THE SWALLOWS.
Captive on the Moorish shore,
Bent with chains, a warrior lay.
"Are ye here," he cried, "once more,
Birds who hate the winter's day?
Swallows, whose sweet hope pursues
Hither even across the sea,
Doubtless ye of France have news—
Speak, oh speak of home to me!
Three years have I pray'd for truth
That some token ye would bear
From that vale which saw my youth
Nursed in dreams so sweet and fair.
Where a limpid stream winds round
Many a fresher laurel tree,
Ye my cottage home have found—
Of that vale oh speak to me!
One of ye perchance was born
'Neath the eaves of that dear cot!
Of the mother there forlorn,
You must have mourn'd the lot.
Dying, she may hope in vain
My return each hour to see:
Then she lists—then weeps again—
Of her love oh speak to me!
Is my sister wedded yet?
Have you seen a nuptial throng
Of our village youngsters met,
Her to praise and him in song?
And my youthful comrades—they
Who took arms with me in glee,
Have they reach'd their village yet?
Of these friends oh speak to me!
Ah! the stranger o'er their graves
Now may foot it through the vale—
Those who fill my heart he braves,
Makes my matchless sister wail!
Mine no mother may be more!
Chains, still chains my lot must be:
Swallows, of my native shore,
Speak ye of its woes to me!

Miscellany.
Humors of an Irish Student.
Among the many peculiar tastes which distinguished Mr. Francis Webber, was an extraordinary fancy for street begging; he had, over and over, won large sums upon his success in that difficult walk; and so perfect were his disguises both of dress, voice, and manner, that he actually, at one time, succeeded in obtaining charity from his very opponent in the wager. He wrote ballads with the greatest facility, and sang them with infinite pathos and humor; and the old woman at the corner of College Green was certain of an audience, when the severity of the night would leave all other minstrelsy deserted. As these feats of "jonglerie" usually terminated in a row, it was a most amusing part of the transaction to see the singer's part taken by the mob against the college men, who, growing impatient to carry him off to supper somewhere, would invariably be obliged to have a fight for the booty. Now, it chanced that a few evenings before, Mr. Webber was returning with a pocket well lined with copper, from a musical reunion he had held at the corner of York Street, when the idea struck him to stop at the end of Grafton Street, where a huge stone grating at that time exhibited, perhaps it exhibits still, the descent to one of the great main sewers of the city. The light was shining brightly from a pastry-cook's shop, and showed the large bars of stone, between which the muddy water was rushing rapidly down, and plunging in the torrent that ran boisterously several feet beneath. To stop in the street of any crowded city is, under any circumstances, an invitation to others to do likewise, which is rarely unaccepted; but, when in addition to this, you stand fixedly in one spot, and regard with stern intensity any object near you, the chances are ten to one that you have several companions in your curiosity before a minute expires. Now, Webber, who had at first stood still, without any particular thought in view, no sooner perceived that he was joined by others, than the idea of making something out of it immediately occurred to him. "What is it, aggra?" inquired an old woman, very much in his own style of dress, pulling at the head of his cloak. "And can't you see for yourself, darlin'?" replied he sharply, as he knelt down, and looked most intensely at the sewer. "Are ye long there, avick?" inquired he of an imaginary individual below; and then waiting as if for a reply, said, "Two hours!" "Blessed Virgin!" he two hours in the drain!" By this time the crowd had reached entirely across the street, and the crushing and squeezing, to get near the awful spot, was awful. "Where did he come from?" "Who is he?" "How did he get there?" were the questions on every side, and various surmises were afloat, till Webber, rising from his knees, said, in a mysterious whisper to those nearest him, "He's made his escape to night out of Newgate by the big drain, and lost his way; he was looking for the Lilly, and took the wrong turn." To an Irishman, what appeal could equal this? A culprit, at any time, has his claim upon their sympathy; but let him be caught in the very act of cheating the authorities, and evading the law, and his popularity knows no bounds. Webber knew this well; and, as the mob thickened around him, sustained an imaginary conversation that Savage Lander might have cried, imparting now and then such hints concerning the runaway, as raised their interest to the highest pitch, and fifty different versions were related on all sides of the crime he was guilty of—the sentence passed on him—and the day he was to suffer. "Do ye see the light, dear," said Webber, as some ingeniously benevolent individual had lowered down a candle with a string; "do ye see the light, oh! he's fainting, the creature." A cry of error from the crowd burst forth at these words, followed by an universal shout of "Break open the street!" Pickaxes, shovels, spades, and crow-bars, reduced absolutely the walking accompaniments of the crowd, so suddenly did they appear upon the field of action, and the work of exhumation was begun with a vigour that speedily covered nearly half of the street with mud and paving stones; parties relieved each other at the task, and ere half an hour, a hole capable of containing a mail-coach, was yawning in one of the most frequented thoroughfares of Dublin. Meanwhile, as no appearance of the culprit could be had, dreadful conjectures as to his fate began to gain ground. By this time the authorities had received intimation of what was going forward and attempted to disperse the crowd; but Webber, who still continued to conduct the prosecution, called on them to resist the police, and save the poor creature. And now began a most terrific fray; the stones forming a ready weapon, were hurled at the unprepared constables, who, on their side, fought manfully, but against superior numbers; so that, at last, it was only by the aid of a military force the mob could be dispersed, and a riot which had assumed a very serious character, put under. Meanwhile, Webber had reached his chambers, changed his costume, and was relating over a supper table the narrative of his philanthropy to a very admiring circle of his friends.

Eloquence.—The following is an extract from a speech delivered by a member of the Indiana legislature, on a bill to encourage the killing of wolves, which in sublimity has seldom been surpassed:—"Mr. Speaker—The wolf is the most ferocious animal that prowls in our western prairies, or runs at large in the forests of Indiana. He creeps from his lurking place at the hour of midnight, when all nature is locked in the silent embraces of Morpheus; and ere the portals of the east are unbarred, or bright Phoebus rises in all his golden majesty, whole flocks of pigs are destroyed."

This is related by the Rev. Mr. Laurie, of Erie: He chanced with Dr. Chapin one Sunday, and soon after he appeared in his desk people began to go away. He watched the exodus a few minutes, and then rising, said in a deep voice, clearly heard throughout the church, and with just sufficient Scotch brogue in his voice to give raciness to his words: "All those who came here to worship Almighty God will please join in singing a hymn, and while they are doing so, those who came here to worship E. H. Chapin will have an opportunity to leave the church." His audience did not diminish after that.

Lord Oranmore on Scotch Education.
Lord Oranmore, in the course of the debate in the House of Lords on the compulsory clause said—The important questions involved in my amendment are these—Has the State a right to make secular education compulsory? and if so are there valid reasons for greater compulsion and heavier penalties for neglect in Scotland than in England? In the Act of 1870 power is given to School Boards to pass bye-laws obliging parents to send children between certain ages to school, if not otherwise educated, but limiting the penalty for non-compliance to a fine of 5s. which includes costs. The present bill renders it obligatory on all parents to give their children elementary education. It obliges Boards to ascertain the fact that all parents who do not provide such education shall be prosecuted for not doing so, and subjects them to a penalty not exceeding 10s. besides 20s. cost, or 14 days imprisonment! There can be no doubt therefore, that under this Act a new penal of fence is created, and severe penalties attached to it; that while the State repudiates all moral or religious education on the one hand it enforces secular teaching. The noble duke's character fully sustains his appreciation of the value of religious instruction, but I feel it difficult to understand how he reconciles the enactments of this bill with those convictions. The countrymen of the noble duke are an astute race. May they not ask him these questions. Has education produced the results that were expected from it? It has been supported by very increasing grants of public money, but do criminal statistics show a proportionate decrease of crime? Large lending libraries and reading rooms have been established, but do not their reports show that the principal reading is confined to works of a sensational character, and to a press which in its views that are very philanthropic, but contrary to all common sense? Will not such instruction tend to make my children discontented and unprofitable, rather than profitable and useful members of the community? Formerly in connection with secular instruction he learnt his duty to God and to his neighbor, but now the state repudiates this as useless teaching. May he not say all secular education is forgotten after a few years, which is not kept alive by being part of a man's daily employment, while religious education is never forgotten; it must influence it if it do guide, for the daily recollections and casualties of life force it on every one's attention? May he not ask whether the State that deprives him of the earnings of his child is not bound to provide food and raiment, which are even more urgent necessities than education? Then as the standard of education in Scotland is at least as high as it is in Prussia, where education is compulsory, why insert so penal a clause as this? I submit that unless the noble duke can answer these common-sense questions so as to satisfy your lordships there are reasons that do not appear on the face of the matter for enacting this penal clause, your lordships will not accept it, but rather by substituting the milder form of the English Act leave it in the same direction to Scotch Boards as is now vested in English School Boards.

Josh Billings on Counting.
Counting is a luxury, it is said. It is, in fact, a luxury, it is the pleasure of the soul. The man who has never counted has lived in vain; he has his blind men among landscapes and water-shapes; he has been a doll-man in the land of land organs, and by the side of murmuring canals; Counting is like 2 little springs of soft water that stand out from under a rock at the foot of a mountain and run down a hill side by side singing and dancing and splashing each other, eddying and frothing and kaskading, now billing under bank, now full of sun now under shadow, did bimby the fine and then the go slow. I am in favor of long counting; it gives the parties a chance to find out each other's trump heads, it is good exercise and is just as interesting as 2 merino lambs. Counting is like strawberries and cream, wants to be dill-slow then you get the flavor. I have saw folks get acquainted, fall in love, get married, and get down and get few, in 3 weeks from date. This just the way sam folks learn a trade, and accounts for the great number of milky-mean mechanics we hev and the poor jobs they turn out. Perhaps it is best I shud state sum good advice tew young men, who are about tew court with a fixed view to matrimony as it waz. In the first place, men, you want tew git yure system awl rite, and then find a yung woman who is willin tew to be courted on the square. The next thing is tew find out how old she is, which you can dew by asking and she will say that she is 19 years old, and this you will find out how far from the way. The next best thing is tew begin moderate; say once every night in the week for the first six months, increasing the dose as the patient seems to require it. It is a fast rate tew tew court the girl's mother a letter on the start, for there is one thing a woman never despises, and that is, a little good counting if it is done strictly on the square. After five fast year you will begin to be well acquainted and will begin to like the business. There is one thing I always advise, and that is not to swap photographs oftener than once in 10 days, unless you forget how the gals look. Occasionally you want to look sorry and draw in you're mind ez the you had spain, this will set the gal tew teasing you to find out what ails you. Evening meetings are a good thing to tend. It will keep your religion in tune; and then if the gal happens tew be there, by accident, she kan ask you tew go home with her. As a general thing I wouldn't brag on other gals much when I was courtin'; it make to look as tho you tew much. If you will count 3 years in this waz, and the time on the square, if you don't see it is a little the slikest time in your time life, you kan git measured for a hat at my expense—and pay for it. Don't count for nunny, nor bony, nor relashuns, these things are just about ez onartin as a kerosene oil refining business, little tew get out of repair and bust at any minnet. Court a gal for love, for the luv yu bear her, for the virtue and business there is in her; court her for a wife and for a mother, court her as you wud court a farm—for the strength off the soil and the part ekision of the title; court her as tho she wuz a fule and yu anitler; court her in the kitchen, in the parlor, over the wash tub and at the dinner; court her this waz, court her man, and if yu don't git a good wife, the fault won't be in the counting. Yung man, yu kan rely upon Josh Billings, and if yu kan't make these wuz, jist send for him and he will sho yu how the thing is did, and it shud cost you a cent.

A Traveller.
As we were about leaving the hotel at Philadelphia this morning, there occurred some delay from a passenger in the third story. Pretty soon, we heard a sharp altercation upstairs, followed by the appearance of a stout fat man with a red face, who preceded a negro with an arm full of boots. The short fat man hobbled to the bar; and in a sort of ominous whisper, as though he took some credit for not being in a lowering passion, said, "Landlord, where are my boots?" "Why, really, sir, I—what number were they?" "What has that got to do with it?" said the fat man, beginning to get excited. "I don't know the number; I believe they were 8, with low heels and pegged." "Ah, you mistake; what is the number of your room?" "Forty-five." "And did you put the number on your boots, when you took them off?" "What have I to do with marking boots? Do you think I carry a bottle of ink in my pocket to prevent my boots being stolen?" "But there was a piece of chalk on the stand where you took them off?" "A piece of thunder and lightning!" said the other. "I'll tell you what, landlord, this won't do. The simple question is, Where are my boots? I took them off in this house, and you are responsible for them. That's law all over the world." "Carriage waiting," said the driver. "Let it wait, said the fat man. Suppose I can go without my boots?" "Here be one pair that weren't marked," said the black; "are them on?" "Them on, you rascal, why they are an inch too short, and the heels are two inches high." "Carriage waiting, and the boat will leave if I wait any longer," shouted the driver, while we in the carriage were all trying him to start. The fat man gasped for breath. Landlord, again ask, Where are my boots? "Why, really, sir, I—" "Go, or not?" said the driver. The short man seized the unmarked boots, and strained and pulled till he got them on, and, groaning as though his feet were in a vice. "I'll tell you what it is, landlord, I call all these people to witness—" "Carriage starting," said the bystanders. The fat man started too, and was just getting into the coach, when the black touched his coat tail, saying, "Remember the servant, sir." Yes, said the other, turning round and laying his cane over the waiter's head, "take that, and that, and try and see if you can remember me, and my boots, too." After we reached the boat, and for a long time, the fat man seemed lost in a reverie, looking at his new boots. I once heard him mutter, "After all, if I get the heels cut off, they won't be so very uncomfortable, and mine did leak a little." Thus may we draw comfort from the worst of evils, for what is worse than losing one's boots when the carriage is waiting, and the boat about to start? Reading without intelligence injures the brain and stomach mechanically.

GOING A-FISHING.—The following is an "order for supplies" for a fishing party of two:—"Please to send, by bearer, the following articles, which, if you prefer it, you can charge to either Mr. A— or Mr. B—. Either is the safest:—Four pounds of salt and a small cask of whiskey; one pound of ground black pepper and a dozen bottles of whiskey; four pounds of hard and a large jug of whiskey; four canvassed hams and six quart-bottles of whiskey; three good stout fishing lines, and a quarter of hundredweight of bleedit, same weight Cheshire cheese, and two large quart pocket flasks of whiskey; one paper of large Limerick hooks, and a gallon of whiskey in an old vessel you don't use; also send one-pound of white sugar and a small jug of whiskey. P. S. A— we shud be gone several days; and as we may get wet fishing, my physician, who has just stepped in, suggested that we had better take a little whiskey. Send it, and enter it on your books with other items above."

The most faithful lover who has a name and being outside of trashy novels, lives in Danbury. The parents of the young lady are opposed to his companionship, but that don't make him proud. Sometimes the old gentleman reaches him with his boot before he can get over the fence, but the young man don't lay up ill feelings on account of that; he only smiles at the despoiler of his pants when he meets him, and calls it "steeping coals of fire on his head." Saturday evening he thought he would get up a surprise for the old chap. He put a pecking stone in each of his coat tail pockets and started for the house as usual. The old man let out for him with increased enthusiasm, and caught him—caught him good. Then he laid down on the grass and said: "I die by the hand of an assassin." But the young man passed on without a word, and smiles the most heavenly smile of forgiveness ever seen on the street.

A CERTAIN writer administers a sharp rebuke to those persons who are lavish in everything but charity, and says: "I have seen a woman, professing to love Christ more than the world. Clad in a silk dress costing $75; making up and trimming of same, $10; bonnet, or apology for one $35; velvet mantle, $150; diamond ring, $500; watch, chain, pin, and other trappings, $300; total, $1100—all hung upon a frail, dying worm. I have seen her at a meeting in behalf of homeless wanderers in New York, wipe her eyes upon an expensive, embroidered handkerchief at the story of their sufferings, and when the contribution box came round, take from a well filled portemonnaie for every work man's ship twenty-five cents to aid the society formed to promote their welfare."

A correspondent gives a touching instance of his own modesty:—"I found a cockroach wriggling in a box of water. I took a hair pen; not shell for a boat. I put him into it and gave him two wooden toothpicks for oars and let him go. The next morning I started him and he put a piece of white cotton thread on one of the toothpicks and set the toothpick up on end as a signal of distress. He had a hair on the other toothpick, and there that cockroach sat a-fishing. The cockroach, exhausted, had gone to sleep. The sight melted me to tears. I never had to claw leather to get a suit. I was born with one. I took the cockroach out, gave him a spoonful of gruel, and let him go. That animal never forgot that act, and now my house is chock full of cockroaches."

A person is responsible for this story:—"Poor Jones died while you were away last summer. In all my experience I never saw so disconsolate and grief broken a creature as poor little Mrs. Jones; it was very sudden, you know. I went to the house as soon as I heard of it; I offered my sympathy; but her sorrow was uncontrollable. In such cases I think it best that the mourner should be left alone. So I prepared to depart." "I still have you, poor bereaved one," said I, "with this figuration: Pray—pray that God will vouchsafe His comfort; that He will enable you to receive the promised bow in the end."—"Oh, rector," she burst in, "how can you think of such a thing? It's too—too too premature, I'm sure."

"And," continued the old gentleman, checking the off rein and wheeling away from the gate, "after some cogitation, I fancied that I discovered that the bow I was talking about and the 'beast' she was thinking about weren't the same kind of a bow at all."

A Pennsylvania hotel man has gone largely into the echo business, up in the Lehigh Valley. He engaged a boy to recite himself behind a clump of trees and to repeat the words of the visitors who came to hear the echo. One day there was no reply—the echo struck for higher wages; so the wonder-seekers smashed his bottles for him, and treated the boy to root beer as a testimonial of regard.

London, Aug. 15.—Evening.
The Paris correspondent of the "Standard" says the German Government has intimated to M. Thiers its intention to retain possession of Belfort, though it is willing to make a compensatory concession to France.

The strike of the agricultural laborers for higher wages continues in Oxfordshire. The Government has placed a number of soldiers at the disposal of the farmers, and the crops which were in danger are now being harvested. Officers of National Agricultural Union have protested against this proceeding of the authorities.

London, Aug. 16.
The passage of the repeal of Party Procession Act was generally celebrated throughout Ireland yesterday by the Catholics, and in some places there were disorders.

At Belfast while the procession was passing through the streets it was stoned by large crowds. The processions returned to the attack and a scene of terrible excitement ensued. The rioters were finally dispersed by the police, not, however, until one man was shot.

Slight disturbances occurred in Dublin and several persons were wounded.

No disorder occurred in Londonderry.

Geneva, August 15.

The Alabama Claims Arbitration Tribunal met at noon and remained in session until 3.30 p.m., when they adjourned until noon tomorrow.

Sir R. Russell Palmer, Counsel for Great Britain, was present, though suffering from indisposition.

New York, August 16.

The mixed American and English Commission had claims filed from the British sources aggregating $117,500,000 for damages from the seizure and confiscation of blockade runners.

Ottawa, Aug. 17.

The latest reports show that Ross, Opposition leader, carried the Grit constituency of Centre Wellington.

Snider, Grit, has been elected for North Grey. Sprunt, Ministerialist, has probably been defeated in North Bruce while a Ministerialist returned for East Hastings. The election in East Toronto came off to day and the returns show the election of Henry by a small majority.

The new constituency of East Grey has returned Fletcher, Ministerialist.

The elections in Quebec progress satisfactorily. Several men are classified Independents because they ran against Ministerial Candidates, whereas they are actually Government supporters.

The glorious news from Nova Scotia has virtually decided the campaign in favor of the Government.

Sir John A. Macdonald will probably be brought forward in opposition to Blake in South Bruce.

From result of elections so far it is evident that New Brunswick and Nova Scotia will have the controlling influence during the next five years.

Mr. Keefer, C.E., who has just returned from the inspection of the Ray Verte Canal route, has expressed himself quite satisfied as to its feasibility. He is proposing, in connection with Mr. G. Wosicki a report which will embody his plan. If these eminent engineers can be retained to carry out this important work its success will be certain.

Berlin, Aug. 17.

At the meeting of Emperors at Berlin a proposition will be made for a Congress of European powers to sanction territorial modifications of France, occupation of Rome, and revision of Treaty of Paris.

New York, Aug. 17.

It is rumored that a Court of Impeachment at Saratoga has rendered a verdict of guilty on several articles against Judge Barnard.

The Clinton Western Manufacturing Company mill was burned yesterday at Elmira. N. Y. Loss $160,000; Insurance $9,000.

London, Aug. 17.

Further advices from Belfast confirm the reports of the serious nature of the riot on Thursday. Several collisions occurred between mobs of Protestants and the Catholic processions, during which a large number received serious injuries. The entire city was in an uproar and the disturbances were only quieted by the active exertions of the police. Many rioters were arrested.

Belfast states that the riots have broken out in a fresh and severe fighting is now going on. A Barrack of the police and several houses have been wrecked by the mob.

Ottawa, Aug. 19.

A despatch received at the Electric Telegraph Office in this city, late last night, announces that Sir Francis Hincks has been defeated by 500 majority.

London, Aug. 19.

4 P.M.—Advices from Belfast up to this hour states riots continue to be exchanged in the streets, though it is not known that rioters have concentrated in large numbers at any point.

A telegram from Langan, Ulster County, says a serious disturbance is in progress there and the authorities of the town have called upon the military to aid in restoring order.

5 P.M.—A later telegram from Belfast says reports are current that the city is about to be placed under martial law.

The same telegram states that the military are now marching on the rioters in the centre of the town.

New York, Aug. 19.

Two more vessels with yellow fever arrived here on Saturday night.

On Saturday, near Memphis, on the Mississippi, the crew of the small steamer "Hellen Brooks" were murdered and thrown into the river and the boat plundered.

The third National Bank, of Baltimore, was robbed by burglars of nearly half a million dollars.

Twenty eight cases of yellow fever are now reported in New York quarantine hospital.

Riel is out for Provender, but will probably retire in favor of Attorney General Clarke. In Lisgar, Hay, Opposition, will oppose Schulz.

An apparatus for obtaining water from the depths of the ocean has been invented in Germany.

An open vessel of suitable form and size is lowered by means of a rope, and when the desired depth has been reached an electric current is transmitted through a wire that accompanies the lower rope, and this current, inducing activity in an electro-magnet attached to the apparatus, releases powerful springs, which act upon a siphon, thus inducing the water at any degree of depth. Some useful experiments in the determination of the carbonic acid in the sea water have been made through the agency of this apparatus.

IMPORTANT PURCHASE.—The International Iron & Steel Co. of America, recently purchased the property, and have just sold it to Sir Hugh Allan, for $2,500,000. It will be remembered that the previous owners were the Canadian Charcoal Iron Co., who had bought from Charles D. Archibald & Co. This company leased it in 1865 for seven years, to the International Iron & Steel Co., with the option of a purchase at a certain sum within that period. The sum just obtained is only about one-half the cost of the property.

SAINT ANDREWS, AUG. 21, 1872.

Declaration Day.

On Tuesday, the Sheriff opened his Court for the declaration of the successful candidate elected to serve this County in the Dominion Parliament for the next five years. Several persons from St. Stephen and St. George were present, but the number in the Court House was comparatively small to that on the nomination.

After the opening of the books from the several polling places, and the state of the Poll announced, the Sheriff expressed his thanks to the different officers for the satisfactory way in which they had performed their duties, and also to the electors, whom he said had not forfeited their claim to the character they had hitherto borne of being a law-abiding and peace-loving people. He then gave the state of the Poll at its close:

McAdam, 1551.

Gillman, 1329.

majority for McAdam 222; and declared Hon. John McAdam elected.

Mr. McAdam then returned his thanks to the people for the handsome support he had received, and electing him to serve them in the Dominion Parliament. That he was in duty bound to serve all parts of the County alike. They all knew that he was not here to look after his own interests, but to look after the interests of the County as a whole.

Honorably. He suggested that in future delegates from all the Parishes should meet in St. Andrews, and there determine upon the best man to serve them in local or general Parliament. Such a course would ensure success, and the people would have the man or men they wanted as representatives.

After again thanking those men who had voted for him, he retired amid cheers.

A more peacefully contested election never was held in this County. Each side worked energetically for their man; a good many clever hits were made, but good feeling prevailed and people have settled down to their business.

The Writ for the Election of a member for the Local Legislature will be issued this week, and it is probable the Election will be held the latter end of September. There are only two candidates, Mr. W. S. Robinson and Mr. John C. Brown.

We have already given a notice of these aspirants for Legislative honors, and will endeavor to give a report of their speeches at Nomination.

The Annual Festival of the Sabbath School and congregation of Greenock Church, St. Andrews, took place at Colonel Mowatt's grove on Tuesday, the 6th inst. The day proved very favorable, and a large party of parents, friends, teachers and scholars, assembled for enjoyment.

The young entered at once on their games, and with swings, round games, ball, &c., soon made grove and grounds ring merrily. Teachers and others were in the meantime using all diligence in preparing refreshments, and as soon as all was ready the young were called together, the first verse of the Old Hundred and the Doxology were sung, and blessing asked by the Rev. Dr. Brooke, of Fredericton, on Church and Sabbath School, and all their labors and enjoyments.

Amplest justice was specially done by all present to the good things before them, and of these there was, as always at these Festivals, enough and to spare, with an abundant distribution and welcome to all. A Cabinet Organ meanwhile had arrived and music was added to the pleasures of the party.

After a long and hearty enjoyment of the games by the young, a number of the Teachers, Sabbath scholars and friends, sang with the Organ several of the sweet hymns of the Sabbath School; when all returned to their homes in an orderly conveyance, to remember and tell with pleasure of one of the very happiest of Festival enjoyments—Com.

From all quarters we hear of the return of Government supporters—in fact there appears to be too much a number of the Opposition elected to check any extravagance that might be indulged in—or to defeat any measure which would operate injuriously to the public interests. While rejoicing in the success of the Government, we nevertheless would prefer to see a healthy opposition.

It is probable the Government majority will be larger than was anticipated.

The decision of Judge Kogah, with reference to malpractices at the Galloway election, appears to have been sustained by the law officers of the Crown both in England and Ireland. The following extract confirms the statement:—

"A bishop, nineteen priests and three laymen are to be proceeded against for malpractices during the Galloway election. The Government, through the Attorney General for Ireland, has announced this as their decision, the English and Irish law officers of the Crown having arrived at the conclusion that there is sufficient evidence to support a prosecution in twenty-three cases. No less than thirty-six persons were reported by Mr. Justice Kogah as having been guilty of exerting undue influence, or otherwise violating the electoral law. Amongst the number were the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Tuam, the Bishops of Clonfert and Galway, and twenty-two other clergymen. There now seems, however, to be no evidence to support the charges against Dr. McHale, Archbishop of Tuam, and the Bishop of Galway. It is also intended to prosecute Captain Nolan, who was elected, but subsequently unseated on petition, and his brother. The English press expresses doubt that convictions will ensue in any case."

A LETTER TRAVELS SEVENTEEN YEARS IN PURSUIT OF ITS OWNER.—We have been shown a letter by Mr. James McCracken, of this city, says the Ottawa "Free Press," which was mailed in the Post Office in Three Rivers, in Canada, on February 23d, 1855, and addressed by its writer Mr. James McCracken, to his son John, who has previously gone to settle in Melbourne, Australia. Ever since the year 1855 then, that is to say for seventeen years, that letter has been travelling in pursuit of its owner, and it was in that pursuit that it was received in due course through the Post Office here, by Mr. James McCracken, on Saturday last. The envelope, although faded and travel stained, was well preserved, and the Three Rivers and Australian post marks were quite legible. It was marked: "Returned to Three Rivers Post Office, from the Dead Letter Office, Australia."

A RAILWAY BRIDGE 1135 FEET LONG BUILT IN FOUR DAYS.—The Linden bridge over the Susquehanna river near Williamsport, Pa., was recently burned on a Thursday evening; workmen and materials were assembled next day, and on the following Thursday the cars were running over the new bridge, 1,135 feet in length. The original bridge was of the Howe truss pattern, roofed and lined inside and out. Cost, $110,000.

SUICIDE.—The Rev. Allan McNab, a Church of England clergyman, committed suicide while in a state of mental aberration, by walking into the St. Lawrence river near the Victoria bridge, Montreal, last week. Overboard and the excess of a live heat are supposed to be the cause of the melancholy affair.

SUMMARY.

WOODS' HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE for September, is received, and is well fitted with interesting reading—historical, descriptive, instructive and interesting.

The rain on Saturday and Monday morning, did considerable injury to the grass which was cut on Friday; several large fields are just as the mowers left them.

Hon. Dr. Tupper, was passenger on the Train/Monday last for Toronto.

Hon. S. L. Tilley left for St. John on Monday last.

An excursion party from Calais, passed through the harbor on Monday last, with the Calais band.

Dr. Tupper's majority was 1258 over his opponent.

Mr. Anglin was returned for Gloucester, by a majority of 807 over Mr. D. Stray.

Sir Francis Hincks was defeated by a majority of 500. It is reported that Currier of Ottawa will take a seat in the Senate, and allow Sir Francis to come in for Ottawa.

The steamboat "Norwich," which ran ashore near Eastport, last week, passed up to Calais and is now being repaired there.

Parties having property for sale will please leave their names at this office.

The Ministerial returns show 54 against 26 Grits. The Ontario elections may reduce the Government majority, still leaving it about 40.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING ON THE ANNAPOLIS TRAIN.—A sad accident, which will probably result fatally, occurred yesterday afternoon about a quarter past five o'clock on the train from Annapolis for Halifax, when it was a quarter of a mile west of Wolfville. In the smoking car four gentlemen were sitting opposite each other, conversing on general matters. One of them was a man, named George Bates, a native of Bridgewater, Mass., who had been visiting Digby, and was coming to the city, and another was David McCulloch, a ship carpenter, belonging to Pictou, who had been for a long time in California and was returning home. The conversation turned on life in California and Mr. Bates, who is something of a sportsman, enquired about the game shooting of the country. In course of the conversation Mr. McCulloch drew from his pocket a pistol of peculiar character and remark, and that he had shot animals with it while he was travelling in the case in California. Mr. Bates took the pistol to examine it and after a few moments returned it. While Mr. McCulloch had the weapon in his hand it was by some accident discharged and the ball from it entered the right breast of Mr. Bates. The train arrived at Wolfville a few minutes after the accident and the wounded man was removed from the car and placed under the care of surgeons. Justice Bars, of Wolfville, having heard of the affair, took the depositions of Mr. Bates and the two gentlemen who witnessed the shooting—all of them testifying that the shooting was accidental. Mr. McCulloch surrendered himself to the Magistrate to await further proceedings. The surgeons were unable to extract the ball and gave him the encouragement to hope that Mr. Bates would recover.—(Halifax Chronicle)

NEW BRUNSWICK is earning a reputation for producing fast horses. At the Buffalo, N.Y., races last week, in which some of the best horses in the United States competed, "Crown Prince," owned by T. B. Barker, Esq. of St. John, won the race for 240 horses and a purse of $4000; he won in three heats making 2 26½, 2 26½, and 2 25. "Crown Prince," it will be remembered, first appeared on the Fredericton track two years ago, and also took part in the Moosepath track, St. John, last year.

It is probable that there will be a large demand for sheep and cattle of all kinds this fall from the United States. We would venture to advise our farmers not to be tempted by large prices offered, to a reckless disposal of sheep and stock, but to be sure and reserve sufficient for their own use and for reproduction in the following year.—(Carleton Sentinel)

The Daily News says "Mr. Elder has gone to Albert County, it is rumored with the intention of offering for the representation of that constituency in the Dominion Parliament, should he be permitted to do so without opposition."

[This does not seem at all probable, Mr. Elder may have business of another nature in Albert.]

A negro has been arrested at Greensboro, for attempting to poison 23 persons at a Female Academy, some of whom it is feared will die.

Over fifty of the heaviest shoe manufacturers in Lynn, have pledged themselves not to employ any persons controlled by Crispin associations. The Crispins, on their part, have voted to withdraw from the Lynn Savings Bank.

There are 120 unlicensed groggeries in Ottawa City.

The corn crop in Illinois this year will be the largest ever raised.

The Annual Pic-Nic of the congregation of "All Saints' Church" was held on Wednesday last, at Chamcook Mountain, and was as it deserved to be, largely patronized. The arrangements with reference to the Trains were admirable, every disposition was evinced to accommodate the numerous passengers; cars was taken of the children, and time was given to embark and disembark, reflecting much credit upon the Railway employees. While the tables were being laid, large numbers of strangers ascended the rugged steps of the Mountain, and were amply repaid by the extensive and magnificent view from its summit. The day was fine and clear, and the scenery we need hardly say was beautiful in the extreme. Persons who have visited places of note not only on this continent but in Europe, declared "they never enjoyed a more extensive or beautiful view"—"they were delighted and charmed with the "magnificent scenery." After returning to the grove at the foot of the Mountain, they were regaled at well filled tables, where luscious raspberries and cream, tea
