Lloyd George
Will Not go to Washington.

British Delegation to Meet Irish Leaders Appointed--League Assembly Adjourns--Printers of New York to Arbitrate.

PANAMA CANAL TOLLS.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.
Arbitration with Great Britain on the question of free tolls for United States ships through the Panama Canal was advocated in the Senate today by Senator Colt, Republican, Rhode Island, who announced that, because he believed in arbitration, he could not support the Borah Free Tolls Bill which is to be voted on next Monday. The Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, Senator Colt declared, is open to a possible construction regarding the rights of United States shipping to tolls exemption. The United States, he said, undoubtedly had the right to exact the Borah Bill, but in view of the double construction, he said, the matter should be adjusted by arbitration, rather than by an arbitrary statutory enactment.

SIX DELEGATES TO WASHINGTON.
MELBOURNE, Oct. 6.
The British delegation to the Washington Conference will consist of six delegates including three Dominion representatives, Premier Hughes announced in the House of Representatives here today. The Premier said he had received this information in a cablegram from London. The Australian Government has appointed George Foster Pearce, Minister of Defence, as its representative.

A "FOURTH INTERNATIONAL."
LONDON, Oct. 6.
The London Times labor correspondent says that Silvia Pankhurst, militant suffragist, "having been expelled from the British Communist Party for continuing to run the 'Workers' Dreadnought,' as an independent organ, after she was told not to do so, now announces the adherence of her new paper to the Fourth International. Correspondent says that nothing previously had been heard of this international, but it appears to have been formed within the last few tempt to depart from the whole nation as a unit would lead necessarily to a political absurdity. He asserted that the dividing of Ireland did not get rid of minority problems, but multiplied them. He said the unity of Ireland was as much a fundamental principle as self-determination, adding that both were based upon right and justice.

BRITISH DELEGATION.
LONDON, Oct. 6.
The British Cabinet after a two hours meeting this afternoon was adjourned until to-morrow morning. It was learned that the composition of the British delegation to the forthcoming conference with the Irish leaders was discussed, although the names were not finally approved. It was understood that the Government would be represented by the following delegates, Mr. Lloyd George, Lord Birkenhead, Lord High Chancellor,
Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, Austen Chamberlain, Government leader in the House of Commons, Sir Laming Worthington Evans, Secretary for War, and Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies.

THE PRINTERS' STRIKE.
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.
The Big Six New York local of the International Typographical Union has declared by a vote which was practically unanimous to arbitrate its differences with New York Employing Printers' Association concerning the new wage agreement. John McPartlan, President of the International body, advising the printers on Sunday said that the strike in New York would be fraught with possibilities too grave to be entered upon lightly. He said the Executive Council is collecting and disbursing in excess of $300-000 monthly for strike and other benefits throughout the country and the seriousness of the rupture in New York was too apparent to need further comment. "The Big Six" is the largest contributor to the fund.

LLOYD GEORGE WILL NOT AT-TEND.

LONDON, Oct. 6.
Premier Lloyd George stated definitely that it would be impossible for him to attend the Washington Conference, in a telegram he sent to the Ambassador at Washington, which is quoted by the Melbourne correspondent of the London Times, as having been read by Prime Minister Hughes, in the House of Representatives. According to the Prime Minister's telegram to the Ambassador, says the correspondent
"it was arranged, at the recent Imperial Conference that his Majesty's Government should represent the whole Empire at Washington Conference, but the Government would prefer to include the Dominion point of view. Mr. Lloyd George added, "It will be impossible for me to attend as the conference in sure to be prolonged and so many matters demand by attention in England."

Just Kollas
COURAGE.

What is courage but the will
To do the noblest thing;
To meet what comes of good or ill
And play the man and soldier still Though hurt and failure sting.

What is courage but belief
That good shall crown the strife,
That disappointment's hours are brief
And out of bitterness and grief
Men come to larger life.

What is courage, but the sum
Of all that men have learned.
The songs of voices long since dumb,
The call of freedom's stirring drum,
The shackles men have spurned.

What is courage, but the grace
To meet life's trials well,
To bring the splendor of your race
To duties grim or common-places
Until the final bell.

Queen Victoria and Gladstone's Rudeness.

A member of the Royal Household is credited with the following new anecdotes about Queen Victoria:

The late Queen ran the Court on German lines, and was extremely severe. She would never allow the Maids of Honor to sit in her presence.
Gladstone made himself unpopular by criticizing the custom when he was once at Court:

"After dinner the statesman sat next to Queen Victoria in the spacious green saloon. Half-a-dozen of the senior ladies of the Court sat in chairs ranged in a semicircle behind her Majesty, and behind them stood the Maids of Honor and Equerries in waiting.

"During a pause in the conversation between her Majesty and the then Prime Minister, the latter said to the Queen:

"I feel somewhat embarrassed, your Majesty, at seeing those young ladies standing while I am seated."

"You need not feel embarrassed," replied Her Majesty rather severely. "It is the rule of the Court that they should stand in the presence of their Sovereign."

"I hope Your Majesty will pardon me for saying that it is a rule I wish Your Majesty could see your way to alter," replied Mr. Gladstone, bluntly.
"Her Majesty made no reply, but so angry was she that, a few minutes later, she rose from her chair and, giving the Prime Minister the stiffest of bows, retired for the night accompanied by her Mistress of the Robes, the Hon. Duchess of Devonshire, and her Ladies of the Bedchamber.

"The next morning Mr. Gladstone left Windsor without seeing the Queen."

Salisbury's Apt Reply.

There is also this story about the Queen:

"The two subjects in which Queen Victoria showed the greatest interest in the last few years of her life were the making of her will, and about how she would read in history. On the latter point she was extraordinarily sensitive, and very much open to flattery;
yet at times she was almost pathetically fearful that future historians would not speak as well of her as she would wish.

"Once she said to Lord Salisbury:
"Sometimes I fear it may be written of me that I reigned too long."

"Too long, Your Majesty," replied Lord Salisbury, who was by no means an inexperienced courtier, "for the greatness and beneficence of your rule ever to be underrated, even by the careless student of history."

Motor Association Dinner at Dorovan's.

PRESIDENT APPEALS FOR CO-OPERATION.

A more enjoyable social function than the second annual dinner of the Newfoundland Motor Association would be difficult to imagine. There was not one of the eighty members and guests who sat at the festive board at Dorovan's last night, who could say in all sincerity that he had not enjoyed himself, and as one speaker expressed himself, the only regret was that these affairs were not held every three months instead of only once a year. If the Motor Association undertakes to do a thing, it does it well, and from the moment that the gathering sat down to enjoy the splendid repast, to the favour of which Mr. Outerbridge's humorous comment added, until the National Anthem brought the evening to a close, not a dull moment was spent. To Musical Directors J. A. Mackenzie and Ernest Fox, a great deal of credit is due, for it was they who initiated the song sheet, extracts from which we are only prevented from printing by lack of space, and there were none who were left with any excuse for failing to join in the choruses. The musical programme was undoubtedly better than any ever arranged for a similar function, and Mr. Gordon Christian, L.R.A.M., A.T.C.L., who presided at the piano, greatly assisted in making it a success. At every conceivable opportunity Mr. Mackenzie would call for some humorous or sentimental chorus, and all present responded heartily to the call. Mr. H. E. Cowan, President of the Association, occupied the chair, a task for which none than he was better fitted.

APPEAL FOR CO-OPERATION.

An after-dinner speech is not the easiest kind to make, but every speaker last night seemed to be overflowing with eloquence and some very clever addresses were made. In replying to the toast of "Newfoundland," the Prime Minister said that the country lived in its people. Newfoundlanders had characteristics of their own, and these enabled them to rise to the head of whatever profession or other occupation they took up. He quoted instances of successful Newfoundlanders abroad in proof of his assertion. The foe of financial depression was upon us, and we should have to gird up our loins for the fight. Sir Richard made a strong appeal for unity in the cause of the country, and was sure that in the end we would arise victorious from the slough of Despond in which we, in common with the rest of the North American continent, appeared to have been cast.

In replying to the toast of the Legislature, Mr. W. J. Higgins spoke in a serio-comic strain. He pledged to the Prime Minister, that in all that was fitting and right for the commonsense in which we live, the Opposition would be big enough to give the best that was in them.

In proposing the Motor Association, Mayor Morris made a speech full of cherry optimism, and he congratulated the Association and the Road Commission on the work it had accomplished in helping to build better roads. Mr. Cowan, in reply, made a strong appeal for co-operation amongst motorists. Barely over one third of local motor car owners were in the Association, and progress, must necessarily be retarded until a unity of purpose is established amongst the whole motoring public, and until they strive their utmost in the common cause of good roads and better conveniences.

In replying to the toast of the Road Commission, Mr. R. Hibbs, M.H.A., gave a condensed account of the season's work, and outlined the programme for next season. He said good roads and good hotels, could help to put Newfoundland on the map. If not handicapped by lack of funds he hoped that next year the Road Commission would be able to replace all wooden bridges by concrete, travel covered culverts. He deplored the evasion of their taxes by several motor car owners, and said that these people were merely cheating themselves. He outlined a plan for the raising of a loan of $250,000 to be "paid off" by means of a sinking fund in 20 years. The amount for the interest on the loan could easily be paid by means of the Government subsidy and the motor taxes. Mr. P. E. Outerbridge was responsible for keeping the gathering convulsed with laughter by his humorous remarks about the press, and he is undoubtedly rapidly advancing to the forefront amongst our after-dinner speakers. The speech of the evening was expected from Mr. C. E. Hunt, but were any disappointed for that gentleman was in his usual humorous vein. Mr. McIsner, the new manager of the Royal Bank to whom Mr. W. White, in proposing the "Guests" made a pleasing reference, replied briefly, and then delighted all by a splendidly rendered recitation in French-Canadian dialect. The health of the Chairman was proposed in felicitous terms, and it was coupled that of the municipal director. Mr. Cowan made a brief response, and after several choruses had been sung, Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem brought the affair to a close.

Admiral Sturdee.

HAS BEEN PROMOTED TO HIGHEST RANK TO BE HAD IN THE BRITISH NAVY.

What the baton of field marshal is for officers of the army the flag of an admiral of the fleet is in the British navy, and the many friends in Canada of Sir Frederick Doveton Sturdee "of the Falkland Islands" will be gratified to learn that he has just been promoted by King George to this the very highest rank in his possession. Naval men will remember him in connection with the troubles in Samoa near a quarter of a century ago, and also as the victorious commander in the one great and decisive naval battle in the great war—namely, the total destruction of the German fleet under Admiral Count Spee off the Falkland Islands in the spring of 1915.

How Sturdee arrived there in the nick of time, his coming quite unexpected, and how he annihilated the German fleet with comparatively little loss of life among his own men, by reason of the superior range of their guns, is a matter of history and furnishes a shining page in the naval annals of Great Britain. Sturdee's victory of the Falkland Islands preserved many hundreds of allied and neutral merchantmen from being captured or sunk by the German raiders, and for his services, the full value of which has never been entirely appreciated by the public, he received the thanks of Parliament, a vote of promotion to the rank of vice-admiral. Subsequently he took part in the battle of Jutland, which as a victory was unfortunately of a less decisive character though through no fault of Admiral Sturdee, second in command.

Sir Frederick, the parent of whose baronetcy by order of King George bears the additional words "of the Falkland Isles" appended to his title as part and parcel of the dignity, now makes his home with Lady Sturdee at his country seat in Hampshire, known as Meon Lea, near the village of Droxford, so familiar to all the disciples of Isaac Walton. For it was at the rectory of Droxford that Isaac Walton spent all the closing years of his fishing his famous trout stream, the Meon, and making his home with his son-in-law, the rectory, Rev. Dr. Hawkins, and with Mrs. Hawkins, nee Walton Sir Frederick has an only son of the name of Lionel to inherit his honors. He belongs to the same calling as his father and won his promotion to the rank of commander by gallantry in the great war.

One of the best known guides in Nova Scotia gives this testimonial of MINARD'S LINIMENT:

"I have used Minard's Liniment in my home, hunting and lumber camps for years, and consider it the best white liniment on the market. I find that it gives quick relief to minor ailments, such as sprains, bruises and all kinds of wounds. Also it is a great remedy for coughs, colds, etc., which one is liable to catch when log-driving and cruising during the winter and spring months. I would not be without MINARD'S LINIMENT and cannot recommend it too highly."

Bar's Guest of Honor.

A remarkable oration and his unanimous installation as an honorary member of the Canadian Bar Association, was the meet of appreciation tendered Sir John Simon at Ottawa, upon the conclusion of his address on the subject of "the vocation of an advocate." The address was public, in connection with the annual meeting of the Association at Ottawa. The audience included leading public men in Ottawa, as well as judges and barristers from out-of-town points, and their ladies.

Lawyers, said Sir John, were a misunderstood class, denounced for vices they never practised, and acclaimed for virtues to which they seldom attained. Even at his best a lawyer was supposed to possess supernatural coolness and cunning, able to produce a witness as a conjurer produces a rabbit from the left of his coat. The real truth was, however, said Sir John, that the advocate was a plain, hard-working person. It was to the glory of the legal profession, he said, that men trained in law and imbued with its powers have so often proved leaders in national progress. It was a profession which opened the road to public service. Often it was that a lawyer's brief was liberty and his client's humanity.

Mr. Justice Duff presided, and in his speech of introduction referred to Sir John Simon as a leader of the English Bar. Aime Geoffries, K.C., Montreal, tendered the vote of thanks and proposed that he be made an honorary member of the association, which was unanimously approved.—Weekly Star.

The War Memorial.

The time is now drawing near when the War Memorial Executive will, if it proceeds according to its adopted plan, decide on what form the memorial will take. It is, so we understand, the intention of the Executive to spend on a memorial the amount which they will have in hand by the end of the present year. If they hold to this decision then we fear that the memorial which will be erected will not be one worthy of the sacrifice which it will commemorate. This has already been pointed out in several articles published in this paper some weeks ago. With the views expressed then we still hold. No memorial should be erected until sufficient funds are in hand to enable us to obtain a monument which will be worthy of a city of our size and importance. There has already been too much delay, but rather than that we should have an inappropriate memorial, it would be better to do without one until such time as sufficient money is attained to warrant our obtaining one to which we can all ways point with pride.

A Successful Season

With last night's dinner the activities of the Newfoundland Motor Association were concluded for the season. That the past season has been a most successful one, every motorist will agree. Although handicapped by lack of funds, the Road Commission, which owes its existence to the efforts of the Motor Association, did splendid work in connection with their road repairing operations and are deserving of the grateful thanks of not only motorists, but also of all who have at times, to use the roads on which repairs were effected. It is an unfortunate fact that the Association has not received the full support of the motoring public. Why this is we do not know, but it is an undeniable truth that until motorists decide to co-operate and work in a common cause for the betterment of motoring conditions in this country, no really beneficial results can accrue. At present motoring is done here under anything but pleasant conditions. The roads, are on the whole, bad, there are no service stations out of town beyond those situated in one or two Conception Bay towns, whilst many other things which would make motoring more of a delight and less of a drudgery could be accomplished through united effort. Next season, this may come about and it will indeed be a great pity if it does not.

Interesting Lectures.

At the weekly prayer meeting held on Wednesday in the Presbyterian Hall, Rev. R. J. Power gave an interesting address on the history of the Presbyterian Church. This lecture was the first of a series which will be continued on alternate Wednesdays. A large number of people attended on Wednesday while many had to be denied admittance.

MINARD'S LINTRENT BELIEVES COLDS, Etc.

In the Storm Wake.

The storm which raged from early Thursday morning until late in the afternoon, left in its wake a trail of damage amounting to thousands of dollars. In the city proper there was but minor damage, but on the outskirts where the wind had full play, the loss of property is considerable, particularly where new dwellings were being erected. On the country roads there was plenty of evidence of the work of the storm. Trees were uprooted and fences smashed. Shipping in the harbor was also more or less damaged, practically half the vessels there drifting from their anchorage. At Torbay and other Eastern settlements many fishing boats were swamped on their moorings. Very little news has come from the outports as practically all the lines are out of working order.

A Total Wreck; Crew Sent Home.

News was received to-day that the Kora Ragnas, which struck on Perolle Point on Saturday is a total wreck. As previously reported, the crew are saved and Hon. Tasker Cook, Norwegian Consul, has made arrangements for the Home to take them from Bonne Esperance to Bay of Islands from where they will proceed to Montreal. Some of the cargo of the ship, consisting of wheat and other agricultural products has been salvaged by men of the district. The Kora Ragnas was a ship of between 1,300 and 1,400 tons dead weight, and was owned by C. Ragnas of Hangeaund, Norway, whither she was bound at the time she struck.

A Last Chance.

The unfortunate girl Barron, who twice within the past week has appeared before Judge Morris on a charge of vagrancy, again appeared this morning on a similar charge. She had been found on the street at 2.30 a.m. Her father appeared and stated that he could not keep her at home. At the Judge's request he said he would give her one more chance, but if she would not stay at home he would hand her over to the judge.

No More Leniency.

His Honor Judge Morris, in sentencing a man convicted of larceny, to three months' imprisonment without the option of a fine, said he wanted it understood that no leniency could be expected from him in connection with any similar cases which should come before him. He intended to do all that he could towards putting down this epidemic of burglary. The accused had taken two suits from the White Clothing Factory and a pair of boots from Jan. Baird.

5 Fishing Vessels to Sail at Halifax.

LUNEBURG, Oct. 5.—Five Nova Scotia vessels are assured as entries for the Canadian fishing schooner championship race, the first of which is scheduled to be sailed at Halifax Saturday, Oct. 15, according to announcement to-night. Two others, it is said, are probable starters. The five assured are the Bluenose, and Canada, built at Lunenburg and Shelburne respectively this spring. Delawana, last year's winner, Alicia, winner of third place last year and Independence, ninth in last year's race.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LONG TOW ENDED. BOSTON, Oct. 6. What shipping men said was the longest tow in recent records came to an end here to-day when the steamer Monroe brought to port the steamer Oskaloosa after a voyage of 1,300 miles marked by many days of rough weather and calls at St. John's Newfoundland and Halifax N. S. CUP SENT TO HALIFAX. GLOUCESTER MASS., Oct. 6. The United States Fishermen race committee to-day sent the international cup won last year by the Esperanto to Halifax N. S. to be held by the trustees of the trophy until second the contest for it of that port late this month. The schooner Arthur James, Captain J. Matheson to-day entered for the elimination trials of this port next Wednesday. Capt. Marty Welch who sailed the Esperanto to victory last year will sail the Elsie in America's elimination race the committee announced to-night.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, Oct. 7, 1921. There are a few of our customers who prefer a Whalebone Hair Brush to any other kind, saying that the Whalebone Brush is very stimulating to the scalp, that it cleans the head thoroughly of dust, sebum, and dandruff, without scraping or irritating the skin of the head; and that a brush made of this material will last for years. These persons told their friends of the virtue of these brushes, and the small stock we had was soon sold out. Having this fact in mind, we ordered a few more. These latter have now come to hand and are on sale. So that anybody who needs one of these Brushes may obtain one. Price $2.25 each.

Train Notes.

Yesterday's outgoing express arrived at Bishop's Falls at 3.10 a.m. and is due at Port aux Basques to-night. The incoming express left Port aux Basques early this morning, and is due here at 1 p.m. to-morrow with the Kyle's mail and passengers. The Carboner local arrived on time. The Trepassay local left town at 10.30 a.m. The weather along the line was fine this morning. At Clarendville the temperature was 50 degrees.

Why Not?

Clymer Jeffries, Jr. of Williams, Ariz., four and one-half years of age, recently acquired a small dog and a few days later the following conversation occurred between him and his next-door neighbor: "Mrs. M., I want you to keep your chickens out of our yard." "Way, Clymer, what do you mean by that?" "Well, I have a dog over here, and if your chickens come over here I am afraid that he will get the chicken pox." An epidemic of chicken pox was on at the time.

Nurses' Association Meet.

The annual meeting of the Newfoundland Graduate Nurses' Association took place last evening at the Community Room, Public Health Building. The President, Miss Southcott, occupied the chair. The annual report was read and adopted and 11 new members were admitted to the Association. The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place and resulted in the re-election of Miss Southcott, President, Miss Taylor, V-President, and Mrs. Hiscock, Sec.-Treasurer. The members were afterwards entertained at supper by the President.

Who Said "Botwood Road"?

(By BRUD.) Now that the fictionalized Botwood Road is coming into reality, we, the sporting public of Grand Falls—and that's all of us—are anticipating the good use of it. Long has the need of a highway to the coast been felt here. But now, thanks to the "gents at night" in the House, something is being done in the matter and we hope soon to have our cars "raising new dust" as we speed away from the scenes of our work to find new joy where the fresh sea breezes blow. At one time we were inclined to feel somewhat pessimistic about the thing, and partly because of this satire "Good Old Botwood Road" given at a minstrel show here about a year ago made a big hit. And if our worthy representatives themselves could have been present at the time "Freddie" gave us this, we must have imagined them secretly weeping over what he said though they "split their sides" at the way he said it. Our people in the Government. The good, kind-hearted souls. Have promise and potentiality. And now rest peacefully content With conscience in repose! While we with praises hardly spent Watch how the good wind blows.

How often from the mental sight We've viewed with longing eyes That lengthy strip of nearly white Stretched out into the moonlit night Beneath the summer skies, We wondered if the "gents at night" Would ever hope. But now our hopes are on the wing, We look to days ahead. When cars a unit shall fling and rolling waves our welcome sing As to the coast we're sped. When life shall be a gay thing With hale sea-freshened led.

Increases Field of Wheat

Experiment of Treating Seed Electrically Meets With Success in England. An interesting experiment as to the effect of electrically treating seed wheat before sowing has been carried out at Bodmin Green, Elmsted, Kent, during this season by W. F. Pledge of the Victoria flour mills, Ashford, the London Times states. The variety of wheat chosen for the experiment was "red standard" and two adjoining plots were sown on November 13 and 14 last at the rate of three bushels to the acre, the seed on one plot being electrically treated and that on the other not. The land was treated exactly alike all through the year. Recently the growing crops were inspected by a party including R. L. Robb, lecturer on Agriculture at the South-eastern Agricultural College, Wye, Kent. A marked difference between the two plots was noticeable, the wheat on the treated portion being much the more vigorous in growth and habit, and promising, so far as the experts present were able to judge, a yield at least 20 per cent higher than that of the untreated plot. There were evident signs of rust, too, in the untreated crop, and it was a significant fact that the other plot was, at any rate at the present stage, entirely free from this disease. It was the general opinion of those present that electricity is likely to become a very important factor in the cultivation of agricultural crops and that great developments along that line may be confidently anticipated in the near future.

The dark room, necessary evil, has always been the one rigid obstacle to the perfect flexibility of the photographic art. Now, however, the operator can carry a complete dark chamber along with him, and develop his exposures when and where he pleases. The "room" described and illustrated in Popular Mechanics magazine packs in a case less than two feet long, about a foot wide, and four inches thick. It opens to a height, in the larger size, of 18 inches in front and 13 inches in back with walls of light-proof fabric. Elastic cuffs at the side admit the operator's hands, while he looks through a hood in front, equipped with two shutters that are opened by pressure on the hood, and instantly close on release. Trays and plates are inserted through a rubber-glassed door in the top.

Robbing the Pessimists

A pessimist has been defined as a man who lives with an optimism. But the Bishop of St. Albans states that the pessimist "is such a one as wears a belt as well as braces." This definition falls, because it obviously embraces only one half of the human race, and yet there are female as well as male pessimists. We should be inclined to say that the man who wears a belt as well as braces is simply more prudent than the ordinary man, knowing what post-war braces are. He believes in being braced up and at the same time having a belt to his bow. Such a man will far, but he will seldom land himself in an awkward situation. A pessimist is surely a person who is devoid of faith and hope, and who sees evil in most things; whereas the type of man quoted by his lordship believes in both belt and braces, and probably patent medicines, to say nothing of the sweeter and more comforting things of life.

The pessimists are obviously enjoying themselves at the moment, and one would think, judging by their attitude, that they had lost both belt and braces, and were too sceptical to re-equip themselves. Things are undoubtedly bad at the moment, and no respect to the pessimists there is no hope of recovery. They are particularly severe on youth, and the latest object of attack is bobbed hair. A female is surely entitled to bob her hair, and the fact that she cuts it short whilst she continues to talk at great length is not necessarily a sign of decadence. It is urged that she bobs her ears, and that her powers of hearing are affected in consequence, though we must confess we have never noticed the fact. Is there a bobbed head in the land which is unable to hear a compliment? The question answers itself. The male critics of bobbed hair are often baldheaded, and the heads of the female critics are parting hair. These critics are afflicted by envy and spleen, and if they bobbed their own heads, they would probably continue to give off steam.

There is no place for pessimists and male critics in times such as these. The pessimist resembles dirt in that he is a matter out of place, for he does his utmost to convey the impression that he would be better dead. Maybe he knows best, and personally, we prefer to live with optimists. —Liverpool Weekly Post.

Making Your Spectacles.

Very few people who use spectacles ever give a thought as to how they are produced, and do not realize by what an interesting process the lenses are shaped to meet the order of the oculist.

Before 1914 quartz and crystals, obtained chiefly from Brazil and Madagascar, were used, which explains the term "pencil lenses," but the transport of material became so difficult that ordinary crown glass began to be more generally used.

This glass is cut into various shapes, a few inches in diameter, and is then placed in a small furnace till red-hot, when it is lifted into moulds—oval, round, or oblong—and pressed down to take the curve required when mounted, after which the lenses are immersed in hot water.

In another department of the factory is a receptacle full of pitch. This is run into master moulds of many shapes and sizes, and is taken out as a thick block of "runner," upon which, while warm, the pieces of glass are pressed by hand—sometimes as many as 240 pairs on the block. They stick securely to the pitch, which holds them while they are ground with emery.

Afterwards they go to other machines and are polished with rough (oxide of iron) under thick polishes of felt, now very expensive, owing to the price of wool.

The lenses are taken off the pitch by being plunged into cold water that has been through a refrigerator. The sudden change of temperature's holds them upon the pitch that the lenses can be lifted with a knife or tapped away. Placed in racks, they are next plunged into a boiling solution to clear them, and then they are ready for the final polishing.

Having reached this stage, the lenses are forwarded to the optician, and it is his business to find the right curve to suit the sight and to cut the lens with a diamond to fit the frames for his customers. —Natty Hall.

LABRADOR: Past, Present and Future.

(By F. SHORTIS.)

The foregoing I have endeavored to describe the past and the present modes of conducting the Labrador fishery, the chief industry of our island home, and I am well aware that nothing like justice can be done to this important matter in the limited space at my disposal. I am also well aware of the almost entire impossibility of getting at dates and facts in connection with the past history of Labrador, as what has come down to us has been purely traditional, and for the facts in my possession I am indebted to the intelligence of many of our enterprising planters of the old days, whose tenacity of memory and powers of graphic description in their own matter-of-fact style, is second to that of no people in the world. So great was the gift of our people, that all their social and business transactions were invariably made by word of mouth, and commercial contracts and negotiations, which to-day would require reams of foolscap and all the ingenuity of the legal fraternity to make them binding, were performed by these men on their simple word of honor, and the instances are rare indeed wherein any of these compact were violated.

Now let us take a glance at what are the prospective possibilities of the future of Labrador. Time was when Labrador was looked upon as uninhabitable. It was viewed by many as the Siberia of Newfoundland, and whatever idea was entertained of existing upon its soil during the short summer months, he would be a bold man, indeed, who would openly suggest the possibility of maintaining civilized life during the winter months. All this is changing fast. The possibilities of a brilliant future for Newfoundland-Labrador are within a very measurable distance. To substantiate what I here assert, I may add the historic fact that as far back as the fifties of the past century, there was built and launched at Sandwich Bay, Labrador, a brigantine of about one hundred and forty tons. This vessel was built entirely of material which was the product of the immediate surroundings in which she was constructed, and nothing but the iron work was imported from England. From the keelson to the truck was native timber of Sandwich Bay, Labrador, and there are people even to-day, sceptical enough to doubt this fact; but when I assert that she was built for the great firm of Hunt & Henley, of Devonshire, England, and a few years after her launching, our respected townsman, the late Mr. Charles Ellis, for many years manager of our Floating Dock, made his first passage across the Atlantic in this ship, which was named the "Victor." I am under the impression that their want of faith will vanish into thin air, and they will be as ready to believe in the great future of the Labrador as the present writer. That there is a future, and a bright future for Labrador, I have no doubt. Science and commerce are going hand in hand into, as yet, unpenetrated wilderness. Already the proof of the prospects of its mineral capabilities are beginning to be shown, and there, although in the initial state, all the student with hopefulness of what is to come. Of its timber wealth, what has been explained has more than justified expectations, for the greatest proof of confidence in the capabilities and prospects of a new and undeveloped country, is the fact that capitalists are willing to risk their means in developing its resources, and this is at present being done on the coast of Labrador to a surprising extent.

I do not intend to write of the wealth of its waters. This is known to the world over, and, up to the present time, that was the only recommendation that Labrador had to the consideration of the commercial world. Of a sudden, and by no means, its topographical and mineral possibilities have been made known to the outside world, and men, who a few years ago, scarcely knew of its existence, are willing to-day to risk thousands, and hundreds of thousands, in exploiting its timber, mineral and other resources. We in Newfoundland, have been accustomed to look upon our Labrador appendage as the place where, for a few months in the summer, we gathered in our harvest of fish, and considered that during the winter months it was only fit to be given over to the fox, the wolf and the Eskimo—the aborigines of the soil. To-day things are different. The outside world has stepped in and shown us the treasure we had at our door, and our own capitalists are at length beginning to realize all that Labrador means, and are quite willing to risk their money on that coast in ventures other than the fisheries. Labrador is no-doubt coming in for her share in the march of civilization. The wireless telegraphy has already reached her shores—steam communication has tapped her most remote and seemingly inaccessible borders. There is scarcely a place or an arm on her immense coast that is not now annually visited by a steamer bearing some scientific or commercial expedition to test its capabilities, and to draw from its wealth; and, at no distant date, one cannot doubt that the electric light and a railroad will be as familiar to the inhabitants of Labrador, as that of the visit of an ordinary steamer at the present day. From everyday indications, one need not live to be a centenarian to be hopeful of witnessing substantial towns and cities reared on the banks of many of the great rivers which abound in Labrador, and which in a few years from climatic changes, which must inevitably follow in the march of civilization, attract the tourist, the capitalist and the health-seeker, to add to the wealth of this, at present almost terra incognita. It is only now that the value of Labrador is becoming to be realized, and its importance is becoming more apparent. It will in a short stand in the same relation to Newfoundland as Alaska does to the United States, with this difference, that Labrador belongs to Newfoundland, by right of inheritance, whilst the United States claims Alaska by right of purchase in the sum of $7,200,000, in the year 1867. I am safe in saying that had the Russian Government, which was, previous to the above date, the owner of that territory, foreseen the immense wealth it was destined to produce for the benefit of its new proprietors, no amount of money would have induced them to part with so valuable an acquisition. Russia was somewhat in the position towards Alaska in which we have been until recently, towards Labrador. They did not realize its value until too late, when the outside world and Yankee enterprise proved to them that there were other mines of wealth besides El Dorado and Peru. Looking back, it is a cause of deep regret to me to find that so much of the property of our old-time planters has passed into other hands, and the labor of years of the old industry, which has been swept

St. John Woman Says Her Muscles Drove Up in Great Knots

Mrs. Fred Smith Had Suffered Terribly For Ten Years Before Finding Relief.

It's wonderful the change Talcac has made in me and I'm convinced it's the best and grandest medicine in the world," said Mrs. Fred Smith, Power's Court, Glen Falls, St. John, N.B.

"My troubles started ten years ago with a disordered stomach and I became a confirmed dyspeptic. I suffered terribly from rheumatism, too, and the muscles of my knees would knot up in great lumps, causing me intense agony. I was in bed two months last winter and was so helpless my daughter stayed at my bedside to wait on me.

"Talcac has done more for me than I ever dreamed was possible. My rheumatism has left me entirely and I'm so well and strong now that I think nothing of taking a two mile walk. Everything I eat agrees with me too.

"Talcac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

away, and what they intended should have been handed down, from generation to generation, to perpetuate their names and their deeds, has, by some fatality, been abandoned and neglected, or, in most cases, handed over to the charge of strangers. The posterity of these people who allowed this state of affairs to go on, will have cause to regret the acts of their sires, who, through carelessness, or a love of roving in search of the unattainable Golden Fleece, neglected their patrimony until now it has become the property of a stranger.

I am not too sanguine in hoping that men now living will witness the march of civilization, penetrate the most remote portions of Labrador. Let us hope that some of our present city editors will live to send a campaign paper to Rigolet, Cape Mugford, Nain or further North, when some city legal luminary will be sent to oppose a lineal descendant of the last chief of the Eskimos, whose war-whoop in pressing his claims for election to be, that as a native of the soil, he is more entitled to their support than is the "alien" from St. John's, who knows little about their wants and requirements, less about their modes and customs, and nothing about the glories of their forefathers in hunting the walrus, the bear and the seal.

In conclusion, let us hope that whatever may be the future of our beloved Newfoundland, it should never be forgotten that Labrador is an integral part of our country, that from its shores has been drawn, in the past as in the present, the wealth that has made us what we are as a people to-day, and that unbounded possibilities lie before her in the future. Let no inducements be great enough to separate one from the other, and that the title of Newfoundland-Labrador may never be obliterated from the chest, should be the earnest prayer of every well-wisher, and native-born son of the soil.

THE PESSIMISTS.

The recent winter has been the best that ever struck the middle West. The skies were blue as skies of May, the sun was shining every day the breezes had the scent of spring, and summer birds came back to sing. And men of wisdom said, "Great Scott! This kind of winter hits the spot, so let us cast all fears aside, and take the gifts the gods provide. It may be we will have to pay for every bright and sunny day, but while the sunny days are here, we'll sing and dance and never fear." But there were grouches everywhere, and they denounced the balmy air. "We need cold weather now," they said, "with storm clouds looming overhead; we need all kinds of snow and sleet, we need a blizzard and repeat. This kind of winter is a flaw, a slip in nature's ancient law; and when she makes so bad a break, she'll even things, and no mistake. There'll be a blizzard in the spring, and it will riddle everything; the fruit will wilt in winter's breath, the bugs that should have died the death will eat the corn and hay and oats, and bear off our collective goods." And thus the robe of gloom is worn by fellows, who were made to mourn; they always miss the bliss and fun of basking in the genial sun.

Household Notes.

To remove mud stains from colored clothing let dry, brush out all you can and then apply a mixture of salt and flour. After a day or two brush out.

Put 1 cup boiling milk over 2 cups breadcrumbs. When cold add 1/2 cup sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, pinch salt and 1 cup chopped raisins. Bake in buttered tinware cups.

Cornd apples are delicious cooked in boiling water to which sugar and spices have been added. When tender, transfer the apples to a serving dish, add dates to the syrup and boil longer. Pour syrup over apples and chill.

Life With Our Hardy Bank Fishermen.

Fishing vessels, when on the Newfoundland banks, do not run for hours every time the barometer falls a gale. The usual thing is to make it hove-to under foresail, and make it hove-to under main. In these tremendous winter gales the sailors had to haul everything off the schooner, and she lay for four hours under bare poles, with wheel lashed and all hands below.

The modern bank fishing schooner will make "good weather" of a hard gale and a mountainous sea, and seldom take aboard any water to hurt her life on a fishing schooner hove-to in such weather is by no means pleasant. Its fearful leaps and plunges make it almost impossible to walk one step without holding to something, and the muscles of the body become strained and sore with the jolting and swinging. To eat and sleep under such conditions as the fishermen do calls for unusual stamina.

Although it is hard, cold and hazardous existence, the fisherman's life has some compensations. The cook carried the masters of the culinary art, and the meals provided are of the most luxurious description. All the staples and all the luxuries go aboard a fishing vessel.

A fisherman is always hungry, and in addition to three square meals a day he indulges in "messing" between times from the "black locker," or quick lunch cupboard in the fore-castle. Tea and coffee are always on the stove.

With stores going below, it is always warm and pleasant in cabin and fore-castle, and a fisherman's bunk, with a good, thick quilt of blanket and a straw mattress, makes a snug sleeping place. One never sheds many clothes on retiring; the discarding of boots and jacket is enough.

Horror of Vermin.

The cabins and fore-castles are clean and well kept. Vermin is a fisherman's horror, and the writer has known men of questionable cleanliness to be sent ashore.

There is a certain spirit of independence to the fisherman's life which makes it attractive. He is under no master but the skipper, whose rule is a fairly tolerant one. The men obey his orders without question, for he is who finds the fishing grounds, and the harder he keeps them working, the more money they will draw when the catch is sold.

A hard-driving, hard-working skipper can always pick up a crew, while the easy-going vessel master is not likely to be a "fish killer" and will never secure the best men. The crew works the ship on a co-operative basis, with the skipper as calling and fishing "boss." In Canadian and United States craft in which the writer sailed, the gang were shipped on the share system, their remuneration consisting of an equal share of the proceeds of the catch after all expenses had been paid.

The schooner took a quarter or a fifth of the gross stock, and this repaid her owner for the hire of the vessel. In good seasons, prior to 1914, many schooners paid their cost of construction within twelve months.

The successful bank skipper must be a smart vessel handler, to inspire confidence in his gang. They prefer to go out in the dories secure in the knowledge that the skipper can pick them up again if it comes on to blow. The skipper who gets adrift from his crew in squall or fog, will find it hard getting a crew to ship with him again.

Must be a Man of Nerve.

He must be an optimist and a diplomat, to handle the independent crowd who sail with him. He must never show nervousness or fear in dangerous situations and he must be ever ready to do the right thing at the right moment.

The men pin their faith on the skipper and trust him implicitly. Should he show anxiety as to his whereabouts in dangerous waters in thick weather or become confused when a wrong turn of the wheel may lead to a collision, his crew becomes uneasy and will lose their faith in his ability.

He must be something of a business man and keep the expenses of the trip down as much as possible. There is a profit in catching just enough to pay the outfitting. He is expected to know where bait can be procured at certain seasons and to "run" fish and crabs at the lowest price, and without the loss of too much time, and good judgment is called for a hundred times during a voyage.

He must be a navigator, a sailor, a fisherman, a diplomat and a business man. The bank fishing skipper is an outstanding type and one of the few who are splendid fellows. He can earn good money, but deserves every penny of it.

The age of the clipper ship and the days when the banks were the richest banks in the world are long gone, but the fishermen who have their own motor trawler is coming back. The fisheries and many of the tall-masted schooners are having their hulls and masts cut down, and their combustion engines installed.

A few years from now the schooner will give way to power and the fishermen who drove these boats and able hookers over the seas

A Bird's Incubator.

A remarkable example of a sort of artificial incubation is found in the brush turkey (Tatagallia) which is a native of Australia and New Zealand. This bird prepares a sort of incubator for its eggs which relieves it of much of the labor of brooding over them, which other birds find necessary. It scrapes together with its strong, muscular feet a great mass or mound of withered leaves and decaying vegetation, in which the female lays her eggs, arranging them in a neat circle. The decomposing vegetation soon begins to produce the needed warmth for developing the eggs. Meanwhile the male bird visits this great compost heap from time to time to regulate the temperature, and when the time for hatching comes to assist the young birds in extricating themselves from the decaying mass in which the eggs are reposing. He does not permit his youngsters to leave their warm home, however, until they are fully fledged.

JUST GLIMPSES.

"To Lois the possession of more money meant more opportunity to buy. To Justin on the other hand it meant the ability to pay; the comfort of being able to accede with ease and promptness to the demands upon him. Like most American husbands in his station, the sum spent upon house and family far exceeded in ratio his own personal expenses. There were a few luxuries which he casually looked forward to enjoying, but beyond this money represented to him pre-eminently further business possibilities, the power to play competently in the great game with the result of sufficient provision for his wife and children in the case of death."—Mary Stewart Cutting.

The above is an analysis of male

Sorcery in New Guinea.

New Guinea sorcerers, in my experience, kill their suspects by two methods, writes Capt. C. A. W. Monckton, in "Touring New Guinea." Firstly, by material means, that is, by the administration of actual poison; secondly, by esoteric means, that is, by working on the fear of the intended victim. Sir Francis Winter once told me that though he had tried many murder cases in which sorcery was alleged, he had never found any direct evidence that the sorcerer had caused the death; notwithstanding the fact that in some cases the sorcerer had actually admitted the guilt. To this Pyorrhoea is so insidious that we want to repeat again and again our former warnings against it. It is not painful as a rule, and that very fact makes it all the more dangerous. Watch for those bleeding gums, they are your warnings. Do not give your body a chance to absorb poisons that come from bad teeth or diseased gums. Anything from a headache to a serious illness may result from your neglect. Pyorrhoea is a dreadful disease.

The Horseless Carriage.

(A weekly column devoted to the interests of the Motoring Public.)

So, you don't expect a column to-day and last night the night of the Association Council. Here a heart!

Well, it certainly was a good time, but we are going to leave it to Mr. Purdie (of this paper's reporting staff) to tell you all about it.

There was a howl in the "Harbor Grace Standard" recently that round-the-Bay motorists objected to paying car taxes because a proportion of these taxes were handed over to the Motor Association and spent on the roads around St. John's. When will our good friends of Conception Bay learn the difference between "Motor Association" and "Road Commission"? The Newfoundland Motor Association is an absolutely non-political body and has never at any time received one cent from any Government or from the Municipal Council. The Newfoundland Government Road Commission is an organization established by the present Government to look after the roads and receive a proportion of the car tax. When the Road Commission was formed the Newfoundland Motor Association had already spent about five thousand dollars of its funds (collected by personal subscriptions from its members) on road improvement and had ordered certain road machinery. The Government Road Commission then gave the Motor Association orders to stop all road work, and stated that they would take over the road machinery ordered, and the Government invited the Motor Association to nominate three of its members to act on the Road Commission. The Motor Association took advantage of this offer, as it will take advantage of any favor received from any Government returned that will help it assist in the improvement of roads and conditions for the motoring public, but to state that the Motor Association—a private organization—receives any proportion of taxes from the Government or the Municipal Council is as ridiculous as it is untrue. Now Mr. "Harbor Grace Standard" put that in your pipe and smoke it!

"Walt Mason" ran a rival column to this one in last Friday's Telegram. We always read "Walt" and think his are by far the best of the imported contributions published locally. In case you missed what he had to say last week, we are going to give the composition the trouble of setting it up again as it is well worth repetition:

MY BUSY DAY.

My motor purrs and quickens, the tank with gas is filled; the road is strewn with chickens and cats that I have killed. Still faster, faster, going; and cattle that were lowing, and roosters that were cawing are now forever stilled. I have no earthly reason for hitting such a clip; I have the whole blamed season in which to make the trip; but my old boat's a dinger, a dust and gravel slinger, and so I do not linger—just watch the old girl rip! But, say, what ails my vision? I seem to be in bed! "You had a bad collision just now," the doctor said; "at high speed you were racing all motordom discharging, and now you see me placing this poultice on your head. Your car that was a daisy is wrecked beyond repair; the coroner is crazy so many dead are there; when two fools get to driving to break speed records thriving, its strange that once surviving as you are, I declare. The sad truth must be spoken though it may seem a frost; your collarbone is broken and both your ears are lost; with blood your dome is crusted, your diaphragm is busted, your works must be adjusted, and that at frightful cost." And from my couch of sickness I watch the motors pass and mark their pep and quickness when drivers give them gas; I may not drive such sprinters for many, many winters for I am all in splinters. Why was I such an ass?

It may be of interest to know that up to September 19th there were four hundred and fifty-three cars registered at the Municipal Council Office. As there were very few out-of-town cars included in the list, the total number of cars in the island is probably somewhere around five hundred. Not so bad a record for what is looked upon as a "hard year."

Ex-Mayor Gosling tried conclusions with a street-car last week, or the street car tried conclusions with Ex-Mayor Gosling, which ever way you like. After the conclusions had been concluded Mr. Gosling's car was in pretty much of a mess, but he had it out again on Sunday as good as new.

THE ART OF GEAR CHANGING.

(By G. H. Dawkins in the "Motor.") When a budding motorist is receiving his first instruction in driving, the instructor usually very carefully explains the procedure for changing gear and the respective position of the gear lever in the gate, etc., and, after a few trials, the pupil becomes more or less efficient. So far, so good. The question that arises is: What does it mean to change speed or, more accurately, to change gear? I think few novices realize the true significance of this. Many people make use of the expression, "change down to a lower speed." This is very misleading. You change down to a lower gear, but at the same time you increase the engine speed in order to maintain the road speed.

My point is that a great number of car drivers of to-day fail to realize the importance of the relative speeds of the engine and back axle of a car in relation to the different gears, and, to my mind, this is one of the first things which a prospective driver should properly understand.

At a nominal road speed it means that the lower the gear the higher the speed of the engine. The point in favour of double declutching is, I think, that the slight pause in the gate as the clutch is released before the re-engagement is completed, more especially in cars which have engines that are at all inclined to be sluggish.

I add the following lines, which, with the above remarks, I trust will prove interesting to, at least, a few of your readers:—

When changing up, to throttle down is a habit you should cultivate; But when engaged in changing down, it is necessary to accelerate.

But if by chance you forget this rule When trying your gears to mate, You will not fail to hear, O fool! That Awful Hymn of Hate.

We were asked this week who owned the first motor car in Newfoundland? We don't know. Perhaps some of our readers can supply the information. We remember numerous "steam cars" under which one had to light a fire for half an hour before going out and which then, after going a few miles, usually exploded at their steam through the "emergency valve" (or whatever it was called), and left one stranded on the road, but who imported the first of these atrocities we do not know. Everyone remembers the excitement that could be obtained from a drive with Mr. Dick Druken in the original taxi, and most of us remember a closed car which came out of the ark and which could be hired from an English driver—a temporary resident of the city—but these were not the first cars. Motoring in the early days was always interesting. We remember distinctly the time when you couldn't drive half a mile on Topsall Road without being held up by some old woman, while she put the nosebag over her pony's head to prevent him being scared, and which usually had the effect of frightening the pony much more than a procession of cars would have done.

The wealth of the city is probably represented in Bally Haly Golf Club. Why, therefore, don't the members agitate for some repairs to the road leading from King's Bridge to Bally Haly, which is now like nothing the Lord ever made. The short road leading from the main road to the Club House could also be greatly improved by being widened.

On the recent "Tag Day" a motor-

SWEET, PURE MILK—always on hand when you want it!

If you have never used Libby's Evaporated Milk, you will be amazed to find how good, how convenient and economical it is. Many women who first tried it in some emergency now use it always—they find it gives such satisfactory results.

There's no waiting for the milkman—you can always keep several cans on the shelf and in summer there's no bothering with ice, and in winter the milk wagon can get stuck in a heavy drift of snow as often as it wants to!

And there's less waste—a can of Libby's Evaporated Milk will keep indefinitely before being opened—and after you have opened a can you can use just what you need; the rest, put in a cool place, will keep several days.

Libby's Milk comes from the finest dairying section of America and is processed in our own sanitary condensaries—it is not the "distributed" product of an unknown and nameless plant.

OPEN LETTER TO THE MINISTER AND DEPT. OF PUBLIC WORKS.

Dear Sir.—Do you ever read this column? Not once but many times have we held forth in it on the disgraceful condition of Manuel's Bridge. On one side the railing is almost completely torn away, and if ever a restless horse meets a car on this bridge and becomes frightened, the horse and everybody behind it will go slap, bang on to the boulders of Manuel's River. Then the papers will describe it as a "terribly regrettable tragedy," but it will be nothing of the sort. It will be a tragedy due to criminal negligence on the part of the Department of Public Works. Get busy! To improve a well known proverb: "There is no use mending the bridge after the horse has gone over."

Yours hoping for immediate action,
MR. DUNLOP.

What was it the President of the Motor Association's partner said the Editor of the News was suffering from? It's a new one on us.

Friend: "Why don't you blow your horn when you see a cow in the road?"

Councillor H: "Why doesn't the cow blow. She has two horns, hasn't she?"

And somebody else told us one about there being enough (t)ing about Car Number 2222, to obviate the necessity of carrying a horn at all but we have forgotten the details.

We have been asked to draw attention in this column to the fact that a car which is said to be owned by a member of the Government is still parading around under a last year's number plate, No. 1424, its owner apparently having paid no license for 1921. The authorities are quick enough to get after the private owner who tries to evade paying his license and, if the facts are as represented, members of our great and wonderful Government are tamus from paying car licenses it certainly is not good enough and our informant has real reason for a "kick."

On the recent "Tag Day" a motorist who is also by way of being an animal lover had a curious experience. Coming down Water Street, he was halted by a young lady who insisted on pinning a "tag" on him and to whom he handed a "quarter."

As the Tag Day had not been properly advertised he was unaware to what fund he was contributing until he received the tag. When he discovered the collection was on behalf of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals he went back and supplemented his subscription by a dollar. Arriving at his office, he parked his car outside and was no sooner seated at his desk than a boy stuck his head inside the door and shouted: "Mister, a pony is eating your car!" Mr. Motorist went outside and found, sure enough, that a pony—of the genus Tor Bay—had knocked one of his lamps off which lay on the ground broken, and was busy eating the stuffing out of one of the cushions, having done altogether about ten dollars worth of damage. History does not relate whether this motorist is still an animal lover or whether he will subscribe to any further "Tag Days" in aid of dumb animals!

The motoring season is fast drawing to a close for the year of grace Nineteen hundred and twenty-one, and it is getting increasingly difficult each week to fill a couple of columns with interesting local anecdotes re the "horseless carriage" and its drivers. Therefore, with next week's installment, we are going to bid you a fond adieu till the motoring season of 1922 opens.

MR. DUNLOP.

Yesterday afternoon at an evening party one lady remarked that the summer is about over and an early fall is predicted; that she and two or three of her friends intend going down to BOWRING'S and get some of the splendid Heavy Tweed Coats going at Half Price. ## Meeting You Half Way

Under present business conditions many people cannot afford to take insurance at the premium regularly quoted. They feel least able to do this at a time when they know they have the greatest need for insurance protection.

If this is your problem, we will meet you half way. We will furnish the protection and bring the premiums within your means. To the left we give our Yearly Renewable and Convertible Term rates at various ages. A policy on this basis provides:

- (1) FACE OF POLICY PAYABLE AT DEATH.
  - (2) INSURANCE RENEWABLE YEARLY WITHOUT MEDICAL RE-EXAMINATION. THE YEARLY RATES INCREASE SLIGHTLY TO COVER HIGHER MORTALITY AT OLDER AGES.
  - (3) AFTER AGE 60 THE PREMIUM REMAINS CONSTANT, THE POLICY MATURING AS AN ENDOWMENT AT AGE 65.
  - (4) AT ANY TIME BEFORE AGE 60 THE TERM POLICY MAY BE EXCHANGED WITHOUT MEDICAL EXAMINATION FOR ANY REGULAR OR ENDOWMENT CONTRACT.
- THE NEW POLICY WILL DATE FROM THE TIME OF EXCHANGE WITH RATES TAKEN AT ATTAINED AGE, OR THE POLICY WILL BE GIVEN SAME DATE AS ORIGINAL TERM POLICY ON PAYMENT OF THE ACCUMULATED DIFFERENCE IN PREMIUMS. TERM PREMIUMS PAID WILL BE CREDITED TO REDUCE THIS DIFFERENCE.
- This Term policy makes it unnecessary for you to do without protection.

PREMIUMS FOR $1,000 OF INSURANCE
Yearly Renewable and Convertible Term.

| Age | Premium |

Lewis Gun Was Refused by British War Office.

1,500,000 PURCHASED LATER.

The Lewis gun which did such good service for the British forces in the war, and which many military experts ever will prove the basis of the long-looked-for automatic rifle, was offered to Germany prior to the war, according to a statement made in the British courts a few days ago, when the company which manufactured the guns during the war was being sued for $15,000,000 excess profits and income tax.

The inventor of the gun, Col. Lewis, a retired officer of the United States Army, submitted the gun to the British War Office in 1912, and in 1913 submitted the gun to Germany, Austria, Italy, France and Russia as well. All of these powers, after placing small trial orders, reported unfavorably against the weapon. The peculiar feature is that in spite of the fact that British experts who had tried out the guns for the army and navy made adverse reports on it in December, 1913, the British Government, early in 1914, commenced to place orders for the gun. Just before the outbreak of the war, orders were placed for five guns at $675 each, and on August 16, 1914, fifteen more were placed. Three days later another 15 were bought, and that year, 255 of these guns were bought. In November, 1915, the price for the guns was placed at $500 each, and during the war the British Government bought no less than $65,000,000 worth, thus proving that experts may often be very expert, but lack judgment and common sense.

Germany proved even more stupid. The Hunns turned down the guns entirely, and later in the war got out a clumsy automatic rifle, contrived with the Canadians called the "sawyer gun." This gun fired a very small calibre bullet which was incapable of stopping a man unless it hit some vital spot. The Lewis gun, which used the regulation .303 ammunition, on the other hand, had a range of well over 2,000 yards, and because of this fact, was exceedingly deadly against massed formations and useful for emergency barrage purposes. The outstanding feature of the Lewis gun was its rapidity of fire, the fact that it was air-cooled, sufficiently light to be carried and operated by one man, and composed of a minimum number of loose parts. In 1916 the British army had two of these guns for each battalion. In 1918 there were two for each platoon, which, together with the headquarters sections, made a total of approximately 45 Lewis guns per battalion.

Timing Light.

Galileo was the first to make an attempt to measure the speed of light. He questioned the assumption of Kepler and all the others that the velocity of light was infinite, and believed that it must be measurable. He did not succeed in measuring it, for he tried to do so by terrestrial experiment, which then was vain. He suggested that two men each with a lantern should stand a mile apart; one to flash his light towards the other and the other to signal back as soon as the light reached him. Galileo believed that there would be found a measurable interval before the first man saw the answering flash. But, as we know now, the light would travel those two miles in 1,930,000th of a second, while the best instrument then available would not measure a shorter interval than 1/10th of a second.

Then Descartes turned to the celestial regions for a measuring rod. He compared the observed and computed instants of the beginning of an eclipse of the moon; such an eclipse does begin about 1 1/2 seconds before we see it, but the difference was too small for certainty, and Descartes concluded that light was instantaneous. A few years later, however, Romber, a Dutch astronomer, in 1671, noticed that the time of an eclipse of one of Jupiter's moons was nearly 1000 seconds later than that scheduled. From this fact the speed of light was estimated to be 600,000 times that of sound—about one-third too small.

In 1680 the problem was after all solved by a terrestrial method. A Frenchman, Fizeau, sent a ray of light through a revolving toothed wheel to a mirror and back again. By the time the light returned to the wheel the gap was replaced by a tooth, and by measuring the speed of the wheel necessary for a tooth to be where a gap was, the speed of the ray could be determined. Another Frenchman used a revolving mirror, which later was modified and improved by Michelson and Newcomb, and finally the astronomical method and the mirror gave an agreed velocity for light—186,324 miles per second.

Nigerian Chief Proves British Justice.

A remarkable interest was attached to a small dinner party held recently in the Savoy Hotel. It was given as a compliment to Chief Oluwa of Lagos, Nigeria, who came to England in June, 1920, to lay his appeal before the Privy Council from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Nigeria, which had decided that he had only seigniorial rights over the large tract of land belonging to his clan.

The appeal was heard in June by Viscount Haldane, Lord Phillimore, and Lord Atkinson. Viscount Haldane delivered the judgment of their lordships on July 11 in favour of the Chief and reversed the judgment of the Chief Justice of Nigeria. Lord Haldane concluded the judgment with certain observations which were the keynote of the speeches at the dinner: "A mere change of sovereignty is not to be presumed as meant to disturb the rights of private owners. Oluwa must feel compensated for his long and tedious experience of our legal machinery. The result is, as ever, rigid justice. The Englishman in his own country, from the King downwards, makes no difference in race and colour."

The decision was of far-reaching importance, the territory over which the Chief's rights extend being rich in minerals, is now being developed by British companies because of the confirmation of the belief of the chiefs of West Africa in the impartiality of British justice. Chief Oluwa, who had the honour of meeting the King and having an interpreted conversation with his Majesty, left London on the 10th ult. via Liverpool in the Elder Dempster liner Abinal, with his retinue, after fourteen months' stay in England.

At the dinner Chief Oluwa came in his native costume, a white cloth garment draped with richly embroidered silk overmantle, and he was accompanied by his son, Momodu Yaya Oluwa; Mr. Herbert Macaulay, C. E., his secretary; and Mr. E. T. Scott, assistant secretary. The Chief's secretary carried the silver-mounted malacca staff presented to the King of Lagos in 1853, on behalf of the British Government, by Queen Victoria, upon the abolition of slavery by King Akitoye.

Men's Friendly Society.

At the quarterly meeting of the G. F. S. held at the residence of the Rev. Canon Milroy, on Saturday last, His Lordship the Bishop presided and admitted four new members. He addressed the members in the following terms: "I think of the G. F. S. as a society meant to assist the seven kinds of loyalty in your work for God when you get a full grown woman you will realize that a woman must be responsible for seven kinds of loyalty in her life. The seven kinds of loyalty are: Loyalty to God. Secondly, Loyalty to your Church. I take it that everybody here must be a member of the Christian community and I say it every day to be loyal to it. I have visited all the places of any size in the outports and from some of these places girls have come to St. John's who are clerics here have not been able to discover that these girls are members of any city church. I have been obliged in talking to young people this summer to say, 'Go home from your home to St. John's, or elsewhere, look for your friends, find out if there is one there, if there is, go to it, and don't let so many do when they leave simply drift. Young people who are called 'clerics', but they are not called 'clerics' on Sunday, they have to be wandering, and the 'clerics' are always happy. Some of you have a good deal of influence with you. You would do a good turn to some of yours if you were able to use your influence as a member of this society to keep them, what they come to St. John's, true to the church to which they belong. Thirdly, be loyal to your home and loyal to your parents and fathers. When at cross-purposes you could not do better than say 'what would my mother be if you were not here?' Fourthly, you must be loyal to your friends, it needs to be in these days that some of the great things that make life worth living are all in that you have some one that is loyal to you. Some people that a friend is one that tells you your faults, but I think a true friend is one that will stand by you when you are unfortunate in some way. The days are dark and dingy. That when you want a friend, a real friend, a friend who proves true, that by your friends and as far as you can, unless you can say something good about them don't say anything ill. Try to be true to each other. Fifthly, you should be loyal to your particular friend; if you hear anything that is not good about him or her always hear his or her side of the story before condemning. Sixthly, be loyal to your husband if God gives you one. The day when you get a home of your own you will discover that your husband is not a perfect man, and what are you going to do about it? I was at a missionary meeting in England some time and I heard a clergyman give an address to a large number of people at the service, and one of the things he said was that very often the men who went to the public house (this was in England and of the public house does make a tremendous difference to the home there) could be kept from it if you showed the right way to work about it. He largely upon the way you get him when he comes home, very kind and very hungry. The reason there is so little home life is that people find other people's homes more attractive. Seventy, however, in the G. F. S. This meeting is all that I want to prove to me that a good man, people do like the G. F. S. But there is another kind of loyalty to the G. F. S. and it is this, that you think the G. F. S. is a good thing for you, don't think it would be any good thing for other people. You own your own home and you don't think it worth while to give them opportunities that you have in the G. F. S. If the G. F. S. is worth while for you, and I think it is, then see if you cannot give the same thing to other people. I have in this society, you have in this society."

What Made New Zealand.

Just previous to 1880 the Commonwealth of New Zealand was in the depths of a serious financial depression, and the outlook was very gloomy. The country had great riches of soil and climate, and it could produce enormous numbers of sheep and cattle. But it was thousands of miles from all the great world markets, and there was no method of transporting meat, butter, and other animal products and keeping them fresh. So the enormous flocks of sheep and herds of cattle were worth but little more than their skin, bones, hides, and wool. About ten cents was all that a sheep was worth after its wool was removed, and vast numbers of cattle were converted into fertilizer, or boiled down for the fat, which in these days of the high cost of beef.

The process of refrigeration by the expansion of compressed air was discovered about that time and the first cargo of frozen mutton was sent from Australia in 1875. The problem of transporting perishable articles to the ends of the earth was solved. New Zealand immediately adopted the process. Now it could sell its beef, mutton, butter and cheese in London or Paris, and its exports amounted to twenty million dollars' worth of meat, and fifteen million dollars' worth of butter and cheese yearly. Financially New Zealand was saved.
