SWITCHMEN'S STRIKE FAILS. Most of Men Return to Work Three Action of Treatment.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 28.—The switchmen's strike given evidence today of rapid disintegration, and by tomorrow morning the officials of the different railroads, with terminals in Pittsburg, declare that traffic will be resumed as usual.

This result is attributed largely to the action of the Brotherhood of Trainmen at their two meetings yesterday in deciding against assistance and sympathy for the strikers.

The Pennsylvania officials stated that the strike had practically been settled, and that most of the men had returned to work.

CHARLTON WILL SPEAK. Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 28.—Mr. John Charlton has accepted the invitation of the Buffalo Merchants' Exchange and will address the members next Tuesday on the subject of trade between the United States and Canada.

The address will form one of the series of noon-hour talks for which the exchange is becoming famous. Lunch will be served. He will speak as an individual Canadian.

Sometimes several persons unite in buying one good gift rather than have each give a smaller one.

The family silver plate chest is a timely suggestion.

In the best quality plate, suitably cased, they range from $20.00 to as high as $150.00, whilst in sterling silver they range from $50.00 to $350.00.

THE PROHIBITION IDOL'S CLAY FEET

must now be banished and the question taken up in an honest, serious, businesslike way.

But The Globe articles mean more than this: they are, in substance, a condemnation of prohibition because it is a fraud. That is what The Globe article means. It has reached the same conclusion as The World, but it does not like to say so. Read the articles over again calmly and see if we do our neighbor any injustice. If The Globe thinks we have, and says so, we will freely copy its announcement to that effect.

But The Globe has "a past" on this question. It was prohibitionist when the province was agitated in 1893-4 by the plebiscite.

From the date of the great provincial prohibition convention attended by over 500 delegates, which was held in the Province on Oct. 4, 1893, until Dec. 27, four days preceding the vote, The Globe published a number of leading editorials upon the subject.

During the first half of the campaign the articles were of a non-committal character, defending the plebiscite method of procedure and summarizing the arguments pro and con. After The Globe had published a series of letters from two members of its staff sent to Iowa and Kansas, it analyzed their testimony, finding in favor of prohibition. On Dec. 6, 1893, under the heading "Prohibition in Iowa," The Globe said: "The correspondents agree that the attractiveness of drinking is gone, and no one is likely to be tempted into the backroom drinking places by the desire for cheerfulness or convivial company, or anything else than sheer craving for intoxicants. That is a gain, and we have seen that in the case of Maine the same influence has all but destroyed the drinking habits of the people."

On Dec. 20, 1893, under the heading "Effective Prohibition," The Globe published an editorial describing the conditions in Kansas, and said: "The law in that State has been singularly effective." It concluded the article with a list of Kansas politicians who had opposed the enactment of the law, but had since endorsed it.

The most important editorial statement regarding prohibition in Ontario published in The Globe in the plebiscite campaign of 1893-4 appears to have been that published in the Liberal organ on Dec. 27, 1893, and on Jan. 2, 1894. In the former, on Dec. 27, 1893, The Globe said: "If a large majority of the voters favor prohibition it will be an imperative demand on the government having authority to exercise it in prohibiting the liquor traffic in the Province."

On Tuesday morning, Jan. 2, 1894, the day after the Ontario plebiscite, The Globe editorially said: "It is impossible to argue that satisfactory evidence has not been given of a sentiment favorable to the total prohibition of the manufacture, sale and importation of intoxicants."

We ask the public to agree with us (1) that The Globe once favored prohibition; (2) that The Globe said the people of Ontario had given satisfactory evidence that they wanted prohibition; (3) that The Globe now believes that prohibition is impossible of realization. That's our contention.

THE LONDON ADVERTISER NEXT.

If we take up Liberal papers first, it is not that we wish to be unfair to them; they have simply been in evidence and they come first to hand—we will catch up with the weak-kneed or two-faced Tories, politicians and papers, later on. We come next to The London Advertiser. We can best introduce The Advertiser by quoting what its rival, The London News, said on Wednesday night:

SILENCE OF FOXY GRANDPA.

London News editorial, Nov. 27. And still The London Advertiser is dumb. The Privy Council may deliver judgments of the most vital importance affecting this province in a most pronounced degree, yet The London Advertiser opens not its editorial columns to say yes or nay.

There was a time when this London Advertiser did picket duty and never let Redmond's visit. A voice crying in the wilderness. The end of the war, incendiary campaign, a campaign led up the wrong way, all topics of the burning kind, but not a syllable about the judgment.

Last night The Advertiser discussed Mr. Redmond's visit. A voice crying in the wilderness. The end of the war, incendiary campaign, a campaign led up the wrong way, all topics of the burning kind, but not a syllable about the judgment.

There was a time when this London Advertiser did picket duty and never let Redmond's visit. A voice crying in the wilderness. The end of the war, incendiary campaign, a campaign led up the wrong way, all topics of the burning kind, but not a syllable about the judgment.

Not that we agree with all The News says of The Advertiser, but as the easiest way of showing how strong a prohibitionist paper The Advertiser was. It was prohibitionist up to the hilt, and it never had any hesitancy. Prohibition was easy. Well, the very same evening that The News was calling on its contemporary to speak out, it did speak out. Here is what it said:

THE PROHIBITION LIQUOR DECISION—SUGGESTIONS FROM VARIOUS QUARTERS.

London Advertiser Editorial, Nov. 27. It is rather interesting to note that there are some people who loudly call upon the government of Ontario to step right off exactly where the provincial ad- ministration is and we are bound to say more than one journal gives evidence of greater desire to embarrass the provincial ad- ministrations in the different provinces than to afford light on what is confessedly a simple problem of the province.

The statement that the question is complex, rather than simple, is in itself a contradiction. It is in fact a simple question, as is indicated by the variety of methods and questions already raised in the various provinces, and the fact that with the judgment of the Privy Council, to which we have above alluded. For example, there is the question of the sale of intoxicating liquors under which the government takes over and conducts the sale of intoxicating liquors. It is claimed that this system would eliminate those private interests which are so concerned in promoting the traffic, and that, as it would practically shut the open bar, discouraging the treating habit, it would do much to reduce the evils of the traffic to a minimum. It is rather suggestive that there are those to-day advocating the Goddard system who ten years ago spoke of prohibition.

A Hamilton contemporary suggests that it would be wise to wait a little to see how it works in Manitoba, the measure in that province having been already passed, declared constitutional and ready to be put in operation.

A Toronto contemporary raises the question of compensating those now in the business, and points out the two views which prevail thereat. One view is that the business has been more or less under duress, and under agitation, constantly, it is not in the same position as undisturbed business, such as, for example, as drygoods and boot and shoe businesses. The other view is that these businesses have grown up under the sanction of the law, and that it would be both right and expedient that compensation of some sort and to some extent should be given.

As illustrating the suggestion already made, that there is a "little" to be done, so simple a problem as it is at one time.

Well, do you see anything "easy" about it now? Isn't it about the hardest question there is in the world—so complex that it can only be solved by the combination of statesmanship and courage? Either The Advertiser has no more faith in prohibition than The Globe has or it is trying to help Premier Ross to save his face. We believe that The Advertiser has come to see that it was supporting a fraudulent proposition, and that its political allies are badly in need of time to cast about for an escape.

OTHER PUBLIC OPINION.

Having gone thru The Globe and Advertiser, we find the same idea running in the other Liberal papers. There is no clear-cut opinion; in which it says: "The Ontario government is not likely to be in a hurry in passing such an Act [prohibition]." "The Dominion Parliament has something to say about trade and commerce," and "it would be absurd to see the distilleries and breweries running in Ontario to supply people outside of this province." "But one thing the province can do—it can shut up all the bars and saloons and prevent the retail sale. To the great majority of people this would be going far enough. Is the Ross government sufficiently endorsed by public opinion to justify it in doing it?" And then The Banner goes on to say that if the prohibitionists cannot get their hearts' desire from Ross they'll never get it from Whitney! Here is the wind-up: "What could be done is this. No prohibition bill could ever get thru the present Legislature, so many of the sitting members being opposed to it. But a bill could be prepared by the government and then submitted to the people at the general elections, the government pledging itself to its enforcement if returned to power."

The Hamilton Advocate of Cayuga has this luminous conclusion: "The problem is a ticklish one, and the country will anxiously await the Premier's announcement as to the course he has decided to follow."

The World has declared openly and straightforwardly that prohibition is a fraud; the moment any sane man comes up against it he has to declare the same. He may stutify himself or he may squirm, but once he is forced to speak, and they are all now where they'll have to speak the same and the one conclusion is inevitable.

Tell us, if you will, for a moment, where this Province of Ontario would be, were this City of Toronto would be, at the end of three years of prohibition?

When they try to make this prohibition idol of theirs stand up, you see that it has feet of clay!

GOOD-BYE We've turned this old Key on "179"

WELCOME We turn the new one at CITY HALL SQUARE

ADAMS' OPENING Saturday Morning 10 o'Clock

FREE SOUVENIR DAY. About 15,000 pretty Souvenirs to distribute to our callers to-morrow—free to every adult who comes.

WATCH US GROW! From the moment of its inception, away back in the "eighties," the success and almost unlimited growth of this business this proved itself to be, then, "a long felt want"—in a small way we stepped into the gap—people recognized our honesty of purpose to serve them to everything for the home—on the easy payment plan, and confidence and trade grew side-by-side—hand-in-hand—so that to-day we are the largest dealers in our way in the Dominion, and with few exceptions the largest on the continent.

From our first little store, in Adelaide Street East, we were in a few months forced into larger premises at 247 Yonge Street—business came our way so generously that it was only a matter of a little while till we were driven to more commodious premises at 179 Yonge Street—trade continued to grow and we acquired 177 Yonge Street—and all the floors above all the stores around the northeast corner of Queen and Yonge—but we outgrew them all, and a few months ago laid plans for having a building of our own in the best locality we could secure—to-day our plans are consummated, and to-morrow we'll welcome you to the New Adams Building—City Hall Square—the finest of its kind on the continent, and one of the best appointed home furnishing establishments in the world—the house has a selling area of nearly 75,000 square feet contained in six beautifully lighted floors, fitted with wide stairways—most modern passenger elevator for our customers, and special elevators for handling of goods—lavatories—waiting rooms and resting spaces—and a special feature on the first floor is the "model house"—all handsomely fitted and furnished—To-morrow we give the widest kind of welcome to come to our "house warming" and receive at our hands some one or other of the pretty little "souvenirs" in commemoration of "Adams' Opening."

WATCH US GROW! From the moment of its inception, away back in the "eighties," the success and almost unlimited growth of this business this proved itself to be, then, "a long felt want"—in a small way we stepped into the gap—people recognized our honesty of purpose to serve them to everything for the home—on the easy payment plan, and confidence and trade grew side-by-side—hand-in-hand—so that to-day we are the largest dealers in our way in the Dominion, and with few exceptions the largest on the continent.
