STORM HARRIES GULF COAST; MANY VESSELS WRECKED

Reports of Serious Disasters From Cape Breton, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 5.—Dispatches today have been pouring into this city bringing news of vessels wrecked or in distress, of wires prostrated and of damage done by gale and sea along the coasts of Nova Scotia, Cape Breton, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. Four vessels were driven ashore; another, after having everything movable on deck washed away, was forced to put back to the port from which she had sailed, and the steamer Turret Bell, which went aground on the north side of Prince Edward Island last week, was driven farther inshore.

The storm was most violent in Northumberland Strait. Two schooners and one bark were swept aground in this strait, and a third schooner was wrecked near the eastern entrance. The Norwegian bark Adeona tried to weather the gale off Rexton, N. B., but in imminent danger of being swamped, she was driven ashore and grounded on North Reef. She sprang a leak and, according to the latest information received here, the twelve men constituting her crew were still on board, helpless in the severe cold and heavy gale, and in imminent danger of being swamped or dying from exposure. The tremendous seas made it impossible for any vessel to go to her assistance.

Near the same place the schooner Alexander, lumber laden, went ashore. The Windsor, N. S., schooner Omega lost her sails on Wednesday last when off Charlottetown, and the seas washing over her carried away her cabins and deckload. She drifted swiftly for 80 miles across Northumberland Strait, until she finally brought up on the rocks at Fox Point on the northern coast of Nova Scotia. Her crew of four men had been obliged to man the pumps with practically no rest since Wednesday, and during all that time they had had neither food or drink, all their supplies having been swept overboard. They were rescued, almost overcome by exhaustion and exposure, soon after the vessel grounded. The schooner probably will be a total loss. A Newfoundland schooner, the identity of which has not yet been learned, was wrecked last night at Campbell's Cove at the eastern end of Prince Edward Island. The crew succeeded in getting ashore safely.

Newfoundland Catches It.
St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 5.—A furious hurricane has raged along the coast of Newfoundland for two days. Much damage has been done to shipping, and fishing interests, and the railroad and steamboat services have been suspended. It is feared that many vessels along the coast have met with disaster.

The Turret Bell Aground.
Charlottetown, P. E. I., Nov. 5.—The Turret Bell has weathered in safety the terrific storm which reached its greatest velocity yesterday, and is still lying on the north side of the island with undiminished fury. The steamer has been driven in so close to the shore that her bow is aground when the undertow leaves her.

The captain and crew of the steamer have landed safely. The captain says he thought he was off the Magdalen Islands; the current carried him off his course, and the Turret Bell is valued at $100,000; insurance $75,000. The chances of getting her off this fall are slim. She is lying broadside on a rocky ledge, 30 yards from the bank, so far in that the sea cannot inflict much damage. The shore ice in winter should protect her from the heavy drift of gulf ice. No tug at present can get within a quarter of a mile of her. A survey is to be held tomorrow.

Last night a Newfoundland schooner, loaded with fish, commanded by Capt. Courtney, was completely wrecked at Campbell's Cove. The crew were all saved. Many fishing boats are broken up on the north side of the island. Some barns were blown over and trees uprooted. Minor damages were done in Charlottetown. The gale end of the new work of the Prince of Wales College, valued at the expense of Sir W. C. MacDonald, was blown down, and will delay work three weeks. The storm was one of the worst the island has known for many years.

FIREMEN WOULD REPLACE DRIVERS

The Brotherhood Willing to Take Engineers' Places in Event of a Strike.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 6.—The Plain Dealer today says: An officer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen announced in Cleveland yesterday that the members of that organization were ready and willing to fill the places of all engineers if the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers should declare a strike. This statement was made by E. B. Barris, chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen's joint protective board of the Lake Shore Railroad and leased lines, who has just completed a tour over those roads to ascertain the views of the firemen regarding joining in the general movement among railroad employees to secure higher pay and shorter hours. Grand Chief Engineer Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers said last evening that he was not surprised to hear that members of the firemen's brotherhood had threatened to take the places of the engineers in case of trouble, but he said he did not anticipate any friction from that source, as the probability of a strike on any of the railroads by the engineers is remote at this time.

THE EDUCATION BILL

Lords Make Another Change as to Religious Instruction.

London, Nov. 5.—In the House of Lords tonight the debate on the education bill as far as clause 4, which provides that the local educational authority "may" afford extended facilities for special religious instruction, Lord Heneage's amendment making this clause mandatory, was carried against the Government by 157 votes to 46.

TWO MORE KILLED IN WOODS; DEATH AT COMRADE'S HANDS

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—There were two shooting fatalities last week in the bush back of Kazubazua, and both happened under somewhat similar circumstances. On Monday, David Junkin, a young farmer, of Eileen Township, was following deer with a party. He was walking ahead of a companion named Armstrong, when in some manner the gun the latter was carrying was accidentally discharged, and Junkin was shot in the side. He died in a few minutes.

The second victim was Edward Wilson, aged 21, son of Mrs. James Wilson, of Aylwin Township. On Thursday afternoon he and his younger brother, aged 15, were in the bush looking for deer. Edward was walking ahead when the younger lad slipped, and the rifle which he was carrying cocked went off. The bullet struck Edward in the back, and he was killed instantly.

TWO MORE DISMISSALS; ONE MAN REINSTATED

Latest Developments in the Case of the Grand Trunk Conductors.

Wm. Poole, of Sarnia Tunnel, and James Donald, of Toronto, are the latest conductors to be let out by the Grand Trunk on the middle division. They received their notices yesterday, and today new men are running in their places. Poole has for years been on the through trains from Sarnia Tunnel to Suspension Bridge. Donald has been running on the express between Toronto and Sarnia Tunnel, via Hamilton and London. Finlay McKenzie, of this city, is also off, but whether permanently or not is unknown. McKenzie has been relieving Conductor Parker on the Windsor branch for some weeks. Conductor Hugh O'Donnell, of this city, is now on the run.

Superintendent Brownlee is in Palmerston today, and it is reported that one or two dismissals will be made before he returns to Toronto. He is reported to have been here on Sunday, and to have given orders then for the dismissals that are to be made on this district. Conductor Hollinger, who was recently dismissed, has been reinstated, and is today on his old run between Toronto and Sarnia, via Stratford. Hollinger, it is alleged, went to the superintendent and insisted that if he had been discharged for alleged dishonest practices, the company should bring proof of his guilt. The outcome of the interview was Hollinger's reinstatement.

LORD CURZON COMING

The Ex-Viceroy of India to Make a Visit to the United States.

London, Nov. 6.—Lord Curzon, ex-viceroy of India, who married Mary Leiter, the Earl and Countess of Suffolk (Margaret Hyde Leiter), and Mrs. Leiter, are sailing on the Baltic for New York.

RABBI DID NOT APPEAR

End of the Jewish Synagogue Trouble in the Police Court.

The members of the Jewish Synagogue, at the corner of Colborne and Horton streets, congregated at the police court this morning to witness the prosecution of Samuel Epstein, Moses Cohen and Abraham Kerner, who were accused by Lazarus Schuffert, a rabbi, of creating a disturbance at the synagogue on Saturday last. The hour was well-nigh 11 when the magistrate asked and called upon Lazarus to come forth and give testimony against the three brethren. Lazarus had departed from the court and could not be found. At last, impatient with long waiting, the magistrate did allow the three accused to depart in peace. Then there was much loud talking among the people. Some went their way rejoicing, and others did tarry to argue out at last departed, each to his habitation, and determined to live in peace and good-fellowship.

INSURANCE COMMISSION

Robin Sends Word He Is Willing to Testify at the Capital.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ottawa, Nov. 6.—When the insurance commission met this forenoon, Mr. Shepley said that the witnesses would be very brief now, and he would suggest that as the proceedings were drawing to a close, part of the time might be taken up in chamber with a view of preparing the report. There were the Underwriters' Association, which no doubt wanted to be heard, and which should be heard. The Ottawa sittings were to be the last, and there were a good many matters which were ripe for being dealt with when there were no witnesses to be called in chambers. The idea was to make progress as they were proceeding. Mr. Whittier, barrister, Winnipeg, said that he had received a telegram from Premier Roblin, stating that he would be in Ottawa on the 11th, and would be glad to appear before the commission if they so desired. Judge McTavish said that he saw from the papers that Mr. Roblin would be here, and if he had anything to say the commission would be glad to hear it.

$5,000 COMMISSION FOR MR. FOSTER

His Part in Sale of Lands to Union Trust Company.

M'GILLIVRAY WAS IN BOTH

Attorney-General Campbell, of Manitoba, Also Wanted Something—The Gowan Land Deal.

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—The insurance commission opened today a week or two weeks' sitting in the railway committee-room of the House of Commons, which, it is hoped, will conclude their inquiry. Only one witness was examined at the forenoon sitting, Mr. Bettles, manager of the Ontario, Manitoba, and Western Land Company, which three years ago sold a block of 40,900 acres of Canadian Northern lands to the Union Trust Company.

Mr. Tilley's examination brought out the fact of Col. McGillivray's presence on the directorates of both companies, and also the existence of a check of $5,000 in favor of Hon. Geo. E. Foster, as commission upon the transaction.

Judge MacTavish and his two fellow commissioners, Messrs. Langmuir and Kent, were present, with a goodly array of counsel, including Messrs. Shepley, K.C., and Tilley, on behalf of the Dominion Government; Hellmuth, K.C., for the Ontario Government; Lebeouf, K.C., for the Quebec Government; and Hunter, K.C., for the I. O. F.

Bought From the C. N. R.
The first witness called was James W. Bettles, manager of the Ontario, Manitoba, and Western Land Company. Mr. Tilley, who opened his examination, at once called attention to the western lands sold by this company three years ago to the Union Trust Company, which comprised two townships with an area of 40,900 acres. The lands belonged formerly to the Canadian Northern Railway, and were bought by his company at $3 75 an acre, which he considered very cheap. That was in August, 1903.

"How long after this did your negotiations open with the Union Trust Company?"
"As soon as we got the lands."
In answer to another question the witness stated that there was one gentleman who sat on the boards of both companies, Col. McGillivray. Mr. Bettles did not want to mention this name, but counsel insisted upon an answer to his question.

Offered It to Others.
Mr. Bettles was asked if he offered the lands to any other parties than the Union Trust Company, and answered in the affirmative. The lowest price he offered them would have yielded $4 75 an acre, netting the Ontario, Manitoba, and Western Land Company $1 profit per acre. About one-third of the land was cleared with scrub, and would have to be cleared. The price of $4 75 he considered fair value.

"When did you offer these lands to Col. McGillivray?"
"He was there when I was negotiating for their purchase, and he was conversant with the transaction."
"When you bought these lands did you know the Union Trust Company were buying lands?"
"I knew from Col. McGillivray that they were contemplating buying."

In answer to a further inquiry, witness said he wrote Col. McGillivray, offering to sell these lands, but got no answer.

A little time afterwards, Mr. A. W. Pritchard, whom he later found to be acting for the Union Trust Company, made inquiries about these same lands, and arranged for their purchase at $5 an acre, less commission of $10,000.

COUNCILOR FOR TWO-YEAR TERM; MOTION TO PUT IT BEFORE VOTERS

Ald. Armstrong Thinks Twelve Months Is Only a Preparatory Class.

At last night's meeting of the city council, Ald. Armstrong gave notice of motion to submit a bylaw to the people for the changing of the mode of electing the aldermen of London. He would have a council elected, six of whom would retire at the end of each year, leaving the other six to enjoy a two-year term.

The plan has often been brought up in the council, Ald. Garratt years ago bringing in such a motion. At that time the motion was thrown out because the city would have required special legislation to carry out the idea.

Now, however, the city has full powers to submit a bylaw to the people by reason of certain amendments made to the municipal act some time ago. If the people favor the scheme it will become law at once.

However, it could not be tried until January, 1908.

The mayor would continue to be elected for one year as at present, and the six men who secure the highest number of votes would be elected for two years. The other six would drop out and would be compelled to go before the people if desiring re-election.

The water commissioners and school trustees of London are now elected on this plan, and Ald. Armstrong thinks it would be in the interests of the citizens if the two-year term were adopted.

Good Ones Turned Out.
"It is my opinion," Ald. Armstrong said to The Advertiser today, "that an alderman must be in the council a year before he understands municipal business. Consequently, I would remedy a condition of affairs whereby good men are turned out of the council just at a time when they are beginning to understand city business and are of use to the city."

"If it should happen any year that the people should turn out all the old aldermen, the city would be left in a very bad position indeed."

How They See It.
Ald. Armstrong's proposal is viewed from different standpoints by the aldermen.

"The scheme is obsolete," Ald. Garratt said. "I brought it up when Frank (Continued on Page Eight.)"

PAID FOR WORK NOT PERFORMED

Charge Made That Street Watering Contractors Have Got $1,000 This Year.

Has the city council the power to collect taxes from citizens for street watering that was never performed, and then hand this money over to contractors who during the entire month of October did not work a day for the city on street watering jobs?

In other words, has the council the right to collect $598 from the citizens for frontage rates, and give it as a bonus to the contractors?

This is the question which is agitating the citizens today. The council has made no move to reimburse the three cents a foot charged citizens all through the month of October for street watering which was never done. Instead the council takes this money, and gives it to the contractors.

Here are the figures, which show what each contractor would have drawn per day had he worked every day of the month, which his contract entitles him to, or 153 days.

	Per Day.
Stinchcombe, Section A	$2 73
Stinchcombe, Section B	2 49
P. M. Fox	2 76
W. Fox	2 58
A. Bibbings & Son	2 10
Robinson	2 41
Morkin	2 58
Baldwin	2 65
Baldwin	2 75

And figuring on the average amount of days worked by them during the term mentioned, it is seen that they would draw the following amounts per day:

Baldwin	$5 04
Robinson	4 85
A. Bibbings & Son	4 83
W. Fox	4 42
W. Fox	4 59
A. Bibbings	4 94
P. M. Fox	4 96
Stinchcombe	4 56

It is claimed that these figures are authentic, and the contractors have not been started by the city.

BIG VOTE OUT IN NEW YORK

Fair Weather and City Voters Swarm to the Polls.

MANY ARRESTS BEING MADE

Both Hughes and Hearst Claim Sweeping Victory—A Large Vote at Buffalo.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 6.—A perfect autumn day, bright, cool and bracing favored the voters of New York State for today's election. The exceptionally favorable conditions after the campaign of almost unprecedented activity seem to assure a unusually large vote. In this city the balloting started with a rush as soon as the polls were opened, and in many sections new records were made during the early hours.

Service of the thousands of warrants sworn out by Superintendent of Elections Morgan yesterday, was begun early in the day, and there was a steady stream of prisoners from the polling places to police courts. In nearly every case in the first three hours, however, the prisoners proved their right to vote and were permitted to go back and deposit their ballots.

Illegal Voting.

Sixty arrests on charges of illegal voting and registration and offering and accepting money for votes were reported at the office of State Superintendent of Elections Morgan during the first two hours. This is the greatest number of arrests reported in so short a time, since the bureau was established.

There was a mix-up of ballots in the 25th and 32nd districts, each one having received ballots which should have gone to the other. A similar condition existed in the 19th, 12th and 21st assembly districts of Brooklyn.

Among the early arrests was former Police Captain Diamond. He voted from his home in 15th east. When the Morgan men went to verify the address they found the house boarded up. The arrest was made on the allegation that Captain Diamond had lived all summer in Putnam County, this state.

Big Vote Being Polled.

As the forenoon wore on the balloting through the city continued with unabated strength. This was particularly noticeable in the so-called "St. Stocking" neighborhood. In the thirteenth election district of the 29th assembly district 201 out of a total registration of 547 had been polled up to 9 o'clock. Reports from 15 election districts covering Park, Madison, Fifth and Lexington avenues to the east and south of Central Park, showed that about one-third of the total vote had been cast before 9 o'clock. A general canvass of the 12th assembly district, Charles F. Murphy's district, showed that nearly one-half the total registered vote had been cast before 9 o'clock.

Charles E. Hughes voted shortly before 8 o'clock in an Amsterdam avenue barber shop. He walked down from his home in West End avenue, and was greeted with a cheer as he approached the polling place. In this district there are about 600 voters, and the report was reported to be coming in at the rate for the first part of the morning, of about 75 an hour.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 6.—A dense fog ribbed the city early today, but by 9 o'clock the sun managed to break through and dispel it. A very heavy vote is indicated by the reports from the various voting booths.

WINDSOR AND THE BELL

Renews Five-Year Franchise Under Favorable Conditions.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 6.—The city council last night accepted a proposition made by the Bell Telephone Company for a renewal of its franchise in Windsor for a term of five years, the company to place its wires in conduits on certain streets, to remove poles from Gouru street, to give the city six free telephones and to pay $750 per year for the five years. The Twentieth Century Transportation Company made a proposition to the city council for a franchise for a ferry license between Detroit and Windsor. The promoters said they were ready to spend $500,000 in boats and would give Windsorites all the city council asked of the present company. The finance committee will interview the present company before considering any new propositions.

SMOTHERED IN GRAIN

Grain-Handler Falls into Wheat Pit and Is Engulfed.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Patrick Dolan, foreman of grain handlers in the elevator of the William Baird Company, Brooklyn, fell into a pit containing 3,000 bushels of grain yesterday. Dolan plunged this way and that, and with every step was firmer engulfed. He called for help and Petro Amazio, a fellow-workman, went to his assistance. He threw a rope to Dolan, which the latter seized so desperately that he drew Amazio into the pit. Other workmen, who had been to lunch, now heard the outcries, but both men had disappeared when they reached the scene. A rush was made for the chutes, through which the grain is unloaded, and Amazio was still alive, and will recover.

—Fire Chief Clark yesterday bought at St. Thomas a handsome 5-year-old gray horse for the central station. He paid $215 for the animal.

SEEK ANNEXATION TO U.S.

Cuban Band Under Arms and Flying the Stars and Stripes.

Havana, Nov. 6.—The report of a remarkable feature in the present condition of mind of the Cuban people, more or less throughout the island, comes from Sancti Spiritus, in Santa Clara Province. In the vicinity of this town there is encamped an armed band of 90 men, under the command of Cols. Sanchez and Jimenez. This band is displaying the Stars and Stripes. The leaders declare they not only have no intention of opposing the Americans in any way, but that it is their desire to head a movement in support of annexation to the States. This band was recently induced to disperse by the commander of the marine force at Sancti Spiritus, which probably will go out and order the men to return to their homes.

VOLIVA PLANS GREATER ZION

City With Free Homes for Poor Proposed by Dowie's Successor.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Wilbur Glenn Voliva opened his heart to a company of his followers in Kenosha yesterday morning and told of his plans for the erection of a new Zion, which he would make the greatest religious colony in the world. The plan of Voliva is to bring together again the scattered forces of Zion City. In speaking in Kenosha, Voliva started to talk on "The Kingdom of God," and then he outlined his plans.

At the climax of his address he qualified his faith so far as to threaten that if his religious plans should prove impracticable he would become an infidel and "smash the orthodox churches."

"I am not yet ready to give my policies to the world in a written statement," he said, "but in a few weeks I will issue a statement which will make my head swim at Zion City. These policies of mine shall be as different from those of John Alexander Dowie as day is from night."

"The first command that shall be observed in the new city is absolute freedom from debt. Neither Zion nor a man in Zion shall owe a cent. John Alexander Dowie went into debt and this sent him to the devil. In the last ten years John Alexander Dowie received from his followers between $12,000,000 and $20,000,000, and with this great hoard he made of Zion a gigantic failure. Simply give me one-third of this amount, and I will make of Zion the greatest success that the world has ever known."

"In Zion now," he continued, "I am cleaning up a horrible mess, but I am going to make changes soon that will bring into Zion tens of thousands of persons, and her support will be even greater than in the halcyon days of Dowie. I am going to make Zion a world power. Some time not far distant I shall organize a political party, and Zion, if I am to dictate her future, will go into the world of commercialism and politics."

"It is my plan to establish colonies. I know now here at this time, in which the homeless and friendless of the world shall be cared for. I shall have a tract of thousands of acres of land, to which I will be able to invite the homeless of the world and ask them to take 20-acre tracts and to earn an honest living. To their question as to the rent for the land there will be but one reply, 'This is God's land and for God's people.'"

"Dowie declared that he had laid plans for the establishment of two other religious colonies. He stated that his plan included the building of another colony near it, in which there would be cottages for the use of people taken from the stunts of the great cities. He declared that in his new Zion there would be no place for caste or position, and that every man would be equal in the church and before his fellow-men."

"It will be my plan to build factories for the workmen and go down and work with them. I shall absolutely do away with the aristocratic circle that has grown up in Zion, and henceforth the work shall be for the downtrodden and the poor and all shall be of equal standing."

Voliva made a drastic attack on the orthodox churches and declared: "I have no use for your churches—not one iota—and if the churches do not represent the modern religion I will take the platform as an infidel and smash them."

Although the crowd which listened to Voliva was a small one, he was interrupted frequently by applause.

Hering, cashier of the same institution, were today sentenced by Judge Pincney in the criminal court to indeterminate terms in the penitentiary for embezzlement and forgery.

The sentences may run anywhere from one to ten years. The sentence given Stensland today is concurrent with that given several weeks ago.

CITY COUNCIL SURRENDERED TO STREET WATERING CONTRACTORS

Deduction for Month of October Made by City Engineer Will Now Be Paid.

Of the thirteen men who compose the city council of London, there was only one man with sufficient backbone to stand out against the claims of the street watering contractors at the council meeting last night.

This one man was Ald. Greenleaf, and he did what was in his power to back up the stand taken by the city engineer, but, of course, his action had no influence on the result. The contractors won their case, and the engineer was set back.

The contractors petitioned the council for the payment of the balance of money they allege to be due them on contracts, and which was deducted because of the fact that during the month of October they were not called upon to do any street watering, owing to a shortage of water.

Messrs. M. Baldwin, Stinchcombe, Fox and others waited on the council in support of the petition. They said that when they take a contract from the city they have to be in readiness every day to carry out the work, or be fined by the city engineer. If the city did not make use of them, it was the city's, not the contractors', fault.

Ald. Matthews, seconded by Ald. Garratt, moved that the matter be left with No. 3 committee. Both aldermen said it was unjust to make any deductions from the amounts due the contractors.

Ald. Greenleaf said there was nothing unjust about it. He understood that there was a clause in the contract, and of which the men were well aware, which gave the city engineer power to make deductions for wet days or days upon which they were not called upon to water the streets.

Ald. Matthews declared the form of the contract to be out of date, and that the men had signed it without knowing what they were doing.

Contract Read.

Ald. Saunders asked that the contract be read. There had been much trouble in the past between the men and the city, and he felt it was time that something was done to find out what was wrong.

City Engineer Graydon was called, and he read the contract with the men. It gave the city power to make deductions for each and every day they were not called upon. He further stated that a week before the 1st of October they were notified that they would be needed, and they had no reason to put it off to any inconvenience.

Mr. Baldwin declared the contractors had never received any written notice from the city engineer. He admitted to Ald. Armstrong that the men had worked their teams during the month and had not suffered a total loss for the day they were not called upon by the city.

Mr. Graydon, in reply to a question, said the contract signed by the men is a new one, and was drawn this year. Ald. Stevenson, seconded by Ald. Booth, moved in amendment that the October dues be paid in full, and it carried. Ald. Greenleaf alone voted nay.

Claim for Damages.

No. 2 committee recommended that the claim for damages presented by A. Fitzsimmons be filed, and the city solicitor instructed to defend the city if suit be entered.

Ald. Matthews moved that Fitzsimmons be given $50 in full of his claim. It would be cheaper than fighting the man, he said.

Mr. Fitzsimmons was present, and he astounded the council by stating that $50 would not settle his claim.

"What do you ask?" the mayor inquired.

"I've put in a claim for $1,000," Mr. Fitzsimmons replied. "When I was thrown over the handle bars of my bicycle, one of the handles struck me in the side and ruptured me. No alderman here would suffer what I have for ten times what I ask."

A vote was then taken, and it was decided to fight the claim.

What is This?

Ald. Armstrong voted for a return of all unpaid license fees, as it is rumored.

THE CASE AGAINST MCGILL

May Be Charged With Keeping Losses Out of Government Statement.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—The investigation into the case against Charles McGill, ex-manager of the Ontario Bank, which begins tomorrow morning before Magistrate Denison, will very probably be restricted to the elementary facts of the present situation in the bank's affairs.

Mr. McGill will plead not guilty and elect to be tried by a jury.

The case against Mr. McGill is briefly, that, on the one hand, Mr. McGill, as general manager, sent statements to the Government in which the losses of the bank in stock speculations were concealed under the head of "current loans in Canada," and that on the other hand, the books showed enormous stock speculations.

The specific charges to be taken up will probably be the August statement, which was sent from the bank to the Dominion department of finance.

This statement, signed by McGill as general manager, and Donald MacKay, the vice-president, as acting president, will be produced by Thomas C. Boville, the new deputy chief of finance.

The statement gives the current loans of the bank upon Aug. 31 as aggregating $15,725,227.87.

Curator Stavert will then produce the books of the bank, which are expected to show that this amount was not a true statement of the current loans in the bank, and that, as a fact, the amount was $1,416,857.57 in excess of the actual "current loans in Canada."

The $1,416,857.57, the crown will endeavor to prove, constituted the losses of the bank, which were thus hidden in the statement.

that certain persons have not paid their fees. The return will be made.

Ald. Armstrong gave notice of motion to have the opinion of the people taken on the necessity of public swimming baths.

The clause of No. 1 committee's report recommending that the Wortman & Ward Company be given a fixed assessment of $25,000, and that a bylaw to sanction the same be submitted to the people, was carried.

No. 1 also recommended that the motion of Ald. Garratt to take a census of the city, be filed. Chairman Forristal declared there was no necessity for the census. It would cost $2,000, and the city has no money for such purposes.

Ald. Garratt declared that the census is an absolute necessity in order that the street railway company may be compelled to give the north end a street railway service in accordance with its agreement with the city to give so much additional trackage for so much increase of population.

The council, however, voted down the census proposal.

Ald. Cooper drew attention to an error in the minutes, by which it was made to appear that he had been on a certain deputation to Ottawa, when as a matter of fact, it was another alderman that took in the trip. The correction was made.

W. T. Summers asked for leave to use the cattle sheds on the Fair Grounds for a sale of cattle on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 8 and 9. The request was granted, and No. 2 committee was empowered to make the arrangements.

Fire Chief Clark submitted a very comprehensive report on his recent trip to Dallas, Texas, where he attended the convention of American and Canadian fire chiefs, No. 3.

A report from City Engineer Graydon on the cement sidewalks which had been repaired by the contractors last year was ordered to be printed in the minutes.

City Engineer Graydon reported to the council that it will cost $425 to tile Carling's Creek across St. George street, and he recommends that if the funds are available the work be done. No. 2.

A petition for cement curb and gutter on East Maitland street, Piccadilly to Oxford street, was sent to No. 2 committee.

Blight & Fielder, who constructed the King street macadam pavement, asked for a settlement in full, as the job has been completed some time.

City Engineer Graydon wrote to say that the contract had been carried out in strict accordance with the specifications. No. 2.

King's Birthday.

Lieut. E. W. Leonard, Sixth Field Battery, asked permission to fire a royal salute in Victoria Park on the King's birthday, Nov. 9. Granted.

George W. Logan and James D. Smith asked for exemption from taxation on property fronting on West Ontario street and Dufferin avenue, as it is only used for street purposes. No. 1.

L. D. Galloway asked for damages, as the result of injuries sustained by his wife, who stepped on a loose plate of curbing on the corner of the Hamilton road and Hill street, on Oct. 18. No. 2.

H. C. Newmans notified the city under the drainage act to repair the drain along Wray street and keep it in proper repair. No. 2.

A. R. Page asked to be allowed to store in the East End Hall. No. 1.

Joseph Pitrie protested against the payment of business tax. No. 1.

A New Factory.

J. W. Smith, who is at the head of a large carriage building concern which intends to erect a new five-story factory at 172 and 174 Maple street, asked for a fixed assessment of $4,000 and $5 to 50 skilled hands. No. 1.

The Canadian Order of Chosen Friends asked for the free use of the city hall on the night of Nov. 30, to hold a concert in aid of the charitable funds of the order. Granted.

The communication from the water commissioners re the using of $570,000 for the increasing of the water supply, was referred to No. 1 committee. There was no discussion on the subject.

Mayor Judd, all the aldermen, and City Clerk Baker were present.

It was from these fortunate college men that the present big interest was obtained. They are said to have held a nine-tenths interest in the property.

The University mine is situated on the shore of Groulx Lake and some weeks ago arrangements were completed for the building of a spur line of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway close to the property, thus facilitating the shipments of the ore.

Two shafts have already been sunk, one of them going to a depth of 300 feet, with the vein of silver still holding in its original proportions. Machinery is already being installed in order that other veins which may be seen on the surface can be developed.

FOUL MURDER OF AN OXFORD MAN

An Escaping Criminal's Striking Down of Jailer Edward Innes.

Woodstock, Nov. 5.—Papers have come to hand from Grand Junction, Colorado, containing the startling story of the murder of the only son of a former resident of Oxford county, which will have more than a passing interest for Oxford readers. About the time of the outbreak of the civil war in the United States, Wm. Innes, a young man then twenty-one years of age, brother of James Innes, corner of Ingersoll avenue and Victoria street, Woodstock, left his home, lot 15, concession 6, East Oxford, to try his fortunes in the State of Illinois. Several years after he re- turned to Missouri, where he engaged in the sawmilling business. Over twenty years ago he again moved westward beyond the Rockies, introducing the first sawmill to Grand Junction, Colorado, a small place then, but now a city of 10,000 inhabitants. Here he flourished and is now a prosperous miner.

His only son, Edward Innes, was a very popular young man, who had become chief of the fire department, and was well known throughout the city and county. He had proved himself to be a very efficient and excellent officer. Some two years ago, "Ed," as he was familiarly called, was chosen keeper of the county jail. In this capacity he served with ability, tact and judgment, treating the prisoners with consideration and kindness. On September 26th, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, Jailer Innes allowed one of the prisoners, George McGarvey, the freedom of the corridor of the lower floor. He had been confined since April last on the charge of attempting to criminally assault the young daughter of a prominent hotel man of the city. Jailer Innes was standing against the bars of a cell in the number of other prisoners were playing a game of cards. His hands raised above his head were resting on a bar as he leaned forward watching the game. His back was towards McGarvey. Seizing the opportunity, presented for complete liberty, McGarvey picked up a stick of kindling wood from the floor and picked up an ugly knot on the end. He then stealthily crept up behind the jailer and dealt him a terrible blow on the head. Innes sank to the floor with a groan, while his murderer sprang upon him saying, "I have you now, Eddie."

He took to the keys and a six-shooter from the prostrate form, and pointing the weapon towards the prisoners in the cell swore that he would shoot the first man that would open his lips to give the alarm. With the keys he then quickly opened the ponderous iron doors barring his way to liberty and escaped. He had a good start, but before he had become known, Mr. Innes lived until midnight of the following day, but never fully recovered consciousness. Three or four days after the murderer was captured some eighty miles from the scene of the murder. He was given a fair trial and probably on the whole has had the sentence of death passed upon him.

The following is what the Daily Sentinel, of Grand Junction, has to say of his victim: "Edward Innes was 28 years of age and unmarried. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Innes, whose family residence is at 735 Ouray avenue. No young man in Grand Junction was held in higher regard or had more friends than Edward Innes. His character was such that drew to him warm friends who never wavered in their regard for him. True, he had high and noble in his impulses, and faithful to his friends, there is little wonder that the entire city should be stirred with indignation and anger over his tragic death at the hands of one of the vilest criminals that was ever confined in a Missouri county prison."

Mr. and Mrs. James Innes, of Woodstock, when making their tour of the west a little better than a year ago, visited their relatives at Grand Junction, and their nephew, Edward Innes, was among the last to bid them goodbye when they left the city, says the Sentinel-Review.

day's function fulfilled these requirements exactly. It began on time and ended on time, and the members found
it a most enjoyable hour. They were exceedingly fortunate in their choice
of a speaker for the first occasion, and
Dr. Moulton, in addition to the stimulus he has given to literary appreciation in the city by his course of lectures, may pride himself upon having given an impetus to the Canadian Club.In bringing men of different politics and creeds and nationalities around the
one table as citizens and Canadians the club can do a good work. It will tend to wear down asperities in the community, and promote a keener public
spirit, and a greater pride in our city
and country.LUCKY POLITICIANS.Mr. Foster is again in the limelight.
The evidence before the insurance
commission yesterday is interesting
reading. The Ontario, Manitoba and Western Land Company in 1903 sold a block of 40,000 acres to the Union
Trust Company, of which Mr. Foster
was manager. The negotiations between the land company and the trust
company were carried on by Mr. A. W.
Pritchard, a wholesale real estate dealer, of Winnipeg. Mr. Pritchard got a commission of $10,000 and gave half of
it to Mr. Foster. He gave another $1-900 to the Hon. Colin Campbell, Atorney-General of Manitoba, and president of the land company. Mr. Campbell made a request for this money by telephone, saying that he had been put
to a lot of trouble in the matter, and that it would be to Pritchard's advantage to hand over the amount.
The Premier of Manitoba, Mr. Rob-
lin, also figures in a deal in railway
lands, upon which he made a pretty penny. He bought about 10,000 acres
from the Canadian Northern Railway
at $3.10 per acre, and turned it over to the Union Trust a few months later
at $5 per acre.
The evidence seems to make it necessary that Messrs. Roblin and Campbell shall be required to testify as to their land transactions. The number of Conservative politicians who have been making fortunes in land is a revelation.AN ECHO FROM NORTH BRUCE.Mr. R. L. Borden, while in North Bruce, attempted to make a point
against the Liberal Government at Ottawa by saying that when the bill for
the better observance of the Sabbath
was passed it had been made satisfactory to Mr. Bourassa, M. P.
Mr. Bourassa has not approved of the Sunday observance bill, and made it a ground of attack upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Quebec County. The leaders in the movement for the better observance of Sunday as a rest day have
without a dissenting voice warmly
commended the legislation, and thanked Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues for all they have done to secure
the passage of this beneficial measure.
The latest to be heard from is Mr. T.
Albert Moore, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, who, in the call for the annual meeting of the Ontario Lord's Day Alliance, reviews the work of the year in these terms:"The year's work is most encouraging. The arousing of the people to enthusiasm such as was never before
evident; the effective and determined enforcement of the Upper Canada Lord's Day Act; the enactment in
much better form of the laws prohibiting Sunday operation of street
and electric railways, and the passage of the Act respecting the Lord's Day by our Federal Parliament, all
mark the year's work with signal
success and denote the great victories of the past twelve months."Mr. Borden and his associates in the front benches of the Opposition in Parliament gave no aid to the Government in its efforts to pass Sunday legislation of any description, yet Mr. Borden
was not above a sly appeal to creed and
race antipathies in North Bruce by
suggesting that a law which met Mr.
Bourassa's approval could not be satisfactory to English Protestants. Mr.
Borden is not given to such tactics as a rule, and must have had an off-day.WORK AND PAY IN THE OLD LANDS.The London Times, in discussing the question of labor troubles in Great Britain, especially in the engineering
and iron trades, remarks that the grievances of the British worker may be legitimate and that he may deserve
more wages than he receives. But our contemporary points out that the British workman is in a most fortunate position when compared with that
of his competitor on the continent of Europe. Not only are the continental hours of labor in many branches of industry greatly in excess of those in Great Britain, but in the matter of overtime pay, and also in the scale of remuneration for highly skilled work, the continental mechanic is manifestly
placed at a great disadvantage. The Times has apparently sized up the situation. The poorly-paid continental workman, who works the longer hours,
does so under a protectionist tariff;
which his higher paid neighbor in Great Britain, with the shorter work-
day, is under the system of trade freedom. This does not bear out the contention of the advocates of a high protective tariff on this continent, who are always telling us that trade restriction
is the never-failing workman's pay booster. It does not work that way in European countries.If Hearst wins today it will be a case of lashing the trusts with scorpions.Some members of the Manitoba Government are evidently not in need of ministerial pensions to keep the wolf
from the door when they get out of politics.The city of Toronto is agitating for elevated tracks. In Toronto the railway tracks enter upon the waterfront
and do not interfere greatly with street
traffic. In London they traverse the middle of the city, making regularly
it is time the city and the Grand Trunk got together again.The Orangemen of Toronto are raising a rumpus because the British flag
was not displayed at the public schools
on July 12, and they will try to defeat
the school trustees who thwarted their wishes. There is no reason why the public schools, in which pupils of all
creeds and nationalities are educated,
should be compelled to honor the

is celebrated by only one section of the

GLAND.[Daily Consular and Trade Reports.]
At least 4,000,000 pairs of clogs are sold in the northern counties of England every year. The "clog" is a sort of shoe with a wooden sole (made in one piece) and a leather top. The sole of the clog is finished with a set of "cokers" or "irons," one for the heel
and another for the front of the sole.
These irons are about a quarter of an inch wide, one-eighth of an inch thick, and are made to fit the shape of the sole somewhat as a shoe is fitted to a horse's hoof. A good trade might be built up by American manufacturers in supplying either machine made wood soles or the "blocks" from which the hand sole makers shape the finished sole, as well as in the "irons" or
"cokers."GOOD OLD TIMES IN OREGON.[Arlington (Oregon) Record.]

and bacon for a steady diet and work

The neighborhood of Douglas Castle,
to which the King is now paying a visit,
has acquired a classical though melancholy interest as being the scene of Sir
Walter Scott's last pilgrimage in his native land. He was looking up in his preface to "Castle Dangerous," his last romance.
Such was the name he called Douglas
Castle by. Sir Walter traveled by Yair,
Innerleithen, Peebles, and Drochil
Castle on to Douglas, to see the ancient stronghold of the race he had so profoundly respected. There—feeble and very lame, and leaning heavily on a trusty retainer—while looking on the ruined
castle a thousand memories rushed on
his brain, and in tears he broke forth in the words of the dying Douglas at Otterburn, feeling, perhaps, that the soldier's case was his own:"My wound is deep, I fain would sleep;
Take thou the vanguard of the three
And hide me by the bracken bush
That grows on yonder lily lea."O bury me by the bracken bush
Beneath the blooming briar,
Let living mortal never ken
That e'er a kindly Scot lies here."The Earls of Douglas did not reside much at their ancestral castle, though
the dust of a number of them crumbled
in the hardly less famous Kirk of St.
Bride close by.KIND LADY.[Chicago News.]

FOR $575,000*Water Commissioners Fix Amount of Debenture Issue—Iron
Main Swells Figure.The board of water commissioners yesterday afternoon unanimously decided to ask the city council for a vote
of the people on the question of extending the waterworks system at a cost of $575,000.In reaching this conclusion, the board gave Lake Huron, Lake Erie and
river water schemes a wide berth—in fact, none of them was once mentioned. It was Komoka Springs all the way.Estimates of the cost of no less than five plans had previously been prepared, but only one came in for consideration yesterday. As wooden mains have been in use in waterworks systems in several places across the line
for a long period, it was thought advisable to secure an estimate of the cost of the schemes with that class of
main to the city, as well as with cast-iron. The difference in the cost is about 50 per cent in favor of the for-
mer. In the Lake Huron, Lake Erie
and independent fire, manufacturing
and street watering schemes, it was proposed to lay a 24-inch pipe from the present reservoir to Adelaide street,
and it was estimated that a wooden
pipe would cost $75,000, while a cast-iron pipe would cost $115,000. In the Kilworth scheme, the length of the main would be miles longer, and the difference in the cost of wood and cast-iron would be $102,500. These figures
also applied to the Komoka scheme.
The following were the figures, iron mains being provided for in each
case:

	Annual In- charges.	Operat- ing charges.
Lake Huron.....	$1,525,000	$88,190 87
Lake Erie.....	1,025,000	59,275 54
Kilworth.....	681,500	39,411 19
Komoka.....	5,500	33,252 29
Independent fire, manufacturing and street watering.....	393,000	22,727 22

The only question in the minds of
the commissioners was as to the lasting qualities of the wooden pipes. Mr.
Saunders was satisfied they would be
all that could be desired, but Chairman Darch was doubtful. Engineer
Moore told the board that wooden pipes
are bound to decay more or less. Steel pipes are eaten through by rust, but cast-iron is everlasting. On the strength of this statement, largely,
the commission agreed to ask for $575,000
debentures, instead of $172,500, which would be necessary if a wooden main
was adopted. However, it may be
that a wooden pipe will be decided upon,
and the expenditure of $102,500
avoided.Wants Valve Locked.Commissioner Saunders called attention to the possible introduction of
river water into the city mains, and he said, he thought the valve built for the purpose at Springbank should be fastened with two different styles of locks, the chairman to hold the key of
one, the engineer to hold the key of the other. "This would remove the impression prevailing among some citizens
that river water is used."
"I would not gratify such people,"
said the mayor. "I don't believe in
pandering to them because of their whims. If we locked the valve, as you suggest, then they would only get something else to grouch about."No action was taken.
The application of the Mann Brass
Manufacturing Company, for water at
cost, was received, the commission deciding to place a meter on the service for three months to ascertain the quantity of water that will be required.
Report will then be made to the council, the application having come through that source.On the Action

THE CANADIAN CLUB.

The Canadian Club is to be congratulated upon the success of its inaugural luncheon. Punctuality and brevity are absolutely necessary if a company of busy men is to be assembled periodically at mid-day. Yesterday's function fulfilled these require-
ended on time, and the members found
it a most enjoyable hour. They were exceedingly fortunate in their choice
of a speaker for the first occasion, and
Dr. Moulton, in addition to the stimulus he has given to literary appreciation in the city by his course of lectures, may pride himself upon having given an impetus to the Canadian Club.

In bringing men of different politics
and creeds and nationalities around the
one table as citizens and Canadians the
club can do a good work. It will tend
to wear down asperities in the community, and promote a keener public
spirit, and a greater pride in our city
and country.

LUCKY POLITICIANS.

Mr. Foster is again in the limelight.
The evidence before the insurance
reading. The Ontario, Manitoba and Western Land Company in 1903 sold a
block of 40,000 acres to the Union
Trust Company, of which Mr. Foster
was manager. The negotiations between the land company and the trust
company were carried on by Mr. A. W.
Pritchard, a wholesale real estate dealer, of Winnipeg. Mr. Pritchard got a commission of $10,000 and gave half of
it to Mr. Foster. He gave another $1-900 to the Hon. Colin Campbell, Attorney-General of Manitoba, and president of the land company. Mr. Campbell made a request for this money by
telephone, saying that he had been put
to a lot of trouble in the matter, and
that it would be to Pritchard's advan-

The Premier of Manitoba, Mr. Rob-
lin, also figures in a deal in railway
lands, upon which he made a pretty
penny. He bought about 10,000 acres
from the Canadian Northern Railway
at $3 10 per acre, and turned it over
to the Union Trust a few months later
at $5 per acre.

The evidence seems to make it necessary that Messrs. Roblin and Campbell shall be required to testify as to
their land transactions. The number of Conservative politicians who have been making fortunes in land is a revelation.

AN ECHO FROM NORTH BRUCE.

Mr. R. L. Borden, while in North
Bruce, attempted to make a point
against the Liberal Government at Ottawa by saying that when the bill for
the better observance of the Sabbath
was passed it had been made satisfactory to Mr. Bourassa, M. P.

Mr. Bourassa has not approved of
the Sunday observance bill, and made
it a ground of attack upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Quebec County. The leaders in the movement for the better observance of Sunday as a rest day have
commended the legislation, and thanked Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues for all they have done to secure
the passage of this beneficial measure.
The latest to be heard from is Mr. T.
Albert Moore, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, who, in the call for the annual meeting of the Ontario Lord's Day Alliance, reviews the work of the year in these terms:

"The year's work is most encouraging. The arousing of the people to
enthusiasm such as was never before
evident; the effective and determi-
ed enforcement of the Upper Canada
Lord's Day Act; the enactment in
much better form of the laws prohibiting Sunday operation of street
and electric railways, and the passage of the 'Act respecting the Lord's Day' by our Federal Parliament, all
mark the year's work with signal
success and denote the great victories of the past twelve months."

Mr. Borden and his associates in the front benches of the Opposition in parliament have no aid to the Government in its efforts to pass Sunday legislation of any description, yet Mr. Borden
was not above a sly appeal to creed and
race antipathies in North Bruce by
suggesting that a law which met Mr.
isfactory to English Protestants. Mr.
Borden is not given to such tactics as a rule, and must have had an off-day.

WORK AND PAY IN THE OLD LANDS.

The London Times, in discussing the question of labor troubles in Great Britain, especially in the engineering
and iron trades, remarks that the grievances of the British worker may be
legitimate and that he may deserve
contemporary points out that the British workman is in a most fortunate position when compared with that
of his competitor on the continent of Europe. Not only are the continental
hours of labor in many branches of industry greatly in excess of those in Great Britain, but in the matter of over-
time pay, and also in the scale of remuneration for highly skilled work, the
continental mechanic is manifestly
placed at a great disadvantage. The Times has apparently sized up the situation. The poorly-paid continental
workman, who works the longer hours,
does so under a protectionist tariff;
which his higher paid neighbor in Great Britain, with the shorter work-
day, is under the system of trade freedom. This does not bear out the contention of the advocates of a high protective tariff on this continent, who are
is the never-failing workman's pay
booster. It does not work that way in European countries.

If Hearst wins today it will be a case of lashing the trusts with scorpions.

Some members of the Manitoba Government are evidently not in need of
ministerial pensions to keep the wolf
from the door when they get out of politics.

The city of Toronto is agitating for elevated tracks. In Toronto the railway tracks enter upon the waterfront
and do not interfere greatly with street
traffic. In London they traverse the middle of the city, making regularity
in the street car service impossible. It is time the city and the Grand Trunk got together again.

The Orangemen of Toronto are raising a rumpus because the British flag
was not displayed at the public schools
on July 12, and they will try to defeat
the school trustees who thwarted their
wishes. There is no reason why the
creeds and nationalities are educated,
should be compelled to honor the Twelfth of July or any other day which is celebrated by only one section of the community.

CLOGS IN THE NORTH OF ENGLAND.

[Daily Consular and Trade Reports.]
At least 4,000,000 pairs of clogs are

GOOD OLD TIMES IN OREGON.

[Arlington (Oregon) Record.]
Return to the "good old times," would you? Then rise on a cold morning and wash at the pump, pull on a pair of rawhide boots that rival a tin can in stiffness, pull on a woolen shirt over your back and sit down to a bare meal with your back and stool dancing around on a slippish floor, eat corn pone and bacon for a steady diet and labor fourteen hours out of twenty-four. Go without a daily paper, a fly screen, a mosquito bar, a spring mattress, a kerosene lamp, gee-haw your oxen to market and sit on the floor of an ox cart as you wend your way to church or a frolic. Parch corn and peas for coffee and use sassafras for tea, and see how you like it.

SCOTT'S LASTS PILGRIMAGE.

[Glasgow Herald.]
The neighborhood of Douglas Castle,
to which the King is now paying a visit,
has acquired a classical though melancholy interest as being the scene of Sir
Walter Scott's last pilgrimage in his native land. His own reference to the visit may be looked up in his preface
to "Castle Dangerous," his last romance.
Such was the name he called Douglas
Castle by. Sir Walter traveled by Yair,
Innerleithen, Peebles, and Drochil-
Castle on to Douglas, to see the ancient stronghold of the race he had so pre-founded a respect for. There, feeble and very lame, and leaning heavily on his stick, and supported also by a trusty
retainer—while looking on the ruined
castle a thousand memories rushed on
his brain, and in tears he broke forth
in the words of the dying Douglas of Otterburn, feeling, perhaps, that the soldier's case was his own:

"My wound is deep, I fain would sleep;
Take thou the vanguard of the three;
And hide me by the broken bush
That grows on yonder livy lea."

O bury me by the broken bush
Beneath the blooming briar;
Let living mortal never ken
That e'er a kindly Scot lies here."

The Earls of Douglas did not reside
much at their ancestral castle, though
the dust of a number of them crumbled
in the hardly less famous Kirk of St.
Bride close by.

WILL NOW ASK

Water Commissioners Fix Amount
of Debenture Issue—Iron
Main Swells Figure.

The board of water commissioners
yesterday afternoon unanimously decided to ask the city council for a vote
of the people on the question of extending the waterworks system at a cost of $575,000.

In reaching this conclusion, the
board gave Lake Huron, Lake Erie and
river water schemes a wide berth—in fact, none of them was once mentioned. It was Komoka Springs all the way.

Estimates of the cost of no less than five plans had previously been prepared, but only one came in for consideration yesterday. As wooden mains
have been in use in waterworks systems in several places across the line
for a long period, it was thought ad-
cost of the schemes with that class of
main to the city, as well as with cast-
iron. The difference in the cost is
about 50 per cent in favor of the for-
mer. In the Lake Huron, Lake Erie
and independent fire, manufacturing
and street watering schemes, it was
proposed to lay a 24-inch pipe from the
present reservoir to Adelaide street,
and it was estimated that a wooden
pipe would cost $75,000, while a cast-
iron pipe would cost $115,000. In the Kilworth scheme, the length of the
main would be miles longer, and the
difference in the cost of wood and cast-
iron would be $102,000. These figures
also applied to the Komoka scheme.
The following were the figures, iron
mains being provided for in each
case:

	Cost.	Annual ex- charges, pos- sible.	Operat- ing charges.
Lake Huron.....	$1,525,000	$88,190 87	$25,000
Lake Erie.....	1,025,000	59,275 64	25,000
Kilworth.....	1,680,000	29,411 19	10,000
Komoka.....	5,500	33,252 29	6,500
Independent fire, manufacturing and street watering.....	393,000	22,727 22	15,000

Will Wood Last.

The only question in the minds of
the commissioners was as to the last-
ing qualities of the wooden pipes. Mr.
Saunders was satisfied they would be
all that could be desired, but Chairman Darch was doubtful. Engineer
Moore told the board that wooden pipes
were bound to decay more or less. Steel pipes are eaten through by rust, but
cast-iron is everlasting. On the strength of this statement, largely,
the commission agreed to ask for $575,000
debentures, instead of $472,500, which
would be necessary if a wooden main
was adopted. However, it may be
and the expenditure of $102,500
avoided.

Wants Valve Locked.

Commissioner Saunders called attention to the possible introduction of
river water into the city mains, and he
locks, the chairman to hold the key of
one, the engineer to hold the key of the
other. This would remove the impression prevailing among some citizens
that river water is used.

"I would not gratify such people,"
said the mayor. "I don't believe in
pandering to them because of their
suggest, then they would only get something else to grouch about."

No action was taken.
The application of the Mann Brass
Manufacturing Company, for water at
cost, was received, the commission declining to place a meter on the service for three months to ascertain the
A report will then be made to the council.

On the Action of the Bowels

Almost the first question the doctor puts to his patient is in reference to the action of the bowels. Not only are very many ailments attributed to constipation of the bowels, but their cure is impossible until the bowels are set right.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills insure prompt movement of the bowels and also do far more than this, for by their action on the liver they cause a good flow of bile, which is Nature's own cathartic and the only real cure for constipation.

By keeping the bowels regular you avoid the serious and dangerous aliments of the kidneys and can defy colds and contagious diseases.

Should you be already a sufferer from kidney disease, lumbago, backache, rheumatism or other diseases arising from poisoned system, there is cure for you in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their direct and combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels.

No Objection To This.

The board had no objection whatever to a reduction being made in the amount to be paid by the council for water use on the streets. The agreement between the council and commissioners calls for $3,500, but the former wants a reduction because the scarcity
at Springbank made street sprinkling an absolute impossibility for about a month. Chairman Darch, however, did not appear to relish the action of the aldermen. "What advantage is to be gained by the council doing this?"
he asked. "It will simply mean that we will have that much less to hand back to them."

"No advantage whatever in doing it," answered the mayor.
"And," resumed the chairman, "it will only put a lot of those 'wise guys' around town onto it, and they will be coming around asking for a rebate in their rates."

An application of Mrs. Rogers, of Mabel street, for a main was referred to Engineer Moore.

Winnett & Son's offer of $269 for a new set of tubes in the boilers at Springbank was accepted.

Want Opinion Now.

The fire underwriters acknowledged the letter of the board, calling attention to the proposed extension of the waterworks system, and promised to have it brought before the proper committees. The commissioners, however, were not satisfied with the document,
and will ask the opinion of the underwriters on the improvements before they are made, in order that there will be no room for fault-finding later.

The report of Pumping Engineer
Simble showed an average of 3,323,000 gallons pumped daily since the last meeting. There was plenty of water in the reservoir, not less than 12 feet

time.

THE EVER-READY MARINES.

Whenever trouble breaks out in any quarter of the world, in Honolulu or Timbuctoo, there is a call for the marines.
And they are generally on the spot ready for business. When the Chinese Boxers rose, the American brigades broke loose or the South American revolutionists start in to pick a city or two to pieces—in any quarter where American lives or property are threatened—we are relieved when we read, just after the news of the riot and carnage, "The American commander landed a detachment of marines."
Though they are few in numbers, this corps of fighters bring comfort and protection to threatened Americans in every quarter of the globe.

At home, alike on the sea or on the land, they are the most ambitious and obedient of all Uncle Sam's fighting men.—Baltimore Sun.

The Woman in the Alcove

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Author of "The Millionaire Baby," "The Filigree Ball," "The Leavenworth Case," Etc., Etc.
(Copyright, 1906, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"I am sorry, Madam, if you were expected to go. Inspector Dalzell has arrived and would like to speak to you. Will you step into one of these rooms? Not the library, but any other. He will come to you as quickly as he can."

I tried to carry it off bravely and as I saw nothing in this summons which was unique or alarming. But I succeeded only in dividing a wavering glance between him and the group of men of which he had just formed a part. In the latter were several gentlemen whom I had noted in Mrs. Fairbrother's train early in the evening and a few strangers, two of whom were officials. Mr. Durand was with the former, and his expression did not encourage me.

"The affair is very serious," commented the detective on leaving me. "That's our excuse for any trouble we may be putting you to."

I clutched my uncle's arm.

"Where shall we go?" I asked. "The drawing-room is too large. In this hall my eyes are for ever traveling in the direction of the alcove. Don't you know some little room? Oh, what, what can he want of me?"

"Nothing serious, nothing important," blustered my good uncle. "Some triviality such as you can answer in a moment. A little room? Yes, I know one, there, under the stairs. Come, I will find the door for you. Why did we ever come to this wretched hall?"

I had no answer for this. Why, indeed!

My uncle, who is a very patient man, guided me to the place he had picked out, without adding a word to the ejaculation in which he had just allowed his impatience to expend itself. But once seated within, and out of the range of peering eyes and listening ears, he allowed a sigh to escape him which expressed the fullness of his agitation.

"My dear," he began, and stopped. "I feel—here he again came to a pause—'that you should know—'

"What?" I managed to ask.

"That I do not like Mr. Durand and—that others do not like him."

"It is because of something you knew about him before tonight?"

He made no answer.

"Or because he was seen, like many other gentlemen, talking with that woman some time before—a long time before—she was attacked for her diamond and murdered?"

"Pardon me, my dear, he was the last one seen talking to her. Someone may yet be found who went in after he came out, but as yet he is considered the last. Mr. Ramsdell himself told me so."

"It makes no difference," I exclaimed, in all the heat of my long-suppressed agitation. "I am willing to stake my life on his integrity and honor. No man could talk to me as he did early this evening with any vile intentions at heart. He was interested, no doubt, like many others, in one who had the name of being a captivating woman, but—"

I paused in sudden alarm. A look had crossed my uncle's face which assured me that we were no longer alone. Who could have entered so silently? In some trepidation I endeavored to see. A gentleman was standing in the doorway, who smiled as I met his eye.

"Is this Miss Van Arsdale?" he asked. Instantly my courage, which had threatened to leave me, returned and I smiled.

"I am," said I. "Are you the inspector?"

"Inspector Dalzell," he explained with a bow, which included my uncle.

Then he closed the door.

"I hope I have not frightened you," he went on, approaching me with a gentlemanly air. "A little matter has come up concerning which I mean to be perfectly frank with you. It may prove to be of trivial importance; if so, you will pardon my disturbing you. Mr. Durand—you know him?"

"I am engaged to him," I declared before poor uncle could raise his hand.

"You are engaged to him. Well, that makes it difficult, and yet, in some respects, easier for me to ask a certain question."

It must have made it more difficult than easy, for he did not proceed to put this question immediately, but went on:

"You know that Mr. Durand visited Mrs. Fairbrother in the alcove a little while before her death?"

"I have been told so."

"He was seen to go in, but I have not yet found anyone who saw him come out; consequently we have been unable to fix the exact minute when he did so. What is the matter, Miss Van Arsdale? You want to say something?"

"No, no," I protested, reconsidering my first impulse. Then, as I met his look, "He can probably tell you that himself. I am sure he would not hesitate."

"We shall ask him later," was the inspector's response. "Meanwhile, are you ready to assure me that since that time he has not trusted you with a little article to keep—No, no, I do not mean the diamond," he broke in, in very evident dismay, as I fell back from him in trepidation and alarm.

"The diamond—well, we shall look for that later; it is another article we are in search of now, one which Mr. Durand might very well have taken in his hand without realizing just what he was doing. As it is important for us to find this article, and as it is one he might very naturally have passed over to you when he found himself in the hall with it in his hand, I have ventured to ask you if this surmise is correct."

"It is not," I retorted fiercely, glad that I could speak from my very heart. "He has given me nothing to keep for him. He would not—"

"Why that peculiar look in the inspector's eyes? Why did he reach out for a chair and seat me in it before he took up my interrupted sentence and finished it?"

"—would not give you anything to hold which had belonged to another woman? Miss Van Arsdale, you do not know them. They do many things which a young, trusting girl like yourself would hardly expect from them."

"Not Mr. Durand," I maintained stoutly.

"Perhaps not; let us hope not." Then, with a quick change of manner, he bent toward me, with a sidelong look at uncle, and, pointing to my gloves, remarked: "You wear gloves. Did you feel the need of two pairs, that you carry another in that pretty bag hanging from your arm?"

I started, looked down, and then slowly drew up into my hand the bag he had mentioned. The white finger of a glove was protruding from the top. Any one could see it; many probably had. What did it mean? I had brought no extra pair with me.

"This is not mine," I began, faltering into silence as I perceived my uncle turn and walk a step or two away.

"The article we are looking for," pursued the inspector, "is a pair of long white gloves, supposed to have been worn by Mrs. Fairbrother when she entered the alcove. Do you mind showing me those, a finger of which I see?"

I dropped the bag into his hand. The room and everything in it was whitening around me. But when I noted what trouble it was to his clumsy fingers to open it, my senses returned, and, reaching for the bag, I pulled it open and snatched out the gloves. They had been hastily rolled up and some of the fingers were showing.

"Let me have them," he said.

With quaking heart and shaking fingers I handed over the gloves.

"Mrs. Fairbrother's hand was not a small one," he observed as he slowly unrolled them. "Yours is. We can soon tell—"

But that sentence was never finished. As the gloves fell open his grasp uttered a sudden, sharp ejaculation and I a smothered shriek. An object of superlative brilliancy had rolled out from them. The diamond! The gem which men said was worth a king's ransom, and which we all knew had just cost a life.

CHAPTER III.

With benumbed senses and a dismayed heart, I stared at the fallen jewel as at some hateful thing menacing both my life and honor.

"I have had nothing to do with it," I vehemently declared. "I did not put the gloves in my bag, nor did I know the diamond was in them. I fainted at the first alarm, and—"

"There! there! I know," interposed the inspector kindly. "I do not doubt you in the least; not when there is a man to doubt. Miss Van Arsdale, you had better let your uncle take you home. I will see that the hall is cleared for you. Tomorrow I may wish to talk to you again, but I will spare you all further importunity tonight."

I shook my head. It would require more courage to leave at that moment than to stay. Meeting the inspector's eye firmly, I quietly declared:

"If Mr. Durand's good name is to suffer in any way, I will not forsake him. I have confidence in his integrity. If you have not, it was not his hand, but one much more guilty, which dropped this jewel into the bag."

"So! so! do not be too sure of that little woman. You had better take your lesson at once. It will be easier for you, and more wholesome for him."

Here he picked up the jewel.

"Well, they said it was a wonder!" he exclaimed, in his sudden admiration. "I am not surprised, now that I have seen a great gem, at the famous stories I have read of men risking life and honor for their possession. If only no blood had been shed!"

"Uncle! uncle!" I wailed aloud in my agony!

It was all my lips could utter, but to uncle it was enough. Speaking for the first time, he asked to have a passage made for us, and when the inspector moved forward to comply, he threw his arm about me, and was endeavoring to find fitting words with which to fill up the delay, when a short altercation was heard from the doorway, and Mr. Durand came rushing in, followed immediately by the inspector.

His first look was not at myself, but at the bag, which still hung from my arm. As I noted this action, my whole inner self seemed to collapse, dragging my consciousness down with it. But my countenance remained unchanged, too much so, it seems; for when his eye finally rose to my face, he found there what made him recoil and turn with something like fierceness on his companion.

"You have been talking to her," he vehemently protested. "Perhaps you have gone further than that. What has happened here? I think I ought to know. She is so guileless, Inspector Dalzell; so perfectly free from all connection with this crime. Why have you shut her up here, and piled her with questions, and made her look at me with such an expression, when all you have against me is just what you have against some half-dozen others—that I was weak enough, or unfortunate enough, to spend a few minutes with that unhappy woman in the alcove before she died?"

"It might be well if Miss Van Arsdale herself would answer you," was the inspector's quiet retort. "What you have said may constitute all that we have against you, but it is not all we have against her."

I gasped, not so much at this seeming accusation, the motive of which I believed myself to understand, but at the burning blush with which it was received by Mr. Durand.

"What do you mean?" he demanded, with certain odd breaks in his voice. "What can you have against her?"

"A triviality," returned the inspector, with a look in my direction that was, I felt, not to be mistaken.

"I do not call it a triviality," I burst out. "It seems that Mrs. Fairbrother, for all her elaborate toilet, was found without gloves on her arms. As she certainly wore them on entering the alcove, the police have naturally been looking for them. And where do you think they have found them? Not in the alcove with her, not in the possession of the man who undoubtedly carried them away with him, but—"

"I know, I know," Mr. Durand hoarsely put in. "You need not say any more. Oh, my poor Rita! what have I brought upon you by my weakness?"

"Weakness!" He started; my voice was totally unrecognizable.

"I should give it another name," I added coldly.

WHEN ICE PACK FAILED PEARY

Theory of Palaeocrystic Sea Was Exploded.

FLOES OF FAR NORTH UNSTABLE

The Mild Arctic Season Contributed to Explorer's Failure to Reach the Pole.

New York, Nov. 5.—Peary's long sledge journey over the American Arctic Ocean will give to the palaeocrystic sea its final quietus. The British expedition under Capt. Nares was the first to enter, in 1876, the ocean north of Grant Land, that has been the scene of Peary's latest sledge journey.

On the edge of that sea Nares saw what he called floes, also floe ice of a very different character from those observed in the European Arctic.

These floes, or ice masses in the sea, varied from 20 to 50 feet in thickness and the areas of some of their surfaces was as much as thirty square miles.

They were as big as many islands rising above the surface of the sea. The world's curiosity was aroused, for such immense masses of sea ice had not been heard of before.

There were even the floes rising to heights of 50 to 80 feet and resembling the flat-topped icebergs of the Antarctic regions. There was a great deal of discussion about the form of ice. Several theories as to their origin were discussed and it was finally decided that they must be due to the annual snowfalls in this region, where there is very little melting, and the world's curiosity was aroused, for such immense masses of sea ice had not been heard of before.

These forms were so very different from the polar pack observed to the north of Spitzbergen that a distinctive term came to be applied to the region where they were found. So this part of the Arctic Ocean was named by Nares the Palaeocrystic Sea, or sea of ancient ice. It was argued, for a number of reasons, that this sea, covered with enormously thick ice, was of great extent, and also that it was a shallow sea, and it was believed that most of the floes grounded on the bottom. Many of the floes were supposed to be centuries old. Surely, if sledges could be drawn along the surface of these floes, though it was very rough hauling, there would be a pretty stable sort of foundation to travel over, for it would not be likely to float away and leave some explorer in the lurch who should happen to get between the palaeocrystic ice and the north pole.

Peary, by actual experience, has put an end to this theory of enormous thick ice covering a large part of the Arctic Sea to the north of America. He has been there, hundreds of miles from the land, and he found the ordinary floe ice thick, to be sure, in comparison with any ice we have seen, but not of the very ancient variety to which Nares introduced us.

The ice the Peary met was not grounded on the bottom of the sea, for anchored in this way it could not have drifted off to the southeast on the persuasion of a high wind, giving Peary and his belongings involuntary transportation to Greenland, which was just where he did not care to go.

In fact Peary has proved that the ice of the sea to the north of Grant Land is really no more stable than it is to the north of Asia and Europe, where the Fram drifted for many hundreds of miles to the northwest and where Capt. Cagni, of the Abruzzi expedition drifted some 60 miles to the west when he was trying to make a straight road back to camp after reaching his highest north.

The failure of the ice in the American Arctic Ocean to afford a more or less stable highway for a sledge expedition, to the north pole, will probably destroy the last illusions as to the advantages offered by polar ice anywhere for sledge travel poleward. The American Arctic sea ice had not been fully tested in this respect until Peary went on this last journey. He achieved the highest north in spite of the fact that in the long run the ice as a sledge route failed him more utterly than it has failed any previous explorer who attempted to use it as a route to the pole; in other words, the days came when he was put in the perilous plight, though he was far from land, of being unable to sledge another mile, for the ice was broken up into big and little islands and was floating off to the southeast.

We heard early last summer that the winter had been unusually mild in all parts of the Arctic from which reports had been received. Peary's report seems to show that these conditions prevailed very far north in the American Arctic. This fact may have had a large influence in disintegrating the Arctic ice, so that it was more easily broken up by great windstorms.

There are one or two curious resemblances between Peary's recent experience and that of Cagni in 1900, when that fine Italian explorer and right-hand man of the Duke of Abruzzi made his record for the highest north, which stood until Peary surpassed it.

Cagni's work was done far to the north of the Franz Josef Land archipelago. The ice did not break up under his sledges, but now and then he found that he was afloat on a big or little floe, and he had to wait until he was involuntarily ferried across to some neck of ice that he could cross to a more extensive floe. Then he picked his way along, sometimes in great danger, for in his eagerness to get ahead he sometimes ran great risks by crossing from one ice field to another on very thin, new ice. So he was greatly delayed, as Peary was this summer, by the opening of channels and all the phenomena of the breaking up of large areas of sea ice.

The lives of Peary's party were saved by the fact that they had eight dogs, which they turned into food. As Cagni was returning south in 1900 he knew that he was being so delayed by open water that he could not possibly get back to camp before the exhaustion of his food supplies. He picked out eight of his dogs, which were to be killed by one at a time, needed to eke out the rations of the party. They began to eat the dogs, but the conditions of travel became more favorable toward the last, and not all of them became food for explorers. But he had set apart for the culinary department just the number of dogs that were eaten by Peary's men.

The Italians liked the dogs, too. They said they were excellent eating, and it will not be surprising if we hear a somewhat similar report from the American explorer.

Eczema, Ulcers and Skin Diseases.

Don't you believe in nature? Don't you think that skin and blood diseases such as the above, can best be cured by applying nature's own herbal extracts? From Bible times the "herbs of the field" have been commended to mankind for this purpose. Zam-Buk is a combination of the finest medicinal herbal essences, concentrated, purified, and rendered highly antiseptic. Zam-Buk cures pain, stops suppuration, and heals all sores and skin diseases. A natural herbal balm, operating in nature's own way. Note well following cases.

PROOF OF ZAM-BUK'S POWER.

Mr. Montague Jones, of Tavistock, Ont., says:—"About four years ago sores started to break out on my skin. I used salves to check them, but to no effect. I then burned them with Iodine, and that took them away for a time, but only for a time, and they came back again. Sores then started to break out on my head. I went to the doctor, who told me that it was scalp eczema and that I should need to give it very careful attention. He gave me some salve which I rubbed on, but notwithstanding all my care I continued to get worse. I then tried several advertised remedies, but to the same end. One day I read a report about Zam-Buk, and I thought that what it had done for other people it could do for me, so sent for a sample box. The result of the use of so small a quantity was so satisfactory that I at once obtained a full supply. I also obtained a few boxes of Bileams for internal use. Within a very short time there was a marked improvement. I applied ZAM-BUK in accordance with the directions and very soon the scales were all gone and the sores completely healed. They show no trace of returning, and I feel that I am cured to stay cured."

"Mrs. L. Finch, of Camberwell, says:—"Our little girl, May, had eczema on the scalp. It spread all over the head and the pain was so bad at times that the poor child screamed aloud. Her hair came out in patches. Hospital treatment failed. The first application of Zam-Buk eased the agony and by the time we had used a few boxes the disease was cured. It is the finest balm ever brought into a house for all skin injuries and diseases."

USE ZAM-BUK IF YOU SUFFER FROM:— Eczema or any skin disease, Ulcers, Abscesses, running sores, blood poison, eruptions, chronic sores, etc. It also cures chilblains, chapped hands, cold sores, cuts, burns and bruises. Pandora Range

A Ventilating Oven that Ventilates.

There is only one practical way of ventilating a range oven and that way has been adopted in the Pandora—is an actual, positive, working feature and not a mere talking point.

Fresh air is drawn from the outside through small vents into the oven while the odors and cooking fumes are forced by the fresh air out through small vents into the smoke flues, and up the chimney.

Roasts cooked in a Pandora oven retain their sweet, natural flavor, entirely free from cooking odors, absolutely unmixed with any foreign flavor. Puddings, cakes, bread, meats, etc., are always light, fresh and free from mixed odors or flavors.

In the Pandora range you get all that scientific study, practical experience, skilled workmanship and an immense and finely equipped plant combined, can produce—the highest possible attainment in range perfection.

Ask your local dealer to show you the Pandora range, or write to us for free catalogue before buying any other.

4071 AN OUTFIT FOR THE SMALL MISS.

Tiny maids need new outfits quite as much as older ones, and if mother can find time to fashion the little garments at home they will seem all the more attractive. Here are coat, cap and dress, all of the latest style and not elaborate. The dress has a round yoke and small bishop sleeves being suited to development in the wide embroidery or any white washing stuff. The coat would be pretty if made of white cashmere or broadcloth, while red and blue are serviceable. A silk or washable braid may be used to trim it, and the lining should be silk or a soft durable material. The cap is very pretty if made of a soft silk, the crown and headband being embroidered in white. For the medium size 25-8 yards of 27-inch material are needed for the dress, 2-8 for the coat and 1-4 for the cap. 4071—Sizes, 1-2, 1, 2, 3 years.

SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

Dundas vs. London, Saturday, at Dundas. Well, we ought to do as good as these much vaunted Cubs, at all events. List to the appended confession from the Blufftown Herald: "The Clubs won out Saturday by one point. That one point really indicates more than the difference between the two teams; no two teams could be more evenly matched. The Dundas team was handled better, and did better team work than their opponents."

The striped jungle ones have landed on top of the O. R. F. U. football heap six times in thirteen years. In '90 they were first under the wire, then the jungle birds slumped for six years. The years '97, '03, '04, '05 and 1906 finds them leading the old wild ones of the gridiron forests.

Saturday's football games settle the championships of two unions, Montreal winning the Quebec and Hamilton Tigers the Ontario. But so far as the college championship goes, things are yet much mixed. McGill from this writing appears to have the best of it, and if they claim (and are given) the game in Toronto that was postponed on account of the fatality, they would appear to have so long a lead that the best 'Varsity could hope for is a tie.

Montreal and Tigers can now get down to particulars concerning Canadian championships. Montreal has one more game to play. They meet the weak Westmont team on Montreal grounds next Saturday. The result is a foregone conclusion, and as Hamilton's season is over there is no reason why the first Canadian championship game should not be played on Saturday, Nov. 17. The first game will be played on the grounds of the Hamilton Tigers and the second on 'Varsity grounds if 'Varsity wins, and on McGill grounds if McGill wins the college championship.

The uncertainties of billiards never were better exemplified than in New York on Thursday and Friday nights. On the first night George Sutton, champion 18.2 billiardist of the world, clicked off a run of 234, and averaged 60 in a game with Tom Gallagher, and on the following night was beaten by Ed. McLaughlin, 300 to 142, with a high run of 46 and an average of 10.2-14. McLaughlin averaged 21.

Sutton recently won the 18.2 championship by defeating George Slosson, and in the tournament played for the title at New York last April he hung up an average of 100, a world's record. His next championship match will be against Willie Hoppe, the 18.1 champion, and the probabilities are the game will be played in Chicago. Sutton, as the challenged party, is vested with the power to decide the match in any city he selects, and as he claims Chicago as his home efforts are being made by those directly interested in the booming of billiards to induce him to play here.

It is reported that Harvard is seriously considering the acceptance of an invitation from England to send a lacrosse team to the other side in order to encourage the cordial relations between the college men of the United States and England. The invitation was originally for a team of undergraduates, but owing to the fact that the lacrosse season in England is in the fall and lasts well into the winter the undergraduate team will be unable to get away. Therefore Harvard will probably send a team of graduates over composed of men who have played on the Crimson teams in past years.

Well, that is not so bad. However, we have a few teams who are not "such a few" at the game. Give us a call, Old 'Varsity, while you are about it. Even the Indians (no bouquets, Toronto!) in little (?) Canada can go a little wee bit.

The Toronto papers are a unit in declaring that Hamilton is the "luckiest ever." The World lets out the following howl: The Tigers were very lucky to pull out a victory. They were played off their feet at every stage of the game, and although they brought down a score or more of tricks, they found, when they went to put them into commission, that Argos knew as much and a little more about the game than they did.

A Hamilton paper says that the Tigers will never again stand for Biddy Barr as referee. And pray, why not? Did he refuse to give the striped ones the earth with a glittering lawn "surround" about it, or did he prevent the jungle people from using their noted innocent appearing, but nevertheless unruly, interference? Barr has ever enjoyed a reputation for being a square, conscientious referee, and one who understands the game, and it comes in poor part from the Blufftown scribes to try and besmirch his reputation. Both the Tigers and the Cubs have a habit of working outside plays, and "Biddy" is to be commended for getting "next" to the parent wild ones in Saturday's game.

"How is it?" asked the sporting editor of the football statistician, who had just completed the work of tabulating the salient points in Saturday's reports.

"Well, as near as I can figure," answered the statistician, "the collar bones are quite up to the average, but we are shy on legs. Compared with the record for the corresponding period last year there is a shortage of 13.2-3 per cent in that column."

"The spines seem to be holding their own and the jaws are running slightly ahead of the ticket. The eyes seem to have it over last year, but there are not so many ears."

"How about the fatalities?"

"Not much doing up to now, but there are three likely cases of concussion of the brain in Ohio and two fractured skulls in Virginia that may pay out all right. There are six cases of acute indigestion in Pennsylvania, but they are traceable to the training table."

"Shall throw up another column for that? No? Well, you're the boss," Chicago Record-Herald.

T. H. Murnane, of the Boston Globe, says that he returned east with Walsh, the White Sox pitcher, after the world's championship series. He said that Walsh was still sore over the deal he received from Umpire Johnstone in the second game that he pitched. Walsh had his heart in his work when he heard Johnstone remark, "Cut out that rubbing of the ball in the dirt, as you will have to do it next year." Walsh replied: "Please let next year take care of itself." "Perhaps you won't be here next year," answered Johnstone. Then Walsh threw a slow curve, saying: "I doubt if you will." This little conversation was going on while the crowd held their breath with anticipation of the next move.

Had the Argos supporters had any confidence in their team they might have cleaned up a little money, but as it was there was very little betting and what money was bet remained in Toronto. The supporters of the yellow and black took down a cartload of money which they were willing to wager at even money that the Tigers would win by a margin of ten points. They were willing to give any kind of odds that the Tigers would win or to bet even triple the score. No sort of a proposition, however, would induce the more than $300 was bet on the game. Even at half-time, when their team had a nice lead and was playing quite as strong a game as the Tigers, the Argonaut supporters refused to bet—Hamilton Spectator.

There are any number of "sure thing" bettors in the country. The Blufftown sports had good reason to feel confident that the Tigers would win by a comfortable margin; and when it is considered that the Tigers have won the O. R. F. U. championship for four years in succession, including this year, it is small wonder that the gents with the checked semi-readies were willing to bet their feet-coverings on the result. Had the Hamilton bunch been placed in the same position as the Toronto crowd, there might have been more welching and attacks of cold-feet than there were.

One deplorable feature of Saturday's big game was the stone-throwing, in which some of the lakeside roughs indulged, with the Tigers as targets. Du Moulin is said to have been struck on the nose with one of the missiles and painfully injured. Nothing tends to injure good sport more than soreheadedness, and while the "real" sports of Toronto were doubtless not to blame for the outrage, it behooves the authorities of the Queen City to prevent the perpetration of such an outrage on similar occasions in the future.

It is generally the "tin-horn" gambler who howls loudest and loudest, when he loses 50 or 60 cents. The true sport will conceal his feelings, even if at heart he be sore.

SHOW COMMISSION IS A HUGE TRUST

Callahan Wants Inquiry Into Big Baseball Organization's Affairs.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—The first step was taken Saturday in an attack on the foundations of organized baseball, on the ground that it is a trust, by James J. Callahan, a former National and American League star, now owner of the Logan Square Club of this city, and leading promoter of an organization among local baseball clubs closely modeled after the structure which he seeks to destroy.

The entering wedge of Callahan's campaign took the form of a suit filed in the superior court against the American League Baseball Club of Chicago for $2,000 damages against the south side club, based on an alleged breach of contract. But Attorney S. Hogan, counsel for Callahan, stated definitely the object of the suit is to produce in court evidence to show the national commission, which is the supreme trust of organized baseball, is a worse trust than even the Standard Oil Company is alleged to be.

"The trial of this case will show," said Attorney Hogan, "that the defendant club belongs to one of the greatest trusts ever conceived by the minds of men, and that it is more far-reaching and tyrannical in its rulings and actions than the Standard Oil Company, the beef trust, or the theatrical trust, and it affects every player in the National League or the American League in fact every baseball player in the United States and Canada who plays for a salary."

Mr. Hogan declared all professional ball players are "dominated" by the national commission, which at present is made up of Ban Johnson, of Chicago; Harry Pulliam, of New York, and Garry Herrmann, of Cincinnati.

"Should a player see fit to join an outside club, he is termed as an 'outlaw,' and not permitted to play in either the National or American Leagues."

The lawyer says Callahan was given a contract on March 1 last by the White Sox, but that he was not given a position. On Aug. 30 he was informed by another contract by Comiskey, who, according to Mr. Hogan, informed the pitcher to report for duty at Detroit on Sept. 15.

"On the arrival at Detroit," said the lawyer, "Callahan reported that he was ready to play, but was informed that he could not, as Ban Johnson would not permit it. This," he said, "was because Callahan had played baseball with other clubs in Chicago."

Hogan points out that his client also has in his suit that he was awarded his share of the $15,000 prize which Comiskey gave the White Sox players after their triumph over the Cubs in the world's championship series.

"I have no doubt the court will declare the national commission an unlawful trust and that its laws and agreements will be declared illegal, against public policy and in restraint of trade."

TIGERS ARE TO PLAY MONTREAL FOR DOMINION CHAMPIONSHIP

Nov. 17 Fixed as Date of First Game of Series—Winner to Play McGill.

Toronto, Nov. 5.—The Canadian Rugby Union has fixed upon Saturday, Nov. 17, as the provisional date for the first game for the Dominion senior championship.

The game will be played at Hamilton between the Tigers, champions of Ontario, and Montreal, champions of Quebec.

The winner of this match will play the intercollegiate champions on the latter's grounds. The prospects are now that McGill will win in the College Union, so that the final match for the championship will be played in Montreal on Nov. 24.

'Varsity's unexpected defeat at Ottawa on Saturday put a crimp in their chances again. They can get back in the running for the college honors by defeating McGill in Montreal on Saturday of this week, but the chances are against them.

The game at Hamilton on the 17th will be run by the Canadian Union. The Montreal team will get their expenses, and, after the expenses of the grounds are deducted, the receipts will be divided into three parts, one for each team, and the third for the union, but, in any case, the winner's share must not exceed $150. The game will be played under Canadian Rugby rules, which have been in vogue in Quebec this year.

Senior Rugby records are as follows:

ONTARIO UNION.

Argonauts 3 0 0 21 22
Peterboro 1 4 1 40 48

SPORTS ARE NOT ON THE DECLINE

SPORTS ARE NOT ON THE DECLINE

English Sporting Public Re-sent Reports From This Side of Pond.

New York, Nov. 4.—England's sporting public resents the reports from America to the effect that sports are on the decline over the ocean. They say there is no foundation for the talk that the fight game is dying out.

Watson, London's best sporting critic, has the following to say of conditions over there:

"If Philadelphia Jack O'Brien will come over here and fight Gunner Moir, plenty of money will be put up. The fact that O'Brien is their champion as a middleweight shows that the Americans are not particularly strong in heavyweights themselves. As regards their lightweights, Joe Gans is exceptional, but if Abe Attel cares I have no doubt a good purse could be supplied for a fight with Somers."

"When Owen Moran, our present bantamweight champion, went over to America, he beat two of their best men and could not get another match. Among our amateurs, Capt. Craven and Hopley, of Cambridge, hold their own against any heavyweights in the world, including Jim Jeffries. There is undoubtedly a scarcity of good professional heavyweights in this country, as there is in America."

"The form in boxing fluctuates just as in any other sport, and it is difficult to keep up a supply of Peter Jacksons, but to attribute it to the absence of big purses is, in my opinion, quite wrong."

Mr. Watson maintains that if sufficient good men to match against the best Americans could be found over here, there is as much money to be made for boxing as ever there was.

"It is not lack of encouragement that we are suffering from," he says, "it is lack of really good men, and particularly heavyweights. We have got a number of good featherweights, but we have not got a good moderate weight, and we have certainly not got a good heavyweight."

"The Americans have better men and their methods are better. The mental capacity of those who go in for boxing in America, moreover, is far superior to that of men who, as a rule, are to be seen in the ring in this country. Americans are more brainy, more scientific, and they are better educated. There was a time when English boxers could figure prominently in ringcraft, but depend to a very large extent on brute strength, and while this may succeed up to a certain point it is not sufficient to withstand a combination of strength and science."

JOHNSON AGREES TO FIGHT O'BRIEN

Prospects Are Good for Bout Between Two in December Moir After O'Brien.

New York, Nov. 5.—Win or lose in the battle with Tommy Burns at Los Angeles on Thanksgiving Day, it is an even wager that Jack O'Brien's next opponent will be Jack Johnson. This comes from Jack's closest Philadelphia friend, a man who has been connected with him at different times, and who generally has pretty good information on the movements of the clever Quaker.

Negotiations are under way at present, with good prospects of the match being consummated. If the men do come together it should prove one of the most interesting and scientific bouts ever held in this country between big men. The idea is to have O'Brien and Johnson box six rounds in Philadelphia some time in December, and there isn't a building in that city large enough to accommodate the crowd that would turn out at top prices. Johnston, through his manager, Sam Fitzpatrick, has accepted, and the promoters say they are reasonably sure that O'Brien will agree to the proposition.

In fact it was O'Brien's close friend who first suggested the match. Properly worked up, and with a suitable arena, the bout would likely draw as much as did the McGovern-Nelson contest, and when it is remembered that the latter affair drew over $20,000 at the gate, it can be seen that the easterners will pay the money if you give them what they want. Barring a bout in which Jeffries was a contestant, it is extremely doubtful if any match between heavyweights could be arranged that could command more attention or draw more money.

MONROE AND HART MATCHED.

New York, Nov. 5.—Jack Munroe, who whipped Al Limerick at the old Criterion Club, and Tom Sharkey, at Philadelphia, and Marvin Hart will meet in a heavy-weight bout probably the last part of this month or early next month. The miner has been getting in condition for several weeks at the Thompson Islands Hotel, while Hart has been training for some weeks getting ready for the bout with Mike Schreck.

GUNNER MOIR AFTER O'BRIEN.

London, Nov. 5.—Gunner Moir, the English heavy-weight, who recently defeated Palmer for the championship of England, is after the scalp of Philadelphia Jack O'Brien. Moir says that if O'Brien beats Tommy Burns at Thanksgiving Day, which he considers very probable, he will then try to make the Philadelphia fight him, either in this country or the States.

BIGGER THAN DREADNAUGHT

U. S. Navy Will Attempt to Surpass the British Monster.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—Either of the plans submitted by the bureau of construction and repair for the new battleship which is to be constructed if carried out, will give the navy of the United States the most powerful battleship in the world, according to those who know what the plans are.

The plans, together with others submitted by outsiders, are now under consideration by a special board appointed by Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte. One plan provides for a vessel of exactly 20,000 tons displacement, and the other for a floating fort of 20,500 tons displacement.

Either plan, it is confidently expected will give to the American navy a warship far more powerful than the famous English Dreadnaught, which has started all governments to rush the construction of huge ships.

The Dreadnaught carries ten 12-inch guns, while its secondary battery is inconsiderable. One of the plans for the new American ship provides for ten 12-inch guns and the other for twelve 12-inch guns. This second plan would give an astounding battery strength in a broadside fire, the most important consideration of twelve 12-inch guns. The battery could be made possible by virtue of a new arrangement of turrets.

In the plans for the 20,500 ton vessel there are twelve 12-inch guns in six turrets, all on the center line. Not all of the turrets, however, will be on the same deck, provision being made for the center turrets of the group to be 45 feet above the water line. The design also provides for sixteen 5-inch guns for torpedo defense. The battery to be protected by five inches of armor.

The most serious criticism of the designs for the ship is that none of the 5-inch guns can be fired astern, and only two command a fire over the bow. This would tend to make the vessel vulnerable to torpedo attack from the stern, and would make defense against a torpedo attack straight ahead difficult.

It is expected that the plans for the 20,500 ton ship will be adopted by the department. Altogether the board which has been appointed by Mr. Bonaparte has seven designs to consider. The one considered most desirable will be sent to congress by the navy department in accordance with the resolution of last session providing for the construction of a big battleship, but not before congress was given an opportunity to see the plans.

Mariner, poet, and scientist, Capt. C. A. M. Taber, of Wakefield, Mass., has forsaken the ocean and settled down to the production of several volumes of verse and the publication of a number of articles on the question of climatic changes due to the influence of the ocean currents and winds.

Jim McDougall Becomes Permanent Owner of Ward Trophy, Winning It Twice.

The fall lawn bowling tournament of the London Rowing Club has been concluded. The match which created the greatest amount of interest, possibly, was the handicap singles, for the trophy offered by Mr. C. H. Ward, jeweler. The prize was won by James S. McDougall, who defeated John Leach in the final game by the score of 21 to 16. Having captured the trophy in 1904, "Jesse" now becomes permanent owner of it.

No small interest centered in the Scotch doubles, which were won by Messrs. McVicar and Udy, who were pitted against Hayward and Vining in the final, and defeated them by two shots. The scores, the figure in parentheses being the handicap allowed the player:

G.T.R. LOSES IN PRIVY COUNCIL

Law Passed by Canada Regarding Death Claims of Employees Not Ultra Vires.

London, Nov. 6.—Judgment was given by the privy council yesterday in the case of the Grand Trunk vs. the Attorney-General of the Dominion. Lord Dunsedin, in delivering the judgment, said: "The true question of the present case does not seem to turn upon the question whether this law deals with a civil right, but whether the law is truly ancillary to railway legislation. In the factum the appellants, inter alia, set forth that the law in question might prove very injurious to the proper maintenance and operation of the railway. It would tend to negligence on the part of the employees, and other results of an injurious character to the public service and safety of the travelling public would necessarily result from such a far-reaching statute."

This argument, in their lordships' opinion, is really conclusive against the appellants. Of the merits of the policy their lordships cannot be judges, but if the appellants' factum properly describes its scope, then it is indeed the policy of the law to be ancillary to thorough railway legislation.

The appeal was dismissed, but with no order as to costs.

In this suit the Grand Trunk endeavored to annul, as ultra vires, a law passed by the Dominion, making the railways of Canada liable to damages for the death through their negligence of employees, even though the employees had agreed, in connection with a railway pension fund, to waive such claims. The supreme court of Canada decided against the G. T. R. and the privy council has agreed. Evidently expecting such a decision, the G. T. R. recently set about a reorganization of their superannuation fund.

COUNCILOR FOR TWO-YEAR TERM

Plant was in the council. It's out of date.

"It's quite immaterial to me what is done," Ald. Matthews declared when seen by The Advertiser. "I can't say what I will do when it comes to a vote."

"I am opposed to the scheme," Ald. Gillen said emphatically. "If a man who is of no use gets on the council board, the people should have a chance to remove him at once, and should not be compelled to wait two years. I shall vote against the motion."

"It is a problem as to which way the scheme would work," Ald. Greenlee told the reporter. "If good men are brought out and elected, it will be to the city's interests to keep them as long as possible. If they are not, then the city will be in a bad way if it cannot unload them for two years. I have not given the matter sufficient thought to say which way I will vote on the motion."

"I will vote for the motion and give the scheme a trial," was Ald. Booth's answer. "It seems to me that a man needs to be a year in the council to understand what he is doing when he is transacting the city's business."

"It would be a bad thing to elect men for two years to the council," Ald. Forristal said. "It would be going back. If you elected bad men, they would be on the board for two years and might laugh at the electors."

HAS MUCH TO DO

The Children's Aid Society Caring for Many Little Ones.

The Children's Aid Society held a well-attended meeting in the city hall yesterday afternoon, the president, Sheriff Cameron, occupying the chair.

The entertainment committee reported to the board that arrangements for the production of the children's spectacular play "When the Toys Awake" were well under way. The play is to be given in the Grand Opera House for the benefit of the Children's Aid Society and the Alma Daughters on the 23rd and 24th of November, and the promoters and committees having the matter in hand are working hard to secure its success.

The finance committee reported that Miss Punched is collecting the regular and soliciting new subscriptions for the society, and the society's friends are asked to contribute as liberally as possible to this worthy cause, as its funds badly need replenishing.

The inspector's report was, as usual, an evidence of the good and practical work which the society is doing for the neglected and dependent children of the community. He had dealt with a large number of new cases during October, besides visiting several of the society's wards in foster homes.

At present the society has 23 children in the Shelter Home in South London, and four under the care of the Sisters of Mount St. Joseph. Since the last meeting six children had been placed on trial in foster homes.

AN EARLY AND SEVERE WINTER, SAYS MR. THOMAS MARTINDALE

Actions of Wild Animals Indicate It—Beavers Working Hard.

Mr. Thomas Martindale, of Philadelphia, the famous London old boy, has been on his annual deer hunt in northern Maine, and sends the following to the Philadelphia North American: "About Nov. 1, 1906, the North American printed some observations which I had made during my annual hunting trip up here. I then ventured the prediction that we would have a late and a very mild winter. I need not advert to the fact that the winter was really the mildest for very many years back. "It may be interesting to note the differences which I perceive between the conditions existing now and those of one year ago this very day. "We have a colony of beavers on our lake that work as industriously as these busy animals can do anywhere under the most favorable environment, and the work they are now doing, and have done already this fall, in preparation for the coming winter, is amazing. "Last year they had not started with the building of their house, nor had they commenced to build their dam. They had cut down some alders, but no large pieces of wood, from the bark of which they obtain their winter's sustenance. "Now, a splendid dam is very nearly completed, having a fall of nearly three feet, and several cedar trees are all but cut through at their base by the sharp teeth of these wonderful engineers. With these cedars they are apparently going to raise the dam still higher by anchoring the trees on the crest of the present structure. They are now busily at work building their house as well. "Muskrats Working Hard. "The muskrats last year were building a house upon a little wharf which we use for a canoe landing, and which is only some eight inches above the water, showing that they did not anticipate any great rise in the water during the coming winter. Some of the houses they are now building are over two feet above the water, and yet they are still working upon them. "The wild ducks, snipe, loons, dipper, as well as the birds of the woods, were still here when we left in 1905. On the 15th of this month the wild ducks were massed together in great flocks, pruning their feathers for their coming southern flight, and the very next day, shortly after sunrise, with a mighty rush of swift wings, they circled high in the air and left the lake heading due south. "Last year the swamps were dry, and it's an old saying that winter never really comes until the swamps are filled with water, but, lo, and behold! the swamps are even now full and running over. "Out of hundreds of deer which we saw two months ago, perhaps not over a half dozen were in their dark winter suits. This year every deer that we have seen is sleek, glossy and fat, and wearing its beautifully gray winter coat. Perhaps the question of food has more to do with the deer's condition than the mantle of prophecy and do not predict an early winter and a severe one."

M'GILL IN COURT

Clerk Testifies That Current Loans Were Really Stock Accounts.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, Nov. 6.—Charles McGill, late general manager of the Ontario Bank, did not plead when the preliminary inquiry into the charge against him was begun before Magistrate Denison this morning. His counsel, E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., proposed that a formal plea of not guilty be entered, and the course was followed.

President Cockburn pleaded not guilty, but did not elect, and will appear next Tuesday. The principal witness against McGill was Walter R. Chenaworth, formerly stock transfer clerk at the head office.

Chenaworth explained the method of making up the monthly Government returns. He took the court through account after account which was charged as current loans, but which were in reality stock accounts with New York brokers. These accounts appeared as assets, some of them year after year. The transferring of the accounts was done under instructions from Charles McGill. Last September an amount of $16,000, representing these accounts, was written off on instructions from the manager. Chenaworth took McGill's instructions without question and could not tell the court how the moneys going to New York were disposed of, nor who got the benefit from them.

MISSING ON MICHIGAN

Fisherman Put Out in Open Gasoline Launch and May Have Perished.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 6.—Three fishermen, Louis Wright, William Thornton, and a man whose name could not be learned, who left Michigan City, Ind., on Saturday in an open gasoline launch, are believed to have been drowned. They were on their way to Chicago, giving the boat a test trip. They carried but little food, as they expected to make the trip in a short time. When they failed to reach here the life-saving crews at South Chicago, Michigan City and St. Joseph, Mich., were notified. After an unsuccessful search, all hope of finding the missing fisherman was abandoned last night. It is now believed that the boat was swamped by the heavy seas after the fuel had been exhausted.

"I enjoy no privileges now, but if anybody else gets something, I want the same."

FOUND BABY ON THE DOORSTEP

Wrapped snugly in a fine woollen shawl a two weeks old baby girl was found on the doorstep of a prominent resident of Dufferin avenue at 7:30 last evening. The find was reported to the police, and the baby was sent to the Salvation Army Shelter Home, where young or old, those who stand in need, always find a haven.

The discovery was made when a member of the household was about to go down town. As he opened the door and stepped out, he stumbled over something. Somewhat astonished, he peered downward and in the light which streamed from the doorway saw a basket.

The basket was brought into the house, and there the baby was discovered, sleeping peacefully in its little bed of wickerwork.

All through the investigation which was held in the family on whose doorstep the baby was found and later by the police, the child slept soundly, all unconscious of its desertion and the problem which faced the finders.

The police so far have been unable to locate the mother, but it is understood they have a clue which is being followed up.

The basket was a new elm one, with a hickory handle. It undoubtedly had been purchased for the purpose of peddling the baby.

At the Rescue Home the little one was carefully looked after.

"It's the sweetest little thing in the world," said the matron to The Advertiser this morning. "It makes no trouble and is as good as good can be."

SIMPLE AND EFFECTIVE

Here is a simple and effective remedy for coughs and colds: Mix a half ounce of the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) with two ounces of glycerine and a half pint of good whiskey. Shake well and take in teaspoon doses every four hours. This formula is said to be very effective, being the prescription of an eminent specialist in the cure of consumption. It will break up a cold in 24 hours and cure any cough that is curable.

The ingredients for the prescription can be found at any good drug store, but care should be taken that only the pure Virgin Oil of Pine should be used. This is put up only in half-ounce vials for dispensing, securely sealed in a round wooden case with engraved wrapper, having the name "Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)" plainly printed thereon.

The cheaper oils that are sold in bulk only create nausea and have no effect whatever upon the bronchial tubes.

During a period of over six months the customs employees at the various barriers of Paris saw two men pass before their offices carrying a very fine funeral wreath. Naturally they never asked for duty on such an article as that. The wreath contained nearly 40 quarts of alcohol. The smugglers took every precaution against discovery, never passing through the same barrier twice running, but the trick was discovered at last by an inquisitive officer.

ALD. SCARLETT IN CIVIC PUDDLE

Was Taken Into Council Last Night—Debating Society Attends.

Ald. Scarlett last night took his seat at the council board and he took part in the voting of the evening.

Ald. Garratt introduced Ald. Scarlett, remarking that "the citizens now have a gentleman to take Ald. Wyatt's place."

The mayor said some nice things of the new alderman, and the latter made a brief speech in reply.

Ald. Garratt moved that Ald. Scarlett be placed on No. 2 committee and be made chairman of the manufacturers' committee in Mr. Wyatt's place.

Ald. Saunders seconded.

Ald. Scarlett asked to be placed on a committee where he would be of use on Friday nights, as he will not be in the city on Thursday nights, or nights earlier in the week.

Ald. Armstrong moved that in view of what Ald. Scarlett had said, Ald. Cooper should be placed on No. 2, and Ald. Scarlett on No. 1. Ald. Gillen seconded.

Ald. Garratt stated that Ald. Cooper did not want to go on No. 2.

Ald. Cooper, however, signified his willingness to change places with Ald. Scarlett.

Sooner than create any trouble, Ald. Scarlett said he would act on No. 2.

By a vote of 6 to 3 it was decided to place Ald. Scarlett on No. 2.

Points On Debating.
In the south ante-room were a number of young girls and youths who belong to a local debating society, and who were present to get pointers on parliamentary procedure and debating.

For the most part the aldermen put up a pretty fair sample of civic dignity, but one alderman waxed eloquent and in the heat of his argument said "d—n—"

The mayor, fearing the effect of the word upon the young, promptly squelched Ald. Garratt, the offender, who at once apologized, and resumed the debate with increased fervor.

Wrapped snugly in a fine woollen shawl a two weeks old baby girl was found on the doorstep of a prominent resident of Dufferin avenue at 7:30 last evening. The find was reported to the police, and the baby was sent to the Salvation Army Shelter Home, where young or old, those who stand in need, always find a haven.

The discovery was made when a member of the household was about to go down town. As he opened the door and stepped out, he stumbled over something. Somewhat astonished, he peered downward and in the light which streamed from the doorway saw a basket.

The basket was brought into the house, and there the baby was discovered, sleeping peacefully in its little bed of wickerwork.

All through the investigation which was held in the family on whose doorstep the baby was found and later by the police, the child slept soundly, all unconscious of its desertion and the problem which faced the finders.

The police so far have been unable to locate the mother, but it is understood they have a clue which is being followed up.

The basket was a new elm one, with a hickory handle. It undoubtedly had been purchased for the purpose of peddling the baby.

ANALYZING BOOK OF ECCLESIASTES

Prof. Moulton Gives the Final Lecture of His Most Interesting Course.

Prof. R. G. Moulton delivered the last of his series of lectures in this city last night in St. Andrew's Church lecture hall, before a large and highly appreciative audience. The lecturer gave a splendid analysis of "The Book of Ecclesiastes." Among other points brought out by Dr. Moulton were the following:

The Book of Ecclesiastes has the reputation of being mysterious; this is in part due to the tradition that Solomon was the author, and therefore people allow the personality of Solomon to stand between them and the book. The authorship of Ecclesiastes is a very peculiar problem. On one side we find that all the evidence obtainable is against the theory that Solomon was the author, while on the other hand, the book itself claims him as its writer.

The only correct way to treat the Book of Ecclesiastes is from a literary standpoint—to analyze it according to its literary construction. In so doing, we find that the book is constructed from five distinct essays, separated by wise sayings.

The first part of the book we find to be full of Solomon, and at first reading it appears that Solomon must have written it. But when we consider the work holds in the evolution of philosophy—not its position in chronology, for chronology is of little use in the study of any literature. We find that the great scholars of the past have claimed that Ecclesiastes was written at different times covering eight hundred years.

In the first essay we find Solomon's first experiment. He tries all the lives which men live—both lives of pleasure and lives of wisdom—to see if any of them yield satisfaction. He then considers the life of wisdom, and finds that death treats the wise man and the fool alike. The life of enterprise is then treated. He pictures a man building a colossal fortune, and finds that there is as much satisfaction in amassing riches as in consuming them. After a man has built up a great business or amassed a great fortune, he never knows but that it will be squandered in riotous living by those who come after him. He then says that there is nothing better than for man to eat, drink, and enjoy life.

Speaking of the literal meaning of some of the phrases in Ecclesiastes, Prof. Moulton said that it was necessary to understand the correct way of such phrases as "under the sun," which simply means, emphatically, the actual and practical; "it is in my heart," which means sudden change of thought, and "eat and drink," which is the formula for appreciation, and never should be taken in its literal meaning. Solomon has reviewed three lives, and the thought occurs that it may be that all three lives together would yield satisfaction. He then finds that the power to enjoy the good things of this world comes from God.

The third essay treats on the variety of desire. We find in it two comparison pictures; one is of a man to whom God has given all that is good in this world, but has not given him power to enjoy these good things; the other picture is that of a man who has all the good things, and the power to enjoy them.

The fourth essay contains the thought that although we cannot attain perfect wisdom, it is a good thing for us to come as near to it as possible.

The fifth essay brings out the thought that although we are, to enjoy life, yet our pleasures are responsible pleasures, for we will have to meet the judgment of God. The enjoyment and the worship of God are placed on the same footing.

APDALE'S ANIMALS

Are the Feature Act of a Good Bill at Bennett's.

Bennett's Vaudeville boasts of a splendid bill this week. Manager Alois has reason to reckon on crowded houses every matinee and night.

There are bears, dogs, monkeys and a South American ant eater with a nose which ought to be good for news, if it isn't.

The bears are in a class by themselves. One smooth, brown bruin rides a tricycle, takes the stage and thrums strings of a banjo as he rides. All the other animals, including the ant eater, perform wonderful tricks.

A very clever sketch is presented by Milton and Dolly Noble. It is entitled "Whisky Walker Reformed," and it bristles with witty lines and laughable situations. It is well acted, too.

In fact, Milton Noble impersonates a man with a jag so effectively that the spectator is forced to believe that at some time in the actor's life he rehearsed the part with a realism which gave intense satisfaction to himself.

No man could get through that party in such a brilliant manner without having handled a package for himself at some time or other.

TREES IN A TOMB.

Near the newly-made grave of Alfred Bell, in Twin churchyard, is the most curious tomb in England. In it is buried Lady Anne Grimston, daughter of the Earl of Thanet, who died nearly two centuries ago. Upon her deathbed she refused spiritual comfort. An atheist she had lived, an atheist she would die.

It is as likely that I should rise again from the dead," she said, "as that a tree should grow out of the middle of my coffin." A tree has grown out of the middle of her coffin—an oak—and by its side a sycamore. The vault is square of brick and granite. The two trees are filled the interior before they could find a way out. When they did burst through the masonry they so spread as to completely envelop the grave.—Boston Herald.

MOTHER OF GOLF.

Scotland refuses lightly to abandon her claim as the mother of golf. A hot dispute has lately been raging in the professional press regarding the origin of the game, and there have been Scots' unparliamentary enough to suggest that the Roman game of cambuca was merely a form of golf, and that the Dutch "kolf" shows that Scotland cannot claim a monopoly. But a way out has been found. The theory is advanced that the game is the result of the habit of swinging itself, there is yet something which differentiates the modern form from the old, and that that something—the putting out process—was invented by the Scots.

"Scotland," says the discoverer of the new theory, "which has the credit of developing golf till the world has come to look upon it as worthy of universal adoption, has also the credit of giving to it three of its features which it has never wholly lost." The Scotsman, turning a friendly ear to the flattering tale tells it Scot one day with his club hit a pebble across a brook, raising a comrade to emulation—and thus was golf invented.—London Chronicle.

TO PREVENT IT BETTER THAN TO REPENT.—A little medicine in the shape of the water pills which are known as Farmlee's Vegetable Pills, administered at the proper time and with the directions adhered to, often prevent a serious attack of sickness and save many a would-be doctor. In all irregularities of the digestive organs they are an invaluable corrective, and by cleansing the blood they clear the skin of imperfections.

Beecham Tree, whose production of "A Winter's Tale," is the first important one of London's theatrical season, says he likes to present Shakespeare's plays for a variety of reasons. "But I need not mention only one reason," he adds whimsically. "At rehearsals, you know, there are no interruptions from the author." Mr. Tree is recognized as the greatest living master of make-up.
