Amid thy silent bowers. 'Tis sad but sweet to dwell. Where falling leaves and drooping flowers Around me breathe farewell.

Along the sunset skies. Their glories melt in shade And like the love we fondly prize, Seem lovelier as they fade

A deep and crimson streak The dying leaves disclose; As on consumption's waning cheek, 'Mid ruin blooms the rose.

The scene each vision brings Of beauty in decay; Of fair and early faded things, Too exquisite to stay.

Of joys that come no more, Of flowers whose bloom has fled: Of farewells wept upon the shore, Of friends estranged or dead.

Of all that now may seem. To memory's tearful eye; The vanished beauty of a dream O'er which we gaze and sigh,

FOR THE PROVINCIAL WESLEYAN.] On Fiction.

Infidelity is one of the prominent features of the present age. It is systematically fostered and diffused in countries adjacent to our own, and by a people linked with, ourselves in language and daily intercourse.*

For its promotion, literature is cheapened and fashioned to the taste of every grade of society. It cannot be doubted that, through such an influence, our standard of morals is placed in imminent danger, and that our best merests are hazarded thereby.

Against this evil, it is desirable that the sympathies of the discreet, and the efforts of Winter.

BY MARY HOWITT. l'here's not a flower upon the hill, There's not a leaf upon the tree; The summer bird has left its bough, Bright child of sunshine, singing now, In spicy lands beyond the sea.

There's silence in the barvest-field, And blackness in the mountain glen, And clouds that will not pass away From the hill-tops for many a day, And stillness round the homes of men.

The old tree has an older look; The lonesome place is yet more dreary; They go not now the young and old, Slow wandering on by woods and wold;

The air is damp, the winds are cold, And summer paths are wet and weary. POR THE PROVINCIAL WESLEYAN

These are not questions which claim an answer from mere curiosity. Their fiction does this—it has no other design.—
The field of gratification which it displays is one of adventure—of unhallowed ambition—where everything is regulated by the Epicumere everything is regulate at hand, "This is life eternal, to know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom the only true God, and true God the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom that sent." But we wish to view this question with reference to the means whereby we attain the fulfilment of our desires, where the works of fiction? May they not implant works of fiction? May they not implant to expand the intellect, and purify the affect of the most of the read of the result and proposition with reference to the means where the most of the read of the result and proposition in the fulfilment of our desires, and the result and proposition in the fulfilment of our desires, and the result and proposition in the fulfilment of the read of the most of the read of the result and proposition in the most of the read works of fiction? May they not implant within us, or at least strengthen, the holiest principles of humanity? We conceive not. Truth cannot be reached by falsehood, "for no lie is of the truth." All that is unreal should be discarded—shunned—simply because it is false.

As we caught glimpses of it through the "sluff" there appeared to be a large quantity, but he observed there was only one fourth of an ounce. One of the first lessons we learnt from the conduct of others was, to take care not to let any except our own party know how much gold we were getting; and when they are our neighbours in digging not to let them know, so that one party may work next claim to another for a month, and each be ignorant of the others gains. Thoughts on the Present State of the World.

(Continued.) The progress of popular opinions on the subjec of civil government will sooner or later extend to Austria, which seems at present to maintain its hold on despotic power with all the stubborn tenacity of a death-grasp, as if impressed with the conviction that its time is short. The Austrian Emp for is surrounded with practical difficulties of no ordinary character, which menace him at every point. He scarcely dare offend the Russian Autocrat, from whom he received such material aid in suppressing the Hungarian revolt and whose further assistance he might soon require for a similar purpose. Yet he has reason to dread the consequences to himself and to his own Empire, were so powerful, so ambitious, and so politically unscrupulous a sovereign as Nichoiss to overthrow Turkey and place himself in immediate contiguity to the dominions of Austria. In the part Nicholas recently took to maintain the integrity of the Austrian empire, he was doubtiess carrying out a deep laid policy to acquire an influence in Europe, which, when be should Judge the fitting time had come to embroil Turkey in war and pounce on Constantinople, he might turn to advantage, either by securing cooperation or by inducing neutrality, thereby rendering the Ottoman empire, at a future, but not far distant juncture, a more easy prev.-Persons at a distance saw through the designs of Russia, and failed not, in warning tones, to predict the result. TEMPERANCE JUBILEE .- The friends of temperance in this city had a glorious jubilee last evening at the Temperance Temple. N. Gay street. Addresses were delivered by S. Morris Cochrane, J. McKim Duncan, and other eloquent friends of the cause, to utmost capacity, and among whom were a large number of ladies. The Blues' Band was in attendance and enlivened the comstrains. A number of songs and glees were also sung by an excellent vocal association. Altogether, it was a fitting celebration, and cause of humanity, and that too in the face which would have defeated almost any party or any cause save that which they had emblazoned upon their banner .- Balt. SCMETHING NEW .- Israel Higgins, of Salem, N. J., has invented a new elbow for stove-pipes. It is made of cast iron, and is cast in two parts, upon which are small flanges that are united firmly together by means of small bolts. The object is to make an elbow both cheaper and more durable than the common one.

A TUNNEL THROUGH THE ALPS .- The French engineers are busily employed in perfecting the bold project of excavating a tunnel under the Alps, to connect the Piedmontese railway with those of France. It is proposed to pass through the rountains rom Susa and Bardoneche to Modena, in Savoy, by a line ten miles shorter than over Mount Cenis. It is to be eight miles in length and a mile below the highest point of the pass. The estimated cost is a million and a half pounds sterling. An excavating machine, somewhat similar to the Hoosac borer, has been contrived by Chevalier Maus, the interests of social and commercial interto exercise a most beneficial influence upon on earth and good-will among men. By the completion of the tunnel the hitherto almost impassable barrier which separates Piedmont from her neighbours will be removed; and lovers of the picturesque will doubtless still prefer to encounter the keen air, the rough roads, and sublime scenery of a passage over the mountain to the more rapid transit of the railroad car.
