Donnelly, as well as others of the same cult who have flourished in the past few years, has certainly served a useful purpose. It is not likely that his theories of government will ever become realized, but they have served to attract widespread attention to existing economic and industrial ills, with the result that remedies are already being sought and applied. Uprising Is Imminent-Militiamen and Deputy Marshals Sleep on Their Guns.

Sitka, Alaska, Dec. 17.-This city is in a state of suppressed excitement, fearing an outbreak of the Indians. The marines stationed here are lying on their arms, and the marshal and United States marshal's force.

Several of the visiting tribes made vigorous protests against the Sitka tribe having and keeping the sacred emblem of all the tribes, which, they claimed, was not produced legitimately. It was proven that the frog was carved by an Indian named Harry, at the instigation erty. of one Daniel, who is looked upon as an arch-enemy of the Indians.

The cause of the ill-feeling directed against Daniel dates back to the time when he joined forces with the United States marshal. Since that time he has caused the arrest of hundreds of squaws and bucks for breaking the liquor regulations governing Indians, and has been cordially hated in consequence, Hence it was looked upon by the visiting tribes that the Sitka tribe was committing little less than treason in harboring a sacred frog which Daniel had fathered.

After numerous squabbles the case was finally taken before a commissioner, and later into the court at Juneau. In both courts it was held that the frog belonged to the Sitka tribe and that the other Indians had no valid claim upon it.

The final decision worked on the feelings of the Indians to such an extent that preparations were made to kilt both. Harry and Daniel. Word of on the north shore of the Mackinac these intentions was brought by friendly Indians who arrived from Juneau a few days ago in a canoe.

"There is nothing whatever in the story," said the archbishop. "Such a thing was not mentioned by the president, nor anyone on behalf of the government. If I should ever visit the islands, and I have no present intentions of doing so, it would be purely on my own account."

The archbishop said his principal object in visiting Washington had been to attend a meeting of the La Fayette Monument Association.

"We found that after paying all the expenses of erecting the bronze statue in Paris," he said, "we still had on hand $30,000. We almost decided to Washington or some other American city, provided an additional amount can be raised. The matter will be definitely settled at a meeting to be held in Chicago early in January.

The principal case was that of Lilly Germain charged with keeping a house of ill-fame and being herself a common inmate of the same and with selling liquor without a license

She plead not guilty to both charges on the advice of her council, Auguste Noel, who stated that the charges as he proposed to show them were the result of blackmailing schemes of parties who had told her that she could avoid going to court if she would refund $150, of which she was accused of having stolen from one Charles Mace.

Mace, who said he was a sea faring man, without explaining in detail how he comes to be so far from his home on the rolling deep, testified that he had gone to the house of the accused where he had bought two rounds.

"Rounds of what?" asked the court, evidently not knowing whether the witness referred to two rounds of drinks or the same number of circular evolutions in a local glove contest.

"Whisky," replied Mace, and the court said, "Oh !"

Constables Stutt and James testified to having arrested the woman on the charge referred to, and in cross questioning Constable James Mr. Noel wanted to know if Dick Brown had not been with them when the arrest was made, and if it was not a fact that the accused had been given to understand by their words, and actions that she could escape coming before the court by restoring to Mace $150.

"Certainly not," replied the con stable, "she was not arrested on a charge of theit, as there was not suffi- ings. cient evidence to convict, and she would have been arrested on the present charge just the same.
