

FROM LESBIA'S JOURNAL.

I have always been very thankful that I am pretty. It sounds conceited to say so—and yet I could never see why good looks should be the one natural gift which it is necessary to ignore. Why, it is absurd! One must know what one looks like! How can one look in the glass without knowing it?

It was always glad of my share of beauty, at any rate I liked to see the pretty reflection smiling back at me; I liked to feel that I could always make myself look nice, even in shabby hats and turned dresses; I liked to meet the pleased, bright looks which people—especially old people—turned upon me as they passed; and, more than all, I liked the feeling that I am a pride and a pleasure to my father and mother.

I remember quite well the dreadful evening when we first arrived at our dilapidated London house, after father had failed and we had to leave our beautiful home in Liverpool. All our pictures and ornaments had been sold; and father looked around the dreary rooms so sadly that it made the tears come into my eyes just to see him; and then he turned to me and framed my face in his hands.

"Well, my dear, it is a comfort to have you to look at, at any rate!" he said. "Take care of your face—it is about the only pretty thing left us!" How could I help being pleased with my looks after that?

We were horribly dull in London; for we did not know any one in the district where we lived, and our rich relatives at Lancaster Gate did not by any means appear desirous of our society. Mother was disappointed at first, I think, for Ada and Alicia were only a few years older than I was, and there were always plenty of nice things going on in their set of which she had hoped I should come in for a share. But they took no notice of me except to ask us up to luncheon when no one was there, and to send the page with tickets for a concert just at the last moment when they found they could not go themselves. I used to feel that, if I had a poor little cousin cooped up in a dingy London house, after being accustomed to everything so different, I should love to try to give her a good time; but I do not think Alicia liked me, and Ada was entirely under her thumb.

One morning, however, a most unexpected event happened. Mother and I were sitting darning, and agreeing that children who made such tremendous holes in their stockings really deserved to go to the redoubtable when a knock came at the door and Mary appeared with a telegram addressed to me.

For a moment I was frightened out of my wits; the next I tore open the envelope, and saw at a glance that the message was from Ada. I read it aloud.

"Having a dinner-party tonight. Want you to come. Will call in carriage at five o'clock. Please be ready."

Mother and I stared at each other for a moment, and then burst out laughing. We knew so well what it meant. Some fine lady or other—the Honourable Miss Plantagenet or Lady Ponsonby de Tompkins—had sent an excuse at the last moment, the arrangements for the dinner had been upset, and every one had been in a panic of consternation. What were they to do? How on earth could another lady be present at an hour's notice? Then Ada, good-naturedly inclined, had thought herself of me.

the glass, and wondering what Miss Jones, the little dressmaker who had "made over" the dress for me only a week before, would have said if she could have seen the ruthless way in which I had pulled it to pieces. The discarded sleeves lay on the white counterpane, the neck-band grazed the toilet-table, while ends of thread were scattered all over the floor.

"You have taken possession of the lace, I see," observed my mother, smoothing with loving fingers the delicate folds with which I had draped my arms and neck. "Ah, money is well spent on really good lace—it always looks well!"

Ada and Alicia called for me in the afternoon; and very shabby and second-rate I felt, seated opposite to the fashionable figures in their towering hats, French kid gloves, and dainty dresses. Alicia was looking decidedly out of temper, and Ada came to me later on and asked me to sing, and a sudden fancy seizing me, I sang "The Oak and the Ash." It was a relief after all the elaborate French and Italian music which had gone before, and I received quite a round of applause as the last notes died away. Mr. Conquest advanced towards me, a smile lighting up his face.

"Faithful to your colors, Miss Ransome," he said meaningly; "it was a very appropriate selection."

"Lesbia," interposed Alicia coldly, "your mother has sent for you. It's rather early, so perhaps you had better slip away quietly without saying 'Good night' to any one. It might break up the party; and we don't want to lose our guests so soon."

"Oh, I say," cried Mr. Newstead eagerly, "you are not going yet! What an abominable shame! Can't you wait and give us one more song, at any rate? Is it those wretched horses you are afraid of? Do let them wait a little for once—your ladies are always so awfully considerate—it will do them no harm to wait on a warm night like this, Miss Ransome!"

"I'm afraid my poor old steed is well accustomed to waiting about!" I replied laughing. "It is only a cab horse, Mr. Newstead, and I'm ashamed to say I haven't for one moment thought of his feelings!"

Alicia flushed, and glanced hastily at Mr. Conquest to see if he had heard. What would she say if she knew I had told him that we lived in Elwin Square?

I had just finished writing the foregoing in my diary, and was leaning my chin on my hand, staring dreamily out at the dingy, deserted, rain-washed square, when an abominable knock came at the door, and I started straight up at the window. It was Mr. Conquest. I was so utterly surprised that I never stopped to think, but sprang up and waved my hand energetically.

"I'm afraid my poor old steed is well accustomed to waiting about!" I replied laughing. "It is only a cab horse, Mr. Newstead, and I'm ashamed to say I haven't for one moment thought of his feelings!"

Alicia leaned back in her chair with a complacent smile, and began toying with a magnificent diamond ring on the third finger of her left hand. I smiled blandly, but made no remark; whereupon, as if determined to make me speak, she held the ring towards me.

"What do you think of these stones, Lesbia? Aren't they magnificent?"

"Oh, splendid—perfect beauties! It's an engagement ring, I suppose?" I said blantly, at which Ada burst into a shrill fit of laughter; and Alicia, drawing herself together, replied demurely—

"Pray don't be so abrupt, Lesbia—it's very ill-bred! I don't care to make such things the subject of general conversation. I was in an exasperating fashion; but Ada was good-natured, as usual."

"Good gracious, Lesbia, what do you use for your complexion? You might give me the recipe! Did you ever see anything like it, Alicia?"

"People with red hair generally do have decent skins," observed Alicia, staring out of the window; and Ada's eyes twinkled as they ret me.

"You are going to have such a nice partner for dinner tonight, Lesbia," said Ada, changing the subject judiciously—"a man we have fallen in love with, and who is quite the lion of society just now—Mr. Conquest. Have you heard of him? He has come in for a lot of money and a lovely old place in the country within the last few years. The man whom he has to have taken in has failed us at the last moment—all the better for you, isn't it?"

"Well, as I said before," interrupted Alicia testily, "it is an absurd arrangement to send him in with the youngest lady present. Why shouldn't Lesbia go down with Frank Newstead? It would be far more suitable. You and mother talk so much about upsetting arrangements, but there would be almost nothing to alter if you did that."

"Yes, but Alicia, just think how it would look; you wouldn't like—Ada and Ada lowered her voice, being evidently anxious that I should not hear the rest of the sentence.

I was not introduced to any of the guests as they arrived in the evening, but sat quietly in the corner taking mental notes for my mother's benefit, and deciding afresh, as each lady entered the room, that I would have my next new dress made exactly like hers, until suddenly my attention was arrested by the sound of my own name, and I turned to find Alicia but a few paces off, talking eagerly to all the gray-haired men who were standing with her back to me.

half a dozen years ago; and now I have dropped in for a fortnight, and he—"

"Yes—poor father, his case is the opposite!" I sighed luxuriously.

"Well, but surely you find some alleviations in London—don't you, Miss Ransome? There are certain advantages, you know, which one can't have elsewhere. Haven't you found them out?"

"No; we are poor, you know, and we have found nothing but disadvantages. We live in Elwin Square—do you know it?—it is miles from here, and the picture of desolation—and we never go anywhere. I pine for a little music sometimes; but I have never left Liverpool on a concert-hall since we were in Liverpool. Think of that! Isn't it enough to break any one's spirit?"

He looked round at me at that with such a solemn, distressed expression that I could not help smiling; and then, somehow or other, we both began to laugh, and were as merry as possible during the rest of the meal.

When the gentlemen came up to the drawing-room, Alicia brought up the Mr. Newstead whom she had mentioned in the afternoon, and introduced him to me. He was younger and livelier than Mr. Conquest, and kept so closely by me that I had not a chance of speaking to any one else.

Alicia sang, and Mr. Conquest turned over the pages for her, and then went out to see me and to hear that they were not other; once or twice he looked across the room as if he would have liked to come and speak to me. Yes; he was certainly a very distinguished-looking man, and I rather liked his air of melancholy.

When my uncle and cousin Bob came home to dinner, they seemed surprised to see me and to hear that they were possessors of a box as well as of their ordinary stalls for the night's concert.

"Who sent you the—?" began Bob, and then stopped abruptly, in response to a quick warning glance from his mother.

We all drove off together in the family omnibus—six of us; and, when we arrived at the hall, I was sent to sit with Bob in the stalls.

His left thigh and arm were broken. He was brought to Milton, but was amputated near the thigh joint. The broken arm will also probably have been taken off. There is little hope of his recovery.

He Was Healthy.

Personal illustrations are usually in doubtful taste and sometimes are positively dangerous. A farmer was complained of for maintaining a nuisance in the shape of a pigstery; the neighbors asserted that such a pigstery was detrimental to their health. At the trial the rustic gentleman argued his own case, and summed up as follows: "The neighbors say, your honor, that hogs are unhealthy; I say they ain't. Look at me! Ain't I healthy?"—Youth's Companion.

On the Increase. Sc increasingly prevalent have scrofulous diseases become that we call the attention of our readers to the best blood purifier and alterative known, viz., Burdock Blood Bitter, which unlocks all clogged secretions and removes all blood diseases from common pimples to the worst scrofulous sore.

On Tuesday afternoon of last week, Mr Morrison, of the 13th con. of Hul- lald, had rather an expensive runaway accident. He left Clinton, having an old gentleman named Martin in the buggy with him. Just as they were go- ing down the slope on the base line near the slaughter houses, the snap on the breaching strap gave away, and as the buggy pressed on the horse it caused it to run away. Morrison did his best to hold the horse up, and might have succeeded had not the front axle broken, and the speed of the horse threw the buggy and its occupants overboard against the fence. Mr Martin being somewhat injured about the chest. The horse, being free from the buggy, ran along the road to where it is crossed by the railroad, and jumping the east cattle guard, ran along the track. Near the tank is a long bridge, and the horse galloped along the ties on the bridge until it was nearly over, when one of its legs dropped it through one of the openings, and snare like a pipe-stem. While the horse was lying on the bridge the south bound express came whizzing around the curve, but the sharp eye of the engineer noticed the obstruction, and he brought the train to a stand with- in a few feet of the beast, which was edged off of the bridge and shot to end its suffering. It was worth about $175.

HURON SIGNAL

FRIDAY, AUG. 2, 1889.

TO THOSE IN ARREAR.

For the past few weeks we have been sending out accounts to persons owing us for subscriptions, advertising and job-work, and will continue doing so, until all who owe us have received notification.

We hope everyone to whom an account is sent will at once forward the amount due to THE SIGNAL.

The amount in each instance is not large in itself, but when it is known that it is one of several hundred similar accounts, it will at once be seen that the total amount of money due us is large.

We have large paper and ink bills to meet regularly; replenishing our type and keeping our machinery in repair costs a lot of money; our employees have to be paid every Saturday night; and we depend upon our customers to furnish us with the necessary funds to enable us to meet our obligations.

No business can be carried on without money. If you have debtors you would like to have them pay you. Do unto others, therefore, as you would be done by.

Send by registered letter or money order.

GODERICH ORGAN COMPANY.

Tuesday next there will be submitted to the ratemakers of Goderich a by-law asking for $5,000 to promote the objects of the Goderich Organ Company, and it will be to the interest of every resident of the town to have the by-law carried.

Goderich has long been lacking in manufacturing industries, and now that an opportunity is offered of obtaining one which will employ a number of skilled artisans, and cause a large disbursement from the wage-earners who will be employed in the manufactory, every effort should be put forth to ensure its success.

The by-law to be submitted will entail a special rate in the shape of interest and sinking fund of $401.21, for twenty years, and if corresponding, may, far superior benefits were not to be derived from the outlay, THE SIGNAL would unhesitatingly oppose the scheme. But we have given careful thought and attention to the matter since its inception, and are prepared to show many advantages that would accrue to the town by the carrying of the by-law and the successful establishment of the enterprise. Amongst them are:

1. The influx of population by the bringing hither of some twenty skilled workmen and their families would amount to fully one hundred souls, and the clothing and feeding of that number would be a large item to divide up amongst our business men during the year.

2. The wages paid out to twenty competent workmen would not be less than $1,000 per month, and would mean $12,000 per annum of foreign capital distributed in town, for the product of the organ factory would be exchanged in the outside markets, and bring to us money that could be brought hither in no other way.

3. The employees, upon becoming householders, would aggregate in payment of taxes more than sufficient to pay the extra annual rate required during the continuance of the debentures, and the present taxpayers would be relieved of that payment entirely.

4. The organ factory will have no exemption from taxation of any kind, and the amount of taxes upon the building and plant would go considerably towards lessening the existing rate, thus making the granting of the bonus a valuable investment to the ratemakers.

5. The tendency would be for the employees of the factory to become permanent residents, in which case the outcome would be the purchase by them of town lots and the putting up of suitable dwellings, the result being an enhanced value for real estate, and an increased demand for building operations, which would give employment to our bricklayers, carpenters and laborers.

6. The purchase of raw material would create a market in our midst for qualities of lumber not at present saleable at this point, and would thereby put in circulation a sum of money that would further benefit our commercial interests.

7. The establishment of the factory would cause to be invested by the shareholders $10,000 which at present is practically lying idle, and it is a well-known fact that locked-up capital is of no benefit to any community.

8. During the present year the town has taken a step forward, and any man who fails to vote for the by-law, or who votes against it, votes for retrogression, inactivity, depression and hard times. Don't put back the hands of the clock.

9. The only men who would be injuriously affected by carrying the by-law are usurers and money-screw-ers, who want to keep the people of the town hard-up, so that they will be able to Jew borrowers to their hearts' desire.

10. One manufactory tends to draw another, and a successful institution of the kind contemplated would soon advertise the town abroad, as has been done for Guelph by Bell, for Woodstock by Karn and Thomas, for Clinton by Doherty, and for scores of other towns whose names have been brought to the front by enterprising manufacturers.

11. The work of the Goderich organ company will not be confined to the manufacture of organs, as it has already been arranged that the best grades of furniture will be turned out from the factory.

12. If this by-law were defeated every other manufacturing enterprise would give Goderich the cold shoulder, and look upon our town as a place lacking in push, progress and public spirit.

There are many other reasons that could be advanced, but the above are sufficient to show thinking men that the carrying of the by-law is a necessity at the present time. Any one of the reasons given should be sufficient to ensure the vote of every right-thinking freeholder in town. The man who cares not for the general good is too contracted and mean to be appealed to in a case of this kind, and our statement of the case is not for him. But to the intelligent, progressive, and pushing electors of Goderich who are not willing to allow the town to be quag-mired without putting forth an effort to help it, we appeal confidently to have the by-law supported on Tuesday next.

Poll every vote in every ward; bring out your neighbors; don't rest until the last vote is polled at 5 o'clock; and then confidently await the returns, which will put Goderich another day's march forward on the road to prosperity.

Confidence Begot of Success. So confident are the manufacturers of that world-famed remedy, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, that it will do all that they represent, in the cure of liver, blood and lung disease, that, after witnessing the palmaro cures for many years past, they now feel warranted in selling it (as they are wanting, through druggists) under a positive guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be refunded.

No medicine of ordinary merit could be sold under such a severe condition. It is warranted to its proprietors, and no other medicine for the diseases for which it is recommended was ever before sold under a guarantee of a cure or no pay. In all blood taints and impurities of whatever name or nature, it is most positive in its curative effects. Pimples, blotches, eruptions and all skin and scalp diseases are radically cured by this wonderful medicine. Scrofulous disease may affect the glands, causing swellings or tumors; the bones, causing "fever-sores," "white swellings" or "hip-joint disease" or the tissue of the lungs, in the palmaro cures for many years past, they now feel warranted in selling it (as they are wanting, through druggists) under a positive guarantee of its giving satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it will be refunded.

ON THE OLD BATTLE FIELD.

CELEBRATING THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY OF LUNDY'S LAKE.

Thousands Join in the Demonstration... Patriotic Speeches by Sir Adolphe Caron and Others. DRUMMONDVILLE, July 25.—The celebration of the 75th anniversary of the battle of Lundy's Lake...

Long before 2 o'clock thousands had assembled in and about the battle ground... The U. E. Loyalists were present by the score. The appearance of Sir A. P. Caron, Minister of Militia, accompanied by Dr. John Ferguson, M. P., and Hon. Adam Brown, M. P., was a signal for three rousing cheers.

Upon the platform were President Rev. George A. Bull, Vice-Presidents John A. Orchard, Secretary Wilson, Sir A. P. Caron, Dr. John Ferguson, M. P., Hon. Adam Brown, M. P., Dr. Canniff, Archibald Scarle, Joseph Briney, J. S. Briney, A. McLean Howard of Toronto, a delegation of Wentworth Pioneers and others.

Dr. Ferguson, M. P., was in the chair and opened the proceedings with a brief address upon the events of the day that had gathered the immense assemblage together... Sir Adolphe said that although of French descent he was a Canadian and loved the old British flag...

President George H. Mills of the Wentworth Pioneers moved and William Kirby of Niagara seconded a resolution favoring the undertaking of the work by the Dominion Government... Patriotic speeches were made by Rev. Mr. Fessenden, Rev. Canon Bull and others.

MR. FOSTER'S MARRIAGE.

William McDougall Upholds its Validity—His Argument. NEW YORK, July 25.—An Ottawa special to The World says: William McDougall, who is regarded as one of the best legal authorities in the Dominion, takes exception to the assertion which has been made that the recent marriage of Hon. George H. Foster, Minister of Finance, to Mrs. Chisholm in Chicago is illegal.

KINGSTON'S LATEST SENSATION.

A Son of the United States Consul Arrested on a Charge of Burglary. KINGSTON, July 25.—There has been no dearth of sensations in this city of late, and the latest—the arrest of a son of the United States Consul on a charge of burglary—is by no means the least. Last night a masked burglar entered the residence of Mr. William Martin, a widow living in Wellington street. He first tied the servant in the basement, and then proceeded upstairs to Mrs. Martin, who had been awakened by the noise and was on her way down stairs. The robber threatened a rifle if she made any outcry, but Mrs. Martin screamed. The burglar fired a shot, afterwards Mrs. Martin over the head with his revolver, but becoming alarmed he scampied without any plunder, leaving his cap and dark lantern behind him.

Twitcheil is a fine looking young fellow of a student, of Queen's College. He followed through the city public schools and Collegiate Institute, proving an apt and clever scholar. He was never known to do a dishonorable act. He is possessed of a very noble and generous spirit. For gentlemanly bearing a young man in the city could excel. It is thought that he was insane or at his exploit is the result of excessive drinking.

THE FASHIONS.

A Variety of Jottings that Will Interest the Fair Sex.

Braid is the most fashionable of all trimmings... Braid or embroidery or both in form most fashionable gowns. The stylish mode of making a silk gown is to have it in two shades of the same color.

The latest fancy in neck lingerie is the deep falling plisse and the narrow up-right ruche or sulphur-yellow gauze. The new mohairs come in all shades of color in "short" effects and in bare, shawl and checks of great beauty and effectiveness. Jackets are never out of fashion.

The vicissitudes of climate are trying to most constitutions, especially those to people having impure blood. For all such (and they constitute the majority), the best safeguard is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the use of which cleanses the blood and strengthens and invigorates the system.

The shortest courtship I ever heard of was that of an eminent jurist. He was on his way to hold court in a town, when he met a young woman returning from market. "How deep is the creek and what did you get for your butter?" asked the jurist.

MYSTIC WORDS.

I can recommend Dr Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for chronic diarrhoea, as I have used it for two years and it does nothing else that helps me like it. JANE TAYLOR, Mystic, P. Q. This medicine cures all summer complaints.

CONGREGATIONAL SINGING.

Dear brother, dear sister, sing! Don't sit in church with your mouth closed like a steel trap, but open it, and open it wide, and sing. Adjoining all the way through. Don't think that the organist and the minister are to give you a sacred concert, but remember that you, your very self, are to take an active part in the worship of God, and open your mouth and sing. It may be you are not a fine singer—few of us are. You need not attempt to lead the congregation in singing unless you know that you can do so. But you can sing well enough to take part. Above all, do not sit and stare into the future while your pastor strains soul and body to have the hymn sung. Get a hymn-book and look up the hymns, and sing. And if you will not sing, please do not criticize those that do the best they can. Better a tone that is incorrect than none at all. This word is to all "silent" worshippers in our churches.—M. Evans.

THE DOMINION'S TRADE.

OTTAWA, July 27.—The statement of goods entered for consumption in the Dominion, exclusive of British Columbia, for the twelve months ending June 30, shows a total of $103,402,446, upon which the duty payable was $18,778,981, an increase of up-ward of $6,000,000 in the value of goods. For the same period goods to the value of $86,014,884 were exported, against $86,122,653 in the preceding year. Close on a million dollars was added during June to the amount of credit of depositors in the Postoffice Savings Bank. $8233, and interest allowed to depositors and made principal at the close of the fiscal year, July 29, was $775,472. The repayments during the month came to $569,474.

A TIE UNDER THE OCEAN.

CANADA TO HAVE A TRANSATLANTIC CABLE.

The Success of the Scheme Assured—What Has Been Done and What is Being Done—A Construction Company Formed. OTTAWA, July 25.—That Canada is to have a direct cable to Great-Britain is an all but settled fact. Its consummation depends on the Dominion Government. An application is being made to them at present for the purchase of the Canadian Cable Company to the extent of $500,000.

It will be the shortest ocean cable of any. Entering the water at Westport, Ireland, it will run to Greenley Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a distance of only 1900 miles, as against 3100 to New York by Newfoundland, a saving of $400,000. The importance of this line is in the fact that where the resistance to the current is small, owing to the short line, instruments of much less power than usual will do the work and do it as well or better.

At Greenley Island the outpost station will be established. Mr. Gisborne, Government Superintendent of Telegraphs, is now surveying Greenley Island and approaches. The Gulf system of Government Telegraph is to be extended to meet the cable and the use of the whole system given to the cable company. This tremendous privilege brings the cable to Quebec without the expenditure of a cent for its construction. Indeed the new cable will be cheaper of any ever laid, about one-seventh of the cost.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Father and Daughter Drowned in the Bay—Suicide in a Police Station. Toronto, July 28.—Thomas World well known in business circles, and his 16-year-old daughter Madeline, while crossing the city from the Island in a row boat, about 10.30 Saturday night, were drowned. Two young men, Percival Parker and a lad named Harry, were rescued. The waves were running high and the little boat unable to cross in their rough direct to the city tried to beat down towards the eastern gaards in the previous year. "Est was his as it struck the bows would wash over, gradually filling the boat, until at last, when opposite Bay-street, she sank literally beneath the fated occupants' feet.

CHURCH CHOIRS.

The church choirs today are not what they were in the olden times. The singing is not in that religious vein that it was in the early days of our settlement. It is rather too much talk in the choir, and not enough attention to the religious services. Not one half of the praise given to the Almighty in our great churches is devoted to the chanting of hymns and psalms; on the contrary, it must be dis-pleasing. This order of things has almost grown to be universal throughout the Christian world. To my mind, the day of choirs is not to last long. I believe that the time is coming when the music will be done by the congregation.—Father Bourke in Globe-Democrat.

NOT AN ENTIRELY HOPELESS CASE.

The proprietor of a "matrimonial establishment" in Europe was one day visited by a lady of such extreme plainness that he was at first aghast. He assumed, however, to collect himself and assume his usual courteous manner. The lady proceeded to state that she had a considerable fortune, but that from some unaccountable reason, she had been unable to find a husband to her liking. She ended by asking: "Now don't you think you could find me a good party, sir?" "Ah, yes, madame," said the agent, "there is no telling there may be a blind man in at any moment."

A PUNCH OF SNAIF.

In a crowded city street an ill-natured mastiff seized a little dog by the throat, and began viciously shaking him. A crowd soon gathered. Words, blows and kicks failed to make the mastiff let go his hold. The little dog was howling pitifully. At this juncture when the lookers-on were wondering what to do, a young man, exquisitely dressed, came along. He at once prebended the situation. "Leave him to me," he said. "I can manage him."

Many Icebergs Encountered.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—The bark Teget, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool, Greenland encountered a remarkably stormy and perilous passage occupying 48 days, during which 47 large icebergs were passed. Where the Aprils Go. LONDON, July 25.—Liverpool bought 700,000 barrels of American apples and 1,500,000 barrels during the season recently ended. The importation of American apples by the United Kingdom is on a rapid increase.

THE HOME CIRCLE.

Hold crushed velvet over a pan of boiling water, and the steam will gradually raise the pile, which you can assist by brushing it in a contrary direction with a soft brush.

Brush the dust from black lace, sponge with green tea, and pin it on a blanket to dry, pulling it into shape as you pin along. Wet passe-montures must be rubbed with flannel and the lost beads replaced. Wash black cashmere in suds made of soap bark, rinse in clear water, then in a second water to which bluing has been added. If the goods are much faded, add a good deal of bluing and let the cashmere lie in this over night. Put it by the edges, and hang in a shady place to dry, without wringing, and press while still damp. A plain skirt need not be ripped.

In coloring dress goods there must be plenty of dye, the cloth must not be crowded, it must be aired often, and must have been very thoroughly wet before it was immersed in the dye. It should not be wrung, let it drain instead, change position on the line while draining or drying, press while damp until every crease is out of it, and then lay it away with as few folds in it as possible. The liquor in which soap bark has been boiled is excellent for washing lawns, cambrics and satens that are easily faded. They should be washed in warmer water than woolen goods. It is especially recommended for satens, as it preserves their original gloss. Iron on the wrong side while slightly damp. Brush black silk with a velvet brush or rub it with an old silk handkerchief; then sponge with alcohol and warm water on the wrong side, and let it drip dry. Do not iron or fold it. A French method is to sponge the silk with hot coffee strained through a muslin bag. Sponge it on the right side with a medium warm iron when partly dry.

ROYAL NUPTIALS.

Princess Louise of Wales Married to the Earl of Life. LONDON, July 27.—Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise Victoria Alexandra Dalgarno, eldest daughter of the Prince of Wales, was married at noon today to Alexander William George, Earl of Life, Knight of the Thistle. The ceremony was performed at the private chapel of Buckingham Palace. This was the first marriage that ever took place in the chapel, which is small, and the number of guests was therefore limited.

The ceremony officiating was the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, the Dean of Windsor, Domestic Chaplain of the Queen, the Rev. F. A. J. Hervey, Domestic Chaplain to the Prince of Wales, and the Rev. J. Selinger, Bishop of the Prince of Wales gave away the bride. The Princess of Wales was attired in pearl-grey satin brocaded with silver. Her Royal Highness also wore a tiara of diamonds.

A BROKEN ENGAGEMENT.

WABASH, Ind., July 26.—Sylvester C. Overman, a young man of good family, shot and killed Miss Madge Smith at Xenia, twelve miles south of this place, last night, and then took his own life. The two had been sweethearts since childhood and had, until a few days ago, been engaged. Miss Smith's friends recently persuaded her to break the engagement, because of Overman's convivial habits. Yesterday Overman wrote to the young lady, requesting her to reconsider her determination to cast him off, and said in the note that he would call in the evening for her answer. He called about 7 o'clock and the two had only been together a few moments when Miss Smith ran screaming from the room and out into the yard. Overman followed her, flourishing a revolver. Miss Smith dodged him and ran back into the house, where she fell in a faint. Before her parents could interfere to save her Overman pressed his pistol to her side and fired. He then turned the weapon against himself and fell beside his victim. Miss Smith was one of the belles of the place. Her father is a prominent physician.

A DOUBLE CAVE-IN.

SERIOUS LAND SLIDES AT THE ST. CLAIR TUNNEL Excavations. SARNIA, July 26.—Last night the bank at the west end of the St. Clair Tunnel excavation fell for a distance of about 100 feet down from 10 to 20 feet and carried with it a portable engine and a small building being constructed. About three hours later the excavation fell for a distance of about a length of 200 feet away and slid into the excavation, the earth covering up the track and a couple of cars. The trouble is apparently a leaky one.

TOOK HER LIFE AND HIS OWN.

A Broken Engagement the Cause of a Double Tragedy in Indiana. WABASH, Ind., July 26.—Sylvester C. Overman, a young man of good family, shot and killed Miss Madge Smith at Xenia, twelve miles south of this place, last night, and then took his own life. The two had been sweethearts since childhood and had, until a few days ago, been engaged. Miss Smith's friends recently persuaded her to break the engagement, because of Overman's convivial habits. Yesterday Overman wrote to the young lady, requesting her to reconsider her determination to cast him off, and said in the note that he would call in the evening for her answer. He called about 7 o'clock and the two had only been together a few moments when Miss Smith ran screaming from the room and out into the yard. Overman followed her, flourishing a revolver. Miss Smith dodged him and ran back into the house, where she fell in a faint. Before her parents could interfere to save her Overman pressed his pistol to her side and fired. He then turned the weapon against himself and fell beside his victim. Miss Smith was one of the belles of the place. Her father is a prominent physician.

THE SUCCESS OF THE SCHEME ASSURED.

OTTAWA, July 25.—That Canada is to have a direct cable to Great-Britain is an all but settled fact. Its consummation depends on the Dominion Government. An application is being made to them at present for the purchase of the Canadian Cable Company to the extent of $500,000. Mr. Doherty, Quebec, has already secured $390,000 in this England by private subscription and will return to England shortly to raise this sum to $500,000. Then with the Dominion guarantee he will place $1,000,000 in the hands of the financial agents and invite subscriptions for the balance of $700,000, which will be eagerly taken up.

NOT AN ENTIRELY HOPELESS CASE.

The proprietor of a "matrimonial establishment" in Europe was one day visited by a lady of such extreme plainness that he was at first aghast. He assumed, however, to collect himself and assume his usual courteous manner. The lady proceeded to state that she had a considerable fortune, but that from some unaccountable reason, she had been unable to find a husband to her liking. She ended by asking: "Now don't you think you could find me a good party, sir?" "Ah, yes, madame," said the agent, "there is no telling there may be a blind man in at any moment."

A PUNCH OF SNAIF.

In a crowded city street an ill-natured mastiff seized a little dog by the throat, and began viciously shaking him. A crowd soon gathered. Words, blows and kicks failed to make the mastiff let go his hold. The little dog was howling pitifully. At this juncture when the lookers-on were wondering what to do, a young man, exquisitely dressed, came along. He at once prebended the situation. "Leave him to me," he said. "I can manage him."
