CHAPTER X.
 THE TAMING PROCESS.

"And you are keeping me," he said, coolly. "Which is it to be? Am I to go alone, or will you come and show me the best ways and prettiest ditches?"

"If you wanted me to show you the way, why didn't you ask me?" she said, catching at the loophole and leaving the room.

Again the captain smiled and, whistling an air from one of the operas, went down the terrace.

"Get the pony saddled for Miss Grace," he said.

The man touched his hat and, turning the cob over to another groom, hurried to get the pony out.

Presently Grace ran out all habited and all eagerness.

Her face puckered with annoyance as the man led the pony to the steps, and, striking her dainty riding-whip against her habit, she said, irritably:

"No Dolly, Simmonds! Who told you to saddle her, you stupid?"

The man looked at the captain, who had addressed him, and held the stirrup for her to mount.

"I told him, Miss Darrell," he said.

"You?" said Grace. "And pray, sir, who told you?"

"No one," he said, with the same indifferent coolness.

Grace looked from the man to the captain and from him back again; then she came slowly down the steps and, disregarding his hand, sprang in to the saddle, her face darkened by a frown.

The captain did not seem to notice it, and they rode on in silence for a few minutes, when Grace, who could not keep anything underground for more than five minutes, said, abruptly:

"And pray, Mr. Impudence, what made you order this little bit of a beast out?"

"What were my reasons for preferring that you should ride this pretty little pony instead of the big hunter I saw you on this morning, Miss Darrell?"

Grace clinched her hand and turned her angry eyes upon him.

"Yes, Mr. Dartmouth!" she repeated, mocking his languid tones. "Oh, don't 'Miss Darrell' me, ma'am; I shall hate the name as much as I do—"

STRENGTH FOR YOUNG MOTHERS

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restores Health and Strength.

Lansing, Mich.—"After the birth of my child I was not able to stand on my feet. I was so weak I could not get up. I suffered such pains in my back I could not work or hardly take care of my baby. One of my neighbors recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash, and I got better right away and was soon a new woman and could work hard, and I can recommend these remedies to other young mothers who are weak and ailing as I was."—Mrs. O. A. Bowers, 622 S. Hooper Street, Lansing, Mich.

Women who are like Mrs. Bowers' condition should not continue to suffer from weakness and pain—but profit from her experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For suggestions in regard to your condition write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years' experience is at your service.

He saw the horse taken to the stable and groomed, and ordered the gun and parcel to be taken to his room.

Grace was sitting in the dining-room, pretending to do some needle-work—only pretending; for she never kept the needle in her hand for more than ten minutes; "working fidgeted her," she said—and ran to the window to peep.

The captain caught a glimpse of her face behind the curtain but said nothing.

After luncheon he took his gun and accompanied the squire in a walk. The old man was pleased to have him, and they went over the farm, piggeries, cow houses, and all.

A week before, Captain Reginald Dartmouth would as soon have thought of going down a coal mine as pottering round pig houses, but now a change had come over the spirit of his dream.

He listened to the squire's little bits of information and statistics with interest, and asked questions that showed he was not indifferent to the extent and well-being of the estate.

"Ah," said the squire, as he turned to go back. "I ain't so young as you, Reginald, and can't look after things as they should be looked after," and he smothered a sigh.

Captain Dartmouth knew he was thinking of the outcast, who had been young enough and did look after things, and said:

"Oh, I think everything is in capital case, sir. The men go about their work pretty well."

"But they want looking after," said the squire, leaning on his stick and frowning at a hayrick. "They want some one down here every morning to set things going."

Captain Dartmouth swung his gun under his arm.

"If I can be of any use while I am here," he said, "pray let me. If you like, I will look them up in the morning. It will be amusement for me, and, perhaps, let you feel more at your ease."

The squire thanked him.

"It's very good of you, Reginald," he said. "I should not think of troubling you. You'd find it a nuisance and get tired of the whole concern in two mornings. Besides, you don't know anything of farming."

"I know but a very little, it's true," said the captain. "But I'm not too old to learn. And as for being bored with it, I expect I should feel rather the other way—get too interested. Soldiering is rather slow work if you haven't got any killing to do."

The squire laughed grimly.

"Well," he said, "if you like to give 'em a look up and see after things a bit while you're down here, of course I shall be very much obliged to you. But don't go and bore yourself, as you call it, that's all. Throw it up when you're tired of it."

"Trust me to do that," said the captain, languidly, and he walked off.

It was one step in the right direction—a long step, too, and the captain knew it.

Once again he got a hold upon the Dale, and the rest might be left to chance and his scheming.

He was a good shot—most men in his position are—and he returned with a good bag.

The squire was pleased. Grace stood by the table while the birds were being counted.

"What a good many you have shot!" she said, picking up a pheasant and stroking its feathers. "Poor things! I should like to shoot one, though," and she looked at the gun in his hand wistfully.

"Oh, I dare say, my tomboy!" laughed the squire. "You'd like to do everything the men do. There, go and dress yourself, madam."

The captain left the room after her. "So you'd like to shoot the birds, Miss Grace?" he said, half playfully.

"Why, you couldn't lift the gun."

"Couldn't I?" she said, disdainfully, stopping on the first stair and looking down on him. "Hold it up and see."

With his lazy laugh he held it up, and she caught it and lifted it to her shoulder.

The captain, though of course he didn't look it, was astonished.

"Bravo!" he said. "I didn't think you could, 'pon my word."

"You men never think we girls can do anything," she said, curving her lips. "Why, I'd fire it off if I had the chance."

"I don't doubt it—and be knocked backwards," he said, coming up to her.

"Nonsense, Mr. Impudence," she said—the title she always gave him when he teased her. "You load it for me, and I'll promise you I don't get knocked down."

"Thank you," he said, taking the gun from her. "I won't chance it; you'd be the first to blame me if you got hurt—"

She tossed her head contemptuously.

"Blame you! Who'd think of blaming you?" she said, and marched away.

After dinner, when the squire was snoozing in the arm-chair and the other two were in the drawing-room, the captain rang the bell, and sent for the parcel that had come with the gun.

Grace, turning over the leaves of the old book of travels, pricked up her ears—she had the usual amount of curiosity belonging to her sex.

The captain laid the parcel on the table and cut the strings. Grace looked up, and then catching his eye resumed reading her book.

The captain took two large volumes from the paper and opened one out on his knee.

Grace peeped up and then looked down again.

The captain saw the sly glance and waited.

Presently she looked up again and caught sight of the large picture.

"You don't seem much interested in your book, Miss Grace," he said.

"Don't I?" she retorted. "No more do you, or you wouldn't be watching me. What have you got there?"

"A book," he said, without looking. "I can see that, Mr. Impudence!" she said. "What book?"

"Come and see," he said.

But she refused, with a contemptuous shake of the head.

The captain turned over a leaf and held up a page so that she could see it: a large lion with a deer under his claws.

"Oh, my!" cried Grace, forgetting her sniffs and her pride in a moment. "Let me see!" and she sprang to his side.

"Oh," raising his eyebrows, "I thought you wouldn't come! That's a lion."

"Oh, what a beauty!" she said with awe: "colored, too."

TO AID CHINA.

WASHINGTON, May 11. The organization by Great Britain, France, Japan and United States of an International Consortium to provide loans to China is formally announced by the State Department.

TO PROTECT AMERICAN LIVES.

WASHINGTON, May 11. A resolution requesting President Wilson to send an American warship and marines to Batum on the Black Sea, to protect American lives and property at that port and along the railroad to Babu, was reported unanimously to-day by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

NOVELIST HOWELLS DIES.

NEW YORK, May 11. William Dean Howells, the novelist, died here to-day. Mr. Howells returned a few weeks ago from Savannah, where he had spent the winter. While in the South he was stricken with influenza and never had fully recovered from its effects.

WILSON'S INSTRUCTIONS.

WASHINGTON, May 11. President Wilson's hitherto unpublished war instructions to officers of the United States Atlantic fleet given in person on the quarter deck of the flagship Pennsylvania on August 11, 1917, were made public to-day by Secretary of the Navy Daniels. Mr. Wilson spoke as commander in chief of the American navy and at a time when the German submarine menace was uncurbed. He said, "Do not stop to think what is prudent for a moment. You will win by audacity of method when you cannot win by circumspection and prudence."

CHARGE AND COUNTER CHARGE.

WASHINGTON, May 11. A counter charge that the establishing of the North Sea mine barrage was delayed six months because of the opposition of rear-admiral Sims and the British Admiralty was made before the Senate Naval Investigating Committee to-day by Secretary Daniels in presenting the second part of his reply to the officer's charges that the United States Navy Department had unnecessarily prolonged the war through failure to co-operate fully at first with Allied naval forces. The United States Navy Secretary also charged that Sims had attempted in his testimony to rob the American Navy of credit for this project and give it to the British.

AUSTRALIA'S POSITION.

LONDON, May 11. Hon. W. A. Watt, treasurer of the Australian Commonwealth, who arrived here to-day in the course of an interview remarked that Australia had piled up a debt of three hundred million pounds and had no assets beyond the morale of its people. Australia had a debt of sixty pounds per head through the war. Canada's debt was thirty pounds per head and where she before the war was a debtor nation, she was now a creditor nation. Watt said further that the situation in the Pacific was very delicate owing to the attitude of Japan which tried at the peace conference unsuccessfully to insure equality of races in all allied and associated countries, which would have given the Japanese free entry into any allied territory. Having failed this she applied diplomatic means to delay the issue of the mandate to the Australian government for the Pacific Islands which would give to that government powers to enforce restriction on colored immigrations.

TAKING STRONG MEASURES.

PARIS, May 11. The French Cabinet at a meeting to-day instructed Minister of Justice L'Hopiteau to open proceedings against the General Federation of Labor with a view to the dissolution of the organization which has been supporting the strike of the French railway men by calling other strikes. The decision of the Government to seek the dissolution of the Federation came after an hour's discussion by the Council of Ministers at the Palace of the Elysee, presided over by President Deschanel.

FIGHTING PRACTICALLY AT AN END.

ELPASO, May 11. Officials of the new revolutionary party in virtual control of Mexico to-day maintained that the revolution in its final stages so far as active fighting is concerned. Statements from the revolutionary leaders at Juarez opposite here indicated all efforts now would be bent toward the restoration of the country's industry and prosperity.

WANT'S RECOGNITION.

WASHINGTON, May 11. The revolutionary government in Mexico will ask for immediate recognition by the American government.

COUNTER REVOLUTION NOT EXPECTED.

WASHINGTON, May 11. With practically all of Mexico dominated by revolutionists and Carranza reported a prisoner, official interest here shifted to-day from the military phases of the situation to the expected political developments. Agents of the de facto rulers professed to believe steps would be taken immediately to-day for the establishment of a provisional Government to be succeeded as soon as possible by a Constitutional regime. Reports received through official channels, as those sent to revolutionary agents, continue to indicate the absence of serious disorders, although the despatch of a United States battleship and additional destroyers to southern waters suggested the determination of the American Government to afford foreigners protection in the event of serious trouble at any of the port towns, while officials here considered the revolutionary movement as too untried for judgment the impression was manifest that for a time at least it would not have to face the usual counter revolution.

EXTRAORDINARY DECISION.

WASHINGTON, May 11. The Shipping Board under a decree signed by Justice Baily in the District Supreme Court is perpetually enjoined from selling twenty-nine former German Liners seized when the United States entered the war. An appeal in the case by the Board was noted some time ago. The decrees resulted from a suit for injunction brought by William Randolph Hearst of New York.

POLAND'S AMBITION.

WARSAW, May 11. (By the Associated Press)—The military, economic and political contention signed by Poland and Ukraine just before the opening of the drive toward Kiev is understood here to have provided for a Polish outlet to the Black Sea. Such a Southern outlet

Forty-One Years in the Public Service--The Evening Telegram

To the Members of the Hon. House of Assembly.

Ye highly titled men of State,
With reverence I address ye,
And hope with all my inmost heart
Good Common Sense may bless ye.
Whene'er ye founder in a gulch,
Or get yourselves entangled
In briars that choke the twisted way
Where many a wight was strangled,
And are to-day.

I'm in "the magic precincts" now
And round the House I'm viewing,
And faith 'tis little that ye seem
A-thinking or a-doing.
I want to ask a favor, though,
Ye'll grant it I'm not doubting,
'Tis 'bout the Twenty Fourth of May,
I want to go a-trouting,
I'll send ye some.

Now you who're interested most
In fishing—Mr. Coaker,
I'd ask your interceding voice,
(Don't treat me as a joker.)
You have accomplished many things
In aid of men of Labor,
I'd ask your vote, dear sir, as one
Who've been an old-time neighbor,
Of yours and you.

And speaking of old times, you mind
The South Side hills we'd ramble;
We'd chuck the schools and seek the pools
"Amongst the bush and bramble."
And sure you must remember, or
I'm darned well sure you oughter,
The day we smothered Hingston's pup
In Stewart's dam's muddy water.
You don't forget?

I mind it well, Jim Ford was there
With "Bunker" Whitten's crackle,
And "Hen-cock" nearly poisoned that
With chews of heart' tobacco.
We wallowed in that pool till dark
(Of which now scarce a trace is.)
And I got home with just one boot
And "Wopper" in his braces,
Right late that day.

Sir Michael Cashin have a say,
That this our prayer be granted,
'Tis shameful that this Colony,
Where first that Flag was planted
That since has swept around the world,
Should prove just now a slacker;
Bred by the shores of Baltimore's
Estates, you'll prove a backer
Of some account.

I knew lang syne your heart was warm
(And know 'tis warmer later)
Then oft above the Bridge we met
With many a lusty skater.
One winter's evening that was filled
With mirth, with love and laughter,
I lent you my best pair of "cuffs"
And couldn't use them after.
Your paws were such.

And Warren of the Fighting Four,
That Opposition true, sir,
Who for a week retained the floor
Defying Thirty Two, sir,
As member for St. Jones Within,
You battled long and hearty,
I ask you now to chip right in
And aid a suppliant party
In this request.

And you, young Fox, your very name
Harks back to Albion's glory,
To days of Pitt's and Burke's renown
Long famed in England's story,
Ask if the Empire's gone to seed,
It's life with age to harden.
Or if we're just the first dank weed
Appearing in the garden
So long well kept?

Sav, Sir John C. Chalker Crosbie,
I'd ask the same of you, man
To have this day in the old way
So dear to Britons true, man.
As for the rest they'll do their best;
But—whisper—just tip Bobby,
And if you've either taste at all
I'll meet you in the lobby.
Till then, tra la.

Outport Woman Had Not a Well Day in 10 Years.

Bay-de-Verde Merchant Tells How Tanlac Brought Back His Mother's Health.

Allen G. Stockwood, a prominent merchant of Gull Island, Bay-de-Verde district, was in St. John's recently, and while at Connors' store told how his mother, whom the family had never expected ever to get well, had been restored to splendid health by Tanlac.

"For over ten years mother has been bothered with very bad stomach trouble, and has hardly known a well day in all that time," said Mr. Stockwood. "She did not dare eat almost fish, bacon, or anything of that sort, and lived on the very lightest kinds of food. Even then she would bloat up with gas most all the time, and was always taking soda to try and get a little relief. During the last five years she had been getting worse and had become very weak and so nervous that she couldn't sleep at night. She was only able to do the very lightest work in the home, and was practically an invalid. We had almost given up hope of ever seeing her well again, and thought she would not be with us very much longer.

"When we read in the papers of the many people who were being restored to health by Tanlac, I made a special trip to St. John's to get some for her. It just suited her case fine and before she had taken two-thirds of the first bottle she got relief and has been well ever since. She now eats almost anything and is not troubled a bit with the indigestion. She sleeps just fine and can work as well as ever she could. She goes about telling everyone about Tanlac and prides herself on the fact that she has been a godsend in her case. We just feel that we ought to let everybody know what a remarkable medicine Tanlac is for stomach trouble, as there are so many in these outports who suffer just as mother did."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale.—adv.

Hr. Grace Notes.

It will be with good pleasure and good and hearty wishes that the people of this old town will note and encourage the development of the prospects in view of the Newfoundland Coopers Corporation, which intends to do a big business, not only in Hr. Grace, but at other places in the Dominion. The Corporation, of which Mr. R. F. W. Strong is General Manager, intends to operate here a factory and a lumber yard, which will give employment to quite a number of people. Tubs, boxes, pails, staves, etc., will be the chief articles of manufacture. Such corporations are most welcome in this town, as, indeed, they are all over the Dominion, as they tend not only to benefit the place or places at which they operate, but the whole country generally, and therefore it is the common duty of every individual to show a readiness to appreciate to the full and help in the simplest way possible to further the development of such companies or corporations. Mr. Strong is to be commended, and being, as he is, a Newfoundlander, he will without a doubt do everything in his power to place this island of ours in line with other industrial centres beyond our coast line. If such companies or corporations met with the encouragement and whole-hearted support of our people, they would come not for a short while, but would come to stay. Your correspondent, on behalf of the public, wishes the Newfoundland Coopers Corporation every possible success.

Mr. Hubert Sperry arrived from the city Saturday night, after enjoying his visit there.

Mr. M. Verge arrived the latter part of last week from Benton, where he had been employed for the past month or so.

The steamer Othar put in here Monday afternoon and called again the same evening.

The election of a Road Board will take place here to-morrow (Tuesday), when the best men for the position will be elected to see to it that our roads are kept in decent order, not only for the automobile owners, but for the benefit of all concerned. Perhaps a better Board than the last would be difficult to find, as the work done by them during their term of office reflects credit on one and all of them. The people of this town can see where the money allocated to the Board last year went. We wish them success on the morrow, and hope that if they are again elected, and there is no reason why they should not be, they will prove as worthy of the position as they were in the past.

Running Newfoundland's Railway

Enormous Increase in Traffic Puts Extra Burden on the Company-- Losses in Operation for Twenty Years, $3,263,116 -- Increase in Pay Roll, Over 1914, $665,378 -- Annual Coal Bill Increased By $330,183 -- 100,000 Tons is the Freight Increase in 16 Years.

The Newfoundland Railway is probably the hardest one in the world to operate. There are two reasons for this: one, the climate; and two, the low standard of the railway and the vastly increased traffic which conditions during the last 15 or 20 years have forced it to bear. The severe winters and late springs make the operation of the railway a problem. The winter recently ended will illustrate the difficulties which have to be encountered—when, even now, there is a great quantity of snow along parts of the line. As far as the second item is concerned—it is common knowledge that the railway was built under contract by the late R. G. Reid. That contract provided that the railway would have to be built under certain specifications. This was done; and in many cases the requirements of the contract have been exceeded. Despite this, however, the enormously increased traffic which the system has been called upon to bear—a traffic for the handling of which the railway, under the specifications noted, was never meant—rapid deterioration has been inevitable. In short, it is but natural that a railway, built to bear a certain traffic, would not stand a traffic many times as heavy. That, simply, is the case with the present railway.

The company has carried out the specifications of 1890 as imposed, and, as before stated, even exceeded them. Take the case of ballast: Ballast is gravel which is laid on the road-bed, between the sleepers. It is sandy, and therefore porous. The bed is dug down and gravel, or ballast, placed on top. The railway ties, or sleepers, are then placed on top of the gravel, ballast afterwards being filled in. The contract calls for six inches of ballast, but the company has laid up to two feet of it. This gravel has to be taken from one point, where it is plentiful, and carried to other sections needing it. In 1915 the carloads of ballast hauled was 389. In 1919 it was 11,664.

Since 1902, up to 1919, some 3,910,500 railway ties have been laid. That is a yearly average of 217,250.

In 1902 there were 634 miles of track. In 1918 there were 949.

In 1902 92,346 tons of freight were hauled. In 1918 195,120 were hauled—an increase of 102,774 tons in 16 years.

In 1902 125,622 passengers were carried. In 1918 298,992 were carried—an increase in that period, of 173,370.

In 1902 there were 13 first class cars; now there are 22. There were 7 second class; now there are 21. There were 4 mail cars; now there are 17. There were 55 box cars; now there are 241. There were 66 flat cars; now there are 280. There were 6 snow plows; now there are 13. And in 1902 there were 20 locomotives and in 1918 41.

In addition to this, rotary plows, steam shovels and ditchers have been added to the equipment.

Two items which will help to make comprehensible the loss in operation, for 20 years, of $3,263,116—i.e., that the increase in the pay roll last year, was $665,378 over 1914; second, that the increase in the cost of coal for the same period was $330,183—or over 140 p.c. Coal in 1914 cost the company 4.59 per ton. In 1918 it was $11.13.

All of which goes to show, of course, that "running a railway," especially in Newfoundland, is even more difficult than is anticipated generally.

Mr. E. R. Morris

Donates Billiard Table to G. W. V. A.

A handsome addition has been made to the G.W.V.A. club rooms in the shape of a billiard table. This table is perfectly new and is one of the best in the city. The table arrived by the last "Home" boat, and the work of erection was done by Messrs. Ayre & Sons' Ltd., in a most workmanlike and satisfactory manner. The Veterans may well ask where did the G.W.V.A. get the money to buy such an expensive table. Well, in a little island called England and a little village called London, there is a man who came into the lives of our soldiers early in 1915, and who continued his acts of kindness and deeds of mercy until long after the great war ended, and this man's name is Mr. E. R. Morris. Mr. Morris has not only given a billiard table, but quantities of stationery, games and magazines, in addition to all the personal kindnesses extended to all our boys in London. Mr. Morris is much too modest a man to seek publicity of any kind, but we feel that the public generally should know what he has done to make the lives of our veterans happy. Come on vets, have a game on the new Morris table.

THE WRONG KIND OF "BUT."

"She's one of those people," said a neighbor of mine, describing a friend, "who is always bringing up the wrong kind of a but!" I asked, "What do you mean by the wrong kind of a but?"

"Well," she said, "there are some people who always have a 'but' to any unpleasant statement."

"Give me an example," I requested.

The eternal classification once more--the optimist and the pessimist. How many ways these two have been defined.

Apropos of her classification, I tell to thinking of the various definitions and classifications I had heard, and have compiled from memory a short list. I shall be glad to hear from any reader friend who can add to the list.

"A pessimist is a man who wears both trousers and suspenders."

Equally Hard on the Optimist.

"A pessimist is someone who has to live with an optimist." (I never saw the converse stated, but I insist it is equally true.)

"A pessimist is a man who complains because roses have thorns. An optimist is someone who rejoices that thorns have roses."

"The difference between the optimist and pessimist is droll.

The optimist sees the doughnut. The pessimist sees the hole."

The Best Definition of All.

"And of course we must not forget Stevenson's beautiful definition (it most assuredly is one, though he does not use the word optimist or pessimist):

"Two men looked out from prison bars.

One saw mud, another stars."

Dogs as Life-Savers.

NEWFOUNDLAND SAVED 200 PEOPLE.

The ninety-two passengers of the Canadian steamer Ethie owe their lives to a dog. The ship went ashore in a terrible weather during last Christmas week on Martin's Point. No boat could be launched in the awful surf and no man could swim through it.

A big Newfoundland dog was on board. He was put over the side, with a line in his mouth, not tied to him, and this he carried safely ashore. By the line a rope and finally a cable were dragged to the beach, and across the passengers and crew were hauled to safety.

This is almost an exact repetition of an incident which happened when the ship Harpooner went aground on the St. John's reef off the coast of Newfoundland.

A boat was launched--the only one that--and four men got ashore. But they could find no help, the weather grew worse, and they could not get to the ship again. The captain had a large retriever. He fastened a line round the dog's body and put it over the side. A desperate struggle the dog reached the beach, and by the line which it carried nearly two hundred lives were saved. Then the line broke, and the rest left in the ship were all drowned.

It was also a retriever which performed an even more heroic feat near Fraserburgh in Scotland.

A barque went on the rocks at Rose-hearty in a furious gale. No boat could live, and the crew tied a line to a piece of wood, in the hope that it would drift ashore.

The stick drifted some distance, then seemed to stop. The retriever, which belonged to a Mr. Shirran was ordered to fetch it. Three separate attempts that fine beast made and failed. Yet he tried a fourth time, and after a heroic struggle reached the stick and succeeded in bringing it and the line to the beach.--Pearson's weekly.

BAD LUCK.

It is seldom illa are single; in a regiment they rise, and our scolding tea-r-drops mingle with the tears of other guys. When a blaze calls out the freemen, there'll be seven in a row, while the birds and kindred lyre-men chant the litanies of woe. Now a tire sustains a juncture, in a long cross-country run, and the driver, at this juncture, knows his grief is but begun. Not a parasang he'll travel, but a tire is running flat; tacks and nails and chunks of gravel all contributing to that. To the morals undermining are such grievous things as these, and his language, hot and shining, wits the leaves on near-by trees. Things go wrong at early morning, wrong when from your couch you start, and you take it as a warning that the day will break your heart. For our evils come cavorting, not alas, as single spies; but in legions they come snorting, as we sadly swat the flies. But they'll soon have run their courses, and the luck will change awhile; from our woe we'll have divorce, and we'll spring the old time smile.

Funny Punishments.

In the reports of the commission now holding an inquiry into the riots in India, one of the witnesses stated that a prisoner was given what must be one of the most extraordinary sentences on record. He was ordered as a punishment to write a poem in praise of the judge.

Many funny punishments have been awarded by judges. A labourer named Patrick Knight, was once charged with leaving his wife and child without support. He was ordered by the court to return home and walk the floor for two hours each night with his baby in his arms.

Another remarkable punishment awarded by a stipendiary magistrate on a frowsy-looking tramp who was charged before him with vagrancy was that he should have ninety baths before being released.

America is the land of more queer punishments than any other. A short time ago, in one of the children's courts, the presiding judge sentenced a juvenile offender to spend six Saturday afternoons in bed! He was then deprived of his weekly holiday. In another a man was found guilty of bigamy and was sentenced to live six months in the same house with his two mothers-in-law, who undertook to reform him in that time.

Wouldn't Work Nowadays.

It is extremely probable—to say the least of it—that Miss Helena Normanton, who recently started to qualify for the bar, will find her entrance examination a rather stiffer one than did the young male barrister whose case is narrated in Mr. J. A. Strahan's amusing book, "The Bench and the Bar of England."

This young man, according to Mr. Strahan, was notoriously deficient in legal knowledge. Yet he passed. One of the Benchers, curious to know how he had managed it, inquired of his examiner.

"Well, you see," replied the latter, "it is my rule to pass a man who gets fifty per cent. full marks."

"Now I asked Mr. Blank two questions. The first was, 'What is the rule in Shelly's case?' He answered that it had something to do with poetry. That was wrong."

"My second question was, 'What is a contingent remainder?' He answered that he was sure he didn't know."

"Well, that was right, and so I passed him."

CALLING THE DOCTOR.

I marvel at the courage of the folks in days gone by. They used to see their loved ones ill and never thought they'd die; They'd hear them coughing through the night and hear them moan in pain.

And sweetly tell them with a smile they'd soon be well again; It had to be a desperate case with little chance to win Before they'd think that it was time to call the doctor in.

Whenever the wise physician got a call to someone's bed, He'd count it lucky not to find his patient almost dead; He knew it was an urgent call—he faced a case for sure Which home-brewed herbs and poultices possessed no power to cure; For when folks called the doctor in, in that glad long ago, 'Twas safe to bet the patient's tide of life was ebbing low.

It may be that I fret too much and over-worry, too, But I can't wait for doctors as the old folks used to do. Just let a fever show itself, and let a youngster sigh, And I don't rest until I have the doctor standing by; It may be just a stomach ache, but I don't care for that—I want the best physician I can get right off the bat.

Unanimity Desired.

'There never was a time in the history of the country when it was so essential that public men and fish exporters should eschew for a while at least, petty political squabbles, and unite in a supreme effort to secure the future of our great fishing industry, upon which the whole financial fabric depends.'—Trade Review.

The excellence and common-sense of the sentiment expressed in the above extract from a very able and timely editorial in the Trade Review of Saturday last, is one with which all will agree. Too long political squabbles and bickerings existed amongst our public men, and, carried to the extent of unlicensed speech, have militated gravely against the prospects and prosperity of Newfoundland. No one politician of a party, viewed with favor any measures introduced by the other, having for their object the general benefit of the country. Both Government and Opposition look askance at each other when legislation of sorts is proposed with the purpose of aiding the people at large, and every effort is made to kill or suppress such, because it emanated from the wrong quarter. Should the Government introduce it, the Opposition is hostile, and should the Opposition take the initiative, Government members, at the call of party, are only too ready to give it an indefinite hoist.

So long as Government by party exists, so long will such conditions continue to be. There is not the slightest hope that any change will occur in the system of party government, at least during the life of the present generation, and a tryst along non-party lines does not seem to meet with favor, either by people or politicians. Coalition Governments, during the progress of the late war, were not made up of all the parties represented in either the Imperial or Dominion Parliaments. An Opposition was invariably in evidence, and if this was so when the fate of the Empire hung in the balance, how much more is it a political impossibility to have an administration of a oneness of purpose, without opposition, in the piping times of peace, even though it may be more difficult for people to live than when the war was at its height. Therefore so long as government is by party, so long will the public interests, in a sense, suffer. Unanimity is not going to exhibit itself in a divided house; hence all legislation depends solely upon the government, which for the time has power, and only such measures as they introduce, will they permit to go through.

The demand of the pressing hour is for unanimity, or if not that so much, then for a mutual agreement that will redound to the progress and prosperity of the population. In that progress and prosperity of its people the dominion inevitably shares, so that a benefit to one is a similar benefit to the other. The prosperity of a people is the standard by which the wealth of a country is estimated. Newfoundland, at the moment, is in a condition of prosperity, whether superficial or stable cannot be determined just now, but at all events there is every evidence of a condition of affairs which it would be well to maintain. And how best to continue such a very desirable state is entirely in the hands of the men who compose the present parliament. It is theirs to make or mar the future destiny of Newfoundland. Should they place party before country and politics before principle, there is small hope of this dominion rising to any heights of affluence or position. The continuance of petty political squabbling does not impress either the electorate or the outside world. If any of our politicians were openly charged with being lacking in the love of country which is the very essence of patriotism, they would repudiate such an accusation in the strongest language. And yet they quarrel pettishly, over everything designed to advance the interests of the country, and see no virtue in anything unless introduced under the auspices of the party with which they have associated themselves. Modern customs and the changes brought about by the war have thrown all this into the discard, and until representatives get busy, and support unanimously such legislation as will conduce to the future welfare of the people and country, regardless of party affiliations, they are not serving the best interests of the constituents who sent them to sit in the seats of former lawmakers.

Stopped Work One O'clock and Met in Hall at Two—May Strike To-day.

The members of the 'Longshoremen's Protective Union' knocked off work at one o'clock to-day and at two o'clock began a meeting in their hall for the purpose of deciding what action they will take in the matter. The correspondence following has passed between the interested parties:—
'Longshoremen's Protective Union, Victoria St.,
May 11, 1920.

Dear Sir,—We are directed by the 'Longshoremen's Protective Union' to ask whether the employers are prepared to reconsider their reply to the scale of wages submitted.

We are further requested to state that if no answer be received by to-morrow (Wednesday) at noon, the Union will meet for the purpose of considering what action will be taken under the circumstances.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH FLAVIN,
Vice President.
FREEMAN MOORES,
Financial Secretary.
Acting Secretary Employers' Protective Association.

Employers' Protective Association, May 11th, 1920.

Mr. Jos. Flavin,
V. P., 'Longshoremen's Protective Union.

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of to-day's date which you delivered to me in person at noon, and I beg to confirm my conversation with you in which I informed you that you could hardly expect Employers to meet and make offers to your Union as they have been doing, when the only reply received is a request for a further offer.

The offer of an advance already made by the employers still remains open, with the understanding, of course, that the members of your Union will continue to work as heretofore without seeking to impose restrictions which have not previously been customary. With regard to the last paragraph of your letter, in which you request a reply by noon to-morrow (say within 24 hours from time I received your letter) I can only state that it is not practicable to get employers together to deal with a matter like this at such short notice, and I have only been able to consult with one or two individual employers before writing this letter. Awaiting your further advice.
Yours very truly,
Acting Sec. Employers' Protective Association.

Trade Association Votes for Empire Day.

At a meeting of the Trade Association, Mr. R. G. Rendell, in the chair, and Mr. D. M. Baird Secretary, held at 11 o'clock this morning, it was unanimously decided that the 24th of May be observed as a general holiday and that a delegate be sent to the Importers' Association to request them to fall in line. The 3rd of June was also decided to be a holiday. The Trade Association agreed on the Saturday half holiday practiced last year.

The Cry of the Children.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—My soul has been stirred to its deepest depths during these past few weeks as I have gone up and down New Gower Street, and have seen the hundreds, nay thousands of young people, and boys and girls parading back and forth, without any object or aim in life higher than the pleasure of the moment. Hundreds of little children, from the tender age of six or seven to the boy and girl of fourteen to sixteen, exposed to all the evils and immoralities of the street. What is in the future for those children? What will the next generation of our citizens be like, if nothing is done now for those children?

Mr. Editor, the better educated and prosperous portion of our citizens have no idea of the awful conditions which prevail in the very heart of our city at the present time. The majority of us sit in our easy chairs in our comfortable homes and never give a thought to the social conditions of our neighbours,—for they are our neighbours—and we cannot get away from the fact, and as such we owe it to them to do something to lift them higher.

Something should be done, and that at once, by our Government, and by our rich philanthropic citizens to give these children the proper training of mind, soul and body, that will adequately equip them to become honest and honorable citizens. It would be more in keeping if those agitators for the return of the liquor traffic, would give more study to the social condition of our boys and girls and young people, and do everything within their power to shield them from any further degradations which result from the open saloon. We owe it to the young life of our city to help them to become the best men and women that God intended that they should become. What can be done? The cry (unspoken it may be, but still clear and insistent) of the children ring in our ears. Give us better homes, better training, better play grounds, better social conditions. Train us, O train us, to become the highest type of men and women of the next generation. In the interests of our boys and girls of to-day and of to-morrow, I have thus written.

Yours respectfully,
—E.B.

WASHINGTON, May 12. Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, of Boston, addressing the Southern Sociological Congress last night, attacked the candidacy of Senator Hiram Johnson for Republican Presidential nomination, declaring that "Johnson represented all forces and elements of disloyalty and that he fought the United States during the war." Such elements, he asserted, had rallied behind Johnson because of his attacks on the Peace Treaty, the League of Nations and President Wilson. "To a man they are supporting him," the speaker continued, "because they believe that by voting for Johnson they are getting revenge upon the American Government, and most of all upon its executive head."

Monster Meeting of L. S. P. U.

All Laborers Quit Work to Attend.

As it was thought impossible to get a full meeting in the night time the Longshoremen decided to hold a meeting to-day at one o'clock. All the men on the different premises consequently left work at that hour, and at 2 p.m. a monster meeting was held in the L.S.P.U. Hall. The meeting was called for the purpose of deciding what action the men will take re their demands for increased pay. If a strike is called as the result of this meeting, it is likely that the S. S. Rosalind will sail to-morrow with part of her inward cargo on board. Up to press hour nothing of what transpired at the meeting, which was still on, could be ascertained.

The German President and Wife.

As might have been expected, the man who is filling the office of President of the German Republic—Deutsche Versammlung—is passing through turbulent times. Germany has been wrecked by the war of her own making, and out of the wreckage a new set of rulers are trying to build up a new political system and at the same time bear the domestic burdens created by the war, and the foreign burden just laid upon Germany by the Peace Treaty that defeat compelled her to sign.

The man harassed by all these cares, beset by all these difficulties, and surrounded by great dangers, is Frederick Ebert, who took office on February 11, 1918, and who has already weathered one revolution, and emerged from the storm with his hands on the helm of state. The future is dark and threatens more storms, and all the President's fortitude and sagacity will be tried to the utmost before the German Republic is set upon a course that promises liberty with order. Prosperity as it was known before Germany set out upon her raid on the world, cannot be known for many years to come.

Herr Ebert is a democrat in every sense of the word. He comes of a family that has always belonged to the working and small trading class, and the line between that class and the aristocracy is more clearly drawn, more hard and fast in Germany than in any other country; at least, that was the case in imperial Germany, and the present form of Government is too new to have made much change in social distinctions.

Herr Ebert's father was a master tailor with a good business but without wealth. The son was born on February 4, 1870, and was educated at a board school along with other children of parents belonging to the class of small business men. After learning something of his father's trade, he served an apprenticeship to the trade of a saddler, and it was as a saddler that he made his way in life for a number of years.

He married Luise Rump, a young woman of his own class, who now officially is the first lady in Germany. Five children were born of the marriage, and two of them while serving in the Kaiser's army in the late war were killed in battle. Thus German imperialism thrust its iron into the soul of the family of the President of Germany.

Herr Ebert, the saddler, took a keen interest in public affairs, and he began to devote some of his time to journalism. For a number of years he edited a Social Democratic newspaper known as the "Breitburger Zeitung." He entered public life in 1912, two years before the beginning of the war, when he was elected to the Reichstag—the old House of Commons of the German Empire, and in the following year he became Chairman of the Social Democratic Party.

When the breaking down of Germany's military power came in the autumn of 1918, Herr Ebert was one of the outstanding figures of the Democratic Party, and as order began to emerge out of the chaos of the revolution, he was chosen President, with as difficult a task to perform as was ever undertaken by a public man.

Fish Prices Going Down.

—Outlook Unpromising.

A group of men were seated before the fire recently in a place where men congregate, and the conversation turned as it very often does these days to the question of the high cost of living. One spoke of the advance which had taken place in sugar. "It," said he, "on March 1st I had only booked an order for 10,000 tons and had held it for six weeks. I could have cleaned up a tidy profit of $1,500,000." Somebody else referred to cotton, which has perhaps been the greatest aviator of all the commodities, and then there were references to other things which have been on the ascending scale. Finally, some one ventured an opinion that he did not know of a single article of food which wasn't very much dearer to-day than at this date last year. "Yes," said a quiet man, who was in front toasting his shins, "there is one thing one of our most important products in Nova Scotia, dried codfish. Dried codfish for example is worth about $3 per quintal less than it was a year ago, and it is not improbable that before the present year is over it may suffer a still further decline." And what this man said was true, for he is in the fish business and was speaking from practical knowledge.

Now why is it that with values of all kinds of other foodstuffs soaring there should be a decline in the price of fish? Well, there are several reasons. No. 1 is that the consumption of dried codfish on a large scale is restricted to certain countries. Everybody eats sugar, but relatively few in proportion to the world's population eat dried codfish. No. 2 is that the largest consumers of dried fish in Europe are financially hard up as a result of the war and are unable to buy all that they really need. No. 3 is that the fishing industry of the old world is being more rapidly re-auscultated than most other industries and will shortly become the factor it was in the world's supply before the war. And there is still something else. Fish has always been a staple food among the colored population of southern countries; it was one of the most sustaining foods which they earned. But to-day these people are earning wages never dreamed of in pre-war times and as their income has increased they have developed luxurious tastes. They, of course, still eat fish, but not to the extent they used to, and unless poverty comes back for another visit, they are never likely to again. The outlook then for the dried fish industry is not as cheerful as one would like to see it. At to-day's price of $12, ex vessel, which is to be paid for the early spring catch of the Lunenburg fleet, there is not much profit in the industry for fishermen. Costs of outfitting and supplies were very high this year, much higher than last year, and so while a year or two ago $12 would have been regarded as a handsome figure ex vessel, it cannot be so regarded to-day. Further, there would seem to be no prospect, though one never can tell, that this price will be exceeded during the balance of the present season.

The news from the Lunenburg fleet, in so far as catch is concerned, is encouraging. What vessels are in have reported for about 500 quintals each, which is considered satisfactory for the early trip. A good feature is that the catch taken is nearly all codfish, not 50-50 between cod and haddock as last year. It is expected that the total landings from the spring trip will amount to from 20,000 to 25,000 quintals.

All foreign markets as indicated above are decidedly easier. Heavy arrivals from both Norway and Nova Scotia are expected at Havana, and Jamaica reports that she is being overloaded by offerings from Newfoundland. The Porto Rico market is also depressed as a result of shipments forwarded by New York. The only place reporting strength is Northern Brazil, and she may afford an outlet for the Newfoundland holdings which are larger than they ought to be for the time of year.—Maritime Merchant.

FLOUR ADVANCED.—Flour advanced $1.50 per barrel yesterday, and no one grade is now selling at $18.25. This advance applies to the new millings now being imported.

The Fisheries
 of Newfoundland:
 Their Value and Conservation
 a National Issue.

(By M. E. CONDON.)

MOTOR ENGINES.
 I may claim, to be the pioneer, or one of them in advocating Motor Engines to the fishermen, as about eighteen years ago, I wrote to Sir Robert Bond, P.C., K.C.M.G., then Premier of Newfoundland, and requested to have Motor Engines admitted duty free to the fishermen. I had then foreseen the future possibilities of the Motor Engine in connection with our fisheries, and that bright son of Terra Nova, Sir Robert Bond, K.C.M.G., complied with my request and had them admitted duty free to the fishermen, and to Motor Engines Newfoundland must give credit for a good percentage of its prosperity. As to the fisheries in general I will not take second place to any man, and why should I? A prophet is without honour amongst his own people, and has to go to foreign lands to be appreciated as to his ability, but they say there is a lot in a name. I have the pedigree of two of Newfoundland's brightest sons in me, that of the genius Daniel Condon, the inventor of the Pontoon and Cofferdam, and his world renowned work of placing a wooden and concrete bow in the S.S. "Arizona" of the Guion Line, over forty years ago, the 1919, and I received a reply from His Royal Highness, The Prince of Wales, through his Private Secretary, under date of August 14th, 1919, on board of H.M.S. "Dragon," in which letter His Royal Highness wishes me success. I have also a letter from Newfoundland's clever and bright son, Lord Morris, P.C., under date of August, 1919, also wishing me success, and then again side by side with me I have Newfoundland's Hero and her brightest star in his walk of life, Sergeant Thomas Ricketts, V.C., the youngest Victoria Cross bearer in British Empire, a humble fisherman and a credit to himself and to his country, whose name in generations to come will go down with the history of his native land. As I said before there is a lot in a name. I see success ahead of me outside of my native land, but not amongst the knockers and others that are to be found here in Newfoundland. I am not worrying as to the future, as a prominent banker remarked to me, "Condon your ideas are good, and you could sell your exchange here." Figures means finance, and he is not on Water Street that I would take a second place to to-day, after giving seven years of my youth at the Brokerage and Commission business. So if Newfoundland and Newfoundlanders want to take first place in the Fish Markets of the World, let them be modern as to its fisheries and give the consumer a guaranteed pure fish food standardized. Have you not remembered that beautiful scene in "If I were King," when Francois Villon had driven the besiegers from the gates of Paris, the King's niece, who detested the foppish parade and degeneracy of the Court, said to His Majesty in praise of Villon, "Sire a man has come to town."

 Apologizing to my critics and readers for my errors, I must ask them to bear in mind that I have been amongst the fishermen for the past thirty years, and know more about the implements of that trade than of the use of the pen, but I trust that I have made myself clear on the one prime subject in which we all are interested, The Fisheries of Newfoundland and their conservation and value.

 The recent arrest in one of the large English cities of a beggar found to possess a fortune of $16,000 in his own name is a forcible reminder that there are to-day, and have been in the past, many wealthy paupers, if the paradox be permitted.
 One readily recalls the case of the notorious Jean Baptiste Rosteau, who died in a gypsy caravan outside of Paris not long since, and who had begged for a livelihood for twenty years or more. In Rosteau's hand arched his death the police found gripped tightly the key to a strong box in a Paris bank. This box was found to contain $100,000 in gold, notes and securities, all the property of the pseudo mendicant.
 Then there was Thomas Cooke,

 One readily recalls the case of the notorious Jean Baptiste Rosteau, who died in a gypsy caravan outside of Paris not long since, and who had begged for a livelihood for twenty years or more. In Rosteau's hand arched his death the police found gripped tightly the key to a strong box in a Paris bank. This box was found to contain $100,000 in gold, notes and securities, all the property of the pseudo mendicant.
 Then there was Thomas Cooke, known as "the Wellington miser." Cooke's life was one of penury, saving, and petty trickery, and when he died he left his heirs to squabble over a fortune of more than $300,000. By the old and yet ever new trick of falling in a pretended fit in front of a house at dinner-time Cooke got many meals free of cost. He would be carried into the house and then, on making his usual quick recovery, he naturally would be asked to share the meal.

 Before the war there died in a Berlin garret, one Herr Schwartz, known to and pitied by his neighbors as one of the poorest of the poor. He sallied out daily into the fashionable quarters of the city garbed in filthy rags, and carrying a sack in which he collected crusts and other scraps of food. He lived and died alone, a mere bunch of bones. In his wretched quarters were found $400,000, mostly in gold concealed in jars and bottles, and in bank notes, which served as stuffing for his bed.

 In a remote village in Ireland an old woman, supposed to be a pauper, was knocked down in the roadway and instantly killed. When the authorities inspected the hotel in which she lived they found it packed almost to the door with branches from trees for winter fuel, behind which they discovered two large buckets and a tin trunk filled with current coin. Searching further they came across a wooden box and some earthenware jars also containing silver and gold, so that when the money had all been collected and placed into the scales the total weight exceeded a hundred pounds.

 Jeremiah Monahan died in St. Louis and was about to be buried in the potter's field when they found a key to a safety deposit box among his few effects in the "hut in which he lived, apparently in the most abject poverty. The safety deposit box contained $60,000 in perfectly good, interest bearing bonds, and, strange to relate, nobody came forward to claim this wealth as the miser's next of kin.
 A ragged recluse named Marshall McMurrin was found in a starving condition in his tumbledown shack on the outskirts of Evansville, Ind. He was taken before a commission for examination as to his sanity, and when he was searched $2,000 was found in the lining of his coat and in his pockets.

It is related that Samuel Rogers lived the life of a tramp at Long Branch, N.J., and that he used to walk from that city to New York in order to bank his money. He left $40,000, although he always considered himself too poor to buy food and clothing. He encased his feet in old pieces of bur-lap and ate whatever he could find even to apple cores and crusts from the streets.
 A strange character known as "the hag of Bald Hill" died at South Norwalk, Conn. Local tradition had it that in her youth the old woman was a noted New York belle, but unrequited love caused her to withdraw from the gay world and shun society. For years she lived in an old shanty, searching the woods nearby for medicinal roots and herbs, which she sold. She hoarded every cent and had it not been from the gleam of bank notes through holes eaten by moths $3,000 would have been burned in the shabby garments she left. It is believed a considerable sum in her old clothes went up in smoke before discovery of the greenbacks was made.

It Builds You Up

THESE are letters of good cheer. They tell of health restored, of nerves strengthened, of pain and weakness overcome in the only natural way—by building up the vigor of the human system.

These letters tell you better than we can in any other way what you may expect from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Everywhere you find people enthusiastic over Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. If you do not happen to know any of these people ask your friends about this "food cure." They are sure to know of some cases in which it has proved a blessing.

Clementsport, N.S.

Miss Gertrude M. Burrell, Clementsport, N.S. writes:—I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results. For a number of years I was afflicted with nervousness, and six years ago had a complete breakdown. I had no control of my nerves, and had terrible hysterical spells. I could not sleep, had night sweats, awful dreams and nightmares. My physician gave me medicine to put me to sleep every night, and another kind to take every two hours during the day, but it did not see to do me any good only while I was taking it. I never really expected to get well. Reading about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food one day, I gave it a trial, and the results from the first box encouraged me, so I continued its use, and found my nerves getting steady and stronger. My appetite improved and I gained in strength, ambition and flesh. Now I am able to do considerable work, and can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a good tonic for the whole system.

(Alonso W. Daniels, J.P. says:—"It gives me great satisfaction to vouch for the testimony of this young lady and the benefit she has received from your wonderful discovery.")

Petrolia

Mrs. R. Thomas, Eureka St., Petrolia, Ont. writes:—"For over two years I suffered with my nerves; sometimes I would break down completely and be in bed for a week at a time. I never could get any sleep until about three or four o'clock in the morning. A friend of mine one day advised me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and a treatment of this medicine proved to be just what I needed. It soothed my nerves, made me sleep at night, and strengthened me in every way. I continued using the Nerve Food until I completely recovered. Now I would have no hesitation in recommending it to anyone suffering from nervousness or run-down system.

("I am acquainted with Mrs. Thomas, and believe her statement to be correct."—Thos. Kelly, Postmaster.)

the nerves. Pain was relieved but at terrible expense to the nervous system, because this meant the tearing down of cells and tissues.

With the advent of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food the method of treatment was revolutionized because the idea of this "food cure" is to form new, rich blood and build-up the depleted nerve cells. Instead of affording mere relief Dr. Chase's Nerve Food removes the cause of trouble by restoring energy, vigor and vitality to the whole human system.

Brockville

Mrs. Marshall Dellabough, 262 Brock St., Brockville, Ont. writes:—"For about a year, I have suffered from nervousness and run-down system. I had headaches, neuralgic pains through the body, and my nerves used to twitch and I could not stop them. I was very, easily worried or tired, and began to feel that my heart action was becoming weak. I went to see a Doctor, and he told me I was nervous and run-down, and needed a tonic. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and at the end of three weeks I could see an improvement. I took four boxes in all, and now am completely cured. I can sleep well now, and eat a good hearty meal. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to any suffering from nervous trouble of any kind, and I hope my letter will benefit other women suffering from nervousness."

J. Edward Evans, although 76 years old, never tires of the life under the big top. He joined Barnum & Bailey's circus way back in 1867 as an aerial acrobat. He has given up the act, but he is still a member of the monster organization, which is about to start out on its annual tour of the country.

Charles Dana Gibson, the artist, who has just purchased a controlling interest in Life, will have to get along without the company of his wife for a few months. She has gone on a visit to her sister in England, Lady Nancy Astor.

Joseph C. Lincoln, author of those numerous and inimitable Cape Cod stories that many of us have read with unalloyed pleasure, has written a new story, the first in nearly two years, which has its scene in his favorite region and to which he has given the title "The Portygee." It will be published this month. Mr. Lincoln is easily the most interesting and the most faithful portrayer of Cape Cod life and character. Mr. Lincoln has just passed his fiftieth birthday.

Lady Diana Duff Cooper, the youngest daughter of the Duke of Rutland, has undertaken the duties of editor of the English edition of "Femina," a magazine published in Paris, and dealing with society, fashions, and topics of interest to various types of women. Lady Diana, who was married last year, is only twenty-eight years old, and is clever and versatile.

Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, the first president of the new Republic of Czechoslovakia, will be permitted to continue in his office for life according to the provisions of the national constitution, recently adopted at Prague. Whether this is a wise decision depends, first of all, upon the kind of man he is; and second, upon the nature of the powers that are given him.

The periods of service of all future presidents are to be limited to two successive terms of seven years.

Prince Albert and Henry, second and third sons of the British king and queen, are now students at Cambridge University. They are regular fellows, and make trips about the country on motorcycles taking in highways like the usual tourists and dining at wayside inns.

Kitty Dalton, the pretty New York girl, who was kissed by General Pershing on his homecoming day in New York as she presented him with Knights of Columbus roses, has had hundreds of proposals, an offer of $150 a week to appear in a revue, and has been sought by both stage and movie magnates. She remains a $25-a-week stenographer.

Gilbert K. Chesterton, the English author, who has time and time again championed "the cause of Ireland," is now touring the Holy Lands along the route followed by the British army on its way to Jerusalem. It has been suggested that he should return to England by the way of the United States, and it is now thought that he will do so.

People Who Never Use Beds.

Many thousands of folding army beds used by our officers are now being sent to various parts of Europe to remedy the immense shortage of beds of all kinds.

Whether the people who get them will like them, comfortable as they are, is doubtful, for many a foreigner finds it difficult to sleep on English beds.

The Chinese and Japanese, for instance, complain that our mattresses are too soft for comfort! The Chinese use low bedsteads, often elaborately carved, and supporting only mats, while the Japanese use a matting couch and wooden neck rest instead of a pillow. The English and Americans, in fact, are the most luxurious races in the world as regards sleeping comforts, and after them the French.

Nations living in hot regions usually sleep in hammocks or upon mats of grass. The Indian unrolls his light portable charpoy or mattress, which in the morning is again rolled up and carried away with him.

A peculiarity of the German bed is its shortness; besides that, it frequently consists in part of a large down pillow or upper mattress, which spreads over the sleeper, and usually answers the purpose of all the other ordinary bed-clothing.

The Italian bed is much bigger than ours, especially in the north of Italy. But millions of people in Europe, especially in Russia, have never slept in a bed in their lives, being content with a mat or rug on the floor.

House of Assembly.

May 11.
The House met at 3 p.m.
Petitions were presented by Messrs. Warren, Abbott, Sullivan and Higgins, on local matters. Sir John Crosbie presented a petition from Cupids signed by 116 men, who desired a modification in the Prohibition Act.

HON. MR. WARREN gave notice of resolutions dealing with the exportation of codfish.

QUESTIONS.

Sir J. C. CROSBIE asked the Minister of Justice if Magistrate Mifflin of Greenspond has been transferred. If so why? And to state to what place Mr. Mifflin has been transferred and what will be the nature of his duties.

Reply—Mr. Mifflin has not been transferred.

SIR J. C. CROSBIE—To ask the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs if the Post Mistress at Squid Tickle, B. E., Miss A. Burden, has been dismissed, if so why? Has any charge been made against her? If so to lay a copy of such charge on the Table of the House.

Reply—Mr. Halfyard not present. Will table information to-morrow.

The Bill to amend the Judicature Act was given a second reading, as was also the Act to confirm a contract between the Government and the St. Lawrence Steamship Pulp and Lumber Co., Limited.

In asking for the second reading of the latter the Prime Minister stated that this was not a party measure. When the new Government took power they found this awaiting them. They had made some alterations and now brought it down to the House not as a party measure, but as a measure that both parties to some extent were responsible for.

The Minister of Finance and Customs informed Sir M. P. Cashin that during the month of April some 713 men had left Newfoundland for Canada and the U.S.A.

Mr. Walsh on the motion to adjourn, drew the attention of the Prime Minister to the accident on Bell Island, in which one man had lost his life. He thought that the trouble was because of no qualified inspector to look after the mines in the interest of the miners. A stringent inquiry should at once be instituted to see where the responsibility in this case, if any, should rest. A man who has charge of men underground should be required to undergo a strict examination before taking men in his care. He brought this matter to the attention of the House and to the Government with a view to having something done if possible.

The House then adjourned until 3 p.m. to-day.

The Carpenters' Strike.

The local Union of carpenters and joiners held a meeting in the L.S.P.U. Hall last night. The meeting was well attended and it was decided that the employers be interviewed as to the increase of wages asked for. The strike has been on for ten days, during which several offers of compromise failed to effect a settlement. The factories have been greatly inconvenienced by the strike, and orders for materials are not being accepted, with the assurance that they can be delivered within reasonable time. Contractors in the city have diverted their orders for fittings to the outport factories, which they claim can turn out the goods equal to and cheaper than those here.

Horsemen of Austria Pay Unique Compliment to Prince.

The news that during his forthcoming tour in Australia the Prince of Wales will ride Bayard, a blood bay over fifteen hands, acknowledged to be the champion hack of the Commonwealth, is full of meaning for one who knows the great island-continent and its people, says London Answers. From the Australian point of view, a greater compliment could have been paid the prince. More than anything else the country-bred Australian loves his horse. There is no people so skilled in horse-love. Horse-racing is a national passion. A great race horse becomes almost an object of veneration. In lonely places, hundreds of miles away from the great centres of population, men argue about his achievements, and carefully treasure altered fragments of newspapers setting forth his exploits.

On the basis of comparative population, there are more verse-writers in Australia than in any other country, and ninety per cent. of their verses are written about the horse. There is at least one Australian horse-poet—B. ("Banjo") Paterson—whose verses are known by heart from one end of the continent to the other. The reputation achieved by his books, at a copy, would turn the most successful of our British masters of poetry green with envy.

Every country-born Australian is horseman almost from his birth. It is no exaggeration to say that most of them learn to ride soon after they have acquired the art of toddling. At eight years of age many of them ride many miles to school and back again every day. (And sometimes, before and after school, they will milk half a dozen cows, and do other odd jobs about the farm.)

At seventeen, or thereabouts, the Australian lad becomes the proud possessor of a horse of his own—a "real pony hack," instead of the pony or old farm general utility horse of which he has made use hitherto. On his he will ride long miles cross-country in the evening to visit the girl of his heart upon a distant farm. If it has "a turn of speed," he will end hours each day in training it, the hope of being able to win a race with it at the annual picnic races the nearest town. Or if it can jump bit, he will develop its talent by schooling it over post-and-rail fences or improvised hurdles. The fiercer knew one young Australian who erected a hurdle under a tree with an overhanging bough so low that if the horse cleared the hurdle, the rider had a very narrow escape from having his head cracked by the bough. He said it made it "so much more exciting."

Another young man lived twenty miles from a country town, to which he would frequently ride in a night more or less half-broken horses would dance until two or three o'clock in the morning, and then ride home. And if it happened to be moonlight, he would not bother to open any of the many gates on his journey, preferring to make his halfschooled horse jump the barbed wire fences instead. That was exciting, too.

Wonderful friendships sometimes exist between these men and their horses. The writer came once to a desolate sheep-station (ranch) in a far-distant part of Australia, where his hostess told me that her husband had left three days before to help fight a devastating bush-fire which had broken out on the property of a neighbor. They had become anxious at his prolonged absence, and were sending out a search-party to look for him. The writer joined it. Twelve miles away from his homestead he was found lying in a pool of his own blood, with his faithful horse standing guard over him. Exhausted by his efforts to fight the fire, he had gone to sleep on the horse's back on his way home, fallen off, and cracked his skull on a big stone. But the horse had never moved from his side.

So that is why it is safe to say that the decision to place the champion horse Bayard at the disposal of the Prince of Wales is a great compliment. The Australian will lend his horse only to a man whom he respects. He will allow no duffer to put his leg across its back. The man to whom he lends him must have the "hands" and "seat" of the born horseman. Evidently the "Digger" is convinced that the prince satisfies all these requirements.

Man From West is Sure Enthusiastic.

MAT. A. CARLSON PRAISES DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Says They Steadily Helped Him When He Was Sallow and Thin and Felt the Twinges of Rheumatic Pains.

Endako, B.C., May 10.—(Special.)—Mat. A. Carlson, a well-known resident here, is a firm believer in Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for sick kidneys. Mr. Carlson gives his reason:

"I was 'sallow and thin,' he says, 'and then I felt the rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings.'

"I read so much of the health and strength that comes to all who use Dodd's Kidney Pills that I felt sure they would help me.

"Such blessings of health and comfort I got from them I cannot describe. They very soon helped me and their steady use keeps me active and strong."

To keep healthy the kidneys must be kept in good working order. They strain the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood is the first essential to good health.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills have not proved their worth as a remedy for sick kidneys.

City Built Entirely of Salt

The famous salt mines of Wieliczka, not far from Cracow, in Galicia, which are among the wonders of the world, are described in a book on "Salt and the Salt Industry," by M. A. F. Calvert, recently issued in London.

A detailed account of their unprecedented features, he says, would fill a thick volume, for there are monuments, churches, lakes, restaurants, railway station, and, in fact, a complete city, 12,000 feet below the level of the earth. The whole of the system extends over an area of about 12 miles, and railways run along the various galleries. Some of the wonders of the subterranean city are described by Mr. Calvert:

"The Letow ball-room, which lies at a depth of 216 feet below the surface, dates from 1750, and has been the scene of many Royal visits and splendid entertainments. One end of this spacious chamber is adorned with a colossal Austrian eagle, and in an alcove at the opposite end is a crystal throne. The giant chamber which bears the name of Michalovice, a fearsome and stupendous excavation, was completed in 1701, as the result of forty years of continuous labor. It is 69 feet long by 92 feet broad, and the roof supported by a wooden framework, has a height of 118 feet. The chamber is lit by a salt chandelier, furnished with 300 electric bulbs.

The Francis-Joseph ball-room is another of the wonders. It is an immensely large and lofty apartment, lit by six large chandeliers, fashioned of crystalline rock salt. Salt statues of Vulcan and Neptune, which adorn the hall, reflect the electric light from a myriad brilliant points and angles, and contribute to the general impression of flashing splendor which the scene conveys.

About Sugar.

As our sugar ration has been reduced, let us try to make up the deficiency with a few "grains" of information on such a sweet subject: The sugar-cane in some cases grows to a height of twenty feet. Rum is made from some of the succin obtained from the boiling down of the juice from the sugar-cane. Sugar is made in North America from the sugar-maple (Acer Saccharinum), a fine-looking forest tree. A hole is bored in the trunk during March or April—when the weather is frosty at night and sunny during the day—and the sap runs into a trough placed below. The manufacture of maple-sugar is carried on close to the trees, the process being called a "bee" (or picnic) by the Americans.

Palm-sugar called "jaggery," is obtained in India from a species of palm-trees. The sweet juice flows from the top shoot of the tree when it is wounded.

Beet-sugar comes from the root of the beta (the beet root), and its manufacture had its rise in the exclusive Continental system set up by Napoleon, who forbade foreign produce to be used. By taxes he caused cane-sugar to rise to five shillings per pound. Thus the manufacture of beet-sugar became flourishing, and gave employment to many thousands of people in France, Germany, and Russia.

Sugar-candy is merely a variation in the preparation of sugar, being a freshly-boiled solution which, when taken to a hot room, forms large crystals upon sticks or strings out into the vat.

than any other part of the body. In fact, some people have been known to eat a small quantity after muscular exertion in order to get back lost energy.

Gems of Thought.

Luck is ever waiting for something to turn up. Labor, with keen eyes and strong will, will turn up something. Luck lies in bed, and wishes the postman would bring him the news of a legacy. Labor turns out at six o'clock, and with busy pen or ringing hammer lays the foundation of a competence. Luck whines. Labor whistles. Luck relies on chance. Labor on character.—Cobden.

The human heart is like a millstone in a mill; when you put wheat under it, it turns, and grinds, and bruises the wheat into flour; if you put no wheat in, it still grinds on; but then it is itself it grinds and slowly wears away.—Luther.

True love's the gift which God hath given, to man alone beneath the heaven. The silver link, the silver tie, which heart to heart, and mind to mind, in joy and in soul can bind.—Walter Scott.

Many men are angry with them that tell them of their faults, when they should be angry only with the faults that are told them.—Vening.

A vulgar mind is proud in prosperity and humble in adversity; a noble mind is humble in prosperity and proud in adversity.—Ruckert.

For contemplation he, and valor former; for softness she, and sweet attractive grace; he for God only, she for God in him.—Milton.

When men cease to be faithful to God, he who expects to find them so to each other will be much disappointed.—Bp. Horne.

I will chide no breather in the world but myself, against whom I know most faults.—Shakespeare.

Of all evils to the generous, shame is the most deadly pang.—Thomson.
