WARNING

We have repeatedly advised property owners to protect themselves against loss by Fire, and our warning has been taken by some resulting in new clients, but—there are many yet whose minds are not made up, to whom loss of money, house, furniture and effects, is only a trifle? and to whom family consideration has not appealed. It is important, get busy now, write us or call. Perfect Protection in highest grade Companies.

The Mystery of Rutledge Hall
— OR —
"The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER III.

"There was deep, calm shade in the cloister. Though the burning sun was high, but no peace there to her despair. But over a mournful cry.

"Ah, me, my love, that cloudless love, Not less sweet for its bitter stain! Is it fair that a love so pleasant prove Only to end in pain?"

"There was hollow roll of—Sidney!" Dolly broke off suddenly, with a little excited cry.

Stephen glanced over in some surprise at the two girls, and saw that Dolly had caught Sidney's hand as she was turning over the music-page, and was looking at it eagerly, while Sidney's face was as white and colorless as that of a little marble statue behind her; but she was smiling.

"Sidney, oh, Sidney, what does it mean?" Dolly said, eagerly and excitedly, her blue eyes full of questioning and delight. "Does it mean—oh, Stephen!"

"The young man had joined them now, and saw what had startled his sister. On the fourth finger of Sidney's left hand was a thick gold ring set with three brilliants.

There was a minute's silence; the delight was fading slowly from Dolly's blue eyes, and a look of incredulity and sorrow came in its place. Stephen's face was set and stern. Sidney was very pale; but she was still smiling, a strange fixed smile which moved her lips but did not reach her eyes, which were down-cast and fixed upon her ring.

"I meant to tell you," she said, slowly. "But there—there has been no opportunity, and—with a little laugh—my engagement is only a few hours old. Let me tell you now, Dolly—I meant that you should hear it first from myself. I have promised to marry Frank Greville in the spring."

"Frank Greville!" Dolly echoed, with an irrespressible accent of pain in her bright voice. "Frank Greville!"

Sidney tried to speak again; but the words died away upon her lips. What had she done, she wondered vaguely, to bring that look of incredulous pain into Dolly's bright blue eyes to chase the pretty pink color from her cheek.

In the silence which followed, Dolly loosed her hand, and it fell heavily upon the keys of the piano, making a long discordant sound which seemed to shiver through the silent room.

"Are you not going to congratulate me, Dolly?" Sidney forced herself to ask at last.

"To marry Frank Greville!" Dolly said unsteadily, without heeding the question. "Oh, Sidney, you are jesting—are you not?"

"Your news has taken Dolly so much by surprise that she cannot find her congratulations, Sidney," said Stephen Daunt, gently—so gently that the very gentleness of his voice made Miss Arnold shiver. "But you know, dear, do you not, that no one can wish you all happiness more truly and earnestly than we do."

"Yes," Sidney answered softly; but she did not look at him as she spoke.

"Dolly, won't you speak to me? Won't you say that you are glad?"

"How can I say it when it would be a falsehood?" the girl said passionately. "I am not glad, Sidney!"

"Then I must be content with your congratulations," Sidney said, turning to Stephen, and speaking with a proud pained calmness. "I ought to have offered you mine before now," she added. "I ought to have told you that your wishes for my happiness are not for they could not be—truer or more earnest than mine for yours, Stephen."

"Thank you, Sidney," he responded, gently, taking the little unsteady hand—Sidney could steady her voice, but not the little trembling fingers; "I know that, dear. But why do you congratulate me now? Is there any special reason?"

"Is there not?" she said, suddenly, raising her eyes to his. "Are you not engaged also? Ah, believe me, I hope you will be happy! And—and—she is so beautiful that she cannot but be good."

"Do you mean Miss Nell?" he asked, with a slight smile. "She is very beautiful, and I dare say very good; but that is Rutledge's business, not mine; for she is engaged to him, you know, not to me."

"To Mr. Rutledge?"

For a moment the handsome, kindly face bending over Sidney faded from before her, the room whirled round and round, there was a strange singing noise in her ears—but for a moment only. The next she was calm again; but some furious words of Frank Greville's seemed to ring again and again through her brain. He had threatened to— She lifted her hand and pushed back her hair from her forehead with a little laugh.

"I have made a stupid mistake," she said tremulously. "I thought—I understood— You must forgive my too early congratulations, Stephen," she added more firmly. "When you want them, they will be as sincere as now."

"Stephen," Dolly whispered, as they drove homeward together—and, as she spoke, the girl kept her eyes steadily averted from her brother's face, for, without looking, she could see the pain there—"what made Sidney do it, I wonder? She is not happy; no one could look into her face and think she was happy."

"I always thought she cared for Greville, Dolly."

Dolly shook her bright head emphatically.

"She liked him, but not in that way, Stephen!" she added, after a little pause.

"What, dear?"

"Do you know, I think Sidney looks as if she had been forced into something—against her will—frightened into it, as it were?"

"Your fancy, Dolly," he answered, sadly. "If it is not for love of Frank that she has engaged herself to him, why should she have done so?"

Ah, why indeed? Many months of doubt, of suffering, of anguish, had to be passed through before that question was answered.

CHAPTER IV.

"Where is the meet to-day, Sidney?"

"In the three-acre field, papa."

"There is always a pretty meet there," Dr. Arnold said, cheerfully. "I hope you will have a pleasant ride, my dear."

"Thank you, papa. It is sure to be a full meet, you know, for Mr. Rutledge and his wife have returned home, and we shall all be curious to have a glimpse of the bride."

"So they have come back," Dr. Arnold said. "I did not know. I wish Stephen Daunt would come to his senses and return home also; they miss him awfully at Lambswold."

Sidney's little fingers, which had been fastening a little knot of violets in the button-hole of her habit, were rather awkward and unsteady apparently, for the operation took a long time to perform. Dr. Arnold, who had been reading his letters in the study, finished their perusal and began to examine his visiting-list.

"I wish you would ride with us to-day, papa," Sidney said, wistfully, when she had secured the violets.

"I wish I could, dear; but it is impossible. Elliot's absence doubles my work just now, you know. Frank is a much better escort for you, Sidney; and I don't think he will object to fly absence!"

Sidney smiled rather sadly and absently. Frank was the most attentive of fiances, as all Ashford said when speaking of the engagement, which had caused no surprise in the town.

Frank Greville, Lawyer Greville's only son, was a very eligible party; he was handsome, a trifle weak-minded perhaps, and somewhat of a dandy; but his father was a wealthy man, whose profession was a lucrative one, and who had been eminently successful in it, and he was also known to be a man careful, almost mean, in his expenditure, not spending a third of his income.

It was an old attachment, people said, speaking of the engagement, which had been made public at the same time as Squire Rutledge's engagement to Miss Nell, the beautiful governess at Lambswold, who had taken all hearts by storm on her arrival at Ashford some few months before; and, while it took no one by surprise, the second engagement caused very general comment. Squire Rutledge had been such a confirmed old bachelor that the first feeling was incredulity, and then derision, for the squire was fully thirty years older than the bride-elect, and Miss Nell's name had been coupled with Stephen Daunt's almost ever since her arrival at Lambswold.

When Bakeday Comes Depend on Carnation

Uncertainties ruin many a milk dish through absolutely no fault of your own.

You want whole milk—you have only the skimmed milk left after you took the cream from the top; you should have two cups—you just have a cup and a half. Milk you thought fresh is just on the turn.

Why take those risks. Insure with Carnation Milk.

Carnation is just pure, fresh milk, evaporated to double richness, kept safe by sterilization. Nothing is added. Some of the natural water is taken away—all the food value left in.

Get it from your grocer. Tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

Dodge Brothers

Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Best Previous Week in History

Although Dodge Brothers Cars are now being built at the rate of 197 per cent.

Dodge Brothers have been producing new records for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years. The record of the week ending 12th is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,300 each production day, the best previous week was surpassed several hundred cars. New orders exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 1,100 a day, both deliveries and orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.

"Had dealers' stocks permitted, number of deliveries for the week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "In spite of a steady, healthful demand, but a steady, healthful demand."

Great Adventure on Devil Mountain

ROPE BREAKS AND ALPINIST PLUNGES 150 FEET DOWN A CREVASSE.

Charles Baud, an engineer of Lambown, with four companions, including a woman, recently had an extraordinary adventure on the Diablerets

(the devil mountain), 10,650 feet high, in the Canton of Valais.

The roped party reached the summit safely in fine weather, but during the descent the wind changed suddenly, and in the thick fog that followed the Alpinists lost their way. Baud, who was leading carefully and testing the snow before him, suddenly called a halt as his ice axe had sunk to his 'thill' in the snow.

He knew he was above a crevasse, and called to the women next to him to come closer in order to give him more rope, as he intended to jump across the crevasse.

Into Space.

While the woman was approaching the snow bridge collapsed and Baud fell into space, the taut rope snapping under his weight, and the woman was thrown on the path. Baud passed through another snow bridge lower down, and finally landed with a smash, on a deep bed of snow 150 feet below, which happily held him.

Baud found that he was not seriously injured, but felt a sharp pain in the right ankle. He heard the shouts of his comrades, and shouted back that he was all right, and asked them to lower the rope and help him out. His companions unwound the rope from their waists and lowered it, when it was found that the broken rope was twenty feet too short.

There was nothing to do but seek the aid of the guides in the valley below, and two of the Alpinists set out on the difficult journey in the fog, while the woman and another climber remained on the spot to talk to and cheer up the victim, who, however, took the matter lightly.

Songs.

In a short time Baud began singing, and his two comrades above joined in the chorus, hoping to keep up the spirits of the victim. At this point, when everything seemed to be going well and the search party was expected, a new disaster happened. The two Alpinists who had been sent in search of aid returned to the camp fatigued, declaring that they had lost their way in the fog, and had failed to find the path to the valley.

Baud was not informed of this unforeseen and serious situation. The two Alpinists, after a rest, set out again and managed to reach the valley. A strong party of guides mounted and rescued Baud during the night with the aid of lanterns.

It was found that Baud, who had spent nearly twelve hours at the bottom of the crevasse, had a broken ankle and was partly frozen. Blankets were wound around him, and he was placed in a sack and then dragged over the glacier to the Diablerets hut, where the party passed the night. Next day the five Alpinists reached Lausanne.

Baud, except for a broken ankle, was little the worse for his experience.

Our Montreal Letter (From Our Own Correspondent) BUS SERVICE ON SHERBROOKE STREET. The Montreal Tramways Company have inaugurated the bus service on Sherbrooke Street, plying between Victoria Avenue, Westmount to Lafontaine Park. The coaches are of the de luxe type, and "pay as you enter" pattern. One man has charge of the car. The seats are upholstered and both the seats and the sides are designed to give the passengers plenty of room. Balloon tires are fitted, and there is none of the shaking and jolting that one associates with the small automobiles or with the street car.

AN ADDITION TO THE QUEEN'S HOTEL. Work has begun on the new 200 room addition to the Queen's Hotel. The site was occupied by a mission house, used by the colored people and is situated at the north of the hotel, facing Windsor Street.

MAXIMUM SENTENCE FOR "DRUGS." Judge Enright sentenced a man to eighteen months in jail and a fine of $200 for having drugs in his possession. In all the cases tried of late for "dope" possession the sentences have been "top-notchers."

BILLS FOR THE POLICE PROBE. The bills in connection with the police probe are still unpassed. The amounts involved are over $50,000. Mr. Justice Codrro has placed his own claim in the hands of the leading lawyers of the city. Four cases, which are both summary and privileged, will be heard some time in September and embrace the claims of the four lawyers who represented the citizens association and other petitioners.

THE FRENCH PRESS ON IMPORT-TOPICS. Le Soleil (Quebec): One asks to-day whether the provinces of Quebec and Ontario do not produce too much hay. Last year the harvest was very abundant but the market cannot absorb the enormous quantity of crops produced this season. It is clear that the automobile has done irreparable harm to our prairies. By bringing about the disappearance of hundreds of thousands of horses, it has reduced consumption and replaced hay by gasoline. Hence a formidable fall in the exportable surplus of the product. In 1919 our farmers exported 492,208 tons of hay. This figure fell to 215,561 in 1920 and to 58,300 in 1923.

La Presse: The scenes which the Metropolis witnessed in the course of the two sensational trials at the last Assizes ought not to be repeated, because they are not to the advantage of the population. The sight of the jury in the open street as it went under armed control is altogether undesirable. Without speaking of the weariness and embarrassment which it inflicted on the citizens themselves, it lowered the good reputation of Montreal in the eyes of strangers. No doubt the new measures which have been adopted by the Government will cause similar practices to cease. No one should hemocthor spurn jury duty, because the jury will be placed in the most favorable condition to exercise its functions.

observers who have watched the swift busses pass along Sherbrooke Street have noticed that while at some hours the busses are practically full there are also times when the traffic is very light. Already the service has attracted the notice of United States tourists who find that the route affords them an excellent and quick way of seeing one of the most beautiful sections of Montreal.

Four coaches are in operation giving a fifteen minutes service, and as soon as other coaches arrive they will be added to the route thus giving a ten minute service. The route of the new service is as follows: from Sherbrooke Street and Victoria Avenue to Papineau. At the west end the coaches turn north on Victoria Avenue from Western Avenue, east on Sherbrooke, south on Grosvenor, back to Western again where the busses will operate to Alway. The route then follows Alway to Sherbrooke, north on University to Pine, east to St. Denis, south to Cherrier, east to Sherbrooke, east on Sherbrooke to Papineau avenue where a short loop-turn is made for the return journey.

VISITORS ARE DISRESPECTFUL IN CHURCH. The authorities at Notre Dame Church have banned certain persons from visiting the historic place of worship. So-called ladies with "knickers," or those who have no hats or covering of some kind on their heads, are forbidden to enter the church. Men were seen at times to enter the sacred edifice with lighted cigars in their hands, while other parties entered and engaged in loud conversation during the Mass. Others again would take away votive offering lights as souvenirs. Hence the strict ruling from the pastor. A booklet for sale at the church door, explaining the history and full details of the immense edifice, or a couple of guides to escort visitors around the place, would have been the means of avoiding a lot of abuses which have shown themselves for the past two years, especially from thoughtless, riddy and uneducated persons that religion or sacred places of worship hold no place in their minds, and as regards decorum, the house of God is no more to them than a public theatre or a moving picture show. It's too bad in this age of enlightenment, civilization and progress, that so many human beings have not as yet risen to a higher plane as regards religion, and all that pertains to the reverence due the Creator of the universe.

INCREASE IN CRIMINAL CASES. According to the report just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics an increase of 7,778 in the total number of criminal cases throughout Canada is shown for the year ending last September as compared with the corresponding twelve months of 1923. The total number recorded for the year 1924 was 171,906 as against 164,128 for 1923. Twenty-two murder cases for 1924, as against 15 for 1923. Twenty-five manslaughter cases for 1924, as against 24 for 1923. Convictions for thirty-eight for 1924 showed an increase of seven per cent. over 1923. Ontario led all the other provinces in the number of cases for indictable offences, 7,180 having been recorded during the year under review. Quebec ranked second with 2,739; while Saskatchewan was third with 1,847. Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and the Yukon followed in the order named.

La Patrie: An ingenious New Yorker, who by frequent visits for thirty years has been able to observe the development of Montreal deplores the want of foresight of our administrators, who from all time have regulated urban expansion by the pressing needs of the moment. This policy has produced the result that in Montreal proper there is not a street large enough to fit the exigencies of traffic. Starting with this theory, our visitor affirms that the administration should not delay in enlarging Sherbrooke Street, for that is an amelioration which necessity will demand before long, and if it is deferred the cost will be enormously increased. To enlarge Sherbrooke street would not be exhibiting any foresight; it would only be making up for the lack of foresight on the part of those who originally planned the streets of Montreal.

THE CITY CROWDED WITH VISITORS. The influx of visitors from all parts of the States and Canada has been the largest on record. The hotels have been taxed to their utmost capacity. In fact private dining rooms, halls, and passageways, have been changed into sleeping quarters to try to accommodate the crowds. All the leading boarding houses are filled up and Montreal is certainly on the map. The large number of automobiles parked on the many streets tell that the holiday season is on, that the tourists are abroad, and that the Metropolitan of Canada is growing in popularity as a mecca for visitors each year. Restaurants and dining halls are crowded at all hours of the day and night.

A SPECTACULAR BUT DISASTROUS FIRE. The most spectacular fire for years was witnessed here when half a block at Sanguinet and Emery Streets, just north of St. Catherine and west of St. Denis, were the scene of the conflagration. The fire broke out before 10 o'clock in the evening and raged for more than five hours. The flames rose to a great height and the reflection could be seen for miles around. More than 60 families lost their homes and had to be taken care of by neighbors and friends. The loss is estimated at $400,000. The Library of St. Sulpice, containing some very valuable works, was in danger, but the firemen saved the situation. Fortunately no lives were lost in the conflagration. One woman, supposed to be 100 years old, was found huddled up in a doorway, dazed, when she had lost her home. The firemen brought her to a place of safety and neighbors looked after her.

GREATEST MONTREAL IS GROWING. The population of Greater Montreal is 1,028,000. The city proper has a population of 907,500, showing an increase of 48,973 since last year. Montreal's property is valued at over a billion dollars. Property exempted is given at $239,242,624 with taxable property of $788,698,616.

THE SPIRIT OF GREED IS RAMPANT. Dear Readers--It is one of the tragic facts of to-day that the spirit of greed is corrupting so many lives. At a time when the world is in sore need of hard work the leading spirit of the gambler creeps further and deeper into life. It corrupts the mind and enervates the soul. It is like a canker in a world slowly trying to recover its health and strength. Greed was the cause of the late World War, and it will be the cause of the next one. The grasping, grinding spirit takes hold on individuals like the tentacles of the sea monsters. It is their God by day, their everlasting dream by night. Governments and nations fall for it, and millions worship at its shrines. The honest way through the world is to pay our way, to give for what we take, to work for what we want. By no other way can happiness be found; in no other way can we feel, when our journey through this world is done, that we have lived in States rubber companies. If any one of them ever received a dividend it would be instructive if he came forward and told us about it.—Montreal Herald.

Queen Mary Sets Brooch Fashion. When Queen Mary sets a fashion—which is very rarely—it invariably catches on with the smart set. The latest vogue which the Queen has started is the wearing of small real jewels in her hat. Several society women at the recent race meetings followed the fashion, but on a larger scale, the jewel ornaments being in the shape of valuable brooches. In effect, the valuable bow brooch is much smarter than the two-piece or arrow brooches. The very latest in brooches is carried out in baton diamonds, the stones being cut in a narrow bar shape which connected with little fancy designs form a cable pattern. A question to be carefully considered is not only what to wear but where to wear it. Insofar as wearing it with a frock, nobody puts a brooch in the front of a gown nowadays. An artistic piece is worn in an artistic manner—usually on the shoulder and the diamond bow brooch, a great favorite, looks especially fine in this position.

Wages in Soviet Russia. In the Social Democrat for August the following figures are given of the earnings of workmen in Russia under the Bolshevik system: In No. 2 of the official Russian "Labour Statistics" information is published as to the earnings of Russian industrial workers, the figures denoting the actual moneys earned averaged over the whole country, i. e., not wage rates, which later, owing to the piece-rate system now largely prevailing, are nearly always exceeded by actual earnings. The following table gives the average actual earnings per month per head during 1924:—

Table with 2 columns: Month and Earnings. January: 74 6; February: 80 9; March: 79 11; April: 80 5; May: 79 9; June: 80 5; July: 87 4; August: 83 4; September: 89 1; October: 91 6; November: 83 6; December: 85 0.

The figures being averages, comprising all kinds of industries and all cities, large and small provincial towns, etc., are serviceable enough for estimating the general position of the workers, which appears to be very bad, even taking into consideration the low cost of many articles entering into working-class consumption. They show that October was the best month, and that the rise from January to December was 15.4 per cent. in money wages, equalling a rise in real wages (purchasing power) of 16.5 per cent. Some figures are available giving the earnings in several industries for December, viz:—

Table with 2 columns: Industry and Earnings. Metal Industry: 97 6; Textile Industry: 74 0; Chemical Industry: 87 0; Leather Industry: 124 0; Graphic (Printing): 151 6; Food, Drink and Kindred Trades: 127 6; Paper Industry: 88 1; Wood Working Trades: 91 3; Mining: 72 7.

Newfoundland for Business and Pleasure

An illustrated brochure entitled "Newfoundland for Business and Pleasure," the author of which is Mr. R. Hibbs, has just been published, and in many respects may be considered a sequel to the author's recent work, "The Road Booster." Mr. Hibbs, who is an enthusiastic supporter of the road-building and tourist policy for Newfoundland and who for some time was closely identified with the operations in connection with the former, has in his latest compilation produced a work which should prove most valuable in furnishing strangers to the Island with the information they are seeking. In addition to a comprehensive survey of our history, it deals most fully with the country's resources and attractions, and contains as well the views and opinions expressed both by prominent visitors to the country and by many British, Canadian and American journals.

As a reference and guide book, "Newfoundland for Business and Pleasure" fills a long felt want, as within its covers are full particulars regarding such matters as the various Atlantic steamship lines which make St. John's a port of call, the hotels and boarding houses in the various settlements, the roads which radiate from St. John's together with a mileage system, and valuable information of a general nature which the visitor will find most useful. The illustrations which the work contains include many new scenes, and effectively indicate the beauty and variety of the natural attractions of the country and the unrivalled opportunities which it affords the sportsman. The Telegram heartily congratulates Mr. Hibbs on his enterprise and upon the success of his efforts.

Crime Records in Canada

In the Montreal Letter which appears in this issue reference is made to the increase in criminal cases in the Dominion of Canada for the year ending in September last as compared with the figures for 1923. The facts recorded remove the impression given by the reports which frequently appear of hold ups and other acts of violence in Montreal that Quebec must be the black sheep of the Provinces. As will be seen, this unenviable reputation belongs not to Quebec but to Ontario, which leads in indictable offences by 7,180 cases to 2,729 in the former. In non-indictable offences Ontario again outdistances its rival with 73,768 offences against 22,803 in Quebec.

The marked difference in these figures is not explained by taking the population of the provinces into consideration, for whereas in Ontario there are 2,938,662 inhabitants, according to the last census, in Quebec there are 2,361,199, nor do the figures confirm the arguments advanced in certain quarters that the free sale of liquor is the main cause of crime.

Strike Ended at Shiedam

A message was received yesterday by the Railway Management from Capt. Victor Gordon, the High Commissioner in London, which reads as follows:—"Strike ended at Shiedam, work commences immediately." The strike situation at Shiedam lasted nearly two months, with the result that the arrangements to have the Caribou on the Gulf during the summer season fell through. According to the news received yesterday the work will now be completed without the least possible delay. The balance of her crew will leave for the other side shortly.

The beautiful silver cup, known as the Grattan Kiely Cup, donated by Mr. J. P. Kiely, of the Nickel Theatre, for the above popular event, has just arrived and is now on exhibition at the store of Mr. Chas. J. Ellis, where entries may also be made. A splendid gold medal of chaste design, presented by Hon. Dr. Mosdell, and a second prize, is also shown, and it is expected that there will be several contestants for these trophies. The race will take place on St. Bon's Campus on Friday evening, at seven o'clock, and a record attendance is assured as the proceeds are for Belvedere Orphanage.

Norwegian Steamer Sustained no Damage

Diver Squires, who went to Botwood, to make an examination of the Norwegian steamer Johanne Dybwad, which went aground at Charles Brook, on Saturday last, returned to the city yesterday. The diver made a thorough examination of the bottom and found she had only scraped the rocks and sustained no damage. The steamer is now loading pit props for Cardiff, Wales.

Gill's Cove Remains Open

Through a mutual agreement between the Municipal Council and the Marine Agencies, Gill's Cove will not be closed to fishing boats, as would have happened under the original building programme. The Company has been given the right to bridge the space between their premises and the King's Wharf with a platform so that boats may be able to run underneath.

Price of Cod Oil Declines

A drop in the price of cod oil has recently been announced, and dealers are now quoting $135.00 or ten for prompt delivery. The reduction in price is stated to be due to a decline in the value of Fish Oils that has taken place in the United States in consequence of the big increase in the yield of Menhaden Fish Oil.

Parliamentary Delegates Spend a Busy Day

Yesterday the members of the Imperial Parliamentary Delegation spent a busy day in official calls, in visiting various interesting centres, and in attending social entertainments. During the morning calls were made upon His Excellency the Governor, the Prime Minister, the Bishop of Newfoundland and the Archbishop of St. John's, and in the afternoon luncheons were held at the Golf Club, Murray's Pond and at Brennan's. A visit was paid to Petty Harbour by several of the members where they witnessed the arrival of the fishing boats from the grounds and the manner in which the fish were handled. In the evening an official dinner was held at Government House where in addition to the members of the Delegation the following were the guests of His Excellency and Lady Allard: Messrs. W. S. Monroe, J. R. Bennett, W. J. Higgins, J. C. Crosbie, A. B. Morin and M. S. Sullivan, Chief Justice Sir William Horwood, Hon. Sir Patrick McGrath, President Legislative Council, Hon. C. J. Fox, Speaker, Hon. Tasker Cook, Mayor of St. John's, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Senator Casgrain, Hon. B. Watson, Commander Hawley, Lieut. Col. Rendell, Major Chand and Capt. Goddellow.

This morning at 9.30 the Delegation accompanied by a number of citizens from St. John's left for Bell Island where they are the guests of the President and Directors of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. During the morning the surface works will be visited, and after luncheon the party will proceed to the underground. Tea will be served at 5 o'clock, after which the return to the city will be made.

The first conference between the Delegation and the members of the Legislature will take place to-morrow morning, the proceedings at which we understand will be private.

Canada May Seek Trade Treaties

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—(By Canadian Press).—Intimation that Canada may open negotiations with a view to entering into trade treaties with the Central American and South American republics, as well as Cuba, was made here to-day by Hance J. Logan, M.P., who visited the West Indies last Fall as the Dominion's representative, resulting in the signing of a new trade agreement between Canada and the islands about two months ago.

Mr. Logan estimates that under this agreement, the trade with Canada will increase $25,000,000, at least, annually.

"The Canada-West Indies agreement," he declared, "will open the door for greater trade with the South, and I have no doubt will be followed soon by negotiations for better trade arrangements with the Central American and South American republics, in addition to Cuba."

"The importance of trade with the South is shown by the fact that the exports and imports of the United States last year with the Caribbean countries, amounted to over one billion dollars."

"We, in the Maritimes, have been trying for fifty years to combat geography and rail freight rates; while we have neglected to take advantage of our geographical position for export trade by water."

"I estimate that under the agreement with the West Indies the trade with Canada will increase by $25,000,000."

The Legislature of British Honduras has recently given legislative sanction to the new trade agreement, and approval has also been given by the Associated Boards of Trade of British West Indies. It will be necessary for the agreement to be ratified also at the next session of the Canadian Parliament; and consequently it will not become effective before next winter.

The agreement calls for improved steamship services, both passenger and freight, between the Dominion and the West Indies, and also for tariff concessions which involve numerous additions to the free list.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES LEWIS BLAMED FOR UNNECESSARY STRIKE.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1. W. W. Ingalls, Chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Seals Committee, to-night emphasized the need to insist that the settlement suspension beginning to-day shall include measures for avoiding future strikes. He declared that the lack of contract was no excuse for the miners walking out, and that such action was without reason. The men could very profitably continue at work pending negotiations, he said, but John L. Lewis, the International President of the Miners' Union, would not let them do it.

SEAMEN NOTIFIED TO RETURN TO WORK.

LONDON, Sept. 1. British shipowners are alarmed at the spread of the seamen's strike which started in Australian ports. An official independent of the Seamen's Union will to-morrow notify the seamen on all Australian lines that they must return to work in 48 hours with the understanding that no reprisals will be taken, the owners believing the men have been misled into striking.

SAYS BRILLIANT FUTURE BEFORE Nfld. AND CANADA.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 1. Lyan Keekins, of the United States Department of Commerce representative in Canada and Newfoundland prophesied a brilliant future for these countries to be manifest in the next five years. He leaves to-morrow for P. E. Island and Newfoundland.

U.S. and War Debts

The following is taken from the August issue of Harper's Magazine: "The war debts undoubtedly are a great impediment to the peace in Europe. Undoubtedly they ought to be handled in some fashion—cut down very likely, adjusted so that some of them shall offset others. The Administration here, charged with the duty of collecting money due to the United States, uses as much diligence about it as though it did not know that to us, as to all other nations, the peace of the world is vastly more important than the collection of moneys due; as though it did not know that the last war in Europe cost us in two years three times as much as Europe's war debts to us, and that if a general war breaks out there again it would mean again even for us a season of calamitous disbursement. We have made a statement with England with a result that is like a transfusion of blood from an ailing patient to a strong one—something much better deferred until the ailing patient gets more husky. The United States has not yet met the war-debts problem. It has done no more, except in the British settlement and the Dawes plan, than tease France about it. What would become of those debts if war in Europe blazed out again?"

Suppose this was a problem of bankers, really able bankers, instead of one of politicians whose place and power depended upon votes? What would the bankers do about those foreign debts? One can imagine. They would re-organize Europe as railroads would be re-organized. The different classes of creditors and owners would get out of the property what it was compatible with the operation of it and its continued existence and eventual prosperity.

Honduras Sanctions Agreement With Canada

OTTAWA, August 27.—Word has been received at the Department of Trade and Commerce that the President of the Honduras has given legislative sanction to the recent trade agreement between Canada and the West Indies and also that it has been approved by the Associated Boards of Trade of the West Indies.

Each of the islands involved in the arrangement was to sanction it as well as the Canadian Parliament. In consequence it will not become effective until next winter.

Turning the Tables

A certain lady had just acquired the services of an extremely pretty Irish chambermaid. She was an excellent servant and had produced excellent references, but her mistress noticed that she seldom washed her face.

At first the good lady had attempted to point out the error of this to the servant in the plainest of language, but she found that it was all in vain, so she decided to attempt a little strategy.

"Bridget," said she one morning, "do you know that if you were to wash your face every morning you would become very beautiful?"

"Oh," came the astounding reply, "then 'tis a great pity that ye've never tried it, yourself, mem!"

MINARD'S LINDNET FOR DAN-DUFF.

Horrible Revenge by Insane Russian

After brooding over land quarrels, Peter Grachoff, an old peasant of Ivanovo, suddenly became insane, killed 17 of his neighbors, burned down his native village and then escaped.

Police agents are still hunting for him.

The patch of land which led to the horrible tragedy had been assigned to a neighbor after Grachoff had set his heart upon obtaining it. At first he protested about it, but then he became ominously quiet, merely muttering occasionally:

"Just wait and see; I'll get even with everybody!"

None took the old man seriously. But when the peasant had gone to work in the fields he set fire to the village.

MARRIED.

On Monday, August 31st, at St. Thomas's Church, by His Lordship Bishop White, Miriam M. Moss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Moss, Princeton, B.B., to Richard J. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Cook, "Rockley Farm," St. John's.

DIED.

Passed peacefully away, this morning, at St. Clare's Hospital, Catherine, widow of the late Michael Walsh, of Holyrood, aged 82 years. Left to mourn are 3 sons and 3 daughters. Funeral to-morrow at 8.30 from her son's residence, 97 Springdale Street to the Railway Station. R.I.P.

IN EVER LOVING MEMORY

of our dear son Harold G. Hussey, who parted this life Sept. 2nd, 1919. All is dark within our dwelling, Lonely is our home to-day, For the one that smiled to cheer us Has forever gone away. We grieve for thee, dear Harold, But not with outward show. For hearts that mourn sincerely, Mourn silently and low. No one knows the silent heartache, No one knows the bitter pain. We have suffered since you left us, Life will never be the same. Days of sadness still come o'er us, Tears of sorrow often flow, Memory keeps our loved one nearer, Whom God called six years ago.

There's a face that is haunting as ever, There's a voice that is haunting as ever, There's a smile we'll remember forever. Though we try to forget every tear, There's a sad but sweet remembrance, There's a memory fond and true; There's a token of affection Harold, And heartache still for you. However long our lives may last, Whatever lands we view; Whatever joy or grief be ours, We will always think of you. Surrounded by friends I am lonely, In the midst of my joy I am blue; With a smile on my face I've a heart-ache. Longing dear Harold for you, Ever remembered by mother, dad and family.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Harold and Heman Flett wish to sincerely thank all those, especially the following, who sent flowers, messages of sympathy, and by their kind assistance and in numerous other ways, helped to make their sad bereavement so much less harder to bear: Miss M. Walsh, Miss Brien, Mr. Alfred Mar-tin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Coratck, George Neal, Ltd., Mrs. Jas. Snow and family, Mr. J. A. Robinson, Mrs. Geo. Garland, Mr. and Mrs. David Hoskins, Rev. D. Murder Victim's Body Recovered

CALIFORNIA POLICE BELIEVE REMAINS MAY BE THAT OF MISSING NURSE.

RICHMOND, Calif., Aug. 25.—(C.P.)—Convicted that severed portions of a human body found late Sunday and yesterday in the marshes near this city are those of a young woman murder victim, police and sheriff's officers of three counties worked together yesterday in an effort to discover other portions of the dismembered body and to establish the identity of the supposed victim.

First evidence of what police now believe unquestionably was a brutal murder was discovered late Sunday by C. H. Thomas and his son, Rogers, who came upon a woman's severed ear while gathering stalks in the marsh.

A police posse yesterday found near the spot a section of human scalp with blonde hair wrapped in an Oakland newspaper, dated July 3.

A short distance away other searchers found a section of a human face, evidently part of the cheek. Not far away were picked up two pieces of a woman's black walrus hide traveling bag, one of which bore the letter "B" in gold leaf.

In an effort to reconstruct the supposed crime, Dr. E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley Criminologist, examined the three exhibits and declared they were portions of the body of a woman 21 to 25 years of age, about 5 feet 4 inches in height, weighing about 125 or 130 pounds, of Scandinavian descent, with blonde hair, blue eyes and stocky build.

A hatchet, with what appeared to be blood stains on the blade and a single blonde hair clinging to it, was found in a deserted shack bordering the marsh.

The possibility that the supposed murder victim may be Mrs. Beesie Loren, 28, trained nurse of Oakland, who has been missing since August 19, was being investigated. Mrs. Loren's description tallies closely with that given out by Dr. Heinrich in his crime reconstruction attempt.

British Army to Have Manoeuvres on Sept. 22

The army manoeuvres which will begin on September 22 will be the first to be held since 1913, and very special importance is attached to the "War Office" in the operations, since they will serve as a "tryout" of the new weapons and appliances evolved as a result of the experience of the war. The terrain on which the fighting will take place is represented by a square having the towns of Reading and Devizes on the north and Petersfield and Blandford on the south.

The chief director of the manoeuvres will be Lord Cavan, chief of the Imperial General Staff, with headquarters at Andover. The troops engaged will be known as the army of Mercia, and the army of Wessex respectively.

The manoeuvres are intended to be of a rather ambitious character. The new tanks will be tried out fully for the first time, with several other new means of mechanical transport. The highly important matter of cooperation between the land and air forces is to form a matter for special experiments.

The chief umpire of the eastern force will be Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Harrington, G.O.C., of the northern command, and the chief umpire of the western force will be Lieutenant-General Sir Walter Brathwaite, G.O.C., of the Scottish command. In regard to the function assigned to the umpires, Major-General Gathorne-hardy stated:

"In the old days the operations were largely controlled by the umpire, who left insufficient scope for thought by the commander. This year they will never give orders. Our object is to try to make the officers face the problems as nearly as possible in the same way as they would have to face them in battle."

Why Boys Should Learn to Box

A FAMOUS ACTRESS'S VIEWS.

Most women approve of boxing as much as of any other manly exercise. Nevertheless there are a good many mothers, chiefly of the "faddy" description, who are reluctant to let their sons learn the "noble science of self-defence," fearing that it will have a "brutalising" effect, make the boys quarrelsome and combative, also that they will get badly hurt or have their features spoilt.

Miss Gladys Cooper, whose ten-year-old son, John Buckmaster, proved so great an attraction recently at Brighton when he gave a display of boxing, was asked for her opinion on the advisability of letting boys box. She said:

"There is no better exercise for health and strength. It develops the body equally, all the limbs and muscles, being brought into play.

"It makes for activity, a light foot, a quick hand, and a steady eye. The moral effects are just as beneficial. The boy soon realises that above all things he must keep his temper and learn to take as well as give hard knocks with a smile on his face and a laugh in his heart."

"He learns that he must play fair and comes to regard hitting below the belt, whether inside or outside the ring, whether in the literal or the metaphorical sense, as the action of a coward, or something worse.

Moral Benefit. "He learns to have pluck when he is up against a better opponent, and to be merciful when his adversary is no match for him."

"As he grows older he will eschew all things which may impair that fitness and skill in which he has learned to take a modest pride.

"The idea," continued Miss Cooper, "that a boy boxer will go about seeking whom he may devour is quite contrary to the facts. Boxers are the least quarrelsome of boys or men. They have learned discipline, self-control, and self-respect, and would scorn to take an unfair advantage."

"I have seen a lot of boxers and boxing, and, in my experience, though there may be black sheep here and there, as in every walk of life, boxers are healthy, clean-living men, chivalrous, brave, and slow to anger, though always ready to protect the weak and helpless."

"Are not these the qualities every true woman admires, the qualities every mother hopes her baby son will develop?"

Regarding the risks of injury, Miss Cooper said: "Boxing incurs risks which are no greater than, if indeed, as great as, those of cricket, football, or any other manly sport. Of course," added Miss Cooper, "I hope John won't get his nose broken. Still, I would rather have him broken-nosed and a boxer than with a Grecian profile but unable to defend himself or those whom it is a real man's duty to defend."

Charity Without Red Tape

"He gives twice who gives quickly," believes William J. Connors of the Buffalo and West Palm Beach, Florida, who recently announced the creation of a fund of $1,000,000 which is to relieve distress immediately, without red tape, without respect to creeds. The fund will be applied by a managing board, composed of six trustees, two Catholics, two Protestants, and two Jews. In announcing the creation of the fund, Mr. Connors, who climbed from sturdiness to wealth and power in the business and political life of his State, observes that he has been fortunate in acquiring riches and that he desires to do something for his home city while he is alive. After long thought, he decided that the best charity is one that will "give help to the needy, give it promptly, without red tape and without any regard to race, religion or anything but need." He expects to increase the fund to $5,000,000. The foundation will be exclusively for the people of Buffalo, the city in which he was born and raised and in which he started on the road to success. It will be independent of any other charitable activity; it will relieve first and investigate afterwards. "It will look after the needy, whether the need is of a ton of coal or help to go to a hospital, or help in any way," says Mr. Connors, according to press reports. "Maybe this will start somebody else to do the same thing. I don't know of another foundation exactly the same."

A Book That Made a Business Grow

Only once in the history of the United States, perhaps, has a book laid the foundation of a great business success. The book was published twenty-four years ago, in the little village of Kent, Ohio, fifteen miles northeast of the rubber city of Akron. The late John Davey, father of tree surgery, was the author of the book. His son, Martin L. Davey, became the builder of the business, writes L. L. Poe in Forbes Magazine for August 15, 1925.

Everything in the book was based upon this one idea: that a tree is a living thing; that it breathes has a circulation; digests its food; that it has sexual processes. That trees thought of and treated as living things are amenable to curative processes, as human beings are, with this great difference, that the life of a tree can be prolonged almost indefinitely, or at least for a span that far outruns human life.

From this book, and this idea, grew The Davey Tree Export Company, a national institution now doing a business of two million dollars a year, and the only one of its kind in the world.

Financial Structure of Europe Stronger

"American investors may take the prediction of the Bank of England discount rate as meaning that our exports of capital have strengthened the financial structure of Europe," says Moody's Weekly Review of United States Financial Conditions in its current issue.

"Call money is showing an upward trend; but to the stock market this is more helpful than harmful. Rising interest rates mean expanding prosperity, which in turn means higher share prices."

"Nor should it cause alarm if later on we witness an advance in federal reserve discount rates. These rates must be readjusted to the open market rates, or the general average of interest charges, in order to prevent artificial inflation or deflation of credits."

"Trade developments are unusually good for this season. In regard to stocks this ought to signify that growing prosperity should result in higher prices. As to bonds, it ought to mean that from now until the end of the Autumn trade anyway we are likely to witness a larger flow of capital into mercantile uses, and a somewhat reduced demand for bonds."

Blood Given 25 Times

MAN WHO FELT PAIN WHEN PATIENT DIED.

Nearly three years ago Frederick George Lee, an ex-regimental sergeant-major, now 34, was asked at a labour bureau if he would allow some of his blood to be transfused to a girl of 10 at the Middlesex Hospital, Mortimer Street W.

"I've kiddles of my own," he replied, promptly agreeing to the request. The subsequent operation was the first of 25 of a similar nature to which Mr. Lee has submitted since November 1922, there being a chance in every case of saving the patient's life.

He has given 26 pints of his life-blood to others, and at least 17 persons owe their lives to him and to the Middlesex Hospital surgeons in whose care he has placed himself.

In cases where transfusion has not been successful in saving the life of a patient Mr. Lee has had a curious knowledge of the fact. "Should my

There are already signs (writes a woman correspondent) that temptations should write to the secretary of the Middlesex Hospital. "I know at once, for I feel a severe pain in my arm." Mr. Lee has been ordered a rest, and for two months is not to be allowed to give his blood to patients. "We want at least 20 volunteers of equal fitness," a house surgeon stated. "They must not have had malaria or serious blood diseases; otherwise, say at man or woman up to 50 is capable of acting as a donor. Volunteers should write to the secretary of the Middlesex Hospital." The new ballroom dresses, when the wearer is not dancing, give the appearance of straightness and slowness, but when stirred by the rhythm of the dance they "flare" and away from secret arrangements at the sides. Heavy bands of fur, at the bottom of the lightest of chiffon dresses, will be prominent—all intended to animate the beauties of the ballroom floor and give the suggestion of staccato motion. Bordeaux red, the sparkling colour of wine, will be seen a great deal as well as soft moss greens and midnight blues. There is also a tendency to the colourings of old French portraits for evening wear. Even for daytime toilettes the padding of the rigid line will presently be apparent. Large, even "foppy" hats with cascades of ostrich and other feathers, and skirts with hidden details that respond to every movement all reflect this tango autumn.

Passing of the "Pacific Mail"

A chapter in the romance of American shipping came to an end a few weeks ago when the stockholders of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company voted to accept the offer of W. R. Rouse and Company to exchange 150,000 shares of stock for all of the ships of the Pacific Mail except one. Thus the historic American institution passed by the board. For more than twenty-seven years, we are informed by The Nation, the Pacific Mail played a great role in the annals of American shipping. The reasons for withdrawing from the shipping business, as given by the President of the company, are that the five large shipping vessels which it operated have been sold to the Dollar Steamship Line, and that it would be impracticable to maintain transpacific service pending the purchase of a suitable fleet to replace these ships. Not one of the company in a position to direct the construction of modern ships, at an estimated cost of $10,000,000, says an official statement in The Nautical Gazette (New York). According to the journal:

The ships of the Pacific Mail fleet, with their gross tonnages, are as follows: "Columbia, 5,643; Ecuador, 5,643; Venezuela, 5,641; Solana, 5,702; San Juan, 2,152; Corinto, 1,739. The Pacific Mail Steamship Company has been a fixture in American shipping for more than seventy-seven years, having been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York on April 12, 1848. The founding of the company was the direct outcome of a bill passed by Congress on March 3, 1847, authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to contract for a mail steamship service from New York to Astoria, Oregon, via the Isthmus of Panama, with calls at way ports. The contract was necessarily split up into two parts, one covering the Atlantic end, which had bi-monthly sailings from New York to the mouth of the Chagres River and the other covering the Pacific end. Under the terms of the Act, the Pacific line had to furnish one month's sailing with five ships of 1,500 tons, and a subvention of $199,000 per year was appropriated for such a line. In a New York Times article we are told that—

The first steamer, the "California," sailed from New York October 5, 1848, for Panama—on the western coast—via the Straits of Magellan. There were no passengers. It was a slow trip, with unforseen troubles. When the California reached Panama, a crowd of people was on hand, clamoring for passage on any terms. The California had hardly left New York when word reached the East of the discovery of gold in California, and the stampede began.

The Pacific Mail responded to the demand for transportation to the "Golden West" by sending the Pacific to Colon, on the west coast of Panama. Her passengers had no clear idea how they would cross the Isthmus, nor how they would get the rest of the way to San Francisco. They were lucky, however; they crossed the Isthmus and waited twenty-five days for the California. Twenty-eight days more brought them to the gold port. They were the vanguard.
The California had no easy time on that first trip. Near port the coal ran short and she burned the lumber with which emergency berths had been built for the Isthmus passengers. No sooner had she cast anchor at San Francisco than crew and officers—all but the sick master—were off to the mines though the destination was Astoria, Oregon.

In ten years the Pacific Mail carried 175,000 passengers to California and brought back gold by the ton. It was gold from the Western coast that enabled the United States to stand the economic strain of the Civil War, and by the time hostilities began the Pacific Mail steamers were carrying $100,000,000 a year. Southern privateers lay in wait for them; they would have been a prize richer than Spanish gold. For that it was criticized. Iron steamers of 5,000 tons did not come till the 1870's.

The first steamers, the California and Panama and Oregon, were of 1,000 tons, all wooden side-wheelers. At once the company built ships twice as big. In ten years it had a fleet of twenty-nine. Eventually the New York-Isthmus Line established by George Law was taken over and the transpacific service was started in 1867, when the capital was increased from $4,000,000 to $20,000,000.
The Pacific was just being discovered by passenger ships. The Suez Canal was not yet done. The Pacific Mail had a subvention of $500,000 for the Chinese and Japanese service, and it put four wooden steamers on the run, costly vessels and soon obsolete. For that it was criticized. Iron steamers of 5,000 tons did not come till the 1870's.

The Pacific Mail looked on the Pacific Ocean as its monopoly. The line had a naval favor because the Government had stipulated in granting the subsidy that the captains be taken from the Navy. The tradition, though not always observed, lingered till recent years.
The Pacific Mail was fortunate on the whole, but there were no losses—The Central America was one of the first; she sank off Florida. In 1857 bound for New York with 582 passengers and $1,500,000. She went down after leaving thirty-three hours, and 143 lives were lost.

The San Francisco sailed from New York two days before Christmas in 1855, carrying the Third Artillery. She became disabled; she drifted in a storm eight days in the Gulf Stream, and those aboard were taken off only a little while before she went down. Another liner named San Francisco was lost twenty years later.
Then there was the Golden Gate, which burned off Mexico and added $1,400,000 to the total of sunken treasure. She caught fire Sunday afternoon. The captain headed her for shore, three miles away. Four men at the wheel dropped off, one by one; the last darted back to lash the spokes, with fire all around him. There were 338 aboard; 80 reached shore through the surf, and it was a desert shore.

The sea has few disasters stranger than the loss of the City of Rio in 1901. She had come from China and passed the bar into San Francisco Bay. Twenty minutes of clear steaming would have brought her to her dock. The city heard her whistles in the fog—and the City of Rio vanished. Where she struck in the fog, how she went down, where she lies, is not known even now.
Till 1898 the Pacific Mail was the only American line in the Pacific. There were changes of many sorts in the interim. Subsidies lapsed after becoming a political issue; railroad interests got hold of the country. The side-wheelers gave way to twenty-one knot steamers of 27,000 tons displacement. But through all the changing conditions the Pacific Mail kept the glamour of a line that had charted new seas.

What Happens at a Seance
A writer who recently attended a spiritualistic meeting in London explains what happened in the following interesting manner:
At a big seance, everything is done by the medium—that is, the person who goes into a trance, and who, as the name suggests, acts as a medium between the spirit and the people present.
The things upon which a good seance are carried out are quite simple. Including the medium there are perhaps eight or ten people. The people sit round the room in a circle and hold hands. The medium may complete the circle, or he may sit alone.
In the latter case the people sit in the form of a horseshoe with the medium between the ends. The two people at the extreme ends of the horseshoe place both their hands in the hand of the person next to them.

At many seances a kind of short service is held first, and then the medium goes off into a trance.
He cannot be seen doing this, because it is pitch dark, but he can be heard gasping, as if for air. Sometimes this lasts only a few seconds, at other times much longer.
And then a strange thing happens. A voice is heard speaking out of the darkness from where the medium is sitting. But it is not the medium's own voice! It sounds quite different. It is the voice of the spirit, or control, as it is called, speaking through the mouth of the unconscious medium.
The medium under the power of materializing spirits in the room. Certainly, one sees strange lights floating in the darkness. Sometimes one will see a dim hand holding them. They glide about, hover, and sink perfectly smooth, and if you can manage to touch one with your face, as the writer did, they seem neither hot nor cold. They are just the same temperature as the room.
These floating lights are supposed to be the manifestation of spirits. A spirit in such a form is, apparently, unable to speak.
Then, perhaps, later you will hear

Such work as a medium's is extremely exhausting. After the seance his face is covered with perspiration, and he is tired for days. Many mediums only sit once a fortnight because of the great strain the ordeal imposes upon them.

Just Like Mummy

Irene had just come in from her school, to find her mother entertaining a few friends. Immediately the mother began to put the child through her paces.
"You know," began the hostess to her guests, "we are so proud of our little Irene. We are going to send her to a French convent in the summer, where she'll learn, oh, such a lot, and be a bright and sensible and intelligent child."
Up to then poor Irene had had no chance to speak, but as her mother finished speaking she rushed to seize her opportunity.
"But I don't want to be bright and intelligent," said Irene, "I want to be just like mummy!"

When They Were Boys

SCHOOLS THAT HAVE BEEN MADE FAMOUS IN LITERATURE BY THEIR FORMER PUPILS.

Jan Ridd's school, as readers of "Lorna Doone" will recall, was at Tiverton, and its modern representative is the famous Blundell's, the great West Country public school at which the late Archbishop Temple was also a scholar. Blundell's recently celebrated the novelist's centenary, for on the outside wall of the old school building, now used as a private residence, the school occupying new quarters, the name "R. D. Blackmore" may still be seen, cut in large letters.
Unlike Thackeray, Blackmore speaks lovingly of his school. The author of "Vanity Fair" was an Old Cartusian long before the removal of the ancient school from London to Godalming. He referred to it in private not as the Charterhouse, but as the Slaughterhouse. He had his nose broken there in a fight, and, although he and his antagonist later became fast friends, he carried that broken nose to his grave.
Our Greatest School Story.
Probably the most famous of all literary panegyrics on a great school is "Tom Brown's School-days," Matthew Arnold's father, Thomas Arnold, lifted Rugby School from second or even third class among public schools to a foremost position, and during his famous headship it had many boys who later attained fame, like the headmaster's son Matthew, his chum Arthur High Clough, Tom Hughes, the author of the great school story, and Arthur Peabody Stanley, the famous Dean of Westminster. Tom Hughes probably did more even than Thomas Arnold to lift his old school to a pinnacle of fame.
For a long time Rugby kept its proud pre-eminence as the only school which had a classic all to itself. Then Rudyard Kipling wrote "Stalky and Co." The school which he glorified in his own peculiar way is the "Tatted Serjices College, Westward Ho! North Devon, of which, it goes without saying, the poet of the Empire is the most celebrated scholar.
But Charles Lamb must take precedence of all. In his famous essay, "Christ's Hospital Five and Thirty Years Ago," he immortalised the Old Blue Coat School, now at Horsham, but then standing on the site now occupied by the General Post Office. Lamb and Coleridge were there together and were life-long friends.

the natives friendly, and more ready they took over 12,000,000 steps. Soon to give us a drink of milk than to they are going to America, and then kill us!" In their journey through to New Zealand, Australia, China and Holland, Italy, Egypt, and native At-Japan. They hope to complete their rics, these globe-trotters estimate 25,000 miles' trip in four years' time.

Walking Round the World

A man and wife Mr. and Mrs. C. Roux, left Johannesburg in December, 1922, to walk around the world, having only 5 cents between them. They are supporting themselves by the way and carry everything with them, in a wheelbarrow, from a tooth brush to a frying pan. This strange couple, who sleep in the open on waterproof sheets, encountered snakes in Zululand that were 18 inches in girth. "I killed them at the rate of two a day," said Mr. Roux. "We found

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

SOME FIRE PERHAPS BUT SUCH A LOT OF SMOKE.

Are young people really getting worse than they used to be? Yes, I don't blame you if you immediately turn to some other part of the paper when you read that. It will mean that you are tired of hearing that subject discussed by people who understand one side or the other as ardent as if they really knew something about it.

The impossibility of getting exact information on any subject always makes it a popular subject for discussion for then it becomes a matter of opinion and how we all do our best to express our opinions! Even the most selfish of us are generous of that kind of giving. Mine have been fermenting within me, and hereby offer them:

Are V Necks Immoral? That rolled stockings, after they become common, are no more partial to masculine morals than those with open throat instead of a high collared shirt. Look at a picture of college graduates 40 years ago; they are swathed in their necks and their ankles in clothing. Here is a graduation picture only 20 years ago reveals V necks and high collared shirts. Are they more immoral than the present? I conclude that this represents a corresponding decrease in morality! Yet these 20 year graduates refer to their own youth as a time when morals were at the height.

That a lot of this talk about conduct among young folks is indulged in by middle aged people as a form of excitement. They like to vicariously over the stories of those who have been at the high school dances all the girls; or "My sister says that she knows a girl who..."

Let Ten Touch Them They Vanish! That ninety per cent. of all the girls are plain will of the wisps. You touch them they vanish. When you "park" their "corsets" story is most popular. I tried to find someone who had actually seen one parked. Every time I heard the story I would try to find it was in his hand. And it never was. It is a myth.

always resolved itself into "My cousin heard." Or "A girl in our office says her younger sister." Or something like that. A priest told me that he had again and again been on committees to investigate that familiar rumor about half a dozen girls in some high school—(of course you know what the rumor was)—and that he never yet found any truth behind the rumor.

Too Rich Or Too Poor? That most of the cases where there is too much laxity occur as they always did in families that are either too rich or too poor to give their children the best background and enough attention. That when these young people grow up and become mothers and fathers or uncles and aunts they will be telling their children or nieces and nephews the equivalent of the old song, "When I was a girl 40 summers ago Aunt Tabitha tells me they never did so."

Vital Facts for Women
Sooner or later almost every woman is brought face to face with the fact that she is a victim of some weakness or ailment peculiar to her sex. It may be the young woman suffering from pain or irregularities, a mother who has brought on some weakness or displacement from overwork, or the middle aged woman passing through the most critical period of her life. For each of these trying periods Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved the greatest boon ever given to women, and there are women living in every town and city in the country who testify to its value.

Chinese Boycott Considered Great Blow to England
NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—A nation wide Chinese boycott on British trade, which shipping interests in British Columbia fear will take place unless the British Government can avert it, would be the most serious commercial blow England could receive in the Orient next to the loss of India. Advice to Victoria shippers, however, point out the weak spot in the newest effort of South China to drive British trade from the country.

The weak spot is that the Chinese merchant is a business man first and a patriot afterward. Advice from China indicate that the Chinese merchants are willing to handle British goods if they are unlabelled and carried in American ships. Popular agitation, however, might force the merchants to complete surrender, as it did at Fuchow last winter when American fish were declared to be Japanese products, which were being boycotted. The Chinese agitation is thorough and he usually declares all goods in whatever ships carry them, to belong to the nation in disfavor.

Loss even of the South China trade is a severe blow to Great Britain, and a spread of the boycott would be disastrous. China is England's second best customer for cotton goods, and ranks next to Australia in the consumption of English made woollens. China is the greatest consumer of illuminating oils in the world and buys nearly half of her supply from British petroleum companies. Chinese smoke British cigarettes by the ship load and British concerns have large factories in China that would stand idle under a boycott.

Great Britain's monopoly of China's coastwise shipping would pass. It has already been seriously crippled. Coastwise shipping is in the hands of two big British importing and exporting companies. Japanese and Chinese ships are not serious competitors. In addition to these trade advantages, British concerns have an active trade in machinery and railway supplies. They take out of China large quantities of non-perishable foods, coal, gums and low grades of wool. Without Chinese co-operation the ships cannot be operated economically. Coal cannot be mined, goods cannot be sold. The Chinese could get along without all these things for years, but the fact that they don't want to do without them and that the great Chinese mercantile houses would go down with the British in a National movement, is undoubtedly relied upon by British interests to help save the situation. Chinese like British goods and Chinese merchants like the British way of doing business. Young China doesn't like foreign domination in which the British lead with the British control of the customs and the effort to exclude British trade must be considered solely as part of the programme to obtain complete political, economic and territorial independence.

A Maharajah's Jewels
£100,000 WORTH WITH HIM IN LONDON.
The Maharajah of Patiala, the rich and handsome potentate has come to London to represent the Indian Princess at the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva.

Since he has been in London the Maharajah's day has consisted of 12 to 16 hours of work, but he has found time to visit several theatres. At his appearances in public his jewels, particularly his wonderful turban jewels, have been a continual source of interest. The jewels which he has brought with him, which are estimated to be worth £100,000, are, however, only a small fraction of his great jewel store.

It is impossible to give any value to the Patiala jewels, which are the collections of over 1,000 years. They are stored in the palace in 20 steel trunks, which interlock with each other, and to open one 20 different keys are necessary. The keys are kept by 20 old servants of the Maharajah whose ancestors guarded the jewels before them, and when the jewels are needed they must all attend in front of the trunks together.

Making a Tennis Ball
The tennis ball of to-day is a scientific production, the stiffest cover requiring 10 years to perfect it. A tennis ball has not only to pass tests of weight and size, but a bounce test as well. Dropped from a height of 100 inches on to a concrete platform, and at a specified temperature, it must not rebound more than 60 or less than 50 inches. The rubber core of a tennis ball is made in moulds in two separate halves, and then has to be vulcanized, or "cured," to a point of accuracy which, measured by time, is has been attained. There's the rubber and a second. The two halves are her core complete! The cover of a stitched ball is, of course, put on like the next step is the inflation, an operation demanding great skill. It is done about that!
