CHAPTER XXII.

Indeed, and in very truth, she was walking in a dream—the martyr's dream.

One day Mr. Mershon came down to The Woodbines. His face was a little graver than usual, and all through the dinner he was rather absent-minded. When it was over, he went to the drawing-room and leaned over the chair in which Decima was sitting with a book in her hand—which she had not been reading.

"I've got some news for you," he said. "You remember my telling you about that Italian concession?"

He often told her of his enterprises and of their success; but she forgot them; and she knit her brows now.

"The Italian concession?" she said.

"Yes; the water-works business. They want me to go over there. There's money in it—a pile of money. And I'm half inclined to go. How would you like to go with me? You would like to see Italy; it's a place most girls hanker after; and we could do it very well; I could spare a couple of months."

She looked up at him doubtfully, questioningly.

"Father hates traveling," she said. Mershon bit his lip.

"I didn't think of your father coming," he said, "but of you. Look here, Decie! Why shouldn't we be married and go on this Italian trip for a honeymoon?"

The blood rushed to her face, and left it pallid.

"Married!" she breathed, almost inaudibly.

"Yes, why not?" he demanded, with a catch in his breath. "Why shouldn't we take this opportunity and be married? What is the use of waiting? This is a fire-rate opportunity of combining pleasure with business."

She could not see the eagerness in his eyes, but she felt it. A shudder convulsed her.

"What do you say?" he went on. "I don't see any reason why we shouldn't do it. I needn't go for a fortnight or three weeks; I leave that to you."

To be married, to be Theodore Mershon's wife in a fortnight or three weeks! The room grew suddenly dark to her.

"You think it over," he said. "You talk it over with my sister; you're going to tea with her to-morrow." Decima found her voice at last.

"Is it so soon," she said.

She rose and went to the fireplace, in which a fire was burning, as if she had been stricken by a sudden cold. He followed her.

"What is the use of waiting?" he reiterated. "Let us get the thing over and done with." His breath came fast and his small eyes glowed with a passionate fire.

Decima shrunk away from him. With all her innocence of what marriage meant, a fearful repugnance rose within her and overwhelmed her.

"You'd like to see Italy," he said.

"Here's a good chance. Say 'yes,' Decima."

She fought against the repugnance; she thought of her father, of Bobby. What did it matter what happened to her if they were safe and secure?

"Very well," she said in a voice which seemed to belong to some other person.

The blood rushed to Mershon's face, and he stretched out his hand to seize on hers; then he drew it back; for something in her face, so set and strained, warned him; and he gave away.

CHAPTER XXIII.

She lay awake all that night. The next day, pale and listless, she went over to The Firs to take tea with Mrs. Sherborne. Mrs. Sherborne was sitting over her fire in her poudoir, her head resting on her hand, her attitude one of despair; and she started to her feet nervously as Decima was shown in.

"Take off your things here by the fire, dear," she said; and she began to unfasten Decima's fur boa. As she did so, her trembling hands touched Decima's cheek, and its icy coldness caused her to start and look at the girl with abrupt intentness. "You are cold?" she said; and she took one of Decima's hands and held it between hers as she scanned the pale face.

"It is cold to-day," said Decima. "Autumn has stolen upon us so softly that one forgets that the summer has gone."

She moved to the fire and sunk into a chair listlessly. Mrs. Sherborne laid the hat and jacket and furs on a couch and stood just behind Decima, looking down at her.

The lonely woman had seen a great deal of the girl of late, and Decima had stolen into her heart, though Mrs. Sherborne had striven to shut its door against her. She repressed a sigh, and went and sat opposite Decima, the light from the window being full on Decima's face and showing its pallor and weariness all too plainly.

There was silence for a few minutes. Mrs. Sherborne glanced now and again at Decima; then she said in a low voice:

"Theodore has told me about—about the wedding."

Decima started slightly, but did not raise her eyes from the fire.

"Yes?" she said.

"It is very sudden," said Mrs. Sherborne.

"It is," assented Decima, impassively.

"You will like to go to Italy?" Decima looked up as if she were trying to interest herself in the subject, but still listlessly she replied:

"To Italy? Oh yes."

Mrs. Sherborne glanced at her, and then looked at the fire again.

"You will have a great deal to do," she said.

Decima looked at her questioningly. "Your trousseau, I mean," said Mrs. Sherborne.

"Shall I?" said Decima. "Will it take long? I did not know. I am going to write to my aunt Pauline tonight. She will know what to get."

"You speak as if you did not care," said Mrs. Sherborne.

Decima smiled but sighed.

"I suppose I do not care as much as most girls," she said. "Dress does not seem to matter to me very much."

"It would matter to you if—?" Then she stopped. She had almost said, "If you loved the man you are going to marry."

"I suppose it was living with Lady Pauline so long that makes me different to most girls," said Decima. "I was always taught that it was wrong to think too much of dress and amusement."

"Lady Pauline brought you up in a strange way," said Mrs. Sherborne. "She has kept you as innocent and ignorant as a child. I have never met any girl like you. I often ask myself whether she was wise; whether, if you were like other girls, you would—would do what you are going to do."

She paused a moment, then went on in a very low voice: "Decima, will you be very angry with me if I ask you a question?"

"Why should I be angry with you?" asked Decima.

Mrs. Sherborne bent her head so low that Decima could not see her face.

"You will think it a strange question, and stranger, coming from me; for though we have seen a great deal of each other lately, since—since your engagement, I know that you have not felt toward me like a friend, have not cared for me very much. Don't deny it," she hurried on; "it wouldn't be any use. And I'm not complaining. But I should have been glad if you had got to care for me, shall be very glad if you grow to like me. I am a very lonely woman, Decima, and until I knew you I thought that it was impossible for me to have one tender feeling for any one. But I have grown fond of you, dear, and for weeks past I have wanted to ask you a question which I am going to ask now."

"Ask me," said Decima. "What is it?"

Mrs. Sherborne's lips twitched nervously.

"Do you care for Theodore?" she asked, with the abruptness of a timid and reserved nature.

Decima did not start, but the color came quickly to her face and as quickly fled again.

"Why do you ask me that?" she said.

"Because—because I have watched you. I have seen you grow thin and pale. You were such a happy-looking girl when you first came here; there was a glad light in your eyes and always a smile on your lips; but now—'Well, I've watched you when you've been with Theodore, and I've seen you—have seen the look on your face when he spoke to you or touched you.'"

Decima's head bent lower. Mrs. Sherborne stretched out her hand and laid it on Decima's clasped ones.

"Oh, my dear, I must speak!" she said in a strained voice. "I have kept silent too long, but I must speak now. I could hold my tongue to the end if I had not grown fond of you; but you have crept into my heart, and it aches and aches for you. Decima, you do not care for Theodore; you do not love him!"

Decima raised her eyes heavily.

"No," she said in a low voice. "Mr. Mershon knows that. He does not ask me—does not expect—'He says that I shall—love him after we are married.'"

Her voice was almost inaudible.

Mrs. Sherborne's hand tightened on the girl's arm.

"After you are married!" she repeated, as if she were half terrified. "Oh, you do not know what you are saying! You do not know what it means. You are too innocent—too ignorant. Decima, if you do not love him now, you will hate him after you are married."

Decima started and shrunk slightly, but Mrs. Sherborne retained her grasp of her arm.

"You are indifferent now," she went on; "something has come over you. You are just as if you were in a dream, walking in your sleep—that is because you do not know. But that indifference will turn to loathing after you are married. It always does—always does! I know, for I have been married." There was the bitterness of a past misery in her voice. "Think of it!" she went on in a subdued, constrained tone, as if she were speaking against her will, as if every word were forced from her. "You are not happy when you are with him now; you are not glad when you are by his side; you don't like him to touch you. Oh, I have seen you and him together; I have noticed. How will it be when you have to spend every hour of your life with him—when you can not escape from him—when he will have the right to take you in his arms, to kiss you whenever he pleases?"

Decima recoiled and leaned back, with wide-open eyes fixed upon the elder woman.

"Are you beginning to understand?" said Mrs. Sherborne. "And do you think that I am mistaken, that what I say is not true? My dear, it is—it is! I know, because I have been through it. You will be the slave, and he will be master. And you think he will not soon find out how much you dislike him? Soon, very soon, he will learn the truth, will discover that you hate him, that you will never love him, that the loathing for him will grow more intense day by day for long as you both live."

"Oh, what are you saying? Do not say any more!" came from Decima's white lips. A faint gleam of the knowledge of the truth was breaking in upon her.

"I must—I must!" said Mrs. Sherborne, as if in desperation. "And then when he finds this out for himself, do you know what will happen?" She paused, drew a long breath, and looked round the room as she were afraid of being overheard. "He is all kindness and gentleness now. There is nothing he would not do for you; he is the slave, and you are the mistress; but it will all be changed then, and he will be—?" She stopped and looked round again fearfully. "Decima, you don't know him. He is all very well when things are going as he wants them; but when he is thwarted, he is a devil incarnate!"

All Fat People Easily Reduce

The world owes a debt of gratitude to the author of the now famous Marmola Prescription, and is still more indebted for the reduction of this harmful, effective obesity remedy to tablet form. They are convenient to take, and as pleasant as candy. One after each meal, and at bedtime will quickly reduce your weight. Two, three or four pounds a week, and leave no untoward effects such as loose, itchy skin and unsteady wrinkles. Instead, you will feel like a new woman, and your skin will be clear and smooth. Marmola Prescription Tablets may now be obtained at all drug stores, or by writing direct to the Marmola Co., 27 Cornhill Building, Detroit, Mich., and their reasonable prices. One dollar for a good size box—leaves no excuse for not trying or violent recourses for the reduction of the overfat body to normal proportions.

Historic and Impressive Ceremonies

Mark Armistice Day Celebration-- Honour Done Our "Glorious Dead"--League Will Investigate German Military Movements-- Empire's Prime Ministers Meet Next June--Arctic Explorer Heard From.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY IN WHITEHALL

LONDON, Nov. 11. In historic Whitehall to-night Great Britain's newly unveiled monument to her "glorious dead" stood half buried beneath flowers, a token of national sorrow and appreciation of their sacrifices. A few hundred yards away in Westminster Abbey amidst the tombs of the realm's great men reposed the body of the Empire's newest immortal, an unknown comrade of those deeds the Cenotaph memorialize. Every part of the Empire, all classes of its citizens, from King to bereaved relatives of the humblest private, participated in the impressive unveiling ceremonies at Whitehall. The streets adjacent to the Abbey were jammed with people, most of whose faces mutely told the tale of lost loved ones. The two minutes silence which fell over the whole concourse as Big Ben thundered the hour of eleven seemed to vibrate with repressed emotions. It was a silence broken only by hysterical shrieks of women who collapsed from the intensity of its spell. On the tenth stroke of the great gong the King pulled the cord unveiling the imposing monument, and with others stood uncovered and with bowed head. Then after his wreath and those of the Prince of Wales and official overseas representatives had been reverently deposited at the base of the Cenotaph, the Field Marshal pall bearers with their hallowed burden moved off to the Abbey, the King followed the flag draped coffin.

WILL INVESTIGATE MOVEMENT OF GERMAN TROOPS

WARSAW, Nov. 11. The crossing of important detachments of Germans from East Prussia into Lithuania, which is reported from various sources, will be the first thing to be investigated by the League of Nations Commission, which is to proceed to Kovno to-day. Col Avaloff Bernomdt, a soldier of fortune, who operated in the Baltic States last year at the head of a force of volunteer Germans, is reported by Polish newspapers to be in Kovno with the German staff at the present time.

BOLSHEVIKI CLAIM SUCCESSES

LONDON, Nov. 11. Fortified works planned by General Wrangel in the vicinity of Perekop, on the Isthmus leading to the Crimean Peninsula have been occupied by Bolsheviki, according to Wednesday's official statement from Moscow received here by wireless to-day. "We have broken the enemy's fierce resistance and occupied his fortified positions near Perekop. We also occupied Armlansk Bazar."

PREMIERS MEET JUNE NEXT

LONDON, Nov. 11. Premier Lloyd George stated in the House of Commons to-night that arrangements had been made to hold a meeting of Prime Ministers of the Empire in June next year. Page Croft asked if an undertaking could be given that no decision would be come regarding such questions as Mesopotamia until the Premiers had met. Lloyd George replied that such a proceeding would be quite impossible. He said the expense after all is not on the Empire but on Great Britain. The Premier added that the question of holding the Premier's meeting at Ottawa had been under discussion.

WILL CONTINUE AT VATICAN

LONDON, Nov. 11. The government after a full and careful consideration, has decided that it is desirable in the public interest to continue the representative of Great Britain at the Vatican, according to an announcement by Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons to-day, in answer to a question. The Premier added that this representation which has been in existence since the first year of the war, had been attended with beneficial results. The announcement was greeted with cheers.

BUSINESS FIRST

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Nov. 11. Fishing interests here have given no serious thought to the prospect of a race next April between the fishing schooner Esperanto, winner of the recent schooner race at Halifax, and the schooner Undaunted, whose owner, Francis R. Mayer, of New York, challenged the fishermen to a meeting. The owners of the Esperanto said to-day that the time named by Mayer was the busy season in the fisheries. "We are in the fishing not the racing business," they said. An elimination race among the schooners sailing out of Gloucester is to be held next fall to determine which shall represent the port in the renewal of the series at Halifax, and until that time racing probably is out of the question.

WORD FROM AMUNDSEN

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11. Capt. Ronald Amundsen, Arctic explorer, has sent the following telegram to the Berlingske Tidende from East Cape, Siberia, bearing date of August fourteen. "We sailed from Nome immediately after my wife of August eight with only three men, as others claimed wages of three hundred pounds sterling monthly. The following day we were held up by pack ice in Behring Strait. All aboard are well. The foregoing is the first direct message from Captain Amundsen since he set out on his polar expedition from Nome, Alaska, in the ship Maude on August ninth. Five weeks later information reached Nome that the famous explorer's ship had become wedged in the ice twenty miles off Cape Serge, northwest of Nome on the Siberian Coast."

HAS IT BEEN SOLVED?

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. The New York Evening World to-day published a three page article under the headline, "Wall Street Explosion Solved," in which it gives the result of its independent investigation of the disaster, which took nearly two score lives last September, and seeks to link the outrage with "Building Trust Graft" now under investigation by the Joint Legislative Committee. The Evening World maintains that the explosion, instead of being the work of an anarchist, as charged by Chief Flynn of the Department of Justice, or the Third International, as charged by private investigation, was really the plot of labor men, or labor sympathizers directed in revenge against Robert Brindell, President of the Building Trades' Council. Brindell workers were demolishing the Stock Exchange Building annex at Broad and Wall Streets, and the contractors were hiring Brindell men.

A BIG DONATION

MONTREAL, Nov. 11. Recognizing the value to the community of a University specially equipped for French speaking people, the directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. have voted a contribution of fifty thousand dollars to the fund now being raised for the University of Montreal.

Civic Commission Weekly Meeting

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Commission was held last night, Chairman Gosling and Commissioners Mullaly, Morris, Peet, Ayre and Devine being present. After the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed the following matters received consideration:

Rev. H. L. Pike requested attention be given to drain and grating situated on Colonial Street, near Bishop Field College, which he considered a menace to the health of the boys attending the College. The Engineer and Sanitary Supervisor will be instructed to have hoppers placed on College Square and Colonial Street with a view to remedying the cause of the complaint.

A communication was read from the Chairman of the Dickinson Memorial Committee for an extra two feet of space. The Engineer will report on the matter.

Dr. N. S. Fraser wrote protesting against the destruction of the Duckworth Street pavement by the Avalon Telephone Company in laying conduits through this street. The Telephone Company, under its charter, has authority to lay its wires in conduits along the streets, and the City Engineer has given the Company the line to lay said conduits, selecting the most suitable in view of the position of other pipes, etc. The Company's Charter provides that it shall "in all cases, at its own expense, restore to its former condition the surface of any road or street affected by the Company's operations." The Commission will see that these conditions are carried out.

City Solicitor Carter is to be instructed to order the removal of a shed erected by Mr. Penney, Scott Street, which he is using as a stable, for which no permission has been granted; also that Mr. F. Willis remove building in course of erection on Hamilton Avenue, he not having conformed to the Municipal regulations.

The attention of the Board of Health is to be called to the unsanitary condition of a stable situate off Stephen Street, and the owner made comply with the regulations.

Complaint of W. B. Kean regarding water drainage from Falk's Hill, was referred to the Engineer.

Application of the Government Railway Commission to erect wooden building east of the railway station, was refused; firstly because such an erection is contrary to law, and secondly because the Commission claims the site referred to is reserved for city purposes.

Joseph Peckford will be given permission to lay concrete sidewalk at his premises, corner Battery Road.

Plans approved: Francis Power, one storey addition, corner Barter's Hill and New Gower St.; Mr. Goodwin, dwelling, Prince of Wales' St.; Jno. Roberts, workshop, Freshwater Road.

The Solicitor is to report as to the Council's position regarding the prohibiting of laundries.

Tenders for uniforms were awarded the Nfld. Clothing Co. Ltd.

Tender for plastering new houses being erected by the Council, Quill Vidi Road, was given W. Crosbie & Co.

Requisitions for the several departments were accepted to.

Reports of City Engineer, Health Officer, etc., were read, and the meeting adjourned at 10.30.

Mr. Walsh, M.H.A., Replies to Star.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir,—I noticed an item in today's editorial of the Daily Star under the heading, "Always the Cloven Hoof." The article goes on to administer a severe criticism of my actions, which in the Editor's opinion, are characteristic of His Satanic Majesty of the Cloven Hoof. Here are the particulars of the case under review. I am prepared to let the public be the judges:

On Tuesday night, 9th inst., I received the following telegram from Davis Cove, P.B.:
W. J. Walsh, M.H.A.,
St. John's.

Please arrange six passes to Millertown by next Argyle. No money. Reply.

(Sgd.) RICHARD CAUL.

On Wednesday morning, the 10th inst., I replied as follows:
Richard Caul,
Davis Cove, via Prowseton.

Doing all I possibly can for you and companions.

(Sgd.) W. J. WALSH.

Thursday, the 11th inst., I sent the following message:
Purser, S.S. Argyle, Placentia.

Am sending you eighty dollars for tickets for Richard Caul and five others from Davis Cove to Millertown.

(Sgd.) W. J. WALSH.

The same time I wired the following to Mr. Caul:

Have borrowed eighty dollars to loan you to pay tickets for self and men. See Purser Argyle to get your tickets, also get letter from Purser.

(Sgd.) W. J. WALSH.

Mr. Caul and his friends did not appeal for pauper relief, nor did I appeal to the Government for pauper relief for them. I merely pointed out through the press, how serious conditions are, and I once more tried to arouse the sympathy of some members of the Government in behalf of the workmen. Passages have been provided for Mr. Caul and his companions, for which they will pay when they earn the money, and they will not have to be written for payment either. There are hundreds of other good, honest, hard-working men scattered all over the country who need assistance to find work and transportation thereto, so let the Editor of the St. John's Daily Star use his influence with his Government to come to their assistance and in future when he is anxious to wound a political foe, let him see that he uses the proper weapon.

Yours truly,
W. J. WALSH.

Attractive Coats for Winter

AT

Special Prices

We here illustrate two specially attractive Coats made from new Synthetic Fur material known as "Chase's Furwove Muskrat" for winter wear. These Coats are the newest belted models for 1920-1921 wear, perfectly cut and finished, built to resist, and as a protection against all weathers. They are well lined throughout, and so faithfully is the Muskrat Fur copied that it defies detection unless it is very minutely inspected.

These Coats come in two lengths, and are sold at two prices, $65 and $75 respectively.

"MARCHING BACK TO '14."

Newfoundland Producer

J. MURRAY ANDERSON'S REVUE GETS PRIORITY.

There is great competition amongst London revue producers in signing up successful American artists. C. B. Cochran got ahead of his competitors by coming to the English capital several weeks ago and signing on J. Murray Anderson, producer of the "Greenwich Village Follies" and other successful revues, to produce the revue with which Oxford Theatre will reopen about Christmas time. A representative of Grossmith and Laurillard arrived too late to get Anderson, but began negotiations with the latter's former colleague, Andre Sherril, which may lead to his going to London to produce revues of extraordinary magnificence. The average first-class revue in London during the past two seasons has not cost over $25,000 as producing expenses are much lower in Europe than in the U.S.A. But due to the keen competition existing between London producers, Anderson's and Sherril's revues are expected to amount to at least $50,000. For example, it is reported that Anderson will receive $15,000 during his engagement, exclusive of royalties, the largest fee ever paid by a London manager to a producer. A representative of J. L. Sachs is also in New York buying up the British mechanical rights to a number of novelties from recent musical productions. Albert de Courville, the producer of "Joy Bells," the successful London revue, is also expected in the U.S. shortly, looking for a first-class producer for several new musical shows which he contemplates producing in London this season. Both Edward Royce and Julian Mitchell refused to succumb to the tempting offers of London managers. Not only American producers, but also the better known scenic artists have been approached by British managers.

Preparing for Sports.

The committee in charge of the Dominion Sports met last night in the Prince's Park to make arrangements in connection with the track and seating accommodation. The track has been painted and intending competitors can now practice over the regular course. The object of the Boat Club in organizing the sports is to stimulate athletics in Newfoundland, and it is their intention to have another Dominion Sports Day next summer when a committee will be appointed to select five of our best athletes to represent the Dominion at the Halifax Carnival Week next October. There is no doubt that we have athletes in Newfoundland as good as the best of them, if they get down to practice, and the C.C.C. Boat Club are to be complimented on having the foresight to arrange those gatherings thereby stimulating sport and producing the men who will represent Britain's Oldest Colony on the athletic field. The Dominion Sports are the first of the kind ever held here and the suggestion has been made that H. E. the Governor who is taking a special interest in the affair, should be asked to start the first race. Mr. T. Bennett's band has been engaged to play during the night, whilst the Orchestra will also play during the intervals. The cups and medals will be on exhibition next week, and arrangements have also been made to have the numbered reserved seats placed at the disposal of the public.

The Herring Fishery.

The herring fishery in Bay of Islands the past week has been only fair. In Humber Arm most of last week's catches were small, the fish having, it was thought, taken a sweep to the outer reaches. On Monday, however, they appeared to have come in again, and on the Bar at Humbermouth boats had from four to fifteen tubs. In some cases the fish were a fine size. There appears to be two schools of herring this season and fishermen who secure the larger fish have no difficulty in disposing of their catches.

In Middle Arm there was very good fishing on Saturday. There are four vessels in Middle Arm taking herring, two belong to Gloucester, one to Buckport and one to Burn.

The fishing was hampered at Bonne Bay through the lack of salt, but a cargo arrived there last week and since then the packing business has been in full swing—Western Star.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR BURNS, ETC.

Double Tenement House Burnt to the Ground.

Shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while Mr. J. Hanley was doing some work at his home on Newing Road, he noticed smoke issuing from the roof of a double tenement house occupied by Messrs. Thompson and Miller on Goodridge Street. He immediately sent a messenger to the Fire Hall with the alarm. The company responded in quick time but upon their arrival the whole dwelling was in a mass of flame, the fire being fanned by a strong N. W. wind. Water connections were hard to find, the nearest hydrant being McNeil Street. The firemen after an hour's hard work succeeded in confining the blast to one place, their efforts in this direction deserving the highest praise, as directly opposite the burning building was a newly built house. The houses of Messrs. Barnes and Duggan were also saved, though at times it looked as if they too would be consumed. Messrs. Thompson and Miller lost all their belongings. The former has 9 or 10 children. Miller's family has grown up, but the loss to him is a severe blow as he had only lately bought the place. The fire was supposed to have started by sparks from an adjoining chimney.

The Sugar Board's Circular.

The following circular has been sent the Trade by the Food Control Board:—

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 12. The Food Control Board now offer the Trade White Granulated Sugar in lots of 50 barrels or over at 22½ cents per pound, ex. store.

A certified cheque, payable to the Newfoundland Food Control Board, to cover approximate cost must accompany each order, the amount for 50 barrels being $3500.00, the transaction being adjusted when the actual weights are known.

It is expected that this price will be maintained for about three months. N.F.L.D. FOOD CONTROL BOARD.

Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Yesterday, Nov. 11, Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel J. Simmons, of 63 Lime Street, celebrated their golden wedding day having been married Nov. 11, 1870, at Heart's Content, by Rev. Mr. Gardner, Church of England priest in charge. Mrs. Simmons is a daughter of the late Abner Snow, sr., of Bay Roberts, and is still hale and hearty at the age of 78. Mr. Simmons during his earlier life followed the sea, but is now working at ship's carpentering. He is 75 years old and is able to turn to his work with the agility of many not half his age. They have three sons living in the city and one daughter, married living at Carbonear. The Telegram extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Simmons and hope they may live to celebrate their Diamond Jubilee.

Mr. Lindsay Crawford Coming.

Mr. Lindsay Crawford, Toronto editor of the "Canadian Statesman," will visit Newfoundland next week, and during his stay in St. John's will address a public meeting in connection with Irish affairs. Mr. Crawford is an Episcopalian, born in Ulster, and is therefore qualified to deal intelligently with Irish problems. He is a talented and vigorous writer, a man of keen discernment, who is fearlessly independent. He is a great Irish-Canadian and a sincere friend of Ireland, as well as a strong advocate of a settlement on fair lines of the Irish problem. No doubt many will be interested in hearing him speak on this issue, as first hand information is all-important, particularly from one who is conversant from personal knowledge of the Irish problem in all its phases.

Where Will It End?

The exodus of young men from the country still continues and, according to a recent issue of the North Sydney Herald, 93 men came from Newfoundland on a recent trip of the Kyle. If the Government will continue on its present policy it is fairly evident that before long the country will be emptied of its youth. Already we have lost far too many and steps should be taken to see that sufficient inducements are offered the remainder to cause them to stay in this country.

Roller Skating.

One of the largest attendances of the roller skating season has been present at the rink all this week. The skaters, who have now become quite proficient in the art, find the floor in excellent shape, leaving nothing to be desired for their comfort. The music furnished by both the Orchestra and the Ferris Nove Band on the alternate evenings is enough to satisfy one's pleasure. The Orchestra, which has recently been overhauled by Mr. Earle P. Smith, of North Sydney, with his assistant, Mr. Marmaduke Findlater, is now being heard to advantage, after a lapse of six years. Roller skating is gradually becoming popular largely amongst the younger folk, who appear to grasp the idea much more quickly than the grown-ups. With next season being looked forward to, and the many improvements about to be made by the management, rollers as a recreation in time will eclipse all former records.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DANDY BUFF

Western Star Comments

There are districts in this country with only about the same population as St. George's and some with less which have from two to three representatives.

Petitions are being circulated for signatures to give the women a vote. Of course some men will not dare refuse their autograph though it be all they possess at present.

The herring fishery is now in full operation. In the past our fisheries have suffered much and we are suffering even to-day from our failure in times past to remember when engaged in the curing and marketing the products of our fisheries that we were handling an article of food. We therefore urge that cleanliness to the fullest possible measure be practiced in the packing and curing of our herring.

It is, we think, unfortunate that more methods have not been introduced for the curing and marketing of our herring. We suggest an experiment be made in putting up the fish—particularly the smaller ones—in glass jars and cured in vinegar. We understand there would be a ready market for such, at remunerative prices no doubt. The greater variety of methods of cure the better all round, for it tends to reduce the quantity in any one and therefore tends to enhance the price.

The open season for the killing and taking of beavers is during the first half of the month of March. We have been told by trappers, and we have a letter before us now on the matter that this is the mating season for beavers, and would therefore be the wrong season for the taking of them. It is also pointed out that holes would be cut in the ice and netting as well as trapping would be practiced and by such means more of the animals would be destroyed.

Some years ago the system of elective road boards was inaugurated. It was believed at the time that it would have the effect of creating a greater public spirit among the people and that the boards would be comprised of men actuated as to how best to improve public services and not for their own emolument. Whether such has been the result the public can judge. One thing is quite apparent, however, the public in the past have not taken the interest they should take in these elections and they are therefore responsible for the results.

The men might well take a lesson from the women and petition the Legislature too, on the dividing of the West Coast districts and the increasing of representation. We want six members instead of three, the people of the coast want more representation, they have said so time and again. We have conversed with hundreds who have so expressed themselves. They want the districts divided. We suggest that they sign up petitions for that purpose. You cannot expect to get anything these days unless you ask for it, and you are lucky if you get it then. And in this matter we urge you to ask in no uncertain or half-hearted manner.

Obituary.

MRS. MARY KEEFE. There passed away at Placentia on the 7th inst., a very estimable lady in the person of Mrs. Mary Keefe relict of the late Thomas Keefe. Being of a kind and cheerful disposition she was loved by all who knew her. Deceased was 76 years of age, and up to a few hours before passing she was apparently in good health. Her death comes with sorrow and regret to the community in which she so long lived. She leaves to mourn her two daughters, Mrs. Patrick Greene, and Mrs. John Young at Placentia, and seven sons, Sergt. R. Keefe, of St. John's, Joseph at St. George's, Thos. and James of Boston, Cornelius residing in New York and Patrick and Rudolph at home. Interment took place at Mount Carmel Cemetery Placentia, Wednesday, the funeral being largely attended.

A SIMPLE DRESS FOR WORK OR LEISURE.

Pattern 2364 cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 and 46 inches bust measure is here shown. For comfort, convenience and attraction, this model has much to recommend it. The lines are simple, and the garment may be made for service, or as a "porth" or "afternoon" dress. Foulard, taffeta, serge, gabardine, crepe de chine, voile or poplin would be nice for a "dressy" dress. Developed as a work dress it would look well in gingham, chambray, linen, lawn or percale. Size 38 requires 6½ yards of 36 inch material. Width of Skirt at lower edge is about 2¼ yards. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. in silver or stamps.

A POPULAR MODEL.

Pattern 2366 is portrayed here. It is cut in 7 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 33 inch size will require 4½ yards of 40 inch material. Braided serge or duvetyn would be attractive for this style, or satin, taffeta, tricotine, and velveteen. The dress measures about 1¾ yard at the foot. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15 cents in silver or stamps.

THE TRUE ROLL OF HONOR.

RUTH CAMERON

A certain organization put up a bronze tablet, containing its "Roll of Honor" for the war, recently. The list was made up of men who had served in any capacity in the war.

I happened to know a good many of the men, and when I looked it over I saw the name of one man, who, after consulting a doctor to see whether he would not be exempt on account of a slight physical defect and being told that he unquestionably would be pronounced fit, had hastily enlisted in the coast guard. Another had waited until he was practically sure that the draft was going to be extended to include him, and then had enlisted in the quartermaster's department. A third had struggled in every way he knew of to get himself exempted, claiming first necessary work and then dependency, and finally had spent a few months at a training camp.

And these names were on a roll of honor of war service!

The Eager and Those Who Were Forced to Go.

These men will be the honored veterans of this war. These men, and thousands like them, will march with the men who really wanted to serve their country. And only a few people will know that there is any difference between them. These men, as they grow older, will sit on grand stands and receive tributes for what they did. And doubtless they will themselves, in time, come to believe that they did do something splendid.

I suppose that it is inevitable that this should happen after every war. A college friend of mine told me that she had an uncle whom she used to think won several battles in the Civil War almost single-handed until she finally discovered the truth about him—and that was that he had been drafted into the war late, after a struggle on his part, and had served for a few months as a guard in a Federal prison.

Civilians Who Deserve More Honor.
It is too bad that we cannot thresh the wheat from the chaff so that those who really deserve honor might have it without sharing it with those who are getting it under false pretences. And it is equally too bad that there cannot appear on some rolls of honor the names of civilians who gave their strength and sometimes their lives to the war, just as truly as if they had been in the Army or Navy.

Think of the home doctors who bore on their shoulders the burden of double duty during those terrible times when we needed twice as many instead of half as many doctors. Some of them impaired their health at that time, some of them gave their lives. Do they not deserve to be on some roll of honor?

Think of men who worked so hard in public service that they broke under the strain. I mean like Carleton Parker, who literally worked himself to death helping the Government mediate its labor troubles.

Think of the Bank Employees. Think of the way the Bank employees worked over the Liberty Loan and the Red Cross work. A bank treasurer told me the other day that he would rather be dead than go through another two years like those in which the loans were issued. He said he often went home staggering as if he were drunk, from utter exhaustion. And the bank gained nothing from this work—on the contrary, they lost thousands of dollars.

Think, too, of the home guard men who took big losses in their business and worked themselves 18 or 20 hours a day in the cause of public safety. Don't you wish some power that could know the hearts and lives of men, and who to weigh service in some superhuman balance, might write a true roll of honor of the war? this should happen after every war.

Few Can Sit Still.

It is a strange fact, but true, that few men or women can sit or stand perfectly still, and few of us are perfectly comfortable, when walking, unless we carry something. Hence walking sticks and gloves. Here and there one meets someone, mostly a woman, who has really mastered the art of sitting quite still while talking or listening, and a very attractive art

THE JAPS.

WILLY MARCH

I've met about ten thousand Japs, out here upon the western shore, and they're such courteous little chaps I'd gladly meet ten thousand more. Most white men view them with alarm, and say they are a grievous pest; they do our bulwarks deadly harm, and make our sacred boons a jest. I know I ought to join the gang where cusswords in a torrent flow, and make a fierce and hot harangue, insisting that the Japs must go; I know my course is far from right, when I admit I like the Japs because they always are polite, with winning smiles upon their maps. Politeness is an art that's lost where white men hump to make their piles; and evermore I meet a frost where I'm expecting cordial smiles. In every town the skate is found who thinks up caustic things to say; in every street the boers abound, their rudeness jars me every day. But when I seek the Japanese, to buy an onion or a brick, they bow with grace of old grandees, and hand me taffy on a stick. The Japs are taking half the globe because they are so blamed polite; the white man howls and tears his robe, and says it isn't just or right.

Dr. Johnson's Birthday.

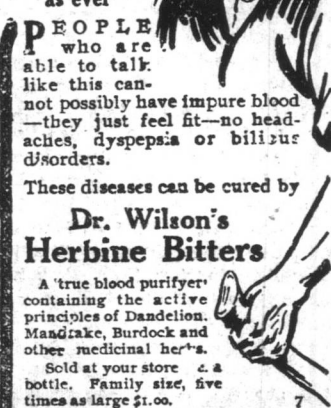

The 211th anniversary of the birth of Dr. Samuel Johnson, was recently observed in the native city of Lichfield. The attendance of visitors was the largest recorded since the bicentenary celebration in 1909. During the morning the older school children of the city were conducted through the house, and the various treasures of Johnsonian interest were explained to them, and a laurel wreath was placed on the doctor's statue in the Market Square, by the Deputy-Mayor. At the birthplace, a plaster medallion portrait of the late Arthur B. Plant, Mus. Doc., a native of Lichfield, the composer of the Johnson anthem, was unveiled.

Lord Charnwood presided at the annual meeting of the Johnson Society in the afternoon, when Sir Norman Moore, President of the Royal College of Physicians, was installed in the presidential chair, in succession to Sir Sidney Lee. In the evening a supper of Johnsonian fare was held at the Three Crowns Inn, where Johnson and Boswell were wont to stay, upon their visits to Lichfield. Lord Charnwood, in an address, said that, although there was a sense in which they could not regard Johnson as one of the greatest figures of England literature, there was a sense to which they could regard him as one of the wholesomest figures in the history of British intellect and English speech; and that was his total simplicity, reality, and want of affectation; in a word, the heart which underlay his brilliancy and his wit.

"Go to the Ant, Thou—"

Next to the bee in the insect world, comes the ant when intelligence is under consideration. For instance, there is a certain kind of ant which builds its nest by sewing together a number of leaves. If a rent occurs in this flimsy home the ants soon set about repairing it in the following manner. They form a line one side of the tear, and reach across till they are able to seize the other in their mouths. Then altogether they pull with one gigantic heave till one edge overlaps the other. Even now the work is by no means finished. The females scurry away, to return with their infants, which possess spinarets, though the adults do not. Holding their little ones securely, the ants pinch them, till, in self-defense, they start spinning. They are then moved from side to side of the rent, the minute threads attaching themselves in the process, and finally making an almost invisible mending of the torn edges.

Church Lads' Brigade.

Yesterday was the Brigade's birthday, being incorporated in London, England, in the year 1891, by the late Lieut-Colonel W. M. Gee, who was of that time Secretary of the Church of England Temperance Society and keenly interested in the problem of work among lads of all classes. The pioneer Company was St. Andrew's Company, who held their first parade on 20th July, 1891, in Fulham parish. "The Day" arrived at last when the Organizing Committee were ready to launch the project, what has been one of the world's successes, as far as institutions for boys are concerned. St. Martin's Day, November 11th, 1891, therefore the Brigade was formed and Avalon Battalion of the First Nfld. Regiment always celebrates its birthday in a befitting manner.

Last night Lieut-Colonel Goodridge Officer Commanding, with Major Raley, M.C., Adjutant, and the following officers were on duty: Capt. Herbert Outerbridge, Jeffrey, H. L. Pike, Alex. Morris; Lieuts. Miles, Hendry, W. R. Mott, Harold and Lance Hayward, Reeves, House, Rev. Fletcher, Perlin, R. G. Ash, Thornley and Geo. Hunt (School Dept.). The Battalion paraded at 8.15 as usual and proceeded on a city route march. The battalion was 350 strong—a record parade. The Old Comrades paraded in great strength under Batt. Sergt-Major Newworthy. In the absence of Pres. Peckham, at the Great War Veterans' dinner. There was about 60 torch bearers, and the parade was quite lively on account of a wagon in the rear using crackers and fire works. On return to the Armoury Lieut-Colonel Goodridge congratulated the Battalion generally on their appearance and the Old Comrades' for their enthusiastic support. The Colonel announced that there would be a Communicants' parade on Sunday at 8 a.m. at St. Mary's Church, Southside, and an afternoon parade at 2.15 p.m. when the Battalion will attend 3 p.m. service at St. Mary's, when the Rector, Rev. A. B. S. Stirling, will preach the sermon.

On Tuesday evening the Battalion will finalize their 29th birthday celebration by a tea and concert in the Armoury at 8 p.m. The Colonel will preside and address the lads on the history of Avalon Battalion since its organization in Newfoundland in 1892 by the Rev. J. S. Thompson and Sergt. Harold Blackler, who was No. 1 on the Regimental Roll Call, whilst the present Quartermaster, Major Williams, was No. 13. The ladies have kindly offered to provide the tables. At present Sergt-Major Colton of Messrs. C. F. Bennett & Co.'s office, is looking for five additional ladies, who will provide a table for twelve lads, and if any kindly disposed lady would phone him he would be glad to have their names.

We are sorry to hear Lieut. Phil Rendell (Recruits) is ill again with bronchitis, but the officers hope he will soon be on duty in the Mess again.

The Bugle Band has been reorganized under Corporal Cook. All former buglers and drummers are ordered to turn in their drums, etc., to the Quartermaster. The new buglers are L. C. Cook, M. Williams, H. Whitten, C. Cornick, L. Rees, M. Bugden.

All committees managing dances and entertainments are ordered to send financial statements within 14 days to the Paymaster.

The following recruits have passed their drill examination and been posted to their Co's: Pte. D. Coombs, C. Deane, W. Haynes, W. Vey, C. Barrett, R. Nelder, W. Thorne and Chesley Curtis.

We were all glad to see the Shannon Munn C.L.B. Memorial Company on parade last night under Rev. Lieut. Fletcher, this section being attached to 'F' Co. We wish all ranks of the C.L.B. in Newfoundland many happy returns of the day.

One of the greatest worries to be faced to-day is the choice of gifts for friends, and we do get and give such useless things. A great society leader once said, "There is safety in Flowers for all occasions." We agree with her, and suggest a bunch of our beautiful Chrysanthemums, several colors, or Carnations, or a pot of Snapdragon, etc.; many other kinds soon ready.

Try Valley sun seasoned Tomatoes for Sandwiches, they are the rage. Bouquets, Wreaths, etc., quickly supplied.

Surprise Party Given Choir Member.

On Wednesday evening Mrs. A. Goobie was given a surprise party at her home on Hamilton Avenue. Twenty-five years ago Mrs. Goobie joined the Alexander Street Church Methodist choir and steadily since that time she has stuck to her post in season and out of season. She could be always relied on to be in her place. When the new Wesley Church was opened and the choir was reorganized under Mr. J. C. Pratt she still retained the foremost place she had heretofore occupied and now that she is celebrating her silver jubilee it was most fitting that she should be honoured as she was on Wednesday evening. The party comprised the whole of the choir members and under the leadership of choir master Pratt surprised her by calling at her home and through Mr. H. Chaplin presented her with a beautiful set of Silver Butter Spreaders. Mr. Chaplin was happy in his remarks and highly complimented her on her splendid record as a talented member of the choir. Games were indulged in and songs and solos rendered. Supper was served at 11 o'clock and at midnight the party broke up after spending a very enjoyable evening. The Telegram joins in extending congratulations to Mrs. Goobie and wishes her many more years in usefulness in the Wesley Methodist Choir.

Basketball Games.

On Wednesday night a series of basketball games were run off in the C.C.C. Armoury, before a fair gathering of spectators. At 8.15 A. and B. Companies lined up to fight for superiority, and after an hour's hard play A. Company were victorious by a score of 5 points to 3, the winning team being J. Russell, J. Ryan, G. Long, J. Cawley, C. Meadus and D. Fleming. The second game, Whites vs. Blues, proved all that was expected of it, and after changing over 3 times, the Blues won by a score of 6 points to 4, the victors being R. O'Toole, H. Ellis, M. Russell, G. Taylor and E. Power. The game of the night, however, took place when the Sergeants met the N.C.O's, the game being exciting from start to finish and some excellent play was handed out. The Sergeants, however, proved too much for their opponents and won by a score of 5 to 2. The team was Sergt-Major Clancey, Sergts. J. Aylward, W. Aspell, W. McGinn and P. Parsley.

"The Master Mind."

AT THE CASINO TO-NIGHT.

The much talked of drama of politics and intrigue, "The Master Mind," which is to be presented at the Casino Theatre by the Klark-Urban Company to-night, is a play of the class of that success, "Within the Law," and similar productions, in which many scenes are laid in police stations, criminal courts and underworld environments. "The Master Mind" differs from most of its kind in that its setting is an elegantly furnished apartment, in New York, though occupied by a thief disguised as a gentleman, and the beautiful home of a former district attorney and aspirant for Governorship on the Hudson. This play abounds in thrilling situations. This piece is considered to be one of the greatest crook plays of the year and is written by Daniel D. Carter and produced in four stirring acts. Don't miss this worthwhile production. On Monday "Civilian Clothes" will be the attraction.

Weighed in the Balance.

The alarming conditions in Newfoundland to-day are attributable alone to the misgovernment of the dominion by an aggregation of irresponsible, whose sole desire seems to be a riotous wasting of the public revenues. People need but to look to the appointment of useless and expensive officials, at the instance of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to realise that utter disregard of the decencies of public life is a fixed idea in the minds of those who obtained control of the Government by a subterfuge which had no bearing on either political or economic conditions. How long a deceived and outraged electorate will submit to the existing disastrous policy of the Government, the control of which is vested in Mr. Coaker, it is impossible to say. The patience and forbearance of the people, under the circumstances are admirable, and it is to be wondered at that they remain calm in the face of such appalling conditions as confront them. It is, however, to be hoped that the present patient attitude may not change to one of active, open antagonism, because the results of such a change may well be feared, and tragic consequences would inevitably ensue.

Mr. Coaker does not appear to comprehend the psychology of circumstances. He has long since shown himself to be a brilliant failure as a political or commercial economist, but the limit of endurance is now reached when he is found from day to day appointing as Fish Commissioners, men who have no knowledge whatever of the duties which they will be expected to perform. All men are qualified for some position; some men are qualified for any position, but with Mr. Coaker every Government heeler and henchman is apparently an expert fish trade agent, whose qualifications are so general that they fit in any market, from Iceland to Greece or from Spain to British Columbia. The people of this island have often been goaded to desperation by the acts of unscrupulous politicians, but the rights of the fishermen have never before been disregarded with such indecency as that being perpetrated to-day, and to this outrage and disregard the present administration have added insult by appointing Trade Agents who do not, nor would not, under close examination, know a dry codfish from a pine slab.

Mr. Coaker, once the friend of the fishermen, is now fighting, with his back against the wall, for those whom he once characterised as "leeches" and "graballs," defying the very people who once regarded him as the idol of their affections and the apple of their eye, and in his present attitude he has the passive support of the men who represent the fishing industry of the South and West Coast, notably Messrs. Cheese-man, Foote, Warren and Small. Is it too late to appeal to those four men to make an endeavor to stay the impending tragedy by independent action on their part, which may arrest—to some extent—the disastrous order of things and others which are imminent. The fishermen, whose interests the four gentlemen named are supposed to represent, are watching closely for some action on their part to help save Terra Nova from complete economic and political bankruptcy, or a worse fate.

Rhodes Scholarship.

Sebastian Young, a Wounded Soldier, Elected.
Yesterday the Rhodes' Scholarship selection committee met at Government House for the purpose of electing the Rhodes Scholar for 1921. Three candidates appeared before the committee, and of them Sergt. Sebastian Young, of Curling, Bay of Islands, formerly of "Ours," was elected. Mr. Young, after a course at St. Bonaventure's College taught at Dunville for a year, then returned to College, and after one year obtained Honors in the Associate Grade and led the class. He was then appointed Principal of the Roman Catholic High School at Grand Falls, where he did excellent work as a teacher, resigning his position there in 1916 to volunteer for active service with the Royal Nfld. Regiment. He served in France and was wounded in 1917. He is at present in his second year in medicine at Dalhousie University, Halifax. The committee of selection was His Excellency the Governor, Sir Wm. Horwood, Chief Justice, Hon. Mr. Justice Kent, Hon. Geo. Shea, Dr. Blackall, Dr. Curtis, Mr. Arthur News, C.M.G., Mr. J. W. Withers, Mr. C. P. Ayre and Dr. V. P. Burke, Hon. Secretary.

P. G. Orange Lodge Session Called.

A special session of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Newfoundland has been called by the Provincial Grand Master to be held in Victoria Hall on Wednesday evening, December 1st next, at which meeting certain matters of Imperial importance will be discussed. These matters are indicated in the notice of meeting sent to all members of the Orange Association who are entitled to sit and vote in Grand Lodge.

Woman Knocked Down by Cart.

Whilst crossing Water Street near Relds Electrical Department this morning, a woman was hit in the shoulder by the shaft of a long cart, driven by a boy, and knocked down, the wheel of the cart passing over both her legs. The woman fainted from the pain and was picked up and carried into a nearby store while a doctor was sent for to attend her. The driver of the cart drove on without troubling to find out how badly hurt the woman was, but he was caught by a constable and had his name and address taken.

Presentation to Popular Captain.

On a recent trip of the Kyle a handsome presentation was made to Capt. Stevenson. The gift took the form of a splendid case of pipes and was presented by Dr. Mossell on behalf of certain of the passengers, who highly appreciated the Captain's kindly courtesy. Captain Stevenson's friends are exceeded in number only by the host of admirers who have travelled on his boat, who respect him for his skill as a navigator and who like him for his genial qualities as a "good fellow."

Thanks the Press.

Dear Sir.—The officers and members of the Cathedral Parish Bazaar Committee requested the Rector to communicate their grateful thanks for the assistance rendered to their cause by the Press.

The excellent financial result and the large number present were a tremendous encouragement, and it was felt that the statements and advertisements in the papers had been of the utmost assistance.

When all the heavy expenses have been met we shall clear, which will go towards fabric expenses, $4,165. Yours faithfully,
LEONARD L. JEEVES,
The Rectory, St. John's, Nov. 11.

We would like to make a suggestion as regards Christmas Shopping. Every day we are opening new shipments of Toys and Gift Goods. Suppose you make it a point to come in and see these items, so as not to miss exceptional opportunities. This is the only way to thoroughly enjoy Christmas Shopping and have all the time you require. There will be no last minute rush, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have not been extravagant, though it is a real joy to be extravagant occasionally, at Gift Giving Times. We thank you for your kind attention.
Yours sincerely,

For Popular Consideration.

(No. 4.)
Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir.—My letter No. 3 concluded with the assertion that the policy of the Hon. Mr. Coaker and his dominant friends on the Fish Export Board was to maintain, at any cost, a safe margin between cost price and sale price of fish, so as to insure a profit, in any event, to the merchant exporter. I assert, and shall herein endeavor to prove, that Mr. Coaker and his colleagues on the Board practically operate a monopoly for the benefit of the capital they represent. I assert, and shall endeavor to prove, that they fix prices for buying fish, and for selling it, so that they shall, in every case, make profits, and that no loss can ordinarily fall upon them, but that the "under-dogs" shall in every case bear the burden of decreasing prices in foreign markets, plus all the Exporters' expenses.

My proofs are, of course, all circumstantial, but convincing nevertheless. The first proof is the absolute identity of interest amongst them. They all have the same end in view. They all aim to make profit certain for Capital. Job works for profits, Barr works for profits, Sellars works for profits. What else does Coaker work for? Are they selfish self-protection and profiteers and Coaker an unselfish altruistic public benefactor?

The second proof is, that they possess power to fix by regulation the selling price to consumers, and to fix by tacit agreement amongst themselves the buying price to fishermen. Having the power, and the duty to their shareholders, who can doubt that they exercise that power to make profit a certainty? Current prices in this market are all fixed practically by members of the Export Board, for outsiders dare not bid a higher price, knowing that the Export Board could so reduce the fixed price for selling abroad, or so hold up shipments, or otherwise bedevil exports, as to put "scab" outsiders in a hole.

But there are stronger and more direct proofs. The Export Regulations aim to create monopoly. By them it is provided that nobody without a license may export fish, and a license cannot be obtained until Mr. Coaker and his chums on the Export Board are "satisfied." No fisherman exporter who has not exported at least one thousand quintals within one of the three years next preceding the application can get a license, unless he gives security, in one thousand dollars, that he will export that quantity within a year, and the security will be forfeited if he fails to ship the quantity within the time, unless the Board is "satisfied" that when he got the license he really meant to ship the quantity, and failed for some good reason.

Application for a license by any person not being a British Subject domiciled in this Colony, or even by a locally incorporated company "controlled" abroad, may be refused by the Board without reason recorded or given. Americans wishing to export fish from this Colony must give a bond for $10,000, and if they wish to ship 500 casks or more, the bond must be increased by $20 per cask, and the bond will be forfeited if, in the opinion of the Export Board, the buyer does not re-ship the fish from America to foreign markets on the terms and conditions applicable to direct shipments from this Colony.

Manifestly all these rules are intended to create a copper fastened monopoly for the merchants now in the trade here, to the utter exclusion of small exporters, or ambitious beginners, and of American and Canadian traders. This attempt to create a grinding monopoly is the most audacious of recent years. This Colony owes a great debt of gratitude to American, Canadian and local speculators in fish, whose incursions into our local markets from time to time have again and again kept up prices for the fishermen, and to bar them out in the future is to hand over our fishermen to the unrelenting grasp of "Water Street" and Coaker.

The Export Board—that is, Coaker and his chums on it, who form a majority—have forged chains for the trade of this Colony which make the fishermen economic slaves, make our toilers on the sea drawers of fish, for the profit of shareholders in the Companies whose representatives on the Board absolutely control it. What would have been said, when Coaker was not in politics, if it had been proposed to put a "graball" in the Department of Fisheries, and give him the autocratic powers now possessed by Coaker? But now that Coaker has become the greatest individual "graball" in the Colony, he sits in control of the fish export trade, he governs local prices, he says in effect what shall be paid to the fishermen, and what profit the merchant shall make, but having become a merchant, and doffed the canvas jacket he once boasted of, he takes care that the merchants shall be guaranteed a profit while the fisherman walks the streets to find a market. Once, Coaker talked only of what the merchant should pay, now he only talks of what the merchant shall get.

In recent numbers of the Advocate fulsome references have been made to the services of Mr. Coaker to the fishermen in the days when he was in opposition, and the Government was controlled by his present opponents. It is most significant that those days were before he became an Exporter. The contrast proves my claim that he has deserted the "under-dogs" and become one of the "upper-dogs." Who can recall an effort by Mr. Coaker to boost the local price of fish since he formed the Union Export Company. All his efforts nowadays are exerted to keep up the foreign price paid to his Company and his fellow Exporters. All his wild talk about prices in Greece, Italy and Brazil is about the prices paid TO Merchants, not BY Merchants, and though he camouflages his object by loudly pretending that it is the local price he fights for, his real object is the "spread" or profit he can make for the Exporters. He is a traitor to the majority of the men who gave him power, but seeks to disguise his treason by the aid of his paid servants and the complacency of the shareholders in his Companies, some of whom are intelligent enough to understand his treason, but are constrained to silence by their love of dividends.

Your truly,

The Sugar Board's Muddle.

A double column head in yesterday's Advocate announced that it had been decided by the Food Control Board and the Government, to reduce the price of sugar by practically five cents per lb., adding further that purchasers of 50 barrels can obtain such direct from the Board, and that the reduced price would be maintained for three months. This decision probably will mean a retail price of 25 cents. No mention, however, has been made of the fact that consumers have been fleeced to the tune of $100,000 per month, and that for nearly two months. It is admitted that the monthly consumption is about 3,000 barrels equalling 1,000,000 lbs., which quantity has been selling at ten cents per lb. more than the market warranted. A little figuring will show that the Sugar Control Board's muddling has cost the people over a half million dollars more than should have been paid. Of course, the Board, through manipulation, is endeavouring to show a square balance sheet when the whole business is settled up, but what of the consumer? With white nape fish, white elephants and white sugar this country is certainly brightened.

Police Court.
The habitual attendants of the police court must have taken a keen interest in to-day's proceedings, for they turned up in full strength, bringing a host of friends with them and filling the seating capacity of the Court Room.

The first case called was that of four men charged with breaking into the house of one Ellen Power with felonious intent. The Inspector General, who was prosecuting, asked for a remand without bail. Mr. Higgins, for defendants, protested strongly against this. He declared that it was not British justice to hold a man in jail until sufficient evidence might be collected to convict him. His Honor agreed with Mr. Higgins and allowed bail in four sureties of $5,000 each, and $5,000 to be put up by each defendant.

Three youths, the eldest 14 years of age, were charged with stealing fish from a freight car on the R.N. Co's premises. The boys went to the R.N. Co's yard with sacks in which to take home the fish. They broke the lock of the car with a piece of iron and were pilfering the fish, when they were seen by an employee of the company and had to run away. His Honor, after commenting on the constant pilfering going on in the Reid Co's yards, sentenced the eldest prisoner to two months imprisonment, another to 30 days and the youngest to receive six strokes of the birch. At this point the mother of the eldest boy became hysterical, and had to be removed by three policemen, uttering piercing screams the while. It is a disgrace to the community that boys at such tender years should be sent to prison where they are bound to become contaminated. Much has been said already, but little has been done in connection with the building of a reformatory to which boys could be sent to be cured of their criminal tendencies, rather than that they should be sent to the penitentiary to develop into hardened criminals.

The last case to be heard was that of a man charged with drunkenness and using profane language to the constable who arrested him. He was fined $2 or 7 days.

Esperanto Crew Feted.
Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 9.—Tribute to the crew of the schooner Esperanto winner of the race for the International championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleets, was paid last night by Governor Coolidge and a host of fishing folk of this city at a banquet in the State armory. Other speakers included Mayor Brown, Congressman Lulkin and James B. Connolly. The New England Fish Exchange presented Captain Welch with a chest of silver and he, in his characteristic manner, responded with his own speech of the evening, by saying: "I thank you."

NOTE OF THANKS.—The "White Elephant" Sale which was held last week at Buchanan Street, in aid of the Girls' West End Club was a decided success, and the Executive Committee are very grateful to all those who sent donations, or assisted in any way.—adv.

Historical Society Meeting.

The Historical Society held its regular meeting last night. Mr. Chas. F. Duder was elected to membership. Rev. Canon Smith read a paper entitled "A bit of the History of Portugal." Discovered June 15th, 1500, it was not settled for nearly 200 years, an Irishman named Dwyer and an Englishman named White being the first settlers. There are no descendants in the male line of these pioneers, the oldest family being Nearys. The story of pretty Fanny Goff proved most interesting. Two poems were quoted in full—one by an unsuccessful aspirant to the hand of Miss Goff and one written after her death. The last mentioned poem had been learnt by one of the Portugal Cove girls present at the funeral and recited by her to Canon Smith when she was over ninety years of age. For seventy-five years it had been stored in the brain of one who could neither read nor write.
Miss Goff was connected, on her mother's side with the Jennings family, of whom Sarah, first Duchess of Marlborough is the most famous. The case of Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce in "Bleak House" is really that of Jennings versus Jennings. The case is still in Chancery. If the certificate of the marriage of the couple that ran away to Newfoundland could be found, some people in Portugal Cove and a prominent citizen of St. John's would come into a fortune.

Former Reporter in New York.

Mr. J. R. Smallwood, former Telegram reporter, who left Newfoundland in June to go to Canada and United States to engage in newspaper work, is at present in New York where he went from Boston. Writing to member of the Telegram staff, Mr. Smallwood says he plans to spend Xmas here, and will arrive early next month. The ex-Telegram man is now attached to the New York Call as reporter. In Boston he worked with the Herald. Prior to that he was on the Halifax Herald. Since arriving in New York he has been covering some big newspaper assignments and has met and interviewed some of the most interesting men in America, amongst them being W. G. Harding and Governor James M. Cox, Presidential candidates; Norman Hapgood, former American Ambassador to Denmark; Elihu Root, Thomas W. Lamont, J. P. Morgan's partner, Governor Alfred Smith of New York Mayor Hyman, James Weldon Johnson, who exposed the murders of the American Marines in Haiti, Eamon DeValera, President of the Irish Republic, and his secretary, Harry Boland, M.P., Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, Soviet Russia's Ambassador to United States; Lincoln Steffens, one of the most prominent of America's newspapermen and the man who created such a sensation upon his return from Russia where he knew intimately Lenin and Trotsky, Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of Community Church, noted author and the most well known preacher of New York; Enrico Caruso, the great Italian opera singer; Charlie Chaplin, the film comedian, and many others just as interesting.

To-Day's Messages.

GERMANY BARRED.
PARIS, Nov. 12.
The Foreign Office announces that the French Government is unalterably opposed to admission of Germany to the League of Nations, and intimates some drastic action would follow a vote to admit Germany. The Foreign Office also said that Britain was at first inclined to favor German membership in the League but had now accepted the French viewpoint. Germany has not applied for admission to the League.

FORCE NECESSARY.
GENEVA, Nov. 12.
The immediate use of all naval and military forces in the Near East, to prevent a junction of the forces of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, Nationalist leader, and the Bolsheviks, is declared necessary in order to save Armenians from annihilation and prevent another general war, according to the International Philanthropic League.

AT A LOSS.
CHICAGO, Nov. 12.
Retail clothes in the United States are doing business to-day at a substantial loss, said M. W. Cress, secretary and head of a large clothing company.

BELGIAN MINERS STRIKE.
BRUSSELS, Nov. 12.
While coal miners in the central district have resumed work, forty thousand are still on strike in the Charleroi region.

AUSTRIA ELIGIBLE.
VIENNA, To-day.
Austria, after sounding the Powers as to her acceptability, has asked admission to the League of Nations, according to newspapers. Sir Eric Drummond, General Secretary of the League, replied that the Austrian application would be acceptable according to articles.

NOT UNANIMOUS.
GENEVA, Nov. 12.
Lord Robert Cecil, one of the chief authors of the League of Nations Covenant, will support the proposed immediate admission of former enemy states to the League. Italy, Switzerland, Scandinavian States and some American States are understood to be favorable to these plans. France, Belgium, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia and Czech Slavovkia will resist the admission of Germany and Hungary, although not unfavorable to Austria and Bulgaria.

FOUR CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH.
SYDNEY, N.S., Nov. 11.
Four children were burned to death at Big Pond to-night. At eleven, fire broke out in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil McIsaac, and within a few minutes the house was a mass of flames. It was impossible to rescue four of the children. One child only was saved, although Mr. McIsaac was seriously burned in the rescue. Mrs. McIsaac sustained many burns.

PASSED THIRD READING.
LONDON, Nov. 11.
The Irish Home Rule Bill passed the House of Commons on its third reading to-night, after a motion for rejection of the measure, proposed by Wm. C. Adamson, Opposition Leader, had been defeated by 183 to 52.

Had Hand Severed.

Yesterday evening while cleaning some machinery in the upper flat of the Imperial Tobacco Co's factory, Flavin Street, a young girl named Maggie Nipper had her hand severed by its coming in contact with a sharp cutter. Dr. Mitchell was summoned, and dressed the member, afterward having the patient driven to the Children's Hospital. The girl spent a fair night but was somewhat weak from loss of blood.

The World of Sport.
ENGLAND vs. SOUTH AUSTRALIA.
On Nov. 6th the first game of cricket between South Australia and the visiting team from England, was started at Adelaide. J. W. H. T. Douglas, the English captain, won the toss from Gehrs, the Australian captain but in view of an overnight of rain, put his opponents in first. His policy was completely vindicated, because the South Australians were all out for 118, Parkin's bowling on the tricky pitch being deadly. At the close of the day's play the English team had scored 201 for one wicket, Russell making 101.

"YES, I am feeling fine, too."
 "And how is baby?"
 "He is just dandy and as good as can be."
 "And what have you been doing to look so well?"
 "Oh, I got run-down nursing baby and began to get discouraged I was feeling so miserable. I suppose it was my nervous condition that got baby restless, and then, of course, it worried me trying to look after him."
 "I thought you looked so worn-out when I was in last time."
 "Well, I was feeling so discouraged that I sent for mother to come and she was not here a day before she had me using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."
 "I should have told you about it, for we always use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when any of us get nervous or run-down."
 "For the first few days I could not see that it was doing much good, but soon I found myself sleeping better and feeling less worried and irritable during the day."

My appetite improved and as I gained strength baby seemed to sleep better and be less trouble. He is just fine now and as good-natured as any baby ever was."
 "How do you take the Nerve Food?"
 "One pill after each meal—and at bedtime. I will soon be able to discontinue using it, but want to be sure that my system is thoroughly built up before quitting."
 "That is great. It gives me more confidence than ever in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and that is saying a good deal, for you know what it did for me when I had that nervous breakdown. Has your mother gone home?"
 "Yes, and I tell you it was a lucky day for me when she came to the rescue with her help and good advice. Her experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food proved to be a blessing for me."

LULLABY.
 The evening star is shining clear,
 By low, my pretty one,
 The gentle sandman draweth near
 By low, my pretty one;
 Now close your eyes in slumber sweet,
 The fairies wait my babe to greet,
 Full tired must be your chubby feet,
 By low, my pretty one.
 Now quiet is the busy town,
 By low, my pretty one,
 The children all have settled down,
 By low, my pretty one;
 Oh, you shall go where fairies stay,
 To dance the long night hours away,
 And come back home at break of day,
 By low, my pretty one.
 Travel away to slumber land,
 By low, my pretty one,
 Led by the good queen fairy's hand,
 By low, my pretty one;
 You shall play by the silver streams
 With ribbons of gold where the big moon beams,
 And smile your way through your baby dreams,
 By low, my pretty one.
 Hush, my baby, the day is done,
 By low, my pretty one,
 Softly the night is coming on,
 By low, my pretty one;
 Mother will rock you to and fro,
 Over your cradle bending low,
 By low, my pretty one.

Dogs of Damascus.

It is estimated that there are anywhere from fifteen thousand to thirty thousand dogs in Damascus, and they are all pariahs. Each has his or her corner on a certain street and there is no protection for those canines who stray into territory not their own. In bands of ten to twenty they patrol the city by day, and at night time, when they are not adding to the noises of the orient by vocal protests against the ways of the world, they sleep in every nook and cranny about the thoroughfares. They are always hungry and it needs only the call, "Suk, suk, suk," to rouse them in legions, for by that token of eastern speech they know that someone, for some reason, is about to feed them bread. They never wander about the different streets in search of food, but refuse to stray from their own street, or even from their particular end of a certain thoroughfare, for they are clanish by measure, even when they are extremely hungry.

Thumbs as Pens.

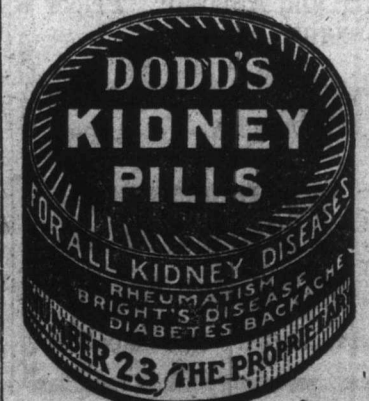

A suggestion was recently made that the system of "signing" cheques by means of finger-prints should be adopted. To some people this would come as a new idea, but as a matter of fact the system, if taken into use, would only be a revival of a very old custom. In the days when only a few people could write it was quite a usual thing for a person to signify approval of a document by making a thumb-print on a dab of sealing-wax. In India, where a large number of the people cannot write, a somewhat similar custom exists. An ordinary inkpad is kept handy in most offices where a native's signature is likely to be required, and the man presses his thumb upon this, and then on the paper.

Wedding Queues in Germany.

No amount of prospective taxation prevents young people marrying in Germany, writes a correspondent. A recently married acquaintance tells me that when she went to her district registrar to make inquiries about the civil ceremony, she was told by that official that there were two quarters-of-an-hour vacant in the ensuing month, and that she could take her choice. He and his assistants, he said, were booked up for weeks ahead. "Marriage queues" outside the registry offices are to be seen daily, whereas food queues have vanished. German Nationalists, advocates of an increasing birth-rate, applaud the courage of the young people and tell the Government to appoint more registrars.

Croquet.

Almost every one supposes that croquet is a modern game, whereas its real origin is obscured by the fact of ages. For numberless years people entirely forgot about it, and so few played it that it might have slipped into oblivion had it not been that the dwellers in a certain Irish county liked and continued to play it long after all other people had ceased.

Middle Aged Women

Women should take warning from such symptoms as heat flashes, shortness of breath, excessive nervousness, irritability, and the blues—which indicate the approach of the inevitable "Change" that comes to all women nearing middle age. We have published volumes of proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest aid women can have during this trying period.
Read About These Two Women:
 Fremont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness and was in a general run-down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I felt better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. M. Goodwin, 922 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.
 Urbana, Ill.—"During Change of Life, in addition to its annoying symptoms I had an attack of grippe which lasted all winter and left me in a weakened condition. I felt at times that I would never be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life, so I told my doctor I would try it. I soon began to gain in strength and the annoying symptoms disappeared and my Vegetable Compound has made me a well, strong woman as I do all my own housework. I cannot recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly to women passing through the Change of Life."—Mrs. FRANK HANSON, 1316 South Orchard Street, Urbana, Ill.

After a time the interest in the game waned so thereby that it was supplanted by lawn tennis, golf and other outdoor pastimes, until now it is rarely that the game is played. Those who are still interested in it play a much more complicated game called roque.
 The game can be traced back to the ancient Gauls. At this time it was called jeu de mail (game of mallet), and the grounds on which it was played became known as "malls," or malle, and hence the English word meaning a park.

Queer Blunders Made by Famous Authors.

Few writers, even those of the greatest genius, have been free from lapses at times and some of their blunders are both remarkable and ludicrous.

Take Shakespeare, for instance, who in "Julius Caesar" refers to clocks some fourteen centuries before they were invented, and who makes cannon thunder in "King John" and introduces a pistol in "Henry V."

Shakespeare, who was not a scholar in the strictest sense, made many mistakes of this character, which, however, are chiefly mere anachronisms of the introduction of persons or events out of their proper time.

He, for example, speaks of turkeys in plays the times of which long antedate the importation of the first turkeys from America. In "Henry IV," the carrier complains that "The turkeys in my panner are quite starved," although Henry IV. reigned a hundred years before the discovery of America. In "Henry V." Gower says to Fluellen of Pistol, "Here he comes, swelling like a turkey cock."

Worse than these is the anachronism in "Julius Caesar," in which Brutus says to Cassius, "Count the clock." To which Cassius replies, "The clock hath stricken three." Striking clocks were unknown to Caesar's time, and for many centuries afterwards.

An eminent ornithologist has pointed out that many writers have blundered in referring to the nightingale. It seems that both Shakespeare and Milton made the mistake of causing the female bird to sing. Shakespeare in this relation said:

"Nightly she sings on yon pomegranate tree," and "The nightingale, if she shall sing by day, . . ." while Milton speaks of the wakeful nightingale, "who all night long her amorous descant sung."

Milton's blunder.

In "Paradise Lost," wrote: "Thick as leaves in Vallombrosa." "As a matter of fact," comments Palmer, an authority in such things, "the trees of Vallombrosa, being pines, do not strew the brooks in autumn with their leaves."

An odd slip was that of Browning in his use of the word "slughorn," which the author of "Pippa Passes," evidently took to be a musical instrument. "Dauntless the slughorn," however, is merely a corruption of the Scottish "slogan," a battle cry! But Browning errs in good company, for Byron, in "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage," committed a bad blunder when he wrote:

"I stood in Venice, on the Bridge of Sighs,
A palace and a prison on each hand."

It is scarcely necessary to point out that, as we read the couplet, the implication is that there were two palaces and two prisons; but Byron meant, of course, that there was a palace on one hand and a prison on the other.

Every reader of Herrick knows the lines "Her eyes the glowworm lend thee." The confusion of ideas is natural enough, but naturalists stake their reputation on the glowworm's being, in fact, sightless.

Sir Walter Scott's Haste.

The haste in which Sir Walter Scott found it necessary to produce the great number of his novels in order that he might quickly wipe out a great indebtedness doubtless accounts for the numerous blunders such as these pointed out by his literary kinsman, Robert Louis Stevenson.

In "Rob Roy" two horsemen, riding on urgent business, are made to take six days to cover a distance of 100 miles, whereas on another occasion the same persons cover fifty miles in a single day. Stevenson also called attention to Sir Walter's glaring mistake in "The Antiquary," where the sun is actually caused to set in the eastern heavens. But, careful worker that he was, Stevenson himself, to use his own words, "came to grief over the moon" in "Prince Otto."

In "King Solomon's Mines" Rider Haggard accomplished an unsurpassed feat in eclipsing a moon when it was new instead of full. Sir Walter Besant also juggled with the full moon when, in "The Children of Gibbon," he caused his new moon to rise in the east at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Thackeray is almost as prolific of errors as Shakespeare or Scott. In "Newcomers" Clive asks in a letter dated 183—: "Why have we no pictures of the great warriors of the world?" to which one reason might be attributed to the fact that the Prince Consort did not appear until 1840. Similarly in Rachel Esmond Warrington's Preface to "Henry Esmond," which Thackeray dated 1778, he had her refer to Rochambeau's visit to America. As a matter of fact the French soldier did not come until 1780.

In "Henry Esmond," too, Thackeray causes the venerable Dean of Winchester to write, in chapter nine, a certain letter, whereas in chapter six, the good dean dies!

French Writers, Too.

Victor Hugo puts into the mouth of Charlemagne, in "Aymallot," the words, "You dream like a scholar of Sorbonne." That famous institution was founded in 1254, four hundred and fifty years after the days of Charlemagne.

Errors of geography in fiction are numerous enough. That graceful romancer Sir A. T. Quiller-Couch in his first published story "Dead Man's Rock," placed Bombay on the east coast of India, in the Bay of Bengal, while geographers agree in locating it on the western shore.

Even Schiller the German poet, was careless. In his "Piccolomini" he speaks of a "lightning conductor," although the period of the piece is at least one hundred and fifty years before that invention.

Certain of the literary errors were committed, not through ignorance, but in down-right absent-mindedness. At times they are ludicrous. Trollope made his Andy Scott come whistling up the street with a cigar in his mouth, and Defoe assures his readers that Robinson Crusoe before taking off his clothes to swim to the wreck took the precaution to fill his pockets with biscuits. Later, in "Around the World in Eighty Days," Jules Verne brought his hero to his club in triumph just as the clock of London were striking ten minutes to twelve! Cervantes allowed his Sancho Panza, in "Don Quixote," to ride a certain ass after having volubly lamented that creature's decease. Lever, in "Charles O'Malley," gave to Portugal and Andalusia as a capital.

Miss Marie Corelli has enriched the world of zoology with the eight "Highland bullheifers" appearing in her "Treasure of Heaven."

The list might be added to indefinitely, but the above is sufficient to show that even great writers are liable, at times, to make mistakes.

Coal Strikers in Early Days.

Probably the earliest coal strike on record was a Scottish one. In 1820, a conference of coal-owners decided that they would raise the price of coal by 1s. per horse load, viz., from 3s. to 4s., and also that they would export coal. This decision involved action by the Privy Council, which decided against the coalowners, and thus the first coal strike was prevented by Government intervention.

In 1872, the City of Edinburgh was probably for the first time faced with the inconvenience resulting from the cutting-off of her coal supplies. The Queen's supporters were in Edinburgh, and the Regent Mar, who was at Leith, felt it necessary to institute a strict blockade. He accordingly stopped the working of all the surrounding coal pits, and got the Privy Council to pass a decree that no coals or victuals were to be sent from Leith to the "rebels" in Edinburgh, "except on such a reasonable portion of the coal as shall be sufficient for the men of war lying in the palace of Holyroodhouse." One wonders whether Mr. Smilie will make a similar exception in favor of the popular regiments which now garrison Edinburgh?

In 1894 a coalowner, Beris-Bilmure, obtained from the Privy Council an act "for taking condour with his workmen and laying the offenders in the stocks if their offence be small, and if it be great, to take thame and present thame to the Counsail." Halcyon days indeed for the coalowner of the seventeenth century! But it must not be supposed that the early coal-owner failed in his responsibilities towards his colliers for there is a record in connection with the forfeited estate of the last Earl of Winton, that in 1720 James Forrest, chirurgion of Tranent, received a salary of £300 Scots for his attendance on the Earl's coal-hewers—a quite early instance of medical benefit for employees, without a National Insurance Act.

The question of the exportation of coal is one which naturally arose early. Coal mining was one of the great Scottish industries, and by 1831 the coal and salt industries together occupied 12,000 persons, men and women; and at that time, according to the estimate of the late Professor Henry Brown, half of Scotland's shipping was employed in the export of those commodities. But the export of coal had in the previous century been illegal. In the sixteenth century there were frequent enactments against it; however, in 1565, an Act was passed modifying previous legislation, and showing that "it could nocht be again the commonwell althocht smiddy colli ever carrit away." And so the export trade grew year by year; but it is satisfactory to note that as a nation, Britain did not approve of the encroachment of foreigners into this home industry, for in 1597 the King and the Estates, understanding that the grite burne colli" is transported not only by the lieges, but by strangers, to the great hurt of the commonwell, proclamation is ordered to be made against the transportation of the same.

Puzzles in Precious Stones.

Story writers talk of the sky being as blue as a sapphire, or of a wild beast's eyes glowing as yellow as a topaz.

Most of us are under the impression that we can recognize gems by their colours, and that certain colours belong definitely to certain stones. Quite a mistake. There is precious stone which is always true to colour. Diamonds, of course, vary greatly. The famous—should we say infamous—Hope diamond is a real and most beautiful blue.

Green diamonds are found; and others of a lovely crimson, but these are very rare. Black diamonds are common enough.

Black pearls are rarer, but are found. Pink pearls are greatly prized. One of the finest in existence was found in a fresh water mussel in the Mississippi River and is valued at £3,000. Of the Pearl

New sapphire mines in the Rocky Mountains produce stones which touch the whole colour scale from blue and red to an exquisite purple.

In Rhodesia is found a topaz of a most lovely pale blue. Yet the chemical composition of the gem proves it to be identical in all but colour with the yellow topaz. The colours of most gems are more or less fugitive. That is, under certain circumstances they are liable to fade. Take two rubies exactly similar, shut one in the dark, and leave the other exposed to full sunlight, and at the end of two years there will be a distinct difference between them. The one

A Memorable Bale of Cotton.

Although no ordinary business was done on the Manchester Royal Exchange on November 12, 1918, on account of the Armistice being signed, the members were determined that the day should not be unproductive, and so a bale of Texas cotton—the first of the season's crop—was put up to "auction" and realised £8,000, in aid of the British Red Cross Society. The bale had previously been sold in New York, and was then presented to the Liverpool Cotton Association, who raised £2,670 for it, and afterwards presented it to the Manchester Cotton Association. There had been a certain amount of anticipatory consultation in the various Lancashire districts in view of the sale. Thus, when Mr. G. Norris Midwood took up the role of auctioneer he was joyously conscious of some good bids to come. Blackburn had evidently done well, for the bale was knocked down to a gentleman of that town at £2,100. Then came Manchester with a bid of £1,450 for a re-sale. (The auctioneer had already pointed out that the buyers could only hold the bale momentarily if a new buyer came along), and at that figure it was knocked down to a gentleman of Manchester. Oldham was the next largest bidder, then came Bolton, then Burnley, and some one shouted, "Good old Burnley" as the total passed £6,000. Mr. John Charneck, of Bolton, came forward next with a bid of £560 from "Parker's corner table in the Square," and to this mysterious ownership the bale was momentarily consigned. Then to a Liverpool buyer at £600. It was not until the £7,000 figure had been passed that has been exposed to the light will be decidedly paler than the other.

Similar results may be observed with both emeralds and sapphires. Garnets also will turn lighter, while in the case of the topaz, sunlight ends by dimming and dulling the colour of this pretty stone.

One thing essential in your Winter Coat is QUALITY. One has to wear their Winter Coat for many months, and to stand against this you require the best of material in it.

We have carefully selected our stock of Winter Coatings and feel we have goods that merit your approval. You can purchase enough excellent material to make a coat for $24.00, and if you wish we can make it up for you, and deliver the finished garment in a week or less if necessary. The material is equal in quality to that in coats which retail at $70.00 to $90.00.

We ask you to come in and see the goods, examine them, get samples and prices, compare with others, and come back and purchase the goods.

Templeton's

ed that bids of £100 were accepted, and these were readily forthcoming. Bids of £50 were then invited, and several flowed in, but one donor—responding to the auctioneer's genial suggestion—added another £50 for his son. When it came to "tenners," it was merely a matter of collection, and in that way £8,000 was realized.

An Adventure With Two Cobras.

To show how to fight a cobra, that most deadly of snakes, Raymond L. Timars, snake expert of the Zoological Gardens, told of a death-grip he had with two of them in an animal collector's shop. Two of these venomous creatures had been reserved by the dealer in a long crate that had been crushed by other cages falling on it.

"The accident occurred in an upper room of the man's store," said Mr. Timars, "and before he could do anything the two cobras were after him, poised to strike, like two green canesticks, six feet high.

"He uttered a yell and literally tumbled down stairs, banging the door behind him. Then he trembled and fussed, at a loss what to do until it occurred to him to telephone to me for help.

"I went down to the place with a stick and a bag accompanied by a keeper, and found the upper floor barricaded and everybody about the place with nerves on the jump. One thing was in our favor, the windows were screened with fine meshed wire, the cobras couldn't get out that way, and we knew they were somewhere in the loft.

"The keeper and I went up with our sticks and bags. Each stick was provided with a noose that we hoped to get around the reptiles' necks and thus save them alive. The animal dealer accompanied us to the door but couldn't be persuaded to go any farther, so the man and I went in and closed the door behind us.

"Next minute I heard the key turn in the lock. 'What are you doing?' I called. 'Unlock that door. It may be all right to run for it.' 'All right,' said the dealer, 'I'll unlock it,' and I thought he did so, but I hadn't any time to find out, for instantly the cobras were reared up in the striking pose. They almost touched the roof, and what they wanted to strike was me.

"Not Willing to be Caught. 'I told the keeper to reach the cobra, which was made of heavy copper wire, over the swaying head of the cobra and pull it down, while I did the same to its mate. But the snakes didn't permit us to do that little trick easily. They darted forward and back, disappeared until we didn't know where to look for them and as we were looking in one place appeared again in a dark corner. It was a fight to the death, or seemed so, and we were sweating freely from our rapid exercise—more like a fantastic dance than anything I can liken it to. The cobras went forward and back and so did we, and each partner kept his eyes fastened relentlessly on the enemy.

"On they came at last in what was meant to be a last dash, and back we went as far as the space would permit, whirling the sticks before those perfectly poised deadly heads. Canesticks, did I call 'em? They looked like me by this time like death heads, and the two came on together, and that made it more dangerous.

"I think one thing only saved us that day. The door was covered with boards and, as afterwards

Windsor Table Salt
THE CANADIAN SALT CO. LIMITED

found, they were slippery. As the cobras sailed across to get us, they faltered, feared to lose their pose—the deadly striking pose, and drew back.

"That was our time to rush in and get the nooses over their heads. I succeeded, but the keeper failed. The cobra disappeared and the keeper got to his feet with a grunt, for he had fallen headlong. On came his cobra again, for these reptiles will never give up in a fight, and this time he got the noose over it.

"Get on him and hold him down!" I yelled while trying to perform this feat to the wriggling mass in front of me. At length I did get my feet planted on the cobra's neck and I reached out for the bag; it wasn't difficult to wriggle it into the bag, and after I had tied it with a rope, I could go to the other fellow's assistance.

Both Serpents Safe. "We had both serpents safe, when there came a frightened voice from the other side of the door demanding to know if we were still alive.

"Yes, we are, but no thanks to you," I answered the dealer, "and now, you poor coward, you can unlock the door. We've got both the cobras bagged. How much do you want for them?"

"The dealer, still trembling, peeped through a crack in the door and said: 'Seeing that you've helped me out I'll sell them to you for $50 apiece. That's dirt cheap for a pair of lively cobras.'

"I'll give you $25 and not a cent more," said I.

"Impossible to let 'em be sacrificed," said the dealer. "That wouldn't be a fair price for two old faded out cobras, and these are young, lively and in the best of health, as you can see for yourself."

"I took out my knife and says I: 'Twenty-five dollars it is or I slit the bags!'

"Oh, yes, I took the cobras away at my figure. The keeper and I were a little played out with the exercise, and hungry and thirsty as well. So before starting back to the Zoo we went into a little cafe to refresh ourselves. We had the two cobras in a basket that we placed under the table near our feet. Along came a friend of mine, who sat down near us, and ordered a hearty lunch. As he was eating it a hollow hiss sounded from the basket.

"What kind of a monkey have you got in there?" asked my friend, peering under the table at the basket. "No monkey," I replied; "just a couple of cobras recently arrived from India."

Variety the Spice of Life.

In tropical climates while men lose their "go," initiative and efficiency. Too many of them actually degenerate, morally and physically. The strange thing is that the great heat, not so much as to the unchanging climate, with its utter lack of stimulating atmospheric conditions. It is in variable climates like our own that the world's best work has been done. And by looking at a globe you will see that most of the big centres of human activity lie in the same parallel of latitude. The explanation seems to be that unchanging extreme heat or cold robs both mind and body of keenness and vitality, whereas frequent changes of temperature supply man with those electric tones which make for health and efficiency.

An Absent-Minded Genius.

In the history of absentminded and forgetful men that remains to be written) Beethoven must certainly have a prominent place. It is related of him that about the time he was engaged in the "Pastoral" symphony, he went into a restaurant and ordered dinner. As there was some delay in serving the meal, his mind reverted to his composing; and when the waiter came and offered dinner, he waved him away, saying, "Thank you, I have dined." Laying down the price of the meal he took his departure.

Adventures of a Stick.

Ten years ago a casual caller at a house in Barnet, Herts, Eng., went away leaving his walking stick behind. His address was not known at the house, and as the stick was not claimed the occupier kept it. Recently he went to the north of Scotland for a holiday and took the stick with him. When returning, he placed it with his umbrella in a hold-all, which was lost on the journey. It has just turned up minus the stick, but tucked inside the cover was an unsigned note reading: "My favorite walking stick was recognized after 10 years' separation and is now in possession of its lawful and happy owner."

T. Henry Smith Hits Out.

A DANIEL IN THE NEWFOUNDLAND LION'S DEN.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—The great unknown, (to me) by name Kinsella, wrote an intended "punch" concerning myself. Now I always invite criticism, but I very much regret Mr. Kinsella could not avoid being rude and also floundering about very badly. Rudeness is NOT one of the secrets of success in journalism.

He states "folk here say little but think a lot." Well, that's a pity, if it accounts for so many uneducated children. Mr. Kinsella writes from what he thinks I wrote, not from what I did write. For instance, I was apologetic and did not suggest I know postively. Such pertinences I leave to Mr. Kinsella, that is his style, not mine.

Why did I leave Great Britain? Why did Cabot leave? Does every man who ventures here come with a record of failure? Kinsella, have you been a failure in your own country? I am proud to state I have enjoyed a remarkably successful career in Great Britain, and even after my discharge from the Army in 1916, I was successful (1917-18) and created a record, as leading Overseas Trade Representative for the Great Marconi Coy., making "some" cash. We quarrelled, I sued and won. If Kinsella wants a job, and is an expert like myself, he may write for that post and earn $6,000 yearly or more. I also ran a furniture store at that time opposite Woolwich Arsenal.

Bye the bye, Mr. Kinsella presumes to speak for the majority! I should point out right now that I am known as a really smart man of commerce in London and other cities, and almost every merchant firm of importance has transacted business with me. I am proud to say my card will always command an interview even with the Directors of the Furness Withy & Co. and such. When coming over on the Digby I was asked to explain certain sections of the Marconi Code. Proof: Captain and others, I did a big amount of business with the directors in that matter. That's one item only. Now Mr. Kinsella, what's your best! As a matter of fact that morning earned me $1,000. Bear in mind I was discharged, with paralysis in 1916 from the army. I own no mania to grapple with affairs of state, but I don't admire the state of affairs, though I don't growl.

The Irish question will never be settled because it is an Irish question. I like Irishmen right enough, and personally I should like to see them fight it out amongst themselves. Be jabers! What a sight for a holiday! I, for one, agree Ireland should rule herself somehow or anyhow. My experiences in Ireland I will not dwell on. I had a "good time" there, BUT that isn't the road to prosperity, is it? Mr. Kinsella come down to earth, please! League of Nations: (See Anderson's fairy tales). South Africa (Who smuggled the diamonds?) India: (Result of Education and Enlightenment). Turkey: (Dreading Christmas Dinners). General Wrangle: (Still holding Isthmus of Persepolis?) Well ask him to hold some of your ideas instead. Bolsheviki: (A Russian complaint: something like the "fu" catching).

What do I know of Nfld. trade? Well Mr. Kinsella as I am considered in Great Britain to be an Overseas Trade expert (study and experience) it was my business to know what all countries produced, and the market price daily or the merchants would have "floored" me every time on the exchanges. Furniture making? Yes—certainly it will pay, and well, but it's rather difficult to teach folk "who know" everything and yet have made no progress in life! I have some smart lads whom I shall fully train, and they deserve it. Alas! many others could not read or write. Doubtless they had brains; but how to use them? If I stay here I should hope to be welcome and an asset, making Nfld. interests my interests. I came out here only partly in earnest, partly owing to my natural daring (our family are all ditto), but if I do stay here I shall win through, for I never yet made a failure, and, (D.V.) I never shall.

Any parents who have well educated, gentlemanly lads, I would like to send them to Great Britain for, say, one or two years' excellent training, commercial, in large firms, may write me fully and I will, if references bear strict investigation, obtain them posts; and, Mr. Kinsella, please note: my word will be sufficient recommendation.

That's my spirit, ye good folk of Newfoundland. Take me at that, and you'll know me as I am. May I add: I thank the smart, up-to-date Telegram for services rendered.

Yours truly,
T. HENRY SMITH.

Public Demonstration Demanded.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir.—In asking you for the freedom of the press to give my views on the Sugar Question, and what ought to be done, I am going to handle this sugar scandal with gloves off, and do not intend to reply to any person, that will not come out over his own signature in answer to my statements. I am not writing this for any political notice, as it is a national question, but on behalf of my downtrodden countrymen of all classes and creeds and their dependents all over the island, including my fellow fishermen, and workers of all kinds in this native city, St. John's, viz.: Newfoundland Industrial Workers Association, male and female, Longshore Protective Union, Coopers Union, Truckmen's Union and all other union shops and office help, all the factories in the city, male and female, Reid Newfoundland Company employees, Workers on Bell Island, Grand Falls and other industries, including their families, all over the Dominion who are now paying from 30 to 32 cents per lb. for sugar, which should be selling here to-day for about 20 cents per lb. or less, had the consumers been given a square deal, as they ought and should get under the Union Jack which we are all led to believe denotes liberty and fair play. I will ask His Excellency the Governor, Sir Alexander Harris, K.C.M.B., the representative of that flag to give us British subjects that British fair play, and in doing so His Excellency will not be forgotten by us Newfoundlanders, but be ever dear in our memory in days to come like the Sterling representative of the Motherland, the late Sir Herbert Murray, K.C.M.G., ex-Governor of Newfoundland.

Now as to the Government and the Food or Sugar Control Board, this or any Government are liable to make mistakes, but a Government, individually, that does not make mistakes would not be trying to do anything. But I consider that it is a Government's duty to place men on a Food Control Board that would be thoroughly competent and experienced from a commercial standpoint with a good knowledge of imports, and then men that would do their duty to their fellowmen, and particularly in this sugar control scandal, which affects the poor, the widow, the orphan and the Food Control Board and any members of the Government that are upholding this sugar scandal under the so called War Measures Act. I believe that the learned Judges of the Supreme Court gave their decision against the same, and I also have good reason to believe that there are men prominently identified with the Government and labor organizations that could not be in favor of those drastic sugar regulations. So let this Sugar Control Board remember the words of their Creator, "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." Are you following those teachings? I say no, but crushing the poor, and those that crush the poor will have to answer to a just God. I will ask my countrymen and their families, many of whom are cursing those that are to blame for the high prices of sugar here to-day, and all over the island, and sugar selling in the United States from 10 to 12 cents per lb. and depriving thousands, who I may say have to do without sugar, as they cannot afford to buy. Where does the poor widows and orphans come in with their thirty dollars per year or thereabouts. So if there is any spark of manhood in you, abolish this Sugar Control Board and have sugar placed on the market for about 20 cents per lb. and let the country put up with the loss, and the increased consumption will help to reimburse the country, as had the F.C.B. been good financiers and placed sugar in August last on the market for say 20 cents per lb., the increased consumption for preserving and household purposes would have reimbursed the treasury for any loss and we would have cheap sugar to-day.

How do you expect poor people to live, or do you want to cause an open rebellion, which you are now doing, and are not our Noble Volunteers and Naval Reservists who fought and bled for us, are you not also suffering, and neither the Sugar Control Board or those that are upholding it realise how much blood was shed for their downtrodden countrymen and their families.

Am I not right in stating that the whole island had to pay to a very small section for the loss on seals, and what about the loss on salt which also only affected a portion of the people which I as a fisherman do not uphold, as seals mean only a small compensation to benefit a small number and with cod oil worth about $240 per ton up to Oct. month, would counteract the high price of salt, but it was making a precedent, and precedent I believe in many cases is often a sprat to catch a mackerel, and for argument sake if those seals and the salt were justifiable, how much more so is sugar to the widows and orphans and all consumers. I must now call a spade a spade. Mr. James McGrath, ex-President of the Longshoremen's Union how can you hold your position on the Food Control Board? Be a man and resign immediately, and you T. C. Noel, president of the Newfoundland Industrial Workers Association be a man and both of you resign your both males and females all over the city. Fishermen in the various schooners, at St. John's and the nearby settlements, and close down all works for that afternoon, also all shops and stores, and boycott any shops or stores that will not close down, and send for the members of the Sugar or Food Control Board and the acting Prime Minister, Hon. W. F. Coaker, and let them see what public opinion from an increased downtrodden people that are only looking for justice, freedom, liberty and British fair play. So let my townsmen through their executives the N.L.W.A., Longshoremen's Union, Coopers and Truckmen's Union, and other labor organizations lead the way by organizing immediately for a public demonstration and monster parade to Bannerman Park, and call upon some man or men to lead you in this trying hour of depression and poverty, that is rampant in your midst, and all over the Island, and there will be men amongst you that will be forthcoming that will and can show up this sugar scandal in its true light. I for one am not afraid for to voice my sentiments on this sugar scandal on behalf of my downtrodden countrymen and their families, and handle either with the pen, or on a public platform, any one that will take up these national issues with me. Stop work for one afternoon for this public meeting and tell Water Street to do the same, and let all their employers and employees join this public indignation meeting for justice and freedom, and let them see those that are crushing us and our families, that we are worthy sons of worthy sires who fought for freedom and liberty, and that the voice of the downtrodden people, is the voice of God. I remain,

Yours truly,
M. E. CONDON.

War Veterans' Dinner.

The dinner held last night by the G.W.V.A. for the purpose of celebrating the second anniversary of the signing of the Armistice was a great success. The dinner was held in the C.C.C. Hall, which was brilliantly decorated for the occasion, the flags of the Allies being prominently displayed. Over 200 guests were present, including the acting Premier and Mr. J. R. Bennett, M.H.A. At 8 o'clock His Excellency the Governor and suite arrived and were received by the Chairman, Lt-Col. G. T. Carty, who escorted them to the banquet hall to the strains of the National Anthem played by the band. After all had been seated the Regimental Colors carried by Lieuts. Clouston and Grace and in charge of Capt. J. Snow, were paraded to the banquet hall and placed at the head of the table, two buglers sounding the General Salute and the gathering standing at attention. After the color party had retired the following menu was offered, the Jazzola Orchestra rendering selections whilst dinner was being served.

- MENU:
- "Blue Puttee" Roast Beef.
 - "Prog" Veal.
 - "Whop" Ham.
 - Gallipoli Salad.
 - French Rolls.
 - Pastry and Cake.
 - Plum and Apple Filling.
 - A la Monchy.
 - Fruits of Jutland.
 - Scapa Flow Coffee.
 - "Beatty" Cigarettes.
 - "Halg" Ale.

After all the menu had been disposed of, the following toast list was discussed:

- TOAST LIST.
- "The King"—Prop. The Chairman; resp. National Anthem.
 - "The Governor"—Prop. Lt-Col. A. Montgomerie; resp. His Excellency Sir Alexander Harris, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.V.O.
 - "Fallen Comrades"—Prop. Rev. A. Clayton. Song—"Dear Old Pal of Mine," Lt. Gus. Summers.
 - "The Navy"—Prop. Hon. W. F. Coaker; resp. Com. Fenn, R.N.
 - "The Army"—Prop. Hon. J. R. Bennett, M.H.A.; resp. Capt. Byrnie, M.C.
 - "Sweethearts and Wives"—Prop. Com. J. Higgins, B.A.; resp. Com. F. P. LeGrow, M.H.A. Song—"Mademoiselle from Armentiers," Mike Smith, C.O.M.E.D.I.A.N.
 - "The Chairman"—Prop. H. E. the Governor. "God Save the King."
- The speeches were all excellent and the songs and orchestra selections were also very good, being much appreciated by the gathering. Last night's was the first reunion of the war veterans, but in future, their Armistice Dinner will probably be an annual affair. Great credit reflects on the committee in charge who spared no effort to make the dinner a success. Sergt. John Robinson, the caterer, should also come in for his meed of praise. During the evening the following message was received from Capt. Leo Murphy of the Wabana branch of the G.W.V.A.:
- "Whilst regretting inability to be present with you to-night as I am attending function our veterans here, can assure you our sentiments are unanimous with yours in desire that high ideals of Empire for which we fought will be sustained."

The Cathedrals of England.

Last Night's Lecture at the Llewellyn Club.

At last night's meeting of the Llewellyn Club, Mr. W. H. Jones delivered a most entertaining and instructive address on "The Cathedrals of England," pictures of the same being shown on the lantern screen. At the close, Rev. Dr. Jones, President of the Club, summed up the main lessons of the lecture in a few brief statements, making it clear that the Cathedrals were English and the lawful possessions of the Anglican communion; that they told of a day when England was infinitely more religious than she is to-day; that they served as the center of the religious life of a community and a diocese; that in them should be found the leadership of thought, the standard of ritual and the centre of devotion. He then proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer, which was seconded by Hon. John Anderson and passed unanimously. Tea was then served by the girls of St. Margaret's Guild. A number of new members joined the club last night.

Personal.

Mr. F. R. Emerson, the well-known young lawyer, left yesterday by express with the intention of joining the s.s. Alconda at Botwood. Mr. Emerson is going by that ship to England on a business and pleasure trip of some weeks' duration. On his return to St. John's he will enter the law firm of Higgins & Hunt as junior partner.

NOTICE.
Under and by virtue of "An Act respecting the General Hospital" (6 George V., Cap. XIX.), and with the approval of the Governor-in-Council, the Board of Governors of the St. John's Hospital hereby give notice that they have fixed and prescribed the following scale of fees to be levied from and paid by all persons who occupy beds or undergo treatment at the Hospital. The scale is to come into operation on the 1st day of January, 1921.
SCALE OF FEES.
Every person receiving treatment in the General Hospital shall, after December 31st next, pay fees according to the following scale:
Persons admitted to the public wards $1.00 per day; persons occupying private rooms $10.00 per week, in addition to the daily fees of $1.00.
Every applicant for admission to the Hospital must bring with him or forward to the Superintendent of the Hospital certificate signed by a duly registered physician that such applicant is a proper subject for Hospital treatment.
Under the provisions of the General Hospital Act, 1915 all patients who are unable to pay fees shall be required to bring with them a certificate of their inability to pay, which shall be signed by the resident Relieving Officer, or where there is no such officer, by a Justice of the Peace, or Clergyman or other responsible person. The fees of such patients thereupon become payable by the Commissioner of Public Charity by virtue of the said Act.
By order of the Board.
