Trenching AT GALLIPOLI,

By JOHN GALLISHAW.

The personal narrative of a loyal Newfoundland soldier in the disastrous Dardanelles campaign. An adventure-story stranger than fiction; as well as a reliable account, by an unusually keen participant, of the gigantic failure at Gallipoli. For obvious reasons not a great many details of the Dardanelles campaign were permitted to be published while it was running its dramatic and terribly costly course; nor since, either, for that matter, Mr. Gallishaw, a student at Harvard when the war began and now, wounded, again in this country, is at liberty to write about what happened. His book, moreover, gives an extraordinarily vivid impression of what trench-fighting and trench-living is like.

If you haven't heard or seen it, get it now.

Escaped Operation For Piles

THESE are the kind of letters we are receiving almost daily in regard to Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for Piles. Surgical operations are usually quite unnecessary, and in some cases Dr. Chase's Ointment has effected cure after operations had failed.

Mr. Samuel Parker, Fruit-grower, Grimsby, Ont., has made the following declaration before Mr. W. W. Kidd, Notary Public of the same place:—"I do solemnly declare that I was troubled with bleeding Piles, and was advised to go to the hospital to have an operation performed. My wife said 'No; get a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment.' I did so, and have used it according to directions while living in Manitoba, and obtained a complete cure, for I have never been troubled with Piles since. I am now seventy years of age, and want to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all sufferers from Piles."

Mrs. T. Pierce, Oak Bay, Charlotte County, N.B., writes:—"About five years ago I had a very severe attack of Piles. In fact, I had suffered from them for years, but never had so bad an attack as this one. I was obliged to remain in bed and suffered excruciating pains. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital and be operated on, as they were so bad that nothing else would cure them but an operation. At this time I heard that Dr. Chase's Ointment was a good treatment for Piles, and began to use it. I persisted in its use until cured, and know that it saved me from a surgical operation."

This statement is vouched for by Rev. Thos. Pierce, Methodist minister, Oak Bay, N.B.

A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XLIII.

It was about eighteen months later, when, one day, at luncheon-time, a station-fly drove up to the Court.

"Why who's that?" said Carrie, for she and Ricky were spending the day at the Court, as they often did. Heroncourt rose from the table and went to the window.

"Why, it's Dartford!" he exclaimed. "I mean Lord Erith."

"Yes, I saw him," said Purley in his old, quiet way; his eyes were as keen as ever.

"Dartford!" exclaimed Ricky, and he hurried out into the hall after Heroncourt.

It was Dartford right enough as buoyant and smiling as ever, and like a red Indian for tan.

"Yes, it's me," he said—grammar had never been Dartford's strong point. "Just come over. Surprise visit. I've got news for you. Came down here straight. How well you two chaps are looking!"

"Come in," said Heroncourt, when he and Ricky had done wringing Dartford's hand. "Both The Sisters are here"—it was a double title which the county had bestowed on Carrie and Maida long since.

"Dartford was hailed in, and received a warm welcome from Maida and Carrie, and as warm, though a very quiet one, from Purley.

"My word!" exclaimed Dartford, looking from Maida and Carrie to Heroncourt and Ricky; "you two chaps are lucky ones!"

Heroncourt and Ricky glanced proudly at their wives, who blushed, but smiled at the compliment.

"When I saw your portraits in the Sketch I said they must be flatteries. But for once the photographer was out of it. You'll excuse the candour of a rough backwoodsman, Lady Heroncourt and Mrs. Clark."

"Oh, they'll excuse you," said Heroncourt. "They know you—by repute, I've told them about you; but you ought to be ashamed of yourself, raising the blush of vanity to the faces of two staid matrons."

"Ah, yes, I've got to see those two babies directly," said Dartford. "I've got a little present for each other. I'll give it to 'em after lunch. I'm as hungry as a hunter. Fire away with all the news while I'm stoking."

There was a good deal of laughter over that lunch, for Dartford seemed to be in even more than his usual brilliant spirits, if possible, and rattled away like a school-boy. But when the meal was over and the servants had gone, he took a small parcel from his coat pocket, and, unrolling the wrappings of tissue paper, produced a couple of children's ivory rattles.

"There are my presents for your kiddies," he said, with a twinkle in his eyes.

They looked like quite ordinary rattles, such as one buys in the Lowther Arcade; but Maida, as she thanked him, looked curiously at hers, and said:

"Why, how heavy it is! And how funny the bells are! Look, Mr. Purley."

He took the thing, glanced at it, and said in his quiet way:

"Gold; made out of the rough nugget."

"Right you are, old man!" said Dartford. "Trust an old digger to spot the yellow stuff! Yes; it's gold—and it comes from the Dartford estate!"

There was a general exclamation of surprise and delight, and Dartford looked round, nodding and smiling.

"It's a true bill, Heroncourt," he said. "We struck it while we were making the foundations for a larger house; the stuff was there right under our feet. You don't want any more money, I know, you're offish enough, but you can guess it made me yell. It's the first bit of luck that ever befell our family, and I'm making the most of it."

They all shook hands with him—the ladies included—and congratulated him; and presently the two bonnie boys were brought down and Dartford thrust a costly rattle into the hand of each. There was so much excitement over the news that not until the close of the evening was Heroncourt able to have a quiet chat alone with his partner.

They went to the terrace and sat themselves in a couple of deck-chairs and smoked their cigars for a time in that silence which indicates something like perfect happiness; then, presently, Dartford said:

"By George, old man, you fell on your feet, both you and Master Ricky. What rot they talk when they say life isn't worth living! They ought to see you and him, with youth and strength and no end of money—"

"And the women we love," said Heroncourt, very quietly.

"Right you are, old man!" assented Dartford. "I was coming to that, but I ought to have put it first. 'Lord! little did I think—or you either, for that matter—that those two girls were at Milda Wolda within a day's ride of you! Quite a romance, eh?'"

"Yes," said Heroncourt. Then he added, gravely: "I had a letter from Mrs. Broseley."

"Ah, yes," said Dartford, as gravely. "Poor woman! She was terribly cut up; for he was her son after all, her only son."

"How did it happen?" asked Heroncourt. "She did not give me any particulars."

"Oh, it was in a drunken bout. In Melbourne. He and Black Jake met—"

"Black Jake!"

"Yes. Both men had been drinking heavily; they met in one of the low pubs and started quarrelling at once. At the trial Black Jake wanted to make out that Robert Broseley drew first; but anyway, Jake shot Broseley, shot him dead. It was the kind of ending that might have been expected for the man, for he was a bad lot, and, if the mother and father could only see it, it was a blessing in disguise. You'll see her over here presently. She's a dear good soul, and she and my wife have taken to each other tremendously."

"Your wife!" exclaimed Heroncourt, turning to him with astonishment.

"Yes," said Lord Erith, to give him his proper title, very slowly and looking steadily into Heroncourt's eyes; "I've kept the most important bit of news—that is, most important for me—till we were together quietly. I've married Lucy."

Heroncourt held out his hand without a word.

THE END.

CHAPTER I.

"So I was—so I ought to be, I'm afraid," rejoins his companion. "But something has happened, and I exchanged."

"No! Really!" ejaculates Sir Archie, his blue eyes wide open. "Come into some money, old boy? Congratulate you!"

And he seizes the other's hand and wrings it heartily.

"Wait a minute," with a faint smile, "scarcely that. I—in fact it is too long a story to tell you here. Where are you staying, if you are staying here?"

"At the Hotel de Vincel," replies Sir Archie. "Where are you?"

"At the same place," is the response. "That is, I went and ordered a room, but it is a chance if they have one. I only arrived a few hours, say two, ago. Fact is I forgot the carnival."

"No, really! You didn't come on purpose? But I forgot, you don't care for this sort of thing. Never did."

"Not much," assents the other. "No, I came here because it was a good deal out of my way."

"A—good deal—out-of-your way!" echoed Sir Archie, amazed; then he laughs his frank, light-hearted laugh.

"But there, that is just like you! A good deal out of your way! And where were you going, old man?"

"To England," returned the other, staring at the crowd absent. "I am going on business. Some business I can't understand yet, and that is why I am shirking it."

"Really. And you came round by Rome. Just like you, just the old man as in days of yore. And how long are you going to stop? You must stop and see this out, you know—oh, though! you don't care for it, do you?"

"Not much," assents the other. "How long? Perhaps a few hours, perhaps a day or two. But I'm keeping you. Where were you going when I met you? Judging by the serious, business-like look on your face, you were on some errand intent? What was it?"

Magisterial Inquiry

INTO MOTOR CAR TRAGEDY AT MANSLAUGHTER CHASE.

The preliminary inquiry into motor car tragedy, which occurred on the Goulds Road on Sunday afternoon, August 25th last, and in which Mrs. Theodore Chafe and her 17-year old son Douglas lost their lives, began at three o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Magistrate's court before Judge Morris.

Private John Parker, who is charged with manslaughter, was present with his counsel, Mr. V. J. Hill, Mr. C. H. Hutchings, C.C. De Minister of Justice, and Mr. J. A. McNelly, on behalf of the Crown. Dunfield, B.L., representing the husband of the woman who was arrested, and the accused, and press representatives.

Two witnesses were examined by Mr. Hutchings, C.C. The first was Mr. Francis H. Baour, mayor at the Crown Law office, submitted a plan which he took the surroundings where the tragedy occurred. The next to be sworn was Battalion Sergeant Major J. H. Grier, who was in company with the accused on the day in question, seated in the front part of the motor car at the time of the tragedy.

Witness Gardner gave a detailed statement of all that happened.

There was no cross-examination either witness. By consent of counsel for prosecution and defence the inquiry was set down for further hearing on Friday afternoon.

Magisterial Inquiry.

INTO MOTOR CAR TRAGEDY AND MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

The preliminary inquiry into the motor car tragedy, which occurred on the Goude Road on Sunday afternoon, August 25th last, and in which Mrs. Theodore Chafe and her three year old son Douglas lost their lives, began at three o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Magistrate's Court before Judge Morris.

Private John Parker, who is charged with manslaughter, was present with his counsel, Mr. W. J. Higgins, Mr. C. H. Hutchings, K.C., Deputy Minister of Justice, and Mr. J. A. W. McNelly, on behalf of the Crown; Mr. Dunfield, B.L., representing Mr. Chafe, husband of the woman who was killed; Supt. Grimes, Detective Byrne, who arrested the accused, and a few press representatives.

Two witnesses were sworn and examined by Mr. Hutchings, K.C. The first was Mr. Francis H. Balfour, Surveyor at the Crown Lands Office, who submitted a plan which he took of the surroundings where the tragedy occurred. The next to be sworn was Battalion Sergeant Major John Gardner, who was in company with the accused on the day in question and seated in the front part of the motor car at the time of the tragedy. Witness Gardner gave a detailed statement of all that happened.

There was no cross-examination of either witness. By consent of the counsel for prosecution and defence, the inquiry was set down for further hearing on Friday afternoon.

FOR THE MOTION PICTURE GOER.

Almost every woman enjoys motion picture shows, but few realize how injurious the flash like shifting of the film is to the eyesight. For protection against bright light and sun glare and wrinkles, various colors of glass are now in use. The old-fashioned, so called "smoke glass" is about as good as any. The goggles made for automobile use seem to have become a very useful article for people in various walks and works of life.

The engineer finds them good, the long distance swimmer finds a pair set in rubber frames an excellent thing to keep the salt spray out of the eyes, and the worker in dust or metal particles is glad to be able to wear a well-fitting pair. A kind intended to serve by night as well as by day, have insets of smoked glass in the lower part to protect the eye piercing glare of motor searchlights, as well as the sun glare upon white roads and snow. Such an idea might well be dispensed in glass, it would seem, if the one who wears such glasses must confront the same conditions.

Well fitting, well chosen glasses, neither too large or too small, too round nor too low, worn not crookedly or too far away from the eyes, are not unbecoming. Indeed, they are an adjunct to the beauty in some cases where the eye happens to be ill set, of hard expression or indeterminate color.

Eye-glass making is, indeed, a fine art these days. Styles in rims, in shapes, in the bridge used to set them upon the nose—all of these things do their part in making the up-to-date pair of eyeglasses things of beauty as well as usefulness.

Fashions and Fads.
 Suit jackets will be long. The vamps of the latest Paris shoes are very short. Double-faced silks and wools make charming gowns. There are a few pointed bodices among evening gowns. We will see a great many deep yokes on winter skirts. Separate coats will be distinguished by partial belts. Middy blouses are deservedly popular for school girls. Evening gowns will not be so formal as they have been. Jade and other green stones are favored for jewelry.

Patriotic Football.

C. E. I. PUT STARS UNDER.

One of the most exciting and hardest fought contests for the season took place last evening, witnessed by a fairly large gathering of spectators. The C. E. I. and Stars were the opposing forces, the former coming off victorious by one goal to nil. During the first half hour there was a noticeable lack of combination but after the breathing spell the exhibition by both sides was better. No scoring had been done up to two minutes before the close when the C. E. I. put forward their reserve energy and by good combination of their forwards beat the Star goal keeper. Mr. Foster (St. Andrew's), refereed. Churchill, Winter, Jerrett and Reid played well for the C. E. I., whilst Duggan, Hart, Bell and McGrath put up a fine game for the Stars.

Ankle Bloomers Coming!

According to the American Fashion Art League.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Fashion has been tamed. This is the word that went forth at the opening of the Fashion Art League of America when the draperies were drawn aside for the advance showings of the Autumn here-to-day.

"War has tamed Dame Fashion," Mme Marguerite said. "Woolens must be conserved. Our soldiers must have warm clothes, so our women must be content with just about half the amount of cloth in their tailored attire. Coats are to be shorter, skirts narrower, lapels only lines and not a patch pocket."

The demonstrator then turned to another model. "But there are exceptions," he said. "Here is something daring, more daring than ever before," and out of the dark chamber stratted a young woman reminiscent of the harem. The skirt was rich in Oriental colors, but the eye would not stay on the skirt, for it parted on either side and displayed ankle bloomers of a radiant hue.

"The evening gowns will be full of ribbons—American-made ribbons," she continued. "You know the industry was threatened last year, thousands were thrown out of employment. Now we are going back to them to revive the industry."

"Gowns with only one sleeve will be fashionable, and even the silhouette will be in vogue."

"Paris no longer dictates American fashions," Miss Winifred Burns, of Duluth put in.

Miss Burns last year won the prize given by the League for the best American design.

AT THE POPULAR CRESCENT.

A splendid holiday programme is on at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. Gretchen Hartman features in a touching story of the underworld entitled: "Pit for the Burning," produced as a Biograph special feature in three reels, a fine travalogue film, scenes in the famous "Yosemite Valley." The fearless George Larkin in "A Mission of State," a most exciting adventure of the great detective series, "Grant, Police Reporter"; and a corking Es-say Comedy: "A Dollar Down." Crescent patrons will be delighted with this great big holiday show.

H.C. of L. Commission.

Sixth Report Dealing With Tinned Goods, Kero. Oil, Clothing and Footwear.

Sir.—The undersigned, the Commissioners appointed to investigate the high cost of living, beg respectfully to present their sixth and closing report, dealing with tinned foods, kerosene oil, etc., as follows:

TINNED GOODS.

With respect to the last class of what may be called staple foodstuffs, that is to say, tinned meats and such like, we find that, contrary to common belief, the prices of these goods in stock have not been unduly advanced from time to time, but that, in the main, the rates charged have been the normal ones proper for the successive shipments of these goods, advances not being made except such as warranted by the increasing prices of the goods actually purchased abroad.

This is true also of tinned fruit, and similar articles which are also imported extensively. As a matter of fact, the prices of all these articles have advanced several times since the war began, and are now very considerably higher than three years ago. Dealers in the Colony have, as these advances have occurred, had to pay the increased rate, and then have naturally had to advance their price in order to secure their fair profit.

KEROSENE OIL.

We find that the prices charged for kerosene oil in this Colony to-day, owing to competition between the two large Companies which handle most of this article, are much less than would otherwise be possible, and that the public can have no cause for complaint in regard to what they are at present paying for this commodity.

CLOTHING AND FOOTWEAR.

With regard to clothing and footwear, we would explain that, as the Government, before we were able to reach this stage in our inquiries, decided to appoint a Food Control Board, we felt that it would be preferable to leave that phase of the subject to the proposed Board, as inquiries into these articles are embraced within its authority.

In the course of the present enquiry, fifty-four witnesses have been examined in relation to the various subjects we have dealt with, and we cheerfully testify to the readiness with which all of these gentlemen responded to our request for information, and to the frankness with which they supplied the same. Signed copies of the evidence given by these witnesses have been secured and we respectfully suggest that the same be forwarded to the proposed Food Control Board, for use in the conduct of its work. The Commission appointing us is returned herewith.

We have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servants,
P. T. McGRATH,
H. W. LEMESSURIER,
C. H. HUTCHINGS,

Victims of Train Wreck NOW IN HOSPITAL.

Engineer W. Stone and Fireman Maidment, victims of yesterday morning's train wreck on the Bonavista branch railway, reached the city by special train at 2 a.m. to-day. The injured men were accompanied by Dr. Chisholm and on arrival were removed to the General Hospital, where everything possible is being done to ease their pain. Stone's injuries are most confined to his face and hands, while Maidment, who at the time had but little clothing on, is badly scalded on his body, neck, face and hands. Both men are suffering from shock but are doing as well as could be expected.

Just now mothers all over the land have the school lunch box problem to solve each day. The child naturally craves sweets and they should be given in moderate amounts, as they are necessary to furnish fuel. Sweets should be given at the close of the meal so that they may not clog the taste for the substantial things.

Eggs cooked hard and well seasoned make a most satisfactory sandwich filling. The sandwich is an important factor and should have first place in the lunch box. Bottles now may be bought at a small price which will hold a hot drink of soup, cocoa, milk, these being drinks best for a child. A handful of nuts and raisins or a few figs or dates will add to the enjoyment of a lunch as well as to its nutritive value.

Fresh fruit, an apple or an orange, a cake of sweet chocolate or a few pieces of good candy make a well enjoyed finish to a meal.

In Memoriam.

JAMES CARROLL.

Within the past month the Reaper whose name is Death has been busy in carrying to the Great Beyond some of our best citizens. This is particularly true of James Carroll, who up to a year ago had been Treasurer of the Star of the Sea Association for a number of years as well as one of the founders and Vice-Presidents thereof. The subject of this note was born at Holywood in 1860, and died there on the 30th of August, 1917, aged 57 years. In early life he pursued the avocation of fisherman-farmer. Later he emigrated to the U. S. A. where he engaged at carpentering on State work in the city of Boston. In later years he returned to Newfoundland and entered on a career of mercantile business which he pursued with great activity and success almost to the day of his death, building up quite a large trade and leaving a going concern to be developed still further by his two active and energetic sons. Mr. Carroll took a prominent part in the public life of our town, and was always the leading spirit and central figure in societies, clubs, schools and church organizations. Up to January last he possessed good health, but alarming symptoms compelled him then to seek treatment in the hospital, and he returned incurable from that institution. He had also the treatment of some of the best medical skill of the city; but all efforts proved fruitless to arrest the progress of the fatal malady. Rev. W. P. Finn was in constant attendance on the sick man, and fortunately happened along at the moment when the angel of death was hovering over the bed, and administered the last Sacraments. The funeral appointments were in charge of Undertaker Dunphy who had the remains enclosed in a handsome polished oak casket. The funeral took place on Saturday morning from his late home to Holy Cross Church where High Mass of Requiem for the repose of his soul was sung by Rev. W. P. Finn. The Star of the Sea Association, of which he was one of the founders, attended in processional order, and together with a number of other citizens made up a large procession. When the last solemn and sad rites of the burial service were pronounced, the funeral procession reformed and proceeded on its way to the south side cemetery where under the shadow of the cross the body of a good man, a respected citizen, and an honored brother member was laid to rest, the deep yawning grave surrounded by grief stricken sons and daughter and sympathizing friends. To the bereaved widow, sons and daughter we offer our heartfelt sympathy and pray that Almighty God have mercy on the soul of their dear departed friend.—R. I. P.

"To an Unknown Canadian"

The Times: But what most engaged the King's attention were the scattered graves with which Vimy Ridge is dotted. Wherever a cross marked the resting-place of one of his soldiers the King always went to inspect it. Before one grave, "To an Unknown Canadian," especially, he stood for a while, a grave well tended and with cornflowers rising to wreath the broken trench helmet with which the cross was surmounted. "It is hard that any one of these brave fellows should be unknown," he said; "the world ought to know every one of them." More than once he expressed his appreciation of the careful and reverent way in which our dead are buried, and in which all possible data are collected and preserved.

Separation Allowances.

There will be general satisfaction in the decision of the Government to treat the Newfoundland Regiment as all other Colonial soldiers are treated, and to grant, at long last, to the families of married soldiers a separation allowance. The allowances will be paid from September 1st last, will be made, of course, to the families of all married soldiers, whether on active service or new recruits, and will be of the amount of twenty dollars a month. It is a need of innovation and comes not more than three years later than it should have come. It will have a doubly beneficial effect. It will both be an act of justice to those whom it benefits, doing away with the wretched system of doling out monetary assistance from the Patriotic Fund to those who have been able to swallow their pride and ask for it, and substituting instead a regular payment as a matter of right; and it should have the effect of giving a much needed stimulus to recruiting. There are hundreds of young married men in the country who are not wanting in patriotism, but are rather placed by it in a most difficult position, being asked to make a cruel choice between country and family, between duty and affection. They are not to be blamed for questioning their duty to offer their lives for a country that will not even relieve them of anxiety for those they hold dearest. This great wrong is now redressed and there is no need to dwell further on it. We trust we shall see the effect at once in the recruiting returns. The allowance will also be made automatically to the Foresters, since the Imperial Government has agreed to pay them on the same scale as the Regiment; but the whole expense in that regard will be borne by the British Treasury. It is necessary, however, to state that a married man will be accepted as a Forester who is eligible for service as a soldier. Finally, though it ought not to be any consideration on the other side however great it may be, the expense of the allowances to the country will not be great. As the New points out, 500 married men in the ranks would mean a total cost in that respect of $120,000 annually. As a good part of that amount would be paid ordinarily under the old system of relief, the net additional cost to the country will be quite moderate.

In 1895 he returned to Newfoundland and entered on a career in the mercantile business which he pursued with great activity and success until the day of his death, having accumulated a large trade and leaving a substantial estate to be developed still further by his two active and energetic sons. Mr. Carroll took a prominent part in the public life of our island and was always the leading central figure in societies, schools and church organizations. He died on January last he possessed a fine health, but alarming symptoms developed when he returned from a trip to the hospital, and he returned to his home from that institution. He was the treatment of some of the most skillful of the city, but all efforts were fruitless to arrest the progress of the fatal malady. Rev. W. W. W. was in constant attendance on him, and fortuitously happened to be at the moment when the death was hovering over the patient. He administered the last Sacrament, and the funeral appointments were held at the residence of Undertaker Dunphy on Monday afternoon. The remains were enclosed in a polished oak casket. The funeral took place on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at Holy Cross Church. High Mass of Requiem was celebrated for the repose of his soul was sung by P. Finn. The Star of the Sea, of which he was one of the members, attended in procession together with a number of citizens made up a large cortege. When the last solemn and touching funeral service was completed, the procession returned to the cemetery where under the shade of a large tree the body of a good citizen, and an honored member was laid to rest. The funeral was surrounded by a large number of friends. To the bereaved sons and daughter and to the friends. To the bereaved sons and daughter and to the friends. Messages Received Previous to 9 A. M.

STURMER DEAD. PETROGRAD, Sept. 4. Boris Vladimirovitch Sturmer, former Premier and Foreign Minister, died yesterday.

RUSSIAN SITUATION BAD. LONDON, Sept. 4. The Petrograd correspondent of the Times, in a despatch dated Sunday, views the internal situation pessimistically. "The Government," he says, "is still dominated by irresponsible forces. General Korniloff has been obliged to take personal measures to victual the army and has ordered forcible application of cereals from peasants within the war zones and is negotiating with the railway men with a view to satisfying their just grievances. His programme of army reforms is still in suspense."

CLAIM 300 SUBS. CHRISTIANIA, Sept. 4. The Copenhagen correspondent of the Tidning Tegn reports that the number of German submarines is now three hundred.

GERMANY SHORT OF COAL. LONDON, Sept. 4. The London Times says there is great anxiety in Germany about the winter coal supply. The coal controller admits an actual coal shortage. The army is unable to release enough miners.

ALLIES TO REVISE PLANS. WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. Word has reached Washington from Paris through official channels yesterday, that the Entente Allies will soon hold an important military conference for the purpose of re-canvasing the situation on account of the disasters that have befallen the Russian armies on the Riga and Galician fronts and in the drive of the Germans against the Roumanian front. These reverses and the subsequent success of the Italian offensive are expected to bring about a complete revision of the Entente military plans for the fall and winter months.

HUGE AUSTRIAN LOSSES. WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. German reinforcements rushed to the aid of the Austrians on the Italian front are being pushed back, according to official despatches received here from Rome. Unofficial estimates place the Austrian losses during the present Italian offensive at 128,500.

WILL BE ENFORCED. MONTREAL, Sept. 4. Rumors that the Military Service Act would not be introduced are expected by Sir Robert Borden to a correspondent here as baseless.

AUSTRIANS SORELY PRESSED. GENEVA, Sept. 4. A despatch from Innsbruck says that after several appeals Field Marshal Von Hindenburg has consented to send two divisions of Bavarian troops from Russia to the Isonzo front to strengthen the Austrian defence.

NORWEGIAN LOSSES. LONDON, Sept. 4. According to Norwegian advices, twenty-one Norwegian merchant ships, with an aggregate tonnage of more than 41,000, were lost in August.

THINKS TROUBLE OVER. TORONTO, Sept. 4. "We are at the end of our troubles in Quebec," said Hon. P. E. Blondin, Postmaster General, in an interview this afternoon, when he paid a flying visit to the Canadian National Exhibition. "The agitators have had the floor, but I think we will find amply now. Quebec will express her true mind. The agitation was mainly confined to Montreal. Conscription was the only thing that could deal moderately with the situation."

WAR ON GERMANY'S ALLIES. WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. A statement issued by the Patriotic Education Society urges that the United States should declare war immediately upon Germany's allies, asserting that the German secret service is relying largely upon the Austrians and Bulgarians for information from this country. Asking if this is war of democracy against autocracy it says, how can we maintain friendly relations with the most despotic of the great empires, Austrian-Hungary. Instead of refraining from declaration of war against Austria in a separate peace, the Society argues that the States should take a surer gust. Twenty-three seamen were killed and five are missing.

REPLACING LOST TONNAGE.

LONDON, Sept. 4. Commenting on the rapid increase in shipbuilding to offset losses from the submarine campaign, a Cardiff correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company says that two supplementing vessels published by Lloyd's Shipping Register show that between June 8th and July 17th, more than one hundred steamers, of which sixty-three are British, were added to the register. Most of these vessels are of large tonnage. The rate of construction is understood to be increasing rapidly.

MORE BLASPHEMY.

BERLIN, Sept. 4. Emperor William has sent the following telegram to the Empress: "Field Marshal Prince Leopold of Bavaria, reports the capture of Riga by our troops, which is a new milestone of German strength and unerring will to victory. May God help us further."

OPTIMISTIC OVER IRELAND.

DUBLIN, Sept. 4. The Assembly of the Constitutional Convention for Ireland to-day at Belfast, to which city the deliberations have been transferred for a time, excited great interest throughout Ireland and very favorable conclusions for the success of the Convention were drawn from it. It is felt to be a great gain that Belfast should abandon its rigid position of unwillingness to discuss Home Rule at all, and should give a cordial reception to the Convention, whose function it is to draft a constitution for the Government of Ireland.

107 KILLED BY RAID.

LONDON, Sept. 4. In last night's air raid 107 persons were killed and 86 wounded at Chatham, it is announced officially. The victims were naval ratings. Six airplanes took part in the raid.

ANOTHER AIR RAID ON ENGLAND.

LONDON, Sept. 4. Another air raid on England has taken place and an English coast town shelled as well as the London district. The official report of the raid says: "A considerable number of enemy airplanes crossed the southern coast at 11 o'clock Tuesday night and dropped bombs at a number of places. Some of the machines reached London district where bombs were dropped. No reports of damage has yet been received."

SUCCESSFUL MINOR OPERATION.

Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, Sept. 4.—North of Lens a most successful minor operation was carried out early this morning which resulted in the penetration of the enemy's lines of communication trenches on a front of about 600 yards and establishing a new outpost line all in advance of those formerly occupied, and killing and wounding many of the enemy. A number of prisoners were taken belonging to the Second Guard Reserve Regiment. The result of the operation which was carried out by men of Manitoba and Alberta with little loss, is that in the region due north of Lens our outpost lines have been advanced some 250 yards nearer the city than before and is in a more favorable position for observation. While this operation was in progress another party of our men advanced eastward for a considerable distance along the enemy's communication trenches eastward, on the north of Lens. Heavy fighting by our artillery in this sector has forced the Germans to abandon the first line of the north defence and use shell holes instead. Several large explosions occurred in Lens last night and this morning.

RUSSIAN RETIREMENT.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 4. In the direction of Riga on Monday our troops evacuated the town of Riga and blew up behind them the fortifications at the mouth of the Dvina and the bridges across the Dvina. The retirement is being continued along the coast in a north-easterly direction. Riga coast is being shelled by enemy ships in the direction of Uxkull. On Monday the Germans continued to develop their success in a northeasterly direction toward Ralenrode road. Towards the evening the enemy dislodged our troops in Great Jaget region penetrating our positions on a front of about nine miles in the region of Ralenrode and occupying it. Our troops retiring northward following the enemy's penetrating, measures was made for a re-adjustment of our front. In the region of Milep, Rybnak and Kramen our troops falling to withstand the pressure of the enemy, are retiring in a northeasterly direction. In the direction of Dvinsk, activity of artillery is reported on the Roumanian front in the direction of Czeronwitz. In the region south of the village of Slobodasia, enemy attacks were repulsed with heavy enemy losses. There were fusillades on the remainder of the front. On the Caucasian front, rifle firing occurred.

EVACUATING RIGA.

LONDON, Sept. 4. Reuter's Petrograd correspondent says that the German attack on Riga had been anticipated for a considerable time, and that the evacuation of the principal establishments already had been proceeded with. Provision had been made to abandon the town owing to the slight resistance expected from the troops on the north-east front who, elsewhere, are largely contaminated by the International and Maximalist propaganda. At the time of the German advance in 1915 virtually all the factories of Riga were removed to Central Russia. The offensive began on Sept. 1, with artillery preparations, commencing at 5 o'clock in the morning with asphyxiating shells and gas waves. The bombardment lasted six hours, being particularly intense in the region of Uxkull. At 11 o'clock in the morning under cover of his artillery fire, the enemy threw his first pontoons across the Dvina. Two of his bridges were destroyed by the Russian batteries. At 1 o'clock the Germans had succeeded in gaining a footing on the right bank of the river. Throughout the afternoon bitter struggles took place, the loyal element among the Russian troops constantly counter-attacking, and advancing against the enemy with their flags unfurled and singing "The Marseillaise." During the night, however, the Germans, having received reinforcements, compelled the Russians to retire to the north of the line of Uxkull. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon Riga was subjected to the fire of the German heavy artillery, which caused serious damage to the town, and numerous casualties among the remaining population. The news of the evacuation of Riga produced a great impression in Petrograd. There was considerable fall in prices on the Bourse.

FURNACE BOAT SUNK.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4. The British steamer Roanoke, 3,755 tons gross, owned by the Furness Withy Co., Ltd., has been sunk, according to despatches received by the Line, it is learned here to-day. No details of the sinking have been received. She plied between the States and British ports. The Roanoke was built in Glasgow in 1907, and was 360 feet long. This is the second mishap to befall her this year. On Feb. 2 she was torpedoed and beached just after leaving Scotland for New York.

MUTINY ON PORTUGUESE WARSHIPS.

MADRID, Sept. 4. (The British Admiralty, per Wireless Press).—Mutinies have broken out aboard some of the Portuguese warships. Many arrests have been made.

WANTS INFORMATION.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. Secretary of War, Baker, by a resolution adopted in the House to-day, was called on for information regarding the sending of defective ammunition to American troops in Europe. The resolution, offered by representative McLemore of Texas, was adopted without comment. "I offered my resolution," he said, "for the following reasons: That a great outcry may be exposed; that blame may be placed where it properly belongs, and that it may be the means of preventing the recurrence of such dastardly actions, and that the American people may know the truth regarding the manufacture of ammunition for which they must pay."

SERBIA.

LONDON, Sept. 4. The economic conditions of Serbia are deplorable and growing worse every day, according to a statement issued to-day by the Serbian Press Bureau in London. The Austrians, Germans and Bulgarians are said to have carried off all this year's harvest, which was very abundant. The inhabitants deprived of food stuffs suffer terribly. Most families have one loaf of bread a week. Meat, lard and butter and spices are not obtainable. There is virtually no milk for Serbia. Children who are dependent on this food are dying by thousands. A great number of families, whose men fell or perished in the war, are doomed to starve. Interned Serbians who are prisoners in Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria, are dying by the thousands of hunger and various diseases, according to private information.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day. From Riga to the East of Uxkull the Russians continue in full retreat before the Germans, those from the evacuated post and arsenal making their way north eastwards along the coast of the Gulf of Riga, and those from Uxkull and the vicinity trying to reach the Riga-Pakoff-Petrograd railway line. Behind them the Russians left Riga partly aflame as a result of German shells hurled into the town before they departed, while the smouldering ruins of small villages mark the path over which others have been sent on their way to the east. Fighting on the eastern coast of Gulf of Riga. For a distance about north of the evacuated town, German warships are shelling various towns, possibly with the intention of covering the landing of troops whose object would be to cut off the retreat of the Riga army or turn its flank thereby entirely clearing the Gulf shore region and giving Prince Leopold of Bavaria as a base possibly Pormau, whence to operate overland in conjunction with the naval forces toward Revel, Russia's principal port in the Gulf of Finland, in an endeavor to seal up the Russian fort inside the Gulf. While the Germans were knocking at the gates of Riga from the West and South West, burning shells of all calibres and losing gas against the town, loyal Russian troops held them back long enough to blow up the fortifications at the Gulf of Dvina and raze the bridges over the waterway to the south, where the defection in the ranks of the Russians apparently was greatest. The Germans, according to the Berlin official, took some thousands of prisoners and captured more than 150 guns and large quantities of war material.

The population of Courtrai have been authorized by the German Military officials to leave if they desire and the majority of them have departed. Refugees from northern France and Flanders are going to Lemberg.

Painting Your Own Pictures

By RUTH CAMERON.
A woman whom I know was complaining bitterly the other day because her son had not told her about a plan he had on foot until just before he was about to put it into execution.
She heard of it from a friend, and she thought, "I wish I could see it." She said bitterly, "that his own mother should be the last one to be told."
Her feelings were deeply hurt. One could not help pitying her. And yet at the same time one could not blink the fact that really she had herself to blame.
He had good reason not to tell her.
She is a woman whose character is fairly rusted through with the habit of worry. She worries, she frets, she fusses over everything and everybody. Her son's plan involved travel in far lands. He knew just how she would fret and worry and fuss, and so, for his sake and for her own, he kept the news from her just as long as possible.
And the conception of her that made him to do that was of her own creating.
She had built up that image in her son's mind.
Even as you and I.
We gave them that idea of us. When we are inclined to resent anyone's attitude toward us we must remember that we are in the main responsible for their conception of us that causes that attitude.
Of course it is possible to be misunderstood. Some people may get a misconception of you.
But take it by and large, in the long loving wife has been overcome with mortification on dragging her husband to a dinner party and discovering that he has left his necktie on the chiffonier. Then some men become so absent-minded that they will forget their wives for an entire evening and commune soulfully with some strange blonde. When this occurs, our laws give the wife the privilege of leading her recalcitrant partner home and impressing the inviolability of the marriage contract with an axe heave, if necessary.

There are times when a certain amount of absent-mindedness, however, is a great convenience. The man who makes it a practice to borrow small sums of money from long-gone friends, with the intention of repaying the same on the day before dawn, has almost always taken the thirty-third degree in absent-mindedness and is totally unable to recall the occasion. This reminds us that we should be careful never to loan money to people whose memory needs a new roof.
The absent-minded man should be pitied, not blamed, for he is the victim of a habit which cannot be cured by putting something in his coffee.

UNCERTAIN TIMES.
In times of war no prophet tells just what will chance to-morrow; it may be you'll be wearing bells, or plunged neck deep in sorrow. Perhaps the boss will on you smile, and say, "Boy, I admire you!" perhaps he'll say "I hate you!" or perhaps he'll have to fire you. We are at war with sword and gun, and as the trouble waxes, our Uncle Sam may need much more, and load us down with taxes. From his expense there's no escape, when nations get to scrapping; so let us get ourselves in shape to meet whatever may happen. Let's purchase small tin savings banks, with red and yellow painted, and in them put the marks and francs, and other coin untainted. In time of war prepare for peace, that peace of mind ending, which comes to prudent folk who cease all vain and useless spending; who have a package put away, should evil days come nigh them, who'll do without their pies to-day, if they lack coin to buy them. Keep out of debt, for debt's a curse when times are calm and cheerful, and now that war is here it's worse—it's something dread and fearful. Be prudent now, before the stress of war has made us humble, and when the crisis comes you'll bless the day you took a tumble.

A Kaiser for a Czar.

If the Germans take Riga and advance on Petrograd, it will not cause the collapse of Russia. It would not cause the capture of Petrograd. But it would have two results, one certainly and the other provided Russians are like other men and like what they have themselves been in the past.
In the first place, the taking of Riga alone would probably force the transference of the Government to Moscow. This step should have been taken voluntarily long ago, and probably the only reason it was not taken was that the Government feared it would precipitate riots. Petrograd is the brain and heart of anarchy and treason. The embarrassment of the Government and the demoralization of the troops were wrought from Petrograd. Russia is not an industrial but an agricultural State, the heart of which is sound; but all the elements of sedition, treachery, and folly congregate in Petrograd and poison the streams of the nation's life.
Doubtless the Government would long ago have moved to the purer atmosphere of Moscow, a city in which it would be comparatively unhampered and from which it would be able to exercise real control, but for the fact that the fanatics and traitors who are seeking to weave its ruin in Petrograd are as well aware of the significance of such a step as Kerensky is himself. The order to move would stir them to desperation. It was the attempt of the Girondin Government to move from Paris to a city in which it would be free from the mob that brought about the revolt which overthrew the Government and installed the Jacobins in control of the French Revolution. But if Riga falls the Government will have to go to Moscow, in all probability; it certainly will if the Germans continue to advance, and the fanatics and traitors would be unable to stir up a revolt against a step to which there was obviously no alternative. The result would be that the Russian Government would at last become measurably free and powerful.
The second result which might be expected from a German advance on Petrograd would be the unification of sentiment in Russia. With German armies advancing into the heart of the nation, every Russian, however bewildered he might be by false lights, would be face to face with the question, "Shall we substitute the Kaiser for the Czar?" He may be able to ignore that question now, but with Germany overspreading and conquering Russia he would not be able. The most obtuse intellect in all Russia would see that if his possessor did not fight he would have to give up his revolution and return to the rule of a monarch. What happens when all Russia gets that idea in its head was demonstrated once for all in the case of Napoleon—N. Y. Times.

Everyday Etiquette.

"How should I enter or leave a street car when with a lady?" was George's query.
"When boarding a street car in company with a woman a man permits her to enter first, assists her up the steps; he alighting, in order to assist her in alighting," his uncle replied.

One of the sorrest trials a thoughtful systematic wife can have is a husband whose mind falls to answer to roll call about one-third of the time. There is no cure for this ailment except ordering the groceries by telephone and getting stung on the celery. Some wives resort to all sorts of humiliating expedients in order to compel their husbands to remember a shortage of XXX coffee in the pantry. Some go so far as to tie a Blue ribbon around the third finger on the left hand of their spouse, but as this is at once covered up by a tan glove and then left in the glove, melancholy failure results. Others go to the telephone at ten minutes to twelve and breathe passionate exhortations over the wire, only to be greeted at the gate by an empty-handed hubby whose thimble is on crooked.
The absent-minded man becomes dangerous at times. Many a society-

NO SPORT FOR THE QUEEN
I understand that the Queen will follow their war again this year and will be visiting Balmoral, as was her variable pre-war custom. She will not stay in town, but will go to Windsor Castle, where Her Majesty will be within easy reach of the Government, and she can see, by London in an hour should his presence be required. Incidentally, the Queen's splendid example in the war-time self-denial. The Queen's sportsman than he is more expert with the rifle than formerly enjoyed keenly his ringtonham and Windsor. His salmon fishing in Scotland there will be no shooting. A Court official stated some time ago that not a single member of the royal family was to be found on the estate.

The best way of responding to the Controller's appeal to business fuel and light, as it costs them as much to light and heat for the half-day as it does for the week-day. The saving of fuel and electricity will be very small. WOMEN IN WAR

The most extraordinary of the three war years, as far as are concerned, was the formation of the Women's Army Corps under their direction. These women, working in hospitals as army clerks, cooks, storekeepers, wear army uniforms and take the soldier's outfit. They live under military discipline, lodged and rationed, and cheerfully put up with the accommodation, and do an excellent work that their country desires more women. Chalmers Watson, the war leader, is one of a group of placed women whose names have signalled an entire change in the Government's attitude toward and its recognition of the best interests of the nation. The first appointment was Miss Talbot as Director of the men's Land Army, and this was immediately followed by the appointment of Mrs. Tennant as the Women's Section of the War Office, with Miss Violet as her chief assistant, and a

NO SPORT FOR THE KING.

I understand that the King and Queen will follow their war practice again this year and will refrain from visiting Balmoral, as was their invariable pre-war custom. They will not stay in town, but will go for a period to Windsor Castle, where His Majesty will be within easy reach of the seat of Government, and whence he can get to London in well under an hour should his presence be required. Incidentally, the King sets a splendid example in the matter of war-time self-denial. There is no keener sportsman than he, and few are more expert with the gun. He formerly enjoyed keenly his Sandringham and Windsor shooting and his salmon fishing in Scotland, but there will be no shooting this year. A Court official stated some months ago that not a single pheasant was, then to be found on the Sandringham estate.

AN ALL-SATURDAY SHOP HOLIDAY

The drapers' assistants of London are hoping that the example just set by two big firms of making Saturday a full holiday will spread. It is likely that many drapers' shops will follow the lead, but there are many difficulties in the way of the Saturday closing of shops that sell food and other perishable things. For this reason the multiple stores could not close all Saturday. The two firms concerned have adopted this as the best way of responding to the Coal Controller's appeal to business houses to cut down their consumption of fuel and light, as it costs them nearly as much to light and heat the shops for the half-day as it does for a full week-day. The saving of coal, gas and electricity will be very large. The change is to be put into operation at once, so as to give the staffs the full benefit of the holiday during the fine weather, and it is satisfactory to learn that there is to be no reduction in pay as a consequence. Saturday morning is not a very busy time at the West End of London drapers' shops, many of whose customers have the week-end habit.

WOMEN IN WAR-TIME.

The most extraordinary outcome of the three war years, as far as women are concerned, was undoubtedly the formation of the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps under the direction of the War Office. These thousands of women, working in base-towns abroad as army clerks, cooks, chauffeurs, or storekeepers, wear army uniforms, take the soldier's oath of allegiance, live under military discipline, are lodged and rationed by the army, cheerfully put up with rough army accommodation, and are doing such excellent work that the army urgently desires more women recruits. Mrs. Chalmers Watson, the woman at their head, is one of a group of highly placed women whose appointments have signalled an entire change in the Government's attitude to women and its recognition that women are the best directors of women's work. The first appointment was that of Miss Talbot as Director of the Women's Land Army, and this was immediately followed by the appointment of Mrs. Tennant as Director of the Women's Section of National Service, with Miss Violet Markham as her chief assistant, and other expert women as directors in Scotland and Ireland. The astonishing ability and energy displayed by women in such unexpected fields as the engineering parts of munition work and in ship-building have been fully demonstrated, and it is on record that one expert has declared that with the aid of women alone he could now build a battleship. Perhaps the most significant result of women's war work is to be found in the Women's Land Army, for a determined attempt will be made to retain and settle trained women on the land after the war is over. In the record of courage, endurance, and devotion shown by women in strange perils one recalls the scientist who inoculated herself with gangrene, the women in the cellar house at Pervyse who work always under fire, the chauffeurs in France, Serbia, Rumania and Russia, and munition workers staunch and collected under Zeppelin menace or in face of explosions.

ON LEAVE.

A new holiday pleasure in London is to watch the arrival of the leave trains, and the endless processions of battle-worn, travel-stained men who pour out of the station at Victoria. The crowd that stretches from the station entrance almost to the gates does not think of cheering, but it reads the regimental badges, nods approval at special names, criticises the men's appearance, and very rarely gets any response to an individual greeting. These men are straight from the heart of the battle or from the very shadow of the guns. They are loaded down with the heavy kit, their dented helmets crown the hump or dangle by their sides. They are clean. They have removed most of the Flanders mud from their clothes, and though evidently dog-tired they look very fit; but their eyes have a strained, bewildered look, and one imagines the din of that frightful bombardment is still in their ears. They have one determination—to get to the pay office and then entrain for home, and as they hurry along in groups of twenty or so their eyes are fixed on the leader, some slip of a khaki girl. The Women's Reserve Ambulance has established a chain of volunteers at points along the road, and passes them from one to another as amateurs pass buckets at a fire, shepherding them past provenders who lie in wait and past confusing corners. The sight of some huge Guardsmen led by a girlish but very business-like and efficient guide greatly amuses the crowd, who hardly realise that she may thus shepherd several thousand men a day. "Who's your guide, Len?" a soldier looking on will shout, and the Grenadier points contentedly at the girl, who smiles to herself. For the men appreciate the guidance, and in the tangle of street traffic cheer each other urgently to "stick to her." The corps to which these girls belong has done much fine ambulance work in Zeppelin and aeroplane raids.

REVIVAL OF ARMOUR.

Interest is revived in the question of the utility of armour on the modern battlefield by the announcement that some of the German prisoners captured in the past few days wore steel breastplates. The armour consists of three plates—one padded at the breast, covering the front of the body from the throat to the lower ribs, and two smaller plates giving protection below the abdomen. Apparently the only German troops so equipped are the "snock" troops, machine gunners, and the garrisons of exposed posts. Two years ago Germans were found to be wearing a protective device consisting of scales of thin steel plate about 1-16 of an inch thick, attached to a garment of wire gauze, but this experiment proved an insufficient protection and caused terrible wounds. Details of the new armour are lacking, but it has been stated that a steel plate not less than a quarter of an inch thick, and weighing 7½ pounds per square foot, is necessary to stop a rifle bullet at a distance of 80 yards, and that the weight of such armour rules it out as impracticable. The new German armour is described as heavy in the hand, but not too heavy when worn. Many patterns of breastplates have from time to time been submitted to the military authorities of the Allies, but none to be worn by combatants has been found really practicable. One of the difficulties, apart from the weight of the armour, is that even with very substantial matting of the breastplate the impact of a bullet at short range would knock the wearer down and cause a severe bruise.

Aquit Eskimo of Murder Charge.

After One Hour's Retirement Jury Brings in Verdict of "Not Guilty."
Edmonton, Aug. 17.—Sinnisiak, the Coppermine Eskimo, brought a distance of 2,200 miles from shores of the Arctic Ocean to answer to a charge of murdering Father Rouvire in 1913, was acquitted at 1.10 to-day. The jury was in retirement one hour before returning and making the announcement through their foreman, Jas. W. Mould, "not guilty."

Uluksuk, a fellow-villager of Sinnisiak's, who is charged with the murder of Father LeRoux, will be tried on Tuesday next.
The trial of Sinnisiak, which has been in progress since last Tuesday morning, was brought to a conclusion by the addresses of C. C. McCaul, K.C., crown prosecutor, J. E. Wallbridge, K.C., counsel for the defence, and the chief justice of Alberta, who presided. Cross-examination of the accused was waived by Mr. McCaul, who announced that Sinnisiak's testimony corresponded in every detail to the confessions made at Bernard Harbor, when the preliminary hearing took place before Inspector C. D. L. Nauze, R.N.W.M.P.

In summing up, his lordship said the fact that the accused was a poor, ignorant, benighted pagan did not stand in the way of him receiving all the protection afforded by Canadian law. An eminent counsel had been retained for him by the Dominion of Canada and a jury of exceptionally intelligent men empanelled. But, it must be remembered that the prisoner is subject to the law, a law which does not state that because a man does not know he is doing wrong, he should not be punished.

Prisoner's Confession.

The chief justice pointed out that the entire case resolved itself around the prisoner's confession, in which the killing was admitted, and it was the jury's task to determine whether the act was culpable or justifiable homicide. There was no evidence that Father Rouvire had ever threatened the Eskimos, making a plea of self-defence out of the question.

Before closing the chief justice stated that he would be unwilling to see the death penalty handed out to this man, and in event of a verdict of murder being received, would be bound to recommend that the sentence of death be not carried out.

J. E. Wallbridge, for the defence, said it would have been kinder to have visited the Eskimo immediately of stabbing upon Sinnisiak's return upon his arrest, than to have brought him out for trial, for the man has killed perceptibly since being subjected to the warm climate. He did not know the men were priests; he only knew they were white men with rifles to be feared.

The killing took place through fear. It was not premeditated, for if the Eskimos had wished to take the lives of the priests there was no better opportunity than the previous night when all four slept together in a little snowhouse on the ice. In closing, Mr. Wallbridge said it would be the greatest crime in the world's history to condemn Sinnisiak to death for doing something he thought absolutely necessary, and which he had made no effort to conceal. The only evidence against him was his own statement of the crime.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas Range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. May 23, 17

Artists and the War.

A friend of mine writes from Paris that one day, while driving through the forest of St. Germain, he came upon a convoy going to the front—six big 155 mm. guns "dragged by motors and all the personnel and ammunition tractioned by motor also, that automobiles of very strange aspect. They were painted in chromes and greens and blues and purples to represent rocks and trees and leaves and shrubs like scenery so as to be completely dissimulated from the enemy. My companion said. "Regardez comme ils sont bien camouflés," and I said, "Well, I am glad that at last they are making use of the talent of the painters in a practical way."
Last summer, just after the battle of the Somme this same friend met a man he knew, the head of one of the great designing houses of Paris, wearing his uniform and proudly displaying on his breast, his croix du guerre avec palmes, the highest military honor. "You are back or leave?" he asked. "Yes and no," was the reply. "I am at present on post near Paris. I am camoufleur."

Then he told me some stories of the camoufage, among them this one: Just before the attack on the Somme the German aviators were very active and made it difficult, except at night, to move large bodies of troops to the front. One road especially, leading from a small forest, but lying straight and white over the fields, was closely watched. It became most important to get some big guns and many men over this road and into position by the 1st of July. So the camoufleurs got very busy and painted "three kilometres of white roadway bordered with green, and when the enemy aviators arose to reconnoitre they reported "nothing moving on the road from Amiens" while all day long for five long days, a continuous line of
