A Passenger Train Derailed

Norfolk, Va., March 26.—The steamer which went ashore a mile below Chicamico life-saving station on the North Carolina coast Tuesday morning is the British steamship Strathairly, bound from Santiago de Cuba for Baltimore. Out of a crew of 26 nineteen were lost, including all the officers except the second mate. The steamer will be a total loss.

The Strathairly was a British vessel of 1.236 tons. She was commanded by Capt. Wynn. She left Baltimore Feb. 25 for Havana, where she arrived March 7, thence she proceeded from Havana on the 13th tor Santiago de Cuba, where she arrived on the 16th. She was on her homeward trip from Santiago to Baltimore, when she went on the North Carolina coast with such terrible results.

SUFFERING AT SEA.

LONDON, March 26.—The steamer Don has landed at Plymouth, with the crew of the German back Humboldt, who, when rescued, had suffered terrible hardships and were in a dying condition. The Humboldt sailed from Altata, Mexico, on the Gulf of California, in September last, bound to Falmouth. On the voyage the crew were stricken with scurvey and became so weak they were almost insensible. Their teeth loosened and their skin became swollen and livid. When soken by the Don the Humboldt was disabled and sinking and all her boats had been smashed. Two of her crew were already dead. The survivors were so exhausted that they had to be hoisted aboard the Don. They had been ill for three months.

A ROUGH FASSAGE.

New YORK, March 26.—The steamship Caledonian, which arrived here yesterday from the Mediterranean ports, had a very rough voyage. On the night of March 11 she struck a "norther." A big sea was soon running, and before long the decks were swent by the waves. The wheel-house was smashed and the helm-man injured. The sea also carried away the booby hatch and all the loose spars on the deck, and knocked down several immigrants, injuring some of them severely. The second officer, who was on the bridge, was knocked off to the deck and badly hurt. He was not able to leave his berth during the remainder of Queensland, Australia, demands are $5 per week for maids in hotels, $3 50 for girls in private houses, $10 for women cooks, $3 for nurse girls, one hour off, two afternoons in each week, from 8 to 10, three nights per week, and every afternoon from 3 to 5, and every alternate Sunday night from 8 to 10.

Windsor, Ont., March 25.—An affair nearly resulting in murder is reported from Leamington. John Culler was in the employ of Win. Quigley, a farmer living in Mersea township. A disagreement arose, and Culler left Quigley after the latter refusing to pay Culler what was due him. On Saturday Culler again called on Quigley and made another demand for the wages due him, Quigley replying with an oath that he would not pay him. Words led to blows, when Culler knocked Quigley down. The latter ran into his house and grabbed a loaded shotgun, and pointing it at Culler, who was only ten feet distant, pulled the trigger, but the latter dropped on his knees and the entire charge passed over his head, boring a big hole in the ground. Culler went to Leamington and swore out an information against Quigley, charging him with shooting with intent to kill. He was arraigned and sent down to Sandwich jail to stand his trial at the Spring Assizes. Bail was refused.

He was accompanied by a family of nine children, whom he represented be longed to his deceased brother. Soon after coming to Canada he married a Miss Brooke, the eldest boy of the imported family witnessing the marriage ceremony. After living together for a year or more Mrs. Cooke discovered something which led her to believe the children, who had all been carefully trained to call Cooke "uncle," were not nephews and nicees, but sons and daughters. She asked some of the older children, if her suppositions were not correct and was informed they were and that their mother was still living and undivorced. Mrs. Cooke then left her husband and went to Detroit with her brother-in-law, A. E. Jamieson. Cooke skipped back to the United States. A Railway Gentleman Speaks.

"For many years past," says a gentleman employed by one of our largest railway in-stitutions, "I have lost considerable time, employed by one of our largest railway institutions, "I have lost considerable time, and suffered from fever and general weakness. My illness generally came on about spring time—a time joyous to many, but always dreaded by me. About the end of the winter of 1890 I was advised by one of my office companions to use Paine's Celery Compound, which I was assured would cleanse my system, and build it up so that I could safely pass through the season and avoid my usual time of sickness. I proenred the Compound at once from my druggist, and received an assurance from him which corroborated my friend's statement. I used, before the Spring was over, four bottles, which made me a different man; I increased in weight, my appetite was full bottles, which made me a different man; I increased in weight, my appetite was full and natural and my physical and mental activity was greater than ever before. This spring I intend to use more of Paine's Celery Compougl, and would advise all my fellowmen to dofikewise if they value good health and wish to avoid sickness."

Surely this convincing testimony will have some weight with all who wish to be thoroughly cleaned and made strong for the extreme hot weather of the coming summer.

New York, March 25.—The late Lawrence Barrett was a Freemason and had reached the degree of Royal Arch Mason.
Father Sherman, who administered the last rites of the Catholic Church to the tragedian, said last night: "It is true Catholics who become Masons are excommunicated from the church, but the circumstances is this case were as follows:

"I had heard Mr. Barrett say in our house that he was an Irish Catholic, and never knew he was a Mason until near the last moment. As he was a dear friend of mine I went to Archbishop Corrigan and asked for permission to administer the last sacrament. The archbishop consented, and I then told him Mr. Barrett was a Mason. He said: "Ah, but there will be no Masonic rites." I assured him there would not be. Mr. Barrett had expressed a wish to be buried as a Catholic. Knowing as I do the archbishop's views on the Masonic question I did not ask for permission for a church burial, nor for full rites of the church after death. That can only be done when the dying person renounces all his evil doings.

"When I began to administer the Sacrament to Mr. Barrett he was unconscious.
In the middle of it he opened his eyes and recognized me. I told him I was anointing him and he thanked me. I told him to hold out his hand and he did so. From his willingness to receive the sacrament I inferred he wished to die amember of the William Nicholson, of Hamilton, in the chair.

The usual committees were chosen, and the grand master's, grand secretary's and grand treasurer's reports were presented. The grand master in his address referred in terms of congratulation to the growth of the order and to the two general elections—that for the Provincial Legislature, held on the 6th of June last, and that for the Dominion, held on the 5th of March. 'No order in the Dominion,' he said, "was more interested in the issues involved in these contests than our own. With bated breath we watched the tide of battle and recognized the vital importance of success or defeat." The grand master also referred to the fact that at the last session of the M. W. G. L., a committee was appointed to take into consideration the advisability of recognizing female lodges in the Orange Association. The committee decided to report in favor of their admission as lodges. This matter would be brought before the M. W. G. L. for its ultimate decision.

Treasure Lying Idle in India.

It is estimated in the Allahabad Pioneer that the treasures lying idle in India, in the shape of haards of ornaments, amounts to $1,350,000,000. A competent authority guesses that in Amritsar city alone there are jewels to the value of £2,000,000. As regards some other districts, the figures that have been furnished are not less astonishing. The miserable waste of Montgomery is estimated to possess about 50 lakhs in ornaments. The hillsides and valleys of 'Kulu are put at 3½ lahks. In Jhelum two-fifths of the wealth of the district is said to be vested in property of this nature, and in Kohat, probably one of the poorest districts of the province in this respect, the estimate is taken at 800 rupees for each Mindoo family and 10 rupees for each Mussulman family, and a lahk in the aggregate for the Nawab and other Raises, making a total for the district of 75 lahks. A lahk is worth about $35,000.

LICENSE FEES.

The Provincial Treasurer and the speak ers who followed him in the debate on the financial statement had a good deal to say about the liquor license fees imposed by the Government. The statement of disents for the last four years were: To the

To the Province. mur. $216,455 $23,511 307,281 rease of the receipts is accounte for by the repeal of the Scott Act in a number of counties, and not to any general increase in the number of liquor deal-Though there was no part of the Province under the Scott Act in 1881-82, the total number of licenses issued during that year was 4,163, while last year (1889-90) the total number was only 3,609, a decrease of 554 licenses in eight years.

Under the Ontario License Act the Government is responsible for the administration of its provisions, and a considerable portion of the receipts is devoted to this The municipalities, however, have it in their power to increase the license fees by resolution of Council as well as by bylaw submitted to the taxpayers.

Temperance people are not inclined to look with much favor upon the tendency to make the liquor traffic a large source of revenue. They know that so-called "vested erests" are built up in this way, and that the more money a municipality makes out of the traffic the greater opposition is there likely to be to any proposal for curtailing it. The Province as a whole and the municipalities individually would be better off were there no necessity for collecting a revenue from this source.

THE ONTARIO SURPLUS.

The surplus in the possession of the Ontario Government, from which it draws interest, and is thus enabled to ward off direct taxation, is stated by Provincial Treasurer Harcourt to be at present $5,809,995. It might have been larger, if the Province had been less liberal in its

THE PRESIDENT OF THE GRAND TRUNK ON TUPPER.

The full text of the letter written by Sir Henry Tyler, president of the Grand Trunk Railway, in reply to Sir Charles Tupper's tirade against the company, its officers and employes, is given in the London Times, just to hand. It sets forth the rascally tactics of the unscrupulous adventurer still nore strongly than has yet been made evident. Sir Henry thus prefixes his remarks on the famous bulldozing interview:

"I have read in the Times of this morning "I have read in the Times of this morning the 'bitter attack,' as it is properly termed, which Sir Charles Tupper, the Canadian High Commissioner, who recently left this country to assist in the Canadian elections, made on the Grand Trunk Railway Company in aspeech delivered at Amherst, Nova Scotia, on the 9th inst.

"Speaking four days after the elections.

Socia, on the 9th inst.

"Speaking four days after the elections, and still laboring, evidently under considerable excitement, he alleges, if he is correctly reported, that I and the officers and servants of the company, whom he calls 'craven Grand Trunk creatures,' have 'united with the enemies of Canada, in the United States and out of them, to play the game of the United States to destroy Canada,' and he says much more in the same strain.

"This 'flash and outbreak of a fiery mind' might be almost pardoned during the heat of an election, but rather savors of 'a mind diseased,' when the battle has been fought and won. After such events, even less dis-diseased, when the battle has been fought and won. After such events, even less distinguished politicians, and all sensible statesmen, hasten to forget any extravagances of expression, and cease to dwell upon annoyances, either supposed or real.

"I must not now ask for enough of your space to expose all the inaccuracies to which Sir Charles Tupper is reported to have committed himself. I shall, however, be fully prepared to reply to them at the proper time and on a suitable occasion. As regards the votes which may have been given by the officers and employes of the company, I have no information; but I have before me a document, just received from Canada, which affords a clue to Sir Charles Tupper's excessive indignation, in the shape of a practically verbatim report of an interview between Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Seargeant, the general manager of the Seargeant, the general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, a week before the

Then comes a circumstantial account of the interview, in which Tupper used every longing his stay in Canada, and neglecting artifice in his power to influence Mr. Seargeant in favor of the high tax party. What Tupper wanted was a promise that Mr. Seargeant would use his influence to coerce the Grand Trunk employes into voting for a policy the tendency of which they knew was to curtail their traffic, lessen the demand for labor, and lower their wages. Sir Henry Tyler tells us that:

"Sir Charles Tupper called upon Mr. Seargeant at his house in Montreal at 1 o'clock on the 25th of February, representing how true a friend he had been, and continued to be, to the Grand Trunk Company, stating that he had complimentarily referred to it as being the pioneer company in recent addresses and whenever occasion. in recent addresses, and, whenever oc area testine before the country, and it was extremely desirable that the Grand Trunk Company should announce its policy to sustain the present Government, inasmuch as there had been an idea that the feeling of the complexes of the Grand Trunk Company should announce its policy to sustain the present Government, inasmuch as there had been an idea that the feeling of the complexes of the Grand Trunk Company christian union not alone by direct appeal and argument, but by seeking to present the best rather than the worst side of each ienomination.

"The Alvertise" advocates Obligatory was not altogether in that direction; and it would be very gratifying to him (Sir Charles Tupper) if Mr. Seargeant would say that this was a mistake, and that, on the contrary, the Government, had the sympathy of himself and the employee of the commuch purify electoral contests. Nothing would so much purify electoral contests. Nothing would so much enforce the idea that the franchise is a duty, not a chattel.

We are aware that the foregoing planks of our platform are by no means endorsed in their entirety by the members of either of the present Canadian political parties.

Of course, Tupper dissented. Bully dissented. Bully 00 that he always has been, he was not contented with a policy that permitted Grand Trunk employes to exercise their franchise as they deemed best for their own interests, best for the interests of the corporation that employed them, and for the country as a whole. No policy short of Provincial Secretary, since the local option coercion or intimidation would suit the clauses of the last statute amending the clusterer's views. The Grand Trunk nanager, however, has more wisdom and a nuch greater degree of fairness in his makeup, for he again repudiated the appeal of the suppliant political pilgrim. The narrative of the Grand Trunk president continues:

"Mr. Seargeant referred to the petition which had been made to the Government by 11,000 shareholders of the Grand Trunk Company, and he did not think that it would be politic or proper for him to issue any definite instructions on behalf of the board to the officers and employes of the company. He suggested that such instructions would in all probability be resented by them, and might lead to results the opposite of those which were contemplated. Mr. Seargeant added that he was aware that the Canadian Pacific Company had taken direct and pronounced action in support of the Government, and he had even been informed that in connection with at least one election an order had been issued on behalf of that company to vote for the Government candidate under pain of dismissal from the service. He certainly could not take such a course, either from his own standpoint, or having regarded to the own standpoint, or having regarded to the non-interference policy of the board."

That was manly and straightforward. The tempter was not to be foiled, however. He endeavored to make Mr. Seargeant be lieve that the Conservative leaders could be influenced to reduce the heavy tax on coal, which handicaps the Grand Trunk and the manufacturers, on whose prosperity the line, to a considerable extent, depends. Sir Henry Tyler thus explains this feature

Sir Henry Tyler thus explains this feature of the interview:

"The question of the coal duties was discussed at this interview. Sir Charles Tupper admitted that they were no doubt onerous on the company. Mr. Seargeant informed him that they involved a payment of $300,000 to $400,000 (say, £60,000 to £80,000 a year, an amount which would, if taken off, enable the company handsomely to increase its dividends; and he pointed out that, if that duty were taken off, the eastern coalowners might have a much larger market, and might be able successfully to cope with the United States competition along the coast as far as, at least, Boston, and at interior New England points, and at Portland, where there was a demand for coal at the present time. Coal was also required on the Atlantic division of the Grand Trunk, and a very large market might be opened to eastern coal proprietors, whilst the Grand Trunk and manufacturing industries of Canada would be largely benefited. Sir Charles Tupper stated that he knew Sir John Macdonald was in favor of the removal of the coal duty, but was obliged to admit that his soc (Mr. Tupper, the Minister of Fisheries) had differed from Sir John on that point, and added, "You must remember that he was at the time addressing an audience interested in the retention of the duty."

Observe Tupper's explanation of his son's

Observe Tupper's explanation of his son's reasons for differing from the Conservative leader on the continuance of the coal duty, and bear in rememberance, also, that since this interview the Conservative policy has been announced as entirely opposed to the detrimental to the interest of the Grand Trunk and of the industrial institutions of the country. "After a long discussion," Sir Henry continues, "Sir Charles Tupper concluded with a warm appeal for the support of the Grand Trunk Company in the present emergency, and promised that the company should, in the event of the present Govern ment being sustained, receive the fullest and most friendly support if and when it should be required." The Grand Trunk President thus thoroughly sums us this disgraceful assault on the Grand Trunk:

oughly sums us this disgraceful assault on the Grand Trunk:

"To put the matter in the mildest light, it reveals the too obvious reasons which actuated Sir Charles Tupper in making his speech. Sir Charles Tupper in making his speech. Sir Charles Tupper comes, it will be seen, cap in hand to Mr. Seargeant a few days before the elections, saying everything that is complimentary to the Grand Trunk, and representing himself as its true friend, in the hope of inducing Mr Seargeant to issue instructions to his officers and employes to vote for the Government; and because Mr. Seargeant, though expressing his personal predilections as in favor of the Conservative policy, could not consistently with the instructions of the board and his duty to the company consent to issue the instructions thus required of him, Sir Charles Tupper delivers a few days after the elections a speech condemning on false premises the whole action of the Grand Trunk Company for many years past, and smiting the company "hip and thigh" with all the invective of which he is so able a master."

And this is the honorable gentleman who the duties of an office in England that cost over $25,000 a year for maintenance, in order that he may intrigue for the reversion of the Conservative leadership, which he believes must soon be declared vacant. What a humiliation it would be to self-respecting Canadians if they had to accept a bully and a man totally lacking principle, such as Tupper has proved him-self to be, as First Minister of the Dominion.

MR. HARCOURT'S FIRST BUDGET. Hen. Richard Harcourt, Provincial Treasurer, delivered his first financial state ment in the Ontario Legislature last night. The honorable gentleman made a most favorable impression. His statement was a clear, honest exposition of the finances o the Province, and left no doubt in the minds of reasonable hearers that the Province is in good standing and in good hands under the Administration of Hon. Oliver Mowat. The Premier could not have made a better selection for the Treasurer's port folio than the member for Monck.

The appropriations for last year were $3,367,443, of which there remained unex pended at the close of last financial year $178,149. The ordinary receipts amounted to $3,381,969. For 1891, the estimated receipts are $3,298,822, and the estimated expenditure $3,491,027. The expenditure re always calculated with liberality, as it is impossible to make close estimates of the cost of running the many institutions under itures for new buildings, etc.

LOCAL OPTION.

The new system of local option seems to be working well. According to the Ontario clauses of the last statute amending the license laws was put in operation, seventeer elections have been held, and in fifteen local option was victorious. There were but few licenses in the constituencies affected, however, and the result so far affects but

A GOODLY COMPANY.

Though it is a fact that the farmers of Ontario in the late election gave a tremen-dous majority against the party of rescric-tion, it must be borne in mind that the tion, it must be borne in mind that the Liberals received also a large measure of support from those manufacturers whose success in business does not depend on the tariff. The city of London gave a majority for reciprocity; so did Brantford, Woodstock, Galt, Stratford, Listowel, Sarnia, Windsor, Chatham, Dresden and many other towns and villages in which large manufacturing businesses are carried on. As time goes on, the manufacturers and merchants will come to see more and more clearly that their interests are identical with those of the farmers, who are their principal customers, and that the towns and cities cannot thrive while the greatest industry in the country languishes.—[Toronto Globe.

The point of our contemporary is well

The point of our contemporary is well taken. Its list of progressive towns and villages which indorsed the Liberal policy might be extended to almost indefinite length. Here are a few centers of population in Ontario-either cities, towns or substantial villages - that give Libera candidates a majority on March 5: Elora, Fergus, St. Marys, Harriston, Cayuga, Mount Forest, Smith's Falls, Thamesville, Ridgetown, Bothwell, Prescott, Wallaceburg, Wyoming, Teeswater, Point Edward, Forest, Paris, Col-lingwood, Brussels, Meaford, Blyth, Essex Center, Wingham, Bowmanville, Clinton, Tilbury Center, Seaforth, Ailsa Craig, Waterford, Embro, Uxbridge, St. Catharines, Stouffville, Newmarke Welland, Drayton, Aurora, Markham. In addition to these towns and cities there were many others that gave only small majority to the opponents of freedom of trade, and which in due course, impressed with the argument that whatever benefits the farmer must benefit them, will no doubt be found on the side of reciprocity.

The people of London were indeed in The Belleville Murder.

Belleville, March 28.—James Kane was seen by a correspondent yesterday in his cell. He was as unconcerned as ever, and showed no signs of weakening. He says he will plead guilty in spite of any influence. "I have nothing to say in excuse of my action other than the ill-treatment that I have been subjected to," answered the man sullenly. "When I committed the deed I knew the consequences and I am prepared to suffer them." The victim was buried in the cemetery yesterday afternoon. It is stated that Kane is a relative of the Kane who beat his wife to death in Toronto.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Justin Huntly McCarthy, M.P., the son of Justin McCarthy, is making quite a name in certain literary circles, and is consequently getting considerable support for his Sunday theater project which he is placing before the public on the subscription system. Mr. McCarthy hopes to be able to start his project in June next.

Augustus Harris has definitely decided to produce "Othello" at Covent Garden with Mme. Albani, Maurel, Deresseke. On the second night of the opera-geason, April 7, Miss Eames will appear as Marguerite in "Faust." Miss Saunderson will make her debut in the first performance of "Manon Tescant." Harris programme for the season is unusually imposing. It is rumored also that Mr. Harris is contemplating the inauguration of an autumn season of opera in English.

D'Oyly Carte is known to be negotiating with Mr. Bemberger for an opera to be entitled "Elaine," and to be founded on Tennyson's poem. This opera, it is said, will follow "Ivanhoe" at the New Royal Euglish Opera House on Shaftesbury avenue. Mr. Bemberger, who may thus be brought into prominence in the musical

A branch office of the Magnetic Meridian Vitapoise Company is now permanently located at 294 Dundas street, for the purpose of giving practical demonstrations of the healing virtues of the "Vitapoise," (or miniature earth.) It is the most wonderful healing instrument ever discovered. It only fails to cure the afflicted when their case is hopeless, and it makes no difference what ails you.

If you would like to investigate "TERRES. TRIAL HEALING," call at the office, and Prof. Reid, will cheerfully explain to you the mysteries of the subtle healing force contained in a Magnetic Meridian Vitapoise.

Separate rooms are fitted up for the treatment of ladies and gentlemen. We want every family and physician in Canada to buy a "Vitapoise," and we will accomplish our object if an afflicted member of every tenth family will give the instrument a trial, by taking a "course of treatment." Its application is absolutely painless and s also harmless; but disease will fiee from before it as if driven away by magic.

Physicians! try a "Vitapoise" on one of your patients, having either la grippe, inflammation, fever, insomnia, neuralgia or rheumatism, and thereafter your "medical case" will be a secondary consideration so long as you have a "Vitapoise" with you tall the court to order and give him a rap for delaying matters."

"Ah! another 'bus-load from town," said the president, as there entered at the moment a party of ladies, escorted by the sandy-harred judge-advocate himself. All around the room the benches were occupied, but behind this party came three or four soldiers carrying chairs, and, much to the disgust of Mrs. Brodie and Mrs. Graves, who had obtained, with a party of their friends, the front row nearest the table of the accused, these chairs were planted before them, and their view was cut off by the households of some the prominent business-men of Central City. So closely did they surround Mr. Hearn that he drew his seat a triffe nearer to that of the judge-advocate.

There was a little more space on the other side of the table, where the correspondents were, but they seemed to prefer not to crowd these gentlemen, and nobody, of course, would think of intruding between them and the court. It was almost haifafter ten when a soldier made his way through the throng, and, saluting Lawler, said something in a low tone, at which the judge-advocate went over and whispered to Grace. A moment later the burly form of Major Kenyon was seen shouldering a way through the court-room, while Dr. Ingersoll's spectacled face appeared just behind him. Escorted by these gentlemen came Mrs. Lane, fresh, smiling, nodding cheerily to acquaintances in the court and around soll's spectacled face appeared just behind him. Escorted by these gentlemen came Mrs. Lane, fresh, smiling, nodding cheerily to acquaintances in the court and around the room, looking cool and radiant in a spring costume which attracted the instant attention of the ladies and diverted their eyes from Miss Marshall, whose simple but inexpensive toilet was hardly worthy their glance, while to the grosser masculine understanding it was every whit as lovely as that of her friend and hostess. Behind them all came Sam, with four folding chairs, and, their being no other place available, the major promptly plunged them down in front of Lawler's friends and motioned ais party to seats. Georgia Marshall's color deepened, as anyone who looked might see, for the chair to which she was assigned was so close to that of Hearn that by simply putting forth her hand she could have touched his sleeve.

His back was to the door, and he had not seen them enter, yet at the perceptible hush that fell upon the chatter of the femmine spectators he knew who must be coming, and his pale face bightened with a sudden smile as, turning he saw her almost at his elbow. Mrs. Lane nodded thrice, looking brightly and affectionately in his eyes, before she took her seat, just as though her efforts were to show all the throng that the women of the army held him guiltless. But Georgia Marshall's eyes were hidden for a moment behind their dropping lids. It was not until after she was seated, and a glance around had told her that the gaze of all the women was still on the lovely to jet that Mabel wore, that she stole a sudden look at him and met the brave light in his wan lace.

hospital with Dr. Ingersoll—— There's so much to tell you."

"Has any further news come?"

"Not that. Something else—something better. Don't you see how excited the major is?"

And indeed old Kenyon seemed fairly aglow. His eyes were snapping; his face was twitching and redder than ever. He was standing at that moment, searching all the windows with keen glances and looking along the faces of the soldiers who had gathered on all sides of the piazza without. Suddenly he seemed to see the features for which he was so eagerly looking, and with a quick gesture he called an orderly to his side and hastily scribbled these words on a piece of paper: "That third window on the west. Get around there, and don't let him out of your sight this day."

"Give that to the provost-sergeant," he said. And the orderly disappeared.
Then came the voice of Colonel Grace impatiently demanding of the judge-advocate that he proceed, and Lawler, who had been fidgeting uneasily, arose:
"May it please the court, the witness Abrams has still failed to respond; but the evidence of other witnesses has been so conclusive that I feel that I need not detain the court. All that now remains is to axamine the books of the late post trader, which, as you have demanded, are here in my possession."
"The court will come to order," said which, as you have demanded, are here in my possession."

"The court will come to order," said Grace, loudly.

A hush fell on the assembled throng, and all eyes were on the judge-advocate, who was busily unwrapping the package which he produced from the folds of the linen duster he had, with apparent carelessness, thrown upon his chair. Two ordinary-looking, leather-bound volumes presently appeared, which he proceeded to lay before Colonel Grace:

"I now have the honor to submit for the examination of the court such books of the former post trader as bear upon this case. In them will appear the entries of the various amounts advanced by him to the accused, with their dates, etc., and, just as stated by the witness Schonberg, it will be seen that no payments, beyond a few trifling sums, have been recorded. The amount of the indebtedness as claimed in the specifications will be found to agree with the figures."

As he snoke, Lawler had opened the the indebtedness as claimed in the specifications will be found to agree with the figures."

As he spoke, Lawler had opened the volumes at points indicated by slips of paper and spread them upon the table. Grace adjusted his eyes-glasses and conned over one of the books, while Maitland took the second. The other members of the court silently awaited their turn.

"I do not profess to be an expert at bookkeeping," said Maitland, presently; "but do I understand the judge-advocate to say that the witness Schonberg swears that these entries are correct?"

Lawler briskly turned over the leaves of the second books before him.

"Here are his very words," he said. "I mysolf made entries for he years '83 and '84, both in the day book and in the ledger. I kept all Mr. Braine's broks. He gave me the items just as they occured, and these entries were made by me at the different dates in those years just as they were directed by him."

"Oh, yes, yes; I remember," said the colonel. "I suppose it is all correct. Possibly other members of the court can tell more about this business than I can." And he passed the book down the table.

"Nothing could be more confirmatory of Schonberg's statements." said the judge-advocate, loudly. "One has only to look at these pages. You can see that different ink, different pens, have been used here—prima facie evidence of their having been entered at totally different times, instead of being jotted down at once, as might be claimed by the defense but for this significant fact." And Lawler looked triumphantly about the room, ending with a glance at the little group that was near Hearn's table.

A Dinner Pill.—Many persons suffer excruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healtby nutriment it becomes a poison to the sytem. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and conver the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia.

BOTTOM KNOCKED OUT OF THE GOLD MINE.

"Learn to live well, Or fairly make your will

Life is the best thing we have got. It may be dark with sorrow; but the reasoning mind is worth a million worlds.

Your stock may be so far below par that you can't see it. The bottom may have dropped out of your gold mine. Your brilliant scheme, which was to have knocked the Keeley motor into the middle of next week, and make your former, may have been received with scoffs and jeers. Your mother-in-law may have been called to her reward at the moment she was most exasp——exuberant in the display of her love for you. And yet life is better than an undisputed title to the stellar universe! Life means health; without health life has no meaning. We play with health with appalling levity. In a climate like ours we easily contract colds. We don't dread them, because we are familiar with them. The consumption that ends in death has its beginning very generally in a simple cold.

The muddy streets were responsible yesterday for an awkward contretemps which beful the Bishop of Toronto. The Bishop of Toronto easterly winds; fair, stationary or slightly higher temperature.

Toronto stepped gingerly out into King street opposite the Canada Life building for the purpose of boarding a street car. The car came along and the Bishop of Toronto boarded it successfully, but a friendly shout from a street Arab apprised him of the fact that he had left one of his goloshes sticking in the mud. The car was stopped and the Bishop of Toronto raced back and grabbing his golosh in his hand returned and got on the car again. A second friendly shout from the street Arab made it friendly shout from the street Arab made it plain that the Bishop of Toronto had left his other golosh in the mud. After vigorous efforts of the conductor at the bell cord the car was stopped a third time and the bishop of Toronto went after his other golosh, now fully 50 yards away. The other golosh was recovered and the Bishop of Toronto boarded the car again, this time in triumph, a golosh in each hand. As the car disappeared in the distance the Bishop of Toronto was heard to say the streets were horrible.—[Toronto World. riendly shout from the street Arab made

A Well-Known Minister Dead.

Methodists throughout Ontario will hear with sorrow of the death of Rev. William Morton, which took place about 11:30 Monday evening at Hamilton. A week ago Sanday Mr. Morton preached three sermons to his old congregation at Jarvis and caught a chill which developed into pneumonia. Deceased was 74 years of age, a superannuated minister attached to Centenary Church and one of the best known of Hamilton's clergymen. He came with his parents from Ireland when four years of age and settled in Carleton county. He received his early education at Victoria College and entered the ministry in 1842. His first charge was at St. Andrews, Que. His other stations were Clarendon, Que., Pembroke, Gatineau, Colborne, Norwood, Milbrook, L'Orignal, Westmeath, Portage du Fort, Lynn, Spencerville, Matilda, Waterdown, Jarvis, Caledonia and London South. After leaving London South in 1885 he was superannuated, but this did not lessen deceased's zeal, as he was almost constantly employed preaching in city or country. He was married to Miss Rutherford at Kemptville, and she, with two sons and four daughters, is left to mourn his demise. The funeral will take place this afternoon from his late residence, Emerald street, Hamilton.

Owing to a misunderstanding the Board of Education was called to meet Tuesday night instead of last night, as intended. Trustee Dewar was appointed to preside in the absence of Chairman Stephenson. Those present were: Trustees Dewar, Durdin, Cook, Allaster, Vining, Turner, Love, Craig, Childs, Ferguson, Brady, Johnston, Tanton, Yates, Principal Merchant, Inspector Carson and Secretary Abbot. For fifteen minutes the Board was at a loss to know what business lay before it. Objections were taken to the proposal to consider the estimates as a number of the members were not present; also because the lady teachers desired to send a spokesman to urge their salary increase appeals. Those important matters were therefore laid over until the next regular meeting. That clause of No. 1 Committee's report recom-
