Guelph Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVENING, FEB. 2, 1874

Town and County News

This is a persistent cold snap. It continued all day yesterday. This morning at nine o'clock the thermometer stood at nine above zero.

WELLINGTON MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—The annual meeting of this company will be held to-morrow, at the Queen's Hotel, at half-past one o'clock.

DEATHS THROUGH DRINK AND EXPOSURE.—A man named Geo. Schmidt, of Conestoga, died on Friday evening from the too free use of whiskey, and exposure to the storm prevalent on that day. A man by the name of Joseph Reinhart, 75 years of age, died while being conveyed from a sleigh into his son-in-law's house, a distance of twenty feet.

SOCIAL.—The young men composing Mr. Jas. Hough's Bible Class, in the Wesleyan Church, will give a social in that place on Wednesday evening next. From what we learn of the affair it promises to be one of more than ordinary interest, and no doubt will be largely attended. The proceeds are to be applied to the trust fund of the new church.

SUN DOGS.—Sun dogs, or mock suns, are occasionally observable to the people of Manitoba during the winter season, and a few days ago the newcomers at Winnipeg were enabled to witness this peculiar phenomenon. Shortly after sunrise two very luminous bodies were seen on each side, and a little above the sun, and continued to be visible for several hours. In that latitude, the appearance of these phenomena in the morning indicates a storm, accompanied by strong wind; and from the experience the people of the Prairie Province had on the occasion referred to, the prognosis is true.

NAVY TRADE REVIEW.—We have received No. 1 of the first volume of this new monthly journal, published by St. John, N.B. Judging from the number before us, the Maritime Trade Review will be a valuable addition to the periodical press of the Dominion. There appears to be much useful information of a shipping and commercial character; the editorials are pointed and well written; and there are many general articles of much interest. Amongst these is a full and minute description of counterfeit American bank notes and greenbacks; and an article on Wall Street. The Review is evidently modelled on the style of the Toronto Monetary Times, which in size and appearance it closely resembles; but is by no means a slavish imitation, and contains more matter than its Toronto weekly cotemporary. We welcome the Review to our exchange list.

Chief Constable's Report.
We have received a copy of the annual report of the Chief Constable to the Police Commissioners, but too late for publication to-day; it will appear to-morrow. We notice a suggestion made by Mr. Kelly. He points out that a large number of the offences tried in the police court last year originated in the use or abuse of intoxicating liquor; and he thinks that the License Inspector ought to be more careful as to whom he recommends as proper persons to receive licenses for liquor-vending. He thinks that a careful attention to this point would prevent much crime and misery.

From Quebec.
(Special to the Mercury by Montreal Line.)
QUEBEC, Feb. 2
It is rumored that Mr. M. A. Hearn, Advocate, is to be appointed Collector of Customs at this port.
The Quebec Curling Club has decided upon purchasing and offering for competition a challenge cup for the Dominion. The Brodie cup was won on Saturday by Wm. Crawford.
Weather clear and cold. Thermometer 20° below zero.
At 3:36 p.m., yesterday, a sharp shock of earthquake was distinctly felt at Father Point. It shook stoves and everything moveable in houses. As far as heard from it was felt about 10 miles south of here. It appears to have come southward.

Erin Agricultural Society.
The annual meeting of the Erin Agricultural Society was held at Aldou's tavern on Thursday, 16th January, when the officers-leaders for the ensuing year were elected as follows, viz.—President, Robert Bott; Vice-President, John Neat; Sec.-Treas., J. W. Hurt; Directors, Jas. Millar, J. D. Currie, A. Swindlehurst, Isaac Teeter, George Robinson, William Leslie, J. Fletcher, M. Henshaw and Daniel McDougall. The first meeting of the Directors will be held on Saturday, the 6th day of June next, at ten o'clock, a.m., at Lesson's Hotel, Brisbane. It was decided to hold the annual show on the 9th of October next, in Erin Village.

NARROW ESCAPE.—On Saturday Jan. 26 while E. House, of the 15th concession of Minto, in company with Jno. Hendry, was chopping a large tree, a branch broke off, falling upon Mr. House's head, knocking him senseless to the ground. Mr. Hendry assisted him home and Dr. Rutherford was sent for. It appears that the limb, in falling, struck him on the side of the head, and glanced off one of his shoulders, not doing him the injury it would have done had it struck him fair on the head.
Mr. Edward Jenkins, author of "Ginx's Baby" at present in Montreal, has been nominated as a Liberal candidate for Dundee, in the approaching British elections.

The English Election.
Railroad Train Robbed by Masked Men.

New York, Feb. 2.—Havana mail advices up to Jan. 24, report that the commercial condition of the Island grows worse.
Gold advanced six per cent yesterday, on reports from the interior and from Spain.
Another batch of women and children have been banished to the Isle of Pines. The insurgents have burned two more large sugar plantations in the vicinity of Trinidad valued at $600,000. Imperative demands have been made upon the mother country for additional troops, and General Pottolunco is making conscriptions of Cubans and negroes in the interior, and many have fled to avoid conscription.
London, Jan. 31.—A meeting of Liberals, supporters of Thomas Hughes, was held in Marylebone last night. Hughes delivered a long address, in the course of which he declared himself in favor of a co-operative association of working men.
Prof. Geldwin Smith also addressed the meeting, giving his cordial support to the views of Mr. Hughes. The difference between Hughes and Daniel Grant, who was nominated by the other branch of the Liberals on Wednesday night, continues to render the return of the Conservative candidate probable.
St. Louis, Jan. 31.—A daring and successful robbery was committed this evening on the Iron Mountain Railway near Gads Hill Station, 120 miles below this city. The train was signalled to stop, the switch was turned, and the train ran on a side track. The robbers, armed with revolvers, stopped the train, and the conductor stepped off to ascertain what was the matter, when he was confronted by a man wearing a mask. A pistol was placed to his head and he was marched off. The engineer, fireman, mail and express agents, and other train men were then seized by five masked men heavily armed, and also placed under guard. The robbers then went through the entire train, and took from the passengers about $2,000 and a large amount of jewellery. They also took from Allan's Express Messenger about $1,000, and from the mails. The robbers harmed nobody on the train. They left behind a first-class news item descriptive of the transaction, which they had already written.

Impressions of a Canadian.
Mr. John Cameron, of the London Advertiser, is the "Canadian" referred to above, and he wrote his impressions of a tour through Europe, in a series of letters to his own paper. These are now published in book form, and make an excellent and interesting little work. We have read it with much pleasure. The style is fresh and lively. The writer goes straight to the point, and does not bore his readers with long rhapsodies or prosy statements. His references to the Vienna exhibition are particularly pithy. The book is calculated to give the general reader a good idea of the principal sights of England, Scotland, France, Italy, Austria, Switzerland, &c., and contains much information, put in easy colloquial fashion.

HALTON.—The defeat of Mr. White for Halton is due to over-confidence on the part of his friends, while Mr. Chisholm's friends worked most strenuously. Mr. Chisholm's supporters, by professing to be Liberal, and promising to support the Ministry in every measure announced in Mr. Mackenzie's address to the electors of Hamilton, drew away some Reform votes. Mr. Chisholm also condemned Sir John A. Macdonald, and said that he was not entitled to the support of the electors of this Dominion, and even went further than Mr. White, in announcing that he was in favor of universal suffrage. He promised, if elected, to take his seat on the Ministerial side of the House. The following are the official returns:—

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION AT LONDON.—A terrific explosion occurred in London about 10:30 on Saturday morning, at Waterman, Englehart & Co's. oil-refinery, killing instantly one man named James Clamper, and seriously injuring three men, named Alfred Jessup, Patrick Neil and James Johnson, who were employed in the building. The explosion was caused by the man-hole of the still being blown out. Some of the debris was thrown a distance of three blocks.
ALMOST DROWNED.—Mr. R. Crawford, sr., of Carlingford was returning home, from the nomination at St. Mary's and on reaching the bridge over Black Creek, on the town line between Fullerton and Downie, drove into the water, not noticing in the darkness that the bridge had been carried away by the freshet. Mr. Crawford was thrown into the water, and being encumbered by his heavy clothes and plaid, was almost unable to swim. He might soon have been drowned, had not Mr. William Bain, hearing his cries for help, come up, and succeeded in rescuing him. The horses gained the shore without trouble.—Bacon.

The Newfoundland Government.
The Government of Mr. Bennett having resigned, Mr. Carter has been sent for, and has formed his Ministry, as follows:—
Mr. CARTER, Premier and Attorney-General.
Mr. WHITWAT, Solicitor-General.
Mr. ROBINSON, Receiver-General.
Mr. WARREN, Surveyor-General.
Mr. DWYER, Public Works.
Mr. SNEY, Colonial Secretary.
The chief members of the new Government were turned out of office some years ago on account of their advocacy of the union of the Island to the new Dominion. It remains to be seen whether the state of public opinion will justify the renewal of negotiations with a view to Confederation.

A farmer in Kentucky, says the Bath Co. News, having lost several chickens, baited a trap, hoping to catch the thief. The next morning trap and bait were both gone. Two months afterwards, a woman living about ten miles away hearing a noise in her house, went out quietly and caught the intruder, a large owl. Her astonishment was great on finding attached to the owl the trap that the farmer had set, and ten inches of chain. Two teeth were broken from the steel trap, and just at that place the jaws had firmly held the leg of the bird, cutting all around quite to the bone, but without breaking it.
FIRE IN SHEFFIELD.—On the morning of Friday, 16th inst., the residence and store of Mr. Edwin Bond, in the village of Sheffield, had a very narrow escape from being destroyed by fire. Mr. Bond was severely frozen while fighting the fire, he being out in the extreme frost in his bare feet and very thinly clad; but he is now almost entirely recovered.

Dr. David Livingstone.
The distinguished man whose death is now apparently certain was a native of Scotland, and was born at Blairy, in Lanarkshire, in the year 1817. He descended from a family which had for many generations been established at Uva, one of the Hebrides group of islands, where his grandfather cultivated a small farm. Finding this occupation inadequate to the support of his family, he removed to Blairy Works, and with his sons received employment in the cotton mills established there. The great traveller's father subsequently became a tea merchant in Hamilton, near Glasgow, and was highly respected by his neighbors, though he never succeeded in acquiring wealth. At the age of ten years Livingstone became a "pisceur" in an evening school furnished him with the opportunity of acquiring some knowledge of Latin and Greek, and finally, after attending a course of medicine at the Glasgow University, and the theological lectures of Wardlaw, Professor of Theology to the Scotch Independents, he offered himself to the London Missionary Society, by whom he was ordained as a medical missionary in 1840. He intended that China should be the field of his labors, but owing to the Opium war it was deemed inexpedient for him to go there and accordingly he was designated for the African mission—an event which determined the future course of his life. In the summer of 1840 after a voyage of three months he landed at Port Natal in South Africa, and promptly repaired to Kuruman, where the veteran African missionary Dr. Moffat had founded a station. Here he met the lady—a daughter of Dr. Moffat—who four years later became his wife. After studying for two years the language and customs of the Baskains he removed in 1843 to Mabotsa, where he founded a missionary station, and during the next six years labored in his calling there and at Kolobeng, a station about 50 further north. In June, 1849, in company with Oswald and Murray, two English gentlemen, Dr. Livingstone started on his first exploring expedition into the interior, and on August, reached Lake Ngami by crossing the Bakalitari desert, which had for a long time presented insuperable obstacles to persons approaching in that direction. The party returned to Kolobeng in October and in the succeeding year Livingstone made another journey to the lake, but was prevented by the prevalence of fever, and a species of fly very troublesome to cattle, from ascending to the northward of it. In 1851, in company with Mr. Oswell, he again started for the north, and proceeding in a more easterly direction, reached the great river Zambezi, flowing in the centre of Africa. In April, 1852, he accompanied his wife and children to Capetown, and having witnessed their departure for England, returned to Kuruman with the intention of selecting a locality for a new station, which should be free from the annoyance of the Boers—a degraded class of white settlers—who regarded with disfavor his efforts to civilize the natives, and his efforts to suppress slavery. While at this he learned that the Boers had carried their hostility so far as to plunder his house, and devastate the missionary settlement he had formed.
Being now free from pastoral cares, he departed on his most important northern tour, and in May, 1853, reached Linyanti, the principal town of the Makololo tribe, where he was kindly received by the Chief and the entire population. Departing thence in November, he proceeded up the Lecamby River, and its affluent, the Leoba, to Lake Dilolo, and thence with considerable difficulty and peril across the Congo River to Angola, at the capital of which country, Loanda, on the western coast of Africa, he arrived May 31, 1854, and was hospitably received by the Portuguese authorities, stationed there. Leaving Loanda, in the ensuing September, he reached Linyanti in September, 1856, and thence proceeded down the Lecamby and Zambezi Rivers, which he found to be identical, to Quilimane on the Indian Ocean, which he reached May 20, 1856. He then took ship for England, where he arrived during Dec. 12 of the same year.
During his 16 years, absence Livingstone had twice crossed the African continent from the shores of the Indian Ocean to those of the Atlantic, and explored a vast tract of country hitherto unvisited by Europeans. The magnitude of his labors and the great results attained during this period were thus alluded to by Sir R. Murchison at a meeting of the Royal Geographical Society held in 1856, and which Livingstone was present. "We are met to-day," said that distinguished geographer, "for the purpose of welcoming Dr. Livingstone on his return home from South Africa after an absence of 16 years, during which, while endeavoring to spread the blessings of Christianity through lands never before trodden by the foot of any European, he had made geographical discoveries of incalculable importance. In all his various journeys Dr. Livingstone had traveled over no less than 11,000 miles of African territory, and he had come back to England as the pioneer of sound and useful knowledge; for by his astronomical observations he had determined the sites of numerous places, hills, rivers and lakes, nearly all of which had been hitherto unknown, while he had seized upon every opportunity of describing the physical features, climatology and geographical structure of the countries which he had explored, and had pointed out many new sources of commerce as yet unknown to the scope and enterprise of the British merchant."
The reception accorded to the great traveller at this time was very cordial. His frank, simple and manly character made him a great favorite with the people, who were agreeably surprised to find a man in a commercial age rival in devotion and self-sacrifice the great explorers and navigators of the sixteenth century. In 1857 he published his "Missionary Travels and Researches in South Africa," a work of great interest and value, forming an enduring record of his remarkable journey. In 1858 he returned again to Africa, having been appointed British Consul at Quilimane and soon after his arrival there departed on another expedition. Sailing up the Zambezi, he attained Lake Nyassa, where he made further explorations. His wife, who had accompanied him in many of his perilous journeys, died of fever at Shupanga, April 27, 1862, and the expedition returned the year following. Dr. Livingstone reached England in July, 1864, and after giving interesting papers

North Riding Local Election.

The Speaker of the Legislative Assembly has issued his writ for the election of a member for this Riding in room of Mr. McKim.

After the Battle.

Now that the battle at the polls has been fought and the victory won, we can calmly review the contest, count our gains and losses, and refer to the many and diverse agencies that were set in operation in order to influence the elections.

What a contrast is this election to that held in 1872. The then Government, with John A. Macdonald at its head, was in the full flush of victory.

become by the depth to which their leaders have sunk and the policy which John A. Macdonald has so long pursued.

EAST MIDDLESEX.—The defeat of Mr. Glass in East Middlesex is especially to be regretted. He it was who first turned his back on John A. Macdonald, and denounced his action as indefensible.

THE CONTEST.—Three more supporters of the Government have been returned for Quebec, leaving only five to be heard from in this Province.

BISHOP FARRELL'S SUCCESSOR.—A cable telegram to the Globe states that the Holy See has appointed Rev Mr. Crinnon, Vicar-General of London diocese, to be Bishop of Hamilton, in place of the late Bishop Farrell.

NORTH RIDING RETURNS.—We are still without the complete and correct returns of the poll in this Riding, one of the poll books not having been returned on Saturday.

Hon. R. W. Scott has received a telegram from British Colour and Informing him that all its representatives would support the Government.

CHAPTER XVII.
AN IMPORTANT CONVERSATION, WHICH INDICATES THE RESULTS LIKELY TO ARISE FROM IT—NEW DANGERS AHEAD.
He then shewed Ian into the little parlour into which Flora and Hector were introduced when they arrived at the inn along with Ned Gordon, after their narrow escape from the man who now entered it and his followers. The landlord then withdrew, leaving the young Chief for a few minutes by himself.

He slapped his hand on his leg as soon as the door had closed behind Gregor, and then, with a low chuckle, muttered—

"Gregor may have heard something of their intentions when they were here that night, and over the bottle I may ferret it out. The devil himself is not more cunning; but he might tell a thing were it to be advantageous to him. If he has nothing to tell he might at the very least assist us. I prefer, if possible, doing my work by stealth rather than by fighting, and if Gregor could be enlisted in our favor he'd be a valuable help. Besides, he is in the position of one who would not readily be suspected, and might learn the intentions of the others. I shall approach him cautiously, and endeavor to learn how he feels. It will be a difficult task, but one which I think I can accomplish. I only hope I shall not be interrupted by Cameron before I have him secure. But hush, here he comes."

At this moment the landlord entered and set down some eatables on the table before Ian, who at once applied himself to them with great vigor, the more so as the viands were of a toothsome description, consisting of a piece of shoulder of venison, cold mutton, boiled eggs, salmon and trout from the loch. The landlord immediately retired, and shortly returned with a bottle and glasses in his hand.

"Aha, I see you have not forgotten my instructions," exclaimed Ian, cheerily, as the landlord approached and placed them on the table. "We shall enjoy ourselves until Droghdaire returns."

"And well may Droghdaire himself join us over a drop of stuff like this," replied Gregor, with a cunning leer in his eyes, as he drew the cork from the bottle and poured out some of the liquor into his own and companion's glasses.

"Eh?" said Ian, replying with a sly wink. "It hasn't paid duty, I suppose?" "Made on the premises," as the Edinburgh merchants say about their goods."

"It will be good stuff, at any rate," replied Gregor, evasively, raising the glass to his lips.

"That it is," rejoined Ian, who had also raised his glass and quaffed its contents. "Of course, Gregor, it does not do to speak of these things, but whoever the maker of that stuff is, it does him credit."

"It's very good, it's very good," said Gregor.

"Was Donald Cameron very angry like when he told you not to ask anything more about the fight in your house?" asked Ian, after a pause, beginning to break the ice very gently.

"He was swearing terrible."

"You would be afraid that the house was to fall about your head?" "I wasn't very sure what was best to say, but was very well pleased when was over."

A pause took place here, during which each took another glass of mountain dew.

"I have never had an opportunity of speaking to you since the death of my father," said Ian, resuming. "So far as ever I could learn, the old Chief and you were great and steadfast friends, Gregor?"

"A great friend of mine was the M'Kenzie. Many a quitch we emptied together."

"Yes, he was a good neighbour and a social companion, Gregor; and I suppose, with the exception of the M'Leods, has left no enemies behind him."

"I suppose not," replied Gregor, cautiously, darting a furtive, searching look at Ian, but the young man was gazing into the fire in a musing manner, and appeared to have suddenly lost himself in a fit of abstraction.

"Ay," he exclaimed, recovering himself, and again addressing the landlord, "this difficulty with the M'Leods is all that troubles me. The future would be a pleasant one did I not ever have before me the stern fact that the M'Leods are my bitter enemies, and that it is impossible for friendship ever to exist between us. It is when I think of this, Gregor, that I wish I had some one to guide and counsel me. I would give something for your age and experience."

"The old M'Kenzie often spoke to me about the feud with the M'Leods," rejoined Gregor, "and I gave to him the advice which I will give to you, and which the M'Leods know to have been effective. It is this—the M'Leods may overcome the M'Leods by cunning, but not by force. It was by hints which I gave to your father that he was able to accomplish so much against them as he did; but one like me must take no share in a feud like this. My advice, however, is—apply cunning, and not force."

"You are right, Gregor, you are right," exclaimed Ian, with something like enthusiasm glowing in his face. He had received more encouragement from the landlord than he could have allowed himself to expect.

M. LANGEVIN.—The Pacific Scandal and Sir Hugh Allan's $35,000 have proved fatal to Sir George Cartier's successor in the Conservative chieftainship of Lower Canada, Hon. Hector Louis Langevin, O.B., Chevalier Commander of the Order of Pope Gregory the Great, &c., &c. Lacking the peculiar personal qualities and adroitness which characterized the late Baronet, and enabled him to hold such a compact body of members (moutons they were called) at his back, Mr. Langevin saw his command gradually dissolving away, and the great Scandal has left him apparently without a single henchman to do his behest. No constituency in Quebec held out a friendly hand to invite the wanderer to a seat, and he is now out off for the present from active participation in politics. Under the circumstances it is reported he intends taking a trip to Europe, for the benefit of his health, next week.

Witness.
A dispute arose in the Bevers House, London, on Saturday, between Dr. Hagerty and Mr. John Taylor, barrister, growing out of the late election contest. Taylor struck Hagerty, when the latter drew a revolver. The revolver went off, it is supposed, accidentally. The ball went through a window. Fortunately no one was hit.
