POETRY.
CLING TO YOUR MOTHER.
Cling to your mother: for she was first
To know thy being and to feel thy life;
The hope of thee through many a pang she avert,
And when, midst anguish like the parting strife,
Her babe was in her arms, the agony Was all forgot, for bliss of loving thee.
Be gentle to thy mother: long she bore This infant fretfulness and silly youth Nor rudely scorn the faithful voice that'er She cradled, and taught thy lisping tongue Yes! she is old: yet on thy manly brow She looks and claims thee as her child's even now.
Behold thy mother: close to her warm breast She carried, sad thee, lull'd thee to thy rest; Then taught thy tottering limbs their unaided Ereling in the fadling from the nest;
And now her steps are feeble, be her stay, Whose strength was thine, in thy most feeble day.
Cherish thy mother: brief perchance the time May be that she will claim the care she gave:
Passed are her hopes of youth, her harvest prime Of joy on earth, her friends are in the grave;
But for her children, she could by her head Glady rest among the peaceful dead.
Be tender to thy mother: words unkind Or light neglect from thee will give a pang To that fond bosom where thou art enchain'd In love unutterable, more than pang Of unrequited hope. Would not her strongest trust, As thou wouldst hope for peace when she is dust?
O mother mine; God grant I ne'er forget, Whatever be my grief, or what my joy,
The unmeasured, unextinguishable debt, I owe thy love; but find my sweet employ, Ever through thy remaining days to me,
To live as faithful as thou wert to me.

HORRIBLE MASSACRE.
(From the Polyanesian of October 14.)
On Thursday morning, the 13th instant, the English schooner Amelia, of Glasgow (belonging, we believe, to the respectable firm of Messrs. Buchanan, Hamilton, and others,) arrived at this port (Honolulu) in distress—part of her crew having mutinied and murdered the captain, supercargo, and first and second officers. One of the mutineers, left Mazatlan on the 7th of September, and the coast on the 19th, with a cargo of 300,000 in specie, bound for China—Mr. Cook and lady, and Mary Hudson, a serving maid, passengers. On the night of the 3rd of October, in the middle watch, three of the crew attacked a second mate, and killed him. The captain and Mr. Cook, hearing the noise, came on deck. One of the ruffians was stationed at the forecastle latch, to prevent the watch below from coming up, and the other two attacked the captain and Mr. Cook, killing the latter and badly wounding the former. The captain succeeded in getting down into the cabin, and having procured a cutlass, was again going on deck, when he was stabbed in the back and fell, a lifeless corpse. The mutineers succeeded in the seizure and massacre of the murdered, were ordered to their staterooms, and the mate was secured in his and the murderers took possession of the Cabin and stowage of their cargoes of opium and Peru. On the following morning, the mate was told that he could have the boat and provisions if he chose to leave the vessel, and take the ladies with him. Under pretext of wanting the boat, they induced him to go on deck, when they fell upon him, and having wounded him badly, threw him overboard. They then threw all the letters and papers overboard, and getting out of a list of gold, they divided it among the crew, compelling all of them at the peril of their lives, to take a share of the money, and then calling for wine, commenced quarrelling. For two days they held undisturbed possession, completing the massacre at table with them, and, threatening them with death if they did not comply.— No ray of hope beamed on the future but that to a kind Providence, deliverance was at hand.
On the night of the 5th of October, the murderers having drunk freely, the reminder of the crew planned to deliver themselves from their tyrannical and cruel oppression. About one o'clock one of the mutineers, John Smith, of Rotterdam, killed two of the murderers with an axe, and struck the third cutting off his arm, and with the assistance of the carpenter and cabin boy, threw him overboard. Finding it impracticable to go to Mazatlan, the vessel's course was shaped for the island. The following is a list of those who were killed by the mutineers—Mr. Cook, for some years a resident of Mazatlan, Capt. Robert L.
McNeilly, of Dublin, Ramon Alva and Ketano. The three mutineers were Mexicans. These nations have been the cause of much trouble to the island, and have placed in confinement for the purpose of examination. It is thought that none of the crew except the three who were killed were aware of the plot. The youth who so nobly rescued the lives of those on board by taking that of the villain in whose hands they were, is deserving of lasting gratitude.
The following is a list of those who were concerned in the plan to deliver the vessel from the mutineers: John Smith of Rotterdam, John Berringer of Bordeaux, Thomas Gannon of London, Charles McDonald, and Frank a Swede.
The specie has been removed from the vessel, and the remains of the Treasurer, by order of the Consul General, Mrs. Cook, and servant are residing on shore.

SECOND REPORT.
The Canada left Halifax on Thursday at 12 o'clock, and will arrive at her wharf early on Monday. She has 99 passengers.
The terrible accounts of the war in India, united with the decided tone of defiance lately assumed by Russia, and the attitude taken by the British Government, in response to the challenge of Austria, France, and Prussia, has caused an uneasy feeling on the continent, which has been sensibly felt in England, and has operated injuriously upon the business of the country. Trade, notwithstanding, continues steady, and prices for most articles of produce are very satisfactory.
INDIA.—The Bombay Telegraph says:
"Another of those numerous battles, which have rendered our hostilities with the Sikhs so conspicuous, has occurred on the left bank of the River Ghelum, near, or as some say, on the identical spot which, two thousant years ago, formed the battle field of Alexander and Sporus. That scene, rich in classic associations, has been the arena of a fierce and protracted struggle between the army of the Punjab and the Sikhs forces under the command of their valiant leader, Rajah Shere Singh. A struggle occurred, in which the British had to deplore the loss of at least 95 officers, and 3,000 men, killed and wounded; a gun captured, and 4 or 5 regiments colours taken by the enemy. The struggle terminated in victory, which was disgraced by the flight of the Bengal Cavalry Regiment, and the retreat, scarcely as yet satisfactorily explained, of two British troops of Dragoons.
The struggle finally left the contending parties so weak and shattered, that it was doubtful which had sustained the greatest injury from the conflict, and which yielded to the other. It is probable, that the victors, that their opponents took a new position, and fired a salute in honor of their termination. Though master of the field, her hazards are drenched in blood; and it is doubtful whether the British had more victories would be a virtual ruin.
No attempt is made by the English press to disguise the fact the news from India is one of the most disastrous character. Lord Gough has been promptly superseded in the command by Sir C. Napier, who was to have proceeded to the scene of hostilities on the 20th inst.
ITALY.—While Austria is pushing on the war in Hungary, she is not unmindful of Italian affairs. She has marched a body of troops into Ferrara and seized upon that city, and levied a fine upon the citizens of 200,000 scudi, which she has handed over to the Pope.
The revolution in Tuscany is complete, and a republic has been proclaimed in Leghorn and Florence, and a central Italian Republic has been formed in union with the Romans.
AUSTRIA.—The Austrian war in Hungary has proceeded with variable success in the south of Hungary. The German population of the insurgent provinces carrying the destruction in every quarter, called on the Russians, who now occupy Constantin and Hermanstad. Several serious battles have taken place, one of them in the very neighbourhood of Belau lasting two days, with considerable slaughter in which the Imprialist seemed to have had the advantage.— Reports have been in circulation that in one engagement "Den" had both his legs shot off, but the last report is that he had left Transylvania for Hungary. As the troops amount to 140,000 men, divided into many divisions, it is difficult to ascertain the actual progress of the war, the termination of which seems to be very remote.—Pitt's Suppliment.

THE INDIAN DISASTERS.
The disasters which have recently befallen the British arms in India have naturally excited much speculation as to the issue of the conflict which has for some time been pending between the British princes and the usurers. It has struck us as singular, that though we hear, on all sides, the strongest expressions of sympathy in behalf of the gallant men who have fallen in the recent bloody struggle of our forces, to maintain the supremacy of British power, in countries whose independence we have crushed, yet in scarcely a sentence are we aware of the justice of our cause having been vindicated.
The insatiable rage of conquest which has characterized the British Indian Government, has left many a dark stain upon the pages of British history; and were we able to collect into one mass, the entire details of the atrocities perpetrated by that abominable oligarchy, in the numerous aggres-sions which it has made on the nations of the Eastern Peninsula, and the country to the north of it, we might blush to think that we belong to the same great empire as that which calls the Indian Provinces portions of its extended territories.
But aggression has its limits, and though they sometimes are permitted to be. Our arms, having outbraved every principality between Travancore and Oule, from Bengal to Malabar, still went on in the work of usurpation, and under every pretext, assailed every adjacent region, until, at length, even the great Muscovite dynasty began to apprehend danger to its frontiers. Every nation in the world has looked with jealousy, and with envy, on the extension of our Indian power. France has not forgotten that her trading monopoly in India was wrested from her by British arms; and hence it is, that the present day we find the military discipline of the forces brought into the field by the revolving Rajahs of the Punjab, such as not only to excite the astonishment, but, in respect to the tactics of our own commanders. The Afghans, and the Sikhs, have, from the most remote antiquity, been famous for their warlike spirit, and their indomitable detestation of a foreign yoke; and the fierce and well-disciplined army now making against the finest army in the world, proves that they have not, in the lapse of ages, lost any portion of their pristine character. The recent affair on the banks of the Jitum, in which they proposed, and the superior genius of their commanders. What may be the tenor of the next news which reaches us from the seat of war, we cannot pretend to predict; but it is very much to be desired, that our followers who fill the ranks of the British force, will have suffered still further disasters.
It is terrible to think on such a scene as that must have been which half the rank and file of the gallant 34th were mowed down in the course of a few minutes.— There is nothing in the history of the bat-ties of even our great Duke to exceed, or perhaps to equal this catastrophe. Lord Gough, being a Tipperary man, has, as a matter of course, been denounced by the cockney press, as a madman, a blockhead, and lord knows what else; and it is probable that the country will not be satisfied until they have selected better ground for an engagement; but it is quite wrong to blame his lordship; it is the party whom the cockney press ought really to blame is Rajah Singh. It was a great shame for the old barbarian to force a battle on the British army, in such a disadvantageous position. Why did he not come out like a man, on open level ground, and have a fair stand up fight? It was a general fellow! he was just as great an ass as General Jackson; at New Orleans, where the British could not see anything but cotton bales and sugar bargains to fire at.
Of course our readers have not forgot the Sutley victory. This Lord Gough, who some two or three years ago, informed the country, that he had destroyed the army of the water of the Sutley, by discomfiting it with the blood of the Sutley and Sikh. He said that the Sutley ran blood, and when this news reached England was much was the pity of the nation moved that the Arch-bishop of Canterbury manufactured a new prayer, in form of a thanksgiving, to a certain power which his Grace

In consequence of our absence during the week, our remarks on some respectable proceedings at the Quarter Sessions must be over till next week. We have to apologise to our friends in St. Mary's for not fulfilling our promise; the failure, however, was not owing to any neglect or unwillingness on our part. When we intended that we would lecture there on Monday evening, we calculated on reaching Stratford by the stage early on Monday morning, and going down to St. Mary's on horseback; but the stage did not run from Goderich on Sunday evening last, and although we hired a horse and buggy, and were at the village of Mitchell by mid-day on Monday, we regretted to learn that it was impossible to go down the Mitchell road with such a conveyance, and it was too late in the evening when we reached Stratford to attempt going to Blanshard.

We also regret that the necessity for our presence in Goderich last night, and the wretched state of the roads prevented us from going to North Easthope on Wednesday evening, especially as we learned from Mr. Fryfogle that it was contemplated to have a collected collection at our lecture, for the benefit of the North Easthope Library. But, we shall gladly embrace the first opportunity after the roads have become passable, to visit the people of St. Mary's and North Easthope.

In passing through the District we are pleased to see that a comparatively large quantity of Fall Wheat has been sown, and the healthy appearance of the crop at present must be cheering to the farmer. But there is not half enough of Fall Wheat sown in the District even this year. Every farmer should put in a few acres, it is the most desirable and the most profitable crop, and the time when it requires to be sown is in most instances the time when the farmers have least to do, hence he will, by putting in a few acres of wheat in the month of September or even in the beginning of October, relieve himself from much of the pressure and perplexity occasioned by the short and hurried season of spring ploughing.

The show of Stallions at Stratford on Tuesday was far from being interesting or even creditable to such a prosperous Agricultural locality—only five animals were shown, and they were certainly not entitled to the name of Prize animals. Prince Albert, the property of Mr. John Rattenbury of Tuckermith was the only handsome, well-proportioned horse on the ground, consequently he obtained the premium, and we understand when we left Stratford, that Prince Albert had become the property of T. M. Daly, Esq.

We are sorry to learn from the Toronto papers this morning, that Richard Watson, Printer of the British Canadian and the Upper Canada Gazette, perished in the flames of the Patriot Office during the late conflagration. We also regret to perceive that the Office of the Mirror has been consumed.

The rest of the Editorial will appear next week.

MR. KYDD'S VERACITY.
GODERICH, 11th April, 1849.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE HURON SIGNAL.
Dear Sir,—I beg the insertion of the enclosed letters. You will find the public will discover from Mr. Parsons' letter, how much faith is to be placed on Mr. Kydd's assertions. It is true that he did not get money, but he got that which is always considered as such, a negotiable note, retired prior to Mr. Kydd's lengthy confession to the truth of the charge I brought against him, that he in his office of Postmaster, had intercepted the Government funds to a large extent, and his so doing had involved his securities. That he repaid them is no justification, but they were not so repaid until long after I wrote my letter in November. I have Mr. Liza's authority for stating in the most positive manner, that he knew nothing of Mr. Kydd's having received any money from Mr. Bedford prior to his Mr. B's going up the Lake—and that Mr. Kydd never consulted him on any such subject.
Yours truly,
JOHN GALT.
GODERICH, 4th April, 1849.

My Dear Sir,
You will no doubt have observed in a letter addressed by Mr. Kydd to the Editor of the Huron Signal, and published in the Huron Gazette, of the 29th March, a statement to the effect that there was not "one word of truth" in my assertion, that shortly previous to Mr. Bedford's leaving this to go up the Lake in that unfortunate trip that ended with his death, Mr. Kydd obtained from him £25 or £30, and which sum was to be credited as a payment on the property bought by Mr. Bedford from Mr. Kydd.
You will very much oblige me if you would favor me with a note stating the particulars of the transaction, as it came to your knowledge either as Mr. Bedford's Executor or otherwise. I remain, my dear sir, yours truly, B. PARSONS, Esq.
GODERICH, April 10th, 1849.

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 4th inst. drawing my attention to a paragraph in Mr. Kydd's letter published in the Gazette, of the 29th ult., requesting information to corroborate the truth of your assertions.
What I know of the affair is simply this: Mr. Bedford on the 21st October last, gave his Note at three months, payable at the Bank, for £25 to Mr. Kydd, and Messrs. Kydd and Colville gave him an acknowledgment, pledging themselves, that the sum should be endorsed as a payment on the bond when it became due. The Note was not due at the time a payment was made on the bond, and in justice to Mr. Kydd, I must state he promises the Estate shall never be a sufferer from the transaction.
I much regret that matters of such a personal nature, (and what the public do not care about), should be brought before them, but I consider had it not been for the anonymous correspondence published in the Gazette of the 16th of November last, they never would have been introduced by their personal.
I remain, dear sir, truly yours, BENJ. PARSONS.

STRATFORD, April 9th, 1849.
On the 28th ult. an Inquest was held by James Wilson, Esquire, one of the Coroners of this District, upon the body of Gerard Irvine, at his house, Lot 18, in the 5th Con. of the Township of Blanshard. From the evidence given, it appeared that Gerard Irvine was sitting at the raising of a Barn for Mr. William Chittick, on the 27th Lot, on the 10th Con. of the same Township, and when the first long log was raised about nine feet, one of the cutches at the North West end, and unfortunately slipped off the log. The strength of the other parties at that corner being insufficient to support the weight, each one had to look to his own safety; the log fell and struck the deceased on the head, who died immediately, only bleeding a little at the mouth and ear. The evidence proved there was not the slightest blame attributable to any of the persons assisting. Verdict—Accidental death.

THE WATER COURSES.
From the Scottish Guardian.
Isaiah xlv. 4.

A Christian lady, having been sent for her health to a foreign land, where she could not enjoy the public amusements of grace, returned soon to her own country. Being asked why she returned, she said,—"I have come home to die beside the water courses."

I come from the groves where the orange bough blooms white in the myrtle shade—
From the murmuring music, soft and low, By Italia's fountains made.

I have bid farewell to the azure deep Of the cloudless southern sky—
To the silver seas that waveless sleep Where mountain shagwags lie.

I have bid farewell to the dome and tower,
And classic column tall,
To the stately academie hall,
And the gorgeous pictured wall.

No more the balmy air I seek Of the sweet Italian clime; Fans not its breeze my burning cheek, Cool when the vapours chime.

I come to the bleak and barren shore Of my own, my native home—To the dark pine wood, to the catarract roar—
To the mountain steers, I come.

For, oh! there are streams in the Scottish wild, That my deep soul pines to drink, Faint, faint was the spirit of Scotia's child By the southern fountain's brink.

Where waters of grace in their freshness flow, On the green banklet me lie;
By those holy streams, as they whisper low,
"I come—I come—to die."

SPRING WHEAT.
The past year, having been an unfavorable one for Spring Wheat, it is not to be expected that so much ground will be occupied this season with this crop as has been the case in former years. For five or six years in succession, Spring Wheat has yielded more bushels per acre, on tolerably rich and well cultivated land, than did Winter Wheat, and, as might have been expected, it has become very popular—so much so, indeed, that sufficient of it was raised to supply the home consumption; and, besides, large quantities were shipped to Britain, which soon had a prejudicial influence on Canadian growers. The system of mixing Spring with Winter Wheat was resorted to by our Millers, in order to improve the character of Spring Wheat flour; but what was saved in this way was more than lost from the bad character that has given some of the choicest Canadian brands. The Inspectors of Flour at last determined that Spring Wheat flour should be branded as such; and by this means the two qualities were kept distinct. The failure the past season was not so great, as that of the spring wheat of 1848 was not only a non-paying one, but that it subjected the Farmers to a loss of some £1,100 per acre, besides a great disappointment. On the farm occupied by the writer of this article, upwards of eighty acres of Spring Wheat was sown and harvested the past season, which, to all appearance, ten days before the crop was cut, gave most satisfactory evidence that it would yield, on an average, throughout the entire crop, a little upward of thirty bushels of sound grain to the acre; but, in reality, it yielded only ten bushels of a very inferior sample—so bad, indeed, that in other years it would have been fed to the cattle in an unbranded state. It will require but very little calculation to ascertain the actual loss that a farmer would sustain whose crop so singularly failed as the one alluded to, and which by no means is an isolated case. The loss of rent, value of seed, and the cost of ploughing the entire eighty acres, and the loss of the crop, would be sufficient alone to make a farmer very cautious in sowing down so great a breadth of land with a crop that would occasionally prove so thoroughly fruitless. The largest spring wheat crops of which the writer has any knowledge, exceeded two hundred acres, which to all appearance a few days before harvest, would give an average product of twenty-five bushels per acre, but which, in reality, did not pay the cost of harvesting. The owner of the crop in question assumed, as that the actual loss might be safely estimated at £500.

Although the farmers of Canada may look upon the business of growing spring wheat with a good deal of doubt as to its favorable result, yet it must not be received as being more subject to risk than autumn wheat, when a period of eight or ten years are taken into the calculation. On the score of economy, the country should be supplied with a sufficient quantity of spring wheat flour, to meet the entire local demand for breadstuffs, and the flour manufactured from winter wheat, should be exported to the markets of the mother country. It is useless to sow this crop upon badly prepared ground, and it should also be sown as early as possible, or as soon as the ground becomes sufficiently dry to work the harrow with efficiency. In most cases it is well to have the ground well prepared for spring wheat in autumn, and when this is done, the seed may be sown as early as possible. When it is not intended to cross plough in spring, it is an excellent practice to pass a steel tooth cultivator over the ground once or twice, if time will permit, just before sowing the seed. From five to six pecks of seed per acre may not be found too much on moist soils, and before sowing the seed much care should be observed in thoroughly purifying it from all other grains, and the seeds of weeds, as well as smut. A little care in this respect will much more than repay the cost, and besides, it perfectly pure sample of grain is always more creditable to the grower, than one that is mixed with other species of grain, and that is discolored with smut.

BARLEY.—This grain being principally used for malting purposes, is not so important a crop to the country as some others. The land for barley requires to be well worked with the plough, harrow, and roller, and by rights, should be ploughed in autumn, so that by the action of frost it may be made perfectly friable. For a matter of experiment, the editor, a few years ago, in cultivating fifteen acres of barley land, ploughed a portion of the field twice, and the other portion three times; and another four times; that which was ploughed another four times, that which was ploughed twice yielded 80 bushels, that three times 40 bushels, and that four times 20 bushels per acre. No portion of the land was ploughed only once, but if it had been, it doubtless would not have yielded more than 20 bushels per acre. Between each ploughing, the land was harrowed lengthwise and crosswise of the furrow, by which means the most perfect state of tilth was produced. Two pecks of seed should be sown per acre, and it is useless to sow this crop upon land unless it be rich, and in a high state of cultivation.—Farmer and Mechanic.

The Transcript, speaking of the recent articles of some of the prominent Conservators, on the subject of annexation to the United States, makes the following very sensible remarks:—"The manner in which the Pilot has just been punished for only listing that an individual was in correspondence with Mr. O'Connor, ought to lead us to a contrary decision. From this verdict it might be supposed that our loyalty is peculiarly sensitive—quite safe from stain or corruption, and defying the onslaught of party. To make loyalty an argument against our opponents, and then in the very same breath cast it down in the dust, seems a strange contradiction."—Packet.

A modest young lady, desiring the leg of a chicken at table, said she would take that part "which ought to be dressed in pantaloons." A young gentleman opposite immediately called for that part which usually wears the buff.

As every thread of gold is valuable, so is every minute of time; and as it would be great folly to shoe horses (as Nero did) with gold, so it is to spend time in trifles.

The reason why so few marriages are happy, is because young ladies spend their time in making notes, not in making eyes. The man who has not anything to boast of but his illustrious ancestors, is like a potato—the only good belonging to him is under ground.

When a man has once forfeited the reputation of his integrity, he is set back; and nothing will then serve his turn, nor will his truth nor falsehood.

Pride is never more offensive than when it conceals to be civil; whereas, vanity, whenever it forgets itself, naturally assumes good humour.

A virtuous mind in a fair body is indeed a fine picture in a good light, and therefore it is not surprising that it makes the beautiful sex all over charms.

The true art of assisting virtue, consists in embellishing the whole person by the proper ornaments of virtuous and commendable qualities.
