A Candid Friend

(Sackville Tribune) In referring to the dismissal of Chief Game Warden Robinson a few days ago this paper made mention of the attitude taken by the leading Conservative journal in the north of the province, the Chatham World, toward this official. Below we are now able to reprint the World's comment upon Mr. Robinson's dismissal, the article being headed "A Faithful Officer's Reward." There must surely be good ground for criticism when so partisan an opponent of the Liberal government as the world showed itself to be as willing to condemn an action of the Hazel administration in such vigorous language as is used in the extract quoted:--

Had Humble Beginnings

Grover Cleveland was the son of a Presbyterian clergyman, who died when his son, the future president of the United States, was only sixteen years old, and the latter started life as clerk in a country store. His career was one long series of triumphs until he reached the highest position in the gift of his countrymen, and died honored and esteemed by all classes of the people. Abraham Lincoln was born in a log hut, and in his early life was considered anything but promising, but he became a great lawyer and statesman, was elected president of the United States, and was the great force in abolishing slavery. He is ranked among the greatest men who have occupied the White House. Horace Greeley failed of election to the presidency, but he was one of the country's greatest journalists, and left a deep impression on his country. The New York Tribune, which he founded under great difficulties, lives to perpetuate his memory. Mr. Greeley was born in a modest cabin on a stony farm in Vermont, had very little opportunity for securing an education, learned the printing trade, and became one of the greatest journalists of his time. These simple facts are not new to the public, but they are repeated to inspire boys of the present day to high ideals. Given good health, plenty of ambition and industry, lots of it, and there is no position in the United States or Canada, however exalted, that is not open to the lowliest born boy in those countries.--Fredericton Herald.

Bear Your Own Burdens

In nine cases out of ten, man's life will not be a success if he does not bear burdens in his childhood. If the fondness of vanity of father or mother has kept him from hard work; if another always helped him out at the end of his row; if instead of taking his turn at pitching of he stowed away all the time, in short, if what was light always fell to him, and what was heavy about the same work to some one else, if he has been permitted to shirk, until shirking has become a habit, unless a miracle has been wrought, his life will be a failure, and the blame will not be half so much his as that of his weak and foolish parents. On the other hand, if the boy had been brought to do his part, never to shirk his responsibility, or to dodge his work whether or not it made his head ache, or soiled his hands until bearing burdens has become a matter of pride, the heavy end of the log his choice, parents as they bid him goody may dismiss their fears. The elements of success are his, and some time and in some way the world will recognize his capacity.

Quebec there are 151 members in the House of Commons. Divide these by 75 --Conservative and Liberal--and we have 76 on each side. It is admitted on all sides that the Liberals are sure to carry 55 seats in Quebec, and it is beyond doubt that they will hold 30 in Ontario. These make 85 supporters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, giving him 10 majority in these two Provinces. In the remaining Provinces, no one is insane enough to think that Sir Wilfrid will not have at least a majority of 30, making a grand total of 40 in the whole House. We believe this is the smallest estimate that can be made at the present time. From a Conservative standpoint there isn't a ray of sunshine along the route to cheer them in their loneliness.

OBITUARY

WM. H. CHAFFEY. Wm. H. Chaffey, the oldest resident of Indian Island, entered into rest on Monday morning, June 22nd, 1908. He was born on Deer Island, Sept. 20th, 1816. During his childhood his father moved to Indian Island, where he carried on a flourishing business for many years. At his death, William succeeded him and continued to carry on the business successfully until a few years ago. He was highly respected and being a man of excellent judgment was consulted by his friends and neighbors until a short time before his death. He was a devout Christian and for many years was one of the deacons of the Baptist church at Chocolate Cove. After his infirmities of age prevented him from attending his own church, he became a regular attendant at the Methodist church at Indian Island. Many of the Ministers of different denominations who read this will remember how hospitable he entertained them. He was one of eighteen children and is survived by three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Kay, of Indian Island, Mrs. Chapman, Mrs. Prescott, John and Gilman Chaffey, of Eastport. He has left seven children who feel deeply the loss of their beloved father. His only son Howard, and his daughters, Mrs. H. A. Kendrick and Mrs. R. P. Dickson, live on Indian Island. The others are Mrs. Wm. H. Justason of Penfield, Mrs. James Ward, Mrs. E. A. McNeill and Mrs. Wm. Kay, of Deer Island. Rev. J. T. Costain officiated at the funeral which took place Wednesday afternoon.

The Stork and the Duck.

Dr. Walton has introduced a book on "Why Worry" with the following words from Chuang Tze: "The legs of the stork are long; the legs of the duck are short; you cannot make the legs of the stork short, neither can you make the legs of the duck long. Why worry?" In other words, why worry about things which cannot be helped? Take life as it comes and make the best of it. There is no use complaining or worrying because one is long and cannot make himself short, or is short and cannot make himself long, or has brains without health, or has health without brains, or is born rich without the advantages of self development, or is born poor without the opportunity of wealth. Professor Laughlin has defined Socialism as "the philosophy of failure." It might also be defined as the philosophy of worrying. Socialism is a protest against inequalities that cannot be helped. Men are born with wide differences, physical, mental and moral, and it is impossible by any process of law or any system of economics to remove those differences. Even equality of possession is impossible because of the inherent inequalities of the mind, the temper and the ambition of man. Socialist complains of these inequalities and is constantly inciting the people to worry about their lack of this thing or that thing, hoping that this worrying will finally lead to a political revolution. But while we cannot get rid of inequalities, we can make the best of the conditions in which we are placed. The duck cannot be a stork, but he can be the best kind of a duck. What is the philosophy of individualism.--Wall Street Journal.

A Forecast of the Next Federal Elections

Several of the Tory papers, of the grosser stamp, have been printing forecasts of the next Federal elections, wherein they predict the defeat of the Laurier administration and the restoration of the old Tory regime, or the next of traitors, as they themselves were forced to call it. Their calculations are based upon sandy foundations. Let us make a prophecy more in accordance with the facts: For the two provinces of Ontario and

The Royal Meeting

An important event of last week was the meeting of King Edward and the Casar at Revel. While little is said in the press of the object of this visit, yet the English people have learned to associate King Edward's visits to other countries, with new plans for strengthening the friendly relations between England and other nations.

War Predicted in Strange Book

Berlin, June 27.--A book, the title of which is Banzai, and the author of which writes under the pseudonym of "Parabellum," was yesterday published here. It predicts phases of "The approaching war" between the United States and Japan, in which the latter is shown as invading America without warning, occupying the Pacific Coast states before Washington is aware of the outbreak of hostilities. Incidents of fighting, with the eventual defeat of Japan, are interspersed, and there is discussion of the political aspects and of international relations, as well as the naval policy of the United States.

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but taken early—at the onset stage—they break, or head off, the cold. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics. Preventics is Little Lady Cold Cream. No Quinine, no Physic, nothing disgusting. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, run down, if you feel all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child. If there is feverishness, night or day. Herein probably lies Preventics' greatest efficiency. Hold in to loose for the pack, also in the boxes of 48 Preventics. Insist on your druggist giving you

Preventics "ALL DEALERS"

Sour or Sweet

That's the question my brother and I's not a mean one, either, for many of us had rather take a dose of salts than walk with your long-as-a-rail face.

Your dyspeptic brain, torpid conscience and sour disposition make you anything but agreeable company. You are called a Christian too. Well, maybe you are, but the fact is not believed by many on earth. Possibly you may console yourself with the thought that they know it in heaven. I doubt it.

Why go through the world always in a fog? You dishearten many, give others the blues, and keep scores under clouds of doubt and darkness. You make out that the path of the just is not as a "shining light," that the way is one of gloom, hard and difficult. The way of the transgressor is hard, but surely not the path of obedience in which you claim to be walking.

Swing around, my brother, and get your eye from self. "Rejoice evermore." Give up your sourness; quit looking like a graveyard. Take the sunny side of the street. Laugh once in a while. Get off your stilts and walk with humble folks, cheer up, tone up, wake up and see if milk is not better than vinegar, or in other words, if it is not better to be sweet than sour.

Don't find all your "good people" among the departed, but seek to discover a few among the living. It will make you and the world happier to get into this habit.

Dr. Hamilton's Cure for Pimples

All skin diseases such as pimples originate through failure of the kidneys and liver. All taints that block the avenues of health must be removed. Dr. Hamilton's Pills do this quickly. They cleanse the system, make the skin smooth, restore roses to the cheeks and give clear, dainty complexion. For good looks, good health and good spirits there is nothing so sure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. boxes at all dealers.

Show Affection Now

It is only too true that to refrain from showing affection makes the wife miserable. She does not care for presents or lavish attention; she wants those little tokens such as may be given in a look, which will prove her husband's love. We wish some of the good things some men are saving up to say concerning their wives after they are dead could be said now. A man will spend $25 to buy cut flowers for his dead wife's coffin, when if he had spent 25 cents for a bunch of flowers for her when she was alive, she would have fainted. You wait until she is dead and they get some preacher to tell how good she was.

Most men would prefer domestic happiness to great riches.

Lipton Ready to Challenge Again

London, June 29.—The Field, a weekly publication, announced that Sir Thomas Lipton is prepared to challenge again for the America's Cup under the following conditions:

First—The new yacht shall be cutter-rigged and built under the present universal rule of the New York Yacht Club.

Second—The New York Yacht Club shall designate the size of the yacht it considers most suitable for the race.

Sir Thomas, when seen by the Associated Press at Dunoon, Scotland, today, said that the Field's statement was perfectly correct. He added:

"I hope my American friends will see their way clear to meet my wishes in the interests of sport. The size of the boat is no object, and I am willing to build under the universal rule. If I can get assurance that a challenge will be accepted, I will issue it forthwith."

It is understood that the intention of Sir Thomas, with the New York Yacht Club's permission, is to build two yachts of a class designated by that Club after designs of Fife, and select the better terms of the cup.

Goodbye Mother

It is recorded that when the plague broke out in a little village of Italy, the children of one house were taken first. The parents watched over them but only caught the disease they could not cure. The whole family died, and the street, in the home of a poor laborer, who was absent all the week, returning only on Saturday to bring his scanty earnings, the disease next began. The wife felt herself attacked in the night by the fever. When morning dawned she was worse, and before night the plagued spot showed itself. She remembered the terrible fate of her neighbors. She knew she must die, but, as she looked at her dear boys, she resolved not to communicate death to them. She therefore locked the children in the room and snatched the bed clothes, fearing they were already impregnated with the dreadful germs, and with them left the house. She even denied herself the pleasure of a last embrace. Oh! think of the heroism which enabled her to conquer her feelings and leave home with all she loved—to die!

Her oldest child saw her from the window. "Goodbye, mother," said he, with a tender voice, wondering why she left so strangely. "Goodbye, mother," repeated the youngest child, stretching his little hands out of the window. The mother paused. Her heart was drawn towards those little ones, and she was on the point of rushing back. She struggled hard, with the tears rolling down her cheeks, at the sight of her helpless babes. At length she turned from them. The children continued to cry. "Goodbye, mother," until the voices died away, and the mother with an anguished heart, entered the house of those who were to bury her. In a short time she died and her dying breath commended her husband and children to the care of heaven. Was ever other love like that? Only once, when for the plague smitten race it hung in bleeding mercy on the cross. Exhibitions of a mother's love, though not so striking as this, are by no means rare. Live where she may, and how she will, "a mother is a mother still, the holiest thing alive."

Teach Children Politeness

Teach children to be polite. Teach them there is nothing but goodness of heart and so much durability as a pleasing deportment. They will lose the idea after a while that it is smart to be pert and boisterous, and take pride in being little ladies and gentlemen. Teach them to say "How do you do?" or "Good morning" to everybody with whom you are acquainted; never to contradict, whisper, hum, beat a tattoo with the fingers on the furniture, or loiter around in lounging attitudes in company; to say "Yes, ma'am, and "No, sir."

"What ma'am" "if you please," and "Excuse me," if it is necessary to pass before any one, or to leave the table before the rest, and never to do any of the things for which it is necessary to ask to be excused unless it is absolutely unavoidable; not to toss things instead of handing them; not to listen to anything not intended for their ears; not to refuse to give the whole to a visitor when half will not do. A polite child is the best of companions, but a rude one is a troublesome nuisance, and will find himself learning at 18 or 20 things which should have been taught him when a child.

A Homemade Refrigerator

Take two large boxes, the second one smaller on all sides, and bore two one-inch holes in each correspondingly, to give drainage and ventilation. Fill up the bottom of the larger box with powdered charcoal (or sawdust, if charcoal cannot be procured) until the smaller box will stand on a level with the top of the larger box. Put the inner box in place and fill up all the space around the sides with the charcoal. Fasten lids on both boxes to fit tightly. On each side of the inner box, by means of cleats, put several shelves, leaving space in the center for ice.

A rack made of lathing may be laid at the bottom, for the ice to rest upon. Legs may be added, also, and the drainage and ventilation in this way may be improved. This is a rough refrigerator, to be sure, but one that has successfully used in our home for years.—From Woman's Home Companion for June.

Strawberries Canned Without Cooking

Have your jars perfectly clean and dry, then take equal parts of fresh berries and sugar, and mash thoroughly. To accomplish this, take only a small quantity in a dish at a time, that you may be sure every berry is mashed. Put into the jars, and seal immediately, inserting the jar for a short time before putting away.

The work is easily and quickly done, and there is no heating. My berries canned in this way last summer kept perfectly and have preserved their delicious flavor unimpaired.

Strawberry shortcake equal to that of the summer has been the enjoyment whenever we wished through the winter.—From Woman's Home Companion for June.

A Good Newspaper

A good newspaper tells the news as faithfully and truthfully as it can, without fear and without favor, and comments on it with the best intelligence it can command.

A good newspaper is in league with all men and women who think, and with all the agencies that strive for the happiness of the people.

A good newspaper shields no wrong that ought to be exposed and stops at no truth that ought to be uttered.

A good newspaper does not lend itself to the making of strife between citizens, neither rages like a demagogue nor weeps like a charlatan.

A good newspaper that ideals, believes in progress, and wins its way by courage, plain speaking and fair dealing.

A good newspaper assembles each day as much of the good things that are done in the world as it can find and no more of the foul than it must of news necessity publish.

A good newspaper has political opinions and may belong to a party, but it cannot be an organ and keep the high faith of the best journalism.

A good newspaper knows no boss, bows to no petty satrap of office and owes no allegiance but to that which it believes to be true.

A good newspaper is run on business principles and should make money and prosper like any other business, but probably won't if that is its sole aim.

A good newspaper takes a cheerful view of the world, is kind to human failings and helps men more by entertaining them than by ranting and scolding at them.

Get my "Book No. 4 For Women." It will give weak women many valuable suggestions of relief--and with strictly confidential medical advice is entirely free. Simply write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The book No. 4 tells all about Dr. Shoop's Night Cure and how these soothing, healing, antiseptic suppositories can be successfully applied to correct these weaknesses. Write for the book. The Night Cure is sold by All Dealers.

Tell Mother

Young women have the same longing to get away from their native town and live among new scenes and changed surroundings that boys are possessed of. They feel the weight of local environments, even more than the opposite sex, and one frequently hears the remark, "I wish I were a boy, then I could have some freedom."

This marks a critical period of a young lady's life. She needs, more than ever before, wise and loving counsel, and the sympathetic companionship of a true friend; and there is no friend like mother in unselfish untiring devotion. Girls, tell your mothers of your hopes and ambitions, and you are quite certain to receive advice which you can accept with profit, and which will do you good.

Sir Charles Tupper

With the exception of peers of the realm, no Canadian, and only a very few Englishmen, have received as many of the highest Imperial distinctions as the right Hon. Sir Charles Tupper. In 1867 he was created a Companion of the Bath; in 1897, a Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George; in 1888, a Baronet of the United Kingdom; and in 1907 a member of the King's Imperial Privy Council for Great Britain, which gives him the title of Right Honorable. In addition to these Imperial honors, Sir Charles is an Honorary LL.D., of the University of Cambridge and an Honorary LL.D., of the University of Edinburgh.--Winnipeg Telegram.

St. Stephen Will Celebrate

St. Stephen has not been much in the public eye of late years, but the pent up enthusiasm of her citizens is to find vent in a great three days carnival, September 7th, 8th and 9th.

Her merchants, manufacturers and the people generally have contributed to a fund for this purpose and have placed $2500 at the disposal of an energetic executive committee who are perfecting plans to make this event equally as successful as all former undertakings of the kind.

The morning of Monday, September 7th, will be devoted to athletic sports and in the afternoon the streets will be filled with a grand civic military and trades procession.

The mornings of Tuesday and Wednesday will be devoted to aquatic events, the principal feature of which will be contests for motor boats, of which over three hundred of all sizes and kinds, are owned within forty miles of St. Stephen. Ten valuable silver cups have already been donated for these contests and other prizes will be provided.

Tuesday afternoon will witness the great hose reel race for prizes aggregating several hundred dollars, and in which teams from all over Maine and the Maritime Provinces are expected to enter. Inquiries have already been received from three Maine towns and four in New Brunswick. A base ball game will be in progress while this race is on.

Wednesday afternoon will be devoted to athletic sports and a balloon ascension. There will be something doing all the time, day and evening, with ten bands of music in attendance.

One attracted feature will be an illuminated boat parade on the river Tuesday evening.

Generous prizes will be provided for every event.

Any of our readers desiring to participate in any part of the carnival can gain all necessary information by addressing Walter S. Stevens, St. Stephen, chairman of executive.

Everybody likes to visit the border towns with their well kept streets, attractive residences, good street car service and hospitable people. Their carnival opens on labor day and many from this section will doubtless arrange to take advantage of the cheap transportation rates that are being provided. The committee would feel deeply grateful if as much as possible of the above is given place in your columns. If agreeable, will you kindly send a marked copy to H. M. Webber, St. Stephen.

If I Only had Capital

The above words were recently uttered by a worthy boy and undoubtedly they are often reiterated by many who are out of employment, or have little or nothing to do. To all such we say, you have home capital, you have hands, feet, bone muscle, health, and are not these capital? What more capital has God given anybody? "But if I only had a few thousands in cash capital" says the young man. But these are better than cash capital, for no one can take them from you, and with these you can earn cash.

Our men of wealth and influence did not start with any cash capital. They went to work with their plow, the hoe, the jack plane and axe, and in time their capital brought them a rich harvest. Ah! but there's the rub, you don't want to work. You want money on credit so you can play the gentleman, speculate and end your career of playing vagabond. You want to marry a rich girl who will support you, while you wear fine clothes, smoke cigars, and be a gentleman of leisure.

Shame on you, young man! go to work with the capital you have and you will soon make interest enough upon it to give you as much money as you need. If you cannot make money upon what capital you have, you could not if you had a larger amount in cash. If you waste your present capital you would waste money if you had it. So don't stand around, a helpless fellow, waiting for something to turn up, but go to work. Take the first work you can get to do and do it well. Always do your best, and if you manage your capital that God has given you well, you will soon have plenty more to manage.

THE SERPENT AND THE DOVE

The qualities of both have been required in our business and indeed these qualities are not alone demanded of us, they should be exhibited to every man of business. He should be shrewd in his dealing and prudent and sagacious in his giving and getting. But his shrewdness should be limited and subordinated by the harmlessness of the dove. It is the serpent that creeps forth unaccompanied by the dove, when a business man takes advantage of the ignorance of a customer and foists upon him an inferior article or takes more for it than it is worth. It is the trail of the serpent that the man leaves behind him when he, for the sake of gain, inveigles the widow or orphan into precarious investments. The result all too often shows the serpent without any of the dove. It is the hiss of the serpent when the man stands by his so-called rights and shows no mercy to the man whose back is to the wall. Money got by such kind of sharp practice is dearly gained. It is not the presence of the wisdom of the serpent that is wrong, it is the absence of the harmlessness of the dove. The "square deal" is the best, and it will pay dividends from the start.

RENEW!

With this issue we enter upon the second year of Greetings. "We are not altogether ignorant of at least some of the difficulties that lie before us on issuing a paper. Conscience, however, of the fact that we have a wise and considerate constituency with which to deal, we hope to meet with a reasonable degree of success as we continue to work together.

It will be our earnest effort to make our paper one of the best and brightest weekly publications in the Maritime Provinces. Socially, religiously and politically we will stand for the best. We do not expect to see eye to eye with our readers on all, or either of these questions, but occupying the independent position that we do, we claim to be able to take a more impartial view than the individual who is more pronounced."

With this introductory we started out on our career one year ago, and it is with satisfaction that we receive assurances that what we then stated has been fully realized.

We have tried to stand for the best or at least what appeared to us to be the best. To this end we have held on our way with a firm purpose.

We were left a legacy from the "News" which was not altogether desirable. It took us many months to convince the people that we had come to stay. An eight page paper so full of profitable reading, with the latest news seemed too good to be true. With this enlarged space subjects of vital interest and current importance have had a place.

As for the future all we can say is that we will continue to give the best and maintain the moral tone that has characterized the past year, and no effort or expense will be spared to make "Greetings" superior to what it has been and worthy of the widest patronage irrespective of party.

We thank all who by their subscription, their advertising and communications have helped us to the success we have attained.

TRIAL BY JURY

Recent trials in this country would seem to point to the conclusion that if justice is to be done some other system than trial by jury will have to be resorted to. The disgraceful exhibitions to which the people of New Brunswick were treated recently in Carleton County where after a trial in which the most conclusive evidence of guilt was proved, the jury with scarcely any deliberation acquitted the prisoner, coming so soon after the acquittal by a Cape Breton jury of a man who killed his own father in cold blood, has now been followed by similar action on the part of two juries in the adjoining province of Prince Edward Island. In the latter instance there was not a single redeeming feature in the case, the evidence was conclusive and was in fact not controverted. The sickly sentimentality which prompts a body of men to disregard the oaths they take to perform their duty fearlessly, yet seriously tends to undermine that feeling of security, without which society cannot exist. No doubt it is scarcely a pleasant position to have in cold blood to condemn a fellow creature to death or other heavy punishment; but that is by no means the only matter which has to be taken into consideration. The unfortunate who is murdered receives no consideration from the slayer; on what principle, therefore, should any be exempted to the contrary? There are no doubt in many instances extenuating circumstances to be taken into account, but in the recent cases in New Brunswick and yesterday in Prince Edward Island, anything of this nature was entirely absent, and in each case the jury in rendering the verdicts they did show not only an utter disregard to the interests of justice, but an absolute inability to appreciate the duty they owed to society.—Frederick Gleason.

During the last week the public schools of the town closed—thus ending the school year, over two hundred pupils have entered upon a well earned holiday. At the close of the school year the attention of the citizens is naturally directed towards the schools, since the yearly examinations and their results afford the main criterion by which the parents of the pupils judge the efficiency of the schools to which their children are sent. The question might very favorably be asked, Why should the parents of the children wait until the close of the term before showing any interest in the progress their children are making in their different studies? Would it not be better to visit the school occasionally and thus find out the standing of the pupil instead of waiting until grading time often reveals the lamentable fact that Johnny has not graded and hence a year is lost in his educational course. This is not intended as a defence for the teachers but merely to place this educational question in a fair and just light.

We all know that pupils from the third grade upwards have educational subjects to study at home, and if the home studies be neglected certainly the work at school and during school hours will be unprofitable. If the parent does not support the teacher in this matter of home study, there will almost surely be disappointment in store for both pupil and parent. If for example the teacher gives the pupil a hard task to prepare at home, and the parent when he hears the complaint of the child takes the child's view of the situation against the teacher, what success can be expected from such a course?

It is certainly worthy of the most serious thought of the parents to consider this question carefully and if their child has not succeeded at school, to look into the matter fairly and dispassionately and if they be in the fault to make generous acknowledgment of the same and not place the whole responsibility of failure upon the teacher.

No teacher however great or good can supply the lack of help and sympathy from the parent; and it can safely be said that when the school year of a pupil proves a failure, in nine cases out of ten, the fault lies with the parents rather than with the teacher. Wise parents realize this and are willing to assume their part of the responsibility. Now every parent may not be fitted to help the teacher by assisting the pupil in his home lessons, but all can give generous sympathy to both pupil and teacher, and by so doing can smooth the hard road to learning and make it, if not a rosy path at least one in which some pleasure may be found.

The teacher is the most important, or one of the most important factors in the life of the child. The pupil spends a large part of his waking hours with his teacher, and parents should look to it that the pupil holds his teacher in the highest esteem. What parent would be so indiscreet as to talk or speak slightly of the clergyman under whose teaching the child comes for one or two short hours each week; then how much more so is that parent who deliberately destroys the teachers influence over his child! He not only injures the pupil's chances for educational advancement but he undermines the whole moral structure of his child's character. If children were taught by their parents to render that love and homage to their secular teachers which they render to their clerical teachers what a difference would be seen in our public schools?

Parents seem to foster the idea that there is no obligation on their part in their child being taught, yet it can be said without hesitation that the work of a conscientious teacher cannot be repaid in filthy lucre, and that many of our young men and women and many who are no longer young in the teaching profession, have rendered and are rendering services which cannot be weighed or measured with dollars and cents, and are giving of their very best and highest towards the training and uplifting of the rising generation, and this very often without praise or appreciation. The years which the pupil spends in school are indeed years replete with mighty influences in his after life. In this period of life are implanted all the finer and most admirable traits of character which blossom and bear fruit years after when school and teacher will be forgotten. In this material age when midst the toil and stress of life the sordid things of this world tend to crowd out all that is aesthetic and beautiful, if there has not in earlier years been implanted in the nature of the individual a longing for that which is higher and better than mere physical well being, poor chance is there in later years for development along the higher planes of life. The great Teacher impressed this thought on his pupils—"That He was more than meat and the body than raiment," and if the child is so taught that his studies open up his mind to a realization of the beautiful in life the fact that one's wealth consists not in the material things which one possesses but in his capacity to appreciate all things that are beautiful, and if the child is taught to love knowledge for the sake of knowledge, then indeed will his educational course be a success and no matter what walk of life he may follow he is prepared to enjoy life better and to have it more abundantly.

Encouraging letters have been received from Frank Murphy, who is to undergo an operation at Mass. General hospital. The doctors hope for complete recovery. The case is not as serious as was feared at first.

The ladies of St. Mark's church met Monday evening and completed arrangements for the dinner which they will serve on July 13th, the occasion of the Orangemen's celebration. The old meeting house has been secured for the day. Provision will be made to take care of the large crowd that is expected to be present.

Stern Justice

The Canadian judges are beginning to discover that there is a punishment which better fits some criminals than feel them on lollypops and making prisons places of perfunctory entertainment. In several recent cases in different Provinces, Judges have sentenced convicts to the lash for crimes of violence. There has been too much maddening sympathy with the human brutes who prey upon society. The courts have felt its evil effects. Judges are coming to understand that the criminals who care very little how much mental and physical anguish, or material wrong they inflict upon others, have a wholesome dread of the lash, and they are reaching their sensibilities through it.

St. John, June 29.—Four writs have been issued and declarations filed against John McKane, reputed millionaire and owner of the Telegraph and Times, by the Hon. McKane, Sinclair and McKane, a well known Conservative legal firm, is acting for the Minister of Public Works. By a curious coincidence this firm was not long ago retained by Mr. McKane in the case of assault brought against him by Mr. W. B. Farris, which has not yet come to trial.

Father Doyle has been pastor of St. Stephen's church in town since Septemeer, 1866.—Calais Advertiser.

The advertising merchant is the one who does the business in these days of push and enterprise. There are more newspaper readers today than ever before in the history of the world. The newspaper places your business under the eyes of the buyer. He sees what he wants and knowing where to find it, looks up the wide awake merchant who asks him to come and see him. Success in these days of sharp competition calls for eternal vigilance. You can't keep a hustler down.

Crews representing the United States and Canadian Governments are now located in Houlton and vicinity, and are engaged in marking out the boundary line. The United States is represented by J. G. Taylor of Washington, while A. J. Rainboth of Ottawa has charge of the Canadian interests. They are making their headquarters in Houlton. The new posts will be located so that standing at one the next in line will be visible. Granite posts will be established and these will be embedded in cement built below the frost line. These boundary posts will be square, three feet high, tapering at the top U. S. being marked on one side and Canada on the opposite.

The following are the graduates from the St. Stephen Business College for the term ending June 30, 1908:

Lake Utopia

Utopia, on whose sun-kissed waves the granite hills look down With gleam of red mild spruce and fir the purple shadows frown. Thy isles are blest, thy shining shores are fringed with molten gold Where billows raise their petaloid heads up to the hills of old. We've loved thee long, we've loved thee well, a happy, idle band Since we thy placid waters found girt in with golden sand. And days may come and days may go while we in blissful mood Give thee right hand of fellowship and join the brotherhood. "Sunshine" Furnace

Where Shaking is Respectable

A Draft of furnace dome, with no other assistance, is powerful to overcome the dust resistance in shaking time. Only surplus dust rises of itself above the fire. Great built domes into ash-pit, and unless legible marks visible to therein provided, dust will escape through ash-door slots and into operator's face.

In "Sunshine" Furnace the legitimate dust outlet is provided. It's a great big dust-pipe running straight from ash-pit to dome, thence to chimney. When big pipe damper is opened, all dust in ash-pit ascends to dome; then, when direct drafts are opened, all dust passes up chimney.

Always the clean and quick dust route in "Sunshine" Furnace—via grate, to pan, to dust-pipe, to dome, to chimney, to open air.

Romance of Two Branded Hearts A True Story

It was only a little advertisement and it read in this way—

"If the young man who branded the heart on the right arm of his little girl playmate 20 years ago and who wears a similar sign on his own arm will write to H. T., box 135, Des Moines, Ia., he will learn something of great interest to himself.

"H. T." was Miss Harriett Townley Philadelphia, and the young man she sought out was Harry Dickson. By great good fortune he saw the advertisement; he answered it and today Miss Townley is Mrs. Dickson and they are away on their honeymoon—a trip that will take them half way around the world.

Twenty years ago the girl branded the boy when their fathers were rounding up their cattle, and the boy branded the girl in return. They didn't know each others last names. But somehow there was something the girl remembered, and she tried to find the boy—man now—and she did.

Jake Townley was a rancher at Kadoka, S. Dak., 20 years ago. Once a year he rounded up his cattle. One season when the run was especially good he needed extra hands and he employed "Chuck" Dickson, who was on the range looking for a job. Dickson was a good cow puncher and he managed to make a living rounding up cattle for himself and his two toddlers, Harry and Dave. But when there was no need for his services he caught muskrats in the river and sold their skins or else he helped out with carrying the government mail.

But when old man Townley offered him a job at the round-up he threw up his job of carrying the mails and let his muskrat traps go to ruin, because punching cattle is steadier and pays bigger wages.

Rich as he was old man Townley kept close at hand when the round-up came. Unsouth, slouchy, plain spoken, he still had one soft little spot in his heart. It was for his baby girl, Hattie, five years old.

She was a willful little thing, with curly brown hair and dark brown eyes, and she owned her father body and soul! Harry Dickson came with his father when they were branding the cattle. The little daughter of the cattle man and the son of the cow puncher found each other out and played together when the men were rounding up the cattle, roping them up and then branding them with the Townley mark, a tiny heart.

As one steer after another was thrown to the ground and its sizzling iron pressed to its shoulder little Miss Hattie, the owner's daughter, and Harry, the cow-puncher's son, watched the operation with bulging eyes. They had never seen anything like it before. It was exciting indeed.

Suddenly the little girl turned to the boy she had known for days, which is a long time in the life of a child.

"I like you," she said suddenly. Let me brand you.

"I'm 'fraid it will hurt me, protested the boy.

"Don't be a big 'traid-cat, sneered the little girl. Come on!"

The boy demurred; the girl coaxed. Of course it was the same old story—the boy let the little girl burn a tiny heart—her father's brand—on his shoulder, just as the cattle were branded. It hurt him, but he never winced. He just gritted his teeth and let the little girl press the hot iron upon his skin.

"You weren't afraid at all, said the little girl to the boy, patting the heart that glowed red upon the tender shoulder.

"Course I wasn't," said the boy, bravely, though it hurt so he could not keep the tears back.

"Now you brand me," commanded the little girl. "Put one on me."

"Oh gracious, no!" gasped the boy. "Why I couldn't do that. It would hurt you."

"It wouldn't hurt me any more than it hurt you. You're no better than I am; if you could stand it I guess I could. I want one, too."

So the little girl gritted her teeth together and never whimpered once while the boy pressed the red-hot heart against her shoulder—the Townley brand.

"We won't tell what we've done," whispered the little girl, after it was over and tears had been forced back.

"No I guess we won't answered the boy, knowing full well that he would have been roundly spanked if he had.

The branding was over next day. Chuck Dickson took his two small boys back home, with a supply of bills in his pocket as the fruits of his labors.

That very same night a prairie fire sprang up, and the humble home of the Dicksons was destroyed. With the prairie a desert, there was nothing to do but to go somewhere else, and so Dickson took his family further west, to the Black Hills. There they settled, and the life in Dakota was forgotten.

Little Hattie grew up into a charming girl, and her father made up his mind that she must be sent east for a finishing touch to her education. She had learned to ride as well as any girl in the world, and she could shoot and fish and bake a cake with the best of them, but her father wanted something more—he wanted her to have the graces of the young women of New York and the eastern states.

So he sent her to a finishing school in Baltimore.

There she met people she had never seen in the west. She grew to learn what the social graces are, and eventually she, too, went into society. Her father moved to the east, and for a while they lived in Boston and then in Philadelphia.

All the while the little heart that the boy had branded on her shoulder was becoming less and less conspicuous till at length it was only a tiny scar. But when she appeared at a dinner or a dance in decollete dress the scar would show, and more than one of her friends remarked how much the scar on Miss Townley's shoulder looked like a little heart.

But she never told—she just remembered. She never could quite blot out of her mind the memory of that small boy in the straw hat who had let her brand him years ago and then branded her when she told him to do it.

"If I could only go back to Dakota again, and see him," she often thought to herself. "Oh, if we could only be as once we were!"

Her education was finished. Little Hattie was now Miss Harriett Townley. She and her father took a long trip—the old cattle ranger immensely proud of the beautiful daughter, his only child.

They went to Florida, Mr. Townley died. When his will was read it was found that he had left his daughter $500,000. With all her money the girl was alone in the world. She didn't know where to go. Just then there came a letter from her school chum, a Chicago girl who had married a young man in Des Moines, Ia.

"Come and spend a little time with us," she wrote. "We want you to forget your sorrow, and perhaps we can make it pleasant for you here."

Miss Townley went to Des Moines. One night after the theatre her school chum noticed the scar again and spoke about it.

"Who branded you?" she asked.

"Really, I can't tell you," laughed the girl. "He was a boy and I was a tiny girl. But I always remember him and I think I could like him, even now."

"Why don't you advertise for him?" then, suggested her friend. "Wouldn't it be fun if he should really see it and answer?"

"I'll do it," laughed Miss Townley, "but I don't suppose he'll ever see it. Why, it was 20 years ago."

The advertisement was sent to newspapers all over the country, and Miss Townley waited for an answer, scarcely expecting one, however. For all she knew the small boy who had branded the heart on her right arm might be dead—it was 20 years ago.

But he wasn't. Harry Dixon had grown up and was a mining prospector. To be sure he hadn't made much money, but he still had enough to buy three meals a day and keep a roof over his head. He had gone to Mexico with a party of miners, when one day only a few weeks ago he chanced to pick up a New York paper which a tourist had left behind.

Now, New York newspapers are fairly rare in Mexico, and when anybody gets one it is pretty sure to be read through from start to finish, advertisements and all. News from home was enough for Harry Dixon; he read every line of the paper, and there in front of him was the "ad"—the girl he had branded 20 years ago was looking for him.

It didn't take the mining prospector long to write to the child of two decades ago, young woman now. Yes she was the child he had branded, and would he call the next time he chanced to be in Des Moines?

It wasn't long before Harry Dickson happened to be in Des Moines, and he called, all right. He hadn't a bit of difficulty in identifying himself, and soon he and Miss Townley were chatting over old times just as if it had been yesterday instead of 20 years ago.

The rest of it isn't difficult to guess. The boy of her childhood became the sweetheart of her womanhood. When he whispered just a few little words Miss Townley whispered one in answer, and it was a "Yes."

"I always felt that the heart that you burned on my shoulder was a kiss," she told him, "and I have waited for you."

"And I," he confessed, "never forgot the little girl who wasn't afraid to be branded—I guess we were made for each other!"

They are married now, and their home isn't going to be far from Kadoka, S. Dak.—N. Y. World.

Heat prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to off-set the customary hot weather Nerve and Strength depression. You will feel better within 48 hours after beginning to take such a remedy as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Its prompt action in restoring the weakened nerves is surprising. Of course, you won't get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually see the improvement. That tired, listless, spiritless, feeling will quickly depart when using the Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Restorative will sharpen a failing appetite; it aids digestion; it will strengthen the weakened Kidneys and Heart by simply rebuilding the worn-out nerves that these organs depend upon. Test it a few days and be convinced. Sold by All Dealers.

Minister or Politician

There are cases where it would be the duty of a clergyman and every good citizen to take active steps to carry out the provisions of the statutes, but we have many instances where men of the cloth overstep the bounds and do more harm than good. It would be pertinent to ask just here "If such conditions prevail in the Yukon as those referred to by Mr. Pringle, are we to take it that the preaching of himself and his conferees has borne no fruits." Our chief motive in penning these lines is to draw attention to the fact that in this country, where we are supposed to have equal rights for all and special privileges for none, were a Catholic priest to have entered upon his work in the same fashion as Mr. Pringle, a goodly number of people, especially the constituency of Dr. Sproule, would mount guard and proclaim to the world that Popish interference in our civic affairs would not be tolerated. It is not necessary, however, for a priest to follow such methods as those of the Presbyterian, because the priest has real power amongst his flock, while the minister is in most cases merely the employee of his church adherents. There are those who will say, and truly say, that it would better become Mr. Pringle to appeal more to the people as a preacher and advisor and cease storming Ottawa and the newspapers.

—Catholic Record.

Montreal, Floods in the south-western states are causing a good many transcontinental passengers in America to travel between east and west by way of the 'Soo' line of the C. P. R., in order to avoid the danger of being held up indefinitely by high water.

Mr. De Winter, the head of the big New York provision house of De Winter & Co., was among those arriving in Montreal by the 'Soo' train on Monday. He explained that he had been to Texas buying turkeys and while there the floods rose so high that the only way in which he could make sure of getting back to New York was to travel up to Canada, and make a part of the journey over the C. P. R. He told a very distressing story of the damage caused by the flood, saying that the devastation in Texas was deplorable. At Dallas something like ten thousand people had been rendered homeless, while the cotton crop, which meant so much to the state, is washed out of the ground. All through the south-western states, he said, the rivers had been in flood, and as a consequence much re-seeding of corn and wheat had had to be done.

Asked what was the reason of the present high price of provisions, Mr. De Winter said it was caused by the absolute scarcity. There was a shortage of about twenty-five per cent. in the past season in the production of provisions of all kinds. That was the result partly of the partial failure of last year's crop, and partly through so many farms being allowed to become more and more unproductive.

Mr. De Winter had a fine compliment for Canada. He buys very largely on this side of the line, and he said that Canada's butter and cheese, bacon and eggs, are the finest in quality of any in the world.

The Comfort of Being a Boy

There is comfort to be a boy in the amount of work he can get rid of doing. It is something astonishing how slow he can go on an errand; perhaps, he couldn't explain to himself why, when he is sent to his neighbors for yeast, he stops to stone frogs. He is not exactly cruel, but he wants to see if he can't hit 'em. It is a curious fact about boys, that two will be a great deal slower about doing anything than one. Boys have a power of helping each other do nothing. But say what you will about the general usefulness of boys, a farm without a boy would soon come to grief. He is always in demand. In the first place he is to do all the errands, go to the store, post office, and carry all sorts of messages. He would like to have as many legs as a wheel has spokes, and rotate in the same way. This he sometimes tries to do, and people who have seen him "turning cart wheels" along the side of the road, have supposed he was amusing himself and biding his time. He is only trying to invent a new mode of locomotion, so he could economize his legs, and do his errands with greater dispatch. Leap-frog is one of the methods of getting over the ground quickly. He found a natural genius for combining pleasure with business.

Sight Comes Back

Just Before Death
 Cincinnati, Ohio, June 19.--I can see Father, in heaven, I thank thee."
 The cry started the nurses of the Infirmary at the Masonic Home, at Board and Ontario Streets. It came from Hezekiah T. Bailey, who for five years had been totally blind, and had been an inmate of the Masonic Home since last June.

Sitting up in his narrow hospital bed, the old man, with an awed face described with delight the various articles in the room. One day he mentioned the chairs, the table and the medicine bottles in their methodical rows, and then, stretching out his arms to the window, he whispered over and over, "And God's blue sky over all. Oh, it is good! It is good!"

Although the old man had been ill from a complication of diseases for some time, his condition was not thought alarming, and with his restored sight he seemed to gain increased health and vitality. The doctors who came to him pronounced his sight perfect, and for two hours he sat up reading the papers with a zest born of five years of darkness and watched with unflinching delight and interest the passing of the clouds across the sky outside the window.

Then suddenly he turned to the nurse and said quietly, "I am very tired." Hardly had the words left his lips when he slipped back upon the pillows, and before the nurse could reach his side he was dead.

Two reasons are given for his death--one that the shock of his regained sight caused heart disease, and the other that the power to see was merely the final rally of a dying man.

A Model Home

We wonder why there are no more homes that can safely be spoken of as models. It would seem as if those who pass their lives in the country,--whose daily occupation bring them in constant contact with the varied beauties of field and forest, mountain and plain,--who are constant witnesses of Nature's great mysteries,--would of necessity, be filled with noble thoughts; that their eyes would gather continual delight from the beauties about them; and their whole lives shape themselves in grander forms as a natural result of their surroundings. Yet it is undeniable true that in gathering up riches for the future,--which after all they may never behold,--they forget the claims of the present, and allow their souls to go less instead of greater. So it comes to pass that the children going out of these houses, and finding themselves, as they often may, in refined and polite society for a time, become dissatisfied with home, and seek a life that will give them the advantages which they suppose they cannot obtain in the country. Is it not folly to be so intent upon the things which perish with the using, as to forget higher aims? Is it not an evil when parents allow themselves to be so absorbed by cares that they neglect to instruct their children in the proprieties of every day life, to say nothing of the small sweet courtesies, the little acts of grace so fruitful of good? A brief notice of a model home points out the effects of a better way. Supplement what the children learn at school with reading lessons at home. Reading aloud is good, will improve the reading of the reader, and give information to members of the home circle who may be obliged to work with their hands in the evening.

Men Make Their Own World
 One of the secrets of happiness is found in the habitual emphasis of pleasant things, and the persistent casting aside of all malign elements Men make their own world. We have read of a horticulturist who could not walk through a flower garden and see a rose bush covered with blossoms, without searching until he found one blighted leaf. There are men who cannot look upon a great picture without scrutinizing every inch of the canvas for some light or shade to criticize, and afterward they recall only the blemish. Yet there never was a tree so beautiful that it did not have one broken bough. There never was a book so wise but that it had one untruth or over-statement. Even Helen's brow held one little blemish. Scientists tell us there are spots on the sun.--Newell Dwight Hillis.

Do you know if you have the "tea eye"? Look in the mirror for the first indication of too much of the cheering cup. The New York Post Graduate Medical School states that a large proportion of patients who find their way to the eye clinics owe their trouble to the tea-pot, which always stands on the tenement house stove. Probably you only take tea occasionally, in which case the fear of the "tea eye" needn't worry you. Besides the tea doesn't go directly to the eyes. What actually happens is that persons who drink too much of it are improperly nourished, so that when a tiny cinder or speck of dust breaks through the feeble tissues here follow complications which call for the skill of the best surgeon. Excessive devotion to the cup "that goes not inebriate" causes a host of ailments, according to the Post Graduate Physicians. As a matter of fact it has its own inebriety, hardly less deadly than that of alcoholism. Thousands of children go to school improperly prepared for their work because they have access to the family teapot.

Building a Nation

Sir Thomas Shaugnessy speaks, of course, as the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, but at the same time what he says will appeal to the good sense of the Canadian people. If we are to build up a nation on this northern half of the continent, we must go on as we have begun, improve our lines of communication between the East and the West, and establish a community of interest between the manufacturers of Ontario and Quebec, and the merchants and farmers of the prairie country and British Columbia. To the end that a strong national consciousness may be evolved, the trend or traffic and social intercourse must follow the parallels of latitude rather than the meridians of longitude. An enlightened transportation policy will conduce to this end, and in addition, the tariff may be so regulated as to fix the channels of trade and commerce along inter-Provincial lines, and across the country from ocean to ocean. The extension of the Imperial preference will also tend to encourage our trade to follow Eastern and Western channels. Thus will Canada come to her own in transportation facilities, in the development of her vast natural resources, in the full consciousness of nationhood, and in her relationship to the rest of the Empire.—Toronto News.
