FROM present appearances Sarnia's pro- | making. spects of securing a normal school are bright. There are 34 teachers in training at the Model School this season—a number that has never been greater, and was ber that has never been greater, and was equaled on one previous occasion—the session of 1894. The Forest Model School has 35 in attendance, also the largest in its history. The contribution of teachers from Lambton county alone, without the assistance of outside counties, would go far towards filling a normal school.—Observer.

THERE is a matter of three thousand dollars in dispute between the Lloyd-Thompsom people and the corporation. This amount was retained by the town out of the loan of $15,000.00. The Co. claim that the mortgage given to the town should only cover the building, ground, and the plant in use at the Toronto factory when the by-law was passed. The corporation contends that it covers all machinery installed in the factory. Negotiations are under way for an adjustment of the matter.

USUALLY the rubber tire which seems destined to spread a cushion over the whole earth is considered an unmixed blessing, but, like other benefits, it carries with it new dangers. In chronicling a collision between a bicyclist and a buggy in the night recently, The Grand Valley Star says,—"In the good old time before noise-less rubber tired buggies came into nse, an approaching rig was generally heralded by a rattling noise, and collisions were not so liable. Nowadays drivers have to keep ears and eyes alert lest in turning a dark or sharp corner an approaching rig crashes into you."

THE Christian Register tells of an old Presbyterian minister who was visiting Dublin, and who, though rather short-sighted, liked to prowl about the city by himself. On returning home one evening his host found him-reading the Bible, and the minister exclaimed: "I can't make it out at all. I have read Genesis xxx twice over and I am none the wiser." He explained that a large portion of the shops in Dublin had "Genesis xxx" inscribed on them. "Genesis xxx" exclaimed his host, in astonishment. "Whatever do you mean?" "Oh, it's all over the place on the walls and even on the barrels," said the minister. Then his host laughingly said: "Why, you mean Guinness"."

MERCHANTS are getting pernicketty these days about the silver coins that are tendered them, and as a result the citizen has either to scrutinize carefully the change that he receives or take chances on having a smoothed or disfigured coin rejected. The timest hole or disfigure-ment will make a coin valueless to the man or merchant who wants to be particular. TYPHOID PREVENTABLE.

Most Approved Methods of Combat ing the Scourage.

The following are some of the most effective methods of preventing the spread of typhoid. The extracts have been made from literature issued by the Health Branch of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture and by the health committee of the city of Winni-

Typhoid fever is caused, in the vast majority of cases by water, milk, of food becoming poisoned, and sometimes by the germs of a previous case of this Keep your house well ventilated, the premises clean, and allow no decaying vegetable or animal matter a-Prevent the entrance of flies and other insects by using screen doors and screen windows See that all food is properly cooked and all milk and water used by the household is thoroughly boiled. Water and milk are the two arti cles most particularly infected with typhoid. Heat kills the typhoid poison, therefore, if your drinking water is not from a source beyond suspicion, boil it for 25 or 30 minutes-Protect your milk from contamina tion by dust or flies, or pasteurize it, that is, heat to 150 Fahr. or 70 Centi-grade. Keep it at this temperature 15 minutes, and then cool rapidly. Dirty hands may also carry typhoid Keep it at this temperature infection, therefore, wash your hands carefully, before allowing them to come in contact with food stuffs of any kind. Food becomes infected by flies crawling over it or by dust from the street.

Wash thoroughly all vegetables that are intended to be eaten raw, wash in water of known purity, or water which has been boiled and cooled.

Keep flies out of the house as much as possible by screening all doors and windows and by the use of fly papers. Cover all food supplies so that flies and dust may not have access to them.

If you have a case of typhoid in your house, and the patient cannot be isolated from the rest of the family, and have a nurse who does nothing else but attend to his wants, it is desirable that he be removed at once to the hospital. Under no circumstances should an individual having to do with the patient, come in contact with the general food supply of the house.

Cleanliness is one of the greatest

Dr. Hamilton's Pills stimulate the kidneys, exramitton's Fills stimulate the kindeys, re-pel fermenting matter from the bowels, re-store the liver and stimulate all excretory and secretory organs. Brow Beating Lawyers

Mr. William Stark, Deputy Chief of Police, denounces with excellent vigor the impudence and brutality of a certain class of lawyers who outrage their privileges in order to insult and bully witnesses. It was necessary that this word should be said, and it is satisfactory that it has been said with such force and directness. It is amazing that judges should permit the abuse which many timid and innocent witnesses receive at the hands of this class of lawyers in the courts, and just as amazing that the legal profession itself does not brand such conduct as unprofessional and inhuman. A lawyer's certificate to pratice in the courts gives him no right to be coarse and insolent, and we should hope that Mr. Stark's rtterances and the heartsearching in Blench and Bar to which it should give rise will not tail to ef fect a remedy.

Steel Knife In The Flesh.

That's the sensation experienced by Robert Price of Hecton, Ont. He knew it was sciatia and of course used "Nerviline." As usual it cured and he says: No liniment can excel Polson's Nerviline. Severe pains made my side lame. It was like a steel knife running through my flesb. I rubbed on lots of Nerviline and was completely cured." A regular snap for Nerviline to ease Sciatia and rheumatism. It sinks into the core of the pain, cures it in short order. Large 25c bottles at all dealers.

Local Constabulary.

At the meeting of chief constables in Toronto the county constabulary system received some needed attention. It is most antiquated, and needs reforming very badly. When a crime is committed there is no special inducement for the county constable to go far out of his way in chase of the culprit. The time he gives in making an arrest is for the most part at the risk of losing it even if, successful. The ordinary fees do not properly compensate the man for Local magistrates are loath to take it upon themselves to authorize pursuit where expense is involved, from the difficulty of getting the accounts acknowledged and settled by the au-thorities having this branch of the matter in charge. The bill is looked frontways, sideways, behind and before, in the spirit of cheese-paring, always with a suspicion of "padding," and is eventually whittled down, no matter how just it may be. The county constable is not inspired to extra zeal when, if he hires a buggy to chase a criminal, and not succeed ing, he has to pay for it himself. These matters have long been a trouble to village and township magistrates, and furnish a reason why the title of "J. P.' is so often accepted as merely honorary, not calling for judi-cial action or decisive interference even in case of emergency.

The suggestion to organize a local mounted constabulary under provincial direction has much to commend it .-Free Press.

An Editor's Solilogny.

A North Dakota editor unburdens him-self thusly: "The politician is my shep-herd, I shall not want for anything during the campaign. He leadeth me into the saloon for my vote's sake. He filleth my pocket with good cigars and my beer glass runneth over. He enquireth concerning my family, even unto the fourth generation. Big Engines for Hauling Freight.

The first of the large consolidated class of engines for hauling freight, arrived here the other day, and was the object of much in-terest, to railroad men. They are called the Richmond Compound consolidation engines with four pairs of 63 in. drivers, and, over all, are three feet longer than the large 900 class. The cylinders are 22 1.2 and 35 while the engines and tender, weigh over 350,000 lbs., which is nearly 50,000 heavier than the ordinary class, and are calculated to haul about 400 tons more.

The organs are of an article different

The engines are of an entirely different type from the passenger class, and even the casual observer, uot endowed with the knowledge of the expert railroader, readily notes the vast difference. They are being used exclusively for hauling freight, and in the words of an old engineer, "they can deliver the goods, and lots of it."

RANZ PETER SCHUBERT, born at Vienna 1797, died 1828, was the greatest song composer of the 19th century. From beginning to end, his short life, though one of incessant activity, was filled with disappointment. He began his musical career in his 11th year as choir-boy in the Imperial Chapel. He began to compose at 13, and from his 18th year wrote in almost every department of music. But his name is celebrated chiefly in the song form, where his genius has no rival: Although he received no instruction in composition, he wrote hundreds of songs of indescribable beauty.

It is hard to conceive how the fresh, bright melodies and sweet, natural harmonies of his songs could have come from one who continually suffered from grinding poverty and comparative neglect. Yet they flow from his heart spontaneously—and perfect in the moment of writing. He wrote with such fecundity and ease and seemingly so carelessly, that he often did not recognize his own compositions on hearing them. His sparkling and inimitable "Hark, Hark, the Lark" was written in a beer-garden on the back of a bill-of-fare. And his tenderly beautiful "Serenade" (D min.) has the rare merit of being exceedingly popular and at the same time a delightful number on any his tenderly beautiful Section (blank), has the fact that better exceedingly popular and at the same time a delightful number on any high-art programme. But to get the full sensuous effect of his melodies and harmonies they must be rendered from an instrument like

The London County Council has issued a volume of statistics which conveys a vivid idea of the vastness of the world's metropolis.

The "county" of London contains an area of 75,442 acres or about 120 square miles. It has a population of 4,500,000; that the Greater London, however, is, 7, 113,560, which is 1,742, 245, or over 30 per cent more than there were in the whole of Canada at the last decennial census. The marriage rate for London is stated at 17 per 1,000, the birth rate is stated at, 29.9 and the deathrate 16.9. Infant mortality is responsible for a large proportion of the deaths, 18,600, out of the total 74,990, during the twelve months covered by the statistics just

The figures of London's traffic are large. The number of passengers officially recorded as having been carried aggregating 1,021,355,844. Tramways bear off the palm in numbers, nearly 436,000 being carried by these conveyances. Almost 290,000,000 were passengers by the old-fashioned and slow omnibus service, but these only cover two of the principal companies. The number of journeys per head of the population averages more than 200.

London's postal statistics are as impressive as those of every other de-partment of this activity. Over 727, 000,000 letters, 166,000,000 postcards, and 163,000,000 bookpackets were mailed. The number of newspapers carried, as might be expected when the less favorable facilities ofiered by the British postal authorities are considered, is not proportionately as great as in Canada or the United States, yet almost 36,000,000 were posted. About 6 500,000 letters were registered, and 28,500,000 telegrams sent. The postal employes in London number 46,-

The shipping statistics of London show that as a seaport it is still, despite the competition of Liverpool, Glasgow, Plymouth and Southampton, ranks as among the most important in the world. The vessels entering number-ed 27,000, and the number that cleared a few more. The tonnage each way was over 18,000,000 The trade returns for the city show; Exports, about 300,000,000, and imports about :90,000,000.

Among other curios facts concerning London contained in the county councils statistics might be mentioned that the prison population of the city is 54 464. In London there are 2,158 miles of streets, and their yearly cost of maintenance is over $10,000,000. The cost of the London police is about $8,000,000, while that of the whole of England and Wales is only $22,000,-000. The council spends $8,000,000 a year in maintaining its systems of parks and open spaces, the area of which is 2,945 acres. In London there are 6,584 saloons, and the number of apprehensions for drunkenness last year was 60,899. The British museum is the most frequented public building, the number of visitors in the year covered by the report being very few short of a million.

G. T. R Meets Men.

Toronto. Sept. 10.—An important meeting is being held here between the officials of the Grand Trunk and representatives of the men of the entire G. T. R. system from Montreal to Port Huron Locked in Tool-Box.

London. Sept. 10.—William Mason, employed as watchman on the King street paving work, had an unenviable experience Saturday. Mason got into the company's tool-box, intending to doze only a short time, but fell into a sound sleep, and a policeman passing by, seeing the box open, shut down the lid, which fastened with a snap lock. Mason awoke, but could not get out, and it was four o'clock in the morning before his feeble cries for help were heard by two men, who broke open the box. Mason was much exhausted when released.

The Times was told this morning that The Times was told this morning that according to plans the electric power house for the St. Clair Tunnel Co, was to have been built over the tunnel shaft on Military street. General Manager Hays of the Grand Trunk railway, vetoed this proposition and ordered the building erected as far north from the tunnel shaft as possible. He says in a year or two it will be necessory for the railway company to construct another tunnel under St. Clair river on the south side of the present one. The approaches were built with this in view, and with the introduction of electricity the Grand Trunk expects that a single tunnel will not accommodate the traffic.—Port will not accommodate the traffic.-Port Huron Times.

Cooler Weather Promised.

For those who have been finding fault with the intense heat of the past few days there is good news in store to-day, for, as far as can be foretold, the temperature is not likely to be again abnormally high this year. This is the view of the Toronto Observatory experts.

"Do you think we are at last through with the extreme heat for the rest of the year?" one of them was asked last night.

year?" one of them was asked last night.

"Oh, yes; I certainly think so," was the comforting reply.

Yesterday the temperature only reached 84, whilst there were no extreme temperatures in any part of Canada. The weather was fine in most districts, exent in Manitoha, where there have been cept in Manitoba, where there have been a few showers. The prospects for to-day are fair and warm, with local thunder-showers, especially at night.

TWELVE DEAD AND 40 INJURED

Watford Excursionists Not On The Ill-Fated Train.

The report of a railway wreck of one of the Harvester's excursion trains near Sudbury early on Wednesday morning caused great anxiety in Watford, over 20 excursionists having left here Tuesday morning for the west. The following telegram received on Wednesday aftermoon assured the safety of the Watford party, who were following on the next Sudbury, Sept. 13.—The second section of No. 2, the C. P. P. limited. crashed into the third section of No. 1, a passenger harvesters' excursion train this morning, a little after seven o'clock, and twelve persons instantly killed and forty injured.

The dead were all in the first colonist car, the impact telescoping a baggage car into the sleeper. into the sleeper.

The inmates were caught like fats in a trap and had no chance of escape or warning of their danger.

Four doctors from Sudbury were soon on the scene of the wreck and they did all in their power to alleviate the suffering of the injured. The injured were removed to the Sudbury hospital as soon as they could be transferred. as they could be transferred.

as they could be transferred.

The harvester's special was fifteen cars long, and had nearly nine hundred persons aboard. Had both trains been trasons aboard. Had both trains been traveiling at their usual speed, the death rate would have been something terrible.

Behind the engine was the refrigerater car, followed by an express car, and a car, followed by an express car, and a baggage car. It was the latter that telescoped the sleeper.

The cause of the accident is a mystery. The trains had orders to cross at Azilda. The special was to take the siding and was slowing up about 75 yards from the switch when the Limited came crashing into them.

Engineer Thurlow, of the Limited, says that the air brakes of his train refused to work, and that he could not control the train.

He intimated that they must have been tampered with. The Limited appears to be entirely in the fault.

As far as can be learned nearly all the killed come from Ontario, and many from Western Ontario. New Hamburg seems to have suffered the worst, no less than five from that place being numbered among the dead.

Woodslee lost two men and Woodslee lost two men, and several other places have lost a citizen.

The list is far from complete, and it will be some time before it will be absolutely correct.

Many of the forty injured will die or their injuries.

"You are impolite," she scolded. "I am sure you might know that I would not do anything wrong. If I want to cell kisses for a dollar apiece, I don't see why you should object. You have not established a monopoly-yet."

"I don't know that I am particularly anxious to," he said coldly, "What first attracted me to you was the fact that in spite of your popularity not a breath of scandal had ever touched you. Now you purpose selling your caresses at a dollar each for the St. Mark's fund, and you are surprised that I should

"I guess it might as well be 'or,' " she laughed. "When you assume such a tragic pose it shows that you are in need of a lesson."

She held out the ring, and without a word he took it and left the room. Before he had descended the steps

Preston was minded to go back and apologize, but he felt sure that the breaking of the engagement would be a sharper lesson than any argument. Somehow he did not fare well when he argued with Kitty. She never lost-her temper, and this always put him at a disadvantage.

The announcement that Katherine Ellicott was to sell her kisses at the St. Mark's fair had its intended effect. Kitty was the undisputed belle of her circle, and more than one unfortunate swain wondered why she did not demand at least $5. There were many who thought it would be well worth more than that to kiss Kitty. The fact that it was rumored that Thurman Preston had broken his engagement because Kitty had refused to withdraw her offer added to the interest, and long before the fair was opened Kitty's kisses were the talk of the town.

Thurman had not meant to attend, but somehow he could not stay away. For one thing there was always the hope that Kitty might repent even at the eleventh hour, but Preston knew Kitty too well to believe that she would give up now.

He was one of the first to put in an appearance, and as he entered almost first glance fell upon a curtained recess over the entrance to which was a sign reading:

KISS, BUT DON'T TELL, It was bad enough to think of Kitty kissing all who were willing to pay a dollar, but that curtained room was the last straw. He stationed himself beside the booth and presently Kitty "You don't mean to say that you are going to be my first customer?" she casped. "That would spoil it all. I shan't let you in yet."

"I have no desire to patronize this feature," he said jelly. "My aid shall be given in a more seemly manner."
"Mrs. McEwan has charge of the oth where bachelor luxuries are set

There are some stunning sofa cushions and smoking jackets. Do you know her, or shall I introduce you?"
"I have sent in a check," he said. "If I annoy you here I shall be glad to fake my departure." He moved on, but it was hard to keep away from the spot, and pres ently he found himself again in the vicinity of the booth.

In the meantime a crowd had gathered, and each seemed to be waiting sheepishly for some one to, break the ice. It was several minutes before Tom Meeker paid his dollar and passed through the curtains to an accompaniment of advice from those less bold. There was a strained silence for a moment, then a man's laugh, and a second later Meeker appeared.

"Did you get it, Tom?" demanded

"I can exove it to you." he laughed. "only I promised not to tell. Better go in and see for yourself."

The inquirer paid up his dollar and went in, and presently they were crowding about the booth. Preston moved away. He could not stand there and see the men crowding up to pay for the privilege of kissing the girl he loved, and he realized for the first time that he still did love Kitty and that she was breaking his heart,

Several times he sought to leave, but each time something held him back. and he made his dismal rounds of the hall, now making a purchase at some stall, now rousing himself with a start to realize that he had drifted back to the vicinity of the booth.

He knew that he was the subject of almost as much comment as was Kitty herself, and he resented the remarks he knew were being made, but he could not leave, nor could he gain the courage to approach the booth.

It was not until well toward the close of the evening that Tom Meeker ran across him. "Had your kiss yet?" he demanded. "Say, it's great, isn't

"I have no desire to purchase ca resses," said Preston stiffly. Meeker looked up in surprise.

"You can't afford to miss this," he aid. "I'll stand treat. Come on." Preston resisted, but Meeker was a giant in strength and fairly dragged him across the hall to the booth. The crowd had dropped away, for most of the visitors had paid their dollar, but there were still a number about as Meeker came up with his victim. "Thur Preston's going to get his," he announced cheerfully. "He says he's opposed to kissing, but I'm going to stand treat." He threw a dollar the table and pushed Preston through the curtains.

Kitty greeted him with a smile. "Come for your kiss?" she asked brisk-"I thought you couldn't stay

"I had no desire to come," he said severely. "That young fool Meeker in-sisted upon making an ass of himself by forcing my presence."
"Now, that's too bad that you should be compelled to let another man pay for your kiss," she laughed. "I had hoped that I would get a dollar from you.'

Preston regarded her curiously. She had caught up a tiny jar and was rubbing some red paste upon her lips. "How will you have yours," she demanded, "full or cornerwise?" "I tell you I don't want any," he in-

"You've got to have one," she laughed. "Since you have no choice I'll give you a full face."

She caught up a card and pressed it to her lips, leaving an indistinct red-dish imprint. "You must not tell any one the joke," she commanded. "Thereare still some I have not sold yet. It's the latest English fad, you know, but it's not half so had as it sounds."

"Why did you let me make such a fool of myself?" he cried. "You needed a lesson," explained Kitty. "I think it was good for you to worry a little. Now, if you'll give me a ring I'll give you a real kiss." He handed her the ring and she offered her lips. He started back. "You'll have to take that red stuff off," he suggested.

Kitty smiled up at him. "Don't you want to turn the laugh on Tom Meek-er?" she suggested. "It will serve to "Put it on thick," he urged.

No Pleasure Trips For Them. An arhusing scene was witnessed one day last summer in a country town.

An old lady, with her coachman, drove up in a large brake and stopped opposite a huge red brick building. Her ring was answered by an official in uniform,

"I am come," she began, "to take the inmates for a picnic in the green fields and flowery meadows. It's a beautiful day, and it will do them a world of good, cooped up as they are in this building day after day."

The official gasped for breath. Never in all his long experience had he heard such a cool request. He simply gazed at her in astonishment. "They can't come, madam," was all he could utter. "Yes, they can, Let them all comeevery one of them.'

"We never let them out," he added in a hoarse whisper. "Oh, yes, you do! I met two of the dear old men just now in their long smock frocks."

He Thought Quickly The late speaker of the national house of representatives, David B. Henderson, spent most of his life on the battlefield and in congress, but a portion of it was devoted to a willingness to practice law. His early professional experiences were not materially different from those of most young yers. Finally he was retained in an estate case which involved large inter ests. The future speaker was mighty hard up, and he was seriously thinking of asking the heirs to pay his bill, which he had never rendered. He was meditating whether to charge them $200 or $300 when one of the heirs, representing them all, stepped briskly into his office and, taking out a roll of five hundred dollar bills, said, "Mr. Henderson, I want to pay your bill," and commenced laying down these five hundred dollar bills until he had $2,500 before the astonished young lawyer. Looking up at Mr. Henderson the heir said, "Is that enough?" And the lawyer, with that self possession which subsequently made him famous, calm-ly said, "Peel off another one and we

TIPS AND TIPPING.

The Customary Exactions on Board

Do not take fright at what you may ear about excessive tips on steamers and in Europe. They are numerous, but need not be large. To scatter your money wildly in tips will mark you as a novice. All the servants will quickly spot you, pass the word around and fleece you. Tips vary, of course, in accordance with the grade of steamers, hotels and other accommodations. If you travel in a specially equipped floating palace you must expect to pay at least $25 for steamer tips. On regular first class steamers, however, the following are customary and will be ample: Stateroom steward, $2.50; state-room stewardess, $2.50; dining room steward, $2.50. These are obligatory. On the cheaper first class steamers they may be reduced to $1 each and be entirely dignified. It all depends on the boat. By talking with other passengers you can readily learn the customary scale for your steamer. If you use the bathroom regularly, pay the bathroom steward $1; if less frequently this might be cut to 25 cents a bath. If you read books from the library, the steward a tip varying from $1 down to 25 cents, according to grade of steamer and frequency of his service to you.

The deck steward's gratuity is a variable quantity; he has opportunity for getting tips from so many people that he fares better than inside steryards, who are restricted to a certain number: hence do not be uneasy about bim. Give him what you think he has earned in waiting on you, according to relative service, with the other stew ards. A dollar is the maximum expected on ordinary boats. Thus your total tips need not exceed $10 a voyage and may not be more than $5. Be reasonable in what you require of stewards, and if you should ask special service of them cutside the line of their regular duties, pay them for it.-Myra Emmons in Good Housekeeping.

All Solid Substance May Vanish In a Moment of Time.

The late Professor S. P. Langley, secretary of the Smithsonian institution speaking of earthquakes, said: "The consideration of the unfamiliar powers certainly latent in nature, such as belong to a little tremor of the planet's surface or such as was shown in that scene I have described," referring to phenomena he had witnessed when the comparatively insignificant effect of a few tons of dynamite was to make solid buildings unrealities, "may help us to understand that the words of the great poet are but the possible expression of a physical fact; that 'the cloud capped towers, the gorgeous pal aces, the solemn temples, and we with them, may indeed some day inconceiv vanish as the airy nothing at the touch of Prospero's wand, and without the warning to us of a single instant that the security of our ordinary lives

"We concede this, however, in the present case only as an abstract possibility for the advance of astronomical knowledge is much more likely to show that the kernel of the comet is but the bigness of some large meteorite against which our air is an efficient shield, and the chance of evil is most remoteany case only such as may come in any hour of our lives from any quarter, not alone from the earthquake, but from the pestilence that walketh darkness from the infinitely little be-low and within & as well as from the infinite powers of the universe without. "Something common to man and the brute speaks at such times, if never before or again; something which is not altogether physical apprehension, but more like the moral dismay when the shock of an earthquake is felt for the first time, and we know that startling doubt superior to reason whether the valid frame of earth is real, and not baseless as the fabric of a vision."

The Oldest House In Louisians. The oldest building in Louisiana, the ancient archbishopric on Chartres street, New Orleans, boasts of one of the handsomest courtyards. The building was erected in 1727 and remains exactly as it was first erected. itors will remark the ancient staircase of cypress, worn by the passing of generations. In the courtyard is seen one of the oldest and best preserved specimens of the "Spanish dagger." It dates back, so those who claim to know aver, to the building of the palace, and indeed its height and dignity indicate anything but youth.-Craftsman.

Impertinent.

Originally the word "impertinent" signified merely "not belonging to." When Wycliffe said that there were many men in this world who were "impertinent to earthly lords" he did not mean that they were "cheeky," but merely that they had no masters. Then, as used by Shakespeare, "impertinent" came to mean "irrelevant." Just 200 years ago it was defined as signifying "absurd, silly, idle."

Recalling a Mailed Letter. Many times people would like to re-call a letter after it has been mailed. This can be done even if the letter has reached the postoffice of its destination. At every postoffice there are what are called "withdrawal blanks." On application they will be furnished, and when a deposit is made to cover the expense the postmaster will telegraph to the postmaster at the letter's destination asking that it be promptly returned. The applicant first signs this agreement: "It is hereby agreed that, if the letter is returned to me, I will protect you from any and all claims made against you for such return and will fully indemnify you for any loss you may sustain by reason of such action. And I herewith deposit $- to cover all expenses incurred and will deliver to you the envelope of the let-ter returned." In many cases persons have made remittances to fraudulent parties or irresponsible firms, not learning their true character until after the letter had gone, and have succeeded in

A Quick Start.

O. W. Nickerson and J. S. Baker were residents of Harwick. Captain Nickerson, as he was called, was a man of means and very shrewd. Joe was less fortunate. One day the captain met Joe and said, "Come over tonight." Joe did so, and as soon as he entered the captain's home the captain took him into a distant room, closed all the windows and doors securely and said: "Now, Joe, I will tell you the secret of getting rich and you can pay me $25. Be saving, of course, and when you do make a bargain with any one be sure that no one hears you, and then if you get the worst of it or want to back out you can. Now hand me the

"Not a soul," replied the captain.
"Well, then," Joe said, "I guess I'll begin on you."

> Star Rays. light that seem to be thrown out by eye? A German scientist finds that all every star when seen by the naked stars show precisely the same rays, but that in the case of the brighter stars the rays are plainer and some-what longer. It is further remarked that the rays seen by the left and right eyes differ, and that if the head be turned the rays are rotated in a corre sponding manner. It is thus concluded that the source of the rays is not in the stars, but in the eye itself, the middle of the retina being not perfectly homogeneous in its sensitiveness.

How a Horse Sleeps.

Horses always point one ear forward when they sleep. Exactly why it is done no human being can tell, but the probability is that the practice is a relic of the time when they were wild and obliged to be on their guard even when asleep. Cattle, on the other hand, are apparently indifferent as to the position of their ears while sleeping, but no odds what position they are in both are always pointed alike. Ask some observing horseman if it is not a fact that a horse always throws one ear forward when he sleeps.

When pursued the kangaroo, if possile, directs his flight toward the river. If he reaches it, he enters and, thanks to his great height, is able to go on foot to a depth where the dogs are obliged to swim. There he plants himself on his two hind legs and his tail, and, up to his shoulders in the water, he waits the attack of the dogs. With his fore paws he seizes by the head the first dog that approaches him, and, as he is more solidly balanced than his assailant, he holds the dog's nose under water as long as he can. Unless a second dog speedily comes to the rescue the first one is sure to be drowned. If a companion arrives and by his attacks on the kangaroo manages to set the captive free the half drowned brute is glad to regain the shore as quickly as possible. In this way a strong and courageous male kangaroo will hold his own against twenty or thirty dogs, drowning some and frightening others, and the hunter is obliged to intervene with a bullet.

The Scorpion of Ceylon. A more disagreeable object than a corpion of Ceylon it would be difficult to imagine. Although, as a rule, it does not measure more than seven inches in length, there is a species found in the woods that are longer than a foot. They crawl out of some dried wood. and, taking up their position on a convenient rock or stone, look, as they hold their great jointed sting curved over their backs and their claws held aloft, the very picture of aggressive warfare. Here they stretch themselves in the broiling sun and await their prey. These are the small, beautiful honeybirds that dart from flower to flower and take the place of the hum-ming birds of the east. As one approaches the scorpion seems to shrink into the stone until it becomes almost imperceptible. Suddenly the great in sect will raise its claws and dart at its beautiful victim, which in a moment

A Town is greatly judged by its schools and churches. Our churches are a credit to a place of this size. Our church buildings are large, neat and inviting and our pastors are pulpit orators, the equal of which one seldown finds outside the metropolitan cittes. Our schools are equally good in most respects Our buildings are all that could be desired; our teachers are the best that money and a careful and wise school board can employ, and if our schools do not come up to the perfection line the fault can be traced to the pupils themselves, who fail to appreciate the advantages a generous public has given them. public has given them.

Toronto, Sept. 11,—The run at the City Cattle Market to day was 57 loads, with 973 head of cattle, 1,271 sheep and lambs, 160 hogs and 94 calves.

The run was light to-day, and there was a rather brisk trade for the best offerings, but on the whole there is not a very active demand in the meat market this week, and many of the dealers were content to get along with what stock they already have on hand unless they happened to come across anything choice, which just now is very rarely. A few loads of fairly well finished cattle were offering, and for these it was not difficult to get prices that were ruling last week for the same class of stock. There is a fair demand for export cattle, but very few offering just at present. Prices were steady to firm at $4.75 to $4.90 for the "choicest offerings. Extra choice would fetch $5. Good heavy teeders are firm at $4.25 to $4.50 with a steady demand for good stockers, but the offerings are light. Sheep and lambs are steady at last week's figures, with a fair demand. Prospects are steady.

Hogs are unchanged at last week's prices. There was a very light offering of hogs to-
