THE LAST PEARL.

We are in a rich, happy house; all are cheerful and full of joy, master, servants, and friends of the family; for on this day an heir, a son had been born, and mother and child were doing exceedingly well.

The burning lamp in the bed-chamber had been partly shaded, and the windows were guarded by heavy curtains of some costly silken fabric. The carpet was thick and soft as a mossy lawn, and everything invited to slumber-was charmingly suggestive of reshe slept, and here she might sleep, for everything was good and blessed. The guardian spirit of the house leaned against the head of the bed; over the

"No, not everything," said a voice near him, the voice of the child's good angel. "One fairy has not yet brought her gift, but she will do so some day; even if years should elapse first, she' will bring her gift. The "last pearl" is vet wanting.'

wanting; and if it should be the case, let me go back and seek the powerful fairy, let us betake ourselves to her."

"She comes, she will come some day unsought. Her pearl may not be wanting; it must be there, so that the complete crown may be won."

"Where is she to be found? Where does she dwell? Tell it me, and I will procure the pearl."

"You will do that?" said the good angèl of the child. "I will lead you to her directly, wherever she may be. She has no abiding place: sometimes she rules in the Emperor's palace, sometimes you will find her in the peasants humble cot; she goes by no person without leaving a trace; she brings two gifts to all, be it a world or a trifle. To this child also she must come. You think the time is equally long, but not equally profitable. Come, let us go for this pearl-the last pearl in all this wealth."

And hand in hand they floated towards the spot where the fairy was now lingering.

It was a great house with dark windows and empty rooms, and a peculiar stillness reigned therein; a whole row of windows had been opened so that the fresh air could penetrate at its pleasure; the long white hanging curtains moved to and fro in the current

In the middle of the room was placed an open coffin, and in this coffin lay the corpse of a woman, still in the bloom of youth and very beautiful. Fresh roses were scattered over her, so that only the delicate folded hands and the noble face, glorified in death by the solemn look of consecration and entrance to the better world, were visible. Around the coffin stood the husband and all the children, a whole troop; the youngest child rested on the father's above the flame that flickers in the current of air. Strange men come in, and lay the lid of the coffin over the dead one, and drive the nails firmly in, and the blows of the hammer resound hearts that are bleeding.

"Whither art thou leading me?" asked the guardian spirit. "Here dwells no fairy whose pearl might be counted amongst the best gifts for life!"

"Here she lingers, here in this sacred hour," said the angel, and pointed to a corner of the room; and there, pose; and the nurse found that, for where in her lifetime the mother had taken her seat amid flowers and pictures; there from whence, like the beneficient fairy of the house, she had greeted husband, children, and friends; child at the mother's breast there from whence, like the sunbeams, she had spread as it were a net of shining stars spread joy and cheerfulness, and been in endless number, and each star was-a the centre and the heart of all—there pearl of happiness. SCHOOL WORK.

The current number of Macmillin's Magazine contains a most amusing paper-" Diversions of a Pedagogue,"iu which is a long story of blunders made by schoolboys. The writer, who vouches for the truth of all his anecdotes, divides his scholars into "The Stupia Good," "The Muddled," "The Simple," "The Careless," "The Conceited Ignorant," and "The Eccentric;" and his stories are illustrative of the classification. Thus, the "muddled" writes: "In Jersey, a large quantity of apples are grown, and are made into cider and potatoes." "Rahab sent Ruth out to glean in the fields of her kinsman Laban." "Johah was in the whale three days and forty nights." The "simple" boy writes of William me are theives and robbers!"

Now I being a Christian bishop, what kind of fruit ought I bear?" and received the response, "Little bishops, my lord."

A FARMER'S wife in a Yorkshire town was recently assaulted by her husband in a field where there was a cow that the woman had greatly petted. On seeing the man beating his wife, tearing her clothes, and otherwise maltreating her, the cow came charging up the field, and attacked the man with such ferocity that he was glad to beat a retreat. The cow then took up a defensive position by the woman's side, and stood perfectly still while the latter struggled to her feet and supported herself by leaning against its flank, until she had sufficiently recovered to take refuge from her husband in flight.

I knew him too well to trust him in the pantry alone. After dinner I returned to my cookery. Having carefully locked the door, I was surprised to see my pet there before me. His attitude was ominous; he was top of the barrel two-thirds full of flour, and busily occupied. He had got hold of my egg-box, broken two or three dozen, smashing them into the flour barrel, with all the sugar within reach. GRAND LAKE, N. B .- At the beginning of another year. we sincerely wish you the compliments of the s-ason.

The general aspect of our work here is not very encouraging, yet we do not despair., On the Grand Laké proper we lack spiritual power. Though our congregations are good and attentive to the word, there is an apathy lamentable to be hold. Our temporal comfort is somewhat thought of, an instance of which we had in a "donation" at our residence on New Year's eve, realizing, the amount of $33 in cash and produce. From one part of our Circuit, English Settlement, we can present more cheering news. A class we organised about nine months since is still held regularly under an efficient leader; some whom we then received we regret have left the Circuit, others are still lively members of our Church Our friends here likewise have shown their faith by their works; not only have they cleared off a debt which has for years been standing on our Church, but recently have made us a very handsome donation of $42 in cash, besides other very useful articles. Much praise is due to our sister Pearson and family for the partthey took in the donation, not only did they open their house on the occasion (all ministers who have had don tions know the meaning of "open their house") but also provided liberally. Another pleasing feature in this donation was that we had a Churchman, Cap. Pearson, as chairman, and a Presbyterian, Dr. Marray, as See'y. Unity is here manifested.

We might close our remarks by adding to the "cries" already gone up out of Zion, for although the above seems to indicate financial prosperity, this is not the case with us, and we expect to have the "full" amount of deficiency, yet we do not fell disposed to murmar as we see so much suffering around us.

BRIGUS, N. F .- You have no doubt heard of the sadeblow that has fallen upon this Circuit by the the loss of Captain Sprackling's craft "Waterwitch," of Cupids, with ten members of our congregation, two of whom were members of Society. The loss occured on the 29th of November, at 8 o'clock. We were holding the "Miss. meeting" here that night, and when conducting the meeting on the following evening at Cupids, messengers were sent to me with information of the loss, and requesting I would break the sad news to the families, which I felt unable to do until the following morning.

I will try to get time enough to send you a few lines for the paper next mail We have had, as you can imagine, a sad time; and just as we were about to open our new Church, rendered it sad indeced

WHO ARE THE WISE?

A Sermon preached in Music Hall, Boston. Wednesday Evening, Nov. 24th, 1875, by Rev. George Douglas, LL.D., in aid af the Boston Missionary Society.

But he said, I am not mad most noble Festus; but speak forth the words of truth and sober ness."—Acts xxvi, 25.

For the ri ht understanding of the historic Scriptures, it is always helpful to be familiar with those places where the recorded events tanspired. Our text points to the ancient city of Cesarea. so called after the imperial Cæsar. This city was one of rare magnificence. The lightness, grace and beauty of the Grecian architecture was combined with the massive strength of the Roman, and everywhere, in finest marble, porticos, temples, and theatres adorned its thronged avenues of wealth and refinement. High over all stood the vice-regal palace. Out of this palace a corrupt Felix and abandoned Drusilla had but lately and forever gone, while cold, frivolous. sceptical-yet withal, just and generous-Festus, reigned in his stead. Finding a distinguished Jewish prisoner left in bonds, and availing himself of the diplomatic ability of Agrippa, then on a friendly visit, he summoned the impeached and imprisoned Paul to appear and vindicate his character. How grandly historic is the scene which opens before us! Picture to your mind the presence chamber of Oriental royalty, with tesselated floor and pillared magnificence-its walls hung with the purple of Tyre and the damask of Damascus, while symbols of Roman power meet the eye in frescoed splendor. There enthroned, sit Festus and Agrippa, surrounded with a brilliant array of courtiers; while,-be astonished, O ye heavens, and give ear O earth!-the grandest type of moral manhood on which the world ever gazed, with famine in his look and beggary on his back, manacled and in chains, is before them. Responsive to the invitation of Agrippa, he rises in his defence and opens with graceful elegance. As he advances he kindles into power. Like "the morning dew that kangs the pendant diamond-drops of flashing beauty on loftiest branch and lowliest leaflet, so the splendor of his eloquence rests on the entire of his great appeal, till at length, rising to a climax, he proclaims his faith to the :esurrection of the dead; when Festus, aroused and defiant, with courtly insolence, arrested him with the cry, "Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make the mad!" In the strength of that sublime fortitude which never forsook him, the Apostle responds, "I am not mad most noble Festus, but speak forth the words of truth and soberness." And here it may be justly asked why we come from our land of the north star to this the modern Athens of the American continent, simply to recall this fragment of history enacted two thousand years ago! Why? Because it embodies mighty and ever-active principles, undying as the race. Who ples, with a cry, "Thou art beside thyof Christ anity with its declaimer, am not mad, most noble Festus?"

To justify the Apostolic disclaimer by some three or four illustrations, is the subject to which we invite your prayerful attention.

I. The disciples of Christianity ar not beside themselves when they assert their sense of obligation and supreme love to God.

The knowledge of God comes to us from two sources: The revealings of nature and the higher revelations of the Divine Word. In all nature there is evidence of intelligent design,-of wisdom in the mighty plan,-of power and executive and æsthetic skill in the development of the universe. When the searching and subtle intellect, trained by scientific methods, looks into the secrets of nature, what revealings greet the eye? It sees the inert molecules of matter, by some hidden affinity, rushing to each other's embrace, and building themselves up into forms of crystalline beauty. It sees the germ principles of life blossoming into the flower, -blossoming into the myriad forms of being, up and up to the crowded and kingly dignity of man. It sees the universal reign of law that, with grasp soft as silk but strong as treble brass, holds the universe of matter and of mind in its integrity. In all this we have the great literature of nature out of which intelligence deciphers something of the name and nature of God. Now thus far the worldly Festuses applaud and approve. But say, how crude are the conceptions of God which nature supplies! The God of nature. as nature tells its own story, is without mercy, and as far as we can see, without justice either, as the wrongs of the weak throughout the universe seem to declare. And here the Pauls of Christianity part company with the Festuses of the world, and turn to those higher revelations of Scripture for adequate conceptions of God. And how do the Scriptures make known God? Behold and see. Long ere Leonardo de Vinci had groped after, or Bacon had given to the world his Philosophy of Induction,-which by the plan of inductive thought rises from simple and known facts into broad generalties and possibilities,-long before this, David, Isaiah and our Divine Lord had applied this very principle to the knowledge of God. Observe the process, how natural and simple. In every man there is planted an image of the Divine,-tarnished, defaced, defiled, it may be, but an image still. And now from the known the finite and perfect. Where shall I find out some of the finest properties in the Fatherhood of God? Why, see the noble father! How his children run to meet him; and there is responsive jov. Ah, but yonder in the silent room is Mozart into the melody of his last rethe stricken lamb of his flock,—his dying girl. It is there he hastens. It is there he longest lingers, and with smiles twice born with tears, pour on her sweet, saddened heart the choicest treasures of his love. And what then? Why, "Like as a father pitieth his and remembereth that we are dust." And where, again, shall we catch conception of the wonderous sympathy and tenderness of God? Oh, see you the gentle mother, gentle to all! See her (as one has put it): She has a silent boy, the name of whose voice she never heard, for he was born dumb. Say, is he forgotten? Hear that mother as she sings her song of sorrow children so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him, for he knoweth our frame

"My silent boy, I hold thee to my breast earth, looking out into the infinities .-It may be sinful, but I love thee best,

And kiss thy lips the longest night and Oh, thou art dear to me beyond all others And when I breathe my trust and bend

For blessings on thy sisters and thy brothers. God seems the nighest when I pray for

And what then? why, "As whom his mother comforteth, so will I be, "I cannot tell." And now turn to comfort thee. Can a mother forget? Yea, she may; yet, will I not forget thee." And now from these premises how grand the induction! If you take all the sympathy that has trickled and dropped from the myriad human hearts | the fixed stars and nebula, beyond those is Festus, but the cold, frivolous, and that have throbbed through the ages, flaming worlds that stand as the lamps sceptic spirit of the world, assailing and then rut infinite to the mighty our spiritual Christianity in its disci- sum, still, it must forever fail to set forth the oceanic sympathy of God, who self?" And who is Paul, but the spirit | not only gave His love, but by incarnation, and atonement, and blood, and intercession, gave Himself for us, Now I would turn round and ask the most cold and sceptic man in the house, it insanity to recognize the authority of such a God? Is it madness to shed on Him the full summer bloom of the heart's intensest love? Never! Let, then, the sceptic Festus cry out, "Thou art beside thyself!" The disclaimer must be, "I am not mad, most noble Festus, but speak forth the words of truth and soberness:" for.

Were the whole realm of nature mine, That were a present far too small: Love so amazing, so divine, Demands my soul, my life, my all."

Again, the disciples of Christianity are not beside themselves when they found their confidence for time and eternity on this divine Word.

From the aspect in which we have just contemplated the character of God, is it to be believed that this great Father, full of sympathy, would leave His children in the darkness of this world, crying for the light, and refuse that light with words of cheer and consolation? If insanity there be, to believe this would be the greatest. It is the faith of all ages that God hath spoken to man,-spoken in all nature, spoken in the deep intuitions of the soul. It is the faith of all Christianity that God hath spoken to man,-supremely and finally in this Book divine. And what a foundation for confidence does this Book supply! Look, for example, at its claims or the intellectual homage of the race. You are familiar with the gradations of mind-power amongst men. Beginning with average ability, above this we have talent, above talent we have capacity and power of manhood, above capacity we have that indefinable, creative, transcendent force which we call genius. This stands as the culminating point where the intellect of man flowers into its highest ability and beauty. Now, by common consent, it is conceded that whatever the world's genius looks up to and holds in highest honor, must be higher than man, walk the ages! Go interrogate the masters of deep philosophy, of music, and of art,-those who have held empire over the intellects and hearts of millions, and what is the testim my? What gave inspiration to reverent and mighty Milton? What gave power to many-minded Shakspeare and LaPlace, and the long succession of geniuses. down and down to corrupt and brillian: Byron, and that blatant atheist, Shelley, who enriched his poetry with the very beauties which he filched from that Book he affected to despise? It required a Creation and a Messiah to wake the lyre of a Handel, and the vision of angels to kindle the dving quiem. Nowhere but here has highest art found its ideals to incarnate in fresco and monumental stone. Now, when the Festus of modern society would fling insult in the face of those who pay homage to this blessed Book, observe, it is not against the lowly Christian alone, but it is the loftiest masterbuilders of science, song, and thought sublime, who are thus impeached! And who is not ready to exclaim, "Hide that man his diminished head who would thus insult the intelligence of the ages by an effrontery which ignorance itself must blush to own?" But then the claims of this Book rest on higher grounds than the homage of genius: Look at the magnificence of its revealings! I see the man of science standing on this rolling Just as I did when thou wert newly as Pascal puts it:-by the aid of his glass his vision sweeps away and away. to that outlying world whose light has been traveling ten thousand ages before it fell on his eye. Go ask this man of Newtonian intellect, who has made worlds his stepping stones, on which to ascend and graduate the universe,-go ask him what is beyond his farthest vision, and his answer must the child in our Sabbath-school, or the lowliest man of simple faith in the divinity of this Word, and ask him, -yes, ask him, and he will tell you, that beyond the sun and planets, beyond of God, lighting the way to the infinite, -ves, as the old hymn expresses it, "Beyond the bounds of time and space."

there is a "heavenly place," a Father's weep no more, and sorrow troubles the heart no more, where the orange blosof this dares to assert that our Christianity cramps and fetters the intellect when it thus flings open the visible and invisible world for our contemplation ? It reveals God, it reveals man, it reveals immortality, it reveals the great purposes of the Eternal in the universe itself. And then, still further: it is not only its revealings of grandeur, but the finding power which slumbers in God's Word, that claims our regard. "No book," says that profound thinker, Coleridge, "finds me like the Bible, and whatever thus finds me in the greatest depths of my being, must be of God." And who cannot testify to its finding power? How it handles entire being! How like the knife The anatomist it pierces to the dividing asunder, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart ! How it walks with lowly steps the inner sanctuary of the soul, and drags out our secret sins to the light of God's countenance! How it gives authority to conscience, and thunders and lightnings, and uncovers hell itself! And then, how it softens into tenderness, and like the soft whispers of the Æolian harp in sunny lands, soothes the spirit with a charm divine. Oh, this divine truth! In fair, angelic form, like her Master, she came down from heaven: like her Master she walked the earth; like Him is despised and rejected of men! This truth of God,men have cast her into the fires, but she rose from the ashes more royal than ever. They have drawn the poniard. and by the cold steel of a merciless criticism, have sought to strike her to the heart; but there is a divinity in truth which murder cannot kill Trampled in the dust like the flowers, like them she only exhales a sweeter fragrance. Radiant with the light of heaven on her brow, see her stooping to weet childhood, and saving, "I will teach you the fear of the Lord." Sec her with elastic step hasting to assure the young that she will be the guide of vouth. See her whispering promises in the ears of the disconsolate, and binding up the broken-hearted. See her putting her everlasting arms beneath the head of the dying. And then, when the world has done its worst, and age has done its worst, and disease has done its worst, and the ruined tabernacle is crumbling into the sepulchre. see her put the crown of an immortal hope on the brow of the perishing, and then, grandly lifting herself up, and pointing to another world, exclaim, 'Fear no evil, for thou shalt dwell in the house of the Lord for ever." And now, most noble Festus, is Paul beside himself, and are Christians mad when they cling to this book, with its grand traditions, with its mighty revealings and imperial power to reach the heart? With undaunted front we can look the world in the face and cry. "I am not mad! not mad!" Let all the forms that men devise. Assault my faith with treacherous art, I'd call them vanity and lies. And bind this gospel to my heart." To be concluded in our next.

There is in China a remarkable people nown as "the nameless sect." They profess "an old religion," which prevails more or less all over China, but especially in the province of Shantung. Disliked and persecuted by the civil authorities, they have for a long time endeavored to keep their beliefs and practices secret. Their religion is said to have come from the West, whence also they expect a deliverer. They do not worship idols. At the close of their religious services they have a meal, of which bread and wine form a great part. It is thought that they may be the remnant of the native churches planted centuries ago in China, by Nestorian missionaries, who are said to have preached the gospel for nearly a thousand years through Southern and Middle Asia with marvellous energy and success, and to have exerted a powerful influence in China for upward of six hundred years, from the seventh to thirteenth century.

Dr. Leifchild gave to a theological student the following rules for preaching : "Begin low, Go on slow Rise higher. And take fire : When most impressed, Be self-possessed: At the end, wax warm, And sit down in a storm." GROWING OLD.

THE CHRISTIAN'S HOPE.

One windy afternoon I went with a friend into a country almshouse. There was sitting before a feeble fire a very aged man, and, the better to keep from his bald head the cold gusts, he wore his hat. He was never likely to need it out of doors. He was very deaf, and so shakey with the palsy that one wooden shoe constantly pattered on the brick floor. But deaf, and sick, and helpless, it turned out that he was

"What are you doing, Wisby?" said my friend.

"Waiting sir."

" And for what."

"For the appearing of my Load." "And what makes you wish for His appearing."

"Because, sir, I expect great things then. He has promised a crown of righteousness to all who love His appearing." And to see whether it was a right foundation on which he rested that glorious hope, we asked old Wisby what it was. By degrees he got out his spectacles, and opened the great Bible beside him, pointed to that text. "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ: by whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope ef the glory of God" (Rom. v. 1, 2.) Dear reader, the God of grace puts that blessedness within your offer. Embrace it, and you will be the happy man to whom death is welcome, whilst life is sweet.

For events between this lesson and the last see CONNECTING LINK at close of Lesson 1, Berean Question Book. We now see David Annointed King, or as generally stated in the Topic: "Ble-sings bestowed by the grace of God." The blessing in the case of David is stated in the GOLDEN TEXT, as follows : " And the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward." The lesson is presented in the OUTLINE, 1. GRACE DIRECTING; 2. GRACE DISCERNING: 3. GRACE DESIGthe law of God's choice, and are worthy of memorizing by all.

About fifteen years clapse between the events of the last lesson and the present one, which introduces us to the study of one of the most wonderful characters of the Bible and the world, David the young shepherd of Betalehem. Of Saul's history in the mean time we know nothing. God is never in a hurry in the execution of his plans. Some thirty years have passed since it was said, "The Lord hath sought him a man after his own heart, and the Lord hath commanded him to be captain over his people," (chap. 13. 14;) and fifteen since it was said. "The Lord hath rent the kingdom of Israel from thee this day, and hath given it to a neighbour of thine that is better than thou." He was allowed to remain the nominal king, but in the divine intention the plan was fixed, and so unchangeable that it is spoken of as if already executed. Before God Saul's rights were forfeited, and the successor might be, 1. The divine call: 2. The required condition; 1. The sacrifice; 2. The selection; 3. The bestowed qualification. Or another, 3. The anointing.

Verse 1. MOURN FOR SAUL. Though Samuel had no intercourse with Saul in all these years, he MOURNED for him, for his fall, his lost opportunities, his abandonment of God, and the consequent calamities of the country. It was time for it to cease, and for the anointing of another. Until Saul's time only priests were anointed; thenceforth kings also, though only on a change of dynasty or disputed succession, real or apprehended. The former is the present case. Samuel is directod to FILL his HORN drinking cup with OIL, probably the holy oil of Exod. 30.23-33, and go to the home of Jesse, the grandson of Boaz and Ruth. PROVIDED ME. God selected the king: he was God's king king of Israel by divine right, and a gift of divine favor to that people.

2. TAKE A HEIFER. Saul's insanity was doubtless already showing itself in quick, fiery jealousy, that would surely endanger Samuel's life if the king should he hear of the journey. Now, if the work could be done without peril it would be better. So God directs him now to do it, namely, to prepare a sacrificial frstival, invite to it Jesse and his sons, and anoint the one who should be pointed out. There is no room for cavil here, as if deception were sanctioned. It was a concealment indeed, out a concealment for a good purpose of a good thing which Saul had no right to know and would have wrongly used. God, as well as man, has a right to keep his own business to himself, and choose his own time and way to make it public. There was no pretence of a sacrifice, but a real thing. Nor was there falsebood, duplicity; or deception.

4. BETHLEHEM-house of bread. Six miles south of Jerusalem. See the map and Whitney's Hand-Book. What names are connected with the place-Rachel, Naomi, Ruth, Boaz, David, Joseph, Mary and Jesus! TREMBLED. Perhaps fearing that God's prophet was come to reprove and threaten them for sin. But his was another errand. Compare the "sore afraid" of more than a thousand years by an increase of care, and an appetite for later, in Luke 2. 9.

J. COME TO SACRIFICE. This was true and it was all of his mission that concerned them. It was a like errand that brought him to the place where he anointed Saul. (See chap. 9.) SANCTIFY. As the law required, Exod. 19. 10-15. This symbolic eleansing was intended to teach the need of an inward cleansing, and the putting fied with his personal experience.

away the filth of sin if they would commune with God.

6. The events next narrated must have occurred in private, and before the feast. Of the sacrifice one part was burned, another given to the priest, and a third was feasted on by the offerer and his friends. A priest probably officiated, and Samuel blessed the sacrifice by thanksgiving and prayer, as in chap. 9. 13. Jesse had eight sons and three daughters. Eliab, the oldest, was of fine presence, much like Saul, (chap. 9. 2.) and attraced Samuel's admiration. THE LOED'S ANOINTED. A name given to their kings, implying that by the anointing their persons were sacred. Samuel's reason given to Jesse for passing by Eliab and his six brothers seems to show that he had previously explained to him his business.

7. This verse gives us God's principle of judgment. He regards what is behind good looks, the soul enshrined within the splendid form-THE LORD LOOKETH ON THE HEART, the disposition, the character, the hidden man, whom he alone can infallibly know. He refused the seven because he saw in them unfitness for the place.

12. David, the youngest, nineteen or twenty years old, is next brought in. RUDDY may mean red cheeks, but more likely, as in Esau's case, it mears rel, or auburn baired. BEAUTIFUL COUNTEN-ANCE. Rather, beautiful as to the eyes, which were bright and black. But his NATING. The SELECTED VERSES give great merit was that he was a man after God's heart, honest, sincere, obedient, loving and devout. Note the time when this applies; now, in his young manhood, at his anointing. This is a reply to the sceers of skeptics, who put it by the sile of two or three later acts. Besides, it probably refers to what God foresaw would be his course of administering the kingdom, that he would govern as God's vicegerent, which he did, and which Saul did not.

13. THE SPIRIT OF THE LORD CAME. Of which the anointing was the symbol. What was intended his brothers knew not, nor did he. But the Holy Spirit gradually prepared him with increasing prudence, wisdom, and grace for his coming discipline and for the throne.

Lessons, 1. God has a place and work for every young person whom he can use in doing good and blessing the world. 2. Many fail of such a place through u.ifitness. Eliab would have been much such a king as Saul was. 3. The elements of a chosen, though other years will elapse be- good king were in David, but it took ten fore he receives the throne. An outline years of stern discipline to so develop them that God thought him fully educated for the throne. 4. The teacher who can write upon the pupil's soul the lesson that his true place will be determined by his real character, and then help him to know how mighty is the grace of the Holy Spirit will have reason to rejoice in eter-

The Presbyterian Church in that city now has one hundred members, and in nearly thirty adjacent towns and settlements the number of converts made since the outbreak is reported to be four hundred and ninety-six. Of these some persons are of high social and political influence. Mr. Hutchinson is in the city of Mexico; and directs the work. His associates have had a hard fight, but show a courageous spirit.

A MOST REMARKABLE CURE.

A MOST REMARHABLE CURE.

PHILADELPHIA, June 28th, 1967.

SETH HANGE, Baltimore, Md. – Dear Sir: Seeing your advertisane Jr. I was induced to try your Epileptic Fills. I was attacked with Ebilepsy in July, 1863. Immediately my physician was summoned, but he could give me no reliaf. I their consulted another physician, but I seemed to grow worse. I then tried the treatment of another, but without any good effect. I again returned to my family physician; was cupped and blod several different times. I was gonerally attacked without any premonitory symptoms. I had from two to five fits a day, at intervals of two weeks. I was often attacked in my sleep, and would find whorever I would be, or whatever be occupied with and was severely injured several times from the falls. I was affected so much that I lost all confidence in myself. Laiso was affected in my business, and I consider that your Epileptic Pills cured me. In February, 1865, frommanded to use your Pills, and only had two attacks afterwards. The last one was April 55h, 1895, and they were of a loss serious character. With the biessing of Providence your modicine was made the instrument by which I was cured of that distressing affliction. I think that the Pills and their good effects should be made known everywhere, that pessons who are similarly affected nerly have the benefit of them. Any person wishing further information can obtain it by calling at my residence, No. 535 North Third St., Philadelphia. Pa.

IS THERE A CURE FOR EPILEPSY?

The subjoined will answer.

Grenada, Miss., June 20.—Seth S. Hance.—Dear Siri You will find exclosed five deliars, which I send you for two boxes of your lep lep le Pills. I was the first person who tried your Pills in this part of the country. My son was bedly afficied with fits for two years. I wrote for and received two boxes of your Pills, which he took according to directions. He has never had a fit since. It was by my persuasion that Mr. Lyon tried your Pills. His case was a very bad one; he had fits nearly all his life. Persons have written to me from Alubama and Technessee en the subject, for the purpose of ascertaining my opinion in regard to your Pills. I have always recomme ded them, and in he instance where I have furled to care. Yours, etc., C. H. Guy, Grenada, Talabusha County, Miss.

ANOTHER DEMARKABLE CURE OF HITLEPSY; OR, FALLING FITS. B'. HANCE'S EPILEPTIC PILLS.

MONTGOMERY, Texas, June 20th, 1807. To STIT S. HANCHI-A person in my employ had been affice of with fits, or Epilepsy, for thirteen years; he had these achieves at intervals of two to four weeks, and oftenimas several in quick succession, sometimes continuing for two or three days. On several occasions they lasted for two or three days. On several occasions they lasted until his mind appeared totally deranged in which state he would continue for a day of two after the fits censed. I tried several remedies prescribed by our resident physicians, but without success. Having seen your advertisement I concluded to try your remedy. Lobtained two boxes of your Pills, gave them according to directions, and they effected a permanent cure. The person is now a stant, heaking man, about 30 years of age, and has not hadda fit since he commenced taking your medicine, ten years since. He was my principal wagoner, and has, since that time, been exposed to the severest of weather. I have great or afidence in your remedy, and would like every one who has lits to give it a trial.

STILL ANOTHER CURE. Read the tallowing testimonial from a respectable endzen of Grenada, Mississippi.

SETH S. HANGE, Baltimore, Md. — Dear Srr. I take great pleasure in relating a case of Spasms, or Fits, cured by your invaluable Pills. My brother, J. J. Ligon, has long been afflicted with this awful disease. He was first attacked while quite young. He would have one or two spasms at one attack at first, but as he grew older they seemed to increase. Up to the time he commenced taking your Pills he had them very often and quite sovere, prostrating him, body and mind. His mind had suffered seriously, but now, I am happy to say, he is cured of those fits. He has enjoyed fine health for the last five months. His mind has also returned to its original brightness. All this I take great pleasure in communicating, as it may be the means of directing others to the remedy that will cure them. Yours, respectfully, etc., W. P. Ligox.

RETROSPECT OF 1875.

The subject suggested for Prayer on Monday last, by the Evangelical Alliance, was "Thanksging and Confession" - with a "retrospect of last year." The address of Dr. Parker of this city, the honoured President of the Evangelical Alliance, whose words are always listened to with great respect, by any class of people assembled in Halifax, was, especially, on this subject at the morning meeting, comprehensive and weighty.

A short time it seemed to be, in look. ing back, since he had presided on a similar occasion, during the week of prayer; and yet the year, with its seasons and solemnities, had revolved itself round. In view of the rapid flight of Time; and in the retrospect of 1875, we might well unite in the ancient prayer, that God would teach us to number our days and apply our hearts unto wisdom.

It was an inspiring thought, as we met in that Hall, that we were only a small company-an insignificant part of the general assembly, Churches of all lands, Christians of every name, met together for prayer, thanksgiving, and Confession. Begining with the rising sun, in the distant East, and following the march of days, the globe around, the voice of praise and prayer had been going up to God.

For what had we to thank God today? For everything. We had only to remember that in Him we live and move and have our being." We had especially this year to acknowledge the Goodness of God in the general prosterity of our several Church interests. The wave of revival had taken a wide sweep; on both sides of the Atlantic there had been showers of blessings. We had not possibly to chronicle any great revival in the Province of Nova Scotia; but there had never been more of general and steady progress. All Evangelical Churches had reported accessions and increase to their numerical strength. In some cases there might have been spiritual declension. We had still to plead, "Oh! for a closer walk with God." We were fittingly called upon to make Confession before God. Confession should be accompanied, as in the ancient Church, with sacrifice. There was an offering which we could all present: The sacrifice of a broken and a contrite Spirit.

We had also to thank God for abundant temporal blessings. We have been exempt from appaling natural disaster. We had not suffered seriously from fire or whirl-wind or from devastating epidemics. In some parts of the United States, in England and in France the water floods had wrought great distress. In the Eastern world there had been terrible famine. From, great national calamities we had been mercifully shielded. Commercial interests had suffered. The year had been one of great loss to business men. some good men and true had been compelled to succumb to unexpected disaster; and some had suffered from unfortunate connexions. But in many cases there been an unsteadiness in trade transactions which could not but lead to losses. In their haste to be rich some had pierced themselves with many sorrows. We might hope that the lessons of business reversals would be salutary. The year had also been unfavourable to many of our staple interests, to our ships, to our coal fields and to our manufacturies. In these there had been locked up much unproductive capital. But then on the other hand there had been a most abundant harvest. The barns were filled | Halifax."

with all manner of store. We were not like some communities—dependant upon charity from without. We had enough within our own Province to supply the destitution which existed. He hoped the avenues of relief would be freely opened to any section of the country in which there might be, from prostration of industries, distress and suffering.

We had great satisfaction in looking back to the past and making special reference to the spirit of Christian union which had shaped itself into closer and stronger church organization. The Methodist union in 1874, forming the Methodist Church of Canada," had been followed by the Presbyterian union, nobly consummated in 1875. We believe that such union was strength, and that missionary operations and other movements, evangelical and educational, would be promoted with greater and continually increasing vigour. The Baptists in the Dominion were now co-operating in the work of foreign missions. They had not yet organic union; but he believed that this would also come. A striking illustration was given of the way in which telegraph agency could, in these times, be made subservient to the work of God. By means of the telegraph several Baptist missionaries had been sent to a new sphere of labor. The resources of science and the mightiest of the world's forces would be made to contribute to the triumph of the Redeemer's king-

We had also to be thankful to God for the increased activities of the year in all great movements-Christian and philanthropic. Once Sunday-schools were the privilege of a few populous communities, now they had spread over the land. The introduction of the international series of lessons, and the greater thoroughness of Biblical study to which these had led was a marked feature in the progress of this work. Young Men's Christian Associations were doing a noble work for all the churches. They had the power of reaching a class of young men which no other agency could equal; we had to thank God for their growing spiritual power. The Temperance cause had also become more aggressive. It was making its influence felt upon the controlling minds of the country. Its influence was beginning to tell upon the legislature. The movement for prohibition was in the right direction. The axe must be laid to the root of the tree. We welcomed the advocacy of this question by one of the most recently arrived pastors in Halifax.

Taking a wider outlook we could but rejoice in the attitude of England in regard to the American Centennial. That which was formerly bitterly spoken of as rebellion was now commemorated in international unity and good will. A corresponding change had taken place in the Republic. Asperities were being smoothed. We were not now, as before, accustomed to hear and read of the manifest destiny of the American people. There was one way in which the United States was doing much to uphold the Empire of Britain over her Eastern possessions. Some hundreds of American missionaries and their wives were now occupying posts in British India. They were always treated with great courtesy by English officials. They were thoroughly loyal to the British flag. Thus while on the one hand the British isles were at one with Americans in the Philadelphia Exhibition and Centennial, the missionaries of the Republic were doing more than armed forces for the consolidation of our Eastern empire.

He had rarely read anything with more interest than when in November last the unexpected announcement was made of the purchase, from the Khedive of Egypt, of the Suez Canal. How came it that almost without desiring it in the first place, Great Britain had conquered supremacy in the Mediterranean? What meant the impregnable fortifications of Gibralter, Malta, and Aden. Now the problem was solved. These fortresses were now the defences of the Canal, and the Suez Canal was the gate-way to the East.

A COVENANTED PEOPLE.

In all the means employed by the various churches to impress upon the minds of their people the responsibilities of the recurring year, none can surpass, for solemnity and significance, the "Covenant Service." We are not aware that any other Communion employs a similar form of words, or anything at all approaching them. Language has never been woven into sentences more awful than those which fall upon the ears of Methodists with the return of each New Year. A people who have been educated under their influence may possibly shake off the impression these produce, as mankind are so wont to do with injunctions and promises of different periods; but to one who has come under the words of this Covenant as a stranger might have been supposed to mingle with the crowd of ancient Jews during the solemn conseration hours of the old dispensation, its monitions and vows are subduing in the

To be thoroughly consistent, what ought to follow the united action of a people who thus, in each other's presence, publicly deplore their past unfaithfulness, and pledge themselves, in the most solemn manner, to live a life of prayer, of trust, of humility, of unselfishness?

The Methodist Church of to-day comprizes the elements of wealth, iutelligence, power over the masses; its machinery is admirable in adaptation to all the conditions of a religious body. Suppose that all this strength of worldly means, intellect, popular confidence, were as entirely consecrated as the Covenant service implies-what then f Any one who has seen an army of trained soldiers marching in solid phalanx, will have some idea of the compactness-the firm, simultaneous, on. ward movement, the massive forcewhich are essential to proud couquest. The world could not resist this one body,-a sixth or a tenth, perhaps, of the Christian brotherhood-if it but arrayed itself in such tremendous earnestness against the world, the flesh and the devil, as our Covenant Service would indicate. And how is this to be reached? It is altogether a matter of individual purpose - the purpose, course, having its foundation in the heart-work of the Holy Spirit. Ten thousand genuine consecrations of life, followed by corresponing devotion of heart and brains and bodies to righteousness would, in these Lower Provinces, make the year 1876 one of imperishable memory for its record of good. So may it be!

THE RECOIL OF BISHOP HAVEN'S ACTION.

The Toronto Nation, quoting the expression of an exchange on the third term nomination, said to have been made by Bishop Haven, says :---

"We desire to commend these words to the attention of all Protestant secis in this country with the further remark, that if the State suffers by the interference of religious pastors and leaders in politics, the courch saffers still more. A very sinister use has been made by unscrupulous and hypocritical men of their supposed command of Methodist votes in this country. Methodism is the great antagonist of Jesuitism. But it has in it an element which, if it were developed and became ascendant, might be a counterpart of political Jesuitism under a Protestant

Precisely as we predicted, only that, beyond the levelling of arrows at the really indiscreet party, there are sinister and unprovoked blows aimed at our entire church. We hope all who are disposed to wield the name of Methodism in this warfare will take warning in time. Political controversy in this country (with a few noble exceptions) has become so low and malignant that no man or body coming into contact with it can hope for respectable treatment. There is a remedy; but until the country awakes fully to a consciousness of what is really needed, it is useless to speak of it.

that it was preached in Music Hall, Boston-that forum of proud heresy from which the choicest infidels betimes proclaim their belief. What a blessing that men of such power can stand in front of infidelity. The second and appear next week.

THAT BLEMISH ON OUR WORSHIP .-Every returning month brings some new reference to the unchristian haste which follows the Benediction. there no method of preventing the House of God from being turned into a dressing-room, while yet the people are in audience with the Diety? Surely this adjusting of Gloves and Overcoats might be deferred till a few moments after the name of God is finally mentioned. Any gentleman display. ing in the presence of his respectable neighbour the haste and restlessness we sometimes see during the Benediction in our Churches, would forfeit his claim to good manners. How would it do to inculcate the propriety of silent prayer, as a rule of each congregation, after the Benediction is pronounced?

THE Methodist Recorder (London) of the 17th Dec., in a reference to the persistent aggravations offered by High Church journals to evangelical papers, and one allusion to the Recorder particularly, uses this language :-

"The article is before us, and there is meanness of insolence about it which rouses our righteous anger. The writer is evidently "willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike." There is no flourishing of the shillelagh in honest, if illogical, quarrel. The fitter similtude is of the Venetian bravo, who waits at the street corner with the stilletto beneath the velvet mantle and in the gloved hand. The simi'itude holds, however, only so far as the attitude is concerned. In this case the stilletto is a bodkin, and if the holder were to thrust his heaviest, the wound would not be deadly."

Shades of Wesley! How have thy successors departed from thy keen, incisive style! These attacks upon Methodism come of that caressing which High Church dignitaries have been accustomed to, and cannot now dispense with. Dr. Punshon's voice should ring cut once more :- " The day has passed when union with the Established Church can be contemplated, except on terms of perfect equality."

Y. M. C. A .- A Temperance Meeting under the auspices of the Associatiou will be held on Monday evening in Association Hall. Several addresses will be delivered. Subject :- "The duty of Christians with regard to granting Licences." Chair to be taken at eight o'clock. All are invited.

NEWFOUNDLAND. - A considerable amount of sympathy is being evinced by our people towards those recently distressed through the Pouch Cove and other disasters, as shown by the ready and liberal manner in which the subscription lists are being filled up. It is pleasing to learn that the Sabbath Schools of the various denominations have also taken up the matter with a great deal of heartiness, over $60 having been collected on Sunday in the Wesleyan Sabbath Schools, and about $15 in that of St. Thomas's. We have not learnt what amount has been collected in the other churches but believe they are fully up to the mark.—N. F.Public Ledger.

DEAR MR. EDITOE, -- Much painful interest and excitement have been manifested throughout the Kingdom during the protracted trial of those unhappy men. They appear to have moved in a good position, their father left them a considerable sum of money and a lucrative business. They both married into respectable families, and no imputation of blame has fallen upon their suffering and neglected wives. The brothers fell into bad practices and loose living, became bankrupt in business, and finally stood charged before the tribunal of justice with aggravat. ed and unexampled crime. After a trial extending over nine days, they have been found guilty, the elder one of wilful murder connected with concealment of the body of the murdered woman and the subsequent mutilation of the remains under circumstances of appalling atrocity; the younger brother is found guilty of being an accessory To appreciate fully the grand sermon | to the murder after the fact. the Foreign Missionary work of the Churches, has witnessed another startling novelty in the introduction of the grand old missionary veteran, the pioneer of Christianity in a very considerable part of Southern Africa-Dr. Robert Moffat, as the evening lecturer in Westminster Abbey. This has been done at the invitation of the liberal Dean Stanley, and has given much satisfaction everywhere except in very exclusive and High Church circles. It was pre-eminently fitting that the apostolic man the father-in-law of Dr. Livingstone. should stand near the grave of his heroic son and recount what had been done by the preaching of the Gospel. for one of the most degraded portions of the dark Continent. The Church of England is at present putting forth a great effort for the evangelization of the interior of Africa, and for the openings which are now presenting themselves, much is owing to Moffat, Livingstone and Stanley. The Doctor's address was beautifully simple and pathetic. He finds considerable difficulty in speaking to English congregations from the length of time he has dwelt in Africa; and conversed in the speech of the people among whom he has labored; but he had a thrilling history to recount, and a more eventful service has not been held for a many a year in the grand old Abbey.

LECTURES AT EXETER HALL.

The Young Men's Christian Association of London has secured a free course of lectures for the present season. Methodism has generally been represented on the list of able men, who receive invitations to lecture, and this year the distinction has fallen upon the Rev. J. Jackson Wray, stationed in one of the London Circuits, who is rapidly taking a foremost place in the Connexion as a preacher and lecturer. The evening turned out to be a most unfavorable one, for snow was falling, and English folk in general and Londoners in particulars, object to facing a snow storm. The immense hall was not quite full, but the lecturer acquitted himself well, discoursing pleasantly and at times brilliantly upon "the Wisdom of Æsop"-and applying the words of the renowed writer of fables, to the requirements of the present day and the peculiar dangers of young men, referring very forcibly to the similar and weightier lessons which are to be found in the revealed word of God.

THE DARK DAYS OF EARLY WINTER appear to be connected year by year with accidents of a most distressing nature. First two or three colliery explosions in which a few lives were lost, and then a fearful one in a pit near Barnsley, in which 120 men perished in a moment, and a multitude of people were involved in the hopeles; sorrow and loss. Next we hear of a noble steamer from Bremen, starting on her voyage to New York, with a precious freight of men and women, striking on the English coast in a snow storm and heavy tempest. The sad tale of loss of life, protracted suffering from cold and exposure, the hard struggle for life, and the hopeless helpless yielding up to death, is a painful narrative, and saddens the joy felt at the near approach of our great annual festival.

in England have occasioned so much suffering and loss that a special Fund is being raised to meet the emergency. £17,000 has been contributed, but this will afford only very partial relief, so widespread has been the calamity in town and country. Appeals for help are made on every hand to meet the various forms of distress, and your readers, Mr. Editor, may safely conclude there is very much suffering at present among the poorer classes in

has been exceptionally severe for the past fortnight. Heavy falls of snow, requiring the use of the shovel in many instances to clear the roads, some sharp frost, and general rawness in the atmosphere, and much discomfort all around. This is rather a dark picture in the close of my letter, but yet we realise much of the Divine mercy in personal and family blessings. Strength to accomplish much extra labor during the illness of my colleague, and fair average health when many around are suffering. With Christmas and New Year's greetings to all I conclude.

THE discussion upon the relation of infants to the church began in our columns with an essay (incomplete) read by Rev. C. Jost, A.M., before the Ministerial Association of the Halifax District. His ground has been disputed by two or three writers, principally by a brother signing himself "A Metho-We have writen to this latter asking that his name may accompany the publication of his second article. now in our hands. Should that be allowed, Mr. Jost and his opponent will meet next week in the WESLEYAN, when the discussion, so far as we are concerned, will be closed.

BRO. JOST'S QUESTIONER QUES-TIONED.

Is the Caristian world to-day "surprised" at Bro. Jost's view of the state of infants? Cannot men state their views and define them without representing committees. Can we judge of the purity of heaven by the dispositions displayed by many Christia as, and by the disposition undisplayed, of man more? Was that regenerated of which Jesus said." of such is the kingdom of heaven?" Where does the Bible say any thing about their regeneration? When arethey regenerated? At Baptism? What is the good of it if they are out of the kingdom before, and out of the kingdom afterward? I have been baptising them because I have thought them God's little children! Am I wrong? In what way does the atonement benefit little children? Can a creature be justfied and not adopted? Verily we are getting a new theology! Thank God doctors do differ! Candidates should believe according to Scripture, facts and common sense!

ANOTHER MINISTER.

(The true line of doctrine is not followed in this letter. The Editor does not endorse it.-ED. WES.)

To the Editor of the Weslevan :

DEAR SIR .- A "Minister" in your last iasue, asks, "Then what shall the candidates believe?" Quite a number of your readers are asking respecting the same subject, What shall those who wait upon the ministry to be taught believe? Wesleyans have supposed that on the fundaisters were a unit, but now they are told the doctrines differ! If there is uncertainty and ambignity in the teachings of Wesley, Watson, and other of our standard theologians, let the doctors go to the Bible and the foot of the throne, and the great enlightener will guide into all truth. The discussion of ministers' allowances, deficiencies, &c., will have a wholesome effect upon the people generally but the discussion of the mode in which and the precise time when, the Holy Spirit applies the benefits of the atonement to the infants God takes to Himself must do injury. The work of Christ's ambassador is with the dving man on every hand. Our Father in heaven, in His love and wisdom, will not be at fault in dealing with that class of His redemed ones of whom Jesus said, " Of such is the Kingdom of God.' The necessity of awakening, conviction, conversion, and sanctification, so clearly taught in our pulpits, is too important a doctrine to be mixed up with the spongy Beecherisms which are so taking in our day, and all speculation which has a tendency to impair the imperative force of that doctrine should be avoided.

There is a religious effeminacy sometimes met with which has the peculiarity of affecting the memory of those who are its, subjects, and they quite forget the time of their renewal in righteousness, indeed they are inclined to believe that through some mysterious influence or inherited merit, such as the almost angelic purity of life of one parent or the stern uncompromising faithfulness of the other, they have been since consciousness in a state of grace. To these phenomena the infantile regeneration idea would prove a timely support, a foundation quite in keeping with itself and quite as much to build ORTHODOXY.

pages of the WESLEYAN? The strong. est expression used was the challenge which you, Mr. Editor, gave a few weeks ago to the Dominion to find another Circuit that had sent forth more ministers than Wallace, and even these were expressed by the words " we may," not positively we do, and therefore did not merit such strong language from Bro. Smallwood. There is a passage of Scripture in the Epistle of James which may perhaps suit all parties in this matter, "Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted. But the rich in that he is made low." Tee latter part of the caution may be the hardest to obey; but I am quite sure that I may speak for all the Wallace brethren, and say that we cheerfully hand over the banner to Charlottetown, which until recently we thought we ought to

And now, lest Charlottetown should be unduly elated with her honors, and Wallace seriously depressed, I will venture some cautionary remarks, accompanied with facts and figures, which may be interesting to at least some of the readers of the Weslevan.

If we make birth in the circuit, rather than conversion the basis of calculation, Charlottetown will lose six, Wallace two. Thus giving Charlottetown 26. Wallace 18 native preachers. I reckon the three from River John, which you omitted in your recent estimate. River John was a part of the Wallace circuit when I entered the ministry in 1846.

Take another aspect of the case. How many from each place are now in the active work in these Maritime Conferences. Answer: Charlottetown 14, Wallace 14. find in consulting the English reports of the Weleyan Missionary Society, that Charlottetown and Wallace have kept nearly an equal pace, in reference to membership in Society. Here are the figures. (We omit the tabulated results in Mr. Heuestis's letter, as it is extended from the years 1819 to 1841; the aggregate of

The aggregate of those figures gives Wallace the superiority. Again, take the old ground occupied by both circuits thirty years ago, and reckon the membership on all the Circuits therein embraced, and you will find according to the minutes of 1874, that Wallace still outrivals Charlottetown. So be it, let the rivalry still continue. It is quite Scriptural to " Provoke uuto love and good works."

ST. STEPHEN CIRCUIT.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,-I am happy to inform you that the basement of our new church was dedicated to the service of God on Sablath, December 12th, by appropriate services. The Rev. W. W. Percival, of Milltown, preached in the morning from Haggai ii. 6-9-" The glory of the latter house," &c., in which he contrasted the glory of the Jewish and Christian Dispensations, and showed with great clearness wherein the latter exceeded the former, viz., in the character of its sacrifice, in its spiritual influences, in its privileges, its extent, its duration and its rewards. It was a sermon of much power and beauty, and will be long remembered. The Rev. Mr. Blair, Congregational minister preached a most admirable sermon in the evening. The congregations were large at both services, and manifested the deepest interest in the word preached. The basement is considerably larger than before, being now capable of seating 550 persons comfortably, and the arrangements generally much more perfect. We building in various ways. We have from time to time been encouraged by kind words in the WESLEYAN and "Christian Guardian," as well as by the press generally, for which, 1 am sure, we cannot be too thankful. We have also been much encouraged and materially aided by large and very precious gifts from friends both at home and abroad. Z. Chipman, Esq., an old and highly esteemed friend of our those years gives Wallace 49 more than | Church in this town, as well as a munificent giver to its various funds, he has been unceasing in his effort, together with his brother trustees, and a most efficient building committee, to obtain means for carrying the work forward. His own name appeared at the head of the list for one thousand dollars, and he has succeded. by personal application to the people in adding something like three thousand

Nor have our lady friends been idle. The following table gives the number of Mrs. Gibson, the honored mother of Alex. Methodism began in these Provinces in | tea meeting on the grounds of the Misses Crocker, by which they realized two hundred dollars. And again a few evenings ago they had a fancy sale and oyster supper, and raised one hundred dollars.

I am bound to say, indeed I feel it to be very pleasing duty to say, that for skill in planning, and for energy in executing their plans for the good of the Church, the ladies in connection with the Methodist congregation in St. Stephen, are rarely equalled and never excelled. We are also laid under great obligation to our friends a abroad, having received from them the sum of three thousand two hundred and ministers of our Church, both in the Maritime Provinces, and also in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec for the great interest manifested in my mission, as well, as for the material aid they afforded. I never can forget the kindness of such men as Jas. Taylor, R. Wilson, H. McKeown, the ministers of the St. John, Moncton, Summerside, Bedeque, Tryon, Cornwall Charlottetown, Halifax, Windsor, Truro Granville Ferry and Yarmouth circuits. Nor can I forget the great kindness of Drs. Ryerson, Wood and Rice of Ontario: also Rev. John Potts, of the Metropolitan Church, J. Hunter, of Elm Street Church Rev. Sutherland, Missionary Sec'y., Rev. W. Dewart, Editor of Guardian, and a host of other brethren whose names I would gladly mention, if necessary.

1 am also deeply indebted for many acts of kindness to J. A. McLellan, Esq., Inspector of High Schools in Ontario. This gentleman, although not in robust health gave me two whole days of his valuable time in Toronto. From what I saw and heard of the Methodist ministers in the upper Provinces, I am led to believe that they would be last men in the world to deprive their brethren in the East of one dol-Of the forty preachers in the above list, lar of their claim. My earnest prayer is that that God may bless them all, both in their person and in their work.

DEATHS AND REMOVALS.

A number of our people have died during the last few months, among I may mention the name of James Grant, Esq. Post Master. A man universally respected, and who will be much missed. He died peacefully at his residence, St. Stephen, leaving a widow and a dear little son, an old and respected member of our Church has also passed away. She died while on a visit to friends in Nova Scotia. and was visited during her illness by Rev. James Hart, of Granville Ferry, who reports that she died well. Mrs. Watts, formerly of Sackville, an aged lady, who for a considerable time past had resided with her son-in-law, Mr. Black, in Calais, Maine, died a few weeks ago in the triumph of faith. Mr. C. M. Holt and Capt. Hutton, have also died within a few months past; others are on beds of illness. Harrison Thompson, Esq., known to many of our ministers in these Provinces, has been very ill for some time past, also Mrs. Miller, widow of the late Rev. George Miller, of precious memory, is in very poor health and appears to be drawing near her end. She is wonderfully sustained, however, by divine grace, and at times seems anxious to depart and be with Christ," which she feels "would be far better."

Several of the members of the congregation have removed to distant lands during the past year, among whom I may mention John D. Chipman, F. Algar, and a number of others, brought to God during the incumbancy of the Rev. John Clark, A.M., and who bade fair, had they remained here, to be very useful. And yet although we have lost so many by death and by removals. I am happy to say there is no very perceptible difference in the Sabbath Congregation. The services were kept up in the hall of the Young Men's Institute, which was kindly placed at our disposal, during my absence by have been encouraged in our work of re- Bro, Tinling, whose labours were very abundant and very acceptable.

Yours very truly,

THE "OLD REMSHEG" CIRCUIT

DEAR MR. EDITOR,-I believe that attentiou was first called to Wallace as the "Banner Circuit" by the then occupant of the Circuit, who was not a native of the place; and I always presumed that the writers of those articles, whoever they were, were sincere in their statements, and from the light they had believed what they wrote. Though a native of Wallace, I took but little interest in the subject, and cannot now recall what was said. But if there was anything personal and offensive, it did not strike me at the time, nor can I recall anything of the kind at present. If a correspondent of a newspaper is responsible for his own opinion alone, then is it fair? is it just? that all the Wallace Ministers should suffer the penalty of his alleged offence? Have they offended snything at all? According to Mr. Smallwood's letters the "presumption native ministers sent forth into the work Gibson, Esq., of Marysville, got up a of their greatness, and the "bigness," of from the commencement of Methodism in bazaar, almost immediately after the fire their native place, is ingrained in the means of which she succeeded in raising pagaren begond tour or six Conferences!" nearly three hundred dollars. Pray will there be any more letters after the same sort? If there is danger let the banner be pulled down quickly, and let us fly .-- albeit we neither lifted it nor marched under it. Had Mr. Smallwood, upon inquiry, found that your correspondents were in error, a very few words would have set the matter right, and who of us was so destitute of the spirit of Moses as not to have said, "Would God that all the Lord's servants" in Charlottetown were prophets eighty dollars, most of which has been and that the Lord would put his spirit paid. Personally I feel thanful to the upon them." I am glad, Mr. Editor, you have answered so softly. 1 believe there will be no effort to answer these lettersat least by the Wallace preachers-but they will leave the impress of their spirit, and some of their hard names will be pondered by many on the Bridgetown and "Old Remsheg" Circuits, long after Bro. Smallwood shall have passed to his reward. ONE OF THE "OLD REMSHEG" MINISTERS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MR. EDITOR .- Some fifteen months ago upon my arrival from the motherland as a cankidate for the ministry in connection with the N. B. and P. E. Island Conference, I was appointed to labor on the G.bson Circuit, the preaching places of which are Gibson, Douglas and Lower St. Mary's. At Douglas there had been Metho list preaching for years and a Church built previous to my appointment but Gibson had only recently been taken up and Lower St. Mary's was altogether new ground. We held our Services at the former place in the Station House, and the latter in a private room, kindly offered by a liberal hearted Episcopalian family (all honor to them.)

At the latter place our congregations pers. rapidly increased until it became very inconvenient both for minister and people and our friends nobly determined to rise and build.

The foundation stone was laid last June and a Tea Meeting held to raise funds for building. The amount realized was $230 which with $100 from A. Gibson, Esq., and several other contributions gave them a good start.

Through their indefatigable labours the erection and completion of the church rapidly progressed, and last Sabbath with joyous feelings and thankful hearts, to the Great Head of the Church we met and dedicated it to his worship and service. Rev. R. Duncan, Secretary of the Conference was expected to preach the dedicatory sermon but being sick could not be present Rev. H. McKeown, Chairman of the District, took the service, selecting his text from Hab. ii. 20, "But the Lord is in his holy temple: let all the earth keep silence before him." Special reference was made to God's dwelling in temples made with hands, searching the hearts of men, accepting the offerings laid upon the altar of sacrifice, pouring into the heart the healing balm, making effectual the preaching of the word, and the spirit of devout worship which ought ever to characterize all who tread the courts of the sanctuary. The sermon was interesting, instructive and appropriate to the occasion. The marked attention of the hearers gave the most striking indications of their high appreciation of the discourse. The afternoon sermon was preached by the Rev. R. Wilson, Superintendent of the Circuit. The text was taken from Hag. ii. 9, "The glory of the latter house shall be greater than of the former." The subject was the glory of Judaism and the greater glory of Christianity. The glory of Judaism consisted in its splendid temple, imposing, ceremonies, holy priesthood, grand old prophets, and its pure and lofty code of morals, that of Christianity in the milder glare of the incarnation and life of Christ, the simplicity of its teachings and ritual, the universality of its character, and the fact that it is to have no successor, containing as it does the germs of endless. improvement and progress. The synopis of the sermon will give a good idea was glowing, the illustrations apt, the ideas rich, and the subject throughout, dealt with in a masterly style, commanded the unabated interest of the congregation. In the evening, Rev. H. McKeown again occupied the desk, and with the pathos for which he is so noted, gave that grand theme, the story of Jesus and his love. We felt whilst listening there was still power Cor. viii. 9, "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ," etc. The day was remarkably fine, the church quite filled at each service, and the Marysville hoir, assisted by Messrs. Pugh and Wilson of Douglas, with Miss Gibson is due to Mr. T. Robinson, who gave the site, furnished much of the material for building and energetically helped forward this noble undertaking. To-day, when the cry of "hard times" has become almost universal, and nearly all more or less, have to grapple with them, no small effort is necessary to accomplish (in six months) what our Lower St. Mary's people have. It is all the more creditable to them when we remember that it is not eighteen months since a Methodist Minister was appointed to labor in this community. The building is a monument of the strength of determination and perseverance, an ornament to the place, and we trust the power of the blessed truths of the grand old Book that will be proclaimed in it, will change the hearts and sanctify the lives of its worship-

Two things are now necessary to complete the Gibson Circuit, i.e., a Church at Gibson, and a mighty ingathering of souls. The Church we cannot have this winter, but surely our Gibson friends will put their "shoulder to the wheel" ere another overtakes them. As long as we remain without, it will be one great barrier to the growth of Methodism in Gibson. The convincing and converting power may be realized, and if we work, pray, and believe it will be, for "The mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

A. PROBATIONER. P. S.—It would give great satisfaction to know when the probationers of the N. B. and P. E. Island Conference have to take their examinations. Dame Rumonr says it is to be in March. Some of us are trembling lest it should be too true. Information from head-quarters will be very acceptable, particularly if it be not until May or June.

SERMON BOOKS FOR LAY READERS

DEAR SIR,-In these days which teem with cheap and useful publications, when books written in a popular style and offered at a low price are continually coming from the press, one might almost conclude that out of the exuberance the wants of all readers are amply provided for. Yet for one important class, adequate provision does not seem to be made. I refer to the lay-readers, who regularly officiate in many of our smaller chapels and preach. ing places, both on the Sabbath and week-

It is known to some of your readers that many settlements in Newfoundland depend almost entirely on these excellent 'Christian workers," for religious ministrations. Without any pecuniary compensation, actuated by the highest and holiest desires, they do the Lord's work, laboring like the local preachers in Great Britain and elsewhere, for the spiritual welfare of their friends and neighbors; conducting regularly the public services of the sanctuary, and the more private society meetings.

By God's blessing on their zealous and prayerful efforts, Methodism was at first planted, has since been nurtured and extended, and is at present mainly sustained in not a few settlements. In early life of its character. The descriptive part many of them had scarcely any educational advantages, and only by dint of determination and perseverance have they acquired their present ability to read.

It is not then to be wondered at, that their knowledge of the construction and meaning of words is limited, and their pronunciation defective. At present there is a lack of published sermons suited to their capacities; those by some of our leading ministers are in many instances too lengthy and too elaborate to be of serwhilst listening there was still power too lengthy and too elaborate to be of ser-in telling the tale of the lowly life, and vice; and for want of a suitable substitute, prosperous New Year, I am, sacrificial death, of our risen and ex- the same sersion book is sometimes kept alted Saviour. Yours, Dear Sir,

DALHOUSIE.

DEAR MR. EDITOR, -Our sphere of labor in this Northern country is neither small, new, nor monotonous. We have twelve preaching places scattered over Restigouche, N. B., and Bonaventure, P.Q. In the former county we travel from Armstrong's Brook, Bay Chaleur, to the Upsalquitch, a distance of sixty miles; then crossing the Restigouche river into the latter county, we travel from Deerside to Escuminac, a distance of forty miles. Several of the preaching places have been favored with the labors of Methodist Ministers for upwards of thirty years, yet strange to say we have but few church members, even fewer than were here many years ago. One reason for this low state of our cause is, doubtless, the fact that when the prospect both spiritually and financially was good, "One Wanted" was allowed to supply Dalhousie for three successive years. It is hoped he will never be sent here again.

In travelling from place to place we think we have the most magnificent views of natural scenery to be found in these Lower Provinces. It is no wonder there is a rush of strangers from Ontario, United States, and Great Britain, every summer to Restigouche; and doubtless the pure atmosphere and splendid salmon fishing, are more attractive even than the indescribable grandeur of those numerous old mountains.

Cambellton is brisker than usual since it has been favored with daily trains from the south, and as it is the Chief Station of glory; a door opened into the everwill, no doubt, very soon increase in size, activity and importance.

The winter so far has been very severethe thermometer on the 20th ult., being 29. below zero. Yet, notwithstanding the storms and cold our congregations are larger than usual, and evidently the people are becoming more deeply interested in the Word preached. We have an interesting English Colony of forty families, who came to Restigouche County eighteen months ago and settled in the wilderness. Their crops in the autumn looked exceedingly well, but unfortunately there came late in September a heavy snow storm which beat down spring wheat, oats and peas, thus preventing those cereals from ripening; and now the consequence is that many worthy families are destitute of the common necessaries of life. Last winter our Government rendered them some assistance, and we sincerely hope that the benificent hands of our honored rulers will again befriend these needy strangers until the Spring, when the hardest struggle of wilderness life will be over. We have not been able to spend as much time in the settlement as desirable, but the excellent local brethren there conduct Sabbath Service regularly.

As most of our hearers are Presbyterians, the propriety of our Conference in keeping a minister here is questioned by some, Yet while we would like to see Methodism grow and flourish, our strongest desire is to see souls brought to Christ. and should feel sorry if large districts of this country were left without a Christian minister, which would be the case if there was no Methodists to occupy the ground. Weare very kindly received and entertained by our Presbyterian friends whom we visit, and to whom we preach from time

In this year of "deficiencies" a few of the ladies of Campiellton and vicinity have volunteered help, and have done nobly during the past few weeks-not spending time in Committee meetings, but working with a will. They were enabled last week to have in the Temperance Hall a "Tea and Xmas. Tree," which elicited unanimous applause from the crowd who came to patronize. The entertainment proved a grand success, realizing the handsome sum of $117, which was presented to the writer on up for drunkenness, called out !-Christmas day. Mr. Editor, have you on a H. M. Station in your Conference four or five ladies who in a few weeks will do such great things for their minister? And this is not all for we learn that it is decided (by the ladies, of course,) that no such word as "deficiency" shall appear on our circuit account this year. We think it is about time to discharge half of the brother collectors throughout the Conference and secure ladies instead-yes, and admit them to the Quarterly meetings too, when these changes take place you won't require to devote many columns for the discussion of "deficiencies."

Mrs. McKendrick wishes us to tender you her cordial thanks for the package of beautiful cards and mottoes which you sent her for the Xmas Tree. They were indeed just splendid.

Sincerely yours,

Campbellton, Dec. 29, 1875.

PROVERBS XXVII. 6.

who requested his counsel.

Dear brother, thy strength is small; thou faintest in the day of adversity. Trials are physic: it is foolish to think the physician cruel because the medicine is bitter. I read in a story of old that a certain man buried his money, and then vilified his lord. You have done much

Why this complaining? Your own hand tied the rod that whips you. You had fair opportunies for sale; hunger for large profits seized you; you chose to keep your hopes; prices have gone down; and, now, instead, as you ought, of blessing your own mismanagement and greed of gain, you dare to murmur against Providence. It is slander against Heaven. I know God as a Master. He is my Master. He is a good Master. I love Him as Master, I leap for joy beneath His yoke. I kisahis cords and bands, and cannot bear to have him-calumniated.

That evil thoughts of him so easily should sway you, and for such slight and worldly causes, brings into grave doubt the heav nliness of your heart, and the sp. rituality of your aims. I once held a service among some farmers of your county, who made no secret of their dislike of loud responses. I prayed "Lord save souls;" not a sympathetic breath was heard. It was a season of drough so, in due course, I said, "Lord, send rain!" 'Amen!" went in whispers round the place. "Lord, send rain!" "Amen!" was the laudible reply. "LORD, SEND RAIN!"
"AMEN!" thundered through the building. Devotion ended, I showed the dull fellows that it was manifest, when their heart was really stirred, they could say 'Amen!" as lustily as others. But how sad that men should care for fields more than for souls! Brother have your desires so grovelled? Has your "God bless me," only meant, "Give me hops, and corn, and cattle and cash'?"

Are you industrious for God? Inquire whether your every wish for revival be not indolence in disguise. Do you toil to bring good days, or only long to enjoy them? Do you ask, "What wouldst Thou have me to do?" Does your heart dance usual, or hard, or extra work for Jesus ?

"Are you submissive and meek? You voluntarily entered into covenant; have you fallen out with its terms? Do you now object that the Lord should appoint you your lot? Do you dislike saying, "Thy will. O God, Thy will be done?"

You request my counsel; plainly, and in God's name I will give it. 1. Arise, put on strength. Take Daniel's advice: " Break off thy sins:" short off; -all off; clear off. You renounce the gin. now let the ale and porter go. That sacrifice for you is necessary : it will frée your character from a peril, and strengthen your soul by a self-denial. 2. Avoid uncalled for fellowship with the worldly. When Providence sends you among them, ask Jesus, and He will keep sort with such, will it be wonderful if the devil and the ungodly trample you down?

3. Hurshness of speech, and hurdness of act, were of old your besetments. Remember, whenever you are now betrayed into them, that it is not enough, with such like sins, merely to confess them to God. Duty requires also that, so far as may be, the jujury be repaired, and the feelings upon the altar. 4. Spend half an hour a day in your room in secret with God. Practice aboutnence on Friday; and that day remain with L ad at least an hour.

at first, and keep first, and every y and every hour, -the king lan. . Get sanctified wholly. all else will be right. In perfect e your spirit will find a home, and find an elewent where the world's attraction shall ease, and its cares trouble you no more to bear than do the hairs of your

HORSE RACING.

Thomas K. Beecher says in the Elmira Gazette :

"It was our very first attendance upon a horse race. We saw four heats, running and trotting, two each. Except in the line of duty we shall never look upon another. We were shocked at the heartless cruelty endured by the horses, and the meaningless excitement exhibited by the crowd-and transparent trickiness shown by jockeys and endured by judges in the matter of scoring. We saw men flushed by drink whom we never knew as drink-

"Gentlemen, horsemen, you surely deceive yourselves if you think that the horsemen enjoy such furious excitement. We saw blood sponged from more than one horse's mouth. We saw dead pulls and sharp sawings on the bit which the horses did not enjoy. 'And when after four heats, we saw two horses in distress, and one quite disabled, we were so painfully impressed, that when, two days after, it was told to us that American Girl died on the track, we felt a sympathetic relief—poor things! so fleet, so willing, I'm glad you escaped your tormentors. "We love the horses. But, citizens all, when horses are owned and driven by professionals for money. it is cruelty to the horses, degrading to the men, and infections to the community which they visit and fleece .- Selected.

THE OLD BOOK-KEEPER.

It was an ancient book-keeper, And he was tall and slim; Though his face was mild, he rarely smiled-His clothes were dark and prim, And everything about his desk

He kept exceeding trim. He always hung his hat and coat Upon the self-same hooks, And laid his rulers, pens and ink, In their respective nooks; And the only exercise he had

Was footing up his books. Each day, and at the self-same hour, He took his lofty seat. And bent his body and his mind His labors to complete.

And blots were neither on his fame

Nor on his ledger sheet. The music of his pen was heard From morn till eventide-Up columns vast his eyes were cast, Then down again with pride ; Quite pleased was he, although his work Increased and multiplied.

HANS ANDERSEN'S LOVE HIS. TORY.

It was on his journey through Zealand, Funen and Jutland, that he met a young girl with whom he fell deeply in love, but who, unfortunately at the time was engaged to another man, and as Andersen never met another woman whom he could love as this girl, he remained unmarried all his life. Many years later, a peasant girl, who had heard about him as a great and world renowned poet, whom all men horored-and who. I believe, had also read some of his stories-took it into her head that he was the one man she wanted to marry. So she started out for Copenhagen. where Anderson was then living, went to his house, and told him her errand. You can imagine how astonished he must have been at being told by a young handsome girl that she wished to marry him. "I should be so very good to you," said she. "and always take good care of you." "But my dear girl, I don't wish to be married," answered he; and she departed as suddenly as she had come.

TOO MUCH WORK.

"I wish I had a kite like John Clark's," said Harry.

"Why don't you make one this afternoon?" suggested his sister Sue.

"Too much work: I can't afford to;" -and he stretched himself upon the grass, and fell asleep.

After tea they all gathered around the lamp. "Now for our arithmetic lesson," said Sue, as she brought out Old Machines taken in Exchange for New. books and slates; "nere is a long example in partial payments, Harry, for us to work out."

"I am not going to do it," he answered: "it is too much work. I understand the principle, and if you get the correct answer, I shall just copy your figures and carry them into the

"I don't think that would be right," said brave little Sue; "it seems like

"Oh, pshaw! well, cipher aloud, then and I well stop you if I notice any mistakes"—and he leaned back lazily in his chair.

"Seven times eight are fifty-six, and three are fifty-nine," murmured Sne, " set down the nine, and carry the five" -and just then some one knocked.

"I can't stop a minute," swid Mr. Mayhew, the druggist briskly; "I just stepped in to say that if Harry will take hold and study Latin this term, next summer I will give him a place in my store."

"Oh how splendid!" cried Sue, after he had gone; "of course you'll do it,

"Not I," he replied: "it's too much trouble to learn those decleusions and conjugations, it makes me tired just to think of it"-and he leaned back still farther in his chair. * * * * * *

STAINED HANDS OR A STAINED HEART.

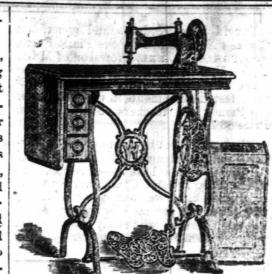

Sometimes a very little thing reveals unto us that our consecration is not complete. A dear sister, by whose side I kuelt at the Ohio State Camp Meeting in 1874, said her consecration was entire. But, for some cause, when Bro. Baker requested all who from the heart could sing "Tis done thou dost this moment save," to raise their hands high while singing, hers, I noticed, did not go up. I requested her to lift them up. Her reply was "What is the use? The Lord does not request it." "It will not hurt you; suppose you try." ',Oh," she said with pain how can I?" "Why, can you not do this little thing for Jesus?" "If I only knew Jesus wanted me to do it!" Do it at venture. Dear sister. If you could be cleansed by so simple an act, do it.

She was silent some time then up went went both her hands, as she raised herself

Yes the blood of what are you willing to give to help the Jesus cleanses the spotted heart, and re-poor?"

EAST INDIA HEMP. A POSITIVE CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, AND NERVOUS DEBI-

This wonderful preparation, known by the above tiple, which has attained such celebrity during the last few years id all parts of the United States, is now being introduced into the British Provinces by now being introduced toto the British Provinces by its enterprising manufacturers, Messrs. CRADDOCK & Co. Philadelphia, Pa., who have made arrangements in Calcutta India, for obtaining PURE HEMP, and have it extracted for upon its own soil (the climates in America being too chanceable to extract large quantities free from mildew.) These remedies are now prepared from the best Hemp guthered at the right season, and extracted during midsummer in Calcutta.

Read the following Certifleate, as given 'verbatim ! BEACH MEADOW, QUEENS CO. N.S., August 27th, 1874.

Please send me $29 Dollars worth of Indian Hemp. I cannot tell you with pen the great good this has done me. I was as weak as a cat; could hardly stand on my legs; no appetite; constant pain in my lungs; the Doctor had given me up, and I saw death before my eyes. But this medicine has raised me to the enjoyment of life and health. I can now walk two and three miles without fatigue, have a good appetite, am free from pain, sleep soundly, and am doing well. I have no fear of consumption ISAAC J. GARRETT.

To all who are afflicted with weak lungs, we would recommend this celebrated Medicine. One bottle will satisfy the most skeptical.

When we reflect that a power of enduance can be imparted to the brain, and that weak minds have been restored to strength by Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, we cannot but conclude that the subtle power is really ponderable matter. Persons who study hard should preserve their balance of power by using

THE NEW VOLUME OF THE "CANADIAN METHODIST MAGAZINE.

The following are a few specimens of recent public and private opinions of our excellent connexional Monthly :-

The Magazine is conducted with great spirit.— Montreal Witness.

This Magazine has already achieved a very re-markable success.—Toronto Mail. The Canadian Methodist Magazine for January is more than usually interesting and varied number.

-Toronto Globe. The Canadian Methodist Magazine, under the judicious and scholarly editorship of the Rev. W. H. Withrow, M. A., has been a conspicuous success from the first. It takes no contracted view, and is catholic and genial in its opinions. While it is sufficiently solid it is not heavy—that via media discovered by so few Magazine publishers.—London

This is one of the very best and cheapest Magazines published on this continent, being only about one half the price of American Magazines of Similar character.—St. Catherine's Times.

We heartily recommend this Magazine to our readers as one that should be in every house. It is worth twice its cost to any person. Try it for a year or six months, and you will not regret doing so .- Brampton Conservator.

The Rev. A. Andrew writes : "Our people are exceedingly well pleased with the Magazine. If old. "Hard Times" did not hold a sceptre here, we could have a fine list for the New Year. I will do what I can for both it and the Banner.

An esteemed brother from Nova Scotia writes I am proud beyond expression of the Magazine.' Another brother from the East writes: "Each number seems an improvement on its predecessor. The general opinion is that "for its size and excellence, this is the cheapest Magazine extant."

We confidently ask all its friends, ministerial and lay, to renew their subscriptions promptly, and to aid in increasing the circulation of our connexional monthly. A strong effort is especially necessary at the present crisis to prevent the prevailing monetary stringency from restricting its influence and usefulness. Marked improvements will be made during the coming year.

NOTICE.

UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE THE MAILS for the United Kingdom, via Portland, will close on Wednesdays, at 10 o'clock, p.m., and via New York on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays at 10 o'clock, p.m.
