STEWART'S
Home Made Bread,
THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.
Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the poise or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.
The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

Briand Determined on German Disarmament.

Boston Has Builders' Strike--Steel Company Refuse to Back Down--Montreal Restaurant Gave Free Meals--Six Policemen Ambushed and Killed--Other Murders Reported.

SENT ON DISARMAMENT.
PARIS, Jan. 20. The prime purpose of the Briand treaty in directing the government of the nation will be to obtain real peace for France through disarmament of Germany, it was declared in the new ministerial statement of Briand placed before the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon.

THE BRIAND PROGRAMME.
PARIS, Jan. 20. Premier Aristide Briand presented his programme of his Ministry to the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate today. The programme contains the following points, namely, Germany must disarm and pay the reparation due from her. France has the right to compel respect for engagements taken with her, and would use it if necessary, but it is not her duty to bring Germany to her knees. Peace with Germany must be made effective. On no account must the new circumstances be allowed to intervene in the internal affairs of Russia, but must admit that her armies shall be the Russian frontiers to attack the Allies of France. Confidence is expressed that Britain will aid France to arrive at an agreement on settlement of all questions concerning peace now in suspense.

OUT ON STRIKE.
BOSTON, Jan. 20. Twelve thousand Building Trades men walked out on strike today as a result of a dispute over the wages. Approximately 500 others have been out of work since Monday.

REDUCTION IN WAGES WILL STAND.
SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 20. The management of the Steel Plant at Sydney has agreed to a reduction in wages, which the company would have to go into effect.

BRADY GETS OUT.
NEW YORK, Jan. 20. After a conference here late this afternoon between Tex Rickard and Wm. A. Brady, who holds a power of Attorney for Charles Cochran, the third joint promoter in the proposed Dempsey-Carpentier bout, the former announced that he had offered to take over Brady's interest and bond in the project.

REPRISALS.
CORK, Jan. 20. The first official destruction for an attack on Crown forces in Cork city since martial law was enforced were carried out this morning, when two houses in Washington Street, where members of the Constabulary were attacked on Saturday last, were destroyed.

FURTHER MURDERS.
DUBLIN, Jan. 20. District Inspector Tobias O'Sullivan was found shot dead early this morning near the Listowel Barracks, County Kerry. Jeffrey McDonald, a laborer, was shot dead in bed in the presence of his wife at Abriex, County Queens. Three men are alleged to have killed him.

STRIKERS WERE QUICKLY RE-PLACED.
SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 20. Some twenty men engaged by the Cape Breton Co. cutting ice at Grand Lake, went on strike this afternoon, demanding five cents an hour more pay. According to information received to-night the men were readily replaced and the work was not tied up very long.

TO PROTECT CROWN FORCES.
DUBLIN, Jan. 20. The military authorities issued a proclamation to-day declaring that attacks on Crown forces in motor cars continued "known rebels will be carried as hostages."

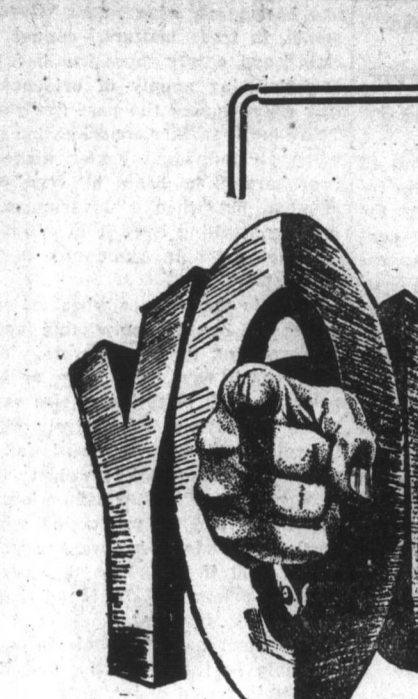

The Career of Quinn the Actor.
On Tuesday, January 21, 1766, James Quinn, a celebrated actor, died at seventy-three years of age, having been born in King Street, Covent Garden, London, on February 24, 1693. He was educated at Dublin, of which his grandfather had been Mayor, but from 1714 he became a famous actor in London theatres. In 1747 he was at Bath. In Somersetshire, whence he wrote briefly to John Rich, "I am at Bath; yours, James Quinn," and received the laconic answer, "Stay there, and be damned, Yours, John Rich." When George the First, Elector of Hanover, succeeded Queen Ann on the British throne, he seldom came to England, and consequently his son, who became George the Second for Britain for 33 years, could never understand the English language perfectly. George the Third, who reigned for fifty-nine years, said that he would never have been able to speak English if he had not heard Quinn the actor. In 1766 the latter visited Bath, where he was exceedingly popular with the nobility and gentry, and died there, being buried in the Abbey Church of that city. A monument was placed on the south wall of its nave, and his epitaph was composed by David Garrick, the celebrated actor, as well as author of nearly forty pieces, and who died on January 20, 1779, at sixty-two years of age. It concluded with the verse:
"The tongue that set the table in a roar,
And charmed the public ear, is heard no more."
This epitaph has been recently removed out of the public sight.

SWEAR OFF TOBACCO
"No-To-Bac" has helped thousands to break the costly, nerve-shattering tobacco habit. Whenever you have a longing for a cigarette, cigar, pipe, or for a chew, just place a harmless No-To-Bac tablet in your mouth instead, to help relieve that awful desire. Shortly the habit may be completely broken, and you are better off mentally, physically, financially. It's a easy, so simple. Get a box of No-To-Bac and if it doesn't release you from all craving for tobacco in any form, your druggist will refund your money without question.

BEGINNING RIGHT.
Let's all begin the new year right, and make a record snow white. Let's drive our cars twelve miles an hour, and not show off their pep and power by stepping heavily on the gas and slaying people as we pass. What is the hurry, anyway? Why speed her up? We have all day to get to Punk-ton-on-the-High, where we expect to spend the night. If we'd cut out the foolish haste the present wild and wanton waste of humus, life would promptly shrink—it's worth a new year vow, I think. A more important vow this is than wearing out on drugstore fix, or punk cigars that smell like shoes when you have deftly lit the fuse. Of course the gents who have no cars may waste their vows on hay cigars, but we who push our clanking vans should make some new and drastic plans. We're slaying thousands every year as down the turnpike we career; the dead are lying where we raced, and all because of maudlin haste. What is the hurry, anyhow? It's all uncalled for, you'll allow; we have all day in which to reach the famous Bilge-town-by-the-Beach.

Fairies Do Exist.
Dainty fairies, dancing elves, and frisky gnomes have long lived in the imagination of young people, and grown-ups, too.
Now we are told, on the authority of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, that not only are fairies real, but that they can be photographed.
The novelist has been led to this conclusion by the remarkable accomplishment of two girls who, three years ago, took photographs of fairies in a Yorkshire valley. To remove any doubts as to the genuineness of the photographs, which are published in the Christmas Number of "The Strand Magazine," the original negatives were submitted to searching tests by experts, who are convinced that they have not been faked.
The two girls, Iris and Alice Carpenter—cousins—were sixteen and ten years old respectively at the time the photographs were taken. The camera, an ordinary "Mig" quarterplate, belonged to Mr. Carpenter. His daughter asked one day if she might use it, and after some hesitation her father put in one plate and gave it to the girls.
Posting Alice behind the bank of a river, Iris took a snapshot which showed fairies dancing before her in the bracken. This occurred in July, 1917, but no attempt was made to exploit the incident or make this extraordinary photograph public. Two months later Alice took a photograph of Iris, showing her seated beneath a tree with a gnome dancing about her. When questioned about the photographs, Iris declared that while she had no power of any sort over the action of fairies, she would "tice them," as she called it, by sitting with her mind turned in their direction. "Then, when faint stirrings or movements in the distance heralded their presence," she would beckon towards them.
It is stated that the two girls have since secured still more wonderful photographs of fairies. The photographs can only be obtained by the girls themselves working together.
Excellent home-made's bedding can be made by folding a strip of muslin and stitching it firmly.

Nobles as Navvies.
Now that they can never regain their old glory, the exiled Russian nobility who formerly adorned the late Tsar's court are enjoying the novelty of working for their living.
There are in France hundreds of these nobles engaged in different industries, and some are actually doing manual work as navvies. Moreover, many officers who once held high rank in the Russian army are now taxi drivers in Paris.
Count Paul Ignatieff, who was a close friend of the murdered Tsar, now sells milk in Garches. His wife, who was the most beautiful woman in Petrograd, milks the cows at dawn, while the Count's second son grows mushrooms at Saint-Germain.
The most dashing cavalry officer of Russia, Colonel Skouratoff, has exchanged the sword for the hoe, and is becoming an agricultural expert. At a Paris garage another famous colonel may be seen any day in overalls.
General Nicoloff, commander of the Russian troops in France during the war, now drives a motor-orry for a wholesale firm in Paris.
Two princes are bank clerks, and many nobles and officers have become motor mechanics. Prince Boris paints lively interior decorations for chateaux. In order to buy his outfit he had to pawn his jewels.

A Belgian woman, who lost her husband in a railroad accident, received from the company $2,000 by way of compensation. Shortly after she read of a traveller getting twice as much for the loss of a leg. She went to the company and protested that the difference was unfair.
"Madam," said the official, "the two awards are perfectly fair. Four thousand dollars won't provide the man with a new leg, but for $2,000 you can easily get a new husband."

T. A. Juvenile Treat.
The treat given to the members of the T. A. & B. Juvenile Society yesterday afternoon, proved a big success. At 5.30 some 450 members, accompanied by the Guardians attended the Majestic Theatre, where they enjoyed an hours entertainment. Returning to the Hall at 8.30 o'clock the boys were given a splendid tea, which was prepared by the lady friends of the Society, and after all had partaken of the good things provided, each boy was supplied with a bag containing Apples, Oranges, Candy, etc., and at 9.30 the affair was brought to a close. The Guardians with their lady friends afterwards held an enjoyable dance, the music for which was supplied by Mr. N. Murphy's orchestra. Before the close Vice-President, Mr. J. J. Murphy, on behalf of the Society, thanked the Ladies' Committee for the kindness and interest shown in looking after the arrangements and bringing them to such a successful conclusion.

An African Republic.

There is talk of an African Republic the founding of which will gather together all the African negroes under one form of government, though where the capital or country of the to-be-formed consolidation of negroes is, no person has yet declared, but probably it will be in Africa itself, whither every negro living in white countries will eventually hie. The organizer of the new Republic is Marcus Garvey, who is the most striking figure among American negroes, and whose desires are to embody a new spirit of independence among the colored people. Mr. Garvey is already known as the President of the Provisional Republic of Africa, President-General of the Universal Improvement Negro Association and African Communities League of the World, President of the Black Star Line of ocean going steamships, President of the Negroes' Factory Corporation, and Editor and publisher of the Negro World, the most powerful newspaper on earth. In passing it might be said that there is but one other famous man, who presides over so many and varied ramifications, and who also controls a newspaper, but there the analogy ceases. Garvey is acclaimed by millions of his color as the Black Moses (erstwhile applied to a local liberator) destined to rank in history, according to one fervent biographer, "alongside Nador, Alaric, Attila, Genghis Khan, Cromwell, Napoleon, Bismarck and Washington."

This antitype of the foremost ancient and modern geniuses in history was born in Jamaica, receiving his education there and in England, coming to the United States in 1917, there beginning the movement which has resulted in associating a large proportion of the negroes of the world in organizing a negro steamship line (Black Star) that will connect the principal negro centres in Africa, and also in organizing a theoretical government, the object of which is to build up a negro nation strong enough to be able to dictate to the other nations of the world on subjects close to the hearts of the black people. Garvey's demands are radical. He wants complete economic independence and social and political equality for the negro, a strong contrast to the ideals of the late Booker T. Washington and his successor Dr. Robert R. Moton, who advocated a gradual advancement of the negro through work, education and adaptation. Early in 1920 Garvey decided to call a great Negro Convention and over 3000 delegates responded to his call. From Australia, Abyssinia, Liberia, Haiti, Cuba, West Indies, South and Central America, Canada, Europe, came negroes to present their grievances, advance their recommendations, participate in the drafting of their Bill of Rights and Declaration of Independence, and to hear Marcus Garvey tell them his idea of the destiny of the black race.

The Convention was held in Harlem, New York City, and on August 31, 1920 "there was issued to the world a declaration of Negro rights and a constitution of negro liberty, proclaiming then and thereafter the negroes political, racial, economic and religious equality, with, and independence of, the white and other races, and set in motion the forces deemed necessary for the establishment of a negro super-government of the world." The developments of this Black Declaration of Independence will demand attention. With a negro world population of four hundred millions, such a huge number if welded together can become a formidable force capable of dominating all other races. And Garvey's ambition is to accomplish this welding process. He has already enrolled three million negroes in the United States as paid members of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, a number equalling almost one third of the negro population of that country, and once under way the Association will ere long enroll every negro in the republic. Ten millions of black people organized for the purpose outlined by Garvey and with ideas that they are the chosen, the destined rulers of the world, will constitute a menace to the United States, and as well to both continents of the Western Hemisphere, for all negroes will ultimately be drawn into the association, headed by a man who is educated, eloquent, ambitious and determined and who has already made such a profound impression on the negroes of both Americas. Instead of a yellow peril it is not outside the range of belief that the Caucasian race may yet have to face the ordeal and attendant horrors of a Black Peril.

Fatal Accident at Glovertown.

S. L. PARMITER SCALDED TO DEATH.
(Daily News.)
ANGLE BROOK, Jan. 20. A serious accident occurred here yesterday. While Mr. S. L. Parmiter of Harbour Grace, was operating a locomotive crane, hoisting rock from an excavation, the crane and boiler turned over and Mr. Parmiter was caught underneath the boiler and badly scalded. He was taken to the staff house and his burns dressed. He suffered considerable pain. His condition to-day is hopeful. The other workmen escaped with slight injuries.

LATER.
ANGLE BROOK, Jan. 20. Mr. Parmiter died this morning as a result of scalding and internal injuries from yesterday's accident. Mr. Parmiter was working for the Terra Nova Sulphite Co., Ltd.

Repairs Completed.

BASAAN MAY SAIL TO-NIGHT.
Repairs to S.S. Basaan, which has been lying in the harbor for over three months after undergoing a most unusual number of mishaps, will be completed to-day and it is probable that the ship will sail either to-night or to-morrow morning. The tug Balenas which arrived here on Wednesday will tow the Basaan to Norfolk, Va., where she will join the large number of wooden ships now lying up at that port. These ships, which did good work during the war have now outlived their usefulness and are entirely unsuited for shipping requirements of to-day.

Hon. J. D. Ryan's Generosity.

In our issue of yesterday, describing the Grandfather's Clock, which is to be disposed of for a most worthy and charitable object, a slight error occurred. The clock was purchased by the Hon. J. D. Ryan, who with his usual generosity has presented it to be disposed of for the object referred to. This is only another example of Hon. Mr. Ryan's philanthropy.

DIED SUDDENLY.—The following message from Magistrate Vatcher, Old Perlican, was received by the Deputy Minister of Justice yesterday:—"Benjamin Morris of Lower Island Cove, died suddenly at that place yesterday on his way to the woods."

Economic Conditions.

ARTIFICIAL PRICE FIXING BUILDS UP.
Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—It seems to me that in all the discussions we have had in reference to fixing or regulating the price of fish by Governmental control there has been very little real argument upon the merits of the case. The economical truths which underlie the whole argument have not so far as I know been touched upon either in the press or in public debate. The error began, in my opinion, in a false idea as to the meaning of price and value. A prominent politician, we know, thinks that price is an arbitrary matter, that it can be put up or down at will, for he has continually boasted that he has raised the price of fish. Now it is absolutely certain that price is not an arbitrary matter. A definition of "price" is that it is the negotiable value of an article expressed in terms of money.

The Loss of the Ludwig.

CAPT. HOEBERG SLIPPED LIFE-BOAT'S FAIRWAY.
The crew of the ill-fated schr. Ludwig arrived in port this morning by the s.s. Digby, from Halifax, after an eventful voyage, described by Mate Johnson as follows: The Ludwig left St. Anthony on November 1st, fish laden and bound to Gibraltar. The vessel met stormy weather on the passage across and lost her foresail and jumbo. It was forty-two days after leaving here that the other side was reached and the tide struck the vessel entering Gibraltar, so Malaga was made, and on the 12th December anchor was dropped on the east side of the breakwater at that port. At about midnight a strong S. E. gale sprung up. Captain Hoeborg, who was on deck, called Mate Johnson and told him the vessel was dragging and ordered out the lifeboat, which after much difficulty was launched. The crew jumped in and prepared to get away. Seas were breaking alongside the Ludwig, and the lifeboat filled the men every minute expecting to be swamped. When all was in readiness, Capt. Hoeborg, who was still on deck, slipped the lines, he refusing to go. Owing to the likelihood of the lifeboat sinking, the crew did not delay, and made the shore with some difficulty. On the following day, Monday, the mate went to the breakwater with a diver, but nothing was done, the storm was then at its height, and only the topmasts of the vessel could be seen. Shortly thereafter, a diver visited the scene, went down and searched the vessel, but could find no trace of Captain Hoeborg's body. After duly reporting the matter, the ship's crewmen left for Gibraltar, and from there to Tilbury, England, where they joined the s.s. Digby. The following are the crew of the Ludwig: William Johnson, mate; Johan Gustafson, boatswain; Arthur Walker, cook; and Edward Brown and K. Nelson, seamen. Captain Hoeborg came to St. John's when a young man. His father was a physician and himself served some time as a druggist in his native country. He was 71 years old when he met his death. He has two sisters residing in New York, and also one brother, Michael, charge of a Submarine School at Newport News, a dangerous place in Boston, being a trained nurse. Mr. M. Holland, of Baird's, is a son-in-law. Capt. Hoeborg's wife, who is left to mourn, is a sister of Miss Morris, Librarian at the Colonial Building.

has become an adage, that "Governments, in trade matters, cannot do right" and surely there has been an overwhelming supply of evidence to this effect during the past five years. There is the further consideration that when an individual dealer makes a poor bargain he bears his own punishment, but when a Government or large controlling body is in error the trade of a whole community is jeopardized.

Price is the balance wheel of commerce and has the remarkable faculty of correcting its own errors. Thus the French say, "The cure of high prices is high prices" and vice versa. When an article is relatively cheap its consumption is increased and its production discouraged; when it is relatively dear its consumption is diminished and its production stimulated. The tendency is always to rectify errors, and if left alone the natural level of prices will be found, but if artificially controlled, trade will become dangerous. Economic laws are infallible in their working and it is useless to try to dodge them.

Yours truly,
W. G. GOSLING.

Drunk Fined.—A man who was charged with being drunk and disorderly, created such a disturbance when arrested that he had to be handcuffed. He was fined $5.00 or 10 days.

Mr. Ayre Upholds Judge.—The next case called was that of Wm. Campbell against a man for cutting down some trees on his property. Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., appeared for defendant and asked for leniency on the grounds that the offence was not deliberate. Mr. G. W. B. Ayre, who acted for the plaintiff, before going on with the case, said that his attention had been drawn to some correspondence which had appeared in the Daily News between Judge Morris and a city clergyman, as a result of criticism to which the judge had been subjected by the reverend gentleman's congregation. Mr. Ayre characterized the clergyman's conduct as being a piece of gross impertinence. "Even if the Judge's comment had been correctly reported, it would be a gross impertinence," said Mr. Ayre, "and I submit that when something does appear to put the Judge in a wrong light it is the business of any wishing to criticize, to see if the report is correct." The Judge had been held up to ridicule and contempt. "If," said Mr. Ayre, "the clergy will criticize the legal profession, then the legal profession should criticize the clergy and it would be a great deal better if the clergy were criticized more. I submit that the reports which have appeared of late in the press, are exceptionally good and reporters have no right to be hauled over the coals for little discrepancies of this sort. The reporters have to be congratulated and not slated on the way their reports have been made. I think the bar holds your Hon-

Trouble in Berthing.

Some trouble was experienced in berthing S. S. Digby this morning, as the Basaan was obstructing the pier and the Storborg ahead of her at Harbour Grace. Both steamers had to be moved. When the attempt to move the Storborg was made it was found that her steering gear was frozen up. It was thawed out eventually, and then the ships were moved. In hauling the Digby into the wharf a lot of sloe ice got between the ship and the pier, so that the services of the tug Mouton had to be requisitioned to make a clearance. About two hours after arriving in port the Digby was berthed.

Digby's Passengers.

S. S. Digby arrived in port at 10 o'clock this morning, 43 hours from Halifax. She brought the following passengers: Mrs. E. W. Wille, Miss Ada Wille, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Morine, H. P. Tanner, W. J. Barrett, Dickie, W. Barrett, H. E. Ellis, Eben, Fraser, H. E. Raine and 5 seamen of the Ludwig from London, or S. S. Saxonia.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Morine, who were christened in St. John's and New Year vacation with friends in Canada, returned by S.S. Digby this morning.

HOEBERG REPORTED.—It has been reported to the Marine & Fisheries Department that a small boat, called berg is some 8 or 9 miles S. E. of Cape Spear an dia dangerous to navigation.

Police Visit House.
FIND OCCUPANTS DESTITUTE.
Last night the police visited a house on Quill's Road in search of a Mrs. Cousens, who had been reported missing by her husband. The house, which is owned by Mr. T. King, is in very bad condition. Some time ago, the chimney blew down and it has not yet been replaced. Owing to the stove having been broken at the time, the occupants could neither light any fire nor cook food. For some days Mrs. Garrett, who lives on the first floor, has had nothing to eat.

Duke, who lives on the upper part of the house, is in similar circumstances. The police are endeavoring to get aid from some charitable organizations, and in the meantime proceedings are being taken against the landlord. The police found the woman they were looking for in the house and restored her to her husband.

Llewellyn Club Lecture.

There was a very large gathering at Canon Wood Hall last evening to hear the lecture on "The Companion Foot" by Rev. Dr. Jones, and those present had the pleasure of hearing the lecturer in his very best form. Mr. C. E. Hunt occupied the chair and after a local solo had been rendered by Rev. C. A. Moulton, he introduced the reverend lecturer. Dr. Jones, in an address that lasted an hour, held the close attention of his audience. He spoke of the different classes of men throughout the world and how their lives were in some measure shaped and influenced by heredity, environment, will-power, and religion. To each of these the fool companion whispered his advice and always with a view to weakening the character and purpose of the man. He exhorted those of his audience who had been blessed by talent or wealth to make good use of these gifts and to disregard the advice of these companions who would have them abuse them while those who had not been given the same opportunities as others he asked to fight on notwithstanding the advice of those who urge them that it was useless to fight against drawbacks and lack of opportunity. The lecturer gave many examples of men and women who had succeeded in life in spite of humble birth or great disadvantages, dealing among others with the careers of Booker Washington, Helen Keller and Dr. Barnardo. At the conclusion of the doctor's able address a vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. R. Hibbs, M.H.A., was extended to the lecturer in a most enthusiastic manner. Dr. Jones in returning thanks expressed the pleasure it gave him that so many attended the meeting, and he hoped his series of lectures would have an influence for good on the men of the Llewellyn Club and of the city. The meeting then closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The Children's Celebration.

MONDAY AFTERNOON—THANKS-GIVING DAY.
The Royal Stationery report a record sale of tickets yesterday for "The Old Homestead" and Monday night's plan was practically sold within an hour. There are, however, some very choice seats available for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights, and the boxes are also open. No better way we think could the children celebrate Thanksgiving afternoon than by going to see "The Gansy Boy, Ricketty Ann, and Cy and Seth, who furnish the comedy down on the farm; and their young hearts will surely be charmed by the appearance on the stage of the real live horse and his load of hay. There is plenty of good, clean, wholesome fun right through the performance, while the story carries with it the strongest temperance moral of any. It furnishes a delightful evening's entertainment for young and old.

Methodist Guards Band Concert.

WILL BE HELD IN COLLEGE HALL.

Music lovers are looking forward to a band concert which the Methodist Guards Band is giving on Monday evening in the College Hall. A varied and interesting programme has been arranged. In addition to the Band, some of the leading artists of the city have consented to perform. The concert was resuscitated a year ago through the efforts of Inspector General C. H. Hutchings, who is Lieutenant of the Brigade, and of Charles and Alexander Rooney. Most of the instruments of the old band were destroyed in the fire which destroyed the bandstand without a home. Four new cornets and two clarinets have been purchased. Now there are twenty-three in the new band and a number of recruits, who on many days are good members of it. The members are returned to the city of hand funds, will not give up the movement. The Methodist Guards Band and in the hope that success will crown the effort every lover of "old gang" will join.

Monday night's programme follows:
 1. March—No. 4, M.G. Band.
 2. Song—Mrs. Gordon Christian.
 3. Horn Solo—Capt. Bulley, C.C.C.

 5. Song—Mrs. C. F. Garland.

M. C. L. I. Debate Woman Suffrage.

Woman Suffrage should not be granted in Newfoundland before next general election. That is the opinion of the Methodist College Literary Institute. Debating the subject at last evening's session the Institute, after an unusually interesting, and one might say, warm couple of hours, rejected the resolution by a fair majority. Reginald Herder, H. Young and A. Pelly led the affirmative forces, while George Rabbitts, G. R. James and H. Moore marshalled the arguments which were to be elaborated by their side.

People were used to looking at this question of Woman Suffrage in a manner of lightness, the affirmative speakers contended. Always, among men, at any rate, it was regarded as a question which should not be seriously regarded as it was considered a matter, at bottom, of democracy seemed to be lost to those who thought of the question at all. "Under God the people rule" went the old axiom. "Governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed," declared the great document of American independence. "The voice of the people is the voice of God," contended the philosopher. But, applying these as the test of democracy, Newfoundland did not measure up. "People" here meant men. Women weren't considered "people." Women here weren't citizens and they had no part or say. They had to keep "their mouths shut" and their minds untainted by any radical ideas of ballots.

Not because she is a woman, but because she is a human being should woman enjoy the right to vote and was not there to exploit woman's weakness. The fact that she happened to be human was all that interested them. They could see no difference—speaking of political rights now—between a man and a woman. If one was entitled to those rights the other was.

Touching on the subject of expediency, the affirmative speakers held that affairs in Newfoundland were such as to make it highly desirable that woman's influence for purity and cleanliness and decency and morality be brought to bear. Politics and public life were at their lowest ebb. They were wallowing in grime and filth. They were dragging down with them all the best that the country's Parliament one saw evidences of this same degradation. It was time that such were cleaned up. Woman is notoriously adapted to cleaning up. Selah!

"Woman's place was in the home," declared the negative speakers. Home was the bed-rock of civilization. On that bed-rock rested all that were evidences of the sanctity and exclusiveness of the home were being scrapped. To this fact one might attribute those evils which one sees in the world to-day. Boys and girls led their home lacking the qualities of character which made them good men and women. What was the cause of this? Simply that woman was neglecting her home. And what was the cause of that? That she was giving too much thought and time to her "rights." Hence the degradation that politics attend to the home and leave politics attend to the men. Besides, when woman goes into politics she steps from the pedestal on which she has been placed.

In're the expediency of women enjoying political privileges, the negative side was skeptical of the good beneficial results which would accrue from her participation in government. Political meetings would lose none of their rowdiness because of the presence of women, they declared, and even the objectionable habit of smoking in such meetings would not cease. Would it then be advisable to bring woman under such environment? Again, Woman Suffrage was merely the whims of faddists and imitators. Also, woman does not want the vote. Therefore she should not have it.

Besides the set speakers the following participated in the debate—Walter Sparkes, E. Busey, A. Moore, H. J. Russell, Chesley Bowden, A. E. Hayward, A. E. Parkins and J. R. Smallwood. Following the vote Mrs. J. B. Mitchell, one of the ladies present, spoke for a few minutes at the Opening of St. Stephen's Hall.

AT POINT LA HAVRE AND GASKIER. On Thursday evening, January 6th, a most enjoyable time was held here on the opening of the new hall. The entertainment began with a concert, conducted by the teachers of this locality, Misses M. Ryan and V. Hayward. In the opening address, delivered by one of the school pupils, the name of St. Stephen's Hall was bestowed on the new building. This name was given with the approval of the community as a fitting tribute to their beloved pastor, Rev. Stephen O'Driscoll, who laboured so extensively and cheerfully encouraged the erection of this beautiful hall. The programme of the concert consisted of fourteen items, every one of them, without exception, being beautifully rendered, considering the short time in which the performers prepared their parts, and it being their first appearance on the stage. The programme was as follows:—

- Welcome Song.
- Farce "Sally's Peppermint."
- Song—"Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond."
- Dialogue—"Mrs. Mills Interviewing Servant Girls."
- Dance—By Tots.
- Farce—"Sudden Bethrothal."
- Song—"Mother Machree."
- Song—"Won't You Buy My 'Pretty Flowers'."
- Dialogue—"Washing Dishes."
- Song—"Roaming in the Gloom."
- Song—"Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."
- Farce—"Frightened Beau."
- GOOD NIGHT.

A number of visitors from nearby places were present, all of whom expressed themselves as amply repaid for their efforts in attending. The hall was beautifully decorated and the tables were well worthy of praise. After the performance, refreshments and teas were served and dancing indulged in. On the following night the entertainment was repeated, which proved equally as successful as the former one. Again, I would add my congratulations to all who helped make this time enjoyable, and particularly to the performers on the great success of their efforts.

The Terra Nova's had a very good practice last night. Len Stick is showing more of his old form, and "Bill" Clouston is also in great shape. Jim Herder is proving himself fully capable of carrying on the hockey traditions of his family in spite of his youth.

The Faldians also had an excellent practice last night. It was very fast throughout and proved that last year's champions are a force to be reckoned with this year. "Bert" Tait, "Nix" Hunt and Payne were all very good and nearly all the other players showed up well.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

ON WHAT PEOPLE CAN AFFORD.

RUTH CAMERON

We were talking the other day of a woman who has a beautiful big room and bath in the heart of the city—for which she pays $15 a week. Someone said something about women washing things out in their rooms and someone else said "Miss J. wouldn't."

"Why not?" I asked. "Why, because she wouldn't be apt to have a room that she paid $15 for if she had so little money that she had to wash things out in her room." "Isn't it possible that it's the other way round?" suggested someone else. "What do you mean?"

Because she does scrimp. "That she can afford a room like that because she does scrimp in other ways."

"I never thought of it, that way," said the first observer. "No," said the second, "I think people seldom do." "He's right, isn't he?"

I think that is a trick of the average person—to think that, because someone else knows can afford this or that extravagance, it is a sign he or she has plenty of money and can afford some other extravagance. When just as likely as not, it is a sign, rather a reason, that he can't afford it.

Over and over again one hears people criticised for not spending money in this way or that. "She has plenty," says the critic; "she can perfectly well afford it."

They Tell You of Some Big Expense And then you ask how her financial state is known, and like as not you are told of some heavy expense she has been under.

For instance, I was told the other day of a little old lady who was so mean that she scrimped herself unmercifully on her meals. "She's got plenty of money and no one in the world to leave it to but two nieces," said my informant.

On inquiring how she knew I was told this: "Well, her sister was sick a year and they had a trained nurse all that time and were always calling the doctor." "I fancy that anyone who has been through an experience like that can understand that it might be a reason why the little old lady had no money, rather than a sign that she had plenty. And the fact that she had only two nieces to whom to leave the money, she was hoarding, has as its other face the fact that she had only two nieces to look out for her if her own resources gave out."

Two Wonderful Classes of People. One simply cannot tell by what people spend or don't spend what they have or lack in the way of money, and one might as well give up trying. There are wonderful people who can spend money without having it, and there are equally wonderful people (to me anyway) who can have it without spending it.

If I had space I meant to give you a most interesting description of one of these two classes written by the other, but it is evident I'll have to save it for another day.

A Gold Bath. Yesterday morning Mr. Clooney while working on Long Pond received a ducking in the icy water. He was in the act of looking on a block of ice when he slipped and went under. His fellow workers pulled him out and had him driven to his home near the White Hills. After a change of clothing Mr. Clooney returned to work apparently none the worse for his cold bath.

Wedding Bells.

The marriage took place on January 2nd, at Grate's Cove, B.D.V., of Miss Esther Duggan, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Duggan, of that place, to Mr. Austin Hatch, of Red Head Cove. The bride wore a costume of blue silverstone with hat of henna plush and veil to match, and was attended by her sister, Miss Annie Duggan, R.C. School Teacher at Grate's Cove. Mr. James Rice, of Red Head Cove, performed the duties of best man. The bride only recently returned from Boston, where she had been for the past five years engaged in the nursing profession, and is a daughter of Mr. Peter Duggan, the well known veteran sea-killer of Grate's Cove, he having last year completed his fortieth spring at the icefields. After the ceremony the wedding party proceeded to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous repast was served before the young couple left for their future home at Red Head Cove. Many useful and costly presents were received by the bride and groom, testifying to the esteem in which both are held. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Hatch every happiness in their new life.

Enjoyed Lecture.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—It has been my privilege to-night to listen to the lecture delivered by the Hon. R. A. Squires. Seldom are we treated to such vivid word-pictures and as a mother and one who is deeply interested in the uplift of our Island Home, I am constrained to pen a few lines of appreciation of the high ideals voiced by our Premier.

Surely we may rejoice and look for great and noble results where we have at the head of our Government one who so tactfully and yet emphatically presses home the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount, and calls for the living, ay, ring it out, "the living" of the same.

The musical part of the programme rendered by the choir of Cochrane Street Church was certainly delightful and refreshing in this age of "movies." May we hope for more gatherings of this standard in our old city.

Thanking you for space, I remain, Yours sincerely, —J. Jan. 19, 1921.

Funeral of Late M. A. Duffy. The funeral of the late Michael A. Duffy, which took place yesterday afternoon, was one of the largest seen in the city for some time. In addition to citizens of all creeds and classes, it was largely attended by members of the Benevolent Irish Society with the Officers acting as a Guard of Honor, and there was also present a contingent from the Elks, of which Society deceased was a chartered member.

The late Michael A. Duffy was educated at the Christian Brothers' school this city, and for many years a trusted employee of the firm of Parker & Monroe, being for some considerable time foreman of their East End branch, until about fourteen years ago he went into the grocery business for himself. Of late years his health seemed to fail, and two years ago he spent several months in a Sanatorium in Alabama, U.S.A., where his health seemed to improve. However, on his return to Newfoundland, the climate, although embracing in summer, proved too rigorous for his impaired constitution in winter. About two weeks ago he contracted a severe cold, and despite the best medical aid he slowly sank until the great summons came, when his soul took its flight to the Great Unknown.

Notwithstanding his failing health, he was of a cheerful and happy disposition and seemed to have hosts of friends, as was testified by the large concourse of citizens of all classes that followed his hearse and attended at the R. C. Cathedral yesterday afternoon, where his body received the last sad rites of the Holy Catholic Church conducted by the Rev. Father Leamy. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Martin. Interment at Mount Carmel Cemetery.

Mr. Duffy's early and unexpected death, at the age of 48, came as a severe blow to his family. He leaves to mourn a wife, two sons and two daughters, one in Pittsburg, U.S.A., and Andrew, Grocer, New Gower St., also one sister, Mrs. Coffield of this city. To his sorrowing relatives the writer, who was a sincere friend of the deceased, extends sympathy for the great and irreparable loss they have sustained. May the Lord have mercy of His soul. T. J. Noted Revivalist Coming. In connection with the Great Call Campaign now being waged worldwide by the Salvation Army, and the necessity of rekindling the fire of the Holy Spirit in our midst, Colonel Martin the Territorial Commander for Newfoundland, seeing the need for such, has written General Bramwell Booth, leader of the Salvation Army, London, and asked him if he could send a revivalist to that end, which he has readily acceded to and as a result Major Gallaher will arrive by the S.S. Schem about Tuesday. The Major is an old officer, having 32 years of service to his credit, and was stationed at the Congress Hall, London, the largest of the Army's halls. Since then he has been working under International Headquarters, and travelled with Commissioner Higgins, Chief of the Staff, and other noted British Commissioners as a revivalist, and his arrival is looked forward to with great delight by the Army people and the public generally. The Major is an eloquent and very touching speaker, and has that happy knack of entertaining as well as pressing home the truths of the Gospel. The Major will remain for about six months and starts his Revival Services in this city about the first of February. We bespeak a good time for the people of St. John's and the outports, nearly all of which he will visit.

Hunt for Jewels of the Dead Czar.

World-wide search for the crown jewels of the late Emperor Nicholas II. A dozen governments in Asia, Africa and America, agents, diamond merchants, dealers representing multi-million-dollar wealth after week keep up the search for information for themselves. Diamond buyers rush from New York to London, London to Amsterdam, from Amsterdam to Constantinople, Constantinople to Moscow, following the legend of the looted jewels of the Winter Palace Kremlin. After more than two years it is estimated that more than a million dollars' worth of jewels has been traced to the Russian imperial family and nobility have been definitely or partly traced, and in some cases located.

Among the jewels included in the sum mentioned are a large diamond worth $50,000, and a ruby ring, the latter the gift of the late Czar to the Czarina, both found near the scene of their murder at Ekaterinburg. It is positively known that when the Emperor and Empress with the Czar's children and other members of the imperial family were taken to death there had been concealed on their persons half a million dollars worth of jewellery. These pieces, it is probable, were all private possessions of the imperial persons, and did not include any of the crown jewels, which belonged to the Russian state. Unearthed in London. More Russian studies, to the value of $375,000, were unearthed in London recently at the time of the scandal of the offer of Bolshevik money to the radical British labor paper, the Daily Herald. It was discovered that Bolshevik agent, believed to be acting under the direction of Kameneff, then the Soviet diplomatic agent in London, had sold 1,983 carats of loose diamonds of from two to twenty-five carats each for $149,200. The remainder of the sum realized at that time was from set pieces.

Another find of looted Russian treasure was in Amsterdam not long ago. Holland has been for some time the stamping ground for many Bolshevik agents and agitators. These men have not been working, not yet living on air; and as Amsterdam, with its big colony of diamond brokers, furnished an excellent place for converting Russian jewels into guilthers, it is believed that much precious loot has changed hands there. For instance, there was in Amsterdam not long ago a gentleman calling himself Cabret. He was an agent of Lenin, and his real name was Avinoff. Cabret or Avinoff, had a very fine ruby which had been drilled and a beautiful diamond set in the centre; a most unique and valuable jewel. His possession thereof was unknown until it was suddenly found on the market and its sale traced back to him. This particular piece of stolen riches had formerly belonged to Baroness Kondrine, one of the leaders of Petrograd society before the war. It was famous in the city, as she was in the habit of wearing it as a pendant.

When the Bolshevik assumed power, two years ago, on the fall of the Kerensky government, one of their first concerns was the question of finance. They immediately organized a grand sweep of all the territory under their control for two kinds of wealth; first, gold and securities; and, second, jewels. The latter, forming what is known as the "jewel fund," has been kept mainly for propaganda purposes—propaganda in foreign countries. One reason for this use of the jewels is that it is much easier for Soviet agents to smuggle a large sum of money into a country in the form of a few superb diamonds, pearls and rubies than gold or registered securities. All the Russian nobility and bourgeoisie who had not fled the country were made to yield up such part of their treasure as were not found in banks and vaults. In cases where the owners had hidden or buried their property, all sorts of unpleasant "pressure," often successful, was used to make them reveal its whereabouts. But whether the prized crown jewels were grabbed for this fund is difficult to say. There is one "well-authenticated" report that they were hidden at the outbreak of the revolution and never have been found by any of the succeeding governments. It is even stated that the British government knows the hiding place; but this statement, true or false, is, of course, officially denied. It is true, however, that $350,000 worth of precious stones were deposited with the British consul in Petrograd after the revolution and these jewels were afterwards safely brought to England. The ownership of this treasure, interestingly enough, is not revealed. It may or may not include some royal gems.

On the other hand, the numerous reports from radical Russian and international circles that the Bolsheviks have the crown jewels are true. It is still easy to understand why none of them have appeared on the open market. Famous jewels are as well-known among dealers and pawnshops as any masterpiece of art. To sell secretly, for instance, the wonderful Orloff diamond from the imperial sceptre would be practically impossible. This stone, weighing 194½ carats and worth about one million dollars instantly would be recognized by any dealer or hazy informant enough to be able to purchase it. Cut up into a number of smaller stones it might, of course, easily be disposed of; but the Bolsheviks would lose enormously by this method, and if they ever had the diamond it is almost certain that they retain it.

Undoubtedly the most romantic and at the same time most tragic of the authenticated stories of the Russian jewels is the one involving the murder of the Czar, Czarina, Czar's children and other members of the imperial family in the suburbs of Ekaterinburg, their last place of imprisonment. The jewels found by the committee investigating the murder were turned over, it is understood, to surviving members of the imperial family. Of those, however, which the murderers took from the bodies of their victims, there is little definite trace. It is known that some were sent by the Bolsheviks to Scandinavia, where they were sold and the money used in propaganda work. Among this lot was a big platinum and diamond pendant with a large black pearl set in the centre. It belonged to the Czarina, being also a gift from the Czar, and was one of her favorite ornaments. This piece, which was last sold for more than $10,000, changed hands a number of times and finally was bought by a wealthy Scandinavian and presented to a London actress to whom he was engaged. Taking No Chances. But despite the apparent mystery regarding the whereabouts of the bulk of the Russian crown jewels, the European governments are taking no chances of future complications with the first Russian Government which will be recognized by them. The various customs services, police and detective forces are constantly on the watch for the appearance of any of the famous gems. No sale of any of the Russian crown jewels would be recognized as legal at this time. Ice Harvesting.

Quite a number of men are now engaged harvesting ice from Long Pond. Messrs. Cloney and King are cutting for the Butterine Factory, while Mr. Hanlon is getting a supply for the General Hospital and McGuire's Bakery. Mr. Quigley begins cutting for "Horwood's" some time next week. About 14 teams are engaged hauling the supply, some 850 tons, for the Butterine Factory. In all about 2,400 tons of ice will be removed from the pond this year. In some parts of the pond the ice is 14 inches thick and the work of cutting is somewhat difficult. Ice ploughs are used to some extent, but most of the cutting is done with saws, axes and ice bars. The plough scoring to a depth of eight inches, is usually run the length of the opening or breast, and generally about 3 feet from the edge, forming a block perhaps 40 feet long. This is then notched with an axe into blocks two feet wide and then sawn through to meet the cut made by the ice ploughs. Ice bars are next used to break the blocks clear. These are then piled to a gangway, where they are caught with tongs or grips and pulled up by horse power. The blocks are then "squared" or shaped and hauled away for storage.
