

ONE WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE

Of Interest to Childless Women.

Toronto, Ontario.—"I suffered for a long time from a female weakness, inflammation, and a terrible headache caused by that condition. One day one of your booklets was left at my door, and I read how other women with troubles like mine had been made well, so I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash, and it helped me wonderfully, and I now have the finest little baby boy that any mother could want. I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who has female troubles."—Mrs. JOSEPH LA BELLA, 773 Shaw Street, Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong, and this good old fashioned root and herb remedy contains no narcotics or harmful drugs.

PAYING PRICE OF BOOM

TAXES ARE AWAY UP IN ALBERTA TOWNS.

Cities and Other Communitists Paid Big Price for Expansion That Proved Unnecessary, And Are Now Loaded With Debts—Wildcat Subdivisions Would Not Realize Any Money If Put Up In Tax Sales.

TO-DAY the West is reaping the results of the over-expansion of the "boom" period. There is hardly a city, town or village in Alberta which is not suffering financially because of foolish expenditure in the days when the boosting of land values took up a good deal of most men's time. The building of sidewalks and electric light plants are modern conveniences, but such in themselves can hardly create healthy and permanent growth. As an argument for the sale of town lots, such improvements and facilities usually helped much, the buyer generally overlooking the fact that a day would come when the town's borrowings would have to be repaid.

Had the development continued, conditions might have adjusted themselves. With a substantially increased population, the debt for each inhabitant would have been less. But in most of the towns the anticipated development did not mature, and the city fathers are to-day somewhat puzzled over matters of finance. In the cities, too, there are debts to be met which can but lead to a heavy rate of taxation. Calgary now has a rate of forty-seven and a half mills; Camrose forty-nine; and Medicine Hat six. Wetaskiwin has had to impose a tax on incomes; Medicine Hat, a tax of ten per cent. on rentals; and Athabasca is just about "broke." Poll taxes have been introduced in several places, in Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, for example.

The difficulty of collecting taxes on vacant lots has created a serious problem almost everywhere. Tax sales have been tried and have now been made compulsory. But these cannot be said to have been satisfactory. Last year Calgary was unable to sell lands on which taxes were in arrears to the extent of nearly one and a half million dollars. So far only about five per cent. of this has been paid. The city will in due course acquire title to the land, but it will be interesting to learn what use it can make of vacant lots in "wild cat" subdivisions. And, while it is facing a shortage of over two and a half million dollars in its sinking fund as at December 31 last.

The urgency of the situation in general is reflected in the time given at the recent session of the Legislature to the discussion of municipal problems. Perhaps more time was devoted to municipal legislation than to any other thing. Apart from amendments to city charters such as those of Calgary, Edmonton, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge, certain new laws were enacted which affect all municipalities.

It was decided that every city, town, village or municipal district should make a valuation of its lands this year, and every fifth year thereafter, so as to ensure equalization of assessments. These appraisals, which will be made by local assessors, may be changed if considered unfair, by the Assessment Equalization Board of the Department of Municipal Affairs. Authority has been taken from the Minister of Municipalities to dismiss and appoint councillors, where necessary for such step existed. What the Minister can now do is to arrange an election for the filling of vacancies. But the Board of Public Utility Commissioners has been given power to make an investigation into the financial condition of any municipality and to advise on the best means of relieving financial pressure. And the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council has the right to discharge the civic fathers and to appoint a receiver should this be deemed necessary. The Legislature has by no means loosened its grip on municipal administration.

Over-expansion in any form has been successfully checked. All municipal expenditures have to be approved by the Public Utility Commissioners. Calgary last year, for example, had considerable difficulty in obtaining leave to build a bridge, the necessity of which undertaking could hardly be questioned. But then, Calgary has the reputation of planning big things in advance. The debt-burdened indebtedness of the city is about twenty-three million dollars, and, according to Commissioner Samis, it would have been about fifteen millions had there been sane development. The city has eighty-two miles of street car tracks, of which half are in pavement, with sewer and water mains in proportion. Probably about half of this expansion would have sufficed but for foolish speculation in land.

The agitation for "home rule" for cities, which was sponsored by the Mayor of Lethbridge, has died a natural death. While the Legislature decided not to bolster up the credit of any municipality, yet it is striving to obtain uniformity of procedure and evidently intends to retain the power to interfere, where necessary, in city government. It will do so obviously through the Public Utility Commissioners.—Angus Lyell, in Toronto Star Weekly.

NOTES OF THE MODES

For the trousseau of the tall, stately girl, negligees are long, clinging lines developed in brocade combined with georgette, and georgette and satin are much in favor. The petite girl should choose instead the lace and net frilled models of georgette or net and simpler models in satin or taffeta. Supple fabrics for corsets, says Paris, and this should inspire interest in the American-made corsets of fricot, the fabric that is so cool, comfortable and hygienic and yet gives to the figure the proper style lines.

Quite the most interesting and pleasing frocks for little girls are the smocklike dresses developed in English sateen designed on the simplest lines and trimmed only with a little smocking done in matching floss.

A great deal of black is noted in summer apparel, but one of the most pleasing uses is that of black frocks in taffeta or satin, effectively trimmed or combined with white or ecru lace, net or organdie.

The French millinery designers have used organdie and voile, particularly in white, for some of their midsummer creations, most of which are large shapes.

The tricorn shape, like the tam, is always with us. A smart French model is of a color known as Jap green in Milan straw with bands of silver braid held down over the crown and brim by silver buttons.

FARMERS

Farmers' wives who have a monthly allowance for household expenses will find it greatly to their advantage to open a Savings Account in the Sterling Bank.

By doing this, they need not keep large sums in the house; they can settle their bills by cheque—obtaining an accurate record of all bills paid—and at the same time receive interest on the balance.

Last call for fall fruits

Do not miss your chance to pre-serve these last sun-ripened gifts of summertime. How your folks will enjoy them, and how pleased you will be to serve them when canned goods made with top-priced sugar are out of reach. The time for preserving foresight is when the fruit is still in season.

Lantic is your best friend in retaining the rare bouquet of luscious plums and peaches, of delicately-flavoured pears. Its tiny, snow-white crystals of purest cane dissolve so quickly into syrup of concentrated sweetness, that you can smile at the old-time caution "Let it simmer until the sugar is all dissolved"—because it's FINE.

Fruit will retain its natural form and colour because over-cooking is unnecessary. Lantic WILL go further, and so costs less.

THE TEN COLORS FOR SEASON

Arizona, Moccasin, Morocco, Chippendale and Camel Some of the Fashionable Tints.

Far from unimportant to the feminine mind and the pocketbook is the announcement that at least ten shoe colors are to be fashionable this season. What with the high cost of leather and silk hosiery and the trouble that high-heeled pump and spat wearers now have matching up their pedal equipment, this latest word from the color authorities is accompanied by some misgivings.

There is a wide range in the brown shades dedicated to footwear, but although brown may be brown to the casual shopper there is a vast difference to the fastidious mind between chestnut, Arizona, moccasin, Morocco, Chippendale and camel, which are a few of the fashionable foot tints for summer wear.

For the rest of her attire the summer girl may run to the most vivid shades for evening, with a somewhat subdued assortment for street appearance. Egypt and Cairo are two of the new bright blue shades, and in the purple family the novelties have been called huckleberry, bramble and perilla. Parakeet is the season's brightest green and Capri is its equivalent in blue. Aero, hydro and radio, tints of Copenhagen, are of a less starling brightness and will be rivals of the copper tones, which are called coudron and kettledrum on the new color card issued by the Textile Color Card association.

MORE USE FOR THE SWEATER

Dainty Frocks, Guimpes or Narrow Collars Are Being Worn for Outdoors Sports.

One of the most potent influences in summer neckwear fashions is the sweater. In sections of the country where golfing and various outdoor sports prevail, handsome sweaters of silk and fine wool are now being worn with dainty "fronts," guimpes or narrow, exquisite collars. Frequently matching cuffs are used to complete the illusion that the sweater is worn over a separate blouse. In some instances extra neckwear accessories are carried in a bag for use in freshening up the sweater after the game, says the Dry Goods Economist. The supremacy of the tuxedo type of sweater is credited with the recent revival of the long, narrow, rolling collar. This type of collar is also appropriate for use with tailor-mades having the narrow rolled revers opened to the waist. Various other collar shapes continue to be widely represented, and as seen as the weather permits of the wearing of summer dresses they should become a factor in summer wear.

AMONG COLORS THAT COMBINE

Brown and Red Used With Success and Smartness in Frocks; Citron, Purple, Orchid.

Brown and red are colors that have been combined with real success and smartness in some of the new frocks. We used to see this combination occasionally in little girls' sailor suits. There were brown serge sailor suits with red anchors and braid trimmings on sleeves and dickies, and, truth to say, the combination often seemed particularly ugly. Very much smarter did red on black or red on navy blue seem in children's sailor or middy suits, but the brown ones had the advantage, known to the careful mother, of not showing dust or wear so readily as the more distinct tones of blue or black. But in the new frocks the combination is really interesting. Sometimes brown tricolette is used with red tricolette in a smart street frock or blouse.

Citron, purple and orchid is a color combination seen in one of the new separate blouses, and, what is more, it was used with embroidery of blue wool.

WORTH WHILE TO MAKE OVER

Cost of Material Inducement to Busy Mother to Remodel Dresses for Growing Children.

Many mothers do not think a wash dress worth making over. But with every material costing so much it will pay this season. Sometimes a new frock, too, is torn or damaged in the front, so that it cannot be worn, and yet the rest remains perfectly good. Then certainly it is worth making into a pretty little frock of smaller size for daughter. Fine linen and poplin are all pretty trimmed with white collars and cuffs or guimpes, frills or vestees of lawn or organdie. In making them, too, it pays to make these frocks so they can be "let down." Either a deep hem, which is very good style on the little girl's frock, or a wide belt will make the dress to be worn by the growing miss last as long as the goods does. Truly, this is a practical consideration for a busy mother.

Used for Lining.

Bright brocaded satins are used for lining.

Thousands of mothers can testify to the virtue of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, because they know from experience how useful it is.

Let the Homes of Canada Reflect the Nation's Prosperity

CANADIANS have every reason to feel optimistic and courageous today, to live happily and to enjoy the refinements and comforts of a progressive and prosperous nation.

As a Toronto "Globe" editorial so truly stated:

"In the topsy-turvy world of to-day, few nations have a better outlook than Canada, the well-being of which is based firmly upon the fertility of her boundless fields."

Improvement of Homes

One of the most impressive evidences of the progressive and prosperous condition of the Canadian nation is the great interest that is developing in the beautifying and improving of our homes. More care and more thought are being given to the furnishings. Greater consideration is shown for beauty and harmony. An atmosphere of cheerfulness, brightness and attractiveness is carried throughout the home.

The Influence of Furniture

It is really surprising how readily an ordinary, uninteresting house can be transformed into a real home, in which it is a pleasure to live, by the magic of beautiful, yet not necessarily expensive, furniture.

Nothing that you can buy will give you and your family so many years of happiness, comfort and solid satisfaction as beautiful furniture.

Beautiful furniture brings an atmosphere of cheerfulness and brightness into every room. It delights the eye. It gives comfort and rest to the body. It brings contentment to the mind and has a refining influence on character. It gladdens the heart. It is the pride of the owner.

The Designs of To-Day

During the last decade there has been a wonderful improvement in the appearance of furniture.

Modern furniture designers have received their inspirations from the "Period Designs" of the old masters, but have not copied their work, because some of the old masterpieces were either too frail or too cumbersome for utility.

While the average family might not care to furnish their homes with the original work of the old masters, the modern adaptations of them, as produced by Canadian furniture craftsmen, ideally meet the present-day demands for furniture that combines beauty with comfort and utility.

Moderately Priced Suites

This beautiful, modern, well-made Canadian furniture is obtainable in moderately priced sets and individual pieces, as well as in the more elaborate and expensive suites.

The individual earnings of Canadians are greater than those of almost any other race. The new era commencing with the close of the war is proving to be the most progressive and prosperous in the history of the Dominion, and Canadians can well afford to brighten up their homes with better furniture.

This announcement is inserted by

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Wood, Detroit, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday evening, Sept. 14th, when Mary Beatrice Neely, of Petrolia, became the bride of Walter C. Powell, of Watford. Rev. A. F. Waechter, performed the ceremony. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of white crepe de chene and a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a pretty bouquet of pink and white roses. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Neely, of Petrolia. Mr. and Mrs. Powell will reside in Detroit.

AN EXCELLENT MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Baby's Own Tablets are an excellent medicine for little ones. They are a mild but thorough laxative which sweeten the stomach and regulate the bowels thus bringing relief in cases of constipation, indigestion, colic, colds and simple fevers. Concerning them Mrs. L. J. Chiasson, Paquetville, N.B., writes: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets excellent for my young baby in the case of constipation and colic and it gives me great pleasure to recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

McGRAW-SMITH

A very pretty home wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. D. Smith, 413 Wellington st., Sarnia, when their eldest daughter, Arvilla Merle, became the bride of Harold Joseph McGraw, of Detroit, Mich. The ceremony took place at high noon under an arch of white climatis, banked with palms and potted plants, and was performed by the Rev. Dr. Knowles, pastor of Devine st. Methodist church. The bride was given away by her father and was attended by the groom's sister, Miss R. McGraw, of Detroit, and her sister, Miss Bernice Smith, as bridesmaids, while Donald Boody, a cousin, was ringbearer and Clarence Smith and Margaret Boody, a brother and cousin, ribbon bearers. The groom was supported by J. N. Smith, brother of the bride. The wedding party entered the drawing room at the strains of Lohengrin's march, played by Miss Ola Smith, the bride's sister. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white georgette embroidered in white with accordinian plaited skirt and wore a crown veil with pearl heading. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, sweet heart roses, sweet peas and maiden hair ferns, tied with white ribbon. Miss McGraw wore white georgette trimmed with satin ribbon and plaited frills. She wore a hat of white satin ribbon and carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses, sweet peas and maiden hair fern, tied with pink ribbon. Miss Smith wore white net over pink silk, with hat to match and her bouquet was similar to that carried by Miss McGraw. The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace of pearls. The bride's gifts to bridesmaids were a lavalliere to Miss McGraw and a pearl ring to Miss Smith. The groom's gift to the groomsmen was a signet ring, while the ring bearer and ribbon bearers each received signet rings. Miss Ola Smith also received a lavalliere. After a trip to eastern points, the young couple will reside at No. 55 Longworth ave., Detroit.

Relief For the Depressed.—Physical and mental depression usually have their origin in a disordered state of the stomach and liver, as when these organs are deranged in their action the whole system is affected. Try Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They revive the digestive processes, act beneficially on the nerves and restore the spirits as no other pills will. They are cheap, simple and sure, and the effects are lasting.

A MATTER OF PRECAUTION

By M. M. WILLIAMS

(Copyright, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"It's your manner, Marjorie—so distant and stand-offish. A man needs encouragement if he—well, if you expect him to get anywhere," the very new Mrs. Gordon said to her maid of honor, with the accent of supreme wisdom possible only to supreme ignorance.

Marjorie's answer was a soft chuckle. Alicia's role of experienced matron diverted her amazingly. Step-sisters, close friends notwithstanding, when Frank Gordon had come mooning after her, she had engineered the transfer of his facile affections to her housemate so deftly, so subtly, neither of the newlyweds suspected her agency. She had foreseen how it would be—Alicia with her liquid nature, taking form from what it fell into, would try to live up to the Gordon dignity, partly in loving obedience to her Frank, but more through her own aspirations.

As a first fruit, she must marry off Marjorie—she would miss her, of course—but a solitude of two was enticing. In the honeymoon year even the best-beloved tertium quid crowds a dove into, no matter how roomy.

"You are really pretty," Alicia went on patronizingly. "Prettier than I am"—this without conviction. "But then you are older—twenty-three almost—beginning to—stomach—there embarrassed you looking away.

"Besides, I'm almost a pauper with a fine feeling for the fine things money buys," Marjorie supplemented, not bitterly, but with darkening eyes. "Maybe you are right. Maybe I ought to be advertising myself in the 'object matrimony' class. But, somehow, I just can't see it. Lazy as I am, work looks better to me."

"Marjorie!" Alicia exploded. "You know that's out of the question. Frank will never allow it. People will say, oh, dreadful things. We must consider our position. But you are joking—you must be. There is nothing you can do."

"I am a mighty-competent cook," Marjorie said, slowly, pulling herself together after the explosion, which had hardened her nebulous consciousness of need into something imperative. Until the moment of speaking, she had never thought of her cooking as an asset. Now, by a lightning calculation, she reckoned it, plus a bond or two, a few sticks of furniture, and a right good will, as a provision, wholly adequate for independence.

The house was Alicia's—work there was impossible. Further the countryside already was suffering a plague of tea rooms, wayside inns and booths of home-made dainties, aimed at motorists beginning to kee'booth-sly. But somewhere there was a place for her—she must find it—th' sooner the better.

Next morning Alicia read tearfully a scrawl which ran: "Don't fret, honey—go to seek my fate—not sure yet whether it will turn out a fortune or a husband. Tell folks what you please—you can make them believe anything, you lie so deliciously. You'll hear from me through Judy—she knows everything—and won't tell. Be good to yourself and keep Frank in his place until I come back. Love and all the rest of it, from the Wicked Marjorie."

Judy knew everything, through having been the deer of hope. "Dem Warrens people ober to Pine Hill done come yere to learn what we all doin', and was ragarin' an' chargin' case dee couldn't git no cook ter stay wid um—not since Jincy, Judy's sister, had been wrested from their kitchen by sudden matrimony. Oh, yessum, dee paid all right—'most anything vus asked um. But de ole lady she was cranky as a ram's horn, even befoh she fell and broke so many bones. Den de two trained nurses and dat dar ramrod-legged man, her sen, even wusser. Dey was sholy too much fer any plain wukin' ooman. Maybe er lady mought stand um. Miss Mahje better run 'long ober dar, 'right an' make heggement, 'pendin' on Judy ter send on her suitcase—and keep her mouf shet ter everybody."

Marjorie nodded—she was beyond speech. But she hugged Judy tight, and ran away trying hard to whistle. Six hours later, on the edge of sundown, she was in the Warren kitchen, saying to herself as she glanced around: "Tuesday of creation week couldn't have been a patch on this." The ramrod-legged son had fetched her to the door, waved a helpless hand at the spectacle within, then vanished murmuring he would make it worth her while to stay.

Faith my move mountains, but virgin ignorance can give it three in the game. If Marjorie had known half the week following taught her she would never have adventured into the Warren household. One nurse was a kindly incapable—so was the remnant elderly maid. But the head nurse, Miss Snickers, made up for both by abuse of the permissiveness even head nurses have to be hateful. Small wonder when she had marked down the ramrod-legged one as her special prey and saw in Marjorie a potential rival. Especially after order came out of chaos and meals were no longer penances but full-fed delights. The tongue-tied Mr. Warren had no need to praise them orally—the smacking of his lips was sufficiently convincing. Also and further he began almost to thrive to an extent which moved Jim Leslie, his imported scientific farmer, to say, grinning at Marjorie: "If you keep this up you'll be able to get blood out of that turnip."

Casual contacts with this person, who did for himself and came into the kitchen only to bring fruit and vegetables, were Marjorie's main alleviations. She knew she was a puzzle to him—also that he found study of it fascinating. Audaciously she had no fear that he would recognize in Joy, the Warren cook, the Marjorie Joyce Millburn he had danced with casually at the senior prom five years back. Then he had been slight—now he was tanned, muscled, almost burly. Yet she fancied she would have known him without hearing his name. His manner towards her was friendly—kind yet touched with a fine respectful chivalrous reserve infinitely refreshing.

Upon a sweltering late August twilight the scent of ripe grapes enticed Marjorie to the long arbor which ran down the main garden walk. "She was very tired—but happy—hadn't she a hundred dollars to show for her —smiled angrily as she packed. John was a fool—no good girl could be so heartlessly extortionate—with sickness in the house—and so little to do. John had checked her peremptorily there—later, in the hall, he had apologized almost timidly for his mother—she was so old, so ill—she would never be better—he knew, if she did not, what a godsend Joy had been to them. He had looked even more—Marjorie smiled, wryly, remembering his eyes. Possibly the memory helped to send her out of doors recklessly conscious that in the arbor she risked, encounter with Leslie—he had a theory that grapes should be cut while sun-warm.

"I'll let you help if you are very good," he called gayly as she came within range of his lantern light. Hanging directly overhead it hung revealing white illumination upon her lifted brow, her round lips, the small quizzical curl of her lips. Instantly he knew her—as instantly he dropped grape-shears and basket, leaped from the ladder and caught her hands, saying: "Want a prize idiot? Here he stands!"

"Any proofs?" Marjorie asked sardonically. "A whole month of it—I ought to have known you at the very first," he said hushed, falling back a pace. Miss Snickers was advancing majestically upon them, leading a reluctant captive—Mr. Warren—and brandishing a letter as though it were a dagger. As she came close she thrust the letter upon Marjorie, hissing: "By special messenger—he's waiting for the answer."

"He is—judicious," Marjorie answered, taking the missive, which was addressed: Miss Marjorie Joy-Milburn, at Pinehill warrens.

Saying ceremoniously: "Excuse me," Marjorie broke the seal and read, "You come back HOME, unC Dan is done Found he-self. Say ef I Dont find you quick, he'll Kill me. I'm in deEe Kyar down At de big Galt—you come wid de sHofEr—make him Tote you Close."

"You are going, of course?" Leslie said. He had read shamelessly over her shoulder. She nodded. Miss Snickers interposed. "Not until your bags are searched. I insist upon that—for my own protection. A person salling under false colors is capable of almost anything. I do not propose to jeopardize my good name."

"She is not going if I can help it," Warren almost shouted, clutching Marjorie's arm. "Stay—as my wife. I loved you the minute you came."

Miss Snickers screamed and promptly fainted. Marjorie brushed past her, saying to Mr. Warren: "Thank you—but it's no." Then ran toward the back door. Leslie reached it ahead of her, held it shut and said in a shaken voice: "Marjorie, I've loved you five years without knowing it. I know all about you. Uncle Dan's finding himself will make you an heiress. So I—I—it seems I had better tell you. I've got a million in my own right—and expectations—"

"Why tell me?" Marjorie asked primly, but with dancing eyes. "Just as a matter of precaution—so I won't be set down as a fortune hunter," Leslie answered, possessing himself of her hand.

ALL RIGHT TO BLEACH HAIR

New York Magistrate Settles Question Which Has Long Been More or Less in Controversy.

If thy right eye offend thee pluck it out. If your hair is not the shade you dote on bleach it, color it or cut it off if you wish. Whose business is it? A mother-in-law recently accused her daughter-in-law, a handsome young blond, of bleaching her hair—using peroxide on it. A magistrate had to settle this matter; and the newspapers made much of it, and one would think from perusing what they had to say there is some law, statutory or unwritten, that makes it almost a felony to discolor the hair.

Nothing of the kind, declares the New York Telegraph. Many women bleach their hair, and it is quite all right if they wish to do so. Dark-haired girls and women and those with black hair frequently turn the color of their locks to that of a brick-bat, with henna. And red-haired ladies sometimes change their color to that of yellow field corn. That is their affair and no one has a right to complain. Many folk twit those who have thus improved on nature, but they will do so no more—the magistrate has settled that.

A Good Instance. Teacher—Can you give me an instance of the economy of nature? Pupil—She used sheets of water to cover the beds of rivers.

In Maidenhood, Womanhood and Motherhood

London, Ont.:—"For many years Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been my most favorite medicine. I have taken it for the ailments pertaining to womanhood and before and after motherhood, and it always proved excellent. I have also recommended 'Favorite Prescription' to many friends who have taken it with good results. It is the best medicine I know of today for women or girls who are weak and suffering.—MRS. W.M. STEEL, 179 Richmond St.

SAVED HER LIFE

St. Catharines, Ont.:—"I was in a very miserable condition when I first started taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription sixteen years ago. I suffered and was extremely emaciated and weak. Although I was a young woman my doctor thought I was going through the critical stage of illness, but after using these remedies my strength returned, another child came and from that time on my health was perfect and my weight increased. I really believe that Dr. Pierce's remedies saved my life and I shall always praise them as long as I live."—MRS. ELIZA OVERHOLT, 43 Beach St. Favorite Prescription should have the full confidence of every woman in Canada because it contains no alcohol and no narcotic. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine were injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his medicine. Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package Tablets.

THE ONION CROP.

How to Handle and Harvest It at the Proper Time.

As the onion is such a valuable crop, and as mistakes are often made in lifting it from the ground at too early a stage, a few words as to the proper times and methods of harvesting may be the means of saving many bushels of the bulbs. Upon the manner in which onions are ripened and harvested will depend their keeping qualities. The grower should allow the crop to make all the growth possible. The stems should not be bent at the neck, as is sometimes done, as long as they are erect and vigorous. Generally they will fall of their own accord. In some localities the idea is prevalent that bending down the stems favors the development of the bulbs. This is not true when the plants are growing vigorously, rather it prevents development for upon the amount of elaborated food sent down from the leaves to the bulbs will depend the ultimate size of the latter. The raw food materials are absorbed by the root hairs in solution and sent upward to the leaves. Carbon dioxide is absorbed by the leaves, and in the green cells the whole food is elaborated and is sent to all of the growing parts of the plants. The grower should remember that neither onions or other plants feed directly from the soil. The roots simply absorb some of the elements which are latter converted into food.

When the stems of onions are immaturely bent or broken down the food supply is shut off. The bulbs do not fill out and become hard as they do when properly ripened, and consequently will not keep very long in open storage. The harder and firmer the bulbs may be the better chance of success in this respect.

Onions which were planted as Dutch sets during April, and without doubt large areas were planted, will now be showing signs of ripening. Water should not be given to any which are assuming a yellow appearance of the leaf, nor should any fertilizing substance be applied. When onions of any kind approach the ripening stage, water should be withheld, otherwise a secondary root growth may start, and the bulbs be rendered valueless. It is, of course, too early for the onions which were sown in drills to ripen. The fore-mentioned remarks, however, should be borne in mind when these approach the ripening stage.

When harvesting onions it is best to lift them with a digging fork, but not until the tops have become grown and dry. They should then be spread out to dry for a few days, and be turned at intervals to favor equal drying on all sides. Generally onions will dry properly out of doors. If, however, rain is imminent it will be better to dry them on the floor or shelves of a dry and airy shed. Many varieties of onions will be ready for harvesting by mid-August, or shortly after.

Shorthorns.

Show-ring competition of the past few years in Canada has served to emphasize the growing popularity of Canadian-bred horses and cattle, particularly in the Clydesdale and Shorthorn breeds. Not only have certain splendid individual animals been adjudged superior to the best imported stock shown against them, but—what is more important—decisive recognition has been given by eminent judges to a distinct "Canadian type" of animal. These tank-achievements of Canadian stock are being

Prize-Winning Shorthorn Yearlings. duplicated at present in the sale-ring, in both Eastern and Western Canada. At the recent great Dryden-Miller sale of imported and Canadian-bred animals, a native female topped the lists, selling for $5,200, as reported at the time of the sale. More recently, in Manitoba, a Canadian-bred Aberdeen-Angus, Blackbird Glencarnock V., sold for the sum of $3,000. These two sales run in value into what is termed "big money," and transactions such as these put the Canadian stock-market, in so far as native pure-breds are concerned, in a class with those of the British Isles. It is pleasing to see animals from Canadian stables winning rosettes in the judging ring; it is even more gratifying to see them appeal as strongly as imported stuff to the fancy of discriminating buyers.

September Butter Packs Well.

If not already provided, now is the time to pack butter for winter use, unless a fresh supply is assured at reasonable prices. Pack good butter solidly in a crock, or wax and paper-lined wooden package; cover with a clean cotton cloth or heavy parchment paper and seal paste, and store in a cool, dark cellar, or in a commercial cold storage, if one is available. September butter made from good cream, preferably pasteurized, should keep all winter, and is usually from five to ten cents a pound cheaper than fresh-made winter butter. Never store or pack butter in prints for winter use, as there is too much surface exposed to the air, even when placed in brine.

Dairy Notes.

Keep the cows in clean quarters. Grass by itself is not considered a balanced ration for the milk cow. The smaller the opening into which the milk goes the less the danger of dirt.

POTATO POINTERS.

Leave Tubers In Ground Until Fully Matured.

Usually the early potatoes are not the best keepers, and except for seed purposes are not kept in large quantities. It is sometimes said that immature tubers make the best seed. The writer is not prepared to discuss the matter, except to say that he has seen excellent crops from both mature and immature tubers. One thing, however, is certain when the crop is lifted before it has fully matured much of the possible yield is lost to the grower, and whether for seed purposes or for food the tubers will not keep so well as when mature.

We are at present concerned with the early crop, and not with the main or late crop. This, however, makes no difference. We should not generally lift the crop until the haulms are quite dead, at which time we can rest assured that the food material, your food and mine, has been fully transferred from stems to tubers, and that the latter have made all the growth that is possible.

Potatoes should not be left in a damp soil any length of time after they have ripened; nothing can be gained by leaving them therein. Lift them and store them thinly in a dark dry place until they are dry, after which they may be stored in barrels or boxes for use as desired. These remarks do not apply to winter storage. They are made only for the information of those who have only a few early potatoes on their plots.

During the present year it has been gratifying to see the increase in the number of vegetable gardens over those which existed before the war, and while there are not so many as during the war, the of the vegetables is it anything better. This is largely as a result of experience on the part of the war gardener. Another thing of great importance is that the amateur has learned to discriminate in the choice of varieties, consequently subjects which have little food value are not grown, thus the grower has more time to devote to the production of staple crops. Now is the time for the gardener to check up the good and the worthless subjects, and to decide what he will do next year. Perhaps it would be advantageous to double a certain crop or to reduce another by half, according to their values. Notes of all these things should be made; the memory cannot be trusted entirely in such matters.

When the crops are in full bearing a better idea of what space will be necessary for each may be obtained than when they are removed from the plot. It is also easy to ascertain the positions in which they seem to do best. Notes along these lines will be found helpful, for from them the gardener may during winter plan his garden for next year.

POOR HEALTH

LIFE'S HANDICAP

Rich, Red Blood and Strong Nerves Needed to Win Out.

It has been well said that life is a race. The full-blooded man with sound nerves, the bright-eyed, rosy cheeked woman invariably win. The nervous, dyspeptic man, and the ailing anaemic woman are left behind. Success in life is largely a question of good health and sound nerves. It is never the shy undecided men who are chosen for promotion; the sickly looking pale woman is not sought after like her happy rosy sisters.

What makes all the difference is the condition of the blood. If your blood is thin and poor, your nerves are bound to suffer, because they have to depend upon good red blood for nourishment. Headaches, undecided will, a shrunken figure and pale unattractive face tell only too plainly that the blood is at fault.

Both men and women in great numbers have found deliverance from their inferiority in life's race, caused by impoverished blood through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are a remedy that has been a household word for a generation, because they tone up the whole system, make the blood rich and red and strengthen the nerves. Mrs. S. B. Miller, Elmira, Ont., says: "I look upon Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a family medicine, and have reason to praise them for what they have done in our home. Some years ago, while we were living in Alberta, my husband was so completely run down that he was unable to do any work, and even to carry a pail of water would exhaust him. A doctor was called in who said his medicine would be of little use to him. This greatly worried me and I finally urged him to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He began their use and in a short time the swelling in his hands and feet disappeared. We decided to return to Ontario but the doctor said he could not stand the trip. But the doctor was mistaken for through the use of the pills he gained such strength as to be able to look after the harvest, and in a month later we returned to Ontario. My husband still takes a box or two of the pills twice a year, and they keep him in good shape. I have also found the pills good for my growing daughters and we are never without them in our home."

One of the best things about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is that they do not contain the slightest trace of opiates or harmful drugs. While they are overcoming disease they are building up general conditions of good health. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
