CHAPTER VII

"Your Aunt Sarjent has come, Yolande," she says, sharply, without a trace of her French accent, "and Mr. Sarjent is coming down from town with your uncle and Viscount Glynn, and—Clie!—that parlor maid has as much notion of her duties as a Patagonian! I really don't believe," the quondam Miss Glover says, impatiently, to mark her sense of the parlor maid's crass and deplorable ignorance, "that she knows what a menu is! I am positive she did not know what those new fashions were for!" "I dare say not," admits Yolande, quietly, but reddening a little. "We never had such a thing as a menu on our dinner table until a very short time ago, when we grew rich."

"Hadn't you, indeed, dear?" mademoiselle asks, gratified to see that Yolande is flushing crimson every moment. "Is Viscount Glynn really coming down to dinner with Uncle Silas and Cousin Wilmot?" Yolande asks, incredulous, and fairly trembling with mingled fear and indignation. "I did not know that uncle had any acquaintance with Viscount Glynn till that day we met him at the picnic. How did you hear of it, mademoiselle?"

To Yolande's simple mind mademoiselle seems to possess an amount of actual omniscience. It never once dawns on the girl's trustful soul that the old-woman Bellis Glover announces results before they are accomplished, jumps hastily to desirable conclusions, and, when a lie can fill a gap in any piece of information, always neatly fills it.

"Miss Dormer had a telegram half an hour ago," mademoiselle replied, with a mysterious smile. "Besides, I am not in the least astonished, ma chere. I quite believed, from something he said to me, that he would likely soon to renew the acquaintance with your family."

She sees that Yolande's white eyelids are drooping consciously, and she is hanging her head and blushing like a rose in June, and the sneer on mademoiselle's long, thin mouth and in her hard, light eyes grows very pronounced.

"What did he say, mademoiselle?" Yolande asks, laughing a little, though she trembles with agitation.

"I mustn't tell!" Miss Bella replies, with a discreet shake of the head. "But I am not at all surprised he is coming here, cherie. The viscount is a thoroughly sensible man of the world and a man of the highest principles, and sense of honor." She says this with the severity of decision of one who has known him from his years of infancy and thoroughly comprehends the innermost workings of a noble mind.

"Yes?" innocent Yolande says, drinking it all in, and listening to the oracle with parted lips and eager eyes. "Do you think he is a nice, kind man, mademoiselle? Really, I did not quite like him," she adds, remorsefully. "He is a gentleman, my dear," mademoiselle replies, in a tone that admits of no doubt whatever. "But I am not sure that le Beau Capitaine will be here this evening, I think not. The viscount will prefer to make his first visits without him, you see, the young woman continued. "It is a serious matter when an aristocratic and noble family like the Pentreaths contemplate a marriage alliance. There must be certain formalities of etiquette observed, the same as if you were going to marry one of the blood royal! He is a fairy prince, you know, and you are a great heiress, so it is much the same thing!"

"Don't be so absurd, mademoiselle!" Yolande says, angrily, turning away hot and offended. Mademoiselle's whole speech has indeed been an elaborate sneer dictated by the rancorous envy of her sordid nature against her generous, indulgent employers and her affectionate young pupil. Her words have insulted the girl's pride and delicacy, and roused her temper.

"I must go in and speak to Aunt Sarjent," she says, trying to recover herself. "I did not intend to displease you," mademoiselle says, in a melancholy voice; "but I really do not think that Captain Glynn will come with the viscount."

Yolande blushed more hotly and angrily than ever at the insinuation of the cause of her displeasure. "I am quite sure he will not," she rejoins, trying to laugh it off carelessly. "He is not in London all this time, you know. Besides, he told me he should go down to Wales at once; he had so much to do in canvassing for his cousin's election. He is at Pentreath hard at work by this time, I dare say."

In the large drawing-room at Pentreath Palace, a huge, grand, and gloomy apartment, which, however, is looking its best just now with a couple of inland Japanese screens making a cosy circle of freight and warmth around the great marble hearth, and in the ruddy glow, there is a picturesque merry party of young men and girls enjoying afternoon tea. They have just returned from a long mountain excursion, and now, chaperoned by a couple of gay matrons in the most charming of silk tea gowns and conical caps, are refreshing themselves before going to dress for dinner.

Poor, weakly, low-spirited Lady Marks is not present, so there is nothing to mar the general good humor and gaiety.

Some of the young men are humming in the daily radio-grammed rocking-chairs, a deliberate innovation among the grim old-fashioned grandeur of the Pentreath furniture, and entirely due to the influence of the Honorable Mrs. Murray, who is Lady Maria Glynn's aunt. And in the prettiest rocking-chair, all blue satin and gilded wicker-work, reclines pretty Joyce Murray, with her ruffled, golden hair laid daintily back and her half-closed blue eyes glistening wistfully through their dazy lashes at the young man who is lying on the rug at her feet.

"You lazy mortal!" she says, mischievously putting on the tip of one little foot and touching him with it. "One is awfully tempted to tread you under foot and crush you into fragments, Dallas! Do you hear me, or have you fallen asleep? If so, prepare to be trodden under foot and annihilated."

Dallas Glynn looks up at her without raising his head, which is leaning on his hand; and at the tender look the coquettish blue eyes fill suddenly, and Joyce sways back in her chair with a slight flush and smile. He draws a little nearer, looking up at her still.

"Trample me, Dear feet, that I have followed through the world, And I will pay you worship; tread me down, And I will kiss you for it!"

he whispers; and then Dallas Glynn stoops and kisses the dainty footed foot.

"It is thoughtless of you, Joyce," her mother says, half an hour later, when they were dressing for dinner—"so thoughtless, so positively wrong of you! You are giving the man very good cause to say you treated him badly! He is handsome, gentlemanly, agreeable, and all that but utterly detrimental, as you know quite as well as I do."

"And he knows it, too!" laughs Joyce, carelessly. "My dear mother, it's a case of—"

"I saw Esau kissing Kate— The fact is that we all saw; I saw Esau, he saw me, And Kate saw I saw Esau!"

"Is that a music-hall song, Joyce?" the Honorable Mrs. Murray asks, looking scandalized.

"I dare say it is," replied Joyce, coolly, fastening her necktie. "My dear child," her mother goes on, almost beseechingly, "mischievous mischief will come of this—mischievous and trouble. Mind, I warn you, Joyce! You are going too far in flirting with Dallas Glynn, when you know, and he knows, you say, that you can never be anything more to each other. I don't believe he thinks so—men are such foolish, selfish, thoughtless creatures when they are in love; and if he chooses to consider himself your lover, and you get yourself talked about with him, Joyce, you will lose your chance forever of being Lady Dunavon, as you can easily be—"

"Pooh! An Irish peer who intends setting up as a model landlord in the 'distressed country!'" Joyce interposes scoffingly, with a delicious little flavor of brogue.

"He has six thousand a year and that charming house at Glenahinch," her mother urges, growing sterner. "A shooting lodge!" Joyce retorts, with her saucy, dimpled chin upturned.

Maxims for the Married.

From Books of To-day and To-morrow

"You ought to feel flattered if another man shows appreciation of your wife's charms. It reflects credit on your judgment. Besides women thrive on admiration."

"The world is full of men who want something for nothing. Steer clear of them."

"Be tolerant. It is a virtue that never fails."

"If your husband has tea with a woman he knew long before he met you, tell him you hope she'll call on you. She won't, but he'll think how wonderful you are."

"Don't imagine that, because you're married, it doesn't matter how you dress. Men have a weakness for pretty things, and a horrid habit, if they can't get them at home, of going in search of them, and, what's more, finding them."

"A woman who criticises her wife to you is a cat. Cut her!" "The Book of a Bachelor," by Duncan Swan.

"The Art of Wearing Clothes."

"Men in love are not generally very reticent, especially Englishmen in love. The reticence of Englishmen is as much an illusion as the good manners of Frenchmen."

"He shook both my hands; and he held them a little while in that pathetic attempt at tenderness which sometimes overtakes Englishmen when they are eager to go and do something else." "These Charming People," by Michael Arlen.

"There are women who can no more help making eyes than they can help having eyes." "Time is 'Whispering,'" by Elizabeth Robbins.

"It is one thing to determine to turn one's back on love; but having turned the back, it is terribly difficult to refrain from looking over one's shoulder." "Sallywag Brothers," by F. E. Mills Young.

"Lydia contrived to look well-dressed, having early in her career discovered that the putting on of clothes is more than half the battle. Wear rags with enough of an air, a style, conviction, and you may boldly take the social field."

"To put it vulgarly, if man does not spend himself doing his perpetual best to lick Nature into shape, she'll lick him off the face of this round earth very effectually, and finally expunge him." "The Survivors," by Lucas Malet.

Strike the Right Note in Insurance Selling.

One of the last things written by the late Charles Warren Fickell, the talented general agent at Detroit of the Massachusetts Mutual, was the following contribution to his company paper:

"Emilio Caruso, who, while living, was perhaps the world's greatest tenor, at a banquet in his honor, struck a wine glass with his knife. Getting the note of its vibration, he sang that note straight at the glass with all the strength of his powerful lungs. The wine glass was shattered to bits. No other note or tone would have done it."

"Now, notice, first he found the note to which the glass would respond; then, second, he produced the exact tone a thousand times stronger. He made the glass vibrate as never before, so it lost its resistance and fell in hopeless ruin."

"There is in this story a lesson for field men and women. Ladies: Find out where a person's heart is centered, then come to him with a knowledge of his business or profession that will make him look at you with blank amazement. Then he is at your feet, susceptible to your teaching, willing to be led. All his opposition is shattered by your having struck the right tone."

"I have in mind a woman who represents our company. She will go into a millinery store and asked to be shown hats by the proprietor. As she looks at one and another, she will talk about colors, shapes, combination of ribbons and flowers, until the boss will wonder if she has ever been in the business. Before she leaves she will buy a new hat, and the boss will

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women Who Rely upon
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed for a week, and I started to take it and weighed 150 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my household work for a family of seven now, I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MURPHY, 55 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

buy a policy with us. "Another whom I know went to see a farmer, an unbeliever. Before he went, he heard the farmer wanted to hire a man. He went out, hired out to him for two days. He put on his old duds, helped in the hay, told the farmer about curing hay, rotation of crops, kinds of fertilizer to use, and displayed large intelligence on cattle, sheep, and pigs. By so doing he got the respect of the farmer and broke down all his resistance. You don't need to ask, 'Did you get him?' One guess is enough. Well, that's Caruso's idea. Strike the right tone and shatter the obstacle."

Rockefeller Didn't Take up Forgan's $3,000,000 Bet.

Here's a John D. Rockefeller golf story. I got it from a friend of David R. Forgan, the well-known Chicago banker, who was born and brought up in Scotland (and Canada). Mr. Forgan was playing in a threesome on an Augusta, Ga., course some winters ago, when Mr. Rockefeller "cut in" at the seventeenth hole, to complete his regular nine holes' allowance, just as Mr. Forgan and his friends reached the tee. Although none of them knew him personally, they at once recognized him and told him "Go ahead, Mr. Rockefeller."

"Young man," said Mr. Rockefeller, "I have always prided myself that I can tell from a man's playing, when he took up golf. Judging by your drive, I would say you took up the game when you were very young."

"Yes," replied Mr. Forgan, "to be exact I took up golf when I was five." He paused. Then he added, "And all my life I have had an ambition."

"What is it?" asked Mr. Rockefeller.

Household Notes.

Keep on hand in the refrigerator a jar of simple sugar syrup to use for making cold fruit drinks. Punches are smoother and richer when made with this syrup.

Try cooking string beans in olive oil in an open pan. First boil them until tender in salted water, drain, heat in the oil and season with salt, pepper and a little vinegar.

With a cupful of cream, stiffly beaten on mix three ripe bananas, put through a ricer, sweeten to taste, chill and serve in sherbert glasses, sprinkled with a little grated chocolate.

To a quart of apricots put through a sieve add a pint of water, the juice of two lemons and an orange, and a cupful of powdered sugar. Add the water and serve with cracked ice.

Famous Mexican General Murdered--Singapore to Become Important Naval Base--Riots in Warsaw.

STRIKE STILL CONTINUES.

LONDON, July 20. Signs yet of a breakdown in the strike here. Ernest Berlin, Secretary Transport Union, said today that the situation was full of difficulties owing to the menacing attitude of the head section strikers against those who are wavering. The setting of the Sardinia from London by way of Southampton to the Iberia has been cancelled. Striking men to-night that on Saturday night a lighter would be moving to the Liverpool docks. The decision to allow Liverpool dockers to return to work is considered a hopeful factor in the general situation.

KILLED BY SECRETARY.

MEXICO, City Mexico, July 20. General Francisco (Pancho) Villa, commander of Rebel armies, North Mexico, for ten years, was today shot and killed by his Secretary Miguel Trillo at Villa's big ranch, Cuernavaca Durango. A battle developed between loyal villagers and followers of Trillo who had become enraged at some actions of his chief. Trillo was soon shot to death by Villa's followers and last reports said that the battle was still raging on the spot.

NAVAL ESTIMATE CARRIED.

LONDON, July 20. After a spirited debate in the Commons to-night on the merits and demerits of the Singapore naval base, the Government obtained a victory, when it voted carrying the naval estimate by 217 to 130. Opponents of the Singapore project bitterly complained that it was against the spirit of the Washington agreement and would lead to competition in armament and future wars. L. S. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, insisted that all delegates to Washington Conference realized that Britain retained full freedom of action regarding Singapore which had always been a naval and military station.

VILLA KILLED.

EL PASO, TEXAS, July 20. A despatch from Chihuahua City, Mexico, today, states that General Francisco Villa, famous Rebel leader was killed by his home at Cuernavaca early to-day. A Rebel uprising of a local nature resulted in his being shot.

STELLARTON U.M.W. VOTE DOWN STRIKE.

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., July 20. Stellarton U.M.W. local this morning, voted 327 for and 54 against, return to work immediately. The action of Stellarton U.M.W. members means that Thorburn will probably follow suit and all colonies of Pictou County will be working at least by the first of the week.

RIOTS IN WARSAW.

WARSAW, July 20. Rioting in which nine persons were killed and twenty-six wounded followed yesterday's widespread strikes called as a protest against the increasing cost of living. Quiet was restored Thursday night but there is strong probability of a countrywide general strike which Communist leaders have been organizing.

A TRAGEDY AT DIGBY.

DIGBY, N.S., July 20. George Porter, aged 72, a blacksmith, was found terribly injured by a blow on the head, at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, in a shack near Bear River, in which he has lived alone during the last ten years. He has been separated from his family a few hundred yards away during that time but on friendly terms with them. Not being seen since Tuesday night, and an investigation by relatives found him lying on a couch in the shack in a pool of blood. A smith's tongs nearby was evidently used in the assault which doctors say is likely to prove fatal. The police are investigating.

VICTIM OF ASSAULT HIDES HIS ASSAULT.

DIGBY, N.S., July 20. George H. Porter, an aged blacksmith, who was found badly battered in an unconscious condition in his home near Bear River yesterday, declined to-day to divulge the identity of his assailant, when questioned by Chief Inspector Horace Kennedy of the Halifax detective force. Porter has not yet regained full consciousness, and it is hoped he will be more talkative as the stupor disappears.

CABINET DISCUSSES USE OF TROOPS IN STRIKE AREA.

MONTREAL, July 20. Letters from Cabinet Ministers in answer to resolution passed by the Montreal Trades and Labor Council condemning the use of troops in the Cape Breton strike area were read last night at a meeting of the Council. Hon. Mr. Murdock, Minister of Labour, expressed his desire of settling the strike without troops and that the points at issue be settled by a conference. Hon. E. M. McDonald, Acting Minister of National Defence pointed out that under the military act troops can only be withdrawn on request of the authorities who had called them out which in this case had been the County Judge.

WOULD ABOLISH CANADIAN SENATE.

TORONTO, Ont., July 20. Toronto District Labor Council has decided to petition Premier King to take steps to abolish the Canadian Senate. This followed the attack made on the Senate by James Stevenson, Chairman of the Executive Committee who declared that it was composed of men who were not representative either to the Crown Parliament or the public.

URGES WITHDRAWAL OF VATICAN ENVOY.

WINNIPEG, July 20. The passage of a resolution by the Imperial Grand Lodge of the World, appealing to the British Government to immediately withdraw the British envoy to the Vatican as diplomatic relations with the Pope, are an infringement on the Protestant constitution and a grave menace to the welfare of the British Empire, was urged by Rev. David Neas, of Glasgow, Scotland, in an address as Imperial Grand President of the Imperial Orange Council. He also spoke of the visit of King George to the Pope as having called forth a protest from many widely separated countries, and which was offensive to millions of his Majesty's most loyal subjects.

GERMANY'S COAL CONTRACTS.

BERLIN, July 20. Germany has contracted for approximately seven hundred and fifty thousand tons of United States coal so far this year. It is learned in trade circles.

RESISTANCE WEAKENING.

DUSSELDORF, July 20. French headquarters express the conviction to-day that the German resistance in Ruhr is weakening. No sabotage was reported in six days. The French are closely watching plans for Communist demonstrations announced for various parts of Germany for July 29th. General Desoutiers will forbid any such demonstrations in Ruhr, it was announced.

THROWN OPEN TO ALL TWO MASTERS.

GLOUCESTER, July 20. The Fishermen's Race for Sir Thos. Lipton's Trophy, to be held in connection with the Gloucester Tercentenary Celebration on August 27th, has been thrown open to all two masted fishing schooners without restrictions. It was announced to-day. The contest will be sailed under fishermen's rules without limitations as to waterline, length, spars, ballast, etc. Invitations were sent to-day to fishermen in the Maritime Provinces to take part. The race is for Lipton Trophy and cash prizes of which five are offered.

SECOND ATTEMPT FAILS.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 20. Lieut. Russel Maughan in his second attempt to cross the Continent between dark and dusk, was again forced to give up the effort on account of trouble to the machine. At one point he was forced down with leaky oil pipes that had nearly suffocated him. After effecting repairs he resumed flight with a chance of success, but a message from the air mail station at Rock Springs at five o'clock said he had landed there unable to continue.

RUSSIA ACCEPTS CONVENTION TERMS.

LAUSANNE, July 20. Soviet Russia notified the Near East Conference to-day that she accepts convention for the control of the Turkish Straits negotiated here and will sign the pact at Constantinople within the next three weeks.

NO ESCAPE FOR THE EARL.

CHICAGO, July 20. The Earl of Northesk and Miss Jessie Brown, a former Folliess beauty, were married yesterday evening after a strenuous day in which they vainly endeavored to elude reporters.

INDICTED FOR LARCENY.

New York, July 20. Wm. H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was indicted to-day for first degree grand larceny and third degree forgery.

THE GERMAN MARK A MERE DOT.

NEW YORK, July 20. German marks continue to sink in the New York foreign exchange market. They are now valued at the rate of 400,000 to the dollar, or $2.50 for one million marks.

CONFISCATION OF COAL AT MULHEIM.

MULHEIM, July 20. The French have confiscated all the coal supplies at the Tryasen Steel Works and torn up the rails connecting the plant with the docks.

NEW GLASGOW, July 20.

Walker of Charlottetown was second in the running broad jump, Miller of Sussex winning with a nineteen foot seven and a half inch jump. Walker was second also in the eight hundred and eighty yards run. Mooney of Halifax Crescents winning. Bearsey Francis, Charlottetown, won the mile. Time 4:53. Walker was second in hundred and twenty yards hurdles, losing again to Miller of Sussex. Victor Macaulay won the five mile run in 27:49.

The Baldwin Statement.

The immense and unmistakable restraint with which the reparations statement of the British Government was plainly written, constitutes, perhaps, its most impressive feature. The meticulous care taken by the Prime Minister and his colleagues, the Foreign Minister, to make abundantly sure that plenty of velvet covered the hand of steel, reveals how conscious the Cabinet is that the steel within the glove is very real. It is only when men have finally and irrevocably made up their minds to do something of a very grave character and of far-reaching consequences that they are at such pains to soften the blow. Another significant feature of the statement is that it contains nothing which might have been communicated to the French Government at any casual interview between diplomats either in London or Paris. Doubtless everything in it has been suggested more than once through the customary channels. Yet these exceedingly modest proposals are made the subject of formal addresses to both Houses of Parliament after an unusual amount of press preparation. This indicates very clearly that they are only a first step. In fact, they are hardly that—they do no more than foreshadow the taking of a first step. As we felt sufficiently pessimistic to suggest the other day, it seems improbable to us that the French Government will recede from its position. It must have known before the British Ministers got up, at least all that they said yesterday, if they have expected more. It could not very well have expected less. Yet it did not offer in advance any conciliatory compromises which would have prevented so grave and divisive a step as a formal declaration of British policy distinctly out of sympathy with French policy. Hence if the French Government could not see its way to act before the Ministerial statements, there would seem to be nothing in them calculated to induce M. Poincare and his colleagues to act now. The next step will be the writing of the British reply to Germany. Possibly it is written already. At any rate, the British Ministers must know pretty definitely what line they intend to take. This reply will be submitted to the Allies. Mr. Baldwin intimates that Italy already is in practical agreement with British policy. The fact that he knows this shows that there have been fairly frank conferences with the Italian Government. It is incredible that equally frank conferences have not been held with the French and Belgian Governments. Yet Mr. Baldwin is not able to announce agreement with them. This seems to indicate that France and Belgium have already heard, and at least failed to agree with, the coming British proposals. But time is the interval between this formal forecast in Parliament and the formal submission of the proposed British Note to the Allied Governments. The French will come to the conclusion that—no matter how convinced they are that their Ruhr policy is right and the British method wrong—they will still stand to gain more by keeping in shoulder touch with Britain and Italy than by continuing alone their pressure on the Ruhr. This is the best hope left for a harmonious conclusion. However, it was so overwhelmingly plain that it would have handsomely

GUARDS DEFEAT SAINTS 3 TO 0.

Winning the toss last night, the Saints elected to defend the Western goal with the wind in their favor. Evidently their plan was to pile on the agony in the first half, and if they had any advantage in the second to adopt defensive tactics. They had it all their own way in the first period, but their gains on the goal were anything but effective, and many good chances were lost.

Obituary.

ARTHUR HISCOCK.

The news of the death of Mr. Arthur Hiscock was received with regret a few days ago by his many friends. Mr. Hiscock was a native of Harbor Grace, and a son of the late Mr. Henry Hiscock (cooper), of that town. The deceased served his apprenticeship at the hattermaking business in the fall of Messrs. Minna & Co., Harbor Grace, after which he left for Boston, where he was employed at the Young's Company for a number of years. Mr. Hiscock had been suffering for some time with heart and kidney trouble. He worked until Saturday, June 30th, when he entered the Massachusetts General Hospital. He died five days later, on July 5th. The remains were consigned to Mother Earth at the McAuburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Mass., on July 5th. He leaves to mourn their loss a widow and two children in Cambridge, two brothers, Frederick, of Boston, and William, of this town; also four sisters, Misses Susie and Edith, Mrs. Frank Bugden and Mrs. Robert Morgan, all of St. John's.

MOUNTAIN AIR-ATTRACTIVE WINDOW DISPLAY.

Those who long for the cool air of the mountains when the hot weather comes, need hope in vain no longer, for they will find in the central window of T. M. McMurdo & Co.'s drug store a mountain scene so realistic that the chill air sweeping down from over the snow-covered peaks can almost be felt. With the window as a setting, a local decorator has achieved a real success in the window dressers' art, and Moirs' Chocolates, the articles advertised, are a worthy theme. Considerable interest has been attracted to this window, which is really a creditable piece of work. The foreground consists of many mountain peaks, the top and sides of which are streaked with snow, while on the highest peaks are noticed exciting the excellent qualities of Moirs' products. A background of distant hills leads an air of realism to the design. The effect produced is very striking and original, and Messrs. Moirs through Mr. Fred V. Chesman, their local agent, are to be congratulated upon securing such an attractive advertisement for their delightful chocolates. McMurdo's eastern window has also been prettily dressed, the design having a particular appeal to the public to use Moirs' candies at their card parties. (Copied from Evening Telegram, July 19th.)

MOORE-SHEPPARD.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Anglican Church, Topsail, on Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, when Miss Margaret Moore, of Clarke's Beach, was united in holy wedlock to Mr. R. B. Sheppard, of LeMarchant Road. The bride was handsomely attired in a costume of silver grey crepe-de-chene and shell pink satin with hat to match, and carried a bouquet consisting of carnations, sweet peas and maiden hair fern. She entered the church leaning on the arm of her uncle, Mr. H. C. Hussey, of Portugal Cove, who was father-giver. The bridesmaid was Miss Marie M. Gosse, of the General Hospital staff, who wore a costume of cation crepe (saxe blue) with hat to match. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. R. B. Sheppard, of Queen's Theological College. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. A. Pittman in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the contracting parties. Mrs. Sturman, wife of the pastor, supplied the music for the occasion. After the nuptial knot had been tied and having received the congratulations of their many friends, the happy couple motored to Upper Gullies to spend their honeymoon. The groom's present to the bride was a set of pearl earrings, and to the bridesmaid a cameo ring. The presents received by the contracting parties were numerous and costly, which testifies to the esteem and popularity in which they are held. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard many years of happy wedded life.

Bright Future for Medicinal Cod Liver Oil

Doctors Johnson and Quiligan of the firm of Mead Johnson & Co., Evansville, Indiana left for home by S. S. Ronalds to-day after a fortnight's visit. During their stay they saw the workings of the various cod liver oil factories and in several instances they spent a whole day at a plant in order to view the complete process of manufacture, from the taking of the livers to the rating of the oil. They were particularly interested in the manner in which the codfish was handled and dressed. They made a minute inspection of the livers and collected a lot of data in reference to the food of the codfish particularly the caplin. Photographs of the whole industry were taken and these will be used later to illustrate their report. Both Drs. Johnson and Quiligan speak highly of the hospitality of those with whom they came in contact. Chief Inspector Coyell who took them around to the different plants and Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries Allan Goodridge who gave the visitors every facility for their investigations, being particularly mentioned. The Doctors state that the medicinal cod liver oil that they have seen here is better than any they have yet met with. They have taken away with them many samples and what is of what is of more moment what they have left an initial order for 50 barrels with one manufacturer. It may be mentioned here that Mead-Johnson & Co. are very large users of cod liver oil. They have extensive factories in Evansville where the oil is in various medicinal preparations. Previous to this they had not handled Newfoundland oil. So deeply impressed are they with our product that in future their orders amounting to thousands of gallons yearly will be placed here. The prospects for the refined cod liver oil industry are very bright. Congratulations are due to the Marine and Fisheries Department particularly Chief Inspector Coyell and his staff. It was only through their rigid inspection and insistence on the carrying out of rules that success has been attained. Even where scientific appliances are unnecessary, trained detectives often prove the value of their knowledge. A glance at a dead man reveals to the expert the nature of his death. If it has been violent the body is stiffened into the posture of the last action. If the explanation is suicide, the weapon is firmly grasped.

Some Amusing Misprints

According to a London paper, the Archdeacon of Stow, England, complained recently that he had been misrepresented in the Chronicle of Convocation. In one of the sentences used by him occurred a warning to members, "not to speak to the seaman when entering the rapids." This was turned into, "Do not speak to the huntman while he is hunting the rabbits." Not long ago a journalist was pained to read his description of a famous man in this form: "I found him considerably aged. His one black hair is very grey." A certain member of Parliament once stated publicly that he had "burnt his house and destroyed his bridges." How hurt he must have been when he saw that Mr. Printer had made him say he had "burnt his boots and destroyed his breeches!" Some years ago an unfortunate error occurred in a New York paper. This publication printed its shipping news on the same pages as its obituary notices. One can imagine the surprise of readers to find the captions changed one day, and a long list of respectable names being set forth under the heading, "Passed through Hell Gate yesterday." Hell Gate is the well-known entrance to the harbor of New York. Writing of a woman who had been very popular in a certain town, and who had recently died, an editor said: "It is feared her husband will be unable to bear her demise." Unfortunately this was unwittingly altered to: "It is feared her husband will be unable to wear her chemise."

On the Criminal's Track

Representatives of the Swedish police force are touring the establishments of the London police to study English methods. It is not yet announced whether their tour will embrace London's detective organization, but if not their loss will be great. Police proceedings are often dull, stereotyped, and commonplace, but the activities of the Criminals Investigation Department are rarely so. In London detective work is an exact science. Microscopes, cameras, micro-photography, wireless, and chemical analysis are all pressed into the service. An unknown "wanted man" may be tracked down from evidence of a hair, which, under the microscope will reveal his age, sex, coloring, personal habits, and state of health. PHOTOGRAPHING FINGER-PRINTS Micro-photography has brought the study of finger-prints to perfection, and nowadays there are none which cannot be recognized and identified.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

SYDNEY MINERS RETURNING TO WORK.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 21. Three Cape Breton U.M.W. Local voted overwhelmingly last night in favor of returning to work. It was announced by instructions from International President John L. Lewis. They were No. 16 colliery at New Waterford, 88 to 3, Mechanics Local, 80 to 3, and Harbour Local, 28 to 3, the latter two being both in Glace Bay. It is understood maintenance men will return to-morrow, and that collieries will be re-opened Monday. Princess Local on opposite side of the harbor decided at stormy meeting to await announcement of old Executive before taking action. The Livingstone Executive met at Glace Bay and will meet again to-morrow. They would make no announcement to-night, but reported on good authority they advocated returning to work and reorganizing. Other locals are expected to vote on Lewis' order to-morrow. There was considerable excitement at Dominion No. 4 to-day when two hundred strikers held up a company man who was finally admitted to the plant after police had charged and dispersed the pickets. A mass meeting to-night called by that section of the City Aldermen, who represent labor in Sydney, passed a resolution to the effect that the Government of Nova Scotia be requested to appoint a Commission to investigate affairs of the British Empire Steel Corporation. Another resolution protested against Premier Armstrong's "accepting the word of a few irresponsible as reflecting the opinion of citizens of Sydney," during his recent visit here.

Wreck Survivors Tell How Tobacco Kept Them Going.

When food and water gave out on third day, they smoked until rescued. Perhaps they were only pirates of the sea, and deserved no great charity from the hand of Fate. Nevertheless, they were very much human beings when they found themselves miles out to sea adrift in an open boat. With two days' supply of food and water, they confidently expected to be rescued in plenty of time. But when the third day passed and no friendly sail appeared on the horizon, it began to look like a case for Davy Jones's locker. One of the victims, crazy with thirst, suggested that they divide a bottle of iodine and eat the agony quickly. "The tobacco hasn't given out yet," said another. "Let's stick it out a while longer." And they did. Late in the afternoon of the fifth day a tramp schooner saw their distress signals and came valiantly to the rescue. "The only thing that kept us going at all was tobacco, one of the survivors admitted when he was safely deposited on dry land again. "We smoked and chewed, and that sort of kept us up." Tobacco is certainly a poor substitute for food and water—but under the stress of trying circumstances a pipe is a big help. Pipes filled with Edgeworth probably have no more soothing effect than pipes filled with other tobaccos, but most Edgeworth smokers somehow feel that they need Edgeworth to get complete pipe satisfaction. Smoke a few pipefuls and judge for yourself whether or not you wish to become a permanent member of the Edgeworth Club. Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to suit the needs and habits of all pipe smokers. Both Edgeworth Plus Slice and Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome humidors holding a pound, and also in several handy in-between sizes. Edgeworth is sold by all leading stores at popular prices.

WEEK-END NOTES.

CHAPTER XXIX.
(G. C. MORRIS.)

THE SPANISH VESSELS.

The shipping in the harbour during the sixties was very varied from what it is to-day; and there was a larger representation of European Nations than we now have, or had for a long while. At present our commerce is confined principally to the ships which sail under the British flag, with a few from Norway and Sweden. At the time of which we write there was a very large business done with Spain, and because of that there was annually a fleet of Spanish ships visiting Newfoundland. A few of these ships went to Har- bour Grace, but the greater number came here to St. John's. These ships were mostly brigantines, with an occasional brig; and now and then a bark. Amongst the barks we remember one which impressed us as being the most beautiful ship that we had, to that date, been on board of. The bark was called the Colombia, and was modelled on very graceful lines, and was lavishly appointed with brass work, and carvings.

The Spanish ships began to arrive at St. John's late in June, and the rest of the fleet usually reached port during July, and remained until the first autumn; but by the end of October the most of them would have taken their departure. On arrival in port they made anchorage in the stream at the discretion of the captain, or the advice of the pilot, as at that time there was not any harbour master—the late Capt. Robinson being the first harbour master. But as a rule the ships were anchored as near as possible to the pierhead at which they intended to buy their fish; but most of the Spanish vessels dealt directly with the firm of C. F. Bennett & Co., and their cargoes consisted of salt from Cadiz and Trapani. The ships usually brought a large quantity of cocoa nuts. The cocoa nuts, of course, were a great attraction for the boys at that time, there not being any fruit shops in St. John's, and it was quite customary to go down to the wharves and buy a six-penny cocoa nut from one of the Spanish ships.

The custom on board those ships was quite worthy of admiration from a social, as well as from a common sense, standpoint. First they made a good anchorage, as they would be in the stream probably eight or ten weeks; then all their sails were un- bent, and stowed below, and also the running rigging. The topmasts were housed and all the upper yards lowered. In addition to these they would rig in their flying jibboom, which was a very commendable custom, especially at that time, as there was so much shipping in the harbour. With the sails unbent, and the topmasts housed, the next procedure was the setting up of the awnings, which was another excellent practice, because not only did the awnings save the ship's deck, but they afforded shelter to the crew, and especially those who were engaged making and repairing sails, and painting, or otherwise retting the ship.

The crew of an average Spanish brigantine of about one hundred and fifty tons, usually numbered eight men, in addition to which there was generally a supercargo, or a purchasing agent, who usually brought with him his wife, and the captain and officers often had their wives with them. There seemed to be a leisure in the lives of those people, which we ourselves either never had, or if we had it, we have lost it. They evidently had discovered a great deal of the joyful side of life, hence it was, that during the time they were in port, especially while hauled in at the wharves, they would sit on deck and indulge in pleasant conversation; and in the meantime they slipped their wine, and played their guitars. The scene was very typical of Spanish life. The custom at that time was to buy for ready cash, as banking and finance were not then developed to that high degree of exchange, which we have to-day, and there being little or no communication with the outside world, there was a greater necessity for ready cash. Thus it was, that the buyers, or the agents, brought with them gold and silver, so that at any time, the Spanish dollar, known as the doubloon, was very largely circulated here in the city.

There has been a marked improvement in British ships during the last half century. I have boarded hundreds of ships, have been boarding them for fifty years, and have been surprised at the dingy and dark fore-castles in which sailors have had to live, and the cramped cabin in which captains have had to sleep, and at the same time this was done under the registry of the British Shipping Act. About the time of which we write, Samuel Pilsoll came to the front in England, and by his efforts he gained great reforms in the life of the British sailor, and in the loading of British ships; and to-day his name is remembered by the mark known as Pilsoll's. Strange to say Newfoundland has almost entirely lost her trade with Spain, but it is pleasing to note that of late there is a revival in this direction. There was at that date the Spanish Consul, amongst whom was our respected friend Capt. Perez, also Mr. Singala and Mr. Mendez. Our Spanish buyers of whom we have written, were very cautious in their dealings, and they were very exact in their purchases of fish, and paid strict attention to its quality. It would seem that fish fifty years ago, when landed at St. John's, was a better article of food than it is to-day. Of course at that time we had shore crews in addition to the fishing crews, and these crews paid more attention to the cleaning and making of the fish, than seems to be possible to-day. However, the Spaniards always sought a good article, and they loaded their vessels carefully and cautiously, and then battened their hatches well, lashed their boats, removed their awnings, set up their topmasts, outrigged their jibbooms, and set up their lanyards, and in many cases waited for the new moon, before setting sail for home. Truly most of them had much leisure which apparently was expensive, but they seemed to have made it pay, and they got through without loss, or accident. There was, however, one fatal accident which occurred in the summer of 1876, by which a Spanish brigantine was lost in the vicinity of Black Head. At that time a forest fire swept the Southside Hills, and a dense smoke enveloped the bay for several days. It was during those eventful days the ship reached the offing, and amid the density of the smoke, got on the shoals, and being towards evening, with no assistance at hand, the good ship went down, and with her also went her brave captain, his beautiful wife and their little daughter. Early next day their bodies were recovered, and they were given Christian burial at Belvedere. They returned not to sunny Spain, but having made the voyage in safety, and almost seeing the city to which they were coming, they missed the port. Such is part of human life; such is the tragedy of the sea; such has been the story of all maritime peoples, and such will it be, while men go down to the sea in ships, and do business in the great waters.

for the crew, and especially for the captain and his officers; and instead of the cramped quarters which we have too often seen in our own British ships, there were spacious apartments, well furnished with rich draperies, and therefore very comfortable. Many of the ships had houses on deck; but whether on deck or below deck, the builders and the owners remembered the crews, and deemed them worthy sufficient space to live in with some degree of comfort; and therefore they did not commercialise the whole ship—a thing that has been too often done.

There has been a marked improvement in British ships during the last half century. I have boarded hundreds of ships, have been boarding them for fifty years, and have been surprised at the dingy and dark fore-castles in which sailors have had to live, and the cramped cabin in which captains have had to sleep, and at the same time this was done under the registry of the British Shipping Act. There was at that date the Spanish Consul, amongst whom was our respected friend Capt. Perez, also Mr. Singala and Mr. Mendez. Our Spanish buyers of whom we have written, were very cautious in their dealings, and they were very exact in their purchases of fish, and paid strict attention to its quality. It would seem that fish fifty years ago, when landed at St. John's, was a better article of food than it is to-day. Of course at that time we had shore crews in addition to the fishing crews, and these crews paid more attention to the cleaning and making of the fish, than seems to be possible to-day. However, the Spaniards always sought a good article, and they loaded their vessels carefully and cautiously, and then battened their hatches well, lashed their boats, removed their awnings, set up their topmasts, outrigged their jibbooms, and set up their lanyards, and in many cases waited for the new moon, before setting sail for home. Truly most of them had much leisure which apparently was expensive, but they seemed to have made it pay, and they got through without loss, or accident. There was, however, one fatal accident which occurred in the summer of 1876, by which a Spanish brigantine was lost in the vicinity of Black Head. At that time a forest fire swept the Southside Hills, and a dense smoke enveloped the bay for several days. It was during those eventful days the ship reached the offing, and amid the density of the smoke, got on the shoals, and being towards evening, with no assistance at hand, the good ship went down, and with her also went her brave captain, his beautiful wife and their little daughter. Early next day their bodies were recovered, and they were given Christian burial at Belvedere. They returned not to sunny Spain, but having made the voyage in safety, and almost seeing the city to which they were coming, they missed the port. Such is part of human life; such is the tragedy of the sea; such has been the story of all maritime peoples, and such will it be, while men go down to the sea in ships, and do business in the great waters.

After Thirty- Seven Years.

THE EXILE'S RETURN.
(H. F. SHORTIS.)

He sought the old scenes with eager feet.
The scenes he had known as a boy;
Oh! for a draught of those fountains
And a taste of that vanished joy!

He roamed the fields, he mused by the streams,
He threaded the paths and lanes;
On the hills he sought his youthful dreams,
In the woods he forgot his pains.

Oh! sad, sad hills, Oh! cold, cold
Heath!
In sorrow he learned the truth—
One may go back to the land of his birth—
He cannot go back to his youth.

In almost every state of the United States the Newfoundlanders is to be found; and in almost every instance he has rendered a good account of himself, in whatever position of life he may occupy. But whilst he possesses all the comforts that may be enjoyed in this life—he ever casts a longing eye towards that land he loves so well—the shores of dear old Terra Nova. The thought is ever in his mind as to the day when he will once more visit the scenes of his childhood, and once more associate with the companions of his youth. Visit well remembered scenes, and talk over the events of the past. Such scenes as the Annual Regatta on historic Quidi Vidi are never effaced from his memory, and the soulstraining strains of our National melody, "The Banks of Newfoundland," as played by our city bands will make the blood course through his veins. It is with this object in view that one of our patriotic Newfoundlanders, Mr. Thomas J. Myler, has returned to his native land by the S.S. Rosalind for a brief period, to once more view the scenes of his childhood, and receive a hearty welcome from his old friends and associates of former years.

Mr. Myler left St. John's in the year 1886 (thirty-seven years ago) and has since resided in the city of Chicago, U.S.A. During all this period (being a cooper by trade) he has held a prominent position in the great firm of the Armour Packing Co., of the above city. It is needless to say that Mr. Myler must be most proficient in his work, otherwise he would not have retained his position in such a world-renowned firm for such a lengthy period.

During his younger days in his native city of St. John's he was one of the best known cricketers, and for several years was a member of the Mechanics Club, of which Charlie Ryan, Tot Wallace, McFarlane, John Ryan, printer, John Murphy, Pat Blundon, Will Goudie and many others were members. They fought many a hard battle on the field with success. After some years several of the members emigrated to the United States, and those who were left such as Charlie Ryan, Pat Wallace, etc., joined up with the famous Shamrock Club, who were for many years invincible on the field. Who amongst the older generation does not remember the terrific bowling of Professor Johnny Bennett and Jerry Savage, the splendid wicket-keeping of Charlie Ryan, and above all the "drives of Tom Bates or Pleasantville." Then there were such famous batsmen as Keating, Wallace, Berrigan and several others who are still in the flesh. In those days Tom Myler was known as the "doc" amongst the boys. I don't know why, except that he may have possessed some medical skill in binding-up the wounds of his comrades, received through the terrific bowling of Bennett and Savage. I heard one of the officers of the commodore ship in port one summer remark: "I would sooner face a cannon ball than the bowling of that man Bennett."

In our Annual Regatta forty years ago Mr. Myler also took a prominent part, and one year in the eighties he rowed in the race boat Rosetta, owned by the West End Club, and came in first in the juvenile race, which was the only one for the day that she showed up. The crew on that occasion was composed of Will Goudie, John Mallam, Harry Simms, Nix Chishist, Scott and Tom Myler himself.

And now after having spent the greater portion of his life far from his native land, he is once more amongst us to visit the old scenes of his conquests and defeats, and I feel assured all his old friends will extend to him a hearty and sincere Newfoundland welcome, and that speaks volumes. Mr. Myler is a brother of

What of Our Harvest

Our cable messages daily have referred to the unprecedented wheat crop in the West. Demands are being made for an additional number of harvesters, and the question of marketing to the best advantage is under discussion.

It will not be long before exactly the same problem will have to be considered with regard to our harvest—the harvest of the sea. What are we going to do about it?

Are we going to do anything, or shall we just trust to luck? We do not lack hard headed business men who have made the fish business a life study, who know what difficulties it presents, and what precautions must be taken to reduce the uncertainty of the venture to a minimum.

Is it not possible for them to sink their differences, to use their combined experiences, and to apply to the marketing of the fish the wealth of knowledge which they possess?

The farmers of Western Canada are faced with difficulties as momentous as our own. Labour, transportation, the unsettled state of the markets, the growing competition with European countries that are again producing wheat, overborrowing and deflation are but a few of these. The following extract from The Financial Post will show that in studying their own problems they have also investigated the experiment tried in Newfoundland. We may also have something to learn from them.

"Some, who are paying attention to the murmuring of rural discontent, are of the opinion that the immediate problem is to work out a scheme to relieve Western farmers of their present liabilities, not by indirect governmental bonuses, as was done in the case of the Newfoundland fishermen, who were given 'loans' by the government of that Dominion, but by working out a scheme for funding the present indebtedness to relieve the pressing nature of these liabilities."

We have tried Government control and it has proved a costly failure, as it has everywhere else where Government interference in business has been attempted.

With a knowledge of the conditions in the foreign markets, a conservative estimate of the total catch, insistence upon a rigid grading of the fish, and a loyal attempt to co-operate in the marketing, our merchants can do much to make our chief industry, if not as successful as in the past, at least something more than a dismal failure.

Attacked by a Scamp.

Between the hours of nine and ten o'clock last night a scamp, who is known in police circles, made an attack on a young married woman as she was near her home, Springdale Street. The scamp had hidden behind a fence at the rear of the Springdale Street S. A. College and caught the woman as she passed. On reaching home the woman collapsed and is still in a precarious state. Her husband on learning the particulars made a search in the neighbourhood where the attack was made and located the man. The scamp received a well merited thrashing at the hands of the husband who is no mean athlete.

To Make the Punishment Fit the Crime.

As the number of motor car accidents increase, it is likely that greater consideration will be given to the suggestion advanced in England, to the effect that the law of 'dead-end' should be revived. According to this law, whenever any personal chattel causes the death of any 'reasonable creature' it was at once forfeited to charitable purposes. The confiscation of motor cars responsible for causing death, while drastic, would undoubtedly afford a very salutary lesson, though, in some cases, the court might have difficulty in deciding what was a 'reasonable creature.'

Tor's Cove Garden Party

SUNDAY JULY 22ND.
As will be seen from our large advertisement on front page, this popular annual event will take place tomorrow afternoon. The train will leave St. John's at 2.30 p.m. Every preparation has been made to ensure its success. The regular excursion to Kelligrews has been cancelled, a splendid opportunity thereby, will be given all those who take in the Garden Party, and an occasion for all those who have never been on the Southern Shore to enjoy its varied scenes and beauty. A splendid programme has been prepared so that with fine weather a large assembly is awaited. By kind permission of Officer Commanding, the full Brass Band of the C.C.C. Corps will be in attendance.

Mount Cashel Garden Party.

BIG EVENT NEXT WEDNESDAY.
On Wednesday afternoon next the annual Mount Cashel Garden Party takes place at the Orphanage grounds. For a quarter of a century the Mount Cashel Garden Party has been the big event of the year, and the thousands who annually patronize the fête, come away feeling that more could not have been done to make the day thoroughly enjoyable. For months past the Ladies committee have been preparing for next Wednesday's fête at Mount Cashel, and they will be in a position to cater to unlimited numbers. The sports programme will be an unusual pleasure of interest and will include a 3 mile Road Race, Pony Races for which 10 entries have already been made, a trotting race, and football five. The C.L.B. Pyramid Squad will also be in attendance, and the affair will undoubtedly be the big attraction of the season.

St. Joseph's Regatta.

At a meeting of the Committee in charge of St. Joseph's Regatta, held last night, it was decided that the following races would constitute the programme:—Amateurs, Old Comrades, Fishermen's, Football, Intermediate, District Dory and Championship. It was decided that those who wish to enter crews can make application to the different Boat Clubs for whatever boats they require. Rev. Fr. Pippy and his energetic committee are leaving nothing undone and this year's event promises to eclipse the great success of last season.

French Banker in Port.

The French banker Gagne Petit, arrived in port yesterday evening, hauling for 4,500 lbs. fish. The vessel had her rudder badly damaged during a recent storm on the banks, and was obliged to make port to have a new one fitted. The vessel will sail again for the banks as soon as repairs are completed.

Torbay Trappers Doing Well.

The fishermen operating their traps at Torbay, Flatrock and vicinity have done exceptionally well with the fish during the week. One trap at Torbay yesterday morning accounted for 23 quintals, while others average daily from 15 to 25 quintals. The men from Fortugal Cove report that the codfishery is practically a blank in that section to date.

Society Protection of Animals.

Last night in the Grenfell Institute, the annual meeting of the Society for the Protection of Animals took place. His Excellency the Governor Sir William Allardice presided and was accompanied by Captain Goodfellow. The attendance was the largest for several years, although the number present should have been greater. President Geo. R. Williams read the report of the Executive, published in another column. Treasurer Charles Hunt presented his account showing a balance on hand at the end of the Society's fiscal year. He reported that the subscriptions paid in were the largest for seven years. Mr. William Brown acted as Secretary and read the minutes of the last annual meeting. Messrs. A. V. Ross and A. E. Parkins moved the adoption of the annual reports. Mrs. Brian Dunfield kindly contributed two violin solos in artistic style and Miss Dorothy White presided at the piano. His Excellency addressed the meeting, referring to the claims the animal kingdom has upon us all and quoted personal reminiscences of his favourite dog "Solo" in the Pacific and his pony in Australia—the latter recognizing his voice at a long distance after an absence of three months. He appealed to those present to carry on and give the Society their support.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Johnson, Dr. Vincent Burke, Deputy Minister of Education and Mr. Thomas Peel also spoke on various subjects. President Williams announced he had received a note of regret for non-attendance from ex-President C. J. Fox on behalf of himself and Mrs. Fox, who were out of town, and also the receipt today of the proceeds of a small sale held yesterday by four children under ten years of age, Misses Joan Thompson, Ruth and Frankie Ross and Mary Colingwood towards the funds, and also announced that His Excellency the Governor had graciously consented to become Patron of the Society. The officers for the new year were duly elected as follows:—

Hon. President—Justice Johnson.
President—Geo. R. Williams.
Vice-President—Thomas Curran.
Secretary—William Brown.
Treasurer—Fred R. Emerson.
The following comprise the Directorate:—Messdames J. B. Mitchell, Walter S. Monroe, A. W. Kennedy, Messrs. Hon. Mr. Justice G. M. Johnson, Charles E. Hunt, John O'Riordan, A. V. Ross, A. E. Parkins, and William White. The annual subscriptions for 1923 are now due and the general public are appealed to for support in order to maintain the services of their Chief Agent and Inspector, whose duty it is as well as all good citizens to endeavour to protect those who cannot speak for themselves—Votes of thanks having been passed to His Excellency the Governor, Mrs. Dunfield and the Grenfell Institute for favours received, the National Anthem brought a successful meeting to a close.

Look out for the Independent.

July 21st
The outcome of the party meetings held yesterday frustrated all attempts to close the rent that made itself apparent under the disclosures became public. Under existing circumstances it seems almost impossible to reconcile the warring factions, and it is quite evident that a dissolution will be the only solution of the difficulty, which will probably take place before the House meets or a vote of confidence is made.

Ship's Dance Big Success

The officers and crew of H.M.S. "Constance" held a dance in the C.C. Hall last night. A large gathering of young ladies from the city who responded to invitations were present. The dance was a decided success, and one and all enjoyed a very pleasant evening's entertainment. The hall presented a very pleasing appearance, flags and bunting with the colored lights dotted here and there on the ceiling and walls adding greatly to the scene. Several of the ship's crew who looked after the decorations during the day are to be complimented on their taste and skill. The dance programme, which consisted of some 12 items, including extra waltzes and one steps, proved quite popular with everybody. The music furnished by the ship's orchestra was all that could be desired. The rendition of the latest English and American hits added greatly to the all-round success. The talented musicians are to be congratulated by their efforts. Early in the evening Commander J.H. Campbell visited the hall and was received by the entire assemblage with cheers and the lusty singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." During the dance interval the entire gathering dispersed to the supper room, where the many good things provided for was done full justice to by all. The affair was chaperoned by Messdames McKee, Syms, Outerbridge, (2) and Miss May Furlong. The dance did not terminate until 2 o'clock this morning, all present voting it a jolly fine time. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the officers and crew of the Constance by all those who had the happy privilege of being present. It is hoped that a return dance will be extended on their next visit to our shores.

What You Should Know.

You often hear a person say "The people want something more than Chiropactic Adjustments." I have been asked why I do not use—Electricity, Baths, etc. as a Chiropactic practitioner. I know that the people want Health and I also know that if Chiropactic fails, that no amount of Electricity, Baths, Massage, etc., will do any good. There is no denying the fact that the people being stepped in old methods are prone to leave the old ways for new ones. Chiropactors having the welfare of their patients at heart, use no petting and pampering methods. Not being Dollar chasers, We give them the one thing, that we have been taught and know how to use. We give them the thing that we know, Gels them well—Chiropactic.

In Passing.

The Government of many Scandals seems to be the popular expression when reference is being made to the present conglomeration.

Everywhere the slogan is: "Charge it to Pitt Props." On the athletic field, in the club room, even the small boy on the street is shouting "Charge it to Pitt Props. How about a Prize Cup?"

One of our popular ice cream parlors is selling a new concoction to take the place of its popular King Tut. It is called "Pit Prop Charge," and when orders for same are good, the Victrola in the far off corner excellently renders "The Campbells are Coming."

The long lists of expenditures, as shown by the statements, reveal a story of wild mad-cap extravagance far beyond the imagination of the most ardent fiction writer.

Millions of dollars worth of forestry sacrificed, millions of dollars of public funds expended, and all to secure the good-will and support for indiscreet politicians in a blind race for pelf and power.

Many unwarranted methods were employed and nearly every governmental department was used to defile the electorate. Scandal after scandal was entered into until now we have an unheated record of mis-conduct on the part of officials who used the public funds to further their personal advantages.

Personal followers who are closely associated with the Prime Minister, are strong indeed in their denunciation of the Minister of Justice who seems to have suddenly won the dis-favour of the Premier's adherents. It is generally accepted that at party meetings of the government, Mr. Warren, by virtue of his office, has made it quite plain to all that he intends to take all the legal action at his disposal to have an unprejudiced enquiry into the affairs of several departments connected with the scandals as alleged during the past four weeks.

The Attorney General will receive the united support of all classes and all creeds in any honest attempt to right the serious wrongs which have proved so costly to an overtaxed people on whom the burden of the wilful waste must eventually be placed.

At the time of writing, the political pot is boiling over with rumors and predictions all tending to substantiate the story that the days of the government are numbered, and that Sir Richard Squires proposes tendering the resignation of his cabinet before many days are past.

Truckman Meets. Accident.

HAD LEG BROKEN BY KICKING MULE.
At about 9.30 this morning, as truckman Horwood, of Quidi Vid, was driving his horse with an empty box cart attached, along Duckworth St., the animal started to kick. Horwood who was standing in the front part of the box cart, was hit in the right leg by the horse's hoof and thrown to the street. A man named William Carroll, who witnessed the accident, brought the injured man into St. John's grocery store, where it was found that his leg had been broken above the ankle. The ambulance was 'phoned for and the patient was removed to hospital. The horse has been used at coal hauling from an East End premises.

Humber Development.

MUCH WORK ALREADY NEARING COMPLETION.
The following report has been received from the engineer in charge of the works for Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., Limited, in connection with the Humber River development:—

At Corner Brook, where the paper mill is to be erected, temporary buildings to accommodate the engineering and clerical staffs and five hundred workmen are practically completed, and temporary machine shops and stores are well under way. The filling in for the mill site is proceeding satisfactorily. Railway tracks have been laid and the steam shovel is at work and over 3,000 cubic yards of dirt is being moved daily. The new wharf which, when completed, will accommodate large ocean-going steamers, is now 70 p.c. completed. All the plant and equipment for driving and preparing concrete and wooden piles in connection with the mill foundations and paper store houses is erected, and work will begin on the first of August. The road to the new quarry, which is to be opened up at Corner Brook, is built and everything is ready for the machinery and stone crushing plant, which arrived at Humbermouth today.

Main Dam, Junction Brook—All plant required for the construction of this dam has arrived and is being assembled on the site. The excavation work has already begun and concreting will commence during the first week in August.
Main Canal—The heavy excavating machinery is on the site and is now being erected. Work has already commenced on the canal with regard to the formation of embankments and satisfactory progress on this section of the work is reported.
Power House and Penstocks, Deer Lake—All plant arrived at Humbermouth to-day and work will begin in ten days' time. Preliminary work on the foundations of the power house is already in hand. The area required for the penstocks and forebay has already been cleared and preparations are in hand for commencing work.
Railway Diversion and Construction of Sidings—The main railway diversion is practically completed. All necessary sidings are nearing completion. Over 17 miles of track have been laid.
Town Site, Corner Brook—The main roads have been staked out and clearing begins next week. Draining or filling in of swampy areas is already commenced.

General.—The general progress made in every department of the operation is regarded as satisfactory by the contractors, and by the middle of August work will be in full swing.

Enjoyable Dance.

An enjoyable dance, kindly arranged by the officers of S. S. Rossalind, was held on board the ship last night. Amongst those present were the majority of the round trippers and a large number of people from the shore. The ship was especially decorated for the occasion and an array of multi-coloured lights added to the scene. The Mount Cashel Band, through the courtesy of Rev. Bro. Bonis, supplied the music, and this aggregation of young musicians, who have already made a name in musical circles, excelled themselves last night and were called upon for repeated encores, which were gladly given. During the evening refreshments were served in the saloon by Chief McPhie and staff, and the affair concluded shortly after midnight.

DIED.

This morning at 10.50, Charles Pippy, aged 80 years. Funeral on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. from his late residence, Pouch Cove.
At Wingham, Mass., June 26th, John A. Cluney, beloved husband of Elizabeth J. Cluney (nee Bright). Services from Woodlawn Chapel, Thursday, June 28th. Mr. Cluney was a native of Kelligrews, Nfld., and at one time a resident of St. John's. Passed peacefully away on the 26th inst., an old and esteemed resident of the West End, in the person of Mrs. Richard Escott, leaving three sons and one daughter. P. J. Edstrom of the firm of Edstrom & O'Grady, William at Sydney, C.B., and Thomas at Somerville, U.S.A., and Mrs. C. F. Whitten, of this city. The funeral takes place from her son-in-law's residence, corner of Buxton and Water Streets on Sunday, at 2.30 p.m. Friends and acquaintances please attend without further notice. At the General Hospital, last night, Nora, youngest daughter of the late Honora and William St. Croix, leaving two sisters, Mrs. H. M. Myers at Boston, and Fanny at home; also two brothers, Rev. Magistrates Court.

Two drinks and disorderlies were each fined $2.00 or 7 days.

A 23-year-old domestic, without a home, charged with being loose and disorderly, was granted her freedom.

Four fishermen summoned for depositing fish offal at the head of Steer's Cove, were each ordered to cut and open their fish further down in the Cove. A fine was not imposed in this case.

A cabman for driving his horse and vehicle without lights on the night of the 17th inst., was let go upon paying costs.

The motor mechanic who failed to appear in court yesterday in answer to a summons for driving his car at an excessive speed dangerous to the public, was arrested and pleaded not guilty to the charge this morning. Mr. J. A. Barron, who appeared for defendant, asked for a postponement until Tuesday next, which was granted.

A 25-year-old laborer of the Rope-walk who was up before court yesterday morning charged with issuing worthless cheques to the value of $12.00, was arraigned before the Magistrate in the afternoon. The accused made arrangements to make good the amount. It being his first offence, sentences was suspended.

A 46-year-old printer of Quidi Vid Road for assault, was convicted and fined $5.00 or 14 days.

Enjoyable Dance.

An enjoyable dance, kindly arranged by the officers of S. S. Rossalind, was held on board the ship last night. Amongst those present were the majority of the round trippers and a large number of people from the shore. The ship was especially decorated for the occasion and an array of multi-coloured lights added to the scene. The Mount Cashel Band, through the courtesy of Rev. Bro. Bonis, supplied the music, and this aggregation of young musicians, who have already made a name in musical circles, excelled themselves last night and were called upon for repeated encores, which were gladly given. During the evening refreshments were served in the saloon by Chief McPhie and staff, and the affair concluded shortly after midnight.

Seven Attempts Made to Burn Church in London.

A religious fanatic is believed to be responsible for incendiary fire which have occurred in several London churches recently. The seventh attempt within the last few weeks to burn a church in South London occurred when St. Leonard's, one of the most imposing edifices in the suburb of Streatham narrowly escaped total destruction. These conflagrations are alleged to be the work of some religious fanatic of ultra Protestant views in each case special attention has been given to destruction of the interiors in which the clerical vestments are kept. Entrance in every case has been obtained through the

The German Emperor Who Ruled in France.

CHARLEMAGNE THE FRANK.

To a large extent, the history of the present race is the story of the super-race. Sometimes, as in the case of the French Revolution, great events have been the result of a dozen causes operating at the same time. The French Revolution was not created by one man, but it was stemmed, trained, and completed by one man. Generally the individual exploits have been made possible by the circumstances of the time. Without the Revolution, there would have been no Napoleon. Without the decadent inefficiency of the Bourbons and the unspeakable orgies of Napoleon, there could have been no Napoleon. Without the war and its countless reactions there could have been no Mussolini.

The Dark Ages.
Still, the history of the world might well be written in a series of biographical studies. The great men are the principal performers in the drama of their age, and they are to a large extent its mirrors.

The Dark Ages remain very dark. The average man knows far less about the years from A.D. 400 to 1000 than he knows of the Athens of the dramatists and the Rome of the Emperors, and the darkness of the Dark Ages is the result of the fact that they possessed few great dominating personalities. Charlemagne, the German king who ruled France, was one of the few. St. Boniface, the English monk who converted Germany, was another. And Charlemagne, in the manner of many another astute secular ruler, reaped a political harvest from the religious seed sown by St. Boniface.

A Frank.
Charlemagne was a Frank, the son of Pepin, and he was born in 744. The Franks were a confederation of Teutonic tribes who in the fifth and sixth centuries conquered Gaul as far south as the River Loire. Farther south, the province of Aquitaine was held by another tribe of latinized Teutons, and the Burgundians in the east of what is now France and the Lombards in the north of Italy were also both Germanic.

The political situation in Europe in the middle of the eighth century was as follows. The successors of Constantine reigned as Emperors in Constantinople, regarding themselves as the heirs of Augustus. The Pope already held territorial possessions in central Italy. There was constant friction between Rome and Constantinople, and in the years that preceded the break between the Eastern and the Western Churches, the overlordship of the Pope was not recognized in the East and was only partially established in the West. The Emperor held Sicily and Calabria, the Italian province south of Naples. The rest of Italy was dominated by the Lombards.

Hungary and the Balkans were occupied by pagan tribes who cut off the Emperor at Constantinople from land communications with the rest of Europe. France was held by the Teutons and Spain was almost entirely in the hands of the Moors, who were defeated at the battle of Tours by Charles Martel, Charlemagne's grandfather. Martel thus saved France and England from the Crescent. Incidentally it is important to note that both Teutons and Latins had the most complete contempt for the Greek Emperors and their Greek subjects.

England Then.
As for England, Mr. Charles Davis says in his "Charlemagne" (Putnam, 10s. 6d.):—

Few provinces of the Roman Patriarchate were more renowned than England for orthodoxy and for intellectual culture. Her merchants travelled to Gallic ports, her pilgrims flocked in a continual stream across the Alps, to her missionaries more than to those of any other race was due the foundation of the German Church. But from the politics and general life of the Continent she held aloof; partly because of her insular position, partly because no one sovereign had yet united her provinces under an effective supremacy.

Charlemagne constantly interfered with English affairs, but he never had any real authority in the Saxon kingdoms.

Crowned by the Pope.
The Franks were the natural allies of the Popes, who feared the Emperors and feared still more their greedy Lombard neighbours. In 754 Pope Stephen crossed the Alps to Crown Pepin and his two sons, Charlemagne and Carloman. Declaring that "the Apostle enjoined the whole nation upon pain of interdict and excommunication that nevermore should they presume to choose their kings from any other family."

For a year or two after his father's death Charlemagne divided his kingdom with his brother, but in 771 he became sole king of the Franks. In 772 he began the subjugation of Saxony, which was not finally subdued until thirty years afterwards. In 773 and 774 he invaded and conquered Lombardy. In 778 he invaded Spain. This campaign was one of Charlemagne's rare failures, its one result was the "Song of Roland," written centuries later. In 787 he was fighting in southern Italy. In 788 he conquered Bavaria. In 800 he was crowned Emperor by Leo III. in St. Peter's, Rome. Charlemagne died in 814. During the latter years of his life he waged successful wars with the Eastern Empire at one end of Europe and with Denmark at the other.

When he died his Empire extended from the coast of France on the west to the Elbe on the east and from the Baltic in the north to Rome in the south. Europe knew no similar conqueror until Napoleon.

The Charlemagne empire existed only for a hundred years, but it was the embodiment of a great idea. I again quote Mr. Davis's admirable book:—
He belonged, in fact, to no nation of modern growth, but to the only nation which, in his day, deserved the name to that nation in which the local and racial differences were suppressed or transcended—to the nation of the Catholic Church. As the servant of the Church he humbled the Saxon, treated with the Dane, and cowed the Slav; as the servant of the Church he led his armies first across the Alps and then across the Pyrenees. The civilization which he fostered was catholic, like his religion, and the patrimony of Christendom at large.

Despite a full measure of moral irregularity, Charlemagne was earnestly Christian. He was the friend of the best Churchmen of his age, including the Saxon scholar Alcuin. He cleansed the Church of many abuses. He was strong enough to compel the Pope himself to reply to charges made against him. He established schools. He cared for music, and he would have been another Maecenas if he could have found another Horace or another Virgil. He demanded absolute obedience, but he strove to re-establish the reign of law and to ensure justice for his subjects.

Charlemagne was a theologian. In opposition both to the Eastern Church and to the Pope, he insisted on the retention of the word "Alleluia" in the Creed. This word implies the equality of the Father and the Son since the Holy Spirit proceeds from them both. It remains an essential part of the faith of the Western Church, but the retention of the word was one of the causes that led to the Great Schism of the Eastern Church.

A Vast Empire.
Charlemagne's vast empire had many capitals. He had residences in Italy, in Bavaria, in Aquitaine, and in Germany. If one city was more important than another it was Aix-la-Chapelle. It was here that the great king was visited by ambassadors from Haroun al-Raschid. It was here that he died and was buried. He was a man of simple tastes, caring nothing for splendid clothes or costly ceremonies.

Charlemagne was the greatest of the Franks, but the Franks were a second-rate people. They left Europe nothing, not a book, not a picture, not a church, not a road. The Normans, the finest of all the races that came out of the mists of the North, were destined to play a far more enduring part in the European drama.—Stanley Darg in John O'London's Weekly.

Annual Report

SOCIETY FOR THE PROTECTION OF ANIMALS.

Your Excellency, Ladies and Gentlemen.—It gives your Executive satisfaction once more to submit to you their Annual Report for the year ending February 28th, 1923.

It is also with great pleasure that we announce that the cash balance in the bank for the year ending Feb. 28th amounted to $314.15 and that the income of the Society from Subscriptions has been the largest for many years. A Tag Day organized by the Executive was held during the fall, by the help of collectors from the city schools we netted the handsome result of $58.75. Mrs. George Knowling Jr., kindly awarded handsome prizes to the children making the largest collection.

Another Committee of which Mrs. Walter S. Monroe was Convenor passed over to the Treasurer, Mr. Charles Hunt, the sum of $283.55 which has been raised to assist the Society's work. The S.P.A. is also indebted to the Minister of Agriculture for a grant of fifty dollars toward Chief Agent Barter's salary.

During the year the Society ordered 300 Copies of the Horses Fray Picture from Canada of which a quantity has been sold and distributed. The total cost has been entirely paid for from the profits of the pictures sold. The Society has a quantity to further dispose of to advantage.

The Society has no funds to meet its expenses excepting from the annual income and unless the lovers of all animals maintain their contributions, the Society cannot do effective work.

The S.P.A. during 1923 has inaugurated the publishing of a weekly report to subscribers and the general public of the work done by Mr. Jonas Barter, Chief Agent, who in season and out has done faithful, loyal service at all times caring for "Those who cannot speak for themselves." The Society has also had a special act passed by the Legislative in connection with the use of whiffle trees and horsemen all agree that their use tends to ease the load.

The Society dispatched Mr. Jonas Barter to Whitebourn during the year and hopes next winter season if funds permit to employ him or an additional inspector to visit all lumbering camps to assist lumber companies in their efforts of having their animals properly cared for by their employees, and to see that the animals are not overloaded or ill-used. Horses coming to St. John's each spring give practical evidence that drivers or other employees of lumber companies, etc. are not giving the animals in their care right treatment.

The Society during the year has also made efforts to introduce the "Humane Killer" in slaughter houses and five butchers, Messrs. James Cook, Rupert Lester, Moore and Method and Peter Joy have highly approved of it after seeing a practical demonstration by our Agent, Mr. Jonas Barter.

From Mr. Barter's report we glean the following statistics:—
Number of horned cattle superintended when landing from railway and steamers and then watered and fed... 2,001
No. of Sheep... 620
No. of Pigs... 140
No. of Horses... 130
No. of Cattle examined on ship-board in transit... 680
No. of Horses humanely destroyed... 47
No. of Dogs... 64
No. of Cats... 52
No. of Horses sent off the street for rest and treatment... 53
No. of Oxen and Bulls humanely slaughtered at slaughter houses by Chief Agent... 8
Total of Animals Inspected... 3,574
Total of Animals Humanely destroyed... 178

We regret to announce the resignation of Mrs. Armine Gosling, Vice President who has been a valued worker for many years in the Society's interests. Mr. Ambrose Gosling also resigned, and Mr. Brian Dunfield who for a considerable period has been keenly interested in our work, has left the country. Mr. Thomas Curran was elected to the board during the year and brings a wealth of sound practical advice to the councils of the directors.

The Society acknowledges with gratitude the kind assistance of Mr. W. H. Crowley, who gave his services so generously as Chief Agent during the period Mr. Jonas Barter was incapacitated from work, by reason of injuries received whilst on duty.

We regret to announce the resignation of our Secretary, Mr. Curtis, who has been an indefatigable worker the past three years. He gave his assistance freely and generously at all times until recently when due to pressure of business he had to resign on the 30th June and his duties taken over by the President temporarily.

Your officers and directors in resigning their charge wish to express their thanks to all friends of the Society for favours rendered during the year and also for their financial support to a Society which has for its object the protection of "Those who cannot speak for themselves."

Respectfully yours,
GEO. R. WILLIAMS,
President.

Regatta Meeting.

TWENTY CREWS ENTER.

The Regatta Committee Meeting held last night was largely attended and much enthusiasm was displayed. President Hiseock occupied the chair. The collectors who were out during the week turned in a very encouraging report although the amount collected to-day is a long way short of the sum required to make the affair a success. Amount of subscriptions received was a fifteen dollar cheque from the Truckmen's Union. President Hiseock announced that he had interviewed Sir Edgar Bowring from whom he had the assurance of every assistance possible. Mr. C. Ryan reported that he had received 50 applications for space for tents. The C.L.B. Old Comrades, asked leave to have slot boxes on the course Regatta Day, where voluntary subscriptions towards their new boat could be received. This request was accorded to, and the Committee will do all possible to assist the Club.

The President referred to the loss the committee sustained in the passing of the late Mr. John Day, and a resolution of condolence was forwarded to the family of the deceased.

The motion of Mr. A. G. Williams to have the names of all members who were not taking an active part struck off the list, was passed and the names of five were removed.

After some minor matters had been discussed the meeting adjourned till Friday next, when the official programme will be arranged and the balance of crews will enter.

The Teachers' Augmentation Grant.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—One needs not a very discerning eye to observe that the Government has money for every purpose under the sun—even for splits, but none to pay teachers their augmentation now overdue since the 30th ultimo. We are warned that no payment for June shall be paid unless our General Annual Returns be forwarded.

With rare exceptions this is done with speed because I venture to assert that 95 per cent. of the teachers, in the Outports particularly, need the money when due. You, Mr. Editor, with the general public, will agree that the teacher should receive his salary when due, promptly, as this was his one and only source of income. With the honourable members of the House of Assembly and the politician, it is far different; he has his legal stipend, legal fees, in some cases his travelling expenses, bonuses, etc. for extended sessions that cause, if not brain worry, at least strain.

Now gentlemen of the Dept. of Education, do you not think it is about time the teachers should be paid their Augmentation now nearly three weeks overdue.

I wonder has the money been passed over to the credit of the "Pit Prop Account." If so, we shall have a weary waiting till the Hon. Minister returns from holidays abroad to adjust matters.

Thanking you in anticipation,
Yours etc.,
TEACHER.

LOCAL ITEMS.

S.S. Fortia, from St. John's last week, brought some twenty passengers for Trinity. We are always glad to have people come to us; but especially just now when so many have gone away.

Mr. John Burnell, Mrs. Burnell, Edna and Frances, could not hide the expression of pleasure, as they found themselves in Trinity again for a while. They are staying at Trinity East; native air and old scenes have not been without good effects upon them. Mr. Burnell may return to St. John's by the Fortia.

Mr. and Mrs. George House and family, with a full knowledge of the value of Trinity as an air tonic, have refused to be satisfied with samples of it. They are camping out at Glen Cove, and enjoying 100 p.c. pure.

Mrs. (Rev.) Andrew Tulk (nee Ette Morris), is visiting her old home at Trinity; and in addition to the happiness that her visit means to her father and mother, she (and Master Davy) are personally happy in the meeting of old friends, and in the enjoyable quietness that Trinity offers. We are all glad to see her.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop of Burnt Head, Conception Bay, are visiting at Mr. Hussey's. Mrs. Bishop is a sister of Mr. Hussey, and will be a great comfort to him in his protracted illness. We are glad for his sake and their own that they have come, and we offer them the freedom of the town.

Mrs. (Capt.) Robert Fowling and Master Harry V. Morris, who had been visiting at St. John's, evidently enjoyed city life, and returned all the better for it. Miss Katie Fowling and Master George Lilly came with them for the summer holidays and will return to duty like giants refreshed.

Mr. Peel, representing the Sun Life Insurance Company is registered at the Garland.

George Ivamy of Ivanhoe, and Emily Ivamy of New Bonaventure, were married in St. Paul's Church, Trinity, on 14th July.

Mrs. Ash, who spent the winter and spring at St. John's, have returned to enjoy our summer atmosphere, and to be enjoyed by her many friends.

Mrs. Gus Parsons (nee Bessie Somerton) and baby, have come to spend the summer with father, mother and friends. We are glad to see them and hope that our quietude and ozone will be thoroughly enjoyed; and that pleasure, and profit to health may be the results thereof.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thorne of Thornlea, Bonavista, spent Sunday at Trinity East and Trinity. Always glad to see them in their old home town.

Miss Ruth Tibbs, accompanied by her friend Miss Moore, are spending their holidays at Trinity.

Miss Rachel Fowling is still supplying at the Telegraph Office, Bonavista, and Mrs. Morris, her sister, is on duty at the office in Trinity.

Sergt. Ricketts, V.O. was a passenger on the Fortia going to his home in the North. His many friends and admirers everywhere in Newfoundland, who are proud of him, are always glad to see him.

Mr. Moore and Mr. Andrews of G. Knowling Ltd., registered at the Garland and spent an enjoyable week in town. They return by the Fortia.

Mr. Edmund Anderson, Telegraph Operator at British Harbor, was married to Miss Maud Brown of King's Cove on Thursday, July 12th, by Rev. Llewellyn Godden. They passed through Trinity on Monday, en route to British Harbor.

Mr. William Jenkins will celebrate his 80th birthday to-morrow, July 22nd. There is much of the boy about him yet. He is 80 years young.

The members of the Church of England School Board of Trinity went to British Harbor by motor boat on Wednesday last, to attend the annual meeting of the Board.

Trinity folk have ordered over two hundred copies of views taken by Mr. W. Bannister, on the day of the Governor's visit. They know a good thing when they see it.

Mr. Stone and wife from Fort aux Basques, registered at the Garland last week, on their way to their old home at Bonaventure. Mr. Stone has been teaching at Fort aux Basques for three years, and will take charge of the school at Change Islands next September.

Mr. and Mrs. Hibbs and child, registered at the Garland last week. Mr. Hibbs has been teaching at Burgoyne's Cove, and they were on their way to Keel's for the summer.

Among the visitors to Trinity last week were Sister Lovette and Sister Reita, belonging to the Order of Mercy Nuns of the Roman Catholic Church in Texas, U.S.A. The special work of the Order is teaching and nursing; and they will be glad to arrange for the reception of promising girls who are willing to join the Order. They came to Trinity from King's Cove and returned the same evening.

Mrs. Stephen Murphy and Miss Babson, came to Trinity from King's Cove on Monday last, and registered at the Garland. Mrs. Murphy is a grand-daughter of the late Mrs. Murphy of King's Cove. Miss Babson is a daughter of Mr. Babson the expert on financial problems and forecasts in the U.S., and lives at Wellesley Hills, near Boston. They left by the train on Tuesday for Humbermouth, to fish in the Humber River.

CHANGES.

Probably there is nothing that more clearly marks the difference in the evidences of religious actions of daily life between those of our forebears, and those of our people in the present day, than that of the initial phraseology of Wills. A copy of a Will made in 1788 is now before me and begins as follows:

"In the name of God, Amen. I of Christ Church, Hampshire, England, living at Newfoundland, being weak and sick in body, but of perfect mind and memory (thanks being given unto God for the same) and calling to mind the mortality of my body; and knowing it is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament.

First of all, I give and commend my soul to the hand of God who gave it; and for my body, I commend it to the earth, to be buried in a decent and Christianlike manner, nothing doubting but at the General Resurrection, I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God, etc., etc.

This reminds me that sixty years ago we began our letters with the following: "I now take up my pen to write you these few lines, hoping it will find you in good health, as I thank God, it leaves us all at present."

This decided change in the initial phraseology of our Wills and letters does not prove, I presume, that we are either better or worse than our forefathers, but rather, that we are different.

Whilst Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Butler of Port Rexton were driving from Bonaventure on Monday last, their horse took fright coming down a hill and ran away. They were thrown out. A little boy who was with them had his arm broken, and Mr. and Mrs. Butler are badly injured. The horse galloped into Trinity with nothing attached to him but his collar.

Mr. Aubrey Crocker who has done business in Trinity for several years, is selling off his stock in trade by public auction and is offering his house for sale.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H.E.—The priest of the Church of England in Trinity in 1788 was Rev. Benjamin Lindsey. The old Register of Baptisms, Marriages and Burials beginning with that date, was presented by him to the church in Trinity. He left Trinity in 1786, and was succeeded by Rev. James Balfour, A.M.

Equator, S.P.G. are the initial letters of the words "Society for the Propagation of the Gospel." This is one of the Societies in England, through which the Church of England carries on its "Foreign Missionary work." S.P.C.K. are the initials of the "Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge." It (in addition to other publications) is the great Bible Society of the Church of England.

A.C.—The first Outrigger that came to Trinity was George Cutler. He came from Bordingridge, England, about 1780, and was married to Sarah Wornel of Trinity in 1784. The name has died out in Trinity.

S.M.J.—George Cooksley, who lived at Glenoove, Trinity, some fifty years ago, fought under Havelock at the Siege of Delhi, during the Indian Mutiny. He had many beautiful things that were once in the King of Delhi's palace, and they were all destroyed when the house was burnt.

T.D.—You have been misinformed about the South Side of Trinity. There is, I believe, only one family living there at present—the Pinhorns.

Stolen Picture Found in Hedge.

After trying for nearly two months in a roadside hedge, a 16-century oil painting of the Earl of Essex, seated on a charger, which had been stolen on March 12 from Lady Herford's residence, Ashford Hall, Near Ludlow, England, was discovered nearly four miles from the mansion. As a result of information which had been reached the police, a superintendent, two sergeants and three constables spent three days in raking the hedge rows the whole distance between Ashford Hall and Middleton, where, on the night the picture was stolen, burglars also took a motor car from a garage on Mr. Price's farm. They failed to start the car and the noise having aroused the farmer, they ran away.

HENRY BLAIR

The Pulpwood Situation.

FROM CANADIAN STANDPOINT.

Parliament empowered the Ottawa government to prohibit by Order in Council the export of pulpwood cut on private lands, and Press despatches from the U.S. show considerable anxiety as to the effects of such an embargo. A New York despatch, for instance, says that "a decisive blow will be dealt to the American newsprint industry. Many mills, now almost entirely dependent upon Canada for their pulpwood, will be forced to close down. The gravity of the situation to the United States newsprint industry is emphasized by the fact that since 1912 production in this country has been practically constant, while Canada has increased her output three times. Exports from Canada to this country were 83 p.c. of her total newsprint output in 1922."

While the question may seem complicated at first sight, it is really a simple one. The difference is not between Canadian and American industries fighting one another to obtain a practical monopoly, for the great bulk of the pulp factories in Canada are American-owned; the fight is between two classes of American paper-makers—one class which was far-sighted enough to build its plants in Canada, the other which relied on getting its pulpwood from Canada for manufacture in the United States.

Pulpwood Situation.

There is no question of hostility against the United States. American paper manufacturers have been very cordially welcomed here and will continue to be—but the Canadian position is that while these natural resources of our country are being developed by foreign capital for foreign use, we should have at least employment of Canadian labor, purchase in Canada of supplies used in the business, and as much other benefit as we can fairly claim. To aid in this policy, an embargo on pulpwood, it is believed, will bring the remaining American paper manufacturers into line with their more far-sighted competitors who have already established factories here. Even under the embargo, United States paper manufacturers will have an advantage, for Canadian paper firms have to pay the 6 per cent. sales tax under the recent bill, from which United States are exempt, while the taxation on Canadian business generally is much more heavy than that on United States business. The present policy of sending raw materials across the line for manufacture compels many young Canadians to go over the border to work on that raw material, and this is one of the causes of the serious loss of our young manhood to the United States.

In Canada, we have a huge country, a small population, and a heavy debt. These facts show that it is ordinary prudence to obtain the greatest possible benefit from our natural resources. The fact that we hold much of the world's remaining reserve of pulpwood is a fact which should aid in statesmanlike conservation of that resource. The proposed embargo does not go far enough. It should next take in pulp, so that all paper should be made in Canada, and an export duty imposed on paper with which to pay for forest protection and re-forestation.

It is not antagonism between conflicting "Big Business" of two countries which has brought this situation; it is a condition in which ordinary business foresight, fair play and development of our own country meet in an extraordinary combination. All that is required is that the Canadian people shall enter, intelligently into what is meant by the use and exploitation of their natural resources, and once that is accomplished we shall have justice to Canada as the first claim on our thoughts before we consider generosity to other countries.—Financial Post.

FOUR MADE POSSIBLE AT 200 IN DAILY GRAPHIC MATCH. BISLEY, July 16.—(By Canadian Press Cable)—The Canadians took high positions among the competitors for the Daily Graphic Cup when four of them were included among over twenty marksmen who made possibilities at the 200 yard range. These four are: Lieut. Colonel W. C. Morris, Toronto; Inspector T. V. Sandys-Manuch, Regina, Sask.; Private H. J. White, Toronto, and Major C. R. Crowe, Guelph, Ont.

Four Canadians scored 34 out of a possible 35 in the Daily Graphic match. Major F. Bacon, Halifax; Sergeant-Major W. A. Hewitt, Toronto; Sergeant N. J. McLeod, Toronto and Sergeant W. Davidson, Winnipeg.

Leviathan's Wet Episode Rankles.

PROHIBITIONISTS PREPARING TO MAKE ISSUE OF PUBLIC DRINKING. WASHINGTON, July 12.—(United Press)—Public drinking aboard the steamer Leviathan on her maiden trip stirred up a storm which threatens to enrage the Shipping Board. Irate drys were preparing to make an issue of Chairman Farley's opposition to a regulation stopping the consumption of liquor in public.

Farley contends that American liners are operated dry. He declares the Board is powerless to prevent passengers from drinking private liquor stocks aboard ship, in their staterooms or in the public dining rooms, so long as they do not interfere with the safety of the vessel.

On the other hand, prohibition and Department of Justice officials and Wayne, B. Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon League, maintain the Board has full authority to issue a regulation to stop drinking on board ship at least in public.

THE HERO.

The cold wet water, brown with mud, swept over the plain, a raging flood; like ocean waves the billows reared, once happy homes had disappeared, a mad wreckage drifted down the tide, in Oklahoma's countryside. It was a time to seek the heights, and there assembled many wights, who shivered in the rainy blast, and talked of records of the past. It was a time to fear the worst, and hold the motto, "Safety First." But Old Jess Willard, bent and bowed by age that wrapped him like a shroud, climbed up no trees or mountains high to keep his feet and whiskers dry. Where there were people in distress, there wrought and toiled the noble Jess. Through water gray and grim and damp he bore the sufferers to camp; his mighty form went sloshing through the deep ravine, the surging slough, and eyes despairing saw him grope, and weary souls were filled with hope. He saved that day, down lives; he rescued countless suns and wives, and pulled scared farmers out of trees, amid those wild fresh-water seas. Oh, Jess, may-wit thy man or that, or by the foe be jumbled flat, but he has won himself a crown no pugilist can batter down. It comes to come the birds will sing the greatest hero of the ring.

WHAT WE ALL MUST KNOW.

For a practically everyone, to save his self-respect, must feel that he has forgotten in some way.

Her Life Preserver.

When you pulled the cork out of the water, when didn't turn my head and myself to a tree and cut him down and just hung himself only real red blooded sign of ability and worth is the capacity to win financial recognition.

A Chance to Feel Superior. If one belongs to the middle class and knows one will never belong to any other, one gets a lot of satisfaction out of criticising and condemning the upper classes.

You can make a distinction out of almost anything in your own mind if you dwell on it hard enough.

Try This Key. Sometimes I hate that idea, and then again I see it is a saving possibility in a world where few of us can have just what we want.

In the same way this ability to save oneself from that dreadful sea of mediocrity, by exaggerating some minor distinction, is certainly a life saver.

Practically everyone, to save his self-respect, must feel that he has distinction in some direction.

Try that as a key and see if it does not help you to understand and feel sympathy where you may have been only puzzled or disdainful before.

Ten French Soldiers Slain by German Bomb.

The penalties imposed because of the Duisburg bomb explosion, which killed ten Belgian soldiers and injured 8 other persons, were announced at French headquarters; they affect all the Ruhr and Rhineland and include the closing of the frontier as ordered by the Rhineland commission.

The time bomb exploded in a passenger car of a train carrying Belgian soldiers on leave back to Belgium from the Ruhr.

The train which was carrying 800 men on leave, had just left Duisburg shortly before two o'clock. The bomb exploded as the train was crossing the Rhine. It completely demolished the car, killing or badly wounding every man in it, and mortally injuring the sentinel who was guarding the bridge.

The wounded are being cared for in hospitals in the vicinity of Duisburg. Several of the wounded are not expected to live.

Since passive resistance was inaugurated by the Germans and the seizure of all railroads by the French the interurban street car lines have been jammed day and night with passengers and freight.

Further penalties connected with the Duisburg affair may be enacted within a few days, it is said in military circles, as an outcome of General Degoutte's consultation with M. Tirard, president of the Rhineland Commission, at Coblenz.

German civilians to the number of 223 have been arrested at Duisburg by the Belgian authorities, most of them for violation of new orders, and a state of siege was declared after the bomb explosion.

The cities and towns surrounding Duisburg, including Muelheim and Hamburg, have been notified by the Belgians of the state of siege, and civilians are warned against entering Duisburg after dark, when all traffic is prohibited and everything is closed tight.

It is announced that all villages and the Reich government will have to pay for damages done to railroads and other property in case of future attempts, and that the Duisburg community and the Reich are held responsible for indemnities which will be exacted in behalf of the families of the Belgian victims of the bomb outrage.

A German was killed at Herten, near Recklinghausen, for disregarding the curfew order.

It was announced by the French that Karl Radok, official Bolshevik publicity agent, has arrived in the Ruhr from Moscow to confer with Communists at Bochum and other Soviet centres.

French troops have seized four coal mines of the Frederick the Great group, belonging to Hugo Stianes.

Montreal Police Have Captured

THE MAN WHO THREATENED TO ASSASSINATE MAYOR OF THAT CITY.

MONTREAL, July 16.—According to the Montreal Star, the confessed author of threatening letters to Mayor Martin in which there were statements that the Mayor would be assassinated and that all public buildings in Montreal would be burned to the ground, is in the hands of the police.

The man declared himself to be the "representative of the Canadian Chief of the Ku Klux Klan," and called upon Mayor Martin at the City Hall office last Saturday demanding payment of sums ranging from $5,000 to $10,000 to compensate him for not carrying out his threats immediately.

The man is now being held at detective headquarters and is believed to be mentally unbalanced. It is stated he lost money in the building slump following the outbreak of the war. He denied any knowledge of the large church fires that have caused heavy loss in this Province during the past few years.

Ruhr and Reparations.

Solution of the reparations problem and the French occupation of the Ruhr are intertwined to such an extent that they cannot well be separated, and there is an increasing wave of British opinion that the prospect of European recovery becomes more and more gloomy under the present impasse.

How many men contrive special cheque-book signatures full of flourishes in the simple hope that forgers will be baffled?

The fact that the simplest signatures are hardest to forge sounds paradoxical, though it is true. A plain, straightforward signature, without flourishes, must be copied with considerable skill in order to avoid detection by keen eyes, while the one that is scarcely decipherable, or which is characterized by unnecessary flourishes, presents a comparatively easy task.

The forger, knowing that the customer's signature is identified more by the characteristic flourishes than by the actual name, concentrates his attention on producing a perfect copy of them; all signatures vary a little, and a slight deviation from the ordinary will not in this case warrant an investigation.

The forger usually lets himself down by a careless slip which seems unimportant when everything else is perfect; a bank cashier "spotted" a forgery recently, not by the signature, but because he knew the customer invariably put the date before the name of the month, whereas in the cheque before him these were reversed.

A most pernicious habit, common to many business men, is that of drawing cheques on blank paper when their cheque-books are not to hand. While the banks accept cheques drawn in this fashion, they discourage the practice, which opens the way to the forger who studies his victim's methods.

No cheque should be drawn otherwise than on the special cheque forms provided for that purpose; no blank cheques should be given to strangers; cheque-books when not in use should be kept under lock and key; words and figures should be written carefully and close together, and all cheques should be crossed.

British Base at Singapore

THE PROPOSED FACILITIES NOT MADE KNOWN TO OTHER NATIONS.

LONDON, July 18.—The proposed extra facilities at the British naval base in Singapore were not made known to the other nations represented at the Washington armaments conference, and there was no reason why they should have been, questions were told in the House of Commons to-day by Right Hon. L. S. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty.

It was clearly understood by all the delegates at Washington, he said, that Great Britain was retaining full freedom of action as regards Singapore, which had always been a naval and military station.

There was no discussion at Ottawa of the particular arrangements contemplated by Great Britain or any other power at naval bases or stations outside the zone explicitly defined in the agreement. The proposals for the base were first approved in June, 1921.

It leads to the cross roads of The Straight and Narrow and Easy Street; and there every woman must choose her way. A shining story of true love, outlined in new gold against the vermillion velvet background of Parisian and New York night life.

How do You Sign Cheques?

Careless Slips That Betray the Forger.

How many men contrive special cheque-book signatures full of flourishes in the simple hope that forgers will be baffled?

The fact that the simplest signatures are hardest to forge sounds paradoxical, though it is true. A plain, straightforward signature, without flourishes, must be copied with considerable skill in order to avoid detection by keen eyes, while the one that is scarcely decipherable, or which is characterized by unnecessary flourishes, presents a comparatively easy task.

The forger, knowing that the customer's signature is identified more by the characteristic flourishes than by the actual name, concentrates his attention on producing a perfect copy of them; all signatures vary a little, and a slight deviation from the ordinary will not in this case warrant an investigation.

The forger usually lets himself down by a careless slip which seems unimportant when everything else is perfect; a bank cashier "spotted" a forgery recently, not by the signature, but because he knew the customer invariably put the date before the name of the month, whereas in the cheque before him these were reversed.

A most pernicious habit, common to many business men, is that of drawing cheques on blank paper when their cheque-books are not to hand. While the banks accept cheques drawn in this fashion, they discourage the practice, which opens the way to the forger who studies his victim's methods.

No cheque should be drawn otherwise than on the special cheque forms provided for that purpose; no blank cheques should be given to strangers; cheque-books when not in use should be kept under lock and key; words and figures should be written carefully and close together, and all cheques should be crossed.

British Base at Singapore

THE PROPOSED FACILITIES NOT MADE KNOWN TO OTHER NATIONS.

LONDON, July 18.—The proposed extra facilities at the British naval base in Singapore were not made known to the other nations represented at the Washington armaments conference, and there was no reason why they should have been, questions were told in the House of Commons to-day by Right Hon. L. S. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty.

It was clearly understood by all the delegates at Washington, he said, that Great Britain was retaining full freedom of action as regards Singapore, which had always been a naval and military station.

There was no discussion at Ottawa of the particular arrangements contemplated by Great Britain or any other power at naval bases or stations outside the zone explicitly defined in the agreement. The proposals for the base were first approved in June, 1921.

TEARS. A crowd of cares and joys, a round of peace and noise, to do and gather to play, to laugh and blow away, to take laughter, grief and rain, to take the things which make a chain, to take another here, to take the making of a year.

When the summer comes, each must die, each shall smile and each shall sigh, when winter brings the snow, when sorrow brings the woe, when winter passes on, when summer comes again, when we learn throughout the year, when natural things are tears.

When the fashioned every eye, when the glistening tear supply, when some day grief and weep, when this be your hour for greet, when the voice of unbelief, when about you, great or low, when or shall share in your woe.

When you suffer pain, when alone for you to rain, when brought you griefs to bear, when is now your time of care, when the smiling face you see, when tomorrow troubled be, when the heart you fancy glad, when yesterday was sad.

Preliminary Notice.—The Annual Garden Party will be held Bay Bulls on Sunday, August 19th. Preparations are now being made to ensure visitors an enjoyable outing. Particulars—July 17, 21, 23, 24, 25.

Geddes on Prohibition in United States.

LONDON, July 19.—The Government to-day published an official paper embodying a memorandum by Sir Auckland Geddes, on the effects of prohibition in the United States, with reference to the claims made in the United States of economic benefits, increased wages, heavier savings bank deposits, etc. The memorandum says: "So many other factors have contributed to restore economic conditions since the war that it is almost impossible to form any estimate of the extent to which prohibition has contributed to this recovery or otherwise."

The cities and towns surrounding Duisburg, including Muelheim and Hamburg, have been notified by the Belgians of the state of siege, and civilians are warned against entering Duisburg after dark, when all traffic is prohibited and everything is closed tight.

It is announced that all villages and the Reich government will have to pay for damages done to railroads and other property in case of future attempts, and that the Duisburg community and the Reich are held responsible for indemnities which will be exacted in behalf of the families of the Belgian victims of the bomb outrage.

A German was killed at Herten, near Recklinghausen, for disregarding the curfew order.

It was announced by the French that Karl Radok, official Bolshevik publicity agent, has arrived in the Ruhr from Moscow to confer with Communists at Bochum and other Soviet centres.

French troops have seized four coal mines of the Frederick the Great group, belonging to Hugo Stianes.

The "Stars" Garden Party.

LONDON, July 17.—(By Mail)—The Horse Show last week divided interest with the Theatrical Garden Party, held in the grounds of old Chelsea Hospital. Founded by Nell Gwynn, ("Nell of Old Drury") it is a kindly and a peaceful home for the veterans of our wars. Fine old soldiers, still erect in their scarlet coats, enjoyed all the fun of the fair; eager as any of the crowd to catch a glimpse of the pretty women who ran the stalls for the benefit of the Actors' Orphanage in Buckinghamshire. There were "stars" at every turn. Sir Gerald du Maurier and Viola Tree; Nelson Keys, his formidable dancing turns assisted by Carpenter, Pauline Lord and Sybil Thorndike. One of the most interesting stalls, run by the Critic's Circle, sold books ancient and modern. Stacey Ammoner, novelist, auctioned a wonderful collection of programmes including a bill of forty years ago, which showed the names of Richard Mansfield, E. H. Sothern, and Lottie Vene. It was a gorgeous afternoon, the smooth green lawns, the glorious oaks, the charming dresses and pretty women made a picture of Old London in her most attractive mood.

At the close of a wedding breakfast a guest noted for his blunders rose to his feet, causing keen anxiety to all who knew him.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "I drink to the health of the bridegroom! May he see many days like this!"
