SCHOOLS AND DIPHTHERIA.

We frequently hear of schools in the country being closed when diphtheria appears in the community. The best medical experience does not approve of this course. It is recommended, instead, that special and prompt means be attended by large and attentive congretaken to see that no person attends the gations—the aisles as well as the pews school from a household affected with | being crowded at the evening service the disease. Trustees and teacher can render great service by co-operating who preached in the morning from heartly in thus protecting the school Galatians iv., 7—in the evening from S. from exposure. The provisions of Reg. Luke ii., 7. 26, of the Board of Education, require that "no person shall be admitted to or continue in any school as a pupil, if he is afflicted with, or has been exposed to, any contagious disease, until all danger of contagion from such pupil, or from the disease or exposure, shall have passed away, as certified in writing by a medical man."

Where the school is closed by the trustees, experience has shown that the unrestrained freedom of the children is a fruitful means of spreading the disease. We observed that, during the gard to the terminal exhibition of the recent severe visitation of diphtheria at Ladies' Academy. As many Sackville Waverly, N. S., the physicians counselcitizens as could find room, were present led the trustees not to close the schoool but to use their authority in promptly removing from it any pupils in attendance from households where the disease might appear. This is the course taken in all our cities and towns, and school trustees in country districts should in outside world was charmingly contrasttelligently apply the best experience in protecting the children.

Christmas Decorations.

St. George's Church (Episcopal) Bath-URST.

The decorations of St. George's were this year on a much larger scale, as also much prettier than for many seasons past. Immediately over the Altar, on a pale drab back ground, in gold letters, was the Text—"The Lord remember all thine offerings,"—surmounted by a Greek Cross in gold on crimson. In the large space over the South window were the Texts—"Jesus the Author and Finisher of our Faith," and "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, to-day and forever,"the former in gold letters on crimson and the latter in red and blue letters, on and the latter in red and blue letters, on drab. A wreath of evergreen festooned near the ceiling and connecting with the windows formed a border to the whole.

farm and Household. When to Feed Grain to Horses.

Horses are provided with an un usually large development of the salivary glands, and an enormous quantity of saliva is secreted during the eating of a feed of grain or hay. This copious supply of saliva is sufficient to maisten and dilute the food, so that it can be digested perfectly without the help of water. Water is absorbed by the coats of the stomach and enters the blood with such rapidity that a thirsty horse will drink more water than the stomach will contain at one time, and the water begins to pass off through the kidneys, in such a case, after the lapse of a very few minutes. So that, knowing these facts, one may naturally infer that a norse may be watered a few minutes before feeding with more advantage than soon afterward because in the former case the water has been absorbed before the feed is swallowed, and digestion can not be interfered with by the presence of too much water in the stomach, as might happen in the latter case. The best practice is that usually followed, namely, to give the horse very little water on at noon, and in the evening, before gives time for absorption of water

The principle of combining the assessment plan with a Safety Fund is rapidly superceding all other systems and is being endorsed by the leading authorities on life insurance. The contract is at once simple, safe and inexpensive, and the protection of life insurance is offered on a plan as fair and just as is a contract for fire insurance, while large accumulations in the hand of the Company are rendered unnecessary and a member never has at risk more than the actual cost of one assessment.
