RUSSIAN SUCCESS CONTINUES.
PETROGRAD, June 29.
Yesterday General Letchitsky, after artillery preparations, inflicted upon the enemy, despite a desperate resistance, a great defeat in the region between the Rivers Dneister and Pruth. He took possession of three lines of trenches.

AUSTRIANS COMPELLED TO RETIRE.

LONDON, June 29.
An Austrian official communication received here to-night, reports that the Austrians have been compelled to retire from part of their front from Kolomea in Bukowina southward. The statement says that massed Russian attacks over a front from Kolomea in Bukowina southward. The statement says that massed Russian attacks over a front of forty kilometers in the region east of Kolomea, led to stubborn battles and hand to hand fighting, after the Russian reserves had been brought up, and superior forces of the Russians were repulsed, but in the evening the Austrians were compelled to retire on part of the front at Kolomea and southward, after a terrific artillery engagement. The statement adds that big battles have developed on the Italian front, in the region of Monte San Michel near San Martino di Vermegliano. These battles continue, but the Italian attacks are being partially repulsed by counter attacks.

WILL MAINTAIN BLOCKADE.

WASHINGTON, June 29.
According to information reaching here, no substantial change in the restrictive measures adopted by the Allied Governments against the commerce between the Central Powers and neutral countries, will follow the notice of the British Government, through Lord Robert Cecil, yesterday, of the intention of the Allies to discontinue partial enforcement of the declaration of London, governing maritime trade. All the present activities of the Allied blockaders, where they have proven effective, will be continued, however, through the issue of new orders in council, based upon municipal law.

CARRANZA RELEASES AMERICAN TROOPERS.

WASHINGTON, June 29.
The Mexican Ambassador-Destinate Airedondo, to-day received a message from the foreign minister, instructing him to report that first Chief Carranza had issued orders to General Trevino to release the American troopers captured at Marrizal and since held prisoners, because he did not desire to aggravate relations between the two countries.

CASEMENT'S LAWYERS WILL APPEAL.

LONDON, June 29.
After the verdict, the prisoner shook hands with a friend who was sitting below the dock, while the usher placed black cloths over the heads of the judges. The voice of the Chief Justice was firm, but his face was pale, as he spoke the few words in pronouncing sentence. He began: "Roger David Casement, you have been found guilty by a jury of your peers of high treason, the highest crime known to law," and concluded by sentencing him "to be hanged by the neck until you are dead." As the judge pronounced the sentence the prisoner, who was leaning on the inner railing of the dock, smiled; then a warden touched his arm and he withdrew behind the green curtain from what may be his last appearance before a public, which, during the trial, has regarded him without animosity, if not with some degree of sympathy. Michael Francis Doyle, Counsel for Sir Roger, gave out the following statement to-night: "The verdict, though regrettable to us, was not a surprise. We will take an immediate appeal to the Criminal Court of Appeals; then to the House of Lords, if necessary, involving a statute, five hundred years old, under which Sir Roger has been tried, and which never has been legally tested."
Casement reviewed the recent events in Ireland from the beginning of the formation of the Ulster Volunteers and said: "We have seen a constitutional army refuse to obey a constitutional government. We were told that the first duty of Irishmen was to enter that army. If small nations were to be the first consideration, I saw no reason why Ireland should shed any blood for any people but her own. If that be treason I am not ashamed to avow it here, if Unionists chose the road they thought would lead to the good side. Both of us proved right. So I am proud to stay here in a traitor's dock, than to fill the place of my accusers. Self-government is our right. It is no more a thing to be withheld from us, or doled out to us, than the right to life or light, or sunshine or spring flowers." Throwing aside his manuscript, Sir Roger said: "My Lords, I have done. Gentlemen of the Jury, I wish to thank you for your verdict. I meant no reflection upon you when I said this was not a trial by my peers."

DILLON vs. MORAN.

NEW YORK, June 29.
Dillon outfought and outpointed Moran, nine out of ten rounds.

ADAM'S OFF OX.

The world is old, and man still talks, at times, of Adam's starboard ox. When a nuy man's profoundly dead, of him it's usually said, by folks on the adjacent blocks, that he's as dead as Adam's ox. And if a stranger you shall see, and you are asked who he may be, you say, "I give it up, old sox; I know him not from Adam's ox." You say the "off ox," all the time, but that won't fit in this rhyme. Oh, famous beast, immortal ox, whose shade still on this footstool waits! No other brute, since time began, no mouse or mole or mole or man, thus effortless has won renown, a fame the ages cannot down! How did you play your bovine game, that you have earned this deathless fame? We hear no word of Adam's hog, of Adam's mule, of Adam's dog; we've no description of his stove, or of the motor car he drove, or of his watch or Sunday hat, or his imported Maltese cat, but his off ox has come to stay; we hear it quoted every day.

S. S. Service.

Mr. Saunders, Secretary of the Board of Trade, is in receipt of a letter from a Toronto concern who propose to put on a steamship service to run between Montreal, Quebec, St. John's, Nfld., P. E. Island and Nova Scotia ports and ask guarantees from the merchants in the different places of shipment of freight. The company proposes a weekly service by steamers each capable of accommodating 130 first class passengers and 2,000 tons of cargo. Sydney is mentioned as a port of call but it is not definitely stated that the steamers will come to Halifax, and Mr. Saunders has written for information on that point.

Election Returns To-Night.

The election returns will be posted on building corner Water and Springdale Streets as they are counted. The management of The Fair Store invites the public to come and rest in their store while the returns are coming in. Chairs will be provided for as many as possible and the telephone will be at your service. The new goods recently imported for their New York Buyers Sale will be displayed on tables, the modern way of displaying goods. This store has created quite a sensation to the buying public since it started the up-to-date way of merchandising. You are cordially invited to-night. Store will remain open until 10 o'clock to accommodate the public.—adv.

Successful Concert.

The initial concert in connection with the recently formed Soldiers' and Sailors' Club, took place last night at their rooms and was highly successful in every respect. Amongst the large audience present were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, Mrs. Browning, Capt. MacDermott and Lt.-Com. Howley. The programme had to be abridged because of the volunteers having to be in barracks by 9.30, but was nevertheless enjoyable and faultlessly carried out. It was arranged by Writer Ashworth, and was as follows:
Duet—Writer Ashworth, and Private Greene.
Recitation—Mrs. Outerbridge.
Violin Solo—Mr. Jago, H.M.S. Briton.
Song—Miss Herder.
French Horn Solo—Mr. Bulley.
Song—Miss Christian.
Recitation—Mrs. Chater.
Song—Mr. Hutton.
Violin Solo—Mr. Jago, H.M.S. Briton.
Song—Miss Redstone.
Comic Song—Mr. Connelley.
A vote of thanks proposed by Capt. MacDermott and seconded by His Excellency the Governor, was tendered the performers. The rendition of the National Anthem brought the affair to a happy termination.

Dust and Flies.

This is the time of the year when the dirty dust from the streets, and flies are in the air and watching their chance to alight on your bread and bring dirt and disease to your children. Guard against them by buying Lynch's Pan-Dandy Bread, white, and brown, wrapped and sealed by machinery in a dust and germ proof wrapper; it is the only bread in Newfoundland that is made, wrapped and sealed by machinery. Ask your grocer for it. Did you get any of Lynch's Beauty Cake, yet? Oh, what a beauty cake! the best in the land. Ask your grocer for it. June 22, 16.

Remains Sent Home.

The corpse of the deceased seaman Harold Ritcey, the victim of a fatal accident on the banker Annie L. Spindler, particulars of which were told in yesterday's Telegram went out by last evening's express, accompanied by his father, en route to Riverport, N.S., where interment will take place. The crew of the banking vessel walked after the remains in procession order from the mortuary rooms of Undertaker Carnell to the Railway Station.

Let's End That Corn!
Apply a little Blue-jay plaster. That brings a wonderful wax in touch with the corn, and protects it.
This wax was invented by a chemist who has spent 25 years studying corns.

Tomorrow

You'll forget the corn. Blue-jay ends all pain. It will prove to you that all corn pains are needless. You can stop them in an instant—and forever—with a Blue-jay. You will always do that when you know the facts.

Next Day

The corn will disappear for good. And no soreness follows. Blue-jay has proved that on 70 million corns. It will prove it to you, we promise. After that, you will never keep a corn.

THE ELECTION.

Yesterday we expressed the hope that as large a vote as possible would be cast in the civic election, so that the result might be a faithful indication of the feeling of the city. While the hope has not been fulfilled literally, the fact that the vote cast was the largest on record is proof of the unusual interest that has been awakened in our citizens.

Unfortunately, it is also true that the vote could, and should, have been still larger.

We have not much to be proud of in our system of conducting elections. The antiquated system of ballots and ballot boxes we can pass over. It is not likely that it occasions, at the most, more than a vexatious delay in counting. And after all, the idea of a single ballot paper, or separate boxes for separate papers, is too simple and obvious a reform for us to adopt without long and disputatious consideration. But the matter of the rejection of qualified voters is another thing. There is only too much evidence that this injustice was done in several instances.

The uncertainty as to the standing of so many electors, and the size of the supplementary lists, make us wonder a little just what the enumerators were doing when they made up the voters' list recently. If any man had changed his place of residence, ceased to pay any taxes, or otherwise affected his position as an elector since the last election, it was for himself to set at rest, some time ago, any doubt as to his right or otherwise to vote, and not leave it to the harassed officers to decide the question for him on election day. In the case, however, of those duly qualified at the last election, who stood in no different position yesterday, this would not apply. They would expect to find their names still on the list and their right to vote unimpaired. If, as we have heard on many sides, any such were actually refused the franchise, they have suffered an unthinkable injustice. We are glad to say that we ourselves know of no definite instances of this being done, but we have at least hearsay evidence of it.

It is hard to see how so much doubt and difficulty could have arisen. The official definition of qualification, announced some time ago, seemed to us unambiguous and definite enough. The trouble seems to have lain chiefly in the disgracefully inefficient and insufficient manner in which the voters' list was compiled, and in the various conceptions entertained by some of the Deputy Returning Officers of the standing of the electors who applied to them. It would not have been a herculean task to revise accurately a list of some five thousand names, nor to instruct these officers exactly as to the few essential questions necessary to decide at once whether or not an applicant was entitled to vote. The experience of this election strongly emphasizes the need of revision of the law defining the qualifications of voters. It also incidentally shows that there are some matters of importance outside of water supply and sanitary systems to occupy us. We should be glad to learn from the opponents of the Commission what part they consider a citizen should play in the life of his city to entitle him to a voice in its government.

KOLOMEA.

It is a little refreshing to pass from the battlefield of St. John's to the somewhat larger one of Europe, where history is in the making. This morning's messages foreshadow a further step of the greatest importance in the defeat of Austria: if it is taken it will carry the Russian advance well and firmly forward. Czernowitz, Radavitz and Kimpolung marked the three successive stages that have reduced Bukowina; similarly Kolomea, Stanislaw and Halicz may blaze the way to Lemberg, which is to say Galicia. The whole course of the Russian offensive has been of the greatest interest. Southward it has been carried on with incredible and almost reckless rapidity, justified however by the result it has achieved in splitting the Austrian armies asunder. To the north it has been arrested, as might have been expected, before Kovel. But even here it has not been driven back. Now, their left flank finally established, the Russians are pondering their way westward towards Kolomea, whence fine railway communication runs through Stanislaw to Lemberg. It seems that all the Germans can do in the north is to hold the Russians back to do this much they have been compelled dangerously to lengthen their already attenuated line.

The remarkable continuity of the whole Allied line is apparent in the return of Italy. Doubtless she might of herself have held back the Austrian drive, but she was sore pressed. Now that Russia has relieved the pressure, she is coming back to the attack and will not be deterred. The value of her year of laborious work in the mountain heights is now plain, making that attack so much the easier. Trent and Trieste will soon again be menaced, while in the West the increasing activity at many points seems to herald something big. This much has far-away Russia effected. If Kolomea falls next, it will fall well ead in the Trentino, at Verdun and at Ypres.

Power left by last evening's express for the West Coast, taking along several coopers to work in the successful coopers business recently established by him at Bay of Islands. Religious Reception at the R. C. Cathedral.

Yesterday, the Feast of S. S. Peter and Paul, and the first anniversary of the Consecration of His Grace Archbishop Roche, there took place at the Catholic Cathedral the solemn and impressive ceremony of Religious Reception. As the bells rang out their joyous peal at noon the Procession entered the Sanctuary—the five young ladies who were that day to lay aside the trappings of worldly fashion and clothe themselves in the religious garb of Presentation Nuns, attired in robes of shimmering white and looking like the pure and fragrant lilies whose lives are given to adorning the House of God.

After the first part of the ceremonial was concluded, His Grace ascended the pulpit and in choice words explained the meaning of the function, congratulated the young aspirants on the choice they had made and spoke to them words of kind encouragement and fatherly advice. The sermon being ended, the postulantes retired to assume the livery of the daughters of Nano Nagle, and then re-entered the Sanctuary to receive from His Grace the other portions of the Religious Dress. The singing by the Convent choir and the answering of the chants by the newly received novices was sweetly devotional. At the conclusion of the ceremony the "Ecce Tuum Bonum" bespoke the beauty of religious unity.

The young ladies who by this solemn renunciation of the world chose for themselves the better part are Misses Florence Croke (Sr. M. Loretta), Kathleen Curtin (Sr. M. Patricia) and Agnes Power (Sr. M. Immaculata), of St. John's; Misses May Coady (Sr. M. Genevieve) and Katherine King (Sr. M. de Lourdes). We offer our best wishes and congratulations to the young Sisters, to their friends and to the community into which they have entered.

Assisting His Grace throughout the ceremony were Rt. Rev. Mc Dermott, V.G., Rev. Drs. Greene and Carter (Cathedral), Rev. Frs. Renouf, Pippy and Sheehan (St. Patrick's), Rt. Rev. Mgr. St. John, P.P., Torbay; Revs. Dr. Kitchin, Frs. Nangle, O'Brien, Kelly, Gough, McGrath, O'Callaghan and Galway.

Rev. A. G. C. Stamp, M.A.

HONOURED BY CONGREGATION.
Last night the congregation at St. Michael's Church held a meeting in the lecture room of the church, which was largely attended. The object of the meeting was to honour their retiring pastor, Rev. A. G. C. Stamp, who will shortly leave for England. The Rev. Canon White, Rector of the Cathedral, presided and spoke highly of the valuable services to the church performed by Rev. Mr. Stamp, after which the following illuminated address was presented to the retiring clergyman:—

To the Rev. A. G. C. Stamp, M.A.,
Priest in charge of St. Michael's and All Angels Mission:
Rev. and Dear Sir,—
On behalf of the people of Saint Michael's congregation, we beg to tender you our deep regret that you are soon to depart from among us. During the three years in which you have ministered to us you have become endeared to us by many ties, both personal and spiritual.

We ask your acceptance of the accompanying gift as a small memento of our esteem and goodwill, and a future reminder of your work in Newfoundland.

Asking your prayers before the altar of God, and wishing you "Good Luck in the Name of the Lord,"
We are, yours very sincerely,
W. CHARLES WHITE, Rector.

ABRAHAM SNOW,
JAMES M. CARBERRY.

Churchwardens.
Rev. Mr. Stamp, who was deeply affected by the kindness of the congregation, made a fitting reply. Speeches were also made by His Lordship Bishop Jones, Rev. Canon Field, Rev. J. Brinton and others, after which refreshment was partaken of which had been supplied by the ladies' committee. The gift was a handsome caribou head and a seal mat, souvenirs of Newfoundland, and will be treasured by the receiver as a reminder of his sojourn in the city.

The Scout.

An Uncensored Account of a Battle Royal in Ant-Land.

The little people of the grass were very busy that morning under the glorious sunshine, round their fortified town. Little it might seem to us, but it probably contained as many lives—not souls hardly—as many a big human city does. It belonged to the ants of the field, the tiny people who were always busy.

Secrecy they craved, but it has its drawbacks. For instance, one ant prospecting along a little-used side-track alone, suddenly halted; as one who discovers a footprint upon a desert island. She had not, of course, she had merely crossed a trail, but to her it was the same thing. That trail—and she could follow it as surely as any hound—spelt trouble.

Carefully and cautiously she followed it into the grass. She must have had the pluck of several bulldogs, for she knew—who owned that trail, and it was like a man following a tiger into thick jungle.

The track led back towards the ant city. Then it stopped on the edge of the clearing the ants had cut around the city's outermost fortifications; then turned off and ran back to the path again, and the ant, stepping out, nearly ran on top of another ant—a very giant—who was watching the city from the cover of the grass jungle.

In a flash the other had spun about and rushed at the little ant, but that small one dodged and raced back towards the city. She did not fear to fight, mark you, but she had news.

At the Head of an Army.

The giant stopped at the edge of the jungle and watched the small one vanish into one of the outer gates. Then she turned, too, and fled.

She also had news.

Along the field she hurried, far beyond the longest roads and paths of the small ant people, following her own scent backwards, as a man follows his blazed trail—back and back, till she came to the roadway; then through the opposite hedge, where she dived into a hole guarded by an ant like herself.

An hour later that same big ant—the scout—might have been seen issuing once again from that hole, and behind her came an army, no less. The army was of big ants like herself, following her in serried silent phalanxes. Every warrior, every Amazon, seemed to know precisely what to do, and, like clockwork, did it.

Back through the hedge marched that army, led by the scout, who was simply once again following her own trail—as, indeed, most of the army was; across the road, into the opposite hedge, where a young mouse was so foolish as to pause to parley with them, but very soon was glad to run away, and out into the field.

As the army came to the roads of the field-ants, the scout, who was guiding them, must have said something, for scouts ran out in a screen, and at the head of a large advance-guard she herself hurried.

They did their best to slay whomsoever they met, but it was no good. As that advance-guard found the whole fighting army of the field-ants drawn up outside the city to receive it, and then things happened.

Outnumbered by about twenty to one, the guide and her companions-in-arms fought like demons, and like ants. With her pointed shears of jaws, she shere through body after body of the swarming foe that gnashed like a wolf-pack about her.

But by the time she had lost one leg, and looked like adding two others to it, and saw the advance-guard giving back on every hand, she hacked her way clear, and, racing back to the main army, who had got into difficulties among a maze of paths, rushed them along, waving her feelers aloft to encourage them.

Then the field-ants died—not in ones and twos, but in dozens—till finally they broke and fled back to the bowels of their city. The day was won.

Into the bowels of that city the scout and the army could not follow them, however, they were too big to get down the tunnels. Nothing for it, therefore, but to effect a breach with jaws and muscle, and that was done.

The army of invasion poured in, leaving a strong guard at every entrance to stop retreat.

Some time later, as the sun was setting, the army of invasion came out again, marching as before, but each individual carrying a burden—a baby field-ant, who was to be reared and made into a slave.

What Atilla Really Did.

By Arnold Goldsworthy.

(So many of my readers have asked me for the true story of the origin of the Huns that I invited Mr. Goldsworthy to tell it in his own original fashion. Although he treats the subject humorously, you may take it that the facts are historically correct.—Ed. P.W.)

Atilla, known in history as the Chief of the Huns, was born about fifteen hundred years ago, which is longer ago than you and I can even try to remember without making ourselves look ridiculous.

The Huns were a race of savages who inhabited that part of Europe now occupied by Serbia, Bulgaria and Roumania. At first, Atilla had only a half-share in the chieftainship, as the other half was the right of his brother Bleda. One evening, however, as they were coming-home from the club together something happened to Bleda. Atilla told everybody that the poor chap had had an attack of heart disease and had never rallied; and as he threatened to punch severely anybody who disbelieved him, his story was accepted as gospel truth of the very best kind.

Atilla was about thirty-five when he developed the quaint idea that he was destined to be the conqueror of the world. He had got a fine large army, and there was no other nation to stand up against him. And outside the boundaries of his own country there was an awful lot of rich loot going for the asking.

Blamed the Bishop.

The nearest town to Atilla's territories was Margus, on the other side of the Danube. It was inhabited by a peace-loving people, who were fairly civilised and frightfully prosperous, and Atilla saw here a chance to give his army a nice comfortable job. Of course, even in those days, before you made war on a country you had to pretend that it was the other chap who began it, or something of that sort. So Atilla got up and said that it was perfectly scandalous the way the venerable Bishop of Margus was rowing across the river every night and stealing the Huns' chickens. Of course, bishops don't really go out at nights stealing chickens; but Atilla had never been to Sunday school and so didn't know anything about bishops.

A few days after that Atilla had his army on the trot. His men swarmed into Margus, and it was sudden death for everybody who ran up against them. In this way the Huns "inherited" a great deal of wealth in the shape of cattle and jewels, their former owners having, as it were, died intestate. What the Huns couldn't carry away they burnt, and after their glorious victory there was nothing left of the city but a black patch on the ground.

For a long time after that, victory crowned Atilla's efforts. He pushed his army all through Europe, killing and burning as he went, and although his fist was not a mallet one it proved to be pretty bony around the knuckles.

He Liked a Safe Spot.

Atilla's great aim was to make everybody afraid of him; but, after all, that is an ambition that does not lead anywhere; and there is always the chance that the other man may not be so frightened after all. He may be rude enough to get up and hit you back in a soft spot, and then all the rich, rosy work of a lifetime is wasted. The poor creature whom we know to-day as the Kaiser (which is the German for Caesar) is supposed to be descended from the Huns, and nobody is likely to dispute his claim. A strange coincidence in this matter is that Atilla began his very red career somewhere about Belgrade in Serbia, and was finally mopped up in France, not far from where the now justly-celebrated fort of Verdun still keeps the old tri-color flying.

Atilla was never much of a fighter himself. He preferred to stand in a safe spot in the background and talk taffy to his fine old crusted warriors. Hang it all, Kaiser Bill must have been descended from the Huns! It was in the region of the Marne that, by a strange lack of foresight, Atilla had the imprudence to run up against an army of Romans, the ancestors of the French. Atilla could murder and burn quite successfully as long as he was dealing with inferior races; but it happened that the Romans were not inferior, and it would not have paid anybody at that time to allege that they were.

Stabbed Him Through the Heart.

The Romans not only beat Atilla, but they chased him home as well. Atilla went back to his city of wooden huts on the Danube and decided to marry and settle down, as he appeared to have sown all the wild oats that were possible.

But here again he had no luck. On the night before his marriage he was sitting in the gloaming with his best girl, the lovely Ildiko, when she cooed softly into his ear the news that his life was in danger. And so Ildiko was one of that sort that never prophesy unless they know, she followed up her remark by stabbing Atilla through the heart and telling the guard to ring up the coroner right away.

Atilla's people placed his body in three coffins, one gold, one silver, and one iron. They evidently wanted to make sure that he should not get out again and make more trouble.

Anyway, he never did, though those who favour the transmigration of souls theory have their suspicions about the same old Atilla's soul being at present busy in the Kaiser's carcass.—Pearson's Weekly.

Irritable Nerves Restored And Health Regained In A Simple Way

The man or woman who is run-down, not feeling up to the mark, perhaps irritable, nervous or sleepless can well afford to learn about the wonderful results the newly discovered blood-food is giving to folks that use it.

There is a wonderful power in this new blood-food, and every weak, pallid person can be quickly nourished back to health that uses it as directed. After each meal, with a sip or two of water, you simply take two little chocolate-coated tablets, sold in all drug-stores under the name of "FERROZONE."

The effect is noticeable at once. You feel happier, brighter, more contented. That old-time feeling of weariness departs—you forget your "nerves" and no longer get irritable or cross over trifling annoyances.

There is a reason for this change and that reason consists of the fact that Ferrozone contains blood-making materials you can get in no other way. Ferrozone makes the blood tingle and sing with new vitality. This ensures lots of nourishment and strength being supplied to every part of the body.

No wonder the eyes brighten and the cheeks radiate color and happiness: With abundance of strength, a keen appetite, good digestion and plenty of sound sleep—all the result of Ferrozone—you quickly feel as if life held new charms and pleasures.

Fashions and Fads.

The smartest evening gown a woman can have is made of some sheer black material.

The balloon skirt is losing ground and we may expect the limp frock to be the fashion very soon.

The three or two-piece suits are more favoured by the fastidious woman than the one-piece gown.

A novel trick is the use of black or colored velvet ribbon stitched on frocks of handkerchief linen.

Some of the new Bangkok hats are trimmed with double bands of narrow ribbon and loose rosettes.

Dark taffeta dresses are lightened up for summer by means of chiffon or colored net used in the corsages.

More Pin Pricks.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A pin prick is a very little thing, isn't it? And yet most people would prefer one quick stab to a million pin pricks. I wrote you about the husband and wife who fought a constant pin-prick duel of sharp, sarcastic remarks. I have another kind of marital pin pricking to scold about to-day.

The husband is usually the offender in this respect. There may be wives who do this sort of thing, but I never happened to know one.

I think I can make what I mean clear by giving you a little dialogue. The dramatic personae are two husbands, conversing with each other in the presence of their wives, at a restaurant.

They Pretend To Be Struck With The Waitress.

One says to the other, indicating the next table with a motion of his hand: "I guess we picked the wrong table."

The Other, looking in the direction indicated, where a very pretty waitress is ostentatiously flirting with a tawdry man: "I should say we did. But I don't know as we would have been any better off over there under the circumstances."

The One: "Well, we'll have to come here again by ourselves."

The Other: "By the way, did you see the little peach they've got down at the news-stand?"

The Other: "No, I've been getting my paper from the boy at the corner; but that will be all off now."

A little later there enters the restaurant a woman no better looking than either of the wives. She is dressed in a deliberately striking fashion that both men would have been horrified to see their wives affect, but which now attracts their favorable attention.

Yet If Their Wives Dressed Like That—

The One gives the Other a facetious poke. "It doesn't hurt your eyes to look at her, does it?" he says.

"I should say not," says the Other. And so on, at intervals, ad nauseam. Now both men love their wives and are perfectly good husbands.

I don't believe either of them ever gave another woman a serious thought.

And yet they seldom miss a chance to say this sort of thing. "Well, what harm does it do?" says my masculine reader. "Their wives know they don't mean anything."

In the first place, little slurs on her attractiveness (and a husband's constant ostentatious praise of another woman's charms is a slur on his wife's attractiveness) become exasperating, even when they are made in jest.

In the second place, women are prone to wonder, if, after all, these things are jests.

A judge who had tried many divorce suits told me that ill-advised jesting about the other sex caused a great many divorces.

People appear to take the jests as they are meant at the time, but afterwards, when something arouses their suspicions or animosity, the wonder if it was jesting after all.

I've answered my masculine reader's question and now it's his turn to answer mine:

If these things the husband says don't mean anything and do make his wife a little less happy, what good does it do him to say them?

San Francisco.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

San Francisco is the largest city on the eastern coast of the Pacific Ocean. It is also the agone headquarters of the country. First it shakes and then it turns up. It has burned up three times and has now taken the hint and has kicked the grafters out.

San Francisco is located right side up with care on the side of the hills overlooking San Francisco Bay. It was founded in 1849 during the gold rush and has had an eventful career ever since. Said career came to a climax when the city fell down in 1905 and afterwards burned up with a loss of $200,000,000. Thoughtless people say there was an earthquake, but San Franciscans deny this. Some tourists who have been in the city in February declare that the city was only shivering during a bit of unusually San Franciscan weather, while other who have ridden down Jackson Street on a cable car claim that the city was merely sliding down hill. Anyway San Francisco is now completely rebuilt and even tempted Fate with a World's Fair. It is entirely fearless.

San Francisco has 450,000 people and 250,000 more live across the bay, where the climate does not go through the vest so easily. It is a proud, handsome, prosperous, cosmopolitan, vigorous and pungent city with ways of its own, and customs which make Easterners blink and gasp for breath at first. It produces large crops of artists, musicians and writers, who are shipped when they are ripe to New York, and it also produces peculiar brands of politicians who are shipped when they are a good deal over-ripe to San Quentin Penitentiary. They used to say that the "Golden Gate," which lets the ocean into San Francisco Bay, wasn't real golden, because no politician had ever stolen it, until San Francisco tried the non-adhesive brand of alderman with great success.

San Francisco is noted for its great bay, its magnificent hotels, its trained seals, the great residences of the early San Franciscans who became millionaires over night and recovered almost as quickly, its fine parks, its naughty and carefree restaurants and its Chinese quarter, which is larger than any west of Hong Kong. San Francisco is very proud of its Chinese, but when a Japanese is observed in the city the reserves are called out and the newspapers are fortified with extra large heads.

San Francisco stretches magnificently over the heights above the bay and is proud of its great hills, including Telegraph Hill and Nob Hill. Much has been said of San Francisco's climate and the recording angel has been overworked on both sides. It is a fine climate and very reasonable in temperature, seldom falling below 50, but the San Franciscan's pride in refusing to steam heat it has sent many visitors home with chills and unjust remarks.

A Paris Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair.

In Paris the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing hats, which is due entirely to this new discovery. It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee to cure dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant dressing, and is sold by your druggist. A large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50 cents.

WELL EARNED VACATION.

Rev. J. S. and Mrs. Sutherland left by last evening's express en route to the neighbouring Provinces on a well-earned vacation.

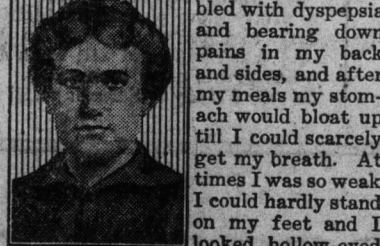

DYSPEPSIA OF WOMEN

Special Treatment Required.

Many women suffer from a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not yield to ordinary treatment. While the symptoms are similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines usually prescribed do not restore the patient's normal condition.

There seems to be a kind of dyspepsia caused by derangement of the female organism. While this appears to be the same as ordinary indigestion it can be relieved only by a medicine which, besides acting as a stomach tonic, is good for female ailments. Read what such a medicine did for Mrs. Williams:

She says:—"Before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was troubled with dyspepsia and bearing down pains in my back and sides, and after my meals my stomach would bloat up till I could scarcely get my breath. At times I was so weak I could hardly stand on my feet and I looked hollow-eyed and my skin was yellow. Now I have a good color, have gained in every way and can do my work without any pains. I think it is the best medicine on earth for stomach troubles of women."—Mrs. NELLIE WILLIAMS, 31 West 3d Street, New Albany, Ind.

Saints Go Down to a Bad Defeat.

COLLEGIANS VICTORS.

Four goals to nil in favour of the Collegians was the score at the finish of last evening's football match with the Saints.

The evening was anything but ideal, as the game was played in the height of a stiff northeaster, consequently a very small gathering of fans was in evidence. The Collegians had a cinch throughout. Right at the outset they rushed matters and kept up a continual bombardment of their opponents' rear ranks. Several corners, which were neatly placed, were secured by the Collegians. Mr. T. Jackman refereed and the players were:—

Saints—L. Ewing, goal; Pearce, Barnes, backs; Kerr, Burns, Foster, halves; Elton, Reid, Bastow, Ewing, Auckinleck, forwards.

Collegians—Rabbits, goal; Heath, Farret, backs; Quick, Barnes, Drover, halves; Bartlett, Ellis, Macklin, Joliffe, Coultas, forwards.

The change in their line-up considerably improved the Collegians. Certainly it strengthened the forward line 100 per cent. Though they lost their first game, the Collegians will yet make a bold bid for the Championship.

The Saints were not in their usual form. Perhaps, as some one mentioned, they thought they had too much practice.

The Terra Nova's and St. Bon's will meet to-night. A win for the latter would be welcomed by all the other teams—except the T. N.'s.

"MEASLES."

Hundreds of children are suffering from "Measles" at the present time, and one has to be very careful in trying to avoid the complications that often follow them.

A heavy "Cough" is very prevalent during the present epidemic, and "Pneumonia" is the great danger. Avoid this by keeping a bottle of "Stafford's Phoratoxine Cough Cure" on hand.

Stafford's Drug Store (Theatre Hill) is open every night from 7.30 to 9.30.

The above preparation is manufactured only by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, "Specialties"—St. John's, Nfld.

"Stafford's Liniment," "Stafford's Prescription 'A,'" "Stafford's Phoratoxine Cough Cure."

Fashions and Fads!

Painted white kid and navy taffeta make a pretty combination for a handbag.

Broad sailor hats of silk beaver are one of the latest millinery wrinkles.

A frock of rose organza trimmed with black Chantilly lace is charming. Sheer linen lingerie frocks are charming with trimmings of polka-dotted linen.

There is quite a wonderful range of yellows among the fashionable colors of gloves.

There is an almost unlimited range of combinations that can be used for cotton frocks.

The trill of a white batiste blouse may be edged with white, rose or Copenhagen linen.

Miniature birds travel in a procession around the crowns of some of the new sailor hats.

The Queen Mary.

(By Filson Young.)
Take the case of the Queen Mary—a powerful, perfect ship, well known and familiar to me in those ceaseless winter ploughings of the North Sea, often next astern of the flagship, never out of station, and wheeling beautifully, when the compass signal was hauled down, with her grey steel stem cutting into the foamy arc of our wake. Well, whatever was the condition of the Queen Mary just before she sank, whether her destruction was sudden or gradual, I am as sure of this as of anything, that, although physically there was, no doubt, uproar and agony of wounded men, the ships mind—which I mean the aggregate mentality of her people—was at peace. Those glorious ones had been doing what they wished to do, and they were where they wished to be.

And as they had lived, and worked, and played, a close company, so they died. The Queen Mary was a remarkable ship in many ways that the public knows of; but she was wonderful, too, in some ways which the public does not and cannot know. Every ship has her own individuality, and the ships of a squadron are as different from one another as the members of a human family. Of the four ships of that incomparable group, the Lion, Princess Royal, Queen Mary, and Tiger, the Queen Mary was always (in my eyes) the silent one of the family. Silent at home, that is; she made a certain noise in the world, and occasionally "got into the papers"; but in the family circle of the squadron she was as demure as a mouse. She was never flurried, never in the wrong, gave no trouble. Other ships got into their little scrapes with the flagship; not so the Queen Mary. We never seemed to hear of her. She kept herself to herself, and had her own thoughts, and was always brilliantly efficient at anything there was on hand, from gunnery records to games. If at sea there was an irregular interval in the formation on either side of the Queen Mary, you needed no sea-chart to tell you that she was in station on the flag-ship, and that the others were wrong. If there was a target to be rammed after battle practice, and the Lion had seen it go scraping past her sides, and the Princess Royal pushed it over and under, so that it only bobbed up in the wake of her propellers, it was the Queen Mary who would tread it neatly down under the foam of her fore-foot, never to be seen again in the form of a target—to the disappointment of the Tiger sheering wildly and hungrily about in the rear. The "Queen Marys" were a true band of brothers, who retained the stamp of the strong and lovable personality who had moulded them, and had their own little individual ways and customs. Such a unit is a product of years and years of the highest training. The technical value of the ship to the Fleet was equal, I should think, to all the other losses in cruisers put together. Her company is irreplaceable, as is every ship's company in the British Navy. On that point we can agree with the Germans. The loss of a single British seaman is a real disaster. But it is not a defeat.

One thing is certain: the fact that this gallant defeat of the enemy intention, this determined forbidding of them to be at large in the North Sea, has been so costly to us will have a powerful effect on our Navy. The pack has been blooded with a vengeance. The spilling of her own blood has always been England's most powerful tonic. The Navy needed no tonic, but it has received a stimulus which will race through its veins to the uttermost parts of the sea. If the Germans could realize that; if they could know the spirit of the Navy and how formidably that spirit will be strengthened by the events of last week, they might almost be in fear for what they have evoked. Never more true than they are to-day, of England and her Navy, were those words from what is the true hymn and fighting song of the Fleet:—
Still more majestic shalt thou rise,
More dreadful from each foreign stroke;
As the loud blast that tears the skies
Serves but to root thy native oak.

Before the place had time to heal, death claimed the child, and never have I seen remorse so bitter or grief so keen as the living boy showed when he gazed on the marble-like face of his brother and saw the scratch that he himself had inflicted in anger.
Upland words often leave a wound in the spirit deeper than blows or scratches on the flesh. Why cannot we practice more tolerance and kindness towards those we love best and be ready with praise for their virtues. This creates harmony in the home circle, and brings happiness to those we love.
Unselfish love is the fountain from which all good things spring; let us show it to those in the home circle at least.

Your Boys and Girls.
Why is it that, as a rule, families are harsh and discourteous to those nearest and dearest to each other? I once knew two little brothers, fine bright boys, but they had the repugnant habit of quarrelling often with each other. One day during a dispute, they became so angered that they fought and one scratched the other on the cheek leaving an ugly wound.
Before the place had time to heal, death claimed the child, and never have I seen remorse so bitter or grief so keen as the living boy showed when he gazed on the marble-like face of his brother and saw the scratch that he himself had inflicted in anger.

Lack of Bait Hampers Fishery West.

The latest reports received by the Board of Trade are:—
June 24th From R. Furneaux (Rose Blanche to Hr. LeCun)—The total catch is 10,740 qts. with 100 for last week. Prospects were poor this week, the only fish caught being taken with jiggers. There was no bait of any kind. Twenty dories and skiffs fishing. No vessels arrived from Cape Breton ports this week.

June 24th. From J. Cunningham, (Connore to Red Island)—Prospects are very good and caplin is plentiful. The last two weeks fishing for traps was the best on record. The hook and liners are doing nothing but the quantity of fish in traps is employing everyone. Sixty dories, skiffs and boats are fishing. The catch to date is 10,899 qts. with 1,700 for last week.

Refused Promotion Several Times.

Capt. Kane, of the West End Fire Brigade, received a letter from his son Private George Kane, at Ayr. Private Kane left here with A Company of the First Newfoundland Regiment, and was all through the Gallipoli campaign, and in that awful blizzard that swept the Peninsula he suffered terribly from frost bites, both feet being affected. He wishes to be remembered to all the boys, and expects to be in France in a very short time. We learn from several of the officers and men returned home that George has refused promotion on more than one occasion, as he prefers to be one of the rank and file.

Premier Hughes of Australia.

Few men in the Empire are attracting more attention at the present time than William Morris Hughes, Prime Minister of the Commonwealth of Australia, who is now delivering a series of addresses in Great Britain. One of the most eloquent platform speakers in Australia, he has electrified great audiences there and in England by his oratory. The British newspapers have praised his style and his forcefulness and almost without exception they speak of him as one of the ablest men in the country.

When war broke out Premier Hughes was not widely known outside his own Dominion. Although he was born in Wales and lived for some time in England the British people were only slightly acquainted with him. During the last two years, however, he has come to the front in a remarkable degree and his illuminating speeches and wonderful capacity for work have placed him in the front rank of the Empire's big men. He is a great organizer, an able lawyer and a fearless leader. Consequently no man in Australia enjoys such popularity among the working men.

A very high tribute has been paid to Mr. Hughes' ability by that other Welshman of world-wide fame, David Lloyd George, who speaks of the Australian leader in this way:

"He understands the British democracy here and beyond the seas. No living man has shown himself to possess so many of the gifts that make a successful leader for that democracy—courage, pertinacity, foresight, idealism, common sense, power of direct, forcible and eloquent speech, and great capacity for work. He is one of the men upon whose courage, insight and inspiration the British Empire depends in its greatest hour of trial."

Other critics have said that Mr. Hughes' style of speech resembles that of John Bright. "If he has less sentiment than Bright," says one, "he has more fluency and vigor. He thinks on his feet with an assurance which sweeps his audience along with him. He marches to his point like an army with banners. He is a combination of intellect and robust manhood. The ring of him is true."

Says Lloyd George again in recommending the public addresses of the Australian:

"Read these speeches, and you will find that the sentences get home and that their detonating quality is of the highest order. The percentage of 'prematures' and 'blinds' is imperceptibly low."
Mr. Hughes has gone ahead steadily and rapidly from the time he first stepped foot on Australian soil. He was twenty years old then. Ten years later he represented Sydney in Parliament. And to-day at fifty-two he is as much in demand at great public gatherings in the old country as Lloyd George himself. In the words of one who has written much about him: "A big man has come out of Australia."

TO-DAY'S Messages.

11.00 A.M.

HALIFAX DRY.

HALIFAX, To-day. Halifax is "Dry" to-day, prohibition law having gone into effect at midnight. Every liquor dealer in the city (46 in number) when he closed last night locked the door to remain closed.

MORE GREEK DUPLICITY.

ATHENS, To-day. The Entente Powers are most dissatisfied with the Greek Government's purpose to take two months to demolish the Greek army. Diplomatic officials made representation this morning to the Government that a month was regarded as sufficient. There appears to be growing a suspicion in Entente circles of the sincerity of the Greek intentions. Gen. Yanakitsas, former War Minister, has been ordered to Katerina near the Allies' lines.

RUSSIAN THREATEN KOLOMEA.

LONDON, To-day. That the Russians are slowly but surely closing in on Kolomea in Galicia is shown by both the Russian and Austrian official reports to-night. Heavy battles are proceeding east of this important railroad junction. The Russians have captured three lines of Austrian trenches, compelling the Austrians to retire their lines southward. Kolomea is now closely pressed from both north and east, while to the southeast the Russian occupation of Kimpolung in Bukovina opens all the routes into Hungary.

WILSON ON AMERICAN IDEALS.

PHILADELPHIA, To-day. President Wilson describing himself as "in fighting mood" indicated to-day before a large crowd in Independence Square his conception of some cardinal American ideals. He declared America in dealing with other nations must indicate at whatever cost its principles of liberty, justice and humanity; that "America first" must be translated into action, exalting it above selfish interests; and that the nation's policy and development must be guided by the whole people and not by any small group. The crowd liked particularly the President's declaration that American principles must be vindicated in the country's foreign relations, which apparently has been interpreted as referring to the Mexican situation. At no time, however, did Wilson mention Mexico or any other foreign nation directly.

12.30 P.M.

FINE BRITISH ARTILLERY.

PARIS, To-day. A correspondent of Liberte on the British front says the intensity of the British artillery at certain points is frightful. Shell followings shell at only a few seconds interval. The efficacy of the fire has been noted by reconnoitering parties; not only the first line of trenches has been wrecked over a considerable area and some of them entirely straightened out, but the second line and third line of defences have come under the British fire. Two munition depots five miles in the rear have been blown up. The prisoners brought back by the British appear to be stunned.

PLEADS FOR CASEMENT.

LONDON, To-day. The Manchester Guardian, one of the most influential papers in the country, makes a direct plea for clemency for Casement. While admitting that no other sentence but that of death could have been pronounced by the Court, the Guardian says, "Casement was a fanatic and his crimes, like those of many other fanatics, are free from taint of sordidness and meanness. The death penalty will do nothing to kill such dreams as his, rather will it give them life. For the sake of the New Ireland which we hope to see, it is a moment for clemency." An indirect plea for mercy is made by other papers on the ground that the execution of Casement would not assist in settling the Irish problem.

AT VERDUN.

PARIS, To-day. In a terrific attack upon the French positions east of Hill 304 in the Verdun sector the Germans captured a fortified work in the first line of French trenches after the garrison had been literally buried under a storm of shells. The position was recaptured by a brilliant French counter attack, according to an official statement issued to-day. The Germans also delivered a powerful attack on the French in Avocourt Wood, and west of Hill 304, but all their efforts are declared to have been checked with heavy losses to the attackers. Considerable activity is reported on the front from Neuport to the Aisne.

MEXICAN SITUATION STILL UNCERTAIN.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The Mexican situation stood to-day virtually where it was 24 hours ago, except that more national guardsmen were hurrying to the border and the time allowed Carranza to declare his intentions towards American troops in Mexico, is growing shorter.

New Bakery.

We take pleasure in announcing, as will be seen by advertisement elsewhere, the opening of Stewart's new bakery on Water Street, opposite the Seamen's Institute. This new concern guarantees to supply the trade with all fancy goods, baked on the most improved methods and under the personal supervision of Mr. C. W. Johnston, who has had 15 years' experience in the fancy baking line in Canada and the United States and who for the past eighteen months was engaged at Tesop's bakery. He is a man of high credentials and is bound to please the public generally by the prompt, efficient and courteous service which he assures them. The slogan of the new establishment will be that their products will contain nothing but the choicest of materials—no substitutes will be used. We bespeak for the new bakery a good slice of public patronage.

KYLE'S PASSENGERS.—The following first class passengers reached Port aux Basques on the Kyle this morning:—Miss M. Osbourne, Mr. M. W. Vanverden, L. G. Richards, M. Yall, Mrs. J. J. Mahoney, Mrs. W. Popular Lecture.

We feel sure that the public of St. John's will receive with pleasure the announcement that Lieut-Commander Howley, formerly of H. M. S. Irresistible, has consented to give an account of the work of the British Navy in the Dardanelles during the early part of this Great War. We listened with rapt attention to the account of the work of our soldiers from one of Newfoundland's brave sons, and it will be with equal interest that we will hear of the silent but great deeds of the Senior Service, from another of Newfoundland's sons and heroes, who has fought and suffered "a hundred wounds" for the freedom of our homes.

Wedding Bells

MURPHY-LAWTON.

The marriage of Miss Gertrude Lawton, daughter of Mr. J. T. Lawton, J.P., East Wabana, and Mr. John B. Murphy, of the D. L. & S. Co., took place at Bell Island on Tuesday last, the Rev. J. J. McGrath, P.P., assisted by Rev. T. Nangle and Rev. E. P. Goff officiating. The bride, who was charmingly attired, was given away by her father and attended by Miss Mary Hanrahan of Hr. Grace and Miss Bride Murphy of Bell Island. The groom was supported by his brother, Lieut. L. C. Murphy, 1st Nfd. Regiment. Following a wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left for Holyrood and will tour other Conception Bay points on their honeymoon. Their numerous friends wish them unclouded happiness.

GOURLEY-GLYNN.

A very pretty wedding took place at 3.30 yesterday afternoon in St. Patrick's Church when Mr. John Gourley of the Plaiddealer staff was united in the bonds of marriage to Miss Catherine Francis Glynn, daughter of the late Mr. Mark Glynn of Bay Bulls. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Renouf. The groom was supported by Mr. M. J. O'Brien, while Miss Agatha Gatheral acted as bridesmaid. After the ceremony the happy couple, accompanied by a number of friends and relatives, proceeded to the home of Mrs. Gourley, Pleasant Street, and partook of the wedding feast. The bride, who is very popular among her friends, received many valuable and useful presents. The happy couple left by the Trepassey train at 5 p.m. yesterday for Bay Bulls where the honeymoon will be spent. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Gourley many years of married happiness.

A Tunnel Attack.

(By "Tunneller.") For several days the tunnellers had been busy day and night putting in the charge of explosive to blow up the mine.

It was no small undertaking, for the gallery in which it was laid was over a hundred yards from the shaft or outlet and only measured about 2 ft. high by 30 in. wide.

All the explosive had to be carried very carefully and placed in position, and the Boches were working so very close to us that it was imperative to make no noise or the whole business would be given away.

After the explosive a quantity of "stemming," consisting of sandbags well filled with clay and rubbish, had to be built up to prevent the force of the explosion following the line of least resistance and simply expending its force along our own gallery and probably damaging our own lines.

This particular mine was so close to the German trenches that you could hear their rifle-bolts 'click' as they unloaded after firing. Moreover, with a view to blowing a ready-made communication trench the mine was so close to the surface that the concussion from the explosion of even the lighter shells from our guns falling short and anywhere near us put all the candles out.

One of the greatest difficulties connected with these operations is to ventilate the galleries and avoid the noise made by mechanical ventilators or fans, and, as the "stemming" has to be passed from hand to hand to ensure quiet, the number of men necessary in a gallery a hundred yards long is so considerable that the air is rarely good enough to allow a candle to burn.

In this instance we were also without electric lamps, and the work had to be done almost entirely in the dark—at any rate, during the last twenty-four hours.

The infantry attack was timed to begin at 4.30 a.m., and the mines had to be exploded at 4.29 a.m., so that the infantry might rush forward under cover of the smoke from the explosion.

In these circumstances it was very important to have our watches set to the exact time of the Brigade Headquarters so that there would be no confusion and that our infantry might not start too early and be blown up by our own mines. The strain of the last few minutes waiting for the exact moment to come was very trying.

However, we had just "one difficulty on top of another" to contend with, and it was 4.25 a.m. before we were actually ready to fire. So that we had only four minutes to spare.

At this time it was simply raining shells and trench mortars all around, and in the darkness before dawn the vivid flashes of our own guns, as well as those of the bursting German shells, blazed out, even though the air was thick with the fumes and reek of the explosives.

Still, our men, who had put in such strenuous work for so many hours, were glad when they were ready to get away, and left the front line to go down the communication trench with as little concern as ever they did, despite the fact that these communication trenches and the second and reserve lines, are always constantly bombarded during an attack to try to prevent reserves coming up to the front line.

Fortunately they all got out without a scratch, but they dropped a quantity of their "tackle"—hammers, saws, airpicks, shovels, and the like—in their hurry, as I discovered afterwards when I left after firing the mines.

The time came at last, and we pushed down the handles of the exploders. So great was the concussion of the shells dropping at the time that for the life of me I thought the charge had failed, though such a charge or series of charges as we were firing was sufficient to shake down dug-outs several hundred yards away.

To make sure we hurriedly changed the connections on the batteries, using three exploders for each separate charge, and then when our minute's grace was almost up we gave up troubling further and came out from our improvised shelter, feeling that we had failed.

How pleased we were to meet a cheery captain as we went along the front line towards the communication trench, who told us the mine had exploded splendidly!

The captain was new in the same state of excitement awaiting his time to lead his men over the parapet and across to the German lines as we had been waiting for 4.29 a.m.

He was the captain of the second line, who were now manning the front line trench, while the front line fellows were already in No Man's Land lying hidden in a ditch.

had taken the first three lines of German trenches.

The sappers, too, had rushed out, and with pick and shovel were busy making the connection blown by our mine into a communication trench by which ammunition and reserves could be brought forward to the line.

This work brought to light the fact that we had blown in a German gallery within four feet of our own and had killed at least four Germans by the explosion—how many more there might have been in their demolished gallery one could not say.

For our part, tired out by the exertions of the previous few days, it was not long before we were back at billets and fast asleep, and it was a most pleasant reflection as we lay down to rest that we had carried out our work with the best possible results and without a casualty of any kind.

"Living It Down."

Almost every music-hall star aims at playing Hamlet or Ophelia eventually, so that it is no matter for wonder that Charles Heber Clark, who lately died at a ripe old age, should have spent over thirty years of his life in living down the tremendous reputation he made as Max Adeler.

He was the son of a parson, but the comic spirit got the better of the atmosphere of the manse, and he convulsed two continents with "Elbow Room" and "Out of the Hurly-burly," two of the funniest books ever written.

As a humorist he had the world at his feet, when his serious side suddenly rebelled, kicked the humorous side out of doors, and tried to forget it had ever lived there. Charles Heber Clark resided in "despising Max Adeler to the day of his death.

Exactly a similar thing happened to another great humorist, Bret Harte.

In a happy moment he wrote a poem called "The Heathen Chinee," which commenced, "Which I beg to remark and my language is plain."

It struck a new note. The world had never read a poem like that before. It made Bret Harte's name. Yet he hated to be told so, and tried to live it down.

Browning and Byron were so ashamed of their juvenile efforts in verse that they both tried their best to destroy the copies. Browning succeeded. It is a remarkable fact that not a single copy of Browning's immature work remains. He actually succeeded in living it down—by burning every copy!—Answers.

ION. DRY GOODS DEPT.

Exactly a similar thing happened to another great humorist, Bret Harte. In a happy moment he wrote a poem called "The Heathen Chinee," which commenced, "Which I beg to remark and my language is plain."

It struck a new note. The world had never read a poem like that before. It made Bret Harte's name. Yet he hated to be told so, and tried to live it down.

Browning and Byron were so ashamed of their juvenile efforts in verse that they both tried their best to destroy the copies. Browning succeeded. It is a remarkable fact that not a single copy of Browning's immature work remains. He actually succeeded in living it down—by burning every copy!—Answers.

A Dirge.

(By Felicia Hemans.)
 Rest on your battle-fields, ye brave
 Let the pines murmur o'er your grave,
 Your dirge be in the moaning wave—
 We call you back no more.

O there was mourning when ye fell,
 In your own vales, a deep-toned knell,
 An agony, a wild farewell—
 But that hath long been o'er.

Rest with your still and solemn fame;
 The hills keep record of your name,
 And never can a touch of shame
 Darken the buried brow.

But we on changeful days are cast
 When bright names from their place fall fast;
 And ye that with your glory passed
 We cannot mourn you now.

Methodist Conference.

Special to Evening Telegram.
 GRAND BANK, June 29.
 The Conference paid a touching tribute this morning to the memory of the Rev. George Paine.
 Rev. Dr. Curtis reported a most successful year in the educational department. He advocated better ventilation, medical visitation, physical drill, advanced courses of study, and improvements in the methods of training teachers.
 Rev. T. B. Darby, B.A., lectures to-night on Bishop Ashbury.
 OFFICIAL REPORTER.

Also Praises Grenfell.

S. S. DIANA,
 St. John's,
 June 30, 1916.
 Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Erroneous reports have appeared in certain papers of this city in connection with Dr. Grenfell and the Deep Sea Mission. I have had the pleasure of seeing the doctor and I know of his work, both in Labrador and Northern Newfoundland, also hospitals and the Mission Ship. Knowing what I do about this grand work it gives me a great pleasure in confirming the statement made by Mr. Robert Jones of yesterday's issue; every word is true to the core. Gentlemen, I can truly say it has been a God-send to both natives of Labrador and the people of Northern Newfoundland, and to the fishing fleet. Thousands of people have been given medical assistance, who, if it hadn't been for Grenfell would probably have died. We are deeply indebted to Grenfell for his self-sacrifice, where otherwise he might have stayed at home and made good in his profession. His work on the isolated shores of Labrador will stand in remembrance in the hearts of every fisherman and Labrador native as long as Terra Nova remains. Yours truly,
 GEORGE BARBOUR.

Amusements.

AT THE POPULAR CRESCENT.
 A two reel Biograph: "Love's Enduring Flame" is the feature the Crescent Picture Palace is showing to-day, Claire McDowell and Alan Hall are featured supported with a strong Biograph, cast. G. M. Anderson features in "Broncho Billy's Love Affair," a strong Essanay drama. The principal streets and buildings of Greater New York are shown in "Verona Howe Bally's Sketch Book." "Camping Out at the Canadian Rockies" is a beautiful scenic film. The celebrated English musical hall comedian, Billie Reeves' features in "Blaming the Duck," a great Lubin Comedy. Professor McCarthy plays a new program of music for this big show. The usual big matinee will be on Saturday; send the children to the popular Crescent.

"OVER SECRET WIRES" AT THE NICKEL.

The week-end programme at the Nickel Theatre is one of the greatest interest and we feel certain will attract very large audiences. The feature film is a four-part powerful social drama entitled "The Ring of the Borgeses" by the Edison Co. Margaret Prussing, Augustus Phillips, Richard Tucker and Carlton King are featured in the principal characters. The comedy is "The Faith of Sunny Jim" by the Vitagraph Co. Another great drama to-day is "Over Secret Wires," a thrilling detective story. The regular bumper matinee takes place to-morrow afternoon for children. Extra pictures will be shown.

HEAD WAITER: Yessir, we are a bit old fashioned, as you say—but we find people like it so long as we make them comfortable. I haven't heard no complaints on that score.

GUEST: Good beds and good food, eh!

HEAD WAITER: Excellent beds and good wholesome food—comfortable Gas Fires and 'ot water in every room in the 'ouse.

GUEST:—Gas Fires, eh! That doesn't sound old fashioned.

HEAD WAITER: No, sir, it don't. But we 'ad to move with the times, sir, and it's our business to give people what they want. If you'll excuse me, sir, that 'ave been 'ere all my life, I find that our people mostly want 'ot baths, 'ot water, well cooked food, good fires, good beds and no fussing. We couldn't do that with coal—not satisfactory as I may say. So we puts in gas—everywhere. We cooks by gas, we lights by gas, we 'eats the water by gas and we 'as Gas Fires. 'So you can 'ave a 'ot bath in ten minutes if you want it, sir, a fire in your bedroom and whatever you like to order for dinner, sir, punctual to the minute.

GUEST: That sounds top-hole—but where's the old-fashioned part come in?

HEAD WAITER: It don't come in, sir, so far as that's concerned. But there's the 'ouse, the furniture, the pictures and—if I may say so—the 'omeliness of the place.

GUEST: (a trifle bored) Well, well I'll have that hot bath right away—if you'll got the bathroom ready.

HEAD WAITER: The bathroom 'is ready, sir, always. There's plenty of 'ot water, you'll find clean 'ot towels in the 'ot cupboard in the bathroom and the Gas Fire lighted in your room.

GUEST: Right O!—and dinner at 8 sharp, please!

HEAD WAITER:—What'll you 'ave, sir,—a nice sole, leg of mutton and sweets?

GUEST: Well, if that isn't troubling the cook too much—I'm rather late, I'm afraid.

HEAD WAITER: No trouble at all, sir. You see, sir, our kind of comfort means comfort for us as well as our people. We don't 'ave no coals to carry, no fires to make up, no bathrooms to attend to—This 'ere gas, if I may say so, saves money and time, and—

GUEST: You may say so at dinner time, please, I'm off to have that bath . . . (ascends stairs slowly) . . . Decent old boy, though he does talk a lot; and a real nice place. Thank heaven, I've struck a decent billet at last! (The bathroom door bangs sharply.)
