London Boy Forsakes Happy Home And Goes---Well, to Woodstock

Town Bell Rung But Nobody Claimed the New Comer—Finally Identified.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Woodstock, Oct. 11. — A little boy wandered into the fire hall on Wednesday afternoon. He was thought to belong to the city and as he had apparently lost his way, the alarm bell was rung. Nobody appeared to claim him and he was turned over to the police. He said his name was Harold Brooks and that he was 6 years old. He told Chief Thompson he lived at 96 Dundas street, and that he attended Rectory Street School, and that Miss Matthews was his teacher. The boy slept in the chief's office that night and was around the city yesterday, and fed by charitable citizens. Inquiries were set on foot, but nobody claimed the wanderer, and last night he was taken home by a policeman with whom he still is.

It is believed the boy belongs to London. There is no 96 Dundas street here, and no Rectory Street School. He is not able to tell where he comes from himself, but it is plain he does not live in Woodstock. Chief Thompson believes he wandered into a train at London and got off here. The peculiar feature is that when he turned up at the fire hall first, he carried a large oil can filled with water, which he probably brought here with him. The youngster has red hair and is bright and clever.

The boy belongs to London and lives on Dundas street east.

Is a London Boy.

In reference to the above an Advertiser reporter this morning visited the Rectory street school and interviewed Miss Matthews, who has charge of the kindergarten there, and whose name is mentioned in the dispatch.

"I have a number of Brooks children here," said she, "but they are all girls."

Principal Althouse, of the same school, knew of a Harry Brooks, but stated that the boy was in attendance today and had been attending regularly.

Number 96 Dundas street is occupied by a wholesale grocery firm.

Two families by the name of Brooks reside on Dundas street in the east end of the city, but they disclaimed having knowledge of a missing boy.

On Marshall street, East London, a boy about 7 years of age, named Harry Brooks, was located. His mother stated that the boy had never run away, and was then in the house enjoying his dinner.

Boy Identified.

Just before going to press The Advertiser was informed by the local police that a little red-headed boy answering the description of the youngster picked up in Woodstock had been missing from his home at 729 Dundas street.

This youngster's name is not Brooks, but Albert Easton.

Investigation proved that the two youngsters were identical.

Word was sent at once to Woodstock, and the little fellow will be brought home as soon as possible.

It is said that the lad has a penchant for running away from home, and only last Saturday Detective Nickle picked him up at the corner of Richmond and Dundas street at a late hour.

The boy's foster father is Mr. M. J. Easton, who is employed on the street railway as a conductor.

Mr. Easton adopted the boy some time ago. The child's original name was Harold Brooks, and that accounts for his giving that name instead of Easton to the Woodstock police.

Osborne Gets $1,000 for Loss of Eye; The Rolling Mills Case Was Settled

Grand Jury Brings In Its Presentment and Asks for More Pay.

After being argued nearly all day yesterday, the Osborne vs. Rolling Mills case was settled this morning out of the assize court.

The plaintiff, James Osborne, who sued for $5,000 for the loss of an eye, will receive $1,000, while the defendants will pay all the costs of the action.

Gibbons, Harper & Gibbons acted for the plaintiff, and T. G. Meredith for the defendants.

The Johnson vs. Tapp non-jury case was settled without going to trial.

Judgment by Consent.

Johnson Bros., bakers, of this city, sought to recover $959 due on a promissory note issued some time ago by James Tapp, a St. Thomas baker, and George Tapp, a mechanic of that city.

Judgment by consent was given against the defendants for $1,009. The extra amount was for interest on the note; $500 of that amount will clear in full the judgment against George Tapp.

J. M. McEvoy for plaintiff; W. C. Fitzgerald for defendants.

It is very probable that the assizes will close before the day is out.

His Lordship Mr. Justice Teetzel has expressed a disposition to try only such non-jury cases in which the defendant and plaintiff are both willing to go on, and it is very probable that but one more cases, that of Taylor vs. Taylor, will be tried after the Scatcherd case is finished.

The juries have all been dismissed, and a large number of jury cases have been held over for the January assizes.

The case of Scatcherd vs. Roulston was being argued at the time of going to press.

Jury's Presentment.

The grand jury, late yesterday afternoon, brought in its presentments. The jury had visited the asylum for the Insane, the city hospital, and the county jail, and had found all three institutions in the best of condition. There were 1,046 patients in the asylum, and the methods employed by the authorities to ameliorate so far as possible the condition of the unfortunates struck the jury as being highly commendable.

In the jail there were 24 prisoners, 23 males and one female. Everything was found to be in first-class shape. The jail itself was clean, and the prisoners were found to be well taken care of.

Conditions at the hospital were found to be above reproach.

Want Pay Increased.

In closing, the jury suggested that the pay now accorded both grand juries and petit juries was insufficient to meet the great advances in the cost of living in the city, and recommended that the pay be increased 50 cents a day, making the remuneration $2 50.

Telegraphers and C.P.R. Reach an Agreement

Arbitration Gives Men 14 Per Cent Increase All Around.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—The differences between the C. P. R. and its railway telegraphers was settled this afternoon, both sides signing the arbitration award. The men have done well securing an increase of 14 per cent all around and overtime for Sundays on the 30-day schedule for the month.

Another excellent point agreed upon is that if the operator at an isolated station considers that he needs assistance, he has the privilege of asking for an investigation. Also, where the operator is obliged to attend to signals and switches, he is to receive an extra 50 cents per day.

DEATH TAKES CASSIE CHADWICK END COMES IN PENITENTIARY

Columbus, O., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Cassie Chadwick, whose amazing financial transaction culminated in the wrecking of an Oberlin bank, died in the women's ward at the Ohio penitentiary tonight at 10:15. She had been in a comatose condition for some hours previous to her death, and the end came peacefully. No friends or relatives waited at the bedside, only the prison physician and hospital attendants. Her son, Emil Poover, was summoned from Cleveland, but he is not expected to arrive before tomorrow.

The body was removed to a local undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. It will be taken to Cleveland by her son, Emil Hoover.

Mrs. Chadwick embraced the Roman Catholic faith and was baptized in it a few days before her death. Yesterday morning she received extreme unction. It was frequently reported that Mrs. Chadwick had made a statement regarding her financial transactions and it was expected that if such a statement had been made it would be given to the public after her death.

The prisoner's physicians here declared last night that she had never made such a statement to them and her attorney here also denied the rumor.

Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Bigley, was a native of Woodstock, Canada. She first came into public notice in Toledo, Ohio, about 20 years ago, where she told fortunes, under the name of Madame Deviere. While in this city she forged the name of Richard Brown, Youngstown, O., and for this crime was sent to the penitentiary at Columbus for nine years.

SUNFIELD SAYS WOMAN MURDERED

Attempt to Place Responsibility of Killing on Victim's Widow.

Hamilton, Oct. 11.—Before the assize court adjourned last evening, the crown closed its case, and J. L. Counsell outlined the prisoner's defense, making it clear that Jake Sunfield, the man charged with the murder of Andrew Radzyk, would throw the blame on the widow of the dead man, and try to satisfy the jury that she it was who committed the awful crime. The defense opened its case as soon as the court was resumed this morning, Sunfield going into the stand in his own defense. The story he told was a most disgusting one. He said that much drinking went on at the Radzyk home, from three to seven kegs of lager and considerable whisky being consumed every week. Quarrels were frequent. Mrs. Radzyk had frequently told him that she loved him better than her husband, and more than once she had tried to induce him to run away with her. He did promise to go with her to Chicago, but he was only fooling her. He had been intimate with the woman from the first week that he boarded in the house, and Radzyk was jealous of him, and they had many fights. The worst fight they ever had was one night when Radzyk caught him in his wife's room. Radzyk was a heavy drinker, and Mrs. Radzyk frequently complained that she could not save any money because her husband drank it all up, and threatened to get rid of him. He heard her threaten to kill him, but never when Radzyk was within earshot.

Sunfield said that he and the other members of the Radzyk household had been drinking heavily for a couple of days before the shooting. On the afternoon of the shooting he wanted to go to sleep, but Mrs. Radzyk coaxed him to stay awake, remarking: "I'll make him (meaning her husband) sleep." Sunfield said that he was in the backyard on the afternoon of the shooting. He heard a shot and started towards the house. He met Mrs. Radzyk coming out with her hands over her breast. She appeared to be very much excited. Sunfield went into the house and found Radzyk lying in a pool of blood on the floor. He was semi-conscious, and was swearing at his wife. That was all Sunfield could remember.

LOCAL BOY RUNNERS FOR ST. MARY'S

Collegiate Will Send a Team for the One Mile Relay.

The St. Marys Collegiate Institute is to hold an athletic meet a week from today, and the London Collegiate has been asked to send a team of four for the one mile relay race. The local school has decided to accept and training will be commenced this afternoon of a squad from which to pick a team. The names will be announced next week. St. Marys have put up a handsome cup for the event. It is understood that Stratford will also enter a team.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The International Association of Fire Chiefs yesterday elected M. F. Higgins, of Albany, N. Y., president. The convention will meet next year in Columbus, O.

Still Complaining.

The Talbot street school is still a matter of complaint, the ventilation still being very bad. This morning Dr. Niven, of the board of health, inspected the school, and he found the conditions bad. The present system is totally inadequate and very unhealthy. The board of education will be recommended to change the Smead-Dowd system for something more up-to-date.

Whips Twins To Be Sure.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 10.—Professor John A. Hollinger, assistant principal of the Soho school, got tired of being folled by Halbert and Albert Knightlinger, two 13-year-old twins who can scarcely tell themselves apart, and yesterday when one of them got into mischief, Hollinger licked them both just to make sure the guilty one would not escape.

Today he was sued for assault and battery by Mrs. Knightlinger, the angry mother. Hollinger will have a hearing tomorrow on a charge of assault and battery. He says he doesn't care what happens now that he feels that there has been once that the twins did not get the better of him.

He says the names Halbert and Albert were most confusing at best, but when they got to mixing up until he got dizzy, he decided to lick them both the first time one of them committed any overt act, and he did so.

Large Industry May Leave London Because of Lack of Proper Sewer

St. Catharines Makes an Offer to Geo. White & Sons—Mr. White Negotiating.

Mr. Arthur W. White, manager of Geo. White & Sons, manufacturers of threshing engines, etc., is in St. Catherines today conferring with the manufacturers' committee regarding the removal of the company's plant from London to that city. It is understood that the city of St. Catherines, always on the look-out for good manufacturers, have made a tempting offer to the White Company. It is not known definitely whether the company will accept or not, but Mr. White went down to confer with the authorities.

A Great Loss.

The removal of the White Company from London would cause a great loss to the city. The firm is one of the largest of its kind in Ontario, and is growing very rapidly. Practically nothing has been done towards making an effort to keep the company here.

No. 2 to Blame.

The difficulty appears to be with No. 2 committee. Some time ago the firm erected a large factory in the East End on Rectory street. At the time the factory was erected the firm was promised sewer connection.

The firm have been waiting ever since for the sewer, but it has not yet been constructed, and there does not seem to be much chance that it will be.

Chairman Matthews did not take this sewer into consideration when plans were formed for the year, and in consequence the construction of the sewer has been bandied about until the White Company is somewhat out of patience.

Easy Way Out of Trouble.

The Hamilton road and Rectory street sewers have been built, and it would not have taken a great deal of money to make a connection for the firm.

A plan was evolved some time ago whereby the sewer would be built out of the general fund, but the matter has been delayed so long that the firm has despaired of getting proper treatment, and Mr. White is looking for a city where the wishes of the company will be looked after with more consideration.

Lake Erie Washing Away Beach; Port Stanley People Are Alarmed

Cottages Along New Orchard Beach in Danger of Dropping Into the Lake.

For the past year, the proprietors of summer residences at New Orchard Beach, Port Stanley, have been greatly alarmed about the way in which the lake has been rapidly washing away the beach and cliffs in front of their houses.

During the last few weeks, strong easterly winds have prevalled, and great sections of the property adjoining the lake, have been carried away.

Situation Serious.

The situation has now become serious, as many of the residences will have to be moved back to avoid dropping into the lake.

Two years ago a vast stretch of sandy land lay in front of the residential portion of Orchard Beach. At the west end near, the east pier, and immediately in front of the heights known as Hill Crest. There were fully one hundred yards of beach. Last winter this beach was all washed away, and now the cliffs of the mainland are being crumbled down in great masses every time there is a storm.

Great Havoc of Waves.

At many points, where the bank is composed of loose, soft soil, as much as twenty feet of the land has completely disappeared, and houses which were a few months ago a considerable distance from the water are now within six feet of the breakers, which threaten to destroy them before another winter is over.

In front of many of the residences, beautiful groves of shade trees and lawns had been laid out at considerable expense to the property-holders. These have nearly all disappeared, along with numerous boat and bathing houses.

Erected a Pier.

Last summer a number of the residents of the beach got together and erected a pier several hundred feet out into the lake, hoping in that way to put an end to the destruction. This plan, however, has proved a complete failure, as is evidenced by the fact that the damage done since the erection of the brakwater has been even greater than before.

Must Move Back.

Some of the propertyholders have sufficient land at the rear of their residences to allow them to more their cottages back, where they will be safe from the encroachments of the lake for a time at least. Others, who have little property back of their buildings, are in rather a bad plight, as from present indications their houses will be washed into the lake before next spring.

Question of Sunday Cars For London

No. 1 committee will meet one week from today, when the Sunday car petition will be discussed.

It was at first thought that both sides of the question would be heard, but it is believed now that such will not be the case.

The petition was sent to No. 1 committee, and will then be sent back to the council.

Then the counter-petitions will be called for, and both will be sent to No. 1 committee. This will cause a delay of two weeks or over before the matter will come before that committee, when both sides will be heard.

Both sides have petitions ready for presentation.

Auditors Have Held Up Accounts; Statement Made at the City Hall

Coal Delivered Off Cars During June and July Not Being Paid For.

Old King Coal is a jolly old soul, but when he "butts" into school affairs he is not such a happy personage. At the present moment coal is not the merriest subject to mention to the board of education. The matter is far from being settled. There are a few anxious moments ahead of the trustees, before the atmosphere is cleared.

Have Auditors Refused?

A story of more than usual interest is going the rounds this morning. It is to the effect that the auditors have refused to pass the accounts for coal delivered during June and July, and have sent them back, as there were no vouchers.

The hard coal accounts are all passed with the exception of the two cars mentioned previously. These accounts have no vouchers attached, and they, too, will be held until the board produces the vouchers.

Waiting for Proof.

Thus the matter stands. The accounts are presented. The auditors refuse to pass them until they are convinced that they are correct, in other words, until the vouchers are produced. The committee in charge of the coal business have no vouchers, as none were signed.

Where are Chairman Teasdall and the other members of the committee to get the vouchers? This is a little matter that must be settled before the ac-

Blenheim Man Robbed on a Train; London Crooks Blamed for the Theft

Dipped Into His Pocket and Took $250—Police on the Trail.

Let. Edmunds, the well-known horseman and stock raiser of Blenheim, was victimized by London confidence men on a P. M. train Wednesday night to the extent of $250. The game was worked by three or four smooth sharpers, who evidently knew that Mr. Edmunds was carrying quite a sum of money on his person, and were following him about for some time awaiting an opportunity to separate him from his cash. The trick was done while Mr. Edmunds was getting on the train at Dresden, one of the men slipping his hand down in the horseman's pocket and removing the wad.

Attending the Fair.

Mr. Edmunds was in Dresden attending the fair and the races. When he went down to the depot he was followed by four fakirs from London, who had been running side attractions at the fair. Mr. Edmunds was carrying a heavy basket of fruit in one hand, and as he was climbing up the steps of the railway coach platform, one of these men came up behind him, and yelled:

"Hey, you there, lift up that basket of fruit so that others can get on the train as well as yourself."

Robbed of $250.

Mr. Edmunds, who always tries to be obliging and did not care to inconvenience anyone, did as he was requested. It was while his hand was raised in this manner that the sleek gentleman slipped his deft white fingers into the stock-raiser's unprotected right trowsers pocket, and took therefrom a fat roll of bank notes amounting to $250.

Didn't Notice It.

Mr. Edmunds did not notice his

Mr. Bowman's Tribute to Dr. Potts; Great Preacher and Great Worker

Came to London in 1862 and Soon Won the Hearts of All.

"Rev. Dr. Potts was one of the most successful preachers that ever worked in this city," said Mr. William Bowman, of Dundas street, the veteran church worker, in speaking of the famous preacher, who is at death's door in Toronto, to The Advertiser yesterday. "He came here in 1862 when the church was perhaps more in need of organization than it had been for a long time."

"The congregation of the old Queen's Avenue Methodist Church was not so very large at that time, but before Dr. Potts left it was not only one of the largest and most influential, but one of the best organized in this part of the country. By his earnest efforts he seemed to put life into everybody and every department with which he came in contact.

"He impressed one from the start as being a man with a purpose and he allowed nothing to swerve him in his efforts to attain it.

Came Here in 1862.

"When he came here from St. Catharines in 1862, notwithstanding that he had done good work in that district and had already achieved considerable reputation, there was some apprehension that so young a man might not have had the experience necessary for so great a work.

"However, Dr. Potts speedily demonstrated that he not only possessed the ability, but he established himself so firmly in the confidence of the people that they would do anything for him.

"What was needed among the people in those days was educational work, and Dr. Potts thoroughly appreciated this fact. In the three years that he was here he was foremost in every movement along that line.

"He organized what was known as the Chautauqua Society, which became one of the most popular institutions in the district. In 1863 he was elected secretary of the educational society of the Methodist Church, a position which he filled most capably and in which he accomplished much good.

An Orator.

"As an orator Dr. Potts had a style that was his own, simple and impressive, making every word carry its message. In his choice of words he was particularly fortunate, and had a way of drawing a word picture and illustrating it with numerous little similies taken from the everyday life of the people, that impressed it upon his hearers."

Dr. McCallum May Be Transferred To Brockville Asylum for Insane

May Be Succeeded by Dr. Roome, Ex-M.P. for This City.

It was stated today that the Ontario Government is contemplating the removal to Brockville Asylum of Dr. McCallum, superintendent of the London Insane Asylum.

Dr. McCallum was seen by The Advertiser today and he said that he is aware that such a move has been contemplated for some time, but that so far as he knows nothing definite has been decided upon.

It was stated today that in case of Dr. McCallum's removal to Brockville, Dr. Roome, of this city, will be appointed superintendent of the London Insane Asylum.

Love Laughs at Locks and Bolts; East End Couple Elope and Marry

Are Now Happily Living in Detroit—Alleged Father Opposed the Match.

Miss Edna Vansickle, a pretty and popular young lady, who until a week ago resided with her parents at 539 Elizabeth street, has created a sensation in the east end by eloping with Mr. Percy Freeman, with whom she has been keeping company for several years.

Miss Vansickle is 22 years old, and her husband 23.

Both are well known in the east end, where young Freeman has followed the trade of paperhanging.

The immediate friends of the young people knew that they were strongly attached to one another, and had expected that a wedding would take place sooner or later, but it is alleged the young lady's father was opposed to the match.

When on Sunday morning Miss Vansickle did not put in an appearance her parents were considerably troubled and wondered where she was.

They searched high and low, and when they found that young Freeman was also missing they had an idea of what had occurred and awaited events.

Yesterday a letter was received from Mrs. Freeman stating that she had been married on the Saturday night that she was missed from her home, and that she and her husband are now living in Detroit.

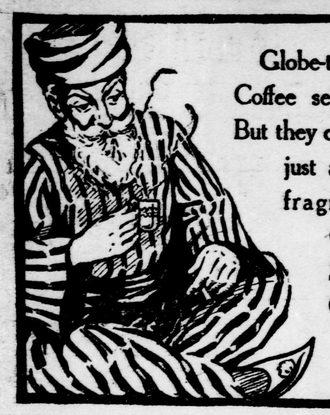

LUSITANIA IS NOW OCEAN QUEEN; ALL OTHER RECORDS SMASHED

The Great Turbiner Crosses in Record Time of 4 Days, 19 Hrs., 53 Mins.

New York, Oct. 11.—Four days, 19 hours and 53 minutes out from Queenstown with every transatlantic speed record in its possession, the majestic Cunard liner Lusitania swept by Sandy Hook lightship at 10:17 a.m. today, and after a pause to await daylight, steamed slowly up the harbor to receive the recognition of her right to the title of "Queen of the Sea." Three records were written down in her logbook. Two of them were taken from the great German rivals of the Cunard, one from the swift Lucania.

The records which she broke were: That held by Kaiser Wilhelm II., of the North German Lloyd Line, which crossed from New York to Plymouth at an average speed of 23.58 knots as compared with the Lusitania's 23.99; that held by the Hamburg-American liner Dutschland of 5 days, 11 hours and 54 minutes, from Queenstown to New York; that held by the Cunard liner Lucania, which crossed from Queenstown to New York in 5 days, 7 hours and 23 minutes.

The Lusitania's superb performance in beating the German ships, which have held the record so long, will be heralded by British shipbuilders.

SOUTH HURON LIBERALS

position and confidence in him were moved by Mr. Alex. Mustard, Brucefield, and Mr. J. G. Stanbury, of Exeter.

The Candidate's Address.

Mr. Kellerman was given a rousing reception on arising. He felt that the Liberals had done him a great honor in giving him the nomination. Had he acted as his feelings prompted, he would have remained at home, because of what might happen. He was proud of the fact that the nomination was unanimous. The task was a heavy one, because of circumstances of a purely personal character. He was in the field, and he was in to win. There would not be any turning back. South Huron must be redeemed, and it would be redeemed. Mr. Kellerman declared that although the task was a heavy one, he was willing to try it, and do his level best. He had been the unanimous choice of the convention, and he knew that the party was behind him to a man.

Urges Hard Work.

"I will do my duty. I want the party to stand behind me, and I know it will. South Huron can only be redeemed by every man doing his duty. The star is rising in the east. The dark days are past. The Whitney Government has not given us what the Government promised. Let us work heartily, for the day is coming when Hon. A. G. MacKay will be leader of the Government of Ontario." (Prolonged cheers.)

An Ovation For Mr. MacKay.

Hon. A. G. MacKay was given a tremendous ovation upon rising to speak. It was some minutes before he could begin, and he was listened to with the closest attention for an hour and a half. He said:

"I am sure I appreciate the sentiments expressed in the resolution you have just passed. This is the first convention I have addressed since having been chosen for the somewhat heavy task of leading the Liberals in the House, and I hope leader of the Liberals out of the House. Some time ago, that little band of 28 Liberals in the House held a meeting, and chose me their leader. I will confess to you that I preferred to live my own life rather than accept the great responsibility. I was wedded to my profession, and I would rather have practiced that profession, but there seemed to be no way out of it, and I accepted. I am confident of the support of the Liberals of Ontario, and I hope at no distant date, our party will again be in the ascendancy."

"Some time ago Hon. James Pliny Whitney referred to some of my speeches as mere twaddle. Even the newspapermen want me to formulate, or think I should formulate some new programme, and follow an entirely new plan. Policies are not made in a day. We are making policies all the time. This afternoon I will unfold to you some of the policies of yesterday, today and tomorrow, and let you judge for yourself if they are mere twaddle.

"But before I go into my speech proper, I want to congratulate you on the choice of Mr. Kellerman as your candidate. I regard him as a very strong man, a worker, and a loyal Liberal. I like very much the unanimity of the convention. It shows a splendid spirit. Liberalism is still a militant Liberalism. There is no lack of life in the Liberalsm of Ontario. Mr. Kellerman ought to be a good man, for he came from good stock. There never has come to the shores of Canada a beter immigrant than the German. Mr. Kellerman is from that stock, and he will do honor to the splendid race from which he sprang. He is a worthy type of man, and I am sure the Liberals of South Huron will rally loyally to his support.

As to a Platform.

"I have been asked to formulate a platform, and have been censured for not doing so. No leader of a party should formulate a policy alone. There is no better place for forming those policies than in the primaries. Some ask that a great convention be called, where delegates from all over the Province may attend. Then a resolution committee will be appointed. Resolutions will then be drawn up, passed in a hurried meeting of the convention, and the policy of the party formed. Policies should be discussed in the primaries. Delegates fully instructed along the lines of the policies advocated should be sent to the convention, and a policy broad-based on the people's will result.

The Brockville Election.

"Mr. Whitney lays great store upon the recent Brockville by-election, and characterizes it as of tremendous importance. He calls it a decisive victory, and indicates what is going to happen at the next general election. I refer him to West Middlesex. During the Brockville by-election there were only about three meetings held by each party. In West Middlesex fully a dozen or more meetings were held by each party. Many cabinet ministers went down there. The electors heard the policy of the Government expounded, and heard the explanation of it. You know the result. The electors of Ontario like the Conservative policy the best when they do not hear anything about it. When they hear it fully explained they defeat the Government candidate."

Urges Reformation.

Mr. MacKay then went into an exhaustive criticism of the Whitney Government policy. The greatest matter before the people of Ontario today was reforestation. Mr. Thomas Southworth, an expert, had figured out that with a proper policy in the matter of reforestation, an income of $30,000,000 could be derived every year. When it is considered that the total revenue of the Province at this time was only $7,000,000, the importance of the matter is apparent.

"If Mr. Southworth's figures are within a thousand miles of being correct," said the speaker, "the importance of reforestation is demonstrated. If his plan were carried out the Province of Ontario would have four and a half times its present revenue derived from forest, mines, lakes and all such. If by natural growth and reforestation we could get that income, what could we not do for agriculture, arts and education? I tell you it is the most important subject before the people of Ontario today. It cannot be solved as Mr. Whitney is doing it by appointing Prof. Fernow to a chair and letting him treat the subject academically. It is not an academic subject. It is a practical subject, and should be treated in a practical manner by a practical man. I leave you to judge whether this is mere twaddle."

Another Whitney Failure.

The reform of the civil service was another policy which Mr. Whitney had advocated, and had utterly failed to introduce. Men should be appointed to these positions because of merit, and promoted or transferred as the efficiency of the service demanded. The spoils system should be kept out of the civil service.

Mr. MacKay had asked for law reform to simplify the practice of law, hasten appeals and such. Absolutely nothing had been done in this matter. He declared that he had no confidence in the present attorney-general to bring about the needed reforms.

The Whitney Government's financial policy came in for a scathing criticism. The Opposition had advocated certain reforms in the mining laws. The Conservatives had laughed, but afterwards Hon. Frank Cochrane adopted the suggestions of the Opposition. Mines were no longer assessed on a flat rate, but on a royalty basis. The Conservatives were going to do away with the succession duties' act, but today it is one of the Government's chief sources of income. The same was also true of the supplementary revenues act. These may have been mere twaddle, but the Conservatives found them good enough to adopt.

The inefficient management of the department of education, the partisan enforcement of the liquor licenses and the iniquitous spoils system were all unsparingly criticised. The shuffling attitude of Hon. Dr. Pyne on the rural school laws, the merciless and shameless political execution of many public servants and the doubtful dealings with liquor licenses in Toronto and other places were shown up in their true light. The expenditure of public money on the University of Toronto, with absolutely no check on that expenditure, was characterized as against all the principles of responsible government.

Mr. MacKay concluded his speech with an eloquent tribute to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the outstanding figure in the politics of the empire. Canada was destined to occupy a great place in the destiny of nations, and the gratitude of Canadians was due to the great leader of the Liberal party in Canada.

Mr. M. Y. McLean.

Mr. M. Y. McLean, Seaforth, the Federal Liberal candidate for South Huron, was the next speaker. He was pleased to greet the Liberals of South Huron. He was delighted to know that the convention had nominated Mr. H. K. Kellennan for the local house. There was no man in South Huron whom he would rather have as running mate and colleague than Mr. Kellerman. He was confident that with the splendid support of the Liberals of South Huron, this riding would be redeemed to the cause of Liberalism. He was confident that the party would rally to their support.

The speaker paid a glowing tribute to Hon. Mr. McKay. There was absolutely no doubt but that he was the right man in the right place. He was a leader in every sense of the term. Mr. McKay was rooted and grounded in Liberal principles. He took the stand that the Government should be by the people. The Liberal party stood for the people, it was the party of the people. The speech of Mr. McKay had shown that he was in touch with the people, and there was no doubt but that he would shortly lead the Liberal party into power. Then the people of Ontario would have a Government that would be of the people. The Liberal party had fought and died for the principles of Liberalism and responsible Government. There was danger at present from an oligarchy worse than the Family Compact.

Mr. McLean then went into a scathing denunciation of the enforcement of the license laws in South Huron. Capable men had been removed from the commission and in their place were substituted men who were extreme partisans. A proper administration of the license laws was promised by Mr. Harry Elber, M. P. P., and other Conservative speakers. The commission thought that in a small village called Khiva in the riding, there was no need of a hotel, and the commission decided to cut the hotel off. Mr. Barney Cunningham went to see Harry Elber, the member, and during that interview sulphur smoke was seen to come out of the windows, if the word of spectators were to be believed. Shortly after that interview, the license commission saw new light on the matter, and as a result, the license was not cut off. There was no danger that the license will be cut off. Mr. McLean pointed out that Mr. Cunningham was an active Conservative worker.

In Exeter, the commission decided that there was not enough population in that town for so many hotels, and it was decided to cut off a certain hotel owned by two Liberals. The hotel then passed into the hands of a staunch Conservative, and then again the commission saw a new light. It was suddenly found that the population had increaed greatly, and there were sufficient to support the extra hotel. Such was the record of the party in this riding. More could be said, but the instances quoted were sufficient to show the partisan nature of the administration of the license laws.

Mr. McLean then paid a splendid tribute to the services of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the government of this nation. The Liberal Government has enacted legislation immensely valuable to the people of Canada, especially on behalf of the farmers. No Government had ever done so much for the farmers as this Government.

Mr. McLean, in his concluding remarks, declared that the outlook for the party in South Huron was very bright, and he expressed the greatest confidence in the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the assurance that he would continue to guide the affairs of this growing nation for many years yet.

The meeting concluded with cheers for the candidates, Hon. Mr. MacKay, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the King.

Statisticians declare that in 1950 Vienna will have a population of 4,000,000. The city council, looking far ahead, is already considering how best to preserve for the coming generations a goodly supply of open-air spaces. It it proposed to surround the city with a broad girdle of forest lands and meadows, a somewhat ambitious project, which it is estimated would cost 50,000,000 kronen, or more than £2,000,000.

As evidence of the decline of tipling in England it is stated that the number of public houses in 1881 was 96,727, and in 1904 the number was 91,502.

NET TIGHTENS ABOUT SUNFIELD

Damaging Evidence Against the Prisoner in the Hamilton Murder Case.

Hamilton, Oct. 10.—There was not a great deal of sensational evidence in the Jake Sunfield murder trial here this morning. The net around Sunfield is being tightened. Mrs. R. Radsyk denied that she had been intimate with the prisoner and had promised to elope with him to Chicago.

Antonie Schwartz, a fellow employe of Sunfield's, heard a shot and saw smoke. Mrs. Radsyk ran to him, her hands covered with blood, and screaming: "Help, help, Jake shoot me."

Arthur Brandow, a Harvester Company policeman, came up, and he, Schwartz and Sunfield entered the house, where Sunfield sat down to eat some pie. Brandow and Schwartz lifted the almost dead Radsyk out of the weltering pool of blood on the floor on to the bed. Sunfield came in, and picked up a pocketbook that fell from Radsyk, putting it in his inside pocket. Schwartz, who was able to speak Polish, asked Radsyk who shot him and Radsyk was barely able to say, "The fellow with the revolver."

Sunfield shouted to Radsyk, "You shot her, she's gone to a doctor's," referring to Radsyk's wife.

When the policemen arrived Sunfield, who had gone back to the table, and laid his head on his arms, said: "This will be my finish."

BRANDON LOTS DID NOT SELL

Manitoba Real Estate Put Up to London Found No Bidders.

London, Oct. 10.—Provis & Sons, Manchester, auctioneers, offered for sale yesterday several lots of building land in the city of Brandon. There are 2,300 plots to be sold, and the vendors are the Kensington (Brandon) Land Development Company, Limited, who were represented by J. C. Murray, general manager, and Arthur Wilks, accountant.

The first plots offered for sale measured about 33 yards. As no one would bid, Mr. Provis said he was prepared to sell the first lot at 6 pence a yard out and out, and if a few lots were taken the price would come out at about 5 pence a yard. Some questions were asked, but no offers were made.

KING TO ATTEND WEDDING

The Pagets Expect Unusual Honor at Coming Marriage of Daughter.

London, Oct. 11.—It is said that the King is likely to attend the marriage of Leila Paget, daughter of Sir Arthur and Lady Paget, to Ralph Paget, which, it is understood, will take place on Oc. 28 at Kingston on the Thames.

Ralph Paget is described in some accounts of the engagement as a relative of the fiancee, but the relationship is extremely remote. In fact, Lady Paget describes it as something like a thirty-third cousinship.

Ralps Paget is now at Balmoral, where he has gone by command of the King, who had a special liking for his father, Sir Augustus Paget, who was, in some respects, during his long tenure of office at Vienna, regarded as the beau ideal by his brother ambassadors.

The young couple will pass their honeymoon on the continent, and then go to Bangkok, where Paget is the British minister and consul-general.

WOULD REDUCE STEPHEN'S TERM

The Railwaymen Think That a Nominal Punishment Would Have Sufficed.

St. Thomas, Oct. 10. — The Times says: The case of Murray Stephens, ex-Wabash engineer, who was yesterday sentenced to six months in jail, is now receiving the attention of the local locomotive engineers, and a petition for a reduction of sentence is started. In view of the fact that the wreck for which Stephens has been held responsible was the first of a series ending in the prosecution of railwaymen, it is felt that a shorter term in jail would serve the ends of justice.

The various railway bodies in the city are interesting themselves towards having his sentence annuled. The impression prevails that a nominal punishment would have just as satisfactorily met the end desired.

Stephens had already left the country when the warrant had been issued for his arrest.

He was advised of the probability of being taken into custody if he returned. He came back, however, and went to work at Bridgeburg and could have easily avoided prosecution.

He has a wife and several small children dependent upon him.

Immediately after the accident he was discharged from the company's employ; and after so long a service in railway work it has been a hard matter to find an engagement elsewhere. Considering these and the reflection made by the grand jury in their presentment on the escape from indictment and conviction of "those in exalted position," while "humble parties" are punished, have moved many outside of railway circles to apply themselves towards securing the engineer's freedom.

The grand jury, in making their presentment at the assizes, referred to the epidemic of wrecks and subsequent prosecution of employes. They said the people are awakening to the fact that the traveling public have a right to demand from the railway companies that they exercise caution and be vigilant in protecting the lives of passengers traveling on railway trains.

"From the evidence before us we are forced to the conclusion that the officers administering the law have not prosecuted in some cases the parties primarily responsible for the great loss of human life during the past year. Trainmen will not run by semaphores when they know by so doing they will incur instant dismissal and other punishment, but they will run them when the act is winked at by high officials to make fast time. While we are in favor of enforcing the law in all cases to protect human life, we do not favor the prosecution and conviction of the humble parties to the offense and letting those in exalted positions escape the penalty incurred.

Chief Justice Meredith said railway engineers were brave and intelligent men, and there was no railway company in the land strong enough to defy public opinion and dismiss a man because he obeyed the law.

TRYING TO OUST WARREN?

Clergue Wants New President for Lake Superior Organization.

New York, Oct. 11.—Advices from Philadelphia state that the efforts of F. H. Clergue, director of the Lake Superior Corporation, to elect a new president of the company to succeed C. D. Warren, have caused considerable friction, and resulted in the postponing until Nov. 6 of the annual meeting.

Clergue is understood to be acting for the Canadian Improvement Company, underwriting syndicate, through whose financial help the old company was reorganized, and which is not satisfied with results obtained by the present management, but is opposed by the Ontario Government and the Philadelphia directors of the company.

HELPLESS IN RAVINE LIVES ON ROOTS

Madrid, Oct. 11.—The Spanish minister of colonies has received a telegram from the governor of the Canaries relating to the adventures of an American named Wencer Hening. Mr. Hening left Guimar to walk to Oroteva. The weather became so misty that he lost himself. As he went on he had the misfortune to slip and fall into a deep ravine and was seriously hurt.

The American consul at Santa Cruz de Teneriffe, reported to the government that the man was missing. Detachments of gendarmes were started in search of him. He was found yesterday lying helpless at the bottom of a ravine known as Risco de Escalera, where he had kept himself alive by eating plants and roots from Sept. 28, the date of the accident.

ENGINEERS TO DEMAND AN EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 11.—The delegates to the convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen yesterday held another executive session. Beyond the statement that addresses were made by Grand Master J. J. Hanrahan, and Second Vice-President Grand Master T. Shea, and Fourth Vive-President Grand Master A. P. Kelly, of Chicago, nothing was made public.

Grand Master Hanrahan, discussing the conference to be held at Buffalo next Tuesday, with the divisional chairmen of the brotherhood, said that the eight-hour day question would be the question of the conference.

One of the women in the Kingston earthquake showed what she thought was great coolness. When the first shock has passed she hurried out on to the lawn in front of her hotel, blessing her stars for her escape. She felt that she was perfectly cool, for she remembered that she had left her powder puff behind and determined to have it. Her manner of recovering it was as cool as the rest of her conduct. She sent a black servant [illegible] the tottering building after it.

DOES DR. NESBITT KNOW?

It need not be assumed too hastily that Dr. Beattie Nesbitt was talking twaddle at Gravenhurst, as Mr. Whitney alleges.

Whatever his faults as a politician, Dr. Nesbitt was never suspected of sinister relations with the corporations. To give him his due, he was the first Conservative member of the Legislature to take an aggressive stand on the power question. He claims, with some reason, to be the pioneer of the public ownership movement in his own party. Public office has not put him out of touch with public life. He has kept his practiced hand constantly on the political machine in Toronto. He probably knows something of what is going on in the inner councils of his party.

Certainly there are symptoms which give color to his suggestion that all is not peace and harmony in the Junta at Queen's Park. Rumors of a division of opinion in the cabinet on the power question were circulating before Dr. Nesbitt's "break" at Gravenhurst. Has the Government encountered unforeseen and formidable obstacles to the development of its policy? Are these obstacles inherent in the policy itself, or have they been created by the influences which Dr. Nesbitt hints at? The power question seems to be at a standstill, for the present at least. The situation gives additional interest and piquancy to Dr. Nesbitt's remarks.

THE TEACHING OF TRADES.

In sociological and educational activity Massachusetts has long led the other states of the American Union, and strives to keep in the van. The latest matter to be taken up by the legislature is industrial education. Some time ago a commission was appointed to investigate conditions in this respect in the United Kingdom, Germany, France, the Netherlands and Switzerland. The commission has just presented a report containing a mass of information.

As a rule in countries where industrial education has been established it is regarded as a matter of national concern, the schools being liberally subsidized by the government and the municipality. In Manchester, where the school of technology occupies a building that cost over a half million dollars, support comes from the state, the municipality, and students' fees. In Ireland the department of agriculture and technical instruction directs the expenditure annually of a million dollars, the local authorities contributing one-quarter of the sum. The Bavarian Government bears one-half the cost of maintaining the chief technical school of Munich, which amounts to 80,000 marks, the city paying the other half. Berne has an apprenticeship school, supported by the city, the canton of Berne, the Swiss federation and the sale of products of the school.

The report shows no inconsiderable divergence as regards the emphasis laid upon the industrial training afforded to students of different grades. A two-year course is offered by the schools of Holland, where the pupil enters at the age of fourteen years. No attempt is made to teach a trade completely in the Amsterdam school for metal workers, only a general course being given in woodwork, forging and ornamental ironwork, and machine shop practice, shop work taking up one-half the time and theory and drawing the other half. The pupil, after graduation, is required to report to the school the name of his employer, the character of his work and the wages received. In the technical schools of France thirteen years is the age at which pupils begin their trade studies. During the first six months the boy gets an introduction to rudiments of the various associated trades on the curriculum. He then chooses one of seventeen specific trades taught in the school, and this he follows until his course is completed.

A different aim is that of the Glasgow Technical College, which has no less than six thousand pupils. The expressed purpose of this institution is to supplement rather than to supersede the ordinary apprenticeship, and it is worthy of note that nearly 80 per cent of the pupils are over twenty years of age. The Swiss schools admit pupils at fifteen, but hereafter all apprentices will be required to attend their department schools. An important feature of the Swiss system is a school occupying a position between the apprentice school, whose aim is to make good ordinary workmen of the pupils, and the Polytechnic, where advanced instruction in architecture and engineering is given. Germany makes attendance at industrial schools compulsory for apprentices. There are three grades of schools. In the first the pupil is taught his trade; in the second he is fitted for upper foreman or superintendent, while the third produces the leading technologists. The first grade connects directly with the common schools. Courses for boys from sixteen years are provided in the English technical schools; in Ireland boys from six to sixteen are found, and girls from twelve to sixteen learn lace-making in the schools at Killarney.

Of interest is the attitude of organized labor to these schools. A syndicate of carpenters from various parts of Belgium recently visited a school of carpentry at Brussels which has been in operation but three years. The aim of this school is to turn out good workmen at the age of eighteen and thus avoid the long apprenticeships required in shops. The investigators, after inspecting the work, are said to have expressed their approval of the institution. The trade guilds of Munich assist in maintaining the lower industrial schools, in which instruction in some forty trades is given. In all countries visited, says the report, interviews were held with men conversant with labor interests, from whom it was learned that the industrial schools are looked upon with much favor by representative of organized labor.

MR. BORDEN STRIKES A SNAG.

Mr. Borden's tour of the west has not been entirely smooth. He has been sharply reminded that his so-called Halifax platform is his own carpentering, and not the work of the Conservative party. There have been rumors that when he reached Winnipeg he was quietly but plainly told by party managers that some of his planks were not acceptable to western Conservatives, and would have to pass the test of a convention. The Calgary Eye-Opener, which has an uncomfortable habit of calling a spade a spade, says a resolution to this effect was drawn up by Mr. Sanford Evans, late Conservative candidate in Winnipeg, but he had not the heart to present it in cold blood to Mr. Borden, and left the responsibility to others. The Eye-Opener gives the text of the resolution, which calls for a Dominion convention to be held at Winnipeg, if possible, in January for the purpose of "deciding in convention and formulating the various planks of the Conservative party platform, setting forth their attitude on the great political issues of the day." It further intimated that " in case Mr. R. L. Borden refuses to call a Dominion convention in the interests of the party, this association and the other Conservative associations of this city withdraw their active influence from the meetings held by Mr. Borden in Winnipeg and the Province of Manitoba, and that they communicate with the Conservative associations in the Provinces of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, requesting them to also withdraw their support."

Mr. Borden's programme has encountered serious opposition in his own camp in the east. The platform he laid down in Halifax is merely Mr. Borden's platform, and his party, if it were returned to power, would not consider it binding or official, and would probably make short work of some of the planks.

If Dr. Beattie Nesbitt were a Grit he would be another case for Mr. Judd.

Dr. Nesbitt smiles jovially and dares the Government to knock the chip off his shoulder.

Citizens seem to be inclining toward high-pressure for fire protection, and less high-pressure in politics.

Canon Dann's experience of filtration in Ireland is that of many communities on this side of the Atlantic. Filtration doesn't always filter.

The Russian Government at last appears to have the kind of Duma it wanted—one which may be driven by a lady and will stand without hitching.

The settlement of the C. P. R. telegraphers' dispute is another triumph for arbitration, or, in other words, the application of common sense to the problems of labor and capital.

Mr. Borden tells a western audience that "foreigners," meaning British investors, will control the Grand Trunk Pacific. Be careful, Mr. Borden! Recollect how Sir Wilfrid was tripped up!

There are varying views as to the solution of the water problem, but citizens are more and more in agreement upon one point—that an independent high-pressure system would pay for itself and should be a feature of any scheme adopted.

LITTLE BRANTFORD'S CHIRP.

[Brantford Expositor.]

London puts in a claim for a technical school which rumor has it the Ontario Government intends establishing at some point in Ontario west of Toronto. London has little or no claim to anything of the kind, seeing that it is not an important manufacturing center, and has not itself shown sufficient interest in technical education to even establish manual training classes. Besides, it already has a normal school and an insane asylum, and ought to be satisfied. Let it not be selfish, but give Brantford a chance.

RUDYARD KIPLING.

[Northern Capital.]

In the dim dawn light of the waking world, when life in blindness wrought,
And savage tribes in the uncleared land
for food and freedom fought,
There rose a singer among the clans, in the glare of the desert sun,
And he found his home wherever he strayed—for he knew that life is One.

He dwelt with the tribes of the marsh and moor—he sat at the board of kings;
He tasted the toil of the burdened slave,
and the joy that triumph brings;
But whether to jungle or palace hall or white-walled tent he came,
He was brother to king and soldier and slave—his welcome was the same.

There has risen a singer out of the East;
in the clatter and chatter and strife;
The babble of markets and blur of print—
the turmoil men call Life.
He came to the task that was set for him;
and scarce was that work begun,
When he knew that the world is a-building
yet—and the power that builds is One.

He knew by the spirit's countersign that
Teuton and Celt and Greek,
Kaffir and Pathan and Rajpcot King, the self-same language speak.
Face to face he had talked with each—
they have given him of their best,
He has made his home on the sea and the land, and brought the East to the West.

O singer of men and the hearts of men,
you have called the soul by name,
You have followed its path thro' the changing world. Is it not forever the same?
And whether you travel to Northern snows
or the Southern sea and sun,
You will find, as you found in the ages
past, that the heart of the world is One.

WHEN STARS ARE IN THE QUIET SKIES.

[Edward Bulwer Lytton.]

When stars are in the quiet skies,
Then most I pine for thee;
Bend on me then thy tender eyes,
As stars look on the sea.
For thoughts, like waves that glide by night,
Are stillest when they shine;
Mine earthly love lies hushed in light
Beneath the heaven of thine.

There is an hour when angels keep Familiar watch o'er men,
When coarser souls are wrapt in sleep—
Sweet spirit, meet me then.
There is an hour when holy dreams
Through slumber fairest glide;
And in that mystic hour it seems
Thou shouldst be by my side.

My thoughts of thee too sacred are
For daylight's common beam;
I can but know you as my star,
My angel and my dream;
When stars are in the quiet skies,
Then most I pine for thee;
Bend on me then thy tender eyes,
As stars look on the sea!

THE BOSTON VETERANS AT TORONTO.

[New York Sun.]

Chaplain Welch preached a "forcible" sermon on "The Lust of Drink," and it was thoroughly appreciated by the Boston veterans. Their untiring zeal in destroying, so far as in them lies, the drink supply, has made them perhaps one of the most practical and fruitful of temperance forces, and the subject of the sermon was a compliment which gratified them highly.

There was a hasty luncheon before the sermon; and after it the "local militiamen soon put themselves on terms of comradeship with the visitors." International peace and comity were promoted there, at the Toronto Club and in other centers of plain living and high thinking; and the strength and heartiness of Canadian reciprocity on these occasions are famous.

Whether on the Heights of Abraham or in the Vaults of Bourbon, these heroes will always be an honor and an ornament to Massachusetts; and Scotland, Jamaica, Santa Cruz, Plymouth, Holland, Rye and a hundred other places of renown are irreparably associated with the deathless glory of this legion.

GIVES HIS MODEL HOUSEMAID AWAY

Millionaire John Farson Denies He Offered Her $6,000,000 to Stay on Job.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—John Farson, Oak Park's eccentric millionaire, last night gave his model housemaid, Miss Nellie Gavin, in marriage to Daniel McCabe, a letter carrier. The wedding took place in the parsonage of the new St. Edmund's parish, Oak Park avenue and Pleasant street, and the Rev. Father John Code officiated.

Besides Mr. Farson there were present other servants of the household, as well as some from the homes of neighbors.

After it was all over it was up to Mr. Farson to tell what happened and how those present were dressed.

"I wore a full dress suit with white vest and tie, black silk hat, and patent leather shoes," said Mr. Farson.

"Nellie? What did Nellie wear? She had on a blue hat—she is a beautiful girl, you know—and, really, that's all I remember. No, no; I didn't promise any model-servant girl $6,000,000 to remain with me for life. That was a newspaper story of six years ago.

"Nellie was a good girl. Later she brought her sister here. She was Winnie. Winnie married an Iowa farmer about two years ago and has often visited us with her husband.

"I will not say anything about presents, because that is a personal matter."

FIRST SIGNS ARE IN THE BACK

Says People Neglect Nature's Danger Signals and Tells of a Mixture.

Take care of backache. A great many cases of kidney complaint are reported about here, also bladder trouble and rheumatism.

An authority once stated that pain in the back, loins or region of the kidneys is the danger signal nature hangs out to notify the sufferer that there is something wrong with the kidneys, which should receive immediate attention. Only vegetable treatment should be administered and absolutely no strongly alcoholic patent medicines, which are harmful to the kidneys and bladder.

The following prescription, while simple, harmless and inexpensive, is known and recognized as a sovereign remedy for kidney complaint. The ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well the bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

This preparation is said to restore the natural function of the kidneys, so they will sift and strain the poisonous waste matter, uric acid, etc., from the blood, purifying it and relieving rheumatism. Backache will be relieved, the urine will be neutralized and cleahed and no longer a cause of irritation, thereby overcoming such symptoms as weak bladder, painful, frequent and other urinary difficulties.

This is worth trying and may prove just what many people here need.

Potato growers in North Wales are warned by the board of agriculture and fisheries to destroy at once any plant infected with the disease known as "black scab." It is a disease of recent introduction, and passes in the spring from the non-infectious winter stage to the highly dangerous summer stage.

JOHN BULLS CARED BY SOCIALISTS

A National Movement Organized to Combat the Radical Growth.

London, Oct. 7.—A great non-partisan movement against Socialism is being organized in London. It is high time for the country to be aroused on the subject, for the socialist propaganda has grown to stupendous proportions. There will be no less than 1,500 socialist meetings held tomorrow throughout England under the auspices of the independent labor party and social democratic federation.

Socialism in one form or another has disintegrated the present Government and a majority of Parliament. Even the Liberals themselves admit that it has come for a radical political reorganization throughout the country. Preparation for organized resistance has been undertaken by the British Constitution Association, which, although a majority of the members are Unionists, is non-partisan in its aims. A national appeal has been issued by its president, Lord Balfour, of Burleigh. He sets forth the situation and its dangers when he says:

"The essential condition for progress of a community is that the incentive to efficiency on the part of its individuals shall be of the strongest possible, and this required incentive can only be supplied by the strict application of the principle that the earnings of each individual shall be securely preserved to him. The development of our system of justice has been governed by this principle, and its chief aim has been to prevent individuals from plundering one another, and to maintain intact for each whatever he has earned.

Denies Aid to Inefficient.

"Year by year more legislation is proposed of which the effect is to draw upon the earnings of the efficient for the benefit of the inefficient. Year by year Parliament makes life harder for those whose labor benefits the state, and easier for those who are a drag upon it. In the supposed interests of the "majority" now one and now another section is victimized, and "liberty of the individual" through a constant infringement becomes little more than a phrase basis upon which our civilization rests. The central fact which has guided its evolution from a condition of a mere savage horde is that of the greatest empire in the world is being sapped, and unless this is staid we shall be led to the enervation which characterized the latter days of the Roman empire, and which has heralded the decay of most of the great civilizations of the past."

Face Grim Political Struggle.

The appeal for co-operation is already bringing strong support, and there can be no doubt that political issues of this country will concentrate forthwith upon this question.

Burleigh's move naturally is stimulating the Socialists to renewed activity, and the prospects are that English politics will soon become fully as strenuous as the American struggle, where the issue is more obscured and more personal, but none the less essential.

Most of the stone marbles used by boys are made in Germany. The refuse only of the marble and agate quarries is employed, and this is treated in such a way that there is practically no waste.

CURZON ASKS COLLEGE FUND

London, Oct. 11.—Nicholas Murray Butler, who recently laid stress in New York upon the good educational work being done by provincial universities in England, such as Manchester, Liverpool and Birmingham, is apparently skeptical of the older seats of learning like Oxford and Cambridge falling in line with modern ideas.

Lord Curzon, who some time ago lamented there was no work for England's retired pro-consuls, has apparently found an outlet for his abundant activities. On the death of Lord Goschen, he was elected chancellor to the University of Oxford. This office long has been regarded as a purely honorary one, but the former viceroy of India does not intend to be idle.

In his first public act in his new capacity he has issued an appeal for funds which will equip the university for the work of national education, which Curzon is convinced it can still pursue. A quarter million pounds is the sum for which he appeals to old Oxford men.

Need Funds for Library.

The famous Bodleian library is in pressing needs of funds, and to its requirements the chancellor proposes to devote £50,000 of the £250,000 which he hopes will be contributed. More professorships of modern languages are another necessity of the day. Among these is a professorship of Japanese. Agriculture, botany, chemistry, electricity, engineering and hygiene demand better exposition in the university than these subjects can at present receive owing to the lack of funds for an electrical laboratory, which would cost £150,000. The Ashmolean museum also needs financial help.

It is expected that Curzon's appeal will not fall upon deaf ears, and on the whole the scheme is highly commended. It is feared, however, that Curzon's initiative will not go far enough. With the chancellor is associated a committee of ten who are rather well wishers of Oxford than pioneers of education and advocates of the modernization of the university. There is fear this committee is not of a caliber to bring about that devoutly wished for consummation.

Move in the Right Direction.

Still the Curzon appeal is considered a move in the right direction. In regard to Cambridge the vice-chancellor of that university this week uttered a word of warning. He pointed out that the spirit of unrest is abroad, and that the Government's rejection of a recent proposal for the appointment of a commission for reform was merely meant that the universities had been given a period of grace. They had, he said, in their own hands powers to carry out reforms which the large body of the public is convinced is urgently needed. There is hardly suggested any change which could not be effected by internal reorganization and by the co-operation of the colleges. The general opinion in regard to the response to this question coincides with Murray Butler's.

THREE FACTS

For Sick Women To Consider.

FIRST.—That almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful periods, displacements of the female organs, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing-down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

SECOND.—The medicine that holds the record for the largest number of absolute cures of female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates, strengthens and cures diseases of the female organism as nothing else can.

For thirty years it has been helping women to be strong, curing backache, nervousness, kidney troubles, inflammation of the female organs, weakness and displacements, regulating the periods perfectly and overcoming their pains. It has also proved itself invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the change of life.

THIRD.—The great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women.—Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. From symptoms given, your trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.—Mrs. Pinkham is daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years under her direction and since her decease she has been advising sick women free of charge. Out of the vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Surely, any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

AS A MAN SOWS

Copyright, 1907, by the North American Company.

BY HELEN WALLACE,

Author of "The Greatest of These," "Their Hearts' Desire," Etc

"I have merely spoken to her. Being so young and already engaged, they didn't take her about much," he said, suavely. "She struck me as being very shy and timid, though I know some people go further and hint—"

"That she wants something of the shilling," Vi finished the sentence for him with her usual loud laugh.

Mr. Ashe found this method of getting information without committing himself to direct questions or statements a very useful one.

"Oh, no, of course not; dear Isobel, as you say, is very shy and timid," she said, rolling her fine eyes upward to the faint blue flim of her cigarette smoke. "But I should like to know," sitting more erect and speaking with sudden rancor, "what induced her to leave home in that extraordinary fashion, or, since I understand that she'd walk into the river if anyone bade her do it, perhaps I should say who induced her?"

Young Lane, who had the entry into that charmed circle on the verge of which his hostess was still uneasily hovering, had been captured by a mature lady who coveted youthful homage, so that Vi could unbridle her tongue—not that she ever subjected it to much restraint.

"If I were Basil Conyers, I'd like to know that," she went on; "but perhaps he thinks it wiser not to ask too many questions; for, if he wants Stormont, he's got to take her with it—not that he needs it, for he's got plenty of his own; but that never hindered any man that ever I knew from wanting more," said Vi, shrewdly.

And how much more eagerly a man wants it if he had nothing, and how much more excuse there is for him, Evelyn Ashe may have been thinking as he lay lazily back amid the dry, springy heather and plied Miss Rudgeley with questions, which, to the limit of her knowledge, and far beyond it, she was but too ready to answer, and the story lost nothing in suggestiveness by passing through Vi Rudgeley's mind and coming from her lips.

"Why, is it time that we were making a move already?" she explained, with genuine surprise and regret, as the keepers began to hustle suggestively about, and the men got up with more or less alacrity from the heather.

Ashe was one of those who lingered a little. He could afford to lose a little of that golden afternoon, for he had spent what might prove to be a most profitable hour, and, though the knowledge might not be very flattering to his self-love, he was conscious that by simply encouraging her ill-natured gossip and her railing against Stormont pride and Stormont exclusiveness, he had made more progress in Miss Rudgeley's good graces than by his most aimful and carefully prepared advances.

And to progress in Vi's good graces was of the utmost importance to the Hon. Evelyn Ashe—some people laid a slightly ironical emphasis on the courtesy prefix. Of the great army of those who live by their wits, the skilled practitioners devote themselves to a special class—the young, the old men or women—and it was among the last that Mr. Ashe found his subjects, and for his chosen walk in life he was well equipped. An effective personality—a tall figure, slight and graceful without being unmanly; a well-featured face, with somewhat remarkable eyes of an opaque slaty, gray, which could look melting or mournful or mocking as occasion required, but which were always, as one of his fair friends dubbed them, "inscrutable," a definition which, as supplying a touch of mystery, added sensibly to his stock in trade. That hint of mystery had been judiciously heightened by vague rumors of some romance, some quixotic conduct which had hindered his advance in life. How such reports had originated it might be uncharitable to inquire; but fortunately for Mr. Ashe, "hawks do not pyke oot hawks' een," and, though a good many men despised him, and still more disliked him, those who knew did not take the trouble to disclose how baseless these floating fictions were.

In his own class he was well enough, received because of his birth and connections, while amid the great and ever-increasing army of the "nouveaux riches" and the would-be smart he posed as an authority upon the great world, and his services were eagerly sought after as guide and adviser in its untrodden ways. Of course, his El Dorado was a wealthy marriage, but rich women are too well watched, or proved themselves, as Vi Rudgeley had as yet done, much too wary and too well aware of the price they could command.

Now, as the autumn afternoon burned away in its brief glory, his thoughts were busy, though he showed his usual excellent form as a shot, not only for his own credit and pleasure, but to pay for his invitation in recognized fashion by running up the total of a big bag. Vi Rudgeley's talk, half heedless, half malicious, had suggested what appeared a very profitable opening for his special talents.

He topped a long slope, and as the wide view burst upon him he stood still. Far away in the sunny distance he could see the great house lording it over the broad valley, and at the thought of all it implied he drew a deep breath. For a moment he let his racing fancies have full play, then cool, calculating reason pulled them up. He had better have something to go upon before he played Alnaschar; meantime the first thing was to get a footing at Stormont, and then feel his way with the girl herself.

A bird rose, though almost beyond range. He took a swift and steady aim, and as it came pitching earthward a mass of ruffled feathers, which had been a thing of life a moment before, his thin but well-cut lips drew to a reflective smile, as if he had brought down more than a bird on the wing.

CHAPTER VI.

On the Terrace.

"Then she remembers nothing—nothing at all! It seems impossible. Of course, one has heard of such things, but I always thought it was story-book rot."

"So did I," said Lady Stormont, "but Dr. Purves says it is by no means uncommon, and so does Sir Hugh Weston. I did not write to you that we had had him here," as Conyers started slightly at the mention of the great brain specialist. "I thought if I did that you might fancy things were much more serious than he thinks them to be."

"And what does he think?" eagerly.

"He says that this loss of memory, like the loss of speech, is only temporary, and has likely been caused by some shock, a fall, perhaps, and that like the other it may soon pass. She speaks with perfect ease now, so that makes me very hopeful. But even if her memory should not return for some time, he says that we must not regret it, that it is far better that she should forget what she has passed through. It is giving her mind an absolute rest; she is making a new beginning — starting life afresh, free from all morbid fancies. I see a great change already, and I am sure it will strike you, too. But she knew no one—not even her father nor me."

"That is hard. How does Sir David take it?"

Lady Stormont's face clouded.

"He is taking it dreadfully to heart. He can't see it, as it seems to me, that after all it is a comparatively small price to pay for a great permanent good. It was terribly strange at first. She had to be shown her way about the house and among her own little possessions as if she were the veriest stranger. Her whole life—everything—is a blank to her before that moment when she opened her eyes in the hall, but she is so grateful for kindness, for affection. It goes to my heart," the quick tears starting to her eyes, "when she thanks me for a word, or a look even, which she would never have noticed before, she was so passive often, poor child, but now it is quite different. Sometimes I say to Sir David," smiling through the unshed tears, "that if I did not know she was my Isobel, I should think it someone else in her likeness. Her very voice seems a little changed, but Sir Hugh says that will soon wear off; that by some freak of memory she has retained the accent she has been hearing last, though everything else has gone truly," with a shiver. "We are fearfully and wonderfully made; indeed, one hardly likes to think of the tricks our faculties can play us."

"But she is better—really better?"

"In health, you mean? Yes, I think she is perfectly well. I thought she would have had all some terrible illness after all she must have suffered, but she reminds me of nothing so much as a child waking, fresh and happy, from a long sleep. But you would like to see her?"

"If I may; but—but she won't know me—how shall I—what shall I—"

"She knows of you, at least, and" (smiling) "I think she will guess the rest. There are other gifts besides memory—instinct, for example — with which you men are always so ready to endow us," with a laugh, "but perhaps I had better go first and tell her—"

"No—stop," putting out a detaining hand. "Useless you think it might be a shock to her, would it not be better if she were not prepared? Perhaps it might bring something back—might waken some memory."

Lady Stormont looked at him with rather a wavering smile.

"You will think it very strange of me, Basil, but I do not know if I am very anxious that the past should return to her, for a while at least. At first it hurt me terribly that she did not know me. I felt as if some changeling had taken the place of my Isobel, and I fear that that is what Sir David is still feeling; but now when I see her so sweet and happy I can hardly bear to disturb her peace. However," with a sigh, "perhaps we ought to try; you will find her on the south terrace."

"Don't be afraid, I'll be very cautious!" and with a reassuring nod Conyers turned and hastily left the room.

He had but newly returned to Stormont after a few days' absence. Having been assured that there was no cause for anxiety in his cousin's condition, instinct bade him leave parents and child alone together. The "business" which he pleaded as a reason for departure was no mere pretext, as that hard-worked word frequently is, but he experienced a most unusual difficulty in giving his mind to it, and his agent found his employer very pre-occupied and indifferent. Possibly the young man found his state of mind somewhat puzzling to himself. He had been engaged to marry his cousin, therefore, of course, he loved her, he would have said, if he had ever thought about the matter, but he had been quite content when separated from her, and in Norway, before the terible news came, had in truth thought very little about her.

But now Isobel's face when she had raised her head from his shoulder, Isobel's look when her eyes had met his, haunted him, and brought back that strange tumult of the blood, that thrill and jar through all his being, as of some new force coming into play which until that night had been unknown to him.

From the sheltered south terrace the Italian garden, with its formal beds, its quaintly trimmed shrubs, its fountains and urns and statues, sloped down to the river, which sparkled by, broad and swift and shallow, a contrast from the black, sullen depths of the Alder Pool. Here, when there was sunlight at all, it seemed to linger, and to heighten the alien, exotic charm of the old-world garden, which on this placid, tranquil autumn afternoon seemed steeped in slumbrous peace.

At the farther end of the terrace some warm-lined rugs were spread, and a basket chair or two, heaped with cushions, stood suggestively about. Conyers glanced at them first, expecting to see a slim, languid figure reclining in one, but they were empty, and Isobel was standing straight and tall beside the mossy balustrade, and, with her head turned away, was gazing out across the river.

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

A MODISH COAT SUIT—4249.

The young girl of today is a very fastidious person indeed in regard to her clothes, and the fond mother is, as a rule, only too glad to meet her views in the matter of becoming apparel. The stylish suit sketched will appeal to the tastes of both mother and daughter, being at once unobtrusive and up-to-date. The coat is of the short cutaway variety, semi-fitting, and finished in tailored fashion with stitched seams. The skirt is cut in five gores, the fullness being disposed in tuck-pleats that are stitched to position over the hips while flaring modishly at the hem. Blue serge was used for modeling the skirt, though panama cloth, cheviot, broadcloth or any of the novelty suitings would be appropriate. For the 16-year size 4 yards of 54-inch goods will be needed.

4249—Sizes 14, 15, 16, 17 years.

LITERARY NOTES

The Red Book Magazine which continues to grow in popularity has inaugurated a department that should make this lively publication valuable to automobilists. It is entitled "The How and the Why of Motoring," Its editor, E. Ralph Estep, is one of the foremost authorities on this latest popular pastime. Portrait studies of handsome women and a variety of complete stories continue to be notable features of the Red Book.

Hunting and hunting topics just now fill a considerable share of the waking thoughts of sportsmen throughout Canada. Consequently at this particular time, nothing could interest the lover of "the wild" more than a perusal of the fine fall hunting number sent out as the October issue of Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont. Besides the valuable information and suggestions it contains, all its stories smack of the actual and the whole combination is such as to explain the reason why the magazine has gained and retains its position in the front rank of sporting publications.

The most remarkable feat of travel in the whole history of creation, with a single exception, is the invasion of Europe, Asia, and the Americas by the elephant family, whose birth was in Africa. New light has been thrown upon this interesting chapter of natural history through the discoveries of the American Museum of Natural History; and the paleontologist in charge of the museum's recent expedition to Egypt, Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, has written fully for the October Century of "Hunting the Ancestral Elephant in the Fayum Desert." The article is freely illustrated with photographs and restorations by Charles R. Knight.

While the Woman's Home Companion for October is primarily a fashion number, the other regular departments have not in the least been slighted. The fashion editor, Grace Margaret Gould, has done a great deal to make this October number interesting and practically helpful. Jack London's article "Riding the South Sea Surf," an animated description of that "Royal Sport for the Natural Kings of Earth," and Anne Steese Richardson's "The Influence of Women on Business," are two of the numerous articles that will especially interest all readers. There are good stories by Anthony Hope, Zona Gale, Herbert D. Ward, Elliott Flower and others. Dr. Edward Everett Hale contributes a delightful talk on "The Division of Time," and the editor has some pun-Grocer."

of a cook, in order to insure good bread and pastry on baking day, is a good flour, and one which is UNIFORM. A brand which varies in quality and strength, and requires different methods of using every time, is a source of worry to any cook and the cause of much spoiled bread and pastry. "FIVE ROSES" FLOUR is made by a process which insures every barrel and bag of flour which leaves the mills being of a uniform strength, quality and color. FAILURES IN CANADA

First Quarter of This Year Shows an Unsatisfactory Condition.

Montreal, Oct. 10.—Insolvencies in the Dominion of Canada for the third quarter of 1907 made an unsatisfactory comparison with the same months last year, but the amount involved was almost identical with the figures of 1905. Manufacturing defaults numbered 97 with liabilities of $1,354,536, against 59 last year, when the amount involved was only $587,950. The increase of almost 100 per cent in total indebtedness was chiefly due to a few large defaults in the steel, building, clothing and miscellaneous classes, the difference in no instance amounting to more than $100,000. The increase in number of manufacturing failures was also noteworthy, but was well distributed throughout all the occupations in which any failures occurred. There were 196 trading defaults with liabilities of $1,195,459 against 174 last year, when the amount involved was $905,219. The largest increase was slightly more than $100,000 in groceries and meats and about the same amount in hardware, while the next largest difference was $80,000 in drygoods. Five of the fourteen trading classes recorded smaller liabilities than in the corresponding three months of 1906. In the third division of brokerage, real estate and similar failures there were four involving $23,700 against two last year for $18,245.

The value of the india rubber imported into the United States during the last year in the crude form aggregated $50,000,000. Brazil is the chief source of supply.

Majority Favored High Pressure; Speakers at the St. Paul's Club

Meters Also Thought Well of—Filtration and Typhoid Go Together.

A fairly well attended meeting was held under the auspices of the Young Men's Club of St. Paul's Cathedral last night in the lecture room of Cronyn Hall to discuss the water question. Canon Dann was chairman.

Sheriff Cameron, who spoke first, discussed the various schemes, giving a brief outline of the main points of and that have been submitted, and then proceeded to enlarge upon the Lake Huron scheme, which, he thought, would be the best for London in that it provided an unlimited supply of water that could be depended upon to be pure. The cost would be considerable, but the city must look forward to the time when the present population would perhaps be doubled. The speaker thought that the present source of supply was open to contamination from the nature of its surroundings. When the population increased the danger would be greater and the Komoka scheme would offer no solution for this difficulty.

Filtration Second Choice.

Owing to the fact that in the Komoka scheme the water would have to be pumped against a big head a great deal of pressure for fire protection would be lost.

Next to the Lake Huron scheme, Sheriff Cameron advised the adoption of the filtration scheme, using the north branch of the Thames for a supply.

In conclusion the sheriff stated that he was of the opinion that there is plenty of water for all purposes in the north branch, but he is not so sure of the supply at Komoka.

Favored High-Pressure.

Dr. John D. Wilson discussed the various schemes that had been submitted and insisted that the people wanted spring water above everything. He thought that the White and Cronyn springs to the east of the city afforded a solution of the present difficulty. This water, he said, could be pumped into the present mains.

Dr. Wilson spoke strongly in favor of high-pressure, saying that it was a certain means of insuring good fire protection at a moderate cost. He would be in favor of filtering any water that was used for street watering in connection with the high-pressure system. In concluding, Dr. Wilson threw out the suggestion that the best features of all the proposed plans be adopted and a new scheme formed therefrom.

Also for High-Pressure.

Dr. Cl. T. Campbell stated that the only sure way and the easiest way of increasing the present supply was to install meters and stop the waste. He argued that twenty gallons per capita was plenty for an individual, but that fifty gallons would probably be needed in order to meet the demands of the factories. He spoke strongly in favor of the independent high-pressure fire fighting system, which many of the larger cities were using and which had invariably given excellent results. Another means of relieving the present shortage would be to add the Kilworth springs to the Springbank supply.

Install Meters.

Mr. John M. Parsons said that the quickest, surest and cheapest way out of the present difficulty was to install meters, and stop the waste. This could be done without borrowing any money by taking the annual waterworks surplus. A high-pressure fire fighting system would not only satisfy the demands of the fire underwriters fully, but could be installed at a minimum cost and give the city the most modern and satisfactory fire protection. An ample supply could be obtained at the forks, thus getting the advantage of the flow of both branches of the Thames.

Against Filtration.

Canon Dann, in closing the meeting, struck a hard blow at filtration, stating that in the city of Cork, Ireland, where he had lived for many years, it was a fact that whenever there was an outbreak of typhoid fever it was invariably traced to the beds through which the water for the city was filtered.

The beds, he said, became contaminated by flooding during the freshets and heavy rains and all sorts of materials got washed in and caused the typhoid epidemic.

EVANGELIST TORREY SCOLDS CHICAGO

Famous Preacher Talks Plainly in Regard to the Divorce Evil.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—"I would rather receive into my home the denizens of the levee than those men and women high in society who commit polygamy and adultery by divorce. They are on no higher moral plane and they ought to know better."

With these words the Rev. R. A. Torrey proclaimed his views of divorced persons in his sermon this evening in the big tent at Chestnut and North Clark streets.

"Whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder," he cried. "The divorcee who remarries is an adulteress in the sight of God. You say we have the legal divorce. Yes, but is it considered legal according to the reckoning of Jesus Christ? In the upper classes of society, in polite society, a man is divorced, remarried and is received again with open arms. Nothing is thought of the disgraceful proceeding.

"The meanest being in the world is the man who steps in between husband and wife and destroys peace and happiness. But the meanest, most despicable, vilest, contemptible and most beastly thing is the woman who steps in between man and wife. She is less than the commonest and worst thief."

Mr. Torrey took up all the commandments from the fifth to the tenth.

"It is none of your business," he said, "whether your father is a drunkard, a murderer, or a thief. You must love your father and your mother. Never before was this more true than in the present era when children believe themselves superior to their parents because of a high school or college education. There is no shorter route to prosperity and happiness than loving your parents or a shorter road to ruin and death by not being loyal to them.

"How many before me can say they are not guilty of murder. Not wanton killing with some weapon, but murder by actions and word of mouth. I am at this moment looking at many murderers. By neglect, harshness and lack of love many a husband is grinding his wife's heart beneath his heel. How many wives are dying prematurely because of their husband's faithlessness? How many sons have killed their mothers by leading a reckless life? These places which sell liquid damnation which we call alcohol are killing thousands every year."

There were about 4,500 present in the tent and about thirty went forward as converts. Among the active workers was Alf. Allen, former welterweight champion of Canada, who was converted by Dr. Torrey in Montreal.

Cubs Wallop Siever and Take the Third Game

REULBACH TOO MUCH FOR THE TIGERS; DELIVERY PUZZLES JENNINGS' MEN

Five Times Chance's Players Make Hits for Extra Bases.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Three Edwards operated in the box in today's game of the world's championship series—Ed. Reulbach, Ed. Siever and Ed. Killian. One of them was so effective that the Tigers now stand two games lost, one tie and none won. The other two were landed upon by the Cubs for five runs.

It was a batfest for the Chicago team all the way. Only two Cubs failed to get hits. Five times Chance's men hit for extra bases.

The Tigers, on the other hand, found Reulbach a problem at all times. In the sixth they got after him hard and it looked for a while as though a typical Bennett Park rally was on. One run, the only one the Detroit men got, came over the plate. A disastrous double play put an end to the rally though and not once after that did a man get beyond second.

Cubs Shatter Reputation.

The reputation which the Cubs have for not being able to hit left handers fell flat at this afternoon's merriment. They started after Siever in the second inning with two doubes. And they kept right at him until the fifth, when Killian took his place. For one inning they made merry with Killian, but after that they got but one man on the bases and he was walked.

It was not that the Cubs played such grand ball, but that the Tigers could not find the man who kept them from winning Monday's game after the score had been tied.

One error by Davy Jones in the fourth inning was the most disastrous slip in the game. It turned out afterward that it would have made no particular difference, but it meant at least one and possibly two runs to the Cubs.

The break on the luck was all with the Cubs. The double play into which Schaefer hit in the sixth inning was luck. Schaefer lined a ball at Steinfeldt which would have gone for a hit nine times in ten, but Harry went after it and made good on a most spectacular catch. That ended the fun. And in the preceding inning O'Leary had hit into another double play. Tinker pulling in a ball which went at him like a bullet. It was more luck than good judgment, but Coughlin and Charley were both out and Tinker had pulled off a spectacular play unassisted.

No Luck for Tigers.

None of the luck in fielding broke for the Tigers, they simply had to plug along and make the best of it, while the Cubs landed on the ball. O'Leary, Schaefer and Rossman were again the stars in handling the Cubs' hot liners, and Crawford also came in for some nice work. The Chicago men were slugging and the best of fielding couldn't stop them from rapping out two-baggers.

Charley Schmidt was again on the receiving end today and the Cubs got no pilfered bases. Charley was asked to throw but once, that when Kling sacrificed, but he was there on the one throw. He dropped a couple of third strikes, and let a good many others get out of his mitt, but nothing unseemingly happened as a result of these slips, though in the third he was compelled to throw to first to get Slagle after the Cub center fielder had swung wide at three of Siever's cross-fires.

Killian Is Detroit's Star.

Much credit belongs to Ed Killian that the Cub end of the score was not larged. Ed has not pitched since he was knocked out of the box during the series with Washington. He has been laid up with a sore arm all that time. But he went in today and did himself proud. In his first inning they did get to him for two doubles and a single, which netted the Cubs one more run, but the last three innings he pitched were perfection. Only when he walked Steinfeldt in the seventh was his control the least bit off. At other times he had everything that was going and used it with a versatility that sent Chance's men back to their bench in rapid order.

It was a Cub who today earned the displeasure of Umpire O'Day. In the third inning Patsy Moran was fired from the coaching line for tactics which did not suit "Hank."

Go Down in One, Two, Three Order.

In the first three periods, the Tigers went down in one, two, three order. In the fourth they got their first hit. Jones opened the inning by sending an easy fly to Sheckard. Schaefer followed with a hot one through the box. Reulbach went after it, but it just tipped his glove and rolled zig-zag toward Tinker. Evers, Tinker and Reulbach all chased it, but it was no use. "Schaef" was on first by the time they had recovered the ball. Crawford sent a hot grounder to Tinker which kept Joe so busy that he had to hustle to get Sam at first, Schaefer landing safe on second. Cobb, however, tried to kill the ball, and only succeeded in bounding to Reulbach, who speedily stopped the rally.

Again in the fifth things looked promising and then petered out. Rossman, still there with his batting eye, singled to short. Coughlin drew four wide ones and Tiger hopes ran high. Schmidt followed with a screamer down toward first. Chance fielded the ball and Reulbach covered the base, but by the time Schmidtty was out, Ross and Coughlin were safe on second and third. Then came O'Leary with that line drive at Tinker. Joe happened to be right in front of the ball and about three feet from second. It looked so much like a hit that Capt. Bill had run, and so it was no hard trick for Tinker to make a double play unassisted.

That One, Lone, Little Tally.

The Tigers' only run came in the sixth. Killian, enjoying his first time at bat, sent a clean single to left center. Jones drew four wide ones. Then Schaefer drove one between third and short that looked like a hit every way. Steinfeldt decided otherwise, however, and Jones was out to Evers, who threw Herman out at first. With two down and Killian on third, Crawford singled to second, and Killian scored. Cobb followed with his only hit of the day, a single to left, but Rossie lost his hitting eye when he came up and flied to Slagle.

After that Reulbach was invulnerable. He came right back with the coss-fire which had held the Tigers hitless until the fourth inning. In the seventh he did walk Schmidt, and let Killian rap one to second, which was too fast for Evans to handle. But two were out by that time, and the next died easily. In the eighth Rossman got his second hit of the day, but Coughlin forced him, and there was nothing more doing.

The Cubs got busy in the second inning. Steinfeldt opened with a double down the third base line. Kling sacrificed, Schmidt to Rossman, and Evers followed with another two-bagger that went screaming down the first base line, Steinfeldt scoring. Schulte grounded to Schaefer, and Evers took third. Tinker followed with a hot one to O'Leary, but the little shortstop was there with the fastest piece of fielding of the day, and the inning was ended.

Sheckard There With the Bat.

In the third Sheckard got another two-bagger down the first base line, but two men were out, and the next flied to O'Leary. The fourth, however, was the disastrous inning for Siever. Steinfeldt opened by flying to Jones. Kling followed with a single through Shaefer, and Evers hit one to deep right, which put Johnny on third. Schulte singled to center, and Kling scored. On the throw-in Evers tried to make third, but was caught between the bases, Crawford to Coughlin to O'Leary to Siever. Tinker then hit a long fly to deep right, which sent Davy Jones clear back to the bleacher fence. Davy got the ball in his mit, only to let it bound out again, and by that time Tinker was safe on the third sack, and Schulte had scored. Reulback, the hitless wonder, drove one to center, and Tinker scored. Slagle closed the inning by flying to Coughlin.

One other run came the Cubs' way. That was in the fifth when Killian went in to relieve Siever. Sheckard grounded to Schaefer, and was out easily. Chance followed with a clean double to left center, and scored on Steinfeldt's single through short. It was a perfect hit and run play from every point of view. Kling flied to Crawford and Evers came in with another double to right, which put Steinfeldt on third. Schulte popped one high to Coughlin, and it was over. The only other man the Cubs got on first was in the seventh, when Steinfeldt walked.

THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR

Local Rugbyites Ready for Battle; Hope to Trim Petrolea Tomorrow

Seven of Last Year's Men in Line—Morrison May Referee.

The local junior O. R. F. U. team is confident that a Petrolea scalp will dangle in the London wigwam at the conclusion of the fracas scheduled to take place at Tecumseh Park tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock sharp.

At least seven of last year's guard will turn out for battle, and unless the bunch from the oil region have improved vastly since last year there should be nothing to it but London.

The locals are in good early-season trim, and capable of going the route.

The boys will likely line up as follows:

Hague—Full back.
Bole—Left Half.
Jackson—Center half.
Whetter—Right half.
Spry (captain)—Quarter.
Scrimmage—Brown, Craig, Rau.
Left Wings—Sage, McEwen, Gilmour.
Right Wings—Watson, Rowlands, Baker.

Substitutes—Wood, Wilson, Duffield, Leckie, Hayward, McArthur.

Word has been received from Toronto to provide a local referee, if possible, but the players do not take kindly to the proposal.

It is very probable that Billy Morrison, described by the boys as "the best ever," will officiate.

With Billy in harness everybody is certain of a square deal.

This statement must not be taken as an inference that local officials are not on the level. However, Petrolea might object at this end, and London might have a kick coming at the other end.

SUGGESTION FOR SELECTION OF THE CANADIAN BOWLING TEAM

Wants Members of the 1904 Team Barred From 1908 Trip to England.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—A well-known bowler, writing to the Star, says:

Referring to the invitation sent by the British bowlers for a Canadian team to visit Britain next year, I understand four rinks are invited, with four players as reserve, the same number as England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales send to their international games.

Allow me to suggest:

1. That a number of players be taken from each association, Ontario and Western, in ratio to strength of membership.
2. That the very best players be chosen.
3. That no member of the 1904 team be selected.
4. That those going should be pledged to stay with the team until the tour is completed.

There has been a good deal of discussion among bowlers around Toronto regarding the probable personnel of the team for next year, and no little criticism, too, of the last team that went over.

"There is no doubt," a bowler remarked today, "that the team which went over last time was far from representing the bowling strength of Canada. There were good men on the team, but there were also men on the team who did not bowl regularly, and who were not top-notch bowlers, and then, again, there were others who did not stick to the team throughout the tour. This time we should send the best bowlers who can get away, and only players who will pledge themselves to remain with the team all the way through. Canada can send over a team which can win a goodly portion of the games played, and at any rate next year we should endeavor to show them that we have some bowling strength here."

Arthur Duffy May Visit Canada; Con. Walsh to Compete in New York

New York, Oct. 10.—Arthur Duffy, the former world's record holder for the "hundred," is training at the New West Side Athletic Club grounds. Duffy claims that he is training to conciliate his feelings regarding physical culture. It is thought by a few wise ones that the old crack is developing speed for the purpose of invading Canada, where he expects to get on some matches.

Con. Walsh, holder of the world's record for throwing the "56" for height, may be in town for the Irish-American A. C. games next Sunday. Walsh is managing a big ranch in Canada. Its owner took a fancy to the young Hercules at the midsummer meet in Toronto, and made Walsh a good offer to secure his services.

TIGER CUBS GET OUT OF O. R. F. U.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—"George Ballard, of the Hamilton Tigers, has resigned from the presidency of the O. R. F. U., and the Tigers have withdrawn their intermediate O. R. F. U. series," is the news that comes out of Hamilton today by wire.

President Ballard's resignation was expected. He could not remain president of the O. R. F. U. and be a prime mover in the Interprovincial Union.

So the Intermediate Tigers will not play in the O. R. F. U.?

Well! Well!

It was a case of get out before they were tossed out, and the Tiger Cubs climbed out.

It was intimated to President Seymour and Manager Thompson of the Tigers—at least Secretary J. B. Hay of the O. R. F. U. says that he left the Tiger men with the impression that he had succeeded in conveying it to them gently—that if the Tigers took the cold plunge with the Argos and played the outlawed Montreal team, and were suspended by the C. A. A. U., that the Tiger intermediates and juniors could not play in the O. R. F. U. series.

"If the senior team is disqualified then the whole organization is out," said Mr. Hay today, "and we will not have players who are under the C. A. A. U. ban playing in the O. R. F. U."

"Suppose the Tiger II. and Tiger III. teams break away from the Hamilton Football Club, organize themselves, and apply for admission to their respective series, who would happen?" was asked.

"If they do so, I can see no objection to their admission," was the reply. "They have done nothing yet to disqualify themselves."

"How about the Argo II. team in the intermediate series?"

"Well, if the outlawed team is disowned by the Argonaut Rowing Club and the Rowing Club enters its team in the intermediate series, then there can be no possible objection. I have been trying to get hold of the Argo people to see whether they intend to enter an intermediate O. R. F. U. team. I think that there will be no difficulty about the Tammany Tiger-Argo game Saturday. Of course, if the suspension of the Argo team is raised then the atmosphere is cleared."

The Tiger III. team has already played and won a junior O. R. F. U. game. This is the Hamilton Y. M. C. A. team of a year ago.

LONE SCALPER GETS SCALPED HIMSELF

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Down within the gates of the elevated station at Ogden avenue a solitary scalper was plying his trade as actively as he could. Up to 1 o'clock he still had a bunch of grand stand tickets which he was endeavoring to dispoe of, but there seemed to be little demand for them. Most of those who came at that time were well aware there was no chance of getting in with merely a grand stand ticket, or, in any event, of obtaining a seat, so it is surmised that the enterprising speculator lost on his day's investment.

DETROIT IS BASEBALL CRAZY; WILD OVER MISMANAGEMENT

Tickets for Games Selling for $4—Cornered by Speculators.

Detroit, Oct. 10.—The hotels here are crowded to overflowing with baseball fans from the surrounding country to see the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs battle for the world's championship, but they were doomed to disappointment today. The National commission, which controls the games, ruled that two complete games should be played on the grounds of each club before any change should be made. Tuesday's game in Chicago was a tie, therefore it will be played off in that city today. The teams will leave Chicago tonight for Detroit and will reach here early tomorrow morning.

All Seats Sold.

All seats for the games here have been sold, and thousands of people have been disappointed. The rankest mismanagement in the distribution of tickets for the games has raised a howl on the part of the faithful fans who find themselves out in the cold. Tickets have fallen into the hands of speculators, who make no bones in advertising that they will sell them for from $4 to $10 apiece.

"Jennings' Croak."

This city is really baseball crazy. Everybody talks baseball, thinks baseball, sleeps baseball. They blow tin whistles and greet you with Manager Jennings' famous battle-cry "E-e-yap," that never made much of a hit last year in the Eastern League when Hughie managed the Baltimore team. Detroit fans have coined a new throat disease known in honor of the Tigers' peerless leader as the "Jennings Croak." Sufferers from this malady, when attempting verbal expression, make a sound somewhat resembling that given out by steam radiators at 5 a.m.—with apologies to the janitors' union. When complicated with the nervous affection known as "scoreboarditis" the ailment is even more serious. The unfortunate fan then makes a noise like a man choking to death, ties his face in a hard knot, and finally writes what he has to say on paper.

Detroit Cocksure.

Yesterday's defeat at Chicago is considered a mere trifle by the fans here, who have absolute confidence in the ability of Jennings and his Tigers to win the series.

"Wait till Cobb gets hitting," they say. "Then we'll lose the Cubs."

Cobb made his first hit of the series yesterday, but the fans here expect him to make three of four every game.

Mayor Thompson of Detroit has forsaken civic duties and is at present in Chicago as leader of the Tigers' Rooters' Club, where he makes the cheering and the whistling and the yelling. Imagine Mayor Coatsworth doing the same stunts!

Thousands Wore Handerkerchiefs.

Reports from Chicago say that not less than 10,000 people at the game yesterday were wearing handkerchiefs on their heads. The grandstands at the park are so low in the front that the hats of those sitting in the circus seats section obscure the view. Those behind constantly yell at the thousands in front to take off their hats.

New World's Record at Lexington

Lexington, Oct. 10.—Tramp Fast, a 2-year-old roan colt by the Tramp, is the new champion 2-year-old trotter. He won the 2-year-old Kentucky Futurity here today, the first heat in 2:12¼, the fastest mile ever trotted in a race by a 2-year-old, but it required a greater struggle to win.

An eyelash in the first heat and a short head in the second heat gained the victory. Dorothy Axworthy, so lame she could hardly hobble, forced Tramp Fast to break the world's record to beat her. Thistle Down forced the winner to a nose finish in the second heat.

The Leading Lady, favorite, broke badly in both heats. The previous record for the 2-year-old futurity was 2:14, made by Katherine A. in 1902.

Dorothy Axworthy led from the start until within a yard of the wire in the first heat, but at all times Tramp Fast, The Laird and Henry Setzer hung at her sulky wheel, and it was any horses' race until Tramp Fast was announced as winner.

In the second heat Dorothy Axworthy was saved, as it was not believed that Tramp Fast would repeat. Thistle Down was contender, but the colt, skillfully driven by Tommy Murphy, outstayed the son of Jay McGregor, and won in a nerve-racking finish by a nose.

Tomorrow the Translyvania purse will be raced for by Sonoma Girl, High Ball, Willis Heart, Margaret O., Jack Leyburne and others.

In the minor events today Tregantle won the 2:16 trot in straight heats, Major Mallow took the 2:15 pace, while Lady Maud captured the unfinished 2:08 pace.

THE TURF.

WINNERS YESTERDAY.

At Windsor—Mamareneck 4 to 5, Merry George 1 to 2, Avaunteer 8 to 5, Padrone 3 to 5, Oleasa 3 to 5, Cocksure 3 to 5.

At Belmont—The Squire 4 to 5, Louis Wood 2 to 1, Sir John Johnson 8 to 5, Veil 6 to 5, Lane Allen 1 to 5, Grapple 3 to 5.

BROWN EYES AND BLUE.

According to the London Mail, the British Association is asking the public to cooperate in hunting down a secret of which some fascinating hints have just been discovered. The difficulty of investigation is no more than noting down the color of eyes in the family. In the light of science there are only two sorts of eyes—blue and not blue. It is a fact that all eyes are blue or blue-gray in ground, but a great many have some other pigment in front of the iris. Hence appears a strange law of heredity. It is asserted that where both parents have blue eyes all the children have blue eyes; where both parents have brown eyes all the children have brown eyes; but it is where the parents' differ that this alleged law of heredity is most surprising. In this case brown eyes are said to be dominant, and blue eyes recessive, so that of the children of mixed parents three of every four will have brown eyes and one blue.

BOSTON AMERICANS WON HUB TITLE

Boston, Oct. 10.—By taking two straight from the Doves today the American League team made it four straight, and won the city championship. TANGIER QUIET OVER VOLCANO

Fresh Outbreaks Are Due Any Hour and Foreigners Are Warned.

Tangier, Oct. 10.—With the Mohammedan feast of Ramadan only twenty days away, and with rumors of outrages committed by the French against the Moors arriving from coast towns and the interior daily the Tangerine Moor—on the surface—is preserving the imperturbability native to adherents of Islamism.

The big ships that say "boom-boom" and fly foreign flags are lying at anchor in the bay, it is true, but their presence has not interfered with the sale of charcoal and eggs in Tangier's outer Soko.

The common knowledge that 12,000 Spanish troops are waiting at Algeciras and Cadiz with the expectation that some fanatical outbreak will furnish an excuse for the occupation of Tangier, so far has failed to provoke a demonstration, notwithstanding what certain London newspaper correspondents have telegraphed to the contrary.

Woman Vanguard of Tourists.

A hardy Yankee tourist, with Baedecker clenched in her right hand, today rode a mule through the jostling mass of holy men, saints, beggars and ragged lunatics who are ready to test the virus of revolution, and was unmolested.

The woman was the advance guard of 140 tourists, who, after reiterated assurances that they have a fair chance of seeing Tangier "in half a day" without getting any punctures in their skins, have signified their intention of "taking the risk." More than a score of tourists, possibly of martial descent, are at Casablanca, sleeping on the stairways in a hotel recently ventilated by French shells.

The fact of the matter is that many town Moors, especially in Tangier, are prone to look upon the coming of the infidel as preferable to and a deal sight more comfortable than rule by Muley Hafid, newly proclaimed Sultan by more fanatical of the true believers.

Silent on the Future.

While these same town Moors are looking with semi-tolerant eyes upon Christians — always excepting the French—they fling their palms outward with a world of meaning when asked whether, in their opinion, strife between Mohammedan and Christian ultimately must come in Tangier. The momentary lull in the Moroccan conflict does not count in their prognostications.

The "men in the street" say there will be trouble in Tangier—probably when least expected. One of the staple sayings in Morocco is:

"It is the unexpected that always happens."

"I fear that any landing of troops will stir up low class Moors to make trouble and kill," said Mohammed Hamdushi, a well informed English-speaking Moor, as he sat on a well curb in a dusty little cafe garden under the walls of the kasiah and sucked at his pipe of kif.

"Ragged Ones the Disturbers."

"It is the Moor with a ragged djellab and no roof who listens to the disturbers from the country. Tangier and its people will fly up in the air in pieces if the big guns shoot. If the French should come, this land would be all the same as Algiers.

"The Christians in Tangier can go away to their own places if there is trouble, but what can the Moor do when his business is ruined, and he has no other country to fly to?" and Hamdushi sighed pensively over sweetened green tea and mint, thinking of his own house, worth 10,000 Spanish dollars, he said, to say nothing of the goodly dropping of pesetas by the guests of the foreign hotels.

Hamdushi's sentiments are shared generally by other Moors, whose prosperity depends upon the presence of Christians.

Interior Hordes the Danger.

Unhappily for the chances of lasting peace in Al Moghreb Al-Aksa, the land of the setting sun, as the Moors call their country, the natives of the coast towns are despised by their countrymen of the interior because of their familiarity with the infidel. The trading Moors are a drop in the bucket in comparison with the hordes of disputing fanatics who rule in the 400,000 square miles of the interior, united only by the Mohammedan belief.

If Muley Hafid, the proclaimed rival of Abd el Aziz, as sultan, triumphs he is likely to make sad havoc with the agreement signed by the powers at the Algeciras conference, and, in the opinion of Moors and foreigners alike, will have opened the way to endless excuses for testing the document's elasticity.

That, in any event, the disturbing influences are bound to bring about a European occupation of Tangier, as well as the other open ports, is the settled belief of the English here. They evince considerable dudgeon because the government declined to send a warship flying the union jack to protect the Britishers of Tangier.

HOME OF ELEGY OFFERED FOR SALE

London, Oct. 10.—Stoke House, Buckingham, where the Poet Gray lived and wrote his famous "Elegy," is to be offered for sale this month, and sharp competition for it is expected. The estate has many historic associations, dating back prior to the reign of Edward III., when Amicia de Stoke brought the property by marriage to Robert Poges. It descended in female line to Hastings, Earl Huntingdon, who rebuilt the house in Queen Elizabeth's time, when Sir Christopher Hatton, the queen's chancellor, lived there. Only a fragment of this old house remains, the present mansion having been built in 1739.

It is asserted that Gray, when at college, was accustomed to spend his vacation with relatives residing there. At that time it was known as West End Cottage. Eventually it became his permanent home, and no doubt he was inspired by its beautiful surroundings when he composed his immortal "Elegy."

Close to Stoke House is Stoke Poges Church, celebrated as the place indicated in the churchyard's elegy. It is situated on a wooden eminence overlooking Windsor Castle, Eton College and the Thames Valley.

Many visitors, both English and American, come to worship at the shrine of Gray and woe betide the person unable to recite the "Elegy." Just outside the churchyard is a monument in the shape of a sarcophagus containing on each face a few lines from the "Elegy" or some other of his poems erected by John Penn.

In this same neighborhood, William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, lies at rest in a small inclosure called "Jordan's Burial Ground," used by the Quakers for their dead. Americans naturally feel an intense reverence for this tiny God's acre and many are the visits from across the Atlantic to this secluded spot on the fringe of Chilterns Hills, by descendants of the followers of the man who set up, in the seventeenth century, a colony from which was destined to rise the State of Pennsylvania. Permission was sought by the state many years ago to remove the body of William Penn to America, but the application was not successful.

LIGHTING THE HOME.

People are now demanding more powerful lights, using 30 candle-power where a few years back they would have been content with eight. The reason appears to be that the pall over our towns is increasing in general intensity, though actual fogs are fewer. Hence more and more lights are being fitted in dark corners. With the new lamps people get more light, and the companies do not suffer. Many people gird at the English electric companies, and complain that in doubling their supply pressure they have barred out new types of lamp. It is only in England, however, that regularity of voltage is rigidly maintained, and this to a most extraordinary high standard of constancy, whilst Continental and American supply companies, with their 100 and 110-volt circuits, do nothing of the kind. English standard in this respect, where the voltage is kept constant within 1 to 2 per cent for months together. The companies were quite right in doubling their supply pressures, The lamp-makers must come up to these pressures, and, indeed, are already doing so very rapidly. There are difficulties, and consumers might have to abandon their 5 and 8 candle-power lamps; but this they are already showing a tendency to do, in consequence of the constantly increasing density of the smoky pall.—Engineering, London, Eng.

South Huron Liberals Make Splendid Choice

Mr. H. K. Kellerman the Unanimous Choice of a Great Gathering for the Local Legislature—Stirring Addresses by Leader and Others.

[From Our Own Reporter.]

Hensall, Oct. 10.—In one of the largest and most enthusiastic conventions ever held by South Huron Liberals, Mr. K. H. Kellerman, merchant, of Dashwood, was today nominated to contest the south riding of Huron in the next general election for the Ontario Legislature. His was the only name submitted to the convention, and it was received with tremendous enthusiasm. Every sub-division of the riding was represented, and the utmost unanimity prevailed.

Sharply at 1 o'clock, the convention was called to order by the president, Mr. Harry Smith, of Exeter. On the platform with him were Mr. J. G. Stanbury, of Exeter, secretary of the association; M. G. McLean, Seaforth; H. K. Kellerman, of Dashwood; Alex. Mustard, Brucefield; Dr. Ferguson, Hensall; W. Murdoch, Brucefield; J. Murdoch, Brucefield; R. Gardiner, Osborne; Charles Fritz, Zurich, and Mr. T. Fraser, Brucefield. After some routine business was transacted, nominations were called for, and the choice fell on Mr. Kellerman.

Only One Name.

Mr. Alex. Mustard, Brucefield, nominated Mr. H. K. Kellerman, of Dashwood, as the Liberal candidate for the local Legislature. The nomination was seconded by Mr. Henry Doyle, of Stephen Township. No other name was put to the convention, and Mr. Kellerman was called upon for a speech.

Leader MacKay Speaks.

Hon. A. G. MacKay, leader of the Opposition, made his first appearance on a convention platform since his acceptance of the leadership, and delivered a splendid address. For over an hour he held the audience in the closest attention. His speech was a very able one, and a scathing criticism of the Whitney Government. Mr. MacKay, as usual, made a great impression, and was warmly received. His remarks created great enthusiasm. He paid a glowing tribute to the candidate chosen, Mr. Kellerman, and expressed the opinion that Mr. Kellerman would redeem South Huron.

The Candidate.

Mr. H. K. Kellerman, the candidate, is a man of about 45 years of age, and is a farmer and merchant of Dashwood. He is of German descent, his father and mother immigrating to this country many years ago. They were pioneers of the township of Hay. Mr. Kellerman has been very successful, and has made a splendid name for himself for honesty and uprightness. He is widely known over the riding, has been in the township council for some years, and at present is deputy reeve of the township of Stephen. He is married and has a family. If there is anyone who can redeem South Huron it is Mr. Kellerman, is the opinion held on all sides tonight. He is the strongest man in sight.

Resolutions of confidence in the Government of Sir Wilfred Laurier were moved and seconded by Mr. D. D. Wilson, of Seaforth, and Mr. Robert Gardiner, of Farquhar. Resolutions congratulating Hon. Mr. MacKay on his appointment as leader of the Op-

Summer Lingers Longer Lovingly

Winter lingered in the lap of spring this year until spring got tired holding him, and dumped him into the arms of summer. As many people will remember, snow fell in quantities sufficient to cover every boulevard and street in the city on May 12, and on May 26, snow again fell, although in less quantities than on the 12th.

Under the circumstances, it is no wonder that the weatherman has seen fit to stave off winter thus far this fall.

To give the weatherman his dues, the present autumn has been an exceptionally fine one, and if it keeps up a few weeks longer the coalman will have to keep a sharp eye on business to make money.

Last fall snow fell in rather heavy quantities on Oct. 10, just a year ago yesterday.

A glance at The Advertiser files of 1906 shows that the snow was three inches deep, and that it extended from Windsor to Toronto.

East of Toronto and west of Detroit but little snow fell.

In London a year ago the highest registration on Oct. 10 was 42, and the lowest 32, as compared with 44 and 53 degrees respectively yesterday. It was thus very much warmer yesterday than a year ago.

Dispatches from Niagara Falls, Washington, Hazelton, Pa., Kingston, Ont., and Rochester, N. Y., a year ago announced heavy falls of snow on the 10th of October.

Narrow Escape of Ottaway Car; Derailed in Time to Avoid Express

A serious if not fatal accident was narrowly averted at the Rectory street crossing of the Grand Trunk late last night by the prompt action of a railroad employe who threw the derail and sent car No. 126, Ottaway avenue belt, off the track while the accomodation from the east bowled on down the yards about two feet ahead of the fender of the car.

The whole affair happened so quickly that the motorman had no time to reverse and in another second the car would have been on the track right in front of the train.

Car No. 128 which was following car No. 126 closely, was also derailed and the two cars off the track blocked the system for over an hour.

A Dangerous Crossing.

Rectory street crossing is a very dangerous one, and only the other night as a car was crossing the rails the pole came off and the car full of passengers, with the lights out, was left standing for a minute on the tracks, where it assuredly would have been struck had a train bowled along.

Rectory street is one of the worst crossings in the city, and a means to protect the people there should be secured.

Officer Lucas Made a Good Catch

P. C. Lucas made a clever capture last night about 10:30 o'clock when he arrested William Kineer, alias Brown, Green and a few other colors, on a charge of stealing an overcoat from the proprietor of the Queen's Hotel in Strathroy.

Officer Lucas had some conversation with Kineer a couple of weeks ago, and at that time learned that Kineer was going to Strathroy.

When he saw his man on the street last night he walked up and accused him.

Kineer said he had never been in the city before, and that he must have been mistaken in his man.

Lucas, however, thought differently, and grabbed Kineer just as he was about to take to his heels.

After they had gone a few blocks the policeman noticed Kineer playing with his coat and tightened his grip on his collar. None too soon, for when they reached the corner the prisoner made a quick lunge and pulled himself completely free from his coat and vest in the twinkling of an eye.

Fortunately Lucas had a good grip on the fellow's shirt collar, and he did not get away. At the station he acknowledged his thefts and was taken back to Strathroy by Chief Wilson, who came over this morning.

Thieves Raid a Metal Warehouse

Thieves broke into the premises of the St. Thomas Rag and Metal Company's premises on York street east last night and carried off a large quantity of goods that were stored in the back part of the building. It is stated that a number of bags of horsehair, together with a large quantity of brass and other goods were taken. The loss will amount to over $100. The matter has been reported to the police, and they are investigating.

It was stated that a large contribution has been received from various labor sources throughout the Province to assist in defraying the expenses of the election.

More than 5,000 bicycles were recently bought in a fortnight in Johannesburg, because of a breakdown in the electric street railway system.

BETTER Baking Powder

There can be no better baking powder than Strong's. In making baking powder there are certain definite materials to be used. A cheap powder can be made by using unwholesome ingredients; a good powder by using pure and healthful materials.

The leavening properties of an alum powder may be equal to a cream tartar one, but we prefer cream tartar, and so should you. Strong's Baking Powder is a cream tartar product, and it costs you less than any other pure powder you can buy.

TURNED LAWN INTO A HUNTING GROUND

Chickens Did So, and a Police Court Case Resulted—Other Cases Tried.

A case in which chickens were the central figures occupied the attention of Magistrate Love for some time this morning.

It seems that Mr. S. K. Davidson, and Mr. W. A. Taylor are neighbors on St. James street.

Mr. Davidson's hobby is raising chickens, while Mr. Taylor prides himself on raising lawns.

All was well until recently when Mr. Davidson's chickens discovered that Mr. Taylor's lawn was a good hunting ground for worms.

This was first rate for the chickens who grew fat, while Mr. Taylor grew thin as he wrathfully watched his neighbor's chickens destroying the lawn that once was his pride and joy.

With a combination such as this it did not take long for trouble to brew and so the affair ended in the police court. After hearing the evidence Magistrate Love decided that in future Mr. Davidson must either keep his chickens at home or else go out of the business.

The case of William Bavin and Thomas Cameron was adjourned for a week as the crown is not ready to proceed.

Thomas Cruise, a smooth talking young man from Missouri, put up a number of excuses why he should not be sent down for being drunk.

He failed to "show," the magistrate however, and in default of paying a $5 fine, went down to Castle Carter for twenty days.

Leonard Brooks, charged with having horses at large, settled the damages alleged to have been caused by paying the parties $7 50, and the charge was withdrawn.

Three first-time drunks were discharged.

In the juvenile court some boys, charged with throwing stones, were allowed to go with a warning.

OSBORNE GETS $1,000

The case of Taylor vs. Taylor was settled without going to trial.

Eliza Taylor had entered action to compel her two brothers to allow her maintenance from a farm now owned by them, and formerly owned by her father, now deceased.

The plaintiff gets $250 a year for the rest of her life.

Meredith, Judd & Meredith for plaintiff; Jarvis & Vining for the defense.

The Scatcherd case is the last to be heard at the present assizes. Nine non-jury cases will be held over until the November sitting of the non-jury court for Middlesex.

The jury cases have all been settled, with the exception of the four insurance cases, in which the London Hat and Cap Company seeks to recover premiums on fire policies.

These cases have all been argued, but judgment has not as yet been given.

The court will will close this afternoon.

MARS INHABITED.

Panama, Oct. 11.—Professor David Todd, who spent four months in Chili with the expedition sent from the Astronomers' Association to observe Mars, has arrived here on his way home. During the experiments more than 7,000 photographs were taken, including 20 of the double canals on Mars. In commenting on his observations, Professor Todd said: "It is reasonably certain that Mars has been inhabited in the past, and it is reasonably certain that it is inhabited now."

GREAT MANY POOR WHO NEED HELP

Charity Organization Held Its Monthly Meeting on Thursday.

The Charity Organization and Humane Society held its monthly meeting in the city hall yesterday, Mr. H. E. Gates presiding.

The report of the secretary was, as usual, an evidence of the good work that is being done by this society among the less fortunate members of the community. It showed that there are a great many poor in the city who need constant visitation, advice and judicious assistance. Several of the cases referred to were those of needy consumptives, and it was the unanimous opinion of the board that there should be some means of caring for these outside of their own homes.

A number of cases of cruelty to animals were also reported on, the inspector having taken such action as the circumstances of each case warranted.

Many interesting communications were submitted, most of them being from English and Scotch societies in regard to families who either had emigrated to this country or were coming here.

It was decided to present the Humane Society medals to Messrs. Clark and McDonald, awarded to them for their heroic rescue of the late Mr. James Angus, at the next meeting of the city council.

A NEW AMBULANCE

The need of a new ambulance for contagious diseases has been forcibly impressed upon the council the last day or two, when a certain physician in the city refused to allow his patient to be taken to the hospial in it, alleging that it was not fit for a patient to ride in. The city ambulance cannot be used and the smallpox ambulance is out of the question. The other is an old ramshackle affair and should be taken to the scrap heap and a new one placed in commission.

It is said that the physicians of the city will ask the council to get a new ambulance.

COLLISION IN THE ST. CLAIR.

MITCHELL IS TO RETIRE

Indianapolis, Oct. 10.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mineworkers, announces in the current issue of the Union Mineworkers' Journal that he will not be a candidate for re-election as president. He does not regard himself as well enough to attend properly to the office.

Mr. Mitchell underwent a surgical operation about six months ago and has not fully recovered. Another operation may be necessary.

NOT MRS. SULLIVAN

Name Erroneously Mentioned in the Report of the Assize Court.

Through an error, it was stated in the report of the assizes in yesterday's Advertiser that Joseph Gray had been asked by one Williamson, a witness, to give a load of paving blocks to Mrs. Sullivan.

This was an error, as Mrs. Sullivan's name was not mentioned during the taking of the evidence. The blocks were to have been given to Mrs. Kelly. Mrs. Sullivan does not even reside in the neighborhood of the Burtons, and had absolutely no connection with the case whatever.

STOCK MARKETS.

H. C. Becher, stockbroker, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington today:

New York, Oct. 11—Noon.—A short-lived and futile attempt was made by the traders to bid the market up, but it was soon found that the offerinvs of stocks were large, and that they themselves were the pricipal buyers. The origin of the selling is, of course, difficult to determine, but undoubtedly a large proportion represents liquidation. As far as the situation abroad is concerned, there seems to be some little improvement in the selling for Amsterdam. There are rumors that certain pools are finding a difficulty in financing their commitments, and are therefore being obliged to liquidate. Sentiment continues pessimistic.

LOCAL MARKET.

London, Friday, Oct. 11.

Although there were 25 loads of hay offered at the market today, there was a sharp demand, and prices were firmer at $17 to $18 per ton; about half a dozen loads sold at the latter figure.

No straw was offered, and the buyers have orders for over 30 loads; it is not likely that prices will advance for this commodity.

One load of inferior oats were offered, which sold at $1 58 per cwt.

There should be a good demand for oats at tomorrow's market.

It was thought that there would be a reduction in prices for live hogs for Monday's shipment, but the buyers will pay $6, the same as last week.

There will be an especially good demand for butter and eggs at Saturday's market.

PRODUCE MARKET.

TORONTO.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—Prices of Ontario wheat continue to be governed by the immediate necessities of the buyer, the freight rate to mills and the volume of deliveries at any given point. While distinctions between white, red and mixed wheat have disappeared in the scramble for any good grain suitable for milling, prices have a quite unusual change, and are to a very small extent based on grade. The large consumption of corn for feeding has stiffened prices again, and buyers have to pay 74½c for No. 2 American yellow. One large mill have fixed its offal price at $24 for bran and $28 for shorts, at the mill door. A car of bran on the track was offered, sacked, today at $26. No. 2 mixed wheat was offered at $1 08 outside. Winter wheat flour was quoted at $4, but trade was purely local, this level being too high to induce export buyers. Ruling prices are:

Wheat—No. 2 white or red winter, $1 03 to $1 05; Manitoba, No. 1 northern, $1 18 to $1 18½; No. 2, $1 16.

Barley—70c to 78c, according to quality.

Oats—No. 2 white, 53c to 54c outside; mixed, 51½c outside.

Rye—80c outside.

Peas—Quiet, at 87c outside.

Corn—No. 2 yellow American, 74½c, Toronto freights.

Millfeed—Bran, $25 in bulk outside; shorts, $26 to $28.

Flour—Ontario 90 per cent patents, $4 asked; Manitoba special patent brand, $6; second patents, $5 40; strong bakers, $5 30 to $5 35.

Butter—Firm; creamery prints, 26c to 28c; dairy prints, 23c to 25c; solids, 21c to 22c.

Eggs—Firmer, 22c to 23c.

Cheese—13¼c to 13½c.

Hogs—Selects, $6 12½; lights and fats, $5 50 to $5 87½.

Dressed Hogs—$8 25 to $8 75.

SOUTHERN PACKERS MERGE

A $10,000,000 Combine Being Organized, Say New York Reports.

New York, Oct. 11.—Announcement is made today that an important deal, involving the combination or merger of some large southern packing and canning interests has just been completed through George W. Young and associates. The deal involves the acquisition by the McIlhenny Company of the Tobasco Sauce Company, of McIlhenny's Son, and the canning and packing business of McIlhenny Canning and Manufacturing Company, which is said to operate one of the largest modern canneries in the United States. It is understood that such southern banking interests as the United States Trust Company, of Washington, the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company, and the Canal Lousiana Bank and Trust Company, of New Orleans, La., are behind the new enterprise. The capital of the new company is about $10,000,000.

E. A. McIlhenny will be president, and Frederick Kopfe, vice-president. Mr. Kopfe, in speaking of it, said: "When the company finally acquires other factories, of which a number will be taken over, some prominent jobbers and wholesale grocers will be elected to the board.

"The company's lands and factories are situated on Avery Island, and it has offices in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Portland, Montreal and London. In the production of its special lines, the company will operate a fleet of 50 boats and upwards, and will employ over a thousand hands."

BLENHEIM MAN ROBBED

loss till he got to Chatham, when he notified the authorities. He was of the opinion that all of the strangers got on the train. One of them appeared to get fidgety, when the train was nearing Chatham, and he approached the conductor and asked him if the train was not pulling into Blenheim. When he was told that the station was Chatham, he expressed his doubts, and said that he was going to get off and see. He left the train at the C. P. R. diamond and did not return. Mr. Edmunds thought this must be the man who carried off his cash.

Police on Trail.

Claims Agent A. H. Skirving, of the Pere Marquette, and Baggageman Alex. Carter started to work on the case a few moments after the robbery was reported. They scoured Chatham, and made inquiries at all of the stations at which the stranger might leave, but no trace of him was found. Claims Agent Skirving has made sufficient investigation to be convinced that the man who took Mr. Edmunds' roll did not get on the train at all at Dresden as the latter supposed. The man who got off at the C. P. R. diamond was probably an accomplice, and his getting off the train was only a blind for the purpose of throwing Mr. Edmunds and the authorities off the real scent.

Made for a Purpose.

If he had had the money, he would not be likely to make such a fuss about getting off the train, but would have done so quietly, and while no one was looking. His loud inquiries and expostulations with the conductor were made for a purpose—that of getting the police after himself while the man with the money made good his escape from Dresden for parts unknown.

Belong to London.

Mr. Skirving thinks he knows the gang, who, according to descriptions, are a bunch of crooks from London, well known to the police of a good many cities. It is a case in which it will be difficult to secure a conviction, as there were possibly no eyewitnesses who saw the man put his hand in Mr. Edmunds' pocket. In this case, all of the bank notes would have to be identified, and the man would have to be watched till he disposed of them.

The roll contained four fifty-dollar bills, four ten-dollar bills, and two five-dollar bills. The fifty-dollar bills were Bank of Toronto bank notes.

OPENING OF THE NEW LINE TO UNION

Southwestern Traction Company Has Trolleys Now Running.

The residents of Union were out in full force yesterday morning to greet the entrance of the Southwestern Traction Company's cars to that village, says the St. Thomas Times. It was an vent long looked for by the residents of the prosperous village, and it is needless to say the cars were given the "glad hand."

As the first car was about to leave the city, Manager Mower and Passenger Agent Roe stood on a step and "collared" everyone whom they could lay hands on. They succeeded in gathering in Ald. "Bob" McCully, Ald. "Pat" Meehan, W. T. Idsardi, the chairman of the street railway board; F. M. Griffin, R. H. McConnall and a few others.

Union being in Yarmouth, a local option township, the road was not opened with the breaking of champagne bottles or other frivolities, but the guests were too busy taking in the beauties along the route and in admiring the smooth roadbed, to notice the omission.

The cars now run all the way from London through the city to Union and return, and the people are already patronizing the road freely.

Manager Mower was asked when the cars would reach Port Stanley, but did not care to make any predictions.

SWEDES AFTER THE CUP

Conditions of American Yachtsmen Do Not Scare Admiral Hagg.

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 11.—Admiral Hagg, commander of the Royal Swedish Yacht Club, in an interview concerning the Swedish challenge for a race for the America's cup, said: "The reply of the New York Yacht Club has reached me. I naturally do not wish to say anything of its contents until the meeting of the club committee, which takes place Thursday afternoon. I shall be able to tell all about it then. It is evident, however, that the holders of the cup are going to insist upon their rights to sail a large-sized boat, whereas we would have preferred a small one; but that won't stop us," added the admiral.

FATAL CRASH OF FREIGHT TRAINS

One Man and Six Famous Racehorses Are Killed.

SEVENTEEN CARS IN THE DITCH

Way Train Backs Unto Main Line at Trenton and Is Hit by Through Freight.

Trenton, Ont., Oct. 10.—Six valuable horses were killed and nine others more or less injured in the wreck here this morning, while seventeen freight cars loaded with various kinds of merchandise were smashed, and are now a mass of debris on the embankment just east of the Trenton station.

Seventeen cars of the train on the main line fell over the embankment, one piled on top of another. The accident might not have proved so serious had not one of the ill-fated cars been loaded with sixteen valuable race horses, accompanying which were six horsemen. It so happened that this car was next to the one hit by the train backing out from the siding, and consequently suffered most. In this car the slaughter occurred.

Much damage was done to many of the other cars, two of them being completely demolished, their numbers not even being obtainable.

Car Fell on the Horses.

A heavy refrigerator car tumbled over on one end of the car containing the horses with their keepers. One young fellow, a mere boy, who was sleeping in this end of the car with the horses, died on being taken out of the wreck, and the other, who was seriously hurt, may not recover. Both of them were pinned under the heavy weight of the big refrigerator car, and much of the wreck. It was nearly five hours after the accident before these young fellows were liberated, and then the one scarcely breathed after he was taken out.

It was said that although the auxiliary crew at Belleville, twelve miles distance, were sent for, that it did not reach the scene of the accident until three hours after the accident.

Was Only 15 Years Old.

The dead young man is William Reinhardt, aged about 15 years. His home is in Buffalo, N. Y., where he was generally employed at Crandell's stock yards. Being a naturally inclined jockey, he had been absent on a circuit of races for a month, and was on his way home. The others with him were from Toronto.

Their names are Ernest Groves, aged 25 years, removed to hospital.

William McGuire, aged 35 years.

Harry Busby, aged 18 years.

Stephen Jeanes, aged 23 years, the last three being more or less injured about head and legs, and otherwise shaken up, and Harry Moore, who escaped injuries.

The fifteen horses were on their way home to Grimsby, where their owner, Mr. N. R. Sutherland, lives. They had just completed a circuit having been last in the races at Brockton, Mass. Their owner had left the horses in charge of his six assistants at Brockville, and had gone on ahead by passenger train. Wilfred Dow, another of his assistants, also went to his home at Prescott, otherwise it is likely they would have been with the horses in the wreck.

The Horses Killed.

The six horses that were killed were perhaps the most valuable ones in the number. Demon was particularly a fine race horse. Grimsby, Sand, Sweet Jane, Gracey K. also among the horses killed were well-known by those who attend races. While Rochelle, the other horse killed, was a valuable trick horse.

Wrong Switch Opened.

The cause of the wreck is said to be the opening of the wrong switch, the way-freight engine, on receiving orders to back, backing into the through manifest train from the east, instead of on to the Trenton switch.

Sweet Jane and Gracey K. won first and second in the steeplechase at the Brockton, Mass., races, and both died together. The other nine horses have been removed to the stables of R. C. Titus, V.S., here, and the extent of their injuries is not yet fully known, although it is feared that some of them may not recover.

Each end of the train on the main line escaped, so that the damage was confined to the seventeen center cars of the train. These, with their contents, were piled up in a great heap, the box cars being turned into kindling wood.

The remains of the unfortunate William Rienhart were removed to Cunningham's undertaking establishment here, and an inquest will be opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon by Coroner Dr. Farley.

INGRAM AT NEW YORK.

New York, Oct. 11.—Bishop Ingram of London, who came to this country to attend the Protestant Episcopal convention in Richmond, Va., is in town, visiting the local clergy and their churches. He will sail for home next Thursday.

LOCAL OPTION MIX-UP AT HENSALL.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Hensall, Oct. 11.—The local option situation in this village at the present time presents some very interesting features, and one of the most peculiar situation that has yet developed in the local option campaign is the result.

In January last the local option bylaw carried, and was enforced, closing the two hotels in the village. Shortly after this, an appeal was made to quash the bylaw on technical grounds. The case was heard and decision was laid over until the Midland case, one of the same nature, was decided. That has not yet been decided.

In the meantime the party opposed to local option became restive and decided to try and quash the bylaw another way, and not wait for the decision of the court of appeal. So a petition was circulated against local option, and asking the council of the village to let the defense of the action go by default, thus quashing the bylaw. This petition was presented at the council meeting last Monday night, and on a vote of 3 to 2, the council instructed the solicitor not to defend the action entered to quash the bylaw.

The temperance people engaged Mr. J. G. Stanbury, a lawyer of Exeter, to fight their case and today he served papers on the reeve and councilors of Hensall, to the effect that he will take the case to Toronto, alleging that the council had not the power to quash a bylaw passed by the ratepayers. They look upon the decision not to defend suit as tantamount to quashing the bylaw.

The case will be argued in Toronto next week.

FRANCE BEGINS WAR IN EARNEST

Arrives in Morocco to Make a Clean Up of All Rebellious Tribes.

Tangier, Morocco, Oct. 10.—Fearful that Tuesday's battle between French troops and Beni Snassem tribesmen, near Oudja, may prove to be only a preliminary skirmish in a fresh uprising among the natives, a strong force of French soldiers is sweeping the country about Guerbole Hill, where the fight occurred, to make a clean sweep of the rebels.

The commander in charge at Oudja has been ordered to show no mercy in dealing with the offenders and the summary trial is expected of all armed tribesmen captured, with the immediate execution of those convicted of participation in the ambushing of the Gallic column.

Especial efforts will be made to make a prisoner of Mohammed Sazah, commander of the rebellious natives.

The chieftain and his men fled under the bombardment of their village following their battle with the French, but the scattered parties of fugitives are said to be gathering and to have threatened the extermination of the Angad tribesmen in retaliation for the latter's friendliness toward the French.

It was to protect the Angad tribe, which had already been greatly harassed by Mohammed Sazah and his men, that the French column, consisting of two companies of European sharpshooters and a squadron of Spahis and Algerian irregular cavalry, was in the field.

The second column sent from Oudja to the first one's aid is of about equal strength.

The bodies of the two Spahis, killed in the fight, and the three wounded sharpshooters, have been sent back to Oudja.

The field commander has not definitely reported the tribesmen's losses, his account saying merely that the natives were repulsed, scattered and compelled to abandon their dead and wounded.

The Sultan, visited by a British consul at Rabat, is reported as expressing much satisfaction at the announcement that Bandit Raisuli is to become a British protege, as he believes England's representatives will be able to compel his good behavior.

DEATH TAKES CASSIE CHADWICK

land, where she married a man named Hoover. Her second husband was Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick, of Cleveland, a man of good family and excellent standing in his profession.

In the latter part of 1902, or early in 1903, Mrs. Chadwick, in the presence of her husband, gave to Ira Reynolds, the cashier of the Wade Park Bank of Cleveland, a box containing notes signed with the name of Andrew Carnegie. These forged notes are alleged to have amounted to $7,500,000.

Reynolds gave a receipt for the papers, which described the notes and the signatures upon them. Mrs. Chadwick left with Reynolds as an explanation of the notes, the statement that she was a natural daughter of Carnegie.

Many Persons Involved.

With the receipt of Reynolds in her possession, Mrs. Chadwick went to different banks and many capitalists, making loans and paying, not only high interest to the banks, but heavy bonuses to bank officials who loaned her the money. The exact amount of these transactions will never be fully known, but they ran up into the millions. They involved men of high standing in the financial world and caused heavy losses to many banks.

In November, 1904, she was sued by a man named Newton, of Brookline, Mass., from whom she had borrowed a large amount. Other creditors came down upon her and soon she was arrested by the federal authorities on the charge of conspiring with Charles A. Beckwith, president, and A. B. Spear, cashier, of a national bank at Oberlin, Ohio, which had been substantially looted.

Bank Closes Doors.

Mrs. Chadwick had obtained from this institution such large sums that it was compelled to close its doors, causing heavy losses to the depositors and ruining many of them.

Mrs. Chadwick, Beckwith and Spear were indicted for a variety of offenses against the national banking laws, Beckwith died before coming to trial. Spear pleaded guilty, was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary and is now serving time at Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Chadwick, was brought to trial March 6, 1905, and after a hearing, which lasted two weeks, was found guilty of conspiracy to defraud a national bank, and was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. Her health, which was not good at the time of the trial, failed steadily after its conclusion.

Mrs. Chadwick left one son, Emil Hoover, born of her first marriage. He is now about 20 years old.

AUDITORS HELD UP ACCOUNTS

counts are finally passed. Rather interesting situation.

Auditor Jewell.

City Auditor Jewell was seen by The Advertiser reporter, but refused to talk about the matter.

"I have nothing to say," he declared. "We are put here to do our duty, not to talk. I have no statement to make, nor have I made any."

Further than that he would not go.

Up to the Chairman.

Thus the coal business stands. The whole thing is put up to the chairman of the committee and the secretary of the board.

Although the committee at its last meeting declared that there was no wrong-doing on the part of Mr. Buchanan, and while it was thought that the question was thus finally disposed of by the committee, it is now certain that the whole question of vouchers will be threshed out by the committee at a meeting to be held as soon as Mr. Buchanan comes home from his trip to the west. He will be examined by the committee and then it will be found out who authorized him to deliver coal from the cars. The absence of vouchers for the coal makes this investigation imperative.

Saving to Contractor.

The delivery of coal direct from the cars is a great saving to the contractor. It is estimated that it saves about 15 or 20 cents a load, which in the delivery of 875 tons of coal to the schools, would amount to considerably over $100, a rather good margin of profit, besides the margin on the coal itself.

Will Be Held Up.

The accounts for August and September have not yet reached the auditors, and it is safe to say that the accounts for soft coal to be rendered will all be held by the auditors. Thus the committee and the secretary will have to produce vouchers for all the soft coal before the accounts are passed.

It will be interesting to know how the committee will get out of the hole.

How?

How will the coal be weighed?

Will the board of education have to pay for the weighing of the coal in order to prove that the amount of coal ordered was delivered?

Is it fair to ask Mr. Buchanan to weigh it when he had permission from the chairman to deliver the coal from the car?

When?

When is the committee going to come out into the open and declare that the soft coal was delivered off the cars at its instructions, and make a frank statement to the citizens concerning the whole transaction?

In the meantime the citizens are waiting anxiously.

MISS MALONEY ON HONEYMOON

Flees With Samuel Clarkson, Her Chauffeur, to Montreal and Is Wedded.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 11.—A millionaire's daughter and her handsome chauffeur, a top-speed flight from New York to Montreal, interviews with lawyers, a futile attempt to obtain a special dispensation, and finally, throwing everything to the winds, a marriage, a return trip to New York and last a brief Marconigram to papa to say: "We are married; off to Europe; ever so happy; your loving daughter, H," is the story of a pretty romance which culminated in Montreal on Thursday last.

The figures in this tale are Miss Helen Maloney, much adored daughter of Martin Maloney, the Standard Oil millionaire, and her chauffeur, Samuel Clarkson.

Miss Maloney ruled her father's palatial residence in Philadelphia, and was one of the belles of that city. Clarkson, the chauffeur, is a handsome young man. He is an excellent chauffeur and as Mr. Maloney is too busy with other affairs to bother his brains about chauffeurs Clarkson came to know Miss Maloney very well. The elopement virtually came as a natural consequence.

L. Bonin, of Montreal, knows a good deal about this romance. He acted for the young lovers when they arrived and arranged the marriage for them, but he is very modest about it all, in fact nothing can persuade him to say a single word about the affair. He is keeping the secret with a fidelity very rare, even among lawyers.

What's the Score?

Interest in the great world's series between Detroit and Chicago is creating widespread interest. Long distance telephone messages are received from many of the towns and villages within fifty miles of London every night, and the first question asked is "What's the score?" Exeter got in line last night, and asked what team won. Detroit, of course, is the favorite in this district.

SOUTH LONDON LIBERALS

The attention of all Liberals is called to the first whist match of the season which will be held in the South London Liberal club rooms, corner of Craig street and the Wortley road, this evening, beginning at 8:15 sharp.

A cordial invitation is extended to all, and especially to strangers, to make the rooms their headquarters during the winter.

No pains will be spared to make all feel at home. The more the merrier, say the officers, and the more strangers that come, the better they will be pleased.

INTERESTING LECTURE

Delivered by Col. McQueen, of Woodstock in Knox Church.

Col. McQueen, of Woodstock, delivered a splendid lecture last evening in the schoolroom of Knox Church, South London, on "Canada." There was a large crowd present, and the lecture was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The lecturer dealt with the history of Canada, its growth and development, its marvelous resources, and its great men. The loyalty of the Canadians was the subject of a very eloquent tribute.

During the lecture patriotic songs were rendered, including "The Maple Leaf" and "Soldiers of the King."

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker. Rev. J. G. Stuart, pastor of the church, presided.

DIRECT LINE FROM GERMANY

London, Oct. 11.—The Magazine of Commerce says the commercial treaty between Canada and Germany will be followed by a direct line of steamers from Germany to the St. Lawrence. Berlin reports state that Germany is to be accorded by Canada "almost favored naiton" treatment. Whether the suggested steamship line ever becomes an accomplished fact or not, says the magazine, depends largely upon the possible development of the ultimate terms of settlement of the Atlantic rate war.

MOYER

Otis Skinner began his season in his new play, "The Honor of the Family," in New Rochelle.

Sadie Jansell, who is on tour with "Fascinating Flora," the latest of the Casino musical successes, does an exceedingly clever imitation of Eddie Foy. She portrays the voice, posture and gestures of the eccentric comedian perfectly.

It is a curious coincidence that most of the "stage" money flashed by villians in melodrama, and for which there is so much blood-letting and murder in sensational plays, is made in Washington, almost within the shadow of the bureau of engraving and printing. The demand for it has caused it to develop into quite a little industry. It is widely used as "property" for regular dramatic productions and also for amateur theatricals. It is engraved on green paper like "greenbacks."

A comedian "par excellence," known as De Wolf Hopper, assisted by the daintiest morsel of humanity now gracing the American stage, who is known by the admiring public as Marguerite Clark, assisted by a company of well-balanced, clever and capable artists, and a large and efficient beauty chorus which is a Shubert trade mark in the joint work of that brilliant musician, Reginald De Koven, and that prolific and highly amusing author, Frederic Ranken, who successfully collaborated in the famous tuneful, jingling, interesting comic opera "Happyland." These are some of the promises held forth by the management of "Happyland" which, with all of its costly accessories, will be presented at the Grand tomorrow, matinee and evening.
