THE MINER'S STRIKE.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—The tragedy that has been looked for since the coal workers strike was inaugurated, came suddenly unexpected this afternoon at Shenandoah. A posse hurriedly gathered together to meet any emergency that might arise was forced to fire on the mob that was threatening workmen on their home way under escort. A man and a little girl were instantly killed and ten others more or less seriously wounded. The Sheriff lost no time in calling on the commander of the National Guard of Pennsylvania to send troops to aid him in keeping peace. After consultation the state authorities at Harrisburg decided at midnight to send troops to the turbulent regions. The Shenandoah trouble was precipitated by the closing of six collieries there this morning. Through the effects of the strike leaders more will close to-morrow as a voluntary act, it is said on the part of the Reading company. This is done at the request of Sheriff Toole, who hopes in this manner to avoid further trouble. The outlook at midnight, however, is dubious.

New York, Sept. 21.—The Philadelphia and Reading Coal Company has decided to raise the wages of its employees ten per cent. It is understood from advices received from Philadelphia that the advance will begin immediately, from this morning in fact. The effect of it upon the strike situation will be far-reaching. It is believed now that when the increase is made known the operators will return to work, and the five mines now closed will resume. What this will mean in the matter of coal supply is apparent from the capacity of the Philadelphia and Reading mines, which, it is estimated, can easily supply fifty per cent. of the coal necessary for eastern cities. In making the ten per cent advance in wages the officials of the Reading company do not take the ground that it is submission to the demands of the workers. The employees of this company are paid on what is known as the sliding scale.

CONDITIONS AT GALVESTON.

Galveston, Tex., Sept. 21.—The conditions at Galveston continue to rapidly improve. Everyone is so busy that there is little time to mourn over losses. The number of patients in the hospital is much smaller than would have been expected considering the number of dead. This is due to the fact that few who were entirely helpless succeeded in escaping alive. The number of people leaving the city is decreasing and there is no longer any necessity for sick and injured to go elsewhere for medical attention. Commander Selfridge, lighthouse inspector, gives official notice that all buyers at the entrance of Galveston harbor are in position.

500 WILL RETURN.

Ottawa, Sept. 20.—The Militia Department has been advised that 500 men of the first contingent are returning to Canada, and will return under command of Lt. Col. Oscar Peletier. No word as to their route has yet been received.

THE BOER ARMY.

London, Sept. 21.—Further reports from Lord Roberts say the Boers who remain in the field include a few irreconcilables, but that the majority are fighting under compulsion. General Delany, it is added, holds three hundred burghers as prisoners in his laager.

PUGSLEY and SPROULE.

Hampton, Sept. 20.—Hon. Wm. Pugsley and Mr. Fred M. Sproule were nominated to-day for the Local Legislature. There was no speech-making. Large number of electors in town to attend the Liberal convention.

FIVE SUFFOCATED.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 21.—An old, four-story tenement at 409 East Front street, used as branch nursery of the Salvation Army, burned this evening, and its occupants were suffocated. Five were suffocated to death and others seriously injured.

FROM CHINA.

Yokohama, Sept. 20.—Four thousand Russians, 5,000 Germans and 1,000 French with a detachment of American marines, began the attack upon the Pui Tang forts at daylight. The attack was answered briskly from the

SMALL POX AGAIN.

Seven Cases Reported Near Bathurst.

A SEVERE TYPE

Brought to the County
From the United States.

Small Pox has again broken out on the North Shore. This time the scene of the pestilence is at a settlement a few miles from Bathurst. It was brought there by a woman and her children who came from the United States a few days ago to visit friends. The disease last winter was of a mild type, but the present cases are said to be more severe, but as yet no deaths have been reported. There are seven cases altogether, and all have been placed under one roof. Dr. Menahan, of the Gloucester Board of Health and his assistants are making every endeavor to prevent the spread of the disease.

The North Shore medical men do not feel like going through the ordeal of last winter again in a hurry, and you can't blame them, for they received less than two thirds of the amount promised them by the government for their services. Instead of getting 50 cents for every vaccination they received only 20 cents.

The bombardment continuing until noon, but it was noticed that the forts did not reply after 10 o'clock. The allies sent forward at noon to discover the reason of the cessation of the firing from the forts and found them deserted, there being only four dead Chinamen within the walls. The allies were much chagrined, as they had the place completely surrounded, making escape impossible; yet over 3,000 men got away in broad daylight. The Russian artillery fire had proved effective and the forts were badly damaged. The British and Italian commanders had decided to join in the attack, but their troops had not arrived in time. The entire line between Tien Tsun and Taku shows reinforcements were heading for the forts. Three members of the allied forces were killed and fifty were wounded through the explosion of mines laid along their line of march.

BIG YACHT RACE NEXT YEAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—C. Oliver Iselin and family returned here yesterday on the Majestic. Mr. Iselin said that he had not paid much attention to yachting matters since he left home several months ago. While in London he heard some comments on the proposed challenge for the America's cup, and believes that there will be a contest next year. He said that Englishmen did not seem to be much impressed with the new 70-footers, and if the challenge is given it will be for a race for boats in the class of the Shamrock and Columbia.

STEAMER NEWFIELD WRECKED.

Halifax, Sept. 23.—The Dominion Government steamer Newfield, Capt. Campbell, is a total loss at White Cove, Digby Neck, on the Bay of Fundy, her side having struck a ledge there on Saturday afternoon during a thick fog. She left Westport four hours previously for Digby, carrying supplies for the light-house. The crew were saved.

ELECTION AT HAND.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—The cabinet at its meeting yesterday for the first time formally talked over the question of the dissolution of Parliament. The meeting followed a lengthy session of the treasury board, at which it is understood, several retirements from the public service were issued and a number of appointments were made. Disposition has been agreed upon, but the exact dates of nomination and polling have not been fixed, as it was thought desirable to wait for a few days to see what progress will be made by the printing bureau in getting out the voter's lists and requisite forms. The election will take place, it is said, by good authority, either the last week in October or the first week in November.

THE COAL STRIKE.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—To-morrow morning opens the second week of the anthracite coal miners' strike and developments having an important bearing on the outcome of the struggle are looked for. An effort will be made in the morning to start work in the collieries located in the Schuylkill region with the protection of three regiments of State guards, in all numbering about 4,000 men. Some of these mines were voluntarily closed on Saturday by the operators at the request of the county sheriff with the object of checking the disorder in and about Shenandoah where the riot occurred on Friday

IT'S a pity we couldn't confine our travels by carriage to Pleasant street.

THERE are fish liars, game liars, crop liars etc. but the biggest liar is he who tells us something about a politician.

SIR Walter Besant in his novel "St. Katherine's by the Tower," speaking of the river-side inhabitants, says: "They go to church but three times in their lives—when they are baptized, when they are married and when they are buried." It is only people in novels who go to be buried during their lives.

MEN of good social position drink less now than formerly, but the women of high society are becoming tipplers, and increasingly so. They are imitating the evils of English society, and staid old American notions of respectability are on the wane. Such was the burden of an address by the Rev. Father Walter J. Shanley, of the Cathedral parish in Hartford, the other day. In ten years hence they will probably come home at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, whistling, "Because I love you," and making all manner of excuses for their late return to the dear hubby.

FOSTER FOR WEST PETERBORO.

TORONTO, Sept. 22.—The Evening Telegram's Peterboro special says: "Hon. Geo. E. Foster is to be the conservative candidate in West Peterboro, James Kennedy, M. P., retiring. Mr. Foster visits the town at an early date and will be offered the nomination."

Father O'Leary's Popularity.

Quebec, Sept. 24.—A general appeal has been issued by the committee in charge of Father O'Leary's testimonial to mayors of some thirty cities and towns through the Dominion. They are invited to open subscriptions and enlist the sympathy of the press on behalf of the movement.

12000 Lives Lost.

Houston, Texas, Sept. 21.—Governor Sayers tonight wires the following signed statement to the Associated Press:—

"The loss of life occasioned by the storm in Galveston and elsewhere on the southern coast cannot be less than 12,000, while the loss of property will probably aggregate $20,000. Notwithstanding this severe affliction, I have every confidence that the stricken districts will rapidly revive, and that Galveston will in her present desolation and sorrow arise with renewed strength and vigor.—Joseph Sayers."

Fifty Missing.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 24.—More than 50 French fishing vessels from St. Pierre are still missing as a result of the recent gale. Much alarm is felt for their safety. Many doubtless have been disabled; it is almost certain that others have foundered and all hands lost.

A WOMAN OUTRAGED.

Gardiner, Maine, Sept. 20.—In a lonely house on the road from Ashburnham to Ashby, two masked men bound and gagged and outraged early this morning Miss Eva Baker. Her aged father lay in an adjoining apartment incapacitated by paralysis and unable to save his daughter and valuables. Baker and his daughter were the only occupants of the house. The lesson of obedience to man? Would it not be better for the American woman to be warned in season, and by humble repentance and submission avert the extreme measures which appear to be designed to subdue her vaulting spirit? We told you femininity would soon wear a check rein.

The Chicago News says if you would keep your enemies from knowing any harm of you don't let your friends know any.

A commotion not unlike the Sapho excitement in New York is convulsing Paris over the exceedingly suggestive performance of a band of female wrestlers at the exposition in one of the many theatres which had failed and closed.

One notoriously enterprising female manager, having sub-rented a concession, installed a dozen beautiful and athletic girls, all expert wrestlers together with a few male fighters. All the women wear tight-suggesting the prettiest models known in bathing costumes and thus attired, they appear before the performances on a platform in front of the theatre while "barkers" explain the beauties of the show offered within, and the female wrestlers themselves challenge all comers.

From the first the enterprise has been a colossal success. Men, especially artists, "rounders" and sportsmen, form parties to go and wrestle with the girls.

The following is a reply to a correspondence which appeared in the Chatham World of the 20th inst.

To the Editor of the Union Advocate,

SIR:—In the issue of the Chatham World of the 20th September there is a letter signed Elected in which he makes certain charges against the trustees of the school, our local members, school inspector Merrett and Chief Superintendent of Education Inch which are most abominable falsehoods. The school house recently built on the old site in the said district is in the most central and proper part of the district. A few years ago the Creek and that part of Upper Pokemouche known as Eel Ground had a school district of their own, but became dissatisfied among themselves; some even accusing the secretary of that district of appropriating school money. They then requested to become a part of the South River district which request was forwarded to the Board of Education and duly sanctioned. When the school was accidentally burned last winter the trustees secured a small building and opened school therein at Eel ground and the trustees inform me that they visited the school twice and found only an attendance of eight or ten and four of these were from outside districts which can be proved by the school trustees if needs be. Elected in his falsehoods states that the trustees at first refused to open the school but the circumstances do not warrant such a statement. Last Christmas day a number of the Eel Ground ratepayers called on the trustees and requested them to open the school but they refused to transact any business on that day. As to the teacher's salary; the trustees accepted the teachers offer and do not know if Mr. Rivers or any other had made other contributions. It is to be hoped that this young Elected chief will attend to his business of skinning eels in his wigwam instead of trying to stir up strife among his neighbors.

CAMP SUSSEX.

Soldiers are Favored with Fine Weather.

1560 MEN UNDER CANVAS

12th Field Battery Returns Full of Words of Praise.

The members of the The Newcastle 12th Field Battery under command of Major Maltby returned from Camp Sussex, Saturday morning. The boys say that they had a delightful time and regretted that they could not remain in camp for a longer period. The lovely weather—for the days were all that could be desired,—the courtesy of the officers, combined with Sussex's lovely maidens and delightful walks contributed to make their visit a very enjoyable one. They were allowed a little more freedom than in former years, and they were not a bit slow in taking advantage of it. The food was A 1, in fact as one soldier remarked, almost better than the bill of fare served up at home. Besides the Newcastle battery there was its rival the Woodstock 10th Field Battery. But as usual our boys were to the fore in general efficiency. There was one Miramichi band presents, the 73rd from Chatham, and they proved a bit of a surprise to the 1560 men in camp. Their playing was regarded as second best, the Fredericton band carrying off the laurels.

The Sussex Record in speaking of the Camp says:—

While fall camps have many disadvantages in the shape of disagreeable nights, the present camp has been favored throughout with excellent weather for drill purposes. There are slightly over 1500 men of all arms under canvas, all the corps present last year being represented.

Several new features of instruction have been introduced, among which is an ambulance corps drill, which is one of the first results of the Boer war.

One pleasing feature of the present camp, which is perhaps, in a certain measure, due to the season at which it is held, is the absence of sick men. The hospital staff have been left with time on their hands in consequence. There can be no doubt that the new water system, which provides pure artesian well water, is also responsible for this improved sanitary condition.

General O'Grady-Healy, commandant of the Canadian militia, arrived in camp on Wednesday and is now engaged in reviewing the men.

On Tuesday evening the officers of the 8th Hussars entertained the different staff officers to dinner, served in their mess tent. Col. Montgomery-Campbell presided and the usual toasts were given and a jolly good time enjoyed by all. The regimental mess this year counts among its treasures a very handsome cut glass and silver fruit dish presented by Col. Campbell upon the receipt of his appointment to command.

Wednesday evening the Col. and officers of the 74th gave a mess dinner in honor of the Transvaal boys of Kings and Westmorland inviting also a number of guests from outside.

The chief guests of the evening were Messrs. Chapman, Creighton and Wainmaker, of Kings, and D. Ferguson, of Westmorland.

A feature of the evening was the displaying of the new Regimental colors of the 74th which had just arrived and are considered as one of the handsomest sets ever brought into the Province. They were made by firm of Hamberger Rogers & Co., of London, and imported by Mr. J. R. McLean, of Sussex.

The Queen's colors and the regimental colors both bear the figures of the 74th in raised gold Roman letters. On the regimental colors is a handsomely worked moose, the head surrounded by a wreath of maple leaves, surrounded by a crown, and bearing on the lower part, below the wreath and motto, "Non quoniam, non paratus."

A beautiful repast was served to all present and a pleasant hour or so spent in giving toasts which called forth eloquent remarks from Col. Baird, Messrs. G. W. Fowler, F. M. Sprout, Col. McCully, J. M. McIntyre, Major T. E. Arnold, Capt. Watt's and others, all of which were heartily applauded. During the repast and replying to toasts the band presented suitable music.

All the guests present left feeling that the 74th Battalion officers are good entertainers and that they had spent a most enjoyable evening.

THE ADVOCATE.

What its Mission is To-Day.

ITS PRESENT CIRCULATION

The People who Read it and Those who Don't.

Over 1700 people are now receiving the Advocate from this office, which means that we have about three thousand readers. A year ago our circulation was little more than a thousand, so there must be some adequate reason for the sudden increase, and there is. It is chiefly due to the fact that we are now placing before the residents of Northumberland County, an up-to-date, reliable and well printed local paper. In our efforts to establish a first class weekly we are meeting with many obstacles, chief among which are old subscribers who refuse to pay up, and who get offended when urged to do so, and the merchants etc. of Newcastle who will not allow us to do their printing. We must say, however, that the support we are receiving from the people of this county has surpassed our expectations, and we now thank those who have stood by us. If our subscription list continues to grow, we hope to, in time enlarge the Advocate to twelve pages, and put in monoline typesetting machines. But this all depends on the amount of support we receive. We intend to fight the battles of the people of this county, and in turn we crave their support, which in most cases amounts to only $1. a year. An essential to every country weekly, is county correspondence. We have been rather unfortunate in this line. We had considerable difficulty in holding regular correspondents. In most cases they prefer to take up their pen only once a month. But in time we hope to overcome this difficulty, and have correspondence from every section of the county every week. There are still a few people who will buy the Advocate only when it contains their names. You must quit this sort of foolishness. It is unworthy of your intelligence. The Advocate is not only fighting your battles, but is giving employment to our young folks, and if your name never gets in it—which by the way is not our fault—you should subscribe, pay for and read it. The Advocate has no answer in contest with unworthy enemies. Its mission is to gather and disseminate the news, using county labor in the process to the end that it may in a measure employ the youth of our county who are prepared for work in the line of journalism. The management of the Advocate has fair conception of the responsibility resting upon it, and is doing the best it can in the midst of many obstacles. It stands ready to correct any and all errors which it may commit, to the end that in its career, some real good may be accomplished. To those who find objection to our methods, we accord them the right to differ, and to as many as choose to occupy ground becoming many men, we will accord a hearing and render an answer; to those who indulge in the attack along lines which are unbecoming, we have learned that silence is golden.

The thousands of people who read the Advocate weekly, we take it, want us to give the news rather than our opinion of some brawler whose methods we despise, and they shall not be disappointed.

LURES FOR CHURCH GOERS.

(London Times.)
It may seem hardly worth while to notice seriously such minor defects of Church accommodation as the shape of seats the provision for kneeling or the arrangement for disposing of hats and wet umbrellas. But such considerations have a certain importance and sometimes act as deterrent to church-going. The possessor of a new and glossy hat fears the result of putting it under his seat, exposed to contact with his own or other people's feet and ladies' dresses. Why cannot hat pegs of an unobtrusive kind be provided in some part of the church to relieve the anxiety of the churchgoer which distracts his attention from the service? A stand for umbrellas either near the door or at the end of each seat is an obvious and inexpensive concession to comfort. Church seats, again might just as well be as comfortable as at an uncomfortable angle; nor is it necessary that the kneeling arrangements should favor only the ones who wish to stand bolt upright. These are little things, but little inconveniences too often repeated assume undue proportions and the desire or habit of church-going cannot always be relied upon to outweigh even minor discomforts. It is good policy for clergy and church wardens to consult as far as possible the comfort and convenience of their congregations.

EMMA MAYFORD

For Whose Sake A Lover
Kills A Rival.

MARRIES A THIRD.

Held Her Lover In Her Arms While Dying.

At seventeen the heart of a maid is mercifully endowed with the power to heal its own wounds, however deep and ragged. It is only hearts grown brittle with age that know how to break.

Emma Mayford is a case in point. She is only seventeen, and she is a happy bride after an experience that would have wrecked her life most likely, if it had been deferred till she was 30 or 40 years old.

The man she loved and was going to marry was shot down before her eyes and died in agony with his head on her bosom.

The man who believed rightly or wrongly, that she had been false to him is on the eve of marching to the gallows.

Yet Emma Mayford has put off her mourning, and married a third man.

CHAPTER 1.

"THE PRETTIEST GIRL IN ALTON."

She had the misfortune to be called the prettiest girl in Alton. Mind, nobody is saying that it was a misfortune to be the prettiest girl in Alton, only a misfortune to be called so—because that kept the fact of her prettiness uppermost in her own mind and everybody else's, and perhaps prevented her from cultivating more important attributes.

All of which suggests this inflexion that its twice as difficult for a pretty girl to be wise as it is for a plain girl, and that plain girls ought to be sorry for pretty girls and be kind to them, and not put on superior airs, but try to help them all they can.

To describe Emma Mayford would just be to compile a catalogue of cherry lips, dimples, sparkling eyes, wavy hair, partridge figure, tiny feet and lots of pouts and blushes. There are not only three or four types of pretty girls—girls who are merely pretty, that is, and all you need to do to get a vivid picture of Emma is to pick out the right catalogue, the one that includes brown hair and eyes.

She lived with her widowed mamma, Mrs. Elizabeth Mayford, in North Alton.

Of course she was accustomed to having young men in love with her or believing themselves in love with her. One of her conquests was George Yahncke, the son of a wagon manufacturer at Kane, Ill.

CHAPTER 2.

LOVE—AND AN ADDER.

Leo Kirwin had known Emma Mayford all his life. That is he had known her from his fifth year for before that she had not been born.

At the age of twenty-two he still from force of habit, looked upon her as a giddy young thing far beneath his dignity to notice.

A couple of months after Yahncke as a first step in the pursuit of his ambition, established himself as Emma Mayford's "steady company," Kirwin awoke quite suddenly to the knowledge that the little girl had become a woman, that all the fellows were crazy about her, and that he, too, had an eye for a pretty face.

Kirwin—serious masterful Leo Kirwin—took possession of her just as if it had all been ordained from the beginning. And so it had been assured her gravely. And when she asked him why he had been such a long time coming to her, he replied that it was just because he had been blind, that was all.

And they were happy. But Yahncke? Poor, vain Yahncke! All his triumph turned to humiliation, all his ambition frozen in the bud, smarting under the supercilious, averted looks that replaced the smiles he had sunned himself in, poor dejected Yahncke felt the birth within him of an adder of resentment, of revenge, and it slept not by night or day.

CHAPTER 3.
THE ADDER COILS.

Pretty Emma Mayford did not mind dragging a few heartbroken swains at her chariot wheels so long as they were humble and subdued.

But George Yahncke was unmanageable. He showed no sense of the fitness of things. He refused to take his medicine like a man, as Emma expressed it. He "squealed" as his slangy companions in misfortune put it.

She met his growing importunities with growing disdain; and at length, alarmed by his violence, pacified her fluttering suburban heart by cutting his acquaintance entirely.

Yahncke had pride enough of a kind to make him suffer in defeat, but he did not have pride enough to stay away from where he was no longer welcome.

One day Emma went to the back porch of her mother's house to feed the canary. She heard a movement in the shrubbery and a short laugh. It was Yahncke, armed with a kodak. As she turned quickly, he snapped it at her. To take snapshots of her became an obsession with him, whether for sentimental reason or to annoy her cannot be told.

Again Mrs. Mayford caught him lurking near the house with his kodak.

"What are you doing here?" she asked.

"What's that to you?" he retorted.

CHAPTER 4.

THE ADDER STRIKES.

Leo Kirwin, working in St. Louis all the week, could be with his sweetheart only on Saturday and Sunday. He was informed of Yahncke's objectionable conduct, and was greatly incensed.

One Saturday evening he and Emma started out for a trolley ride to a summer garden. An hour after their departure Mrs. Mayford, returning homeward from down town alighted from a car at the corner already spoken of.

Two figures were lurking in the shadow of the shadow of the trees. One was Yahncke. The other was his friend Henry Smith.

"What are you doing here?" exclaimed Mrs. Mayford.

"Is that your business?" retorted Yahncke.

"I've a good mind to report you to the police," she said.

Yahncke laughed, and if Mrs. Mayford had detected the meaning of that laugh she would not have stopped at a threat.

Kirwin and Emma left the summer garden at ten o'clock and at 10.20 alighted at the Dickson corner.

Two figures started out toward them. The foremost was Yahncke, a pistol in his hand. His face, in that strong play of light and shade contorted with pentup jealousy and revenge, was like a gargoye. Without a word he fired twice. Kirwin, with a choking cry, spun around on his heels and fell in a heap at Emma Mayford's feet.

At the hospital when they were probing for the bullet in his abdomen, she bent over him and mingled her cries with his. When he died it was with his head pillowed upon her breast.

Well, she was only seventeen, and she was the prettiest girl in Alton, and so Emma Mayford has climbed down from her tragedy throne—all that was months ago, she says—and is now Mrs. Charles E. Card.

Card, it suffices to say, is a St. Louis youth who came here and established a little business and fell in love with the tragedy heroine. And Yahncke is in prison still, doomed to die on the gallows.

A LOVE AFFAIR

Exiles Elias T. Van
Nostrand

25 YEARS A HERMIT.

Why he Left His Childhood Home, a Mystery.

Kingston, N. Y. Sept. 20
FRANK D. VAN NOSTRAND, of this city, forty-eight years of age, for twenty-five years has chosen the life of a hermit. He is the youngest child of Elias T. Van Nostrand, a contractor who died twenty-seven years ago, leaving over $100,000. The money was divided as well as directed, among his four children, and Frank got his share, amounting to nearly $30,000.

At the time the Van Nostrands were living in the big Fair street house, one of the most imposing dwellings in the city. The children continued to live there after their father's death until they married, and only Frank remained.

Old residents say that one day, not long after the last of his brothers had married, Frank was seen moving his personal effects into the little barn in the alley.

Van Nostrand is well educated. For years he has not been seen on the street in daytime and there are only a few who know the man. He spends his days in bed and can never be seen before 5 o'clock in the evening. After that hour he is sometimes "at home" to a select circle of friends. Two or three times a week, after the city is asleep, Van Nostrand walks about the streets a couple of hours. He enjoys the best of health.

Through his midnight perambulations he is well-known to the policemen and they are among his closest friends. When off duty they occasionally call on the hermit.

Some of the old people remember a beautiful New York girl who came to spend her summers in the mountains back of Kingston.

Van Nostrand owned the smartest horses in the city and he was often seen driving with this beautiful girl.

He never talked about the girl and his friends believed that he regarded her name as too sacred to be spoken. For two summers this went on. Then the girl went back to New York.

The next spring Frank Van Nostrand moved to the little barn.

If You are Weary, Wornout,
Ailing or Sick, UsePAINE'S CELERY
COMPOUND.PRESCRIBED EVERYWHERE
BY THE ABLEST PHYSICIANS.

The popularity of Paine's Celery Compound is wide and extended; its users are found in every class of society.

The life-giving powers and virtues of Paine's Celery compound are lauded by the titled, the noble, the wealthy as well as by the humble sons and daughters of toil. It has saved lives of all conditions of people after the failures of honest and worthy physicians.

Paine's Celery Compound is more talked of, discussed, prescribed and inquired into, than any other known remedy, and no other medicine ever had such strong and convincing testimonials.

At this time when men and women have been ushered into a season of rapid and dangerous changes, they incur fearful risks if such troubles as rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney and liver complaints, stomachic derangements and blood diseases are neglected. The use of Paine's Celery Compound will quickly regulate the nerves, cleanse the blood, banish sleeplessness, neuralgia and Rheumatism and put the liver and kidneys in perfect working condition.

Paine's Celery Compound is not a patent medicine; it is a great physician's prescription fully recognized by our most eminent doctors in the treatment of disease. A trial of one bottle will convince every sufferer.

A SEASON'S STYLE

Fashion's Vagaries are Marked this Year.

THE LATEST FROM PARIS.

Tendency to Turn Back to the Exclusive Patterns

Fashion's vagaries and the ups and downs of fancy are as marked lingerie as in the frocks themselves. There is always a close following of the season's modes.

Just now the newest idea for skirts and drawers—two garments that require careful fitting if the lines of the figure are studied—are known as the "lobe," a name given on account of the many sections into which they are cut and the object of which is to insure a perfect fit. Both the skirts and drawers are plain in the back, fastened with buttons, preventing all fullness.

The lobe gives the required breadth over the hips and back, and so carefully must these be cut and graduated that each garment should be especially cut for the wearer to insure success.

At the bottom of the skirts a deep-flare ruffle is inserted; the drawers are finished either with a deep ruffle or beading and tiny ruffle, the effect of the latter being that they are tied in. When these are trimmed with a very open embroidery, which is an exact copy of the old-fashioned open needlework so much used in the sixties, the quaintness is complete, and by the way, this very needlework is the latest fad, says Vogue.

It is made in Gaul, France, and so much sought that it is very difficult to procure. One of the most effective patterns is the holly design—the berries are big embroidered holes and the sprays of leaves the same. When you consider that this is on the web-like lawn you can imagine how exquisite the effect would be.

There is a general tendency this season to turn backward for the most exclusive patterns. Take, for instance, a lovely fine needle-work design of Roman pattern of the arrow of Cupid and torch of Hymen, as it has very appropriately been called. Then there is the dainty, old-fashioned strawberry pattern, and again, the wheat design, all lending their share to creating a new field in embroidery or reviving the old ones.

Since the recent summer's "mark downs" of tawdry coarse lace it comes like a fresh cool breeze sweeping away the last remnants of stale ideas worn threadbare. The very core of smartness during the coming season will be carried out in these embroideries in preference to lace. Of course, there will be pretty laces as well, but they are not so altogether new, and the place where such work as I have described is to be found will keep it exclusive.

Among the new laces a holly design in point de Paris pretty, and is not too expensive but effective. Appliques are not to be so much used. The little sprigs of hand embroidery will always remain in favor for dainty simplicity, and when combined with a trimming of real Valenciennes lace there is nothing prettier.

HAD CATARRH SINCE CHILDHOOD
BUT CATARRHOZONE CURED HIM.

Utric Bessant, of Sweetburg, Que., says: "Since childhood I have been afflicted with Catarrh of the throat and nose and never knew what relief meant till I tried Catarrhozone. Two bottles completely cured me and I have not one single symptom of Catarrh now. I can heartily recommend Catarrhozone for Catarrh, and would advise all sufferers to get an outfit at once and be cured as I was. Catarrh-o-zone is sold by all druggists. In November, 1895, the insurance premiums payable by the members were put upon a sliding scale, and since that time the surplus in the insurance fund has been rapidly increasing, and today it is over $825,000, all of which is invested in gilt-edge securities in the Dominion of Canada, to which the operations of the society are confined. The membership is upward of 33,000 distributed in every province of the Dominion, and is growing unprecedentedly. The society issues insurance policies for $500, $1000, $1500 and $2000, at the following rates, the fees being paid monthly in advance.

Between	On	On	On
Age of	$500	$1000	$1500
18 to 25	35c	60c	90c
25 to 30	40c	55c	85c
30 to 35	45c	70c	1.05
35 to 40	50c	85c	1.25
40 to 45	55c	1.00	1.50

Not a dollar of the moneys collected for the expenses of management. Over two million dollars have been paid to members and their dependents since the organization of the society.

The Sick and Funeral Benefit Branch is a very popular department, and upwards of 16,000 of the members of the society are participating in this feature of the order. The benefits are $3 per week for the first two weeks of illness, and $5 per week for the succeeding ten weeks, and $50 during any year, besides a funeral benefit of $30. The fees, payable monthly in advance, are as follows:

Between 18 and 25 years	25c.
25 and 30 years	30c.
30 and 35 years	35c.
35 and 40 years	40c.
40 and 45 years	45c.

During the year 1898 over $43,000 was paid out in sick and funeral benefits, and $143,000 in death benefits. All physically and morally qualified males between 18 and 45 years of age, who are not debarted on account of their occupation, are accepted for membership.

Middleton, N. S.

DEAR SIR,—Please pardon my delay in answering yours of weeks ago. Yes, I have no hesitation in recommending your Invigorating Syrup.

During the fall and winter of '96 and '97 I was greatly distressed with indigestion. I tried several remedies, each of which gave me no relief. I was advised to try your Invigorating Syrup, which I readily did, and have felt grateful ever since to the one who gave me such good advice. The very first dose helped me, and before half of the first bottle was used I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the disease since. I have taken occasion to recommend your medicine publicly upon several occasions, and heartily do so now. You are at liberty to use this in any way you please.

GHOSTS ON BOARD

Helps Captain to Steer His Ship.

CASE OF CAPT. GROH.

Who says He Navigates by the Advice of Spirits.

Chicago, Sept. 21.

"The Ghost Master" is what Louis Groh's fellow tug captains call him. He says he communes at all times with the spirits of shipwrecked mariners, his comrades of bygone years.

He believes what they tell him—or what he thinks they tell him—and navigates the river and lake in a vision of supernatural sights and sounds, yet as skilfully as the most practical and sceptical skipper in these waters.

For nearly thirty years he has commanded tugs on the Chicago River, and few of his comrades can show a cleaner sheet in the matter of accidents.

They come to him in the pilot-house, they stalk the deck, they perch on the windward rail when the seas are running high. They wear the clothes they wore in life and address him in the same old voices. And he, though he knows they are dead men, has no fear—not even when they exercise the blood-curdling accomplishment of writing messages to him in characters of fire which have no more solid background than the air.

He is confident that some day he will find the steamer Chicora, which disappeared in 1895 between Milwaukee and St. Joseph, leaving only a few bits of floating wreckage to tell the tale. The ghost of John Ericson, the fireman of a tug which blew up in the river a year later, has promised to be his guide. This is Capt. Groh's account of the conversation.

"I'm a-goin to find the Chicora for you," he said.

"How'll I know?" I asked.

"Well, I'm coming to see you again and locate it on paper. But if you pass over the spot before that I'll strike you with a chill and throw you to the floor of the pilot-house so you'll know it's the place."

"We talked a bit longer and then he said Capt. John Ferguson wanted to talk to me, so he went away. That was at a trumpet scence, and I expect to go to another soon and hear from him again."

Capt. Groh relates that prior to this interview—soon after Ericson was killed, in fact—his shade appeared to Groh's daughter with the message:

"My body is in the Air Line slip and will float if a steamer's wheel churns up the water."

Capt. Groh says that he backed his tug into the slip and churned

A Great Reputation.

HAS BEEN ACHIEVED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

Not Only in Canada, But in Every Civilized Country Throughout the World—Merit Alone Has Given This Medicine Its Great Prominence Over Competitors Everywhere.

The reputation achieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills not only in Canada, but throughout the world, rests upon a very solid basis, which may be summed up in two words—sterling merit. The enterprise has had occasion to investigate a number of cures effected by this medicine, and knows that in some instances at least these cures were wrought after other medicines had failed even to give relief. Recently another cure came under our notice that cannot fail to increase the popularity of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the locality in which it occurred, and as we can vouch for the facts, it may well bring hope to sufferers elsewhere.

Mr. Walter H. Johnson is one of the best known residents of the northern section of Queen's county. He resides in the town of Caledonia, where he keeps a hotel, and also runs a stage that carries passengers and mail between that town and Liverpool, a distance of some thirty miles. Mr. Johnson was in Bridgewater recently, on which occasion he gave a reporter of this paper the following facts: About three years ago he was taken very ill. He had the best of medical attendance, but made very little progress towards recovery, and the doctor told him there was very little hope that he would be able to return to his former work. The trouble appeared to have located itself in his kidneys, and for eight weeks or more he was confined to bed. He suffered greatly from constant pains in the back, his appetite became impaired, and his constitution generally appeared to be shattered. At this juncture he decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and got a half dozen boxes. In the course of a couple of weeks he noticed an improvement in his condition and he continued the use of the pills until he had taken some ten or twelve boxes, when he not only felt that his cure was complete, but also felt that in all respects his health was better than it had been for years. Since that time he has been continually driving his coach between Caledonia and Liverpool, and has not had the slightest return of the trouble notwithstanding that he has to face at times very inclement weather, that might well bring on a return of the trouble had not his system been so strongly fortified against it through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

If the blood is pure and wholesome disease cannot exist. The reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure so many forms of disease is that they act directly upon the blood and nerves, thus reaching the root of the trouble. Other medicines act only upon the symptoms of the trouble, and that is the reason the trouble always returns when you cease these medicines. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make permanent cures in kidney troubles, rheumatism, erysipelas, anaemia and kindred diseases. But be sure you get the genuine which bear the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People on the wrapper around every box.

up the water and that, sure enough, John Ericson's body came up as had been revealed.

The 'Ghost Master' reports that Ed Stines, skipper of the ill-fated Chicora, is also trying to talk to him. He explains:

"I am a little hard of hearing and most of the spirits talk in whispers, so I have to hear through mediums sometimes. Ed and six of his crew frequently call upon a North Side medium and they keep asking for me, and I intend to go soon and learn the whole story of the Chicora's last voyage."

"I know it is not between here and St. Joe, for I have crossed three times since I saw John, and he has not stricken me with a chill."

"How do all those men appear? Why, just as they did in life. Just the other day I was coming up the river and as I passed the Goodrich wharf there was old Capt. Gilman standing there natural as life directing affairs."

"Dave Cockran was there, too. Now Gilman has been dead since last winter and Dave has been superintendent in his place, yet there was the old man, as real as ever."

"When I see a man with my eyes and hear him with my ears why should I doubt he is there? I stood and watched Gilman until we were through Rush street bridge."

Capt. Groh has never seen the ghost of a ship, such as the ice-clad wrath of the Chicora described by some of his own comrades, and the spectre Maine reported by New England fishermen after the blowing up of the warship.

He sees nothing unbelievable in such stories, but prefers the phrase 'spirit ship' to 'spirit of a ship', explaining that while a ship, being material, has no spirits, the spirits of its crew might create a phantom ship.

A CAPITAL PLAN

Devised by Clever Brooklyn Girls.

GIRL OR CIGARETTE.

Fateful Alternative Placed Before Brooklyn Young Men.

When the young women of Brooklyn undertake a reform they do it with a vengeance.

Reformers the country over will do well to emulate the vigor of the forty pretty members of the newly formed Anti-Cigarette League, who would never, they say, adopt any measure so passive as the "prayer chain" that is destined to run President McKinley 'out of office' but who are determined to stamp out the evil they are banded against with their own determined little feet.

There is no loophole, thanks to the energy of these young women, through which the cigarette smoker of Brooklyn Heights may escape. Unless he wishes to become a hermit, lonesomely absorbing nicotine in his own garret, scorned and unsought, he may as well renounce his comfortable little vice now as later and make up his mind that the young ladies who have taken the matter in hand know better what is good for him than he does himself. That, at least, is the spirit of docility that Miss Augusta Hallen and her associates are striving to inculcate.

Miss Hallen, whose home is at No. 307 Clinton street, is President of the new league. She was also organizer. She is an active young woman, with the born reformer's keen eye for detecting abuses, wrongs and evil practices. It was no surprise, therefore, to her friends when she suggested not long ago that the object point for their combined energies during the coming winter ought to be cigarette smoking.

"I believe," said Miss Hallen, firmly, "that if we girls do not work together the thing cannot be stopped. And then we shall have the responsibility of these boys' health on our conscience."

Women are the conscience of the race, anyhow.

Whereupon the energetic young woman proposed a scheme that would amount to a social boycott of the young men who did not do as they were bid—which young men usually do, be it observed.

"Isn't that rather—darling?" asked one girl whose scheme of living includes an attentive escort at her elbow. Suppose they let us alone and smoked as much as they liked?"

"But they can't," promptly responded the master mind. "There's nobody else on the Heights. We're all the girls there are." Oh, yes, were safe.

Whereupon an organization meeting was planned to decide the ways and means of the boycott, and the young women who felt that the social and moral future of Brooklyn rested in their hands complacently went to spread the news abroad.

"An excellent thing," declared all the fathers and mothers when they heard of it. "You girls couldn't be better employed. Count on our help."

"Most commendable," echoed the ministers and school teachers. The conspiracy against the cigarette grew almost hourly.

Meanwhile the young men who were the victims became extremely alarmed and smoked as hard as they could, because, they didn't know how soon they might have to stop. Pipes were to be allowed, they heard but a pipe would never take the place of cigarettes. What did girls know about such things, any way? Why, a pipe, now—a pipe has to be filled as well as lighted, don't you know?

Last week the first important meeting was held, the league organized and the rules and plan of action formulated. And the next day the news was all over Brooklyn Heights. Work began immediately, and although there is a good deal of muttering and protest on the part of the cigarette smokers, the league members are confident that their victory is only a question of time. President Hallen, speaking of the league, said:

"Young men do not seem to appreciate the ill effects of cigarettes, and so we have decided to teach them to use some other form of tobacco that is less injurious. A number of the young men have offered to help us and we shall try to show our appreciation of their help to such an extent those who now laugh will be only too glad to follow in their footsteps."

"At present some of our best friends are never to be seen without cigarettes in their mouths or sticking between their fingers, discolored by nicotine. Even if there was not a thought of hygiene in the matter, the practice is disgusting and we are going to do our best to stop it. And the young men? They are slow to discuss the matter, but their manly brows are corrugated with an unusual stress of thoughtfulness."

One young man prominent in Brooklyn society, speaking for the others, said: "Well, it only means that we have got to give up the cigarettes or the girls, and it is the cigarette, I guess, that gets the throw down."

"We are thinking, however, of starting a league for the suppression of mixed chocolates and ice-cream soda."

And the other men in Brooklyn are watching the result.

DOUGLASTOWN

The boys returned home from Sussex Saturday and are looking fine after their trip.

Mrs. Bearden was in Nelscn for a few days visiting friends.

Miss Tessie O'Donnell and Mr. Alex. McDonald were united in marriage by the Rev. P. W. Dixon, Monday the 17th.

Mr. George Henderson who has been in Vancouver, B. C. for the past seven months returned home Tuesday.

Mr. James Craig and Miss Elizabeth A'hearn were united in marriage by Rev. Henry T. Joyner, Chatham, Sept. 19th.

Miss Ronan of Chatham was in town for a few days the guest of Miss Meehan.

Mrs. J. D. Creaghan of Newcastle and Mrs. G. Hilderbrand of Chatham were in town Thursday.

Work is pretty lively now as Mr. Hutchinson has three ships and one schooner leading at his wharf.

Miss Bertie Johnston has gone to Boston to spend the winter months.

Mr. Will McLaughlin returned from St. John, Wednesday.

REDBANK.

The government net has started to catch the salmon for the breeding house. The crew on the net on the northwest is composed of: William Mullin, Allan Nolan, Joseph Ferguson and Henry Hubbard. On the Little southwest, William Blackmore and Patrick Gillis. William Sheasgreen, foreman. They will likely get a good supply of salmon this fall for they are very plentiful.

The poachers are at work and the guardians are kept pretty busy. Robert Matchet stole a march on some of them the other night and captured a few nets.

Mr. Thomas Johnston's foreman, William Gillis started to the woods last Monday with three teams and thirty men.

Messrs Brophy and Ryne of Blackville passed here last week for the little Seavog to operate on E. Hutchinson's grounds with two teams and 10 or 12 men.

Mrs. Bennett and Miss Minnie O'Brien, Halifax are visiting Rev. Father Duffy.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Russell were visiting Mr. Thomas Johnston last Sunday. A very nice concert and tea took place at Mr. Benjamin Hubbard's last Monday.

Mr. John Sullivan paid a visit to the St. John Exhibition.

Mr. D. Sullivan is going to the Exhibition in P. E. Island to select some fine horses.

A party of sports passed through here last Sunday in search of big game.

CARAQUET.

The effects of the recent storm still remains and a gloom has been cast over the community by the loss of so many of Caraque's best fishermen. Besides those whose bodies were recovered there are few boats unaccounted for which contain about fifteen men, making a total of 21 fishermen from this part lost in that gale. All hope of the missing vessels being still afloat has been given up. The men were nearly all married and in some cases the fathers of large families and much privation will be felt by the survivors.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. L. Young are moving to Sydney, C.B. where Mr. Young will establish in business. Their many friends will be sorry to see them go but trust Mr. Young will meet with the success he merits.

Mrs. John Young was visiting him last week.

The catch of herring last Friday night amounted to about two thousand barrels. Many of the boats made big catches and they are prime fish.

BATHURST.

The Bathurst and Beresford Agricultural Society held its annual exhibition at the Model Farm, Bathurst Village, yesterday. There were many exhibits and the show was a good one and attracted a large attendance.

The bull and running gear of the wrecked barque Gilda M. were sold yesterday. Mr. James Gammon, of this place, purchased the hull for $405.

The output of the Bathurst cheese factory this season will be about twenty-seven tons, against eight tons last year and four the year before.

A very quiet marriage took place at the residence of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sutherland, yesterday morning when Miss Inez Sutherland was united in marriage to Mr. Oscar Fenwick recently of Sussex but now of Bathurst. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Goldsmith. The happy couple left by the Maritime Express for Boston on a short wedding trip. The bride was the recipient of many useful and costly presents among which was a handsome dinner set from the members and choir of the Methodist church of which she was a member and organist for some time. The Advocate joins in wishing them a happy and prosperous life.

The new court house is progressing rapidly and will be a massive building and a credit to the county when completed. Mr. Samuel Bishop of Bathurst has the contract for the building.

Messrs. Kent & Co. are erecting a brick block and are rushing it so that they will be able to move in before winter sets in. It will be a great improvement to Bathurst.

BOIESTOWN

Messrs. Richards and Lynch have sent several crews of men to the woods this week. A heavy cut is expected this winter on the Miramichi waters.

Richards & Gunter's mill shut down for the season, and about all the men have gone to the woods. Some little repairs are being put upon the mill preparatory to closing up for the season.

Messrs. Simmons are progressing favorably with the repairs which are being put upon Burnt Land brook bridge. Robert Tay, the foreman, is assisted by a crew from this village.

Fred. W. McCloskey left on Thursday for Montreal to take up freshman work in the applied science department of McGill university.

The work on the Stanley branch railway from Cross Creek to Stanley village is progressing favorably under manager Dr. Moore and Superintendent James Dennison. The track is now about in readiness for the laying of rails, which have partly arrived. Trackmaster Johnson of the Canadian Eastern extension, is putting in the necessary switch connection at Cross Creek. Some time ago an order was given the Canada Eastern railway shops at Gibson for two flat cars to be used in construction of the road. Already one is in service. The regular locomotive will shortly be on the spot.

Ernest Clowaher, who has spent the past year in Wisconsin, is home on a visit to his parents. Mrs. and Miss Atkinson of Wisconsin are visiting parents at Ludlow. Miss Harriet Dudley and Miss Georgie Clowaher, who have been spending some weeks with their parents, left for Lewiston, Maine, and Lowell, Mass., respectively on Monday.

On Saturday Dr. W. H. Irvine, resident physician, performed a successful surgical operation upon George Long for mastoid abscess. The patient is doing as well as can be expected.

W. H. Gunter of the William Richards Co., Ltd. is spending some days on the company's grounds, on the Dunganov and Renous rivers.

HALCOMBE

In looking over your paper I have not noticed any Halcomb notes, so I thought I would take up my pen and send you a few lines.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon and family left here on Monday for Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton have moved into Mr. Gordon's late house, having purchased the property.

Mr. Keyhoe and Mr. Brophy have started lumbering on the little Seavog.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. James Foran is recovering from her illness.

Mr. Frederick Hamilton is very ill.

Mr. Frederick Chambers is erecting a new house at Holmes Crossing.

Mrs. P. Russell and Mrs. J. Forsythe of Whitneyville were the guests of Mrs. Wm. Johnston on Thursday last.

We are glad to hear that a new Sunday School has been opened in our district.

Mrs. William Johnston and baby and Miss Laura Estey were the guests of Mrs. Edward Stewart on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Matthews are rejoicing over the arrival of a young daughter.

Mrs. Pete Holmes and Miss Laura Sherard spent Sunday with Mrs. John Hamilton.

Mr. Miles McAllister who has been visiting friends here for some time has left for Wisconsin. Some of our young folks are very much affected over his departure.

We are sorry to learn that Miss Laura Estey who has been spending the summer with Mrs. William Johnston leaves shortly for Boston.

Miss D. Colter of Douglastown and Miss Josie Clouston were the guests of Miss Johnson on Saturday.

Miss Janie Tozer is very ill with measles.

BLISSFIELD.

The apple crop is especially good this season. Harvesting is about ended and threshing has begun.

On Wednesday last a Candy Party was held in the Salem Hall. The young folk had a very pleasant time and all left well satisfied with their evening's fun.

Dr. Longenecker, of New York, has again visited this vicinity, in search of "big game." He arrived on Saturday Sept. 15th, spent Sunday at Mr. Jas. Fowler's and on Monday morning started for a two weeks cruise to Muzzers Lake, with Frank Bartlett as guide and Jack. Gilks as cook. Mrs. D. Bamford and Mrs. Geo. Green expect to start for Houlton Me. on Monday to make a short visit among friends.

A Basket Social will be held in Blissfield Hall on Thursday next, proceeds to go toward repairing the hall.

Mr. Freeman McDonald of Millerton spent Sunday last in this place.

Miss Woodworth of Marysville is visiting her friend Miss Smith.

A BAD CASE OF ASTHMA.

Mrs. George Budden, Putnamville, Ont., says:—"I feel it my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as I had the Asthma very bad, could get nothing to do me any good. A friend of mine persuaded me to try this remedy, as he had tried it and it proved successful. I tried it and it cured me. I am thankful today to say that I am a well woman through the use of this remedy. I keep it in the house all the time, and would not be without it."

THE PUBLIC AS JUDGES.

[Baltimore Sun.] "If the coal operators are convinced that the demands of their employees are unreasonable, it would not hurt their cause to present their side of the case to an impartial board of arbitration. The public would then have the opportunity to judge of the merits of the dispute."

KIDNEY DISEASE AND BACKACHE.

Mr. Patrick J. McLaughlin, Beaufort, Que., states:—"I was troubled with kidney disease and dyspepsia for 20 years and have been that bad I could not sleep at nights and suffered terrible agony. I tried all sorts of medicines but got no relief until I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They made a new man of me and the old troubles seem to be driven out of my system." One pill a dose. 25 cents a box.

BRAVE WORDS, THESE.

[Galveston News.] "It is a time for courage of the highest order: it is time when men and women show the stuff that is in them, and we can make no loftier acknowledgment of the material sympathy which the world is extending to us than to answer back that after we shall have buried our dead destitute we will bravely undertake the vast work of restoration and recuperation which lies before us in a manner which shall convince the world that we have tried to overcome misfortune and rebuild our homes."

DIAMOND DYES

Will Save Money for Every Home in Canada.

When times are hard and dollars scarce, the smart and bright women of our country find that the Diamond Dyes are important helps in economizing. By the use of Diamond Dyes the husband, mother and children can be well and stylishly dressed, although nearly all the clothing may be old material dyed over.

Diamond Dyes make such lasting and beautiful colors that goods dyed with them cannot be told from new. Any one can use them, as the directions are so plain and simple that no skill is needed. The colors of Diamond Dyes never grow dim; they never fade or wash out. In order to secure the best results in home dyeing, every woman should see that her dealer or merchant gives her the "Diamond Dyes" as other package dyes are only poor imitations.

THEY SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.

PICTON, Feb. 17.—This is to certify that I have used Polson's Nerviline from Rheumatism, and have found it a valuable remedy for all internal pain, and would greatly recommend it to the public.—N. T. KINGSLEY.

LEEDS COUNTY, Jan. 9.—We are not in the habit of puffing patent medicines, but we cannot withhold our testimony as to great value of Nerviline as a remedy for pain. We have pleasure in recommending it as a never-failing remedy.—REV. H. J. ALLEN, BENJ. DILLON, and many others. Sold by druggists.

THE WONDERFUL JAPANESE

(New York World.) Of all the marvellous aspects of the allied expedition the most remarkable is that the palm of military supremacy should by common consent and without question have been awarded to Japan. The name of the Japanese General Fukushima is the one name of an evidently great commander developed by the expedition, and the Japanese movements were executed with precision and intelligence, their staff corps were all efficient, they took no part in the looting of Tientsin; an equal number of Moltke's Germans could not have a better account of themselves.

LOVE FINDS A WAY.

BY JEANNETTE H. WALWORTH.

Copyright, 1899, by Jeannette H. Walworth.

"Miss Malvina especially, doubtless," said Clarence, laughing gayly. "Shall I secure berths for Wednesday's boat for you?"

"If you would."

A little while later she stood in a window watching him cross the wide piazza upon which her apartment fronted. She had never found him so handsome nor so lovable. She turned toward Miss Malvina, who was recklessly emptying the entire contents of the writing table into a pillbox.

"He is very handsome."

"Who? Tom?"

"No; Clarence."

"Yes; he is good looking enough. But, Olivia—"

"He has a wife, you dear old simpleton! Let that suffice to allay your fears. But, Miss Malvina, all this has set me to wondering about myself. Am I, after all, just a commonplace, changeable creature who never will know her own mind? What made me think myself so dreadfully in love with Clarence Westover a year or two ago? And now I know my heart will break if anything happens to Tom."

"Oh, I don't know! Clarence was worldlywise and shrewd, and you never had been courted before. His masterful ways and strong will dazzled you. My dear, splendid Tom treated you as if you were a queen. He abased himself before you, and so you exalted yourself unduly."

Ollie flashed a bright smile at her, and, coming over to the trunk into which things were being pitched as if the steamer were waiting for that particular piece of baggage, she put both hands on the thin spinster shoulders.

"Malvina Spillman, stand still while I whisper a great truth into your ears."

"Well?"

"You are the wisest woman in the world. I am so much obliged to you for explaining me to myself. I hate to be inconsistent. After all, Tom is to blame for everything. He shouldn't have been so meek."

Miss Malvina stared, called her a "ridiculous child" and resumed her packing.

CHAPTER XX.
CONCLUSION.

The parlor of the boarding house which Tom called home, in Kansas City, held fast by the traditions of its class. It was preternaturally stuffy, with its woolly furnishings and superfluity of cheap bric-a-brac, and set about with all sorts of traps for the unwary groping in its darkness fresh from the sunlit world outside.

Miss Malvina and Ollie groped their way toward a distant sofa to await the fate of a card just sent up to Mr. Thomas Broxton. The card bore a simple name, that of Miss Malvina Spillman. Ollie was mapping out the campaign.

"You will see him alone, Miss Malvina, and if he looks very dreadful, as if he would never get well, you know, then I shall go in to see him and will be very nice to him. But, remember, you are not to say one word about me until—unless he asks very—affectionately about me. Of course he won't do that. A sob floated out on the woolly air. "He's forgotten my very name by this time."

"You ridiculous child!" said Miss Malvina, not quite as scornfully as she would once have said it, for Tom had certainly acted "queerly" since Clarence Westover had stepped out of his path. And perhaps—who knew?—he had fallen in love with another woman. The best of men were kittle kattle. Then she was politely requested to step up stairs into Mr. Broxton's room, and Ollie was left alone in the dark to count the moments—and her own heart beats.

"Well," said Miss Malvina, releasing herself, with a laugh, from Tom's ardent embrace, "you are a fraud! Did you get all that put into the paper on purpose to scare two women out of their wits, Tom? Not that I'm sorry to have my foreign trip cut in two, but

Trouble in The Stomach

Which Doctors Failed to Remove, Cured by Less Than Two Boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The experience of Mr. Blackwell is similar to that of many sufferers with chronic indigestion. Stomach medicines will seldom really cure indigestion. The kidneys and liver must be set right, and the bowels made regular and active.

Mr. Joseph Blackwell, Holmesville, Ont., says:—"I derived more benefit from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills than from any other medicine I ever took, and can highly recommend them for stomach troubles. I was in a terrible state and could hardly work at my trade. I tried most every kind of medicine and doctors, until I was tired doctoring, and before I used one box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I could see that they were helping me, and after taking a box and a half, found that I was cured."

Nearly every family on the continent has heard of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They have effected a cure in a dozen cases at all dealers, or Edman, Bates and Co., Toronto.

we certainly did leave Nice with a rush. I'm sure half my things are at that hotel yet."

"We?" Tom echoed, with a little catch in his voice. "We?" he repeated, with another catch in his voice.

"Certainly. You don't suppose I was going to leave that poor child on the other side of the water all by herself while I came here to look after you! Have you really been laid up at all, Tom? You look so—so splendid—and, my, what a lot of lovely flowers! I suppose now, Tom, you are a great beau. Perhaps you are engaged to somebody. But about your accident first."

He laughed down into her eager face. "Several weeks ago I had a pretty close call, but I am able to attend to

"You are the wisest woman in the world," business now, as you see. I saw by the Mandeville paper that Mr. Clarence Westover was expected home soon with his bride."

"Yes; he crossed with me. She is the sweetest little thing."

Tom's brows contracted gloomily. It was scarcely worth while for Miss Malvina to come there to sing Olivia's praises to him at this late date.

Miss Malvina flit shot another arrow.

"And he is just as much in love with his wife as any sensible man need to be."

"Doubtless. But tell me about yourself. Cough all gone?"

"Oh, I'm all right! I have forgotten I ever had a cough."

Her heart was sinking like lead in her faithful bosom. She was under a sworp obligation to Ollie not to be the one to introduce her name into the conversation.

"I got up and walked to a window that looked out upon one of those dismal town views where wet clothes flapping in the wind excluded every other feature of the landscape. What right had he to question Miss Malvina as to the welfare of Clarence Westover's wife. He stood with his broad back turned toward Miss Malvina until his quick ear caught an unmistakable sob. He turned and came back to her, his face full of solicitude.

"My dear old friend! Why, Miss Malvina, tell me what troubles you. Can't you trust me, the last of the Broxtons, as entirely as you used to trust my forbears?"

Miss Malvina was in total eclipse behind a very large pocket handkerchief. Tom, bending his head low, could catch but one word, fractured by sobs, "Po-or!"

"Poor! What, and you did not let me know? Now, do you call that being a friend? Why, haven't you heard what a famously rich man my invention has made of me? Come, now, dear old friend! How happy it will make me to become your banker! Who is there but you to share my good fortune?"

Miss Malvina emerged into view with eyes full of perplexity and astonishment.

"Thomas Broxton, what are you talking about?"

"Didn't you say you were poor, and wasn't that what you were—were?"

"Blubbering about? Well, upon my word and honor! Yes, I did say poor, but I wasn't talking about myself. Ollie—she would never let me lack for anything. She is as good as an own daughter to me."

"She?"

"Mm!"

"I suppose you mean Olivia by she?"

"Thank goodness, at last!"

She looked at him radiantly and pocketed her big handkerchief with a triumphant flourish. Tom looked perplexed in his turn.

"Thank goodness for what?"

"You will bear me witness, Tom, you did it—I didn't."

"I'll bear you witness to anything," said Tom, with a great laugh. "If you'll only be a little more lucid."

Ollie said I wasn't on any terms to bring her name into the conversation unless you mentioned it first, and I began to think you never would do it."

A cloud settled on Tom's bright face.

"But why—why should we not mention her name? Does she suppose that I am going through life with bayonet set to run amuck of any man or woman who mentions Clarence Westover's wife in my presence? I have accepted the inevitable."

"Oh, my! Well, I just don't care—I just must—I am dying to—I'm going to!"

While Miss Malvina held this spasmodic colloquy with conscience in audible jerks Tom watched her anxiously. Was "Mother" Spillman's "queerness" going to descend upon her daughter?

"Tom, dear, if anything pleasanter than the 'inevitable' should be offered for your acceptance, would you embrace it?"

He knitted his brows comically. "How very mysterious you are, Miss Vinie!"

"Wouldn't you—don't you know Ollie is not Clarence Westover's wife? Don't you know she's just been daff ever since she heard you were hurt?"

He turned very pale, but seated himself by her side before making any sort of reply. He had perfect control of himself when he answered:

"No; I had not heard anything, You see, I have been very much cut off from my old acquaintances out here. Where—is she, then? You said you did not leave her on the other side of the water."

"She's down stairs."

"Down stairs?" He bounded to his feet, then stopped irresolutely.

Miss Malvina laughed fretfully and gave him a little shove.

"Mercy on me! What between you and Olivia I feel as if I was trying to work two mechanical toys with all their machinery out of order. It's a jerk forward and a jerk backward. Please go down stairs, Tom, and have it all out with Ollie one way or the other. Take my word for it, she loves you dearly."

And there were no more backward jerks on his part to complain of. When he entered the dark, stuffy parlor, he could scarcely discern the slim figure seated in its farthest corner. He still limped slightly from his accident, but his progress was reasonably rapid.

"Ollie!" He stretched out his hands eagerly. "My little friend! Why, I thought you were on the other side of the ocean!"

Her hands were in his, and she was looking up at him with a light in her eyes that fairly illuminated the obscurity for him.

"And I thought you were in a sick-bed with broken legs and things, and I expected to kneel down by your bedside and whisper all sorts of contrite and comforting things into your poor ears, and here you are strong and well and bigger than ever!"

"I am very sorry," said Tom meekly, and then they both laughed. Still holding her hands in his, he drew her to a sofa by a window.

"So am I," said Ollie, catching her breath as one does when about to take a daring plunge. "For it makes it harder for me to say what I have come all the way back from Nice to say. But perhaps you don't want me to say anything at all."

"The very sound of your dear voice brings healing with it, Ollie."

"Then—then—oh, Tom, it's perfectly horrid of you to make me say it! But I deserve some sort of punishment. Did you think I asked you to take me—just because I was sorry for you? Did not you know I—I love you?"

"I don't know, Tom, I've always loved you? No. You poor dear, how could you when I only found it out myself that day after you got up and went from me without once looking back? You see, Tom, you treated me too well at first. But—if you love me, Tom, it will all come right at last. I said 'No' to you once when I did not know my own mind, and you said 'No' to me when you wanted to punish me for being such a frivolous weathercock. "The very sound of your dear voice brings healing with it, Ollie."

"Then—then—oh, Tom, it's perfectly horrid of you to make me say it! But I deserve some sort of punishment. Did you think I asked you to take me—just because I was sorry for you? Did not you know I—I love you?"

"I don't know, Tom, I've always loved you? No. You poor dear, how could you when I only found it out myself that day after you got up and went from me without once looking back? You see, Tom, you treated me too well at first. But—if you love me, Tom, it will all come right at last. I said 'No' to you once when I did not know my own mind, and you said 'No' to me when you wanted to punish me for being such a frivolous weathercock. I did a silly thing, Tom, and you did—a cruel one. But all the world knows, Tom, that two negatives make You alone were the unattainable through force of will. The supreme good of my life had to come to me as a free gift from this beloved little hand."

And a golden silence fell between them.

When Clarence Westover, then wintering in Florida with his handsome Clementine, read in the Mandeville papers that Thomas Broxton and Olivia Matthews had been quietly married at the home of the bride and immediately removed to their future residence, Broxton Hall, he laughed and rolled the paper up to mail to Jeanne. On its margin he wrote:

It was Tom, and not me, she cared for all along, only it took her a phenomenally long time to make the discovery. Love has found the way to make good all losses to splendid Tom Broxton.

DODGING A GRIZZLY.

A LIVELY EXPERIENCE WITH AN OLD, DIRTY FACED SILVER TIP.

Why Two Hunters Felt Gloom After Their First Meeting With Mr. Bruin—A Race One Man Was Honestly and Earnestly Trying to Win.

"Speaking of bear," said the mining expert as he lit a cigar and leaned back comfortably in the corner of the smoker. "There's nothing nastier to meet out than an old, dirty faced silver tip. He's a cross between a grizzly and a brown, and, like crosses generally, he inherits all the meanness of both sides of the family. Old Dirty Face is always ugly about something, and he goes around fairly spoiling for a fight."

"Any one ever meet him? Well, I had a scrap with one out in the Buffalo Hunt country last year, and I should forget it in a hurry. I was out there looking for some mines, and one day I took a little stroll all alone to see what I could find. We were right in the midst of the big mountains, a hundred miles from anywhere, and the finest game country on the continent. I had my Springfield with me, although I wasn't caring for game just then. But sometimes game hunts you, and then you've got to fight, climb or run."

"Along toward evening, as I was starting back for camp, I heard something following on my trail, and looking back I saw Mr. Dirty Face ambling along a couple of hundred yards behind me and taking more interest in me than I liked. I didn't need any bear particularly, as there were no good trees handy, only a few little ones that didn't count."

"In the canyon below me was a good sized stream, and I made for that, thinking I could throw the bear off down by the water. When I came to the bank, I found a mountain torrent 30 or 40 yards wide and deep and ugly looking. I skirted up the bank pretty fast for some time, and then I saw a rock wall out from above that I thought I could reach. I rounded a big bowlder, struck it above and by hard work reached the rock all right. I didn't believe Mr. Bear would tackle me there, but there was where I didn't know him. Right up my trail he went, rounded the bowlder, sniffed once or twice, sighted me on the rock and promptly struck in."

"He had to swim, and the current was so swift that he missed the rock a few yards and so gave me a good shot. I let him have the best I had, and I made him kick, but he reached the shore all right, and his danger was up in earnest. I plugged at him again, but it didn't seem to count. On he came, higher up this time and sighted better for the rock. I waited for him, and when he heaved his big, ugly paws on my rock I let him have it in the throat, and that fixed him. He swept by, fairly making the water foam. It's the last time, gentlemen, that I want to be treed on a rock by a baldheaded bear."

"It's funny," said the doctor, whose clear gray eyes and square jaw betokened plenty of grit; "it's funny how your first grizzly takes the nerve out of you. Two or three years ago I went hunting with a friend in Colorado. I had killed some big game myself, and I knew that he had killed plenty of it. But neither of us had killed a grizzly, and we were eager for the first chance."

"One day when I happened to be out alone, as I came through a clump of quaking asp what should I run plump against but a big grizzly busily employed in rooting around in the dirt after food."

He hadn't winded me, and there I stood just screened by the quaking asp, almost near enough to touch him with my gun while he went on rooting, utterly unconscious of my presence."

"Now or never," I thought as I brought my gun to my shoulder and carefully sighted for his head. Then the sights began to wobble and anague seemed to seize the gun. I steadied myself, looked around for a convenient tree and tried again, this time for the shoulder. Again the gun wobbled, and I ground my teeth in rage."

"The bear lifted his head, seemed to smell something up the wind and started off at a good gait away from me. 'Well, old boy,' I thought, 'if I can't hit you standing I can't running,' so I let him go."

"I felt pretty gloom when I came into camp that night, but I didn't say anything. My friend was cooking supper, and he seemed pretty quiet too. After supper we lighted our pipes and sat by the fire thinking."

"What's the matter, old man? What are you so still about? He finally asked."

"Oh, nothing," I said, trying to seem cheerful.

"Did you see a bear?" he persisted.

"Yes, hang it, I did," I answered doggedly.

"Well, so did I," he said, and the incident was closed.

"We each got our bear afterward, however, so the disease didn't prove fatal."

"Well, gentlemen," said the commercial traveler, "I never hunted bear myself, but I heard a story the other day of some fellows who found one up in Montana."

"They were prospecting right up in the big bear country, but they let the bear alone, and the bear let them alone. One night they camped in a deep canyon, and while one was cooking supper the other started out with his shotgun to get some birds. Lots of birds up there. So tame you can almost kill them with a stick."

"Pretty soon the man with the shotgun ran up against a grizzly, and Mr. Grizzly was mad about something and started for him. The man hit the trail hard for camp, the bear right after him. When the fellow who was cooking supper heard the landslide coming down the mountain, he saw what was up and grabbed his gun to shoot. But he was afraid to shoot for fear of hitting his partner, so he couldn't do anything but yell."

"Run, r-u-n-n!" he yelled, and the man and the bear both let out a couple of links, and the grizzly flew faster than ever."

"Run, r-u-n-n!" he howled, dancing around to try to get a shot."

"Run?" panted the other fellow. "Run? You fool, do you think I'm throwing this race?"

The Farm,

Te Up-to-Date Farmer
Must Read this Column.

The feet of the horse, like the foundation of a building, are the support of the whole body, and the superstructure raised on a bad foundation must fall, says a writer in The Horsehoof Journal. So the horse with bad feet must sooner or later stumble and come down and become useless to his owner. In the state of nature the bones of the foot are so nicely adjusted and balanced by the tendons and ligaments of the limb that there is no unequal strain brought upon any part, but each assists in sustaining the others. In like manner raising or lowering inner or outer quarter would produce a lateral strain, and I cannot help but believe a callous was first formed, and as the shoe remained on and the horse traveled it irritated it all the more, so that in time it became a deep seated corn. In order to treat a diseased foot by shoeing the shoe must, in the first place, understand the nature of the disease; also the cause. After he thoroughly understands these he may be successful in his treatment. As soon as contraction is observed, whether the horse is lame or not, the shoe should use some means to expand the foot, and by so doing he will prevent the formation of the side bones.

All horsehoofs wear unevenly, and when so worn, though thick and unworn in many places, the whole shoe has to be removed on account of a part which has worn thin, but by a new invention the thin part is made up level with or thicker than the thick part by the enlarged nail heads. By their use a shoe which would otherwise have to be removed can be retained and the expense of a new shoe thereby avoided, in addition to which a better grip or adherence on the surface of the road is obtained by a horse's foot so shod. If in driving the nail in the undersurface of the head does not bend flatly on the face of the shoe, it will soon do so owing to the sunken center, which also lightens the weight of the nail.

Care of Farm Work Horses.
Isn't ten hours of labor in the field enough for man or beast? If so, says The Horsehoof Journal, you should come from the field at 6 in the evening. We find that we do as much work in 10 hours as the 14 hour men, and our horses don't come in all fagged out either. From spring until fall when we come in from the field at night we unharness the horses and turn them out. They roll and drink; then away they scamper to grass. Our pasture isn't a barren field, but it is nice and green with a good growth of six or seven different grasses. Their feed is placed in their mangers, and just before dark the doors are opened and the horses called. They come readily, for they know that a good feed is awaiting them. As grass is digested in about half the time dry feed is it would seem as though it should be the first feed instead of the last. Our horse barn is 26 by 40, with east and west doors and a window in front of each team; no bad light or ventilation given. There is plenty of good straw here for bedding, and the horses look well, are never sick and do as much work as the average horse.

Matching Horses.
To judge by what has been seen in London this season, says the London Stock Journal, there seems to be a probability of a change in the existent public predilection in favor of harness pairs which match in color. Of late it has been the fashion to drive horses of exactly similar shades of coat, but quite recently several odd pairs of great merit and well matched in every point but color have been less infrequent than formerly. Such pairs as a gray and a chestnut, or a black and a dark gray, certainly present a very sporting appearance, and a good colored dun with a gray, or a skewbald and a chestnut, though not precisely quiet looking, make a great show if they move and carry themselves well. On the other hand, a bay and a chestnut, or a brown and a bay, do not show to advantage. But perhaps the strangest combination of all is a skewbald and a pinto, such as was recently seen in the park.

Fitting For Sale.
A horse that is not fitted for sale will generally bring more money in the country than he will in the sale ring, says The National Stockman. When the public buys, it judges very largely by appearances, and a good horse in bad condition is likely to sell for very much less money than an inferior horse that is fixed up. It does not pay to sell horses anywhere without fitting them for sale; but if the horse is to go without special preparation sell him in the pasture. He will look better and fetch more there than anywhere else, nine times out of ten.

Minard's Liniment cures Dandruff.

"The English horse trader is, as a rule, a hard customer to do honest business with." This statement was made by an English veterinary surgeon. "There is a trading trick known as 'bishops' which I will try to explain." This is the way he said it was done: "The old animal's telltale long teeth were sawed or filed short, and then a red-hot iron was applied to their edges, to counterfeit the indentations peculiar to the teeth of young horses. He added that this barbarous practice, which was excruciatingly painful, had become a common means of fraud in England."

This horse copers' "fake" led to inquiries recently at the headquarters of the National Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals concerning the tricks resorted to by dealers to pass off old horses as young.

"Bishops," stated one of the society's inspectors, who has had a long experience of the ways of the horse dealers, "is not nearly so painful as some of the other methods employed."

"Gingering," for instance, is much more brutal. At the horse fair or market sale the animal is given a piece of ginger, which maddens it and makes it dart and dance about like a mettlesome colt.

"Beaming" is another cruel fake to make a lame horse appear sound. The shoe is taken off the sound foot and a small nail is driven into the quick. The shoe is put on again, and only an expert veterinary surgeon would know what had been done. As a consequence the animal limps on both feet, with the result that the lameness is imperceptible to the unskilled buyer.

"Then the low horse dealers have a method of filling up the holes which age produces over the eyes of horses. This is done by continuous pricking, which sets up inflammation, and the holes are temporarily concealed."

"There is a barbarous practice of 'faking' a broken winded horse by giving it three to five ounces of shot in order to weigh down the stomach and thus prevent the expansion and lifting of the abdomen when the horse labors to breathe. The shot causes inflammation, and frequently the horse dies."

"In other cases of broken wind quantities of grease and mutton fat are administered in order to ease the wind-pipe."

"I have seen a horse bought at a sale, taken away, 'clipped' and 'docked,' said the inspector, "and brought back two hours later and sold again to its former owner. A bay horse clipped becomes mouse color, and after the tail has been 'docked' it would take an expert to recognize him again."

Stocking Pastures.
To make the best possible use of a grassfield it is necessary to graze it with more than one kind of stock, says the London Live Stock Journal; otherwise there are bunches of grass not made the most of. To see the advantages of grazing land with various kinds of stock it is only necessary to look at the herbage just outside the farm buildings. Almost invariably it is there cropped very close, if not absolutely bare, and yet it is the favorite bit of grazing for the horses which happen to be in the field. Such bits of ground get horses, cows, sheep, pigs and poultry running over them, and between them all no sour bunches are allowed to grow. Contrast a close like that with a field grazed entirely and for several years with horses in which patches of the grass are up to the horses' knees, while other parts are as bare as a road, and it will at once be seen that pasture land is apt to become more or less permanently damaged if only one class of stock is grazed on it. Sheep are not injurious to old turf if it is not stocked too heavily with them, but on newly sown grass or mixtures they do a considerable amount of harm to subsequent crops by picking out the finer grasses and clover plants, often by the root if the soil is loose. Neither does it answer to put a number of sheep together with milking cows, for the reason that the sheep pick out the herbage which should go to produce butter fat, and a smaller yield of butter is the result. There is no objection to running two or three score of sheep in a field containing the same number of acres together with store cattle and horses. Fifty acres of useful grass ought to keep 10 horses, from 15 to 20 strong beasts and 40 sheep going satisfactorily for a long time.

Some of the eastern papers are trying to make it appear that every Fort Collins lamb feeder cleared a net profit of $2 a head the past season, says the Denver Field and Farm. This is no doubt very good campaign stuff and we only regret that the story is untrue. Those who have made a dollar in the clear are feeling like fighting cocks and are satisfied with the returns.

The Fort Collins lamb feeders this year have realized from $5 to $7 a ton for their hay, and as from four to six tons of hay can be harvested from an acre of land it may readily be seen that it is a profitable crop. As a consequence, alfalfa is taking the place of many other crops, notably that of wheat. Many of the prominent feeders are buying more land to seed down to this crop, while the farmers generally are increasing their acreage annually. Several small farms in the vicinity of Fort Collins have changed hands this season and will be seeded to alfalfa instead of wheat. Furthermore, the alfalfa crop of this year promises to be the largest and best ever gathered. The heavy rainfall of April and May gave the crop a good start and the first cutting will be heavy. Haying has already begun and good weather has been experienced thus far.

About Women, Their Children, and Their Home.

Miss Beatrice Tonnesen read a paper before the international congress on photography at the Paris exposition. Miss Tonnesen is a western girl, coming originally from Oshkosh, Wis. Her professional career is, however, identified with Chicago, and from a provincial girl equipped with the foundation of a thorough technical knowledge of photography she has become a well known business woman of the metropolis of the west, with a thorough understanding of photography as a fine art.

She admits the cropping out of commercial instincts at an extremely early age, and it is certain that her artistic abilities began to assert themselves when she was 3 years old. Instead of mud pies she fashioned wabbling legs and wingless chickens out of Wisconsin clay. At about 18 this embryo artist developed an inordinate fondness for camera work, and after her graduation from a local normal school she was allowed to take up photography as a business.

Miss Tonnesen served a long and tedious apprenticeship, during which she mastered all the details of the profession. By skill and pluck she advanced steadily until she has built up a successful establishment in Chicago, with several assistants. Ex-Governor Altgeld of Illinois sat to her for the photographs to be used by the artist who painted Mr. Altgeld's picture for the remodeled stanchions. The official portrait of Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago published so extensively during the municipal campaign was Miss Tonnesen's work, and she has also photographed many other prominent persons.

Some Royal Romances.
Spain provides us with more than one instance of a princess of the royal blood having renounced her rights and position at the call of love, says London Tit-Bits. The Infanta Elvira, daughter of Don Carlos, left her home at the bidding of a humpbacked and ill favored Roman artist, from whom surely she could have chosen none more unlike the ideal gallant of romance.

Princess Isabella, the great-aunt of the present king of Spain, eloped with the Polish Count Gurovski. One dark night the count repaired with a carriage to Engleheim, near Paris, where his amorous lady lived. Leaving her house by means of a rope ladder, she soon joined him, and the couple escaped safely to this country, where they were married. Alas, the glamour soon faded, for after awhile the pair quarreled, and a separation ultimately ensued.

Even more romantic was the elopement of her sister, the Princess Josephine. A certain Senor Rende, a poet of promise and a journalist attached to a Havana paper, asked a richer planter for his daughter's hand, with the result that he was ignominiously shown the door. Furious at this treatment, the young poet swore that he would show the world his worth by marrying a princess.

Quitting Cuba, he journeyed to Madrid, where, after years of want and suffering, he gained a reputation as a poet. At last his genius attracted the notice of the Princess Josephine, to whom he had dedicated several of his effusions. The royal lady made his acquaintance and became enamored of the poet. Her love was returned, the pair eloped, were married at Valladolid and escaped to Paris. On hearing the news the princess' family were aghast and strove by every means to have the marriage annulled. Their efforts were, however, futile, and, common sense at length prevailing, the poet and his royal bride were forgiven and taken into favor.

Some six years since Princess Elizabeth, a granddaughter of the emperor of Austria, fixed her affections upon Baron Otto von Seefried, a young infantry lieutenant. Her relatives' efforts to prevent the misalliance were of no avail, for one morning the lovers escaped to Genoa, where they were married. Another Austrian royalty, the Princess Elvira, likewise contracted a runaway marriage by eloping with a Bavarian count, while the mother of the present queen of Italy eloped with an artillery officer, who, on the union turning out unhappy, committed suicide.

Ref Work For Her People.
Even the Indian race has contributed to the "woman's century" a woman whose life has entitled her to be called "the emancipator of a race." Bright Eyes, a daughter of Iron Eyes, chief of the Omahas, has the distinction of having effected legislation in behalf of her people.

"It was principally due to her influence that a law was passed in 1883 giving the Omahas the right to individual ownership of land, which law was extended in two years to all tribes," says Joseph Dana Miller in The National Magazine.

"Bright Eyes was born in a little Indian village a few miles from where the city of Omaha now stands, and she received the elementary part of her education at the little mission school of the Omahas. As she grew older two books, the Inspiration of the wisest and best of mankind—Shakespeare and the Bible—found their way into her mother's wigwam. Her father had seen that the adoption of the Indian called for the adoption of the white man's civilization and the learning of 'the white man's ways.'

"The young girl who was to play so important a part in her nation's history imbibed many of her ideas from this source. To get the knowledge taught in the white man's schools seemed to remote a possibility to be dreamed of by the little Indian maiden in a frontier town. The opportunity came, however, and she was permitted to enter a seminary in New Jersey. Here she spent three years. From this seminary the Indian girl at the age of 18 entered Wellesley college. On taking leave of Wellesley Bright Eyes threw herself with all her natural ardor into the work of legal redemption for her race."

"Bright Eyes has done more for the aborigines than all others combined," said Major General George Crook, who is himself regarded as one of the best friends the red man ever had among the conquering race.

"In New England she won the friendship of Longfellow, Holmes, Whittier, Edward Everett Hale, Louisa Abbott, John D. Long and Helen Hunt Jackson."

American Girls.
A woman who has traveled much and who thoroughly believes that the proper study of womankind is woman declares that she can locate almost any woman after seeing her and hearing her talk for a little. "You would know a Chicago girl anywhere," she says. "Broxy, loud talking and loud dressing, but generous, kind hearted, clever, lovable. St. Louis gives her girls a little drawl, a deliberate gait and a quiet, pretty, slow way of doing things that you can't mistake."

"All Philadelphia girls are devoted to their multiplicity of dainty fripperies. They have no end of pretty or elegant or serviceable bags, one of which they carry about with them, and herbage and curious silk shoulder shawls which grand-ma used to wear, have all sorts of remarkable little headgears which they put on in the evening and trunks full of pretty muslin gowns which they always make themselves. These always start out in the Quaker motif, but blossom out into a Moorish efflorescence of decorating frills and berthes and belows. They babble on forever, and a day of poppa and mamma and worship the graves of their ancestors—who were invariably azure veined."

"The San Francisco girl! Now, there! Behold the gait of the true goddess appearing in her walk. Note the splendid physique, the fine color, the superb carriage and the gayest dress in the world."

"The Boston girl is not quite so devoted to 'culture' as she was. She is interested in hygiene and sanitation these days. She takes life seriously, and she wears broad shoes with a pronounced yellow welt and glasses and hats that are hats."

"The Brooklyn girl is a composite of Pratt and Facker and the Brooklyn institute. She swells with civic pride, she golfs, she laughs, she gossips. 'As for the New Yorker—well, 'she's all right,' and if it weren't that 'comparisons are odious' I should say, as all the world acknowledges, 'she's the best of all the game.'"

Country Girl in the City.

Joannette L. Glider, writing in Success on the subject "Should a Country Girl Go to the City?" has this to say: "I cannot give any cast iron rules to govern this question. It depends altogether upon the girl and upon the 'career' she wishes to pursue whether she should go to the city or not. By 'city' these girls almost invariably mean the American metropolis, New York. When country girls write to me, however (and a great many do), asking if I would advise them to come to the city, I almost invariably say, 'No, don't come.' I think that very frequently country girls, attracted by the outside glitter and show of city life and impressed with the idea that their talents will there be given full scope, leave their homes and the work which they can best do, only to be submerged and perhaps utterly lost sight of in the wilderness of a large city. Opportunities are, of course, greater in the city than in the country, but the competition is also greater, and I believe that an ambitious girl has as good a field in a small city as in a large one. Girls often write to me, saying they want to come to New York to engage in journalism, for instance. I advise them, instead of coming to an already overcrowded center, to take what is at hand and make something out of it; to try their skill on the paper in their own town. Why shouldn't a girl win success on a paper in Chicago, Cleveland, New Orleans or Boston as well as in New York?"

"Much stress has been laid on the temptations which beset the unsophisticated country girl who goes to a large city to earn her livelihood. While the dangers and temptations that surround her cannot be exaggerated, yet I believe the self respecting girl, the one who means business, who goes with an earnest purpose in view, is just as safe in the city as in the country—conscience nota."

The WHIRL of the TOWN

OF TRUEST LOVE.

I pity him who in his heart
Hath never felt the thrill, the start,
That comes from wounds of Cupid's dart
Of truest love.
I pity him who ne'er doth bow
To one who doth with joy endow
And ne'er doth give awithered vow
Of truest love.
—Carl Holliday in Tennessee University Magazine.

Hon. L. J. Tweedie is on the stump in Queens County for Hon. L. P. Farris.

The Orange Band will give a band concert in the band stand this evening.

The Presbytery was in session at Dalhousie yesterday.

Dr. Benjamin Coburn, one of the best known physicians in this province died at Fredericton on Sunday.

Major Maltby has been appointed Chairman of the Newcastle Board of Health in room of E. Lee Street, deceased.

The Advocate stated last week that the cabinet would assemble on Saturday to discuss the dissolution of parliament. And the Advocate was right.

Rev. A. F. Brown's subject on Sunday morning next will be—"The Virgin Mary." In the evening—"The Wordless Book." All are invited. Seats free.

A number of our young men intend leaving for Kingston, Ont. this week to enter the military school. Among them are Sergts. Stylian and Stothart.

In our report of the Town Council proceedings in last week's issue we stated that Ald. Lounsbury's expenses to Bathurst were $10.89. $4.98 was the amount of his expenses and the amount paid by the Town Clerk.

Geo. W. Lutz, a carpenter on the I. C. R. was killed by a train about two miles west of Amherst, Monday morning. He was engaged on a working train and fell between the conductor's van and a car of lumber.

A harvest supper under the auspices of Nelson Division No. 99 S. of T. will be held in the new hall, Millerton on Wednesday, Oct. 3rd. Supper will be served from 5 to 9 p. m. Music for dancing will be furnished by a leading orchestra.

Residents of the upper end of Pleasant street are complaining of the dangerous condition of the sidewalk at that end of the street. They claim that it is not safe for a person to venture forth at night, and are very indignant at the council's apathy in the matter.

It is to be hoped that the action of Messrs. Blair and Tweedie in bringing on three local bye elections all at once will not affect the credit or standing of the opportunist North Shore lumbermen with the banks. A rag has made the suggestion that "they will take to the woods."—Moncton Times.

Watch for—"A Goddess of South Africa," our new serial story which will be commenced in next week's issue. The author is the popular St. George Rathburne and the many thrilling episodes in the book all take place at the scene of the present struggle between the British and Boers. It is the story of the day.

Mr. E. J. Murphy who has been in charge of our road work leaves tomorrow for Moncton, to fill a similar position at that place. Mr. Murphy, who has become very popular here, has demonstrated his ability to build a first class road and Moncton is to be congratulated on securing his services. He takes the government cruiser with him, but the roller will remain for another week.

The I. C. R. authorities have arranged for the construction of a new Y at Newcastle. The work has been laid out on the ground and it is expected that construction will be begun in a few days. This Y is to be used for turning engines, the old turntable in the round house there being too short for the heavy locomotives now in service.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Makes the bread more healthful.

Safeguards the food against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest enemies to health of the present day.

The case of Potter vs. Morrissy will be resumed in St. John to-morrow.

A meeting of the Tennis Club will be held Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Business of importance will be transacted.

Ravel's Humpty Dumpty Co., which made such a hit here last spring is again touring the province.

The new roller mill at French Fort cove will be ready to resume operations about October 10th. The mill will be open from that date to receive grist.

W. E. McCubben, a commercial traveler representing Thos. Davidson & Co., Montreal, was found dead in his room in the Commercial hotel, Campbellton last Thursday.

Rev. Mr. McIntosh, Douglastown, occupied the pulpit of St. James church Sunday evening. His pulpit was filled by Mr. Clarke, a returned missionary.

Dr. James R. Inch, president; Thos. Harrison, LL. D., chancellor; J. Boyle Travers, M. D.; Mr. Justice McLeod, Mr. Justice Barker, William F. Todd, M. P. P., William A. Park, Hon. William Pugsley, D. C. L., and Hon. Archibald Harrison.

Mr. Clarke, a returned missionary delivered an interesting address in St. James' church, Sunday afternoon. Mr. Clarke who has spent two years among the heathen in the different tribes of that country, their phases of heathenism, their gods, etc. Mr. Clarke returned to Canada to complete his studies, so that he may locate himself permanently in some mission field.

Mr. Frank Dalton, for five years clerk with the late E. Lee Street and for the past two years employed in a leading drug store of Boston, has purchased the late Mr. Street's business. Mr. Dalton opened the store on Monday, displaying a first class line of medicines, toilet articles, cigars etc. As Mr. Dalton is a very popular and affable young man, he will no doubt receive a fair share of the drug trade of the town.

Scarlet fever is prevalent in Nelson, and the school at that place has been closed. Plaards were placed on the infected houses on Monday, but were torn down during the night. The chairman of the Board of Health offers a reward of $20. for information that will lead to the conviction of the guilty person or persons. There is a penalty of $40. for this offence, and the miscreants if captured should be punished to the full extent of the law. It is a despicable piece of business.

Besides the big game hunters who are now in the woods there are many others to come upon the hunt for moose and caribou later in the season. All of the professional guides have their time for this season pretty well taken up, though a few still have some open time. Many other would be hunters are anxious to try their luck in the New Brunswick woods and several of them are negotiating for guides and making other arrangements. Among those who wish to chase the lordly moose next month is Mr. C. W. A. Jones, of Hamilton, Bermuda, who is now in correspondence with Mr. W. T. Chestnut.—Gleaner.

Mrs. Richard Fairman, one of Newcastle's most estimable ladies passed away at 3 o'clock, Friday afternoon. Mrs. Fairman had been in ill health for some time, but suddenly became worse about two weeks ago. She was a devoted wife and mother, and her husband and family have the sympathy of the community. She leaves besides a husband, two daughters and two sons. The funeral took place at 2 o'clock, Monday afternoon and was very largely attended. The service at the house was conducted by Rev. Wm. Aitken assisted by Rev. T. G. Johnstone, and the choir of St. James' church rendered appropriate music. The service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Mr. Pickles. Interment in St. James' cemetery. Floral offerings were in abundance, and testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

THE SUSSEX FAIR.

The Sussex Exhibition will open October 1 and continue five days. Preparations are well advanced for a good fair, and plans are maturing to make the various departments excel former years. There is a very fine agricultural exhibit in sight and it is looked to excel even that at St. John because Sussex is the centre of a fine farming district and the fair being later than St. John's, the crops will have had more time to mature.

THE GREEN SICKNESS.

Girls who lack sufficient nerve force to develop into healthy womanhood become pale, weak, nervous and irritable. They have chlorosis or "green sickness" and can only be cured when the nerves are restored and revitalized and the blood made rich by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great restorative in pill form. It makes pale, weak women and girls healthy, rosy and plump. Note increase in weight while taking it.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES Burns, etc.

A book "Our Boys Under Fire," in the course of preparation, by Miss Annie Melish, Charlottetown, will deal principally with our New Brunswick and P. E. Island boys on active service. 40 illustrations, including groups, individual portraits of officers, casualties, etc. An exchange says:—"Miss Melish is a concise and original writer, and with a brother on the field we can bespeak for her great success."
