CHAPTER III.

"Nothing," said Mr. Clifford, and there was a bitter echo in his heart. "Nothing, but I have left the Hall, Mrs. Markham, and in disgrace. I have no shelter to-night, and no money. Stay—feeling in his pockets—'yes, here are a few shillings. You are a tenant of Sir Ralph's. Dare you—do you care to give me a night's lodging? Don't look so confused. I shall think no worse of you for refusing."

The woman looked at him at first questioningly, then pityingly. "Bless me!" she exclaimed, sadly. "What can have happened to you, Mr. Clifford, as we thought so much of you? Oh, dear me! There, I can't say no, though if Sir Ralph was to hear—But, never mind, come in, come in, and I will see to it' face."

The tutor passed behind the bar and entered the little parlor beyond. But he would not let the good-natured woman look at his face; said it was nothing; thanked her gratefully, and with a hollow smile tramped up to his room, supperless.

On the morrow he was up early, rested, though he had not slept, and after pressing three of the six shillings upon Mrs. Markham, set out upon his way.

He had eaten nothing since the breakfast at the Hall, but he did not feel weak now, though the thought of food made him ill. He was warm, too, feverish, no doubt, and with a singing in his head that was fast singing all the memory out of it.

He walked on, on, till noon, when he halted suddenly and looked back. He had caught the sound of horses' hoofs behind him.

Suspicious of he knew not what, he crept behind the hedge and waited. It was the three grooms, and, as he recognized them, a bitter smile crossed the haggard face of the outcast.

"One more link in the chain of falsehoods, no doubt," he said. "They have discovered by this time that I have stolen the plate or rifled the strong room, and have sent to drag me back to prison and the hulks. Shall I let them? What does it matter? It is a losing game to fight against fate. No, it will but drag her name into the mire. No, let them hunt in vain."

Worn out, more by his enforced stoppage than by his continued tamping, he lay down painfully and waited for the return of the horsemen, for he judged that, not overtaking him.

DOCTOR ADVISED AN OPERATION

Read Alberta Woman's Experience With Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Provost, Alberta.—"Perhaps you will remember sending me one of your books a year ago. I was in a bad condition and would suffer awful pains at times and could not do anything. The doctor said I could not have children unless I went under an operation. I read testimonials of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the papers and a friend recommended me to take it. After taking three bottles I became much better and now I have a bonny baby girl four months old. I do my housework and help a little with the chores. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and am willing for you to use this testimonial letter."—Mrs. A.A. ADAMS, Box 54, Provost, Alberta.

Lachine, Quebec.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my left side and back and with weakness and other troubles women so often have. I was this way about six months. I saw the Vegetable Compound advertised in the 'Montreal Standard' and I have taken four bottles of it. I was a very sick woman and I feel so much better. I would not be without it. I also use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I recommend the medicines to my friends and am willing for you to use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. M.W. ROSE, 680 Notre Dame St., Lachine, Quebec.

never would have claimed him for its own, and then she commenced outlining the gordian knot of his life's difficulties.

But Clarence Clifford had met the hard world face to face before this, had been rubbed and dragged along its roughness for three long, weary years, and so had served his apprenticeship to cold, rain and an empty stomach.

It is true he had the rag end of a weakness resulting from a broken limb, but the constitution, unvitalized and unharassed by unwholesome luxuries, made a stand against the combination of fit, and, after a hard, long sleep, a cup of coffee, and half an hour's deep and, alas! sad meditation, he left the humble coffee house and sallied into the busy East End thoroughfare, resigned to life and prepared, like a brave man, to fight for its continuance. In labor, hard, unremitting labor, lay his only chance, and he knew it.

The remembrance of the happy days at Rivershall, which was as bitter as the memory of his cruel expulsion, and the tearful shock of the street child's death, clung to him and he longed feverishly to throw them off.

"Work is the thing for me," he muttered; "hard, manual labor—the open air and enough food to exist on. But where to find it, that is the question." "Come, sir, move on," remonstrated a policeman, as the outcast lingered a moment in the line of pedestrians and so caused a slight block.

He started and paced on, going with the stream down the broad thoroughfare without stopping till he reached a clear space, less crowded and with artificial make-believe of country about.

There were several hay carts standing, their contents for sale; some men leaning against a post, quaffing London blacking—that is to say, porter—eyed the pale-looking gentleman curiously, and, impelled by the impulse of the moment, Mr. Clarence Clifford turned back and accosted the rudest of them.

"Can you tell me what place this is?"

"Yes," said the man, mentioning it.

"What place are you looking for, sir?"

Mr. Clifford smiled involuntarily. "No place in particular," he said. "I am seeking some employment."

The man scratched his head.

"A clerk's?" he said, interrogatively glancing at Mr. Clifford's black garments.

"No," said he, "not a clerk's; anything else."

The man shook his head.

"I'm the last man to tell you of any," he said, "as you might have guessed, but—Hello! here is the governor. He's your lay. Mornin', sir," and he touched his hat to a short business-looking man who came up with a springy step, and much engrossed with three inches of straw which he held in his mouth.

"Gent looking for work," explained the man.

"En?" said the employer. "Your servant, sir," and he touched his hat.

Poor Mr. Clifford sighed; it was all against him this respect to his black clothes; he decided to be rid of them at the earliest opportunity.

"Looking for work, eh—what sort?" and the man eyed him keenly.

"Any," said Mr. Clifford, despondently.

"Well, that's mighty accommodating," was the retort, the speaker's eyes taking an inventory of the white.

"Well—hem—I don't know of anything. Here, you look rather done up, rather pale about the gills; come over and have a glass of cordial—something warm."

CHAPTER IV.
Had Clarence Clifford been an outcast, dishonored, instead of simply a dismissed tutor, there is little doubt but that before the morning the

BETTER THAN A "DOT."

In one of the current magazines there is an article telling the tragic story of Charles Chapin, a brilliant newspaper man, who is serving a life sentence in Sing Sing for the killing of his wife. His is a strange case. He shot his wife while she was asleep and then gave himself up to the police. Since his imprisonment he has written a book in which he tells why he shot his wife to death.

"He was involved in debt," says the magazine writer, "speculation had ruined him. He was getting old, his health was poor; he feared the loss of his job, feared poverty and want; feared the loss of his mind. He thought he was going mad. But according to his confession what he feared more than anything else and most of all was that his wife, a sickly gently reared woman, a semi invalid already, would be left destitute."

While no man would condone Chapin's crime for the reasons he puts forth, there is many a man who can sympathize with his fears. That his family may be left destitute and without sufficient means of support in case of his death is the fear that haunts many a husband and father of a family.

Chapin must have been nearer mad even than he feared let his worries so obsess him. He writes: "When my life flattered and went out there came to me a strange exaltation and all the worries that had been tormenting me faded into nothingness. I had nothing more to worry about. No harm could ever befall her. Then my brain went dead."

The American Girl's "Dot."

The French woman brings a "dot" to her husband when she marries. The modern American girl more often than not brings a greater gift to her husband even than that. She brings a trained mind and the ability to earn her own living if it should become necessary.

Every girl should have something to fall back on if the need should ever come, some trade or profession to which she can turn and take the place of wage earner if the necessity should ever arise.

I know a man who has a very capable wife. There is no need for her to help earn their living, but before her marriage she was private secre-

BARGAINS.

WALT MASON

I took a handsome roll of kale and visited the bargain sale at Rinkum's doodad store; handbills announced, in strident tones, that things which sold for "seven bones cent" now be bought for four. It was a carnival of trade, and graybeard, matron, youth and maid blew in the shining plunks, they purchased lids and silken socks, and liver pads and eight-day clocks, and Saratoga trunks. It's difficult, I wot and wist, this sort of frenzy to resist, and so I joined the gang; I purchased things till late at night, I blew my kopecks left and right, and felt no twinge or pang. I thought that I was very wise; "the prudent man," I muttered, "buys when things are cheap as dirt;" and so I flashed my roll of bills, and bought a churn, two sausage mills, a gun, a buckskin shirt. Because I found them passing cheap I bought a couch on which to sleep, an icebox and a mat. I bought some pictures framed in oak, some boxing gloves, a ton of coke, a choice Angora cat. I thought, when I was homeward bound, that I had shown a judgment sound, in buying things while cheap; but morning brought me feeling punk when I surveyed the pile of junk, and watched the women weep, "here's nothing here," my folks decreed, "for which we have the slightest need, it's rubbish, first and last; oh, pile it up 'twixt barn and byre, and set the measly stuff afire, while neighbors stand aghast."

A Comforting Knowledge.

"I'm not worrying about that," said the man, "I'm carrying all the insurance I can afford to take care of just now, and I don't have to worry about what would become of the family in case of my death. I've got the smartest, brightest wife in the world. She could get a job to-morrow if she had to, and I know that with what I leave her she'd be able to take care of the children without much hardship."

What a blessing that knowledge is to a man.

I think that every prospective bride owes that assurance not only to her husband but to herself, in order that their happiness may be marred by no tragic haunting fears of what might befall her if she were left alone.

Funny Farewells

What ever dallying may have preceded it, the actual parting of a Briton and his sweetheart is usually sealed with a kiss. To us this seems the natural thing to do, but other nations have different ideas.

The Turkish lover bows low, his hands crossed reverently on his breast. This is a dignified farewell compared with that of the amorous Japanese, who, on leaving his sweetheart, removes a slipper and brandishes it in the air! Lovers in New Guinea have the pleasing habit of parting by exchanging slabs of chocolate, while the loveless man of the Philippine Isles vigorously rubs his sweetheart's cheeks before leaving her.

A visit to the station this afternoon found the original force under command of Lt.-Colonel C. A detachment of 150 infantry moved into Sydney Mines early this evening. This afternoon 150 special constables were sworn in as a quiet night was anticipated.

8% Plus a Share in the Profits of a business Established Over Half a Century

Bank interest no longer satisfies the individual who has accumulated savings. Government and Municipal Bonds have reached the point where their 4% and 5% yield is no longer attractive. The keen business man and investor is looking for the opportunity to make his savings secure for him their full earning power and at the same time be safe.

We offer— The 8% Cumulative Preference Shares of THE A. W. CHASE COMPANY, Ltd.

The A. W. Chase Company, Ltd., has acquired the business of Edmanon, Bates & Co., Limited, sole owners of Dr. A. W. Chase Remedies for the British Empire, and the Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co. of Buffalo, N.Y., sole owners of these remedies for the United States, including the patents, formulae, trade-marks, good-will and assets of the aforesaid companies.

"Dr. A. W. Chase's" is probably the best known trademark for household remedies in Canada. The business dates back some sixty-one years to 1864, and from its small beginning has achieved a dominating position in the proprietary medicine field.

These 8% Cumulative Preference shares are an ideal form of investment, combining the essential features of sound investment—safety, high interest return, marketability. In addition an opportunity to participate in further profits is given through a common stock bonus.

Price: $100 per share to yield 8%

A limited number of preference shares will carry a bonus of common.

This opportunity to secure an interest in such an old-established company and one whose business and earnings have steadily grown for over 60 years is one you should carefully investigate.

If further information is desired, fill in the attached coupon and mail it today. No salesman will call and you will be under no obligation to purchase.

The Priests' Convention

The Convention met at 10 a.m. yesterday to hear three excellent papers. Rev. A. E. Tulk, R.D., read a paper on "The Priest in the Study." He reminded us that study is one part of a Priest's work, one of the things to which we pledged ourselves at our Ordination. It is essential to an efficient Priest, and therefore must not be neglected.

The paper given by Rev. I. Parsons dealt with the work of the Priest in his various duties in the House of God. He emphasized the need of the priest to be extremely careful in his department at all times in the church whether engaged in services or not. Many practical hints were given as to the conduct of the various services but especially of the great service of all—the Holy Communion. He pleaded for the greater use of the Church as a place of private prayer and devotion, which would react from the parish priest upon his people.

The paper was followed by one by Rev. R. F. Palmer who viewed the priest himself. Clearly and concisely he gave many counsels to guide the rest of the brethren in almost every department of the priest's life which includes both body and soul. Strikingly he emphasized our duty to the bodies of our people showing that very often the state of body influenced the soul. He felt that this was particularly true in the outposts, where the opportunities for physical culture were so limited. An animated discussion followed these papers, which showed how greatly the convention appreciated them.

At 3.15 the Convention reassembled to hear papers by Rev. E. M. Bishop on "Missions at Home" and by Rev. Canon Smart on "Missions Abroad." Mr. Bishop spoke of the areas in our country with such a small population that they could not support their own Priest. They must, for years to come, receive help from the more prosperous and more densely-populated areas. He thought that our appeals for this purpose are too much in the abstract, and suggested that each Diocese should be made responsible for supplying the needs of a certain area. He went on to outline a scheme which would bring the Diocese into close touch with its "Mission" thereby rousing more interest. Canon Smart read an excellent paper on the duty of studying the world's problems and of acquainting ourselves with the needs of the church in other lands. Rev. E. Godfrey then spoke, from his own experience, of the great good done in India by Christian Missions. At 5.30 the clergy adjourned to sing evensong in the Cathedral.

THE BUSINESS MEETING.

This opened at eight o'clock with the Lord Bishop in the chair. The matter of the cost of the Convention was dealt with. Votes of thanks were passed to the following: Miss Hayward and the ladies associated with her for providing and serving meals on the Quiet Day; to the Girls' Friendship Society for the use of their rooms; to the Cathedral Parish for the use of the Parish Rooms; to the Hospitality Committee; to the hosts and hostesses; to the clergy during the Convention; to the daily press for its kindly references, and to His Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardice for their invitation to the clergy and friends to a reception at the Government House.

It was also the sad duty of the convention to record its sympathy with the Rev. A. B. S. Stirling and the Rev. G. Elliott in their recent bereavement, and to the Rev. John Marks who has been incapacitated from work through a serious illness contracted during mission work in White Bay. Arising out of the papers and discussions on missions it was decided to hold a huge Missionary Rally. With the consent of the Rector it was decided that this should be held in St. Thomas's Church, on Wednesday at 8 o'clock. To this service the members of all the city parishes are invited. The address will be given by the Rev. R. F. Palmer. The collection will be given to Missions.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME.

7.30—Matins. 8.00—Holy Communion. 10.00-12.45—Papers:—"Study of the Bible"—Rev. Canon Bolt and Rev. A. Shorter. 3.15-5.30—Paper:—"Training and Supply of the Ministry"—Rev. Dr. Facey. 5.30—Evensong. The Convention will close on Thursday morning with a sung Eucharist in the Cathedral at 10 a.m.

Are Laws Laws?

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—Please give space in your much read Telegram for a question or two I would like to ask. Are Laws or only pie crusts?

I have noticed this Spring as well as last Fall that any schooner coming from P.E.I. with a cargo of P.E.I. produce was supposed to have a Customs official on board from the time she was entered in this country until she was finally discharged even if it took a month and the vessel had to call at five or six ports. Every schooner is compelled to do this, so Customs officials tell us. Last Fall some from this coast did and some did not. This Spring some did. I have only heard of one that did not, there may have been others. Is this right or wrong? Why should one vessel be allowed to go from port to port without an official, and another have to take one and feed him for at least 10 days, if the vessel has many ports? Do I hear someone say "we want equal rights for all." Personally I believe an official should be on board.

WARSHIPS LEAVE HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, June 13.—Three British ships of war of the North American and West Indies Squadron and H. M. Sloop of War Wistaria, which arrived here on June 9th, sailed to-day, the Calcutta leaving for Hawke Bay, Nfld., the Curlew for Bermuda, the Constance for England to pay off and the Wistaria for Bras d'Or, Cape Breton, and later for Newfoundland.

Died at Union Meeting

Labor M. P. Takes Ill in House, and Dies a Few Hours Later.

Toronto, June 10.—At the consumption meeting of the United Church of Canada at the Arena here this morning, while the big congregation was singing the processional hymn, J. C. Crowe, aged 72, of Welland, Ont., Registrar of Deeds for the County of Welland, who was in the galleries, collapsed, and passed away. Death was caused by a heart attack.

Unfair to Fishermen

In Shipping Fish to the United States. Ottawa, June 11.—Senator MacLean, in the Senate to-day, drew attention to the disadvantages under which the Maritime fishermen were placed in shipping their fish to the United States. He said since the Americans put a duty of two cents a pound on all kinds of fish, Bank fishermen were not allowed to take their fish to Gloucester or Boston without transferring them into another vessel. At the same time Gloucester fishermen could employ British subjects to catch fish within the three mile limit and take them into the United States free of duty and they did not have to get a consular certificate. This was unfair, as the Canadian fishermen had to get a consular certificate to do this. Senator Dandurand said he would bring the matter before the Government.

FOR SORE FEET—MINARD'S LINIMENT.

Economical Problems and Others

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Your two editorials of recent issues have interested me very much indeed. The one you headed "Carry out the Law" and the other "The Coal Industry and British Trade." It seems to me your Editorials reflect and suggest a great deal more than you actually write. Perhaps it is only a peculiar contrariness of my mind that seems to persist in accepting the thoughts of another and setting them up as building stones in its own temple—a sort of finished ashlar is thus provided for the use of a craftsman builder.

The thing that interests us all is life, and its manifold expression, and this peculiar form of life expression, existing on this little island home of ours, being human we are naturally interested in the activities of our species in some other part of the globe.

Your Editorial, "The Coal Industry and British Trade" then becomes of real interest to us and in it we see that industry precedes trade. Great Britain by her genius for industry has become the greatest trading nation in the world. Her industrial genius made it necessary for her to go out and secure the undeveloped parts of the earth, and to bring in raw materials for manufacture into marketable products for the use of her own population and for exportation to the less industrially minded peoples of the world.

England does not produce raw cotton; well then why does she not sit back and buy her cotton manufactures from the U. S. A. or elsewhere?

Most people will consider this a silly question when applied to England and her industrial life; but do not so readily see its suicidal aspect when applied to our own country and her industrial development.

The fact, as cited in your editorial, that the number of miners employed in England fell off from 1,137,000 in December to 1,122,700 in March becomes a serious cause for alarm. This represents a decrease of a little over one per cent, and is sufficiently serious and important to engage the active interest of the whole nation, whereas in Newfoundland the loss of a home industry almost a hundred per cent. does not seem to arouse more than passing thought.

Capt. Kean and other writers have shown up the passing of one of the great local industries, that of shipping, that of transportation of our products to foreign shores for sale. The writer in your contemporary, the July News, shows that this industry would be worth to Newfoundland the handsome amount of over a quarter of a million dollars per year. In other words this industry of shipping would add, and should add, over a quarter million dollars to the purchasing power of Newfoundland and Newfoundlanders.

We have ourselves had the painful duty of bringing to the attention of the public the passing of another great local industry—that of the manufacture of boots and shoes in Newfoundland.

I could quote other cases of industrial starvation and near death, but let the above suffice for the moment.

My limited knowledge of the practical working out of the shipping industry does not enable me to enter into any detailed discussion of its problems. My economic knowledge, however, and a more or less cursory reading of the trend of events in the shipping world enable me to make some general observations.

One is struck with the fact that of the tremendous amount of new tonnage on the stocks in the British Isles today. A very large proportion, over half of the total, is being equipped with internal combustion engines of the Diesel or other similar type, and that the steam engine is being laid aside for the most part. This spells efficiency in operating expenses and a carrying capacity, so that from the very start motor powered carriers have a very considerable saving in operating costs and cargo space per ton. It would seem to me that oil could be stored at St. John's and landed much more efficiently than coal. Beneficial legislation should by all means be effected, forthwith. There should be no hesitation allowing foreign going ships to obtain provisions and stores in bond, including oil or coal.

There should be a definite and more concerted effort made to develop direct return trading with the countries to whom we sell. This coupled with some statesmanship would be made of inestimable value in stimulating these markets for our products.

The world is fast approaching a new era of co-operative trading where both parties to the bargain are benefited thereby. Many benefits would flow to our little land from a more definite and exact system of trading. Personal interests or political differences should not be allowed to interfere with the most efficient development of our foreign trading. Every interest should unite in the siding up of this great local industry of transportation on the high seas.

This other great home industry of bootmaking has already applied the aid of efficiency, and you will find our factories equipped with the

MONROE EXPORT CO. v. C. H. KINCH
 AGAINST AGENT.

Mr. Kinch said that he thought it better to explain to the Court that the books had been found, but he had no way of accusing Puckerin of anything. The books were made up in this manner. Mr. Taylor would give the names of the sales of fish from the Commission Sales book. Taylor would then make out the Account Sales from the summary, converting the duty prices to duty paid prices so as to have the whole of the consignments on a basis as duty paid. Some would be made out account for himself, but he would say that he used to make out 90 per cent.

Mr. Kinch pointed out that the books were not cross-examined at this point, and therefore he was entitled to put in evidence the books. At this stage, 1.30 p.m., the Court adjourned until 10.30 a.m. the following day.

The further examination of Mr. Kinch was postponed and evidence given by other witnesses as to a system of the trade of making up account sales.

Mr. Kinch said that he had been a Clerk in the Commission Sales of Messrs. Da Costa & Co. who was now a Director of that firm. He knew the account sales were made up as he had done work of this nature before. As a matter of fact the books still came before him in the case of his duties. Da Costa & Co. fish on commission. When a consignment of fish was received, the firm would issue a printed list to trade and a commission of 5 per cent. on the gross proceeds of the sale. That was the usual practice of all sellers of fish. The consignees guaranteed the price to the consignors, and they were to lose it if their purchasers did not pay them. His firm was liable for the proceeds, whether the fish was sold on bond or not. They made out all account sales at duty paid and added to the bond price $1.50 per cask. To the fish sold in bond $1.50 per cask was added, and the consignor was credited in the Account Sales with $1.50 more than the consignor actually received. With regard to the account sales the actual money paid, and at the foot of the account sales they credited themselves the duty at $1.41 per cask on the whole consignment. As a result of this their commission was 7 1/2 per cent. on the $1.50, one and a half cents more than what it should be. This was the result in the gross sum on which they got commission of 5 per cent. being greater than the sum of money actually received from the fish in bond. The 5 per cent. on $1.50 equalled 7 1/2 cents.

 Nearly Driven Crazy By Itching. Cuticura Healed.
 "I was bothered for a year with eczema all over my face and body. It was in pimples and best I tried by scratching for it kept driving me crazy itching, and it nearly broke my nerves."
 "I was treated but it did not help, so when I heard about Cuticura Soap and Ointment, I bought them. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and I was healed." (Signed) Alton Book, Charlotte, Vermont, Sept. 16, 1924.
 Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap with brushes of Cuticura Ointment as directed to soothe and heal. Cuticura is fragrant and refreshing, the ideal toilet powder.

Mr. Reece: That only applies to the goods sold in bond, not the goods duty paid.

The witness continuing said that his firm did business in fish with the neighbouring islands, and all fish exported by them was sold before exportation. No profit was made on fish exported.

Cross-examined by Mr. Walcott, the witness said that he would not say that the custom was altogether accurate as it showed an excess of 1 1/2 cents. When their Account Sales were made up they generally put "D.P." on them. That was also done in the case of shipments to the Islands, but they did not put any mark on the Account Sales or write any letter to their principals to show that they had done this. They kept copies of the invoices. If their principals wanted them to account for a consignment, they could do so. They kept separate heads in their Ledger for each consignment. After a number of years they destroyed some of these records. The expenses for cables and telegrams were paid out of the commission they received. In billing the customer they took off $1.44, and in making out their sales they added $1.50. He had no recollection of any trouble with his firm over a consignment of fish by the schooner "Eddie Therault."

Mr. Walcott here produced a letter written by Mr. Kinch to Monroe & Co. in 1915.

Mr. Reece objected to the letter being put in by the witness on the ground that it had nothing to do with him. He said that Mr. Nurse, who was a clerk at Da Costa & Co. at the time should not be asked anything about Da Costa & Co.'s business.

His Honor having been shown the letter, pointed out to Mr. Walcott that the witness was giving evidence as to the custom in the trade of this island. The letter was not admitted in evidence.

Mr. Walcott requested that the witness be allowed to produce an account sales sheet from Da Costa & Co. as made out by his firm.

Mr. Reece objected and his Honor upheld the objection.

Mr. Walcott thereupon asked that his request be noted on the notes of evidence and this was done.

Mr. H. Jason Jones said that he was an agent for the sale of fish on commission from Newfoundland and other Canadian firms. When a consignment of fish came down to him, the first custom was to offer it for sale on list. If there was no sale, it was then allotted at fixed prices. They sometimes sold fish in bond to the Islands, but always at the allotted price less $1.50. In the Account Sales the fish sold locally was duty paid, and the exact amount was stated thereon. With regard to fish sold in bond of which he sold locally or to a merchant abroad they added $1.50 per cask to the actual price for what it was sold in bond. All the fish in the Account Sales was duty paid. He received a commission on the gross proceeds of the sale, but the commission on the gross proceeds paid price. In the charges they took it off at the rate of $1.44. On the face of it, it would appear as if he made 1 1/2 per cent. on each cask in addition to his commission, but the additional expenses in connection with the fish exported ate up the whole thing. At present he was the agent for Monroe Export Co., Ltd., and had been such for three or four years. He had been rendering them account sales in the manner described by him. He seldom put the letters "D. P." on his account sales. Sometimes consignors drew on him before the fish was sent, but Monroe & Co. did not do that. Before he sent up Account Sales to his principals, he waited until the fish was all sold.

In answer to Mr. Walcott, the witness said that the expenses for the cables were charged in the account sales so that his principals were able to see that he was sending fish to the other Islands. "D.P." on the Account Sales meant that the consignment was accounted for by the agent at the duty price. With regard to fish sold in bond he never put the word "Bond" against it in the Account Sales. The method described by him had been the custom in the trade in the Island for the past forty years. While he would not say the method was strictly accurate, he could not agree with Mr. Walcott that it opened the gate to fraud. He kept a Warehouse Delivery Book. If his Delivery Book were lost his principals could trace the sale of every consignment from his ledger. Each sale was kept separately in the Ledger. If all his books were lost except his account sales his principals would not be able to trace the sale of any particular consignment. He never sent on account sales for goods which he still had in the warehouse; because if the fish went bad, he would lose the money. Good fish kept in a cool place would remain good for about two months.

Mr. C. H. Kinch recalled said that a consignment book in his office generally lasted for three years. Some of them could not be found, but he produced one beginning from June, 1922 to January, 1925. When he went to England in 1922, he left the books in his office, and they were there when he returned in 1923. In May, 1924 when he returned to St. John's Mr. Walter Monroe told him that his company had been informed by Taylor that certain manipulations had been going on with the account sales of the consignments, and he told Mr. Monroe that he could explain everything and would do so on his return to Barbados from his Consignment Sales Book as that was the only book from which he could get a proper statement. In Halifax, he wrote Mr. Carmichael about these books, and when he returned Mr. Carmichael told him that the books could not be found. He put in as a specimen copy from the Consignment Sales Book produced, showing the manner in which a shipment of fish by the schooner "Frank H. Adams" on the 9th June, 1924, was dealt with.

When a consignment of fish arrived from Monroe & Co. it was fish bonded. Very often he would cable the Islands at once or would write by the earliest opportunity. He would allot the prices in round figures. As regards local sales he usually allotted the goods at fixed prices. He exported fish to the Islands less the duty in bond. Some of the fish was sold locally in bond, and a transfer was given to the local purchaser. The price received was entered in the Consignment Sales Book. He guaranteed the amount. In making up his account sales from 1904 he always made them out at the duty paid prices, in the same manner as described by the witnesses Nurse and Jones. His business was principally with the Islands. The only occasion on which the word "bond" was written on the account sales sheet, so far as he remembered, was in the case of a cargo of fish landing here from the schooner "David C. Ritchey" which arrived here in distress. Large quantities of this fish were shipped to Pernambuco on the instructions of the shippers. The cargo was never intended for Barbados, but for Brazil. The quality of the fish sent to Pernambuco was better than that sold locally. Mr. Monroe had always requested him to sell the fish for the best price he could get in the other Islands, if he could not get it sold in Barbados.

In adding $1.50 to prices of the goods in bond, he was following the custom in the trade in this island. It was nothing invented by him. He had been brought up in the commission office of Mr. Bancroft, but Mr. Bancroft never handled fish on consignment. He had heard Taylor say that he manipulated the Account Sales when making them up, but that was an absolutely false statement. Sometimes he would sign the Account Sales in a hurry to leave the office. These account sales were generally made up at the close of the sale of the consignment. In one or two cases if three or four casks were left and a mail was ready, these casks would be priced at the last price received, sometimes at a lower price, never higher, and the account sales were completed and sent on instead of losing the mail the object was to let the consignee know that he was ready for another shipment. He never purchased on his own account a single cask of fish from any consignment. Monroe & Co. had written him on several occasions expressing their satisfaction with the manner in which he had been doing their business. At this stage, 1.30 p.m., the further hearing was adjourned until 10.30 a.m. on Monday—Barbados Advocate, May 6th.

Landslides Versus Snowstorms

Californians "declare their state to be the ideal place to live, and we won't say it isn't," says an editorial writer in Aera (Albany and New York), "but it looks as if old Mother Nature was determined that even in an ideal climate the street-railway men shall have something to trouble them." He refers to landslides that have disarranged the tracks of a San Francisco street-railway, and he suggests that it probably costs the operating company as much to make repairs after such slides as it costs a big eastern or northern railway company to remove snow and keep its lines open through a blizzardy winter. Brief details of the topographical conditions that make operation of the San Francisco railway a complex engineering problem are given.

"The Market Street Railway operates a double track around the cliff leading to the Cliff House, overlooking the Golden Gate. The tracks are along the bluffs, about 200 feet above sea-level. At several places the line passes through ravines, where the surface is sand on a thin layer of blue clay lying directly on a slanting rock foundation. During the rainy season the drainage from a large area seeps in on this clay, and the entire surface of the ravine begins to slide. The ravines are from forty to seventy-five feet in depth and from 100 to 200 feet wide. In some of them there is a continual slide, throughout the year, but it does not cause any material damage or inconvenience during the summer months."

The Uprising in China

The rioting in Shanghai on May 29th at first appeared to be nothing more serious than a local demonstration against foreigners, which would subside as soon as a warship appeared on the scene, but in the fortnight which has elapsed since then the disturbance has been found to extend over many parts of China, and at the moment there is every indication of a very serious general upheaval.

In order to trace the trouble it is necessary to go back several years, and even then it is unlikely that the actual cause of the upheaval will have been found. Until February 12th, 1912, when China became a Republic, the government was monarchical, and had been from time immemorial. A constitution was framed, but no control by a Central Government was secured owing to the power exercised by the Military Governors of the various provinces, who refused to recognize any superior authority.

Under the new Constitution, there is a President, a Vice-President, a Senate consisting of 264 members and a House of 596. The executive power is vested in the Premier named by the President, and in nine members nominated by the Premier, subject to the approval of Parliament.

Up to the end of 1922, however, owing to the disturbed state of the country Parliament failed to function. In October, 1923 it met and elected General Tsao Kun President in succession of Li Yuan-Lung, who, having for two terms held that office, fled when menaced by the military leaders of the northern provinces and resigned.

When Tsao Kun was inaugurated, a new Constitution was decided upon, which among other things, provided for the abolition of the provincial forces and armaments, and the substitution therefor of a national army of strength and service to be determined by Parliament. Later events prove once again the futility of enactments which cannot be enforced, for while the Government was situated in Peking, the war lords did the governing in their respective territories, paid little heed to the constituted authority, and kept the country in a state of ferment with the fighting which went on between themselves.

A country in which such conditions existed was admirably suited for the propagandists of Soviet Russia, and they were not slow to make use of the opportunity. In May, 1924 China recognized her western Republic, representatives were exchanged, and in an agreement made, Russia's claim to the Chinese Eastern Railway running through 1100 miles of Chinese territory was recognized, and the negotiator of the Treaty, L. K. Karakhan, became Soviet representative at Peking. When objection was raised to the Railway agreement by the United States and France, which had not at that time recognized the Soviet Government, and by Japan, they were promptly told not to inter-fer. As to who was responsible for prompting this reply does not require much conjecture.

In September, 1924 civil war broke out again and Shanghai was captured by General Lu Yung-Liang by General Chi Hsieh-Yuan. The war lord of Manchuria, General Chang took the side of General Lu, and accusing the President and his Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Wu, of treason (!) declared war against Peking. The President, however, was defeated by the sudden desertion from his side of the Christian General Feng who seized Peking, deposed the President and set up a provisional government. Later Chang occupied the forts of Tientsin the outpost of Peking.

The first serious industrial outbreak took place early in October, 1924 in Canton between the labourers and the merchants, and before order was restored 1,000 persons were killed and $7,000,000 worth of property was destroyed. In addition many demonstrations against foreigners took place months previous to the present outbreak and several missionaries were seized.

The Times correspondent at Shanghai believes that the disturbances which began there were part of a scheme organised by General Feng and supported by Moscow with the idea of causing foreign intervention, and thereby inciting the whole country to armed resistance. Later messages, however, declare that General Feng and General Chang have decided to renounce the Shanghai disturbances, but this may be nothing more than camouflage. Practically all the correspondents agree that at the root of the trouble is the insidious influence of the Russian communists, and from some of the documents that have been taken from the agitators it would appear that Germany also has had a hand in starting the conflagration which rages from Shanghai to Peking.

Damaging "News"

The last issue of the Times and General Commercial Gazette publishes a somewhat startling rumor to the effect that a shortage has been discovered in the accounts of a well known charitable institution in an amount exceeding $17,000. "News" told in such a manner may be sensational, but it is also harmful, for even if it were correct as applying to one institution, it places all of them under suspicion. Not only does it cast a reflexion upon the honesty of a large number of faithful servants, but it tends to dam the stream of public charities.

The article demands that a specific charge or a retraction be made without loss of time.

Baby Week Opened

Yesterday afternoon at 3.30 the Star Hall was crowded with mothers and their children, the members of the Child Welfare Association and many friends of the Organization, when Lady Allardye, accompanied by Miss Allardye and Major Shand, arrived, and was received by Miss Southcott, the President of the C.W.A. and Miss Anderson, the Superintendent.

The party having been accompanied to the platform, the President requested Lady Allardye to declare the Baby Week open, and in doing so thanked her for the keen interest she took in the work of the Association, and referred in glowing terms to her great services in connection with the Newfoundland Outport Nursing and Industrial Association.

Lady Allardye expressed her appreciation of the President's references to her work, and said that Miss Southcott had ever been ready to help in furthering the work of the Outport Nurses and that in no small measure the success of the work was due to her valuable suggestions. In referring to the outports, Lady Allardye pointed out that although this welfare work had many difficulties to contend with in the city, it should not be forgotten that the conditions here were far better than they were in the remote settlements, where doctors were few, places scattered, communication difficult, and workers far harder to obtain. Great progress, however, was being made and she felt certain that the Nurses' work would be a blessing to the whole community. There is such a thing, said Lady Allardye, as "a divine discontent, and I hope that this spirit will go throughout the country, so that everyone will make a determined effort to forward the interests of this very necessary movement. It is a tragic thing that we have no Children's Hospital, and no time should be lost in getting instituted this very necessary aid to health and contentment, in the interest of the rising generation. The streets of St. John's are dusty and the Mayor says this is because the people do not pay their taxes. If our city is to be improved, as it should be, the taxes should be paid and thus enable us to have instituted these very necessary reforms. We should have better education for our children, to enable them to grow up good citizens. Many things are necessary and until we have given our best to the children we cannot raise our heads to say we have made our greatest effort."

In referring in particular to the work of the Child Welfare Association, Lady Allardye spoke highly of the valuable services rendered by Miss Anderson and complimented her on the system which had been introduced, and her nurses, also, on the loyal and effective manner in which they were carrying out their duties. Baby Week was then declared open.

Miss Southcott, having thanked Lady Allardye for her address, requested her to present the prizes for the Mother-Craft work and the Students' compositions. Before this was done, Miss Anderson briefly explained the nature of the work for which the prizes were given and referred to the main object of Baby Week and the exhibitions in the Hall. The winner of the Mother-Craft work each year will be the holder of a handsome shield presented by Lady Allardye, and the name of the winner will be inscribed on it until the ten small shields are filled up. The competition consisted of eight classes, namely:—Essay, Records, Made-up Garments, Knitting, Reconstructing Garments, Elder Sisters' Class, Family Class, Cooking. There were competitors in all classes. The following were the prize winners:—

Miss Tizard, first in Class 3a. (Making Up Garments). Mrs. Walsh, first in Class 5b. (Knitting Stockings). Mrs. Curran, first in Class 5a. (Knitting Shirts). Mrs. Beckett, first in Class 1. (Mothercraft Essay). Mildred Coyell and Violet Tizzard, both Class 6. (Elder Sisters' Class). Samuel Curwen, Class 7. (Family Class).

Certificates were awarded to Mrs. Tizard and Mrs. Walsh. For attendance in Class 2, prizes were awarded to babies Tizard, Smith, Marshall, Taylor, Coyell. The winners of the prizes won in the Students' Essay were also presented, the winners being:—Ann McCormack, St. Bride's College, Littlefield; James Grieve, Bishop Field College; S. Susie Kelly, Parade Street School;

Arthur Bursey, Parade Street School. Henry applies was given as each winner received her prize and even the babies joined in an awareness of the importance to them of the ceremony.

Visitors were very much interested in the exhibits of work laid out, the stalls in which a varied assortment of goods and other articles was shown and in the placards adorning the hall calling attention to rules of health which should be observed. A model kitchen was shown, a child's cot ingeniously made from a packing case, and various other objects of interest. At 4.30 Mr. J. W. Morris gave a moving picture show entitled Swat that Fly, which exposed the dangers of innocent looking but none the less deadly pest. It will be shown again this afternoon and an address will be delivered by Dr. Fallon.

Waking Up the Somnambulists

The police were busy on Water Street this morning seeing that drivers conformed to the parking regulations, which lays down that the vehicle left standing must face in the direction of the moving traffic. Several motorists who have not yet realized that the 1925 season is well advanced and that new licences are necessary had their memories jogged. There are still a good many Rip Van Winkles and among them one who certainly must be familiar with the rules.

Arrived From England

There arrived in port this morning after a passage of twelve days from Portsmouth, England, a splendid new sailing yacht, Sylvia, in command of Mr. A. S. Butler, the well known Racing Aviator and member of the Thames Yacht Club. Mr. Harold Clayton, another well known English yachtsman accompanies Mr. Butler on his cruise. The Sylvia recently built in England along lines suggested by Mr. Butler is a splendid sailer and is fitted with every convenience including hot and cold water, refrigerator, plant and wireless. She is ketch rigged, has one hundred H.P. engine and carries a full complement of officers and crew. CANADIAN TRADE AND LABOUR CONGRESS DEMAND A PROTEST STRIKE.

SYDNEY, N.S., June 15. A resolution calling upon Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, to call a general strike of all affiliated trades in the Congress as a protest against the methods taken by the British Empire Steel Corporation to combat the strike of its 13,000 coal miners in Nova Scotia, against the killing of William Davis, and against the use of troops in the strike area, was adopted at a meeting held to-night of the Victory Local Union Mine Workers of America, Glace Bay. Asked regarding the possible outcome to be taken by the authorities in connection with the death of William Davis, the miner who was shot and killed during the melee at New Waterford power plant last Thursday, Crews Prosecutor M. W. Patterson said to-night that he did not believe any action would be taken until more peaceful conditions had been restored, and in any event he believed that the first move in such a direction would come from the Attorney General's Department. Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor in the Canadian Government, was expected to arrive on to-morrow morning's train from Halifax. Advice reaching here late to-night indicated that after stops at Springhill and New Glasgow, where he obtained information as to the state of affairs on the mainland, he had left on the regular train due to arrive here about nine in the morning.

Fifty Dollars invested in German Government Bonds two years ago makes profit of Thirteen Hundred Dollars for St. John's man. Had this same man bought his bonds from our company and kept in touch with market prices, he could have sold same for Three Thousand Dollars a few months ago. German Government Bonds that we sold three years ago, as low as four dollars per million advanced in ten months to Three Thousand Dollars. This Bond is known as the 1914 to 1918 issue. We have bonds of other issues that we consider having even greater possibilities, and would only be too pleased to explain to any interested people. Will be in St. John's for some time but will not be able to call on every one, but would suggest that any one interested in any foreign issues see WILLIAMSON & WAINFOSH, Imperial Hotel, St. John's. Re-Railing Operations

The two gangs of workmen, employed by the railway in charge of Roadmaster O'Connor, are now laying rails in the vicinity of Woodford's and it is expected that the rails will be extended to Kings Junction by Saturday. The second shipment of rails which is being discharged from S.S. Farnan Head at Heart's Content, will be finished in a few days. Arrangements will be then made for the third shipment to arrive at Clarendville. All the old rails are now being collected together, as it is the intention of the Railway Commission to dispose of the lot by sale later. It is anticipated that good prices will be obtained.

Must Desist From Begging

The two men—one a returned soldier and the other a sailor—who during this past few weeks, have been soliciting alms by displaying cards stating that, unable to work, they were in need, have been ordered by the police to disperse with these cards as it has been ascertained that one, well able to work, had been offered employment and refused it, whilst the other is in receipt of a pension, which is augmented from another source.

All the events are left open for outside competitors, therefore the entry list will not close until to-morrow noon. The M. G. Band will be in attendance, and to avoid any delay between events a bugle will be sounded to call the contentants to their posts. The dressing room will be used for the footballers and weight throwers only, while a special tent will be erected at the western end of the field for the runners. Ice cream and drinks will also be served on the field by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Association.

IMPENDING AFFAIRS TO BE CONSIDERED BY FRENCH CHAMBER.

PARIS, June 15. The Parliamentary week beginning Tuesday afternoon with the reconvening of the Chamber of Deputies after a brief recess promises to be one of the most momentous in the history of the French Parliament. Premier Painleve will make a declaration concerning his Moroccan trip, M. Briand, the Foreign Minister, will be interpellated on the security pact involving Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany, and last but not least, the long awaited financial measures of M. Caillaux, Minister of Finance, will come up for discussion. M. Painleve will call on President Doumergue in the morning to report on his Moroccan trip. Then the Council of Ministers will meet and decide the procedure to be followed in the Chamber. The Socialists are reported as remaining adamant on the project of a capital levy, and upon this question there will ensue the real fight between the Cabinet and the 16 deputies who heretofore have composed an integral part of the Government's majority.

DR. HUNTSMAN ON THE TRAIL OF THE MACKEREL.

HALIFAX, June 15. Where do the mackerel go in the winter time? This question, which has puzzled fishermen and others since the famous controversy of 1877, will be solved within the next year or two, according to an announcement made to-day by Dr. A. G. Huntsman, head of the Government Biological Station here, who described how 625 mackerel had been caught and ringed and released near Yarmouth, N.S. The rings were placed about their tails and a reward of 25 cents per ring will be paid to any returning them to the Department. In 1877 there was an argument between the United States and Canada on this question. The former country claimed that the mackerel wintered in American waters and came west in the spring, and that for that reason the American fishermen were at liberty to pursue the fish into whatever territory they might chance to wander.

JAPANESE DESTROYERS SAIL FOR CHINA.

TOKYO, June 15. The Japanese Government, impressed by the gravity of the Chinese anti-foreign situation ordered four additional destroyers to sail for China to-night.

GRAVE VIEWS TAKEN OF CHINESE DISORDER.

LONDON, June 15. The most serious view is taken here of the situation in China and there is a growing anxiety over the possible developments. It is felt that one of the most difficult factors of the situation is the instability of the Chinese Government, and an early summoning of a Chinese conference foreshadowed in the Washington treaties would probably be welcomed as a possible means of strengthening the Chinese administration by providing it with funds.

The majority of the passengers had boarded the train at Chicago, and were bound to New York to take the boat for Germany to-day.

Special attention has been given in the laying out of the grounds, while every provision has been made for the comforts of all those who patronize it. There will be the usual side shows, swings, dancing galleries, etc., and with the G.L.B. Band in attendance all evening, an enjoyable time is assured. A special attraction will be the sports side of the programme. A large number of competitors have entered for the various events, and closely contested races are promised. Dodge Brothers Set New Record

Deliveries and Production Exceeded Best Previous Week in History.

Dodge Brothers have been establishing new high records continuously for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years, but the record of the week ending April 15 is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,300 each production day, the best previous week was surpassed by several hundred cars. New retail orders exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 3,000, or approximately 87 per cent.

Although Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are now being built at the rate of 1,100 a day, both deliveries and new orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.

"Had dealers' stocks permitted, the number of deliveries for the record week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is not a quest, but a steady, healthful climb."

Visiting Past Grand Master of the Odd Fellows Honored

ELABORATE BANQUET TENDERED TO MR. JOHN A. CRAIG.

Newfoundland Oddfellowship paid a graceful and enthusiastic compliment to Past Grandmaster John A. Craig at Sterling's restaurant last night, when the spacious dining hall was crowded to the utmost to do honor to one of the chief officers of the Order in the Maritime Provinces and in this country. For a decade P.G.M. Craig has functioned as special delegate to Newfoundland. He has become a great admirer of Newfoundland and of Newfoundlanders and in him both have one of the greatest boosters throughout the length and breadth of the Canadian Dominion whither his duties in connection with the I.O.O.F. Order take him.

The banquet staged in honor of Mr. Craig last night was all that could be desired by both the hosts and the guest of the evening. Prompt, efficient and satisfactory service characterized the catering and the utmost in cheerfulness and goodfellowship was in evidence amongst the hundreds who partook of the goodly viands provided and shared in "the feast of reason and flow of soul" that marked the speeches in which the various toasts of the evening were proposed. Newfoundland numbers many excellent speakers in its ranks. All who made set speeches in accordance with the toast list did credit to themselves and to their Order. Impromptu speeches were also delivered with a ready wit and eloquence that was a revelation to the auditor. Except for a handful of the veterans of Oddfellowship, the gathering was composed of the younger generation of our citizenship, fine, clean-cut young men, capable in their own chosen walks in life, pleasing in the manner and in the language and style in which they presented their ideas to their fellows who listened to the speeches of last evening. They compose and element of citizenship of which Newfoundland has just cause to feel proud.

After the formal toasting of His Majesty the King, the Chairman, Mr. Geo. W. Soper, D.D.G.M., called upon Mr. W. White, P.G., to propose the health of the Grand Lodge of Oddfellowship. Mr. White spoke at some length, in choice language and to good effect. The responder, Mr. Walter Gart, P.G., also delighted his hearers with his remarks, which were mostly devoted to a historical review of the Order and to a statement of its present high standing and benevolent activities. Followed next the toast Our Guests, the proposer being Mr. Charles Dutoit, V.G. of Colonial Lodge, who welcomed visiting brethren to the gathering and who paid well deserved compliments to the guest of the evening, P.G.M. Craig. Mr. Craig gracefully responded to the kindly sentiments of the speaker and his remarks were received with an enthusiastic ovation that eloquently bespoke the warmth of admiration and affection with which he is regarded in the ranks of Newfoundland Oddfellowship.

The toast to Newfoundland was proposed by an Oddfellow veteran and an outstanding fellowcountryman, Mr. Joseph Moore. Mr. Moore delivered a speech that was impressive both for its easy delivery and for its subject matter. The responder, Hon. Dr. Moedell, P.G., stressed the spirit of co-operation and of progress that is keeping Newfoundland to the fore in all modern movements. He congratulated the proposer on his effort and commended his caliber so prominently identified with the Order. Mr. E. D. Spurrell, P.G., wittily proposed the health of Oddfellow Lodges in Newfoundland, interlocking his remarks with humorous reminiscences of his experiences in connection with the institution of branch lodges throughout the country. He is a most pleasing and interesting speaker. Response to this toast was made by Mr. H. Green, Noble Grand of Atlantic Lodge; by Mr. G. Freeman, Noble Grand of Colonial Lodge; by Mr. J. Noseworthy, C.P., on behalf of the Encampment, and by Mr. W. Reader, Noble Grand of Cabot Lodge, Bonavista. Hon. Dr. Moedell first Noble Grand Excelsior Lodge, Bonne Bay, also made brief reference to the position and progress of Odd-fellowship on the West Coast of Newfoundland.

The last set toast of the evening, Absent Brethren, was feelingly proposed by Mr. W. T. Quick, P.G., who possesses the power of expressing eloquence and pathos his reminiscences of associations with former enthusiastic and self-devoted members of the Order who have passed to the Grand Lodge Above. He made a strong impression on the minds of his hundreds of auditors who hung almost breathlessly on his every word.

The toast list concluded with the proposing of the health of the Chairman, Mr. Soper, by Mr. Chas. Udle, P.G., who paid a tribute to the efficient manner in which the proceedings of the evening had been handled; and W. White, P.G., gracefully moved similar honor to Mrs. Craig, wife of the guest of the evening. The proceedings terminated with the National Anthem.

Before the Banquet there was an unusually large attendance of members at Atlantic Lodge Rooms, where a hearty welcome was accorded the visiting Past Grand Master and where presentation of jewels was made to Mr. A. Taylor, P.G., and to Mr. A. Wainford, C.P. The proceedings at the Lodge concluded with an impressive and inspiring address from P. G. M. Craig.

Hearty general singing from printed song sheets culled from the toast list proceedings. Mr. Duncan Cook, P.G., sang "Hearts of Oak," while Mr. C. H. Hammond, P.G., was heard to good effect in "Land of Hope and Glory." A recitation by Mr. W. White, P.G., also appeared on the programme. The piano accompaniment of the evening was by Mr. Arthur Walker.

On Thursday Mr. Craig leaves the city by express to visit the Oddfellow Lodges at Clarendville and Grand Falls and, if train and steamer connections permit, will call on the brethren at Bonne Bay.

"Zeebrugge"

HAS WONDERFUL PREMIERE AT NICKEL.

Spirit of Patriotism Rekindled by Vivid Motion Picture.

Last night's attendance at the initial showing of "Zeebrugge" was a grand revival of the good old days. The Nickel Theatre was filled to its utmost capacity and some hundreds were unable to gain entrance to the theatre. Everything was lined off and the grand spirit of British patriotism prevailed both in and out of the building. In the immense audience were Governor and Lady Ailardyce and Party. Out in the theatre yard the C. L. E. Band played patriotic airs which not only delighted the audience but attracted great interest, and a large gathering remained in the vicinity to hear the beautiful music.

The picture "Zeebrugge" is an unusual entertainment from many standpoints. Most of these are actually German films. They were taken during the war for propaganda purposes, and were captured by the British in a German submarine when they were on the way to the United States for the edification of Americans. After this we are shown the selected units in training, and then comes the operations proper.

The reconstruction is most ingenious, and it is possible to get a very vivid idea of scenes of which even those who took part in the battle can have little connected idea. We see the concentration at mouth of the Thames, the queerly assorted fleet putting to sea, and around the Mole, while the sinking of the blockships is shown clearly and quite satisfactorily. The scenes showing the landing on the Mole and the fighting there are carried out with great spirit, and the sailors who took part in them give and receive some shrewd knocks. There are also good pictures of the blowing up of the end of the Mole by the submarine C-2, and of individual deeds of daring which gained their performers the Victoria Cross.

How Fast Can You Think?

TESTS TO MEASURE MINDS.

To guide them into the most suitable careers, one thousand London school children are being subjected to psychological tests.

"John is younger than Bob, but John is older than Bob's younger brother William. Which is the oldest?" It seems a trivial question. Yet the speed with which you can grasp and reply to this schoolboy's problem gives the scientist a fairly accurate indication of your general mental powers.

One girl in every eight leaving London's elementary schools becomes a dressmaker's apprentice, which is a larger proportion than for any other occupation. Now a successful dressmaker has a keen perception of equal distances, which enables her to fold her work, as in hems and tucks, with accuracy, and to make stitches of equal size. So the industrial scientists have invented tests, such as dividing pencil lines in half without measuring or drawing freehand parallel lines, and the girls who excel at these tests can be definitely advised to take up dressmaking.

What Are These Animals?

Many other occupations, ranging from engine-driving to clerical work, are being analyzed in the same way, and appropriate tests devised. Here are some of the simple ones.

SNKUK. URTLET. BARBTI.

Each of the above groups of letters can be rearranged to form the name of an animal. Most schoolboys can complete a list of twenty such names in four minutes.

What three coins add up five shillings and sixpence? And what five coins add up to six shillings and threepence? You should be able to answer twelve questions like these in less than ten minutes.

In the reasoning test one of the questions asked is this: "In a certain business house three-quarters of the employees can speak Spanish and two-thirds of them can speak Italian. Are there any who can speak both Spanish and Italian?"

Here is another: "My brother writes, 'I have walked from Byford Wood today, where yesterday I had the misfortune to break a limb.' Can you guess from this which limb he probably broke—right arm, left arm, right leg, or left leg?" The intelligent answer is, of course, "Probably the left arm—since he walked and wrote a letter so soon after the accident."

If you think your boy has an eye for figures, try this on him:—
 95887 739548 579281 427183
 378952 179428 288794 983567

The question is, how many times does the figure 6 occur, and an intelligent boy should be able to run down a list of eighty groups in forty seconds.

The following question is put with the object of measuring imaginative power: "If people had no teeth, how would their life be different from what it is now?"

And here are trials in quick spelling:—
 Woh ynam sgel sah a woc?
 Erht sup ruot ekam woh ynam?

These sentences are selected from a list of twenty. The words are merely written backwards, and you are allowed five minutes to decipher the whole lot and write suitable answers.

To test a child's clearness of thought: Draw a triangle unless there are more days in the week than there are months in the year, in which case draw a circle.

It may seem strange that simple tests like these should give a reliable index of one's intellectual powers. But they are not so simple as they appear at first, and have, in fact, been devised by experts after a careful study of the mental characteristics that make for good workmanship.

Language of the Chase

To those unacquainted with it, the language of sport savours almost of a foreign tongue. Townsman often speak of a flock of partridges, but the gamekeeper always uses the word "covey."

How many outside sporting circles know what is meant by a rabbit's "earth," an otter's "holt," and a hare's "form"? Each of these terms, meaning the lair of the animal concerned, is used in the countryside.

To the sportsman two rabbits are a "brace" and two hounds are a "couple." Incidentally, huntsmen never speak of foxhounds as dogs, just as they never refer to a fox's tail, but to its "brush." The rabbit's or the hare's tail is termed its "scut," the deer's its "single," and the other's its "pole." The hound's tail is nearly always called its "stern."

When foxhounds find a fox they are said to "draw a covert" or "unkennel" their quarry. In the same way a deer is "unharboured," an otter "put down" and a hare "started." Speaking generally, when any other animal or bird is disturbed in the open it is said to have been "put up."

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cory

"Where are we going, dear Uncle Lucky?" asked Little Jack Rabbit, as the Luckymobile sped along under the tall green trees, for the road now led through the Shady Forest.

"Bliss if I know," answered the old gentleman rabbit, bending over to avoid a low limb that otherwise would have swept his precious old wedding stovetop hat right off his head. "Let's just roll along and maybe pretty soon we'll have an adventure."

Sure enough the old gentleman rabbit's "maybe" came true in a few minutes, when all of a sudden, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat, somebody dropped kerpunk on the back seat,—dropped right out of a tree like a hickory nut or a big red apple. And before either little bunny could turn to see who it might be, a deep growly voice said, just like that, and even quicker:

"Ha, ha, ha, it's very nice to have for luncheon five tiny mice. But dinner's four hours after two, when there's nothing so good as a rabbit stew."

"Oh please, Mr. Wild Cat," cried the little rabbit, being the first to look behind him for dear Uncle Lucky was steering the car, "please let us go: 'Till give you some lollypops for your little kittens."

"Don't want any lollypops," purred the impolite Wildcat.

"I have 5 little chocolate mice in my knapsack," went on the poor frightened little bunny boy. "I'm sure your little kittens would like to play with them."

"Please be careful 'cause Mother's picture's inside," cried the bunny boy, as Mrs. Wildcat fumbled over the straps and buckles.

All this time poor Uncle Lucky had said nothing. But he was thinking

Spaniard's Bay Notes

There passed to her eternal home, Mrs. Solman Chipman, at the age of 68 years. Her sudden illness, which terminated in death, came as a shock to her many friends and relatives, as she was in apparent good health the week previous to her death. Left to mourn her, are her husband and three sons, Harvey, Owen and Norman, who are now in the U.S.A. Mrs. Chipman possessed many fine qualities, which endeared her to all that knew her. She was a good neighbour and friend, and will be missed.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, in the Church of England Cemetery and was very largely attended, and so after life's sunset, our old friend was peacefully laid to rest in the family plot, with sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection.

London Gossip

REAPPEARANCE OF THE CHAPERONE.

LONDON, June 15.—(By Cass. Press) There are some reasons which nobody can explain the chaperone has made her reappearance in London this season. Of course, she is not a bit like the chaperone of 15 years ago who wore a low-gray and velvet neckbands and to sit like a cactus on the edge of a chair, for to-day they are as lean as reeds. But they are chaperones all the same. Quite a number of young American debutantes have "adopted" London chaperones when their mothers have not been able to come to London with them, and impoverished debutantes and needy countesses are looking it well worth while to take an attractive young girl to the opera with them for the sake of a few thousand dollars. Introductions, of course, to a few people well worth knowing, and a visit or two to the country houses, parties, and dinners in with the arrangement. The chaperone is really a quaint reaction to the arrival of the intense freedom of the last two or three years, so it is not to take a chaperone to a dance or to become a "smart" as it was to take a fantastic doll under the arm some months ago. Even in great public ballrooms there are signs of the chaperone, but oh, not in doveland now. Her skirt will probably reach her knees and if her charge asked her to sit out a dance she would probably be told not to be lazy.

MRS. BROWN WILL ENTERTAIN AT HENLEY.

Mrs. Harry Brown's house-boat, "Nirvana," will be about the only floating house of any size when Henley opens on July 1st. King George and his consort, who do not usually go to Henley, have decided to do so this year, and Prigress Mary, who has taken a house near Newmarket, will visit the regatta every day with her husband, Viscount Lascelles. Mrs. Brown, who of course, is now safely and splendidly installed at Spencer House, rents the "Nirvana" for the regatta at some fabulous price and entertains about 20 guests aboard. The "Nirvana" is a dream of baseboards and every little cabin has its telephone and bathroom. It has a small ballroom with a carpet floor, and is equipped with a gramophone and a set of her guests can dance to the music of the big orchestra.

BOBS AT COURT.

To set a long controversy at an end may now be announced that bobs, "big" and "small" shingles were brazenly stolen at this week's courts. And there was one Eton crop on the head of a young London girl. Strange to say the Royal smiles did not lessen when the Eton Cropper came before the Throne, and there was even a mention of a twinkle in King George's eyes.

SANDWICHES IN THEATRE.

For the first time in the history of Grand Opera at Covent Garden—the sandwiches were eaten unashamedly by the boxes during the long performance of "Der Rosenkavalier" on the night. It was said that some of the sandwiches were done up in creases of paper and stamped with ducal arms so there is no verification for this. The importance of the sandwich will be realized when it is said that the performance started at a quarter to seven and there was no interval to speak of until nearly midnight. Prince Henry, the only one of the Royal Family to brave the demands of long German Opera, found the calls of hunger amazingly acute and half past eight he had across the strand with his dog and ate a quick lunch in twenty-five minutes and was back in his box in half an hour.

GEORGE III. MAY MAKE MORE HISTORY.

Great sensation in London this week was found that the statue of George III. in Cockspur Street, is in a dangerous state. There has been a proposition of visitors to see it, though to outward appearance the third George looks as comfortable and satisfied as ever the last 100 years. The policemen on duty nearby, however, have been very careful to see that the sympathies of American visitors do not get too hot for the statue, for if George III. fell down on one of them—well, there would be a lot to say.

Wembley Sheep-Dogs

Some of the most wonderful dogs in the world will be seen at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley next week. Every afternoon and evening Scotch sheep dogs—Border collies—will be rounding up and taking charge of flocks of sheep in the Stadium. Sheep of different kinds will be used. Each dog in turn will gather together a straggling flock, draw them up in single file, and drive them between posts. Preparations are being made for the great stress which will open in the stadium on June 23 and will include trick riding and chariot races.

Be Known for Your Honor

Be known for your honour. Anything else is self-deception, and that is the greatest and saddest of all deceptions. It is bad enough to lie to others, but that is much less serious than lying to oneself. The one may be an expedient in some cases, but the other is the beginning of a nest of vices that sooner or later will poison the whole character. The best thing always is to stand square, and let the moral life be according to honour and brotherhood. Rather lose all than betray either yourself or another. To be called on anywhere is a precious treasure. Nothing on earth, of all earth's fair things, is to be compared to that. Whether rich or poor, learned or unlettered, to be trusted in word and service is a mighty compliment to the splendour of life. Such a man is bound to leave the world a little better for his having lived in it, and will be a help to those "dropping down the ladder rung by rung." Believe it; nothing on earth can cause you to fall, except your own willingness. Never blame another for your mistake. That is an easy and a dangerous way. There is a truth that no person since the world began was ever compelled to do wrong. Wrong, whether it be manifested or not, is dishonour to the wrongdoer all the time. The sad thing is that we cannot dishonour ourselves without incriminating other and innocent people. Honour is a transparent thing. It is never vulgar or cold, but always belongs to the refining cultures and generates heat. Nothing hammers out character as honour does. The best who have ever lived have known it, whilst into sombre environments it brings its fragrance and hope. The best book in the world declares it is one of the things best worth thinking about. We make many excuses in life, and mistakes may be numerous; but never let your honour touch the floor. In your word, religion, business, and games, stand square and be upright. If wrong is done, don't compare it with the wrongdoings of others. Rise from the wrongdoings to the light of pure and unselfish thinking and doing. Nobody may fall, but no one has a right to remain down. A woman is about the only thing that cannot fall; so if you are tripped, get up and go on and keep climbing. Of course, it may be your lot to suffer, to be misunderstood, to be humiliated, and even to die. Even then, don't mix the shadows with the sunshine, nor tears with a smile. Always let your name stand for confidence. Such is to be chosen rather than great riches. You can never fall whilst your heart stands true. You may not reach the goal first, but that will not mean you have lost, but rather than you have covered your course with credit. Could all people live lives of honour for a month, all sin, want, oppression, war, suicide, and shame would go, and the reign of truth and love would come in. Try it. When people think of you let them think of one of Nature's gentle people. Should they speak of you, let it be with the fervency of respect for the character you possess. Be honourable towards yourself; don't lie to yourself. The keynote to the new life is just ringing true in sunshine and storm, on Sunday and Monday, on holiday and in business. In the end, this is the thing that matters most and best.—Tit Bits.

One's new felt hat may quite easily be cut and made on one's head. Nickel buckles and buttons trim an ensemble of copper-colored fannel. Two fresh camelias may be worn on the shoulder of the evening gown. Buckles on the daytime slipper may be of painted wood or bakelite. Slippers of black patent leather have heels and trimming of green kid. The silk coat is generally of white, tan, or black, bordered with fur.

Herring Scale Pearls

Although they are a permanent delight to the eye, and adorn many a pretty woman, artificial pearls have a romantic history known to few. We are all familiar with the herring as a breakfast dish, but it is hardly believable that the scales of this most common of all fish go to make the delicious pearls we see in the jewellers' shops. Yet it is so. The evanescent beauty of herring scales is made permanent by a chemical means to form the lustrous coating of artificial pearls that is so near the real sheen of the original pearl that it now takes an expert to find out the difference. The imitation is so real that many fortunes have been made by jewel robbers and counterfeiters of precious stones. Bottled Moonlight. It was quite by accident that these artificial pearls came to be made in America. During the war, when the supply of pearls from Europe was practically stopped, an inhabitant of Cape Cod, watching the local fishermen bringing in a splendid catch of herring, was so impressed by the beautiful glow from the scales in the sunlight that he had an idea that they might possibly be utilized to make an American pearl. Experts examined the scales, and proclaimed them suitable to produce a lustrous coating for making artificial pearls. After many experiments, a solution was made which surpassed in natural lustre that of the European coating. This material is known in America as Essence d'Orient. In the pearl factories in Cape Cod, this solution is imprisoned in great glass jars, and looks much like bottled sunlight. It is this substance that forms the coating that transforms the ordinary milky-coloured glass bead to the scintillating pearl in the much-prized necklace. The beads are dipped into the solution from six to twenty times, according to the quality of the necklace to be made. When finished, the necklace is strung on silk twist.

History in Granite

Two hundred and forty granite landmarks stretching from the Swiss frontier to the sea-coast of Belgium indicate the limit of the enemy advance in the war. Seven of these are in the Ypres salient, and the Ypres League, at the invitation of the Belgian Government, has provided the stones. They are four feet high, and each is surmounted by a carved representation of the "fin hat." On each is inscribed in English, French, and Flemish the phrase: "Here the invader was brought to a standstill." The League has also erected forty landmarks on sites which became famous during the fighting in Flanders. Each is an iron post bearing the name by which the place was known to the troops engaged. Some of the names which have become immortal, like "Sanctuary Wood" and "Kitcheners Wood," have a curious origin. The latter has no connection with the name of the great field-marshal, but is a soldier's translation of its real name, Bois de Cuisine. The former owes its strange title to the fact that when, in October, 1914, General Bullin had collected there a number of small parties and stragglers, he issued an order that they "were in sanctuary and not to be employed except by his instructions." The soldiers came to the natural conclusion that they were in Sanctuary Wood. The sports skirt may be box pleated at the front and plain in the back. Shoes of plain cloth in a pinkish-copper color are new for evening. One notes a few very wide-brimmed felt hats—particularly in white. Over a frock of flax-blue crepe is worn a redingote of navy blue kasha.

THREE FLOWERS CLEANSING CREAM

Used instead of hard soaps for hard water. Cleanses, softens, and soothes the skin. After Application, rub in thoroughly or other suitable treatment.

The Cleansing Cream is generally used at night, or after motoring or exposure to dust and dirt. Soap and water will not remove all the grime the skin collects. Some of it works its way so far into the pores that it requires a deeper, more thorough cleansing.

Three Flowers Cleansing Cream is designed to give the skin this deep cleansing. It is a pure white, creamy cream, containing sufficient pure oil to absorb all the dirt the pores hold, but not enough to clog them with oil. —85 Cents.

RICHARD HUDNUT
THREE FLOWERS FACE POWDER

Three Flowers Face Powder is the solution to one of the most difficult problems of the toilette—the need for a particularly dry skin without closing the pores.

This powder not only has unusual adherent qualities, but contains perfume essences and other ingredients which promote a healthy condition of the skin and protect it from the sun, wind and dust. It is exquisite in odor and delightfully soft in texture.—85 Cents.

RICHARD HUDNUT
THREE FLOWERS TALCUM

This cream is very different from either of the other Three Flowers Creams and is perfectly designed to supplement them. It is a non-greasy cream, but unlike many vanishing creams, it is so constituted as not to be too drying to the skin. It is absorbed at once by the pores, leaving a smooth, velvety surface, which acts as a perfect base for powder. Any shine there may be on the skin disappears as the cream is absorbed, and any little rough places are softened and smoothed down. This smooth base makes the powder adhere so evenly that it is never unduly apparent.—85 Cents.

THE THREE FLOWERS

The value of using all three Creams.

Used regularly and faithfully, these three creams together will do more to keep the skin thoroughly clean, free from blemishes, fresh, youthful, firm and unlined, than any other treatment. There is no type of skin that is not benefited by their use. A very oily skin reacts wonderfully to the Three Flowers treatment. It opens the overloaded pores and allows them to throw off the excessive oil that has become habitual to them. On this type of skin all three creams can be used generously, even lavishly, with beneficial results.

You may obtain Three Flowers toilet articles at any drug or departmental store.

IN THE REALMS of SPORT

FELDIANS AND B.I.S. PLAY TO A DRAW—TWO GOALS EACH.

Judging from the immense crowd which attended last night's game between the B.I.S. and Feldians, football has lost none of its charm for the citizens of St. John's. The weather, which was ideal for the players was somewhat cool for the comfort of spectators, but the game was lively all the way through and was sufficiently exciting to make most people forget such little discomforts.

All the teams have now put in an appearance and there is every indication that the chief centre of attraction during the summer evenings will be St. George's Field. The players for the most part are young bloods, who, if somewhat erratic in the finer points of the game, are full of pep and there seems to be such little difference between the different teams that a close contest throughout is certain.

First Half

Promptly at 7.30 Referee Coultas had the teams facing each other, with the Feldians defending the western goal. With the advantage of the kick-off, they quickly wormed their way as far as the B.I.S. full backs, where their combination was broken. Again the Feldians came back, and the B.I.S. conceded a corner which was well placed and well saved by goalkeeper Phelan. Following, the B.I.S. made several attacks on Volsey who, however, was on his guard and for some time neither side could make much headway against the other. Several very good combined attacks were made by Eddy and Harry Phelan and at last a corner was secured. Nothing came of it however. Two other corners followed but these also failed to materialize. Towards the end of the first half the pressure exerted by the B.I.S. brought a corresponding effort from the Feldians. A smart run was made east and E. Martin, securing the ball just before it reached the back line, banged it to the centre and "Bob" Withers, catching it as it came, drove it for all he was worth into the net. It was a smart bit of play and supporters and opponents alike were loud in their applause. Hardly had the ball been centred when a hot shot by Eales came near repeating the trick. Then the whistle sounded half time.

Second Period

The B.I.S. set the pace with a vim, but the able defence of Dave and Morris, the Feldian backs, who were on the spot whenever the Green and Gold forwards eluded the halves and nothing happened. Then the Feldians put on a spurt and Eales, capturing the leather passed smartly to "Bob" Withers, who was again in the right spot, and promptly tallied No. 2.

By no means depressed by this lead, the B.I.S. kept hard at it, and there certainly was evidence of improved combination in their forward line. It was not long before their efforts were rewarded. Getting well down on the Feldian goal, Nolan sent a neat pass to Harry Phelan, who sent Volsey a shot which beat him. The ball having been centred the B.I.S. again came east and Skinner, who several times before had had luck with his shots, sent in a beauty which Volsey punched out. Harry Phelan was close by and took a shot over his head. It was just beyond reach of Volsey and the score was a draw. No further scoring was done although both sides worked hard to secure the lead.

NOTES

There were twelve touches in the first five minutes. Too many; it kills the game.

There were a good many minor offences, such as hands or jumping in the air. That, too, causes a lull and unnecessarily handicaps the offender's side.

As the shortest distance between two points is a straight line, skying the ball shows not only a poor knowledge of geometry, but poor judgment as well. Keep "her" down.

To leave a great empty space between the full backs and the halves is to give the other side a grand chance to stage an attack in comparative safety, and means that only 8 men are doing the strenuous work. Get in the game, backs. You've a mighty poor chance against an organized attack of five.

It may be said that it is early to criticize teams in their first match, but we feel that they will take it in good part, for the time to get things right is at the start, and none of them are too old or too good to accept a word of advice.

The game was good value for a draw, and with such splendid material on both sides, the contests in which they take part are certain to be exhibition games, and their next meeting will be awaited with interest.

Referee Coultas has been most favorably commented upon both for his judgment and for the excellent manner in which, without a fuss, he maintains control and he deserves all that has been said.

JUNIOR FOOTBALL TO-NIGHT.

The participating teams for to-night will be Wesley and Holy Cross, from the Junior League. The game promises to be one of the best of the season, and is being awaited with interest by a large number of fans. The teams will line up as follows:

WESLEY—Goal, B. Adey; backs, H. Haynes, M. Sparkes; halves, J. Driscoll, A. Stacer, A. Rooney; forwards, E. Antle, W. Butt, M. Whalen (or W. Sparkes), J. Rooney, H. Marshall.

A COMEDY IN ONE ACT.

A story is going the rounds in New York that Jack Dempsey's cool reception in England is due to the fact that on the trip "across the pond," on the Mauretania, one of the firemen, who boxed an exhibition bout with the "Sultan of Swat," hit his wax nose. Jack got mad and knocked the fireman down, breaking off three of his front teeth. A cook, who was witnessing the bout, charged Jack with a huge carving knife, but, needless to say, Jack was too fleet footed for the culinary expert.

Dedication of New Church, Portland, B.B.

Beautiful spring weather and eager and joyous worshippers who came in large numbers characterized the Dedication service on Tuesday, June 9th in connection with the new church at Portland, B.B. erected by the Methodist people there. The work began four years ago, and what appeared to some as an impossible undertaking for a few, has at last been completed, sufficiently to permit its being opened for public worship. The Committee under the leadership of the Pastor, Rev. T. J. Pitt, has worked energetically; sometimes despairing. At last their efforts have been crowned with success. The Committee received the loyal support of a number of people who also were anxious to see the work completed.

In the absence of the President of the Conference, the Rev. C. R. Blount, B.D., of Bonavista performed the Dedication ceremony and was assisted by the Rev. Frank Hewitt, and the Pastor. The singing by the congregation and the special selection by members of the Musgrave Town Choir were of a hearty nature. Mrs. T. J. Pitt presided at the organ. The sermon based on Isaiah, Chapter 6, Verse 1, was appropriate to the occasion, and the preacher, the Rev. C. R. Blount, dealt with the transformation which took place in the Prophet's life, when he "saw the Lord in the temple." He appealed to the congregation to consecrate their lives to Jesus Christ.

Following the offering for the Building Fund which realized $67.00 the building was presented for dedication by the Pastor, the following members of the committee standing with him, namely, Messrs. John Holloway, Thomas Holloway, James Hancock, Wm. Hancock, Wm. H. Curtis, Alfred Ivany, Sen. Three members of the Committee, Gilbert Ash, A. J. Ivany, Allan Ivany were unfortunately absent in the U. S. A. They are returning in the fall. With the Prayer of Dedication the service concluded, a service which will be long remembered by all who were privileged to be present. The building is a handsome structure and a credit to the community. The pews and the Pulpit Desk both of B. G. Fir were supplied by the Herwood Lumber Co. During the erection services were conducted in the Orange Hall and also in the new school building erected last year.

Careless Thrown Cigarette

Starts Fire on a Pleasure Cruiser Eight Miles off Atlantic City.—Passengers and Crew Forced to Jump Overboard and Five Persons Drowned.

Atlantic City, N.J., June 12—Five persons are believed to have been drowned last night when thirty passengers including the crew of the pleasure cruiser "Crystal" were forced to jump overboard when the vessel became suddenly enveloped in flames while cruising eight miles off the coast. All but five were rescued by coast guard boats.

All of the passengers were members of a social club. The flames are believed to have been started when one of them threw a lighted cigarette down a hatchway.

The body of an 18-year-old girl, identified as Deborah McKnight, was brought ashore shortly after midnight last night by coast guards. A patrol boat is searching the sea in the vicinity of the accident for others who are still missing. They are: John Hanum, Northfield; Warren Dilks, Linwood; Joseph Wilson, Northfield; and Miss Martha Weiss, Linwood.

The yacht was a total loss. Captain Wm. Young, her commander, is being held in $2,000 bail pending an investigation of the disaster.

Curtis Lyle, of Northfield, one of those aboard the ill-fated boat told the story of the disaster as he recalled it.

The Truth!

Perhaps you consider Sunlight Soap too good to wash your floors with? Well! the purpose for which you use soap, requires pure soap. If you use impure, or inferior soap it cannot do the work of pure soap, because it does not possess the necessary qualities; consequently, pure soap such as Sunlight Soap, is best and most economical, and cheapest for ALL washing purposes. Soaps which cost less than Sunlight Soap are worth less, and so of Lever's Sunlight Soap, it can be said with pride, 'tis best and cheapest of all soaps, which cannot be denied.

Motor Truck Ditched

A large motor truck, which is being used for carrying gravel in connection with repairs on Topsall Road, became ditched yesterday afternoon, east of the Octagon. From the position of the truck it would appear that the driver swerved sharply to the left to avoid hitting another car coming the opposite direction. The truck was undamaged and will be placed on road to-day.

DECLARING AN ULTIMATUM.

I'm willing to do anything which duty may command.
I'm no shirker, as a worker, at my post I'll gladly stand.
With a chuckle I will buckle to my tasks, though grim they are.
But I will not sell the tickets to your annual bazaar.

I will build your booths and boxes, I'll run errands if you choose, Be your sufferer or your butler, pay your losses if you lose, Meet the people, paint the steeples, there's no dismal task I bar, But I will not sell the tickets to your annual bazaar!

If a gift you want I'll give it. 'Tis a cause which I admire, I adore you and I'm for you, I'll do all that you require, Chairs I'll rustle, and I'll hustle after strangers in my car, But I will not peddle tickets to your annual bazaar.

I'm willing to do anything which duty may command, But the "no sir" of the grocer is a thing I couldn't stand, I feel funny, asking money from my friend for things like that, I'm not a ticket salesman! Now I've told it to you flat!

Racing Car Turns Somersault

Major C. G. Coe and his mechanic were flung from a car travelling at more than 100 miles an hour in the race for the Gold Vase at Brooklands, Weybridge, recently.

The accident was seen by thousands of holiday-makers. The car, after ricocheting twice off a fence, revolved round five times like a top, and then turned a somersault.

Major Coe escaped with a few cuts and bruises, but his mechanic was more severely injured and was taken to hospital.

The timekeeper of the course told a Daily Mail reporter:

In my long experience of racing I have never seen a more wonderful escape, not only to the occupants of a car, but to others on the track.

Half a dozen cars were travelling at tremendous speeds close in the wake of Major Coe. Fortunately his car stopped at the top of the banking of the track, leaving a free passage for the others.

"Trees Fly Past."

Major Coe vividly described the accident:

The accident happened on the fastest section of the track. Estimated by my revolution counter I was travelling at 112 miles per hour, and I accelerated to pass another car. My off-side wheels were about two feet from the edge of the banking. Suddenly I started to skid and began to correct this, and then found I was going crabwise towards the other car. I straightened up, and this caused the back wheels to hit the fence. Things then happened very quickly.

I had a vision of trees flying past, and prayed that I would not strike them. As the car spun round on its own axis I was thrown out. I then remember travelling through space, taking part of the dashboard with me, and falling on to the track. A few minutes later the doctor arrived, and I heard him put my shoulder back with a click. Except for some aches I feel none the worse.

In the same race Major J. G. P. Thomas ran high on the banking to overtake other cars, and his car carried away a tree which was protruding over the top.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM'S JOURNEY.

There are still, it seems, a good many people who find existence an extremely dull and humdrum affair that only a jazz band or a revue can make tolerable. These people, if they only realize it, are living every moment of their lives in the midst of marvels and miracles.

To begin with, while they sit bemoaning the slow progress of events and the monotony of life generally, they are travelling through space a thousand times faster than they could be carried by an express train.

The earth is spinning round on its own axis at a speed of a thousand miles an hour, or from eight to ten times the speed of the average aeroplane, and this is only one of its movements—a mere trifle in comparison with its annual journey round the sun. That voyage is taken at a speed of more than a thousand miles a minute, or sixty-eight thousand miles an hour.

Saturn's Ten Moons.

Everybody is more or less aware of these elementary facts, but nobody seems to think about them. A stage conjurer will hold the rapt attention of an audience and leave them amazed, wondering how it is done. The marvel of whirling through space leaves them cold.

These two movements of the earth are by no means all the travelling that is done by this planet. The earth has five other movements, none of which is perceptible to the senses. Four of these are not important to the argument, but the fifth should appeal

The Six Poor Travellers

One of the most curious of English charities is that known as the Six Poor Travellers, at Rochester. The story of the inn is inscribed, for all to see, on a wall tablet, which bears the notice:

Richard Watts, Esquire, by his Will dated 22nd August, 1879, founded this Charity for Six Poor Travellers, who, not being Rogues or Proctors, may receive, gratis, for one night, Lodging, Entertainment, and Four-pence each."

Watts, who was a rich merchant, is buried in Rochester Cathedral. Certain portions of the inn have been reserved since his day, but some of the rooms have remained unaltered for over three centuries, during which time hundreds of poor wayfarers have partaken of the founder's hospitality. To benefit under this ancient bequest, a person must apply for admission before 6 p.m., and steps are taken to ensure that the same recipient does not receive the charity on two consecutive nights. Each wayfarer, on being admitted, sits down to a supper consisting of a pound of beef, a pound of bread, and a pint of coffee.

Large Audience

The applause given Jimmy Johnson and his troupe at the popular Star last evening fully evidenced the appreciation of their ability. Jimmy in his rendition of "All Alone" was beautiful, his clear sweet voice winning for him rounds of applause. Bert Howell with his violin easily established for himself the name of a finished artist, whilst Tommy Short with his Banjo was faultless. Misses Penn and Friction added in no small way to a most enjoyable performance, which will be repeated this evening, and those unable to attend last night should not miss the singing of "All Alone" by the entire troupe, as this in itself is worth the price of admission.

Secrets That Puzzle Scientists.

The hypothesis opens up a wide field of speculation. In comparison with the vastness of the universe this globe of ours is like a grain of sand in the Sahara Desert. We speculate on the possibility of like skin to ours on Mars and Venus, but for all we know there may be a myriad worlds teeming with life in various stages of evolution, some infinitely higher than our own, some lower.

We can catalogue the planets in our own solar system, and the spectroscopic enables us to declare with comparative certainty which of those within our ken are capable of sustaining life and which are not, but we are still profoundly ignorant about the regions beyond.

All that we know is that in the vastness of space there are a thousand million suns and an unguessable number of dark bodies which may be planets like the earth, or may be dead worlds like the moon, or may be something which the finite and earth-tied imaginations of man is wholly unable to conceive.

This Built-in Quality Means
Lower Cost of Operation

The fast-increasing number of new good Maxwell cars on the streets is causing widespread comment. It is a perfectly logical happening, for no other four delivers the Maxwell combination of 58 miles an hour, 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, and 25 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

But there are still greater satisfactions for the Maxwell owner. The car is completely manufactured within its own great plants. This is an advantage of genuine importance to the buyer. In no other way could you be assured of the quality that distinguishes the new good Maxwell from all other fustings.

It is this high quality that accounts very largely for the dependable nature of Maxwell performance, the car's durability and, above all, costs of operation and maintenance so low as to create a new standard of economy.

We are always eager to demonstrate the new good Maxwell, for a ride in the car proves at once that it offers more fine motoring than was ever before avail-
