

Of course, you will want a T-head, long-stroke motor; no one will be satisfied with any other next year—the Mitchell has it this year. The 1913 Mitchell has the extra long wheel base, and the French Belaise springs that mean the best of road comfort; also the important and essential electric self-starter and lighting system—you must have these. The other details of this unequalled equipment include left drive and center control; Bosch ignition; Rayfield carburetor; Firestone demountable rims; rain-vision windshield; Jones speedometer; silk mohair top with dust cover; Turkish upholstered cushions; Timken front axle bearings; gauges on the dash to show air pressure and oil pressure; gauge in the gasoline tank showing amount of gasoline it contains; and a portable electric lamp which also illuminates the instruments on the dash.

All with T-head motor, electric self-starter, electric lighting system and 36-in. wheels

ADVERTISER CHAMPS PLAY "F. P." TONIGHT

Hockey Stars of Local Newspaperdom Will Contest for Highest Honors.

While the hockey fans of London are at present taking up much time in discussing the merits of the Intermediate champions (to be) they have overlooked the fact that there is another championship team in this city, namely the galaxy of stars representing The Advertiser, who have held the newspaper championship of the world since time was invented. Each year The Advertiser has defended the title against numerous challengers and have yet to taste the bitterness of defeat.

The Free Press, after several days' practice, has been enabled to find seven men who can skate, and have issued a challenge to The Advertiser. All arrangements have been completed, and the best offering of the local hockey season will be given this afternoon at the Simcoe street rink at 5 o'clock. On account of the great demand for seats the management have decided not to charge admission in order that everyone will have an equal chance to view the game.

As well as being a sporting event, the occasion will be of great importance as a social affair, and a full description will be given on Monday of the various gowns. It is expected that the costumes worn by the gladiators will present a brilliant scene, and many of the latest fashions in hockey dress will be exhibited on living models for the first time in Canada.

That no partiality may be shown the officials will be chosen from the spectators, and the Free Press manager claims that the defeat of last year will be wiped out. It is also expected that Manager Charles Case and the members of the F. P. bowling team will be present and have charge of the Richmond Street Rooters' Club.

The teams:

Free Press—J. H. Fowler, B. A., goal; J. Reid, point; P. Read, cover; F. Reid, cover; E. Risler, centre; C. Grafton, right; W. Rhodes, left.

Advertiser—E. Penny, goal; W. Hunter, point; C. MacQueen, cover; J. Wright, rover; I. Hunter, centre; E. Horner, right; F. Anderson, left.

Advertiser spares: "Chuck" Ramage, Scotty McColl.

NEW CATCHER SIGNED; GOOD PITCHER COMING

President Stevely Has Another Fast Slab Artist Almost Under Contract.

President Stevely, of the London Baseball Club, has another pitcher almost under contract. He will not divulge his name until the deal is fully completed in every detail, and the return contract sent to the player. He hails from the Michigan League, and is reported to be a first-class man. President Stevely stated that he saw his new player pitch against the Detroit Americans last season, and win the contest, too.

The new man is described as a big, strong chap, has miles of speed and a nice assortment of curves. With a few years' experience the Michigan League player should make a valuable acquisition to the local team.

President Stevely received a letter from Manager "Rube" Deneau this morning, and the London manager states that he has signed a new catcher for his 1912 aggregation. Deneau does not give the name of his catcher, but says he comes from New Bedford. He is a personal friend of Deneau's, and has the "Rube's" best testimonial for ability and endurance in a game.

A letter was also to hand from a first baseman from Chicago, who wanted a try-out with the local club. "We won't bother with him," said President Stevely. "He doesn't see much."

BOY SCOUTS PLAY HOCKEY.

The Sixth and Ninth troops of the London Boy Scouts engaged in a game of hockey on Anthistle's Rink on Friday evening and ended in a tie score, each side scoring one goal. Although twenty minutes extra time was played neither team was able to score another counter. The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Referee—R. Milne.

RUBE MARQUARD REFUSES TO REPORT

Says He Will Not Join the Giants Until Salary Is Increased.

[Canadian Press.]

San Francisco, March 8. — Rube Marquard, the former star pitcher of the New York Nationals, who is in this city, when told of the report that he was expected to join the club at Marlin, Texas, said it was without foundation.

"I am on friendly terms with Manager McGraw," he said, "and it is only a question of money. After the championship series last year, in which I pitched two winning games, I asked for more money for the coming season, I was turned down and so I quit. I could see no future in baseball for me after that."

VICTORIA CAN PLAY FOR STANLEY CUP

Defeated New Westminster, Winning Pacific Coast Championship.

[Canadian Press.]

New Westminster, B. C., March 8.—Victoria defeated Westminsters Friday night by a score of 1 to 0, finally clinching the Pacific Coast hockey championship, and the right to meet Quebec's Stanley Cup team in a series for the world's title on the coast this year.

Friday night's match was the best this season. The only score was made in the first period, when Genge took a pass from the side and slipped the puck past Lehman. The line-up:

Victoria—Lindsay, Prodgers, Patrick, Rowe, Poulin, Genge, Dunderdale.

Westminster — Lehman, Rochon, Johnson, Gardner, McDonald, Mallen, Oatman.

Orval Overall, who says he won't play with the Cubs, talks of starting a school for baseball players in Southern California. He believes he can teach aspiring youngsters many of the tricks in the winter months and fit them for league engagements in the summer.

Clyde Engle, who hit the fly in the final game of the world's series last fall which Snodgrass muffed, will probably not be with the Red Sox this year. Waivers have been asked on him. Which only goes to show that it is better to muff the fly than to hit it. Snodgrass still has his job.

CLANDEBOYE.

Clandeboye, March 8.—The roads in this district are very heavy, owing to the recent storms.

Mr. Harland Campbell, of Toronto, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. A. E. Hodgins.

The spinsters and bachelors of this locality held a party at the home of Mrs Anne Neil recently. After a dainty fowl supper the company enjoyed themselves at progressive euchre.

FOREST MUST GO DRY SAYS JUDGE MACWATT

Local Option Sustained in Recount—Only One Illegal Vote Cast.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Forest, March 7. — Judge MacWatt today declared the local option by-law duly carried. Only one illegal vote was found to have been cast. His honor held that he had no jurisdiction in the cases of votes attacked except those of non-residents. Of these there were three, two being dismissed and one allowed. In one instance, a woman was said to have voted twice, having property in two wards, but the judge ruled that he had no jurisdiction, as her name was on the list in both places. It was also held that the vote illegally cast could not be deducted from either side. The vote stood 256 for and 164 against, leaving ten more than the necessary three-fifths. Had there been ten illegal votes, his honor said, he would have declared no valid election, but as there was but one the bylaw was declared duly carried. Mr. A. Weir, of Sarnia, appeared for the applicants for the recount; Mr. Porter, for the town, and Messrs. H. E. Irwin, K. C., of Toronto, and Mr. Le Sueur, Sarnia, for the supporters of the by-law.

On Friday next Judge MacWatt will hold another sitting here to investigate a charge made by the town council, that votes cast on the local option bylaw were tampered with after they had been counted on election day, and before the recount took place on Jan. 31.

KINCARDINE IS AFTER SEVERAL INDUSTRIES

Board of Trade Will Get in Touch With Prospective Factories.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Kincardine, March 7. — The board of trade met last evening and elected their officers for this year. Mr. James Malcolm was elected chairman and Dr. Armitage secretary.

It is expected that the board will enter into the development of the town with spirit, and note every chance of opening ways to encourage new enterprises locating here.

Already committees have started correspondence with several firms that are seeking places to locate.

The work of carrying the mail from the train to the postoffice was awarded to the Anderson Bros., at a salary of $392 per year. Five trips per day except Sunday are to be made.

Mr. Wallace Perrin, con. 4, Kincardine, has secured the drawing and delivering of his majesty's mail between Kincardine town and Kingarf, going by way of con. 5, daily, for the sum of $814 a year, and $1 per year from the owner of each delivery box along the line.

The Hunter Boiler and Bridge Company, of this place, started drawing material for the new iron bridge over the Sable River at Tara.

George Davis, who served his apprenticeship at watchmaking with Mr. R. Patterson, here, has left for the west, where he intends following his profession.

BREEDING OF HORSES DISCUSSED BY EXPERT

Dr. Reid Strongly Urges Farmers to Raise Heavy Draught Animals.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Glencoe, March 7. — "The Breeding and Feeding of Horses" was discussed thoroughly at a big meeting of the farmers of the district here today, by Dr. Reid, V. S., of Halton County.

He urged the farmers to raise heavy draught stock, claiming that the auto is displacing the good light horse. Second and third rate light horses are hard to dispose of at any price.

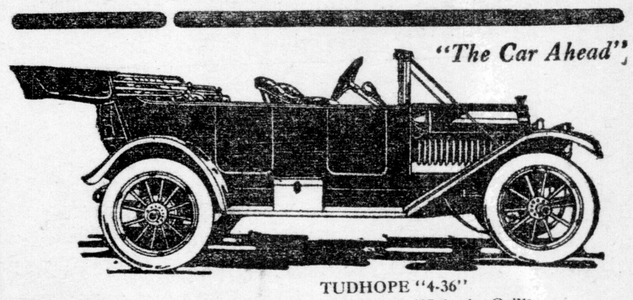

Dr. Reid advised the careful selection of animals for breeding purposes. If care is taken in the breeding by everyone, he said, in ten years the income of the veterinary would be reduced one half. Forty-nine cases of blemished horses out of fifty are due to heredity. He cautioned the average farmer against having mares too fat. He also entirely, as a very small proportion of farmers are adapted for it.

In raising colts he warned the farmer against having mares too fat. He alsa advised plenty of exercise for them. He gave information regarding the treatment of blemishes.

Dr. Reid advised farmers, unless they are liberal feeders, not to go into the raising of heavydraught stock, as no animal responds more readily to liberal feeding than the heavydraught. The ideal feed for colts is clover or alfalfa, oats and bean with some succulent food.

For a driver the proper food is very little hay with grain, no hay with grain at noon, and a liberal feed of hay and grain at night. He cautioned against buying stock foods. They are beneficial but too expensive, if used in proper quantities.

$5,000 Houses To Be Built By Residents of South London

Arrangements Have Already Been for a Number of New Houses in District South of the River—Are a Story of Success in the Life of Young Men in All Walks of Life.

South London is having a renewed activity in the building of handsome residences, and in the spring scores of homes that will be a credit to the city will be under way. Most of the houses will represent an investment of at least $5,000, and in some cases will be considerably more.

The activity in South London is not so much evidence of the real estate stirring, such as East London is experiencing, but rather a story of the success of young men in all walks of life. It is a story of prosperity that the city should read with thrilling interest.

While many more than those listed will build residences, a number of the homes are to be built in the Mackenzie survey, lying east and west of Ridout street.

Harry Lister, druggist, has decided to start a residence on Duchess avenue in the spring. The contract was let recently.

John Mowat will erect a residence on Duchess avenue.

Henry Taylor will place two frame houses on Ridout street.

Thomas Aitken, captain of the South London fire hall, has just completed two handsome red brick houses on Duchess avenue.

Jose Gaste will occupy an $8,000 residence, the finishing touches to which are at present being put on.

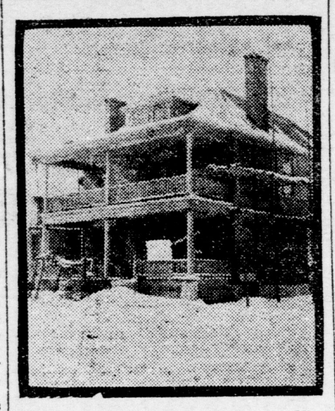

G. S. Young will erect three residences on Ridout street, corner of Tecumseh avenue.

Thomas C. Fleming is now living in a handsome residence built on Duchess avenue.

George T. Houghtby is in his new home on Marley Place.

Charles Hoar has taken out a building permit for a residence on Tecumseh avenue.

HAVE SECURED NEARLY $7,000 IN CANVASS

Members of Centennial Church Successful in Raising Funds for Sunday School.

The canvass for $8,000 being conducted among the members of the Centennial Methodist Church by twenty of their number, is meeting with success.

Between $6,000 and $7,000 have already been subscribed, and this does not include promises and prospects from various persons. The money will go towards the erection of a $20,000 Sunday school to be erected this summer.

TELEPHONE RATES ARE TO BE REDUCED SOON

Company's Agents Notify Residents of New Districts to That Effect.

Residents of the new sections of the city are, after the 1st of April, to enjoy one privilege that the citizens of London do, and that is the rental of a telephone for the same price as is paid in the city.

Contract agents of the Bell Telephone Company were in the new districts this week arranging for contracts at the same price that is paid in the city.

The sudden decision on the part of the company to give the residents of the new districts telephones at the city rate was caused, no doubt, by the proposals of Ald. Johnston that the city equip and operate a municipal telephone system.

RECEIVED FIRST PRIZE

Mr. Lister Rewarded for Handsome Window Display.

Mr. W. H. Lister, the well-known druggist of South London received notification Friday morning that he had been awarded first prize for window-dressing in a competition open to all druggists in Canada. The contest was conducted by a Windsor firm last spring. Mr. Lister sent a picture of his window to the company, and was greatly surprised when he opened a letter from the company and found a check for $25 inclosed.

Held Sleighride Party.

The members and friends of the members of Mr. R. F. Gregory's class of the Askin Street Methodist Sunday school, to the number of thirty, held an enjoyable sleighride party on Friday evening. The party assembled at Mr. Gregory's home on Askin street, and after driving about South London streets for some time drove to the home of Mr. Dale at Glendale, where the evening was spent in games and other amusements.

Your Baby's Skin

Is the most delicate fabric in the world. You may cause it permanent harm by using poisonous mineral ointments for the little rashes and eruptions that every baby suffers from occasionally. Don't take any chances. Use Zam-Buk, the baby's best balm.

Zam-Buk is made from fine herbal extracts, and is free from any harmful poisonous coloring matter. Like the grasses and the flowers, nature has colored it green. It is nature's own healer!

Most ointments and salves have, as their foundation, various animal oils and fats. Zam-Buk does not contain one atom of animal substance. Most ointments and salves are too coarse to be absorbed by the tender delicate skin of a baby, and remain on the skin an irritating mass. Just put a little Zam-Buk on baby's skin, and see how soon it is absorbed, showing conclusively that the pores of the skin are greedy for it.

Use nothing but Zam-Buk for baby's skin troubles and wash with Zam-Buk Soap.

Zam-Buk should also be used for cuts, burns, scalds, eczema, piles, ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents box, or post free from Zam-Buk Company, Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

NO VACANT HOUSES TO BE FOUND IN EAST LONDON

Builders Are Erecting Apartment Houses to Care for Hundreds of Workingmen.

Houses to rent are at a premium in East London these days and workingmen find it next to impossible to secure houses to suit them anywhere in that section.

Only a few years ago there were plenty of vacant houses in East London, but since so many large industries have built plants east of Rectory street those houses have been rented or purchased by workingmen.

Apartment houses, to accommodate four families, are being erected in that section, and a number of contractors say they have been asked for tenders to build others.

All up through the northeast section where formerly there were numerous "To Let" signs attached to windows and doors, one cannot find so much as a glimpse of a vacant house, and new houses are rapidly being built on the vacant property in that district.

A New Feature

This "Greater London" section has been started for readers of The Advertiser living in the outlying districts of the city, and will deal with questions of importance to Chelsea Green, Ealing, Pottersburg, Knollwood Park, West and South London.

Anyone having items which they would like to have appear in the paper should telephone them to 3670, or send them by mail.

SURVEYORS AT WORK NEAR NORMAL SCHOOL

Refuse to Give Any Information as to Their Mission When Questioned by Residents.

The residents of South London and particularly those living in the district about the Normal School, are showing much interest in the activities of a party of surveyors who have been at work in that locality for the past week. The party, which is presumably in the employ of the Canadian Northern, entered South London from Chelsea Green, and surveyed a number of lines. The frontage of each lot and building along the survey lines were measured, but the inquisitive were refused any information pertaining to the object of the surveyors.

Said That Local Concern Is Dickering For Purchase of Presbyterian Church.

Several deals for the King street Presbyterian Church, which is to be vacated as soon as the new church is built at the corner of Lyle and Dundas streets, are on at present and it is said that a manufacturing concern will likely be successful in securing it.

The concern, which has been looking for a suitable site for some time, is favorably disposed towards the church property and the only thing that remains is the fixing of a price.

STILL PAY EXTRA FOR POSTAGE & EXPRESS

Residents of Newly-Annexed Districts Have to Pay Two Cents For Drop Letters.

PROTESTS REGISTERED

Promises Have Been Made by Government Employees, But Nothing Definite Has Been Done.

Although they have been residents of the city for two months now people who reside in the districts recently amalgamated with the city are not yet enjoying some of the privileges of city life.

So far nothing definite about a change in the tariff of the express companies has been done, and the people in Ealing, Chelsea Green, Pottersburg, and Knollwood Park are paying more to have their parcels delivered than people living in the city.

Two Cents for Letters.

Added to this grievance is the fact that they do not yet enjoy the one-cent drop letter privilege, and although protests have been made to the Government and to postoffice officials in this city nothing definite has been done.

Promises without number have been made by Government employees, but the fact still remains that two cents has to be paid for letters being sent to residents of the city, and citizens have to pay two cents for letters consigned to any part of the new district.

"The worst part of it is the fact that many people of London do not know of the existing postal rate," said a resident of Pottersburg, "and as a result we are called upon to pay extra postage for advertisements, etc., which are mailed to us."

CELEBRATE TWEATIETH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Long Recipient of Gifts and Congratulatory Messages.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Long, 553 Ontario street, was the scene of many congratulations Friday night, the event being the celebration of the 20th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Long's wedding.

A number of guests were presented, and the happy couple, after receiving the congratulations of their friends, were presented with a set of Limoges china by Mr. Perry on behalf of the assembled guests. Mrs. Branton read the address. The evening was spent in cards and music, and at the close refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Long were the recipients of many messages of congratulation during the day.

Closing Services — The closing services of the mission which for two weeks has been held with ever-increasing interest in Adelaide street Baptist Church, will take place tomorrow. In the morning the pastor will preach. In the afternoon, at 3:30, Dr. Troy will address a mass meeting of men by request of the men who formed last Sunday's congregation. In the evening the preacher's subject will be "The End of the Age, or the Second Coming of Christ." This is a question of vital interest at the present time, and is sure to attract a large congregation. The choir will tender suitable music.

SUPERANNUATED AFTER 40 YEARS

Charles Clarke, Oldest Engineer on C.P.R. Settles Down to Take a Rest.

WAS NEVER INJURED

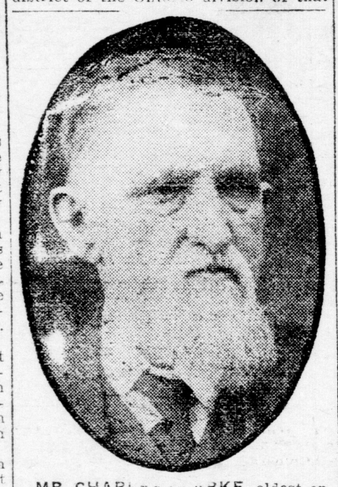

Ran on London and Windsor Division for Eight and a Half Years—Member of Brotherhood.

With a record of over forty years as a locomotive engineer, Charles Clarke, the oldest engineer on this division of the C. P. R., has been superannuated, and has settled down to enjoy a well-earned rest at his home, 586 Oxford street.

Mr. Clarke was born at Stockport, England, 65 years ago, and came to Canada in 1858, settling in Peterboro. He was a sailor on the Great Lakes for two years, and took up railroading when only 19. He served four years as fireman on the old Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton lines, now part of the Grand Trunk System. He was promoted to engineer, and served three years with that road, before severing his connection to accept a position on the Toronto and Nipissing Railway. After 8½ years with that road he became engineer on the Credit Valley Railway, which was taken over by the C. P. R. in 1883, shortly after he joined.

Worked on Every District.

Since then he has served on every district of the Ontario division of that road, and is known far and wide among railroad men.

MR. CHARLES CLARKE, oldest engineer on this division of the C. P. R., who has been superannuated.

For 25 years he has been a passenger train engineer, and in all that time has never met with a serious accident. He was once instrumental, however, in averting a serious collision at a crossing in West Toronto.

As his train approached the place where two tracks crossed, he observed another train approaching the crossing at right angles. Realizing that the speed at which he was travelling would bring his train to the crossing-point just in time for the engine of the other train through the crowded coaches entrusted to his care, he applied the brakes, and was successful in slacking speed sufficiently to allow only the engines to collide. Both were derailed, but no one was seriously hurt and his presence of mind prevented what might have been a catastrophe.

Member of Brotherhood.

Mr. Clarke has been running on the London and Windsor division for the past 8½ years, and during that time he has endeared himself not only to his fellow-employees of the C. P. R., but to nearly all the railroad men of the city, who regard him as a father. Whenever there was an accident on the road or sickness in any of their homes he was always the first to volunteer his services, which were always welcome. He has several times been intrusted with the sad duty of bearing bad news to homes that were darkened as a result of accidents, and the difficult task was always performed with great tact and gentleness.

During nearly the whole of his railroad career he has been connected with the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers, and has held nearly every office in the order. He has also served on many occasions as a delegate to their conventions. Mrs. Clarke is a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Brotherhood, and as such has become widely known in the homes of railway men, where she often ministered most unselfishly in times of trouble.

Recently the members of the brotherhood and auxiliary presented Mr. and Mrs. Clarke with an illuminated address, expressing their appreciation of the many kindnesses shown, and wishing them many more years of happiness. The address was accompanied by a handsome Morris chair for Mr. Clarke and Mrs. Clarke was made the recipient of a beautiful silver tea-service.

In spite of his long years of active service, Mr. Clarke still enjoys the best of health, and likes to mingle among his old friends, the railroad men.

GOVERNMETT FACES

Mr. Jameson, of Digby, calmly divested himself of superfluous clothing, wrapped himself up in the robe, and slept soundly on two benches until morning. Mr. Stevens, of Vancouver, did likewise with a blanket for his covering. One member indulged frankly in a smoke. Two Conservatives at the back sought to enliven the witching hours with periodic cat calls, for which the deputy speaker had periodically to call them to order. When Dr. Mulloy concluded at twenty minutes past six, Hon. Dr. Pugsley and Chief Whip Pardee made another application to the Government for the promised information.

Hon. Dr. Hazen replied that he had the information, but it was not in the House. Mr. Pugsley reminded him that he had had a long day of 100 hours in which to procure it. Mr. Pardee called attention to the fact that the Liberals were being deluged with messages from all parts of the country assuring them that the people were with them.

J. J. Hughes, of Kings, P. E. I., followed Mr. Pardee and is still speaking.

Ottawa, March 7. — Mr. Lafortune took the floor at 8 o'clock this morning, and spoke until 12:30, when his voice gave out.

Dr. Clarke, of Red Deer, then took the floor and is still speaking.

Fun at Hughes' Expense.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, who followed Dr. Clark, had considerable fun with the Minister of Militia at the outset. Mr. Lemieux was contending that the contribution proposals were in line with the jingoistic propaganda being put forward in South Africa and other parts of the Empire. The same game was being played in South Africa as was being played in Canada, and the contribution of ships by each Dominion to the Imperial fleet meant the subservience of overseas officers and men to the officials of the admiralty, to whom they were not really responsible. "The Minister of Militia," noted Mr. Lemieux, "was actually prevented from going to South Africa for the Boer war by a British officer, though he had the good wishes of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues."

"The Government of the day," retorted Col. Hughes, "failed to do its duty and permitted the commander-in-chief (General Hutton) to exercise an irresponsible authority."

"We had a military adviser from Great Britain, and we took his advice," put in Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"We now have the opinion of a Tory cabinet minister as to what he would do under such circumstances. Just imagine the trouble the British admiralty is going to have with him and his colleagues," said Mr. Lemieux.

"If the late Government was weak enough to depart from its constitutional functions no one will be able to say the same thing of any Government with which I am connected. I am the boss while I am here," remarked Col. Hughes.

"He won't even be bossed by the Minister of Public Works," added Mr. Lemieux, amid Liberal laughter.

"I mean in military affairs," explained Col. Sam. "So long as I am minister no officer, British or Canadian, is going to arrogate to himself the functions of Government."

"The honorable gentleman is evidently a good sound Liberal Canadian after all," quoth Mr. Lemieux.

Mr. Graham Surprised.

Hon. George P. Graham followed at 5 o'clock. He expressed regret and surprise that the Minister of Finance had not said a word on this great subject.

The Minister of Finance, one would have thought, in view of the huge expenditure involved, would have been one of the first to be on his feet. It was all very well that the rank and file of the party should be submissive and carry out their leader's orders, but it was not fair to this country that the man who controlled the finances should sit silent. He should rise in his place and tell the people why he was in favor of spending $35,000,000.

Mr. Graham said that he desired to seriously protest against the action of the Government to deny to the Opposition information in regard to the proposed expenditure, and expect them to pass a lump sum. The emergency argument, Mr. Graham said, was the greatest humbug "that science could devise or money could procure." Great Britain was not now, never has been, and never would be in danger of being overthrown by any power. There was an organization behind this agitation, an organiaztion both political and manufacturing, which controlled certain sections of the press. There was a string of interests dictating to the people as to what ought to be the policy. They were behind the war scare. They had stirred up both Germany and England to increase their armaments. This agitation, which was going on week by week, was the greatest crime of the century. On the heads of those behind it must rest the blood of the thousands of victims if there should be war.

Mr. Graham went on to say that if the heads of the Government could see the German people at home there would be no reason for this nightmare.

"The Opposition seems to be having a nightmare," put in Mr. Lancaster.

"Well, I might admit that we have been seeing things of late," retorted Mr. Graham, "but we don't hear much from them."

Continuing his spirited speech, at the night sitting, punctuated by enthusiastic Liberal applause, Mr. Graham pointed out that the present policy was the result of a double-barrelled conspiracy to injure the Asquith Government and to get the Conservative Government in Canada out of the dilemma with its Nationalist allies. In March, 1912, Mr. Norton Griffiths, after a visit to Canada, speaking in the British House of Commons, said that the Canadian people were prepared to go quite a distance, even to the extent of contributing three Dreadnoughts, thus making it appear that the Asquith Government was not meeting its full duty.

Major Sharpe—Oh, Oh.

Mr. Graham—The honorable member for North Ontario says "oh, oh," but he is not in favor of the policy; he is in favor of a Canadian navy.

Major Sharpe—I am in favor of the policy as a permanent policy.

Mr. Graham—But you are in favor of a Canadian navy?

Major Sharpe — Well, maybe I am. (Loud cheers from the Liberals and satirical cries of "Separatist" and "Disloyal.")

"I am surprised," said Mr. Graham, "that my honorable friend is in favor of a separatist navy."

Not Piece of Property.

Mr. Graham characterized the Government policy as "illegitimate of conception and untimely of birth."

"It is illegitimate of conception," he said, "because it arises out of an alliance between the Nationalists and the Conservatives; it is untimely of birth, because it came into being before the Admiralty memorandum on which it is said to have been based was prepared in London or received here. Honorable gentlemen cannot get away from the fact that their policy was evolved before the memorandum was prepared."

The accusation roused the Government benches, and many of their members rose confusedly to interrupt and defend themselves. Mr. Crothers, Mr. Nickle and others were on their feet at the same time.

"I am glad that I am succeeding in lubricating the stiff jaws of honorable gentlemen opposite. They cannot, however, drive me from the point I am making," observed Mr. Graham.

"When I had the temerity to say ——" began Mr. Lancaster, interrupting.

"The ne temerity," corrected Mr Graham, amid a roar of applause.

"We are not now a piece of property belonging to Britain," declared Mr. Graham a few moments later. "We are partners in the great British Empire."

There were two classes of people Mr. Graham continued. "There is the hero, who attempts to accomplish great things and has confidence in his country. There is the other man, I will not name him, who fears to undertake anything lest he may not succeed. It is the yellow peril in this latter individual from which Canada has more to fear than from the 'yellow peril' on the Pacific coast."

At midnight Mr. Pacaud was followed by Mr. Richards of Prince Edward Island, who in turn was succeeded by Mr. Boivin, the eloquent young French-Canadian from Shefford.

PERSUADES WIFE WITH STOVE POKER

Foreigner Up in Police Court Following Row Over Beefsteak.

Complications in th domestic arrange-Complications in the domestic arrange-William street south were the cause of a charge of assault laid by Mary Doore against Dizo Igenotic in the police court this morning.

He admitted having struck her in the mouth with a stove poker, but claimed that her persistency in endeavoring to cook a piece of beefsteak on the same stove at which he was engaged in culinary operations, was sufficient provocation.

Alleged to Have Revolver.

The police allege that he has at the house a large revolver, and the case was adjourned while an officer was sent to obtain it. Igenotic claimed that it belonged to a Russian who lived in the same house.

The officer who made the arrest stated that he was attracted to the house by the sounds of a big row.

About twenty foreigners, mostly Russians and Italians, live together in the house, which boasts only one stove, on which they take turns in cooking, provided satisfactory arrangements can be made.

Full of Courage.

Igenotic, who had been drinking, insisted on using the stove out of his turn. The woman, who lives with him as his wife, although she is alleged to have a husband in Italy, stuck to her post and to her beefsteak, and was only persuaded to leave it after receiving a gentle hint with the stove-poker.

When the officer arrived on the scene she was bleeding profusely from the mouth, and the house was in an uproar. He took Igenotic in charge and removed him to the police station.

INCREASE IN RENTALS PREDICTED FOR CITY

John Hayman Says Srectulative Building Days Are Past in London.

According to Mr. John Hayman, who is one of the best-posted contractors in Ontario, there is going to be no speculative building in London this year, and rents are going to move up.

"The prices of building materials are too high altogether to warrant the small property owner putting up houses to rent," he told The Advertiser today.

"With bricks and lumber at top-notch prices and likely to go even higher, and rents as they are now, such an investment wouldn't begin to pay. For some time past rents have been too low in London to warrant speculative building in houses of any sort.

Rents to Go Up.

"There is a big change coming, and paying anything like they should, but they are going to come into their own."

Mr. Hayman expects to see a big building year in London, as many factories, school and other buildings are planned, but the day of the small house for speculative purposes, he thinks, is done.

To Build Apartment.

Mr. Hayman has plans nearing completion for another handsome apartment house to be erected in the spring on the site he purchased last fall from Dr. Eccles.

"There is a big demand in London," he said, "for the right kind of suites and apartments."

The Neal Three-Day Drink Habit Cure

The Neal Treatment consists of the administration of a perfectly harmless and purely vegetable medicine taken internally only and without any hypodermic injections.

The Neal Treatment and the methods of its administration are pronounced and conceded, by all who have investigated, to be not only ethical and professional, but entirely satisfactory. The sureness and success of the Treatment in all cases has been demonstrated and proved by Doctor Neal, who during the past ten years has successfully cured upwards of five thousand of bad cases of the drink habit, without a single failure—each one in just three days' time.

The Neal Treatment is simple, yet very effective. Doctor Neal, after many years of the most painstaking professional and thorough study, experiment and investigation, has found and demonstrated that the drink habit instead of being a disease or an inherited affliction, is due to the stored-up poison in the system, coming from the continued and excessive use of alcohol.

After making this discovery and demonstration he found the antidote for alcoholic poison. The administration of this antidote results in the neutralization of the poison. Thus antidoted and neutralized, the poison is eliminated from the system, and the desire, appetite and craving for drink is at once destroyed or lost.

This is all accomplished in each case in from one to thirty-six hours, depending entirely upon the physical and mental condition of the patient. With this accomplished, nature, aided by the recuperative and building-up treatment, soon asserts its power, and at the end of three days the patient returns to his home in a normal and healthy condition.

The Neal Cure is the most effective and safest ever dedicated to the cause of greater human happiness. There is a buoyant air in the "God-bless-yous" which daily are showered upon Neal Institutes by men redeemed.

FAIR-SIZED MARKET BEING HELD TODAY

Many Buyers Present and Prices Show Tendency to Rise.

A fair-sized market was held this morning. During the early hours the attendance was extremely small, but after 10 o'clock the crowd commenced turning out and the market officials were kept fairly busy.

Since there has been scarcely a market of any kind since Tuesday buyers were numerous and in some instances certain lines of produce have increased in price.

Butter was scarce, consequently prices were firm at 29 and 30 cents for print rolls. Butter in crocks retailed at 28 cents. In the dairy hall the prices reached 32 and 34 cents for pound rolls.

There was a good demand for fresh-laid eggs. Prices were no higher than last Saturday. Sales were made in crate lots at 23 and 24 cents. The dairy hall charge was 25 and 26 cents.

The live hog market is firm, and it rests with the packers how prices will stand next week. At Toronto there were 7,500 hogs offered this week, which was 500 less than the previous week. The Buffalo market remains firm, while Chicago prices are weaker. Prices for dressed hogs are firm and selling at $12.50 to $13.00 per cwt.

About a dozen loads of hay were sold today at $11.50 to $13 per ton. There is a fair demand for this kind of fodder. There is a fair demand for a large supply of oats, which are worth $1.05 to $1.06 per hundred pounds. Wheat is worth 85 cents a bushel.

TOWNSHIP LIABLE FOR ITS VILLAGES

Question Decided in an Ontario Court for the First Time.

[Canadian Press.]

Toronto, Ont., March 8.—The question of the liability of an incorporated village has been decided in an Ontario court for the first time. Mr. Justice Middleton holds that the containing township is liable in cases of negligence, etc., and that the election of the village does not relieve the township.

The cause in point was an action brought by Mrs. W. H. Smith, wife of a Buffalo customs officer, against the township of Bertie, Welland County.

Mrs. Smith tripped on a broken board in the sidewalk at Crystal Beach last July, sustaining a fractured knee-cap and other injuries, which incapacitated her from housework. She brought action against the township, and the trial judge holds the action is properly laid.

ESCAPING GAS KILLS A MONTREAL COUPLE

Neighbors Found the Dead Bodies and Gas Stove Taps Opens.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, March 8.—Leon Ferrier and his wife, Virginie, were asphyxiated last night at their residence here on Sanguinet street. They but recently arrived from France, and were married just before sailing for Canada.

The discovery of their dead bodies was made this morning by neighbors, who smelled gas coming from the house.

In some way the taps on the gas stove had been left open.

The Ferriers were a happy couple, and it is thought that their deaths were the result of accident.

LAST NIGHT OF BIG AUTOMOBILE SHOW

Great Success Has Attended Event—Big Crowds Attending.

The London Motor Show closes this evening after a most successful exhibition. It will have lasted three days and four nights. The promoters of the show, the managers of the automobile agencies, the many demonstrators, the officials of the London, the Western Ontario Motor League, and the public at large are a unit in saying that the exhibition has been a success in every particular.

Those who attended other shows in Ontario state that the London exhibition compares most favorably with the best that they have witnessed.

Many Cars Sold.

Numerous orders have been taken by the demonstrators, and they have also been instrumental in advertising their make of motor to a new field practically. The purpose of the show is to advertise the motor, and all are unanimous in saying that they have succeeded.

Large crowds attended the show this afternoon, and were greatly pleased with the exhibition of the best makes of autos in America today.

Big Night Expected.

The attendance at the show tonight will also be large. This is the closing day, and it is expected that a great many citizens will take advantage of the closing opportunity of witnessing the show.

The cars will be hurriedly removed from the building before midnight, as the insurance policies expire at that hour.

RIDOUT STREET SUBWAY

the elevation of the G. T. R. tracks. I believe the street railway and the G. T. R. would be glad to build a subway."

"The Ridout street subway is an excellent idea," said Ald. E. H. Johnston. "Commissioner Stevenson deserves a great deal of credit for suggesting it. All the cars that now cross the G. T. R. tracks on Richmond street could run through the subway."

Property Damages Light.

Property damages would be largely avoided in that the cut in the street level need be only temporary, or until the railway elevates its tracks through the city. The tracks could be raised a few feet on Ridout street, and to make this possible, the city could, without much harm to anyone, allow the street railway to make a slight raise on Talbot street."

Ald. Richter Favorable.

"On general principles it would be very desirable," said Ald. J. G. Richter. "But there might be land damages and other difficulties. I think the subway could be built at much less cost in a few years when the Grand Trunk will ultimately elevate its tracks.

The street railway might run its cars around on Thames street to relieve the Horton street congestion.

"It would be a very nice thing," said Ald. Moore, "but it might be better to wait until the whole question of grade crossings is disposed of."

Street Railway Would Pay.

Manager C. B. King, of the London street railway, was reluctant to discuss the proposal in detail. He admitted that it would greatly relieve the congestion at the Richmond street crossing and obviate the long delays of the street cars for passing freights. He pointed out that the Horton street congestion in the South London traffic could be relieved by running the cars two blocks around on the Thames street car line. In many similar cases the Dominion Railway Commission has so adjusted the cost of construction, so that one-third of it has been borne equally by the street railway, the city and the railroad.

CATHEDRAL BURNED

Beautiful Edifice at Charlottetown Destroyed by Fire.

[Canadian Press.]

Charlottetown, March 8.—St. Dunstan's Roman Catholic Cathedral, the largest church in the province, was destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is estimated at $300,000.

The fire, which is supposed to have been started by an electric light wire behind the altar, broke out at 12:15, and fanned by a strong breeze, rapidly spread through the church and also attacked the bishop's palace, where, however, it was kept under control.

The church was built six years ago, and Bishop O'Leary was to have celebrated the wiping off of the debt on it at a special service on May 18.

[Canadian Press.]

Chicago, March 8. — Charles Cramer and his wife, Beatrice Ryall Cramer, were found guilty today of the murder of Miss Sophia Singer, of Baltimore. The jury was out 17 hours. Cramer was sentenced to life imprisonment and his wife to a term of 14 years in the penitentiary.

FREAK GIFTS FOR DIGNIFIED TRUSTEES

Whisky Barrel for John M. Gunn, Rocking Horse for Greenlees.

WEEDS FOR INSPECTOR

Principal McCutcheon Bewails Fate, But Has Something for Rainy Day.

Presentations of an unusual nature were the feature of an "at home" in the Collegiate Institute on Friday evening, when members of the board of education entertained the teachers in an annual reunion.

Trustee John M. Gunn was made the recipient of a large whiskey barrel.

A dilapidated pair of riding boots and skates were presented to Trustee Hunt, and Dr. Shaw received a huge water bottle.

Trustee Strong was given an air-gun, Trustee Greenlees a rocking-horse, Trustee Mugan a map of his east end town lots, and Dr. Teasdall an ancient bicycle.

For a Rainy Day.

Inspector Edwards graciously accepted a wreath of dried weeds, and Principal McCutcheon raised a laugh when he remarked, on being presented with an old umbrella, that even if the board had refused to grant him an increase, he was glad he had been given something for a rainy day.

The event took place in the drill hall of the school, which was tastefully decorated with hunting. Art work done by the students was displayed and excited much favorable comment, as did also some of the woodwork by boys in the lower forms.

Old Methods by the Board.

Trustee Dennis was the principal speaker of the evening. He dealt with the claims of critical citizens, who believe that the board is spending too much in introducing modern ideas in the school buildings. Some think that methods in vogue 50 years ago are good enough for the present, and could still be used to advantage. He pointed out the error of this view, and instanced the Art School as one of the institutions of recent years that make it easier for a student to secure a better education in a shorter time. His remarks were vigorously applauded.

A mixed chorus of the students, led by E. W. G. Quantz, gave a number of selections. Miss Walker contributed several readings, and vocal selections by Miss McBride were also much appreciated.

Refreshments were served by the young ladies of the school, after which promenading and dancing were indulged in.

HORSE STRUCK BY CAR SHOT BY POLICEMAN

Market Gardener's Outfit Struck and the Driver Is Dragged.

While attempting to drive across Dundas street, between Waterloo and Colborne streets, at 11:45 o'clock today, Walter Strevel, a market gardener from Byron, was run down by Ottawa car No. 128, westward bound, in charge of Motorman Frank Uren and Conductor C. Mason, and sustained a scalp wound and scratches about the face. The horse which he was driving was seriously injured and was later shot.

Mr. Strevel had left the market to deliver farm produce at a house on Dundas street. He had driven eastward on the right side of the road, but discovered that he had passed the house where he was to deliver his goods. He had semi-circled the road and was about to recross the street when the car bore down upon him, and horse and wagon were caught. Mr. Strevel was dragged about two rods distance before the car was finally brought to a halt.

The injured man was taken into Dr. Becher's office and given medical treatment.

The horse received many injuries. P. C. McRoberts was sent from the police station and shot the animal. Mr. Strevel valued the animal at $150.

The shafts of the delivery sleigh were snapped in two.

The owner claims that no warning was given him by the approaching car. Mr. Strevel also says that he did not look around or observe any car approaching at the time of the accident.

WEEKLY COURT CASES BEFORE JUDGE LATCHFORD

Number of Minor Litigations Brought Up—Two Trustee Adjustments.

Mr. Justice Latchford was the presiding judge at the sittings of the weekly court this morning, at which five cases were heard and judgments given.

In the case of Hetch and Wilcox, an application was made under the vendors' and purchasers' act and an order was made for reference to the local master at London as to whether the vendor has a good title by possession to certain lands near Glencoe. W. D. Moss, of Glencoe, and F. E. Perrin represented the parties.

Mr. J. B. McKillop obtained an order in connection with the estate of Isabella Hilliard, directing the payment of $200 upon a debt owed by the estate.

A motion for judgment in the action of Nicholson against Nicholson stands by consent of parties for two weeks. In the West Nissouri continuation school dispute a motion to commit certain of the trustees to jail for contempt of court was postponed indefinitely. W. R. Meredith and F. G. Harper were the solicitors in these two actions.

A motion for judgment in the action of Becher against Ryckman stands by consent for one week. This action was entered for trial at the recent sittings of the high court division of the supreme court, but was tried.

Plan Concert—In the concert to be given at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium on Tuesday, April 1 (All Fools' Day) there promises to be many original and catchy sayings. It is entitled "All Fools' Day in the Old Red Schoolhouse," and is under the auspices of No. 8 Club boys. Examinations and entertainments form no small part on the programme. The village inspector and the clergyman and his wife include some of the visitors to the old red schoolhouse on that memorable day, and it is only fair to surmise that neither the inspector nor the clergyman get away without some practical joke being played on them. On the whole an evening of much merrymaking and fun is in store, and already a good house is assured. Reserved seat plan opens on Friday, March 28.

Death of Mrs. Welch.—The death occurred on Friday afternoon of Euphemia Wishart Saunders, wife of Alvaria Welch, of 6 Sycamore street. Dr. McCrae, of the Hamilton Road Presbyterian Church, of which she was a member, at 2 o'clock.

"SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS" AT THE GRAND

Play Is Replete in Sensational Parts—Altogether a Fair Success.

Full of sensational parts from the time the curtain goes up for the first act until it is lowered at the end of the last, "The Shepherd of the Hills," Harold Bell Wright's bookplay, scored a success before a small but appreciative audience at the Grand Opera House Friday night.

The scene of the play is laid in the Ozark Mountain country of Missouri and the usual still, together with the usual bad man, who is worse when filled with "cornjuice," are on hand on several occasions. Then there is the "'alf and 'alf" bad man, who is sent away to the city to be educated, and who returns to marry the girl, whose slave he used to be when they were children together in the hills. Needless to say, she spurns him at the final moment, and promises to marry the "clean" young man of the hills.

The scenic effects, depicting the Ozark Mountains, a sheep-herder's cabin and a ranch-owner's house, were excellent, particularly the electrical effects, when day was waning into night and after night had arrived.

Miss Ella Malmrose at "Pete, a Child of Nature," skillfully handled a particularly hard part, that of a half-demented lad with a dual personage, who is always communing with nature and who demands on numerous occasions to know if he is not right when he says in answer to a question as to what his name is that: "Nobody can't be nothing, can they?"

Next to Miss Malmrose, Mr. L. I. Stark, as Preachin' Bill, everybody's friend, works the hardest. It is up to him to provide the laughs, without which the play would be desolate, and he does so in an acceptable way, considering that he has not much to work on.

Mr. Don Merrifield, as Old Mat, a sheep rancher with a grievance, plays his part well. He has the voice as well as the appearance to assist in his role, and he makes good use of them. Miss Margaret Langhorne as Sammy Lane, and Mr. John Thorn as Young Mat make a fine team of lovers and present their little love scene without any of the gush which is so distressing in some. Joseph Kelvin, as Wash Gibbs, bad man, had the appearance, the talk and swagger and came on the stage only enough to keep his part from getting monotonous, while Miss Curtis as Aunt Molly, John Maurston as Ollie Stewart and Edwin Clarke, Walter Busby and L. Southworth all did well in their respective parts.

"The Shepherd of the Hills" plays here again tonig-

AGENTS PLEASED WITH AUTO SHOW

Prospective Buyers Flock to Armories in Large Numbers.

$250,000 SALES EXPECTED

Motor League Holds Meeting and Discusses Good Roads Problem.

The busiest spot in London Friday night was the Auto Show at the armories. People flocked there in hundreds and evinced keen interest in the exhibits. Although the sales Friday night had not reached an aggregate more than $200,000, the automobile agents are unanimous in their prediction that the show will bring about purchases of $250,000 to $300,000.

Amongst the crowd that thronged the armories Friday night there appeared to be more of the sort of people who buy than on preceding days.

Real Auto Experts.

The nature of the inquiries and the technical knowledge evinced was taken by the dealers as an indication of definite purpose on the part of the majority of the spectators. They were not those who attend such events prompted merely by curiosity.

Actual sales at the show are not considered the most important feature. Many who contemplate purchase attend the show to get a better idea of the comparative merits of machines and through what they have observed finally decide upon a certain car which otherwise might never have attracted their attention. Many of these buyers do not announce their decision until long after the exhibition is over.

Interesting to Unsophisticated.

As an exhibition the Auto Show is good. Notwithstanding that automobiles, airships, and such twentieth century "wonders" are now almost past the wonder stage they never seem to lose their grip on the interest of the people. Persons whose daily routine of life forces them to dodge autos on crowded streets take great interest in the show.

Motor Club Meets.

The London and Western Ontario Motor Club held a meeting in its quarters on Friday night, and steps were taken to advance the good roads agitation which will be brought before the city council at their next meeting.

The club will likely circulate petitions among the residents of those streets which they desire to improve and will back the lists with a delegation of their members at the council chamber, when the matter is brought up.

The motor club is also conducting a campaign for new members, and are meeting with success. Prior to the opening of this season's show their membership totalled about 170. Mr. G. M. Reid, the president of the club, expects that the membership will reach 300 by Saturday evening.

Credit must be given to the Dealers' Association for providing a comfortable building for the exhibition. The armories is always warm. The music provided by the orchestra present has also been an attractive feature.

At every Automobile Show—Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg — the feature that has aroused most comment has been the exhibit of Knight Engines. This Canadian built Knight Engine is recognized as the most perfect Knight-type Motor that has yet been built; this, notwithstanding the fact that leading makers in the United States and Europe also built them. Part of the reason for this is that Mr. Knight, the inventor, personally superintended the final development of his engine at the Russell works at West Toronto. The incorporation of this engine in the 1913 Russell-Knight cars, demonstrates conclusively that the Russell Motor Car Company takes first rank among the builders of the world's foremost automobiles. Another feature, also without a successful parallel, is the Russell Electric Starting and Lighting system. The system has developed 100 per cent. efficiency under the most rigorous tests. The beauty of the Russell Electric Starter is that it doesn't add a single gear or a single new moving part, nor any extra weight to the mechanism of the car. The old Fly Wheel has been done away with and an armature winding put in its place.

REV. R. P. M'KAY TELLS ABOUT MISSION WORK

Describes General Advance of Christianity in So-Called Heathen Lands.

PRAISES DR. SUN YAT SEN

Calls Missionary Work Greatest That God Gives Man to Do.

Rev. Dr. R. P. McKay, secretary of the foreign missions committee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and a former moderator of the general assembly, described the work in foreign mission fields of the world at the annual missionary banquet of the men of Knox Presbyterian Church on Friday evening.

Dr. McKay stated in the prologue of his address that the work of the foreign and home branches of missionary work go hand in hand and that neither would be successful without the other.

Evangelization of World.

"We are now dealing with nationalities," said the speaker, "and each congregation and church must do its share to bring about the evangelization of the world. I think it would prove more profitable if I confined my remarks to the work in foreign fields as I have personally found it.

"The Levant is the most discouraging and difficult field in mission work at present, and yet some 2,000 years ago this section of Asia was the centre of civilization. The reason for the present state of affairs is that for 1,300 years the country has been under the heel of the Moslem. Missionaries have been at work for the last 100 years and slow but sure progress is being made.

Turkish Oppression.

"Their work has been greatly hindered by the Turkish Government and not until recently have the workers been allowed to teach. At the present time there are two schools in which students are instructed by Christian missionaries. Some five years ago the Turks formed a constitutional government, and the re-action from the old regime is now being felt.

"The present war in the East is helping the work of the missionaries to a large extent, because it has broken the power of the Turk.

"In Africa the progress since Livingstone's time has been remarkable and today that continent appears to be the mission field of he century.

Change in India.

"India," he continued, "is going through a mighty transformation at the present time. The population is divided into three classes, 50,000,000 without caste, 1,000,000 who are well educated, and between these classes is the real backbone of the country comprising a total of 250,000,000 persons. India is seething with new life, and the great cry is 'India for the Indians.' The people there want education and the higher classes are even in favor of compulsory education. Through the efforts of the missionaries, government, rich men and the native princes, education is rapidly spreading through the country, but the one great mistake of the government is that no religion is being taught at all.

No Religion Left.

The Christian religion is not spreading quickly and the old religion is being undermined with the result that there is no religion at all. A hatred for the foreigner is prevalent in the East and it almost amounts to a boycott. Christianity is not wanted, and to combat the work of the missionaries the Hindoos are following the methods of the Christians by establishing schools and holding large mass meetings.

"This shows that the great conflict is on and that the people are awake. The two religions cannot finally conquer. The most of the work at present is amongst the lower class, but the student body is also yielding.

A Quick Change.

"In China, the turnover from ancient days to modern times was affected in the space of a few months, and the history of Christianity in that country is the most interesting of all. Dr. Sun Yat Sen has brought a new spirit into China, and he is a type of man that is very scarce in the world. He organized the Chinese all over the world, and after bringing about a revolution that abolished dynasties from China, he refused the office of president which showed that his actions were not prompted by selfish motives.

Praises Sun Yat Sen.

"He is adored by the China of today and has welded China into one great brotherhood. China is not under the influence of public sentiment in other countries, and has adopted many institutions that are found in civilized countries.

"Hospitals for the insane and blind, as well as educational institutions, have been established, and the sincere way in which the Chinese have gone about the revolution has entitled that country to the active sympathy of the whole world."

Condemned British Government.

Dr. McKay condemned the stand taken by the British Government in regard to the opium trade by trying to force the drug into China when the people there wish it barred from importation.

"The vastness of the work," he said in concluding, "is beyond comprehension, but it makes one feel grateful for being allowed to live in such an age. The great peril is, however, that we may have so many respectable people in the church who think that religion is only church going and clean living, that the opportunities offered today will be neglected.

"The great curse of the church is that we are not using our talents. The greatest sin is that of omission and we must be careful lest we do nothing at all. The missionary work among the heathen is the biggest thing God gave man to do, and we should look upon it as a privilege. The work belongs to the church of Jesus Christ and to all of us individually."

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. McKay and to the ladies of the church who provided the luncheon. Mr. Thomas Alexander acted as chairman for the evening, during which Mr. Percy Q. King sank two excellent solos. Mrs. King was the accompanist for the solos and hymns. Other speakers were Rev. J. G. Stuart, Dr. R. Ferguson and Mr. John MacPherson.

BIG LIBERAL SMOKER PLANNED WEDNESDAY

Progressive Euchre Contest—Pair of Trousers Offered as Special Prize.

The Liberals of London will hold a big meeting at the Liberal Club next Wednesday evening.

This meeting will be the weekly smoker, and a big crowd is expected, as special preparations are being made for a progressive euchre contest. Last Wednesday, the euchre was attended by a large number of Liberals, both young and old, but next Wednesday an even larger number is looked for, as a special prize of a pair of trousers is being offered by Mr. Jos. Sullivan, of the executive committee.

These weekly social gatherings are increasing in popularity, and as a general invitation is extended, all Liberals should make a point to be on hand and take part in the enjoyment of a good program. Saturday is another popular night at the Liberal Club, and there will likely be a fairly large gathering tonight.

ALEXANDRA'S JUBILEE

Fifty Years Ago Today She Landed in England as Queen.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, March 7. — A cable from London says

Today is the jubilee of Queen Alexandra's first landing in this country. The lord mayor and sheriffs, representing the voice of London, presented at Marlborough House an address in celebration of the occasion emphasizing the loyalty and affection of Londoners towards the Queen-Mother, which grows ever stronger, if possible, with passing years. Alexandra expressed a strong desire a few weeks ago that the day should pass without any celebration, either official or private. If King Edward had been alive it would, of course, have been a day of general rejoicing, but Queen Alexandra feels that any form of public celebration on this day of such poignant memories would be out of place.

It is for this reason that the representatives of the city of London went to Marlborough House in ordinary dress. An emblazoned address was read by the city recorder in one of the reception rooms, and then handed to her majesty by the lord mayor.

The surviving bridesmaids who attended Queen Alexandra are each presenting a gift to her majesty. They are:

The Marchioness of Lothian, daughter of the fifth Duke of Buccleuch; Lady Thurslow, daughter of the eighth Earl of Elgin; Emil Lady Ampthill, daughter of the fourth Earl of Clarendon; Lady Feodorovna Bertie, daughter of the first Earl Cowley; Lady Agneta Montagu, daughter of the fourth Earl of Hardwicke, and Lady Heneage, daughter of the second Earl of Listowel.

THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA ISSUES ITS ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1912.

Persistent and unimpeded progress mark the operations of the Sun Life for 1912. The same story of progress which marked former years is emphasized in the present report.

During the year, 16,567 Policies, assuring $30,184,409.64, were issued. The great increase in new policies is one of the most striking evidences of popular favor. This increase of policies is $4,377,628.45. It is interesting to note that the policies issued in this year alone amount to 30 per cent. more than the total assurance in force 20 years ago. In 1872, in the company's infancy, the assurances in force were $1,064,350. In 1892, $23,901,047; in 1902, $67,181,602; in 1912, $182,732,420. It seems almost incredible that this ratio of progress could have been maintained.

The report is equally satisfactory from every view point. In income, an increase of over 15 per cent ($1,775,746.08) is shown. The total assets show an increase of 13 per cent, $5,704,730.51.

The assets—the substantial basis of operation—are mounting higher and higher from year to year. They have now reached the huge total of $49,605,616.49, the addition for the year being $5,704,730.51.

These figures must impress the mind of the prospective insurer, as they indicate absolute safety, and the maximum returns to policy holders.

This is the most satisfactory report the company has yet issued and it will meet the heartiest approval of shareholders.

Standing in the far front of Canadian Life Assurance Companies, the Sun Life is to be congratulated on this historical year, which places it in this proud and enviable position.

50th Year. LONDON, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1913. PRICE TWO CENTS

HUNDREDS OF IDLE ACRES FOUND IN FINE TOWNSHIP

Mr. Bartlett Writes of Opportunities That Await Settlers in Splendid Section of Western Ontario.

[By W. J. Bartlett.]

Lobo, March 7.—The publicity campaign has now spread in real earnest. Starting with a few powerful men at Byron the message, "Build Up a Greater Middlesex" has taken root all over the county.

Never has such a movement been launched before. Never has a paper got behind the farmer as The Advertiser. The editors are wide awake to the importance of the movement, and are straining every effort to make it a brilliant success. To realize the greatest good, however, everyone should join in the issue.

ALL SHOULD JOIN IN.

It should not be left to a few men to bring the resources of Middlesex before the world.

It is the duty of all.

Why should we stand aside and see our population dwindle?

Let us follow the boosting spirit that prevails in the west. We have hesitated long enough. Let us take action.

LAND NOT WORKED.

During my stay in Lobo Township never have I been so greatly impressed with the need of a publicity campaign. The great need of the farmer here as elsewhere is help, and the lack of it is presented in a vivid way.

Hundreds of acres are practically lying waste, waiting for the plow to dive into its rich depths.

Land that should support hundreds of human beings is lying idle—a picture no artist can paint.

BARNS ARE NOT FILLED.

As one looked out upon the great sweep of rolling land, awaiting the hand of man, the farm buildings that have become vacant, especially the once fine barns that no longer store the precious harvest, the need of a publicity movement to remedy all this was very apparent.

Let us stop the great tide of depletion that is going on. Let us seek to impress upon our people that Western Ontario is not played out, that as great things are being accomplished here as anywhere in Canada.

SOME EXAMPLES AT HOME.

We have heard of the glowing tales of prosperity in the west, where men have worked themselves up life's ladder with practically no capital.

But we have men who have done as great things in Middlesex. Let us look to them as examples.

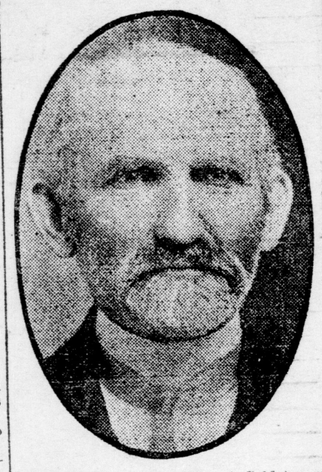

At Lobo I came in contact with farmers who started with but little of the coin of the realm, who today own the finest farms one could wish to see. And they are contented. The great west cannot have them.

Let us learn something of these men to inspire us with the great resources of Middlesex.

It is pleasing to record that Lobo farmers have awakened to the fact that something should be done, and a great stir is on.

KEENLY ALIVE.

Coldstream is undoubtedly the centre of activity, and such men as Zavitz brothers, S. P. Brown, and N. P. Campbell are keenly alive to the needs of the township, and we can safely look to them to bring about important reforms.

EDGAR M. ZAVITZ, of Coldstream, who has worked and written tirelessly to advance Middlesex and Lobo.

Facts About Lobo Township

The township is centrally situated in Western Ontario.

There are 47,263 acres of the best farming land in Canada.

Ten free public schools.

Twelve churches.

Nine general stores.

Exceptionally good library at Coldstream.

Rural mail delivery and good telephone system.

ISAAC HAMACHER GIVES EXAMPLE OF WHAT CAN BE DONE ON AN ONTARIO FARM

Starts as Farm Hand, Saves Earnings, Purchases a Farm and Becomes One of the Most Successful Agriculturists in the Province—Had Faith in the Country.

Born at Niagara, Mr. Isaac Hamacher came to Lobo Township at the age of 14.

His great ambition was to own a farm, and he set about the task in the right way.

He hired to a farmer, and for a number of years worked hard and saved his earnings.

And he succeeded. Twelve years ago he bought the farm from the man he worked for, consisting of a hundred acres. He had some good things to say of the township, and never regrets the day he took to farming.

Last year he had 11 acres of wheat, threshing some 300 bushels. "We have had oats turn 62 bushels to the acre," he stated.

And what does the township need at the present time? your correspondent inquired.

Hired help, he emphatically replied. It is a great shame to see the good land lying idle.

The Advertiser is doing good work in bringing the resources of the county before the people.

ISAAC HAMACHER, who rose from a hired man's position to be owner of a Lobo farm.

S. P. ZAVITZ IS EXPLOITING APPLE MARKETS OF BRITAIN AND WEST WITH SUCCESS

President and Secretary of Ilderton Fruit Growers' Association, One of Greatest Workers in Lobo, Does Much to Advance Organization.

One of the greatest workers in Lobo is Mr. S. P. Zavitz. He has been president and secretary of the Ilderton Fruit Growers' Association.

He is greatly in favor of the Middlesex Fruit Growers' Association, and his practical experience in shipping apples to the great Northwest and the old country should be of great benefit to the society.

"I am glad that a move has been made to bring the resources of the county before the world," he stated.

"At Lobo hired help is needed the worst way. Hundreds of acres of the finest land is waiting to be worked.

"We need a radial line through here to make things move. There was some talk of one a few years ago, but the thing dropped.

"We are too far from the railroad and every agricultural interest has suffered in consequence."

STORIES ABOUT GENERAL NOGI

Great Soldier Was Also a Poet—His Wonderful Self-Mastery.

As might be expected, it is the disciplined qualities of the soldier which stand out in the picture of "Nogi," drawn by Stanley Washburn, who was attached to his army as correspondent in the late war. Of his supreme devotion to duty the world knows, how with total forgetfulness of family ties he ordered his son to almost certain death at Port Arthur. Even his wife, it appears, received only official communications from him. When Mr. Washburn sent to the baroness a remarkably good photograph of the general on the white horse presented to him at the fall of Port Arthur by General Stoessel, she said:

This is the first direct personal touch that has come from my dear husband since the war started. When he parted with me to go to the "front" months and months ago, he said that as a husband he would be dead to me until the war was successfully terminated, and that I would not hear from him before then, nor should I write him, for his life, his time, his thoughts belonged utterly to his sovereign and to his country; that there must be naught of personality to come between.

A remarkable example of Nogi's self-mastery in trying situations, of his inscrutability, was furnished on afternoon in May, 1905, when the w correspondents had dropped in for chat with him. For nearly th quarters of an hour they sippe and exchanged pleasantries. "Sh his face grew thoughtful, and he denly volunteered, with a depre little smile and a gesture half gret and half of apology. "You excuse me now, for I am seme busy this afternoon, for the Russ under Michenko are making a raid cut off our communications.'" Considering the fact that the attempt was almost successful and that Nogi must have realized its seriousness, his display of stoicism was extraordinary. Yet he did not wholly conceal his human sympathies. He was fond of entering into the informal celebrations of the correspondents, and when he drank to the victory over the Baltic fleet, he remembered touchingly the reverses of the enemy. Withal, he appears to have cherished a great sorrow, though in an entirely undemonstrative way. Summer nights he used to sit on the roof of his cabin quite alone. Like all great men, Gen. Nogi had a weakness. It seems that he took the poetry he wrote very seriously. He would talk for hours with the correspondent of the London Times, who translated some of it into English metres.

Eminent Engineer Gives History of Hydro; Regards the Whole as Expensive Experiment

Mr. Richard P. Bolton, Who Has Wide Qualifications for the Work, Has Published a Book in Which He Says Toronto Receives Greatest Benefits From the System—An Interesting Treatise.

[From the Financial Post.]

A book entitled "An Expensive Experiment" has just reached The Post from the Baker & Taylor Company, of New York. It is still fresh in the public mind that the New York State legislative committee caused an investigation to be made into the operations of the Hydro-Electric Commission of the Province of Ontario. The Foreword states, "that the purpose upon which this study was started was to inform the taxpayer of the city of New York of the facts relating to the attempt to fasten at their expense upon New York City a speculative experiment such as that of Ontario." it proceeds:

"Applying to those who possessed them, the chairman and officials of the Hydro-Electric Commission for guiding information and real facts, they were met by disregard and neglect, when a fortunate circumstance, due to the disgust of one honest man, with the methods and secrecy of those in command of the affairs of the experiment, brought to their service the actual records upon which the disclosures were made possible."

"The aid rendered by that honest man without reward or remuneration can only be acknowledged by this statement, since he has determined to refuse publicity for his service to the public.

"The facts and figures are official, they are confirmed by official statements and testimony, and have been written impartially from the standpoint of an engineer, a property-owner, a tax payer and a citizen deeply concerned, and actively interested in the general welfare of the public."

Well-Accredited Author.

The author of the book and the writer of the foreword containing these remarkable statements, is Mr. Richard Pelham Bolton, a member of the American Institute of Consulting Engineers, associate member of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society. Mr. Bolton is said to be a thorough and well-known authority in the engineering world on subjects connected with power production and financial economics. His technical work has been recognized by the Institute of Civil Engineers of England in the award of the Telford gold medal. In a professional capacity he has served the city of New York and other municipalities as consulting engineer and expert in matters involving financial and economic questions.

The book opens as follows:

Birth of the Experiment.

"This is the story of a great experiment undertaken by nearly three-quarters of a million people, to which they have committed themselves and their successors for a quarter of a century to come, and in which they have involved themselves in a vast expenditure of public funds, and have shouldered a heavy burden of debt to demonstrate their belief in its possibilities.

It is an experiment which has involved the people of a great province, in the surrender of some of their constitutional privileges, and in a deprival of the rights of some of their neighbors; sacrifices so far uncomplainingly borne in the belief that the result may justify the means. An experiment born of a hopeful intention to secure the enlargement of business and the addition of wealth to the province, and also with the desire of bringing prosperity and profit to the workshop, and more convenience and comforts to the homes of the workers.'

There's a Way Out.

From this portentous beginning the book proceeds in a most thorough and entertaining manner with the "History of the Movement"; "The Views of the Commission"; "The Conservation of Water Power"; "The Development of Hydro-Electric Energy"; "How the Commission Has Gone to Work"; "From the Public Point of View"; "The Application of the Experiment"; "The Commission's Figures"; "The Operation of the Niagara System"—and afterwards takes up "The Big Chute System"; "The Commission at Port Arthur," with a concluding chapter, "The Way Out."

Development of Hydro-Electric Energy

In an able dissertation of the conditions in relation to the uses of electrical energy for commercial purposes, Mr. Bolton says:

"A careful examination of the value and use of power in various classes of industry, as well as in non-productive purposes, such as public and private lighting, will show that the relation of the value of the power to the value of the product is an insignificant proportion, excepting in those classes of industry to which reference has already been made, such as cotton mills, paper, pulp, lumber, iron and steel mills. It is only 5½ per cent of the value of the products in all the industries in the State of New York.

These facts all demonstrate that the proposition to convert water power to electrical energy for the purpose of its conveyance to long distances for general commercial and public purposes, is economically unsound. The useful application of energy in this form is limited and results in an economic loss of a large proportion of available energy which could be more economically and advantageously utilized in the immediate vicinity of the falls, and by such purposes and industries as require the largest possible and most continuous use of power.

"It has, however, been claimed in support of the great experiment of the province of Ontario, that the distribution of energy in this form was desirable as a means of attracting the establishment of new general industries in the province, and this point of view was evidently that which influenced the opinions and actions of the business community in furthering the movement which resulted in the establishment of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

Power Cost in Production.

"At the time this discussion was in progress, it was not clear to those who engaged in it, that energy, even at a low cost, is not a large inducement towards the establishment of industries of a general character in a locality, the selection of a situation being governed by the larger elements of suitable labor, the accessibility and price of raw materials, and transportation to and from the place of manufacture, together with other questions, such as taxation, tariff, and above all, proximity to the sources of demand for the product.

"Unless, therefore, a locality should prove specially advantageously situated in some or all of these respects, the element of cheap energy is not of material importance. That such conditions prevailed in the territory in which the operations of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission have been exercised, has been evidenced by the results."

When Cost Is High.

A pregnant sentence is found in his review of the comparative value of coal, gas and electrical energy (white coal), when he says:

"The share of the capital cost of the line of transmission of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission involved in connecting the city of London to Niagara, has amounted to $256 per horsepower used. A good steam power plant could be constructed for less than one-third of this expense."

Financial Operations.

A large portion of the work is devoted to the financial operations to which he draws immediate attention by the following striking paragraphs:

"The financial operations of the commission on this system are accompanied by an initial difficulty. No provision appears to have been made for the contingency, such as has developed, of a deficiency in revenue to meet the outgoings of the commission, and in order to deal with the emergency thus arising, recourse was made first to the suspension of the sinking fund, and secondly, to the writing in or charging to capital account of deficiencies in the cost of operation. This latter is a practice which, if it should be followed by private corporations, must necessarily lead to complications and burdensome capital expenditure, even if it should not prove to be eventually the high road to bankruptcy."

No Financial Statement Issued.

In the case of the commission, however, it has so far been followed without observation on the part of the public, due to the remarkable fact that for three years past no report, financial or otherwise, has been offered to the public by the commission which has only made, through its chairman, generalized statements and assertions as to its accomplishments.

In the summer of 1912, the New York State legislative committee directed to inquire into the workings of the commission, with a view to advising the Legislature upon the proposed adoption of a similar system in the State of New York, visited various cities in Ontario and took testimony from members of the commission and from others as to the financial and physical operations of the commission, during which inquiry the facts of the financial position of the commission began to be apparent.

Operations Carried On at a Loss.

The inquiry has resulted in establishing the fact that the operations of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission have been and are being conducted at a serious loss, and that a large expenditure of capital has been incurred upon a limited amount of public services rendered. The establishment of rates at unduly low figures at the inception of the undertaking, and their further reduction, from time to time, to meet competition and apparently to influence public opinion favorably, have been contributory causes.

Concealing Facts.

Up to a certain point the experiment of Ontario in electrical service afforded an illustration of the conduct of a difficult problem in an honest and sincere manner, and its shortcomings are not to be attributed to crookedness or graft, often such strong arguments against governmental operations. The financial situation of the experiment has been brought about by lack of appreciation of circumscribing conditions and errors of judgment, and as the facts become known it is evident that both have been contributory causes. The results are such as would be likely to flow from the control or so difficult a financial problem by those who were inexperienced in similar operations, and were uninformed upon the technical features of their work. But the more recent actions of the commission, in misleading the public, and concealing the true facts of its financial operations, cannot be regarded in the same light.

The Loss Per H.P.

Mr. Bolton finds that there has been a deficiency in the sales of power against the expenditure of the commission of $17.17 a horsepower—that is to say, that for every horsepower sold by the commission they have lost $17.17, and since the recent reductions in the rates on the Niagara system, the loss per horsepower has been increased to $18.61.

Mr. Bolton says: "The method by which this great deficiency is being concealed from public observation is, by the ommission of essential elements composing part of the cost, namely: the expenses of the commission which are not made known or charged against the cost, also the sinking fund, the depreciation accounts, and the provision for maintenance.

Changing Ground.

But the fact cannot be gainsaid that the commission has not carried out the principle upon which the experiment was based; that the consumers of electricity should pay the cost of its acquisition, without loss to the province. The postponement of obligations and neglect of proper provisions, is not a relief to the people from the burden of loss, and the accumulating deficiency must inevitably come with excessive force upon the various communities when the necessary increase is made to the rates as now charged. This will now require to be sufficient not only to cover all current outgoings, but to make up past deficiencies, and requires nearly double the present prices charged to the municipalities.

$13,148,000 Expended.

To the results which have thus come about in the operation of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, there must be added the expenditures and costs which the various municipalities have undertaken by their acceptance of this service, and in their preparations for the distribution of electrical energy within their own boundaries. An examination of the bond issues of the various municipalities upon the four systems has been made, and the total aggregates $8,348,000 up to the first of September, 1912. This, added to the capital expenditures of the commission, brings the total investment on the part of the people of Ontario upon this experiment to $13,148,000."

What the Consumer Pays.

The volume goes on to show what the real cost to the consumer is, fixing the figure, after proper allowances which are itemized and detailed, making the cost per distributed horsepower of maximum demand at the prices charged $79.74, and claims that if the full cost of the operation and expenses of the power commission were being paid, the price would be increased to $98.55, which, upon an average user of about 60 per cent, becomes per horsepower as utilized by the consumer, $164, which is about the same as some steam power plants, and would be equivalent upon the general working period of 3,000 hours of 5½ cents per horsepower hour.

Local Capital Dissipated.

Mr. Bolton, in a most interesting analysis, deals with the claim that even if the operation is productive of a financial loss, the result has been of widespread benefit to the community. He refers to a number of instances where municipalities were already provided with services from privately-owned concerns, and other cases where they were already in possession of hydro-electric or other power plants upon which municipal investments had been made. He shows also how a large proportion of the capital of the municipalities has been dissipated in the construction of parallel distributing systems duplicating existing electrical systems or discarding existing facilities and in extending existing systems.

How the Public Is Made to Pay.

He claims further that only a small proportion of the thirteen millions of dollars expended has been of a reproductive character, the major portion having been invested in non-returning or unproductive purposes in the form of public utilities, such as lighting. Often these have been furnished at an increased expenditure of public taxes. Nor does it appear that any substantial difference to the manufacturing industries of the province has resulted. He adds: "It cannot, therefore, be said with justice that the experiment of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has added to the economic welfare of the community to any appreciable extent; but on the other hand, it remains a stubborn fact that it has involved both the province and the municipalities in a very large addition to their existing indebtedness. These additions and their relation to prior debts and to the assessed valuations are shown in an accompanying tabulation."

Some Significant Figures.

In the Chapter, "Application of the Experiment," the financial results are shown with startling clearness.

"The broad results of this policy upon the Niagara system may readily be ascertained by comparison of the fixed charges and costs with the revenue derivable from the power sold at the prices charged. Upon an average use of 25,786 horsepower, on the reappointment of capital made after the addition of the villages, institutions and commercial consumers, referred to, the progressive costs show an annual deficiency amounting to $202,897.

"This result is based upon the prices charged prior to a reduction announced in October, 1912, which reduction resulted in an increased annual loss upon the same amount of power, bringing it to $231,309."

Effect of Reductions.

"The effect of further reduction of rates which was made by the commission to take effect on Nov. 1 was again to increase this loss, notwithstanding a considerable increase in the use of power, which had developed mainly in Toronto. The effect of this reduction upon an increased rate of use of power to 33,000 horsepower, increased the rate of annual deficiency to $269,000. It cannot be otherwise. The process of excessive reduction of prices accompanying an increase of the product sold, necessarily results in progressive increase of an existing deficiency.

"The ascertained shortage is inclusive of all costs and fixed charges, with the suspended sinking fund, the deduction of which, would, however, modify each figure by only $73,278. None of them include the expenses of the commission.

Situation Concealed.

"This financial situation has been concealed from the public partly by the suspension of the sinking fund, and partly by setting aside no provision for depreciation such as the chairman, in his published testimony, stated was being provided, and by charging costs of operation, administration and maintenance, in part, to capital account. Even if this course could be justified on the ground of the need for relief at the first part of the operation of the system, the reduction of rates which has been made recently could not be justified by the current financial conditions."

Toronto's Position.

Toronto is said to have got the best of the other municipalities in the adjustment of the costs:

"The largest proportion of the benefits goes to the city of Toronto, which had already secured the major benefit of the participating scheme, and has shouldered the least proportionate share of the burden."

Time Will Not Right Matters.

"The common response to any remark upon the deficiency in the financial operations of the commission, is that this will be corrected by a natural process as the volume of business increases.

"Thus, in such public statements upon the subject, as that published in the Toronto press of July 31, 1912, it is asserted that the growth of the use of power will bring about a progressive advantage or gain due to a greater subdivision of the fixed charges. The point was illustrated by stating that a year ago the fixed charges were divided into the cost of 9,000 horsepower, whereas they would gradually be divisible by an increased amount, and that the fixed charges would not have to be increased until there is over 60,000 horsepower in service. The latter statement is not reasonable nor is it in accordance with the facts disclosed by the accounts of the commission.

On a Fallacious Basis.

"The whole assumption is based on a fallacy. An increase of the output of power necessarily involves further capital for additions and extensions. Even upon the rates charged to the municipalities, up to October last, the current deficiency would be modified only to a limited extent, by an increase in the use of energy. If the rates be reduced, as they have been, upon an increased use of power, as the municipalities may have had a right to assume would be the case, then the loss would be and in fact has been proportionately increased. This may be readily seen by comparing the conditions of 1912 with the use, 33,000 horsepower, which may probably be reached in 1913.

Increasing Deficiency.

It will be seen that Mr. Bolton claims that the reduction in the rates increases the annual deficiency. He says:

"If the rate of power used in December can be maintained, the price per horsepower to all consumers will be reduced to $19.30, reducing the total revenue to $637,000, or a decline of $155,000.

The cost of power will be..	$297,000
Interest and depreciation..	374,000
Operation, administration and maintenance, as last year, plus 50%	153,000
Sinking fund	75,000
	$899,000
Deficiency	$262,000

"Thus the increase of power by 51 per cent, upon the same capital, with a reduction of price of 19 per cent, increases the deficiency 30 per cent.

"There cannot be any other outcome from such financial methods as those pursued by the commission, than an eventual accumulation of deficiencies, which in a private business, would be classified as bankruptcy. Of course, any such accumulations can be made good by an appropriation from the funds of the province by which the losses will be transferred to the pockets of the general body of taxpayers. The process has been already in partial operation, in the transfer to capital account of disbursements on operation, maintenance and general expenses."

The Chapter relating to the commission's figures contains some equally instructive passages, of which the following are a sample:

The Commission's Figures.

"The presentation of its report to the Legislature by the New York State committee, in January, 1913, followed by its partial publication in the Ontario press, produced a small tempest of denunciation, coupled with reflections on the accuracy of the committee's basis of information. These were combined with a re-assertion of faith in the personnel of the commission, and in the success of their operations, with expressions of wonder that any person could be found hardy enough to doubt these conclusions.

The chairman of the commission described the findings of the New York State committee "as the greatest joke of the age," and their facts and figures as "rot," while the Premier more dignifiedly designated them as being "very extraordinary." The committee, however, responded that their information was largely derived from the records and accounts of the commission, which body had neglected or refused to afford answers to inquiries upon the most important points, but which information had come into their possession and had been placed upon their record by others. The committee quoted certain officials' statements before them, in support of several important details, and the publication of the discussion at last elicited from the commission a belated financial statement, which, upon examination, was found to confirm the conclusions of the New York State committee in every respect.

How Public Is Steered.

The methods adopted by the commission in its guidance of public opinion upon this subject are illustrated in the form of the statement as published, which purports to be a complete summarization of the financial operations of the Niagara system, for the fiscal year 1912. It is so arranged as to present to the public the appearance of very large proportions of operation, the amount of power sold being given in the sums of three months' operations instead of the average of the monthly distribution, and total is so arranged as to afford the impression that nearly a quarter of a million of horsepower has been purchased and sold instead of the actual average of 20,620 horsepower purchased and 21,375 horsepower sold during the year.

Annual Loss.

"In any event, as no profit accrues to the commission from its operations at Ottawa, the Big Chute or at Port Arthur, but rather some small loss; the total annual deficiency upon the financial operations of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission now involve about a quarter of a million dollars, part of which is at present being met from the provincial treasury, and part is being carried as capital expenditure under the bookkeeping methods of the commission.

"The caution which should have accompanied the embarkation of the capital of the people of Ontario in so novel and untried a scheme, as a combination of services of diverse character, scattered over a wide area of country, has been conspicuously lacking in the methods employed. Such a result might be expected in the handling of a problem of such magnitude and technicality by men who, however enthusiastic and devoted, were unacquainted with the technical and financial problems which had to be met."

It is evident from the above that the total loss in operation since the commission began is approximately $600,000.

The concluding chapter, "The Way Out," claims that either their must be a provincial grant to pay the loss already incurred and to be incurred, or an increase in the prices sufficient to make the account balance.

"That this condition has attained," says the author, "the proportions now existing is doubtless largely due to the policy of suppression of information, which the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has adopted and followed—a policy broken only by the disclosures of the New York State legislative committee. The suppression of information has extended, not merely to the people, but to the representatives of the people in Parliament, and to the ministry in charge of public affairs."

The author says he learned this from a conversation with one of the present members of the Ontario cabinet.

This interesting volume was received at the office of The Post too late to permit of an exhaustive analysis. The author has taken a course which needs pursuing. Of the entire undertaking the public knows but little of a character that enables a judgment to be formed as to whether the system is a success or otherwise. Mr. Bolton's figures and estimates have the appearance of being reasonable. If they are wrong it would be a simple matter to correct them by the publication of a statement setting forth clearly the entire cost of the undertaking, the cost of operation and the gross revenue derived from it. Let the public know in concrete form what each capital account and what its revenue and charges for light and power are. Any misapprehension in the public mind can easily be removed by treating public business with public candor. That will silence criticism if they are wrong; and if they are right, the people ought to know it.

Meanwhile The Post has the common human curiosity to know who it is that so distinguished an author designates as "The Honest Man." Whoever it was, he had access to, or in his possession, records of an authoritative character. Anyone so familiar with the methods of the commission must be known to those at the head of it.

Under the heading, "Soft Answers to Hard Questions," the Railway Age Gazette says that the advice of the railways to their employees to be courteous is not always easy to follow. When the employee is asked questions, the replies to which, if truthful, would reflect on the road, what is he to do? "Giving soft answers," the Gazette concludes, "is a great art, and a man must be wise, as well as gentle, to be proficient in it."

A clinging Non-Skid tread on a double-mileage tire

No-Rim-Cut Tires—the tires that will not rim-cut—can be had if desired with a tread that will not skid.

A money-saving tire with a power-saving, non-skidding tread.

The Treads with the diamond-shaped blocks—you see them everywhere—add life to No-Rim-Cut Tires without lessening their resiliency.

How We've Grown!

When we started making No-Rim-Cut Tires in Canada in the Fall of 1910 we employed 89 men. At the close of 1912 the number had increased to 596. Now it is well over 600 and growing.

It is a Goodyear policy to help the men who help us. We want to make smooth if possible the problem of living that confronts our men. A large number of them live in Goodyear houses. We own fifty in Bowmanville and will build more as they are needed.

The Balmoral Hotel has been turned into a Goodyear Club, with Swimming Tanks, Billiard Room and Reading Rooms.

The Goodyear men have their own sporting organizations, Baseball, Hockey, Bowling, Trap-shooting. They own their own Athletic Field.

The success of the Bowmanville plant and the uniform quality of No-Rim-Cut Tires is due in no small measure to the enthusiastic efforts of these men.

Here is what has been accomplished in scarcely more than two years:

Number of employees increased sevenfold.

Floor space increased 3½ times.

Daily output of No-Rim-Cut Tires increased 20 times.

GOODYEAR

NO-RIM-CUT NON-SKID TIRES

Get that? The countless skid-resisting blocks cannot press in and bruise the fabric of the tire. The blocks are wide at the base. Under pressure, they spread out and distribute the weight over the whole tread of the tire.

The extra thick tread of tough rubber adds extra wear—prevents punctures.

The diamond-shaped blocks are the toughest rubber we know. They keep their grip for thousands of miles. When the centre blocks wear down the side blocks do the work. And the blocks are springy. The extra weight of this tread does not deaden the tire and jolt the mechanism of the car. The Goodyear Non-Skid is a live tire. Try it and see.

These perfect Non-Skid Treads are vulcanized onto No-Rim-Cut 10% Oversize Tires. See now what you get. A perfect Non-Skid Tread, in conjunction with a tire that saves 48% of your tire cost. A tire that practically doubles your mileage.

These tracks are always True and Straight. Watch the road.

No-Rim-Cut Non-Skid Tires can be fitted to practically every standard make of rim. Look up the Goodyear Dealer.

WOMAN ESCAPES DREADFUL OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's VegetableCompound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The Higher Greatness; A City Temple Sermon

[By Rev. R. J. Campbell at the City Temple, London, Eng.]

"Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist; notwithstanding he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he." (Matt. ii., 11).

This saying seems a little hard on the person to whom it primarily refers. Our Lord here pays a great compliment—perhaps as great a compliment as he ever paid to anyone—to his mighty forerunner, and then immediately follows it up by declaring, with no less emphasis, that a person of but small importance in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. In what sense can such a statement be true?

Observe, in the first place, that Jesus here refers not only to the Baptist, but by implication to practically

The Whole Human Race.

He says that no greater man than John the Baptist had ever lived, and yet his greatness is less than that of one who is but little in the heavenly kingdom. This is equivalent to saying that all other human beings up to that time, no matter how distinguished, belonged to the same category; they, too, were less than the least in the kingdom of heaven.

He expressly states that no greater man than John had ever yet appeared, and he makes no exceptions. So apparently Buddha, Socrates, and all other pagan worthies, as well as all the outstanding Israelitish men of God of previous generations—Moses, Elijah, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and the rest—are her described inferentially as being on a lower status, a lower order of greatness, than that which obtains in the kingdom of heaven.

And I do not think there is much doubt either but that the greatness here ascribed to John the Baptist is a moral and religious rather than a merely intellectual or material quality. It was not his fame Jesus was thinking of when he said he was great; he did not rank him with Caesar or Alexander. Nor was he admiring his wisdom and eloquence; it was not as a wonderful thinker or teacher that he placed him on his pedestal; John was not of the illustrious company of Plato and Philo. No; it was simply as a messenger of God with a passion for righteousness that he was great; he was the last of the prophets of Israel, with the added lustre of being the herald of the Messiah. Where, then, did his greatness come short? Why is it lumped along with all other human greatness and stamped as inferior to that of the kingdom of heaven?

One of the foremost authorities of the last century on the subject of ancient Greek literature and religious ideas, a namesake of my own, Professor Lewis Campbell, says that the very best products of the Hellenic mind were psychologically shallow as compared with, say, the spiritual experience of the apostle Paul. This is a remarkable and illuminating testimony to come from the lips of a man who knew and loved the masterpieces of the Greek literary and philosophic genius. Professor Campbell's view appears to have been that, although the achievements of the Greek intellect had never been surpassed, nor perhaps the specific Greek contribution to the arts of life either, there was a threshold over which they never rose which the Christian was a greater being than the pagan, greater in virtue of the capacities awakened within him, greater because of his perceptions of spiritual truth. Perhaps I am not stating the point quite rightly; it would be better to say that the Christian revelations, as a revelation, opened up new chambers in the human soul, discovered new potentialities in human nature and laid bare whole tracts of hitherto unexplored relations between God and man. A great pagan like Marcus Aurelius, standing at a far higher level intellectually, and in some respects even morally, than the average man of the Christian centuries, is yet somehow inferior to the latter in spiritual depth; he is in certain ways a smaller being because of what remains untouched within him, because of spiritual heights unrevealed to his vision. We might say with perfect truth that among men born of women, few if any, have arisen greater than this noble-minded Stoic emperor with his serious outlook, his courage and self-denial, his lofty sense of duty, and his patient prosecution of an unselfish purpose; nevertheless there are some things in which a spiritually-minded Salvation Army lassie is a greater being than he. In all ordinary human accomplishments he is far ahead of her; but in the development of the spiritual consciousness she is far ahead of him. If anyone is disposed to deny this I may as well acknowledge at once that I cannot demonstrate it; the only proper judge in such a case is the spiritual mind, and if that be lacking argument is quite useless. As St. Paul says: "He that is spiritual judgeth all things, yet he himself is judged of no man."

But let me see if I can illustrate what I am saying. A snowdrop is a beautiful thing—as far as it goes a perfect thing—graceful, delicate, wonderful in growth and construction; and the more we know of it the more wonderful it becomes. A mongrel dog is not beautiful; to call him a perfect specimen of anything would be ludicrous; he is not graceful, certainly not delicate, either in his appearance or his ways. But, notwithstanding,

The Dog Is Greater Than the Snowdrop;

He is greater because, although built of the same life-cells, and in a grosser manner, he has developed what the snowdrop has not—namely, intelligence; he lives in a larger world than the snowdrop, and is the possessor of larger powers; if he were taken in hand his whole being might be enormously improved, so as to compare favorably with the natural excellences of the snowdrop; but in any case he is already a greater being. Again, a short time ago I was shown some lantern slides containing careful reproductions of every stage in the life of a creature of the dragon-fly order. One watched the larvae swimming about in the water where they were born, apparently very much at home. They enjoyed a complete aquatic life, without any indication of need or desire for any other. But the time presently came when the insect within the pupa-sheath shed its hindering integuments and rose out of the pool which up to now had been its only habitation into a higher and wider world—the world of air and sunshine; and in so doing it unfolded new organs, displayed new capacities, hitherto unsuggested. This is the metamorphosis so well described by Tennyson:

Today I saw the dragon-fly
Come from the wells where he did lie.

An inner impulse rent the veil
Of his old husk; from head to tail
Came out clear plates of sapphire mail.

He dried his wings: like gauze they grew;
Thro' crofts and pastures wet with dew
A living flash of light he flew.

One could not but admit that the dragonfly which coars on wings is a greater organism, higher in the scale of being, than those which crawl at the bottom of the pond. It takes some time for its wings to grow to their full length and to acquire their brilliant coloring; it is not all at once that it is able to employ its new-found powers; in fact, for a time it lies limp and inert on the surface of the water or the leaf of a plant—some of them do this longer than others—before daring to speed into the upper air. It is only later on, after being warmed by the sun and fed with better food than it had previously been accustomed to, that it learns to dart with lightning facility from point to point. Up till then it compares unfavorably in quickness and nimbleness with its brothers in the water, but who would dream of saying it was not greater than they? They may be splendid for what they are, but they have not emerged into the larger life of the emancipated dragon-fly.

You see what I am aiming at, do you not? With the advent of our Lord Jesus Christ something came to the world at large which

Had Not Been There Before;

At his touch something awoke in human experience which had not been felt before. Human nature under his influence discovered itself to be both greater and fouler than it had hitherto known; and as the believer mounted through the gateways of repentance, atonement, sanctification, he was ushered into realms of blessedness and holy joy such as the best and wisest of mankind had never glimpsed till then. "Verily I say unto you," said the Master, "that many prophets and righteous men have desired to see the things which ye see and have not seen them, and to hear the things which ye hear and have not heard them." Yes, exiled humanity has often longed for its spiritual home without knowing what it wanted; in Jesus the revelation has been given. The spiritual consciousness has awakened on higher levels than heretofore, and has laid hold of and assimilated eternal realities in a way that, apart from the Gospel, it has never been able to do. This is a note which you have never heard me strike so plainly, but I cannot help it. It is becoming even clearer to me that the grace of God in Jesus Christ has produced unique effects in the world; it is a thing by itself, an impartation of life and power not to be accounted for on any other ground than that it is the eternally perfect, the kingdom of heaven, breaking its way through to the plane of flesh and sense, irradiating, transforming, and uplifting the soul that yields itself to it. It is the spirit of Christ that creates the sense of sin and makes us aware of our need for redemption, but it is the same spirit that furnishes the assurance of redemption and reveals to us the high calling of God. "Greater is he that is in you than he that is in the world," said the apostle, and never was there a truer statement. It is a clearly defined step from the life of the vegetable kingdom to that of the animal kingdom, though in its lower stages almost imperceptible, and the step from the life of the kingdoms of this world to that of the kingdom of heaven is equally well marked, though it may be impossible for human wisdom to say just where the line of division between the two should be drawn. In every case

Something Definite Happens,

Something from the higher must enter into and stimulate into activity the latent potencies of the lower. No snowdrop, however perfect of its kind, will ever become a dog, but the living cells which built the snowdrop can in another form be made to function as the vehicle of intelligence, and before that can happen they must be reborn. And to be reborn means to be informed by a new principle, quickened from above. The same is true of the dragon fly in another way. Before it can respond to the higher environment it has to be reborn, but that rebirth would never take place if there were not something of the higher world already latent within it waiting to be roused and called forth by the light and warmth from above. And the diamond, with all its wonderful power of reflecting the glories of the orb of day, would remain buried in darkness, hidden in the earth forever, if there were no one to invade the darkness and draw it forth to be cleansed, cut, and placed in a suitable setting wherein to display its sun-inherited splendors. And this has its parallel in the spiritual life of mankind. The natural man may be great in all his various types—great in mind and morals, great as administrator, warrior, philosopher, prophet, great in all the arts and sciences, and in everything that tends towards the betterment of human lot in a material world. But greater still is he in whom Christ has arisen with regenerating power, disclosing to him his unlikeness to that which is highest and holiest, but at the same time declaring his kinship thereto and enabling him to attain to ever closer and more perfect union therewith.

There is one thing more which needs to be said—namely, that this experience is rightly described in my text as the entrance of the soul into a higher kingdom, the kingdom of heaven. Jesus always claimed to belong to a transcendental world, a world of spiritual reality, to which ours stands but as shadow to substance. He declared that he came to make the life of that world ours, to reveal reality and unite us to it. And that is why to this day the Church of Christ, despite all her inconsistencies and shortcomings, sets so little store by the wisdom of his world and claims to be the

Depository of a Higher Truth

Than that which is of the intellect and the sense alone. Nay, more than this, it is saving truth, redeeming life, that it is her vocation to witness for in this sunken bewildering world of ours. One understands now what the saints mean who tells us that the Gospel of Christ has nothing to do with what "man's wisdom teacheth, but with what the Holy Ghost teacheth, comparing spiritual things with spiritual." One understands, if indeed it be an incursion from a state in which our earthly values go for nothing. We never touch reality until we do it in Christ; we are helpless to do it otherwise; and reality is the beatitude of the love of God. Those of you who are acquainted with Mr. Shorthouse's famous novel "John Inglesant," will doubtless remember the crisis in Inglesant's life when, in a mean little hut, a vision of Christ was granted to him. He saw the Lord as with his bodily eyes in visible form. "The halo round his head lighted all the hovel, so that the seamless coat he wore and the marks upon his hands and feet were plainly seen, and the pale, alluring face was turned not so much upon the bed and upon the monk as upon Inglesant himself, and the unspeakable glance of the divine eyes met his." To me the impressive thing about this narrative is not so much the phenomenon thus described, though I quite believe such things have happened and do happen, but what it suggests. That is the way Christ does come into the hovel of our individual earthly experience, and lights it with his presence, at once revealing its squalor and filling it with heavenly glory. It is the supernatural breaking through into the natural, the divine invading the human, to deliver it and transform it into its own likeness. No greatness of ours can gain it; no goodness of ours can earn it; it is an act of divine grace operating from a region far, far above all question of human greatness and goodness. We simply appropriate its benefits by faith to the saving of the soul.

My friends, I bring you this morning a great thing, an unexplainable thing, all the greater because unexplainable in terms of any earthly good; I bring you the offer of God's bountiful compassion and redeeming love made manifest in Jesus Christ. "The kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." Most of you take this world far too seriously, and are careful and troubled about many things when only one thing is needful. There may be those before me just now who are in great distress of mind and heart because of things which matter nothing in themselves, and dwelling on which only serves to hold the soul in bondage. Others may be so absorbed in questions relating only to the outer man that they do not realize how they are starving and crushing the inner. Their notions as to what is great and worthy, what has the right to command their efforts and solicitude, are all upside down. They are allowing the world of appearances to cheat them; life is telling them lies; it is calling that great which is not great, and that small which is not small. "I will pull down my barns and build greater," said the rich man in the parable, "and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods. But, God said, Thou fool! this night thy soul shall be required of thee; then whose shall these things be which thou hast prepared?" That alone is great which is of heaven; and that alone is small which is only of earth. God grant us all true insight, repentance, and faith, that we may obtain abundant entrance to his everlasting kingdom.

Was Troubled With His Heart.

HAD TO GIVE UP WORK.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, skips beats, and sometimes seems to almost stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

Many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social or business duties, through this unnatural action of the heart.

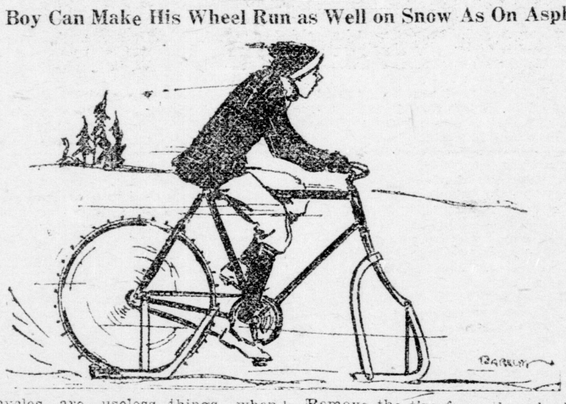

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief.

Mr. Alfred Male, Eloida, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with my heart for two or three years. I thought sometimes that I would die. I went to the doctor, and he said he could not do anything for me. I had to give up work. My wife persuaded me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. The first box relieved me, so I kept on until I had taken seven boxes, and they cured me. I would not be without them on any account, as they are worth their weight in gold. I advise my friends and neighbours who are troubled with heart or nerve trouble to try them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto Ont.

TURN YOUR BICYCLE INTO A SLEIGH

Any Boy Can Make His Wheel Run as Well on Snow As On Asphalt

Bicycles are useless things when snow is on the ground, or at least they seem so. But a clever boy can have a lot of fun with them.

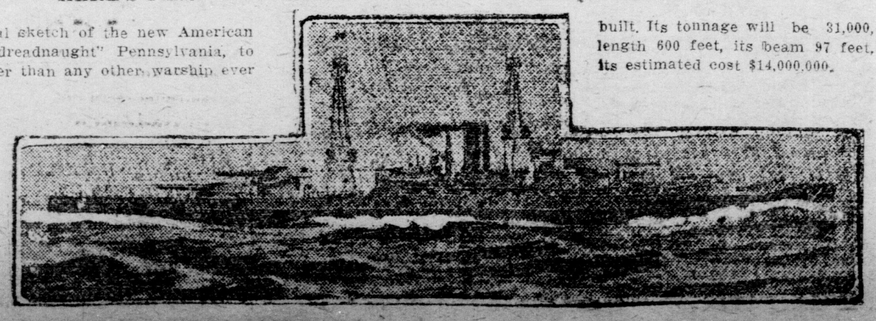

Remove the front wheel and place in its stead a runner made of one-quarter by one-inch iron, as shown. Put a double runner in the rear wheel frame high enough to let wheel rim clear the ground by half an inch and made of the same material as the runner on the front wheel. The double runner is so called because it extends on each side of the wheel.

Remove the tire from the wheel and put in its place a hoop of flexible wood or a sole leather strap that has been studded with spikes at least one inch long and not more than two inches apart. Ordinary wood screws with the points filed will do. The wood or leather can be secured to the wheel by a bolt passing through the hole in the rim made for the tire valve.

The bicycle is pedalled exactly as an ordinary bicycle, the spikes in the rear wheel giving the necessary grip on the snow and ice.

JERUSALEM'S USELESS MONEY.

"Jerusalem is passing through a terrible economic crisis just now," says the Jewish Chronicle. "For some weeks the town has been flooded with metallics, the Turkish coin most generally used in marketing. Tripoli has Italian money now, and sent its metallics to Constantinople, hundreds of sacks of which were poured into Asia Minor. Now Salonika and other places have sent metallics into Syria, as they also have no more use for Turkish money.

"Metallics were sold at Salonika six weeks ago at the rate of a big paiiful for a franc, and Jerusalem money-changers, who had been buying them up, made hay while their sun shone. Disaster soon followed. The Ottoman Bank also received a large consignment, and panic began to seize the people when the coin value fell below par; shopkeepers refused to take the metallics on any condition.

"The poor are starving, and respectable people, who have never accepted charity, are standing with shivering children in the streets begging for bread."

'Slim' Noonan Tells Mary Boyle O'Reilly of Mexico's 'Man of Mystery,' Who, Bottled Up in Dusty Basin, Daren't Move North or South.

INCIDENTALLY, THE FILIBUSTER'S WORDS KALEIDOSCOPE INTO A FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY WHICH POINTS THAT THE PRESENT WAR IN MEXICO—AND, MAYBE, INTERVENTION—HAS BEEN PLOTTED FOR A LONG, LONG, TIME!

BY MARY BOYLE O'REILLY.

Mexico City, March 7.—"Slim" Noonan, American citizen, soldier of fortune, filibuster, with a price of $10,000 on his head, leaned forward, elbows on knees.

"I'm sorry, m'am," he explained, with anxious politeness, "but I never told a story-book story in my life!"

Contrition suited him so funnily that I laughed.

"Don't try," I said, "just tell me how you have made the Mexican consul at El Paso a fugitive from justice—and 'the man of mystery in Mexico.'"

A compelling Orish smile wrinkled "Slim's" thin, tanned face.

"Gratias," he said, sweeping a cavalier's gesture of thanks, "that's easy."

Followed a pause while a gentleman adventurer reflected on the astonishing conspiracy soon to create international concern.

EX-CONSUL LLORENTE.

Then "Slim" Noon began, speaking slowly, explicitly, as one who realizes the significance and the danger of his words.

"In June, 1912, I was working in the Mexican secret service for ex-Consul Enriquez C. Llorente under a man named Hall. The job was getting evidence against Mexican revolutionists attempting to smuggle arms and ammunition across the line from El Paso.

"One day the consul asked me to find four fearless men willing to do dangerous work and to forage on the countryside. His scheme was to break the neutrality laws.

"Why?"

"Oh, just to start a war with the United States and solidify all Mexicans under Madero.

"There was Mahoney, McDonald and Charpentier, who had been everywhere, seen everything—warranted always to turn up where rough work waited to be done!

"We saw Senor Llorente and he told us:

"'I want you fellows to go down to the heart of the rebel country where rebels patrol the railroads night and day. I want you to blow and burn Mexican Central bridges till I call a halt. The pay is $2,000 and your outfits.'

"Then he gave us $900 for the outfits.

"So, on June 12, 1912, we piled the stuff in an auto and slid for Yisotte.

"Then we crossed to the Bonche Mountains, down into the flat rebel country and for 24 days there was a merry old time burning bridges, running rebels, destroying telegraph instruments, pulling down wires—all to bottle old man Orozco and Salazar, the rebel chiefs in Juarez.

"They're the ones that fight for the common folks, you know. The Wall street bunch does't have a look-in with them!

"Put us down for a dozen bridges—the one at Barreal alone was 400 feet long!

"Along about June 25 McDonald got shot. That was hard luck. Anything Mac pulled on was gone.

"After resting two or three days in an abandoned mine, we hit for the border, but when we got our glasses on the line there was American soldiers standing shoulder to shoulder—waiting.

"So we hung out till dark, and over we went down to the Rio Grande valley. There is a ranch house over to Young's, seven miles from anywhere, and in it a lady from Vermont that came for her health. The owner being away, she acted timid when the four of us rode up, hungry as bears, our lips puffed out with thirst.

"Well, we drew off and elected Mahoney to go in and calm the woman. But first we curried him up.

"Now, Mahoney is a great man 'round the ladies, and before you could speak she had us in to a sit-down of bacon, pancakes and coffee.

"When we sensed that we didn't look like human beings no more, I voted to report to Consul Llorente!

"He acted very arbitrary, refused to talk, said he called off the deal. Then I says, 'How about pay?'

"'I don't think you have anything coming to you,' he says.

"'What?' says I—and no more.

"Charpentier was at the interview and he got me out quick.

"'We'll take him down the line, only not now,' says Charpentier. 'Let's go into town.' And we did, saying a few prayers for Enrique C. Llorente!

"But 'Charp' had to cool off tanking up till he got arrested. And that was the last I saw of Charpentier for many moons.

"Pretty soon Consul Llorente sent for me.

"'Slim,' he says. 'I want you to go to Senora and look up 2,500 stand of arms and 35,000 rounds of ammunition shipped to the governor by the federal government and lost track of.'

"So I went, never thinking, till the consul at Negalis, an Americanized Mexican, tipped me a hint,

"'Your life is in danger,' he says. 'Were you sent here to get killed?'

"With that I saw light!

"'Charp' was in jail for foolishness. Mahoney and McDonald went up the border near Douglass till they were captured by United States officials and imprisoned in El Paso for breaking the neutrality laws.

"About Sept. 25, 1912, Llorente wired for me.

"SLIM" NOONAN, FILIBUSTER, WHO TOLD ACCOMPANYING STORY TO MISS O'REILLY, SKETCHED FROM LIFE BY HIGGINS.

"Get to them, he says, before they squeal!'

"Did I?

"Do I look it?

"United States Senator Fall, who knows Llorente, demanded a speedy trial.

"The three came into court on Oct. 12. United States secret service man, Thompson, summoned me as the chief witness. The United States district attorney, the United States marshal and the whole lot was there.

"And I put it to them like this:

"'Do you expect me to squeal on my pals? We went into Mexico under Consul Llorente's orders—and we never got paid!'

"So the United States district attorney went into court.

"'Your honor,' he says, 'the chief witness fell down—the Government has no evidence on which to convict.'

"'Gentlemen of the jury,' says Judge Maxey, 'I instruct you to acquit.'

"On Feb. 4 of this year McDonald swore to a complaint in the United States court charging Mexican Consul Llorente with conspiracy to smuggle arms and ammunition in breach of the neutrality laws.

"The fourth happened to be a Mexican holiday, and Llorente was at a 'feasta' in the federal camp across the river. When the United States marshal went to the consulate to serve the warrant, Llorente heard of it—and he never came back!

"Four days he did in Juarez. Then he hiked for Alberto Madero's ranch at Chihuahua. Alberto Madero is uncle to the shot ex-president and Military President Huerta would go a long way to catch him!

He and Llorente cannot go south to Mexico City, nor north to the border "Warrants to right of them, warrants to left of them!

"Well, don't ask me. That Mexican put a price of $10,000 upon our heads—me and McDonald, Mahoney and Charpentier!

"But the same ain't a circumstance to what Americans or federals will do to him when they catch the arch-conspirator, Le Consul Enrique Llorente!"

ETIQUETTE AND MANNERS

[Byron H. Stauffer.]

Do not be ashamed of father just because he does not know the latest fad of etiquette. The visitor at your home, whoever he is, will not regard a little breach on father's part nearly as seriously as he will your exhibition of horror. Supposing he does eat his French peas with his spoon instead of using the fork. Have you any assurance that we will not be expected to employ the nutcracker for the purpose next season?

Etiquette is to manners what the spring fashion is to attire. Etiquette literally means pin-sticking. The rules of etiquette constantly vary, but good manners are unchanging the world over. Menelek of Africa might need posting on the local proprieties at the White House, but in an examination on genuine good manners he would pass with honors, I trow. If good old King Alfred came back to England, he might not be familiar with this year's code at Windsor Castle, but in all essentials of breeding he would be strictly up-to-date.

Etiquette belongs to the hands and feet; manners to the soul. Etiquette comes from superficial training; manners from disposition of heart. Etiquette may be learned in books for the adornment of drawing-rooms; manners may be developed in the desert for use anywhere. The untrained man may not know what to do with his awkward limbs; the ill-mannered man finds it difficult to control his brutish heart.

So never mind where father puts his napkin. If he prefers tucking it in at his Adam's apple, as he does with the towel while shaving, by all means let him do it and save laundry.

An Englishman told me that a hundred years ago the London style was to wear the napkin to the chin for the soup, to the top button of the vest for the entree, to the lower button for the roast, and on the lap for the dessert. By the time the wine was finished it was customary for napkin and glass, guest and host, to rest in happy confusion 'neath the table.

Seriously, at much-married King Harry's table the food was still transferred from plate to mouth by thumb and forefinger until Cardinal Wolsey, on his return from Rome, introduced to Englishmen the new Italian fad of table forks.

A century ago it was quite rulable to put knife to lip. Fifty years later they still poured the tea from cup to saucer to let it cool. Bishop Fowler's book of etiquette, published in 1880, tells us that boiled eggs should be eaten from the shell, and the eggs must be chipped from the larger end. A later work of authority permits us graciously to break our breakfast eggs into a glass.

For your own part try to be up-to-date in table manners, remembering that:

"New occasions teach new duties;
Time makes ancient good uncouth."

But do not be too impatient with father.

ETHEREAL MURIEL.

"Muriel has the reputation of being ethereal."

"Yes, and I know how she manages."

"How?"

"I've been watching her, and she has eaten a chicken sandwich with 26 different men. Every one of those men thinks she's ethereal and she's had a pretty fair feed. See?"

How to Obtain Good Digestion

The Stomach Must Be Toned and Strengthened Through the Blood.

The victim of indigestion who wants to eat a good meal, and he will suffer if he eats one, finds poor consolation in picking and choosing a diet. As a matter of fact you cannot get relief by cutting down your diet to a starvation basis. The stomach must be strengthened until you can eat good nourishing food. The only way to strengthen the stomach is to enrich the blood and thus tone up the nerves that control it. The only way to enrich the blood and tone up the nerves, and give strength to the stomach—strength that will enable it to properly digest any kind of food—is through a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The one mission of these Pills is to make rich, red blood, that reaches every part and every organ of the body, bringing renewed health and activity. The following case illustrates the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in indigestion:

Miss Lottie Carr, of Lequille, N. S., says: "For several years I have been a great sufferer from chronic indigestion. At times I almost loathed food, and no matter how hungry, I found that to eat even lightly was followed by great distress and often nausea. I tried many so-called cures, but did not get more than temporary relief, and naturally I was going down both in health and strength, and was greatly discouraged. While in this despondent condition I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I doubted that they would cure me after so many other medicines had failed, but as I wanted health and the Pills were highly recommended I decided to try them. I am thankful now that I did so, for after taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for five or six weeks every vestige of the trouble had left me, and I was again blessed with the best of health. From my own experience I believe there is no case of indigestion Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will not cure, if given a fair trial."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 fro The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

SOME EXPERT ADVICE ON HOW TO READ

[Right Hon. G. W. E. Russell in Manchester Guardian.]

I knew a senior classic who, in his examination for a fellowship at Trinity, handed in a series of absolutely faultless papers. "What an intellect!" we all exclaimed—"an intellect which can turn itself with equal case to any subject which it has to tackle, and always dominates it." But the master of Trinity, the famous and fastidious Thomson, said: "Yes; and, on the whole the least interesting mind that has ever been elected to a Trinity fellowship."

The standing and colossal warning against the practice of reading with an object is the late Lord Acton. He lived to be nearly 70, a student from his earliest days. He had a keen, subtle, and penetrating intellect, unbroken leisure, and full command of all intellectual resources. He collected a library of sixty thousand volumes, and this library had a definite object. Acton's aim, from his boyhood onwards, was to write a history of liberty. No nobler occupation for a life of learned toil can be conceived, but the book was never written. Once he gave Mr. Bryce a taste of what, had it been written, it would have contained. "It was as if the whole landscape of history had been suddenly lit up by a burst of sunlight. I have never heard from any other lips any discourse like this, nor from his did I ever hear the like again." Professor Maitland was convinced that Acton could himself have written all the twelve volumes of the "Cambridge History." Another critic said: "He was well versed in metaphysics, he was a deep theologian, and his knowledge of modern history was only bounded by the limits of the theme." Yet, dying, he left behind him only a bundle of essays and lectures, and as to the history of liberty which absorbed his life, "all that there is of it, all that there ever was of it, except books and notes—materials for others to use—consists of two lectures delivered at the obscure town of Bridgnorth in 1877."

Lord Acton's was no doubt an extreme instance of reading for a purpose, and it is made pathetic by the fact that the purpose was never fulfilled. Almost as extreme a case, in the opposite direction of desultory reading, was Matthew Arnold. When once he had secured his fellowship at Oriel, he had no special object in reading, except, in his own phrase, to "keep his mind from putrefaction." His knowledge of Greek, Latin and English literature was exhaustive, and it was supplemented by a wide acquaintance with German, French and Italian. All his life he was a busy, and not seldom an over-busy, man; but, through all the press of official duties and bothers, he kept his sacred time for what he called "disinterested" reading—reading, that is, with no special object, no practical purpose, but merely for the sake of constant intercourse with "the best that is known and thought in the world." The longer he lived the more he was struck to find how much, in our present society, a man's life depends for its solidity and value on whether he reads during that day, and, far more still, on what he reads during it. . . . Reading is living in good company, the best company, and people are generally quite keen enough, or too keen, about doing that; yet they will not do it in the simplest and best way by reading. However, if I live to be 80, I shall probably be the only person in England who reads anything but newspapers and scientific publications.

From a student such as Acton and a scholar such as Arnold, it is rather an abrupt transition to John Bright; and yet he had his place in this connection, for he had his own method of reading, and that method had its own results. To begin with, he was almost uneducated, as the learned count education. Little Latin or less (or no) Greek represents his classical equipment. He was, I fancy, unacquainted with modern languages, and his knowledge of English literature was extremely circumscribed. He yielded a kind of perfunctory admiration to Shakespeare, but was repelled by Falstaffs and Bardolphs and Gravediggers. He had read in a rambling sort of way, a good deal of Spenser, Pope, Wordsworth, and Cowper; he had a too-indulgent feeling the Epic of Hades and the Bigelow Papers; and he would often declaim, with majestic elocution, some fragment of haunting verse or sonorous prose which he had picked up he knew not where. But he lived on the Bible and Milton; and his speeches, fashioned on those immortal models, will, I believe, have a permanent place in English literature long after the most ambitious orations of his classically educated contemporaries have disappeared into deserved oblivion.

It used to be said that a well-educated man knew something about everything and everything about something. Even so, my dear fellow-students, as Hamlet would have called you, let us try to know everything about some one author and something about all the rest. By this plausible-sounding counsel I seek to secure for you and for myself the advantages both of special and of desultory reading; and perhaps, when we have "specialized" in one author, we shall be inclined to try the same experiment on another. Happily, reading has no limits, except such as are imposed by time and space and the term of human life. Forty years ago Matthew Arnold wrote as follows to his sister:

I have just had a letter from the State of Maine in America, from a young man who writes to tell me that a friend of his, lately dead, had been especially fond of my poem "A Wish," and often had it read to him in his last illness. They were both—the writer and his friend—of a class too poor to buy books, and had met with the poem in a newspaper.

If my fellow-students do not know "A Wish," I urge them to read it; and then, I think, they will feel with me that there is a singular pathos in the story of that dying lad, sustained in his last hours by the poetry which he was too poor to buy.

FOXY LAD HER BEAU IS, EH, WHAT?

"Pa is getting cross," sighed the dear girl, "so we must listen or he may pop in and catch us spooning.

"We should worry!" smiled the youth. "I fixed up a little arrangement—

"That will completely put him off his guard when he comes prying around." And then it worked like a charm, as you can see.

OLD MR. CRAPEHANGER BLOCKS A ROMANCE.

Proving by Actual Experiment

This experiment will always interest the children, and will provoke a good deal of thinking. The explanation, of course, is that the lighted piece of paper which is inserted into the inverted glass drives out most of the air, so that when the mouth of the glass is quickly put down into the water there is very little air, and, consequently, very little pressure above the water within the glass. Hence, the weight or pressure of the air on the water outside the glass drives the water up into the glass to occupy the space from whence the air was driven by the burning paper.

A practical demonstration of this kind is always more convincing than any mere statement. This is particularly true of medical remedies.

The effect of the anti-toxin treatment for diphtheria is noticeable within a few hours, so that everyone must believe in its virtue. In a similar way, the treatment known as ORANGE LILY gives a practical proof of the progress it is making in curing women's disorders, and that, too, within a few days after commencing its use.

All authorities agree that in every case of women's disorders there exists a congested condition of the womanly organs. The circulation in these parts is sluggish or stagnant, and the result is that the broken-down tissue or waste matter which should be carried off if the blood was circulating freely, remains in these parts, causing inflammation, irritation, oppression of the nerves, etc. ORANGE LILY is not taken internally, but is applied direct to the suffering organs. It is absorbed into the circulation, and its antiseptic properties at once act on the waste matter referred to above. The consequence is that this waste matter, which is causing the inflammation, ulcers, nervous troubles, etc., begins to be discharged, and it continues to be discharged until all the foreign matter is removed from the circulation. At the same time the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strengthened, the nervous trouble disappears, the circulation is restored and good health follows.

Toronto, Ont., June 2, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—I wish to tell you that Orange Lily is doing me a great deal of good. Those ulcers come away one or two every week, and I have less pain and fewer headaches. I feel sure I will be perfectly cured in a little longer time.

MRS. D. S. T.

The explanation of the wonderful cures performed by ORANGE LILY is very simple. It is a scientific remedy, based on the discoveries of Pasteur and Lister. The conditions existing in all female troubles are alike in character, differing in degree and development only, so that a positive remedy, as ORANGE LILY is, acts with all the certainty of a chemical experiment. In order to convince every suffering woman that ORANGE LILY will cure her, I make the following

THIS BEAUTIFUL GIRL RISKS HER LIFE RIGHT ALONG, JUST TO PUT THRILLS IN PICTURES.

BY GERTRUDE M. PRICE,
The Advertiser's Moving Picture Expert.

There are plenty of M. D.s and Ph. D.s and A. B.s in the world. But the moving picture business has created a new alphabetical suffix or appendix or whatever the right name may be.

It is B. B., and it stands for BEAUTY and BRAVERY.

Anna Quirentia Nilsson is a real B. B., having demonstrated her right to both titles on the Kalem screen every day for several months. She is one of the best-looking girls in the business. Her accomplishments include park and cowboy riding, clever boy impersonations, the southern girl sweetheart roles, and all sorts of fights against time and circumstances.

ANNA QUIRENTIA NILSSON, B. B.

Miss Nilsson was the heroine in "His Mother's Picture," a reel of the Kalem company taken down south at Jacksonville, Fla.

To carry out the story of the picture she was obliged to stick her foot into a switch-rail and have it bent over until she cried out with the pain, while a great lumbering engine, with numbers of freight cars attached, rushed past, too close for comfort or safety.

In speaking of it afterwards she said she had to shut her eyes and grit her teeth to force herself to keep the position ,although she couldn't possibly have removed her foot without running the risk of getting it cut off by the wheels of the hurrying train.

This sort of incident sounds all right on paper. But it's another thing when you actually have to experience it—just to make a thrill in a picture.

Miss Nilsson's special suitability to the soft, southern girl part is excellently illustrated in "Under a Flag of Truce." She showed her versatility well in the picture called "The Darling of the C. S. A.," in which she played the difficult role of a spy, appearing a part of the time as a boy.

England's Development Built on Coal Deposits

[By L. G. Chiozza Money, M. P., in London Daily News and Leader.]

"The Making of Modern England." By Gilbert Slater, M.A., D.Sc. Constable, 7s 6d net.

To depict in a small book the main features of the life of a great nation during a crowded century—that, the author tells us, has been his aim in this volume. In the main Dr. Slater treats of economic factors, and his book is the more welcome for that. Bit by bit the history of work is coming to be written, and this broad and illuminating survey of the economic history of 1815-1912 is a valuable contribution to that new literature of labor which is so significant a feature of our time.

Dr. Slater's pages open with the Peace of Paris of 1815, the "peace without parallel," when Britain emerged triumphant from the struggle with Napoleon and found time to contemplate her domestic miseries. The condition of the rural and urban workers is sketched for us in chapters of great power. The rural laborer is shown at the end of the war "in a condition of practically compulsory pauperism, reckless, insuborindate, and of deteriorated industrial quality"; the urban worker is seen already in the grip of an unregulated factory system, rotting in the rank and evil growth of the towns, with a statute book "free from laws for the protection of the workman." With the conclusion of peace and the end of war expenditure, disbanded soldiers recruited the ranks of the unemployed, and the misery of England could no further go. From this point Dr. Slater traces the "making of modern England," and truly it is a convenient and outstanding landmark, but we shall do well to remember that the subsequent economic recovery and the degree of "making" which we know at this hour find their basis not so much in the work of statesmen or reformers, as in an economic factor which had commenced to operate before 1816.

The Basis of Modern England.

For what is modern England, or, advisedly to broaden the term, this modern United Kingdom? It is a composite thing—two islands which as recently as the Irish act of union had no great disparity of populations, but which today consist of a populous "rich" Great Britain and a depopulated "poor" Ireland. Why, then, has the "making" proceeded with so much disparity; why is Britain well-to-do and Ireland poor? The answer is a far-reaching one, and it is to be found in the simple fact that Britain is one of the few great coal nations, while Ireland is coalless.

The making of modern England began before 1816, and its roots lie in the coal-fields, whose serious exploitation began in the eighteenth century. The needs of that exploitation directly produced the crop of inventions which gave us the factory system in large. The population of England and Wales, which had remained stationary at about 6,000,000 in the first half of the eighteenth century, and which had been next to stationary for over a century before 1750, rose to about 11,000,000 by 1816. Iron production rose from 17,000 tons in 1740 (out of a European production be it observed, of 100,000 tons) to 600,000 tons in 1825. The first cotton mill was run by steam as early as 1785, a generation before 1815.

Power, the early misuse of which created some wealth and much abject misery, was the sure road to an increased production, out of which, in spite of false misconceptions of economic system rests." And it is upon which linger until our day, the successors of the groaning masses of the early years of machine industry were to gain a larger livelihood—a livelihood which, poor and sordid as it appears to us in light of our newly-found social consciousness, is as the sun at noon-day which obtained in 1816. And if we would know where in the United Kingdom the most abject poverty still prevails, we have only to turn to coalless Ireland, or for that matter, to such coal-less "made" parts of England and Wiltshire. As Dr. Slater truly says, "coal-mining instead of agriculture is for us the great extractive industry upon which our economic system rests." And it is upon the inevitable employment of coal elsewhere that, as Dr. Slater also recognises, foreign competition is founded. The making of Germany and the making of America are but chapters in the story of the, as yet, clumsy utilization of power by mankind. The societies built on coal vary in detail, but their broad features are determined by power supplies, and their boasted progress is chiefly the exhibition of power exploitation.

Labor and Law.

Particularly valuable is Dr. Slater's illuminating and suggestive survey of the growth of the labor movement and of labor law. From Peel's act of 1802 to restrain the enslavement of parish apprentices down to the minimum wage act, and from Peterboro to the "labor unrest" of 1912 he traces the growth of thought, of policy, and of institutions. We are glad that he directs attention to the recent hardening of "class" opinion against wage-earners. It is a significant—we are not sure that we ought not to say a terrible—thing. For although, as we have indicated, the making of our modern state has brought benefits to all classes, it is undoubtedly true that the chief fruits of progress have gone to the few, and that that few, enjoying the cream of the work of the multitude, should contemn those who toil to furnish their materials of comfort, is a thing even more evil for the despisers than for the despised.

Dr. Slater sums up his narrative by observing that the history which he records is "the history of the growth of democracy." But how feeble a growth! Even politically democracy is still in actual fact only attained to a very imperfect degree and in a very unsatisfactory form, while industrially and socially it exists only as a feeble beginning." Our general elections are decided by little more than one-fourth of the adults of the country, but few there are that realize it. As to forms of government Dr. Slater is "tempted to declare that the true theme of recent political history is the growth of bureaucracy," but if every extension of democratic employment is to be labelled "bureaucratic," democrats must resign themselves to private "bureaucracy." Dr. Slater is on surer ground when he urges that "real democracy can only exist by virtue of the power of discrimination and independent criticism in the mass of the people," and his final word is a plea for a "real science of education." For the England of tomorrow is the child of today, and what we make of our children is what we make of England.

Discovery of the Planet Neptune

English and French Astronomers Find It at Same Time—Nearly Three Billion Miles From Earth.

The discovery of the planet Neptune—that mighty world swinging in the great deeps of space nearly three billion miles away from our own earth—was the cause of a singular controversy between two great astronomers—one English, the other French, says Edgar Larkin in the New York American. This controversy raged for years in journals, papers, books and in learned societies. Here are the facts:

The distant planet Uranus had been discovered by Sir John Herschel on March 13, 1781. It is 1,781,680,000 miles from the sun.

When a new planet or comet is discovered mathematicians of the highest rank at once compute its orbit or path in space and publish its ephemeris, giving its exact position for the future.

A number of astronomers made ephemerides for Uranus. But, unlike the other palnets, it kept "running off the track," always out a little further than computed. Again astronomers soon made new and accurate as possible tables, yet Uranus would not obey. Then they all knew that there was a world far and away beyond that by its attraction made the disturbance. None was free to begin the gigantic work of computing where it was, in what direction, its distance, and its orbit.

John Couch Adams, a young mathematician in Cambridge, England, attacked this problem, the greatest yet undertaken by the human mind. Adams was aged 24 years when he began the memorable research. This was in 1843.

The labors of Hercules were surpassed by this intellectual giant, and in September, 1845, he sent his results to the Greenwich Observatory. But they were not published to the world. In October, he called at the observatory and left another paper giving full elements of the planet. And the astronomers of England did not search for the new world with their telescopes.

But meanwhile the great French astronomer, U. J. J. Le Verrier, older by several years than Adams, began a solution of the huge problem. He published his Part I. of researches on Nov. 10, 1845, and Part II. June 1, 1846. Adams and Le Verrier were not aware of their mutual labors.

On Sept. 1 Le Verrier in France, not having a telescope, wrote to Dr. Galle in Berlin to look for the new planet. This letter was received in Berlin on Sept. 23, 1846. When night came on Dr. Galle turned the telescope at the designated point in space and soon the eye of man saw the hitherto unknown world at the mighty distance of 2,789,831,000 miles from the sun, making one circuit in about 165 of our years.

The apparent angular diameter of the moon and sun is very nearly half of one degree, but Neptune was discovered within one degree of the computed position, or the average of both of these illustrious mathematicians.

The solution of this capital problem has ever been considered the highest achievement of pure mathematical astronomy. At once, controversy began between France and England for honors. This was finally settled, that both men were worthy of equal praise and exalted honors so long as men shall inhabit the earth.

It may be of interest to the reader—it was to me—to say that I heard the venerable and aged Professor Adams read a very abstruse mathematical paper in Philadelphia in the year 1887 before Section A of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Every astronomer in the room gave close and respectful attention.

RASH ON FACE HANDS AND ARMS

Skin Would Cake Over and Peel. Spots Large. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Has Not Had a Mark on Her Since. They Also Cured Mother of Pimples on Face.

578 Gladstone Ave., Toronto, Ont.—"My baby's trouble began as a rash and the skin used to sometimes peel off and look as if it were going to get better, but would just cake over again and peel. The spots were large and it used to make her face very red and inflamed all the time. It came on her face, hands and arms, and it used to make her restless at night. She got the rash in March and how I hated to see it on her little face and hands! I tried a lot of different things after the but nothing did any good. I saw the advertisement and sent for samples of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it started to get better right away. I used them only about once a day, and in little more than two weeks she hadn't a spot on her anywhere. She had it three months before I used the treatment. She has not had a mark on her since and she is two and a half years old now. Cuticura Soap and Ointment also cured pimples on my face." (Signed) Mrs. McKnight, Jan. 8, 1912.

For treating poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have been the world's favorites for more than a generation. SYNTHETIC RUBBER WILL SHORTLY BE ON MARKET

Professor Duncan Tells Some Interesting Facts About Tire Material—Know Not What It Is, But Have Discovered It Can Be Made From Liquid Called Isoprene.

In the current number of Harper's Magazine, Robert Kennedy Duncan, Sc. D. director of industrial research, and professor of industrial chemistry at the University of Pittsburg and at the University of Kansas, writes that synthetic rubber will soon be on the market, and tells something of the history of the natural product.

"We all know rubber," he says, "and some of us can make rueful acknowledgment of its necessity and its cost. The fact that the very dust of the streets of New York contains a notable quantity of rubber is merely an alternative way of saying that, the world over, rubber has a yearly utilization worth $250,000,000. The continuous acceleration in the demand for motor vehicles, an acceleration which in our day we have not even imagination to limit, has been met so far by the manufacturer of rubber out of the milky sap of various trees and shrubs, by the establishment of enormous rubber plantations over the tropical belt, and by the forcing of rubber production in the countries of its origin, through the perpetration of atrocities from which even a Cortes or a Pizarro would turn his face in shame. The discussion, therefore, in the international congress, of this great contemporary triumph of the commercial synthesis of rubber has had to everyone a transcendent interest.

Made Synthetically.

The fact that today rubber may be made synthetically, and that the synthetic product is in every way strictly comparable with natural rubbers, and that it may be made commercially into automobile tires and into all the multiform objects of rubber manufacture, has been verified by many chemists working independently, and is positively beyond dispute. Our interest in this wonderful achievement is enhanced by the fact that it required the labors of many men, of many kinds of men, and of different races of men.

"Even today we do not know what rubber is. It is true that Prof. Harries has proposed a constitutional formula which expresses with fair consistency some of the facts of rubber, but it leaves other facts still unexplained, and it leaves still unaccounted for the existence, not of rubber, but of rubbers—Para rubber alone exists in three forms. The attack upon rubber succeeded because of the accidental party of a fortalice which had been left open for 50 years.

"In 1860 an Englishman, Greville Williams, isolated from the destructive distillation of rubber a colorless liquid now named isoprene. He discovered that this liquid on standing became viscid, and that on subsequent distillation it became hardened to a white, spongy mass. We know now that in that mass was rubber. In 1875 a Frenchman, G. Bourchardat, believed, but could not prove, that the molecules of isoprene polymercerized—i. e., intercombined through rearrangement—into rubber. In 1882 Sir William Tilden actually prepared rubber from isoprene by treating it with hydrochloric acid, but he could not repeat his experiments; while in 1892 he discovered that some old specimens of isoprene, obtained from turpentine had converted themselves into rubber, without his help.

Dramatic Coincidence.

"In 1907, a German, Fritz Hoffmann, converted isoprene into rubber by methods which anybody could repeat, and in 1910, and with a dramatic coincidence, Harries, of Holland, and Matthews, an Englishman, independently discovered, and for no legitimate reason except that they were 'just trying everything,' that a small quantity of metallic sodium by its mere presence could carry isoprene over into rubber in quantitative proportions. About the same time it was discovered that other substances, analogous to isoprene, homologues as they are called, derivatives of butadiene, were capable of a similar metamorphosis.

"In 1910, then, in consequence of these decades of work and happy chance, scientific freebooters that could get to isoprene, or its like, could go to rubber, and they have rapidly been arriving by different routes. The necessity of the situation is, of course, a cheap raw material. Some start from turpentine, others from fusel oil, still others from starch, and much may be said as a starting point in rubber synthesis for petroleum. As the upshot, it may certainly be said that synthetic rubber will soon be on the market in competition for the rubber demand, at first timidly and tentatively, but ultimately we may be sure it will play with natural rubber in the markets of the world an equal role."

SIR H. H. JOHNSTON ON FURS

Sir H. H. Johnston, the famous traveller and diplomat, says in the London Times that "if an observant naturalist were to station himself at a favorable point of observation in Regent street or Bond street, or any other haunt of well-dressed women, he would notice in the present month that almost every fourth woman who passes on foot or in a carriage is wearing the striped black and white fur of the zorilla, or Cape polecat (Ictonyx). The effect is very handsome, but to my eyes quite novel. It results evidently from a new discovery and a new decree issued from Paris that zorilla is the only fur to be worn by smart women at the present time.

"One wonders, indeed, that with its very striking coloration this species of African skunk and the similarly colored South African weasel (Poecilogale) have been so long spared by the world of fashion. But the fur merchants are making up for lost time and opportunity by their excessive demands on the purveyors of skins from all parts of Trophical and South Africa, with the result that the destruction of the zorilla is proceeding so fast in French West Africa, in Egypt and the Northern Sudan, and in British South Africa that before long it will be brought to the verge of extinction. And already the results are beginning to be manifest in complaints arriving from the regions mentioned of the increase of crop-destroying rodents.

"The zorilla probably does less damage by far to any property of white man or black man in South Africa than is attributed to the stoat in England. It is a remarkably handsome animal, of retiring habits, which makes no offensive use of its stench-glands after the manner of its American relations. It would be a grievous pity if any fashion mania in furs emanating from France or England ended in exterminating the zorilla, as well as so many other remarkably colored beasts and birds."

Sir Harry argues that by a little skill and patience all, or at any rate nearly all, the fur-producing mammals of the world might be bred in captivity or semi-captivity for the sake of their fur, just as the ostrich has been domesticate for its plumes. But the whole question of the supply of pelts, plumes, and rare wild plants should now be placed legislatively on a proper basis, which shall be consistent with the preservation of all that is useful, beautiful and remarkable in nature.

A DREAM REALIZED.

"Next year, if all goes well, the Panama Canal will be opened. The dream of four centuries will be realized, the greatest engineering task of our time accomplished, and the Pacific and Atlantic made one," says the Atlantic Monthly. "You can see now the great ships moving through—flags flying and bands playing—where yesterday the lonely traveller hurried across the treacherous jungle with a shiver, and looked behind him for the enemy lurking in every shadow. You can almost hear the rumble and hum of that mighty spirit—our tremendous and baffling modern spirit—which, with all its superficial hardness and irreverence, works miracles for practical humanity that the old days never knew or dreamed of."

Norwegian Boys All Know How to Use Skis—Going to Let Them Beat You?

What boy wouldn't jump at the idea of having a pair of skis all his own? They are easy to make. Why not have them, then?

The good old barrel stave is used for the purpose. Take two straight grained staves. Sharpen one end to a point. Bend these ends upward by smearing a little oil or grease on them, after first having scored them well with a sharp knife. Then hold them near a hot fire.

It will be found they bend easily, but they should be tied until they're "set."

Good Attractions Coming.

Notwithstanding that the theatrical season has but a few weeks more to run, Mr. Small has been able to obtain some of the best attractions of the season to follow from now until May. A number of the attractions are of the musical comedy kind, and they are booked for the next few weeks.

Commencing on Tuesday, "Baby Mine," which has already appeared in London, will have a return date. It was well thought of on its former appearance. On Saturday, March 15, Richard Carle and Hattie Williams will appear in "The Girl From Montmartre." This musical show is adapted from the French, and has already had extensive runs in New York and Chicago. Carle is a favorite in London, while Hattie Williams, although not so well known, has been starring for a number of years. That sterling drama, "In Old Kentucky," appears on March 17 and 18. Wednesday, March 19, "The County Sheriff" appears, with "The Heartbreakers" following on March 21. "Freckles," a play dramatized from the well-known book, makes its first appearance in London on Saturday, March 22. Raymond Hitchcock, after several years' absence, comes to London on March 24 in the "Red Widow." John Hyams and Leila McIntyre, who have already appeared in London in that delightful musical play of "The Girl of My Dreams," again visit London on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 25 and 26. Alice Lloyd, another favorite in this city, comes on Saturday, March 29, in her new musical play, "The Rose Maid."

Walter Jones in "Baby Mine."

Margaret Mayo's delightful comedy, "Baby Mine," conceded to be the funniest play in the English language, returns to this city under the direction of Wm. A. Brady, Limited, its original producer, and will be offered at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday, evening, with Walter Jones and the New York cast. There is no question about the quantity of fun or the quality of it in Margaret Mayo's amusing comedy, "Baby Mine," which does not depend upon buffoonery, but rather upon ludicrous situations, which crowd upon each other during the action of the piece. Miss Mayo conceived the idea from a paragraph which was published in a Chicago paper to the effect that many an infant bearing its father's surname was in reality the child of other parents, the wife in the case having secured the baby in order to satisfy her husband's desire for a family. With this idea as a starting-point Miss Mayo evolved "Baby Mine," that has been a positive and legitimate success from its first production. The aim of the authoress and producer has been to create real fun, merriment and laughter, and they have succeeded almost to the limit. There has been nothing so strong, as fascinating and intense comedy during the present age at least. This comedy is a sensational success, as it abounds with situation and fun that produces cyclonic outbursts of laughter. There is unbridled gayety created all the time and there is not a dull or solemn moment in it.

Richard Carle—Hattie Williams.

Charles Frohman will present "Dick" Carle, Hattie Williams and 71 funmakers in a double bill—the farce with music entitled "The Girl From Montmartre," and J. M. Barrie's laughing satire, "A Slice of Life," at the Grand next Saturday, matinee and night.

In New York and Chicago this attraction with its tuneful music, catchy songs and many dances has been conceded one of the most entertaining of the season's offerings.

Mr. Carle plays the part of a married French doctor, and Miss Williams interprets the "girl" from Montmartre, with whom the doctor gets embarrassingly entangled. Miss Williams' hits are "Don't Turn My Picture to the Wall," "Hoopla, Father Doesn't Care," and "Coo-Coo Lena." The cast includes Al Hart, Edwin Nicander, George Lydecker, Donald Macmillan, Percy Leach, Ralph Nairn, Anita Rothe, Moya Mannering, Mercelta Esmonde, May Bohannon, Clara McFarlane, Veola Harty and Alice Carrington. Seat sale opens Wednesday at 9 a.m.

"The Red Widow."

"The Red Widow" is announced as the attraction at the Grand Easter Monday, matinee and night, March 24.

"Everybody is doin' it now," laughing at Hitchcock, Flora Zabelle, and a large company of 100 fun-makers, who take part in the performance. It is not necessary to outline the plot. It is said to be something different, produced in characteristic Cohan & Harris style. To be sure, one act has its locale in London, but this is merely to start Cicero Hannibal Butts (Raymond Hitchcock) on his way to Russia, where he becomes involved in all kinds of Nihilistic plots, caused by his infatuation for a beautiful young woman, who turns out to be a dangerous Nihilist, and known to the police as "The Red Widow."

PRINCE HENRY AND MOTOR CARS.

Prince Henry of Prussia, brother to the German Emperor, speaking at a Berlin dinner in the motor trade, said "that the number of motor-cars in Germany was far less in proportion to the population than it was in England or France. In England, with a population of 43,700,000, there were 175,245 motor-cars, or one car to every 249 persons. In Germany, with a population of 65,000,000, there were only about 70,000 motor-cars, or one car to every 928 persons. Was the reason that Germans were less wealthy, or that the export of cars from Germany was so great that a large home market was not a necessity?"

Whack! Went the Hammer But Weilder Was No Suffragette

She Was Merely Learning How to Make Chairs at the Industrial School.

Whack! Whack! Whack! and the hammer held firmly in the hand of a flaxen-haired maiden struck blow after blow with unerring precision. She knew all about holding a hammer, one could see at a glance. Perhaps she had been practicing at home—at any rate, her blows were most accurately dealt, steadily, and, in fact, almost recklessly.

"Hammer!" do I hear you exclaim in a horrified tone. "What? Militants right here in London?"

Not at all, my dear lady. Probably nothing was farther from the thoughts of Miss Flaxen-hair than window-smashing or mischief of that ilk. She was making a chair! A nice Mission chair it was to be, too, when finished—just the kind you would like for your library or den, just the sort of chair your husband would enjoy sitting in to read his Evening Advertiser.

"But," you say, "women can't make chairs." Oh, yes, they can. At least they are learning, and very apt pupils they are, too, for Principal Beal told me so himself. But there, I have let the cat out of the bag now, and, of course, you will guess at once that Miss Flaxen-hair is one of the city school-teachers who have formed a night class for instruction in wood-working at the Industrial School. Quite a large class of women teachers, in fact, have commenced the study of this fascinating yet practical pursuit, and, judging by the workmanship which I saw the other night, they are making excellent progress.

An Interesting Workshop.

The wood-working classroom in the Industrial School is a most interesting place. At one side the visitor sees a pile of lumber, rough, unfinished boards, just as the sawmill turned them out. To obtain the finished product one-half of the "workshop" is equipped with all manner of bewildering machinery, bandsaws, planes, trimming machines, and others, too intricate for a mere "noospaper lady" to comprehend. But it is intensely interesting to watch the process of turning a rough board into several pieces of nicely-finished wood, ready for the hand-carving and joining, which the teachers were busily engaged in, in the making of their chairs.

In the artroom, the visitor is shown a number of neat wooden easels, the work of another class in the wood-working section, and which appears to have accomplished many things this season. Another most useful idea is the rack for holding mail matter, etc., which comes addressed to the teachers in the school. This rack stands in the main corridor, and is divided into compartments, each one labeled with a teacher's name. The usefulness of this piece of furniture can readily be seen.

Room For a Few Pupils.

These are only instances of the practical nature of the work being carried on at the Industrial School, and that the young men and women of London—and some of the older ones, too—have not been slow to appreciate the value of the classes has been amply proven this year by the large attendance. The only classes which can now accommodate more pupils are one evening class in dressmaking, and one in domestic science. Any young woman desiring to take up either course should enter at once.

But to return to Miss Flaxen-hair and her chair. She has ceased hammering now, and is proudly displaying to her fellow-students (it sounds out of place to call a school-teacher a student), a neatly joined square, which is to form the back of her chair. Seeing her pleasure at this achievement, one can only guess how proud she will be when the chair is actually completed, and she views her finished handiwork, then slips into it for the first time, and has the delicious satisfaction of really sitting in her "own" chair.

Billie Burke Discourses On the Importance of Your Spring Hat In Relation to "A Young Man's Fancy.

BILLIE BURKE AS THE GIRL OF 1830 AND 1913.

Have you got your Easter hat?

You would not be a girl if you had not been thinking a lot about it before this, and I'll wager you have been loitering past the shop windows and have even gone inside to try them on! Like the little girl in the story, you had said to yourself many times, "I choose this," although all the time you knew that the beautiful creation was not for you. It looked very well in the shop window, but it would be a "beast" on your head.

In the spring a young girl's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of hats, for she knows a dainty spring bonnet shadowing a pretty maid's face is what turns the young man's fancy to love.

This year all the hats are very small, and truly we may be glad, for a small hat is the most coquettish and captivating thing about a woman's costume. Big hats are stunning to look at on the head of the other fellow's sweetheart. They are kind of "hold-you-off" things, but the little hat always seems to "become."

In all ages men have loved a woman in a pretty hat from the poet of long ago who said:

"Tying her bonnet under her chin,
She tied my fluttering heart within,"

to the up-to-date college man who makes a slang song about "the bird on Mary's hat."

If you are dark and your street dress is one that you can wear it with, try the new shade of burnt orange on your hat this spring. It looks well also on the red-haired girl. I know because I have tried it. Don't wear it if you are a blonde, or any one of those "Titian beauties," for burnt orange takes all the life out of yellow hair.

This is going to be a spring full of color in the millinery shops.

The Turkish and Bulgarian war and the Mexican insurrection are turning all the fashion designers' eyes toward the bright colors and primitive blending of them that one sees in these countries.

I saw a perfect dear of a hat yesterday of bright blue straw, very much the shape of the "glorified derbies" we have been wearing this winter. The brim was slightly longer in the back, however, for all the hats stick out at the back more or less. The round crown of this hat was covered with orchid-purple chiffon through which the blue straw shone, making an indescribable tint. About the crown was a heavy bright blue ribbon band, two inches wide, brocaded with little apples and leaves. Close to the edge of the brim in front and on one side were little bunches of satin apples, shading from apple-green to pink. It was such a pretty hat that for a moment I wished my hair was brown, so that I might wear it.

The handy girl can trim her own hat this season, and, with little else than taste and needlework ability, she can have a beautiful head covering.

Get one of the new small shapes and cover it all over with one of the many straw braids or, better still, buy a small straw hat that will look well on you. Cover the crown with tightly-drawn chiffon of a color that contrasts well with the straw, make a band of Bulgarian cross, stitch on some heavy ribbon and place at the back a "stick up," either made of flowers in shades of the embroidery band or of feathers which match the straw.

We are going to wear so many brilliant accessories in the way of sashes, hats, bows and bits of embroidery this spring that black and white gowns will be worn more than ever. If you have a black-tailored suit be sure that you have a bright-colored hat and you will be right in fashion.

Don't be afraid to wear any kind of a small hat that becomes you. It can be of the vintage of 1830 or 1913 and still you will be well dressed if you wear it as though you knew what you were doing and in the consciousness of looking well.

BILLY STEVENS—His Story.

XXXII.—Billy Stevens' Milkman.

(Copyright.)

Billy Stevens' milkman believes in Pasteurisation. You can pasteurise at home. Buy a tin pail built for the purpose, fitted with a tin rack to hold eight bottles of milk. Put your good clean milk into the eight bottles which have previously been carefully rinsed out with cold water and scalded out with hot water and kept clean in soda and water till they were needed and then rinsed with clean cold water again. Put the clean caps on the bottles. Put the bottles into their places in the rack inside the pail. Pour cold water in up to their necks. Set the pail on the stove and let the cold water come to a boil and let the water boil a few minutes. Lift out the rack and cool down the milk as quickly as you can and keep it cold. Milk should be clean. But it is safer to Pasteurise the city milk, until the millennium is nearer at hand than it is in 1913. Billy's milkman invented and paid for the milk department in connection with the H. F. S. C. And there is more than one place in the city which distributes milk from that department of the H. F. S. C. Besides, many mothers come to the milk department of the H. F. S. C. and take the milk home for their babies. There is a Free List and the rest get it at cost price. This was done for the babies by J. R. R., Millionaire and Human Being.

HELPS FOR SHOPPERS.

The sheer dotted muslin, which is marked at a low figure among wash dress goods, makes dainty curtains. The curtains may be finished with ruffles, ball fringe or a simple lace edging.

Pillow tops of tapestry or silk damask come in a wide range of prices. The colorings of some are unusually soft and the designs attractive. Backings of the prevailing tone in the covers are to be had in sateen, denim, repp or linen.

Kitchen dish towels and roller towels, hemmed and ready for use, come in different grades. The cost is no more than that usually asked for the material by the yard.

The white enamelled bread or cake boxes with a rolling top are a convenience to the housewife.

PROBLEMS OF THE FAIR SEX SOLVED BY CYNTHIA GREY

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn as they are received. No letters can be answered privately.]

A Nice "Person," and Lively.

Dear Miss Grey: I enjoy reading your answer to other correspondents, and I think you are a very nice person and lively and humorous.

1. Please tell me what will clean a white wool sweater without discoloring or shrinking it.

2. Should a gentleman offer a lady his right or left arm when taking her in to dinner?

2. Please give me one or two inexpensive recipes for a light supper for six.

4. Should like to know your opinion on my writing. You have to answer this a great deal, I notice. BETTY.

A.—Much obliged for your kind opinion of me, Betty. I think myself that I am, as you say, "a very nice person," but so few people find it out! You must have great powers of discernment to disocver my character so readily!

1. Heat soft water fairly hot and make a good suds with white castile soap, adding a small quantity of borax. Dip the sweater into this and wash quickly between the hands. Rinse out, using water of lukewarm temperature, not cold, and dry at once in a current of warm air, stretching the coat from time to time as it dries.

2. The right arm.

3. Your question is rather indefinite. I do not know whether you mean an ordinary home supper or a late affair—for company. However, there are always nice hot dishes, such as macaroni and cheese, escalloped potatoes, with bits of beef or veal concealed, like a meat pie, and oysters in different ways. Or some kind of salad—potato or celery, a plain lettuce with dressing and garnished with slices of hard-boiled egg, is always nice, with cold meat thinly cut. And most people are fond of the fruit combinations, sliced bananas, oranges or grapefruit, topped with whipped cream, or, in lieu of these, fruit jelly. There are a number of good recipes appearing on this page from time to time. Why not watch for new dishes among these and clip out recipes for those you like?

4. It is quite neat, but your loop-letters are somewhat too long.

Has Received Help.

Dear Miss Grey: As you have helped me before, I come to you again for a litle advice, hoping that you will answer this through your columns at your earliest convenience:

1. Should a girl thank a fellow for walking home from the rink with her?

2. Should a person congratulate a bride or groom?

3. If so, please give me some idea on what should be said.

4. What should be answered when a person says to you, "Give my love to your mother or father?"

5. Please give me a remedy for cold hands. Hoping I have not asked you too many questions, I remain, yours truly, GERTRUDE.

A.—1. Yes.

2 and 3. Congratulate the groom, but never the bride. To her express your best wishes for future happiness and prosperity.

4. Usually one says, "Thank you, I shall be pleased to do so," or some such phrase.

5. When there is difficulty in keeping the hands warm it is best to see a doctor. Your blood evidently does not circulate properly.

Small Hat for Easter.

Dear Miss Grey: This is my first time of writing to you, and am going to ask you for a few helpful suggestions:

1. What would be nice to trim a cotton voile dress with?

2. Which would you advise me to get for Easter, a large hat or a small one?

3. What are the names of the hospitals of London?

4. What is Miss Billie Burke's address?

5. What could I put on a fingernail that breaks at the top to make it grow like the others? I once had a ring around under the nail.

6. What do you think of my writing?

Hoping I have not asked too many questions, I ah POCAHONTAS.

A.—1. Bands of silk or net.

2. Small hats being in vogue this year I would advise a small Easter bonnet.

3. Victoria Hospital and St. Joseph's.

4. A letter addressed to her, care this office, will reach Miss Burke.

5. Apply vaseline each night and morning, and wear a protector to prevent the nail breaking.

6. Your writing is quite neat.

KATHERINE LESLIES HOME CHAT

THE JABOT A LUXURY.

The jabot, though a bit of masculine vanity stolen from the dandies and gallants of the eighteenth century is nevertheless one of the most charmingly feminine of modern dress accessories. It was originally, I believe, a shirt-frill or ruffle, and was accompanied, as it should be today, by long lace ruffles falling from the coat sleeve over the hand. And uncommonly smart and becoming those lace finishings were. I don't know how men ever came to give up the stunning dress of the eighteenth century in exchange for the modern sombre dress. At any rate we have shown our appreciation of the grace and beauty of part of that dress by adopting the jabot and the ruffles. And if we may judge by the frightful prices asked for jabots in the shops, we may find there in a clue to the mystery of the renouncing of such vanities by our lords. I priced a jabot today made of fine, imported, but machine-made lace, made chic by two or three tiny black bebe velvet bows down the front, and what do you think the price was? No less than $5.50, and it had been reduced from $9.00! New York could not better that! Even $5.50 was an outrageous price for so ephemeral a luxury. I examined it carefully to see where the $9.00 came in, but failed to find it. True, it was a little new in shape—that is, instead of the lace, which was fine plisse, being released immediately below the collar band, it was held in place by three minute velvet bows, about an inch apart, one below the other, and the lace was released below the third one—that is, allowed to fall free. There was not an inch more than a yard and three-eighths in the whole thing, and certainly not a yard of bebe velvet ribbon. It was a very pretty confection, and new—but $9.00! Anyone with a little taste and patience could make the same jabot for less than half that price. Of course it is delightful to be able to buy these little affairs ready to put on. But at the alarming rate that prices for everything are soaring, the woman of limited income will soon not be able to dress at all, unless she puts her hands as well as her wits to work, and learns how to make all such pretty and dressy accessories for herself.

The Birthday Calendar

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Keep steadily busy with eyes open to future advancement. Social affairs and idle friends will distract you and should not be sought. Games of chance are not favorable to you.

Those born today will be talented and will rise in life. Their accomplishments will gain them many admirers and friends if they so desire, but they will be inclined to fickleness and will soon tire of all but the unattainable.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Successful activity will occupy your time in the following year. New opportunities will come to you and your affairs in general will improve.

Those born today will have many talents, and will be able to win success in several ways. Their affections will be strong, but seldom confined to narrow limits or productive of self-sacrifice. They should be trained to wait upon themselves and never indulge in laziness.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

FLORENCE

The Women's Institute of Florence held their meeting for March at the home of Mrs. (Rev.) Smith, on Wednesday, March 5. The president, Mrs. Adams, presided over the meeting in her usual charming manner. After the business part was transacted, interesting papers were given by the following: Mrs. J. N. George, a splendid talk on "Meats;" after the manner of the choice of cuts and preparation of such; also some useful hints as how to economize on meat, while it is so dear and yet have a savory dish when finished. Mrs. Dan Buchanan gave an instructive talk on "Poultry Raising," and illustrated many points of what kind of poultry were most profitable, both for table use and for the egg basket, and for the rearing of young chicks.

The Rev. Smith, rector of Florence, is also to be highly complimented for his uplifting and encouraging remarks, which all present appreciated very much, especially as he spoke of woman and her sphere in life, as a wife, mother and her place in the home and in everyday acquaintance. He referred to institutes in which a good deal of excellent work had been done by the ladies and he wished them God-speed in their work.

The ladies moved a vote of thanks to Rev. Smith at the close of his splendid address

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Corbett. The meeting today was largely attended, nearly all members being present, together with several visitors. The roll call was responded to by proverbs. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

KOMOKA

All ladies are cordially invited to attend the next meeting of Komoka Women's Institute, to be held at "Hill Crest," the home of Mrs. Percy Seabrooke, on the afternoon of Tuesday, March 11, at 2:30 o'clock.
