THE WEEK IN OUEBEC

Political Affairs in the Sister Province-Mousseau, Quite Well Again, May Complicate the Situation-The Tramways Deal-Church Matters-A Review of Events by Paul Dulac.

MONTREAL, July 18.-Altho the whole province is sweltering and stifling in the summer heat, events in Quebec have been interesting, in many fields, for the last week. Montreal has its municipal vaudeville; the provincial government has its "ennuis"; the two political partles tour the province, each of them saying it is the French-Canadian "habitants'" best friend; the religious problem comes up to the front with a recent and official declaration of the French vice-consul in Montreal made on the 14th, France's National Day, and with the proposed establishment of a neutral school at Montreal, with the help of the French government.

FRANCE AND OUEBEC CHURCH

Is official France to come into conflict with Roman Catholic bishops in Quebec? It seems so. A recent declaration made by Vice-Consul Raynaud, one of France's representatives in Montreal, may be taken as pointing to a different orientation of official France's relations with Catholic French Canada. At a public dinner given at Montreal on the 14th July inst., M. Raynaud, speaking officially, said: "With the help of the French Government our group is going to organize in Montreal in the near future a neutral school, such as we have in France." This declaration, coupled with M. Raynaud's abstention from going to the annual mass celebrated in Notre Dame for the French colony of Montreal each July 14, abstention which was ordered from France by special and most explicit instructions says M. Raynaud, has created a great amount of interest and concern in French and Catholic circles in Montreal, and all over the province of Quebec. Up to now, France's official representatives in the province of Quebec had respected French-Canadian religious convictions, with which a strong and influential group of old country Frenchmen living in Montreal sympathize heartily. French officials used to be present every year at the special mass celebrated at Quebec and Montreal on July 14, France's national day. Even last year, Archbishop Bruchesi was asked by Commander Pugliesi-Conti, of the "Descartes," a French man-of-war, then moored in Montreal harbor for a few weeks, to celebrate a mass on board; and he went. This, together with the presence of France's official representatives at the French mass on each July 4, displeased a very active group of anti-clerical and ultra-republican old country Frenchmen at Montreal. They took the matter up with the French Government and the result is that orders have been issued from Paris to French official representatives in Canada to keep strictly aloof from all religious demonstrations. M. De Saint-Victor, France's representatives in Quebec, on receiving these instructions wired back his resignation to his government. It was not accepted and he was present at the special mass at Quebec as formerly. In Montreal, Vice-Consul Renaud, in the absence of M. Bonin, France's highest representative in Canada, abstained from the mass and gave publicity to the orders held from M. Viviani, France's present prime minister, one of the most notable anti-clericals in his country This incident becomes the graver in French Catholic circles of Quebec when coupled with the avowed project of official France to help organize a French neutral school open to French and French-Can-adian children alike, in Montreal. M. Viviani, present prime minister of France, one of the strongest exponents of the neutral school, which is violently anti-clerical in France, wrote a few years 20, in "L'Humanite," a Paris paper, that "school neutrality is and always was a lie," adding: "This absurd notion of neutrality was put up to reassure timid persons, whose coalition against our school laws would otherwise have killed the principle of these laws." The organizing of such a school in Montreal, and its being helped along by the French government, alarms Catholic people. It is quite probable that if this school is ever opened, Archbishop Bruchesi will forbid his French-Canadian flock to allow their children to frequent it, as he did a few years ago when interdicted Catholic families to send their young girls to the "Lycee des Jeunes Filles," a school organized by the members of the "Emancipation," a French Freemasonry lodge in Montreal. This new interdiction would surely put official France at daggers drawn with the

Roman Catholic Church in Montreal. THE MOUSSEAU SCANDAL

Meantime, Sir Lomer Gouin has embarked for Europe on a threemonths' trip. It is not known whether he will meet at Paris, or on "La Cote d'Azur," his former partner, L. P. Berard, quondam member of the Quebec upper house, who was obliged to hand in his resignation at the time of "l'affaire Mousseau," which made so much noise last winter in Quebec, and was hushed up by a Liberal majority sitting on the lid and refusing, by the leave and at the command of Sir Lomer Gouin, to probe this matter to its third bottom, to the "trefonds," as has promised Sir Lomer himself, in a gust of eloquence. This Mousseau scandal promises to be revived next fall, when a partial election is held in Soulanges, Mousseau's former riding. Mousseau, after having left the Quebec house, was said to be sick, so sick that a doctor friendly to Sir Lomer swore that the ex-member's health was so shaken it might never repair. But, as soon as the Quebec session was over, Mousseau, by a startling coincidence, started to feel better. He even was cured so rapidly that for the last two or three months he has been practising law as formerly, and may be seen almost any day at the banks, in the courts, or on the street. His friends announced this week his running again next fall, as Liberal candidate in his former district, his seat still being vacant. This news, coming on the same day Sir Lomer Gouin leaves for Europe, is undoubtedly going to disturb the Quebec ministers during their holidays. If Mousseau runs again, and he does not deny it, tho he says he did not authorize anybody to make such a statement, it is most probable he will be re-elected. All Quebec Liberal papers, notably Le Soleil and Le Canada, have shown him as the victim of "a most damnable conspiracy against Sir Lomer Gouin's government." and La Presse, posing as an independent paper, has done more than any other paper to represent Mousseau as a martyr, persecuted with a devilish cunning. Seeing Mousseau coming back to the Quebec house would eminently displease Sir Lomer, who compelled him in angry interview, and by menacing him with the penitentiary, to give his resignation as a member and leave Quebec by the next tain. Mousseau, coming back to the house, might be dangerous for tho government, because he has not yet given his own complete version of his dealing with Martin & Company, as personified by Burns detectives, and because he has evidence of corruption amongst the ranks of the ministerial members which has not yet been exposed.

FEDERAL POLITICS

Both federal parties are canvassing strongly the province of Quebec. Messrs. Fisher and Mackenzie king, accompanied by M. Rodolphe Lemieux and Liberal members, have already spoken in many districts especially this week. Messrs. Pelletier, Nantel, Coderre and a group of Conservative politicians have also covered some ground last week and this week, and intend to cover more. Both parties try to convince "Jean Baptiste" that they are his best friends. Quebec Liberals feel elated over Mr. Norris' big fight in Manitoba. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his people hope that, with the prairie province almost solid against Sir Robert Borden, they will carry Quebec and come back to power at the next general election. On the other hand, Mr. Pelletier and his ministerial colleagues think that, even if they have made a "volte-face" on the navy question, their party will keep its ground by multiplying expenses for public buildings and public works in Quebec Recent events, such as Colonel Sam Hughes' orders forbidding militia to take part in religious demonstrations in Quebec, which it has done for years and years, have strongly indisposed large parts of Quebec electors against the government These orders will be-they are even now-exploited against Sir Robert Borden in Quebec by Liberal politicians and Liberal French papers in practically the same way the Ne Temere decree was exploited in certain districts of Ontario against Sir Wilfrid in 1911. Each party down in Quebec asks itself what part Bourassa will take in the next general elections, together with his friend Armand Lavergne and their followers-there are many of them yet among young men and even among mature business and professional men. Altho both parties claim publicly in Quebec that there are no more Nationalists, still. privately, their leaders are anxious to know where Bourassa will stand during the next big fight. He loves a fight, and he is sure to take part in it. Bourassa is in Europe just now studying imperial problems at first hand. and consequently will not tour Quebec this summer. But his paper. Le Devoir, carries on his propaganda, and when he comes back he will probably give some hint as to what his future politics will be. His word will carry weight in Quebec in 1915. For many months he has been mostly against the government, especially on the navy question .

MONTREAL AFFAIRS

The tramways interests have received a temporary set-back in Montreal during their recent campaign to obtain a new and more favorable contract with the city for a period of forty years. It looked for a time as if Mayor Mederic Martin and Controllers Cote and Hebert, a trio which appears to be very well disposed towards the tramways interests, would force the issue and succeed in imposing upon the city a new contract granting such a franchise to the tramways company, backed, it is said, by that gigantic American monopoly, the Standard Oil. The value of such a franchise approximates, according to expert advice, the sum of 400 millions. But aldermen from new districts and distant wards of the city held many caucuses about the franchise. Controllers Ainey and Macdonald, the latter a former manager of the Montreal Tramways Company, and now one of its most dangerous opponents, appealed to the public in a way which em-

He and some of his associates do not agree at all and he has issued a writ for $10, 000 damages against one of them. Now it is reported that he will enter Ontario in an endeavor to lead the Liberals and temperance people to victory. Beyond admitting that he has great regard for Mr. Rowell and is a believer in his policy, Mr. Roberts will say nothing.

barrassed the tramways group and those of the city council favorable to railroading the grant of the franchise. Many of the Montreal papers-La Patrie and Le Devoir amongst the French, The News and The Mail amongst the English-took sides with Controllers Ainey and Macdonald. Sir Hugh Graham's papers, The Star and The Herald-Telegraph-this last one parading as an independent paper whilst in fact it still partly belongs to Robert, the tramways group master-mind-pretended to work in the public interest, and gently knocked the tramways company. But as Sir Hugh Graham is known to be connected in a somewhat mysterious manner with the tramways group, nobody fell for that. And the negotiations now seem to be stopped for a few weeks. Controller Cote, who was to make a report on the grant of the franchise, and was offered by The News to be told a few facts about the share the tramways interests are alleged to have taken in his election-which offer he did not accept-has said that he cannot see his way clear to make a complete report before a couple of months. The tramways interests, master lobbyists, are still working cautiously underground, making silent ententes which will result probably in their obtaining what the people of Montreal at large do not want to give them. The game will be played to an end next fall, but the dice appear to be loaded in favor of the tramways plunderbund. There is talk of an autobus system and an underground tramways system in congested quarters of the city. Controller Macdonald mentioned these two subjects as shedding a new light on Montreal transportation problems. Controller Hebert, on the other hand, says they are impracticable and will be for years. But, as somebody said in Mr. Hebert's presence, "A tramways man has to d- the autobus and the underground system." If the tramways group cannot get what they want in Montreal they will still have the resource to appeal to the Quebec parliament. Sir Lomer Gouin, who always gave Mr. Robert and the tramways plunderbund what they wanted, even if Montreal Island people were opposed to it, will certainly be strong enough to have his own and Mr. Robert's sweet will.

Institute Suit in Equity to Compel Answer to Charges of Maladministration and Misuse of Funds

NEW YORK, July 18.—Suit in equity was instituted here today in behalf of certain minority stockholders of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad against directors of the road and corporation to compel them to answer charges of meledicity them to answer charges of maladministration and misuse of funds.

The suit, which is brought by the law firm of Robinson & Lauber of this city, is somewhat similar to the action in Boston, which demanded restitution of $305,000,000, of which more than $100,000,000 was alleged to have been misused. One of the two claims made asks that the "individual defendants be compelled to account for all sums of money and shares of stock misapplied intention of removing to Toronto at an and misappropriated and all profits early date to become organizer for the which they received by reason of unlawful acts."

> The second claim asked that the defendants be enjoined from further management of the system.

The action specifically alleges that the directors acting for the corporation acquired transportation lines with rolling stock upon payment of sums of money greatly in excess of the value of the property. This refers to the acquisition of the Boston and Westchester road, which figures in the Boston suit and in the recent interstate commerce commission report.

WASHINGTON, July 18.-Final effort to bring about a dissolution of the New Haven Railroad system without suit in court will be made at a conference at the department of justice Monday between a commission of New Haven directors, Attorney-General McReynolds and T. W. Gregory, special assistant in charge of the case.

CABARET HAS GONE LIMIT IN LONDON

By Fordinand Tuchy. LONDON, July 18.—Because one poor soul goes under in the maelstrom of life there are those who instinctively see a "grave national peril" in the progress of the modern girl. Which is triffing with the facts of the case. The tragedy of Laura Grey shocks us in its very uniqueness. Not every day s Zola beaten so ruthlessly by reality. house system is universally condemned. The apartment houses are unhealthy, being excessively hot in summer, thus conditioning high infant mortality. Half the apartments look onto airless, lightless courtyards. The working-class apartment houses have no elevators. The bad results are proved by the fact that the mortality of women and of sufferers from heart disease increases with each floor. The disease increases with each floor. The apartment house prevents the ownership of a home; turns people into nomads; produces overcrowding; and makes for higher rents. The possibility of crowding twenty-apartment dwellings on a plot of land sufficient for only two or three one-family houses, has raised building land values. Dr. Sydow, minister of commerce, told Prussia's diet last January, that buildtold ing land on the outskirts of Berlin is from 12 to 15 times dearer than on the outskirts of London. The working-class family which, under the foreign, one-family house system, has 4 or 5 small rooms, in Germany crowds into methods are three: firstly new housing laws; second a campaign by the ing laws; second a campaign by the municipalities against high rents and housing famines; thirdly, the building housing famines; thirdly, the building out of public numbers of model dwellings are being of workmen's dwellings out of public funds. In the first Prussia is leading. Before the Prussian Diet is a bill which attacks the old system of town-plan-ning, and institutes housing inspecning, and institutes housing inspection on the lines laid down by the British public health act. The present rigid system of town-planning is to be reformed on the principle of free trade in house building. Hitherto municipalities have often used their restrictive powers to prevent the their restrictive powers to prevent the construction of working-class dwellings. Their aim was to attract rich with him is another housing reformresidents. Towns with less than 100,000 inhabitants will main-tain housing bureaux if the local ad-ministrative authorities consider it desirable. The new housing bureaux will be managed and staffed by speci-ally trained officials. They will have two main functions. The most important is the inspection of private dwelling houses. The municipal offi-cials will have the right to enter without invitation any dwelling in Prussia except the Kaiser's palaces, the bar-racks, and other buildings which are pared With London's Seven public authority. The householder will have to give the officials all in-formation. Well-to-da people dislike this clause. Teady exists in a few municipantics and feel of the most practical and helpful of all Prussian housing reforms. The "house indicator" office keeps a register of all vacant, and to be vacant, houses and apartments in the town; and it puts this register at the disposal of working men. Minute details are registered. Record is made of the number of rooms in the apart-ment, their size, the maximum numhousing problem. It is a troublesome task. Bad housing, says ex-minister of the interior, Count Posadowsky, is the reason why the national birthrate has fallen from 42 to 29 per 1000 in the last 40 years. The absence of imperial housing legislation is one imperial housing legislation is one source of the evil. Other social problems have been beneficially regulated by the bundesrat and reichstag; but housing has been left to the state housing has been left to the state legislatures, and these have done very legislatures and very legislatures. legislatures, and these have done very legislatures, and these have done very little. Their neglect has caused friction. A year ago, Dr. Delbruck, who holds Posadowsky's portfolio, now holds Posadowsky's portfolio, threatened that, if Prussia did not improve her housing, the empire would intervene. This threat made the reformers hurry up. The Prussian and formers hurry up. The prussian and individuals began to compete with and individuals began to compete with and individuals began to compete with them in proposing plans of betterment. The indicators are economically run. The cost per applicant sulted works out at about thirty cents. Stuttgart compels house owners to register every dwelling immediately it becomes vacant. The indicators have a potent effect on improving housing. They enable workingmen to see at once the conditions of the housing market in different parts of the city, and they prevent the accurrence of housing famines with high rents in one district at times when there are many vacant dwellings in a district a short distance away. ## TELLS GIRLS HOW TO

Make an Early Start, She Says -Pay at First Will Be Small

LOCAL TALENT IN THIS WEEK'S SHOW

In her five seasons here Miss Has-well has been the means of giving numbers of local young women oppor-tunities in her productions. This sea-son she has been instrumental in bringing out little Violet Dunn, whose week Miss Haswell is introducing, in "Marrying Mary," a large chorus of talented young ladies which she has recruited from local singing schools and conservatories. "That the woman wishing to go on the stage should make an early start is desirable," said Miss Haswell last week. 'It is better for a young woman, if she is fully determined to become an actress, to begin her dramatic career at 19 than at 25, for she will then have so many years of youth for preparation before her.

Should Begin Training at 15.

"Long before the actual start is made, however, it is wise for the girl to begin using her voice for reading alcud. A girl who contemplates fol-lowing the stage in later years should begin at 15 years of age or sooner to use her voice in such a way as to in-crease its volume and develop its quality.

"Suppose, then, a girl who believes she has the necessary qualifications for a stage career should determine upon entering some stock company to begin her preparation, the proper course would be to address a note to the stage manager of the company she desires to join. It is not necessary, of course, that she know the stage manager in question, tho I will admit that even here, influence is some-

"When the first opportunity presents itself, he may give the young woman who applied to him for a position as a super. Such extra people are usually put on for a week by the stock companies and they receive $1 a performance.

"When a stage manager finds a womar displays a little talent, he may agree to attach her to the company as a regular extra in which case she would receive a nominal salary, perhaps only $5 a week, but this would be enough to give her a footing. Then as soon as an extra long cast presents itself, the stage manager will prob-"His Majesty the King is interested to hear of the intended establishment in London of an American church as a memorial of the 100 years of peace these she will eventually find herself advanced.

"As a player of minor parts, she should receive from $25 to $35 a week. "But this is the smallest success are many possibilities for greater re-wards open to her."

H. B. HARRIS ESTATE SHOWS RISKS RUN IN STAGE BUSINESS

Debts Were $400,000, and $35,000 More Than Assets of Estate-Yet He Was

That the theatrical business is a gamble as uncertain in its pecuniary rewards for those engaging in it as is the most hazardous game of chance will not be disputed by any member of the profession.

as a money making enterprise is fur-nished by the appraisal of the estate of Henry B. Harris, who perished in the Titanic disaster. As a result of his activities in operating theatres, pro-ducing plays and directing the proessional fortunes of dramatic stars Mr. Harris had become one of the foremost managers connected with the theatre in the United States. At the time of his death he was the president of the National Association of Producing Managers and was believed to be one of the wealthiest men in that organization. The appraisal recently filed in New York shows that Mr. Harris left an estate amounting to $368,443. His debts and the cost of administration totaled $400,690, which left a deficit of $32,247. The enterprise that resulted in his heaviest loss was the effort to establish the Follies Bergere in New York. That music hall, designed as a nome for vaudeville of the Parisian order, cost him during the few months he conducted it $360,000. He was confident that New York needed a place wherein amusement-seekers could dine or sup while witnessing a stage entertainment that would not claim so much of their attention as would interfere with the pleasures of the table. The experiment was a disastrous fail-him a pretty penny. Up to the time of his death Charles Klein's, play "Maggie Pepper," in which Rose Stahl starred, netted him $48,000, despite the fact that Miss Stahl received a third of the profits in addition to a large salary. His production of Edgar Sel-wyn's plays "The Arab," in which Robert Edeson starred at the Newark Theatre two years ago last December, cost him $18,000 and returned no profits. On the western tour of "The Quaker Girl" the English musical comedy, he lost $10,000, and on the play "Shams," $9,000. By staging "An American Wodow" and "Such a Little Queen" he was out of pocket about $25,000. To Klaw and Erlanger he owed $10.336, his share of the loss in bringing Ruth St. Dennis, the dancer and the Balalaika Orchestra before the public. To Miss St. Denis is due $6,701, which represents a share of profits from her services later. operating the Grand Opera House in New Haven with Klaw and Erlanger he lost $7,023, and his lease of the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia. resulted in a loss of $7,905 during the season of 1911-12.

The play-going public has little idea of the financial risks incurred by the managers catering to it. Even so experienced a producer as Mr. Harris could not predict what would please it in drama and musical comedy, and could not anticipate the reaping of profits on any offering. Commercial-cal business has become ie remains a see-saw between gain and loss.

GOES ON MARKET. Historic Old Building of Roman Date Is to Be Sold. LONDON. July 18.-The famous Kentish mansion, Chilham Castle, Canterbury, the history of which dates back to the Roman occupation of Britain, is to be sold by private treaty by Messrs. Knight, Frank, and Rutley. It is on this spot that Julius Caesar is said to have encamped during his second invasion, and the present castle, on the brow of a steep hill, rising above the beautiful valley of the Stour, is built on the site of a Roman villa. The castle keep, which is still standing, is of Roman origin, and is one of the earliest buildings in the British Isles. The tower of the keep is now used as a billiard room.

HAREM DANCES DELIGHT PARIS

Armene Ohanian Translates Ancient Persian Legends by Poetry of Motion.

(Copyright, 1914, by The Press Publishing Co., "The New York World." Specia Cable Despatch to The Sunday World.)

PARIS, July 18 .- The artistic element of the Paris theatregoing public, which considers itself intellectually superior to those who favor the revue and other light fare, have patronized exponents of Eastern dancing this season and people who formerly raved over Isadora Duncan and Loie Fuller, make a pet now of a Parisian dancer, Armene Ohanian.

Devises Way to Discourage Several literary celebrities have sounded the praises of this supple oriental. Mme. Henri de Regnier, writental. Mme. Henri de Regnier, writing under her former name of Gerard C'Houville, wrote for The Figaro a poem inspired by the dancer and the quaint personage who accompanies her dancing with Persian songs.

Miss Ohanian has, in fact, awakened a new taste. She is vivid, petite and better than original, she revives

tiful than her photographs. Her body s fine and supple and her feet are retty, the large. Her skin has a rich tint and her hair is so black most sopple think it much he autifulation. cople think it must be artificially col

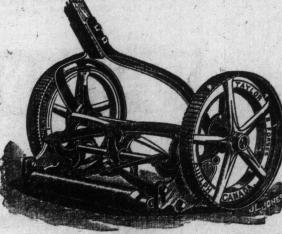

The subjects of her dances, which she composes herself, are for the most part amorous, but in a restrained oriental fashion and depict ancient Persian legendary poems and folk-

At the new Comedie des Champs-Elysees she was assisted by a single singer, a fat Persian named Tigran Simonian, who sang to an off-stage accompaniment. His voice is as high as that of a soprano in pitch. It has a sort of horn sound, but does not lapse into barbarous or harsh notes One of the prettiest performances is a sort of dance of pursuit, the beloved running away from the lovor, who, like an oriental, does not run after his beloved, but merely sits cross legged on a pile of cushions and sings about the inevitableness of love.

Armene Ohanian left Teheran and the doors of a harem when eight years old. At that age she had to veil her face and was never allowed to go out

At Chemakha, where her family lived, she first learned the art of dancing, for that place was the school of the Persian dance where girls were prepared for the harems of princes and nobles. Her dances have the mystery of the orient, revealing secrets of the harem.

The stage setting is in keeping. Perkeeping his chickens from scratching up his garden has been hit upon by old tradition of art. She is more beau- languor broods over the performance.

PEACE IN MEXICO WITHIN TWO WEEKS IS U. S. PREDICTION

Efforts Redoubled by Administration Officials - Carranza Urged to Declare Amnesty for Enemies

WASHINGTON. July 18.-Efforts aimed at restoration of peace in Mexico were redodubled today by administration officials. They were in direct of the victorious constitutionalists, nesty for political offenders, and in touch with Zapata, the southern rebel whose forces frequently have appeared almost at the gates of the capital. It was hoped to bring Zapata into harmony with the peace program, which contemplates the quiet transfer of power from Francisco Carbajal, Huerta's successor, to the constitutional-

One report stated the southern rebels had demanded that Carbajal resign within the next three days, "to prevent an advance on the capital."
Thru John R. Silliman, President Wilson's personal representative at Carranza's headquarters, the constitutionalist leader has been urged to conduct his triumph in a temperate manner, to avoid excesses upon the entry, of the army into Mexico City, o declare amnesty for the forces that fought the northern armies and to recognize the rights of church orders and foreigners.

While members of the revolutionary junta in Washington have expressed doubt whether Carranza would be willing to give guarantee for the life and received from Mr. Silliman. It was awaited with keen interest.

Carbajal, it was believed, was ready to surrender at the earliest opportunity the office he accepted from Huer-ta. In his address to the representatives of the powers at Mexico City he reiterated that he had no personal motives aside from helping to put his country's affairs in order.

President Wilson and members of his cabinet would not comment today upon the safe arrival of Huerta at Puerto Mexico, where, it was thought, he might board either a German or British warship for a foreign port However, administration officials were confident that the various Mexican factions soon would reach an agreement that would result in the establishment of a government that would attract general recognition. They were predicting the practical restoration of peace in Mexico within the next two

Sometimes when a man is found to have violated or evaded any of the provisions of his employment, he is prosecuted for perjury, but usually he is

Gentry Brothers shows. While here they will have three homes, the tented city moving thrice in this city.

The Gentry shows were in Toronto in 1912, and the patronage bestowed upon them at that time brings them back again this season. Monday the engagement will open with a street parade at ten o'clock. This will be followed by two performances. the first at two o'clock, and the second at eight o'clock.

The first home of the shows will be at Queen street east and Greenwood avenue. After the performance Tuesday night the nomadic city will move to Broadview and Danforth avenues. Thursday, Friday and Saturday the terts will be pitched in Dufferin Park, in which location the shows spent a week when last here.

This will be the first time a tented exhibition has moved from spot to spot in Greater Toronto. However, the Gentry shows caler to ladies and children, and in doing so they take the shows to the little folk rather than subject the diminutive patrons to long street car rides. #### TORONTO SURVIVOR BACK FROM ENGLNAD TELLS OF EMPRESS

C. R. Burt, Who was on Ship that Went Down, Speaks of the Minutes that Followed Crash.

WAS ABLE TO AID IN SAVING OTHERS

Mr. C. R. Burt, factory manager of the Russell Motor Car Company, Limited, West Toronto, who was a passenger on the ill-fated Empress of Ireland, has returned to the city from England. In modest fashion he describes the terrible experiences thru which he passed.

"I was asleep in my berth up to within about five minutes before the boat sank. I was awakened by some dishes falling off from the top of a small cupboard in my room, which broke on the floor, and immediately rushed on deck and realized that something serious had happened. Returning to my room promptly I put on my blue suit of clothes over my pyjamas, put on a thin, light overcoat, slipped into my shoes and then tried to find a life preserver. Looking under the bed and in all corners of the room I was not able to find one, but found afterwards that they were located on top of the wardrobe.

"By this time the boat was leaning on her side so badly that I realized it was dangerous to stay inside, and decided to take my chance without a life preserver, and started for the deck. In going thru the doorway to the promenade deck another passenger passed me hurriedly with three life preserv-ers, and in his haste he dropped one of them, which I picked up and put on. There were several ladies and children standing around the door asking what to do, and the deck at this time was on such an angle that it was impossible to stand without leaning against the cabin. Crawled to the Rail, "The attendants continually advised them that there was no danger. After helping several ladies and men to apply their life preservers, I advised them to get overboard. It was neces-sary to practically crawl on your hands and knees to the rail, and as I reached the rail the boat gave a very bad lurch throwing a large number of people against the cabin, and I think that many of them were seri ously injured. "At this time the boat was position where it was very easy to practically walk down the side of the vessel, and when I was quite near the water's edge I looked around to what was taking place, and was able A FEDERAL BUREAU to note particularly the people on the front end of the boat trying to launch a life raft, and the propellor on the rear end sticking out of the water, so that if there was any fog when we collided it actually had totally dis-

I immediately dove in head first, my object being to be as far away from the boat when she sank as possible. I was only able to take about six or went down, down, in fact I thought that I never would stop, and certainly was a long time coming up. Then our troubles really began.

> "It was a case of everybody for themselves, and with everyone trying to save their lives, screaming and shouting for help, and it was very difficult to make much headway for a few minutes. These who could restream minutes. Those who could swim were seriously handicapped by others trying o hold them down, and it was very necessary to push them off in order to save yourself. There were many sad sights, not pleasant to think of, and the water was extremely cold; they say about thirty-four degrees. We could plainly see the boat that hit us, off at our left and a little bit to the east, and I was fortunate to be able to swim within about fifty feet of it, and was in the water about threequarters of an hour. "A great many of the passengers who were making good progress swimming, and with life preservers, were overcome, and those who did not have life preservers on we could see sink out of sight as we passed them., Many Died in Cabins. "I feel very glad, of course, to be one of those who were saved, and in looking over the several hundred bodies which were picked up afterwards, it was mighty hard to understand why some were taken and others were not. The boat sank so quickly that no one had time to make any preparation. Many went down in their cabins. The stewards had no time to call the passengers, I, personally, think that a great many of them did not even try to save themselves until the very last, as it seemed so incrediable that a great big ocean liner like the Empress

I slid down to the water's edge; then an explosion occurred. As the ship gave the final lurch I plunged into the water, and the suction of the sinking vessel pulled me down to a great depth. When I came to the surface I started to swim, and a young lady, whom I afterwards learned was Miss Thompson, swam up alongside of me, and asked me to help her. I caught a passing suitcase, which was floating about, and by means of this, on which we both. held, we kept affoat for half an hour. The girl was a good swimmer, but was mpeded by her heavy overcoat, which I finally managed to get off her. She wore no lifebelt

Some Awful Scenes.

"As long as I live," continued Mr. Burt, "I shall never forget the awful scenes which I witnessed in this disaster. The sight when the ship went down-Oh God, it was awful; men tried to pull me under with them and amid the struggling mass of humanity arms and legs came in contact with floating bodies as I swam. I recalled one striking scene before the ship went down. As the passengers rushed on deck an officer approached by a lady, who asked him what were the instructions; the only answer she received was that there were none. I intervened then and said: 'For God's sake get a lifebelt,' and she did so."

Motoring Dust Nuisance Mastered

You must have noticed that the grass and flowers which grow within fifty yards or more of much-used macadam roads are ofttimes as grey-looking as the road itself.

Motoring Did That!

Because all tires create a certain amount of dust, some motorists are unaware that one make of tire creates less dust than the others. That Tire is DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD.

Less dust in motoring means more comfort for everybody---those in your car, those in the passing car, those in the on-coming car, those wending their way as pedestrians.

66 Cubic Inches Larger No Loosened Treads

Never Did Rim-Cut Only Real Anti-Skid

Road suction is the cause of the dust disturbance. It is also the cause of heated treads. Naturally a tire which churns up less dust because it comes in less contact with the road also heats up less and air-cools itself that much quicker.

Well, to see the point we are leading to all you have to do is examine the first DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD you come across. That will be very soon.

Once you press one of your fingers on one of the DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD "V's" and note its solidity, you will quickly see that the air space between it and the next "V" never touches the ground--is always clear for the circulation of air. No other tire has this feature. That's why every other make of tires raises more dust than DUNLOP TRACTION TREAD.

Mrs. Beverung and her cook, who supervised the service, are not used to cooking for a lot of circus "huskies," however, and they served them all the delicacies of the season, something the workmen were not used to. They did not like to complain. For a couple of days they rather enjoyed the novelty. But they were unable to work with their customary vim and vigor. Lemon pie, strawberry shortcake and ice cream, in addition to a combination salad, for dinner yesterday noon, however, capped the climax. It wasn't long before the circus men were rolling under the tents in agony. Mr. Beverung thought the men were poisoned and telephoned for Dr. James J. Heffron, No. 416 Grand avenue. The physician soon had the men back to their normal condition.

A number of the canvas men, black and white, have been living and sleeping under the tents and eating in a "The men were simply suffering from acute gastritis," said the doctor. "They were not accustomed to living so high and their stomachs naturally reduced."

HUGE HIPPODROME MAY BE BUILT BY MONTREAL SPORTS

Greatest Structure in America to Accommodate Sport of All Kinds is Planned

MANY MILLIONS ARE INVOLVED IN PROJECT

Special to The Sunday World.
MONTREAL, July 18.—Montreal may have the greatest hippodrome in America at an early date, if the welllaid plans of the sporting fraternity of the city do not miscarry. On the site of the old high school, Peel street, a little north of St. Catherine street, the great play house will rise. Some idea of what it will be like may be gathered from the fact that two years ago next month the site was sold to the present owner at public auction for $1,380,000. This was at the rate of fifteen dollars a square foot.

vou

Millions of dollars are involved in the project, but if street stories are to be credited, the cash is in sight and the great plan is likely to be realized: It will give the city the most magnificent home for sport on the continent, both summer and winter. The plan as it is outlined at present is for the removal of the high school when it is vacated by the Protestant Board of School Commissioners, and the erec-tion thereon of an enormous hippodrome, to accommodate every class of sport at every season of the year. There will be rinks for the hockey fans, probably an artificial ice plant, so that slush ice and abandoned games will be a thing of the past. There will be, too, arenas where boxing bouts can be pulled off under the most favorable and comfortable circumstances. Every sport that the pleasure lovers of the city desire will be provided for in the new hippodrome.

Mr. James E. Wilder, who purchased the block two years ago for $1,380,000 would not discuss the question when a Sunday World reporter asked him about the rumor today.

He admitted, however, that the completion of the new High School on University street would mean that most of the classes would be vacating the old building when school opened

On the street it is known that an attempt is under way to float shares and bonds in the big venture. The "feeler" is said to have been success ful, so promising that the moving spirits in the plans are satisfied that a company can be floated to buy the property and erect the huge structure and finance the project.

been granted assistance by the City of Maisonneuve in the erection of a million-dollar building, which will seat 9,000 people. The site has been purchased on St. Catharine street east, the plans are ready and some steel is

"CHEATERS" FIND EASIEST MARKS IN SECOND CLASS

Therefore They Prefer Traveling Thus Unpretentiously Themselves, Says a Detective.

WOMEN SHARPERS ALSO AMONG VOYAGERS NOW

The discovery of five gamblers aboard the Lusitania on her latest westward trip reminded a detective of an experience he had this summer.
A woman traveling second class on one of the English lines had played poker with four men during the pas-sage and loaned money to one of them. In port the borrower complained that the woman had robbed him, and it became the duty of the detective to take the woman, an American, into the smoking room of the second class and lock the door and search her. He found on her a roll of $2,300.

"Where did this come from? "You look like a nice fellow and I'll tell you," said the woman, "It's the proceeds of a robbery, and the man who's kicking was in on it and got his share. Twice he tried to rob me of my share. He's a gambler, a parasite and a thief."

"What could I do?" said the detective

"The gamblers are traveling second class now. That's where the rich pickings are. The first class is penned out. Among the second class are suckers who have saved their earnings for the gamblers. The prosperous farmers from the west are very wise in their own conceit. In fact they're easy marks."

"White Slaves of the Atlantic." The crooked gamblers cross and re-cross so frequently that the women adventurers, known as "white slaves of the Atlantic," know them. These women are known to the detectives but to few of their fellow passengers along the Chelsea section on the Manhattan side and sail from the Hoboken side. Just now they are not sailing away on the biggest ships. They pick out a likely victim on board, make his acquaintance, invite him to a rendevous ashore, where he is plucked. On the Lusitania's last trip etxra warnings were displayed. The lines now have a warning printed in red ink which is hung up as soon as a gambler is discovered. Sometimes when the smoking room steward goes to breakfast the gambler tears down the red card. When the steward returns he hangs up another. Some times, but not often, a steward becomes too friendly with the pirates; then he's transferred and occasionally given a reduced rating. Gambler and Swindler Aboard. It is now the custom of steamships as soon as a professional gambler is discovered aboard to send a wireless the detectives ashore on each side of the ocean informing them of the fact, so that he may be spotted as scon as he goes ashore. The Jersey and Manhattan detectives meet and check up together on the gamblers. Each gambler has a "foundation" name, generally his real name, and by this he is known to the detectives. One gambler has been going out on one of the German lines and return-ing regularly from Liverpool on a big British line.

The White Star line, according to the detective, as soon as a gambler spotted displays a red sign reading:
"We have aboard this ship a gambler and swindler."

PET OF HIS CHILDHOOD LIKE MARY'S LAMB.

WASHINGTON, July 18 .- Nelson R. Wood, a taxidermist at the Smithsoni- out touching a morsel an Institute here, after having made practically a life study of the crows, claims it is the most intelligent bird with the crow since his boyhood.

"In my youth," he said, "I was a I possessed was a crow given me by my teacher. This crow, Jack, became something of a Mary's little lamb pet. No matter where I went he would be near. When I was out working in the field he would hang around looking for food. Sometimes I would catch a worm and would call out, 'Come here, Jack, and see what I've found,' and over he and see what I've found,' and over he they are least they immediately stop to remove it. and see what I've found,' and over he would scurry and gobble it up. The wild crows, incidently, did everything they could to coax him back with them, and while Jack refused he lived in than repays any one for the time and constant terror of them.

'I have seen some wonderful in-stances of intelligence on the part of companions." crows," Mr. Wood continued. "One bird I remember took a keen delight in tobogganing. He would take a shoe blacking box top to the top of a board which leaned against the house, climb into it and slide down. This seemed to be his chief pleasure and one in Tried to Handle a Pitchwhich he was ready to indulge at all times. Another crow preferred his soaked in water. One day I caught him picking around a jar top dropped his bread in it, and then picking the top up, took it over to his After holding it under the water for a second he proceeded to ear the bread with evident relish.

The Split Tongue Myth. "I do not believe in that popular fallacy that crows have to have their tongues split before they will talk. Of the numerous birds I have had I have the numerous birds I have had I have found that they either talked or did not, regardless of split tongues. And being a girl, and Marie confessed. furthermore, when a crow does talk I tone of voice. One crow of mine tried for a long time to imitate that greeting and my reply. The first part he had little trouble with, but my low renad little trouble with, but my low rejoinder he could not get. Finally, however, he succeeded. With his head in the air he would sing out 'Hello, Wood', then down would go his head into his water trough and out would come that down 'hello,' the exact duplicate of mine.

"In studying crows I have noted certain characteristics. While crows are exceptionally intelligent they are at the same time abnormally afraid. Their fear is silly, and as many times as not without foundation. One bird I had was afraid of a soda cracker. The mere sight of it sent him scuttling to his perch, and so long as it remained in perch, and so long as it remained in perch, and so long as it remained in evidence he could not be coaxed down. He was equally afraid of a swinging door. Another bird was afraid of black to the extent that a black the affected him the same as an entire black suit. Still another feared peanuts. ### ACCEPTS HOME AND STATUARY

They Had Nothing to Do But Accept—Only Condition That It Was Not to Be Removed or Draped.

CINCINNATI, July 18 .-- A $200,000 mansion, furnished complete, provided write or the occupants should not drape or disturb the statuary, is what the Salvation Army has fallen heir to in Covington, Ky.

Several months ago a meek, retiring woman called upon Brigadier Dunham, representative of the Salvation Army in Cincinnati. She informed him that she was Mrs. Bradford Shinkle and had decided to give her residence to the Salvation Army, to be used as a woman's training school, where domestic science would occupy first place in the curriculum. As the place cost more than $200,000, the brigadier nearly fainted when informed that it was the Salvation Army's for the mere

But the quiet woman stipulated that none of the statuary should be re-moved, draped or in any way tam-pered with. She declared that no member of the family would tolerate any attempt on the part of any person to improve on the work of the famous trouble they may put in training them, they are more than mere pets, they are

Brigadier Dunham communicated the wonderful offer to headquarters and also the conditions under which it was offered, which by this time had become neighborhood gossip, and it was being said that every piece of sculpture would suggest evil thoughts. Commander Eva Booth commis-sioned Colonel Margaret Bevill, secretary of the women's and children's departments, to go to Covington and report if the objections were well founded. Mrs. Bevill, who is the mother of five children, visited the home, and after careful examination strongly recommended that it be accepted and that all the conditions be scrupulously observed. "There is nothing that any pure-minded person could possibly regard as suggestive in the statuary," said Mrs. Bevill. "If any are so far gone as to permit such splendid trophies of the sculptors' art to lead them into perilous ways they must be lost to all that is decent and good," added Mrs.

There are censcrious persons who actually believe that the government never had any intention to reform the house of lords. That was the flag waved before an enlightened democracy in order to get back to office, so that the old-time power of the peers should be destroyed in order that home rule should be passed without the people having a say on the matter. Ministers got a mandate for one thing and proceeded to do another. If they had carried out what was indicated on political platforms all the brainless and chinless belted ear's and others who marry ballet girls would have been swept out of existence, and we should have had substituted a strong, virile second chamber in which the electorate could have confidence. But all the despicable beings who, according to radical orators, hobble round gilded chamber still remain; and there is the fact, which no poor the latter of the latter o there is the fact, which no poor ber men who had spent the major Unionist can possibly understand, part of their lives in the diplomatic that the government, for money down, have been honoring their most distinguished supporters by making them members of this awful chamber more rapidly than any government has ever done in the/whole history of also constant to the support of their lives in the diplomatic service—men who have served in Fekin and Paris, Constantinople and Copenhagen, Washington and Madrid, Canada, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

Also, I should like to see men who have held high positions in the army not found the time to carry out the reform which they were primarily returned to accomplish. That the second chamber as at present constituted is very much of an anachronism nobody will deny. Excepting, however, a small number of wild men who sit on the back benches of the house of commons there is a general helief members pro tem. of the second chamof commons, there is a general belief that we should have a second chamber, not to thwart public opinion, but

The great point, however, is to create an unblased senate, which I admit, the present house of lords is not. Let us frankly recognize that a second chamber based solely on the horeditary principle is out of datenotwithstanding the manner in which hereditary principle is out of date—notwithstanding the manner in which it is being bolstered up by the Radical party. It does not, however, necessarily follow that because a man is a peer he is a fool. Indeed, the speeches by peers are quite as competent as those by paid politicions. If by any extraordinary freak of fortune, the onerous task were placed upon the following party. Sensible men, if they look at the question with open minds. Will. I believe, be inclined to agree with me. The misfortune is that when the government takes the reform of the house of lords in hand—if it ever does—it will do so from a party advantage point of view, and not from that of national confidence and national welfare. However, we must be national welfare.

I would also take care that in the re-ormed house what is called the elect-ve principle should not apply. What

CAN BRITAIN BE STARVED

Story of the Trouble Eng-

LONDON, July 18 .- A country of panic-stricken, starving millions. Of men and women fleeing in their tens of thousands from towns and villages to escape death by starvation and violence. A country of people striving to keep alive by eating bark from the trees and weeds from the ground, while mobs of desperate women, who had seen their infants perish before their eyes, murder public officials in their madness for bread. Rioting and mob-law everywhere, and the govern-ment unable to cope with the situation, the lives of the prime minister and the foreign secretary being continually threatened and occasionally attempted. Bread and everything eatable is at prohibitive prices.

And the cause? Merely four submarines, belonging to a tiny state with the Bristol Channel at the western entrance to the Solent, their mission being to blow up all vessels carrying food supplies to England. And they succeed, with their deadly torpedoes, which we are at war-two operating at

I am giving nothing away in saying that all M.P.'s are subject to the influence of their constituents and party loyalty, and occasionally do things which individually they would avoid. This applies to both sides of the house, and you have only to think of the main interest of a man's division to know the way in which he will vote. It is this which causes Liberals who represent dockyard

"The whole system of naval architecture and the methods of computing naval strength are brought under review by the ever-growing power, radius and seaworthiness of the submarine, and by the increasing range and accuracy of its fatal torpedoes."

That is what Mr. Winston Churchill said in March last, and what Sir Percy Scott is now saying.

In the opinion of Sir Percy Scott, dreadnoughts are doomed, and the power lies with the vessels which operate under the waves. Sir Conan Doyle voices these same sentiments and to back up his views gives the views of many prominent men on the subject. Possibly the most significant of these is that of Admiral William Hannam Henderson who, while admitting that he does not think that, in spite of the development of the Subpression which has modified the assertion which are the entrances of the chan-fiel and the entrances of the chan-fiel and the lifts from the irrish Sea.

Very trenchant too, is the criticism of Mr. Arnold White, author of The Navy and Its Story. After Queen Helena, one of the most charming royal women is the Princess Gisella of Bavaria, daughter of the Emperor of Austria and wife of Prince Leopold of Bavaria. "You would not call her face pretty," says Mr. Baumann, "but her figure is exceptional. You could span her waist with the fingers of both hands. The Princess Gisella has undoubtedly the tiniest waist of any of the Queens or Princesses of Europe.

Another interesting royal personage who has faced Mr. Baumann's camera, is Prince Dr. Ludwig Ferdinand, the uncle of the King of Spain, who conducts a large hospital at Munich at his own expense. Immense Sums Sent Back From America Influence Decision

ST. PETERSBURG. July 18,-Russia is about to recognize as legitimate the emigration of her surplus millions to countries other than those in Europe, and the ministry of commerce today submitted to the cabinet a bill to abolish some of the penalties hitherto attaching to unauthorized

The bill in its preamble specially alludes to the 281,000 emigrants from Russia to America last year, and also to the fact that $50,000,000 was remitted to Russia in 1918 by Russian subjects who have settled on the other side of the Atlantic.

In place of the expensive passports which heretofore have been necessary for everybody desiring to depart from Russia, permits will be issued at the cost of only ten cents in future. The fine of $7.50 half-yearly until now inflicted on absentees who have been more than six months abroad is to be abolished in the case of those returning on board Russian steamers.

The bill also provides for the establishment of a fund to assist emigrants in Russian ports and abroad and for the appointment of a special commission to defend their interests in foreign countries. Emigration agents by one clause of the bill are made liable to imprisonment for holding out false inducements to emi-

IN THE Interstate Commerce Commission's report on its findings in the New Haven inquiry, a system of financing unknown to the average investor has been revealed. How millions have been massed to the advantage of a few and at the expense of many, has been told. It has been said that the report was designed for political purposes. Whether that he the age of a few and at the expense of many, has been told. It has been said that the report was designed for political purposes. Whether that be the case or not the fact remains that the public has had an insight into the workings of a big concern engineered by so-called "big men."

The statement was strely a disaptive of the reason yield up to expectations because of that it spoke as the building was thru for the present. Other railways are just beginning so that the absence of the sums for employment on the one hand will be balanced by the presence of other sums for a like purpose, but under different control under different control under different control. Their alleged way of gaining wealth will not meet with public approval, and the man of lesser , eans is consider-ably wiser than before the report was made. Just what the outcome will be, none can say. It is hoped, however, that it will comprise only one of many sound footings upon which a new and the continuation of the work under more successful period may be based. contemplation a new impetus will be N. 8. It points out that not for the present are English investors ready to take up any great load. There is no doubt, but that the announcement made by the official receiver for the Chaplin, Milne Grenfell firm had some influence in this regard. It is stated that there would be no surplus for shareholders.

Revelations have been made having a strong feature of education upon which the general public will base future investments. In the series of events which have transpired disappointments have come to a few, but the fact that they have gone one point further in bringing about an adjustment makes them of importance.

HRU its president, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has issued a statement calculated to lay at rest any apprehensions as to new financing by that company. The statement was a qualified one. It had the desired effect for the time being, however, and came at a very opportune time. The company's stock has touched the lowest level since 1909. It is probably true that more mining enterprises have failed because stockholders declined to recognize their individual responsibility, than because officers and directors were derelict in their duties. It is an unfortunate thing from all standpoints that, in this country at least, the average stockholder in a mining company buys his stock with no thought of assuming any repsonsibilty whatever.

If it were not for the fact that the majority interest is usually in the hands of a few directors it would be almost impossible to hold stockholders' meetings, because stockholders neither attend themselves nor furnish proxies. This finds repeated illustration in unsuccessful attempts to hold such meetings when stock is widely scattered and more especially when a company has been idle for a year or two.

Some areas of our prairies will not yield up to expectations because of early drouth. This is overbalanced to a large degree, however, by the fact that other sections will go beyond the wrong and when the company remains for many years at a standstill, it is the stockholders themselves that are apt to be most to blame. There are numerous companies right at the present time whose officers or acting managers are making most strenuous efforts to galvanize them into new life, but whose stockholders are so indifferent to their own interests that it is practically imand the forfeiture of his stock may seem unjust.

Even in such a case it should be remembered that without some plan for providing funds not only he, but all other stockholders would lose everything previously invested in the company. He would be no better off, and others would lose with him. It is one of the arguments in favor of assessable stock that, to certain extent at least, it removes from the enterprise the speculative element of the unreliability of stockholders. Trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange on Saturday was by no means active, but sentiment, if judged by prices, was much improved over that of a week ago. Brazilian, still accepted as the pivot of speculative action, was carried to Friday's high point of 75, a rise of over four points from the low of Wednesday. LONDON ENDED WEEK QUIETLY, DEPRESSED

NEW YORK, July 18 .- The London correspondent of the Evening Post cables as follows: The American financalles as tollows: The American financial position, in so far as your stock market reflected it this week, is occasioning some disquiet. The Economist says teday that no difference of opinion exists concerning the fact of economic depression in the States but that opinion diverges widely as to that opinion diverges widely as to

The New Haven affair this week, for instance, impressed Berlin more than London, and the Standard's Berlin correspondent says that 'the Commerce board's disclosures have evoked strong NORTH BAY, July 18.—Shipments of ore in post for the week ending July 7 were: City of Cobalt, 55,760; Cobalt Lake, 62,650; Dom. It is generally demanded, he adds, that German bankers hereafter exercise more caution in respect after exercise more caution in respec

London is also conjecturing with considerable interest whether the New York reports that the commission is to York reports that the commission is to examine into New York Central are true or not. All these things add to our interest in your fortbeaming rajlway rate decision. It is impossible for us to guage; the ultimate would be discounted by the heavy working expenses. The recognized bright spot in your situation is still the undoubted excellence of your crops, coming when Europe will need abundant shipments from your surplus. This week the Russian true or reports are still less favorable.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Texas & Pacific and New York, Chicago & St. Louis were among the other railways to make low prices before the downward movement halted. Midway in the session a moderate but general demand for the leaders effected an all-around recovery, with many net gains. New Haven rose two points. Bonds were irregular. The closing was strong.

erop reports are still less favorable the the French outlook is better, and is is even hoped that the wheat crop may not be much smaller than last year's good yield. In Germany, the important rye crop promises to exceed 1913, and wheat to give an average yield.

We are not greatly surprised at the non-responsiveness of your markets to Huerta's resignation. Its political importance is recognized, but our people do not yet feel that the Mexican tension is itself greatly relieved by it. The very exceptional movements at the Bank of France, where loans, after expanding by the enormous sum of £59,800,000, two weeks ago, were as suddenly reduced £66,000,000 this past week, are entirely due to the credit operations conducted by applicants for the great French loan of July 7 In spite of the huge success of the subscription, conditions at Paris are still abnormal, and confidence still seemingly lacking on the part of the French public.

As for our own market, the Ulster muddle still dominates the position; for the stock exchange feels that any actual outbreak of hostilities would mean collapse in trade and a break in home stocks. It does not seem to be expected that bars, plates and other products will be advanced before the latter part of this month, at earliest. On the other hand, it is thought by many authori-ties that when the upward movement in the prices of such products begins, it will be rapid and some authorities predict that normal price levels will be reached before the end of the year. Pig iron markets are quiet, but there are slight signs of improvement, particularly in and around New York. Prices are nominally unchanged, but producers, as a rule, are now refus-ing concessions and have turned down orders rather than shade.

HOGS GROW FAT ON RIVER MUSSELS

Razorbacks Come Out of the Woods for Food and Aid the Pearl Fishers.

COTTER, Ark., July 18.—Many hogs have come down out of the woods of White River and are getting fat by following the pearl fishers and eating the flesh of the mussels that have been torn from the shells by the hopeful ones engaged in the industry.

In some places this is reversed. Mussel shells are bringing a good price this year, and the low stage of the White River has uncovered many gravel bars and the hogs are rooting the mussels out of these. A few min-utes in the hot sun causes them to open their shells, and the hog soon has a meal. Pearl fishers and shell gatherers watch these droves of hogs when they are working on a gravel and after they are thru they follow them, picking up the shells, which

The unusually dry summer has cut short much of the wild forage that hogs eat on the range, and they have visitors to Australia or people who, turned to the river as a means of subsistence and are waxing fat on the unusual diet. They do not confine all their operations to the exposed gravel | we hardly do as much as we might in bars either, but like the pearl fishers do a little fishing themselves. At the ferryboat landing at Sylamore, a little town in lard County on the White River, is a drove of hogs that persistently fish in the shallow water in a mussel bed. It is no uncommon sight to see this drove up to their backs in water, diving down and rooting the mussels up from the bed of the river and carrying them to the bank, where they crack the shells and eat them. They are as persistent in their ef-forts as the most hopeful pearl fisher on the river.

CONVICT HAD CLOTHES READY FOR ESCAPE

Special to The Sunday World.

KINGSTON, July 18.—A stoker at the penitentiary, while shoveling coal, found a suit of civilian's clothes tucked away in a small wooden box and hidden among coal, thereby showing up a plan one of the convicts had to make his escape. The suit belonged to parole prisoner J. Cardinal who was brought to the penitentiary this week.

An investigation is now being made to ascertain why the clothing was not destroyed in the furnace, as is the custom. One or more convicts have made their escape at opportune time by changing their striped suits fo civilians' suits, and Cardinal had seven more years to serve and would be given a new suit on leaving. Or-ders were given for his suit to be put in the furnace, but evidently one of the guards neglected his work. It is the duty of the guards to stand by and see that the clothing is destroyed.

Lord Denman Suggests That Australians Be Made Honorary Members of the English Clubs.

THIS COULD ALSO APPLY TO CANADIANS

LONDON, July 18 .- From Lord Denman, ex-Governor-General of Australia, who has recently returned to England, comes a useful suggestion, which applies quite as strongly to Canadians visiting London as it does to Australians. He says:

"When I think of all the hospitality that is shown to Englishmen-either like myself, held official positions in the country, I sometimes consider that England to reciprocate the hospitality shown over there. For instance, I think it would be a good thing if mem-bers of recognized clubs in Australia could more often be made honorary members of our London clubs when visiting this country. And that remark especially applies to the racing clubs, because in Australia, at the great race meeting there are practically no stands and enclosures exclusivereserved for club members, whereas here it is different. near London, like Sandown and Kempton, it would be difficult to take ladies in comfort unless one could take them into a club enclosure. ## Sale of Slightly Scratched Buffets

For all practical purposes these buffets are just as good as new. In fact, they are new except that we've used them on our floors as samples to show customers, and they've become slightly scratched in being shifted about. While the slight marks can hardly be noticed, they prevent us from selling these buffets in the regular way, so to dispose of them quickly we have marked them extremely low for Monday and Tuesday only, and, in addition, placed terms on them that put them within reach of almost every home in the city.

The prices will prevail only on Monday and Tuesday until store closes at 9 p.m.

of Montmartre, 'Radet" Which Dates Back Five Centuries, Is to Be Removed.

PARIS, July 18.—Practical and picturesque Holland continues to use her old windmills for active service, but France is turning hers either into public dance halls or raising them to the dignity of historical monuments to be admired as curiosities in generations to come.

This glory has befallen the "Radet," the patriarch of windmills, the oldest survivor of a group located on the heights of Montmartre, which dates from the 13th century, and has

Here's a Safe Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 lbs. of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh.

Permanent Fiesh.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat, I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to use Sargol, the recently discovered regenerative force that is recommended so highly by physicians here and abroad. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, covering each bony angle and propjecting point. Good druggists have Sargol, or can get it from their wholesaler and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

sent position in the very heart of the sensationally gay and risque plea-sures that infest Montmartre to a quiet square not far from the towering cathedral, the Sacred Heart. Its present proprietor, August Debray, has given it to the Society of Old Paris, and so it is to be transplanted like a huge tree to the "place" Jean-Baptiste Clement, where its weather stained, misshapen timbers will form as strange a spectacle as a colossal ship stranded on dry land. This will be the second removal that the "Radet" has experienced. It was first located on the butte Saint-Roche and dates back to 1268. In 1834 when Montmartre was but a farming dis-trict and a suburb of the capital, when windmills dotted the horizon like giant pinwheels as seen from the city lying below, the "Radet" was transported from Saint-Roche to its present site. The archives of the abbey of the Benedictines of Montmartre record of this veteran mill, and from it is learned that the ancestors of the present proprietor in the 14th century rented it from this religious order. Toward the year 1640, a descendant of this same family, who are said to be the oldest millers in France, bought gan the windmill dance halls of Montmartre that are today such an enticing magnet for tourists.

65TH BUFFALO BAND AT HANLAN'S POINT

Program for Sunday-Splendid Band Here Another Week. Prof. Powell and the 65th Regiment

Band of Buffalo now firmly established with the musical lovers of Toronto, enters into the second week of his engagement Sunday at the Point. For a great many years Mr. Powell been catering to the general public's musical wants and he has succeeded in making a successful study in sup-plying just the proper programs. His organization is a splendid one and he introduces novelties in the way of solos not generally looked for from a regimental band of particular note, his xylophone soloist has no equal. During the course of an afternoon or evening program he never fails to add some novel musical touch that takes the crowd by storm. The success of the fireworks display during the past week has prompted the Toronto Ferry Co., to retain this feature for two more exhibits, they will be given on Wednesday and Friday evenings, July 23 and 24. The usual fireworks display announcement means very little to the public, but these pyrotechnical exhibits are of a very high order and not to be ranked with the ordinary. It is aim of the Ferry Co., to the l'cint distinctive in free exhibi-

After Johnson's Great Work in | Opening Game, Manager Kelley Was After a Double Victory — The Game in

By a Staff Reporter,

ISLAND STADIUM. July 18.—The extistanding feature of the first game of the double-header was the classy work of Johnson, pitching for Toronto. Two hits, one in the eighth and one in the ninth, with two out, were all that the Bisons could collect off his deceptive delivery. For six innings he mowed them down in a row, three men facing him in each innings and not a man reaching first. In the seventh he wobbled a little, passing two men, but he recovered quickly, and a fly and a strike out retired the side. It was as smooth a bit of pitching as has been easen here in a long time. With such work on the slab the Torontos had an easy victory. They started out and tallied two runs in the first on two hits two steals and an error, and in the third added three more on two walks and three singles. Verbout was taken such in his innings with one out, one san in and the bases full and Jamieson went in. Another hit brought the total to the five, which proved to be the fihal score, the it looked like more at a couple of stages. In the second game the line-up was unchanged, with the exception of the batteries Herbert and Eritchell working for Toronto and Brandon and Stephens for Buffalo. It was agreed to call this game at the end of the seventh. The line-up;

POPE ENDORSES MYSTERY PAGEANT

By receiving Maria Carmi, chief actballs and stole second, Lalonge making a bad throw. Pick beat out a hit to ress of "The Miracle," and by sending second. Fisher's hit bounded over his secretaries to see a presentation in special private audience. They had a long conversation. The Pope talked at length about the influence and purport of "The Miracle." He said that he had received a highly favorable report concerning the mystery drama from his secretaries whom he had sent to witness a presentation. Maria Carmi plays the part of the Madonna in "The Miracle." She is known as "the lady with the Botti-celli face." Taking the role of the Madonna constitutes her sole dramatic experience, yet because of this one part she is famous as a great actress all over Europe.

When Max Reinhardt, the producer; son rapped to Fitzpatrick and was thrown out. Each filed to Kroy. No runs, no hits, no errors.

TORONTO—Pick doubled to centation of "The Miracle" at Olympic in the composer. Karl Vollmoeller, the author, and tation of "The Miracle" at Olympia in London, in 1911, it was their idea to use an effigy for the Madonna. But strom. PITTSBURG, Pa., July 18.-Hans Wagner has succumbed to golf, along with many of his well-known associates on some of the other major eague teams. A story is going the rounds of a prodigious drive brought Wagner is declared to be a wonde when allowed to play under his own He likes to tee up his ball with rules. He likes to tee up his ball with considerable sand underneath. He took a notion one day that he would like to drive a ball from the top of a high mountain near the town "just to see what the ball would do." Wagner climbed to the top and teed up his usual method and drove away. Those who say they saw it declare the great shortstop's ball flew straight and far across the valley and completely over the town.

ROSEDALES CLASH WITH MONTREAL

Fast Toronto Aggregation Have Glorious Battle at Montreal—Summary

Special to The Sunday World. ONTREAL July 18.—The weather glorious for the clash between the edales and the M.A.A.A. bunch. About two thousand spectators were on hand to witness the contest. The rontos presented the same line-up s in former matches, while there were some changes in the winged wheel aggregation. Johnny Layden, the fast ome fielder, was missing, and will be seen in future on the Shamrock lineup. Tobin, a new goal minder, was in the nets, while McDonald was absent from the home, another new man, McGee, replacing him. The teams and officials:

M.A.A.A.—Goal, Tobin; point, Brady; cover, Kenna; defence, Anderson, Valade, Rafferty; centre, Colligan; home, McNamara McGee, W. Waish; outside, J. Walsh; inside, McIntyre.

Rosedale—Goal, Holmes; point, Harshaw; dover, Yeamans; defence, Powers. B. Green, Braden; centre, T. Fitzgerald; home, Harber, W. Fitzgerald, G. Green; outside, Murton; inside, Barnett.

Referee—M. Cooney. Judge of play

T. Fitzgerald; home, Barber, W. Fitzgerald, G. Green; outside, Murton; inside, Barnett.

Referee—M. Cooney. Judge of play—Dess Brown.

The first quarter was keenly contested and for fully two-thirds of the time the winged wheel bunch more than held their own, but the bad passing and erratic shooting on the home end lost Montreal several good chances. The new goal-minder of the M.A.A.A. proved himself worthy of the occasion. The first goal of this quarter was scored by McGee for Montreal, followed by three goals for Rosedale, in which Murton, Green, Tom and Billy Fitzgerald and Barnett figured, the last named doing all the scoring. Rosedale 3, M.A.A.A. 1

Second Quarter.

The second quarter was all in favor of Rosedale, who gave a fine exhibition of brilliant stick handling, quick passing and accurate shooting. The M.A. A. bunch were held scoreless during the quarter, while Rosedale scored three goals the scorers being T. Fitzgerald, W. Fitzgerald and Powers.

CHAMPIONSHIP COST WELSH BIG MONEY

NEW YORK, July 18 .- While Freddie Welsh, the English champion, won the world's lightweight championship title from Willie Ritchie in a twenty- PARKDALE HAVE round battle at the Olympia, London, he not only did not receive a dollar for his victory, but was out of pocket about $500, spent for training ex-guarantee and the rest for his rights in the moving pictures.

The gross receipts amounted to $21,000, which was far below the sum both Welsh and Promoter Cochran figured would be taken in at the box office. They had expected that the receipts would surely reach $35,000.

Promoter Cochran has probably lost over $10,000 on the contest, but as he made over $15,000 on the shows he held at the same arena on June, 29, when Bombardier Wells, the English heavy-weight champion, met Colin Bell of Australia, and Harry Stone, the American lightweight, boxed Johnny Summers, the English weierweight, he is still several thousand dollars to the good.

The gross receipts of the twentyround fight between Jack Johnson, the world's heavyweight champion, and Frank Moran of Pittsburg, which was fought in Paris on June 27, were 386,200. This fight proved a money maker for all concerned, for after 10 per cent. of the receipts were taken out-for the poor of France, which figured up $3620, Johnson received 50
Ler cent. of the remaining $32,580, per cent. of the remaining $32,580, which made his end $16,290, while which made his end $16,290, while Moran and his manager, Dan McKet-rick and Theodore Vienne, the promoter of the battle, divided the remaining $16,290.

WELLINGTONS' ERRORS COST THEM THE GAME

Wellington and Park Nine were the opposing teams in the first game in the Toronto Senior City League. Wellingtons played loose ball in the field and Park Nine took every advantage, scoring seven runs on two hits and nine errors. Pitcher Hawkins dislocated his finger stopping a line drive. Hallinan, the new umpire, did not show up, so Spence umpired satisfactorily. Score:

EASY WIN FROM ALPS

Parkdale defeated the Alps in a game that was more interesting than the score denotes. After holding the winners well in hand till the sixth in-Weish lost money on the fight because he agreed to split even with Fight Promoter Charles Cochran on the money left after Willie Ritchie, the American champion, was paid his $25,000, of which $15,000 was for a guarantee and the rest for his rights in the moving pictures.

The gross receipts amounted to Franks' hit to centre.

GOOD BOWLING BY WARWICKSHIRE

LONDON, July 18 .- One of the most astonishing bowling feats in the annals of cricket was accomplished a few weeks ago in the Worcestershire vs. Warwickshire cricket match at Dudley, Field, Warwickshire's fast bowler, created a sensation by taking six wickets for two runs. He took the wickets of Stevens and Taylor with successive deliveries.

This is the second best performance given by any bowler in first-class cricket in this country. The record is held by Pougher, who took five wickets for no runs against the Australians at Lord's in 1896. The match in which Field distinguished himself was also remarkable for the splendid batting of Foser, who compiled 305 runs for Warwickshire in one innings.

BENNY KAUFF BEST BATSMAN IN AMERICA

Russell Ford Considers Indianapolis Fed the Pick of the Bunch.

NEW YORK, July 18—According to Russell Ford, a former Yankee pitcher, who jumped to the Buffeds, the test batsman in America today is Benny Kauff, a member of the Indianapolis Feds, who is leading the Gilmore league in hitting. Kauff was picked up by the Yankees in 1911 when Hal Chase was manager, but the youngster was turned loose because he lacked experience. He was a natural hitter then, but Chase refused to waste any time with him Kauff drifted to the New London Club of the Eastern Association and last of the Eastern Association and last season he led that league in the averages with .345, making 176 hits 185 games.

ages with .646, maxing 176 mes and 185 games.

Kauff accepted a Fed offer early this year and was assigned to the Hoosiers, All pitchers have been comparatively easy for him, and he also has been remarkably successful in stealing bases. He has developed into a fielder of sterling quality and is a big favorite with Indianapolis fans. In speaking of Kauff's skill with the war clubs Ford boldly asserts that the youngster would excel such big hitters as Cobb, Jackson, Speaker. Collins, Daubert and others who are drawing salaries in the American and National Leagues.

WAS THE CLASS

PARIS, July 18.—There is still no finish in sight for the heavyweight tangle. The prevalent odor is still about as rank as ever. Johnson. holder, has nothing left to beat, even an ordinary fighter, but apparently there isn't even an ordinary fighter in the offing. Johnson is hanging on by default. As far as he has drifted back, he hasn't yet passed the next man coming.

Jim Jeffries over twelve years ago

killed all heavyweight competition, and in the last ten years, with a mil-lion dollars up for the winner, there hasn't come forward a single white heavyweight worth considering. Johnson has always been a great defensive fighter, but as a fighting machine he never saw the day when he could class with Jeffries or Fitz-simmons when they were at the top. As a fighting machine he doesn't rank with Langford.

The fickle goddess has certainly slipped Johnson more than his share he had to beat Tommy Burns, a second rater who was giving away forty pounds. To establish it firmly he had to beat Jeffries, who hadn't fught or trained for seven years, and who was only a shell. And to defend this title he had to meet Jim Flynn and Frank Moran—and he hasn't been able to knock even these two third raters out. Moran and Flynn are nothing but big punching bags, compiled from human flesh, and yet Johnson was able to drop neither with a wallop. At his best Johnson was a first-class helvyweight thru his wonderful defensive skill. FORZANE, Who Shows Paris What Caricaturist, It Should Wear, and Whose Genius for Dress "Sem" is Thus Echoed to the Ends of the Earth. NCE it is admitted (though sometimes with protest) that Paris is the dress capital of the world, it is only necessary to show Mlle. Forzane is Queen of Clothes in the French capital to indicate the real inspiration for many if not most of the fantasies in present day fashions. And the undisputed Queen of Clothes in Paris Mlle. Forzane surely is - "reine de la mode" they call her there. When the Parisienne goes to the races, her first solicitude is to see what Mlle. Forzane is wearing. It is the same at the opera. If she wears a conspicuously buttoned waist, short skirt and Russian tunic, these are the fashion just as soon as the modistes can get busy. If she adopts pockets, pockets are the thing. If she puts on white to match her big Russian hound, both white and Russian hound are fashionable. Those who do not see her, watch for her pictures on the Avenue de l'Opera and elsewhere. She does not say what is to be the fashion. Her dictum is worn. Thus she illustrates her opinions. Mile. Forzane herself is tall, vigorous, and has a distinction of carriage without which it would hardly be possible for any woman to fill such a role. She has rather deeply colored blond hair, brown eyes. She is handsome rather than pretty. Her pictures make her look austere. In fact she is vivacious and charming. She does not fill the office of leader solemnly, yet she feels her obligations as a good artist might feel them. And she is always-

How I Came to Invent Derlock Holm Sir Arthur Conan Doyle Describes the Origin of His Great Detective; Dr. Bell, Who Was the

Sir A. Conan Doyle as He Looks Today.

Sherlock Holmes, and DGAR ALLAN POE, whom Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has laurelled as "the world's supreme short-story writer." and "the inventor of the detective story," and Dr. Jo-Says That Doyle reph Bell, distinguished physician of Says That Doyle Edinburgh, have played vital parts in the creation of Sherlock Holmes and the shaping of his adventures. The titled biographer of the greatest detective in fiction frankly, generously has owned this indebtedness—to Poe, Greatest Sleuth That Ever detective in fiction frankly, generously next to Macaulay, for "the most pleasure and profit," and to the uncannily keen-witted Scotch analyst for the type of mind and of man that should be individualized into the fascinating Sherlock Holmes. Poet-romancer and the flesh and blocd detective-physician have been gathered to their fathers, but the author and the character influenced by their thought are alive-robustly alive in flesh and blood, and unceasingly alive in the reading of the world. Dr. Bell was one of young Doyle's instructors at the University of Edinburgh in those days when, out of his meagre allowance, he purchased the precious books that gave him the enchanted view "Through the Magic Door." And Dr. Bell's casual demonstrations in deduction took such a tenacious hold on the imagination of the newly diplomaed doctor that even in the Langman field service in South Africa, whither he went, vivid and salient among unaccustomed environment, the lean, keen-eyed figure, with its aquiline nose and long, masterful fingers, was ever in his mind. Sir Arthur admits that at first he had no intention of writing detective stories; ently one of assimilation, in which the influences of both his old instructor and his familiar "inventor of the detective story" were influencing him to what has proven the most popular achievement in literature.

The Original Sherlock Holmes.

"It was the character of Dr. Bell that gave me the idea to create a detective with remarkable powers of solving intricate and puzzling problems," said Sir Arthur to a representative of this newspaper shortly after his arrival in New York. "He was a close student of the human system and a careful observer of the smallest details. His intuitive powers in dealing with patients were sim-months old they begin to breed, so the parent pair will have great grandchildren within a year, counting from the date of the first litter. All of the progeny breeding at the same rate, the increase is enormous. This explains the terrible depredations of these rodents and how they destroy valuable food to the extent of millions of dollars each year. Formerly they were considered valuable as scavengers, but under modern methods of city sanitation they are unnecessary and are now known to be spreaders of disease, bearing germs from house to house, even from individual to individual.

The increase is so rapid that trapping rats has proved a very slow way of getting rid of them. Even poison, though more effective, works too slowly for the stamping out of the scourge. The best method of getting rid of rats is the administering v. the virus of a deadly rat disease, dis. covered by the Pasteur Institute in Paris. ## ART ORR'S JABBY STROKE AND UNCONVENTIONAL * WAYS BRING HIM AGAIN TO THE FRONT *

Bang! The winner of the single blade singles, turned around, laughed, and then stood in his boat to await the arrival of the next man. -Bang! Fifteen seconds later the gun announced the second place man.

It was the annual summer regatta of the Toronto Canoe Club, but when the judge's gun cracked at the finish of the half mile singles there was not the familiar "Hi-ya, Hi-ya." from the group of "red ring" men on the float, that announced so many victories for the Toronto Canoe Club.

True, the "star" of the club had not seen fit to risk his prestige upon the choppy and treacherous course, but the man in the dirty black sweater, daubed with paint, the heavy blucher boots and the blue yachting eap, jerked half way over bespattered face, had defeated their "next best bet" by a good ten lengths, and "Hi-ya, Hi-ya," was forgotten for a few minutes in the gloom. All eyes were turned to the winner of the race, as with a smile on his face he turned around and watched the remainder straggle across the line.

"Art" Orr had "come back!"
He had won his first race after two years out of the game, and with hardly an hour to get into shape. When the Canadian Canoe Associa-tion announced that Art had been reinstated after having been declared a professional because he made his living building canoes, every canoe fan in the east waited to see if he could "come back" and repeat his performance against the "greatest" of "'em all"—McKenzie.

"It is for the good of the sport," they argued, "that there should be keen competition." And it seems that Art has come back, at any rate he has come once again before the public eye as the most interesting man that paddles in Ontario waters. "Art" Orr is twenty-seven years old. He is married, and he has a little girl that is the best baby in the world. Art honestly thinks so, sit a canoe. Art was born at the Humber, his father was a canoe builder, until his death a few weeks from school he used to amuse himcanoes and chasing up the river. But it was a long time before he began to think seriously about racing. He started to work for old "Charlie" Nuise and for several years was apprenticed to him before he went over and started to build canoes for Dean. He still had the habit of swiping canoes and follow-ing launches up the river.

It was this practice that gave him his famous "jab" stroke.

"If I could only get my canoe going "If I could only get my cance going smoothly like these launches, then I think I should beat anybody." he thought. He tried first one way then another and after many experiments he evolved his short, quick stroke. "When the paddle is out of the water the boat is stopping, so the scoper you get it back ping, so the sooner you get it back after a stroke, the faster you go. It doesn't take as much strength to keep a boat at high speed as it does to get it there. Get your boat going and then put your paddle in so fast that she doesn't get a ghost of a chance to 'stop'." These are some of the arguments that Art used while he was trying to evolve his stroke, and only one other thing was left for him to do. Get time

His Short, Jabby Stroke.

From six o'clock in the morning till seven at night he was working on other peoples canoes, he had evolved not only a stroke, but he had invented a canoe that in his had invented a canoe that in his opinion, had the others beaten. Sometimes in a spare moment he jumped into a canoe and spurted up the river, never waiting to get into racing togs, a thing he has never wore in his life. Eventually Art started to race, he won, but had barely commenced when he was disqualified.

That, however, was just the be-

That, however, was just the besinning of his real regime at the Humber. The next best thing for him to do when he couldn't paddle himself was to try and teach the rest of the Humber bunch to paddle. That sounded like a comparatively easy job but he didn't find it so. 'The boys at the Humber don't look upon training as a particularly ideal occupation, but as they had appointed Art as their trainer it was "up to them" to get out and do as he told them. He started to teach them his short jab stroke.

His Crew Made Good.

Shoot your arm forward and pull it back quick as you can, then shoot it out again, like the piston rod of an engine," he shouted at them. Three hotels at the Humber didn't seem to help training conditions much, so Art had his troubles. Sometimes there was a complete war canoe crew out to practice, generally he had to go and round them up. The other canoe clubs laughed at his stroke and his crew. "It may be all right, but you can't stick thru a race with them." There will be a riot in your beet."

"Give me a sober crew and I'll beat you," he retor ed. He had no "afternoon tea" boys among his worked in the brick yards, a few worked in sewers, and other such places. He had an Italian and a Jew. The "Hi-ya, Hi-ya" boys laughed at the short jab and the burch of 'rough necks' as they were bunch of 'rough-necks,' as they were wont to call them. But Art got busy, and the night before every race he went around with a club to keep the

Then one day toward the end of the summer he "came out" with his bunch of "rough-necks" to race the others. It was a great race. First one man and then another missed their stroke, they clashed paddles and floundered around, but they lived up to their orders to "put it back and jab"—don't wait. The "centipede" tore down the course, paddles flying in every direction, the top of the hoat looking like the bleachers at a baseball game, and when the race was over the Canadian champs had been beaten by Humber

"I thought I saw a keg-o'-beer on the bow. Gimme a pull. Wou-ee."
And the bunch scrambled for the float prepared to lick anybody and everything. They had beaten their greatest rivals. They should fret. They didn't forget Art Orr tho, and it was he whom they hoisted up on their shoulders, altho he had been barred from paddling in the race.

The other boys still laughed. The lesson was not enough. The short "jab" was still wrong. This year they are at it again. Once in a while er and with Art himself, at the helm, they practice their short jab. They are going great guns. Once already they have almost spilled the beans, and this year Art has built the "bunch" a boat of their own. They havn't paid for it, but that don't matter; it is different from any other, and that in itself makes it interesting, for Orr couldn't do any-thing the same as others do it.

In building his boat he tried to help the smoothness that he gets from his short stroke. He built the boat flat and broad behind, and fine in front, so that it won't settle between each stroke. It is way different from any other boat, but it is original, and Orr again thinks it is better, and is going to try and prove it, and everybody is waiting to see what he is going to do.

But Orr has got into trouble in other ways over his boat. When he ing it, of course, was just opposite to what the officials had been used to. Instead of the fine front and flat tail stern. It was barred from the races. He had to try again, but he was convinced that his boat was within the rights of a cance and stuck to it until he was allowed to use it. It was another experiment, and if Art couldn't experiment he fogies stand aghast at anything that promises to improve the sport in any way, and still want to stick to of twenty-five years ago, but Art Orr, with his spotted black sweater, and blue cap pulled half over his left ear, can't see it that way, and when he isn't designing he wants to be proving that the new can beat the old.

Yes, Art Orr is so absolutely different in his methods and his ap-pearance, that the canoe world are always on edge wondering what he

STRONG DRINK

When all is said and done."
Of course, everything hasn't been said, and everything hasn't been done, and never will be.

But Jack London has done a new thing in his treatment of J. Barleycorn.

"Rosseau's Confessions" and "DeQuincy's Optum Eater" are classics; and a classic is a thing that never

"John Barleycorn" is a classic. Strong drink has cursed the race since the very dawn of history, and today is the one big bluebottle in civilization's precious oint-

Solomon, writing on the subject a thousand years before Christ, passed out a few things that are just as true today positively, as when he uttered them: "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." London is writing his confessions. At least he would have us think so. In one sense, all literature is a confession. We confess the things we have done; also the things we might have done; and we occasionally confess things that we have thought about, but never dared do. HERE must be a certain amount of truth in Jack's fine confessions.. How much, it would be indelicate to ask.. Nevertheless, the whole thing has both grip and punch. If you read it you find it is on your nerves. You're dreamy about that boy of fifteen, sixteen and seventeen, who contracted the habit of indulging in strong drink. Now and again, as the years passed, he broke away and did not touch the stuff for days, weeks and months. And we find him going back to it.

He drinks rum, beer, absinth, whisky, cocktails. At first one cocktail suffices to set his brain a-tingle and his thoughts a-jingle. He is at peace with the world, with himself, with the universe, with one beautiful woman. We find him living in sweet camaradie, helping the lady wash the dishes. He has had one drink. That is not enough. He sneaks away from the woman and dishonestly puts in an extra one, unknown to her. It makes you think less of the man; and yet here he is confessing it—and how dare you blame a man who lays his soul before you! He disarms you by his frankness.

When a friend calls, in pure sociability they have a drink together. And then the biographer gumshoes away to the kitchen and has a couple of drinks by him-

At first the man drinks only when his day's literary work is done. But there comes a time when the morning opens dull, hazy foggy, damp. Thoughts are opaque, and refuse to flow. And so he takes an eye-opener.

The habit is upon him. If he breaks away from it for a few days, the thought is still in his mind of the _aad, sad, bad days in Honolulu and San Francisco, when good fellows met together, and youth had its fling.

Jack views the subject from every standpoint. He is as analytical as Herbert Spencer, and a thousand times more entertaining. He is so human at times that he is uncanny.

Only once do I find his logic lapsing. This is when he rides out horseback over across his broad acres, after his day's work is done—and well done.

The man should have been happy in his prosperity, in his strength, in his power, in his sweet intimacy with

But melancholy weaves her web about him, and the mild wind of the west, blowing in his face, fills his soul with a sense of sadness.

He asks why it is that one who has everything which the world can give; work, love, approbation, prosperity, all mixed with a modicum of opposition that animates and inspires—why it is that such a man should be filled with a sense of sadness? And Jack answers, it is on account of the demon alcohol. Just there the author seems to force the issue, and drag in an argument by the cosmic scruff. The fact is that men who do not smoke, nor drink, nor swear, are often filled with melancholy. The very fact that an individual has everything that his heart can wish is no reason why he is happy and blithe and gay.

AM not sure that this great human document entitled "John Baryelcorn" is an argument against drink. After reading the book one is tempted to the be-lief that if a man can drink as this man says he has, and still has the brain to analyse the situation and put the whole thing on paper and sell it for a princely sum, as this man evidently has, then how can it be that strong drink is wholly bad?

This man is bigger than drink. Jack does not say. so outright; but he leaves us to make the interence.

And at the last, having indicted John Barleycorn on a thousand counts, the author fails to convict him on a single one, and the case is still in court.

B. & .3 HEN we find Jack telling of his physician, strong, able, ballasted with brain, clear of eye, who says to Jack, "Look at me! Look at me!" and in admiration Jack looks at the man and realizes that the doctor is one who has never gone the pace. Cigarets, booze,

By Elbert Hubbard

dope, excess have never had this physician in their frantic clutch. Jack wishes he were like him. Three months go by, and news comes to Jack that the physician is dead. The "bugs" have jumped him. Just what the bugs were Jack doesn't say. But the germs of disease got their strangle hold on him. They formed a combine, evidently, and jumped from different sides, ambushed him and gave him the cosmic jujit and the man was no more.

and the man was no more.

Then Jack without saying anything about it, allows the reader to think what a deal more fun this doctor would have had if he had been of the convivial sort. He might have lived longer than he did; for with all his temperance, all his abstinence, all his abnegation, he was not immune from the standing high jump and the lofty pole of the bugs.

So much for science, so much for temperance, so much for the simple life.

No, Jack isn't writing a temperance story. I am sure that he is not in the employ of the W. C. T. U.

Jack's confessions are strong and verile because I do not believe that a non-drinker would ever be lead to darkness and to death on account of reading Jack's confessions. I do not think, however, that many Jack's confessions. I do think, however, that many sweet satisfaction and a sufficing argument why he should not break off.

As a study in psychology, "John Barleycorn" is a book that will be new a hundred years from now. It is a monument to the man who wrote it.

Big things in literature have no violence of directions of the state of t tion. This story hasn't. Each one who reads it will read into it his own experiences, and he will extract from it any argument that he wishes to.

The story is an arsenal of reasons both for and against. It tells of the why and of the what and the whither; of the who and the when. It will make you think; it will make you pause; it will make you sigh.

It is a sad book, tinted and touched with fatalism.

It is a sad book, tinted and touched with fatalism. Its doctrine is the doctrine of pessimism; and the literature of pessimism is the literature that lives.

Each one of us imagines that he is bigger than fate, that he is an exception to the rule. And out of sadness we distil a kind of joy on account of the fact that we were alive. In the pains of others there is a certain satisfaction, and we mentally are congratulating ourselves on the fact that the tragedy is none of ours.

Perhaps this is why the literature of sadness lures and beckons.

Anyway, Jack London, in "John Barleycorn," has opened up a new line of literature.

Dennis restored the bill to his pooket and walked away in a daze. That evening he purchased a postal money order and wrote a long letter to Nora. His heart sang and bubbled in the days that followed, and in his joy he grew so absent-minded that his mop and broom imperilled the loungers in Black Louie's saloon.

Percy Haswell will introduce a novelty into the local season this week, when she will produce a musical show, 'Marrying Mary," in which Marie Cahill starred with success. The piece is the work of Edwin Milton Royle, who wrote the book, and Silvio Hein, composer of "The Rose Maid," and it contains a variety of numbers which are outstanding successes. Miss Has-well's company is admirably adapted to produce plays of this nature, as Mr. Alfred Smith, her stage director, has produced this play several times and Mr. Ralph Nicholls, musical director, Mr. Ralph Nicholls, musical director, has been with the Aborn Opera Company fon a number of years. Mr. Charles Fletcher, whose song in "Never Again" is pleasantly remembered, is prominent in the Henry W. Savage operatic productions during the regular season. Miss Haswell will play "Marrying Mary" herself, a young woman whose matrimonial experiences culminate in her finding the man of her choice, only to be confronted with three previous husbands, one of whom is the father of her intended. A first class scenic production is promised, supplemented by a large chorus and an augmented orchestra.

T.M.A. PICNIC FUN IS STARTED EARLY

W. E. Meredith, secretary of the picnic committee of the Theatrical Mechanical Association, has sent the following notice out to members of the lodge. He has got all the members of the committee cleverly mixed up in the notice which reads thusly: "The Pic-Nic will be held on the 'Hill' under the 'Greenwood' trees, and a 'Shepherd' will look after the flock. The Pic-Nic colors will be 'Brown,' 'Gray' and 'White.' A 'Newman,' together with 'Timpson,' 'Dawson,' 'Jackson,' 'Penson,' 'Gibson,' 'Richardson,' and 'Hutchinson,' will look after the aged and iniirm. As an added attraction to the Menu Card, the Committee will provide 'Pye,' 'Hogg,' 'Drakes,' and 'Leakes.' A 'Young' 'Boye' will have charge of the soft stuff, and 'Balsam' wall be provided for those who drink too much. A 'Carter,' 'Cooper,' and a 'Schumacher will look after any person requiring their services, and convey Barnes' in the vicinity of the 'Ferris' wheels on the ground. A 'Fairhead will look after the blonde and brunette babies. 'Reed' this carefully and do not be 'Moody,' as our 'Hart' is in the right place, and we wish all to enjoy themselves. Do not 'Steele' the hammers, as the 'Wright' man is looking after them, and he will 'Pierce' you if caught with the goods. Everything free-no 'Dunn' wil bother you. If tired and unable to wait for the cars, take 'Shank's' mare and head 'West,' and you may get home. Come early and you will 'Seymour' than you ever saw before—this is no 'Fudge.' 'Mark' the date, time and place, 'Orr' you will miss the 'best ever.' The 'Dean' has promised to bring 'Bessy' and 'Herbert' from Hamilton." The outing is to be held in High Park next Thursday afternoon.

the word of those jumping at conclusions as final in judging the cyclecar. Even the enthusiasm of the drivers of these wonderful vehicles cannot convey to you the surprise of the cyclecar, and without exception, everyone who has ever ridden in one is enthusiastic.

"Thousands of salesmen thruout the world have found in the automobile a multiplier and a divider that has transmultiplier and a divider that h

The cyclecar is a new vehicle, not an old one in miniature form and with performance only in proportion. It is designed to meet all the road conditions of a big car, and ome this with as great assurance and greater comfort than a big car on the same roads, be the roads what they may. The real cyclecar sells on a basis of performance and comfort, more than its economy of cost and upkeep.

The salesman must get about as of cyclecar perfection and design never realized in motor car building, these discoveries of new values to old princi-ples being the basis of the remarkable performance of these new cars.

All of these discoveries and developments have been made use of in the cyclecar, every advantage of detail and experiment having been used to make this car the maximum value automobile purchase where a two-passenger vehicle is wanted. The result is a car that will defy the big car to follow it either on rough country-going in mud, sand or hill, or in city work in traffic, a car which proves for all time the fallacy of the belief that a car must be big and heavy to be comfortable; a car which gives maximum comfort, speed to 45 miles per hour, reliability to an extreme and an appearance equal to the best cars, at one-third of automobile cost.

SALESMEN FIND CARS GREAT HELP

ITS MERITS To Many the Small, Lightweight Car Has Multiplied Sales.

Months of roadwork and detailed experimenting on the part of dozens of manufacturers have brought out points of cyclecar perfection and design tory as can be cultivated intensively by one man. Ten years ago his only means of transportation was the horse-drawn vehicle, the steam road or the trolley. He could not afford to abandon these until he found a vehicle that was both reliable and economical.

Thousands have found it in the automobile—the right automobile. Time is the most valuable thing a salesman spends. And time is one of the many things in which a good car economics.

The Paige for 1915 and the Manufacturing Policy of the Ten Associates

Ten men are responsible for the Policies of the Paige Company-whether they relate to Administration, Manufacturing or

These men represent twenty different fields of Industry and each one is a recognized leader in his particular field. When they organized the Paige Company, these men had won national reputations as Manufacturers, Bankers, Lawyers and Directors of Giant

They represent the highest ideals of American Business. They know-from actual experience the pitfalls of extravagant management and loose administration. They know where to lay their hands on the weaknesses the leaks and the general "mistakes" of a manufacturing business.

With such a vast storehouse of experience at their command, they have concentrated their efforts upon the production of Paige automobiles and—as a natural result—have accomplished the most startling success of the entire Industry—in three years' time. These are the men who make the Policies of the Paige. These are the men who announce a still greater Paige "36" for 1915 at no increase in Price.

Many manufacturers—about this time—are offering their cars to the public with substantial reductions in price. They claim all the virtues of their former model—numerous refinements—and a selling price from ten to thirty per cent lower than last year.

They explain that such reductions in price are possible because of doubled, trebled or quadrupled production and the resulting economies in manufacturing.

We have no criticism to offer in regard to a policy of this kind. But the Ten Associates look at the matter of Price from a very different angle.

It is the Paige Policy to build a good car—not a cheap car. Paige production has increased 167.9 per cent in the past two years—an unequaled record of the entire industry. Therefore, it would be a comparatively simple matter to reduce the cost of Paige cars and stampede the public with a sensational cut in price.

But—to do so—we would have to leave the quality of the car just where it was before. Remember, one dollar can only buy one hundred cents worth of value. No one—except a charlatan—will claim any

So—inasmuch as we refuse to compromise on quality—it is the Paige Policy to put every extra penny that is available back into the car. Each year we propose to offer more value for the money. We have no intention whatever of permitting Paige quality to stand still—while the price goes down and our production goes up.

There will be no reduction or increase in the price of the Page "36" for 1915—but we offer improvements and refinements which represent nearly $200 additional cash value in the car.

So, there are two ways for a manufacturer to distribute savings as production increases.

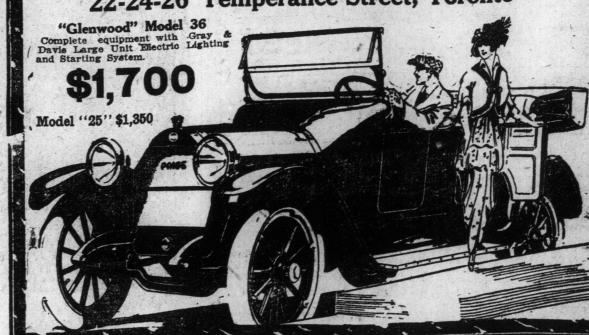

One method calls for a reduction in the price.

The other, means additional value—additional quality—in the product.

From the standpoint of an investment proposition, which appeals to you as the botter policy?

Build Permanent Highways

The modern, self-propelled vehicle has done much to change and to better human methods. Perhaps the most important thing is that it has been the means of reviving the public highway. There have been three great highway eras in the history of the world, the great war roads of the early European conquerors; the stage-coaching roads of Europe, which preceded the building of railways; and the present period of motor roads; and this latter bids fair to be easily the greatest of them all fair to be easily the greatest of them all.

In the immediate past the steam railroads have assumed 90 per cent. of the burden of the land transportation problems of civilization; not because they were in every respect the better way, but because they were, under modern necessities, the only way. Now, however, that we have the motor car and the motor truck, thoroly reliable vehicles, which may be operated at a reasonable cost, and which can be applied to any transporta-tion problem whatsoever, all this has changed, and the burden of traffic is rapidly returning to the public highway. An enormous number of people who used to make their interurpan trips by train, now make them by motor car over the public highway. In addition to those who own their own vehicle, there are many people who travel on public motor 'bus lines. This is especially true in the continental countries. Even the railways themselves are utilizing the motor 'bus, still travelling on the public highway, as feeders for their main lines. For the man who goes upon a journey, motor transportation over good roads affords a pleasanter, healthier and a more normal way of reaching his destination.

The motor has made an even greater improvement in freight transportation than in passenger transportation, for the one important reason that it eliminates two or three handlings of the goods to be transported. A motor truck may be loaded at the door of a factory in Hamilton, and the goods delivered at the door of the consumer in Toronto; one loading and unloading and a very great saving of time and money thereby. The shipper and receiver are released from the thrall of freight charges and there are no vexatious delays of the goods in transport, and the manufacturer achieves an independence in regard to his shipping problems which was never his before.

Equally important is the good work which the self-pro-pelled vehicle can do for the farmers of the community. Already farmers in many parts of the country are using trucks to haul their crops to the markets; at once becoming independent of radial lines and railways. Milk, vegetables, and all other farm produce can be handled by means of a motor truck more quickly and economically than under any other system, and the produce will arrive in better condition for the consumer.

It is easily seen, however, that all these good things, while partially accomplished, still depend absolutely upon the condition of the highways over which the motor vehicles and motor trucks must travel. A haul of 50 miles can be quickly and economically accomplished over a good road, but it becomes an absolute impossibility over a bad one. It is obvious, therefore, that if we are to reap the benefits of the self-propelled vehicle, which, among other things, should do much to lower the high cost of living, we must devote our attention to the building of highways over which these vehicles can be economically operated. Already there has been some awakening to the importance of this matter thruout the Dominion of Canada, and a greater awakening in the United States. A certain amount of road improvement has been made here, but so far we have nothing very satisfactory to show. This is solely because, altho we have spent a good deal of money, we have not spent it in the right way. A fatal error has been made in building expensive, old-style macadam roads, without consideration of the new traffic conditions which they will have to meet. It has been proved times beyond number that roads of this type are not suited to modern interurban traffic. The Americans discovered this very early in the game, and they have abandoned macadam roads, and it is now their practice to build roads always with a cement foundation, and often with a cement surface. On the other hand, we, who have built macadam roads, have seen the work of one year waste away under the traffic of the next. What is the use of building roads, if we do not build them for permanence? No matter what the future may bring in the way of solving transportation problems, no one disputes that the traffic of the future will be highway traffic. The sooner we begin to build and plan for this, the better position we will be in. Permanent highways should be the slogan of municipal, legislative, and other governing bodies in this country. It has been proved time and time again that permanent highways mean concrete highways. We must abandon the out-of-date macadam road, and begin at once permanent construction of cement highways.

A Message To Motorists

Men who buy tires by mileage are demanding COLUMB TREAD Tires

Built for World's Worst Roads

12,000 men-with $20,000,000 at their command-with nearly a mile of modern mills-with a non-skid tread invented by famous engineers-with rubber personally selected in the rubber districts by their own picked men-with fabric specially woven in their own cotton mills-daily strive to produce BETTER tires for the world's most wretched roads—the Russian highways.

On desolate Siberian steppes-on trackless Eurasian tundras, COLUMB TREAD TIRES undergo such tests as no other tires endure. They must conquer almost impassable routes to satisfy their builders.

Perfected 12 Years

It is an endless quest of supremacy Men-Materials-Methods-and Moneyall diverted toward a common end, Cost is not counted. Time is not reckoned. The goal is always "The World's Best Tire-Made Better."

For 12 long years, COLUMB TREAD TIRES have been developed-perfectedimproved. Every year has seen it a still better tire. There has never been an "offyear" since the first COLUMB Tire was built.

With little advertising beyond their own splendid service-with little effort beyond users' "word-of-mouth" praise, COLUMB TIRE sales in foreign countries have enormously increased. Branch Houses in every civilized country are now needed to care for the trade.

Yet COLUMB improvements never cease.

5000 Miles Guaranteed

before were such excess strength—such road resistance—such resiliency, combined in a single tire.

These tires created a furore in the United States. Their ironclad 5000-mile guarantee forced others to evade or follow suit. Their influence is felt wherever automobiles run.

Try Them

These are the tires we now ask Canadian motorists to try-and judge. They have been PROVEN in every possible way. They are built to overcome worse conditions than you may ever meet. They are built for the service that demands STRONGER Tires. They are built under the CONTINUOUS supervision of a single organization-from rubber tree to

The Proof

If you believe, with other shrewd business men, that 12,000 men know more about tires than 1200 men. -If you believe that $20,000,000 real money can build better tires than that much "watered" stock.

—If you believe the tire that gives notable service on the world's worst roads will give better service than a tire built for wellkept roads. -If you believe that a STRAIGHT GUAR-ANTEE OF 5000 MILES is more desirable than a "promise" based on half that If you believe in facts (almost every motorist does) then you must admit that COLUMB TREAD TIRES OUGHT to be on

YOUR car. All we ask is that YOU try a COLUMB TREAD TIRE against any other make you now use or favor. Keep speedometer records of the mileage. Check every item of trouble. Then figure your final cost per mile on both.

The superior strength—the trouble-proof service—the lower cost per mile of COLUMB TREADS will make you a permanent, user of these Royal Tires.

OVERCOMING YOUR SUMMER TROUBLES WITH OVERHEATING

How You May Avoid Difficulties These Trying Days -Lubrication Secrets.

"When making long tours tirese hot when making long tours those hot summer days, trouble is often experienced with overheating," said S. J. Murphy, distributor in this territory for the Haynes "America's First Car," "and the driver is at a loss to know where to look for the source of the trouble. With the prevalent use of the water pump in the circulating system, overheating in the majority of cases is not due to poor circulation of parts. It must be done systematically and logically to secure the best results and insure the economical use of the lubricant. The engine is but one point in the car that must be properly oiled at all times. It should be a self evident fact that a heavier oil is required in summer than in winter winter.

"When the oil in the crankcase becomes black and thin from the products of wear, it has lost its lubricating properties, and it is true enonomy to throw it away and use a supply of clean oil. Owners of Haynes cars report that, with intelligent use, they regularly secure 300 miles on one gallon of oil.

"The transmission case should be lon of oil.

"The transmission case should be filled with a good grade of heavy cylinder oil at this time of the year—not heavy grease. The rear axle differential housing should be filled with a light mineral grease having the consistency of vaseline. Light oils should never be used in either the transmission case or the differential housing. never be used in either the transmission case or the differential housing, because they will not stay in place nor cushion the gear teeth. Trouble in having the grease working out into the brakes and other parts is due to using too thin an oil. The housing should never be filled with the heavy 'dope' widely sold which may contain wood fiber or cork particles, to promote more silent operation. It consumes much power without doing any good. If the gears are noisy, adjust them or have them replaced."

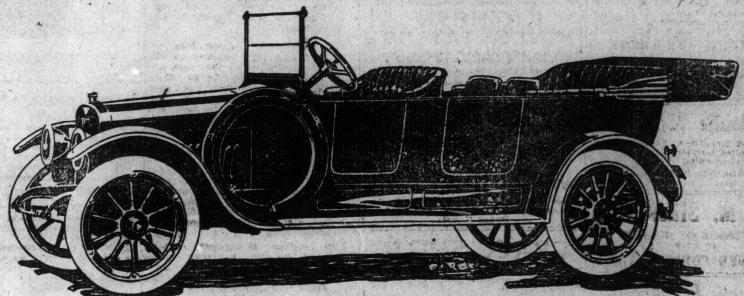

the water pump in the circulating system, overheating in the majority of cases is not due to poor circulation of the water, but to faulty lubrication.

"It is interesting to note that the winning car at the Indianapolis 500-mile race averaged 82.47 miles perhour on two gallons of lubricating oil, while another car which finished near the tail end used 35 gallons of oil. It is impossible, of course, to use such a quantity of oil effectually in a motor traveling 500 miles, but the striking contrast of the conditions shown by the race indicate clearly the importante that must be paid to the lubricating system of the car.

"The theory of lubrication is that a film of oil separates the metallic surfaces and takes the wear, but if the oil becomes too thin, it is forced out of the bearing too readily, and the metallic surfaces come into intimate contact and are rapidly worn away. It is not enough to apply lubricant indiscriminately to the various chassis' but in having the grease working out into the brakes and other parts is due to using too thin an oil. The housing should never be filled with the heavy 'dope' widely sold. Which may contain wood fiber or cork particles, to promote more silent operation. It consumes much power without doing any good. If the gears are noisy, adapts them or have them replaced."

A. R. Pardington, vice-president of the Lincoln Highway Association, has traveled 41,000 miles within the last year on railroad trains in connection with his work for the highway and the metallic surfaces come into intimate contact and are rapidly worn away. It is not enough to apply lubricant indiscriminately to the various chassis' provides excellent touring.

The HUDSON Six-40 of last season revealed to you the typical modern car. It was a forecast of the coming ideal

It was built by the men who for many years had led in motor car designing. Howard E. Coffin and his 47 engineers had devoted three years to the model. It revealed a new type Six, made light and economical. It introduced, in lines, finish and equipment, a new ideal of a distinguished car. It fixed a new price on a quality car- $2,300 last year. That was lower than any comparable care either a Four or a Six-had been quoted. It established a new price standard in the high-grade field.

And it brought smooth-running sixes within reach of legions of men who, up to that time, had been forced to buy Fours.

3,000 Were Disappointed Men flocked by the thousands to this light, handsome Six. As the cars went out, the demand became overwholm-

ing. Orders were placed for 3,000 cars beyond the factory output, At the end of the season, men were bidding for cars. And premiums as high as $200 were paid to get them. That was because a Six-a quality Six-for the first time was selling below Fours of its class. Countless men who envied Sixes waited that

Then we had saved 1,000 pounds in weight under the former average on this size car. Right materials and better designing did all this with no sacrifice of strength.

That lightness, with our new-type motor, reduced operative cost about 30 per cent as compared with former cars of this power and capacity. For the first time, a Six consumed less fuel than a Four.

We combined these attractions in the handsomest car of the year. We brought out many new ideas in equipment. So the HUDSON Sixequipment. So the HUDSON Six-40, in every way, typified the ideals of the times. The majority of mo-torists recognized there the coming Now 31 Refinements

Now our famous corps of engineers has spent another year on this model. They have made it lighter still. The new-model weight is 2,890 pounds. They have worked out 31 portant refinements—beauties, conveni

They have taken part by part and studied ways to improve it. Our 48 designers did this all last year.

Now the HUDSON Six-40 for 1915 fulfills all our dreams for the HUDSON. It will be accepted, we believe, as the gem-car of today.

A Trebled Output This Year Saves $200 Per Car

Now comes our best announcement. The welcome extended this HUDSON Six-40 has compelled us to trable our output. The car is so standardized that building three times as many will save us $200 per car.

As always, we offer that saving to you. This new me will sell at $2,100 f. o. b. Detroit. It will seem impossi when you see this car. Think that three years ago not a Six was sold under $4.500 And the Sixes of those days were not equal to this.

Note How Men are Flocking to No-Rim-Cut Tires

Goodyears for years have far outsold any other tire in the world. But this year the gain has been 55 per cent. That shows that motorists by the legions are discarding other tires for Goodyears.

Why They Change

These are four of the reasons why men are coming, faster and faster, to No-Rim-Cut tires:

To end rim-cutting. We control in these fires the only feasible way to completely wipe out this trouble

To save blow-outs. These tires alone get the extra "On-Air" cure, which adds to our cost tremendously. This process saves the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric.

To save loose treads. By a patent method-used by us alone -we have reduced this danger by 60 per cent.

And to get our All-Weather tread. This tread is tough, it is double-thick, it's as flat and smooth-riding as a plain tread. But it grasps wet roads in a resisting way with countless deep. sharp-edged grips.

Our Under-Price

Another reason this year is the Goodyear price. We now undersell 18 other American and Canadian makes. A number of makers ask for three tires what Goodyear asks for four.

These very tires - No-Rim-Cut times - were once the high-priced tires. The efficiency and multiplied output of Goodyear plants have brought prices down and down.

At no price can any maker give you better tires than Goodyears. Lower cost per mile is utterly impossible under present-day conditions.

And every tire sold at extra prices lacks our four exclusive features.

Almost any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires at Goodyear prices. Try it.

Dalton Baker, the English baritone, who holds a position in his native country corresponding with the estimate German people have of Dr. Ludwig Wullner, will shortly open a studio in this city. In England, Mr. Baker is an authority on oratorio and song singing, and he is bringing with him a valuable collection of old English folk songs, discovered by echolars while making researches during the past few years. This will be Canada's first opportunity to hear these ancient songs, some of which date back to the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. In conversation with Mr. Baker a few days ago, he said: "I am coming to Toronto to live, and first of all I should like to pay a tribute to my old master, Professor Walker, who inspired every one who had the good fortune to meet him. His learning was combined with the loftiest philosophy; to have studied oratorio traditions with such a man was both an honor and a orivilege." Professor Walker has now studied oratorio traditions with such a man was both an honor and a privilege." Professor Walker has now feached venerable years, as he was the young man who turned the score for Mendelssohn when the famous composer conducted the premiere of his great oratorio, "Elijah" at the Birmingham music festival in 1846. Mr. Baker wil be heard in recital at Foresters' Hall toward the end of oresters' Hall toward the end

Bonaries Grimson, an English violatinist, who came to America two years ago, has invented a device called the "Rhymiken," which beats time according to prescribed rhythms. Not only does it give the beat, but it enables the student to visualize the according to prescribed rhythms. Not only does it give the beat, but it enables the student to visualize the statements of the Hambourg Conservatory for the true! took out his heart and replaced it took out his heart and replaced it by a machine for the reconquest of the Soudan. In slightly different terms this metaphor could be applied to Bri-tain's best-known and best-loved m ician in Canada today. Dr. Albe-Ham. It is not his heart that the doctor has sacrificed for the estab-lishing of British tradition and British standards in the music of Canada Not

"The clergy and ministers of all denominations through the Dominion apply to him for advice and guidance on the matter of organ appointments. His pupils and proteges hold professional posts all over Canada, it is no exaggeration to say that the debt religion in music owes to Dr. Ham on this continent is inestimable. The doctor has lectured on musical subjects at the Toronto, Trinify, and Victoria Universities. He is also examiner for musical degrees at these universities. And it is characteristic of the man that upon him rests the onus of neverceasing agitation for the raising of examination standards. The 'National Chorus of Canada' is one of Dr. Ham's creations. It is a choral society under the doctor's own baton, that has made an unique place for itself in Canadian musical circles. Numbering some 220 voices, it stands for all that is worthy "The clergy and ministers of all

"St. James' is the 'St. Paul's' of Canada. It is in St. James' that we recognize finally, all that 'British' means in our musical tradition. The musical history of St. James' Cathedral can be said only to have begun with the history of St. James' Cathedral can be said only to have begun with the advent of Dr. Ham. In 1896 he took up his duties as organist and choirmaster there. He made a 'clean sweep' of operatic style and mixed-volce performances' of the services he found in vogue. He substituted a service on the lines of our best cathedral models. The boys of St. James' sing today as no boys on the whole American continent can sing! The great 'National' services held in St. James' in recent years are affectionately remembered. The 'In Memoriam' services on the occasion of the funeral of the late Queen Victoria! No Canadian today who was privileged to be present at this, but still speaks of it with a hushed spirit of gratitude that deepens and mellows as time rolls on. The coronation serstill speaks of it with a hushed spirit of gratitude that deepens and mellows as time rolls on. The coronation services of the late King Edward and our present King, the military services held from time to time in the cathedral, the visiting guards' bands attending; these are memories that cut deep in the heart. Thru all the, services from the pomp and pageantry of state ceremonial down to the old familiar from the pemp and pageantry of state ceremonial down to the old familiar chants and hymn-tunes of our beloved home cathedrals, you can trace the heart and mind of the 'Imperial musician,' to whose sincerity and devotion at him seems too great for compressions.

From all reports of the members, this year's exhibit promises to be one of the most representa-tive for some time. The tendency of this year's work is towards the pressionist style, as in other art, the the impression is only one phase of the photo, for there is enough of detail concentrated upon it, to give life to the picture while retaining the softness of the broader effect. A number of the most enthusiastic and able of the members are doing important work in other places this summer. ## BARRIERS OF RACE

Friction Between Black and White Joint Debate in Which Socialism Races Due to Totally Different Influences in Forming of Character, Customs and Ideals.

Since the emancipation of the negroes in the United States race friction has been gradually develop-ing. J. Moffatt Mecklin has treated the subject very broadly and ex-haustively in his recently published book "Democracy and Race Friction."
That race friction should exist is deplorable, that it does exist is unavoid-plorable, that it does exist is unavoidable, and under the circumstances perfectly natural.

The fundamental cause of race friction is the difference in the hereditary ideal and customs of the two races. The ancestors of both lived in a totally different environment, where the different social and psyschological influences enjoyed formed their character so completely that when they came into another social sphere friction must result when instinctively they cling to and defend the only ideals in life which they understand or acknowledge. Therefore, it is obvious that between the Caucasian and the Black race the differences are

Second, the white race shows great reasoning powers, while the black is preeminently emotional, but less likely to probe beneath the surface of weighty matters.

Third, the white is domineering. It is their right, because it has taken a struggle lasting over a thousand years to gain first-place in the world. The black is meek and submissive, but over-violent when aroused.

Assuming the foregoing to be the main causes of race friction, the position of the negro in America can be more keenly appreciated when it is remembered that he has no social arting other than savagery, no social setting for the unfolding of selfnood, therefore he can only imitate the white race, born heir to the glories of patriote standards hundreds of years old, which places him in a much inferior position. In other words he has been forced to civilization by a short-cut while other nations have traveled by a leng, long road. Mr. Mecklin points out clearly how very difficult it would be for the white race to share all its rights and social privileges with and adopt the blacks into its inner circles as an equal, with such appalling differences existing between them. On the other hand the principals of American democracy as defined in the federal coretitution give every citizen of the United States, regardless of color or origin, equal rights and privileges.

Another reason why the black race occupies a secondary position, is the lack of group cohesion which has always existed among the American negroes. As a rule, having, no high standard in life to ascend to the lack life, his only chance of reaching a higher moyal standard being by the recipied of the more and the principals of american negroes. As a rule, having, no high standard being by the received and the principals of the more application of industries to consider the worker will be a partner, and will have a direct pecuniary incentive as well as moral stimulus to put forth his best beforts.

Thregard to the declaration. In regard to the Sociality is the worker will be a marter of m ately held in the south in some cases by inadequate ministers who have an catagrerated sense of self due to the blind homage of the masses.

Then there is the very vital question:—Is the white race to blame for not accepting the negro and helping him instead of treating him with superior indifference which has created the great undercurrent of antipathy so generally felt? Perhaps they are partially. Certainly they are not wholly at fault. It is doubtiess true, however, that in spite of fifty years of freedom the southern negroes enjoy as a race fewer points of contact with the white race, and are less an integral part of the social order than olind homage of the masses. integral part of the social order than they were in the days of slavery, althe slavery was by no means the best possible position for them to

In Jamaica race friction is felt less keenly than in any other part of the world where the black and white races are forced to live in numbers in the same territory. The British Empire will brook no rival, and with possession in her hands she took the first place and ruled the country. The natives knew it would be useless to dispute her authority and they obeyed. With the acknowledged supremacy the whites are kind and tolerant. Re-cognizing their position the blacks are submissive and contented, and are progressing gradually. Therefore in Jamaica race friction is at a minimum. This solution, however, would be impossible for the United States, owing to equal rights granted by the constitution which has been drummed into the negro's education since his

What the outcome of it all will be no one now can say. It is certainly hopeless for the black race to hope to attain the standards of the white race without the necessary homogeneous group cohesion and able leadership to raise them individually to higher planes, where they will take for their motto: "The Average Man."

AGE OLD CUSTOMS WHICH IS SOCIALISM?

Is Attacked by a Prominent Catholic Divine and Defended by a New York Lawyer.

This is a joint debate on the right or wrong of Socialism; a discussion of Socialism attacked by Dr. Ryan, a Catholic divine, and defended by Morris Hillquit, a lawyer of New York.
It was first published in Everybody's Magazine, and is unique in being a presentation of the opposing arguments side by side, available for com-

they cling to and defend the only ideals in life which they understand or acknowledge. Therefore, it is obvious that between the Caucasian and the Black race the differences are more marked than between any other two races on the globe:

First, there is the extreme difference in color between the full-blood African negro and the Anglo-Saxon. Second, the white race shows great reasoning powers, while the black is preeminently emotional, but less likely to probe beneath the surface of weighty matters.

Community.

Ryan rejoins that Socialism attributes to human institutions a perfectability that is not justified by experience; that it is social reform we need not the system, but the abuses that are intolerable; that conditions are better today than ever before in the world's history; that a considerable part of our social evils are not economic but intellectual and moral; and that the remedies must be provided by education.

In regard to the Socialistic Industrial State Ryan declares: "It must be set cialism is irreligious; that the great majority are either unfriendly to remajority are either unifiendly to religion or have severed their connection with the church, that he could not name a single socialist who was an Orthodox Christian. To this Hillquit responds: "Socialism is not hostile to religion, it is entirely neutral in all matters of religious belief, it represents a remarkly an economic and moto be identical with the attitude of the average non-socialist of similar the average non-socialist of similar state of general enlightenment."

All progressive readers desire knowledge on this subject of Socialism and perhaps, nowhere could they find both sides of the question so concisely discussed as in "Socialism," by Hillquit and Ryan, (Macmillan Co., publishers, Toronto.)—A. C.

One of Mrs. Wemyss' most treasured possessions is an old scrap book, which the Wemyss' children used as a family magazine, and of which the author held the honored post of editor-inchief. She still keeps it as a remembrance of happy childhood days.

The story is told alternately by extracts from the doctor's diary, by fielen's letters to her aunt, by the St. John's doctor's letters to his mother, and one letter from Mr. Jelliffe to his sister-in-law. There are a good many clever character sketches in the book, and more than one humorous incident. All of which combine to hold the reader's undivided attention to the last page.

Briefly, the story is this: John Grant, a rising the independent young doctor, is refused by Dora Maclennan. a clever little nurse with whom he has been in love for some years. Very bitterly disappointed, but still not despairing, the doctor determines to settle himself in some out-of-the-way spot in Newfoundland, there to minister to the needs of the fisher-folk, who yearly are losing scores of precious bread-winners, for lack of doctors to attend to their hurts before it is too late. Guided by the words of a little parson, Dr. Grant comes to Sweetapple Cove, where he is housed by the parson's wife, the motherly Mrs. Barnett. Dr. Grant has already brought upon himself the grattitude of many of the fisher-folk, when there arrives at the Cove in need of his services, Mr. Jelliffe, with his daughter Helen; the former has broken his leg whilst salmon catching. It is during the young former has broken his leg whilst salmon catching. It is during the young doctor's professional visits that there is developed between him and Helen a mutual companionship, which prompts them to extract together the meagre pleasures that Sweetapple Cove has to offer.

CONCORD HONORS EMERSON.

A statue to the memory of Ralph Waldo Emerson has recently been erected in the Concord Public Library. It is the work of Daniel Chester French, a friend of Emerson, and designer of the Minute Man Statue, for which Emerson wrote his famous verses thirty-nine years ago. The breadth and permanence of Emerson's fame is shown by the fact that contributions for this statue came from all parts of the world. A no less striking proof of the present-day appreciation of the Concord philosopher is the large and steadily increasing sale that is reported for the ten volumes of Emerson's recently published journals. But, to the Rev. Theophilus Mervyn's surprise and chagrin, Father Roche gave Mrs. Dann a very courteous hearing and appeared to fall in with the scheme, altho, of course, not definitely committing himself to saying so. However, his apparent attitude towards the play was enough for Mrs. Dann. She proceeded forthwith, and with alacrity, to make preparations for her pet project. The priest and the minister were slower to move and slower to think, and their efforts to head off the Miracle Play were desperate and diverse—but to an onlooker irresistibly funny.—(McClelland, Goodchild & Stewart, Toronto, publishers).—K. Business Clouds Rolling by

That the United States is on the eve of a great revival in business appears to be generally held all over that country. Indeed, many prominent manufacturers and merchants are confident that it has already begun. Certainly, when it is found that the automobile industry is booming, the only deduction is that the depression has been exaggerated, and, indeed, confined largely to concerns more or less dependent on railroad orders. The railway companies in the east admittedly restricted new expenditures, and to some extent the policy was justified. But it had its politic side, in that it gave point to the argument offered in support of the application for a five per cent. increase in freight rates. That, according to the plea, was the only thing needed to start a wave of prosperity. However, the wave is coming along without the increase; but, should the Interstate Commerce Commission sanction the increase, even in part, it will help the flood.

President Wilson's policy of "watchful waiting" seems to have prevailed at last, at least so far that Huerta is eliminated as a factor in the Mexican situation. His only possible successor is Carranza, since

Watchful Waiting Wins Out

It is incredible that Carranza will voluntarily give up the prize for which he has openly contended. But for him, and even more for his commander-in-chief, Villa, the deposition of the dictator would have been a serious business, and probably never would have been accomplished without the intervention of the United States. Carranza is believed to be, in many respects, fitted for the post of president. He has hitherto championed the case for land reform. The first necessity of Mexico is to be delivered from unrest and revolution. If Carranza returns to the peasantry the holdings of which they were unjustly deprived by Diaz, he will have the sympathy and support of President Wilson, who has time and again declared the land question to be vital.

British Naval Air Service

If the United Kingdom, according to British habit, lagged behind in the early stages of the new art of aviation, it is evidently determined to make up for lost time. The admiralty has reorganized the naval aid service, and given its officers a ranking equal to those of the royal navy. Not only will lieutenants of the regular service be allowed to qualify in aviation, but young civilians will also be accepted, and the good pay offered will tempt many to join. Much money is being spent on the air service, and the craft of British manufacture are believed to be superior in important points to those of foreign make. At the same time, the admiralty is proposing to dot the coastline of the United Kingdom with high towers, mounting special guns, designed specially for the destruction of airships and aeroplanes. Thus the game of offence and defence goes merrily on, to the great profit of the armament manufacturers, the gunsmiths, and allied industries.

the Sudan from the power of the Mahdi, and already that devastated region is beginning to fill up with a contented peasantry. This wonderful transformation has been largely the work of two men, Lord Cromer and Lord Kitchener; but more particularly under the benevolent rule of the latter has the regeneration of agriculture been achieved. Lord Kitchener has a supreme gift of administration, and, strict disciplinarian as he was during his army career, he has known how to deal tactfully and successfully with the ignorant fellaheen. Speaking Arabic fluently, he can converse with them in their own tongue, and they know him as the man who has rid them forever from dependence on the vagaries

Immigration Must Be Controlled

Canadian cities and the larger towns are threatened this year with the burden of having to provide for hosts of unemployed mostly from southeastern Europe. A report that the Dominion government was considering the matter of their deportation has been welcomed, and the proposal generally supported. These men are unskilled laborers, and that line of work is none too plentiful this year. They would probably be much better off in their own lands, and at least would be among their fellows. The situation affords proof that the policy of inviting and encouraging indiscriminate immigration should no longer be followed. Canada is overstocked with manual laborers, who will not or cannot go on the land—the one place where they become producers and profitable citizens. Immigration must be taken under charge by the Canadian government, and not left to agents, whose only concern is earning the money.

American companies have begun to follow British arms like Cadbury and Lever, in providing model villages for their workers. One of the latest is at Washington Park, New Jersey, where a model village

For these villages are not philanthropic institutions, but intended to provide that healthy and desirable environment which maintains the worker in the highest state of efficiency. Some employers, too, are now erecting distributing stores, conducted practically on the co-operative principle, where the residents can buy supplies of all kinds for about two-thirds the prices charged in other places. #### Canada and the Chinese Market

Canada is naturally deeply concerned with the future of China and its four hundred million of people. As their horizon expands, so will their needs, and for the supply of these the Dominion occupies a specially advantageous posi-tion. With only a fraction of the available wheat area as yet settled and cultivated, grain production will and must continue to in-crease, and the quest of markets become more insistent. China promises to be the most important of these newer markets, provided its progress continues along the path on which its people have entered. For a time the prospect of orderly development of the republican form of constitution appeared uncertain, and even dark. But today the government has weathered the first storms, and is gradually bringing order

No man can speak with greater authority on this point than Dr. Morrison, for many years special correspondent in China of The London Times, and now acting as political adviser to the president of the republic. During his present visit to London, on leave of absence, he was interviewed regarding the progress of the country. Dr. Morrison had no hesitation in describing the situation as better now than at any time since he went out twenty years ago, and the outlook as more promising than ever before. With the exception of one restricted area, tranquility reigns thruout the country.

Not only is the country settling down, in the opinion of Dr. Morrison, but excellent progress is being made in material development. More railways are under construction than at any previous period, and many new roads are under negotiation. British contractors have 2500 miles of railroad on hand, and the relations between the British and Chinese governments are particularly good. Dr. Morrison describes the Chinese as deeply grateful for the opportunity given them to work out their own salvation. No difficulty has been found in meeting the international obligations. Every outstanding question has been satisfactorily settled, except with regard to Tibet, but the negotiations with the British Indian government are proceeding harmoniously, and promise soon to lead to a satisfactory agreement. If Dr. Morrison is correct, as there is every reason to believe he is. China will become an increasingly valuable factor in international trade.

Discourage Strong Drink

Visitors to European countries, where light wines and beers are the universal beverage, agree that drunkenness is exceedingly rare, and, indeed, is not in evidence at all. On the other hand, nations that prefer distilled spirits in any one or more of their many forms, occupy the highest place in the number of arrests for drunkenness and in the visible effects of intoxication. That is the main reason why reformers who recognize that public opinion may not always be strong enough to enforce total prohibition urge that encouragement should be given to liquors containing the least percentage of

This view is anathema to extreme partisans of the case for total abstinence. Yet, as matter of fact, it has been repo so-called temperance beverages and patent medicines contain far more alcohol for equal quantities than light wines and beers. Those who would like to see some practical step taken that will reduce drunkenness, can fairly urge that, even if prohibition be desirable, any advance possible at the moment should be taken. Legislation of a restrictive kind, when not supported by a sufficient body of public opinion, not only fails to secure its object, but brings other and worse evils in its train. If the radical remedy cannot be got, why not do what is practicable to remove the grosser evils?

Catch the Mosquito in Time

At this period of the summer even the best of tempers is apt to get out of hand. All the more so when to the inconvenience of the heat is added the annoyance of the mosquito. These plagues of life are grumbled and growled at every season, but not until their advent has made the verandah and the sleeping porch unendurable. Yet it would be easy to stamp out the pest if the citizens and residents in summer resorts would only co-operate in a common campaign. The mosquito is not a migratory birdit remains at home, where it was born, and without breeding places right at hand, it would be conspicuous by its absence. Given quiet water, stagnant water, sluggish water, dirty water, in any kind of natural or artificial receptacle, and there you will have your enemies—swarms of them. The remedy is simple—get rid of the water in time, and you will enjoy life in peace.

The Stone of Destiny

Mr. Asquith was recently questioned in the imperial house of commons by one or two Scottish members, who were anxious to know whether he would not return the "Stone of Destiny" to its original home. In reply, the premier expressed his fear that he could scarcely see his way to accede to the suggestion. This celebrated stone, removed from Scone, the ancient capital of Scotland, by Edward the First, the "Hammer of the Scots" has formed part of the coronation chair in Westminster for more than six centuries, and, as many believe, was the cause of the Stuart accession, the old legend declaring that wherever it went, there a Scot would be king. An even older legend declares it to be the very stone on which Jacob pillowed his head at Bethel, and traces its wanderings by land and sea to Ireland and thence to Scotland. But Dr. Skene, a dry-as-dust geologist and iconoclast, pointed out that its composition was identical with that of the rock found in a quarry near Scone. The old myth was more poetical.

But the religious world, so far from being grateful for this service, for the most part assailed him and those who agreed with him as dangerous teachers. They looked upon him as imperilling the Ark of God rather than rallying to its defence." Which is the usual attitude of the church and the world towards reformers. Principal Tulloch is eminently fair in his consideration of Maurice with whom he does not agree about sin and atonement. But he says: "Even if it were true that Mr. Maurice's theology fell short of the Puritan, or even of the Pauline theology, it would by no means follow that it was to be reprobated as these critics are reprobated it? If it did rest as some Archetype of Humanity, in whom all Omar, and Mark Lemon, first editor was to be reprobated as these critics reprobated it. If it did rest, as some of them contended, on Platonic or Neo-Platonic forms of thought, it may be Platonic forms of thought, it may be asked. Did it do so more than the theology of Clement of Alexandria and Origen; and must we deem these teachers less Christian because they adopted certain ideas of Platonism in the expression of Christian doctrine? What ancient theologian did not do so? Is Tertullian more orthodox than Clement, or St. Augustine than Gregory of Nazianzus? Is St. John not a quite different type of theologian from St Paul, and St. James from either? And even so, is Mr. Maurice less Christian as a theologian because he does not speak in the same language or expound the same ideas as those which belong to a wholly different asked, Did it do so more than the

AFTER THER WEDDING AT NEWPORT, R. I., MR. AND MRS. PHILIP STEVENSON, LEADERS IN THE LOCAL SOCIAL COLONY, HELD A TANGO TEA AND RECEPTION ON THE LAWN OF THEIR HOME, AND SO INTRODUCED ANOTHER FAD.

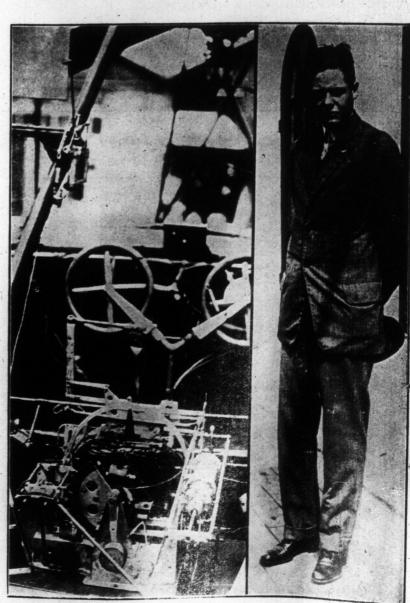

FRETTY GIRL WHO MAY BE EMPRESS OF RUSSIA—A new portrait study of the Crand Duchess Olga of Russia, the Czar's eldest daughter, recently taken at a special sitting at the Imperial Palace. In case that the illness or death of her younger brother, should prevent him from mounting the throne, she would become empress, it is said. She is now 19.

Not Suspected. A barber after scraping away industriously for a few moments, made dustriously for a few moments, made the usual inquiry:

"Razor all right, sir?"

"My good man, if you hadn't mentioned it I should never have known there was a razor on my face."

The barber beamed.

"Thank you, sir," he said.

"No," added the customer reflectively, "I should have thought you were using a file."
