Allied Commissions Given Full Authority.

Mudania Convention Must Be Upheld
—Abandonment of Lausanne Conference Considered—Congressional Elections in United States—French Minister Prefers Security to Payment

ALLIES ARE FIRM.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 7. The Allied Commissions in Constantinople have been given full authority to declare a state of siege or to take any other means to preserve order. It is now certain that the Allied authorities here will deal with any attempt at disturbance or infringement of the Mudania Convention in a drastic manner. The British, French and Italian are as one in their determination to check the progress which the Kemalists have made in this direction. Lieut-General Harcourt, Commander-in-Chief of the British Forces, informed Rafet Pasha, would not permit any usurpation of Allied authority. The Kemalists have even attempted to take over customs revenues, but the British have decided to operate the customs themselves. The calling of three additional classes to the Turkish colors interpreted here as merely a show force.

GRAVE CONFERENCE MAY BE ABANDONED.

LONDON, Nov. 7. A review of the attitude assumed by Turkish Nationalists is declared official circles to-day that the Lausanne Conference may be postponed to the end of the present month and finally abandoned. The Allied forces, working in harmony, agreed upon a policy of resistance to the Turkish demands for the evacuation of Constantinople. The British forces there are said to be "quite sufficient" to protect the population. A test of Allied authority is being made in the case of the Kemalists' arrest and condemnation to death of Ali Kemal Bey, editor of an anti-Nationalist newspaper. The Allied High Commissioners and Rafet Pasha, the Nationalist Governor of Constantinople, are on political persecution will be tolerated, and force, if necessary, will be used to liberate the editor.

CLOSE IN MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, Nov. 7. Close contests for Senator and Governor are indicated by the returns from more than one-third of the Precincts of Massachusetts. The vote of 521 Precincts gave William A. Gaston, Democrat, for Senator, a lead of 13,229 over Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican; and John F. Fitzgerald, Democrat for Governor, a lead of 10,796 over Channing H. Cox, Republican.

COX IS ELECTED.

BOSTON, Nov. 7. The re-election of Governor, Channing H. Cox, Republican, is conceded. Returns from little more than half the State, showed Senator Lodge, Republican, trailing 3,790 votes behind Gaston, Democrat.

ELECTION RESULTS.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7. Gifford Pinchot, candidate for Governor, and the remainder of the Republican ticket in Pennsylvania were victorious in to-day's elections.

A FURTHER INTEREST PAYMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 7. The British Government has directed a further payment of fifty million dollars to the United States on November 15th, to apply on the interest due on the war debt pending an agreement for funding the debt. This measure is necessary because of the unavoidable delay in sending the debt mission to the United States because of the resignation of the Lloyd George Government.

A SECOND HUNGER STRIKE.

DUBLIN, Nov. 7. The other woman arrested on the same day as Mary MacSwiney, joined her to-day in the hunger strike at Mount Joy prison. Miss MacSwiney was brought back weak after her exercise to-day and requested she might be permitted to see Dr. Kathleen Lynn, but her application was refused.

THE RETURNS AT MIDNIGHT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7. At midnight the Congressional returns were complete from only seven States. At that hour 119 Democrats and 67 Republicans, out of a total of 435 had been reported. Those figures are in no wise indicative of the political complexion of the next Congress as large blocks of districts have not been heard from. (The standing of the parties in the present House is Republicans 296, Democrats 130, Socialist 1, Vacant 8. The returns so far suggest the probability of a large gain by the Democrats, even if they fail to secure a majority.—Ed.)

NEW YORK GOES DEMOCRAT.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7. The Republican State Committee, with little more than half the returns counted, tonight conceded that the Democrats had won sweeping victories at the polls, defeating Governor Miller, Senator Colder and other candidates on the State tickets. A majority in both branches of the Legislature is claimed, however.

SMITH BEATS MILLER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7. It is conceded that former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democrat, is elected over Governor Nathan L. Miller, Republican, and Royal S. Copeland, over William H. Chalder, for Senator.

WOULD SOONER SECURITY.

PARIS, Nov. 7. France might better forego payment from Germany than be endangered by a new attack from a resuscitated country across the Rhine. Louis Loucheur, former Minister of Liberated Regions, told the Chamber of Deputies to-day. "If by any of these plans" he said, discussing the proposals for rehabilitation, "Germany is made strong, what will become of France's security. I tell you bluntly that between not being paid and not being in security I would rather be in security." The statement brought strong applause. Premier Poincaré interrupted M. Loucheur's suggestions for a change in the administration of the Rhineland with the declaration that the territory will not be evacuated until Germany has fulfilled the treaty requirements. M. Loucheur urged the Chamber to get together and try and find a remedy for the country's financial condition "or soon we will be at the brink of an abyss."

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT POSTPONED.

LONDON, Nov. 7. The opening day of Parliament has been postponed from Nov. 20th to Nov. 23rd.

EIGHTY DEAD.

SPANGHER, Pa., Nov. 7. The list of dead in yesterday's mine explosion numbers eighty out of one hundred and twelve in the mine at the time.

Spain and Prohibition.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—Your correspondent Mr. Warwick Smith has shaken my belief that "fish is the price that Mr. Coaker makes it." He asks "why should the people of this country receive less for their fish in order that the prejudices of some and the profits of others... should not be interfered with?" In other words why should the Government of the day "make fish of one and flesh of another" by holding on to a Prohibition law which they don't want to enforce and which they hide the hidden reason and not "outright sales" (when no sales of any kind can be made) for the slump in cod. But he seems to answer this (vide his letter) by assuming the Controller controls the situation. However, with his usual tolerance Mr. Smith does not blame him when he nets or should it be seines to himself and his department wealth and influence.

Lord Dunsen in his book "Pastimes and Pastimes" tells the story of a temperance society in San Francisco the rules of which were that "nothing stronger than wine, beer and cider shall be drunk on the premises unless any member be suffering under a sense of discouragement, in which case whiskey is allowed." May not the Controller well take judicial notice that the present Government has created in the citizens a sense of discouragement until the "disease" is epidemic and hence is dispensing for medicinal purposes only and not for wealth or influence. But Lord Dunsen also tells how Sir Henry Thompson, a famous surgeon, unable to drink himself used to experiment as to the effects of various kinds of alcohol in promoting bright conversation among his guests. He came to the opinion that whisky was the worst and really good red Bordeaux (wine) the best. This latter or its like can be got in Spain, and if its importation will raise the price of our fish and our depressed spirits too why let us "raise the roof" to raise this prohibition that does not prohibit.

Yours truly,
EQUITY.

Contestants in Training.
INDOOR SPORTS MEET NOV. 20TH.
The contestants for the annual Indoor Sports, which event takes place in the Prince of Wales Rink, on Monday, Nov. 20th, are rapidly getting into shape for the big meet. Last night several of our well known runners covered their respective distances in excellent time, and in a manner which was pleasing to the many "rail birds" that attended.
The nets for the basket ball already have been placed in position and the first try out took place last evening between the St. Bon's and Cadet teams. The Methodist College lads will probably arrange for a practice the next available night. The Committee intend to interview the lady basketball players to-day, asking them if it is their intention to compete. It is said that the girls of the Mercy Convent and Clover Club can produce excellent material. A schedule of practice hours for the competitors has been drawn up, which should work out more satisfactorily than in the past. On the regular practice nights the basket ball players will use the arena from 7.30 to 8 p.m. The runners will follow from 8 to 9, while the basketballers have the use of the floor until the closing hour.
The entries are now opened for competitors taking part in the various events, and names will be received by members of the Committee any practice evening at the rink. The track which is sixteen laps to the mile will be marked out in a few days. The Junior race for boys, which proved to be the most exciting race on the programme last year, will again become one of the feature events.

Judging by the numbers of boys already in training. The Committee are leaving nothing undone for the comfort of the athletes. A dressing room, well heated, is always at their disposal any practice evening at the rink.

The Quarterly Review
CRITICIZES LLOYD GEORGE.

Mr. Algernon Cecil severely castigates Mr. Lloyd George in an article in the Quarterly Review.

HIS OPPORTUNISM.

"Man is a political animal, but Mr. George defies classification.

"Though no man with so great a position and so long a lease of power could have avoided doing wise and useful things, his schemes were, for the most part, ill-timed, ill-matured, ill-executed, and attended by ill success.

"The key to the history of his political adventures," says Mr. Cecil, "is opportunism. Mr. George's attack on the house of Chamberlain for its connection with the 'corrupt bargain' of Kynoch, his exploitation of Chinese labour as an election catchword, his speeches at Limehouse and Newcastle when Chancellor of the Exchequer, the 'coup d'état' by which he ousted Mr. Asquith from supreme command, are all, notes Mr. Cecil, examples of the shifting, and sometimes base, expediency of the born opportunist."

OTHER PEOPLE'S CREDIT.

Nor is Mr. Cecil unaware of Mr. George's trick of attracting to himself credit that belonged elsewhere. Thus he ruthlessly exposes any hint or claim that the Premier won the war:

"No large, successful scheme of strategy sprang from his brain like Pallas from the head of Jove; nor were his relations with certain eminent generals such as to convey the grace of inspiration. His services, like those of Liverpool, chiefly consisted in holding on, making decisions of various worth, in keeping a Government together; and, though these are all no mean gifts, no one has ever suggested that they entitle Liverpool to be called the conqueror of Napoleon. Yet this is not the entire tale. The public, which credited him with exceptional capacity for warfare, was not wholly deceived. He had unusual powers, but they were rather physical than intellectual. He possessed a rare vitality; his blood pressure was as the blood pressure of a boy, his vigour rose with each rebuff; he was inexhaustibly full of fight; and, if he had never won battles upon the playing-field of Eton, he now seemed competent to have done so. This infectious, irrepressible, defiant pugnacity, rather than insight or foresight, or judgement, with all of which things there were men in his Cabinet better endowed than himself, was his particular gift."

ELECTION PROMISES.

"At the December election, he made political victory assured by promises of reparations and punishments in excess of the possible to exact. Hence on discounting all traditions of constitutional statesmanship he executed the heterogeneous and kaleidoscopic foreign policy that has produced the present international chaos.

"What the Versailles settlement was worth, with Germany in confusion and a Russia in convulsion, no one could tell at the time, or can tell even now. But the frequency and plurality of Mr. George's post-Treaty Congresses, afford some measure of the instability and insufficiency of his work. With the vast paraphernalia of his diplomacy, with his legion of secretaries, typists, journalists, and hangers-on, with his pleasant villas, and his special trains, he became, indeed, in the years that succeeded in Peace of Versailles, a jest to the humorist and a burden to the taxpayer.

HIS CHANGING POLICY.

"Here may indeed an illustration of Mr. George's supreme defect as a statesman. He had grown so accustomed to find his policy change, his pledges fall of their performance, his morality adapt itself to the suggestions of the passing hour, that he did not well understand what perplexity and inconvenience his gyrations, defaults, and counter-marches caused alike to the honourable and the confiding. His cheery forecasts and his plausible undertakings lost their charm for the miners and the farmers who supposed themselves cheated of coal-nationalization and guaranteed prices; for the ex-soldiers who had expected to find homes fit for heroes to live in, and found, in fact, their old habitations in worse repair; and for a nation which had been roused to exertion by pleasing visions of a new heaven and a new earth, and learned in the event that human nature remains constant, even when Prime Ministers become erratic."

HIS FLAUBILITY.

"Amongst the rack and ruin of the times Mr. George yet persisted trimly."

"His many mistakes of policy and judgment might have ruined a greater Minister than Mr. George. He survived them by his power of putting things plausibly to a House of Commons not remarkable for astuteness; by his almost infinite capacity for extricating himself from tight corners, by a belief, very assiduously inculcated and widely entertained, that he was the only man equal to the burden of his office; and, above all, by the continued political existence of Mr. Asquith, whose return to power the country at all costs resolved to prevent. These were the main reasons

Army Gas Mask not Universal Protection

The army gas mask, in its present form, does not afford protection against all noxious gases. The mask laboratory of the United States bureau of mines at Pittsburgh investigated the army type of mask to determine its fitness for use in about smelters, blast furnaces, and other industrial operations, or in mines. It also has tried to make the mask for such use.

The investigation developed that this type, while affording protection against all the gases met in war, does not afford protection against gases met in industrial life. It does not protect against carbon monoxide, illuminating gas, natural gas, ammonia and the products of combustion found in burning buildings.

The bureau seeks to develop new types of masks, suitable for all industries, that will serve to protect the wearer. The bureau has also worked on a "universal" mask which would serve to protect the wearer against all the gases in air combat. A lightweight form of this has been developed for use by firemen.

The charcoal and soda-lime canisters protect against certain gases and organic vapors, say experts, but they should not be used in gasoline vapor, and are not a protection against ammonia or the monoxide which may be found in the products of combustion and in gases, coal gas, water gas and furnace gas.

The Hudson Bay Company at North West River Post. He has worked himself up to a place of great responsibility with his firm and has done credit to himself and his old Brigade. We hope to see him some day plant a C.L.B. Company there with Captain Henry, ex-Adjutant at Headquarters.
Col. R. G. Rendell, C.B.E., to the great regret of all ranks, has resigned his Trusteeship of the C.L.B. Savings Bank and Colonel Goodridge has nominated Major Williams and Captain H. A. Outerbridge, O.B.E., to act as Joint Trustees in his stead. Colonel Rendell has done wonderful work for the Brigade and the C.L.B. Armoury Headquarters building, St. John's now valued at forty thousand dollars which he turned over to the Brigade before resigning as Officer Commanding will be an everlasting testimonial of his ability and work on behalf of Boy Life in the C.L.B. for the past generation.
On next Saturday, Nov. 11th, St. Martin's Day Brigade the world over celebrates its 31st birthday. On Sunday morning at 8 o'clock there will be a communicants parade to the Cathedral. In the afternoon there will be a full Battalion parade at 3 p.m., including the Girl Guides and Old Comrades to the Cathedral. The sermon will be preached by the Rector, Rev. Canon Jeeves, M.A., and no doubt every Brigade member rain or shine will answer the roll call next Sunday and join in the services of thanksgiving for many mercies received by the Brigade since its organization St. Martin's Day, 1891.

Officers Ping Pong Championship was played and the following teams under way: St. Andrew's vs. Mr. Lionel Munn's team, won by Mr. Munn's players; Felidians then played the C.E.I. team and were defeated. Tonight, Wednesday, Mr. R. B. Job's team play the C.E.I. and Captain Munn's team will match the Dunfield lads team. On Thursday week the two winning teams will play the final game for the C.L.B. Officers Mess are holding a big show in which the C.L.B. Ambulance Band, Executive, Camp Squad, Girl Guides, Athletic Association, Boy Scouts and Rotary Club will take part, concluding with a dance. Last night the Old Comrades with due ceremony hoisted the veteran and Champion race boat "Blue Peter" up into position in the C.L.B. Armoury, giving it a place of honour, after twenty-one years service on Quidi Vidi Lake. The boat is now a valued trophy and the C.L.B. are proud of the old boat.
The officers were glad to welcome at Headquarters last night Mr. Chas. Keats, an ex-member of the Brigade, who has spent nearly six years with

A Popular Old Story.
"RIP VAN WINKLE" AT THE NICKEL TO-DAY.
A real treat awaits those attending the Nickel Theatre to-night. Director Ward Laseelle has pictured "Rip Van Winkle," Washington Irving's immortal classic. It has been booked by this theatre for your entertainment, and we want to tell you here and now that you're going to enjoy every moment of it.
Thomas Jefferson plays the title role, and so perfect is his characterization that critics have said that it compares more than favorably with the work done by his father—the world-famous "Joe" Jefferson—in his playing of the stage version.
The picture moves at a fast pace from start to finish; the cast leaves nothing to be desired; the sets and scenic effects are really beautiful; altogether "Rip Van Winkle" is a picture that is distinctly worth while.

Tree Casts Shadow.
OF LINCOLN'S PROFILE.
Almost within a stone's throw of the University of Kansas but probably unknown to the vast majority of students and townspeople is a curious natural phenomenon. It is an above ground formation of tree roots which in the light of an arc street lamp, casts a shadow profile of Abraham Lincoln. The likeness of the Great Emancipator, is unmistakable. The bushy hair, high forehead, shaggy eye-brows, deep set eyes, prominent nose, thick lips, chin whiskers—all are faithfully reproduced in the shadow picture which is nearly twice life size.
Although the profile has appeared nightly for more than a decade, it has changed scarcely at all.

Odd Etiquette.
Table manners at the time of Chaucer were described in a lecture by Kenneth Hare, author and poet, on "A Holiday in London in the Days of Chaucer." Etiquette in those days (the latter half of the 14th century) demanded that meat should be held between two fingers and a thumb of the left hand, and no more, if one was to be received in polite society. After soup, pike roasted in claret and flavored with strange and varied spices was eaten. Then followed partridge roasted with saffron, cloves and ginger, and jam tartis and jelly.
It was the custom to change the cloth with the courses, and one read of one feast in which each new cloth was scented with a perfume appropriate to the dish. In Chaucer's day the bath in construction was not unlike a miniature pulpit, and a bouquet of sweet-scented herbs was hung over it for the stream to draw out their refreshing qualities.

Editor "Wesleyan" Retires.

AFTER SIXTEEN YEARS LABOUR. Eight years ago the General Conference of the Methodist Church in the Maritime Provinces adopted a regulation which debarred a person over seventy years of age from holding a General Conference office; and this year, the worthy editor of the Wesleyan, Rev. D. W. Johnston, father of Rev. C. H. Johnson M.A., B.D., of Cochrane Street Centennial Church, St. John's, who is just a few days past the allotted term, gracefully bowed to the rule and will retire from the position which, during sixteen eventful years he has filled with eminent advantage to the church and the press and distinguished honor to himself. In a brief valedictory in the columns of the Wesleyan he assures its readers his eye is not dim nor his natural force abated, and that a day's tramp in the woods continues to be a joy; and that while he willingly obeys the law—as all good men should—he has no intention of setting the bread of idleness and "will do some gleaming in the Master's fields."

The trenchant writing of the reverend and respected editor has done much to maintain and increase the prestige of the Wesleyan. His was at all times a work of love—and it was well done. The pity is that while still in the prime of the seventies, he is obliged to bow to the inexorable but well-intentioned law and make way for a younger man. He is to be succeeded by the Rev. Herbert F. Thomas, at present pastor of the Exmouth Church in St. John. The impression that Mr. Thomas has made on the work of the church gives assurance that the mantle of Rev. Johnston is falling upon worthy shoulders, and that under his guidance the Wesleyan will continue to be one of the prominent leaders of the religious press.

The Wesleyan was first issued from the press of William Cunnahell, in this city in February, 1858. The first attempt at an official Methodist publication had been made in 1832 by the issue of a quarterly magazine called "The Nova Scotia and New Brunswick Wesleyan Methodist Magazine;" but it was not favorably regarded by the London Missionary Association and was discontinued. The Wesleyan came after it; and has had a successful career under brilliant editors down to the retiring head, Rev. D. W. Johnston who, it will be hoped, has still many useful years of Service before him.—Halifax Herald.

"The Victim" A Huge Success.

STAR MOVIE LAST NIGHT. It is hardly necessary on our part to praise this big production at the popular Star last evening, as the packed audience who witnessed it will speak volumes for it, but we may state it was all that was claimed for it. The most appropriate part of the picture was the singing of the "Rosary" by Miss Hilda Krentzlin, and at the execution this lady also sang "Nearer My God To Thee," and her singing was most favorably commented upon, as perhaps she has never been heard to better advantage. The picture is being repeated this evening, and those who failed to see it last night will no doubt do so. In presenting "THE VICTIM" the Management wishes to announce that like "THE FOUR HORSEMEN" this is but one of the many big productions to be shown at this theatre, and that the moving picture people of the city appreciate it is fully evidenced by the large audiences that this popular Theatre is now drawing.

On Wednesday afternoon, November 22nd, the Congregational L.A. & Girls Guild Societies will hold their Annual Autumn Sale. Plain & Fancy Work, Handkerchiefs, Vegetables, Home-made Candy, Pantry requisites. Afternoon and Meat Teas. Concert at 8 p.m. Further particulars later.—nov6,4i

PEOPLE'S PICTURES.

"Well, I don't see much in her for two men to go crazy about." The "her" of the sentence was a woman whose picture was in the paper because her husband had got another man who was just what she needed. The critic who couldn't see much in a woman was a newspaper reader. "I understand," she went on to say, "why so many women who are not bright get mixed up with the people's husbands and all that kind of thing. Why look at that woman she was as homely as a hedgehog. How do you know she's homely? I looked at me as if she wondered I were out of my head. Her pictures are caricatures. I get that woman herself takes as miserable a picture as any I ever saw. If someone, who had seen her, saw half a dozen pictures he would never get a word of her as she really looks. She is all pretty but she has plenty of charm and attractiveness. But none seems to get through to her. I know this. Or, at least, she knows that her pictures are caricatures. And she knows the same with her friends. And yet when she sees a picture of someone she thinks it never occurs to her that she isn't really seeing the person, only a picture.

Some Can't Take a Bad One.

Funny thing about pictures, isn't it? Funny how some people can't take a good one and others can't take a bad one. I recently visited a new friend whom my family have never met. In order to be able to let them know what she is like I took half a dozen snap shots. I never saw pictures look so much better than the person. "What a pretty girl," everyone says. And yet she is not pretty at all—charming, vivacious, but not pretty and I know they would not think so if they saw her.

"People who can laugh or smile easily and attractively take the best pictures. Analyze the snapshots you have of people who always take a good picture, and see if the majority of them are not smiling or laughing. I think men as a rule take better snap shots than women, fair people than dark.

They See Three Different Faces.

Pictures, as well as everything else, get some of their value and meaning from the eyes of the beholder. If three people look at a snapshot, and one is a casual friend of the subject, another is her lover, and a third has never seen her, those three people each see something entirely different in the picture.

Pictures of oneself are like poker hands, always fascinating because the next may be a royal straight. And except to the favored few they are still like poker hands, because most of them aren't even fit to open on.

Another C.L.B. Hero.

It seems only the other day that we wrote the unforgettable record of Arthur Hardwick, the heroic Wireless Operator on the ill-fated "Esprit." The lesson of duty, discipline and self-sacrifice he learned in the C.L.B. as many another splendid British lad has learned. Side by side with him in our memories and in our thankful remembrance before Almighty God, we can now place another.

On the 8th August, "H.M.S. Raleigh" was wrecked on the rocks off the coast of Labrador. Herbert Bashford, a first-class stoker, volunteered to swim ashore with a line to save his shipmates. In that awful sea he perished; but the splendour of his attempt remains. He is another C.L.B. hero of peace, who set sacrifice and duty before all. But twenty-one years of age, he only recently was discharged from St. Mark's Platoon, South Norwood. There he learned the eternal lessons which make a man, and he was true to his C.L.B. training.

We thank God for this heroic soul. When shallow thinkers accuse us of militarism, we know that such brave men as Herbert Bashford are ready to die in service without any thought of self, and we thank God and take courage. The Christ is Captain of our Salvation; but it is He who holds the greater love, and our own lads again and again have dared to show that greater love, and in their sacrifice we learn the true glory of human nature.—The Brigade (October).

Married Life is One Long Debate.

Bill and I were having our regular Sunday morning fight the last time my Aunt Jane came over unexpectedly. The fight was beginning to wear thin in spots—that is, we were both getting bored with it, but neither of us were quite willing to quit.

Instead of Aunt Jane's arrival stopping the argument, it only gave temporary impetus to our flagging energies because we both wanted Aunt Jane to hear a review of our sides of the case.

"Aunt Jane was more interested in Baby May, though, than she was in us, and we soon were all playing with the baby. But before Aunt Jane went home she said:

"Young people really ought to be advised as to what married life is. As far as I can see, all successful marriages are nothing more or less than debating societies, and if one could realize this beforehand and choose a partner whose skill was about equal with his own—a partner who, in the heat of argument would still remember the boundaries—judgment and kindness, and against whose wits one could keep his own sword bright and gleaming—well, that would make for happier married life. Because with the first argument, the debating society is launched and continues in existence 'until death do us part.' And a mighty good thing for it is, too; because nothing is quite so interesting to the human mind as an argument. I remember my Uncle Tom never got married because he said that every time he visited my mother and father, one of them was taking a bath, or they were fighting. Yet, I think their marriage was unusually successful."—Farm Life.

Cocoon Palm is Friend of Man.

NEXT OF SPECIES IN IMPORTANCE IS DATE PALM.

The palm tree is one of nature's great gifts to man. One may sing the praises of the pine and oak, the cedar and the cypress, but the palm is worth at least a pleasant word. There are hundreds of species of palm but that which stands out as serving man in most ways is the cocoon or cocoon palm. And after the cocoon palm in importance and utility comes the date tree or the date palm.

The palm tree of Scripture is understood to have been the date palm. For all the centuries that man has lived on earth the date palm has furnished food and shelter. Its timber and its foliage have their uses even now. Sugar—date sugar—is made from the sap just as maple sugar is made from the sap of the maple tree.

Shopsburg Properties

TURNED INTO CASH.

The liquidation of the Shopsburg holdings in Austria, with the exception of the possessions which are private, will be completed by the end of the month. The disposal of properties valued at many millions of dollars, and the funds realized through the sale of the lease of former court buildings will be used for the benefit of the war victims.

The large production territory now under the government of Austria has greatly diminished the amount of space required for government purposes, and many of the office buildings have been sold to private individuals. The proceeds from these sales have been used to the maximum. Many presents made to former Emperor Francis Joseph, Empress Elisabeth, and the late Emperor Karl, and the late Emperor Karl's children, are being sold.

Scared in Own Home.

A flat-dweller's family had gone out of town for a vacation. For two weeks the head of the house kept bachelor's hall. At the end of the first day he dined downstairs. At a late hour he let himself into his lonely home.

The dark deserted rooms seemed unusually large and lonesome. Without turning on the lights in the entrance hall he crossed to his own room, pushed open the door and entered. It was dark, but he knew every inch of space, and he soon found and pressed the light button.

Instantly from just back of him arose a terrifying roar. The man jumped with surprising alacrity to one side. The room remained dark. The roar continued.

He hurried into the hall and quickly switched on every light in reach. The explanation was surprisingly simple. His wife, just before leaving for her vacation, had been using the vacuum cleaner and had forgotten to detach it. Heard in the darkness and without warning, the roar is a good imitation of a menagerie.—New York Sun.

TWEEN BENCH AND BAR.

I wish to make an explanation of the meaning of the Scotch word Hamesucker (see Telegram of Saturday last) as applied to the law of Scotland. Lord Eskgrove, of the High Court of Edinburgh, having to condemn two or three persons to death, explained the various crimes for which they were tried, viz., assault, robbery, and hamesucken, of which last he gave them the etymology. Hamesucken, in Scotch law, is the crime of maliciously assaulting a person in his own house the assailant having entered the house with a view to commit the assault. Till 1837 hamesucken was a capital offence. John Clerk (1757-1832) Lord Eldin, Scottish Judge, son of John Clerk of Eldin, became an advocate (1785), solicitor-general of Scotland (1806), and a Lord of Session (1823), when he assumed the title of Lord Eldin. There has been no more famous legal notability in Scotland than John Clerk of Eldin. Afterwards Lord Eldin, when Lord Meadowbank was yet Mr. Maconochie, he one day approached his facetious professional brother Clerk, and after telling him that he had prospects of being raised to the bench, asked him to suggest what title he should adopt. "Preserve Us!" said Clerk, and moved off. When pleading before the same learned senator, after he had assumed the judicial title of Lord Meadowbank, it was suggested to Clerk by his Lordship that in the legal document which he had submitted to the Court he might have varied the frequently recurring expression "also," by the occasional use of "likewise."

"I beg your pardon, my lord," said Clerk, "but the terms are not always synonymous."
"In every case," retorted Meadowbank gruffly, Clerk still dissented. "Then ete an instance," demanded the judge.
"Well," remarked Clerk, doubtless chuckling inwardly while, "your Lordship's father was a Judge of Session, you are a Judge of Session also, but not like-wise."
Clerk's ready wit helped him well on many an occasion. In pleading, he frequently dropped into broad Scotch, and once when arguing a Scotch appeal case before the House of Lords, in which his client claimed the use of a mill-stream by a prescriptive right, he contended that "the water had run that way for forty years."
"Indeed," argued Clerk, "nobody kens how long, and why should my client not be deprived of the water?"
The Chancellor, much amused at the pronunciation of the Scottish advocate, in a rather bantering tone, asked: "Mr. Clerk, do you spell water in Scotland wi' twa t's?"
 nettled at this hit at his national tongue, Clerk immediately replied: "No, my Lord, we dinna spell water in Scotland wi' twa t's but we spell manners in Scotland wi' twa n's."
On one occasion, when he had been pleading a case before Lord Hermand, already mentioned, after he had finished and sat down to receive judgement his Lordship took up the case rather warmly, and when in the heat of an excited harangue, the saliva from his lips was spurted in the face of the sarcastic advocate.
"I have often heard of the dew's o' Hermand," remarked Clerk, "but I never felt them before."
Mr. James Wolfe-Murray became a Judge of the Court of Session, under the title of Lord Cringletie. When he was appointed, doubts were expressed by some as to his legal requirements, and Clerk expressed his view in the following clever epigram:
"Necessity and Cringletie
Are fitted to a title;
Necessity has nae law,
Cringletie has a little."
When in his sixty-fifth year he was raised to the Bench, Clerk took the title of Lord Eldin, from his family estate. Some one remarked to him that his title nearly resembled that of the Lord Chancellor Eldon.
"The difference," said he, "is all in my eye (I)."
Clerk had a halt in his gait, and when passing along on the street one day, he overheard a lady remark to a friend: "That's John Clerk, the lame lawyer."
"He was about in a mianie."
"No, madam," said he, "I am a lame man, but not a lame lawyer."

Quite right, also, but not likewise.
Another out-of-doors story in connection with this witty advocate refers to an occasion when he had been dining rather freely at the house of a friend in Queen St., Edinburgh. Wending his way homewards "early in morning, merrily, o," he failed to discover his own house in Picardy Place, and observing a housemaid busily engaged in cleaning a doorstep, "My good girl," says he, "can you tell me whaur John Clerk lives?"
"Awa! w' yer nonsense," exclaimed the astonished girl, "you're John Clerk himsel!"
"That's true enough, lassie," said he, "but it's no John Clerk I'm seeking for, it's John Clerk's house."
Sir James Colquhoun, Bart., of Luss, Principal Clerk of Session, was one of the old characters of his time, and was much teased by the wags of the Parliament House. On one occasion, whilst Henry Erskine was at the Inner House Bar, during the advising of some important case he amused himself by making faces at Sir James, who was sitting at the Clerk's table beneath the Judges. His victim was much annoyed at the strange conduct of the tormenting lawyer, and, unable to bear it, disturbed the gravity of the court by rising and exclaiming:

"My Lord, my Lord, I wish you would speak to Harry, he's making faces at me." Harry, however, looked as grave as a judge. Peace ensued, and the advising went on, when Sir James, casting his eyes towards the bar, witnessed a new grimace from his tormentor, and convulsed Bench, Bar, and audience by roaring out: "There, my Lord, he's at it again!"
Erskine was remarkable for his ready wit and stinging repartee. Like the illustrious John Clerk of Eldin, he was indifferent to the rules of pronunciation, and in pleading before a learned senator he spoke of a curator bonis.
"Allow me to correct you," said his Lordship, "the word is curator."
"Thank you, my Lord," said Erskine, "I doubt not your Lordship is right, since you are so learned a senator, and so eloquent an orator."
Mr. Erskine of Alva, subsequently Lord Bargaig, was a person of short stature. Having been counsel in a case in which Henry Erskine appeared on the opposite side, he was obliged on account of the crowded state of the court to have a chair brought forward on which to raise himself when addressing the judge.
"This," remarked Henry, "is one way of rising to the Bar."
To a Judge of the Commissary Court, who talked in an inflated and pompous manner, who told him that his brother in the country had fallen from a stile and sprained his foot: "It was fortunate for your brother," remarked Henry, "that it was not from your stile he fell, or he had certainly broken his neck."
The foregoing anecdotes relating to this well-known witty lawyer, as well as for the one that follows, I am indebted to the late Dr. Charles Rogers' Illustrations of Scottish Life.

Loss of H. S. Raleigh

SENTENCE.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 28. The trial was concluded to-day of Commander Leslie Charles Holt, O.B., who was charged before a Court-martial with charges arising out of the loss of the H.M.S. Raleigh, flagship of Admiral Sir William Pakenham, Commander-in-Chief of the North American and West Indies Station. Commander Holt was navigating officer of the ship, which was wrecked in thick fog off the coast of Labrador on Oct. 15. Captain C. K. Maclean, Chief of Staff at Portsmouth, presided over the court.

The accused officer, who pleaded guilty, submitted that there was no fog, but that the weather was so thick that he could not see the Raleigh, and that when he was contacted by the captain, the Raleigh was not immediately apparent to him. He stated that he was not at the helm, but that he was in the engine room, and that he was not at the helm when the Raleigh was wrecked. He stated that he was not at the helm when the Raleigh was wrecked, and that he was not at the helm when the Raleigh was wrecked.

The court found that the charge against the Raleigh was proved, and that the stranding was due to the negligence of the captain. The court found that the Raleigh was wrecked due to the negligence of the captain, and that the stranding was due to the negligence of the captain.

Fireless Cookers.

IN USE IN THE BRONZE AGE.

The prehistoric bride in the early Bronze age could boil water without burning the wood-and-hide containers which her hunter husband furnished her. Miss Nina F. Layard has discovered primitive cooking places at Buckingham Palace, Norfolk, England. Ancient kitchens, now being excavated by her, are marked by thousands of flint cracked by fire. These rocks were apparently used as heaters for boiling water in vessels which would not stand the fire. They are found a foot or two beneath the sod and invariable a few yards from a stream. Either a wooden trough or a stretch of hide was in all probability the utensil used. This was filled with water and then the red-hot flints were shoveled in. In this way the water was soon brought to a boil. The bones and teeth of oxen and horses found between the heaters and the stream show where the cooking took place, while with these flint heaters implements were found which fix the time as being in the early Bronze Age. —Kansas City Star.

Out-Volsteading-

Volstead.

The Government of the United States, still struggling in the paroxysms of attempted enforcement of the famous Volstead Act, wishes to alter International law for its own convenience. It, in effect, says with Omar:

"O could we take this sorry scheme of things entire, And mould it nearer to our heart's desire?"

And calmly propose to the rest of the world that as far as the United States is concerned, the three mile limit shall be the twelve mile limit. It asks other nations to please allow the Revenue vessels of the United States Government to stop them on the high seas, whenever the Revenue officers see fit, for the purpose of being searched. If contraband is found aboard, the offending ship is to be confiscated. That is one phase of the liquor enforcement law. The next is that no ship of any nation shall enter a port of the United States if she is carrying alcoholic liquor, on pain of confiscation. This has been modified to exempt foreign vessels which had left their home port before this drastic order was promulgated. It was really framed in an effort to make vessels owned by the United States Government, and operated by one of its departments, obey the laws that were entrusted to another department to enforce. It is impossible to tell as yet just what effect it will eventually have. In the meantime, the British Government has addressed very strong protests to the U.S. Government for their action in setting a British ship outside the three mile limit, after the British Government had refused the naive request for permission to do that very thing. The situation has its serious side, as it is manifestly impossible for the British Government to give up the right of its vessels to the high seas, and if the U.S. Government insist on intruding the rights of peaceable vessels belonging to another nation, there are all the elements that lead to tragedy.

It is rather a remarkable thing that in the effort to make all people moral by legislation the rights of everybody in general are ruthlessly disregarded. Of course, to the ardent prohibitionist, the main thing is that people shall not drink the liquors that he disapproves of. If the only way of ensuring this is to place them in a position where they will no longer be able to drink anything at all, he will look upon their cold corpse with a feeling that he has done well for the world. Looked upon from another point of view the action of Uncle Sam under the slogan of the smugglers of whisky and beer whisky are nothing but fancy. Gilbert and Sullivan, were they with us, would have a merry time, setting the orders and disorders to appropriate words and music. The Canadian ports of Vancouver, Victoria, Halifax and St. John as well as Montreal and Quebec are praying fervently that the U.S. will insist on debarring vessels which carry liquor. They recognize the fact that the majority of people who travel across the ocean are normal humans, who will not travel in ships where they cannot procure their accustomed beverages. This will mean a diversion of passenger traffic from U.S. ports to Canadian ports, with business for Canadian railways, hotels, ship chandlers, passenger agents, etc. As they would say in Montreal, "Vive la prohibition, pour les autres."—Canadian Shipping.

Resumption of Anglo-American Cable Letter and Week-End Letter Services.

The Anglo-American Telegraph Co. announces the resumption on November 1st of the Cable Letter and Week-End Letter Services to Great Britain and Ireland.

Cable Letters may be filed at any time and are delivered the following day. Week-End Letters may be filed at any time prior to midnight on Saturday and are delivered on Monday morning.

The rate for a Cable Letter to London and Liverpool is one-third the regular cable rate, and the rate for a Week-End letter one-quarter of the regular cable rate, in each case with a minimum of twenty words including the necessary prefix placed before the address to indicate the class of service. To places in the United Kingdom other than London and Liverpool there is an added charge of two cents per word in both classes of service to cover the landline transmission on the other side.

Both forms of service are designed for plain language business and social communications which do not require instantaneous transmission but are still of sufficient urgency that they should not be subjected to the delay incident to the carriage by trans-ocean mail. Each has its own peculiar field of usefulness, the Cable Letter serving for such correspondence as is not of immediate urgency but should still be disposed of within a day or two and the Week-End Letter for communications of perhaps still less urgency but nevertheless sufficiently important to require their transmittal in quicker time than can be done by the overseas mail. Thus each in its own way supplies a distinct convenience of which the cable using public will no doubt be quick to take advantage.

H. A. SAUNDERS,
Superintendent.
