CHAPTER XXX
"JUST LIKE A GIRL."

Pains of love be sweeter far than all other pleasure far—DRYDEN.

It is refreshing to turn from the gilded saloons of fashionable London, from the unrelaxing, vice, manifold plotting, cant, hypocrisy, and all uncharitableness of the hydra-headed society to the lone hut in the wilds of Africa.

We left Laurence and Cecil in the position of wounded man and nurse, and we return to find them in the same position.

Two days have passed and the stalwart form of the cattle-runner is still stretched upon the bed of dead leaves, notwithstanding his assurance that he should be in the saddle and home before the first day's sun had set.

The panther had not only scratched deeply but had let enough blood to bring about a low fever, and the second night had been spent by Cecil in watching the pain-knit brow of his companion and listening with tender interest to the half-delirious mumbblings of his parched lips.

Cecil's courage came by fits and starts. Just now it was in full vigor. The pale, girlish face was set with hard determination and there was a valorous expression shining through the pitying eyes of the dark, deep, beautiful eyes.

All night he watched, sleepless and vigilant, never leaving the wounded Laury for a moment, save to replenish the fire burning outside the hut door or to dampen the cloth with which he cooled the hot, feverish forehead.

In the morning the delirium ceased and Laurence opened his eyes to fix them with a questioning, puzzling gaze upon the gentle ones above him.

"Cecil," he muttered, "you here?"

"And—oh, I remember! Lad, you should be at the farm. Why did you not go when I told you? You are not well—too weak to be here away from the house."

"I'm better than you, at any rate," retorted the youth, with assumed sharpness. "You ought to be home and in the hay-loft. But as you're not, you must make the best of it. Pray how do you feel this morning?"

"Shaky and weak," said Laury, with an annoyed smile. "That beast cut deeper than I thought, lad. But we'll be home to-day, please Heaven."

And he raised himself on one elbow, only, however, to fall again with a groan of pain.

"Lay quiet," said Cecil, anxiously. "Pray lay quiet; there's a good Laury!"

"He entreated, throwing the skin over him again and smoothing it down. "You have been so ill, so very ill, in the night," he continued; "and you will be worse if you do not keep quite still. Oh, Laury, I do so grieve to see you in pain!"

And the lad's face flushed.

"Nonsense, lad!" said Laury, with a smile. "Tis nothing! The nuisance of lying here and keeping you is worse than the twitching of the scratches. Will you not ride home? Come, lad, do as you are told, and return to the farm."

"Not if you threatened to whip me all the way," replied Cecil, decisively. "Don't waste breath in asking, Laury; but tell me where I shall find the cup for making some coffee—for I discovered a bag full of it in the corner last night."

And with a cheerful face he ran down to the stream, returned with some water and set it to boil on the little stove.

Then forcing himself to sing the rag-end of one of Mr. Stewart's songs, hustled about, though noiselessly, and tidied up the hut.

Then, while the coffee was brewing, he made some antelope soup for Laury's dinner.

All these little ministrings he did with the deftness and lightness of touch of a woman; then, as the sun's morning beams pierced through the crevices of the hut, he set himself down beside the invalid and held the cup of coffee ready for him.

Laurence, who had watched him in silence, raised himself very gently—Cecil propped him up with the saddle—and, with a grateful look in his eyes, took the refreshing beverage.

"Cecil," he said, "you're a good lad—ay, more than that, a gentle-hearted fellow. Who taught you to play nurse so admirably?"

"My un— No one; it came by instinct," replied the youth. "How do you like the coffee? Nice? Well, I'm glad of it. But I wish I knew whether it was good for you; perhaps it's the worst thing you could have."

And he looked troubled.

"Not it," replied Laurence, carelessly. "It is delicious. No one makes coffee as well as you, Cecil. I think you do everything better than any one else."

The youth flushed with pleasure.

"You are full of compliments this morning," he replied. "There; lie down again," and he gently helped him down upon the bed. "But you haven't drunk all the coffee."

"I couldn't drink any more," said Laury. "And now I am going to watch you, lad. Come, you must cook a steak and get some fresh coffee, or I'll get up and do it for you."

"Indeed you won't," said Cecil. Alarmed at Laury's resolute tone, he put a steak upon the embers and sat down again.

"And now the coffee," said Laurence, who seemed determined that Cecil should not neglect himself in his careful attendance on him.

"Oh, the coffee!" said Cecil, glancing at the can from which Laury had drunk. "There's enough for me and to spare. I'll have this."

And before Laurence could remonstrate he lifted the cup and sipped it, a sweet flush sweeping over the girlish face and a smile full of tender, mysterious meaning lighting up the dark eyes as the lips touched place where Laury's had rested.

Then he got the steak and commenced upon it for, although he had passed a sleepless night, he was hungry.

Laurence watched him with silent gravity for some moments, then said: "Cecil, I'm afraid, judging from my sensations, that I shall not be able to get away from here to-day."

"Tell me some news, Laury," retorted the youth, with a smile.

The cattle-runner sighed.

"Is it any use asking you to leave me and return?" he said.

"Not the slightest, as I have told you a score of times—before," said Cecil, decisively.

Laurence paused.

"How much antelope have you in that saddle-bag?" he asked.

Cecil rose and showed it to him.

"Hum!" he said; "enough for two days."

"And enough outside for forty," said Cecil, waving his hand toward the door.

Laurence smiled.

"Not a step," he said, "out of my sight, lad. I won't trust you after that last adventure."

"Well, well!" pleaded the youth. At least let me creep to the bushes yonder. You can see them from where you lie. Last night I saw a herd pass near enough for me to mark them, and I would have gone then but I was afraid of awaking you."

Laurence sighed.

"Well," he said, "to the bushes, then; but no further."

Cecil, delighted at his acquiescence, jumped up, and, seizing the gun, crept on his hands and knees to the covert, and looking back now and then toward the hut, as if he feared something might turn up to injure or interfere with his charge, waited patiently for the desired game.

An hour passed and Laurence was awakened from an uneasy doze by the report of a gun, and in a few minutes Cecil ran in all aglow with triumph and delight.

"Laury, I have shot one—a beauty! Did you ever? Who says I'm of no use now, eh? Oh, Laury, I wish you could have seen him leap up into the air and stagger forward! Such a monster, such a strong, fine, powerful-looking fellow to be shot by a weak, tiny-handed girl like me!"

"What?" said Laurence.

"What's the matter?" asked Cecil, turning suddenly pale and then blushing like a rose. "Well, aren't you always calling me a girl, Mr. Impudence, and mayn't I do it once in a way myself?" It was only a taunt, and I hope you're ashamed of it. You'll remember this shot when the words on your lips again."

"Ay, lad," said Laury. "And yet you're like a woman for all your bravado, in tenderness and gentleness, at least. Go and drag the buck—But, stay; you can not get it here—it's too heavy!"

Cecil's face fell at this reminder, but suddenly brightened again.

"I know," he said, and ran out.

Presently Laurence heard him come back, talking to one of the horses, and the next moment Cecil stopped the black at the hut door and pointed, with a smile, to the antelope, which he had tied by the horns to the saddle-girth and made the powerful horse drag along.

"There, ain't I clever?" he asked. "It was an awful job, for the black didn't understand it. But we are very good friends, and after a deal of coaxing he trotted off with it. Necessity is the mother of invention. And now I'm going to sit down while you sleep."

"I can't sleep," said Laurence; "but sit down, lad, and give me my pipe."

"Pipe!" said Cecil, looking terrified. "Oh, I'm sure that can't be right. A pipe! Why, it would be your death!"

"Nonsense! Give me my pipe," said Laurence, grimly.

And not daring to refuse, the youth reached it from the pocket of his coat and, filling it, handed it to him in silence.

"That's a good lad again," said Laurence, with a quiet smile. "I was afraid you wouldn't let me have it, and if you'd stood out I'd 'a' had to give in, for you've been too kind to be worried."

Restriction of Exports.

Canada to Place Trade Ban on Sugar Coal and Newsprint -- Former Two May Affect Newfoundland -- Alarming Reports From Mesopotamia--Anti-Bolshevik Forces Advancing in Crimea.

SUGAR, COAL AND NEWSPRINT.

OTTAWA, June 16. A resolution preliminary to the introduction of an Act to give the Government power to regulate the exportation of any commodity produced or manufactured in Canada, when circumstances call for such restrictions, was introduced in the House of Commons by Premier Borden at the opening of the day's proceedings. The Prime Minister explained that strong representations had been made that in the interests of the Canadian people exports of such articles of general consumption as sugar, coal and newsprint paper. He asked Parliament to postpone the usual discussion of the resolution and permit the bill to be introduced forthwith. It would be referred to a select committee of Parliament, which would probably have some revision to make, and then it could be debated in the house in committee.

MESOPOTAMIA.

LONDON, June 16. Sensational reports emanating from Persia, to the effect that fresh disturbances had broken out in Mesopotamia, were met here with the statement to-day that latest official reports from Mesopotamia said that the situation was much quieter. The town of Tellaftar, to the northwest of Mosul, which was temporarily lost to the British, is again in their hands, it is stated.

BOLSHEVIST TRADE.

LONDON, June 16. Belgium and Japan, it is learned, have decided to join negotiations which the British Government is carrying on with Gregory Krassin, Bolshevik Minister of Trade and Commerce.

WRANGLE'S SUCCESSFUL ADVANCE.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 16. Forces of General Wrangle, anti-Bolshevik leader on the Crimean front, are moving northward from Crimea and the Sea of Azov in three columns. They have been phenomenally successful against the Bolsheviks and have established a front along Kasakova on the Dniester, eastward through Welltrop, to Maripole. Gen. Wrangle's troops have captured 4,000 prisoners and forty big guns of the one hundred estimated to be in the possession of the Bolsheviks. They have lost only 800 men.

BIG GARAGE FIRE.

ROCKLAND, Maine, June 16. Fourteen buildings, including a garage that contained two hundred automobiles, were destroyed by fire in a business district that caused the loss of six hundred thousand dollars to-day. Four families were made homeless and eleven business plants were burned. The fire started in the garage. It was extinguished with the aid of firemen and apparatus from nearby places.

BANK CLERKS STRIKE.

LONDON, June 16. The Scottish Bank Staffs have voted by a majority of eighty per cent. in favor of striking for better conditions. The English Bank Clerks Union has made rapid progress since the war, but so far no threat of direct action has been taken.

DECREASING MILITARY EXPENDITURE.

LONDON, June 16. There is no question of Great Britain increasing her military commitments in Mesopotamia and Persia, according to Bonar Law, who so stated in the House of Commons to-day. Mr. Law added that on the contrary, the Government was endeavoring to reduce its commitments, realizing the necessity of decreasing military expenditures.

ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY.

TOKIO, June 16. Japan inserted an article in the Anglo-Japanese Alliance Pact of 1911, to remove the risk of England becoming involved in any dispute between the United States and Japan. It was declared to-day, by Viscount Kato, former Foreign Minister, in an interview urging a renewal of the Treaty.

THE BALKAN CAULDRON.

BELGRADE, June 16. The decision to refuse autonomy to Bosnia and Herzegovina has been reached by the Government of Yugoslavia and they will be governed directly from this city.

ONE PROBLEM SETTLED.

COPENHAGEN, June 16. Boundaries between Germany and Denmark as fixed by the plebiscite held in Schleswig, have been definitely established by Interational Commission at Flensburg and announcement was made by that body to-day that since its duties, as laid down in the Treaty of Versailles had been discharged, its authority in the plebiscite region would cease immediately. British forces which assisted in policing the plebiscite district are arriving here from Flensburg.

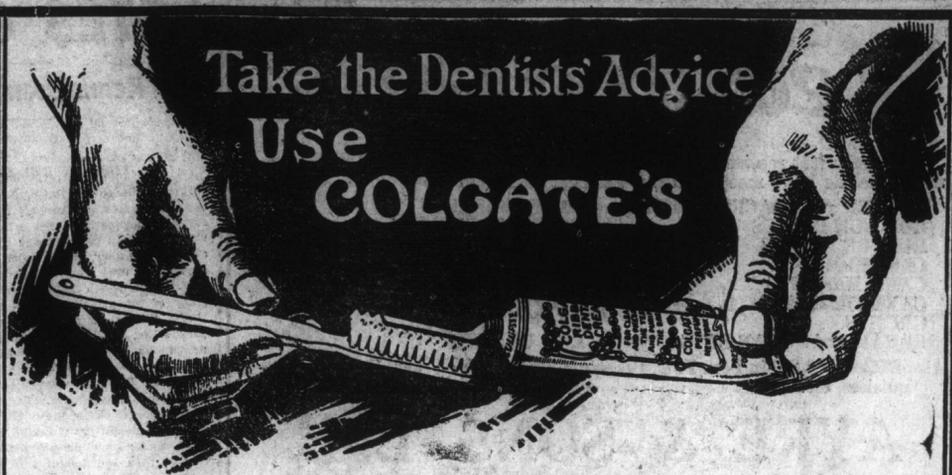

VERY PROBABLE.

BERLIN, June 16. "Nothing hitherto," says the Boerschen Zeitung, "warrants apprehension that relations with Germany, which have been initiated by American commercial and financial interests, will be hampered by the nomination of Warren Harding as Republican candidate for the Presidency. On the contrary, it is probable that they will be furthered."

ITALIAN CABINET FORMED.

ROME, June 16. Premier Giovanni Giolitti's newly formed cabinet has taken the oath of office.

COLGATE'S Does ALL a safe Dentifrice Should Do—it cleans the teeth.

No dentifrice can take the place of the dentist. Any preparation that seeks to do the dentists' work usually contains strong drugs or harsh grit—harmful to the enamel of the teeth. And think of the effect of such risky chemicals on the tender membranes of your mouth!

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream cleans thoroughly, safely, washing the teeth without harmful grit, or the use of strong drugs.

Time and Talents.

The President of Time and Talents has been asked if members will be good enough to collect a few old toys for use at the Infant Welfare Centre just opened at the Public Health Offices. The little visitors to the centre will not be particular, and any old toys—wholly animals, coloured picture books, soft balls, dolls, etc.—no matter how old—will be suitable and most welcome. If each member will send one toy it will make a splendid games cupboard for the centre. If she has not a nursery in her own home from which to draw will she ask a friend who has one?

The Secretary of Time and Talents will be glad to receive toys as soon as possible, marked on the outside of the parcel "T. & T. for Infant Welfare Centre."

NOTES OF TRAVEL:

And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour

L. C. MORRIS.
CHAPTER XVIII.

CROSSING THE PRAIRIES OF NORTH DAKOTA.

From Chicago to Butte, Montana, is a long stretch, and at every turn the scene is fascinating. The train service is the best possible, and comfort, as well as safety, is the order of the day. The road passes through the prairies of North Dakota and taps many of the principal towns of that state. It was our first experience of prairie life, and the entire scene was new to us. We had heard often of those vast flats, and of those immense stretches; but now we beheld them, and for hours and hours scanned their wide acreage. Over those plains the Indian hordes of ten thousand generations, had roamed in proud defiance, and in turn had fought their neighbouring tribes to the death. Their war whoops, and their savage yells had resounded through the silence of a million nights, and their traditions had been recited at a million campfires. But these tribes have disappeared, and now the white man rules, where once the red man reigned.

As we sped along, we thought of the white men who invaded these prairies, and who in their long trails led the way for twentieth century civilization. We thought also of the gentle women who endured the loneliness of prairie life, and who, by their devotion, made such life bearable. As we looked we felt a sort of lonely ourselves. At some turns in the road we saw forsaken homesteads, and at other vacated shacks. Here we beheld a deserted claim, and there a neglected plot; and they both told us the same tale—the tale of hope, of toil, of suspense, of disappointment, of discouragement, and of eventual despair, and final abandonment. Such ever has been the story of colonization. Some succeeded, and others failed, but all endured, all suffered. Still the march was kept up, and in due time not only were the prairies crossed, but the entire continent was subdued.

Such were some of our musings as we viewed these prairies from our seats in the observation car, while crossing North Dakota; and as we continued our reveries the hills and the snow-capped mountains of Montana came in view. What a change! The monotonous stretch of the prairie had given way to the hill-sides and to the rivers, and to the grandeur of the mighty mountains. Our train brought us along the base of some steep precipice at one moment, and then suddenly opened out near some towering rock, or some treacherous gorge; but before the sight could be fully viewed the darkness of some tunnel reminded us that we were running through the mountain. Such a view is panoramic as well as fascinating; and the speed of the train intensifies its beauty, and adds a variety of shapes to the huge rocks and boulders. At times the rocks looked like some great cathedral, and the entry to the tunnels seemed as a dream in fairyland. The ruggedness of Montana is so different to the prairies of North Dakota, that the traveller cannot but notice the great change; for instead of vast flats, he beholds mountain peaks, and jutting cliffs, and dashing rivers. To see these from any given point should indeed be worth while; but to watch them from a swift train is still better. It was thus that we watched them; and amid the glory of the Indian summer saw their beauty.

The snow-capped mountains in the distance reminded us of the mighty Alps of which we have so often heard and read; and the jutting crags at some river bend, and the bold promontaries which occasionally came in view, seemed like our own land. The scenery is truly picturesque, weird and wild; which, with the altitude of the state, and the continuous sunshine, add to the attractions of the country. Thus it is that thousands of tourists pass in this direction, and inhale its bracing atmosphere, while they survey its romantic beauties.

These tourists travel for health and sight-seeing, and they usually seek these recreations amid mountain heights and forest solitudes. 'Tis thoughtless the scenery of our own land. When is this scenery of ours to be sought? When are our lands to be sought? When is our place in the world of travel? The mountains and ravines of Montana are beautiful to behold; but they cannot compare with the scenery of Bay of Islands; for the Humber River and the indraft of the Bay itself, present a very different and much more romantic scene. Montana is inland, hence it has not the relief which the ocean lends. Newfoundland abounds with water and its ocean coast-line is immense. Will the day ever come when these attractions will be better known, and when "this Newfoundland of ours" will occupy its right and destined place in the North American world? We have long heard of such a day. When, we ask again, will it come to pass?

Auto Accident.

BOY'S LEG BROKEN.

Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock a four-year-old boy, Roger Owens, son of Thomas Owens, was knocked down by a motor car and had his leg broken. The accident happened on New Gower Street near the junction of Springdale Street. The car was being driven west by Rev. J. Brinton, and the little fellow in attempting to cross the street was hit by the front wheel. He was picked up and conveyed to his home at Fergus Place where Dr. Anderson attended him. Later he was conveyed by Mr. Brinton to the hospital.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

TRY THIS.

And did you ever, under those conditions, have to give it up for the present and do that hardest of all things—wait?

If you did, here's a suggestion that may help a little!

Look backward instead of forwards, for a change.

Change the Direction of Your Concentration.

Go back to the time when you first had your home and think of the improvements in equipment, and improvements in the home itself, you have put in since those days. Name every little improvement, if it's only an extra electric light in some spot that particularly needed lighting. Concentrate for a few minutes on what you have instead of on what you want—and see if it doesn't ease the impatience a little.

The Spring I felt as if I could not live in my summer home for another season unless I had more closet space. Every woman knows that hunger for closet space, and no man ever really understands it. (The old question whether I really am a woman still lifts its head once in a while, but surely that statement about my feeling for closets ought to settle it.)

I Must Have Those Closets.

At first it seemed as if we might make the addition which was the only way of getting what I wanted. But when we came to look into the matter, we found, like some millions of others, that we couldn't get the labor. My disappointment was truly bitter. It seemed as if I must have those closets, and then the Authorman made the above suggestion, and I tried it.

"That first year we didn't have the heating porch, or the electric lights or the bathtub," I remembered.

"Nor the screened-in cupboard in the kitchen, nor the big ice-chest, nor the hot water system," supplemented the Authorman.

Have You That You Didn't Have?

"Nor my desk nor the built-in bookshelves nor the cupboards in the living room."

"Nor the wardrobe in the bedroom, nor the medicine closet in the bathroom nor the electric grill." "However did we get along? Really, we do have a lot to make things easy now."

"Seems so to me," said the Authorman. "Perhaps it would do me good if I could live just one week in the house as it was."

"Heaven forbid!" said the Authorman.

Largest Doors on Earth.

The doors in question are those at the west entrance of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, England, and the reason they are not noticed more than they are is that, except in the hot summer weather, they are nearly always closed. There may be larger doors, but not all in one piece like these. Each of the two leaves is of solid oak, they stand about thirty feet high, and their weight is enormous. They are built without a nail, the various cross-pieces and panels being held together by means of bronze bolts, which bosses at each side. The doors are nearly as old as the cathedral itself, and have upon them the initials of the carpenter who made them. The hinges are, of course, immensely massive, the main pairs at top and bottom being deeply sunk into the solid Portland stone of which the great structure is built. These doors are only opened on State occasions, such as a visit by the King or the Lord Mayor. On one occasion when a gate from the west was blowing up Ludgate Hill; it took a squad of twenty policemen to force the great leaves back into place against the pressure of the wind.

The Average Woman's Secret.

What sort of men do women like best? Novelists—especially women novelists, from the Brontës upwards—tell us that it is your strong, silent man, the man with a touch of the brute about him, that attracts women. But the modern woman rejects the idea with scorn.

Probably the average girl has only a vague idea as to what she would like in a husband, and the married woman—well, she can hardly describe her ideal man without casting a reflection on her husband, and the husband who remains his wife's "ideal" after six months of marriage would be hard to find.

So the average woman's "dream mate" remains her own secret.

Just Folks

BE YOURSELF. Be yourself! Don't imitate a man you fancy may be greater. Follow him when he is leading in the conduct of good breeding. Learn from him the things of splendor. Cherry smiles and actions tender. Take the open way he chooses. But don't ape the tricks he uses.

Be yourself! Don't ever smother what you are because another does things in a certain fashion; choke the imitative passion. Let the spirit in you guide you; Power and will have been supplied you. Use them! What becomes your neighbor. May not suit you as your labor.

Be yourself! There lies no glory in the imitator's story. Sink or swim or rise or tumble—be yourself, however humble; Copy good men's traits, but never steal their methods of endeavor. Fame shall surely find your doorway.

If you strive to earn it your way.

PLACING THE BLAME.

Of all wild times these are the worst; our divers goats we lose; and sages with an aching thirist b l a m e things to lack of booze. The honest toiler can't get stewed when his day's work is o'er, and so he strikes, in bitter mood, and jumps the useful chore. If he continues at his task, though angry, sad and dry, oh, what, the thirsty sages ask, will that man's wages buy? He cannot buy a crate of gin nor purchase beer or ale; then why toll on for useless tin? And what's the use of kale? He cannot seek the Gilded Hole where large glass schooners clank; he simply has to take his roll, and put it in the bank. He has to buy a house and lot, or get his children duds; for in the village there's no spot where he can purchase suds. He has to spend for useful things the toll-stained, hard-earned sum that he would gladly see take wings where reigned the Demon Rum. Then who can wonder that he spurns the job with wages fine, when he can't buy with all he earns, a fagon or a stein?

Grate's Cove Man Feels Safe When He Has It Handy

Takes Supply Of Tanlac With Him To Fishing Grounds.

Eli Hodder, a prosperous fisherman of Grate's Cove, Newfoundland, is yet another outport man who has realized the remarkable reconstructive powers of Tanlac and who wants his friends to know about it. When he called at Connor's drug store in St. John's a few days ago, Mr. Hodder said:

"I've tried Tanlac before and you may be sure I would not be buying two more bottles to-day if I had not been well pleased with it. It put me in fine shape last fall and from then until now I have been in as good health as I ever was. "My stomach had been out of order for over two years and I had reached the point where I simply never wanted to eat anything at all hardly for it caused me no end of trouble. I had severe cramps in my stomach and gas would form and give me a heavy, bloated feeling that would last for hours. I was in an awful weak, rundown condition, felt tired-out all the time and was hardly able to work. I was gradually getting worse and couldn't find anything that would do me any good.

"Finally, I bought a bottle of Tanlac, as several of my friends had tried it with fine results. Well, the first bottle did me so much good I bought another and by the time I had finished taking it I was simply feeling like a different man altogether. My stomach was in the finest kind of shape and I could eat anything my good appetite called for without a sign of trouble. My strength and energy came back and I was able to do twice as much work as I could before. That's all the Tanlac I've taken and to-day I am feeling fine and enjoying the best of health. As I am getting ready to go out for the fishing season I want these two bottles of Tanlac to carry along for I feel safe when I've got it with me."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle.—adv

Something to Consider.

A blight appears to have settled upon Newfoundland since the assumption of office by the Liberal Reform Party. Everything they have touched has gone wrong, excepting salaries. They promised retrenchment and reform, but their ideas of reform can best be estimated by the increases made in their own sessional allowances of from two hundred to one thousand dollars. The other measures of reform consist in laying upon the taxpayers an additional burden of ONE MILLION EIGHT HUNDRED AND SIXTY-EIGHT THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-ONE DOLLARS in extra expenditure. This is their idea of reducing taxation. They have by their reform legislation—killed the fish business, their action resulting in the price per quintal falling from fourteen dollars to five dollars. Because of this a pall of gloom hangs over the land and young men are fleeing from the dominion as from a plague. The Salt situation is serious and merchants are curtailing supplies for the fishery, excepting to those who are in a position to lay down cash for the greater portion of their outfit, or who have property to go as security against credit.

It is almost a compliment to get coal and the country has been practically run on war rations since last November. Had the Government deliberately plotted to ruin Newfoundland, they could not have done it with greater effect, as the existing hard conditions of living will testify. Searching the past records of former Governments in this country, it is impossible to find a parallel to that of the Squires Government, or one that has succeeded in doing more injury during its eight months of administration, or that has gone so directly contrary to all the promises made in its leader's manifesto. But there it is. What are the men of Bay-de-Verde going to do about it? It is in their hands to continue or to end it. Should Cave be elected in that district it will close the door immediately to any hope of better things for the next three and a half years. By electing the candidate of the Opposition, Mr. Puddester, the first blow will be administered to a government so lost to all sense of its responsibility to the people, and this blow will be duplicated in Harbor Main within a few months. Two such strokes as this will smash the present amateur and selfish administration, and give the people who do the real work of the country—the fishermen—a chance to live in the land of their birth.

Harder and more different conditions will obtain next year if Squires continues in control and puts this nearly TWO MILLION DOLLAR new load on the backs of the taxpayers and producers, and by continuing his Fish-Export Regulations keeping the price of fish down to five dollars per quintal. The whole population to-day is watching Bay-de-Verde closely and hoping that the electors there will strike the first blow toward saving Newfoundland from ruin and depression and to keep the dominion from being drained of its young men—its best asset—and as well to secure to those who have to stay at home deliverance from a lingering existence under intolerable burdens. It is poor satisfaction to the fishermen of Bay-de-Verde to know that ministerial salaries are being doubled and sessional allowances to members quintupled, and that Mr. Cave will receive $5,000 per year if elected. This is what will happen if Bay-de-Verde votes as the Government expects it to vote, with perhaps worse to come. Therefore it is the first duty of the voters to look out for their own preservation, and by administering defeat to Cave, the Government candidate, show that they are heartily tired of the hypocritical professions of a Government that alone is animated by personal interest and does not care a rap for the people in general.

How Much Are M. P.'s Worth?

The Commons, having passed a budget which gives promise of providing large public funds—with the business community bearing the heavy end of the burden—the interest of members and Senators at Ottawa is turned to the matter of increasing the sessional indemnity from $2,500 to $4,000. When there are two sessions a year, as was the case last year, the members would draw eight thousand dollars. The increase would cost the country about half a million extra a year.

There are a number of the members whose time is worth a great deal more than $4,000; but the majority are certainly not in that class. Nearly one hundred of them have no income except what they draw from the House—or so the income tax shows. Good business men would certainly be worth the increased amount asked for—but few of them could make such a claim.

The main objection to an increase in indemnity at the present time is the encouragement it would give to Bolshevism and unrest. It is difficult to understand where some members keep their sense of the eternal fitness of things, when they would endeavour to worry the Government—as they certainly have been doing—into making a big grant to them a month or two after having told the returned men that the financial condition of the country would not permit of the giving of the gratuity asked for. Nor would the increase be in keeping with that careful handling of public funds which those who are paying the increased taxes under the new budget would like to see.—Financial Post, Toronto.

Motor Trucks' Achievements.

Many citizens yesterday afternoon witnessed the wonderful hill-mounting ability of the new motor fire trucks of the Fire Companies. They mounted hills which have never before been gone over by motor cars—even the lightest or most powerful. A truck went up over Holloway Street, which is probably the steepest one in the city, which is saying something. It also went up Pilot's Hill and up the hill by the Court House steps. This hill, although not so steep as Holloway Street, is much more uneven, not being a regular street or hill, and the mounting of it is certainly a greater achievement than that of Holloway St.

History Repeats Itself.

Gazetier Hamilton's Letter to the Late Hon. James Grieve.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

During the past week the following letter has come into my possession. It will be an eye-opener to the members of the Patriotic Association to find that their efforts to raise subscriptions for Imperial work is only what their forefathers did sixty-five years ago—during the Crimean War, when Britain and France were united as they were during the Great War. The interesting fact that I wish to bring out is, that our popular citizen, Hon. W. B. Grieve, O.B.E., who was the indefatigable Secretary and hard worker of our present Patriotic Association, is the son of the Hon. James Grieve to whom Governor Hamilton's document is addressed, and who gave his time and money so generously in those days of strife sixty-five years ago, as his patriotic son has done during the days of the terrible struggle against attempted German domination of the world. Here we find one of the happiest coincidences of "History repeating itself," and "Like Father like son" is something that the Hon. W. B. Grieve can well be proud of. The following is a copy of Governor Hamilton's letter:

Government House,
7th February, 1855.

The Hon. James Grieve,
Sir—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of this day's date transmitting to me a Bank Bill for the sum of £1623 sterling, being the amount of the contributions raised by the committee appointed by me in aid of the Patriotic Fund.

It is considered that the voluntary contributions raised in the Empire in aid of the Patriotic Fund reflect a credit upon Britain not worthy of the glory shed upon it by the heroism of the soldiers; and the contributions raised in Newfoundland must fill every patriotic heart amongst us with sentiments of satisfaction.

I shall have great satisfaction in forwarding to Her Majesty's Secretary of State your letter and the draft it contains; and I think I may venture to say, without being presumptuous, that Her Majesty will not hear without emotions of pleasure, that the noble courage and the fidelity of her soldiers are generously appreciated by her subjects in Newfoundland.

I have the honor to be
Sir,
Your most obedient humble servant,
KER. B. HAMILTON.

"Iolanthe."

A great deal of interest is being taken regarding the forthcoming production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Opera "Iolanthe," which opens on Monday evening, June 21, at the Casino Theatre for a week's engagement. Some of the finest musical gems ever written are composed in the opera. First and foremost is the majestic chorus of Peers, written in true Sullivan style, and in this Professor Mawer has been fortunate in securing some of the best male vocalists of the city. In fact the music allotted to the male section of the chorus dominates the entire opera. That does not say, however, that the music given to the Fairies is of less beauty. Some particularly fine numbers are assigned them. Then of the Solos, Duets, Trios and Quartettes there is abundant variety. Two remarkable good items are the duets given by Phyllis and Strephon, "None shall part us from each other," and "If we're weak enough to tarry." Then Lord Mount Ararat, the bartone part, has a most stirring song "When Britain really ruled the waves," which will without doubt bring down the house. Another important number is what is popularly known as the "Proverb Trio," sung by the Lord Chancellor, Lords Toller and Mount Ararat. Some clever action is brought to play in this trio. The masterpiece of the whole opera however, is the finale to the first act. All the principals have abundant work to do here, and the chorus reaches a climax which is worthy of that of any in the "Dream Song" of the Lord Chancellor in the second act. This will, without doubt, be one of the many hits of the opera. The orchestral accompaniment will also be a special feature, and no pains are being spared to make it as complete as possible. The advance booking which opened on Monday last, has been very brisk, and no opportunity should be lost to secure tickets as early as possible. They are to be had at the Royal Stationery Co., Water Street.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

The case of the Marine and Fisheries Department against a number of fishermen at Pouch Cove who have traps set at that place contrary to the regulations, was again up for hearing, and judgment was reserved.

The Sugar Situation.

At a meeting of the wholesale and retail grocers held yesterday in the Board of Trade Rooms, Mr. R. G. Winter occupied the chair. A committee of five were appointed to interview the Food Control Board and place the matter under discussion before them. It appears that there are two classes of retailers—those who buy wholesale from the Board and retail, and those who buy in smaller quantities. The former have, as retailers, one cent more profit than the smaller shopkeepers. The purely wholesale men have only 1 per cent. profit allowed them by the Control Board. The small dealers cannot sell at the profit allowed and asks the Board either to reduce their price to the purely wholesale trade or allow themselves to advance the price. Up to noon to-day the committee had not met the Control Board. The sentiment of the retailers is that the price is already high enough and poor people have to buy sugar in quarter pound lots.

A Telegram reporter interviewed a number of sugar dealers to-day and the opinions expressed were anything but favorable to Government control. It was stated by an authority who knows, that but for the interference of the Control Board, sugar prices here would not have advanced beyond 28 cents up to the middle of August. The Control Board seized all the sugar landed at 16 cents and in addition to more recent importations at increased prices and by pooling it with the 1,000 tons which they had bought at still higher prices set the local price at 30 cents retail; and as far as the trade is aware, 30 cents is now the cheapest at which it can be retailed until the end of the year. The mistake apparently made was that the Board bought heavily without consulting experienced dealers.

Sanctuary Guild Sale.

The members of St. Mary's Sanctuary Guild held their annual sale and concert yesterday. The affair was an unqualified success and all concerned are to be congratulated on their efforts. At 3.30 o'clock Rev. Canon Bolt, a former rector of the parish, opened the sale. In some well chosen words the Canon referred to the good work performed by parishioners in years' past, and complimented the present workers who are so faithfully following in the footsteps of their predecessors. The speaker advocated a broad outlook in these days of reconstruction, when the Church of God is expected to give the lead in all things pertaining to the general good. Canon Bolt eulogised the young people who composed the Sanctuary Guild, and whose chief aim is to beautify the Sanctuary which must always be "exceeding magnificent." There was a large attendance of parishioners and friends, amongst whom we noticed Rev. Canon and Mrs. Jeeves, Rev. Canon Barry, Rev. C. A. Moulton, Mrs. Bolt and Mrs. Brinton. All regretted the unfortunate accident which prevented Rev. J. Brinton being present.

At 8 o'clock a concert took place and the performers were greeted by a very appreciative audience which filled the hall to overflowing. Every item on the programme was encored and the talented entertainers were most generous in responding to the wishes of their admirers. Songs were rendered by Mrs. Christian, Misses Mitchell and Dunfield; Messrs. C. Trappell and F. Ruggies; recitations by Messrs. Mews, Rabbitt, Courtney and Trappell, while Mr. Gernon, of H.M.S. Briton, gave an exhibition of cutlass swinging and hornpipe dancing. Mr. Gordon Christian very kindly acted as accompanist.

THE HOME RULE BILL.
LONDON, June 16.
In the absence of any real opposition from Liberals, Laborites or Nationalists, the Home Rule Bill in the House of Commons is undergoing considerable amendment, mainly on the lines described by the Unionist Party. The Minister of War said there was no intention of disbanding the Irish or Welsh Guards so long as the recruiting of men of their nationality was satisfactory.

AUSTRIAN POLITICS.
VIENNA, June 16.
President Setts has asked Chancellor Renner immediately to present bills for the dissolution of the Austrian National Assembly, and for the calling of new elections and in the meantime he has requested the dominant political parties to continue their efforts to form a new ministry.

UNDER CONDITIONS.
LONDON, June 16.
The Central News says it learns that as a result of direct negotiations between Persia and George Tchitcherin, Russian Soviet Foreign Minister, the latter has announced the readiness of the Bolsheviks to evacuate Persia under certain conditions.

WORSE THAN THE REAL THING.
ST. JOHN, N.B., June 16.
On Monday, Police Magistrate Ritchie made a strong pronouncement in court against the sale of lemon extract, in view of so many cases of drunkenness from it coming before him. He said, "It is worse than Gin, Rum, Whiskey or any liquor. If everybody does his duty there will not be another ounce of lemon extract left in this town by midnight. I will give up my place here in order to make room to stock it all, if necessary."

POLES RE-TAKE KIEV.
CONSTANTINOPLE, June 16.
Polish forces have re-taken Kiev, in a strong counter attack upon the Bolsheviks, according to a despatch received here to-day. The Poles inflicted heavy casualties on the Red armies.

RAN THE BLOCKADE.
FIUME, June 16.
A British tank steamer ran the blockade to-day, and landed a cargo of oil for Gabriele D'Annunzio, insurgent leader here.

THE NORTH SYDNEY LONGSHOREMEN.
SYDNEY, June 16.

The Federal Union, North Sydney, has arranged for the Longshoremen to resume work, according to D. McDonald, organizer, and will permit Longshoremen to work for the Farquhar Co. and all other employers, pending a final settlement with Mr. Robinson of the Reid Co., who now awaits an answer from the Head Office. The men appreciate greatly the fair treatment accorded them by the Moulton and Salter Co., North Sydney, but contend that the Reid Nfd. Co. will not recognize their communications and are importing men from the ancient colony, reside and feed them aboard the companies boats, and yet do work that should be the perquisite of the men who are tax payers and residents of the town. They are also indignant over the alleged action of Mayor Musgrave, whom they contend is encouraging the Reid Nfd. Co. to bring in outside labor to the detriment and injury of wage earning Longshoremen.

RECOGNIZED IRISH REPUBLIC.
MONTREAL, June 16.
Amid a great demonstration the American Federation of Labor, in its convention here to-day, re-affirmed its stand for the recognition of the Irish Republic, and requested that military forces of occupation in Ireland be withdrawn, and that Irish people be accorded the right of self-determination. The Federation authorized the continuation of organization campaign in Ireland and the Steel Industry Executive Council was instructed to call a conference of all International Unions concerned in organization work, for the purpose of getting their "full co-operation" in the campaign.

WILL NOT TAKE OATH.
LONDON, June 16.
The House of Commons has tabled the proposed amendments to the Irish Home Rule Bill, which were designed to prevent the setting up of a Republican Parliament in Ireland, by making it essential that all candidates take the oath of allegiance to Great Britain, in order to qualify for office. The amendments also provided that under certain conditions, the British Viceroy in Ireland would be empowered to assume supreme legislative authority. Sinn Fein sympathizers declared the amendment bore out their prediction that the Government had a joker up its sleeve, adding that no Sinn Feiner would take the oath of allegiance.

RUMFORD

THE WHOLESOME BAKING POWDER

Humors of News-paper Advertising.

(By EDITH G. BAYNE.)

In the West, where foreign publications flourish, one would miss the weekly "Spiegel" or "Tageblatt" or "Sonntag Anzeiger," or "Nordwesten" or "Nachrichten," were the Federal Government suddenly to decide to suspend these luminaries indefinitely. Most of them are behaving themselves, editorially, now, and the journalism of some of them is really first-class, one Polish sheet being decidedly superior and leading one to suspect that its editor must be a sort of incipient Joseph Conrad. The Polish is one of the most beautiful of languages. It has been called the French of Slav tongues. There are a number of Icelandic papers in Winnipeg, and Regina is the home of a celebrated Ukrainian organ, while dotted all over the West in every large town one finds some times two or more publishing plants devoted to the enlightenment of the stranger in our midst. These may only take the form of a small, single-folded sheet, but the zeal and industry of the exponents cannot be questioned. And they live! When many a fat, well-backed periodical of our own is gasping its life out or being merged with another, these foreign papers are prospering and occasionally waxing "sassy." Then comes a slap on the wrist, the editor promises to be good and chuckles as he gloats over his advertisers and subscription list!

If you are fortunate enough to be able to translate roughly, or have some good interpreter do so for you, many gems of purest ray serene in the way of humor will be your reward. Here are some culled from the advertising columns of a Polish paper:

"To rent—a room for a single woman 8 x 10 feet."

"Wanted—a strong young man for retail store, partly outdoors and partly behind the counter."

"Wanted—competent druggist to undertake sale of a new patent remedy. Will prove highly lucrative to the undertaker."

"To let—bed and sitting room for young business or professional man with folding-doors."

From a German sheet comes this characteristic piece of psychology: "Notice—If Johann Weitz supposed to be in the West will communicate with us he will hear something to his advantage. His wife is dead."

One Ruthenian paper carried this: "Wanted a small grocery store by two fiends going into business together." This, of course, was in English, in the only paper of a small town which occasionally ran an English column. First-rate opening, here, one would suggest, for a young editor who isn't afraid of competition!

"Pressed hay for sale!" frequently challenged the eye in this same paper, and once when a prosperous Ruthenian farmer had played host to a stray horse he put two ads. on, one in his own tongue, and the other in ours, which read: "A stranger horse has come on my farm. He has both forefeet white. He is color black. Who owns him come get him and pay me x pnts of keep him." The next week the same man advertised: "Pressed hay cheap—8 dolers on yure station."

When writing up social items the foreigner will often take infinite pains to reach all classes and creeds. Lacking a paper the villager may find the following notice tacked up in his post-office: "We are gone for a danse on 27th. Come on the schoolhouse at 8.30. One doler, gentleman. Nothing, ladies." Or it may give a list of the estates as well. A recent sleighing-party ad. said: "Only 30 in a sleigh. No crowding, please," and it specified: "Ice cream, beer and cigars."

A German paper recently had several interesting items in its want-ad. column. The first was: "Ladies who have old feathers can be re-dyed and made as good as new." Another called for: "A tall strong woman able to life. To take care of a young man a little out of his mind." Still another required: "A purchaser for beautiful upright piano the property of a lady about to travel in a walnut case." And a big display ad. announced that "Mr. Warthmann would make coats, muffs, caps, etc., for ladies out of their own skins."

It takes the German to conduct a cold-blooded, business-like matrimonial bureau, however. This is where he may be said to shine. Listen to this:

"Wanted—by a young, wealthy, handsome and agreeable young farmer, a wife with similar qualities. Must have thoroughly rested herself and be not afraid of farm work. Send photo and state whether maid or widow, also exact age, weight and height."

Another Teuton with a large idea of himself advertised for a wife who can sew and do all kinds of light-fingered work, as well as cook and take care of a worthy young man with a brilliant mind."

Sometimes the lady takes a whack at it herself. This was a recent sample: "Well-educated German lady, very musical and a fine cook desires to correspond with a German business or professional man. Object matrimony. Will marry at once is agreeable."

But what does this mean? "Wanted—a man to look after a German-Luthern horse." Don't all speak at once!

Mainly About People.

It is said that Joseph C. Lincoln, the American novelist, was favorably impressed with the policies advocated by Major-General Wood, and had about decided to give him his support until he saw a motion picture of Governor Lowden with a Joe Lincoln novel under his arm, which leads the literary man to conclude that the Illinois man "is the candidate with the finest judgment."

Miss Marguerite Smith, aged 26 years, has had the distinction of being speaker pro tem of the New York Assembly, where she represents a Harlem district. She made a model presiding officer and acquitted herself admirably. She is not only a bachelor of science, but is among the best of modern dancers. She is spoken of as a candidate for speaker if she is given a re-election.

King Gustave of Sweden is probably Europe's tallest ruler. He attracts attention wherever he goes. Among London notables he towered above them all. During his outings on the Riviera his height make him conspicuous wherever he goes. His favorite pastime is tennis, and he is very proficient with the racquet.

Georges Carpentier, the handsome blond heavyweight champion of Europe, and French war hero, is developing rapidly as a movie star. He is the central figure in a boxing scene of a scenario now being made in a New Jersey studio. Many prominent New Yorkers have been privileged to see this scene. He is away ahead of Champion Dempsey as an actor and screen fighter. The movie removes all doubts as to the Frenchmen's cleverness in the ring.

Pope Benedict XIII takes the greatest interest in economic subjects and reads all the literature on the subject that comes to him. John Maynard Keynes, who wrote "The Economic Consequences of Peace," is now in Rome. He presented the Pope with a copy of his book.

Lady Astor heard Colonel Archer-Shee tell parliament that a woman just become of age is "captivating, capricious, fascinatingly futile, irresolutely, irrationally, ingeniously inexperienced, politically pusillanimous, wholly and charmingly incomprehensible," and she exclaimed, "Hear! Hear! How interesting."

Agon Petros, leader of the Mountain Assyrians, who has changed his people from submissive slaves to aggressive fighting men against the Turks, is a brave man, gifted with the arts of leadership. He was a resident of New York for three years, and speaks English very well. The Turks intended to use the Assyrians as the Germans used the Belgians. Petros aroused them, secured arms and fought the Turks to a finish. He is the great hero of his people to-day.

When Premier Nitti entered the present Italian parliament the socialists were opposed to him. He is now overcoming their hostility. He is a believer in woman's suffrage. D'Annunzio has been a source of annoyance to him, and he has repeatedly denounced the poet. He is a logical orator, full of humor and good nature, quick at repartee, never losing his temper. He has a biting sarcasm that has been termed "arsenical good humor."

The Earl of Lowden's death recalls the strange story told of one of his ancestors, the first Marquess of Haastings. When lying at Malta, of which he became governor, after relinquishing the viceroy of India, Lord Hastings directed that his right hand should be cut off and sent home, so that it might be buried with his wife, to whom he was deeply attached. His strange wish was carried out, and the hand, enclosed in a small box, was deposited in the family vault at London, in Ayrshire. There it remained from 1823 till 1849, when, on the death of his wife, who was Countess of London in her own right, it was placed in her coffin.

I want another bottle of "Brick's Tasteless", it is the best preparation I have ever taken to give me an appetite.—apr20,21

Brilliant Affair; Largely Attended. House of Assembly.

Wednesday, June 16.
The House met at 3.30 p.m.
Petitions were presented by Mr. Hibbs for railways extension along the north side of Bonavista Bay; by Messrs. Sullivan, Bennett, Moore and Higgins from a large number of residents of Placentia and St. Mary's, Port-de-Grave, St. John's West, Ferryland, Witless Bay and Fermeuse and St. John's East for modification of the Prohibition Act. In presenting the petitions the different members pointed out that some steps should be taken to meet the views of the petitioners, who number so very many. Mr. Higgins asking would it not be wise for the Government to give consideration to the request for a plebiscite. The petition is so largely supported that it should be met by an Act at the present session. Petitions for $5,000 for improvements to the breakwater at Jerseyside, Placentia, were presented by Mr. Walsh, supported by Messrs. Sullivan and Sinnott.

The Prime Minister moved the House into Committee of the Whole to consider resolutions respecting certain concessions to the Dominion Co-operative Building Association, Ltd. Those resolutions provide for payment of the Company, out of the public funds, during a period of twenty years, of any sum by which the net earnings of the Company should be less than 5 per cent. upon so much of the capital as shall be actually paid up in cash and engaged in the building of dwelling houses, and also for importation free of charge of all construction and building materials and machinery which are not manufactured in this Colony and for use by the Company in its business.

Sir M. P. Cashin asked how the money was to be raised. He looked upon the Bill as mere camouflage. It gave no enlightenment as to the amount to be borrowed. It was a waste of time to pass the present Bill.

The Prime Minister replied that some large firms were supporting the scheme by taking stock. The capital, it was expected, would be subscribed in a few months.

Mr. W. J. Higgins pointed out that the Bill did absolutely nothing. The Association requested concessions and free entry on materials, but that's no act on which the Government can take credit, as the same is done for any combination building anything from a hen house to a fox farm. It is obvious that nobody will put in capital unless sure of 5 per cent. It is just as well to say the Government is doing nothing to solve the all-important housing problem.

Mr. Squires—I didn't say they were. Mr. Higgins—I'm glad you admit it. You promised great things but everyone is now disappointed. If the small investor is to be helped, 5 p.c. interest at best should be given.

Mr. J. R. Bennett was disappointed with the resolutions. The solving of the Housing Problem was promised in pre-election protestations, and had a prominent place in the Speech from the Throne. Messrs. Anderson, Jas. McGrath and Gibbs were prime movers in the scheme, and went out of their way to misrepresent himself and others. Their communication to Mr. Hallyard on the housing question received no reply, but he (Mr. Bennett), as Colonial Secretary, asked Hon. Mr. Anderson to go into the matter with him, but heard nothing further from that gentleman.

Mr. Hallyard here explained that the day the letter was sent he was going on his shooting trip. Strange to say, Mr. Mews had failed to acknowledge it.

Hundreds of houses, not thirty, are needed to relieve the situation, and the day will come when those responsible for their breach of trust will regret it.
