CHAPTER XIV.
(To be Continued.)

"By George, Sen, you have hit it this time! It is magnificent! It's herself, alive and breathing! Sn-perb!"

Senley Tyers lay back and shrugged his shoulders.

"Think so? Thanks. I like to have your praise, Vane, though I am painfully conscious all the time that you know nothing about it."

Vane laughed, his eyes still on the picture.

"But it is good, isn't it? You yourself know it, don't you?" he said. "I should think Lady Florence must be pleased with it. By George I should be, if you were painting it for me! This will make a sensation at the Academy, Sen."

"Yes; the fools who know nothing will crowd round it and talk much," said Tyers. "And you think it is like her? You ought to know. You are an old friend of Lady Florence, aren't you, Vane?"

Vane nodded. He seemed scarcely able to withdraw his eyes from the portrait.

"Yes," he said, "quite old friends. I like her—Oh, by the way, I hope you and she get on better."

Senley Tyers looked down at the rug upon which his feet rested.

"Yes; I think we are more amiable," he said.

"That was all nonsense about the handkerchief, you know," said Vane.

"Perhaps it was," assented Tyers; then, after a pause, he said, with well-simulated carelessness: "Did it ever strike you as remarkable that so beautiful a woman should remain unmarried, Tempest?"

Vane thought a moment.

"Well, I suppose it is rather odd," he said, as if the idea had not occurred to him before. "But she is still very young, isn't she? It's her own fault, I should think, if she hasn't married. I believe I've heard that she has had several offers. One or two men, I know, were mad about her—stark, staring mad."

He thought a moment; then he laughed.

"It's rather strange, that," he said. "What?" asked Senley Tyers.

"Why, that when Lady Florence does strike, she strikes deep. The fellows who fall in love with her just rave about her. I remember one man who used to tremble and turn pale when she entered the room, and whose head went round like a top when she spoke to him."

WOMAN SICK FOR YEARS Wants Other Women to Know How She was Finally Restored to Health.

Hammond, Ont. — "I am passing through the Change of Life and for two years had hot flushes very bad, headaches, soreness in the back of head, was constipated, and had weak, nervous feelings. The doctor who attended me for a number of years did not help me, but I have been entirely relieved of the above symptoms by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills, and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LOUIS BEAUCAGE, Sr., Hammond, Ont., Canada.

New Brunswick, Canada. — "I can highly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any suffering woman. I have taken it for female weakness and painful menstruation and it cured me." — Mrs. DEVERE BARBOUR, Harvey Bank, New Brunswick, Canada.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Senley Tyers looked at him with grave earnestness.

"She is very lovely," he said, as if absent. "You never felt like that, Tempest?" he added, suddenly.

Vane laughed.

"No," he said—"lucky for me. The livine Florence is not for the likes of a poor devil such as I am. She is fit to be a duchess—will be, I should think."

"No doubt," said Senley Tyers.

He rose and took up his brush and palette.

"I'll clear out," said Vane. "By the way, Sen, I want you to come to supper with some fellows at my room in the ninth. It's supposed to be a kind of farewell spread, though when and where I'm going I haven't the least idea."

"Perhaps I could tell you the approximate date, if I knew how much money you have left," said Senley Tyers, with a cynical laugh.

Vane colored.

"Oh! I'm still quite flush," he said. "By the way, Sen"—he hesitated, and aid his hand on Tyers' shoulder—"if you should happen to be short and want any coin—don't you know?"

Senley Tyers smiled.

"Thanks," he said; "that is like you. If I were a sensible man, I should accept a few hundred, and save them from the fate of the rest, but I'm not sensible. I've plenty of money, my dear Vane. The Duchess of Mudshire paid me for what she calls her portrait, yesterday. That also will be a success, as she admitted, though she nearly went as far as to call me a brute when she gave me the duke's check. I had offered to paint her as she really was, one afternoon, and she didn't like it."

Vane laughed.

"Geniuses are permitted a certain amount of eccentricity and side aren't they, Sen?" he said. "Well, bye-bye. Don't forget the ninth; and he went down the stairs, humming light-heartedly, his cigarette in his lips, his hat a little on one side, his eyes shining brightly; and Senley Tyers dropped into a chair again, and shading his eyes, looked long and thoughtfully at the lovely face on the canvas.

"What was he hiding?" he muttered. "Something happened down here in the west that he did not tell me, and does not mean to tell me. That won't do. You must not be permitted to keep any secrets from me, my decoy duck."

CHAPTER XV.

The ninth came round, and with it Vane's supper-party. Ninety-eight St. James's Street was run by a Mrs. Porter, and her husband. She had been a cook, "and a good cook, too," in a noble family, and her husband had been a valet. They had saved money, married, and taken No. 98 St. James's Street, and made a very comfortable living out of the young fellows who rented their rooms.

Vane was a favorite of both, and Mrs. Porter was always ready to exert herself in his behalf. When he gave a spread she invariably cooked the dishes with her own hands, and Porter waited at table, looking like a clergyman, "or more so," as Lord Wally remarked.

Porter had dropped into the habit of playing valet to Vane, and was one of those persons who almost felt aggrieved and sorrowful when Vane paid his long-gwing bill.

It was a choice gathering of fine spirits that filled his pretty sitting-room. In addition to Dacre, Glossop, and Raymond, were a couple of Guardsmen; old Hubbard, the best story-teller in London; and the junior Juggins, as Lord Arthur Glenham was invariably called.

This youth, of little more than twenty-two summers, had contrived to run through a couple of hundred thousand pounds in his short manhood, and was popularly supposed not to have a penny left, though he was still the best dressed man in London, drove a four-in-hand, and was always ready to bet on any conceivable object; and it may be added, that he had never been happy or in better spirits than at the present time.

They came in well up to time—twelve o'clock, laughing and chaffing, presenting the spectacle of a group of strong, able-bodied men who had never done a day's work in their lives; dances, epures, dones in the world's eye, and to the casual observer, of no value whatever. And yet it was just such men as these who fought their way through the Crimea, who starved and rotted and died in the trenches before Sebastopol without a murmur, or rode up the fatal pass of Baikalava with a laugh and a jest on their lips; and it is just such men as these who will do it again whenever they are called upon.

Taller than them all, Vane, turned out by Porter in faultless evening-dress, received them with that frank and light-hearted warmth and gaiety which made him such a perfect host and went far to account for his great popularity.

"How do, boys?" he said, as they came in. "Baby, you come and sit by me; Glossop, you're answerable for the spread—you and Mrs. Porter. By love! you should have seen her face when I handed her your menu. 'Mr. Glossop must think I'm a French cook,' she said.

"She's better than French—she's Irish," said Glossop, sententiously as he scanned the table. "I'll back an Irish woman, who's learned her business, against any French chef-ong. She's all right; you tell her I said so, Porter; and he nodded to the gratified husband.

Glossop's confidence seemed to be well placed. The supper was pronounced a masterpiece, from the red auilet en papillote to the rice pudding with Vane's initials in ginger. The grilled bones were voted perfect, and the claret and champagne, both of famous vintages, satisfied even Mr. Hubbard, an authority on all kinds of drinks.

It was a merry party. The Baby, with his beautiful complexion flushed like that of a girl, at her first dance, recounted his experiences of a day on drag driven by a green hand, and intimated the screams and cries of the omen as the coach turned over like turtle—"Boys, just like the turtle, give you my word. Madge Brabazon of the Coronet, was on the box, and she was the first off. She slung to me like a limpet. 'Oh, Baby,' she wailed, 'I've broken both legs, and I've got to dance to-night. What shall I do?' you could have heard her mile off, picked her up and persuaded her that she hadn't got a fracture about her; but I had to make her dance first, 'or should have seen us footing it ollemly in the road with the rest of the coach-load, screaming and sobbing and the horses on their sides kicking and plunging."

"That reminds me," began Hubbard, he recounted; and off he started on a story that sent the party into fits of laughter.

Story succeeded story, as dish succeeded dish and wine followed wine. Vane sat at the head of the table, his handsome face lighted up with its frank, debonaire smile. He was never happier than when he was surrounded by happiness of his own providing. He listened to one and another, and joined in the free laughter which was at its height, when the door opened and Senley Tyers entered.

He was in evening dress, like the rest, but somehow it seemed to differ from theirs. There was a certain overdone neatness and preciseness about the neck-tie, perhaps, which marked it off and distinguished it.

Vane beckoned him to a chair, which Porter placed at the table, and shook hands, and the rest of the men nodded and went on almost without a break with their light chaff and laughter.

"What made you so late?" asked Vane.

"I thought you said one o'clock," replied Senley Tyers.

And he eat his supper almost in silence. No one seemed to pay any attention to him. He was like a man apart and outside the ring.

The supper was over at last, the table cleared, and as if by magic, he cards made their appearance.

Vane, as he moved to and fro, came upon Lord Wally and touched his arm.

"Steady young 'un," he said, in the tone an experienced man of the world uses to a junior. "Don't play high, specially with Dacre."

"All right, Tempest," said the boy, with his girlish smile. "I promise."

The men settled down—some to poker, some to baccarat. Vane joined the latter game. Senley Tyers, excusing himself on the score of ignorance, sauntered around the room with a cigarette in his lips.

Vane looked round presently. He saw that Lord Raymond was at Dacre's table, and he rose and laid his arm on his shoulder. He would save him if he could.

"Go and take my place, Baby," he said.

The lad raised his flushed face exultingly for a moment, then got up. He did not dream of disobeying or refusing a request of his hero and model.

Dacre glanced at Vane, then nodded.

"All right," he said; and Vane knew that his self-sacrifice would cost him dearly.

The play was high, grew higher. The rooms were warm, the wine circulated freely: the expert Porter filled the glasses with the silent precision of an automaton.

Suddenly, why or wherefore Vane will never know, the vision of the Witches' Caldron rose before him, and he saw, amidst the clouds of tobacco smoke, the face and form of Nora, and heard above the laughter and the hot, swift call of the cards, her clear, low, bell-like voice.

He played the wrong card and lost a heavy stake.

"Hallo, Tempest!" said Glossop. "What's the devil the matter with you? You had the ace!"

"I know," said Vane, apologetically. "I beg your pardon."

Tennis, a Character

BY RUTH CAMERON

Did you ever notice how much of a man's character he will show in playing a game?

Watch any group of people a half hour at a game of skill or chance and you will find out as much about their characters as you would in half a day of that guarded, last-forward conversation which is the ordinary intercourse between human beings.

There is the man who plays a splendid game when he finds himself on the flood tide of success but begins to lose heart and skill if the tide turns against him; and, on the other hand, there is the man who plays like fury when he is getting beaten but softens when he has begun to prosper.

Can't you imagine just how these two people will act in the face of failure or prosperity in the game of life?

Then there is the man who only tries to beat his opponent; and the man who also tries to beat his own game. There is the man who begins brilliantly but never advances far and there is the man who starts slowly and even deliberately sacrifices his first games to making experiments and learning how to do the thing just right. It takes him a longer time to come, but when he comes he comes fast.

There is the man who is so unbur-

The Grand Jury.

The grand jury is a collection of twelve spotless citizens who are paid for the day for sitting upon the suspects of a law in two or three places. Some times a jury will sit down so hard on an offender that it will take thirty days in the county jail to straighten him out.

The most common offense with which the grand jury has to deal is the nefarious practice of selling red liquor by the half pint behind the lively barn. This resort is usually known as a "blind pig," but it can be with great ease by anybody with two bits and a deep thirst. Whenever a total abstinence runs into it, he breaks out and takes the proprietor before the grand jury, which is obliged by law to sample the goods in a profane and general manner and decide whether a ten-quart pail of the product would intoxicate a growing boy. If a brother of the bootlegger happens to be on the jury, the "blind pig" is punished severely by being closed for days in succession.

The grand jury is also frequently called upon to suppress with an iron hand the practice of playing penny ante at the Commercial club rooms. It is a humiliating thing for a citizen who can write his check for five figures to be hauled up before the grand jury and obliged to confess to being robbed of 69 cents and a new 50-cent necktie in a poker game. A grand jury composed of men who buck the board of trade for a living will take keen delight in indicting a prosperous business man for winning 75 cents with the aid of a cold deck.

The grand jury is seldom called upon to sit on people who distribute silver ware and souvenir spoons; of bridge whist parties, neither does it interfere with the wheel of fortune at the county fair. At every session of the grand jury somebody rushes in with a request that his neighbor be indicted for running his tongue out over the back fence or stealing the eggs from a Plymouth Rock hen. This is hard on the jury, as it forces

Tennis, a Character Test.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever notice how much of a man's character he will show in playing a game?

Watch any group of people a half hour at a game of skill or chance and you will find out as much about their characters as you would in half a day of that guarded, heat-flooded, forward conversation which is the ordinary intercourse between human beings.

There is the man who plays a good game when he finds himself on the flood tide of success but begins to lose heart and skill if the tide turns against him; and, on the other hand, there is the man who plays like a hero when he is getting beaten but when he has begun to prosper, can't you imagine just how these two people will act in the face of failure or prosperity in the game of life?

Then there is the man who only tries to beat his opponent; and the man who also tries to beat his own game. There is the man who begins brilliantly but never advances far and there is the man who starts slowly and even deliberately sacrifices his first games to making experiments and learning how to do the thing just right. It takes him a longer time to come, but when he comes he comes fast.

There is the man who is so un-ably grumpy if he loses, and the man who is unbearably puffed up when he wins.

And then there is the man who always has an excuse. In watching a game of tennis, did you ever notice that a game is seldom lost because its loser is admittedly inferior to the winner. With nine out of ten people it is "This racket is miserable." "I don't know what is the matter with me to-day." and so on, ad infinitum and ad nauseum. The man who can lose a game without making a single excuse is a rare but delightful mortal. Games are a great test of the sense of honor. There is nothing I love more than to see a player with so fine a sense of honor that when a point is doubtful he would rather concede it to his opponent than keep it himself. He is the man I would trust to the very last ditch in business.

I can still remember the thrill that went through me years ago when I read how May Sutton, one of the international tennis players, deliberately served two balls into the net when the umpire had decided a point in favor which she felt belonged to her opponent. To my mind, the glory of that play was worth the glory of the championship.

It seems to me that if I were selecting a husband I would like to see him play a game of tennis. If he played heartily, squarely and generously, I'd know he was a pretty safe man to marry.

Talked Too Much.

The Wootton-Siever case is still occupying the attention of the racing set.

In one of the sporting clubs the other day the story was told of a dying jockey who gave to his son this parting advice: "Never talk, my son! I talked too much once, and I suffered for it."

The dying man explained that he was riding in a race in which there were only two runners. He had been instructed to let the other horse win, and half-way through the race, when they were neck-and-neck, he said to the other jockey: "You needn't ride so hard. I'm not going to win."

"Oh, aren't you?" said the other jockey, and he immediately fell off his horse, so the first jockey had to win.

The second jockey had apparently received the same instructions as the winner.

President Barter

EXPRESSES HIS THANKS.

Editor The Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—On behalf of the St. John's Truckmen's Protective Union, allow me to return my sincere and heartfelt thanks to the following mercantile gentlemen who so kindly received the committee appointed by the Union to wait upon them yesterday, namely, Job Brothers, Mr. Franklin, Mr. Monroe, Mr. Hickman, Mr. Barr, Mr. A. S. Rendell, Mr. R. G. Rendell, Bishop & Sons, Alan Goodridge, Mr. A. H. Murray, Messrs. Bowring & Mann, Mr. Grive, Hon. John Harvey, Mr. Tomlinson, Mr. Ryan.

The above gentlemen have promised to continue to give their work to the Truckmen's Union, and stated that the Union men with very few exceptions have always handled their fish and oil with great satisfaction to all concerned, and we hope for the future to still do better.

Messrs. Harvey and Outerbridge received us very kindly with regard to the barge and stated that they in no way wanted to interfere or injure the truckmen in the legitimate way of living.

There is one thing we would state, sir, that we have no objections to the barge being used on the South Side.

Again, allow me to sincerely thank the above gentlemen.

Wishing them every success in business, I remain, yours, on behalf of the St. John's Truckmen's Protective Union.

J. BARTER, President.

P.S.—I regret, sir, that the lighter in question has been laid aside for the present, and will in no way interfere with the truckmen in the future.

Last Night's Dance.

The officers of the Red Cross Liner Stephano held a dance in the British Hall. Over seventy tourists from the ship attended, besides over a hundred people from the city and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The music discoursed by the Stephano's orchestra was pleasing. Refreshments were served during the evening by Mr. J. Robinson. Those in charge of the arrangements were second officer Tucker, Engineer Duffett and Steward—all Newfoundlanders—are to be congratulated on the success achieved. The dance, which will be an annual affair in future, terminated at two o'clock this morning.

Girl's Nerves Fully Restored.

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used.

Too many girls grow up with weak, anemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indoor life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause.

The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure is doing wonders for many thousands of girls whose parents had almost despaired of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.

Mrs. J. Bagnall, 395 Woodville avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood, and any medicines she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with wonderful results. This treatment has built up her system and so strengthened the nerves that she feels like another girl."

The Grand Jury.

The grand jury is a collection of twelve spotless citizens who are paid by the day for sitting upon people suspected of breaking the law in two or three places. Sometimes a jury will sit down so hard on an offender that it will take thirty days in the county jail to straighten him out.

The most common offense with which the grand jury has to deal is the nefarious practice of selling red liquor by the half pint behind the livery barn. This resort is usually known as a "blind pig," but it can be found with great ease by anybody with two legs and a deep thirst. Whenever a retail abstinence runs into it, he backs out and takes the proprietor before the grand jury, which is obliged by law to sample the goods in a profuse and gentlemanly manner and decide whether a ten-quart pail of the product would intoxicate a growing boy. If a brother of the bootlegger happens to be on the jury, the "blind pig" is punished severely by being closed every week for our preparations. Does this mean that people are not buying them?

The Dolorous Way.

As mortal man grows older he has pains in hoof or shoulder, by a thousand aches, and wrenchings all his weary frame is torn; he has headache and hay fever till he is a stout believer in the theory of the poet that the race was made to incur. He has gout or rheumatism, and he's prone to pessimism, and he takes a thousand balaams, and the bottles strew the yard; he has grip and influenza till his soul is in a frenzy, and he longs to end the journey, for this life is beastly hard. And his system's revolution is Dame Nature's retribution for the folly of his conduct in the days of long ago; in his anguish nearly fainting, he is paying for the painting, for the was-sal and the ruffling that his evenings used to know. We may dance and have our inning in our manhood's bright beginning, but we all must pay the fiddler, pay him soon or pay him late, and a million men are paying for the dancing and the playing, who are charging up their troubles to misfortune or to fate.

Stafford's Phoratorine Cough Mixture will relieve you of that miserable cough you have had for a long time. Try a bottle. Price 25 cents; postage 5 cents extra.—sept.17,t

Mr. S. R. Oakley who was on a visit to Toronto, returned on Friday last. Mr. Oakley was accompanied by his son, Raymond, to Toronto, who remained there to attend College for a year.

On Tuesday last owing to the heavy downpour of rain Mr. D. Pelley's winter cut of logs were all washed out into the harbour and a great lot of trouble is being gone through trying to collect them again. The oldest inhabitants say they never saw such a flood in the rivers here before.

Carpenter Gillingham is now engaged on the C. of E. Church here which we hope to see completed within a short while.

On Wednesday the C. of E. S. S. intend holding the annual picnic; an enjoyable time is expected.

12 Tumors Removed Without An Operation

Silver Lake, Ont., Sept. 20, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Currah—I am enjoying better health than I have for eight years, and I think I am entirely cured. I have none of the old symptoms. I am very grateful for my present health, and think Orange Lily is the greatest treatment for women I ever knew. We use in my case caused 12 tumors or growths of some sort to be removed. Some were as large as a hen's egg, and others smaller. You may use my case in your advertisement, for the size of a walnut. I thought it cannot describe all the good it has done for me. Louise E. Blye.

This letter gives an indication of the positive benefits that always attend the use of Orange Lily. It is an applied treatment and comes in direct contact with the suffering organs, producing results from the start in all cases of women's disorders, including painful periods, falling of womb, irregularities, leucorrhoea, etc. 10 days' treatment absolutely free to any suffering woman who has not yet tried it. If she will send me her address, enclosed stamps and address MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

SATURDAY, Sept. 20th, 1913.

The Policy of Sir Robert Bond.

The basis of the arrangement made between the Liberal Party and the F. P. U. is one of policy. But at the same time Sir Robert Bond includes a number of Union men as candidates of his party at the coming elections. Among those are President Coaker and Messrs. Abbott and Winsor for Bonavista Bay district. Other names of Union men will be announced subsequently. All Sir Robert's candidates, whether Union men or non-Union men, will be pledged members of his party. The F. P. U. has undertaken to give an undivided and loyal support to the Liberal Leader and Party, and the members of the Union who may be elected as supporters of Sir Robert Bond and his party, to give a loyal support to the Government on the basis of the Manifesto to be issued by the Liberal Leader, which is to include the subject matter of certain planks of the Bonavista platform of F. P. U.

This is the only basis on which the pledge of mutual loyalty and support has been given. The other planks of the Bonavista platform do not affect the attitude of any member of the party and are not regarded as a basis on which the support of any Government Sir Robert Bond may form is based. We repeat the Manifesto of Sir Robert Bond will contain the bond of union on which the Opposition party has been formed.

It is therefore necessary to await the issue of Sir Robert's Manifesto before forming a judgment as to what the policy of the Opposition Party will be. Anything else is likely to be misunderstood and to give rise to a misapprehension of the policy of the United Opposition Party.

Mayor Ellis.

One of the most curious phases in politics is the objection raised by some Tories to Mr. W. J. Ellis as a Liberal candidate for the West. The objection is that he is Mayor of the city. The funniest feature of it is that it comes from the Tory party which had Mr. Kennedy as Municipal Councillor and M.H.A. for the West End, at one and the same time. The absurdity of the objection will be manifest also when it is remembered that the Hon. J. R. Bennett was city councillor and member of the Legislature at the same time, and an exact parallel of the present case is found in the election of Mr. George Shea as M.H.A. for the East End at the time he was Mayor of the city. Whoever heard it seriously alleged that the Lord Mayor of London should not be a member of the city or elsewhere in the House of Commons? The objection is too trivial to merit any lengthy observations. Suffice it to say, that the great Joseph Chamberlain's success in the House of Commons and as a Departmental head was based on the experience he gained as Mayor of Birmingham.

Narrow Escape.

Passengers by the Prospero report that the schooner Maria George which was dismantled and abandoned off Cape Bonavista during a terrific gale of Thursday night, is now in the possession of a man named Morris, of Trinity, who, it is said, will have the hull towed to St. John's. The crew, we are told, had a narrow escape with their lives. They had to launch a boat in a heavy sea and were nearly swamped while rowing to land.

SIR WALTER SCOTT died 1832, aged 61. Scottish novelist and poet. In creation of character he comes nearest to Shakespeare. As the poet of the joy of battle, there are passages in which he surpasses Homer. Deterred by his lameness from being a man of action, a soldier Scott had no high opinion of literary fame or of the literary life. The brief words in which Lockhart describes the closing scene are among the most beautiful passages in our literature "Good-night, Sir Walter. CHURCH OF ENGLAND CATHEDRAL, consecrated 1850.
 For Love is Heaven and Heaven is Love."

Several western bankers are trawling at Battle Har., and all are doing well. Fish was very plentiful on the French Shore last week. At Quirpon a good deal of fish is taken in traps. Aero Broughams For Doctors

About Aeroplanes Built for Special Purposes.

The very latest development of the aeroplane was seen at Aldershot, when Colonel Cody, a few days before his fatal accident, successfully tested his "flying surgeon."

This ambulance aeroplane, as it has also been called, is intended to carry surgeons and surgical appliances swiftly to any outlying part of a battlefield, where they are urgently needed, from the hospitals at the base.

It contains a field operating table and a whole outfit of surgical instruments and appliances, made of the lightest possible materials and packed in the most compact form.

The flying surgeon has been designed by Colonel Donegan of the Royal Army Medical Corps, and it is expected that the idea will quickly be taken up by Continental armies.

But this is not the only aeroplane that has been designed for a special purpose. The "neroyacht," as it has been dubbed, has appeared on the scene.

It has a sort of limousine body for the pilot and passenger, and things are much more comfortable now than in the days when the pilot was unprotected from the cold and the hurricane force of the wind. In many of the Army aeroplanes the pilot is quite inclosed. But the world's aeroplane de luxe is probably that constructed last autumn for Lincoln Regazzoni, a Chicago banker.

The ordinary passenger's seat was replaced by an elaborate compartment, constructed by a firm of coach builders, of aluminum and the lightest of woods, and containing an armchair, dove-colored upholstery and cushions, and a silver vase for flowers.

Mica, of course, took the place of glass in the windows. The air-loving banker engaged Harry Ely, the well known flying man, as his private pilot at $1,000 a year.

The German and Dutch armies have both got bomb aeroplanes—planes specially designed to hold rows of smoke or chemical bombs which, the moment one has been set free, move automatically along till another is in position over the spot in the floor. The smoke bombs spread vast clouds of dense smoke which sink slowly to the ground, covering the escape of the aeroplane or of the airship it may be escorting.

Different countries are experimenting with an "invisible" aeroplane, one that will be so difficult to see that it will baffle the enemies' marksmen.

Early this year France had among its 400 odd "avions" or military aeroplanes, three tinted a cloudy blue on the underside of the wings and body in the hope that except at short distances they would fade invisibly into the sky. But the idea does not seem to have caught on.

Keep Out of the Past.

Whatever you do in this wonderful world,

In business, in church or at play, Whichever of gain or loss you have met

With the others who go away, Keep out of the past, From the first to the last, And away from its worries start.

The present has wealth, you would never suspect, If prudent you are and wisely elect, To live in the light of to-day.

The things that are past did very well once, To-day they are dusty and stale, That trouble you had with your fellow-men— Did you struggle in vain and fail?

What of it indeed? There is all the more need That you start on a different trail, Don't take to the woods, whatever you do.

Just look right ahead, there's a fortune for you In keeping a well-timmed sail, So cramped can we be in our mental states.

So burdened with night-have-beens That life will become a woful waste For its many outs and ins, But stop and reflect You will never be wrecked By your own or another's sins, If the past you will keep in its proper place.

And meet what is yours with a candid face— 'Tis the man of today who wins.

That counterfeit banknotes, so skillfully executed as to deceive local bankers and shop-keepers were made by convicts of Peterhead prison, was the startling discovery made by Scotland Yard detectives. The convicts had used paper on which rations had been served them.

BOSTON, To-day.

Maitre Fernand Labori, Paris, who led the fight which freed Caspala Dreyfus from Devil Island, is ill in this city. He was stricken with appendicitis, following a meeting of the American Bar Association, at Montreal, which he attended. Attack came while he was enroute here; upon arrival here he was operated on.

LIVERPOOL, To-day.

Strikers accepted the offer to reinstate men who are willing to handle the traffic which under the law the Company must accept, but they made their acceptance depend on the acquiescence of men from Birmingham and other strike centre. The Birmingham Labor leaders are still trying to force a general strike. They met the committee of the National Union and the result of the decisions reached will be announced to-day.

LONDON, To-day.

The situation in London improved last night. Busmen who had not already gone out agreed to a truce pending arbitration of their demands by the Board of Trade. Meanwhile, however, motomen and conductors of the Tilling Omnibus Company will remain idle, which will keep 500 busses off the streets. Two of the Motor Bus Companies which have agreed to recognize the Men's Unions will continue to operate their vehicles, even if arbitration fails, and the danger of a railway strike is over.

BROOKLINE, Mass., To-day.

An American youth, scarcely out of his teens, carved a niche for himself in the international sporting history here yesterday, when Francis Quimet tied with England's most famous golfers, Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, in the final round of the National Open Championship, as a result of his wonderful exhibition of golfing skill he will be America's sole representative in the 18 hole three ball medal play off of a tie which exists between the trio, each of whom turned in a card of 204 for 72 holes, contested the past two days.

LONDON, To-day.

There is now a National foreign policy in the States which may be called imperialistic or not as one chooses, says the Spectator yesterday, summarizing the work of President Wilson's administering, and crediting President Roosevelt with extending the Monroe Doctrine so as to establish Protectorates over Santo Domingo and Honduras. The Spectator adds, the Treaty with Nicaragua, which Mr. Bryan hopes to ratify, means the Democrats have adopted boldly, the foreign policy of the Republicans. It seemed unlikely such a thing could even happen, but the character of the Nicaragua treaty leaves us in no doubt. It is evident Bryan has taken over Roosevelt's policy, an event comparable with the adoption of Lord Lansdowne's policy by Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Secretary. The immediate motive of this national foreign policy is of course, to be found in the Panama Canal that the Caribbean Sea should be as far as possible an American Sea.

ROBERT EMMETT.

Executed 20th September, 1803.
On the 23rd June, 1803, a rebellion against the Government broke out in Dublin, in which Robert Emmett, at the time only twenty-three years of age, was a principal actor. It proved a failure. Emmett was arrested, having missed the opportunity of escape, it is said, by lingering to take leave of a daughter of Curran, the gifted orator, to whom he bore an attachment, which was reciprocated. On 19th September, 1803, Emmett was tried for high treason at the Sessions House, Dublin, before Lord Norbury, one of the Chief Judges of the King's Bench, and others; was found guilty and executed the next day.
At his execution Emmett displayed great fortitude. As he was passing out of his cell, on his way to the gallows, he met the turnkey, who had become much attached to him. Being fettered, Emmett could not give his hand, so he kissed the poor fellow on the cheek, who, overcome by the mingled condensation and tenderness of the act, fell senseless at the feet of the youthful victim, and did not recover till the latter was no longer among the living.

SHE IS FAR FROM THE LAND.

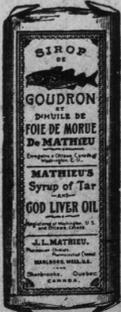

(Referring to Miss Curran, Robert Emmett's love.)
She is far from the land where her young hero sleeps,
And lovers around her are sighing,
But coldly she turns from their gaze,
And weeps.
For her heart in his grave is lying.
She sings the wild songs of her dear native plains,
Every note which she loved awaking;
Ah! little they think who delight in her strains
How the heart of the Minstrel is breaking.
He had lived for his love, for his country he died,
They were all that to life had entwined him;
Nor soon shall the tears of his country be dried,
Nor long will his love stay behind him.
Oh! make her a grave where the sun-beams rest,
When they promise a glorious morning,
They'll shine o'er her sleep, like a smile from the West,
From her own loved island of sorrow.
—T. Moore.

SPEECH OF ROBERT EMMETT

In the Dock, in reply to the Clerk after the reading of the Verdict.
"What have I to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced on me according to law? I have nothing to say which can alter your predetermination, or that it would become me to say with any view to the mitigation which you are here to pronounce, and which I must abide. But I have that to say which interests me more than life, and which you have laboured—as was necessarily your office in the present circumstances of this oppressed country—to destroy. I have much to say why my reputation should be rescued from the load of false accusation and calumny which has been heaped upon it.
I do not imagine that, seated where you are, your minds can be so free from impurity as to receive the least impression from what I am going to utter. I have no hope that I can anchor my character in the breast of a court constituted and trammelled as this is. I only wish—and it is the wish of most I expect—that your lordships may suffer it to float down your memories, untainted by the foul breath of prejudice, until it finds some more hospitable harbour to shelter it from the rude storm by which it is at present buffeted.
Were I only to suffer death, after being adjudged guilty by your tribunal, I should live in silence, and meet the fate that awaits me without a murmur. But the sentence of the law which delivers my body to the executioner will, through the ministry of that law, labour, in its own vindication, to consign my character to obloquy; for there must be guilt somewhere—whether in the sentence of the court, or in the catastrophe, posterity must determine.
A man in my situation, my lords, has not only to encounter the difficulties of fortune, and the force of power over minds which it has corrupted or subjugated, but the difficulties of established prejudice; the man dies, but his memory lives. That mine may not perish; that it may live in the respect of my countrymen to vindicate myself from some of the charges alleged against me. When my spirit shall be wafted to a more friendly port; when my shade shall have joined the bands of these martyred heroes who have shed their blood on the scaffold and in the field in defence of their country and of virtue, this is my hope: I wish that my memory and name may animate those who survive me, while I look down with complacency on the destruction of that perfidious government which upholds its

He then closed and locked the door, speaking only these five words—"We will all die together." He picked up a dynamite stick which was lying on the floor near him, and threw it under the bed. There was a deafening roar, and Mrs. Hurst remembers nothing more till she came to consciousness at the home of a neighbor an hour later.

Minimize The Loss.
Practically farmers may easily minimize the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.
Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.
The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.
We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.
The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodating.

Mayor Ellis's Return Certain.
Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In reply to the cooked up letter in this morning's News signed "Business Man" demanding Candidate Ellis's resignation because, forsooth, he is Mayor of the city, I beg to inform "Business Man" that Mr. Ellis is perfectly within his rights. The writer of the illogical News letter knows that Mayor Ellis stands to-day very high in the estimation of the West End and his return at the head of the poll is assured, and this complaint of "Business Man" is merely a ruse to try to get him out of the way. I may say, further, that Mr. Ellis's vote for the Legislature will go hand in hand with his vote for the Mayorality when he again appeals to the city for that purpose. Don't mind 'em, Mayor Ellis, your return is certain.

Special to Evening Telegram.
BLOOMINGTON, Sept. 19.
In a demoralical fit of insanity Mick Hurst, aged 50, a stonemason, blew up his home with dynamite this morning, killing himself and a daughter, fatally wounding two other daughters and demolishing the house. Mrs. Hurst miraculously escaped. She says the man woke the family at 2 a.m. and told them to gather in his bedroom. He then closed and locked the door, speaking only these five words—"We will all die together." He picked up a dynamite stick which was lying on the floor near him, and threw it under the bed. There was a deafening roar, and Mrs. Hurst remembers nothing more till she came to consciousness at the home of a neighbor an hour later.

Minimize The Loss.
Practically farmers may easily minimize the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.
Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than nitrate of soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.
The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.
We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.
The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodating.

Mayor Ellis's Return Certain.
Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In reply to the cooked up letter in this morning's News signed "Business Man" demanding Candidate Ellis's resignation because, forsooth, he is Mayor of the city, I beg to inform "Business Man" that Mr. Ellis is perfectly within his rights. The writer of the illogical News letter knows that Mayor Ellis stands to-day very high in the estimation of the West End and his return at the head of the poll is assured, and this complaint of "Business Man" is merely a ruse to try to get him out of the way. I may say, further, that Mr. Ellis's vote for the Legislature will go hand in hand with his vote for the Mayorality when he again appeals to the city for that purpose. Don't mind 'em, Mayor Ellis, your return is certain.

Political Plums.

What about the Banks, Patsy? Are they broke yet? Will you pledge your little "hours" to save it?

Since P. T. McGrath began that diabolical cry about the Banks, E. P. Morris must have had dreams of skeletons in the closets, ghosts in the vaults, and crashes in the banks. Night-mares they were, of course, else, how could he wake up singing "Patsy's sittin' on the Gov'm't chest, Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of—!" Rats in the cellar rigned up a mare's nest. Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of—!

Please observe that what the Plaindealer calls "the lowest and basest in public life" objects to the Telegram saying that Patsy said that Morris could raise a riot in St. John's with a flag and a jar of rum.

The "lowest and basest in public life" now wants to pretend that he uses chaste language, and at the same time he exhibits in the Herald a bottle of bug juice. He can pretend to the highest and descend to the lowest with equal facility.

Morison is big enough to think that his eloquence will hoodwink the people of Bonavista Bay, and fool enough to think that the people of that district respect him all the more since he forgot the law.

Donald Morison forgot the law when he was selling timber, but he didn't forget any law when a fisherman like Bishop went to jail. No thanks to him, though, because Bishop was let out when he should have been kept in.

Some mountains are ten thousand feet high. That is the height of E. P. Morris's fees when he is not getting a salary!

Do you know what it cost this poor country when Morris agreed to pay Reids in cash instead of in debentures? It cost us something like $200,000.

Morris is searching the woods for candidates. Morison, Piccott, Crossie, Woodford are fair sized Bamboos, only they are lacy with sap from the Government chest. The Reed Bamboe is a well known species. Does Morris know that?

Patsy McGrath is a tender young shoot. If he were cultivated he might develop into a promising Bamboe—with a hollow sound. In that respect he differs from a fish sound, which is a very different thing from a sound fish.

Morris hates salaries! But he loves Herring, because they bring along arbitrations, and arbitrations bring him ten thousand dollar fees!

"Science has unveiled the depths of other regions." So has Patsy McGrath! His daring impiety must be the result of being schooled by Ah Sin!

Zam-Buk Proved Best.

AMBULANCE BRIGADES ADOPT IT
Zam-Buk has now been selected as the balm to be carried by the members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. This is further proof of its superiority.

Mr. G. W. Pyatt, of 15 Southview Avenue, Toronto, Superintendent of the Riverdale Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, writes: "Both in personal use and in first-aid work I have proved Zam-Buk to be of great value. I have used it for the past five years, and do not believe there is any other balm to come up to it."

Mr. Geo. H. Westmore, of 127 Yonge Street, Toronto, Divisional Superintendent of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, also writes: "I am pleased to report that the members of this Brigade use Zam-Buk when on public duty, and find it very useful. It is a wonderful healer. Personally, I constantly use Zam-Buk in my calling as a chiropractor, and find it very helpful in healing sore feet, and as a dressing for corns and bunions after treatment and extraction."

Surely a balm that is worthy of a place in the wallet of an ambulance officer should find a place in your home! You may not require it to-day or next week, but as accidents don't give warning, be prepared. Zam-Buk is compounded on the latest scientific lines. It is at the same time soothing, healing and antiseptic; keeps good. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for skin diseases, eczema, piles, old sores, cuts, burns, poisoned wounds, ringworm, abscesses, sprains, scalds, boils, ulcers, blood-poison, etc. 50 cents, at all druggists and stores. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations. There is nothing "Just as good."

Investment News

St. John's, Sept. 20th, 1913.

The Way To Buy Bonds

Says the "Review of Reviews":—"In general, the way to buy bonds is not to bother nearly as much about the banker who sells them. Get a GOOD banker and then put it up to him hard. Ask him if the bonds in his latest circular are the best things he has for you. State your case plainly to him. When a banker knows that an investor is going to keep trading with him as long as he is treated right, and is not merely "shopping around," the banker naturally gives 100 per cent. better service in the way of getting just the right thing."

We have reason to believe that this House answers the requirements when a GOOD banker is desired. We will not enter into a discussion of this belief, much preferring to leave the verdict with those investors who are in a position to know about it. And we invite you to "put it up hard" to us when you want honest advice about investments.

Farewell Concert.

On Monday, Sept. 16th, at 8.30 p.m., a farewell concert was given to Lord and Lady Northcliffe and party in the Town Hall. The hall was very beautifully decorated with electrical effects in colored lights and Chinese lanterns and produced an effect that would indeed do credit to a town of much greater size.

The following is the programme presented, and was designed to include as many branches of local entertainment as possible:—

Part I.—School Children.
1. Brownie's Drill.
2. "The Chhnaman."
3. Flag Drill.
4. Doll Drill.

Part II.—Grand Falls Band.
Cornet Solo, Mr. Alexander, Lost Chord.

Part III.—Glee Club.
1. Chorus—Come Gentle May.
2. Solo—Mr. Royer.
3. Chorus—Rock Away on the Hills Gays.
4. Duet—Miss Dayton and Mr. Hackett.
5. Solo—Mr. Powley.
6. Chorus—Gloria in Excelsis Deo.

Part IV.—Movies.
Two Reels.
Part V.—Dramatic Club.
Sketch: "An Easy Mark"

Caste:

Dick Chambers, Graduate of Yale University Mr. W. Ireland.
Jack Knowlton, Dick's Room-mate Mr. D. A. O'Flynn.
Harry Reinsalser, an Amateur Actor Mr. H. Blackall.
Mike Dorrity, Ex-Pugilist Mr. F. C. Vane.
Elmer de Boothe, An Escaped Lunatic Mr. W. J. Dover.
Dorothy Somers, Miss Irma Dayton.
Mrs. Vera Somers, Miss Bertha Simpson.

The items by the school children were exceptionally well done, and caused quite a bit of laughter. The Glee Club came up to expectations, and produced three good choruses equal if not exceeding their previous productions. The sketch by the dramatic club was very funny and held the attention of the audience from beginning to end, everything going off with clockwork regularity and in tip-top shape. Quite an addition to the musical part of the programme was the orchestra which accompanied the choruses of the Glee Club.

After the programme had been four-fifths completed Mr. Beeton made a short address to the audience and complimented the contributors and the organisers on the excellent entertainment that had been offered, and hoped that each succeeding year would show as great an improvement in all branches, as was noticeable since his last visit.

Through the kindness of Lord Northcliffe a lunch was served after the performance at Wood's Candy Store to those who took such pains to present so enjoyable a concert. Amongst those present were the guests of Lord and Lady Northcliffe and Mr. Beeton.

Vessel Meets Mishap.

The schooner David Morris, which went north recently for a cargo of codfish, reached port yesterday in a damaged state. While going into St. Anthony Harbour the vessel struck a rock and as she began to leak, the captain decided to put back for repairs. The vessel will be dry-docked for repairs.

Jolly Well Got To Lay.

A quaint little story is told of the early days of Miss Inez Miholland. "The most beautiful Suffragette in America," as she has been called, who was married secretly during her visit to London. According to the bride's father, it seems that even as a baby she was very strong-willed. One day her nurse came in despair to Mrs. Miholland and announced that she had found Inez on the top of a haystack and that the child flatly refused to come down. Mrs. Miholland sallied forth to see what she could do in the matter, but all her coaxing was in vain.

To her mother's entreaties Inez replied firmly: "There's a nasty old hen up here that won't lay her eggs, and I'm going to make her do it."

ADDITIONAL PASSENGERS.—The s.s. Stephano sails this afternoon for Halifax and New York, taking as additional passengers Miss Slatery and Miss Amour.

GOOD ADVICE.

It is necessary to always have a bottle of good Brandy at hand.

What Brandy will you buy? The Medicinal Brandy "Sanator" is not a properly so-called medicine, but it has been selected from amongst the best known growths for their effective principles, and it is distilled so as to develop its tonic and digestive qualities. It is really the FAMILY BRANDY, which name the public has, for a long time, bestowed on it.

The celebrated French physician, DR. PHARZELLE, Inspector-in-chief of the Great Medical Services, says: "The medicinal Brandy 'Sanator' is eminently an easy digestive drink, remarkable for its tonifying and reinvigorating properties."

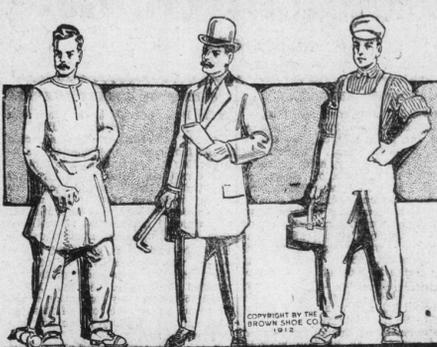

Ask for Medicinal Brandy Sanator from your liquor dealer; he has it.

DIRECTIONS.

Against weakness and bad digestion: a liquor glass at each meal.
Against Cold, Influenza take as a hot drink, viz: one ounce and a half of Brandy, one ounce of hot water, with a little sugar.
Against summer complaints: use with chopped ice, or cold water.

Snubs For Parsons

A Parson Tells of Some of His Most Bitter yet Amusing Moments.

Don't be a parson unless you are blessed with a strong sense of humour and a thick hide!

A parson's duty is to visit his flock. If he doesn't, great is his grumbling. If he does, he is served with snubs. They mix in nicely with the welcomes, to prevent your getting unduly puffed up! The following is not "a visiting" snub, but it was so near that it deserves first place.

I was asked by a friend who had been offered a living near me to go and see the vicarage and church, and report I did so, and the clerk showed me round. As we near the end, he turned to me.
"Be your own parson, sir, if I may make so bold?" I assured him that I was not. "I be main glad to hear that, sir," he said, with relief.
"We've always had good ones so far!"

A nasty double-barrelled one, that! An old lady was ill, and I called to see her. The good woman who was nursing her opened the door, and I explained my business. "No," she said, "you couldn't see her. She's getting fretful, and very particular who she sees!"
One in the eye, that! but I only grinned. These things are as good as tonics.

On one occasion I called at a house where a man was ill. The local doctor had said, "He wants a water-bed. I wish you could lend him yours."

I duly explained why I had called and half-expected to hear the grateful thanks which, honestly, the offer was worth.

"Water-bed? A water-bed! If you was half a man with half a heart you'd send a bottle of port, and a bit of jelly. Water-bed, indeed!"
Snubbed again!

In a scattered parish I called on an old couple about tea-time.

"Would like a cup of tea?" I confessed that I would like it very much. The dear old soul prepared one, and kept apologising because she had no jam nor cake. I assured her it didn't matter in the least.
"Well, sir," she said, brightening, "after all, tisn't as if you was one o' them what fed high. Anyone can see that!"

Just one more. A friend of mine had got a job for a man who had had a long spell out of work. I guessed he was getting pretty shabby, so I looked out a suit—we were much of a size—and took it round. The man's wife took it, and I waited in the room, ready to receive thanks which crushed me.

"My husband thanks you kindly, sir, but he don't hold with parson's clothes, but if you'd got anything 'is'ud suit a man, he'd have a look at it!"

Nasty, eh?
Now see what poor parsons have to put up with.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well. You did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc." That "IT" means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more then his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible? Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.

Robbed Punjab Mail.

A $100,000 mail robbery took place near Cochin, India, a few days ago. A postal bag containing 200 registered and insured letters and packets, worth that large amount, left Mookambay by the Punjab mail and disappeared while in transit to Calcutta.

The bag, the contents of which were intended for different merchants in Calcutta, was to be delivered to the local post office. How and when the robbery took place is a mystery, and no clue has yet been obtained to the perpetrators.

The postoffice took delivery of the bags and gave a receipt for them.

When the articles were being sent out for delivery it was found that one of the bags among those received from the sorting office was a dummy one. Where the original bag was removed and the other substituted is not known. The dummy bag was intact. It bore even a seal and label the latter probably picked up at some postoffice bearing of date January last.

Will be Patron of Peace Show

Duke of Connaught Lends His Aid to Anglo-American Exposition.

London, Sept. 3.—The Duke of Connaught has consented to be a patron of the Anglo-American Exposition to be held at Shepherd's Bush in 1914. The Duke of Teck will be president and Lord Curzon Lord Derby, Lord Strathcona, Lord Wearvale, the Lord Mavor, Sir Archibald Geikie, Lord Rothschild, Sir William Mather and Sir Edward Pynter will be vice-presidents. All of those elected at the Mansion House meeting held in March last to serve on executive committee have accepted the position.

The Duke of Teck heads the signatories to a letter which points out that "the exposition celebrates a century of peace between the two great families of English-speaking people. Triumphs of art, industry and commerce will be materialized in magnificent exhibition grounds. International friendships are never so durable as when rooted in reciprocal trade, and the trend of political events in the United States promises an exceptional opportunity for our manufactures in his respect."

Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful

It becomes thick, wavy, lustrous and all dandruff disappears—Hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Dandierine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Dandierine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, shiny and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Dandierine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Dandierine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Dandierine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

About Cricket.

A newly-married man returned home on Friday night and found his wife in tears. "What are you crying for, Mary?" he asked.

"Oh, John, I simply can't help it. How those poor Yorkshire men must have suffered. That Spooner is a brute."

"What has he been doing?"
"Haven't you read it? Why, it says he started punishing them severely. He cut Drake twice in the first over, and knocked Haigh all over the field. Wilson interfered but was knocked to the boundary. Next Rhodes tried, but Spooner ran out and knocked him over the pavilion. First came on, and what do you think Spooner did to him? Why, he skied him, and he might have been killed, but Wilson ran and caught him!"

It was ordered that Monroe Street west be repaired at a cost of $220; that Central Street be extended from Flower Hill to Barter's Hill at a cost of $500; that a well be sunk on Signal Hill costing $25 and that an out-house removed by the Council will be replaced on Carter's Hill.

Councillor Ryan submitted a doctor's bill from an employee who was injured while working for the Council a year ago, and who had no funds to pay up. Ordered that the Council pay the bill.

A water service and sewerage connection will be made on Beaumont Street, as asked for by Councillor Coaker. The Engineer will prepare an estimate.

A letter was received from Mr. Gibbs, claiming the Council liable for the death of an employee named Beer. Referred to Solicitor. The meeting then closed.

No Details of Tragedy.

Concerning the awful tragedy at Mark's Harbor, Labrador, in which four members of the crew of the schooner Victoria, including the master, were drowned, as previously alluded to, Magistrate O'Toole, of Conception Harbor, wired to Mr. J. W. Hiscock, at St. John's, for particulars and received this reply: "They went to trap for bag of fish, nothing more known, nothing picked up."

Wedding Dinner.

On Thursday evening Mr. J. W. Withers, proprietor of the Royal Gazette Office, gave a dinner to the employees and their lady friends at Smithville in honor of the wedding of his daughter. A number of guests were present and a real jolly good time was spent. Appropriate toasts, interspersed by songs rendered by Mr. W. W. Blackall, were enthusiastically drunk. The event wound up with a grand dance, which was pleasant and enjoyable.

Man Injured.

John Parsons, a workman with the Horwood Lumber Company, got his left leg caught between a cart and a pile of lumber yesterday afternoon with the result that the member was badly squeezed. Dr. Roberts attended to the injuries of Parsons who will be incapacitated for some weeks.

Run Over By Horse

A man named Bramwell Spracklin while crossing Water Street near the Bank of Nova Scotia, was run over by Mr. R. Lester's horse. No blame could be attached to the driver. The man, who was knocked down, was only slightly hurt.

The Rest Dilliculty.

Talking of the recent Christian Science case, it has been remarked that the children of Christian Scientists are sometimes more convinced devotees than the parents themselves. The children try bravely to think that when they are hurt they really don't feel pain, and the story is told of a little girl who fell down one day and bumped her head.

She began to cry, and her mother came running to see what was the matter.

"Are you hurt, Mary?" she asked sympathetically.

"N—no, I'm not hurt," sobbed Mary.

"Then, if you're not hurt, why are you crying?" was the natural question.

Mary strove hard to master her tears. "I'm crying 'cos I'm c-cross," she sobbed.

"But what are you cross about?" persisted her mother.

Mary thought a minute. "I'm c-cross," she explained between her sobs, "cos I can't feel I'm not hurt!"
