BOTHWELL ELECTION CASE.

Final Decision Postponed until Saturday
Next at Osgoode Hall.
CHATHAM, Jan. 6.—Proceedings in the Bothwell election case terminated to-night with some points remaining for final decision. All Saturday was spent in inves-

referred against Mr. Mills. The charges, nowever, fell flat one and all, and they only served to show how very discreetly and properly the election had been carried on. The recount of the ballots on Thurs-day gave Mr. Mills a majority of nine, but whether some of the ballots which go to make up that majority are proper ones to be counted in yet remains onen for final whether some of the ballots which go to make up that majority are proper ones to be counted in yet remains open for final decision. For instance in No. 1 division Sombra, 45 ballots were cast for Mr. Hawkins and 69 for Mr. Mills. It is claimed, however, that these ballots cannot be counted because they were uninitiated by the returning officer. If they are decided to be improper ballots and the whole of them consequently left out of the computation there will be a majority for Hawkins; or it may be decided that the irregularity was such as would cause the holding of a new election. There also remains for decision a question concerning some other ballots against which irregularities are set up as a bar to their being received. Judge Galt has reserved decision till Saturday next. The case involves some new points in the election law and presents some fine points for argument. Another branch of the case involves the returning officer, Mr. Stephens. It is contended he is liable for the costs on account of his being the cause of these proceedings.

The Coming Battle of Armageddon-England vs. Russia-Gladstone's Wars-The Trades Unions and Immigration. The utterances of the doctor a week ago Sunday evening on the question of the atti tude of the trades-unions towards immi grants, deluged him with a host of letters, some joining with him in his position, others denouncing him roundly. Instead of replying to them last evening he announced the subject of "Trades-unions and Immigration" for next Sunday evening.

The text was taken from the 20th verse of the 2d chapter of acts: "The sun shall be turned into darkness and the moon into blood before that great and notable day of the Lord come."

This "notable day" means a period of time covering several years. Then will happen the greatest battle that has ever been or ever will be—the battle of Arma-geddon, when the whole world will be in one under the leadership of Britain, while Russia will head the other hot. Long ago the prophets pointed out the allies and located Palestine as the seat of battle. The doctor construed the text in a literal manner as regards the appearance of the sun and moon. Biblical history shows many cases where the heavens have been tended he is liable for the costs on account of his being the cause of these proceedings through his not accepting the recount of the county judge which made Mr. Mills the sitting member. Against any impartial design or favoritism Mr. Stephens has been completely exonerated. It is quite possible the case may go to the superior court of Canada.

MONDAY MORNING, JAN. 7, 1884.

Abusing the Ballot. man should occupy the seat for Bothwell in preference to another, than that the right of the elector who marks his ballot properly should be absolutely secured to him. There has been so much straining after secrecy in the manner of voting that we stand constantly in danger of just such outrages as the seating of minority candidates in Bothwell and East Hastings by partizan returning officers.

All the ballots at one polling place in Bothwell were rejected by Mr. Justice Galt last week because they were numbered on the back by the deputy returning officer. This is equivalent to saying that by the act of an official over whom they had no control some scores of electors were deprived of the franchise. It is evident on the face of it that a system under which such an occurrence is possible is radically defective and that the sooner there is an. amendment of the law the better.

The plea on which these numbered ballots were thrown out was that the numbers made it possible to identify the ballots ! and thus to ascertain how each man voted. Assuming this to be true, is that a good reason for disfranchising a whole district, even under the law as it is? To maintain this is to assume that secrecy of voting is the main purpose of the ballot, and that the disfranchisement of duly qualified electors is a smaller political evil than is the possibility of finding out for which candidate they voted.

Put in this way, the plea on which Mr. Justice Galt acted is unspeakably absurd. We do not wish to be regarded as questioning the soundness of his decision, however, as the election practice runs. He guided, by precedents. The theory of the inviolable secrecy of the ballot is a piece of political nonsense which our legislatures and courts have imported from England, and the remedy for the evil must now be found in a change of the election act.

The ballot is useful in voting only for the purpose of enabling a voter to prevent others from knowing how he votes, if he wishes to do so. Secrecy of voting is only a means to an end, and the end is to pre vent intimidation-not to prevent bribery. The ballot is a protection to those who choose under cover of it to vote contrary to the wish of those who are in a position to coerce them. The most that can happen from the identification of the vote is the revival of intimidation, and no one who calmly considers the matter will seriously maintain that this is as great an evil as the disfranchisement of a whole batch of voters who have strictly carried out the law in so far as they are personally concerned.

But see what such a state of the law makes possible in an election. It is bad enough that the mere blunder of a stupid deputy returning-officer should be the means of depriving hundreds of electors of the franchise; it is infinitely worse that the deliberate act of a scoundrel should be the means of sending a minority candidate to represent a constituency. Suppose a district is closely divided politically as Bothwell happened to be at the last election. One subdivision has a large majority in it of sympathisers with one party, the returning-officer is a partisan and selects for his deputy in that subdivision a man who is willing to put some mark on all the the ballots, as for instance numbers or initials. In this way the whole vote of the subdivision is hidden, but some party loses far more heavily than the other.

This process could be repeated in as many subdivisions as may be necessary to secure the seat for the party in power, and if the man who has really got the majority of the votes cast attempts to obtain the seat the courts step in and prevent him. Mr. Mills is counted in in Bothwell; he might have been counted out had one or two more subdivisions been disfranchised by the stupidity of deputy returning offi-

This is no new scandal. Almost precisely the same thing happened in 1878 in East Hastings, in which case Mr. Justice Armour declared the seat vacant and or. dered a new election. One would naturally expect a political leader like Mr. Blake, who would scorn to be a party to such devices as the law makes possible, to set about amending it, but he does not appear to have ever thought of doing it yet. Perhaps Mr. Mills, if he succeeds in keeping the seat for Bothwell, may take the matter up and press for what would be a real reform. The aim of the election law should be to give the seat to the man who is the deliberate choice of the people, and if any provision stands in the way of this consummation it must go.

Dull For the Railways. There never was such a dull winter for nas 120 cars were handled at our local sheds; this Christmas not twenty were awaiting attention. Farmers do not appear to be selling much produce, storekeepers are not buying heavily, imports are light, and the lumber trade is anything but brisk. Someone ought to start a boom.

It is very much to be regretted that many of the most popular and influential clergymen, in both Canada and the United States, persist in advocating a policy which is calculated to rob our own people of the employment which rightfully belongs to them, and almost literally to take he acknowledges to having sold? the bread out of their mouths. Scarcely does a protestant preacher of any note touch the Chinese question without telling us that it is our christian duty to invite the heathen to flock in, no matter whether our own poor be left to starve. Over the border Henry Ward Beecher teaches that it is a christian duty to abolish duties on imported goods, to the end that work may be made for the poor of Europe. And now our own Dr. Wild says that we should velcome into this land the overflowing millions of the old world, and that the country cannot have too many of them. Now, it is true enough that, if Canada be largely through having our vast unoccupied regions filled up. With only five millions of people so far, we have built railways and canals, on a scale suitten times that number. And in turn we would say, with Dr. Wild, let immigrants come in at the rate of millions a year, pro vided only that they settle on the land and become farmers. But if instead of that they flock into the cities, and towns, and villages, to take what work there is away from mechanics and laborers for whom there is already little enough of it, then we do not want them at all. A thousand bona fide farmers coming into the country make an appreciable addition to the demand for labor; they create employment for others. But a thousand laborers or mechanics, coming here without means, either take away so much of the employment already existing or come upon our charities for support. Between the two kinds of immigration there is all the difference in the world. The former adds to the country's wealth. the latter to its poverty. To advocate the kind of immigration which further impoverishes our own poor is neither christianity nor philanthropy, but mischief and wickedness. And it is a sorrowful thing that such mischief and wickedness should be preached from the pulpit.

Europe is filled up and overflowing with was guided, as our judges are generally it is argued that the new world should find room for the surplus population of the old. All right, we reply, only stick to that ground, and don't budge from it. Let Europe's surplus population come here by thousands or by millions, if only they will go on the unoccupied land, which we all wish to see filled up. But do not bring Europe's poor over here on pretence o settling on the land, while the design is to dump them in upon the cities instead. We do not want immigrants brought in on false always open to short letters on any subject

We wonder whether Dr. Wild and other preachers holding his views on immigration expect to fill their churches with working men by teaching, in effect, that 'cheap labor" is a national blessing. Only judgment. The corrupt charges against bring in poor immigrants enough, and the labor for which a dollar is paid would come down to fifty cents. If the preachers understand this, and still continue in such strain as Dr. Wild, they are really devis- uninitialed ballots should have been ing evil against the poor of our own land, which is something that they will scarcely find a warrant for in scripture. If they do not understand this, they are in the dark on the matter in question, and had better leave it severely alone.

The trades council has done well to resolve that no strike be authorized on less than a two-thirds vote. And it does well also in keeping arbitration in view as the right way of settling trade disputes. All this is getting on the right track. Now let the council, while discouraging strikes as much as possible, except where necessity leaves no other resort, give its attention more and more to the greatest of all sources of trouble-assisted immigration. This will be immensely better for the men than strikes; it will be to strike on the right spot. Let the council and all the unions in connection with it, do their utmost to keep up the agitation against this giant evil, which threatens to fill Canadian cities with paupers. The newspapers and public men in every representative capacity, should be asked to declare hemselves on this vital question. Every village or town councillor, every city alderman, and every M.P.P., and every M.P., should be made to understand that his course on this question is eagerly observed and taken notice of by his constituents. If he is really in favor of bringing in pauper immigrants for the purpose of bringing down the wages of labor let the fact be brought to light before the whole public so that he shall no longer receive workingmen's votes on false pretences Our advice to the trades council is: let! there be fewer strikes, and more concen tration of effort on the pressing necessity of putting a stop to the assisted immigration of mechanics and laborers. That, we say, will be striking on the right spot.

It is easily to be seen, remarks a Chicago contemporary, how the Louisiana lottery company "controls more ready money than any institution in the state, not excepting the state treasury." The difficulties between the two sections of French catholics of the province of Quebec appear to have reached a critical stage. Both in religion and politics the liberal view is taken by the archbishop of Quebec, but not even his high authority prevails with the ultramontane section On Christmas day the vicar-general of Quebec preached a sermon, which it is believed was intended to set forth the archbishop's views, and directly afterward the latter and a number of his clergy formally withdrew from the Cercle Catholique, an association representing the other side. Monsignor Smelduers, who is now in Canada, having been sent here on a special mission by the pope, has certainly no very easy task before him if his mission be as is generally believed, to settle the present dissensions within the church.

Transfer of Insurance.

To the Editor of The World. SIR: Surely such cases as Dr. Hennessy's reported in your paper, ought to lead to the abolition of the transfer of life insurance so as to prevent sickly men being used for the dishonest acquirement of to pay debts is not a square transaction. Generally speaking, life insurance is understood to be a provision for a man's family, when his business position is uncertain. To allow creditors to rob them of this provision—if of moderate amount, such as a man's business position would justify—is what the law should not allow. 1884. ALDERMAN 1884 TO THE ELECTORS

ST. THOMAS' WARD

GENTLEMEN-Having been prevailed upon almost at the last moment by the urgent solici-tations of a large number of my fellow electors of this ward to accept a nomination as alderman for 1884, on the grounds that a great commercial city like Toronto, where citizens, whatever their calling in life may be, are either directly or indirectly interested in the prosperity of trade, and consequently should have a larger representation of merchants in her council; and now having consented to be nominated, I naturally desire to be elected, and if it is your will to do so, I can only promise that I will give as careful attention to your public affairs as I have given to my own bus

Yours respectfully, G. B. SMITH. 422 Sherbourne street. St. DAVID'S WARD
