CHAPTER VII
IN LOVE'S LIGHT.

While the two have been communing, Pilatus has reappeared—the lake, at first gloomily and darkly, throws back the reflection of the hills; then, from the far west, streams outward a fanlike radiance from the dying sun, and slowly, gradually, the sky clears.

Slowly, happily, hand-in-hand the two, for whom that mist has brought so much of new and wondrous joy, descend the narrow path.

They are silent now, but each has for the other more than words in the close clinging of the hand, the lingering tenderness in the glances that meet and part to meet again. It is all dreamland as yet, but to them it seems as if there would be no waking.

The king of day, sinking slowly but surely, throws his arm upward with a gesture of defiance, and covers the near and distant hills with his purple mantle—then dies. It is twilight; before long it will be dark, and they are still far from home.

Edna looks down the path. "There is the last of the sun—for to-day; happy day! It seems to me as if everybody must know, and that they will all stare at me when we meet them—if we do," and she laughs a low, contented laugh.

"We must," says Cyril, "or the steamer for Lucerne will be gone, and we shall be left on this desert island."

"Like Robinson Crusoe. I can walk faster. Oh, no, I am not tired." But her face betrays her words; nothing is more fatiguing than excitement, and of that surely the child has had full measure and running o'er.

"I could carry you," suggests Cyril, longingly.

"It would only be a fitting termination," responds Edna, with a blush and a smile. "I can go much faster—poor auntie, what a state she will be in; perhaps they have already started a hue and cry; she will be so delighted to see us, and," with accented inflexion, "so surprised."

Cyril pulls his mustache. He had been so wrapt in his happiness that he had forgotten Aunt Martha. Edna's speech roused him.

Certainly Mrs. Weston would be surprised, but would she be pleased? The question did not receive a very satisfactory answer; the more Cyril considered the position, the less hopeful did it seem.

Edna looked up at last and pressed his arm.

"How silent you are—are you thinking, and of what?"

"Of you," says Cyril, pressing her arm.

"Of me; what an unsatisfactory subject. Of what are you thinking? Are you thinking," with a sudden questioning glance, "that it would have been better after all if we had gone down with the Robinsons?"

It is so difficult to believe that this great, handsome giant can really love her.

"Oh, sweet, silly goose," responds Cyril. "I was thinking—hoping, rather, that you hadn't any money; that you were quite poor, you know, as poor as I am."

Edna laughs. Real poverty she has never known, so it is easy to laugh.

"Dispel all doubts," she says, lightly; "we are as poor as mice, Aunt Martha and I. Oh, quite poor."

"Come," says Cyril, "that's good so far."

"But I can't see why you should rejoice in our poverty," replies Edna, stroking his wrist, which she still has on.

"Can you not?" says Cyril. "What a little ignoramus it is! Let us suppose, for an instant that you were rich—an heiress, in fact—don't you think that would make some difference?"

"Oh, yes," she says, with a half sigh, "it would be so much nicer. Ah, I wish I were rich; it would be so sweet to bring it all to you, and say, 'See, here is some more rubbish to go with the other rubbish, meaning me.'"

Who can resist the arch, innocent face, the eyes in which the tears of a new-born love-tenderness are trembling?

"All that is very well, as far as you are concerned," says Cyril, with a slightly rueful look; "but you don't suppose they'll let me have you—your people, you know?"

"Would they not?" says Edna, quietly; "then I am glad I am poor. There is nothing to come between us."

"Nothing shall!" says Cyril, and the quiet determination of the tone calls up the color to her cheek.

"I like you when you speak like that," she murmurs.

There is silence for a moment; Cyril is still looking to future and probable impediments to the free course of his first true love.

No Luck for Him

This child won't play or smile. He is real sick. His tongue is white, breath feverish, stomach sour. He fears he is in for a dose of awful castor oil, calomel or pills. How he hates them. He would rather remain sick. No! He won't tell mother!

If his mother would only learn the value of candy "Cascarets." How children love this candy candy—how surely it acts on liver and bowels.

TO MOTHERS! Each ten cent box of Cascarets contains full directions for dose for children aged one year old and upwards. Nothing else "works" the nasty bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison from the tender little bowels so gently, yet so thoroughly. Even, cross, feverish, bilious children gladly take Cascarets without being coaxed, Cascarets taste just like candy. Cascarets never gripe, never sicken, never injure, but above all, they never disappoint the worried mother.

REASONS

Why you should use Zam-Buk instead of ordinary ointment.

1st. Because Zam-Buk has a superior soothing and healing power. This is due to its unique composition. Zam-Buk is composed exclusively of herbal extracts and vegetable oils and is 100% medicine.

2nd. Because Zam-Buk cures are permanent. This is owing to the fact that the oils and extracts of which Zam-Buk is composed are so blended and refined that its power of penetration is extraordinary. While ordinary ointment remains on the surface skin, Zam-Buk literally soaks through to the underlying tissues, and destroys skin diseases at their very roots. In this way, only, can a permanent cure be effected.

3rd. Because Zam-Buk is anti-septic. In other words, germs cannot live where Zam-Buk is applied. This prevents any possibility of festering or blood-poisoning.

4th. Because Zam-Buk is pure. Its purity is due to its herbal composition, and this particularly commends Zam-Buk to mothers.

5th. Because Zam-Buk is economical. Owing to its freedom from animal fat, Zam-Buk cannot become rancid. It is, therefore, just as good to the last application.

The reliability of this herbal remedy has established it as the household balm wherever it has been used for eczema, ringworm, abscesses, ulcers, running sores, bad legs, blood-poisoning, piles, boils, pimples, burns, scalds, cuts, chapped hands or chilblains. All dealers, etc. box.

"And is Aunt Martha to be told all to-night?" he asks, bending down and kissing the pale little forehead.

Edna nods.

"Why not? Why should I not make her happy? There has never been anything between Aunt Martha and me."

"Do I not know that, my darling?" responds Cyril, with an inward thrill of gratitude at the spotless purity of her young life. "But, this is a strange, cold kind of world, of which you know so little, birdie, and I who know too much of it, am looking for the enemy, for there is generally a battle to be fought before one gets such a prize as my Edna. Do you really think Aunt Martha will be as pleased as you pretend to be, little one?"

"Why not?" says Edna thoughtfully. "Auntie is always happy to see me happy; she has never denied me anything since—since I was born. Oh, no!" Then she stops short and looks up at him with a swift glance of apprehension. "Of what are you thinking? Do you think that something will happen when we go to London—at the lawyers—to come between us?"

She has put his half doubt into words, and Cyril nods.

Edna stands pale and almost breathless.

"Don't look so frightened, my darling," he says, reassuringly; "but I wish I knew more about this coming interview. You see I am not altogether a suitable sweetheart for anyone; perhaps, who knows, there may be something in these coming revelations that may render me less so than ever."

He has been following out the train of thought more to himself than to her, but she listens, wrapt in a kind of apprehensive terror. Instinctively her clasped hands grow tighter.

"Do you really think so—do you mean—" with a little stare and smile of incredulity—"that anyone would think you were not good enough?"

"That's it!" says Cyril, with humble emphasis. "Ah, you see, I know the world better than you do, Edna; it's a queer world, but—" with a sudden fervor—"it shall never part us, little darling! say that, Edna, my Edna!"

"Yes, I am yours," she says, looking up at him; "and—and it shall never part us."

Cyril looks down at her, as he holds her to him, wistfully.

"Edna," he says, "I am not satisfied yet; some uneasy demon seems to whisper evil prophecy in my ear. Give me to-night to think over matters—one clear night—then let me tell Aunt Martha in the morning!"

All Edna's love asks for at present is an opportunity for displaying obedience. She inclines her head dutifully to her lord and master.

"If you wish it, you shall tell Aunt Martha in the morning. Dear auntie."

Talking as only lovers and such lovers can talk, they reach Wegg's at last, and find an anxious, curious and not altogether amiable group awaiting them.

There is not much time for questioning, for the steamer is puffing and snorting at the quay, and the passengers are already hurrying on board; and Miss Robinson, who looks very tired and frigid and disagreeable, finds time to say, in a mock sympathetic voice:

"So sorry for you, my dear Miss Weston—so very sorry! Of course, it was an accident, but no one will ever believe it. It is quite dreadful to think of—all the afternoon alone, quite alone, with a comparative stranger! I know how dreadfully you must feel it."

It is not the only stab or claw from talons pushed out beyond the velvet, but Edna makes no retort or defense—all the spiteful little arrows which those of the party who are of her sex let fly at her strike a-slant and roll from her as water from a duck's back; she nestles under the wing of Aunt Martha, too glad to have regained her to think of reproaches or questions even, and is silent.

As for Cyril, he offers no explanation of the simple truth, and takes himself and a cigar to the other end of the vessel.

It is close upon dusk when the steamer reaches Lucerne, and Cyril, though he gets as close as he can to the landing gangway, and succeeds in securing Edna's hand, cannot put in a word; for Aunt Martha has suddenly awakened to a sense of her responsibility and the danger that may attend this too close companionship of handsome strangers, and does not give Master Cyril a chance to hedge in a whispered word. Indeed, it almost seems that he has seen the last of her for that day, for Aunt Martha requests that the tea for herself and niece may be served in her own room; and Cyril, as a last resource, takes to watching under the balcony—that balcony on which he first saw her—on the chance that she may divine his presence by the instinct of love—or the aroma of his cigar.

One of the two does attract her; for just when Cyril has smoked his third cigar, and is inclined to retire in despair, the window opens, and a voice, soft and musical, whispers:

"Are you there? I have come to say good-night."

"Good-night!" echoes Cyril, with dismay. "Are you not coming down again?"

"No, not to-night," she replies, with a little sigh; "auntie is tired, very tired, and has a bad headache—all my fault, and I am to stay upstairs and be scolded." Another sigh. "Is it beautiful and cool out there?"

"Yes," says Cyril.

"I wish I were there, but no—I must not. Hush! that is auntie's voice. Good-night," and she bends with lithe grace over the iron railing of the balcony.

"Mrs. MAY COULD NOT WORK"

Made Well and Strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbia, Pa.—"I was very weak and run down and had dragging-down pains and pains in my back. I could not get around to do my work and had to sit down and rest oftentimes during the day. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers and read the testimonials, so I thought I would try it. Now I am healthier than I ever was in my life, and can recommend it to any woman who suffers as I did."

—Mrs. ELIZABETH MAY, R.F.D. No. 1, Columbia, Pa.

The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills is because it contains the tonic, strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism.

Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strengthening, curative influence, and the letters which we are constantly publishing from women in every section of the country prove beyond question the merit of this famous root and herb medicine.

2681—This attractive little model has simple lines and is easy to develop. The overblouse may be omitted. It is arranged on a plain gathered waist and skirt, which could be of contrasting material. The waist portions covered by the blouse may be of lining, if one wishes to economize on the material. Serge, suitings, velvet, corduroy, and all wash fabrics are good for this style.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 12 will require 3 1/2 yards of 44-inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A COMFORTABLE WORK DRESS.

2474—Galates, khaki, seersucker, percale, gingham and chambray are nice and serviceable for this style. The front closing is a practical feature of this one-piece garment. The belt confines the fulness at the waistline. This is a good model for a "food conservation" or canning costume.

The Pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 6 1/2 yards of 38 inch material.

The Evangelists.

(I. C. M.)

With two days' services to report, and with not more than a column of space at our disposal, it is somewhat of a problem what to say, or what not to say. However, we must only do our best, by putting much in little.

The Sunday afternoon service for young people, was truly a splendid one, and it was attended by nearly two thousand persons, all ranging in age from fifteen to twenty-five. The order and attention all through the service was remarkable, and continued so until its close. The story of the Saviour beginning his ministry at Nazareth was read from St. Luke's Gospel, and the lessons drawn from it were all in keeping with early life, and its beginnings. No phase of public speaking requires more discretion, nor needs greater discernment than that of addressing young people; and not many possess the talent to do so. But Mrs. Demarest is equally at home with an audience of juveniles as with more mature people, and so on Sunday she made the best of her opportunity and imparted a message, of which every one present is the benefactor.

Of course it was a golden opportunity, not only for the gentle Evangelist, but for any one engaged in similar work. There were the hundreds of young lives, all beating with hope, and all full of trust and confidence. These dear young people were from the homes of our city, and upon them had been bestowed the love of parents and the care of guardians; and their welfare and future are of more value than all the wealth of all the banks of all the cities. No amount of money could purchase one of these lives, and those who love them know their real worth—for every one of them is dear to some heart, and they are all dear to the community. How important then it is that their religious and moral training be helped, and how nice to know that the service which Mrs. Demarest rendered them was of such a high character, and was so well prepared by her, and so judiciously conducted in every degree. We thank the good Evangelist for her help in this particular phase of our juvenile life.

The night service was like that of the afternoon in attendance; only it was over-attended. The ushers indeed had a difficult task. We committed the indiscretion of violating their instructions; but they were on the alert, and quickly made us toe the line. As announced, the subject of the discourse was "The new version of the Prodigal Son." The story itself is full of meaning, and has long been a favorite theme with Evangelists; but when a new version of it was announced there seemed an added interest. As every reader knows, the fifteenth of Luke is the Scripture which contains the record of this parable; and so it was read by way of lesson. Then followed the preacher's new version of it—with every eye centred, and dead stillness reigning supreme. It was indeed a sight; every seat occupied, and some three hundred people standing. Who would not be at their best? Who would not rise to the occasion? Whoever might not, Mrs. Demarest did. In the form of a Bible reading she took up the thread of her appeal and pressed home the lessons of the parable in her own convincing style. The departure of the younger boy into the far country and his fall and degradation, and then his awakening of conscience, and his resolution to return home, and his arrival, and his father's reception and kiss of forgiveness were all arrayed in dramatic order; and it was easy for everyone to see what a great lesson the parable contained—a lesson for modern city life, as well as for individual and personal character; for we sometimes seem to forget that there are modern prodigals as well as ancient. We read the parable and leave it there in the Bible; but forget to see its sequel in the twentieth century.

It was, perhaps, in the person of the elder brother that the new version of the parable was given. We have heard a lot of speculation about the elder brother, and who and what he represented. His place has not so often been defined as has that of the prodigal brother; he has had to take a back seat with a good many preachers—or we had better say, no seat at all. But last night he got admittance into the discourse, and he was shown to occupy the place of the man who serves God for what he can get out of it. He was a service of self. It mattered not about others so far as he was concerned. No matter who went astray, or who wandered, or who resolved to reform. He was all right. He was safe at home. The more someone else wandered the more would he have for himself. His religion was self! self! self!!! and his cry was me!! me!!! At this point the Evangelist was at her best, and her comparison of the spirit of the penitent younger brother, and the selfish elder brother, and the attitude of the Redeemer when He said, "Our Father, who art in Heaven, hallowed be THY Name, THY Kingdom Come, THY Will be Done," was the climax of her discourse. Yesterday's Thanksgiving Service. The united service held at Gower Street Church yesterday morning, was largely attended, and was well worthy Thanksgiving Day. The city ministers were present and all took part. As was becoming, the leadership was in charge of the President of the Conference, Rev. Dr. Curtis, and he also delivered the address; taking as his text that great Old Testament Hebrew word, Hallelujah, which means Praise ye the Lord. In earnest words, and with true Christian patriotism, the rev. Doctor gave his message, and reviewed the four years of warfare, and showed how, here in Newfoundland, we had been blessed. True, we had paid the price in a measure; but we had much to call forth thankfulness, and not only was this the case in a local sense; it was more so in a national, and in an international sense. The turn which the war had taken and the events which finally led up to victory, were more than common—they were more than happenings; for all had a Divine significance, and revealed the purpose of God in the war. The Doctor made a deep impression as he spoke. It could not otherwise be. What he said was worthy of being heard throughout the whole of Newfoundland; and wider still, it was worthy the audience of the empire. It was a great pronouncement, and could only come from a man of profound thought and mighty soul. We thank the rev. Doctor for his words, and as President of the Methodist Conference of Newfoundland, we congratulate him.

Resize or Idealize.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Molly, the little stenographer lady who is a person given to strong admirations, had been pointing out to us the wonderful qualities of a new friend. The latter seemed to us quite admirable but not so altogether wonderful as she plainly thought her.

"Molly," said the Authorman's wife, who is a person not given to strong admirations, unless perhaps you expect one for whom she was a thorough-going approval, (if there is any reader who is old enough to be familiar with "Over the Hill to the Poor Farm," I am sure he or she will be reminded of a stanza in that poem): "I am a afraid you are idealizing again. You know you are always doing that."

Do You Idealize?
The lady smiled down at Molly who was in her usual seat on the footstool by the fire. "I don't know Molly," she said, "perhaps sometimes it's idealizing and perhaps other times it's realizing, discovering the good qualities that the rest of us haven't sharp enough eyes to see."

"Sharp enough eyes," echoed the Authorman's wife. "Most people wouldn't call Molly's eyes sharp, they'd call them the reverse."
"I know that," said the Lady.
And simple as the words were there was something in them that seemed to content Molly. The Lady has the gift of saying much in little. She also has the gift of making people think.

Which Eyes Are Sharp?
Why is it, I have found myself wondering, that we are always ready to call the eyes that can see faults sharp and the eyes that see virtues dull?
Why do we speak of the author who sees the good and the beautiful in life as an idealist and of the one who sees the ugly and commonplace and tiresome as a realist?

Can one not realize the good and the beautiful as well as the ugly and unpleasant?

Unfair Labels!
But if one expects too much, you remind me, one is sure to be disappointed (as Scott puts it, "We build statues of snow and weep to see them melt.") True, and yet I think I have as often been surprised to find people better than I thought them, as in finding them worse.

Sometimes the word labels we put on things or conditions do harm because they carry an undesired stigma. I am inclined to think "Idealize" is such a word.

THE CHAMOIS TREATMENT.

We have all perhaps tried the milk treatment, the buttermilk diets and various other treatments, but how many have heard of the chamois treatment. It is a local treatment for the complexion and very good.

The woman who motors much is advised to give her skin the chamois treatment. The skin is warmed with a hot towel and is then covered with real cream, though cold cream may be used if more convenient, or any good or cleansing skin food. This is spread upon the face and while moist it is rubbed off with a prepared chamois leather.

To prepare the leather take a strip about eight inches wide and eighteen inches long and wet it well with warm water. Wring it out and while it is still moist rub soap into it, using the best toilet variety. Rub the whole chamois well with soap until it is lathery, then hang it up to dry, when it will be soft and fine and ready for use upon the skin.

The way to polish the face with a chamois leather closely resembles the polishing of the toe of a shoe. The chamois leather is taken by its ends and scowled across the face, using as much force as possible. By this vigorous exercise the skin is made fine, clean and soft.

A powerful factor in treating the complexion is the collar. If it is worn loose the face will be much clearer. A tight collar will make the veins in the neck swell and will red- den the nose. Sometimes the mere loosening of the collar will change a poor skin into a good one.

A remedy that is severe but effective in certain cases of dust-covered complexions consists of a cut lemon squeezed into half a cupful of water. Half a teaspoonful of borax is added to this, and the whole is rubbed upon the face, only to be mopped off immediately with the softest of cold cream.

GETTING AND GIVING.

Getting and gaining are weary tasks; Giving and lending delight us more.

Much the strife for possession asks, Leaving us battered and bruised and sore.

He that labors for selfish gold Soon grows old.

Taking and keeping are duties stern, Sapping the strength of us day by day;

Piercing the fires of our ardor burn, Eating our glorious youth away.

He that fights for a selfish prize Soonest dies.

Having and holding exhaust us all; Deeply stamped are their lines of care;

Ceaslessly for our strength they call, Stripping our souls of their garments fair.

He that battles for self-renewal Soon breaks down.

Giving and lending are joyous tasks, Keeping us youthful and blithe and strong.

Kindness but little of courage asks, And its days are fair and its life is long.

Not he that gains, but he that gives, Longest lives.

A Sad Xmas.

An English paper says: It would be difficult to imagine a sadder Christmas than that of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Black, of Clab-row, Coalville, Leicestershire, who, in a little over a week lost five of their children from influenza and after effects. On 24th they buried their daughter, Julia Ann, 16, and a few days before there had been two double funerals from their house, Leonard 4, and Hilda 5, being buried together in Coalville Cemetery; also Bertha 9, Annie 13. Mr. and Mrs. Black have also had a son killed in the war, and of a family of twelve children only two now survive. The husband was formerly a collier, but has not been able to work for some years, owing to illness.

Chilled Fish From Newfoundland.

DEVELOPMENTS AHEAD.

A luncheon was given recently by the North Atlantic Fisheries Company at the Russell Hotel, Russell-square, to inaugurate the first shipment of Newfoundland chilled fish to Britain. The menu consisted of salmon, caplin, turbot, haddock, and cod, brought from Newfoundland a few days ago and specimens of the fish were on exhibition in the room. Dr. Lloyd (Prime Minister of Newfoundland) presided, and among those present were:—

Lord Morris, formerly Prime Minister of Newfoundland; Sir Edgar Bowring, (High Commissioner for Newfoundland, Mr. W. J. Howard Director of Fish Supplies, Ministry of Food), Mr. H. G. Maurice, Secretary of the Fisheries Department of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, Mr. Moreton Frewen (head of the British Empire Resources Commission), Mr. Cecil Harmsworth, and Sir John Taverner.

The Chairman said that owing to the war Newfoundland had been badly handicapped in regard to her fish and oil supplies. The Harmsworths had two steamers carrying paper and pulp products to this country, but these were taken away for other purposes, and that meant that their company had been running at a loss, which was not particularly good for the company or for Newfoundland. For four years, therefore, Newfoundland had practically been excluded from the British markets, while Norway and Iceland had received preferential treatment. They asked now for some consideration. They asked, for instance, that Britain would regard their produce—their foodstuffs—as worthy of acceptance. At present we were in a period of transition and difficulty all over the world with regard to foodstuffs and shipping, and if aid could be given by the Government to Newfoundland it was only what was due to them for the little bit they had done in the war. (Cheers.)

Lord Morris, who remarked that the fisheries of Newfoundland were more valuable than the gold mines of Peru, said that was the first time in the history of the Colony that they had sent any chilled fish out of the country. If they did away with the old method and adopted the new method of cold storage or chilled fish, the fishermen would be able to deal with three times the quantity without the cost of curing and of salting. For years he had been advocating this method, but he had found it very difficult to get people to take up these new ideas. The fish that had been brought over for that luncheon was brought largely owing to the efforts of Major Green, who during the war had been in charge of the department for bringing over Canadian fish for the Canadian Army. The British Press had always dealt sympathetically with Newfoundland affairs. Mr. Harmsworth—a brother of Lord Northcliffe and of Lord Rothermere, who had done so much to re-discover Newfoundland—and others present had been most sympathetic and interested in the matter. The only objection he had heard to the chilled fish that had been served at the luncheon was that it might be too fresh for the London market. (Laughter.)

A Large Outlook

Sir Edgar Bowring congratulated Lord Morris on what he had done to expand the fishery trade of Newfoundland. There was, he said, a very large outlook for that trade, especially now that it had been proved that fresh fish could be brought over. Newfoundland had attained a wonderful state of prosperity, and that position was likely to be maintained.

WILHELM WRITES.

WILHELM WRITES.

All day the exile sits and writes, and pauses not for food or drink; his pen goes on through weary nights; a boy's kept busy packing ink. What sort of themes do you select? What are you writing, Exile Bill—what gems of thought may we expect? I hope you won't attempt free verse; that sort of stuff is stale and dead, and it would bring an added curse to rest upon your jaded head. What write you when the night wind wails, and when the tempest booms and groans? Perhaps some little bedtime tales concerning blood and dead men's bones. How fine 'twill be if Bill devotes his genius to this sort of work! Kids need some spicy anecdotes of murders done by Tent and Turk. They're tired of rabbit, fox and owl, of animals that talk and weep; they want to hear of murders foul before they close their eyes in sleep. What kind of stuff do you produce, oh Wilhelm, writing all the time? A version new of Mother Goose, with morals tacked to every rhyme. Perhaps you're writing household hints for busy wives who wish to know just how to get the proper things, when dyeing, rags of years ago. Write on, until your hand is lame, the sparkling ink will be supplied; and writing is a harmless game—the only one you ever tried!

Judging from the tremendous quantity of fish of all sorts that abounded in her waters.

Mr. Moreton Frewen expressed the belief that the food problem of this country could be solved by the ocean. Unless we ate much more fish and much less meat we should arrive, he thought, at a very serious predicament. It had been said that the meat yield of a surface acre of the ocean was greater than the meat yield of 700 acres of the best Northamptonshire grass land. The Resources Commission were negotiating for the development of our fisheries, but they had come across a very strong prejudice in the case of Ireland and Scotland, who did not wish to centralize their fisheries. Never was there a greater mistake. It was only cultivated the waters and spent money with intelligence, the food supply would no longer present any problem. He believed that the consumption of fish could be increased from 1 1/2 oz per head per day to 7 oz, whereas the present average consumption of meat was 7 1/2 oz per day. If they thus brought down the quantity of meat consumed to 4 oz daily, and gave the State a penny a lb. for cold storage, they would get sufficient money to pay the Navy Estimates.

Sir William Coode promised to bring before the notice of the anti-trusts the question of supplying chilled fish.—The Times.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN SIGHT.

Man Colonies do not go Back--Industrial Unrest in Britain--Revolution in Portugal, Serious.

WILL NOT GIVE UP ST. PIERRE.

PARIS, Jan. 26. M. Gurnier, President of the League of Nations, said today in a speech before the League of Nations that he would not give up St. Pierre.

PARIS, Jan. 25. The Peace Conference today unanimously adopted the project to establish a League of Nations and named a committee to draft the complete plans. The conference opened this afternoon in the La Paix of the Foreign Office.

Wilson and the full American delegation at his right, and Premier Lloyd George and the British delegation at his left. The motion to adopt the League of Nations project was proposed by President Wilson. "Select classes of men no longer direct the affairs of the world," said the President, "but the fortunes of the world are now in the hands of the plain people. The wish of the people therefore must be heard. The war had swept away those old foundations by which small coteries had used mankind as pawns in a game. Nothing but emancipation from the old system would accomplish real peace." The President saw American soldiers in the street, soldiers who had come not alone for war, but as crusaders in a great cause, and he added, "I, like them, must be a crusader, whatever it costs, to accomplish that end." After declaring that the Conference was for the purpose of a settlement arising out of the war and to make peace for the world, President Wilson said, "A League of Nations seems necessary for both purposes. There are many questions which we feel cannot ultimately be worked out here that may require subsequent consideration, subsequent alteration even to some degree." He described how the war burden was borne by the people as well as by the armies, and said, "We are chosen by these sufferers to make peace secure for them and to see to it that the strain need never be borne again." At the conclusion of the reading of a translation of President Wilson's speech, Premier Lloyd George said, "I rise to second the resolution. After the noble speech of the American President I feel that no observations are needed in order to commend this resolution to the Conference, and I should not have intervened at all had it not been that I wished to state how emphatically the people of the British Empire are behind this proposal." The Italian Premier, Vittorio Orlando, followed Mr. Lloyd George. He declared that no people were readier to accept the League of Nations in its entirety than the Italian people. Leon Bourgeois, the veteran French supporter of the League of Nations, spoke next, pledging the French to do everything that can help to put us on the road, which has been pointed out by President Wilson. "I should like to ask," said Premier Hughes, of Australia, "if we are to have an opportunity to discuss this scheme when it is finished."

"Without any doubt," responded M. Clemenceau. The Chinese delegates added their support to the resolution, saying that China associated herself with the lofty ideals expressed. The Polish delegates and Camille Huysmans, of the Belgian delegation, added their strong approval. "Is there any objection to the resolution?" asked M. Clemenceau. There was no response, and he declared the resolution adopted.

DELEGATES OF THE GREAT POWERS.

PARIS, Jan. 26. The delegates of the Great Powers on the League of Nations, it was learned to-night, will be, for the United States, President Wilson and Col. E. M. House; Great Britain, Lord Robert Cecil and General Jan Christian Smuts; France, Leon Bourgeois and Ferdinand Larnaude; Italy, Premier Orlando and Vittorio Scialoja; Japan, Viscount Chinda and K. Ochiaki. The delegates of the small nations will be announced later.

FIRST STORM WEATHERED.

PARIS, Jan. 26. The Peace Conference on Saturday weathered its first storm, and under the inspiration of a speech by President Wilson and skilful guidance by M. Clemenceau, unanimously adopted resolutions declaring for a League of Nations. The Conference also went on record in favor of incorporating the League as an integral part of the general treaty of peace and admitting to the League "every civilized nation which can be relied on to promote its objects." Belgium, Roumania, Portugal, Brazil, Siam, China and Czechoslovakia protested against the various committees being largely restricted to the Great Powers, and asked for proportional representation privileges, particularly on bodies dealing with the League of Nations, Labor and reparation for war damages.

DEMobilizing.

LONDON, Jan. 27. (Via Reuter's).—Thirty thousand men are now being demobilized daily compared to eight thousand two weeks ago, while the rate of demobilization will shortly be forty thousand daily, it is announced. If this process be continued for two months, Britain would be left without organized bodies of disciplined troops in any part of the world wherein she has been involved during the war.

DISCUSSING FUTURE OF COLONIES.

LONDON, Jan. 27. (Reuter's).—The Daily Telegraph prints a Paris despatch on the method which the Peace Conference will follow to settle the territorial questions. The correspondent of the Telegraph says that it is now apparent that the first discussion will take place at a meeting of the representatives of the governments at the Quai D'Orsay. Whenever serious difficulties are met they are referred to a special commission instituted for the purpose. An initial application of the method was made on Friday when the colonial problems were examined for the first time. Except for a brief reference to East Africa towards the end of the meeting, no other subjects were discussed, except the fate of the German colonies in the Pacific. Premiers Hughes, of Australia, and Massey, of New Zealand, asked for the Anglo-Japanese agreement of 1917, allocating the German possessions south of the equator to Australia and New Zealand. They urgently explained the wonderful contributions of their respective countries and the necessity for some compensation therefor. Furthermore, they said every attempt to apply to the southern islands the right of self-determination would lead to a serious failure. The French are anxious to show their deep appreciation. Premier Clemenceau, especially, is on excessively cordial terms with the Dominion ministers. At the opening of the Conference, Premier Lloyd George, in agreement with President Wilson, stated that there was no question of returning the colonies to Germany. The only point of issue is whether the German colonies shall be placed under an international government or trusted to the management of a power with a mandate from the League of Nations. Discussions will be resumed to-day on this question, when French claims will be presented.

GERMANS BECOMING HAUGHTY.

PARIS, Jan. 27. It appears from accounts received here that the resignation of General Von Winterfeldt as a member of the German Armistice Commission was handed in because the General said his dignity and that of his country had been offended. Commenting on this the Paris newspapers characterized the resignation as part of a plan for a reactionary campaign. They point out that the German wireless service gives what they characterize as an "extremely insidious" account of the incident, indicating that the new Berlin government feels itself strengthened since the National Assembly election and the crushing of the Spartacists, and again feels free to use haughty language. The warm approval of General Winterfeldt's action expressed by the Berlin press, is indicated as another of the numerous symptoms of the revival of the German imperialistic spirit, which may be found in some degree in everything coming out of Germany. All the newspapers declare that the Allies will have to watch closely the efforts of conquered Germany to rise again, one of the commentators declaring, "the recently humble are again ready to become arrogant."

ALLIES RETIRE.

LONDON, Jan. 27. Allied forces on the front south of Archangel, mainly American and Russian troops, have evacuated the town of Shenkursk under Bolshevik pressure and withdrawn to a short line north of the town, according to an official statement from the British War Office to-day on operations in Northern Russia.

GERMAN ELECTION RESULTS.

PARIS, Jan. 27. The Frankfurt Gazette gives as the definite result of the elections to the German Assembly: 165 Social Democrats, 91 Centrists, 75 Democrats, 38 Conservatives, 22 National Liberals, and 23 Independents.

A BERLIN DISCOVERY.

BERLIN, Jan. 26. (By the A. P.).—The Bolshevik Telegraph Agency, Rosta, which was raided during the Spartacan rebellion, had a staff of seventy persons, including one woman, all of whom were drawing liberal salaries. The pay roll was headed by the former police chief, Eichhorn, with one thousand marks monthly. Eichhorn's wife drew 400 marks a month, while she also was on the city pay roll as her husband at police headquarters. While the Rosta ostensibly was a news exchange, an investigation has revealed the fact that it was carrying out elaborate propaganda activities.

INDUSTRIAL UNREST.

LONDON, Jan. 26. (Reuter's).—The air is full of strikes and the countryside industrial unrest looks like working to a serious climax. Following the refusal of the delegates of the blacksmiths, etc., to recommend a resumption of work, there is renewed threat of big strikes in the Clyde and in Belfast where the engineers and allied trades are demanding a forty-four hour of five days. In the case of the Clyde the Minister of Labor today urged the Clyde men to negotiate with their employers in pursuance of the policy followed in other trades disputes. Meanwhile the government refusal of the demand for recognition of a National Police Union may mean a serious police strike in London and the provinces. The Government's contention is that representative boards exist in London and many provincial districts where the men may obtain collective representation. The issue is regarded as most important. It is pointed that if the union be recognized the police will be subject to two authorities, namely, the law and the union, and the question is what will happen in the latter calling for a sympathetic strike. However, there is much public sympathy for the police, especially as regards better pay and general conditions. It is hoped some via media will be found in the matter of recognition.

SETTLING LABOR DISPUTES.

LONDON, Jan. 26. (Reuter's).—A meeting of the executive of the Police Union last night recommended the men to apply for an enquiry which has been promised by the authorities into the dismissal of three Midland Railway policemen. This decision has eased the situation and a strike is now considered unlikely. The strike of the Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire coal fields has ended, the employers withdrawing notices of men to be dismissed to make room for returned soldiers. The Clyde strike is also easier. It is expected that many shipyard workers will come out Monday for a forty-four week, but the stoppage of work will probably be nothing like the scale anticipated by its promoters; while the London headquarters of the Municipal Employees' Association refusal to issue strike pay is expected to prevent Glasgow municipal employees from joining the strike.

BOLSHEVIKS ON OFFENSIVE.

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 26. The Bolsheviks are now on the offensive with infantry or artillery, or both, against four of the seven thin columns of the Allies and Russians which have penetrated southward through the frozen forest swamps of the province of Archangel. Last night the enemy entered Shenkursk, while the rear column of Americans, Russians and British, which have evacuated Shenkursk marched in around in a detour over the deep snow on the road, evading a force of several hundred of the enemy, who waited on the main high road to trap the column in its retreat. Saturday the Bolsheviks attacked the Allied positions at Tar-essevo, a village distant some 40 miles of Shenkursk, and the sector between the Vaga river and the Voigda railroad. They were repulsed with heavy losses, the British, Russian and American troops fighting with such valor that the enemy column which attacked on the line of Tar-essevo, along the Kotchama road, retired in considerable disorder, leaving thirty men dead in the snow. On the night of the village an enemy column was spotted by the American artillery, and retreated under a reign of shells.

FEEDING VIENNA.

VIENNA, Jan. 25. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—A second train load of foodstuffs from the British army in Italy left Vincenza to-day and is expected to reach here on Wednesday next. The plans for the distribution of the first train load which arrived recently have now been completed and the work has already been begun under the supervision of Major Bahell, chief of the British military mission. As foodstuffs are still commanding fabulous prices in Vienna special precautions have been taken to prevent them falling into the hands of profiteers. The greater part of the provisions sent will be distributed free among the poorest of the city's population. In addition the military mission is continuing to furnish weekly ration for the six hundred British residents here. Arrangements have now been completed with Italy for the regular shipment of foodstuffs to Vienna. It is hoped that train load will arrive almost daily and that similar arrangements can be made with Switzerland so that before long Vienna's situation may be materially relieved.

THE SITUATION IN PORTUGAL.

PARIS, Jan. 27. Portuguese royalists are completely in control of the provinces of Minho and Tras Os Montes, according to a wireless despatch from Madrid to the Journal Des Debats. Advices to the same newspaper say that it is reported the Republican troops which were defeated by the Monarchists at Coimbra are about to go over to the cause of the monarchy.

LISBON, Jan. 24.

The fighting in Lisbon between the Republicans and the Monarchists has ended in a victory for the Republican forces. Travellers who have arrived here from Oporto say that a military airplane flew over the city Thursday and dropped proclamations warning foreign citizens to leave the city unless they wished to become victims of a hecatomb.

MADRID, Jan. 25.

The Republicans have captured Monsanto, 43 miles south east of Guarda, with a large number of Monarchist prisoners, according to despatches from Lisbon. The remainder of the Monarchists are in flight, leaving their artillery behind. Among the prisoners was Ayres Gromolas, representative of former King Manuel. Count Monsuraz, chief of the Integralists, was killed. Republican forces at Coimbra have marched northward and defeated the Monarchists at Aveiro.

The War Memorial.

Popular opinion in Newfoundland favors the erection of a suitable War Memorial to our gallant sons who fell in the Great War; a memorial to honor their sacrifice, and a credit to the country for whose safety and liberties they gave their lives; a memorial that will be in keeping with the victory which they so nobly served us for ever.

The form of that memorial has taken shape in the city of St. John's, but we have neither heard or read any expression from the outports, though some time has elapsed since the movement was set afoot. At a meeting in the Board of Trade Rooms, therefore it is to be assumed that the people, outside St. John's, approve the text of the resolution, moved at that meeting by Rev. Dr. Curtis, seconded by Dr. V. P. Burke and adopted.

In England the subject of war memorials to the soldiers is receiving enthusiastic support, and all the principal towns and cities are discussing the question of the most fitting and appropriate form such memorials shall take. It is not possible, in Newfoundland, to have more than the one, and it is quite clear that if it is to be along the lines of the resolution referred to, viz., an Educational Building, it will be of more valuable worth for the purpose intended, to have it erected within the limits of the capital. Everyone will, we think, be in entire agreement with this.

Having in view the paramount importance of developing the latent talents of the present and coming generations, educationally, and realizing the great need for broader and more comprehensive methods of teaching, the framers of the resolution incorporated into the third preamble, the following significant statement:

"The cause of education in Newfoundland is greatly in need of a building for the carrying on of such important work as the professional training of teachers, the development of technical and scientific proficiency, and the advancement of general education."

The lack of technical education has been one of the greatest drawbacks to the rising youth of this Dominion and in order to acquire advanced subjects, many of our young men have gone abroad, and in many cases have failed to return. The establishment of an educational institution which has for its object the training of teachers in scientific knowledge will remove the necessity for those who adopt the profession to leave home with the object of thoroughly equipping themselves to teach advanced subjects, which are not included in the teachers' curriculum in our present training schools. Not so very many years ago, it was generally accepted that for a child to have a working knowledge of the three R's was quite sufficient. But all that is changed to-day. The boys and girls are not content with a mere smattering. They are seeking something more than the bare rudiments, because they have come into the knowledge that to fight the battle of life in competition with others, they must first have a thorough education. This desire can only be granted them by the thorough training of their teachers, and the thorough training of teachers can only be accomplished by having (1) A modern Educational institution, and (2) Capable men who have made a life study of the best methods of training, in charge of the various departments.

The many difficulties under which at present, both the teachers themselves and their scholars labor, will be removed gradually if such an institution as suggested is established. It will not only be a monument to the memory of the men who died so gloriously on the field of honor, but an inspiration to those who enter its portals, whether as teacher or pupils, to engage in the work of educational reconstruction with the same desire to win, as animated those in whose honor and to whose immortal fame the building will be erected.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DISTEMPER.

Food Substitutes.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir: The application of a little unprejudiced reasoning to the question of Food Substitutes will serve to clarify the issue.

The plea of the importers is that, because the Food Control Board compelled them to sell substitutes, therefore the Board should, when such sale brings a loss, take the substitutes off their hands.

Let us examine this suggestion in order to insure justice both to the importer and the consumer.

As a matter of fact, the importer was not compelled to sell substitutes by the Food Control Board. He was compelled to sell substitutes by the same thing that compelled us to eat them and that is—the war. The Food Control Board had power neither to cause or to prevent the sale of substitutes. Its powers are purely administrative. It too is a chip in the current. By all the laws of business it was the duty of the importer to keep his stocks sufficiently low to prevent a loss which would destroy his former gains, when the end came. During the period when prices were rising and importers were assiduously following the market up, the inevitable plea by which they justified themselves was that they had to take the chances of loss when the market fell. Furthermore, losses contingent on the war are very general. I too, an ordinary citizen, have suffered losses directly traceable to the war; and I see no reason why the importer should not share with me, "the sweet uses of adversity."

But if there are any who will not see reason in this conclusion, let me place a simple sequence before them. Beyond the loss incident to worldwide conditions which all should share no one wishes the importer to suffer. He has a just claim for a just profit on his sales. This being true, it immediately follows that the profit on his complete turnover, including the disposal of his present stock, should be ascertained. If the Government ought to take cognizance of his losses, which are my gains, it is equally true that it ought to take cognizance of his gains, which are my losses. Government may not stop when it has prevented undue losses. It must proceed to stop undue profits. These two propositions stand or fall together.

Similarly, if it be the duty of the Government to protect the importer against loss, it is equally its duty to protect me against loss. I most sharply refuse to suffer loss in order to increase the importer's gains. I have suffered too much already in that direction and I suspect that the people are nearly all of the same mind.

Czarism produces Bolshevism in Newfoundland as in Russia—and both are very contagious.

Gillett.

Fogota Back.

S.S. Fogota, which has been on the Placentia-Port aux Basques service for the last nine months, arrived in port Sunday morning. In the meantime the Sagona is making the route from Placentia to Port aux Basques, calling at intermediate ports, and will relieve the Glencoe, now on the Cabot Strait service. On arrival of the Sagona at Port aux Basques, the Glencoe will come down the coast.

Doctor Wanted.

The people of Bay Bulls held a meeting on Sunday last for the purpose of considering the obtaining of a resident doctor for that section of the Southern Shore. Serious consequences have resulted from want of a doctor in critical cases. Dr. Chisholm, who is at present the physician, is residing at Manuels, and consequently can pay but flying visits to the residents of Willems Bay and Bay Bulls. Dr. Chisholm is well beloved by the people of that locality; he is doing his best under the circumstances, but the necessity of a resident physician is being more keenly felt every day. A doctor from town has now to be called and $30.00 is not always the smallest fee demanded. Child and mother are endangered very often, and we think that this should be a look-out of the Government, who should render all the assistance possible in this affair. Many trained nurses will be returning soon. Could some arrangement be made to have one in each outport, it would be a great blessing to all.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. Michael O'Reilly and family wish to express their sincere thanks to all who assisted them during their recent bereavement; also those who sent messages and notes of sympathy, and to the employees of G. Knowling's central store for a wreath.—adv.

"The Early Story of Newfoundland."

It is a lamentable fact that the youth of this country is, and always has been, very ignorant concerning the history of our native home and beyond a sprinkling of geography, have never learned a great deal about it in the schools. There are thousands of boys, and even men, in Newfoundland who do not know the date or year of the country's discovery by John Cabot, whereas the entire history of England and other countries can be repeated with ease. Numerous books have at different times been written on the history of this island, and most of them have been learned and interesting works,—to those who care to read them. The trouble has been, however, that most people have not cared to read them, for the reason that they were too learned, and lacked the personal and chatty style that can make the reader persevere with an attention and interest that would impress their contents on the mind. Recognizing this, Dr. W. W. Blackall, has just published a little but comprehensive account of the history of "The Early Story of Newfoundland." King's Printer, 10 cents. After reading this delightful little work, the reader cannot fail to be interested in the subject dealt with therein, and our forecast is that it will accomplish more in the way of making our story well-known to the young and growing generation, than all the other learned books taken together. A large portion of the book is rightly devoted to the unfortunate people who first inhabited the country,—the aboriginal Beothucks and Micmacs of Newfoundland. The story of the white man's cruelty, and his subsequent awakening to the fact that friendliness is always better and more productive than enmity, and absorbingly interesting account of the overtures made by the newcomers to the original owners of the country, the stories of the Redman's ingenuity, bravery and chivalry,—all are told with that chatty style that causes the reader to wish for more of it, and if the author could be persuaded to issue such another treatise, we feel sure that its sale would be secure. In typographical design, the book has taken a new departure for Newfoundland, and the way is shown for all who are lovers of the artistic and distinctive.

N. T. A.

The regular winter meeting of the N. T. A. was held at the Board of Trade Building, Saturday 26th inst. After the regular business of the meeting was disposed of, the matter of holding a Convention, the coming summer was taken up. It was felt by all present that a Convention of Teachers should not be further postponed. The last Convention was held about seven years ago, and for the war, a Convention would have been held in 1916. The present is a time of transition. Old methods and customs are giving place to new methods and new customs. It behoves the teachers then to get together and provide for these new conditions, and place what is to be the trend of our educational life in the new era now beginning.

It will be impossible to hold this Convention unless we have the support of the teachers. Every teacher who reads this should immediately write the Secretary, promising him and the Executive his support. All teachers who are in favor of holding a Convention the coming summer are requested to forward their names and addresses to the Secretary, Box 213, St. John's, with a request for particulars.

A Committee was appointed to interview the Government, and the result of the interview will be made known later.

In Memoriam.

JAMES WM. LONERGAN.

Yesterday deep regret was felt when it became known that James Wm., son of John and Elizabeth Lonergan, of this settlement, passed to his eternal reward, at the early age of 18 years. His death was due to meningitis, brought on by a severe cold. A week ago he was full of life and vigor, with the promise of years before him: to-day he is cold and motionless in the grave, thus verifying the words:—"In the midst of life we are in death." He was of a quiet and gentle disposition, most edifying and popular amongst old and young, his death is therefore regretted by all.

This afternoon, after prayers at the parish church, the mournful cortege, which was a large one, moved on to the nearby cemetery where now lies all that is mortal of a good and exemplary youth. We sympathize with parents, brothers and sisters, the host of relatives who now mourn their loss. Grieve not though he has left us, he is gone, indeed, we hope, to that eternal somewhere from which no one has ever yet wished to return. May he rest in peace.—Com.

Dodge Bros. motor car, since its introduction in the motor world, has given universal satisfaction, and is regarded as one of the best cars on the road. Nothing entering into its manufacture is of the best. The Company's policy has always been "Is it good enough for the Dodge?"

It is not the extreme freakish one year car sensibly built to give years of service and always look good. Real leather upholstery, 116 inch base, one-man top, 32 x 3 1/2 tires (rear non-skid), electric starting and lighting, all attest to the fact that the car is built up to a standard and not down to a price.

To-Day's Messages.

COLONIAL DAY AT CONFERENCE.

PARIS, Jan. 27. The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference met at 10.30 o'clock this morning. There was a full attendance of the members. A number of technical advisers on Colonial matters accompanied the various delegates as they entered the Foreign Office for the day's session.

PRESS EXCLUDED.

PARIS, Jan. 27. Two simultaneous meetings of Peace Conference delegates were held at the Foreign Office this afternoon. One was the session of the Supreme Council, consisting of the five Great Powers, while the other was attended by the smaller Powers. Both meetings were executive, and newspaper representatives were not admitted. The conference of representatives of the smaller Powers adjourned at five o'clock after a most agreeable and harmonious session. The delegates completed their representations to the conference committees without incident.

POWERS WILL RETAIN SOLDIERS.

PARIS, Jan. 27. The committee, appointed by the Supreme Council to consider how many Allied and American troops shall be kept on the Western front, held a meeting to-day and received reports from experts concerning the situation on the Rhine and in Germany. Progress, it is reported, was made in clearing up the situation, but much remains to be done before the committee is in a position to make a final recommendation to the Supreme Council concerning the exact number of soldiers of each nationality required for garrison purposes in Germany, and the maintenance of the frontier against any possible contingency. It is learned that the determination of the American troops now in Europe, to their homes, will not be affected by any decisions reached by the committee. There will be no departure from the plan arranged for the return of the troops, allowance having been made in advance for the retention in Germany and Russia of all American soldiers regarded as forming a fair quota for the United States.

In Memoriam.

On Jan. 21st, Mrs. Johannah Moriarty, loving wife of Mr. Joseph Moriarty, age 68 years, obeyed the summons of the Angel of Death and passed from this earthly abode to her eternal home. She had not enjoyed for the past months such perfect health as she wished for. Since then her friends grew anxious over her condition, and although she fondly cherished hopes of recovery yet to her friends, the end seemed inevitable, and her departure was not unexpected. A large gathering of friends and neighbours followed in funeral procession when the mortal remains were laid to rest in the family plot in the village cemetery. Besides her sorrowing husband, she leaves to mourn two sons, Patrick and Bernard, living at home, and four daughters, Mrs. Garrett Stamp, St. Vincent, Mrs. Luke Madden, St. John's, and Mrs. Mrs. Stein, New York, and Margaret at home, to all of whom we extend our sincere sympathy, and for the dear departed, we offer a fervent Requiem in Pace, St. Vincent's, Jan. 23rd., 1919.

Dr. Curtis Explains.

On Sunday evening in Gower Street Church, Rev. Dr. Curtis, Chairman of the Evangelistic Committee, made a statement respecting the terms on which the Evangelists came to St. John's. Owing to the distance from Chicago, a guarantee was given for part of the travelling expenses, as well as for their entertainment. Apart from this no guarantee was either asked or given, and they depend entirely upon the offerings of the last two weeks, together with any balance left from the collections of the first two weeks after expenses are paid for their remuneration. No Evangelists that ever came to St. John's said less about their income than those who have done; and the congregation is to be informed of every dollar they receive.

Death of Mrs. R. S. Munn

A cable message was received from Montreal last evening announcing the death of Mrs. R. S. Munn, widow of the late R. S. Munn, Esq., merchant of Harbor Grace. Mrs. Munn has been for several years residing in British Columbia and Montreal with relatives, and had reached the age of 73 years at the time of her demise. She was a daughter of the famous esq.-killer, Capt. Azariah Munden, of Brigus, and has left six sons and five daughters to mourn their great loss. Her son, R. S. Munn, who has visited his mother is still in Montreal, and will make arrangements to have the remains conveyed to Newfoundland, after which interment will take place in the family plot in the Presbyterian Cemetery of Harbor Grace, where rest all that was mortal of her departed husband. The funeral is expected to take place early next week, from her son's residence, Water St., Harbour Grace, on the afternoon of the day following the arrival of the train with the remains.

Prize Distribution.

To-morrow night, in the school room at Quidd Vid, there will be the annual distribution of S. S. prizes. Rev. Dr. Jones will be chairman. A very nice programme has been arranged. The admission is free, but during the evening a collection will be taken up, as the authorities are trying to get a library for the Sunday School. Home-made candy will be a speciality of the evening. The concert starts at eight o'clock sharp, and promises to be an interesting and enjoyable event.

MOLLOY—COOMBES. At Portugal Cove S. on Jan. 19th, Mr. Jerry Molloy, of Trepassey, and Miss Rocio Coombes, of Portugal Cove S., were united in hymens bonds by the Rev. Fr. O'Flaherty. The bride was beautifully attired in a suit of brown serge with hat to match, and was attended by her cousin, Miss Agnes Coombes, Miss Maggie White and Miss Susannah Kennedy, and also by Miss Kitty Molloy, sister of the groom, while Mr. Ed. Molloy, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Mr. Robert Coombes, brother and Mr. Patrick Coombes, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Ed. Molloy, cousin of the groom, also attended to the wants of the groom. After the ceremony a sumptuous supper served at the bride's residence where a large number of invited guests had assembled. After supper, dancing, singing and games were started and kept up until very late the next morning, and every one departed perfectly satisfied with the good time. The bride who was the most popular young lady in the settlement was the recipient of many costly presents as well as the good wishes of her friends both in the city and nearby places. Mr. and Mrs. Molloy left for their future home at Trepassey on Jan. 23rd. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Molloy many happy years of wedded life—A Friend.

American Soldier Here.

The attractive uniform of Pte. Claude Matthews, an American soldier, drew many eyes in his direction this morning and yesterday, for the American army kit is no common sight on our streets. In conversation with a Telegram reporter, Pte. Matthews told that he arrived here by Friday's express to spend a few days' furlough with friends. He is a native of Musgrave Hr., Fogo, which place he left some 11 years ago, going to the land of the Stars and Stripes. In civil life there he was a constructor both of ships and buildings, but when the clarion call of Democracy came the patriotism that was within him could not ignore it, and he enlisted in the U.S. army, 12th Regiment, "M" Company, Pte. Matthews is a sharpshooter, being one of the best in America. Naturally he has found many changes in St. John's, but not the improvements that the progressiveness he is used to would warrant. However, he feels glad once more to see the old town, and left this afternoon to visit friends in Petty Hr. At present he is staying at the Crosbie's, but will return to America by the next boat.

standing. These people would have rebuked the Saviour if they had been present at the marriage feast of Cana.

I hope the gallant Newfoundland soldiers will go into politics and elect some of their heroes to office. The country would be safe in the hands of men who suffered martyrdom for the sake of liberty, and no honour is too great to bestow upon them.

I have often thought of the South as a great potential market for Newfoundland herring. The negro population consumes enormous quantities of sardines at fancy prices, and I believe they would soon develop a liking for herring if it were placed on this market. These statements may be far-fetched and I am merely making them for what they are worth.

The Salvation Army has covered itself with glory because of its work at the battlefronts. The soldiers are enthusiastic over the broad-minded manner in which its war-service was performed. There was none of the irksome restrictions that have irritated many of our men, and no namby-pamby diatribes against the evils of nicotine, etc.

Your glass may be purple and mine may be blue. But while they are filled from the same bright bowl, the fools who would quarrel for difference of hue, Deserve not the comfort then shed o'er the soul.

Intolerance, whether it is supported by Jew or Gentile, Protestant or Catholic, is the curse of the world. Thank God it is passing along with the atheistical teachings of half-baked philosophers and materialists. If we do not breathe a purer, sweeter atmosphere after the horrors which hell let loose upon us then God help the world.

Henry Ford has retired from active participation in the great industry which bears his name and has launched a weekly review called the "Dearborn Independent." It seems rather strange to think of Ford as a journalist but he has wealth enough to buy the world's best brains.

A great many thoughtful people believe the South is slumbering over a volcano which may burst into eruption at any moment. Northern agitators who are so loudly advocating equal political and social rights to Southern negroes have given the other side of the question the slightest attention.

President Wilson is being denounced by certain weaselfaced fanatics for drinking the toast to France in wine. I am not sure that the President ever partakes of wine, but if he does it is his own affair, the canting hypocrites to the contrary notwithstanding.

Girls! Have a Mass of Beautiful Hair, Soft, Glossy, Wavy

A small bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair. Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

South Carolina, Jan. 27. New ideas in education is the strengthening of the powers of observation. It has always been a matter of fact that teachers have to long for the cultivation of these faculties in their pupils. Memorizing is not true education unless the pupil is given mental powers which will not be marked by rote. If memory, observation and perception are developed a strong will is formed in later life becomes irascible and inattention, of habits of inattention, of and of relinquishing every point of success may be the lack of proper instruction in early life. Every primary school should add practical psychology to its course of instruction. The course of instruction which the universities give to their students is a system of mental culture which is designed to develop the muscles of his mind in the task. As which school teachers are beginning to develop in a speech devoid of the horrid accents of infection and which obtain in many a head instructor. What attention made on the part of the correct faults of account. What wonders accomplished if an earnest made in this direction. It is Newfoundland teachers who are paid and therefore not as members of a profession with good for the
