without any great inconvenience, and the attempt to charge pasturage for a scouple of lambs at a rate such as a horse only would fairly be charged, was not tenable, even if there had been an agreement to pay it, which the plaintiffs did not do nor reasonably scontemplate. Considerable interest was manifested in the case by the "Knights of the Cleaver" and other large-hearted citizens, who turned out in gallant style to witness the delivery of the innocent lambs to their lawfif owners by Bailiff Hemstreet. This worthy official performed his important duties on this occasion in his usual smiling manner, amidst the cheers of the bystanders. In response to the casual enquiry of some of the spectators as to the price of spring lamb in his neighborhood, he admitted it was rather on the rise in Eramosa when replevin suits were necessary to get possession of the choicest animals. Holloway's Pills and Ointment exert a rapidly favorable effect in all those diseases which are induced by exposure to damp or by great changes in temperature. They will therefore be found eminently serviceable to those who work in iron foundries, copper mines and collieries. These well-known remedies present manifest advantages in respect of use and effectiveness, being entirely compounded of vegetable drugs selected with the greatest care and regardless of price When used in accordance with the ample printed directions which accompany them, they act surely but middly, and do not interfere with the daily work. There are but few diseases which are not capable of cure—or, at all events, of great relief—if Holloway's remedies are perseveringly used.

"The Bishops of Ireland can no longer keep silent in the presence of the engrossing question which touches, not Ireland and England alone, but every—spot where Irishmen have formed homes. The question is, Who in the future is to be the leader of the Irish people, or rather who is not to be their leader? Without hestation oridoubt, and in the plainest possible terms, we give it as our unanimous, indement that, whoever else is fitted to fill that highly responsible position, in Mr. Parnell is decidedly not. As the pastors of a Catholic nation we do not base this, our judgment and solemn decircumstances as revealed in a London divorce court. After the verdict diven in court, we cannot regard Mr. Parnell in any other light than as a man convicted of one of the gravest offences known to religious society. Aggravated, as it is in his case, by an almost every circumstance that could possibly attach to it so as to trive and purity class socialitie, with not accept as its leader a man thus?

HAMILTON, Dec. 4. — Constable Springsteed, of Stoney Creek, brought an interesting prisoner into the city this morning. The man in custody was none other than the long-haired recluse, who has been living in the woods of Saltfleet for some time. It is about 60 years old. He has about two feet of matted grey hair and a long beard growing thickly on his face. His only shelter in the woods was composed of the trunks of trees put together like an inverted V and a lot of brushwood thrown over. He was clad in clothing that he had begged from time to time. When taken before the magistrate he admitted that he depended for his living upon what he could get by begging. He talked little about himself, but was quite willing to sing and dance. He has lived in the wilds for many years. The magistrate sent him to jail for five months.

Our stock of Carpets for this serson is undoubtedly the Fargest and Completest ever shown by us for the Fall Trade. We are cruff fied at the success which has attended our selections and display of goods in this Department. Year after year onr Carpet purchases have grown larger and larger—the doings of one season never being high enough mark for the next—until we now carry a stock of these goods which is equalleb by not many firms in Ontario for variety, taste, and excellent value for the money.

You may not have had occasion this season to inspect what we are showing in Carpets and similar goods, and so are perhaps not aware at what a moderate cost we are prepared to carpet your rooms with handsome, stylish and dnrable Carpet. We shall be glad to see you in our Carpet Room, regardless of whether you wish to buy or not; and we can show you goods in this department that it will be a source of pleasure and profit for you to see.

In selecting our Carpets we do not forget the Carpet Covers. We carry full lines of Floor and Stair Linen, Crumb Cloths and Art Squares, Rugs, Mattings, etc., as well as Linoleums and Oil Cloths in great variety.

OVERCOATS! OVERCOATS!

For Men and Boys

A magnificent assortment, including all grades. We can meet any demand and supply any want in this line. Our Overcoat Stock is in every way so desirable, our prices so extremely low, that you should make a special effort to see our fine stock at the earliest moment, and while yet unbroken. The man or boy who gets an Overcoat from us, gets a Bar! GAIN. We guarantee Styles to be the Latest, and Goods the Best.

With an eye for your future patronage, we make the price on what you purchase to-day at figures as close as honest goods can be sold for. The merchant who charges the top price for an article, takes your money and smilingly bows you out—with the invitation to call again—may flatter himself that he is on the highway to success, but we are of the opinion that the firm who sell at the lowest possible living prices will, opinion that the firm who sell at the lowest possible living prices will, slowly, perhaps, but surely, gain the confidence and steady patronage of the people. These are our principles, and we practice what we preach. We shall be pleased to make all visitors a uniform low price on our New and Elegant Goods, and feel confident you will find the saying sufficient inducement to all confidence and services. inducement to call again.

Don't forget that in Gents' Furnishings we allow no competition. Extra inducements in prices and quality in this line. Heavy Winter Underwear and other seasonable goods now in. Very low rates.

WHOSE WAS THE HAND?

By Miss M. E. Braddon.

"Is she? Let her help me to make a fortune then, and she shall be my queen. I only want a little capital to carry on experiments which must result in a mine of wealth—yee, as big a gold mine as old Perez has made for himself on the Bourse, and a more glorious fortune; for it will bring fame with it, the fame of the inventor. Tell her that I must have the money, Louise, or something desperate will come of her refusal to help me. I have tided over a month since I asked her for a loan, but I can not go on much longer. I am deeply in debt, and all the most precious things in my laboratory will be seized by my creditors, and that will mean utter ruin. Tell her she must help me—tell her when you are alone with her. Leave the old harpy, my aunt, out of the discussion. I know Dolores will find me the money if she is left to her own inclination." CHAPTER XV-Continued.

money if she is left to her own inclination."

"I will have nothing to do with you; and I only hope that Dolores will be wise enough to refuse you any further help. She must know that you have lied to her about your schemes and experiments. your speculations, and wild dreams of wealth, not once, but many times. She must know that you have been leading an idle, profligate life in the very worst company in Paris, while you were pretending to be a genius and an inventor and to live only for science. She does not know as much about you as I do; but she must know that you are false to the core; she must know that you are false to the tore; she must know that you are false to the tore; she must know that you are false to the tore; she must know that you are false to the tore; she must know that you are false to the core; she must know that you are false to the core; she must know that you have traded upon her love for you, and will go on trading upon it to the end; that there is no baseness, no depth of shame, to which you will not stoop to gain your own have oud. She does not know what baseness, no depth of shame, to which you will not stoop to gain your own base ends. She does not know what I know, that you are as cruel as you are mean and false."

The livid pallor of her hollow cheeks was intensified by the burning heetic spot which glowed like a live coal on each, and gave an added lastic to the gleaming eyes—eyes that had grown too large for the pinched and haggared face.

reaming eyes—eyes that had grown too large for the pinched and haggar-ed face.

"Sacrebleut" oried Duverdier, "you are usually possessed by a dumb devil, but when you do talk, by Heaven, it is a torrent, No matter, I am not generally in need of an intermediary with a pretty woman, and I have no doubt I shall be able to come to an understanding with Dolores before long."

This conversation took place in the morning. Gilbert Florestan called in the Rue St. Guillaume on the following evening! He found Duverdier established in a fauteuil beside the sofa on which Dolores was sitting, looking very lovely in a flowing tea-gown of palest pink silk, which set off at once the grace of her supple, slender figure, and a pendant and bracelet of magnificent sapphires. Florestan had never seen her wear these gems until tonight; and he guessed that they were a recent gift from her mysterious protector.

night; and he guessed that they were a recent gift from her mysterious protector.

He pitied her all the more when he saw these new tokens of, her slavery, for the wearer's eyes had a look of profound sadness, while the mother's hard and cruel face was radiant with recent triumph. Louise Marcet was not in the salon. He and Duverdier were the only visitors, and he had a perfect consciousness that he was not wanted by any one except Mme. Quijada, who received him with marked empressement, and begged him to stop till eleven o'clock.

"I fear my salon is the dullest in all Paris," she said, "but you must remember that we are exiles, and have lived in the strictest retirement ever since we left Madrid."

Florestan protested that there was nothing he preferred to a small and quiet circle; society in which conversation really meant the interchange of thoughts. He talked of Madrid, a city in which he had spent three years of his diplomatic career, and although Mme. Quijada fenced with his questions with supreme ability, it was obvious to him that her knowledge of the Spanish capital was superficial, and that she could not have occupied a good social position in any part of Spain.

"If she ever lived in Madrid, she

"If she ever lived in Madrid, she

"If she ever lived in Madrid, she lived there as she lives in Paris, as an adventurer and an outcast, outside the pale," he told himself.

Her refinement he believed to be the thinnest veneer, laid on in later womanhood; her education was of the smallest, yet she contrived to discuss every subject that was mooted, political, social, or literary, with an aplomb which carried her further than the widest knowledge will carry a diffident conversationalist. Duverdier openly sneered at some of her observations, and provoked more than one vindictive glance from the southern eyes.

Dolores talked very little, and for the most part in confidential tones only meant to reach her cousin's ear.

Duverdier talked like a man who had seen the world of men and knew the world of books. All his ideas and theories belonging to the most advanced school. He looked forward to a millennium of science, a mil vanced school. He looked forward to a millennium of science, and lead to the willing slaves of men, and hard work, the sweat of the laborer's brow, should be ancient history, and when the governing powers of the world should be reduced to the lowest point, when armies and navies should have become a fradition of the Dark Ages, and poverty and starvation should seem as mychical as the rape of Proserpine or the birth o Minerva.

He spoke with a suppressed boast fulness of a certain invention of hi own which was fast approaching perfection, and which would revolution; the coal mines of France and arrange of the world, an application of electricity to the working of the mine and the carriage of the coal, which would minimize labor and achieve in less than a month the results which less than a month the results which now require a year.

Dolores listened with admiring looks and fullest faith in the speaker Mme. Quijada looked the disbelief and aversion which she may have feared to express in words. Florestan felt that the atmosphere was charged with electricity, and that the storm might hurst at any moment, yet he prolonged his visit till a few minutes after eleven, at which hour Duverdier made no sign of departure.

AND POULTRY TRADE

Return of Mr. John Sanders From England.

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—Mr. John Sanders, of Kemptville, who was sent to England a month ago to enquire into the prospects of building up an export trade in ponitry with the mother country, returned to-day. He was joined here by Dr. Ferguson, M. P., of Leeds and Grenville. Mr. Sanders is naturally anxious to have the result of the mission known to the public, but, as his report has not yet been presented to the Government, he was not at liberty to give any answer. He could say, howeyer, that the actual condition of things in England was most favorable for the establishment of a remunerative trade with England in aggs and poultry of good quality we can send will be welcomed. The prices obtainable will also pay shippers well. The egg trade with England in the past has been expired to England have proved most acceptable to the people. Before Mr. Sanders of him. AWFUL DEATH OF A LINEMAN, Smoking, Burning Body Lies for Ten Minutes on the Wires.

Ten Minutes on the Wires.

57. Louis, Dec. 3.—Albert Julius, a lineman, was instantly killed by an electric light wire in front of No. 372 Manchester road at 10.40 a. m. Julius was at work on a pole making a connection. He is thought to have mistaken a live wire for a dead one and took hold of it. In a flash the electric fluid had done its deadly work. Blue fismes two feet long darted from his hand. His body writhed like that of a snake. He groaned and then he fell into the network of wires below him. There the smoking, sizzling, burning body remained until Foreman James Boland climbed up and brought him down, fully ten minutes afterward. Julius was 23 years old, married, and had four children. He was an employe of the Missouri Electric Light Company.

A GIRL BURNED TO DEATH.

Her Clothing Caught Fire and She Leaped From an Upper Window.

New York, Dec. 4.—While all the members of the family were absent from the house Lena Doesch, 15. a domestic in the employ of Charles Samuels, No. 394 Bergen street, Brooklyn, accidentally set fire to her dress while raking the kitchen stove. She ran screaming through the rooms of the second story flat, and epening a rear window, jumped from it to the ground.

rear window, jumped from it to the ground.

Other occupants of the house, who heard the girl's screams, reached the Samuels' spartments in time to see her leap. Persons in the first flat saw leave descent and subdued the flames as the lay on the ground. An ambulance surgeon who was summoned found that the girl was terribly burned about the face, neck, arms and legs. She was unconscious. He hurried her to the Seney hospital, where she died soon after admission.

An Engineer Killed.

An Engineer Killed.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—The switchman at the Grand Trunk station at Lachine this morning mistook the western express for the Lachine suburban train and switched it onto the wharf line. Before the mistake was discovered the engine of the express train had jumped the wharf into the river. The cars, with the exception of the baggage car, which is hanging half way between the top of the wharf and the water, remained on the track. Engineer Joseph Boise was killed. The escape of the passengers on the train was miraculous. There was a blinding snowstorm at the time of the accident, and to this fact is attributed the switchman's error in sending the train eut on the wharf. The same cause prevented the engineer from discovering their whereabouts until too late to stop: The dead driver was a native of Sociland. He resided in this city, and whereabouts until too face to storthe dead driver was a native of Scotland. He resided in this city, and leaves a wife and six children. Among the passengers were George A. Birge, Hamilton; Robert Acheson and Mrs. Acheson, Stratford; James Stoddart and Miss Stoddart, Toronto; and Mr. Leonard, Quebec.

Broke His Wife's Arm

Broke His Wife's Arm.
TORONTO, Dec. 4.—James McFarlane, who lives in the rear of 435 Queen street west, went home last night the possessor of a large internal load of stimulant. He had not been long in the house when he began to evince dissatisfaction with the domestic arrangements. His wife did not take his remarks meekly and he proceeded to enforce his ideas with a chain. This was quickly broken over his wife's head, but not yet satisfied, McFarlane seized a stick of cordwood, and after a few strokes broke his wife's wrist. The police were notified by a neighbor, and arrested McFarlane, while the woman had to be taken to the hospital in the ambulance.
