The Countess of Landon.

CHAPTER XVI.

The countess stood aside and Irene entered, and crossing the room, knelt and picked up the diamonds. As she rose she staggered a little. She was exhausted by the mental strain she had undergone, and the countess put her arm round her.

"You are ill, Irene," she said.

"No, not ill, but—but, oh, so unhappy, madame!" she said; and she laid her face on the countess's bosom. As she did so, she saw traces of tears on the black satin, and she looked up into the proud, handsome face appealingly.

"You are unhappy, too," she said, tenderly, appealingly. "It was you I heard."

"Never mind me," said the countess. "Something has happened. What is it?" Irene hid her face.

"Seymour has asked me to be his wife," she said in a low voice.

The countess's arm tightened, and Irene thought she felt her shudder.

"Seymour! Well?"

"Oh, madam, I could not—I could not!" whispered Irene.

"You could not?" said the countess, with forced calm. "Why not? You do not love him? Is that it?"

"Yes," came the whispered response.

"Yes, I told him so, but—but he was very angry, and said things—"

She stopped. The countess smoothed the golden hair which had fallen loose over Irene's forehead and neck, almost shrouding her face.

"He said things about—Royce?" said the countess, slowly.

"Yes, yes! Things that were not true. Oh, madame, if you will only let me speak—if you will only listen to me, and let me tell you what I have heard to-night—"

The countess seemed about to remove her arm, but Irene clung and nestled against her closely, appealingly.

"One of the officers from the garrison told me—the one who sat next to me. He knows everything, the whole truth—the truth, madame, and he says that Royce was not to blame, that he need not have left the army, that he might go back if—"

"If Seymour would take his part. It is true! All his brother-officers are on Royce's side. Ah, if you had heard this gentleman speak of him. Everybody loves him and admires him—everybody; and, ah, think of it, dear madame—how cruel we have been to him! We have sent him away in disgrace, when all the while he was not to blame, but ought to have had our pity and sympathy. Oh, madame, dear dear madame, you would not let me say anything for him the day he went away, but you will let me speak now? You will forgive him—why, there is nothing to forgive! It is he who must forgive us. You will find him and let him come back? You will, for—"

"For your own sake—for—"

she pressed her face, suddenly burning hot, against the countess's bosom, and whispered, as if with shame, the last words—"for mine!"

The countess stood silent for a moment; then Irene, glancing up timidly, saw that the tears were coursing down the proud face.

"Is—this true?" came from the quivering lips at last. "Are you sure it is true?"

"It is true! I will answer for it with my life—every word," responded Irene, striking on her knees and winding her white arms round the countess. "You will forgive him—you will take him back? Ah, I see you will! Think, dear, he may be wandering about the world penniless, perhaps hungry and ill!"

The countess put out her hand and let it fall tremblingly on Irene's head. "Hush—hush!" she murmured, brokenly. "I—I can not bear any more! If it be true, then—"

She stopped suddenly and caught her breath. "Yes, Irene, he must come back! My heart is breaking with longing to see him! My boy—my boy!" She sunk into a chair, and it was now Irene's turn to try to soothe and calm. The outburst of the mother's yearning was almost terrible.

"Oh, don't cry so!" murmured Irene. "Be calm, dear! We will find him and bring him home, and then we will all be happy. Oh, to think of having Royce home again—all to ourselves! And he shall go back to the army, and—and he will make a great name for himself and make you proud of him, and—and—"

she broke off with a half-laughing sob—"Oh, madame, I am so happy! I know it will all come right now, dear. Royce will forgive us. You know how tender and gentle he is at heart, for all his recklessness. He will forgive me, and you will be happy once more, dear. Let me stay and help to undress you? May I stay with you all night? I should love to! We shall not sleep, perhaps, either of us; but we can talk of Royce, dear Royce!"

She put her arms round the countess and kissed her lovingly, and was beginning to unfasten the lace round her neck, the countess submitting, when a knock was heard at the door.

Both women started, and the countess rose and dashed the tears from her eyes, as if afraid lest her weakness should be seen by a second person.

"Who can it be, madame? Louise, the maid?"

"No; I have sent her to bed," said the countess in a low voice. Then she said aloud, "Who is there?"

"I, Seymour," came the response. "I want to see you for a moment."

The countess laid her hand upon Irene's arm to reassure her, then went and opened the door.

He started as he saw Irene, and stood silent for a moment.

His face had flushed, and wore a thinly veiled expression of triumph.

ment; then Irene, glancing up timidly, saw that the tears were coursing down the proud face.

"Is—this true?" came from the quivering lips at last. "Are you sure it is true?"

"It is true! I will answer for it with my life—every word," responded Irene, striking on her knees and winding her white arms round the countess.

"You will forgive him—you will take him back? Ah, I see you will! Think, dear, he may be wandering about the world penniless, perhaps hungry and ill!"

The countess put out her hand and let it fall tremblingly on Irene's head. "Hush—hush!" she murmured, brokenly. "I—I can not bear any more! If it be true, then—"

She stopped suddenly and caught her breath. "Yes, Irene, he must come back! My heart is breaking with longing to see him! My boy—my boy!" She sunk into a chair, and it was now Irene's turn to try to soothe and calm. The outburst of the mother's yearning was almost terrible.

"Oh, don't cry so!" murmured Irene. "Be calm, dear! We will find him and bring him home, and then we will all be happy. Oh, to think of having Royce home again—all to ourselves! And he shall go back to the army, and—and he will make a great name for himself and make you proud of him, and—and—"

she broke off with a half-laughing sob—"Oh, madame, I am so happy! I know it will all come right now, dear. Royce will forgive us. You know how tender and gentle he is at heart, for all his recklessness. He will forgive me, and you will be happy once more, dear. Let me stay and help to undress you? May I stay with you all night? I should love to! We shall not sleep, perhaps, either of us; but we can talk of Royce, dear Royce!"

She put her arms round the countess and kissed her lovingly, and was beginning to unfasten the lace round her neck, the countess submitting, when a knock was heard at the door.

Both women started, and the countess rose and dashed the tears from her eyes, as if afraid lest her weakness should be seen by a second person.

"Who can it be, madame? Louise, the maid?"

"No; I have sent her to bed," said the countess in a low voice. Then she said aloud, "Who is there?"

"I, Seymour," came the response. "I want to see you for a moment."

The countess laid her hand upon Irene's arm to reassure her, then went and opened the door.

He started as he saw Irene, and stood silent for a moment.

His face had flushed, and wore a thinly veiled expression of triumph.

"Forgive me for disturbing you, dear mother," he said; "but I have just heard important news of Royce." Irene caught at the countess's arm. Seymour glanced at her, but still addressed the countess.

"It is bad news, I am sorry to say."

"Bad news?" echoed the countess, under her breath.

"Alas, yes! But I am afraid we could scarcely hope for good," he murmured.

"What is it?" demanded the countess, her voice strained and hard, as if she were preparing herself for the worst. Irene stood with her eyes fixed upon him, holding her breath.

"He has joined a gang of rascals," said Seymour.

The countess's hand closed spasmodically and her face grew pale.

"It is not true," breathed Irene. "I am afraid it is but too true. After all, it is just what might be expected of Royce, with his love of low and degrading company. Besides—"

He hesitated. The countess mentioned him to go on.

"Well, such subjects should not be whispered in the hearing of dear Irene; but I fear Royce has some object—inducement. There is, as usual, a woman in the case. One of the low women belonging to the gang—"

"It is a lie!"

The exclamation came from Irene. She had withdrawn her hand from the countess's arm and stood confronting him.

He bit his lip.

"I can understand your reluctance to credit such infamy, even on the part of Royce; but I have it on good authority. Giles, the second groom, has seen Royce, and heard the whole story of his—let us say, in charity—entanglement."

The countess's head drooped for a moment, then she raised it, her face pale and set.

"Where did he see him?" she asked.

"At Markham Fair. He was with the gang, dressed like one of them—in fact, looked, so Giles says, as if he had been born and bred among them."

A strange expression, crossed the countess's face as she looked at him. "It is not true—it is not true—madame! Do not believe it!" panted Irene.

The countess seemed to wake from a dream.

"Be quiet, Irene," she said in a low, stern voice. "We can soon learn whether it is true or false. I will go to him."

"And I!" said Irene, under her breath.

This did not at all suit Seymour, and for a moment his face fell, then he looked up with a hypocritical sigh.

"You are right, as you always are, my dear. Low as Royce has sunk, we must try, and remember that he is of our blood, and if possible save him, even in spite of himself. We will all go to him. He may listen to one of us, and—er—perhaps be induced to leave the country and spare us further shame and humiliation," and he retired, leaving the two women standing as if turned to stone.

CHAPTER XVII.

It was rather more than a week after Markham Fair, and the glory of the setting sun added a deeper crimson to the turning leaves, and made pillars of bronze of the trees in the glade in which the caravans were pitched. For immediately after Markham Fair the tribe had again divided, and the portion encamped in the glade was that which Royce had first joined.

The camp-fire was lighted, and the children were playing round it, and getting in the way of the women who were preparing the evening meal. Old Davy, seated against the wheel of a caravan, was busy mending harness. Lottie was at basket-work near him, and the rest of the gang were an evidence, as the French say, excepting Mr. Jack and Madge.

Her caravan stood a little apart from the rest, but the door was closed, and Tony sat on the steps playing disconsolately with a wooden horse which "Mr. Jack" had bought in the last fair for him.

A most exasperatingly savory smell rose from the great pot which Mother Katie was stirring, and presently, with the sigh of satisfaction which a good cook breathes when her work is nearing completion, she said:

"Supper is anigh ready."

She straightened her back and looked round.

"Run and tell Madge," she said to Lottie.

Lottie rose and sauntered to the van. She came back, and, with her great eyes opened on the pot, said:

"Madge ain't there, mother. Mother Katie clicked impatiently.

"OR wandering in the woods, as usual, I suppose," she said. "I never know such a one for rambling about."

One of the women looked up from the stocking she was mending.

"Madge ain't in the woods," she said. "I heard her say she was going into the town to buy some things, and I haven't seen her since."

A Beautiful Cream.

Three Flowers Vanishing Cream is a non-greasy cream, but unlike many vanishing creams, it is so constituted as not to be too drying to the skin. It is instantly absorbed by the pores, leaving a smooth, velvety surface. Any shine there may be on the skin, disappears as this cream is absorbed. It protects the skin from wind and cold, and prevents chapping.

Former Bitter Enemies

MEET TO-DAY AS FRIENDS.

PLEMONS, Texas, March 28—(A.P.)—Fifty years ago at a lonely spot called Adobe Walls, in what is now Hutchinson County, a few miles from here, 700 Indians attacked 38 white men and one woman in a buffalo hunters' camp. From dawn until night the white men fought for their lives, finally driving off the Indians.

On June 27 the children and grandchildren of these "sure hot" plainsmen and the descendants of the Indians who attacked them, with possibly two of the white participants in the battle, are to gather at the same spot, still almost as lonely, to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of that bitter fight and to erect a monument over the graves of the 37 white men who were killed.

Several thousand people of the north Panhandle of Texas, western Oklahoma and southwestern Kansas are expected to attend the celebration which is planned for two days.

The fight lasted throughout the day, the little band of white men stopping only long enough to cool their guns. Finally the Indians saw more numbers could not prevail against marksmanship, and at night withdrew, leaving 13 dead behind and carrying many more away with them.

The only two living survivors of the battle are Andy Johnson of Dodge City, Kansas, and Fred Leonard of Salt Lake City.

Teaching Children Self-Confidence

Is your child shy when presented to guests? Some mothers suffer acutely because their offspring "behaves so badly" when spoken to by people they do not know. Many children become dumb on occasions when fond parents long for them to create a favorable impression owing to a dread of being laughed at or misunderstood.

Lack of sympathy on the part of "grown-ups" often tends to check the spontaneous enthusiasm of a child. Self-expression—which is so great an asset in life—if checked in childhood may become increasingly difficult as the child grows up.

One mother, whose children were always perry shy and backward in the presence of visitors, solved the problem by encouraging her children to make speeches in a sufficiently proficient manner. Sunday, at lunch time, was the usual day when this game (for such it soon became) was played. One of the children proposed a toast; another spoke for two or three minutes on some given subject that was simple and well within his or her scope of observation. The household pets, signs of spring, the wireless concert formed the subjects.

The endeavor to be interesting developed, and nervousness was soon overcome. They were urged to speak simply and evolve their own ideas, each in turn was listened to with attention. Occasionally the "speech" would be prepared, but was usually impromptu.

Vengeance of Pagan Gods Wreaked on Temple Violators

Honolulu, March 2 (A.P.)—The gods of ancient Hawaii again wreaked their vengeance upon the whites who made merry upon the site of a former heiau, or old-time temple of worship, according to Hawaiian superstition, when the famous clubhouse of the Order of Elks on the beach at Waikiki was damaged by fire to the extent of $55,000.

The flames, caused by defective wiring, were the last of a series of untoward events, including murder, that occurred at the site of the heiau, which nestles at the foot of Diamond Head. According to Hawaiian medicine men, only evil will come to those who desecrate the site of an ancient heiau.

The clubhouse was built many years ago by the late James B. Castle, a descendant of the missionaries who came from New England to the islands in 1820, as a residence for his family. During the occupancy of the Castle family two Japanese were murdered in the grounds and attention was called at that time to the tradition of the heiau.

Gum Chewing Aids the Teeth

You have the authority of doctors and dentists for this statement. Your own experience will prove it, if you will use WRIGLEY'S after every meal.

The following quotations from a recent work on teeth and health are worth remembering:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth . . ."

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

The busy man—or woman either—rarely has time to clean the teeth after eating. Yet they should be cleaned, and will do it. Also it will aid digestion and furnish welcome refreshment to mouth and throat.

WRIGLEY'S after every meal

The Flavor Lasts

France and Her "Black Empire"

"The French General Staff have recently taken a most important decision which is the complement of the measures for maintaining a black army. For years Frenchmen have debated several schemes for building a railway from the French North African provinces to the rivers of West Africa. This is a matter of some 2,000 miles. Whatever route was chosen, such a line must run across the vast tract of the Sahara desert. It could have no commercial justification unless minerals were found in large quantities, and of that there is no sign," writes Mr. W. P. Crozier, in the New Republic.

"Yet the War Council and the Supreme Council of National Defence have now sanctioned the construction of a line from the Algerian railways through the centre of the Sahara to the upper waters of the Niger. There it would be linked on to the railway lines in Senegal and the other provinces which are already built or building.

"It can have no other object than to carry the West African army northwards to the Mediterranean as an alternative to the long and dangerous sea route which follows the African coast and passes through the narrows at Gibraltar.

"That 130,000 African blacks actually fought in France is a hard fact. That 65,000 of them are now stationed in Europe and are to be a permanent part of the European establishment; that the existing army scheme provides for a three years' native service under which between one-half and three-quarters of a million blacks will be available; that the machinery will be instantly ready for training several million more; that the proposed railway is to be made for no other purpose than to carry these forces to France; and that France, pursuing peace as a barely suppressed form of war, is being inexorably driven to augment her man-power by any means, however deplorable—all these are hard facts and not rhetoric.

"It is not unlikely that this question will in a few years become one of the most disturbing elements in European politics. The neighbours of France will not contentedly contemplate the use against them of hordes of Africans. They will disapprove a method which they believe is enraging to the self-respect of Europe and of the white man."

Would an Education Have Spoiled Lincoln?

"Arthur Brisbane thinks that it would. This editorial writer, whose words are set before the eyes of millions every morning, is of the opinion that Lincoln could not have gone through an American college without having lost that intensity of purpose and moral vigour which made him what he was. 'Four years in college,' writes Mr. Brisbane, 'might have found him saying:—Well, there are two sides to the question. Someone must produce the cotton for England's mills and for the upkeep of a cultured class in the South, and, after all, you'll notice that God did make those Negroes of a different color. That's how the young college graduate talks of to-day's labor problems.'"

"Mr. Brisbane has at least this justification for his conjecture: he has merely reproduced the precise thing that did happen in the case of many a man of the period," says the Christian Century. "And it must not be forgotten that it is one of the purposes of an education to enable men to look on the world from more angles of vision, so that what might be called the philosopher's paralysis always lies in wait for the young Graduate."

"All colleges need to guard against this. In particular, the current practice of requiring students to uphold any point of view in a debate, merely as an exercise in forensic dexterity, is a crime against the soul of youth. When College tends to dilettantism, or to a loss of ethical fervour, it is a distinctly unworthy social factor."

The fact that Mr. Brisbane would write such an editorial suggests that it is a problem most of the colleges need to wrestle with—Public Opinion.

Conservative Motion Against Capital Levy Carried By 325 to 160

Montreal Police Arrest Eight Suspects in Bank Onrage—Bill to Give Unemployed Free Lodgings Raises Storm—1200 Pilgrims on Board a Ship on Fire.

CAPITAL LEVY POLICY REJECTED

LONDON, April 2.—The policy of Capital Levy was rejected by the House of Commons tonight by a vote of 325 to 160. Advertisement of the 25c to 160c tax on the rents Bill provided an opportunity to take up the Conservative motion against Capital Levy, which was designed to force the Government to change its attitude on this question. Chief interest centered in the admission by J. R. Clynes, leader in the House, that the Government would no longer hope for the passage of such a measure at present, and that it was useless for any Government to introduce the bill without full consent of the electors. He strongly maintained, however, that ultimately the country would be forced by its crushing burdens of debt to revert to this remedy because there was no alternative. He was convinced that the people would soon realize that the levy was not the stupid thing its opponents contended, but a real stern necessity.

LABOR GOVT. RIDING FOR FALL

LONDON, April 2.—The reddest piece of work yet attempted by the Labor Government, is the description applied by Ministers to the bill dealing with rents and evictions which comes up for its second reading in the House of Commons to-day, and which promises to set the political heather on fire. Its sponsor is the Minister of Health, John Wheatley. The main feature of the bill, which repels some recent legislation, is that the tenant shall not be liable to eviction for non-payment of rent, when such non-payment is due to the tenant's inability to get employment. The Conservatives have risen in arms against the bill, and given notice of motion for its rejection, while many Liberals are apparently equally hostile, and even some of the moderate Laborites are said to be doubtful of its wisdom. A big struggle over the bill is deemed inevitable and the suggestion is made in some quarters that the Government is riding for a fall.

ALL SAFELY RESCUED.

LONDON, April 2.—Twelve hundred pilgrims bound for Jeddah to-day had a narrow escape when the cotton cargo of the British steamer Frangestan caught fire in the Red Sea as the vessel was nearing Port Sudan. Answering radio calls for assistance a number of craft rushed to the Frangestan and stood by till all the pilgrims and other passengers and members of the crew were transferred to another steamer.

EIGHT SUSPECTS IN THE TOLLS.

MONTREAL, April 2.—Eight suspects, six men and two women, were in the hands of the police this afternoon in connection with the robbery yesterday afternoon of a car carrying money from a branch to head office of the Bank of Hochelaga. It was stated this afternoon that the police clue to the suspects came from a list of phone numbers found on the body of the bandit who was shot in the holdup. The addresses of the people having these phones were secured and were raided, four suspects being picked up last night and the remainder to-day.

Irish legal affairs are in a situation specially interesting to legal experts, for the whole judicial system is being recast, and visitors would witness the period of transition from the ancient to the modern methods. The experiment of the working of a written constitution is also likely to prove interesting.

Simple Remedies

BELLVILLE, Ont., March 24.—(Can. Press.)—"Real relaxation—a change from the conditions that weary us; the science of fields and woodlands; the simplest kind of shelter, the simplest and fewest of garments; an open fire, food collected and cooked by ourselves; much sleep, much good water to drink and raw fruits to eat—these, the conditions of our savage ancestors, will cure frayed nerves, weak minds, indifferent appetites and brittle tempers, because these are natural to us who are only a few score generations from the cave men."

Thus spoke Prof. MacClement, of Queen's University, addressing the public school teachers of Bellville. He pointed out the diseases, and breakdown of the nervous and digestive systems through the rush and hurry of the present race for speed and hurry, and said that to get real enjoyment out of life it should be spent in the manner of our cavemen ancestors.

A Useful Suggestion

WATCH ON BAD DRIVING.

What will be the policy of the police this year in regard to reckless driving? Since last year's motoring season, the number of motorists has increased to a large degree. One British firm alone has delivered, since the Motor Show in the autumn, no fewer than 10,000 cars.

It is obvious that this season there will be thousands of new drivers on the road, many of whom will not have time to acquire the proper road sense for skilful driving. Last summer the growing tide of motoring accidents caused general alarm. Is there any reason why, unless action is taken, the same unfortunate situation may not arise this year?

There is legislation in view to meet modern traffic requirements. It has been in view for a number of years, but is always being shelved, and there is no real prospect of its seeing daylight for some time to come. Yet the problem of stamping out reckless driving was never so urgent. That is why I ask the question: What steps are the police going to take to deal with it?

There is no doubt that a great deal can be done without any new legislation. If the police would give up the petty persecution of motorists—such as trapping on perfectly safe roads—and concentrate entirely on the reckless driver, they would have the sympathy of the whole community.

Million Law Breakers.

There are roughly a million motorists in the country. Every time one of them goes out for a drive it is almost safe to assume that he breaks the 20-mile-an-hour legal limit. There must be something wrong with a law that a million people break.

Whenever the question is raised in regard to the uselessness of the police trap, the answer of the authorities is: "We must keep these motorists in hand somehow." But this is just what the police trap does not achieve. What then is the solution?

Under the Motor Car Act, any motorist can be prosecuted for driving to the common danger. It does not suggest that the police should have a free hand in deciding what is dangerous driving. But there are certain very simple rules of the road which, if they are not observed, certainly constitute driving to the common danger. It takes two policemen to gather evidence for a prosecution for exceeding the speed limit. If all the police engaged on this uncongenial task were put on to track down the reckless driver they would make the roads very much safer.

No one minds being summoned for exceeding the speed limit. Prosecutions for bad driving would be a different matter, and it would only need a crop of cases of this kind to make the reckless more careful.

The only proper place for a police trap is a stretch of road which includes a blind corner or a bad bend and narrow village streets. If a trap was placed in such a position it would not yield such a heavy harvest, but everyone who was caught would deserve it. An attack on the reckless would be welcomed by the great body of careful and considerate motorists which fortunately constitutes the motoring majority.—London Daily Mail.

Fads and Fashions.

The grille that is to be tightly drawn should be placed at the top of the hip bone.

There is nothing smarter for morning wear this spring than the tailored costume.

A smart accessory to the spring Tailleur is a "watch fob" fastened to the watch pocket.

Parallel rows of matching tailored silk braid are used on a chemise frock of charmeuse.

Snakeskin, with its mottled effect of gray and white, is a novelty of spring millinery.

A sleeveless Breton jacket of silk crepe is worn over a straight frock of the same material.

Simple, almost untrimmed, frocks, of white crepe de chine will be worn at the summer resorts.

A white bone fob ornament is a smart accessory to a colored flannel frock trimmed in white.

White lace lines an evening wrap of finely pleated chantilly lace, colored with white fox.

Uncurled ostrich feathers in rose, blue and yellow are used on a small hat of fine, black straw.

A straight frock of alpaca is worn with a box coat with a scarf collar and center closing.

GOING AFTER WHAT YOU WANT.

When you want a thing there are always two ways of getting it. One is to sit down and wait for it to come to you. The other is to go after it. The second way doesn't always work, of course, but about all you can say for the first way is that it isn't always fail. Sometimes when we want a thing we don't go after it simply because we think we can't get it. What's the use, we say. And then someone with more chance of getting it than we, goes after it and shows what the use is, by getting it. I have just had a very bitter lesson in losing something I wanted and didn't have had, simply because I didn't go after it.

In Love For Five Years. For five years I have been in love. So not to be excited. This is not an unhappy love story. For five years I said she didn't have to sell it, and would not sell it unless she got her asking price. And that asking price was just $3,000 more than I felt the house was worth.

What They Said.

So I took what they said as gospel and never made any effort even to talk with the owner about the house. "What's the use," I said. "She might come down a thousand, or so, but surely she would never take less than that." A few days ago I heard that the house had been sold. I felt badly but consoled myself with the knowledge that I could not have afforded to pay a price so much above the market price as presumably she received. Yesterday I heard that the house was sold for just the price I would have been willing to pay. Evidently someone else who had wanted that house had known enough to go after it.

The next time I want a thing I am going to go after it. And I am going right to headquarters. I am not going to listen to what they say. I am going to find out the truth for myself and I am going to make an honest hard try at getting what I want.

Why We Don't Realize.

It probably won't be a house next time. It seldom is the same thing twice in succession. And that is why we so often make the same mistake twice because we are fooled by external malignance and don't realize that it is the same mistake.

It may be someone to serve on a committee whom everyone says never is willing to serve. Or it may be a ticket to something. I can't possibly prophesy what it will be but I can, and do prophesy, that the next time I want a thing badly I am going after it hard and I am going straight to headquarters. And if you want what you want when you want it, I advise you to do likewise.

PROBATION.

WOLF MASON.

The wolf that slew the farmer's fowls was captured in a trap; at midnight hour its frenzied howls disturbed that granger c h a p. He left his warm and downy bed and to the trap repaired, and to the snarling wolf he said, "At last I have you snared. You've frequented my coops and pens and there disturbed the peace; you've slain my large Polled Angus hens, and eaten priceless geese. You are deserving of the worst that man made laws can do; and, looking out for safety first, I'd promptly butcher you. But I'm inclined to mercy now, since you are in a hole; another chance I will allow—I place you on parole. I trust your honor to avoid my well known henhouse door; in works of virtue be employed—now go and sit no more." The humbled wolf was moved to tears, at least it seemed to be; it frisked its tail and wagged its ear, so happy to be free. While gorged with chickens it was bent on courses most sublime, but soon it languished, then it went to pull another crime. And so at dawn the farmer found his chickens cold and dead, his priceless roosters lying round, the coop all splattered red. "Oh, when I had that critter jailed, it should not have been freed; the honor of a wolf," he wailed, "is but a broken reed."

Do What Mr. Buckingham Did

"His attacks the apparently strong as well as the weak. We believe, however, that if a person contracts 'flu, it is largely because he is run down. The person who enjoys good health is fairly well safeguarded against most diseases. Nearly everyone can enjoy good health by taking Carnol and keeping their system in a healthy condition. When your system is run down you leave yourself open to any disease. If you have had 'flu or your system is in a weakened condition, do what Mr. Buckingham did to regain his health. His letter tells how 'flu affected him and how he was restored to health. "After the 'flu I was in a very weak and run down condition. I was fitful, listless, had no strength and no desire to do anything. I had no appetite. I was nervous and depressed. I was losing weight. I read in the Calgary Herald that Carnol was good for all weak and run down conditions so I decided to try it. I used two bottles of Carnol and after taking them, felt strong and well. I consider Carnol the best tonic I have ever taken and have great pleasure in recommending it to others." J. Buckingham, 621 14th Avenue, Calgary. Carnol is sold by all good druggists everywhere.

Automobiles Given Space Once Used as Sidewalks

San Francisco, March 27 (A.P.)—San Francisco is shaving its sidewalks. The automobile has come to be so common that comparatively few San Franciscans walk to combat traffic congestion the man at the wheel is to take some of the space formerly dedicated to the man afoot. In a population of approximately 600,000 persons within the city's area of 42 square miles, there are 90,000 motor vehicles. One of the pedestrian ways being shaved is Sacramento Street, where the Vigilantes, hung outlaws in the early fifties. Traffic congestion has become so great, however, that city officials have decided that 12 main arteries of automobile travel must be provided through the city. When San Francisco was laid out, its founders made exceptionally wide streets, Market Street, the principal business thoroughfare, being 125 feet wide, but the automobile has upset all calculations for the future. Thus the policy has been adopted that when any through streets are repaired, the roadways will be widened by cutting down the sidewalks and forcing all superstructures, such as poles, into underground conduits. On streets where the sidewalks now have a width of 15 feet it has been found that poles, lines carrying telephone and light wires use up five feet of this space, so that these sidewalks can be cut to 10 feet without interfering with pedestrian travel.

With a dinner gown of cream colored lace and chiffon, is worn a wide-brimmed hat of black pilot straw, trimmed with a drooping black ostrich plume. A very typical small hat has a round crown and turned-up brim trimmed on one side with a flat camella.

word "preference" seems to have talismanic powers in these days; one has but to whisper it, and straightway he banishes reason and commands the applause of listening senates.

Large Loss, No Compensation.

Well, the result of this resolution is that we shall be foregoing large sums every year in import duty (which sacrifice we can ill afford) with the prospect of getting next to nothing in return. This may be very kind and charitable, and we have no doubt that we shall rise to the affections of the Newfoundland fish exporters; but it most decidedly is not business-like. Trade between Jamaica and Newfoundland is restricted and will for many years continue to be restricted, to two items—fish from the Newfoundland and sugar from the Jamaican. But our fish imports are quite considerable in volume and in value, whereas our sugar shipments are negligible. Last year Newfoundland supplied us with about 6 1/2 million pounds of dried codfish, which is slightly more than one-half of our requirements of this popular staple. She also sent us large quantities of herring and salmon in competition with Canada. The value of these supplies is not yet available, but in the previous year it amounted to over £100,000. The import duties surrendered by the granting of a preference on such supplies will run into thousands of pounds per annum, and yet the surrender is too small to benefit the consumer, for it will be absorbed by the distributing machinery before the goods reach him.

What is Jamaica obtaining in return for this foregoing of revenue that is so badly needed for various public purposes? What are we selling to Newfoundland to-day, and what are our prospects of increasing our sales to her? These questions were recently asked when we were considering our Trade Agreement with Canada, for it was recognized that we were making a business deal. The final arrangement might have been made more advantageous to Jamaica; but at all events on that occasion both the Legislative Council and the delegates to Ottawa knew in the main what they were about. In the present instance, however, the Council acted as though it neither knew nor cared what it was about. During the year 1922, Jamaica's exports to Newfoundland, including re-exported goods not of local produce or manufacture, amounted to only $28,942, of which sugar accounted for $27,175. We have not been able to obtain the figures for last year, but we have it on excellent authority that the records of the Customs Department show that not a single hundredweight of sugar was shipped to Newfoundland in 1923. If this be a fact, as we have every reason to believe, it is clear that the Newfoundland market was of little or no value to Jamaican exporters last year.

What the future holds, we of course cannot venture to predict; but we do know that Newfoundland has a population considerably less than half that of Jamaica, and hence cannot within measurable time be a large consumer of Jamaican goods. It follows that Newfoundland has by far the better part of the bargain. Jamaica is pledged to give up large sums annually, without the slightest possibility of being adequately compensated in the shape of increased sales to the country on whose account this sacrifice is made. That, we repeat, is not business; it is imbecility. Tariff preference is a most useful expedient under certain circumstances; but its whole essence lies in its being beneficial to both the contracting parties. In the present case, this condition will not be, and for many years to come cannot be fulfilled. The resolution will do down in history as yet another monument to legislative ineptitude.

Radio Performs New Service

A new form of service to mankind has been added to the many already performed by radio broadcasting. As a means of communication with a city cut off from the world by disturbing weather conditions, radio proved its worth, for it operates in the most adverse circumstances and is not affected by storms or blizzards. Where all other methods of immediate communication fail, radio carries its messages to an isolated community and brings help where it is needed.

This service was proven when the city of Chicago, U.S.A., was recently the center of a violent blizzard that temporarily cut off the city's communication with the outside world. Immediately transportation companies, including the Pennsylvania Railroad, experienced the need of quick and reliable communication with the isolated city.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Company at Pittsburg, after discovering that their communication sources were in trouble, got in touch with the station attached at KDKA, the East Pittsburg broadcaster of the Westinghouse Company, and asked for assistance. Immediately a radio message was dispatched to station KYW, in Chicago, operated by the Westinghouse Company via the repeating station KFKX at Hastings, Neb., asking for details of conditions, damage caused by the storm, and if conditions warranted the dispatching of a relief corps of workers from Pittsburg and other outside cities.

Menace of German Wealth

BRITONS OUTBID IN THEIR OWN MARKETS.

Germany is flaunting her wealth before the world by indulging in an orgy of expenditure abroad. An investigation of her recent buying operations in England and elsewhere reveals some amazing facts. Money which should have gone for reparations has been paid out unstintingly for the material comfort of her own prosperous people.

She comes before the nations she has impoverished in the person of a fat profiteer whose pockets are bulging with hard cash—not phantom marks—willing and eager to acquire all kinds of luxury goods as well as raw materials, for which high prices are paid without question. She has appeared in more than one market as a bidder with whom British buyers cannot compete.

The recent wholesale purchase of furs by German agents, which were at least half of the total stocks dealt with at the winter sales in London, are but one of the many instances of this new policy of spending money. German firms bought heavily of cotton at the last Liverpool sales with the usual effect on prices.

Wines and Almonds.
Sales of fruit and other edibles have been hardly less sensational. To take one of many examples, the price of almonds for commercial purposes has advanced in London 50 per cent. in the last two months owing to the heavy buying for export to Germany. The purchases of wines by German firms have been so abnormal that, in the words of one well-known London dealer, "the market has been put in a flutter, and no one can understand it."

They are even more eager for "luxury goods" than raw materials or the ordinary necessities of life. English dealers know there is a constant market for old prints in Germany; at the last great sale of engravings, etchings, and rare books in Vienna, experts in London were outbid by their competitors from Berlin, Leipzig and Dresden. A certain private press in London, which issues limited editions, is sure of 100 per cent. profit from German collectors, who are in constant touch with the art and book publishers in this country.

A Grave Aspect.
"They are buying in all directions," Mr. Stanley Machin, deputy president of the Association of Chambers of Commerce, said recently. "There is another grave aspect to this question of Germany's wealth. In my opinion, when an agreement on reparations has been arrived at and the Germans are in a position to do business on a large scale, we shall have the markets of the world flooded with manufactured goods. This is a grave commercial menace to the British Empire. They are able now to take contracts which would in the ordinary way come to this country. The prices quoted by British manufacturers are absolutely without any margin of net profit."

Mr. Godfrey Cheesman, secretary of the National Union of Manufacturers, said: "Germany's wealth should be obvious to everyone, for she has been marketing her labour at the external price of the mark, and the accumulation of wealth due to this policy gives her enormous purchasing power. She has retained in the amount paid in reparations at the same time does not have to export money."

"Germans are literally 'walking' into the overseas trade by foul means as well as fair. Here is one example: An old British firm which makes clinical thermometers could not understand why their Indian market was slipping away. A representative was sent to India and he found that a German firm had stolen his trade marks and other distinctive markings, and was dumping thermometers purporting to be his at a cheaper rate. A lawsuit in the German courts brought no other satisfaction than the ruling that each side must pay its own costs!"—Daily Mail.

Denounces Action as "Rash Legislation"

From The Jamaica Times, March 8th, 1924.

The Jamaica Times Strongly Opposes Granting of Preference to Newfoundland Which Was Railroaded Through Legislature—A Breach of Faith With Canada.

The Legislative Council acted in a haphazard and ill-considered fashion when it passed a resolution on Thursday of last week extending preferential tariff treatment to products of Newfoundland imported into this Colony. There was no division, and nothing which could properly have been called intelligent comment. The member for St. Thomas manifested some little anxiety in regard to Canada's opinion of the move; he was not quite certain whether such a step ought to be taken, since, according to the terms of our Trade Agreement with Canada, we were alleged to have no right to grant preferential treatment to any part of the Empire which does not accord a like measure of preference to the Dominion. We have searched the Trade Agreement in vain for any such provision. Possibly the Colonial Secretary had done likewise, but he did not say so. He merely stated that "the law inferred that this was the case"—in other words, that the Jamaica Gov-

Doctor to Airplanes

BECOMES NEW PROFESSION IN EUROPE.
London, March 12 (A.P.)—The vogue of flying in virtually all countries has been the means of creating a demand for an airplane "physician and surgeon."

This profession has been taken up by Frank Courtney, who won the King's Cup airplane race here last year. He has been on the continent testing out new machines, and has now left for the Arctic circle where he will put new machines through their paces. Several other pilots are acting as consulting "surgeons" to airplane makers. When a firm finds any particular plane is not behaving quite as it should, the "doctor" is called in to spot the trouble and put it right.

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Branchton, Ont.—'When I wrote to you for help my action was mostly prompted by curiosity. I wondered if I, too, would benefit by your medicine. It was the most profitable action I have ever taken, I heartily assure you, for through its results I am relieved of most of my sufferings. I have taken six boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and I can honestly say I have never been so well before. I had suffered from pains and other troubles since I was fifteen years old, and during the 'Great War' period I worked on munitions for two years, and, in the heavy lifting which my work called for, I strained myself, causing pelvic inflammation from which I have suffered untold agony, and I often had to give up and go to bed. I had doctored for several years without getting permanent relief, when I started to take your medicines.'—Mrs. GOLDWIN MISENER, Branchton, Ont.

Unfounded Fears.

We understand that the Farmers of the West End intend holding a meeting to consider the situation which arises owing to the appointment of a Meat and Cattle Inspector. The fear generally expressed by the farmers is that in the event of cattle being found infected with tuberculosis and ordered to be destroyed, they will be victimized.

We are assured that the Government have given this side of the case full consideration, and that in deciding to adopt this protective measure they have no intention of inflicting hardship on any particular trade or industry. To anyone who has given the matter a moment's thought it must be obvious that no other course is possible or desirable. The success of the system depends essentially upon the co-operation of the farmers and those engaged in the meat trade, and in conversation yesterday with one of the importers and also with a prominent West End farmer we were informed that it met with their full approval.

For the benefit of those who are unaware of the practice followed elsewhere in similar circumstances, it may be stated that in England during the past two years there has been a serious outbreak of foot and mouth disease. No effective means of checking it have yet been found, and consequently cattle infected have been slaughtered wholesale. Up to March 7th, 171,848 animals had been destroyed and the compensation distributed to the owners amounted to more than $15,000,000.

While it is possible that at first it may be found necessary to condemn certain animals, there is nothing to indicate that the cattle are infected with tuberculosis or any other disease to such an extent as to warrant the destruction of any great number, and as time goes on the necessity for such stringent measures will be less. Further, the services of the Inspector will be available to the farmers in purchasing stock, thereby assuring them of securing sound animals which will be materially to their advantage.

The agricultural industry of this country has by no means received the encouragement it deserves. The soil and climate are suitable for raising the very best crops of hay and oats and the common vegetables, and there is no reason why we should not be self-supporting in the matter of meat. The appointment of a food inspector is one step in the right direction. One of his most important duties will be to put a stop to dumping diseased or otherwise unsuitable meat on our shores, and in carrying out this work we feel certain he will have the sympathy and support of the public, as it will not only protect the consumer against the dangers of infection but it will also tend to even the competition between locally raised and imported stock.

The letter from "Kilbride" which we publish elsewhere contains many comments with which we are heartily in agreement, and if there are certain suggestions which have been prompted by a lack of knowledge of the facts, we give him at least the credit of sincerity, and trust we have quietened his fears.

Halifax Has Its Eye on the Humber Trade.

In another column appears an article entitled "New Dollars for Halifax Jobbers." It is taken from the Maritime Merchant and calls the attention of the trade in Nova Scotia to the opportunity which offers in the Humber area to work up a lucrative business.

While such enterprise is commendable on the part of our neighbours, it seems to suggest either that we are not having an eye to our own interests or that we are unable to gather the harvest after having planted the seed.

Halifax has always found a ready market in the west, chiefly because of its proximity and transportation facilities. Previous to the inception of the cross country service, there was direct water communication between St. John's and the coast north of Port aux Basques, and competition between the merchants of the capital and those in Halifax was on more equal terms. To-day the complaint is that the high freight rates tend to shut out the trade of St. John's from this area, and with the great strain which will be placed on the railway service during the coming summer owing to the increased activities of Grand Falls and the Armstrong-Whitworth Companies, it is feared that congestion will follow, and conditions will be even worse.

It has been suggested that the difficulty might be met by a rearrangement of the coastal service so as to bring St. John's in direct communication with this coast as was previously the case. If the Government is unable to make such an arrangement, possibly some enterprising firm may consider the possibilities of this trade sufficiently attractive to engage in it.

Shipwrecked Mariners Arrive by Schem

STORY OF LOSS OF SCHR. ETHEL M. BARTLETT TOLD BY CAPTAIN.

Capt. A. Moulton and crew of the British schooner Ethel M. Bartlett, which was abandoned on the passage from Oporto in February, arrived this morning by S.S. Schem. The rescue of the crew was made by S.S. Cald Light, a British ship, owned at Cardiff and bound for Cete, South of France. In an interview with a Telegram reporter, Capt. Moulton told a tale of hardship and in two instances, shabby treatment which is rarely meted out to shipwrecked men.

According to the Captain, the Bartlett left Oporto on Dec. 14th last laden for Burin. During the first eleven days the weather was fine, following this for about six weeks, gales and tremendous seas prevailed. Only four days of the whole period was fine but then head winds prevailed. No progress could be made, and the vessel was kept under two reef foresails and two reef storm trysails. About midnight on Feb. 16th when about 35.60 N. 60 W., a sea was shipped which split the vessel practically to the foremast, tearing up the deck, smashing the lifeboat, and rendering the rudder useless. When this storm abated sail was hoisted, and for the next ten days the vessel was worked to the S.E. into Lat. 43.30 N., Long. 40.11-54.16 W., when it was expected a passing steamer would pick them up. No less than eight steamers were signalled, all failed to render assistance, until the Cald Light was sighted. The crew, wearied with their long battle with the elements, were practically worn out. They had for a considerable time been on short rations, until finally only a small portion of bread was the allowance. All the water for drinking had to be collected with sails. It was fortunate, the Captain said, that there was a small quantity of wine on board. This he allowed once and it undoubtedly kept his men alive. When the Cald Light took the men off the weather was fairly moderate. They were landed at Ora, Algiers, where the British Consul extended to them every hospitality and gave them passage to Marseilles. The Consul at this place, Capt. Moulton says, gave them very shabby treatment, providing them only with passage to Southampton via Paris. In this city they were compelled to walk the streets all day with but one meal. Leaving there at 10 p.m., the shipwrecked seamen proceeded to Havre, where they were again on the street for 6 or 7 hours waiting for the Consulate to open. The Consul, however, treated them well and sent them to the sailors' rest until they were ready to proceed across Channel.

On arriving at Southampton, they were looked after by the Board of Trade and received the same kind of treatment by the Board of Trade at Liverpool. A first-class ticket was given the Captain and third for the crew. The Captain, however, says that his men were put in the forecabin and had to go to the galley to procure food, and there was an insufficiency of bedding.

The sailors are in poor straits, having lost most of their belongings. Capt. Moulton is now making arrangements to have them sent to their homes. The vessels' company is as follows:—A. Moulton, captain; Thos. Hollett, mate; F. Brushet, E. Moulton, S. Brushet, Jas. Foot.

DOES NOT REVEAL HARSH TREATMENT.

In reference to the death of Patrick Hartley which occurred at Deer Lake about a week ago, it is understood that the investigation by Magistrate Scott has not disclosed the harsh treatment complained of by his fellow workmen.

Hartley contracted measles and was being treated in hospital but he left the institution of his own accord before he was convalescent, and contracted pneumonia from which he died. The only cause of complaint it is said is that the body was left in the shack practically a whole day without being coffined.

CONFERENCE BROKEN UP BY Bessarabian Dispute.

VIENNA, April 2. The Russo-Rumanian Conference for a settlement of the question pending between the two countries broke up to-day over the insistence by the Soviet representatives on a plebiscite in Bessarabia to determine the disposition of the territory. Bessarabia was awarded to Rumania by the Allies as part of the war settlement, but Russia has stoutly opposed Rumanian possession, and this has been one of the chief points discussed by the delegates since the conference opened some days ago. The Rumanian delegates declared they would leave for Bucharest shortly. The responsibility for the rupture is placed by most of the observers on the Russians, who were informed beforehand by the Rumanians that they came to Vienna on the assumption that the Bessarabian question would not be raised. Neither side to-night seemed to expect a resumption of the conference in Vienna.

BANK PROPERTY IDENTIFIED.

MONTREAL, April 3. With the statement to-night by the police that the $28,000 found on the persons of suspects arrested at the St. Henry boarding house last night has been definitely identified as part of the stolen money from the Hochelaga Bank collecting automobile yesterday afternoon. Local detectives believe only two members of the bandit gang are now missing. They say that these are the men seen at St. Martin's Junction near Terre Bonne, early this morning.

21 KILLED IN PANIC IN A PICTURE THEATRE.

MEXICO CITY, April 3. Twenty-one persons, mostly children, lost their lives and more than fifty were injured, ten perhaps fatally, when a fire in the Barragan Motion Picture Theatre in a nearby suburb of Tacubaya sent 500 spectators rushing wildly from the structure last night. The majority of those who perished were suffocated or crushed beneath the mass of bodies which quickly blocked the single exit. The theatre, which was patronized largely by the poorer classes, was very little damaged, as the fire, which the civic authorities to-day declared was caused by a short circuit, consumed only the celluloid films and some fixtures in the operator's crucible. Several smaller children were killed when the panic stricken mothers threw them from gallery into the pit below or from windows into the street. Two others were electrocuted when attempting to escape by means of telegraph poles carrying high voltage power wires.

GOVT. SAVED BY REJECTION OF OBJECTIONABLE CLAUSES.

LONDON, April 2. The Government evaded otherwise inevitable defeat in the House of Commons to-night in connection with the rents bill which came up for its second reading, by consenting to a revision of the objectionable clauses providing for non- eviction of a tenant if unemployed. The Liberal Party held a meeting during the day to consider what action it could take on the question and H. H. Asquith, Liberal leader, announced in the House that unless this clause was eliminated he would be compelled to vote against the second reading. This ultimatum meant that both the Conservatives and Liberals would oppose the measure, and therefore the ministers would be defeated. The opponents of the bill did not mind words in denouncing it. Discussion ensued upon whether the necessary change could be made in the existing bill or whether a new bill would be necessary. This being difficult to decide, further discussion of the bill was postponed.

BRITISH CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE PROTEST AGAINST PREFERENCE RATES.

The resolution calls the attention of the United States Chamber of Commerce and the International Chamber of Commerce to this.

night discussing the army and air force annual bill, to which Extremists proposed several amendments. The Secretary of War, Stephen Walsh, stated at the outset that in view of big changes which the amendments suggested, the Government was unable to accept any of them, but he promised that the army council and representatives of the armed forces would investigate all questions raised. He hoped therefore that the amendments would not be moved. This brought protests from sponsors of changes who refused to abandon the proposals, and the amendments were accordingly moved successively. The amendments which sought to abolish the death penalty for desertion, cowardice, and similar offences in war time were rejected by a vote of 239 to 120. The amendment giving condemned soldiers the right of appeal to a civil court was lost by 193 to 120. The Government evaded otherwise inevitable defeat in connection with the suggestion that tenants should not be liable to eviction for non-payment or rent when such failure to pay was due to inability to obtain employment.

Grievances on the Humber

Following a preliminary discussion yesterday at the Prime Minister's office, Mr. Jas. Thompson, delegate of the workmen at Deer Lake who went on strike last week, again waited on the Prime Minister this morning and presented to him the grievances of the men under the following heads:

1. Low rate of wages for all classes of work.
2. Unsuitable methods of payment of wages.
3. Inadequate shack accommodation.
4. Insufficient and unsuitable hospital accommodation.
5. High board and food prices.

The Prime Minister gave the delegate every encouragement for a satisfactory settlement of the troubles. It is understood that the matters complained of will be laid before the Executive Government this evening. Complaint is made that the men are charged 85 cents per day for food at the mess houses, and must pay even if they miss a meal. The company has given notice that the rate is to be increased to $1.00, although it has been figured by the men that the actual cost computed from prices prevailing in the city and based on the consumption by a family of 5 is 25 cents. To this amount has been added 30 cents allowance for the extra amount hard workingmen would eat and the cost of cooking, so that it is concluded by the men that the total should not be over 68 cents. The men ask for an increase of 15 cents per hour all round for Newfoundland workmen. Regarding skilled workers carpenters receive 30 to 35 cents per hour while firemen on cranes get 35 cents. Outside men working on cranes are said to receive payment at the rate of $175 per month.

Electric Bolt Strikes a Field in Portugal Cove

From an old correspondent at Portugal Cove we learn of a curious phenomenon which occurred there in the thunder storm on the morning of March 31st. Several men in the settlement observed over the middle of the cove what appeared to be a ball of copper which broke in two, one part going towards the hills. It struck a field on West Point and left an impression something like the hub of an ordinary cart wheel with six radius at regular intervals. One of the radius was much longer than the others, and went towards the cliff. The long radius is as sharply cut as if done by a sharp instrument, the others are merely scratches.

Germs and Disease

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—We are hearing quite a lot of talk about germs and disease in our city at the present time, and no doubt it is a subject that every well-wisher of our health and happiness should be interested in, and I know there are some good men and women in our community who are trying to do good work in that direction, and are freely giving their time and labour to make life worth living for their fellow creatures. But that does not apply to all the would-be social reformers who are simply trying to make themselves notorious and would like to see their name in public print about what they spoke on and what they would like to have done, but who simply do nothing or perform nothing for the benefit of the people of the community in which they live. You know, Mr. Editor, we have had quite a number of that class of individuals victimizing us in the past, and it seems apparent to me we have a supply on hand at the present time if we care to patronize them. I think the people with common sense and intelligence will be able to take their weight and size them up for what they are really worth, and compel them to take a back seat and not obstruct the people in our community who are really good and industrious workers.

With regard to the Inspector appointed, the idea may occur to him that some of the stock is affected by disease, and according to his judgment the only way out of it would be to have the cattle destroyed, regardless of the destitution or poverty inflicted on the farmers' family. As you know, Mr. Editor, the farmers of this country have a very uphill task to perform and can barely supply the necessities of life for themselves and their families without having any unnecessary obstacles placed in their way, and I know that every farmer possessed with common sense knows very well it stands to his own advantage to keep himself and his family and his live stock in as comfortable and healthy a condition as he possibly can, or as far as his means will allow him.

Now, Mr. Editor, we had an individual landed on our shores some years ago as many may remember, who styled himself an expert on Tuberculosis and its appearance in cattle, and on one occasion he visited one of our local farmers and held an inspection on his live stock, and ordered them to be destroyed. Finally the second inspection was made when the animals were dead and no proofs could be brought forth to show that they were in the least way affected by any disease whatsoever. Of course he had to say something to get his five or six thousand dollars which he swaggered out of the country with, and more than likely made the remark to his friends when he got home, how easy it was to get money in Newfoundland, and that you just had to make up some kind of bull to tell them, and they were willing to pay any price for it.

Now, Mr. Editor, I think our country is very sick, and its industrious people are very sick from the bad effects of the medicine administered to them by these quacks and frauds, who have no sense of shame or no many principles to impel them to do what is right and just. I think, Mr. Editor, that our people have paid an exorbitant price for all these quack prescriptions that have been foisted upon them within the last few years. They should be thoroughly drenched with that kind of medicine and should not require a repetition of that dose for generations to come. But the medicine is drunk and paid for and the patient is lying on its back gasping for its life's breath and existence, while the quacks who administered the poison are loudly complimenting themselves on the expert and tricky methods by which they have handled their dupes.

The Fishery Regulation rules were a quick prescription that the country has not recovered from yet; the Daylight Saving Bill was another that brought no returns or any material benefit to our people. I suppose it is the modern idea, regardless of what value it is, and we must accept it and put up with it. Why, Mr. Editor, some people go as far as to try to modernize the very religion that the Divine One came on earth to preach, and they would have it to suit their own false notions of what is right or wrong.

Another costly quack prescription was that Model Farm business that cost the taxpayers of the country between thirty and forty thousand dollars yearly, according to statements made in the recent Enquiry, and was practically of no value to our farmers or anyone else outside of the parties that gave us the prescription and made us pay. Still some people seem to like it and would almost cry for more.

New for mercy sake, men of Newfoundland, who should be proud of their ancestors you have sprung from, and I know you really are, the good old English, Irish and Scotch ones that in bygone days have helped to plant the British flag on every one of her overseas Dominions, and I say it is not good enough for you to allow yourselves to be duped and doped by a parcel of hurdy gurdy men that have the audacity to stand up before you to preach or tell you how to manage your country's affairs, and ever tell you how to manage your own personal affairs. These parties who are raising such a dust about our people's health and the health of the city would find something to occupy their time and observation if they would only pay an occasional visit to some of our byways and back streets in St. John's on some day when the sun is a little hot and see where human beings are forced to live. Let them take a small sniff of the atmosphere and that will do them for their lifetime.

Song Selected by Griffith

Ballad "Hearts of the World," is approved by Famous Producer.

Just a few days after D. W. Griffith launched his latest supreme masterpiece, "Hearts of the World," the great producer was besieged by composers and song-writers offering compositions bearing the name of the production. At first Mr. Griffith gave little heed to these manuscripts, because the music for the play had already been compiled and printed, and he did not feel that he would be justified in introducing any interpolations. However, these compositions became so numerous that he finally decided to give them his attention. After going over several of them he called his general musical director, Carl D. Elinor, and together with several co-workers and members of his company he gave all an opportunity to form an opinion and make a selection. Following an entire week's work it was agreed that the song submitted by W. Casey, of New York City, was best suited to "Hearts of the World," and in compliment to Mr. Casey a telegram of endorsement was sent to this composer.

"Hearts of the World," as a song was first introduced at the Forty-Fourth Street Theatre in New York by Miss Grace Minch, a Boston vocalist, and immediately seemed to "catch on." In every city where the Griffith production is offered the fame of the song seems to have reached.

The chorus of Mr. Casey's song is especially appealing, and the music is of a high order. The words of the chorus are as follows:

Hearts of the world are crying out in sorrow
Sorrow creeps on—it seems an endless chain
Pray that to-morrow will end all sorrow
Hearts of the world, when will you smile again?

Mr. Griffith's production, "Hearts of the World," will be seen here at the Star Movie next week.

The Right Kind of Advertising

We are glad to notice that one improvement has been made in the Waiting Room of the Railway Station. The large Canadian illustrations which formerly hung there have been replaced by photographs of Newfoundland beauty spots, such as La Manche Lakes, Trepassy, Grey River, West Coast, and the famous picture of the Humber Falls, showing a salmon attempting to leap them. By way of being friendly there is also an excellent picture of the masterpiece of engineering, the Quebec Bridge.

I tried several different remedies but they did not help any. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some, and after using them about a month I was completely healed." ## U.S. Fails as Shipowner

AN "UNMERCANTILE MARINE"—HUNDREDS OF RUSTING VESSELS.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Yesterday's decision of the United States Shipping Board to invite fresh bids for the whole of what one writer describes as "our Unmercantile Marine" of 1,235 vessels excites curiously little public interest. The only new feature in its announcement consists in the fact that it is now ready to consider offers of less than 25¢ a ton.

Once more the newspapers recite the story of the sensational and appalling losses suffered by American taxpayers through the effort of the Government, armed with unlimited supplies of money, to operate a vast commercial fleet. But the spectacle of hundreds of idle, rusting ships, huddled together on the Hudson and on obscure waters in other parts of the country, has familiarized the voter with the idea of failure.

The Shipping Board, through various channels of publicity, has attempted to galvanize popular enthusiasm for the sea, largely by articulating showing an anti-British bias. So far as one can judge, these arguments have awakened only the smallest echoes. As the New York Herald today observes, the American people lacks the will to develop a first-class merchant marine.

It is unnecessary to recapitulate the numerous reasons given for this indifference, but a few personal experiences are worth repeating. Mr. Charles Brown, for instance, the American head of a glass factory in Belgium, and one of the largest window-glass importers on the Pacific coast, patriotically insisted on all his purchases being shipped in American bottoms, though their rates were fantastically high. But after several shipments had been made he reversed his decision, because of the excessive breakages.

The Leviathan.

The case of the Leviathan is also cited. Since she grounded in New York Harbour in the middle of December she has been eating her head off, with 400 officers and men aboard on full pay. A few days ago she was taken to Boston, where it was discovered that extensive repairs to her hull are necessary. In business circles it is not believed that any acceptable private bids will be made for her.

One writer in the Atlantic Monthly declares: "It is impossible to interest any successful, well-informed capitalist in an American steamship line for the Transatlantic trade," and he adds, "Our futile efforts to compete for the open carrying trade of the world, in view of our great material resources, remind me of the covetous rich man in the Scriptures who wanted the widow's one ewe lamb."

His suggestion is that the Shipping Board should keep its flag flying by leasing its ships to China.

PREFERENTIAL RATES.

Meanwhile the action of the Shipping Board in demanding the enforcement of the law providing for preferential railway rates for goods carried in American bottoms is exciting considerable controversy.

The demand is described by Mr. Thomas Woodcock, a well-known writer on economies, as opening the door to a conflict of the most far-reaching character with Britain. He expresses the hope that the Shipping Board is alive to the nature of the reprisals Britain and other countries may adopt.

"I do not really know what the United States Shipping Board is after," said Sir Thomas Royden, chairman of the Cunard Line, to a Daily Mail reporter. "It may be that the Shipping Board simply want proof that they cannot sell the ships and therefore have no alternative but to run them.

"In my opinion this shows the failure of State ownership of shipping, and although I think this particular fleet of ships would be run at a loss whoever had control, I believe that under private ownership less money would be lost than at present."—Daily Mail March 7.

Court Fails to See Joke

PRISONERS GET FIVE YEARS.

VERSAILLES, March 28.—There was a difference of opinion between court and prisoners as to the merits of a joke when Prosper Charles and Gaston Nouvain were arraigned on a charge of stealing two valuable Gobelin tapestries from the Chateau of the Kings. The court's opinion prevailed and the men were sentenced to jail for five years.

The prisoners' defense was that their theft was "just a little joke." They said they knew they could not sell the tapestries and that they merely wanted to show that art treasures worth 1,500,000 francs were poorly protected against theft.

"You certainly succeeded," said the court, "but you caused the tapestries great damage, the bill for cleaning them alone amounting to 10,000 francs."

SAFETY FIRST.

Customer, paying milk bill: "Do you keep your cows in a pasture?" she asked.

"Oh, yes, ma'am, we do," he answered truthfully.

"I'm so glad," she breathed. "I've heard that pasteurized milk is much better."

French Govt. Alter Application of Taxes

As a result of the discussion in the Chamber of Deputies of various bills aiming at a modification of the tax on business turn-over, the French have decided to alter the application of this tax on certain prime necessities of life, such as wheat, meat and coal.

In the future meat will only be taxed once at a rate of 15 centimes per kilogram at the time of killing and all other taxes formerly levied on the butchers and retail dealers will be suppressed.

The tax on wheat, which used to be Fr. 1.10, per 100 Fr. value will, from now on, be replaced by a duty of Fr. 0.25 per cent. This same rate of duty will also be applied to all the other cereals.

As regards coal, the taxes on retail and wholesale dealers will be suppressed and replaced by a levy of Fr. 1.10 which will be collected at the mine, or, for foreign coal at the time of importation.

The Bankers' Trust Company of New York is advised by its French Information Service that these modifications are expected by the Government to counteract any tendencies towards a rise in price of these articles. In this connection the French Government has also issued a decree reducing the import duty on wheat from 14 frs. to 7 frs. a quintal, so as to counteract the recent rise in the price of flour occasioned by the fall in exchange value of the franc.

British Premier's Style in Dressing Pleases Country

London, March 11 (A.P.)—Perhaps there is no country where clothes comes nearer to making the man than in England. That may explain why commentators on current events and world problems, give such close scrutiny to the photographs of Prime Minister MacDonald as they appear from day to day in the newspapers.

A year ago, when Stanley Baldwin took up the burden of the prime minister, he received a "good press," as the British call it. Even papers of another political complexion were cordial to him, and they all seemed to rejoice that he raised pigs on his farm and smoked a briar pipe. Add to this picture his gates-ajar collar, with the expansive four-in-hand knot, and there was a steady, sound English gentleman and a Conservative. No doubt about it.

Then Labor came in, a political innovation, and the home Briton wondered what would change and how much. When Mr. MacDonald went to Buckingham Palace to receive from the king his appointment as prime minister, he wore the traditional top-hat, silky and shining. This brought sighs of relief from many a frightened homes. Then a few days later he went to the country for a week-end, and wore a sports suit with knicker-bockers. There they were, the next morning, pictured in all the papers. That was proof of the pudding, the good old British plum pudding. Mr. MacDonald was at bottom a Britisher, first and last, even if some of his party members did sing the "Internationale" at their meetings instead of "God Save the King." And as though some further proof were wanted that the country was safe, some one started the story that the Labor leader played such a keen game of golf that his handicap was only seven. England would never go to the Bolshevik howl now as long as she had a man in No. 10 Downing Street who had got his golf game almost down to bogey!

RESIGNATION AND WORRY.

I've made up my mind that I cannot escape the juggernaut driver forever. Some motor car some day will mangle my shape. Though at dodging I'm agile and clever: Some day I shall falter and fall to be sorry. And under the wheels of a car I shall die.

I had hoped I might peacefully pass in my bed. But I know that the fates will not let me. The time was my pet and peculiar dread. Was that some day a motor would get me. But that I'm resigned to—mid honking horns and toots. And the squeaking of brakes I shall die in my boots.

I expect to go down in the front of a car. Which some right-of-way demon is driving. To be bumped off at last with a fell and a jar. To the shock of my loved ones surviving. Now I wonder whenever I travel the street. What kind of a car will knock me off of my feet.

Will I die 'neath a Buick, a Packard, a Paige. Will an Overland batter and maim me? Will a Lincoln bear down and rob me of old age. Or a Cadillac limousine claim me. Or will I be sent to make peace with my Lord. At the hands of a demon who's driving a Ford?

Chamber of Agriculture Created

The French Chamber of Deputies, in a recent session, definitely adopted a bill already ratified by the Senate, providing for the creation of Chambers of Agriculture throughout the whole of France.

These Chambers of Agriculture, which are intended to render the same services to the agricultural community that the Chamber of Commerce render to business, will be founded in the chief cities of all the French Departments. The Bankers' Trust Company of New York is advised by its French Information Service that, according to the legislation just passed, these Chambers of Agriculture will be empowered to create or subsidize any establishments or institutions considered of agricultural utility, and furthermore, it is expected, that they will co-operate in certain instances with the Chamber of Commerce, whenever questions arise that may be of interest to both the commercial and agricultural communities. A general meeting of all the Chambers of Agriculture from the different departments of France will be held twice a year, in May and December.

Hard Times in Sea Trade

MAY BE NEARING THEIR END.

LONDON.—(A.P.)—The depression in shipping which began so suddenly in 1920 still prevails, but the bottom has been touched with regard to bad freights, said Sir Alan Anderson in his presidential address to the Chamber of Shipping. Without wishing to appear too hopeful or to encourage anyone to speculate on an early return to prosperity, he believed there was evidence that the position of the British Mercantile Marine was improving and that it had profited by the medicine of adversity.

Largest Purse on Record for Trotters

Big and Little Associations Increasing Their Offerings for Harness Races in 1924.

C. W. Williams of Axtell (2.12) and Allerton (2.09 1/2) fame many years ago coined the slogan "the earning capacity of the trotter must be increased." At that time $500 was considered a large purse on a half mile track and but four or five mile tracks offered early closing purses of more than $5,000.

As the years rolled by the managers of fairs, 80 per cent. of which used half mile tracks, began to appreciate the value of harness racing as a money getter at the gate and grand stand. This prompted them to increase their purses from time to time until now they rival, and in a few instances surpass, the mile tracks in the amounts raced for. This with the increased demand for colt races has contributed directly to boosting purses to a point where a good colt or a matured horse can win a snug sum each year.

At Lexington colt racing has always been an important feature, the two divisions of the Kentucky Futurity being worth $21,000. To these were added in 1922 the $10,000 sweepstake for two-year-olds at Lexington known as the May Day Stake and at Cleveland as the Rainy Day Stake. They were supplemented this year by a similar amount at Syracuse.

Want the Best Horses. Reports from the circuit conferences held during the last two months show that in 1924 the trotters and pacers will race for more money than ever before in the history of the turf. While a few tracks have taken in sail the majority are adding to their offerings in order to get a better class of horses and faster racing. At Cleveland for the first Grand Circuit meeting the Edwards Purse for pacers has been increased from $3,000 to $5,000. At Columbus the three-year-old pacing race has been renewed on a plan which will make it worth $10,000. Kalamazoo has closed what should be a $25,000 event for 2:08 pacers and is now offering a purse for three-year-old trotters that will call for $10,000.

These are the leading announcements which have been made by the Grand Circuit tracks to date. Others as liberal can be expected in a few weeks.

The announcement made at the winter meeting of the Bay State Circuit shows that the purses offered for its eleventh series will be larger than ever before. Avon will have a group of $2,000 events and Windsor reported that there would be two $10,000 events on its programme Fourth of July week. At the other points one-third will be added to the colt races and the purses kept up to the former standard or increased. This series of meetings runs from the middle of June to the last of August.

In Orange County Circuit. Reports from New York State show that the Orange County Circuit will duplicate last year's showing for the St. Johnsbury and Woodstock. It is unfortunate that the members of the grand circuit cannot give a free for all trotting race this year. In 1923 each member had a $5,000 event for this class. They resulted in a splendid series of races among Worthy, Peter the Brewer, the Great Volo and Czarworthy, while Rose Scott dropped into the last one and won at Lexington. This year the free for all as an early closing event has been tossed into the discard on account of five of the possible starters being in Murphy's stable. They are Rose Scott, Czarworthy, Mrs. Yerkes, Hollywood Leonard and Pearl Benbow. Of last year's starters Lee Worthy is in the stud. Escocillo, who chased the field all season, now has enough time ly after seven a.m. to-day.

AMATEUR BILLIARD CHAMPIONSHIP.
Two Sessions Yesterday.
The two remaining games in the round to qualify were run off before a fair attendance of billiard enthusiasts yesterday afternoon. The first match or 7th contest of the preliminaries was played between C. I. Merner and W. B. Skinner, and resulted in a victory for the latter by 68 points. Merner easily outdistanced his opponent up to the 200 mark, a well played break of 41 helped materially in the comfortable gains made. Skinner, though playing a steady game, found it difficult to get the balls in position, and once the tide turned in his favor he soon hit his stride and gradually cut down his opponent's lead, and won out with plenty to spare. The breaks were:—
W. B. Skinner—300—12, 16, 11, 10, 27, 13, 25, 27, 16, unfinished—163.
C. Merner—242—10, 12, 41, 18, 15, 14, 14, 14—138.
Time of game—1hr. 12 min.

Scores at Intervals.
Skinner—41, 108, 195, 273, 300.
Merner—54, 157, 204, 225, 242.
The final game of the round followed almost immediately, when Flynn and Carberry broke the balls to try conclusions. This game lacked the usual vim which predominated in the previous games. Flynn, though not up to his usual form, easily outdistanced his opponent, Carberry, by a margin of 142 points. Carberry was away off color and the exhibition was a disappointing one to those in attendance. The breaks were:—
C. Flynn—300—11, 20, 11, 13, 10, 19, 25, 13, 19—185.
J. Carberry—158—12, 11, 23.
Time of game—1hr. 18 min.

Scores at Intervals.
Flynn—54, 101, 241, 252, 300.
Carberry—30, 71, 117, 146, 158.
With the completion of the round, under the knockout system, the following players qualified and were placed in their respective divisions to compete in the tournament proper:—
Div. A. D. J. French, W. Newbury, R. C. Power, T. Ryan, E. J. Johnson, G. Rabbits, G. Flynn, W. B. Skinner, A. J. Moakler.
The games for the championship were begun in real earnest at 7.30 p. m. before the largest attendance yet present. Amongst those who occupied special seats in the audience were His Excellency the Governor, Captain Goddell and the Prime Minister, Hon. W. R. Warren. The guests were very much interested with the break of billiards witnessed and remained until the performance for the night had concluded. The first game was played between Power and Johnson, of Division A. Great interest was centered in the contest. The veteran, R. C. Power, who took the lead from the start and gradually increased it as the game progressed, gave a splendid exhibition and won out by a margin of 100 points. Johnson missed several easy shots during the game which was taken every advantage of by his opponent. The breaks were:—

R. C. Power—400—13, 29, 18, 10, 12, 17, 25, 15, 19, 15, 24, 17—201.
E. J. Johnson—300—10, 15, 17, 14, 16, 13, 13, 14, 10—125.
Time of game—1hr. 50 min.

Scores at Intervals.
Power—51, 104, 155, 246, 338, 400.
Johnson—36, 45, 100, 189, 264, 300.
The second contest was played between W. Newbury and veteran "Tommy" Ryan, Division B. This game was undoubtedly the finest exhibition of billiards witnessed in the city, and will be long remembered by the fans in attendance. The veteran Ryan, though not playing quite up to his usual form, was greatly outclassed by his opponent, Newbury, who put up an excellent exhibition from beginning to end. Newbury had a long string of breaks, one of which, a run of 57, splendidly executed, and the highest in the tournament to-date. The breaks were:—
W. Newbury—400—11, 11, 11, 22, 13, 57, 10, 24, 30, 17, 18, 16, 11, 10—261.
T. Ryan—279—19, 21, 16, 12, 16, 22, 11, 18, 14, 22—169.
Time of game—1hr. 50 min.

Scores at Intervals.
Newbury—49, 114, 213, 230, 363, 400.
Ryan—57, 89, 150, 201, 238, 298.
The games for to-night will be as follows:—
Div. A.—7.30—E. J. Johnson vs. G. Flynn.
Div. B.—9.00—G. Rabbits vs. W. B. Skinner.

The players competing for the championship will play each other from now on according to schedule drawn. The game is 400 up. The winning player is credited with one point. At the conclusion of the tournament, the players with the highest score in A. and B. Divisions will play off for the championship, 1,000 up.

INTER-CLUB BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.
The Masonic-B. I. S. Billiard Tournament was resumed at the B. I. S. rooms last night when two games were played resulting in both cases in victory for the Masonic players, who succeeded in reducing their opponents' lead by 184 points. The games in both cases proved very interesting right through and some very good breaks were made. With only one game to be played the B. I. S. are now leading by 331 points.
The following are the scores made last night:—
Martin, (Masonic)—350—14, 10, 18, 12, 11, 14, 11, 14, 28, 12, 10—154.

Only one more game of the first round remains to be played and this will take place to-night, when Power (B.I.S.), and Edwards (Masonic), will string off.

Wesley Debate

A large gathering of young men were present at the Wesley Young Men's Literary Class Tuesday night, when the following resolution was debated: "The Great Britain, in cooperation with the United States, can maintain the peace of the world." The set speakers for the Affirmative were Messrs. W. Whitmarsh, and A. D. Campbell; and for the Negative, Messrs. H. H. Hooley and M. Bourne. Mr. A. MacS. Morgan conducted the debate.

The Affirmative contended that if Great Britain and the United States were united a great advance would be taken toward world reconstruction and permanent peace. Great Britain and the United States combined make up one quarter of the world's population and those two nations possess highly intelligent people, great armies and navies; great religious influence; great financial power and great resources; all of which would make war unprofitable for any nation who would attack them, and would maintain the peace of the world.

The Negative contended that it was impossible for one-quarter of the world's population to keep the remaining three-quarters at permanent peace. The Negative pointed out that France, Japan, Russia, Turkey and Norway are nations which are equipped with strong armies and navies which could be very effective in times of war. Germany, too, is a nation that cannot be looked upon as ineffective in case of war.

The Negative presented some very interesting figures which showed the strength of the armies and navies of the principal nations of the world. Quite a number of members spoke from the floor and a very interesting and instructive debate was the result. On a vote being taken it was found that the Affirmative had won by a fair majority. The class intends holding a mock Parliament next Tuesday night.

"Neglected Wives" at the Majestic To-Day

MR. CAMERON GEDDES SINGS THREE NEW SONGS INCLUDING "DADDY'S WONDERFUL PAL."

"Neglected Wives" is the feature picture at the Majestic Theatre to-day. It is a strong sentimental play, divergent in many respects to the ordinary melodrama. "Beating the Cheaters" is the comedy which was so highly praised in the principal American film publications. Mr. Cameron Geddes continues his uninterrupted engagement with marked success and his many admirers will be pleased to learn that he has selected three songs which were never heard in this city before, but which he believes will meet with the approval of all patrons. His first number, "The Floral Dance," is an old Cornish song, which will be followed by another of his favorites, "Daddy's Wonderful Pal." His third selection, "The Rosary" and "The Song of the American Theatre" is voted the biggest hit of the season and promises in short to eclipse in popularity those songs which won fame within recent years. It is only a matter of time when everyone will be singing "Daddy's Wonderful Pal." Hear Mr. Geddes introducing it and you will understand why it is the popular song of the day in Boston, New York and other big cities. Friends of the Majestic and admirers of Mr. Geddes will be pleased to learn that he will comply with the many requests for singing "The Rosary" and it is quite possible an announcement to the effect will be made at an early date.

Kidney Troubles Often Follow Colds

Such Was the Experience of New Brunswick Lady

Madame B. Gaudet suffered with complications of kidney trouble and found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. Pointe St. Pierre, N.B., April 2 (Special). "My trouble was caused through a cold which left me with backache and rheumatism. I also had headaches and always felt tired and nervous, perspiring freely from the least exertion. I took four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I have found that they have done me a lot of good." This statement is made by Madame B. Gaudet, a well-known resident of this place. Madame Gaudet's trouble came from the kidneys, which had become deranged as the result of a cold. This is evidenced by the relief she got from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

HIS JOURNAL OF A TRIP TO THE SOUTH COAST.

March 25th.—I did not write in my journal yesterday being a busy day for me. Povey coming in the morning did bring me a letter from our office commissioning the two of us to make a journey to the South Coast, and to report on divers matters. I very pleased at this, being the first time of my having an opportunity to see this part of our Island and so did make haste to make myself ready. My wife in great distress at my leaving her, and did sob mightily all the day, but I speaking angrily to her, she did at length recover, and did help me to make ready. So up to-day very betimes and Povey called for me in a coach. We to the railway station and to make ourselves as comfortable as might be in our carriage. But Lord, how great is the uncertainty of travelling in this country, for we had gone no further than Kelligrews when news comes of a train off the track but a few miles distant and we like to suffer a long delay. This all too true, so Povey and I to fill our empty stomachs at a house nearby and so to wait in patience. Anon, our train coming to the scene of the wreck, needs must we carry our bags over a great hill, through deep snow, to another train, which did completely exhaust me. So we continued with some halts, to Argenta where we arrived at 9.30 o'clock, mighty tired. So on board the good ship Glencoe, and to bed.

March 26th.—Up betimes, being waked by a great noise, and find it to be the putting off of freight at Marys-town. A great many men come aboard the ship, most of them going to Quebec and Lunenburg. Indeed, I learn how on the last two trips of the Glencoe 400 men did leave the country, and few like to be left for the fishery. All travel, first class so the cabins full to overflowing almost and mighty warm. Povey and I to go on deck, where the weather fine but cold. All the day, the sea calm, but Povey, poor fellow, ill and keeps to his room, nor could I rouse him to come to his meals. Coming to Lamaline in the afternoon, more passengers for abroad to come aboard and so to Fortune, where the greatest delay in landing freight. The reason for this is that the water being too shallow always, for the steamer to come to the pier, needs must they load and unload the cargo in boats, and to-night, only one boat to be had for this purpose. To-night we make Grand Bank and Povey makes me known to a great many people. So to the Barber's shops and have my face trimmed which I have not had since yesterday. The pier at Grand Bank a fine one, but difficult to see much of it in the dark. I hear news to-night of a suit brought by London bankers against the Red Company, but no details of it given. On board the ship and to play a little at Bridge. So to bed.

March 27th.—Up very betimes and find the steamer at Belleoram. Much freight to be landed there, so Povey and I ashore and to look about us. More men to come aboard here as in every other port we have made and must be nigh 150 of them now on the ship. Many of them going to Glace Bay, Quebec and Lunenburg, but while there will be a great many less to fish out of Newfoundland this year, all the banking vessels, so I hear, have their crews shipped. At English Harbor, I notice among other things, a great pile of turbot drying on the beach, and the first time of my seeing

SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE.
(Montreal Star, March 27.)
Net operating results of the Canadian National Railways for the first two months of 1924 show an improvement of $3,532,428 over the corresponding period of 1923. There was an increase of $1,433,778 in gross revenue, and at the same time a decrease of $2,938,550 in operating expenses. The two months show a net profit of $362,276, as compared with a deficit of $2,270,052 in the corresponding period of last year. The first two months of the year are ordinarily expected to show a deficit on the Canadian National Railways as a result of seasonal decline in business and bad weather. This is the first year in the history of the combined operations that the system has approached the month of March with a surplus in hand instead of a deficit.

In the month of February alone, there was an improvement of $2,502,886 as compared with the corresponding month of last year. Operating revenues were $1,728,151 higher, while expenses were $774,695 lower. There was a deficit for the month amounting to $187,041, as compared with a deficit of $2,639,927 in February of 1923.

THE OIL SITUATION.
(Halifax Chronicle, March 25th.)
NEW YORK, March 24.—There is better sentiment regarding oil following continued decline of production in California and Mexico. Fields in southern California last week produced 338,000 barrels daily, compared with a high mark of 663,000 barrels in August, 1923. This is a decline of 41 per cent. It represents a loss of 275,000 barrels a day, which is far more than the State was able to ship to eastern refiners. Average daily shipments of California oil in the last six months of 1923 were 180,000 barrels. Shipments from California now down to 115,000 barrels. California now has no surplus of oil production to be shipped to the east and any shipments being made are coming out of storage. Oil wells drilled in Mexico last year 50 per cent are failures and production of both light and heavy oil shows steady decline. Net result of these two situations is a favorable condition respecting mid-continent and eastern oil companies generally.

Obituary.

MR. CHARLES CALPIN. (By Robert.)

It is with a great deal of regret that we report the death of Mr. Charles Calpin, one of the oldest and best known residents of that Conception Bay town. The end came after an illness lasting for over a month and borne by the late Mr. Calpin with that natural philosophy and religious resignation by which he had been characterized throughout his long, busy and useful life.

Mr. Calpin was a native of Bay Roberts and was one of a trio of brothers whose names were synonymous with industry and cleverness. The three Calpins all followed the smiddy trade and their forges were the gathering places for an older generation most of whom, like the brothers themselves have passed to the Land of Shadows. The doors of the smithies are closed, the fires on the hearths are dead, sadly typical of the vanished lives of those who passed their working years from youth to old age therein.

Mr. Charles the last of the Calpin brothers to depart hence, had long passed the allotted three score years and ten when the call came from labor to rest. For eighty years he plied his trade at the forge by the water side. Here during almost two generations foregathered for purposes of business or of conversation a relaxation gathered such men as the late Hon. Capt. Charles Dawe and his contemporaries big men in the affairs of the country as well as hundreds of the bone and sinew who played their part well on life's stage, even though for the most part their names are now almost forgotten. Even those of the present generation, who looked in on the flaming forge and heard the bellows roar, sigh with regret when they think of an institution and a custom now almost disappeared from the land. Mr. Calpin was ever a centre of these informal gatherings and the discussions that took place thereat, his quiet good nature, his kindly humor and his affability making him a general favorite with his friends and acquaintances who were to be found in almost every town in Conception Bay. Alas, for the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still. The servant has passed from earth to the presence of the Master in Heaven. If a life well spent counts as we hold, then his is the exceeding great reward of the saint to whom the "Well Done" is said as he enters into the rest that remains for the People of God.

The late Mr. Calpin leaves to mourn a widow, four sons all of whom are residing out of the country, except Mr. A. M. Calpin, M.H.A., for the District of Harbor Grace. To all the bereaved we extend sincerest sympathy in their great loss.—H.M.M.

MRS. EMILY TAYLOR.
Yesterday afternoon at her son's residence, 74 Heyward Avenue, Mrs. Emily Taylor passed within the veil. Mrs. Taylor was a native of Carbonate as also was her husband, Mr. George Taylor, who predeceased her in the nineties. She was the daughter of the late James Guy of the Conception Bay town, but had lived the greater part of her life in St. John's. The summons came after an illness of one week, at the age of 72 years. Mrs. Taylor leaves to mourn their great loss one son, Mr. Guy Taylor, Jeweller, at Ayre & Sons, Ltd., and four daughters, Mrs. (Capt.) Randall, LeMarchant Road, Mrs. Arch Hall, Carbonate, Mrs. S. R. Dawe, Bay Roberts and Mrs. Geo. Cobb, Bishop's Falls, also a brother Mr. William Guy and four sisters, Mrs. W. F. Penney, Mrs. Eben Penny and Mrs. T. C. Badcock of Carbonate, and Mrs. John Bemister, of New Perlican. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

Big Dramatic Feature at the Crescent

RUSSEL SIMPSON IN "SHADOWS OF CONSCIENCE"

The Crescent Theatre offers a complete change of programme to-night. The attraction is a strong dramatic offering entitled "Shadows of Conscience," featuring Russel Simpson. In 1882, Jim Logan came to a small town, then the outskirts of civilization in Wyoming, to inquire concerning his sister who was married to Wade Curry. He finds Curry a dishonest mine speculator, who has left his wife. Upon going to see the deserted woman, Logan finds her ill. In a fight, he fires at Logan, but Alice is killed. Before Logan's arrival, Curry had convinced the murder of Wesley Coburn, his partner. Logan sees the murder, and saves little Winnie, returning to the saloon and accuses Logan, who, however, escapes the snare, taking the orphan, Winnie, with him. Ten years later, Logan is a successful rancher in the Southwest. Winnie is about to return from the convent, where she has been educated. Traveling about the country Curry arrives on the scene. He makes the attempt, with the assistance of a crooked lawyer, to get possession of Winnie's person and commit Logan to jail. But Logan appeals to an assemblage of citizens and his story is so convincing that the terrors of his guilty conscience overcome Curry. Logan is unanimously cleared.

To-morrow night the usual weekly Amateur Contest takes place with new performers and all new numbers. The Crescent is always the centre of attraction on Friday nights, and this week's bill promises to be well up to the usual high standard.

"Eternal Light" Will be Repeated To-Day

ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY TO SEE WONDERFUL FILM.

"The Eternal Light," the screen reproduction of the Passion Play, which has been attracting crowded houses to the Nickel since its opening on Monday, will be repeated to-day. The management has deemed it advisable to lengthen its screening, so that all may have the opportunity to witness this truly great achievement. It's a motion picture that no man, woman or child in St. John's should miss seeing, as it tells the wonderful story of The Cross in such a manner that all can understand the various events that lead up to the Ascension. The backgrounds of the story are originally beautiful, and the cast is indeed, a most capable one. With the showing of the production Prof. P. J. McCarthy will again be heard in his splendid "The Palmes," Miss Ida Howlett will sing "The Cross of Calvary." This vocal accompaniment to the picture gives it that beautiful sacred touch that adds much to the enjoyment of the film. There will be two complete shows to-night, the first commencing sharply at 7.15 and the second at 9.10.

Will Serve Term After His Brother

Support of Families Reason for Deferred Sentence.

Louis Goldberg of 48 Campbell Avenue, Beverly, will go to jail to serve a two-year sentence as soon as his brother, Henry, of 48 Stanwood Street, Roxbury, and his former business partner, Louis Cluck, of 199 Columbia Road, Dorchester, who began similar sentences yesterday, finish theirs, under a unique arrangement fostered by Asst. U. S. Attorney John V. Sullivan.

Louis has promised to care for the families of his brother and former business associate while they are in jail, so that they will not be public charges. He is to manage the jewelry business of Goldberg & Goldberg, 43 Washington Street, from which all three families derive their support. In the interim, had all three gone to jail at once, Atty. Sullivan was convinced, the business would have collapsed and the families would have become penniless.

The three men were found guilty by a jury more than a year ago in the federal court here on an indictment charging them with staging a fake jewel robbery near Springfield in 1921 for the purpose of concealing $85,000 of assets in bankruptcy. They appealed. The circuit court affirmed their conviction, and they carried the case to the supreme court. The supreme court has handed down a mandate affirming the conviction in the lower court.

The sentences of two years at Plymouth jail immediately became effective and the men were brought before Judge Morton. Atty. Sullivan moved only for the confinement of Cluck and Henry Goldberg. Two years from now, when the others are released, Louis will go to Plymouth and his family will be cared for in turn.

Ways and Means

We are already, with the opening of Spring, beginning to leave off the heavy loads carried by us during the past months.
There is around us, on every side, other loads, especially of debt, which load we cannot conveniently cast off as we do our winter apparel. Can we improve our position? We have a Municipal Office where money is always required for "Improvements in City Life." Let us start and open a Municipal Savings Department, where every child, woman or man can leave their weekly savings from 50c up (specified time and day for depositors). These deposits cannot be withdrawn for three years, interest at 4 or 5 p.c. payable half yearly by cheque; at the end of three years each depositor can withdraw his or her savings, or else take Municipal Bonds for value bearing 6 p.c. interest payable half yearly, these Bonds maturing in 5, 10, 15 or 20 years.
This system is open to everyone from the school lad to the banker, and it should help thrift, "if every home would give it the consideration it is worth." The boy and girl just starting out in life, the spendthrift, the young man or woman with thoughts of making a home, the father and mother. These savings will place funds in the hands of the City Fathers at a small interest to meet their requirements; (this cannot be

New Dollars for Halifax Jobbers

(Maritime Merchant.)

At a time when established markets are less productive of business than they have customarily been, jobbers hall with gladness any new outlet for trade that may be opened up. In such times they have their eyes peeled for any new prospect that may be developing within their radius. To certain Halifax business men, an item which appeared in the press perhaps ten months ago regarding the development of a pulp and paper industry at Corner Brook, Newfoundland, was brought with considerable significance. On account of the close connection which Halifax has with Newfoundland by means of Farquhar & Co's steamers, considerable trade is already done in that quarter by Halifax houses, and the statement that about thirty million dollars would be invested in erecting at Corner Brook a pulp and paper mill and a town connection therewith, created a prospect for business that challenged their attention. They were not slow in investigating the opportunity and a result considerable business has been done by them at the site of this industrial development that in a measure atones for the lack of business from the older established markets. This business has helped quite a lot during the past six months; and there is still more to be done.

The view of the continuance of the construction work and the eventual opening to the needs of the new industry and the population of the new town. It should continue to be a source of considerable profit even after the plant and town construction work has been completed. In the early stages of the development, Montreal benefitted very extensively, for supplies were at that time sent from that port by the shipload. But Halifax has the direct and regular steamship connection, and so supplies here, especially at the last call before winter closes down. Will be the always to harvest many new dollars at the site of Newfoundland's newest industry.

It is an inspiring thought, this one of the development of a brand new industry and the creation of a brand new town. The pulp and paper mill of Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., Ltd., will employ when completed about 800 men, and produce about 400 tons of newsprint a day. At present about 500 men are at work on construction. The town in connection with the industry has been planned to accommodate 4,000 people and is being developed on approved "town planning" lines. Already in the construction of streets, sewers, water works and other features of the place several hundred men are at work. Corner Brook is before a very busy place to-day. A large amount of land is being reclaimed for the mill site and the equipment for excavation and filling nothing short of wonderful. A man who has witnessed the work in progress told us of the expedition with which the cars are loaded with earth filling purposes; the huge steam cranes, working steadily, fill a car about a minute. With the entirely new plant for construction work which sort that is being used, the development grows with such rapidity that the progress is very perceptible in a single day.

The town plan has been made by Messrs. Adams, one of the leaders in the profession, in collaboration with Messrs. Thompson, another town planner of repute, and makes the best possible use of the ground. The streets are so laid out that the shortest distance between the lines on opposite sides will be seventy feet and the smallest lots have forty feet frontage. Corner Brook will be the last word in elegant laying out for the health, comfort and general welfare of the people. Special attention is being paid to the aesthetic aspect of this development and the planning and building of the cottages has been in the care of A. R. Cobb, a local architect.

British Fleet to Burn Oil

ITS FORMER NAVAL CHIEF, LONDON, Mar. 4 (A.P.)—Prediction of the future British fleet would be burning was made by Lieut.-Col. M. S. Amery, former first lord of admiralty, in an address at the Colonial Institute recently. Referring to the government on the more base question, he admitted increasing menace in air development insisted that the main defence of these islands as well as of the Empire as a whole depended upon maintenance of sea communication and that nothing but an efficient fleet could maintain those communications. Amery declared that of the future will each be a complex with many forms of defence, but the capital ship always remain the kernel of the command.
