The Greatest War Picture Ever Issued "THE GREAT SACRIFICE."

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

REMARKABLE TRIBUTES.

Her Majesty Queen Alexandra has been graciously pleased to write as follows:—"It is a lovely picture which must appeal to the feelings of the whole Nation."

His Eminence Cardinal Bourne.

"It is a picture full of meaning, and one that should bring consolation to many a sorrowing heart. I hope it will have a wide circulation. There could not be a more appropriate frontispiece than this to the wonderful Pastoral Letter by Cardinal Mercier, whose burning words were immediately brought back to my mind when my eyes fell on the picture of our crucified Lord with the stricken soldier at His feet."

The Bishop of Lehigh. "I think the picture of 'The Great Sacrifice' very beautiful and touching. It cannot fail to do good to those who see it and consider its meaning."

We beg to announce that we have obtained the selling rights in Newfoundland for this celebrated picture and that samples of the various styles are now on exhibition in our window. Orders may be booked at the following prices:—

"ECHOES of the Past; OR, The Recompense of Love!"

CHAPTER XX.

Consciously or unconsciously she was exerting the influence of sex, and consciously or unconsciously Clive was being drawn under its spell. A clock struck the hour; he started and looked at his watch.

"Lord Chesterleigh ought to have been here half an hour ago," he said. "How the time flies!"

"Father is not coming," she said, with anything but poignant regret. "I suppose we ought to be starting?"

Clive knew that if Lord Chesterleigh were not coming, they ought not to be just starting, but ought to have done so some hours ago; indeed, ought not to have come at all; but he nodded cheerfully and went out to tell John to put the horses to, and to help the man if necessary. The horses were not in the stable, the carriage was not in the yard, and John was not to be seen and did not come when Clive called him; but the landlady came to the back door and regarded Clive with some surprise.

"Were you calling for your man, sir?" she inquired. "He's gone."

"Gone! Gone where?" asked Clive.

"Gone back to London, sir," she replied. "He started a long while ago." She saw by Clive's face that something was amiss, though he instantly suppressed any show of surprise. "I gave him his tea early, because he said that you were going back by train and that he was to take the horses back to London at once."

"Ah, yes," said Clive casually. "What is the next train by the way?"

"I'll ask, sir," she said. "The porter is in the tap-room."

Clive returned to the parlor with a smile which he trusted would not appear false to Lady Edith.

"Your man misunderstood something that I said and has driven back to London; we shall have to return by the train," he said in a matter-of-fact tone. "I'm very sorry."

Lady Edith laughed—she would have preferred the drive home alone with him, but they might be alone in the railway carriage—and the laugh was still on her lips when the landlady came in, dropped a curtsy, and said:

"The last train has gone, sir; it went more than half an hour ago."

CHAPTER XXII.

The laugh died from Lady Edith's lips and she stared with dilated eyes at the woman, for suddenly, in a flash, she realized the situation. The landlady looked from one to the other with some distress.

"I'm very sorry, sir," she murmured. "If so be as you'd like to stay, I'd do my best to make you comfortable."

The blood burned in Lady Edith's face, then it died away as, pale to the lips, she rose to her feet. Clive was pale, too, and he said instantly, almost sternly:

"We must return to London and tonight, at once. Will you please get us a carriage, a fly, anything?"

The landlady began to see her mistake and nervously stammered an apology. Clive cut her short.

"Yes; yes! No matter! The carriage and fly!"

The woman almost broke down. "There isn't such a thing in the place, sir," she said. "We've no horse or carriage of any kind; there's nothing but a rough pony and cart, not fit—"

"Where can I get one?" Clive asked. "Pray, don't be alarmed. It was not your fault—it was mine—all mine. What is the nearest place?"

"You might get a fly at Hansford; that's nine upon three miles, if you go across the fields, sir. I'll send my boy to see if he can get one; but I'm not at all sure that he will. Oh, dear, dear! If I'd only known."

"I will go," said Clive; "the boy can show me the way."

He closed the door on the woman and forced a smile.

"What an awkward fix!" he said. "But I shall be sure to get some kind of carriage. Please don't be distressed."

"I am not," she said in a low voice. "But—but it is very late already; by the time you have got the fly and we have reached London, it will be—"

"I know," he said soothingly; "but I will explain to Lord Chesterleigh."

"My father?" she said, looking beyond him with a growing fear in her eyes. "He will understand; but the servants—the other people?"

Clive's heart smote him and he felt as if he could knock his head against the wall. And the worst of it was that he could find nothing to say that would set her fears at rest, nothing that would not be too hopelessly banal. He took up his hat as he heard the landlady's step in the passage.

"I do hope you will not be more distressed than you can help," he said. "I shall never forgive myself for my carelessness—I will be back as quickly as I can—please don't fret about it."

He took a step or two toward her; she had sunk into the chair again and with her hands tightly clasped in her lap was staring anxiously at the fire. No man with a heart in his bosom could refrain from pitying her. She seemed to Clive like a child, to be soothed, reassured. His hand went to her shoulder; but it fell to his side again before he touched her, and, without another word, he left the room quickly.

He and the boy reached Hansford to find a small village wrapt in slumber. With some difficulty Clive succeeded in knocking up the landlord of the inn and obtaining a ramshackle fly—it was, in fact, a vehicle which only resembled the ordinary fly in its antiquity and mustiness—and with still greater difficulty obtained a driver, and he and they returned to Palmer's Green.

Lady Edith was already dressed for the journey. She was calm but very pale, and, after a swift glance at Clive, her eyes avoided him. He borrowed some wraps and a rug from the landlady and made Lady Edith as comfortable as he could in the vehicle. At the last moment he got a glass of hot milk and insisted upon her drinking it. He wondered whether she would prefer that he should ride on the box; but, unable to decide, he took his seat beside her.

The night was as lovely as the day had been; and, under other circumstances, the drive would have been enjoyable enough. As it was, Clive saw that it was incumbent upon him to render it as little miserable as possible; and he tried to talk to her and divert her from dwelling on the embarrassing situation, and, after a time, her face lost its pallor and grew brighter; the fact was she could not be unhappy while she was by his side and so near, so very near, to him.

She said very little, but nestled amid her wraps, her eyes glancing at him now and again, and at times closing as if she were asleep; but she was not sleeping; she was asking herself what he would do when they reached town. Would he—as it is possible that a still greater happiness than that she was feeling might be born of this contretemps?

Clive was also asking himself, during the intervals in which she seemed to be sleeping, what course he should take. Had his carelessness compromised her? If so, his course was plain, his duty obvious. A vague doubt that was almost a dread assailed him, and yet with the doubt was mingled an intense pity for the woman he had placed in such an awkward predicament, whose good name he had so unwittingly imperiled.

They came within the wonderful lights of London, of which so much has been written and sung, and soon the shabby carriage rolled on the asphalt. Lady Edith woke or seemed to wake and, leaning forward, looked about her anxiously; then she suddenly drew back within the shelter of the hood; for, late as it was, carriages, returning from dinner or ball, were passing, and she might be seen and recognized by some of the occupants.

Clive directed the man to Grosvenor Square and presently they stopped at the house. He signed to her to wait, until he had rung the bell; and as the door opened he helped her out and paid and dismissed the man.

"You—you will come in and see father?" she faltered.

"Why, of course!" he responded, half-unconsciously pressing her arm within his.

Sara was standing in the doorway, and as they passed in, she closed it and, throwing her arms round Lady Edith, drew her to her.

"Oh, my dearie, my dearie!" she crooned. "You have nearly killed your Sara with fright! Where have you been—what has happened?"

As she spoke her dark eyes sought Clive's, and they did not glare angrily and reproachfully, but with a smile that had a touch of triumph in it. Clive could see by the movement of Lady Edith's shoulders that she was sobbing.

"Nothing has happened—no accident," he said. "The carriage came home without us and we lost the train. Your mistress is quite safe, but she is naturally very tired. I think she ought to go to her room at once. I will go to Lord Chesterleigh."

"His lordship is not at home, sahib," said Sara. "I will take my mistress up-stairs."

"Yes; yes! I will wait to hear how she is," said Clive.

He went into the dining-room. There, on the writing-table, lay Edith's letter and beside it a telegram addressed to Clive. He tore it open. It was from Lord Chesterleigh, saying that he was summoned to the sick bed of a relative, and asking Clive to break his sudden absence to Lady Edith, so that she might not be alarmed. The chapter of accidents was complete. He paced up and down the room. What should he do? Presently the door opened and Sara came in with her peculiar gliding step, salaamed and stood looking at him with a friendly, almost an approving, smile.

"My mistress is quite well; she will come down to the sahib presently," she said. "She is very tired, but she is not crying any longer. Why should she cry? Why should she be sorry? It is no matter that she is late, it is no matter that the servants know that she is out alone with Sahib Clive Harvey and that she came back alone with him at a very late hour."

She paused, the smile still on her face, but a certain look of inquiry, of expectancy and of veiled scrutiny was in her black eyes. She waited for Clive to make some response; but there were times when Mr. Clive Harvey could be as self-contained and as impassive as even Quilton; and he said nothing. Sara went on:

"My mistress is a little afraid of her father, the great sahib; she says a word or two as she lay in my arms just now; she thinks his lordship will be angry with her for being out so late and alone all by herself with you; but I soothe her fears, I tell her that that does not matter."

Again she paused, her eyes striving to pierce the mask under which Clive had thrown his face. She saw no shrinking there, no resentment of her freedom of speech, nothing but impassivity. But the fact was, Clive was scarcely listening to her, he was thinking of Lady Edith, of the course he should adopt. Sara's smile grew more fixed.

The Highest Candy-Compliment You Can Pay!

MOIR'S CHOCOLATES

"My mistress is very happy," she said in a slow, soft voice. "I have never seen her so happy since she was a child and lay on my bosom. She is like my own child, sahib, and when she is happy my heart rejoices, and when she grieves, my heart aches and grows hard, hard." She touched her heart sharply. "So I am very happy to-night, and I ask the sahib to be gracious and let his servant wish him a long life and every joy."

Clive nodded. "Thank you, Sara. Will you tell your mistress that I am still here and will be glad to see her, if she is not too tired?"

"Oh, she will not be too tired, sahib," said Sara, with a glittering smile.

She salaamed and left the room, but outside, the smile died from her face as if it had been wiped off, and her eyes flashed threateningly, as if she had been baffled by Clive's manner. Clive paced up and down the room, full of doubt, uncertainty, and a sense of trouble. He knew that there was only one thing for him to do. As he heard Lady Edith's step in the hall, he went, with a forced smile, to open the door for her.

Sara had thrown an elaborate, an exquisite tea-gown round her mistress, and in plain truth Lady Edith, with a faint blush in her face, her sapphire eyes glowing yet half-hidden, her perfectly shaped lips apart as if her heart were beating fast, was a vision of feminine loveliness at that moment.

Worst Foot Forward.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"I got the surprise of my life this summer," said the Authorman. "You know we had a lot of our guests at our summer camp when we asked them if they could swim they would a most always say, 'Oh, yes!' with the air of an Annette Kellerman or a Leo Handy. Then one day a young college girl my wife knows came down. 'Do you swim?' we asked, and she answered, 'A little.' I thought, 'I suppose that means she takes three or four strokes.' But when we went in she swam straight out to the middle of the lake with me. 'Do you call that a little?' I said. 'Oh, yes!' she answered; 'sometimes I'm going to really swim.' And she meant it. I tell you it made a deep impression on me."

Making The Best A Pleasant Surprise.

"It reminds me of something I read in a story the other day," said Molly; "it was about putting your worst foot forward. The girl in the story said that was better than putting your best foot forward, because then people knew the worst and the best was a pleasant surprise."

"There was a woman my mother used to marvel at because she never had the slightest trouble keeping her maids," contributed the cynic. "She said her only secret was that when she hired a maid she told her the disadvantages about the place and didn't say so much about the advantages, let her find them out when she came. I suppose that was the same theory."

They All Told About Their Homes.

"It's like a woman I met at a summer hotel once," said the Authorman's wife. "There were quite a crowd there who came from different suburbs of the city and we formed a little bridge club and planned to meet at each other's homes in the winter. All the women had been trying to make out that they lived in great style at home, managed to refer to the servants they kept, etc., etc., but there was one woman who never had a thing to say about her home."

"And hers turned out to be the loveliest of all," guessed Molly.

"You might let me tell it," complained the Authorman's wife, thus robbed of her climax. "Yes, it was all that taste and money both could make it, and of course it seemed all the more impressive because we had expected so little."

"What does it make you think of, Big Sister?" asked Molly of the Lady-who-always-knows-somehow.

What The Lady Thought.

"I was thinking of something in the Bible."

"Goodness! Is there something about it there? Did they put their worst foot forward?"

"They were inclined to put their best, but it was suggested to them that the other way was more honorable."

"Where is it?"

"Well, just for the interest of it, see if you can find it yourself," said the Lady.

How about it, reader friend?

The Congestion From a Bad Cold Loosened Up in One Hour

If Bubbed on at Night You're Well Next Morning.

NERVINE NEVER FAILS.

When that cold comes, how is it to be cured? This method is simplicity itself. Rub the chest and throat vigorously with "Nervine." Rub it in good and deep. Lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nervine in the water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly.

There is no telling how quickly Nervine breaks up a hard racking cough, eases a tight chest, relieves a pleuritic pain. Why, there isn't another liniment with half the power, the penetrative qualities, the honest merit that has made Nervine the most popular American household liniment.

A large 50c. bottle of Nervine cures ills of the whole family, and makes doctor's bill small. Get it today. The large size is more economical than the 25c. trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Will Soon Be fit for Fighting Again.

Private Jacob Morgan, son of Mr. John Morgan, of Cupids, enlisted at Montreal in one of the first lot of recruits. He left Canada for France and was in the trenches early in March last. He was wounded on the 17th of May by being shot in both legs and one is still troubling him. He was about six weeks in hospital at Chivedon on Thames. Since then he has been employed in the hospital. The information he conveys to his mother in a letter dated October 2nd. He expects to be fit for fighting again shortly.

Attack of the Light Brigades.

Brilliant Exploit By Gallant Australian Troops—Triangle of Death—Fight in Which Few Lived to Recount Their Experiences.

In graphic language Captain C. E. W. Bean, the official Press representative with the Australian Forces in the Dardanelles, tells the story of the charge of Australian Light Horse.

The dust of the bombardment rolled across the range of clouds, shutting out all view of the place from a distance. For half an hour the slope in front of our trenches was an inferno...

One knew that nobody could live in it. Many fell back into the trench wounded before they had cleared even the parapet. Others wounded just outside managed to crawl back and second and third time and killed, as tumble in before they were hit...

Before daylight the attacking parties filed into the trenches from which they were to make the rush. They were in their shirts with their sleeves rolled up and the brown forearm bandages showing. Their knees were bare and sunburnt. Each man carried his full kit with 200 rounds of ammunition.

The attack on the left-hand side of the apex was to be made by the 8th Light Horse with the 10th Light Horse following. Four lines would start following. The first and second lines being 150 each, the first and second lines being 150 each, the first and second lines being 150 each...

Two men were put in the head of one of our foremost saps with periscopes to watch for the first sign of this flag in the enemy's trench. By this time a French "75"—a gun captured by the Turks from the Serbians in the Balkan War—was pouring her shell at the rate of about one in 10 seconds into the neck. Machine guns, far too many to count by their noise, were whipping up the dust, and it was next to impossible to distinguish anything in the haze.

Zeppelins Kill 11 Canadians in Raid on England.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—The Zeppelin raids on England have now come home to Canada. From the casualty lists received from information obtained from local militia sources, it would appear that eleven Canadian artillerymen were among those who lost their lives in the last raid, that of the 13th.

The total military casualties reported in the official statement by the British authorities were fourteen killed and thirteen wounded, so that it would appear that Canadians were the chief sufferers. Besides the eleven men who lost their lives, three were reported as missing and three wounded. All these casualties took place at Otterpool Camp, Kent.

Last night's casualties of this type are all Western men, except one, whose next of kin is given as residing in St. Catharines, Ont., and was a member of the 29th Battery.

IN SUCH PAIN WOMAN CRIED

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

Splendid Prohibition Meeting at Topsail.

Messrs. J. S. Currie, M.H.A., and Albert Soper, Esq., delegates from the St. John's Committee, and Rev. Canon Netten, of Topsail, held a public meeting in the L.O.A. Hall in the interest of prohibition last night. There was quite a large attendance who gave the speakers a splendid hearing. John J. Butler, Esq., acted as chairman. Messrs. Currie and Soper dealt with the liquor question in an effective and masterly manner showing they had the matter well in hand, and proved to those present the harmful results from the sale of intoxicating liquors. They showed the large gathering present the difference that had come to other prohibition countries and would also come to pass and masterly manner showing they had the matter well in hand, and proved to those present the harmful results from the sale of intoxicating liquors.

"Her Spirit Lives."

Seldom have we read anything more inspiring than the story of Miss Edith Cavell. She appears to have been the head of a Nurses training school at Brussels, and although she knew she was spied upon by the Germans and under suspicion of aiding British soldiers who escaped from the Germans, she resolutely determined to remain at her post as long as there were British soldiers to relieve in the coats under her care. In pursuance of the policy of "fraternalism," by which they imagine they can cow their foes, she was charged with succoring escaped British soldiers, taken before a military tribunal, condemned to death, and sentenced to be shot. Invited to sign a petition to the Kaiser to reprieve her of the death sentence, she shrugged her shoulders, and walked out with the dignity of a pure English lady, too proud to supplicate a Herod, and too peerless in spirit to succumb to the deeds of an Attila. Face to face with the muskets of the Hunns, she refused to allow them to bandage her eyes, but fearlessly looked them in the face, and proudly pinned a Union Jack on her breast. In life, she defied the "fraternalism" and in death testifying to the spirit that Britons prefer death to degradation.

Stimulated by such a glorious example of British intrepidity in a British nurse, the appeal of His Majesty the King for more men and still more men to aid the gallant men in the firing line and the gallant women behind the line, must galvanize the whole Empire into greater activity. The unconquerable spirit of Miss Edith Cavell will send a thrill through the heart of the Empire that must have its effect in calling to the colours hundreds of thousands of men of fighting age and fitness, who have not been able to respond in the past. In Newfoundland we are proud of the three thousand men who have responded without any very special appeal, to the call for men for the Newfoundland Regiment and the Newfoundland Naval Reserve, and we are no less proud of the six or seven hundred Newfoundlanders who have joined the colours in Canada and elsewhere. It is an assurance that the spirit of Miss Edith Cavell lives among Newfoundlanders and that as long as there is fighting to be done for the Flag, more and more men will flock to it.

ATLANTIS, FISK AND JACK TO PLEASE THE CHILDREN.

At the matinee to-day those clever artists will appear in their great novelty act with the electrical spectacular closing scene. Last night the crowd was positively delighted. On Monday those artists have another great offering. The contest was a huge success, Miss Conlin 1st prize, Mr. Cogdon, 2nd prize, and Mr. Power, 3rd prize. It was a very interesting contest and before the close of the show Mr. Rossley received three names for next Friday. Don't miss seeing the great act to-night. The pictures, too, are delightful. Mr. Rossley has some of the finest ever seen in St. John's. Send the children to the matinee to-day. Give them a chance to see an act that will delight them same as yourself; they might never have the chance to witness this particular act again.

AT THE CRESCENT PALACE.

Perhaps the best week-end program the Crescent has ever shown is on to-day, as the large audiences yesterday were greatly impressed with the excellence of every picture on the bill. "The Intrigue" being the very best and the staging of this feature is especially good. "A Tale of Old Tuscon" is one of the most dramatic western features filmed. The railroad drama: "The Engineer's Peril" is also a thrilling picture, while the comedy reel: "A Study in Tramps" is a very fine comedy that affords much laughter. Mr. Delmar's song: "He Kept on Saying-Good Night" is in the comedy vein also and made a great hit. On Monday a great mystery drama in 3 reels: "A Siren of Corsica" will be shown.

"THE TREY O' HEARTS" AT TRACTS CROWDS.

Delighted audiences attended the Nickel Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night. The pictures were about the finest ever seen in St. John's. Interest in the "Trey O' Hearts" is now very keen and all are charmed with it. The Vitagraph Co.'s social drama: "The Millionaire's Hundred Dollar Bill" is an attractive story, too. "The Hazards of Helen" proved popular and the comedy caused much laughter. Messrs. Huskins and Cairns sang splendidly and were warmly applauded. The entire programme will be repeated and it will no doubt attract large audiences.

The Mystery of Stonehenge.

Stonehenge, which has just been sold by auction, was at one time counted among the four wonders of England. As long ago as the twelfth century Henry of Huntingdon classed it thus, and even in these days of marvels it still ranks as one of our greatest "show places" and one of the unsolved riddles of the world. Who and how it was erected has always been a matter of dispute and puzzle among historians, geologists, and archaeologists. No one knows when it came into being or what people built it.

It has been attributed to the Phoenicians, the Druids, the Saxons, and the Danes by various authorities, while the object of it is equally uncertain. It has been recognized as a temple of the sun, a temple of serpent-worship, a shrine of Buddha, a gallow, and a calendar in stone for the measurement of the solar year. The general belief nowadays is that it was a place of burial during the bronze age.

How these huge masses of stone—the largest stands about twenty-three feet out of the ground—were in primitive times placed in position or brought the many miles which are between Salisbury Plain and the nearest seashore has never been satisfactorily explained. The labour involved must have been stupendous. Stonehenge apparently possesses a particular interest for American tourists; and it is a recognized spot with many people from which to see the sun rise on midsummer day morning.

HUGE ROLL OF HONOR.

Very few people are aware that the names of the 20,000 heroes who died for the Empire in the South African War are preserved in a special book in Cape Town.

It is a beautiful book of nearly 450 pages, and contains a complete and classified record of the officers and men, including Colonial contingents, and nurses, who died in the name of duty.

It took three years to prepare, and cost over £800. The leaves of the book consist of selected lambskins, and the ink is composed of pure carbon. These materials were selected by experts as being the best obtainable to last in the climate of South Africa.

The men are placed under the names of their regiments, and the regiments are arranged according to their historical order or precedence; while the forces of the overseas colonies are placed in alphabetical order.

All the names are in plain black, but honours such as the "V.C." and so on are "writ in letters of gold." The gold leaf used was the purest gold without the slightest trace of alloy.

The idea was conceived by the late Archbishop of Cape Town, who also had a special wing built to his cathedral as a memorial. What will be the dimensions of the Empire's Roll of Honour in the present titanic struggle?

Cable Ship Arrives

Had Bolsterous Weather and Sustains Damage.—Two of the Crew who are Badly Injured are Landed Here.

The two-funnel cable steamer Farady entered port last midnight for cable supplies and to land two members of her crew who are suffering from severe injuries. After coaling at Sydney, C.B., the ship left there on September 1st for Mid-Atlantic where she was engaged cable repairing. The ship reported having had bolsterous weather, especially during this month. Recently a succession of heavy storms were encountered and as a result a lot of the ship's cables and buoys were carried away and other damage sustained. While the ship was being tossed about by the huge waves Jas. Barry, leading stoker on board, and Walter Jordan, boatswain, received heavy falls. Barry had both legs broken in two places, while Jordan who was dashed into the hold of the ship received a broken thigh and was otherwise bruised about the body. The victims were landed here this morning at the King's wharf and conveyed to the General Hospital in the ambulance. The Farady was here 14 years ago. She is 5028 tons gross and 2934 nett, built in 1874 and owned by Siemens Brothers, of London. As soon as she gets cable supplies and provisions the Farady will go to sea again. Messrs. Bowring Bros. are agents for the ship.

445th Day of the War Latest From the Front. Messages Received Previous to 9 A.M. OFFICIAL. LONDON, Oct. 22. The Governor, Newfoundland. France reports further enemy attacks repulsed at Givenchy and Souchez. Russia—Near Baranovitchi the Russians have captured over thirty-six hundred prisoners, ten machine guns and one cannon. BONAR LAW. KING GEORGE'S APPEAL. King George has issued the following appeal: "To my people. At this grave moment of struggle between my people and the highly organized enemy who has transgressed the laws of nations and changed the ordinance that binds civilized Europe together, I appeal to you. I rejoice in my Empire's effort. I feel pride in the voluntary response from all my subjects all over the world who have sacrificed home, fortune, and life itself, in order that another may not inherit the free empire which their ancestors and mine have built. I ask you to make good these sacrifices. The end is not in sight. More men, and yet more are wanted to keep my armies in the field, and through them secure victory and enduring peace. I ask you men of all classes to come forward voluntarily and take your share in these fights. In freely responding to my appeal, you will be giving your support to our brothers who for long months have nobly upheld Britain's past traditions and the glory of her arms."

added three more ships to those sunk in the Baltic during the last 24 hours. Some mystery surrounds the sinking at Hamburg, of three British steamers, which had been interned there since the beginning of the war. RUSSIAN SUCCESSES. PETROGRAD, Oct. 22. Further Russian successes in the southern part of the front are announced to-day by the War Office. It is stated that several Austro-German positions, and more than 7,500 men have been captured. By an energetic surprise attack in the region of Novo Oleksinetz, twenty miles south of Tarnopol, we captured portions of the enemy's positions yesterday. Similarly we seized part of the enemy's positions in the course of to-day. We made prisoners in these combats of 148 officers and about 7,500 soldiers. We captured two howitzers and numerous machine guns. AUSTRO-GERMAN LOSSES. LONDON, Oct. 22. A despatch reaching London from Nish to-day says: An official announcement has been made in the Serbian capital that the losses of the Austro-German army of invasion have reached sixty thousand dead, wounded and prisoners. The Serbians are said to have repulsed the invaders. The message was forwarded to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from its Athens correspondent who says that this information is contained in an official telegram from Nish to the Serbian Legation at the Greek capital. It is stated that among the Austrian and German prisoners are many officers. The same despatch contains a denial that the Bulgarians have occupied Vranja, Velessa or Kijazevac, but confirms the report they have captured Istip and Kotechana. BULGARIAN PORT BOMBARDED. LONDON, Oct. 22. The British Mediterranean squadron to-day bombarded the Bulgarian port of Dedeagatch according to a telegram from Sofia, received by Reuters' telegram company by way of Amsterdam. GREECE'S ATTITUDE. LONDON, Oct. 22. While Greece's refusal of offers are definite, so far as at present concerned, it is felt by London commentators that the material strengthening of the Entente allied contingent at Salonika would have a material influence on the attitude even of the Greek government. It is also believed by observers here that Greece cannot persist in her present position, and that public opinion, which is generally unopposed, is generally unopposed.

Girls! Draw A Moist Cloth Through Hair Double Its Beauty Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful at once. Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—That's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in a few minutes you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle thin. Beauty beautifying the hair. Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and just try it.

REPORTED SERBIAN VICTORY. NEW YORK, Oct. 22. A News Agency despatch from Athens via London, published here, says that the Serbians have repulsed the Austro-Germans north of the Serbian frontier, with enemy casualties of 60,000. This is announced in a message from Nish to the Serbian Legation here to-day. BATTLE IN PROGRESS IN SERBIA. PARIS, Oct. 22. An important battle between the Serbians and Bulgarians is in progress at Koprulic in Serbia, on the Nish-Salonika railroad, thirty miles south of Uskup. A message from Athens says that this information has been received from Salonika. The Bulgarians are being assisted in this battle by Turkish cavalry. The Serbians, the despatch says, are fortifying passes on Mount Rhodape. A great number of refugees from the north are arriving at Monastir in Southwestern Serbia. SERBIAN RESISTANCE. AMSTERDAM, Oct. 22. A representative of the Lokal Anzeiger at the Serbian front, telegraphs that the desperate resistance of the Serbians is responsible for the small number of prisoners taken by the Austrian and German troops. Serbians rarely surrender. Even in hand-to-hand encounters they fight until the last possible moment. Thus there are enacted in these battles horrible scenes, representing South and Central American gold mines. Several men here assert that unless the tax is reduced this movement will become so great that New York instead of London will become the mining capital of the world. Mines whose production is just beginning are particularly hard hit. Unlike tea and rubber companies, mining companies have not been enabled by the war to raise prices. THE NEW BUDGET. LONDON, Oct. 22. The new budget which provides for a surtax of 50 per cent on the profits of all British companies, has already caused the removal to the States of the headquarters of several companies, representing South and Central American gold mines. Several men here assert that unless the tax is reduced this movement will become so great that New York instead of London will become the mining capital of the world. Mines whose production is just beginning are particularly hard hit. Unlike tea and rubber companies, mining companies have not been enabled by the war to raise prices. THE HAGUE, Oct. 22. Indignation prevails over the execution of Miss Cavelle. The Nieuwe Courant, after relating the story of her execution, calls her one of the great martyrs of the centuries, but recognizes the fact that by sheltering her own countrymen, who were enemies of Germany, she committed a punishable crime. Her execution was inhuman, the Germans desiring to give terrorizing example, which, however, only aroused bitterness and strengthened the opinion of neutral countries that Germany was ruling Belgium with unnecessary cruelty and harshness. MEMORIAL STATUE. LONDON, Oct. 22. The Daily Telegraph, with a donation of one thousand shillings, has started a shifting fund to provide a memorial statue to Miss Edith Cavelle. Sir George J. Brampton, sculptor, has promised to execute the statue as a labor of love. GENERAL RETIRED. PETROGRAD, Oct. 22. General Bennkampff has been placed on the retired list.

In connection with the Trafalgar Day Fund no one did better work than the ladies who had charge of the Tag collection on the streets. On all evenings leading to the city ladies were on duty from early morn, and during the day they visited the wharves and streets of the city affording every one an opportunity of receiving a Nelson "tag" and of contributing to the relief of sick and wounded sailors and soldiers. The generosity of the response and the success of the efforts of the ladies is seen from the fact that some $2,200 was collected by them. Well done! ladies!!

The Hygiene of Gas Lighting. Incandescent gas is the ideal form of illumination for a living room. The soft yet brilliant light given off floods the room, and is restful both to the eyes and to the senses, preventing homeliness or sewing from being a source of eyestrain. It has, moreover, been scientifically determined that the strong uprush of heated products of combustion from gas burners draws up the emanations from the skin and lungs of the occupants of the room, chairs and sterilizes any accompanying germs, and, reaching the ceiling, diffuses through the plaster so rapidly as to draw fresh air from the windows and other openings. MUCH DAMAGE DONE IN OSTEND. AMSTERDAM, Oct. 22. Much damage was done in Ostend on the Belgian coast in the recent bombardment by British warships. The marine railway station, light-house, hotels and many warehouses were destroyed. ON ALL FRONTS. LONDON, Oct. 22. Greece has declined for the present the Allies offer to her of Cyprus and other concessions, territorial and financial, in return for her adherence to the Serbo-Greek treaty of alliance, which would mean her military aid to assist in meeting the Bulgarian and Austro-German attacks against her former ally. The reply of Greece to the offer, which reached the Foreign Office to-night, is a lengthy one. While it has not been made public, there is reason to believe that the Hellenic Kingdom bases its decision not to join the Allies on the ground that the Anglo-French force landed at Salonika is not, in the Greek Government's opinion, strong enough for the task allotted to it. Refusal to accept the offer was not unexpected, as it has often been stated in official circles that both Roumania and Greece were withholding their assistance until the

Our Native Flag.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—"Native" seems to object to "Our Native Flag" if I read his letter aright.

Is he not mistaken however in speaking of a "Newfoundland Official Flag?" There is an official Coat of Arms but since it is placed on Red Ensigns and Blue Ensigns alike (and doubtless on White and Green Ensigns also) it is difficult to see how this can be called a "flag."

Moreover I would remind him that this Coat of Arms is always made in the Native Colours: White for the ground work, pink for the figures and green for the surrounding circle of leaves. So there appears to be an official recognition of the Pink, White and Green as the distinctive Nfld. colors in the official flags to which he refers. Why? for the simple reason that these have been our native colours so many years and no one has ever heard of any others.

And since we are not all officials and the said Coat of Arms is rather elaborate for an ordinary flag, the good old tricolour seems to fill the bill very well for common use.

In conclusion, may I make a humble suggestion that as the War has drawn us all so closely together, some of our leaders may take steps to revive the old Nave Society to foster among us that unity, together with love of our Island Home and devotion to our Glorious Empire and to break down the spirit of party that has kept us apart in the past.

Yours sincerely,
ANOTHER NATIVE.

Your Boys and Girls.

A table for the baby just learning to walk will be found useful. Just as soon as a child finds its feet and legs will support it, those feet and legs are put to use constantly. There is nothing a baby so loves as to make the circumference of a table, supporting the wobbly little legs by the aid of its hands, provided the table is low enough. Children are often backward in learning to walk through lack of confidence, though they will stand if you give them something to support themselves with, such as a chair. The low table will be found to be of greater advantage, as it does not move so readily from under the child, and as the child does not have to stoop to reach it.

A toy placed on a table just the right height will so interest the child that it will unconsciously support itself and take the first steps, and it is better than a patented walking machine. Care should be used not to let the baby stand too long.

"V. C." For Me.

Say! What about this new Smoking Mixture they're just putting up, is it as good as the fellows say it is?

Why, sure—it's better, lots better. It tastes good, smokes good, smells good, looks good, and is good, and it's all ready to use without the fag of cutting it up. You can fill your pipe or roll your own cigarette in half-a-jiffy with no fuss. Try a pipeful of mine—I use it all the time, and I bet you'll be using it yourself as soon as you've tried it. It's real fine.

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

PHYSICAL FORCE AND MORAL STATION.

The world-war, at present raging and the Prohibition war of our own island have something in common. In both cases we are using force—in one case physical force, and in the other law force. In both cases we are using force instead of moral suasion. And those who are assisting and helping the Motherland in her war against Germany (and few are not) cannot consistently take the attitude that law force should not be used in the case of the war against liquor. If we hear from the pulpit that nothing but physical force can conquer German militarism, that in a case like this moral suasion is of no service; then we must hear also that the great menace of drink must be fought in like manner.

If physical force were rooting out the evil of broken pledges and torn "scraps of paper," in order that a freedom may be born in the world and a lasting peace may come. And by law force we are cleaning out an evil of the physical appetite in order that good may come to us and to future generations. If one supports the war, then he must support Prohibition if he believes that a country or a man is better without liquor.

Does England falter because she thinks that after this great war there will be other wars to face perhaps? And are we to be frightened because we think that after Prohibition passes some smuggling will be tried?

In war the sacrifice is human life; in Prohibition the sacrifice is a carnal appetite.

If it is a small sacrifice to give up liquor, vote for Prohibition for the sake of the other fellow.

If it is a big sacrifice to give up liquor, vote for Prohibition for your own sake.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop Ireland has given his opinion of the liquor traffic in the following words:—"We have seen there is no hope for improving in any way or forming the liquor traffic; there is nothing now to be done but to wipe it out completely. The State alone can save us. To be satisfied with moral suasion while an army of lawless liquor sellers are day and night defending and producing intemperance, is simply trying to heal wounded men on the battlefield, while from safe entrenchments a persistent enemy darkens the sky with shot and shell, strewn the ground with fresh victims."

We Stand Behind Our Advertising.

We advertise what we sell and we sell what we advertise. In other words, we practice what we preach. "The best quality for the price" is our rule.

Take for instance "HOME-STEAD" TEA, which is always of the same unvarying fine quality, a tea which fills every requirement of the most exacting connoisseur.

from Argentina, where the supply is in the hands of a half a dozen firms called sometimes the "United States Meat Trust." This trust saw an opportunity in the war to take a "bite" and when England attempted to make contracts she found that prices had been boosted sky high. But then came the counter-stroke. England requisitioned all the steamers that brought meat from Argentina and the American meat kings were left to eat their meat themselves, to store it or sell it to their own people. The ships were sent to Australia, where the Government had taken control of all the beef and mutton produced in the country and this was consequently obtained at cost price, and England was not only able to supply her own army and the French army, but was able to feed her civil population. Mr. Runciman also stated that during the next twelve months he expects the value of two hundred and fifty million dollars would be bought, sold and distributed by the Board of Trade. It was certainly a daring stroke and the British Government turned the tables effectively on the meat packers of Argentina.

If England needed fish as much as she needed meat it would have been our duty to take control of all codfish caught in Newfoundland and pass it over at a fair price. Of course it would mean that the merchant would lose his profit, for cost price would be the price paid the fishermen, plus any direct charges. And maybe we have not altogether been patriotic in forcing other countries, and our Allies, to pay such a tall price for fish as they evidently will have to.

Losses Through Drinking.
Loss of money follows drinking;
Loss of time brings bitter thinking;
Loss of business follows these;
Loss of strength and loss of ease;
Loss of health, respect and love;
Loss of hope of heaven above;
Loss of friends who are admired;
Loss of mind by frenzy fired;
Loss of usefulness, alas;
Loss of life's goal for the glass!
Less of life and loss of soul,

OUR POSITION.

To continue our thoughts about Newfoundland's position at the present time: we need a new government and new men. To a great extent we need new political morals. No more do we want plumbers, lawyers or men of any trade or profession who will become abnormally partisan and morally conscientious by the government patronage which flows into their pockets. No longer do we want men who stultify their interest in the Colony's financial position by accepting large railway arbitration fees.

I know it is a big task to find such men, and unfortunately our political moralists (3) have spoiled a large number of the electors, and made them, to some extent, blind to the advantages of good and honest men in the House of Assembly. What is needed is an education along these lines, and first of all is needed even the elementary education of three R's. And after this elementary education I think that the subject of MORALS ought to be the main study. Better than being able to talk in twenty languages, or know all the books of Euclid, is it to be grounded in ordinary, common, garden honesty. Better than all the books of the world's history is it to be incapable of a Lie. A professor of Morals is the most necessary chair in our colleges and schools to-day.

PROGRESS.

I believe Prohibition to be a direct advance towards a more enlightened electorate. Russia's wonderful story of savings since vodka was banished is guarantee enough for that. St. John's, especially, will find its work better done and the labourer will be a more skilful workman. The more little comforts of home the labourer is able to gather round him, the more he will appreciate them, and the more he will appreciate his home. The more education he is able to give his children, the more will be added to the number of papers and books that he has when we consider a case like this. For mere political ends we are forced to pay this large sum to a firm who received more for this hog land, almost, than all they paid for the whole of Bremner's estate. In the face of all this I don't know how the Premier can deny the people of Trinity some of the Spur Line if they want it.

AN APPRECIATION.

When the news was flashed over the cables on Monday afternoon that Pte. Samuel T. Lodge of the Newfoundland Regiment had died of wounds while on active service at the Dardanelles on October 1st, great sorrow was manifested on Bell Island. "Sam," as he was familiarly known to his many friends here, was a general favourite. He hailed from Catalina, but for the three years prior to his enlisting he was a citizen of our town. During that time he occupied the position of book-keeper of the D. I. & S. Co. warehouse until the closing down of the mines, when he accepted the management of the Bell Island Co-operative Co., which he held up to the time of his enlisting. As a member of the Dominion staff he was greatly respected by that concern, and was always prominent in social and public circles, doing his share in the interest of his adopted town. During the week flags were at half-mast on several of the public buildings, as the island's silent tribute to the deceased, who died doing his share in the interest of Freedom, Justice and Humanity; who did not doubt as a hero but surely as a gentleman. Pte. Lodge is the first of the Bell Island contingent to the Newfoundland Regiment who

Eight hundred and eighty-three including 92 freighters and 791 floaters, with a tonnage of 33,492 tons prosecuted the Labrador fishery this season, according to latest figures compiled by the Board of Trade, made up as follows:—

Wesleyville, 132 vessels; Greenspond, 186; Twillingate, 106; Trinity, 32 and other ports from 1 to 40. The vessels carried crews to the number of 6201 and as passengers 3665 men and 1077 women. During the season about a dozen schooners were lost but their crews were saved.

YOUR OWN TOWN.

I sing in the gloaming a dirge that is weird, while sparrows are combing the chaff from my beard. The theme of my ditty is timbarn and snide—I'm roasting the city where I abide. Because I would slumber while others saved wood, I am a back number, I haven't made good. An object of pity, I stand by the pump, and swear that the city has gone to the dump. "It's dead and decaying, a man has no show," I always am saying, as sadly I go, to scout for a handout from some kitchen wench; for I am fanned-out, I'm back on the bench. But here in this city, which sees my distress, the chaps who are gritty have made a success. They say it's a daisy, a town full of vim, but men who are lazy can't get in the swim. Life's trodden me under until I am lame, and sometimes I wonder if I am to blame. If follows less witty, less gifted than I, can thrive in this city, and fatten on pie, then why am I busted and down at the heel, and asking disgusted hired girls for a meat? The answer has terror and awe in my sight—that I am the error; the town is all right!

Negotiations for others of the powerful class of sealers are also reported to be going on.

The Chairman, Messrs. Ayre, McNamara, Bradshaw, Mullaly, McGrath, Morris and Anderson were present at last night's meeting of the Civic Commission.

J. M. Kent applied on behalf of Dreyer's Estate for attention to what is claimed to be a loss, caused by the raising of the sidewalk on Duckworth Street. The matter was referred to the Solicitor, the Engineer and Road Inspector for report.

John Fenelon wrote claiming that under Section 39 of the Municipal Act, as he read it, the Board is responsible for the repairs to the pavement in front of H. Brownrigg's offices, Water Street. Deferred for further information and Solicitor's report.

E. Crane applied for permission to erect a house on the South Side, about 100 feet south of the main road. Plans with particulars as to water and sewerage will have to be furnished.

A. Snow and J. Carberry, Wardens of St. Michael's Mission Church, applied for street line to erect a fence on Mundy Pond Road. The Engineer will attend to the matter.

A letter was read from the Canada Patterson Co. on the matter of future tarvia work. Will be considered.

James J. Miller applied for a light on McNeil Street. This matter cannot be considered at present, as all allotments for this year have been made.

M. Malone and John Byrne employees of the Council, applied for a weekly pension as they are both laid off from work. An enquiry was ordered.

Plans for W. V. Drayton and G. E. Taylor were approved.

The Engineer reported progress of the work of pipe laying and extension of sewerage.

The Secretary was instructed to make arrangements for the Court of Revision to decide the appraisements.

The condition of the street line on Cornwall Avenue will be attended to as people propose to build in that locality.

After the passing of pay rolls and other routine business, the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, September 28th, 1915.
THE NEW TAXES.

In framing his Budget Mr. McKenna set himself a double task—to raise an additional revenue of £100,000,000 from new taxation in a full year and to spread the burden fairly over all classes of the community. He has accomplished the first to his own satisfaction. His fresh duties will bring in exactly £102,155,000. He is, no doubt, also satisfied that his second object has been achieved, and members generally agree that he has been ingeniously successful in reaching the pockets of everybody in the country, and so far as one could gather the scheme as a whole is well received. Especially welcome is the proposal to tax excess profits arising out of the war. In the eyes of the Labor Party, for instance, it is a valuable counter-balance to the extra taxation on articles of consumption, such as tea, cocoa, coffee, etc. The Chancellor's estimate of the excess profits for the whole year is £60,000,000, and of this sum the State will, according to the Minister, appropriate £30,000,000, that is, at the rate of 50 per cent., but in point of fact the State will take 67.5 per cent. of the profits, because they will, in addition to the special tax, be subject also to the income tax. The state of our foreign exchanges drove the Chancellor to the anticipated expedient of taxing certain imports, but the particular articles selected caused some merriment. Motor cars were certain victims, seeing that the British motor industry is practically commandeered by the Government for war work, and the amusements of the people are perhaps rightly laid under tribute by the tax on foreign cinema films. The inclusion, however, of clocks, watches, musical instruments, plate glass, and hats, especially the hats, came as a surprise. Mr. McKenna did not explain on what principle the selection had been made. A direct wages tax did not meet with the Chancellor's approval. He preferred to lower the exemption limit from £160 to £130, and the limit of abatement from £160 to £120, and these proposals, coupled with the extra taxes on commodities of universal consumption, appear to be more acceptable than the other method. A poundage on wages, he found, would not have covered the cost of collection, and, revenue being his immediate aim, he was right, it is thought, not to introduce into his scheme something which, while it would not have provided him with money, would have been certain to cause irritation and possibly opposition. Members were agreeably surprised to find the Income-tax increase fixed at the reasonable figure of 40 per cent. A heavier demand was expected. The abolition of the half-penny postage is regretted, and efforts may be made to see Mr. McKenna to restore it. I doubt if they will be successful. His action is based on the report of the Retrenchment Committee, which carefully considered the matter, and he will be reluctant to sacrifice the large amount of revenue he will derive from this source. The other increases in Post Office charges are likely to go through with fairly general assent.

BLACK MEN IN KHAKI.

Contingents of colored recruits from the West Indies have now arrived in this country. Officers of men were promptly made to the Imperial Government by the various colonies, but were not then accepted, on the ground that the Government had their hands full in dealing with the men available here. It was not until July 21 that the Secretary of State for the Colonies, was able to "communicate the conditions upon which the contingents would be accepted. Since then things have moved rapidly. The original idea was to form battalions in each colony, but that has been abandoned for local reasons of expense, and the contingents are sent hither under military laws for absorption into the British Army as Lord Kitchener may think fit. At the beginning of the war the majority of the younger white men in the West Indies came over, and are now serving as officers and privates in the new armies. The men of these locally-raised contingents are men of color, and the War Office can get a few score thousands more if it wants them. If the supply of navies runs short it could get thirty thousand of the finest shovel-men in the world—from Barbados alone. To the cutters of the Isthmian Canal the making of entrenchments would be child's play.

THE SERBIAN FLAGS.

In this day of Balkan alarms and rumours the flag of our Ally Serbia showed everywhere its red, blue and white, with the double-headed bird and black crown. It was the last of the Allies' flags with which London has become familiar. It was all very quietly done, but the Serbian Flag Day seemed to me to be one of the most effective. Nobody seemed to be without a flag, although the sellers did not seem many, and went very tactfully about their business. Mme. Mestrovic, the wife of the famous sculptor, who has made her immortal in his art, and Mme. Trumbic, the wife of the President of the Yugoslav Committee, were among the sellers. Two ladies dressed in Welsh national costume visited Downing Street and sold flags to Mrs. Lloyd George and her daughter Megan. The realisation recently that Britain has come to the aid of Serbia with men and guns as well as with a medical and sanitary service when she was in her greatest need, has much increased public interest in that gallant little State and M. Mestrovic's sculpture at South Kensington showed that in art as in poetic folk-lore she has a shining place in the world.

HOLIDAY-KEEPING AND THE WAR

In large commercial establishments I find a very common practice during the present holiday season is to allow the usual holiday to the female staff, but to offer inducements to the men clerks to forego their usual vacation. In some instances this has been done by paying salary above that to which the clerk would have been entitled if away from the office. A large number of the responsible chiefs themselves have refrained from taking any holiday, though in some instances a week's respite has been secured in connection with the camps of the Volunteer Training Corps. There seems a growing disinclination, even on the part of the men who have passed military age, to devote themselves to golf, and men who have been on special constabulary duty during the past twelve months are acknowledging that they are fitter than they have been for years, and are beginning to wonder whether, after the struggle is over, they will have to go back to "the old indignation." In some suburban volunteer battalions commanders have been pressed by their men to give them physical exercise of a very drastic kind, and it is no uncommon thing to find City men occupied throughout Saturday afternoon digging trenches in unstrategic positions, or engaging in "night operations" upon desolate golf courses.

A DECLINE IN DOCTORS.

Though the authorities of Guy's Hospital have declared against the admission of women students, on the ground that there is not suitable accommodation for them, the decision is limited to "at present," and other of the great Metropolitan hospitals may not be found as obstinate even as this. There is being borne in upon those responsible for their conduct that the fall in the number of medical students sustained in the first year of the war is so serious as to portend disaster to the profession unless the loss can be made good in other directions; and the most obvious of other directions in this instance is the eternal feminine. It is regarded here as not a little odd that, while the normal number of students at such great Scottish University centres as Glasgow and Aberdeen has only decreased very slightly, the losses in London have been just half of the whole. It is considered, therefore, that the capital will have to abolish the old sex distinction and give every opportunity to women, especially if any comprehensive system be adopted of national service, which will sweep into the Government's net those young men who in ordinary times would have "walked the hospitals." For that comprehensive system we now may not have very long to wait.

HYPNOTIC CURES.

A year of war has brought many drastic changes in medical and surgical science, but few more surprising than the raising of hypnotism to the position of an orthodox and accepted method of healing. At one of the leading London hospitals it has, after exhaustive trial, come to be regarded almost as the one essential treatment necessary in stubborn cases of shattered nerves. Wonderful success has also been achieved in curing by hypnotic suggestion men who have been rendered blind, deaf, and dumb by the shock of high explosives. Hypnotism has so long been regarded merely as a somewhat bizarre kind of music-hall entertainment that many people will doubtless have some difficulty in appreciating its new usefulness.

EMPLOYMENT FOR WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

The little workshop for disabled soldiers and sailors in a small street off the Brompton Road, has moved to a big place in Fulham Road with room for 200 men. The sign above its windows, "The Lord Roberts Memorial Workshops," is already displayed in Edinburgh and Portsmouth, and the Committee hope to set it up also in Manchester, Birmingham and other large towns, so that the disabled men for whom these workshops provide permanent employment may be able to live among their own people. Many of the men have the full use of their hands and are skilful cabinet-makers, others with dim eyesight make baskets, while for the more difficult cases, the men with only one effective hand, there are lathes and saws to help them. The change has been violent in some cases. The dragon whose right hand is crippled has become a painter and glider. The lame bus conductor from the Middlesex is making toys. The fisherman A.B. is making trays. A lad with hideous memories of Mons, who helped to destroy the bridges on the Marne and saw the Germans turn, lost a leg in that victory and now makes baskets.

The man who uses the hook on his left arm to guide a block against a rapid saw had the pleasure of surveying the Narrows from the deck of the fearless Amethyst before the Turks' shell got him. They are happy and interested. It is not pleasant to know that to start with, they only earn fourpence an hour.

THE GOLDEN DUSTMAN.

Mr. Charles Burrell, the largest dust contractor in London, often spoken of as the "Golden Dustman," is dead. For many years he has contracted with most of the local authorities for the removal of the dust gathered from the streets and the refuse collected from the dustbins. He almost became a monopolist in his way, but of recent years he met with some reverses. He lost money on one contract because, owing to the change from horse to motor traction, the street refuse became less valuable. Usually he found it cheapest to deposit refuse in the estuary of the Thames, conveying it thither by barge. The war hit him very badly. The hire of a barge rose from five shillings to as much as a guinea a day. Nevertheless he managed to carry out his obligations. He was, moreover, in the case of his Lambeth contract, forced to appeal to the generosity of the Council. He guaranteed to remove refuse for one shilling and elevenpence per ton, but the cost rose so considerably that he lost one shilling and threepence a ton on the contract. The Council agreed to allow him sixpence a ton, but even so he lost ninepence a ton, which in this case represented over seven hundred pounds. The business is being carried on by the executors, which is as well, for local authorities would have a big problem to solve if this famous dust business collapsed.

CHESSMEN.

One of the effects of the war on industry has been a shortage of chessmen. It appears that most of the cheap chess sets were made in Paris, and that the sterner material needed for the French armies has made the industry almost extinct. Whole families in Paris devoted their time to the making of the pieces which opposed each other in the mimic battle of the chessboard, but each piece turned out was a speciality of the home workers who made it. The craftsman who produced a king never fabricated a pawn, and queens, knights, and castles were also made by specialized workers. Though there is a shortage of chess pieces, chess is a very popular game just now. Chess is a favorite game in the Army, and recent appeals made for sets, not required by their owners, for military recreation rooms have resulted in large response. The favorite game of chess for the French armies has made the adaptation of the war game played by officers, in which pieces representing opposing armies manoeuvre over large scale maps. As adapted to chess the game requires three sets for two players, the middle board, which is not seen by the opponents, marking the respective advantages gained by the players.

HANDKERCHIEFS AT £3 6s. 8d. EACH.

The war economy crusade does not seem to have reached Bond Street. In the window of a shop there is noticed to-day a display of very nice material priced at £10 a yard. Attached to it was a notice explaining that it could be made into ladies' handkerchiefs at £20 a dozen, or gentlemen's handkerchiefs at £40 a dozen. Handkerchiefs at £3 6s. 8d. each do not seem very economical, and one wonders how many purchasers there will be. Bond Street just now seems as wealthy as ever, and the shopkeepers still appear to be getting Bond Street prices for their special arts of design and choice. There is one satisfactory reflection. Evidently there is still a little money left in some pockets to finance the war.

German Atrocities In Belgium.

Over Five Thousand Civilians Said to Have Been Shot.

Paris, Oct. 15.—A Havas despatch from Havre says: "Over five thousand civilians have been shot in Belgium by order of the German military authorities, according to authentic reports received by the Belgian government. The figure is approximate and unofficial because no local authorities, who fear reprisals, would dare draw up official reports.

"The estimates so far made follow: Antwerp, 200; Brabant, 800; Flanders, 100; Hainault, 400; Liege, 845; Luxembourg, 40; Luxemburg, 1,000; Namur, 1,800."

AN IDEAL TONIC

When your head is dull and heavy, your tongue furred, and you feel done-up and good for nothing, without knowing what is really the matter with you, probably all that is needed to restore you to health and vigour is a few doses of a reliable digestive tonic and stomachic remedy such as Mother Seigel's Syrup. Take it after each meal for a few days and note how beneficial is its action upon the stomach, liver and bowels—how it restores tone and healthy activity to these important organs, and by so doing enables you to gain new stores of vigour, vitality and health.
