Once Beautiful Land

Grim Vesuvius, guarding the smiling Bay of Naples, sends southward her smoke messages to her sister Etna, hovering a living Nemesis over the beautiful island in the Mediterranean.

And the people who live between, merry, happy, care-free people cultivate these orange groves and lemon terraces, snatch a meagre living from the blue sea, or tend their scrawny flocks on the jagged hills, unmindful and fearless, fatalists in reality, and ignorant to a degree.

But when the terror comes all the world stops and pities, astonished at the magnitude of the disaster and sore at heart with the thought of the suffering, sepulchres of thousands, with the little towns which dot the high-fung shores of the strait that swirls between Scylla and Charybdis, only dusty heaps, the disaster which has come to Southern Italy and the north shore of Sicily, is brought home to the hearts of many New Englanders.

For many of our people know the spot well, have rejoiced in its beauties, gained health in the glories of its climate and wonder work among the flower-strewn hills and valleys. The average man who journeys to Palermo, the queen city of the Mediterranean, goes south from Naples, drives dotted with cross-crowned churches, through the fastness of the Abruzzi, and down to the shores of the hurrying gulf at Reggio Calabria.

It is a long journey, tiresome but interesting, for while the slow moving train climbs and twists you see the land from which so many of the Italians who do our own most unskilled labor hail. Its physical aspect has stamped itself upon the mentality of the men and women.

They are rugged, strong, fierce and a bit dangerous, almost like their brothers across the straits in their joys of the vendetta. While the language they speak is the same as that of their more advanced brothers to the north, it sounds like a different tongue, more soft and musical, more appealing to the senses.

Such are the shepherds who live in the hills above the straits, in the little villages ruined by the great earthquake, but 6,000 feet to high in the air to know the terror of the tidal waves which added to the ruin in Reggio and Messina.

Reggio was best seen from the sea, as one came through the straits from Naples. To the right rise the sheer walls of the Sicilian littoral, vine hung on their crests, wicked and stern at their meek feet. To the left the crescent of Italy less fearsome but less warming. The shore runs back perhaps miles before it mounts up into clouds in needle-like hills, many capped by struggling little gray lametta.

Longboat's Next Task

Tom Longboat having effectually squelched any claims which Dorando may have had in respect to being the Indian's master, will now turn his attention to Alfe Shrubbs, the doughty little English runner, and the engagement between them at Madison Square Garden on January 26th, is stirring up the greatest interest of all the races so far run. The dissimilarity in the physique of the two men and the difference in their methods are fruit for discussion, and the Indian's wonderful strength and stamina is banded against Shrubbs' speed and remarkable record to give the victory to the redskin.

The race will be between two of the most dissimilar men that ever toiled the mark. Shrubbs is an Anglo-Saxon, while Longboat is of pure Indian blood. It will be a race between youth and age. Longboat is 22 years old, while Shrubbs is more than 30. The Englishman is a short, chunky fellow, standing only five feet 2 inches. He weighs 136 pounds in his best condition. Longboat is five feet 11 inches tall and weighs about 143 pounds.

The Indian is one of the cleanest built athletes that ever donned a shoe. He has an ideal build for a distance runner. Framed like a race-horse, long, lean with a big, roomy chest, giving plenty of lung space, and tapering down to limbs that are as slender and gracefully sinewy from head to toe, no man was ever better equipped by nature for a foot racing trial of speed and endurance than the speedy son of the forest who will carry the maple leaf of Canada in the big race on Jan. 26th.

Shrubbs is the antithesis of Longboat. He is shorter and stockier than his redskin rival. Shrubbs has little weight to carry above the waist. He has a big, roomy chest, but is small-boned, and carries little flesh on his frame-work. Below the waistline Shrubbs boasts a pair of drivers that, while they are not as pretty and do not taper in the graceful racehorse lines of Longboat's limbs, are fully as muscular and sinewy.

Longboat has the long lops of the forest runner. His stride is frictionless, and in action he appears to be drifting along on the wings of the wind. He does not bound off the ground in his strides. He lands soft and catlike, with just enough spring to carry him forward in another full stride without waste of energy. The Indian, however, does not have nearly as long a stride as most persons have been led to believe. It is longer than the average athlete's, but shorter than many runners. Longboat does not "reach," and there is not a movement lost to his action below the waistline.

Shrubbs also has a stride that is the personification of ease. His stride is perhaps a trifle more springy than the Indian's, but it is just as smooth and frictionless. His movement is perfect in the expert's eye, but to the ordinary spectator who enjoys seeing the so-called "pretty" form, it is not as pleasing. Shrubbs possesses ability to do something that few athletes can master. That is to punctuate his contents with a series of heart-breaking sprints. All his races are marked by those mid-race sprints. He will go along under wraps for a few laps, and suddenly will cut loose a burst of speed. He ceases his sprints just as suddenly as he starts them. In a ten-mile race Shrubbs will cut loose in no fewer than nine or ten whirlwind bursts of from 100 to 300 yards.

It is on these heart-breaking sprints that the Englishman's supporters are hoping for a victory over Longboat. They say that his early sprints will give him a lead over the Indian that Longboat will not be able to overcome. Tom Flanagan, however, says the great Indian will set such an even stiff pace that Shrubbs will be run into the ground. The race will be one of the biggest betting propositions that foot-racing ever furnished.

The Tree Surgeon and his Work

The tree doctor is a product of modern conditions. In pioneer days, when the country was covered with original forests there was no thought of him, but now, when the entire country is becoming alarmed over the rapid disappearance of our trees, he has become an important personage.

The profession, however, is not over-crowded; in fact, there are many sections where he is unknown. Not infrequently the tree doctor is called upon to treat cases in which the cavity is large enough to allow one or even two men to stand upright in it. The quantity of filling in such a case sometimes amounts to several barrels. Fortunately, however, the filling used for trees is not as expensive as the gold and amalgam used by the dentist in filling teeth. That in the most frequent use is cement, although in the extreme cases where a large hollow is to be filled, rocks, bricks and sand and cement may be used as a bed for the top layer of filling. It is only recently that tons of such filling were required for the preservation of a giant tree in New Jersey, and the famous Washington elm in Cambridge, Massachusetts, now consists mainly of cement.

It is not, however, always necessary to call in a professional tree surgeon, as most of the ordinary cases can be successfully treated by an amateur after a little experience in properly cleaning out cavities and the correct mixing of the cement filling. When a tree is already rotten or diseased special treatment is required. Also, all diseased or decaying tissue must be cut out, no matter how large a wound is made because if any decay is left it would be as bad practice as if a dentist failed to cleanse thoroughly a decayed tooth before putting in the filling, and the work would have to be done over again in order to save the tree. -Harper's Weekly.

Womanly pains, head pains, in fact any pain anywhere can be completely stopped in 20 minutes with one of Dr. Sloop's Pink Pain Tablets. Ask your Doctor or Druggist about the formula. It is printed on the box and can be better. Try the dose and be convinced. Box 25c. Sold by All Dealers.

Exhibits Self-Restraint reviews the special message which he sent to Congress concerning Joseph Pulitzer and the Panama canal purchase, he must be astonished at his own moderation. The manner in which he refrains from saying anything which, through the exercise of a critical imagination, might be construed as reckless or sensational or violent, is an example of self-restraint. From beginning to end the document is as devoid of passion as an anæsthetic, as mild as the gossip at a pink tea. Gentleness could not further go. These phrases with which the utterance bristles are mild as a dish-rag, and are indicative of the quality of the whole message.

String of infamous libels. Lying and libelous epithets. This vilifier of the American people. Basest and foulest. Singularly devoid of strenuousness, of impetuosity, of vigor, are these expressions. So dispassionate and calm and judicial are they that they sound like the words of a weakling or a molluscoid.

The whole document breathes such a spirit of peace on earth, good will to men, that it is especially appropriate as a Christmas greeting. It has ordinary gentleness beaten to a frazzle. Some people, on occasion, have thought that the President was inclined to be too invidious, to rashly assert, to hasty utterance, to extreme characterization, that he had over the Indian that Longboat will not be able to overcome.

Brains

Brains are common to all parts of the country, and traces of them have even been discovered in summer in Lenox, Bar Harbor, and Newport. They are originally used to obtain money, but when money is obtained by them it usually takes their place. The quality of brains varies in different localities. They mix with water and gasoline, but are absorbed by alcohol. Brains are bought and sold in the open market. They may be traded in on the exchange, in Washington and Albany or in other political centres. The best quality, however, are not traded in indeed, until long after they have passed away. -Thomas L. Masson, in Lippincott's.

There is no Quinine, nothing whatever harsh or sickening in Preventives. These Little Candy Cold Cure Tablets act as a magic. A few hours—and your threatening Cold is broken. Candylike in taste, Preventives please the children, break the feverishness, always. And least of all is the economy. A large box of 48 Preventives—25 cents. Ask your Druggist. He knows! Sold by All Dealers.

All the World Subscribed Money Paris, Jan. 12.—A Turin despatch to the Matin says the following sums have been sent to Italy from various countries from the date of the earthquake up to the present time:

Table with 2 columns: Country, Amount. Includes United States (18,000,000), France (10,000,000), Spain (2,000,000), etc.

$100 REWARD, $100 The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarh. Hall's Catarh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by all Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Rudeness If you wish your children to be respectful to you, then you should be respectful to them. The boys and girls who are spoken in a harsh, rough tone of voice naturally fall into the habit of responding in the same way. Parental dignity and authority may be asserted with the utmost firmness, and yet without coarseness or arrogance. In fact it cannot be well asserted in any other way. A rude father or mother is likely to have rude sons and daughters.

What Dreams Mean Venison.—To dream about venison denotes change in affairs. Teapots.—If a sick person dreams of teapots she will soon form a new friendship. Run.—If a sick person dreams she is running, it's a sign that she will get well soon. Turkey.—To dream you see a turkey strutting about betokens success in your undertakings. Shoes.—To dream of losing one's shoes and walking bare-footed signifies pain in the feet and sickness. Surprise.—To dream that you surprise anyone denotes good luck to the dreamer and great success in trade. Watermill.—To dream of being near a watermill is a favorable omen. It denotes success in love, and a happy marriage. Laughing.—To dream of laughing violently betokens sorrow and weeping. It also denotes change of circumstances and friends. Storm.—To dream that you are exposed to a violent storm denotes that a reconciliation is about to take place between you and one with whom you have been at variance. Wood.—If you dream you are walking or sitting alone in an extensive wood by a running stream, it denotes that you will quickly fall in love, and also that you will be married several times.

Hints About Shoes The trying on of boots and shoes should always be done in the evening, when the foot is at its happiest. If this plan were adopted one would always be sure of obtaining properly fitting footwear. The foot looks far better in a long boot or shoe, because it keeps its shape longer, and takes away from the width of the foot. New boots should be worn first in the house for a few days until the feet get accustomed to them. If at all possible, people should always have their boots specially made for them. It pays to get them good—they will last twice as long, and keep their shape till they are worn out. As a last hint, I would advise all those who can afford it to have two pairs of boots or shoes to wear alternately. There is nothing like a day's rest every now and again for keeping them in perfect condition.

Horses in Belgium Belgium is the chief horse-breeding country in the world. There great attention is given to the development of superior types, and the sales of horses to foreign countries constitutes one of the principal items of commerce. Horse fairs are almost continually taking place during the year throughout the country and are very largely attended by foreigners, especially by Germans, who purchase, it is said, from 20,000 to 25,000 horses annually. Efforts to improve the Belgian horse have been confined chiefly to heavy working rather than the light draught harness and racing animal. In 1906 twenty-nine thousand horses were exported from Belgium valued at $7,000,000. It is estimated that there are now in that country 275,000 horses. Belgian horses can be divided into two distinct groups, the Flemish and what is known as the Ardennes. To the first belong the large massive working horses in general use. The Brabant horse, which in appearance is almost identical with the Flemish, is equally large and massive. The Ardennes horse is robust, long necked, broad shouldered, resists fatigue and supports privation better than the Flemish. -St. Thomas Times.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Are You Sweet-Tempered?

It is said that a bad-tempered woman can cause more actual unpleasantness for the best of humanity than all the other disagreeable features one finds in life, and the unlucky possessor of an uncontrolled temper should remedy the fault as far as possible.

The girl who can control herself under the most trying circumstances is the girl who holds the strongest power over her fellow-creatures.

No matter how beautiful and clever and fascinating the bad-tempered girl may be her power is infinitesimal compared with that of her amiable sister.

And amiability is not only power, it is mental progression and health and happiness, and long life to one's self and to one's friends and family.

The bad-tempered girl or woman invariably declares her failing to be something she "can't help" on the rare occasions it is brought home to her that the said temper has worked havoc with the peace and happiness of those who surround her.

Nothing can be more false.

Sweet-temper is a grace to be cultivated. Sought after perhaps with many scars, but to be won by all those who are unselfish enough to desire the happiness of others before the gratification of their own ill moods.

Have You a Horse?

If you want to keep him in shape, never let him suffer pain. Rub on "Nerviline"—it is noted for curing strains, swellings and stiffness and sore muscles. For internal use in curing cramps and colic, Nerviline is a perfect marvel. In every good training stable you'll find Nerviline because it keeps horses in trim and reduces the veterinary bill. Farmers, stockmen and all horse owners should buy Nerviline and prove how invaluable it is. Good for man or beast. 25c. for bottle at all dealers.

In Brief

A miller living near the battlefield of Waterloo has derived a regular income since 1815 from the sale of a rusty iron nail. Someone discovered that Napoleon had hung his hat on that nail. He bought it. The miller promptly replaced it with another, and has since been busy selling rusty nails as priceless Napoleonic relics.

Sir Walter Parratt, "Master of the King's Music," played and won a game of chess while sitting at a piano performing from memory some difficult pieces by various great composers.

Peated thirty-one years ago, on September 8, 1877, a letter has just been discovered whilst the postal box at the beach village of Tarare was being renovated. The person to whom it was addressed at Lyons has been dead for a quarter of a century.

Mr. J. Van Sommer suggests that the sea could be trapped at high tide in many harbors and inlets round our coast and, being passed through pipes, compelled to supply power for industrial purpose at a handsome local profit.

Helgehegs do not take the milk of cows that are lying down, but they have been proved to take the eggs of poultry, and game birds, such as partridges and pheasants, while chickens and hens in coops are killed and worried.

Character by the Hair

Hands, feet, eyes, fingers—all have been used as delimiters of character, and now it is the turn of the hair.

Dull black hair is said to denote a jealous disposition and a tendency to treachery.

The lighter the color of the hair, the more sensitive is the owner to criticism, and the more quick to feel real or fancied injuries.

The possessor of brown hair of a deep color and firm texture is usually distinguished by good judgement, good reasoning power and plenty of common-sense.

Women with red hair, though sometimes too impulsive and outspoken, are, as a rule, truthful and honest, with fair common-sense. They are usually the brightest, sunniest, and gentlest of mortals.

A woman with straight and "unyielding" hair, particularly if dark in color, has a firm and highly principled nature. She is determined, perhaps even a little obstinate but in the main extremely dependent.

The Lost Watch

Nellie Cravey Gillmor in the New Orleans Times-Democrat

"Harsh speeches are an evil brood of chickens that always come home to roost." On the morning after she had flung the betrothal ring on the floor and dashed out of the room, leaving young Ausley alone with his consternation, the words occurred to Joyce Giddfield as an appalling truism. The packet the postman had just placed in her hands bore a distinctly ominous and hateful aspect; it was so fatally like the one she had mailed less than a week ago! Tearing off the paper with quivering fingers, she leaned weakly against the door-casing and started at the shining surface of the silver box with hot, aching eyes. Then she turned suddenly, and rushed up to her room, locking the door behind her.

Finally, when she had somewhat calmed herself, she sat down and placed the casket on the table in front of her and pressed the spring. He had returned everything; the little pearl scarfpin, the seal ring, made from old family gold; the card case, the silver box in the lid of which was mounted her latest photograph, and which she had sent him only five days ago. There was a lock of her hair, too, lying against the pale blue satin like a circle of sunlight.

For a long time Joyce sat looking from one mute article to the other, with a hundred pictures of her lover floating through her mind, her eyes brimming with tears of passionate regret. But she pulled herself together determinedly after a while, and rose and crossed the room to her desk. She pulled open a drawer and placed the casket in it, locking it securely and hiding the key.

The days that followed were dreary enough. All her old life seemed to flicker out as completely as a candle without a wick; it had crumbled to dust, vanished like a dream, but with the bitter recollection still vividly upon her, mocking, illusive.

A month had gone by. One morning Joyce went out on the verandah and picked up the paper. The first item her eyes fell upon, after she opened it, caused her a start of surprise.

"Found—On Broadway, between Ninth and Tenth, a Swiss enameled watch. Owner may claim property by identifying same at this office."

She threw down the paper and ran upstairs to her room and took down her coat. It was just as she had expected; the chatelaine was still pinned to the lapel, but the watch was missing. She dressed herself rapidly and took a car to the Herald office.

"I should like to give a reward," she told the agent, when she had proved her title to the jewel; "I am Miss Oldfield—if there's anything special—"

"Nothing at all. The gentleman who picked it up hoped the owner would be located without any trouble. He would not accept any reward, I am sure, miss."

Joyce hesitated a second, then she called for a pencil and a sheet of paper and hastily dashed down a line in a cramped, backward.

"The lady whose watch you found desires to express her thanks for its safe delivery."

"If the gentleman calls, kindly hand him this," she said.

A few days later a letter was forwarded to "Miss Oldfield" from the Herald office. Joyce tore it open eagerly and read:

"Mr. Jones is in receipt of the lady's kind words of appreciation, for which he begs to acknowledge grateful receipt. Was the watch O. K.?" P. O. box No. 236. It was written in type.

Joyce flushed as she folded it up. Should she take advantage of this obviously designed opening to reply? The turbulent state of her feelings at the present time rendered her reckless and blinded her to the first requisites of conventionality. And with a dare-devil impulse, she answered:

"The watch was intact—many thanks. Did you see me drop it?" She gave an assumed name and a box number.

The reply was plausible, if mendacious: "It was impossible to overtake you. I lost sight of you in the crowd, after which I believe you whirled past me in a motor. Am I correct?"

The correspondence developed with amazing rapidity between "Mr. Watkins Jones" and "Miss Eunice Smith"—P. O. box No. 374. At the end of six weeks there was a tacit betrothal. A fortnight later Joyce had promised in sheer desperation (through her amanuensis) to meet him in Baltimore on the following Friday and be married from her uncle's home.

She left New York on Thursday night with a tumultuous heart and half a dozen trunks, containing the wedding finery that had been inspired by her engagement to Teddy Ausley. And the vision of her old lover rose up to confront her, she choked it away with her pride and set her face resolutely toward the new life in which he was to have no part.

Just before midnight Joyce was shooed into consciousness by the abrupt, violent lurching of the train. She sat up in her berth with white cheeks and frightened eyes. Fastening her belt and collar, she followed the excited passengers out into the night. In the dark one of the rescuers took her by the arm and hurried her off through the trees to where the crowds were assembled.

In her excitement Joyce stumbled and fell. A man coming toward them with a lantern stopped a moment, while her companion lifted her to her feet.

"Are you hurt?" The tone sent a whole regiment of little thrills through her.

"No, no; not exactly." She looked up into his face and the light from the lantern flared full into her own.

"Joyce!"

"Teddy!"

His arm supported her. The girl made a little ineffectual protest, but he held her all the tighter.

"It—it's horrible," she moaned, with a shuddering, backward glance at the burning cars.

"I don't think any lives were lost," said Ausley reassuringly, "and I do know that it was our moment—with Providence."

Joyce trembled. Should she tell him? She would have to, sooner or later. "Teddy," she began in a quavering little voice, "I—you mustn't say such things to me, and I—I can't listen to them. I am on my way to Baltimore to—to be married."

"The deuce you are!"

"It's true," she jerked out with a sob.

Then Ausley laughed—without fear of nervousness. "So am I," he announced dryly.

"You?" Joyce collapsed.

"That's true; too." He looked away.

There was an instant, impossible of depiction. Then Ausley turned with a sudden masterful gesture to the girl at his side and said:

"Look here, Joyce. Miss Smith can buy her tract to Halifax. I don't want anybody but you, and I mean to have you!"

Joyce looked up shyly, and her face, looking as though it had been dipped in crimson, rippled into a thousand smiles.

"And—and Mr. Jones," she faltered, tremulously, he might just as well take the same train—with—Miss Smith, for I—really—don't—see—how—I—could."

Young Ausley stopped the words on her lips after a peculiar fashion of his own, encircling her with arms that were strangely rough, though exceedingly tender.

"Good! We'll leave them to console each other and proceed to do likewise."

Which presumably they did, for the rescue train left the village that morning with at least one bridal couple on board.

The Utopia Athletic Association... Good!
All right boys, skates will meet the emergency.
We have received some very complimentary letters lately, and we deeply appreciate all the nice things said about us, as well as the enclosures.
It is all very well to say that it takes two to make a quarrel, but the most placid disposition is not exempt from a determined attack of bad temper. Soft answers will sometimes prevent a bad quarrel, but occasionally more stringent remedies must be applied.
Quit—Carping and criticizing. See the best, rather than the worst in others.
Quit—Dilating on your pains and aches and misfortunes to everyone who will listen to you.
Quit—Speculating as to what you would do in some one else's place, and do your best in your own.
When God in Eden the flowers named, And colored them each and all, One tiny blossom held back ashamed— So shy she was and small. Fair buds and bells in beauty came— A countless multitude. And each was given a lovely name, And each was fitly hued, And a little floweret hidden there Saw wonders manifold. For the rose received her baptism, The lily her crown of gold. Still she hid her wistful face Half shy and half afraid, Nor guessed that God a special place And name for her had made! All done at last, with sudden fears— Deem'd, g herself forgot— She ventured forth and sighed In tears, "Dear Lord, forgive me not!" Each lovely flower turned, amazed, To hear those accents mild: Then on the face of God they gazed "The while he looked and smiled, He named the flower "Forget-Me-Not."

The retired saloon keeper who contributes to one of the current magazines the results of his observation and experience behind the bar tells a rather dreary story. Allowing that there may be some saloons where it is possible for their keepers to run them and retain some degree of self-respect and which are frequented by more or less respectable and well-bred people, this expert concludes that they are very few and far between and that it is almost impossible to make money decently in the business, notwithstanding the impression to the contrary that obtains in some quarters. Perhaps the most interesting and significant item of information furnished by this commentator concerning the patrons of the saloons is his statement that of all classes of people the Jews are the rarest and most infrequent.

A thunderstorm overtook the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria when out hunting in 1873, with old Emperor William of Germany and Victor Emmanuel. The three monarchs got separated from their party and lost their way. They were drenched to the skin, and in search of shelter, hailed a peasant driving a covered cart drawn by oxen along the high road. The peasant took up the royal trio and drove on.
"And who may you be, for you are a stranger in these parts?" he asked after a while of Emperor William.
"I am the Emperor of Germany," replied his Teutonic majesty.
"Ha, very good," said the peasant. And then, addressing Victor Emmanuel, "and you, my friend?"
"Why I am the King of Italy," came the prompt reply.
"Ha, ha, very good, indeed! And who are you?" addressing Francis Joseph.
"I am the Emperor of Austria."
The peasant then scratched his head, and said with a knowing wink: "Very good; and who do you suppose I am?" Their majesties replied they would like very much to know.
"Why, I am His Holiness, the Pope."
"Our Dumb Animals."

Sidney Bonds arrived here Monday from London, Eng.
Thos. Kent was a passenger on Friday's train from St. John.
Geo. Brown was at Black's Harbor, Wednesday, on business.
Miss Myrtle Dick left on Tuesday's train for Lawrence, Mass.
Rev. Father Carson drove to Black's Harbor, on Sunday afternoon.
Councillors Maxwell and Hickey, are attending the Municipal Council.
Senator and Mrs. Gilmor left on Saturday on their way to Ottawa.
Miss Edith Wallace has gone to Sackville, to take up the study of music.
F. Kierstead, of St. John, was here this week in the interests of Hall & Fairweather.
Mayor Lawrence drove to St. Andrews Tuesday. He will represent the town at the Municipal Council.
Miss Helen Clark has returned to Sackville, where she will resume her studies at the ladies college.
Miss Bessie Stuart, of St. Stephen, who has been visiting Mrs. Will Waycott returned to her home on Tuesday.
Theo. Hickey, Percy Catherine and Russell Hooper, of L'Etete, were registered at the Carleton house Saturday.
Mrs. Fraser of Blackville, Northumberland Co. and two children, are visiting Mrs. Fraser's parents, Postmaster and Mrs. T. O'Brien.
Messrs. George McCormick, Paul Reardon, Fred McVicar and Charles Blaney employed on the N. B. Southern, spent Sunday in town.
Several of the young friends of Miss Florence McGee met at her home Monday Eve. and enjoyed whist. Refreshments were served and the evening passed very pleasantly.
Lewis Connors, of Connors Bros. was in town Thursday on his way home from St. Stephen, where he had been attending a meeting of gentlemen interested in the new steamboat line.
A number of men are employed getting out logs for the new wharf to be built at Welchpool, Campbell, by the Dominion government. The number of logs required is 4,400, and of this amount some 2,000 have already been delivered. It is expected that the structure will be ready by the first of June, 1909, which is good news for the island folks, as it means a restoration of the steam ferry service which was abandoned on account of the unsafe condition of the landing. According to present plans, Campobello is in for a good sized boom during the coming summer. The well known Tyn-y-Coed Hotel is to be torn down and a number of cottages and bungalows are to be erected in its place, in addition to several cottages in the immediate vicinity of the Inn, formerly the Owen Hotel. For the convenience of cottagers a pavilion restaurant is to be erected and operated by the Campobello Land and Improvement Company, owners of the hotel and land formerly the property of the Campobello company. With the building of the government wharf and the cottages mentioned, Campobello should offer opportunities for plenty of work during the early spring for the unemployed carpenters and assistants of that and neighboring islands.
The size of lobsters which may legally be taken in St. John county has been reduced from 10 1/2 inches to 9 inches. The order, which has been issued by the marine and fisheries department, went into force yesterday.
It has been a long standing grievance in St. John County that fishermen in Charlotte had the privilege of taking lobsters down to nine inches and it was felt the same concessions should be granted here. Hon. William Pugsley had the matter brought to his attention some time ago and promised to see what could be done to place the conditions in the two counties on a more equal footing. A recent notice issued by Fisheries Inspector Byles to the effect that the old regulation of 10 1/2 inches was still in force brought matters to a head.
Dr. Pugsley was communicated with and promptly interviewed his colleague, the minister of marine and fisheries, on the subject. As a result, a telegram was sent to Jesse Belding, overseer of fisheries at Chance Harbor, containing the news that the minister of marine and fisheries had given permission for taking lobsters of nine inches.
The wire was sent to Mr. Belding in care of Hon. H. A. MacKinnon, its contents were communicated to Mr. Belding yesterday and the order, which will be very welcome to the fishermen is now in force.—Telegraph.

The farmer, if he only knew it, is a little nearer the Kingdom of Heaven than any one on earth. He is certain of three square meals a day and is the only man who can fence himself in and live in spite of the rest of mankind. A few cattle, and hogs and fowls provide him with food and clothing, while his fields, fruits and vegetables yield him a handsome revenue. So generous are these provisions and so common, that few farmers make any account of them, although the ordinary business man thinks he has done well when he reaches the end of the year and finds that he has a little more than made ends meet.

Carrie Nation declares she will clean out the House of Lords if they will let her in. This should please the party which wishes to see the lords abolished and make Carrie welcome.

It should not escape the attention of "Taxpayer" that the members of the town Council will meet as usual and transact business. They can be found at the old stand.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Subscriptions to Greetings are due.

Boyd's Hotel has closed until April 1st.

Mr. C. G. Seelye has our thanks for late Colorado papers.

Elb. Sherwood, with a big crew, is lumbering at Woodlands, Pennfield.

Greetings is sorry to report that there is no hope of Mr. Tucker's recovery.

We are pleased to note that A. D. Herron has resumed his position with J. Dewar & Sons, after an enforced absence of several weeks with a badly sprained ankle.

W. McLaughlin has a crew of men in the woods at L'Etang, getting out lumber which is to be sawed on the ground. A portable mill is being put in readiness for the work.

Two or three gentlemen who have been approached in reference to the Mayorality, have expressed themselves as decidedly averse to accepting the honor. It is reported that Mayor Lawrence will not offer again.

During the year just closed the sum of $3,000 was paid in head taxes by 662 Chinese who entered the Dominion at the port of Victoria, B. C. During the same time 1,721 Chinese left to return to China.

John E. Kane of Carleton, sent a crew of men to Beaver Harbor to begin construction of a pier 350 feet long with a pier head 60x40 feet. This will be built to take the place of a former provincial government wharf destroyed by storms. Mr. Kane also has the contract for a breakwater and wharf at Lornville 400 feet long intended to protect the harbor and give shelter to the fishermen.

At Watchpool, Campobello, E. R. Reed will construct a substantial wharf 314 feet long with pier head 60x40 feet. Oscar and Warren Downey will build at Harvey Bank, Albert county, an extension 54 feet long to the existing wharf, with a pier head 40x31 feet. At White Head, Grand Manan, J. H. Gaskill and L. F. Foster will construct a wharf 200 feet long with pier head 40x30 feet.

Bert Hatt, the young man who was shot last winter, while gunning above Bonny River, is reported, from Chipman Hospital, as improving. The Drs. expect him to recover, but the injury being of such a serious nature, recovery is necessarily slow. The removal of pieces of shattered bone from the hip, will make the leg shorter. In a letter to Dr. Taylor he writes hopefully, and in good spirits.

A Band of Hope was organized on Wednesday, Jan. 13th. Sixty-eight members were enrolled and more coming. The organization deserves the good wishes of all. Officers elected were: Edward Dewar, president; Laura Meating, vice-president; Laura Meating, Secretary; Earl Stewart, Treasurer; Raymond Greason, Guide; Irene McKay, Conductor; M. P. Russell, Supt. and Mrs. A. Goss, Ass't. Supt.

A most enjoyable and successful supper was held in Court's hall on Tuesday evening by the ladies of St. Mark's congregation. Tea was served from 6 to 9 o'clock. Those in charge of the tables were Mrs. Guy Clinch, Mrs. Crickard, Mrs. Lawrence Murray, Mrs. H. Harvey, Miss Belle Armstrong and Miss Gertrude Taylor. Grab bag, Miss Susie Murray; candy table, Miss Edna Johnson and Miss Perry. The table looked very pretty, being decorated with flowers, dainty china, cut glass and silver. Dancing was enjoyed at the close of the supper until 12 o'clock.

The cold weather of Saturday filled the air with frost and Sunday morning a warm wave coming from the South started the first earthward in the shape of fine snow, which the wind drove into the holes and crevices with a force that was irresistible. All day Sunday it was bad to be out and at night hail made the weary wayfarer anxious to reach the cozy fireside. At nine o'clock the rain came in torrents freezing and disagreeable. Monday the earth was covered with a heavy crust the trees were laden with ice, beautiful to view with the sun shining through the branches but bad for the small twigs and bud supporters. It was a combination storm, made heavy hauling and served to remind weather experts, who move the banana belt every fine day, that wintery days are still to be expected.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

There is good skating on the river as far up as the canal.

Call and see the new Valentine post cards at A. G. Brown's. The best yet.

Hats and Caps at a discount of 50 per cent at Hanson Bros this week cash only.

H. Price Webber has just closed a successful eight night's engagement at Sydney Mines N. S.

The debating society meets Tuesday evening of each week in Court's hall. Mayor Lawrence is Pres. and A. C. Toy, Sec'y-Treas.

The first game of the newly organized hockey teams was played on Saturday, between the Greeks and Beavers. It resulted in favor of the Greeks by a score of 4 to 2.

Harry Chaffey writing from Inulan Island says: "I enclose my renewal subscription to Greetings. We couldn't get along without it now." Thank you Harry.

No new cases of Scarlet fever have been reported for some time. The Board of Health took prompt measures to stamp out the disease, and are to be commended for their efforts.

Carrie Nation, while engaged in a raid on a saloon at Newcastle-on-Tyne, last Wednesday, was arrested. Local managers will be pleased to learn that this lady is still in business.

There is no particular fun running a newspaper. During the last few months no less than four Maritime Provinces dailies have given up the struggle. They are the Standard at St. John, the Graphic at Campbellton, the Times at Amherst and the Standard at New Glasgow.---Sheville Post.

On Monday a number of railway employees left for Musquash, where they will load a water tank on the cars. The tank is one of the overhead kind and will be placed near the water tank at the long hill. The erection of this tank will do away with the long, tiresome, wait travellers over the N. B. Southern now experience, or a trip to, or from St. George.

When the yearly product of one hen will buy a barrel of high-class flour it ought not to be thought a hardship to live. That is the case today and figuring the cost of keeping at one dollar and a quarter it surely makes the cost of good flour comparatively cheap. The man who can encourage his hens to get busy these days has a small gold mine in every hen-house. It is doubtful if there has been known a year when the average price of eggs has been as high as for 1908. No man can understand why the flocks increase so slowly where there is certainty of such substantial returns.---Dr. G. M. Twitchell in the Maine Farmer.

F. W. Holt, C. E. will prepare the plans and specifications of the proposed Navy Island bridge at a cost to the city of $750. There were a number of appreciations for the job, but as Mr. Holt has already devoted some time to the scheme and is in possession of considerable data bearing on the undertaking, it was felt that he should receive the commission. Mr. Holt's work when completed will be submitted for approval to a prominent firm of consulting engineers.

The bridge committee may be considered fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Holt.

It is interesting to note that his original plans for the bridge were approved by Wm. H. Burr, the eminent engineer who was employed by the Canadian government to report on the Quebec bridge disaster.---Sun.

The Utopia Hockey Club was organized Monday evening with Edw. O'Neill, Pres., and Grant Sherman, Sec'y-Treas; H. Doull, G. Sherman, Forace Stewart, K. B. Wathan, Geo. McCallum, Roy McKay and Ellery Johnson, managing committee. The dues were fixed at twenty-five cents month. Three hockey teams were organized to be known as Shamrocks, Beavers and Nemios. Season tickets, single, will be sold at $1.00 and family tickets at $1.50. All children fourteen years of age are eligible for membership. If sufficient encouragement is received two rinks will be kept in condition, one for the general public, and one for hockey. Members of the club are now soliciting subscriptions, and it is hoped that the public will respond liberally. To keep the ice clear of snow, floods and lighted at night means considerable expense, and to meet this the club members are calling on the citizens as above stated. The club starts under favorable auspices and Greetings wishes it every success.

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION FOR RHEUMATISM, KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES CAN BE MADE AT HOME

We are pleased to be able to publish for the benefit of our readers the prescription of a celebrated specialist. This is the result of years of scientific investigation and experience, and is taken from a reliable publication. This is an exact copy of the original—

*Dr. Ferris Edward Casarea 7/9
Garrigana Compound 1/2
Syrup Sarsaparilla 6/9
Directions:
Dose as powerful after each meal out of breath*

The ingredients are vegetable and have a gentle and natural action, giving a distinct tonic effect to the entire system. It is a wonderful mixture in the treatment of Lame Back and Urinary Troubles. It cures Rheumatic Pains in a few hours. The ingredients can be bought separately and mixed at home, or any druggist can fill the prescription. If not in need of it now we would advise our readers to cut this out and save it.

ELIN AND THE MINISTER

The minister looked upon the two young women as the fairest paroquets in the town. Their eyes were so much more than the minister's eyes. They were so attractive. Yes, saying it is a crime in our eyes to marry at once, but the minister had been married to that one, and she smiled a little slyly.

It means another year of waiting, she finished for him. Mr. Mayhew wants me to stay, but there is a stenographer he has set the best of Mrs. Gerry if I should leave him then, but if I stay at all he wants me for the whole year.

The young man got up and paced the floor restlessly, then he came and stood before her, looking down at her with troubled eyes.

Another year, Elin, he said. We cannot waste all that time in waiting. To be sure, it is some years. You speak of a place where you are going as a candidate next Sunday. Perhaps they will call you.

Not such hope, I am afraid, he said. I have had any encouragement. The society is nearly dead. Ever so many ministers have been there, and they all get discouraged. I have been there, and they are even talking of closing the chapel and not having a minister at all. I am going to request for a candidate is probably the only gap. It is too bad, for there are good people there, but you know how the struggling society, struggling against itself mostly.

Elin looked at him. You would not get discouraged, she said quietly. He looked up quickly. No, he said, but I had you with me. You would not depend on me, she said, firmly. You did not before you met me, you overcame obstacles and opposition and would not give up. It seems to me you are just the kind of man that little society needs. You say all those others got discouraged. That was probably why they failed. Doesn't it look to you like a glorious opportunity, David? Think how we could work there and help those people and bring them together.

You are right, Elin, he cried, his eyes kindling. I have been blind not to see a better, but now I will go out there and do my best for them—I'll put my whole heart into it, and we will hope that they may call me, and that we can begin our life work together there. She smiled at him. I know you will succeed, she said with conviction. It was on a Tuesday that the big February blizzard came, and on the next Saturday a young man alighted from the electric car, quite late in the afternoon, and inquired the way to Elisha Gerry's house.

Upon arriving there he informed Mrs. Gerry that he was Mr. Scudder the new candidate. She invited him in, and after taking off his coat and hat he sat down beside the air-tight stove, and held his hands close to the grateful warmth. It was evident that the minister had trouble, a cold, or something. I don't believe I have ever seen you so surprised. No service? repeated the minister in surprise.

He said not, you see, there is such an awful storm that the coal that was ordered has not been delivered, and there is no wood here so we can't have any fire. Besides, the janitor is laid up with the rheumatism and has not dug and it always drifts down in front of the chapel—so you see we really can't have a service. We ought to have sent word to you; I am awfully sorry.

Mrs. Gerry said the young man and there was a certain tone in his voice that made her look at him sharply. He had risen to his feet. His shoulders were very broad, his head was thrown back and his chin looked square and determined, while there was an expression in his blue eyes that made them look black. Mrs. Gerry, he repeated, I have come 30 miles on the steam cars, and have been ever since 8 o'clock this morning, doing it—on account of poor connections—in order that there might be a service here tomorrow morning.

There is going to be a service here tomorrow morning. The last words were spoken quietly, but somehow they carried weight. I believe you have the keys to the chapel, he went on in a business-like way; will you kindly let me have them? And if you could loan me a shovel I would be very much obliged.

By the time Mrs. Gerry had brought the shovel and the keys, Mr. Scudder had on his coat and hat. Don't wait supper for me, he called back to her, as he strode down the path, I may be late. And I never saw him again till 10 o'clock that night, Mrs. Gerry would say when telling the story afterward.

There was a large congregation at the chapel the next day, many who were not in the habit of attending church, coming on this occasion. There was the boy whose double runner Mr. Scudder had borrowed; there was the coal dealer of whom he had bought the bags of coal with which to heat the chapel; the grocer who had sold him some bags of charcoal and some crackers and cheese, and whom the young minister had requested to tell all his customers that there was to be a service in the chapel the next day.

The lady of whom he had borrowed a lantern, was there, also the one who had fallen on the icy sidewalk and whom he had lifted to her feet, afterward assembling her scattered bundles; and there was the lady who had sent by him for the doctor, and there was the doctor. Even the rheumatic janitor, who had been consulted as to the habits of the furnace, was so interested in the young man that he managed to come to the service.

Little by little, from evidence of the different witnesses, the story of that evening's work was pieced together, and it became known that the young man had walked two miles, getting to the coal dealers just before closing time, and brought back the coal on the double runner. Then he had shoveled a broad path to the chapel door, through its shoulder high in places, and with the borrowed lantern had gone inside, and carrying the fuel down stairs, had started a fire in the furnace. Then he had busied himself with broom and duster till the icy chill had passed away, when he sat down beside the furnace and ate his luncheon.

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Finally, when the fire was in fit condition to leave for the night, he had shut it up safely and returned the borrowed lantern, and as he had started back to the Gerry's had met the distressed lady who had sent him a mile in the other direction to get the doctor for a croupy child.

While he had not asked anyone to come, but merely told them, as if it were something they would be glad to know, that there was to be a service in the chapel the next day,—it was not strange that every one who came in contact with his vigorous personality, and knew what he had set himself to do, should have wished to hear his sermon.

And no one was disappointed, for his remarks were full of a strong and cheery optimism, and every one went away feeling encouraged and strengthened in a desire to live better and more useful lives. Perhaps the sentiment of the congregation was best expressed by the boy who owned the double runner—I never liked to go to church, but if they have that man, you bet I'll go every Sunday.

So it was that Rev. Mr. Scudder received an unanimous call on the part of Westlands for Westlands wisely judged that a man of force, who could overcome difficulties, was especially fitted to undertake the reconciling of the warring elements in the little society there.—Springfield Republican.

If your Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, try at least a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and falling nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the depending organs must of necessity falter. This plain, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by All Dealers.

Be Pleasant

Don't be afraid of being pleasant. It cannot hurt you, and will be as good as a tonic for all you meet. What though you do think yourself superior to most of your acquaintances; is it good taste to placard your belief by a freezing countenance? There is nothing like affability to conceal one's family skeletons. A haughty manner is a direct bid for the rest of the world to rake up ancestral secrets that you thought buried.

The New Year Resolutions When Marriages Must Mean Misery

New Year's resolutions are made for the most part, rightly, and are broken as rightly; but, at bottom, all things are accomplished by the solemn vow and resolve. When Queen Victoria was informed by the Archbishop of Canterbury that she had succeeded to the throne, Her Majesty made the instant resolution "I will be good." People, with the opening of the New Year, resolve as to habit and conduct, and this is admirable; but great advances can only be brought in by the individual attitude toward ones fellow-creatures. The world does not grow better by legislation; but every kindly act, every restrained temper, every courteous word, every soft "thank you," to those who render service, every thought and act which means to bless another, makes for permanent ameliorations which are redemptive in their total effects. The attitude of the individual becomes the general custom, and the courtesy of the "man on the street" is left at the council board of all nations.

Medical Science Advancing: First

Formerly doctors prescribed stomach treatment for Catarrh and Bronchitis. They seldom cured and Catarrh has become a national disease. Today the advanced physician fights Catarrh by medicated air. He fills the lungs, nose and throat with the antiseptic vapor of Catarrhine. Cure then is certain. Easy for Catarrhine to cure. It contains the essences of pure pine balsam, reaches all the germs and destroys the disease. Every case of Catarrh, Bronchitis and Sore Throat can be cured by Catarrhine. 25c. and 50c. sizes. Sold everywhere. Get it today.

Wives Who Make Home Unhappy

Husbands are by no means alone to blame for the lack of harmony in marital tempers. Is it not a fact that many many homes are made unhappy by discontented, fractious, envious wives? There are women who really seem to love to make trouble, and of all the brainless, selfish creatures on earth there is none to equal the woman who quarrels with her husband for the pleasure of making it up.

Yet it is done every day, and there are men so amiable that they are glad to give up any terms. When a man loves his wife there is nothing which can make him refuse her anything within reason. Alas, much of the trouble of the world comes from the fact that so many wives do not keep "within reason."

Have a Good Complexion

First of all you need plenty of blood—the red kind; that is pure, or otherwise blotches and pimples will render your natural charms unattractive. Nothing can equal Ferruquine, either as a purifier of rich blood or as a skin purifier. It brings out humors, Ferruquine cleanses the skin just as water cleanses itself just as water does outside. Because of the nourishment and building properties it contains, Ferruquine brings the system to a high point of vigor, from which shines forth, unobscured, good spirits. For good health, like Ferruquine, all dealers in S.C. boxes.

The Cough of Consumption

Your doctor will tell you that fresh air and good food are the real cures for consumption. But often the cough is very hard. Hence, we suggest that you ask your doctor about your taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It controls the tickling, quiets the cough.

We publish our formulae. We make alcohol. We urge you to consult your doctor.

One of Ayer's Pills at bedtime will cause an increased flow of bile, and produce a gentle laxative effect the day following. Formula on each box. Show it to your doctor. He will understand at a glance. Dose, one pill at bedtime.

Made by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

The funeral took place on Tuesday from her late residence. Interment in the rural cemetery, Rev. H. L. Lyndy officiating.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Resolved: That the pen is mightier than the sword, was the question before the debating club Monday evening. Dr. Alexander, A. C. Toy, Thos. Kent and Dr. Taylor affirmative. K. H. Wathan, H. R. Lawrence, Edw. McGrattan and Leo McGrattan negative. The debate was very interesting, and showed careful preparation in the part of each contestant. The judge, S. L. Lynott, decided in favor of the negative.

What might have been a serious fire, Tuesday, at Frauley Bros. was prevented by quick work on the part of A. D. Frauley and Thos. Henry who climbed upon the roof, and extinguished the blaze with pails of water. The fire was caused by a stove in the office.

The tender leaves of a harmless lung-heating mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its marvelous curative properties. Tight, tickling, or distressing coughs, quickly yield to the healing, soothing action of this splendid prescription—Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so safe and good for children, as well. Containing no opium, chloroform, or other harmful drugs, mothers should in safety always demand Dr. Shoop's. If other remedies are offered, tell them No! Be your own judge! Sold by All Dealers.
