

IRELAND'S HORROR.

Circumstantial Details of the Phoenix Park Butchery.

The First and Who Helped to Carry it Out.

CAREY'S EVIDENCE IN DETAIL.

Carey spoke in a voice so low that the prisoners in the dock cried, "Speak up."

REMOVE ALL TRACES.

James Mullett was to be chairman. Foster and Earl Cowper were named among those to be removed.

EARL COWPER WAS TO BE SEEN.

Early in December witness went to Phoenix Park with Curley and there met Mullett and Walsh, who were watching the Chief Secretary's house.

WATCHED DAYS AND NIGHTS TO MURDER FOSTER.

On one occasion he escaped by waiting aboard a steamer at Kingston. Previous to that time an arrangement had been made to remove Foster at the corner of John street on his way to the Castle.

ON THE NIGHT THAT FOSTER LEFT IRELAND.

Fifteen Irishmen actually followed him to Westland Row station. Curley looked into the cars but only saw Foster, wife and daughter.

CONCENTRATED THEIR ATTENTION UPON BURKE.

All the prisoners on May 6 met in or about Royal Oak tavern, except James Mullett, who was in prison.

CREATED A PAINFUL SENSATION.

By saying he had two of his little children with him in the cab on the morning of May 6 when he was going in the cab to the park, and was accompanied by Joseph Hanlon and Smith.

SAW SEVEN MEN MEET TO GENTLEMEN.

Curley, Joseph Hanlon, and Fagan were first, Brady and Kelly next, McCaffrey and Delaney came after. Lord Frederick Cavendish and Burke were allowed to pass through by the three and the last four then faced right about.

HE HAD STABBED BURKE.

and afterwards settled Lord Frederick Cavendish. After that he went back to Burke and put a knife in his throat. Brady said he stabbed Burke in the left shoulder.

WIRED THE BLOODY KNIFE ON THE GRASS.

Curley waited until the murderers were on the car, and then got into the cab and came to Dublin. He had put a card into the Dublin express office, stating what had been done.

THE ARRANGED SIGNAL.

with a white handkerchief. Curley, he said, directed the arrangements at the scene of the murder. Burke, being identified by Smith, pointing him out to Curley as the man in the gray suit.

THE NEXT NIGHT BUT ONE AFTER THE MURDERERS THE KNIVES WHICH THEY HAD BEEN COMMITTED WERE PRODUCED BY BRADY.

"No, I" ordered them destroyed. The blades were broken into little pieces and the handles burned.

Beauty in Court.

Philadelphia, Feb. 4.—Louise Montague, Forepaugh's $10,000 beauty, insisted on being transported from town to town in a section of a parlor car.

After being sworn she was allowed to sit near her lawyers. She told how in 1881, Mr. Forepaugh advertised that he would give a prize of $10,000 for the most beautiful woman he could secure to ride an elephant and impersonate Lalla Rookh in the street pageant of his show.

She applied and was engaged at a salary of $100 a week. She remained with the circus during the season of 1881, and contracted to fill the same position in 1882 for $75 a week.

Mr. Forepaugh contracted to give her a separate room in the parlor car when the company traveled. In the spring of 1882 she went to the winter quarters and Mr. Forepaugh informed her that she would have to travel in a state room with a number of other women.

"No, sir," replied Miss Montague very emphatically. She admitted, however, that during the season of 1881 she had occupied a stateroom with two or three woman performers.

Mr. White passed, stroked his beard thoughtfully a moment or two, and then in quiet tones said: "Miss Montague, when Mr. Forepaugh informed you that he had changed the interior of the sleeping cars, and that you would have to room with Miss Renx, didn't you reply, 'I'll see you damned first?'"

"Sir!" retorted the beauty, flaring up. The lawyer repeated the question with great composure, and she answered: "No, sir, I never use such language."

A Small Boy's Essay on Pie.

A pie as a part of speech is a pronoun, as it stands in the place of a noun, not very objective, most always neuter, unless too old, and agrees with any person who is not sick.

They are generally round one way and very flat the other. When they are cut they assume a triangular shape, until they are eaten, and then we don't know what shape they have.

A three-cornered piece of pie is about as convenient a thing to eat as one ever closed tooth on, and licked one's lips afterwards. That is sharp end foremost.

You can make them out of most anything that grows in the garden, except thistles and burdocks. A boy told me that his aunty made a thistle pie, but the boy said a lie one day before, and I can not trust him since.

I have seen pumpkin pies made out of apples that I liked very much. I remember one I saw once; it was not a very large pie, but it was got up in great style.

It was made on a white plate with a blue edge. The under crust was made of dough, and was very thin; the inward was just lovely. They were made of what they called mince-meat and a little sugar sprinkled over it.

Another neighbor had commenced ploughing, but soon learned that the old stub of a plough-point could not be made to enter the hard places in his field, so he hurried off to get a new one.

There are a great many people who like pies but seldom eat them, unless it is because they can't get them. I don't think the common apple pie is hard to make for I made one once out of cranberries, and all who tasted it said it was very nice.

Poultry Suggestions.

It is well, in cleaning out the poultry houses, not only to take droppings from under the roosts, but to rake up whatever feathers, etc., have accumulated on the ground.

When the vernal seedtime had almost passed neighbor Tardy woke up to a sense of the propriety of sowing millet on a few acres.

When the vernal seedtime had almost passed neighbor Tardy woke up to a sense of the propriety of sowing millet on a few acres. So he started to the city to purchase seed.

Fun and Fancy.

"O, Henry, I had such a delightful dream. I dreamt I had such a love of a benet sent me."

The Gentlemen in Overall.

He was a gentleman who wore overalls and carried a tin dipper pail. His clothes were unready made, and his boots were not symmetrical.

"Why don't you live in the city?" "Because, sorr,"—in a rich Milesian brogue—"if I lived in the city, I should have to live in a tenement house.

Forethought in Farming.

Every farmer should have a memorandum-book in his pocket, in which should be jotted down certain items of labor, whenever he may think about them.

A boy throwing stones.—When a boy is going to throw a stone considerable preparation is necessary.

A near neighbor was always at the tail end of the revolving seasons. During winter he would go several times with two horses and sleigh more than five miles to the grocery store to make a few purchases.

AN AGED MURDERESS.

A Woman of Seventy Kills Her Husband, a Man of Ninety.

Port Hope, Feb. 26.—On Thursday night last a fearful tragedy was enacted on lot No. 26, 3rd concession of Hope. A man named John Allen, aged between 85 and 90 years, was living with his wife Bridget, who is some 65 or 70 years of age. They were both pensioners on the township funds and did not live very agreeable together. About eleven o'clock on the night in question, the house they lived in was discovered to be on fire, and several of the neighbors, who saw the conflagration, got there just as the roof fell in.

After some time they discovered the body of the old man in the burning house. They shoveled snow on the place and subdued the fire. On examining the remains it was found that the old man's throat had been cut. The woman was not near, but was found afterwards in a neighbor's house, a quarter of a mile away. She says her husband cut his own throat and set fire to the house. Coroner Maxwell held an inquest in the H. C. Court, on Friday, when the jury returned a verdict in substance as follows: That the deceased came to his death at the hands of his wife, Bridget, who had set fire to the house to hide her crime. The old woman was committed under the coroner's warrant to Colburg jail to stand her trial.

Hand Sewing.

But it is not the seamstress alone whom it pays to know how to sew well. The teacher, the clerk, the shop-keeper, the book-keeper, all need to know how to make the stitch that often saves ninety than nine. The mother of a family, unless she has the purse of Fortunatus, must take countless stitches. It makes no difference what her tastes, culture and talents are; if she has children the stitches must be taken, and if she cannot have them done life is twice as easy for her if she can take them in the best and the quickest way. The sewing machine will do much, and every woman ought to make it save all the hand labor it can, but it cannot be well managed by one unaccustomed to the needle. The stitching may be perfect, the garment will be a disgrace. But unless a lady very much mistaken the custom of teaching girls in childhood the various branches of the art of hand-sewing, even among the poorer classes. The young teacher of whom I have spoken told me she did not know how to sew. Out of school hours she had always busied herself with fancy work, and had no time to learn. I happen to know that her mother had done all her sewing save some of the machine work, and now that poverty has driven her to teach she sends her stockings home by mail to her mother to be mended, when the holes in them are to big to be pleasant. She is a sweet and kindly creature, and will no doubt sometime reach herself to sew in a slow blundering way. There are other tender mothers making the same mistake. Alas for such mistaken love! To be able to keep her own garments in dainty order is a far more dignified accomplishment for a girl than to be expert at making wax flowers, or crevel work. She may be an old fogey, but nice hand-sewing always affects me like delicate embroidery, fine carving, lace, or repousse work. No creature of steel and brass and swiftly moving rods and wheels can do it, only that cunning worker, that marvellous mechanism, the human hand. Sewing is as old almost as the race. It is as fine an art as embroidery, and I cannot see why girls should not be allowed to excel in one as in the other.—Elizabeth Cummings.

Fooled by a Gipsy.

Detroit, Jan. 27.—A Charlotte despatch says:—For some time there has been a party of gipsies camped near here, among them several fortune tellers. This afternoon an officer from Marshall arrived with a warrant for the arrest of one of them, a woman named Smith, who swindled a Calhoun county farmer out of $2,000. She told him there was a fortune on his farm, and he not believing it, she offered to bet him $2,000, the money to be placed in a room and locked up. The bargain being agreed to, the money was deposited and she left to be gone ten days, then to return and show him where the money was buried. At the end of that time, as she had not been heard from, he went to look at the money and found it gone. No trace was found of the thief until she was heard from at Charlotte.

They tell of a man who was walking along the streets of London on one occasion and saw in a shop window the number of a lottery. The number was his. Before going in to claim the prize, he took a walk round St. Paul's Churchyard, so that he might become calm and not appear foolish. But when he returned he found that the number had been changed. There had been a mistake. Sydney Smith said he always envied that man his feelings while he was taking his short walk. We may be sure that nobody envied him his feelings when he discovered the mistake.

Barnes, the Mountain evangelist, is going to leave America. He sails for England this week. In his nine weeks work in New York and Brooklyn he says he converted 450 persons. He intends to go around the world before he returns to the United States. If he keeps on preaching and converting people at the rate of fifty a week, and gets around the world in fifty weeks, he will have a convert for every ten miles of the earth's circumference. That will be doing pretty well.
