Common Sense Theory for Cure of Insanity

London, April 2.—"Insane patients ought to be given hope, their keepers should be rewarded for their care, and some measure of liberty ought to be given them after they are cured," is Percy Carlyle Gilchrist's program for reforming lunatic asylums.

He is the distinguished scientist and one of the founders of the "Thomas-Gilchrist" or basic process of making steel from phosphoric pig iron, and has had experience in the working of the lunatic laws. When he retired from active professional work, after making a considerable fortune, as the result of his joint discovery, he developed certain traits which led his family to doubt his perfect sanity or his ability to take care of his estate. He was from 1888 to 1900 placed under restraint and a year ago was pronounced, at an "inquisition," to be of unsound mind and incapable of managing himself or his affairs. This decision was somewhat dramatically reversed by a special jury on the order of the court of appeal. Mr. Gilchrist was then declared perfectly sane and capable of managing himself and his affairs.

"Hope for the patient!" he said. "That is one of the great reforms. Without hope, where are these poor people? I have been in one hospital, one public institution at Pau, France, and three private or licensed houses where things are done for gain. Only one person has ever said to me, 'Mr. Gilchrist, if you give up so-and-so, I shall report you cured.' But I maintain that patients in a lunatic asylum ought to be told of their faults, and that they will be cured all the sooner if they are so told.

"Give the patients hope, I say, but instead of that, they are 'pin-pricked' into insanity. Anger is temporary madness, and if the provocation which causes the anger is kept up long enough, any one can be driven into madness. Under the present system the idea is to separate husbands and wives and relatives and friends. But see how different it is in the case of physical injury. If a man breaks an arm or leg, his friends flock to console with him; but if he has to be sent to an asylum he is at once cut off from all friends and relatives.

"There is another point: The inmates of an asylum are all looked upon as dangerous, but only a very small percentage are really dangerous. That is another way in which men are 'pin-pricked' into insanity; they are labelled 'dangerous,' and their friends are afraid to visit them for fear they should break out in a sudden fit of mania."

Speaking in advocacy of what he called "rewards after cure," Mr. Gilchrist said: "If a man is poor, he pays nothing when he has to be sent to an asylum, but he may be a good typewriter, a good clerk, a good tailor and he may be mentally healthy enough for his services to be utilized, and his services are worth more than his keep. But if a man is rich, like myself, he has to pay so much a week. "In my case I had to pay a certain amount per week, but that payment ceased when I was discharged. There is therefore, a temptation to keep a paying patient in an asylum as long as possible and I maintain that temptation would be removed by a system of rewards by the state for every person discharged cured. Every lunatic is a loss to the state, and it is right that the state should give a reward for his cure and recover from him afterward the sum so paid."

On the question of liberation Mr. Gilchrist pleaded for the immediate discharge of a patient when he was cured.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Sent for list of testimonials.

Y. M. C. A. Needs Stronger Support

Meeting to Consider the Needs of the Association and Enlist Support. The Town's People Must Unite in Contributing Assistance.

In response to a general invitation given to the congregations of the various churches from the pulpits on Sunday last, a small gathering assembled in Y. M. C. A. Hall after the services on Sunday evening to consider the Association's present condition and needs. To those who attended it was a matter of surprise and regret that so few of our citizens by their presence showed themselves interested in an institution which has been of so much value to the town and community, morally and socially, as has the Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Armstrong, the President, was in the chair. He referred to the generous support given by a non-resident of the town, H. J. Crowe, who contributed a total of $250 yearly for its support. Few towns were as fortunate in this respect as ours.

Revs. Warren, Underwood, Langille and MacDonald and other speakers referred to the excellent work done by the Y. M. C. A. in general. All our towns afford opportunities to lead our young men astray. They are allowed to drink, to gamble and to become immoral. Bridgetown is not in the rear in this respect. In few places are our individual churches able to do the practical work of the Y. M. C. A. For young men, so it becomes their duty to unite to support such an institution. It may be said, and said with truth, that the burden of church support falls upon a few and often these are not our wealthiest. There are no doubt men who deny themselves along these lines in order to contribute liberally to the church. All this was felt by the speakers. Yet it was acknowledged that if even one young man was saved from a downward course the money was well invested, and it can not be denied that a good number of our young men find these rooms a pleasant place to spend their evenings. Not only are they a pleasant place but the influences are beneficial that surround the young men taking advantage of the social pleasures enjoyed there.

The latter part of the meeting was of a more practical nature. Harry Ruggles speaking as a parent and citizen urged that a more cordial support be given. He offered to be one of forty, or if forty could not be found, one of twenty who would undertake to wipe out the present deficit of $200. At his suggestion a committee was appointed to interview the citizens and solicit their support. The following comprise the committee—Dr. Armstrong, Harry Ruggles, J. Harry Hicks and Captain W. Longmire. Others present announced that, before the institution should collapse, they would substantially increase their subscriptions.

The building has been leased by Harry J. Crowe for a term of five years, one year having expired. This liberality should not be ignored, nor should any further assistance be expected from Mr. Crowe. Two other citizens, neither of them having children to benefit by the association, generously subscribe to the extent of $20 yearly. Others give smaller sums in accordance with their means or inclination. Others with ample means to contribute show little or no interest. It is hoped that the prospects may brighten sufficiently to put the association in a position to re-engage the secretary and leader, Mr. MacDonald, for the ensuing year. Yet it was acknowledged that if even one young man was saved from a downward course the money was well invested, and it can

DEVELOPMENT WORK BOOMING, TORBROOK

(Halifax Chronicle.)

Development of the Annapolis Iron Company's property at Torbrook is proceeding rapidly, and the mine shows the greatest encouragement as a result of the work. Two shafts have been sunk on one—No. 1 shaft to a depth of 100 feet, No. 2 to a depth of 150 feet, both these shafts are situated one and two miles respectively west of the old Leekie workings at Torbrook and extend in the direction of the Nictaux River.

In addition to the above, a great number of test pits and diamond drill holes have been sunk between these shafts and beyond, proving the continuity of the ore deposit for a distance of over four miles.

The Company is now producing 300 tons of high grade ore per day. This comparatively small quantity is produced from the development work and from the levels driven in on the ore veins. About 200,000 tons of ore is ready for stocking. The entire output of the mine for the ensuing summer has been sold to the Londonderry Iron and Mining Company at good prices.

The Dominion Atlantic Railway has extended its Torbrook branch to the shafts where the ore is loaded direct onto the cars from the mines.

About 1,500 feet west of No. 2 shaft a new and very rich vein of red hematite has been uncovered, showing a width of over 6 feet on the surface. About a dozen test pits have been sunk along the crop of this vein, and the average analysis taken from these test pits shows: metallic iron 54.06 per cent., phosphate, 0.68 per cent., sulphur, 0.12 per cent., lime 2.00 per cent. This vein has been already traced for a distance of over a mile and at a depth of 150 feet, the point at which No. 2 shaft has been reached. A section of this vein showed as "in sight" a million tons of ore. There are strong evidences, which are now being verified, that this deposit is continuous for at least another two miles. This find certainly discloses one of the richest beds of iron ore ever uncovered in the Dominion of Canada.

The Annapolis Iron Company is now preparing to sink a permanent shaft on this new deposit, with a view of putting the ore on the market at the earliest possible date. Sites for shipping piers have been secured at Annapolis Royal, the work will be commenced thereon during the ensuing season. The Company has a valuable water power at Nictaux, which will when harnessed, supply power sufficient for the operation of all these mines. The distance of this power from the mines is less than two miles. The property of the Annapolis Iron Company is held in fee simple and is therefore free from any charges for royalty or otherwise. As all the veins on this property have increased in quantity and quality as progress has been made to the "deep," it is anticipated that the same will hold good with regard to the new vein just discovered.

There are other veins lying to the north of the one last referred to, which have not yet been prospected.

THE THAW TRIAL.

Seven Jurors Declare Murder—Five for Acquittal on Plea of Insanity.

After 47 hours' consideration of the Thaw case the Jury returned to Court and reported that they could not agree.

It is understood that eight ballots were taken; and at first it was eight for murder in the first degree and four for acquittal on plea of insanity. After further ballots the vote stood seven for murder and four for acquittal. In a few minutes after the foreman had announced the disagreement of the jurors, they were discharged by the Court. Thaw was remanded to the Tombs and the Court adjourned.

Here for the present is the end of the notorious Thaw trial.

Thaw's attorneys will likely ask for bail, Jerome will oppose it, especially since seven jurors have pronounced him guilty of murder, and the second trial will take place in due course, probably in the autumn.

HOME FROM INDIA

(Digby Courier.)

Curtis Worne, of Smith's Cove, left home in October, 1898, nearly nine years ago, for the United States. He later sailed for Liverpool, England. At that port he enlisted Nov. 3rd, 1898 with the second Battalion of the Manchester Regiment. When the Boer war commenced, his regiment was sent to the front. He served through a scratch and was in the worst of the battles. He afterwards was sent back to England, thence to Singapore, and all through India. After having served eight years he was honorably discharged and returned home via Philadelphia and Boston on Saturday, March 30th, and was in Digby last Monday. His relatives and friends received no letters from him and he was supposed to have been killed in the war. The name of "C. Worne" appears on the monument erected in Halifax in memory of those who lost their lives in South Africa. Mr. Worne is now a typical Englishman and has changed so much in his appearance that he is hardly recognized by his most intimate friends of ten years ago all of whom are pleased to extend a hearty welcome wherever he makes himself known.

BUILDING UP A FARM WITHOUT STOCK.

Restoring Fertility by Means of Commercial Fertilizers and Judicious System of Crop Rotation—Hay, Potatoes, Corn and Oats Included—A. W. Allen of Washington County, Vt., Who Six Years Ago Had No Farm Experience Tells in the N. E. Homestead How He Has Been Meeting the Problems That Confront So Many Farmers.

The task I set myself, three years ago, was to take a 220 acre farm, sadly run down by neglect and 20 years of renting, but which, previous to that time, was a dairy farm of some importance, and to bring it back to its former state of productivity. To begin with, I was told that success was impossible, as I did not keep a dairy, and the farm would soon sink to nothing.

One thing was settled at the start. I would not keep a dairy. I do not like the work, know nothing of it, cannot milk a cow, and do not even intend to learn. Therefore, some other method was found to keep up fertility, or, rather, to increase it. About 50 acres of this farm are mowing and grazing land, 100 acres pasture, and the rest woodland. The first year I broke up 15 acres of the land that was growing the poorest hay, and planted 10 acres to corn, 1 acre to potatoes, and an acre of garden truck, using all the manure made by four horses, one cow, half a dozen pigs and 250 hens, in addition to buying all I could have during the winter. Four acres that were planted to corn the year before, I seeded down to timothy and red top, with a light sowing of oats. Long before this, however, I had found that the price of manure, hauled five miles straight up hill, was prohibitive, so I bought samples of fertilizers for top-dressing, to see what they would do.

I got a big crop of corn and potatoes that year, and a pile of garden-sauce and 60 tons hay. Immediately after having I plowed up four acres of land too wet to work well in the spring and that did not cut much hay, worked it every few minutes (so it seemed to me) with cutaway harrow, every spare bit of time I could get, put on 300 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analyzing 2.2 to 3 per cent nitrogen, 16 to 18 per cent phosphoric acid and 12 to 13.5 per cent potash and about September I seeded down with timothy and red top. The next season I saw the ten acre corn piece planted with potatoes. I had bought a planter and sprayer to do the work, using about 600 pounds high grade fertilizer per acre. My four acres oats had given me 216 bushels grain and a lot of straw, and the patch of grass was a picture. The four acres used for potatoes and peas, and seeded down that fall, using 400 pounds per acre of the grass and grain fertilizer.

In the spring I used a ton of high grade dressing in a broad belt right across the largest mowing, and it was a raised belt, for sure. You could see it as far as you could see the field. That year I got about 80 tons of hay. This was the position of affairs in the early spring of 1906; ten acres (potato piece) ready for oats and grass seed, ten acres sod plowed in August preceding, seven acres pasture plowed at same time and about thirty acres to cut hay from. Two acres of the pasture were used to plant early potatoes using high grade fertilizer and a lot of it, and the balance of the pasture for hay. Four acres of the sod were used for potatoes and one for cabbage, and the rest was so wet I couldn't get a team on it, so all summer I looked at it and kicked myself because I had not gotten at it in the fall year and grass. I used four tons oats and top-dressing on my 30 acres, putting it on with a fertilizer sower I had bought to do the work. I got 1500 bushels potatoes, 20,000 cabbage, a number of tons of squash, a lot of garden truck and 100 tons hay. In the fall, the wet piece was treated with fertilizer, worked cutaway tools, and seeded down to timothy and red top.

Now to sum up, I have 40 tons more hay than I had the first year, from less land. I have some good pasture land ready to raise oats this year and grass the next. I have a dandy ten-acre field of grass to add to my thirty, and the cow is still in the barn and doing well. I am also very well myself, thank you, and while, in my experience, I am no doubt doing a lot of stupid things, I keep everlastingly at it, and if one out of ten of my experiments are successful, I will increase the hay crop, and make a dollar.

A few things are now proved to my own satisfaction, 1, that with hay as my main crop, I can best use potatoes and oats as a rotation in getting cash results; 2, that for three years the crop of hay has increased and improved on small and large plots; 3, by the use of high grade fertilizers analyzing 2.2 to 3 per cent nitrogen, 16 to 18 per cent phosphoric acid and 12 to 13.5 per cent potash, and composed of nitrate of soda, ground bone and muriatic potash. I have the courage of my convictions, and shall continue the use of this fertilizer, without reversing so long as such marked improvement follows; 3, that with such results before me, and manure like gold dollars, I can afford to use it only with my oats and grass seed, never after that. Would add that I got 325 bushels sound potatoes from a mounded acre, with 800 pounds high grade fertilizer. By the way, I am after 200 tons hay on this farm, and have given myself three years more to get it. If I only may live that long, will invite The Homestead Editor up to see it cut.

STARTING YOUNG PINES.

The constantly increasing price of lumber has brought the people of New England to realize that a crop of pine trees is very profitable. At present most of the standing lumber in New England has been started by nature, which, if you give her time, will cover the waste places with seedlings. But man with his modern ingenuity and enterprise can, if he will, aid nature greatly in transplanting the waste places into tracts of lumber which will bring the owner a good revenue. Fully 80 per cent of the land is not tilled and a large per cent of this is waste land.

Probably every large land owner has his or her share of this land which might be made to yield a profit if young trees were planted. There seems to be two ways in which we may aid nature in transforming these tracts of land into young forests which will almost immediately add to the value of our farms. The first method is to Second Seventy-seven.

It is a bad grade yet. But before the new work was done on the river division Beverly hill was a terror to trainmen.
On rainy Sundays old switchmen in the Zanesville yards will tell in their shanties of the night the Blackwood bridge went out and Cameron's stock train got away on the hill, with the Denver flier caught at the foot like a rat in a trap.
Ben Buckley was only a big boy then looking on freight. It was dispatching under Alex Campbell on the West End. Ben was a tall, loose jointed fellow, but gentle as a kitten; legs as long as pinch bars, yet none too long running for the Beverly switch that night. His great chum in those days was Andy Cameron. Andy was the youngest engineer on the line. The first time I ever saw them together Andy, short and chubby as a duck, was dancing around, half dressed, on the roof of the bath house, trying to get away from Ben, who had the fire hose below, playing on him with a two inch stream of ice water. They were up to some sort of a prank all the time.
Through the rain a rush month with us. From the coast we caught the new seat for fruits, and Colorado was becoming of China silks. California still crop Japan tea and the fall importation cattle shipments. From Wyoming came sheep and from Oregon steers, and all these not merely in car loads, but in solid trains. At times we were swamped. The overland traffic alone was enough to keep us busy. On top of it came a great movement of grain from Nebraska that summer, and to crown our troubles a rate war sprang up. Every man, woman and child east of the Mississippi appeared to have but one object in life—that was to get to California and to go over our road. The passenger traffic burdened our resources to the last degree.

I was putting on new men every day then. We started them at braking on freight. Usually they work for years at that before they get a train, but when a train dispatcher is short on crews he must have them and can only press the best material within reach.
"How long have you been braking three months when I called him up one day and asked him if he wanted a train."
"Yes, sir, I'd like one first rate, but you know I haven't been braking very long, Mr. Reed," said he frankly.
"How long have you been in the train service?"
I spoke brusquely, though I knew without even looking at my service card just how long it was.
"Three months, Mr. Reed."
It was right to a day.
"I'll probably have to send you out on '77 this afternoon." I saw him stiffen like a ramrod. "You know we're pretty short," I continued.
"Yes, sir."
"But do you know enough to keep your head on your shoulders and your train on your orders?"
Ben laughed a little. "I think I do. Will there be two sections today?"
"They're loading eighteen cars of stock at Ogalla. If we get any hope off the Beaver there will be two big sections. I shall mark you up for the first one anyway and send you out right behind the flier. Get your badge and your punch from Carpenter, and whatever you do, Buckley, don't get rattled."
"No, sir. Thank you, Mr. Reed."
But his "thank you" was so pleasant I couldn't altogether ignore it. I compromised with a cough. Perfect courtesy even in the hands of the awkwardest boy that ever wore his trousers short is a surprisingly handy thing to disarm gruff people with. Ben was undoubtedly awkward, his legs were too long and his trousers decidedly out of touch with his feet, but I turned away with the conviction that in spite of his awkwardness there was something in the boy. That night proved it.
When the flier pulled in from the west in the afternoon it carried two extra sleepers. In all eight Pullmans, and every one of them loaded to the ventilators. While the train was changing engines and crews the excursionists swarmed out of the hot cars to walk up and down the platform. They were from New York and had a band with them—as jolly a crowd as we ever hauls—and I noticed many boys and girls sprinkled among the grown folks.

As the heavy train pulled slowly out the band played, the women waved handkerchiefs and the boys shouted through the hoarse air.
Half an hour after the flier left, '77, the fast-stock freight, wound like a great snake around the bluff after it. Ben Buckley, tall and straight as a pine, stood on the caboose. It was his first train, and he looked as if he felt it.
In the evening I got reports of heavy rains east of us, and after '77 reported "out" of Turner Junction and pulled over the divide toward Beverly it was storming hard all along the line. By the time they reached the hill Ben had his men out setting brakes—tough when the big engine struck the bluff the heavy train was well in hand, and it rolled down the long grade as gently as a curtain.

Ben was none too careful, for halfway down the hill they exploded torpedoes. Through the flier were presently seen. As they pulled carefully ahead Ben made his way through the mud and rain to the head end and found the passenger train stalled.
That was Blackwood Creek, bank full, and the bridge swinging over the swollen stream like a grapevine.
At the foot of Beverly hill there is a siding—a long siding, once used as a sort of cutoff to the upper Zanesville yards. This siding parallels the main track for half a mile, and on this siding Ben, as soon as he saw the situation, drew in with his train so that it lay beside the passenger train and left the main line clear behind. It then became his duty to guard the track to the rear, where the second section of the stock train would soon be due.
It was pouring rain and as dark as a pocket. He started his kind red brakeman back on the run with red lights and torpedoes to warn the second section well up the hill. Then walking across from his caboose, he got under the lee of the hind Pullman sleeper to watch for the expected headlight.
The storm increased in violence. It was not the rain driving in torrents, nor the lightning blazing nor the deafening crashes of thunder that worried him, but the wind. It blew a gale. In the glare of the lightning he could see the oaks like willows in the storm. It swept quivering down the Beverly cut as if it would tear the ties from under the steel. Suddenly he saw far up in the black sky a star blazing. It was the headlight of Second Seventy-seven. A whistle cut the wind, then another. It was the signal for brakes. The second section was coming down the steep grade. He wondered how far back his man had got with the bombs. Even as he wondered he saw a yellow flash below the headlight. It was the first torpedo. The second section was already well down the top of the hill. Could they hold it to the bottom?
Like an answer came shorter and sharper the whistle for brakes. Ben thought he knew who was on that engine, though he knew that whistle for engineers whistle as differently as they talk. He still hoped and believed—knowing who was on the engine—that the brakes would hold the heavy load, but he feared—
A man running up in the rain passed him. Ben shouted and held up his lantern. It was his brakeman.
"Who's pulling Second Seventy-seven?" he cried.
"Andy Cameron."
"How many air cars has he got?"
"Six or eight," shouted Ben. "It's the wind, Duley—the wind. Andy can hold her if anybody can. But the wind, did you ever see such a blow?"
Even while he spoke the cry for brakes came a third time on the storm.
A frightened Pullman porter opened the rear door of the sleeper. Five hundred people lay in the excursion train, unconscious of this avalanche rolling down upon them.
The conductor of the flier ran up to Ben in a panic.
"Buckley, they'll telescope us."
"Can you pull ahead any?"

"The bridge is out."
"Get out your passengers," said Ben's brakeman.
"There's no time," cried the passenger conductor wildly, running off. He was panic stricken. The porter tried to speak. He took hold of the brakeman's arm, but his voice died in his throat. Fear paralyzed him. Down the wind came Cameron's whistle clamoring now in alarm. It meant the worst, and Ben knew it. The stock train was running away.
There were plenty of things to do if there was only time, but there was hardly time to think. The passenger crew were running about like men distracted, trying to get the sleeping travelers out. Ben knew they could not possibly reach a tenth of them. In the thought of what it meant an inspiration came like a flash.
He seized his brakeman by the shoulder. For two weeks the man carried the marks of his hand.
"Duley," he cried in a voice like a pistol crack, "get those two stockmen out of our caboose! Quick, man! I'm going to throw Cameron into the cattle."
It was a chance—single, desperate, but yet a chance—the only chance that offered to save the helpless passengers in his charge.
If he could reach the sliding switch ahead of the runaway train he could throw the deadly catapult on the siding and into his own train and so save the unconscious travelers. Before the words were out of his mouth he started up the track at topmost speed. The angry wind staggered him. It blew out his lantern, but he flung it away, for he could throw the switch in the dark. A sharp gust tore half his rain coat from his back. Ripping off the rest, he ran on. When the wind took his breath he turned his back and fought for another. Blinding sheets of rain poured on him. Water streaming down the track caught his feet. A sliver he tripped him, and, falling headlong, the sharp ballast cut his wrists and knees like broken glass. In desperate haste he dashed ahead again. The headlight loomed before him like a mountain of flame. There was light enough now through the sheets of rain that swept down on him, and there ahead, the train almost on it, was the switch.
Could he make it?
A cry from the sleeping children rose in his heart. Another breath, an instant floundering, a slipping leap, and he had it. He pushed the key into the lock, threw the switch and snatched it, to make deadly sure, braced himself against the target rod. Then he looked.

No whistling now. It was past that. He knew the firman would have jumped. Cameron too? No, not Andy. He saw streams of fire flying from many wheels, he felt the glare of a dazzling light, and with a rattling crash, the ponies shot into the switch. The bar in his hands rattled as if it would jump from the socket, and, lurching frightfully, the monster took the siding. A flare of lightning lit the cab as it shot past, and he saw Cameron leaning from the cab window with face of stone, his eyes riveted on the gigantic drivers that threw a sheet of fire from the sauced rails.
"Jump!" screamed Ben, useless as he knew it was. What voice could live in that bell of noise? What man escape from that cab now?
One, two, three, four cars pounded over the split rails in half as many seconds. Ben, quivering dizzily for life to the right, heard above the roar of the storm and screech of the sliding wheels a ripping tearing crash, the harsh straps of escaping steam, the hoarse cries of the wounded cattle. And through the dreadful dark and the fury of the hubel the wind howled in a gale and the heavens poured a flood.

Trembling from excitement and exhaustion, Ben staggered down the main track. A man with a lantern ran against him. It was the brakeman who had been back with the torpedoes. He was crying hysterically.
They stumbled over a body. Seizing the lantern, Ben turned the prostrate man over and wiped the mud from his face. Then he held the lantern close and gave a great cry. It was Andy Cameron—unconscious, true, but soon very much alive and no worse than badly bruised. How the good God who watches over plucky engineers had thrown him out from the horrible wreckage only he knew. But there Andy lay, and with a lighter heart Ben headed a wrecking crew to begin the task of searching for any who might by fatal chance have been caught in the crash.
And while the trainmen of the freight worked at the wreck the passenger train was backed slowly—so slowly and so smoothly—up over the switch and past, over the hill and past and so to Turner Junction and around by Oxford to Zanesville.

When the sun rose the earth glowed in the freshness of its June showers.

Everybody Agrees

that COD LIVER OIL and IRON are beyond question, the greatest medicines known. Then why does not everybody take Cod Liver Oil and Iron? Simply because most people cannot take the Oil and few can digest the Iron in any ordinary form. These difficulties have been entirely removed by the introduction of FERROL, in which the Iron is scientifically combined with the Oil, rendering the Oil palatable and the Iron digestible. While is manufactured from the best quality of Cod Liver Oil (the whole of the Oil) and is richer in oil than any other emulsion, and while it contains just the right quantity of the best form of Iron prepared that not one person in a thousand finds any trouble in taking it, and infants digest it without difficulty. Moreover the well-established value of the Oil and Iron is immensely enhanced by the process of manufacture, and as the formula is freely exposed it is not to be wondered at that physicians everywhere have fully endorsed FERROL and used it largely in their practice. FERROL is invaluable for the treatment of any kind of Lung or Bronchial troubles, while for wasting diseases it has no equal, and Each. The flier, now many miles from Beverly hill, was speeding in toward Omaha, and mothers, waking their little ones in the berths, told them how close death had passed while they slept. The little girls did not quite understand it, though they tried very hard, and were very grateful to that man, whom they never saw and whom they would never see. But the little boys—never mind the little boys—they understood it, to the youngest urchin on the train, and fifty times their papa had to tell them how far Ben ran and how fast to save their lives. And one little boy—I wish I knew his name—went with his papa to the depot master at Omaha when the flier stopped and gave him his toy watch and asked him please to give it to that man who had saved his mamma's life by running so far in the rain, and please to tell him how much obliged he was—if he would be so kind.

So the little toy watch came to our superintendent and so to me, and I, sitting at Cameron's bedside talking the wreck over with Ben, gave it to him. And the big fellow looked as pleased as if it had been a jeweled chronometer. Indeed that was the only medal Ben got.
The truth is we had no gold medals to distribute out on the West End in those days. We gave Ben the best we had, and that was a passenger run. But he is a great fellow among the railroad men. And on stormy nights switchmen in the Zanesville yards, smoking in their shanties, still tell of that night, that storm, and how Ben Buckley threw Second Seventy-seven at the foot of Beverly hill.

TEACHES SNEEZING.
"Yesterday," said one woman to another in a Chestnut street car, "I met a sneezing teacher. I do not mean a teacher who sneezes, but a person who teaches the proper way to sneeze. It struck me as a decided novelty. I think I will take lessons. The teacher argues that he is a most useful person to society. Nobody, he says, can prevent sneezing, no matter how many formulas and medicines the afflicted one may absorb. But they sneeze may not be avoided, it may be cultivated, and from a stertorous snort it may be modified into a gentle, melodious noise. For anybody who startles the neighborhood with frequent sneezes the experiment may be worth while." Philadelphia Record.

TRUANT SCHOOL NEEDED.

What is to be done with the young "toughs" growing up in Bridgetown? There is an element plainly observable which is breeding the human material with which our penitentiaries are to be filled. It is much easier to bend the twig than to straighten the tree. Formation of character is easier than reformation of character. Are these boys to be allowed to loaf and idle all their growing years away, and then become charges upon the town and county for the rest of their lives, or, at best, disreputable and objectionable citizens?
 A truant school with an industrial department would be an invaluable boon to Bridgetown. Who will move in the matter? Two boys who were sent from here to the industrial school at Halifax, two years ago, have returned home. Some occupation should be found for them to prevent their falling under the influence of old associations. They show the benefit of the training received, and it would be a good thing to send a couple more of our little street gamins to get the benefit of the same experience.

Temperance Legislation

The Prohibition Bill introduced on February 25th by Mr. Armstrong having been ruled out of order, that gentleman, on April 3rd, made a motion to the effect that the government should introduce a similar measure. The motion was seconded by Mr. C. A. Campbell.

Cooper moved in amendment that the Government enact legislation to prevent the sending of liquor into the Counties in which the Canada Temperance Act is in force, and into counties where there are no licensees and that it is the desire of the House and that the Dominion Government enact such legislation as will enable this law to be carried out.
 Mr. Tanner moved an amendment to the amendment that it was the opinion of the House that Crown assets should be given to the money clauses of the Bill introduced by Mr. Armstrong, and that it be introduced as a Government measure, and that the Dominion Government be petitioned to enact a Prohibitory Law, to prevent the importation into, or the manufacture of liquor in the Province of Nova Scotia. H. Rev. Mr. Cooper's amendment carried.

The vote was as follows:
 On the amendment to the amendment proposed by Mr. Tanner:

He also resided in North Andover for a time and there learned the trade of machinist. At the time of his death he was in the employ of the United Shoe Machine Co. and previous to taking a position with them he devoted himself to the invention of shoe machinery, many of the machines still bearing his name.
 He leaves a widow and one son, J. Frederic Lockett. The funeral services were held at his late home on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and were largely attended. The Rev. J. T. McGrath of St. Luke's church conducted the service. The interment was at Evergreen cemetery.

FOLLOWING GRAMMAR.

Prof. Lounsbury, discussing the question of simple English, said at Yale one afternoon:
"There was a little boy who began to keep a diary. His first entry was 'Got up this morning at 7 o'clock.' He showed the entry to his mother, and she, horror-stricken, said: 'Haven't you never been to school? Got up, indeed! Does the sun get up? No, it rises.'
"And she scratched out 'Got up at 7,' and wrote 'Rose at 7' in its place.
"That night the boy, before retiring, ended the entry for the day, with the sentence, 'Set at 9 o'clock.'—Harper's Weekly.

A young lady who had returned from a tour through Italy with her father remarked that her father liked all the Italian cities, but especially he liked Venice.

"Ah, Venice, to be sure," said the friend to whom she was relating some of the adventures of their trip. "I can readily understand that your father would prefer Venice with its gondolas, and St. Marks, and Michael Angelo's."

"Oh, no," said the young lady, "it wasn't that. But he could sit in the hotel, you know, and fish out of the window."—Ladies Home Journal.

The young man stooped, picked up a coin from the floor of the street car, examined it attentively, and then, "Has anybody lost a five dollar gold piece?" he called in a loud voice.

Instantly the solemn looking man at the other end of the car strode forward "Yes I have lost a five-dollar gold piece," he said eagerly holding out his hand.

"Well said the young man, giving him the coin, 'I'm sorry for you. Here's five cents toward making good your loss.'—Woman's Home Companion.

HE STOOD WELL.

There may be more than one just cause for pride in the soul of the small boy at the close of his first day at school.
"How did you get on with spelling?" Bob's mother asked him. "You look so pleased. I'm sure you did well."
"No'm I couldn't spell much of anything," admitted Bob. "An' I could not remember the 'rhythmic very well, nor the jiggerly.'"

The mother's face wore a look of disappointment, but Bob had reserved the choice morsel which was sure to raise a sensible parent to heights of appreciative joy.
"But that's no matter, mother," he said, bestowing a bear's hug upon her: "the boys all like me, and I've got the biggest feet in the class!"—Youth's Companion.

"Now, be careful how you drive, cabby, and go slowly over the stones, for I hate to be shaken. And mind you pull up at the right house, and look out for those dreadful railway-vans."
"Never fear, sir, I'll do my best. And which 'ospital would you wish to be taken to, sir, in case of an accident?"—London Tit-Bits.

The parlor sofa holds the twain, Miranda and her love-sick swain, Headshe.
But hark! a step upon the stair, He and she. —Pack.

Household.

GREAT DANGER IN NAGGING AT CHILDREN

The greatest defect in home discipline is continual nagging. Children who are exposed to a constant hailstorm of fault-finding, grow hardened to it by repetition, and it makes no healthful impression on their minds. Resentment is aroused by reproof given in public. A sensitive child hates ridicule, and loathes comment that is apparently bestowed before the family or the family friends. A most brilliant and beautiful woman says that her childhood was unspakably wretched because her mother and her elder sisters never omitted an opportunity to criticise her when she made a mistake or transgressed a rule of etiquette.

WHAT DOES COUNT.

She was a large girl who had long limbs and an awkward carriage at twelve, and her mother would say, "I am so mortified at Elizabeth's clumsiness. We keep her out of sight as much as we can, but she is so big that it is hard work." It was always "Sit up straight, Elizabeth," or "Go back and see if you cannot enter the room more quietly," until poor Elizabeth wished that the ground would open and swallow her up.
If you find that the habit of criticism is creeping over you, that you are ready to blame than to praise, to reprove than to reward, call a halt.

Remind yourself that fruit and flowers ripen in the sunshine, and that affliction has before now been winter-killed. Not the things in a home, but the people in it make the home a place of charm and repose.

WHAT DOES NOT COUNT.

Mothers need to discriminate. Harshness and severity should never be meted out to the child who is the victim of an accident. With the utmost admiration the perfect poise and unbroken calm of a sweet woman whose little girl had the misfortune to knock over a very costly vase, which had for her mother precious associations connected with her wedding journey in the Far East, were greatly admired. The vase stood on a table where it had been placed after having been shown to guests, who had gazed on it almost with envy.

In came little Barbara, her doll in her arms, her foot caught on a rug, slipped along the polished floor. She threw out a hand to save herself from falling, and let the vase lay in fragments at her feet. "Never mind, Barbara," said the mother gently, "you did not mean to do it. I am so glad you are not hurt, and even Dolly hasn't a scratch."

The object lesson in self control was worth going far to see, and its effect would ever be lost on the character formation of the little daughter.

A father's part in the upbringing of children is not less influential and not less direct than that of the mother. A father, whose his children honor, whose integrity and rectitude are unimpaired, whose goodness is their shield, and who stands to them almost in the place of Divine Providence, is for children their best ideal of the heavenly Father.

During the very earliest years, children are most closely under the moulding hand of mothers, but from an age that reaches back into the dim adumbration of infancy they receive some impressions from their father.
The man's province is to provide for his home, to be its breadwinner and its defender, and therefore working hard and long, he often has little opportunity to be much with his children. Sunday is the father's day. The children make acquaintance with him then.

He talks to them, tells them stories, goes with them to walk and carries the baby on his shoulder.
A home in which both father and mother unite in training their children is the one retreat on earth which gathers to itself the light of Heaven.

For a luncheon dish, 'Parker House potatoes' will be appreciated. Add to a pint of hot mashed potatoes a beaten egg and a tablespoonful of flour. Roll out with a bread roller and cut into large circles. On each piece lay a little minced veal or lamb, and turn over the other half of the potato, pinching the edges together, exactly like a Parker House roll. Lay on a buttered pan and bake brown. Serve with a brown gravy, or with a meat sauce made from other fragments of yesterday's roast veal or lamb.

Hana Croquettes.—One cupful of finely chopped, cooked ham, two cupfuls of mashed potatoes, yolks of three eggs, one tablespoonful butter, a dash of cayenne. Mix with the mashed potatoes the butter, two egg yolks and the cayenne; beat until smooth; turn out to cool. Put the ham in a small frying pan, with the remaining yolk, and stir over the fire for about one minute; turn out to cool. When cool take a large tablespoonful of the potato and form it into a cup-shaped mold, into which put some of the ham and then enclose it with potato. Dip this into beaten egg, then into cracker crumbs and fry in boiling fat.

Apple Patties.—Line small pans with rich paste. Put a spoonful of stewed, sifted and sweetened apple into each and bake in a quick oven. Put a spoonful of meringue on each and set in a cool oven to color a little.

Short Cake.—One pint flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon soda sifted into the flour with one teaspoon cream tartar, one-quarter cup butter, one egg, one scant cup milk. Mix dry ingredients in order given. Beat the egg and mix with the milk, then stir into the dry mixture. Melt the butter and add this last. The dough should be soft enough to spread. Bake in hot oven twenty to thirty minutes. Divide and fill with strawberries, raspberries, pineapple or any other fruit in season.

Orange Cake.—One cup sugar, one-half cup butter beaten to a cream, 2 eggs well beaten, one-half cup milk, 1 teaspoon cream tartar and one-half teaspoon of soda. In 14 cups flour sift both cream tartar and soda, rind of 1 orange grated.

Frosting.—Juice of 1 large or 2 small oranges, mixed stiff with confectioner's sugar.

PROBLEMS OF DRESS.

Though one may be a very good seamstress the perfect knowledge of becoming colors may be lacking. Youth is always attractive, no matter how garbed, but even youth cannot afford to gratify taste in colorings regardless of individuality. The red-haired girl will not choose the shades of baby blue, if she is wise, because the contrast will only intensify the red in the hair. The genuine blonde, however, and the fair brunette will find such shades exceedingly becoming. Again, the yellow browns will be positively fatal to both the pure blonde and the blonde ardent. These should select the rich, deep browns, while the true brunette will be a beauty in golden brown.

Dull cadet and navy blues will become either type and green is the especial color of one. Melting toward the chestnut blonde. Purple and mauves she can also wear with good effect, but, of course, all shades of red and pink must be strictly avoided. The genuine and semi-blondes may choose from the pinks, blues, mauves, dark browns, grays, dark greens, pale yellows, creams, very dark reds, whites, blacks and old rose.

The brunette may wear all the foregoing shades except mauve, with the addition of orange and every shade of red. Green, too, should be tabooed, if the wearer-to-be is at all sallow or colorless, as green has a tendency to increase this. Black, too, will have the same effect, and should not be worn unless relieved about the face.—The Delinquent for April.

A DOUBTFUL COMPLIMENT.

A clergyman was about to leave his church one evening when he encountered an old woman examining the carving on the front.

Finding her desirous of seeing the beauties of the church he volunteered to show her over, and the flustered old lady, much gratified at this unexpected offer of a personally-conducted tour, shyly accepted it.

By and by they came to a handsome tablet on the right side of the pulpit. "This," explained the good man, "is a memorial tablet erected to the memory of the late vicar."

"There, now! Ain't it beautiful!" exclaimed the admiring old lady, still flustered and anxious to please. "And I'm sure, sir, I hope it won't be long afore we see one erected to you on t'other side."

We are spending $5,000.00 this month to explain what the word "Constipation" means.

Constipation means NON-ACTION OF THE BOWELS. If the liver is healthy, it pours enough bile into the intestines to make the bowels move. Then, too, the bowels discharge waste matter from the body by a peculiar snake-like movement. This requires strong muscles.

When the bowel muscles are weak—when there is not sufficient bile—the bowels do not move for two, three, sometimes four and five days.

This non-action of the bowels is Constipation. Waste matter, which should leave the body, is taken up by the blood, and carried to the kidneys and skin. These organs—in a vain endeavor to throw off the poisons—are overworked. The poisoned blood, in turn, irritates the nerves, causing Headaches—Backaches—Neuralgia.

The weakened kidneys cannot rid the system of urea, which changes into uric acid, causing Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago.

It is useless to try to cure Constipation with calomel, cascara, senna, strong purgative pills and vile-tasting mineral waters. They simply force the bowels to act by irritating the delicate membranes. Their action weakens the muscles and really does more harm than good.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" ACT ON THE LIVER—stimulate the glands—and so regulate the action of the liver that it will excrete sufficient bile to move the bowels in the normal, natural way every day.

Nothing else in the world will so surely and permanently cure Constipation.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" are made of fruit juices, intensified, with the most valuable tonics and antiseptics added. Cure yourself of Constipation by taking these wonderful liver tablets. 50c. a box. Sent by mail if your druggist has none. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa. 107

OCTOGENARIAN'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED

(Salem Evening News.)

Eighty-four years ago on March 22, 1823, Isaiah Chute, of Peabody, was born in Bear River, N. S. His birthday anniversary finds him vigorous and well, and, in appearance, seemingly younger by a number of years than the age to which he frankly confesses. As is his daily custom he has attended today to such work in his line, that of carpentry, as had been assigned to him, but at the same time, has received pleasant messages from his children and kindred, and congratulations from numerous friends. Mr. Chute greatly enjoys these kind evidences that his birthday is not overlooked, and he hopes never to get so old that he cannot appreciate them, or will find them unwelcome. Like other fine old people in Peabody he feels that these remembrances help to make life worth the living. Although fourteen years beyond the scriptural span of human life, Mr. Chute continues in the same excellent health that has characterized him throughout his career. He is an ardent disciple of the life of activity in the open, and practices that gospel more than faithfully. He enjoys work, real work, and is always uneasy unless doing something. His services as a jobbing carpenter are constantly in demand, especially by those for whom he has worked many years, and it is evidently his intention to see to it that the old gentleman is not permitted to rust, or to get into the sere and yellow leaf. The customary formal observance of Mr. Chute's birthday by his children will not take place today, the event having been postponed a week, for several reasons, one of which is the absence of two or three relatives, whose arrival home had been delayed until it was too late to celebrate the birthday today. A complimentary reception and dinner will be given to him in Boston on Friday, the 29th inst., by his sons and daughters.

His many friends here join in hearty congratulations and wish him many more happy anniversaries. Our thanks to James M. Chute, Cambridge, Mass., for souvenir of reception and dinner.—Ed.

A FOXY TENANT.

(Lippincott's.)

At one time there lived in Worcester, Massachusetts, an old negro who had a tremendous influence, religious and political, in the settlement where he lived. He occupied a little house owned by a prominent banker, but had successfully evaded the payment of rent for many years. No trouble came however, until the banker was nominated to run for a political office. The next day the old negro came hobbling into his office.

"Well, Sam," said the banker, "I suppose you've come to pay me some rent."

"Oh, no, boss," replied the old man, "I've just come to say I'm glad you is nominated, and will tell de res' of dese no 'count niggers to vote fo' yo', and to mention to yo at de same time dat de roof of my house is leakin', an' if it ain't fixed I'll have to move out directly."

MYSTERIOUS CASE PUZZLES QUEBEC.

Girl Accused of Murdering Her Brother Still Professes Ignorance.

Quebec, April 10.—Alexina Carrier, who is held in custody on suspicion of having killed her brother, Amos Carrier, whose dead body was found lying on the snow at La Tremblade Communion, St. Charles de Bellechasse, some days ago, still declares her innocence. It was given out before the coroner's jury that Alexina Carrier arrived home on the morning of April 1st, with blood upon her hands. She carried a stick with which she said her brother had beaten her, and had then thrown at her. She had gone that morning to take her little sister to school. Her brother had a reputation of being anything but of an amiable disposition. The girl had returned home crying about ten o'clock, saying her brother had beaten her. The blood on her hands she explained, was caused by a blow which her brother had given her with the stick.

When the news came of the finding of the body, all of the family came to the scene except Alexina, who remained alone in the house until the body was brought home.

To the grandfather of the victim, Alexina had declared that when her brother had struck her with the stick she had exclaimed, "Here comes your uncle," and he had then taken flight.

The case is certainly a most mysterious one, and what the outcome of the investigation will be is certainly difficult to say. Mr. Ernest Roy, M. P. P., for Montserrat, has been retained to defend the accused girl.

Milidge Armstrong's brood mare, Malie Mack, has a beautiful Border Jr. foal at her side, of which "Mid" is justly proud. It is large and well formed, and its breeding brings it up among the aristocrats. This colt has a license to go some of these days, providing nothing happens to it.

Arnold Dixon, a young lad who works for Chipman Harris, had the misfortune to cut himself on the wrist very badly on Monday. There being no one home at the time, he had the presence of mind to bind his handkerchief around, thus partly stopping the flow of blood until the arrival of Dr. J. J. Lovett, who dressed the wound, having to take several stitches.

It is a strange yet noticeable fact that there are always some smart Alecks in every town and we are sorry to say that our town is no exception to this rule. We have a few of those would-be smart ones, no matter where they are, try to make it unpleasant for others. If they are on the sidewalk you must poke along behind them or take the street, as they generally travel in pairs and spread out to take as much room as possible. If at church, a lecture, or any place of amusement, you must put up with the annoyance of their brilliant thoughts, delivered in a stage whisper. In society their wit and puns must be endured. They respect neither youth or old age; in fact, they are an almost unbearable nuisance wherever they are and it is only through the respect their parents command that they are tolerated at all. We imagine that our readers have met all this' genii and with us will say they are about as great nuisances as the Creator ever clothed in flesh and endowed with the spark called life.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. A sluggish liver gives a coated tongue, bad breath, constipated bowels. Correct all these by giving small, laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

BELLINLE

On Wednesday, the 10th inst., a large company of ladies and gentlemen made a surprise party, calling on Mrs. Archibald Burns to spend a few hours with her, it being the 87th anniversary of her birth. It was not the intention of the party to place their aged and venerable hostess to the least exertion or care, whatever. The ladies of the party had prepared and taken with them baskets filled with all the good things. "They make all endeavors a success." After some hours being most enjoyably spent, the ladies served a bounteous and most enjoyable tea, after which music, talk, and reminiscences of by gone days were indulged in until the evening waned. The company after bidding their aged hostess a fond good night, and leaving her some tangible tokens of their esteem, departed for home. Mrs. Burns is a lady of most wonderful ability, both mentally and physically, retaining her faculties to a remarkable degree. She has manufactured fifteen large mats this winter and is now busy on another one. "Dear old folks!" the only link that binds us to the past.

Lewis Walker, of Upper Granville, had the good luck to bag a fine wild goose. It measured 5 ft. 10 inches across its wings and weighed nearly 9 pounds when dressed. There are large numbers of them about the river and marshes here this spring.

A snow storm, almost a blizzard, struck here on Saturday afternoon. The spring poet don't seem to be singing "I'll be with you when summer comes again."

WADE

A quantity of building material, finished lumber, etc., was shipped west last Friday via "our train" to Captain J. Thomas and A. C. Arthur.

Lottie Holmes and Mrs. A. C. Arthur went across the basin to today Saturday, but were unable to return on account of the high easterly wind which prevailed all day.

The cold winds and snow storms are seriously interfering with our early gardening operations.

Hay is becoming quite scarce in this locality and farmers say it has been the hardest season on hay that we have had for years.

God sent his singers upon the earth. With songs of sadness and of mirth, That they might touch the hearts of men, And bring them back to heaven again.

—Longfellow.
Willoughby Connelly is in quite a critical condition, having had several hemorrhages of the lungs lately.

The two Reverend Ministers of Annapolis, assisted our pastor, Mr. Kinley, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of last week in the special services at Victoria Beach. These meetings have concluded with very encouraging results, as there will be quite a large number of candidates for baptism in the near future.

Howard Burke has purchased a yacht of Captain Kingdon.

Skippers J. W. Snow and David Hayden have their fishing vessels about ready for business and are awaiting a high tide to get them off.

We understand that George Johns, who went to Lynn last fall to work in the employ of the General Electric Co., has been promoted to night foreman over a gang of men.

James Johns expects to go to St. John next week to ship as an able seaman on a large schooner here.

The regular trips of the S. S. Granville touching this pier are becoming highly appreciated.

Mr. Kinley, our Pastor, goes to Milford with Rev. N. A. Whitman on Monday and Tuesday evenings this week, to assist in the special meetings being held by the latter there.

The singing party was held at the home of Miss Lottie Holmes Sunday evening.

Ernest Burrell, who has been clerking at W. H. Longley's for the past six months, has left for other scenes. Borden Gillis has his place.

E. E. Burke will erect a store this spring, in which he will carry on a general business in flour, feed, dry goods, groceries, etc.

Mr. Parsons, manager of the Lundy Iron Co., was in town last week.

Harris Emeco, who has been working here the past winter, returned to his home last Saturday.

John Muse received a bad cut in his head last Saturday, in the mill.

A new shaft will be sunk on the property of John Goucher. The railway will be extended from the Wheelock shaft.

James Taylor left for Springfield on Monday, where he intends working for the lumber company.

A supper will be held in Torbrook Hall on next Wednesday. Proceeds for church purposes.

CURED OF RHEUMATISM.

Mr. Wm. Henry of Chatham County, Tenn., had rheumatism in his left arm. "The strength seemed to have gone out of the muscles so that it was useless for work," he says. "I applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and wrapped the arm in flannel at night, and to my relief I found that the pain gradually left me and the strength returned." In three weeks the rheumatism had disappeared and has not since returned. "I troubled with rheumatism try a few applications of Pain Balm. You are certain to be pleased with the relief which it affords. For sale by W. W. A. Warren, Pharm. B.

Herbert Chute has returned home, he has spent the winter in the lumber woods near Springfield.

HAMPTON

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Curry, of Amherst, moved here last week and are occupying their summer residence on the point.

Captain Avard L. Brinton has gone to New York to take charge of the vessel lately in charge of Captain J. Anderson.

Foye Templeman is home from Waverly, Mass., where he has been spending the winter.

Winter still continues. On Saturday last we had a big snow storm. Sunday morning looked like the dead of winter, in fact, April so far has been as cold as the first part of January, and not nearly as pleasant.

King County Notes

Alden C. Webster, formerly of the D. A. R. general office, Kentville, is now in charge of the nicely equipped ticket and freight office of the D. A. R. at Truro.

At the close of one of the meetings at the Aylesford Baptist church recently, Deacon West on behalf of the congregation presented Rev. L. F. Wallace with an address and $125.

The residence of Arthur L. Mailhout in Somerset, was totally destroyed by fire. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp. Very little of the furniture was saved. There was about $1,100 insurance on the building.

Ephraim F. Weathers, of Somerset, has sold his farm to Randall B. Hilly, of the same place. Mr. Weathers and family leave in a few days for Victoria, B. C., where they intend to reside in the future.

James Austen Gates, of Harmony, fell on the ice striking his head on a rock. When found he was dead and frozen.

Lowe) are preparing to saw at an early date and haul to Kington for shipment. Messrs. Lowe also have a fine lot of logs for their mill at Millville.

Stevens, of Kington, has done an excellent winter's work at Cloud Lake and Kennebec, Hants County, and as soon as his lumber in Hants County is all hauled to the shipping pier his teams will be brought to Kington to spend the summer logging in the mill for the benefit of his wood-working factory at Kington.

ALBANY.

Frank Whitman arrived home on Saturday, April 13th.

One of our fishermen has recently been the guest of Mrs. Leon Whitman. On a previous visit, while at the house of Mrs. Whitman, he was returning from the house of Mr. Whitman, the wheel of the wagon caught on a pole which was lying on the roadside, upsetting the carriage and throwing the occupants out; fortunately they sustained no injuries.

The death occurred at New Albany on April 11th, of a Clark Whitman, aged 69 years. He was baptized over thirty years ago by Rev. William Parker and united with the Baptist Church here, of which he has been a consistent member.
