Extra-judicial Accounts Form Administration:
ministration—Reformation of Account—Action en Reddition.]—The rendering of an account divided into distinct heads of receipts, disbursements, and balances, is only required by law in the case of accounts which are rendered in the cause in pursuance of a judgment. No particular form is necessary for extra-judicial accounts, and it is sufficient if they give such details in regard to their subject as will make it possible to check them. 2. When an account of an administration is rendered, the person to whom it is rendered has no right, upon the ground that it is incomplete or inexact, to begin an action en reddition de compte; he should proceed by way of action for reformation of the account. Beaudry v. Précost, Q. R. 22 S. C. 32.

Jurisdiction — Master and Servant — Dictsion of Office Receipts—Discovery.]—In a suit for an account the plaintiff stated that he was appointed deputy sheriff by the defendant, under an agreement that he was to have half of the net receipts of the sheriff's office. The defendant stated the agreement to be that the plaintiff was to have half of the fees from writs and executions only. On the probabilities of the evidence the Court found in favour of the defendant's version of the agreement. Of the receipts in which under this finding the plaintiff might be entitled on discovery to share, the fees in one case, amounting to $35, alone remained undivided:—Held, that the bill should not be dismissed. Hawthorne v. Sterling, 24 Occ. N. 241, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 503.

Partition-Requête Civile - Amendment -Supreme Court Act, s. 63-Order nunc pro tunc — Final or Interlocutory Judgment— Form of Petition in Revocation — Res Judicata.]-On a reference to amend certain accounts already taken, a judgment rendered on the 30th September, 1901, adjudicated on matters in issue between the parties, and, on the accountant's report, homologated on the 25th October, 1901, judgment was ordered to be entered against the appellant for $26,316, on the 30th January, 1902. The appellant filed a requête civile to revoke the latter judgment within six months after it had been rendered, but without referring to the first judgment in the conclusions of the petition It was objected that the first judgment had the effect of res judicata as to the matters in dispute and was a final judgment inter partes :- Held, that, whether the first judgment was final or merely interlocutory, the petition in revocation must be taken as impeaching both former judgments relating to the accounts upon which it was based; that it came in time, as it had been filed within six months of the rendering of the last judgment; and that it virtually raised anew all the issues relating to the taking of the accounts was unable to obtain account from him, and brought an action therefor, which was con promised by P. paying $375, giving $125 cash and a note for the balance, and receiving an assignment of all debts due to W. in respect to the whari property during his agency, a list of which was prepared at the Shortly before the note became due P. discovered that on one of the accounts assigned to him $100 had been paid, and demanded credit on his note for that sum. This W. refused, and in an action on the note P. asserted that the error avoided the compromise, and that the note was without consideration, or in the alternative that the note should be rectified:—Held, that, as it appeared that P.'s attorney had knowledge of the error before the compromise was effected, and as, by the compromise, W. was prevented from going fully into the accounts and perhaps establishing a greater liability on the part of P., W. was entitled to recover the full amount of the note. Peters v. Worrall, 22 Occ. N. 198, 32 S. C. R. 52

Action for—Company—Board of Directors—Onus—Particulers,—In an action en reddition de comptes brought by a company against their president, the onus is upon the defendant to establish his allegation that the plaintiffs board of directors is incomplete. 2. The plaintiffs asked that in default of accounting the defendant should be adjudged to pay a certain sum which they alleged he had received by virtue of certain contracts:—Held, that they were not obliged to state at what date and from what persons such sum had been received. Temiscouata R. W. Co. v. Macdonald, 3 Q. F. R. 462.

Action for—Neglect to File—Order.]—
A plaintiff, who sues upon an account without filing it, and whose declaration is in general terms, will be ordered upon motion of the defendant to file his account, and to serve a copy upon the defendant. Lachine Rapids Co. v. Hemond, 5 Q. P. R. 138.

Action for — Service of Account—Dilatory Exception.]—The failure to serve upon the defendant a detailed account at the same time as process in the action, is not ground for an exception to the form, but rather for a dilatory exception, such failure having only the effect of delaying the proceedings until the account has been served. Dubrule v. Leclaire, Q. R. 24 S. C. 314.

Agreement as to Manufacture and Sale of Patented Article — License to sell or agency for sale—Partnership—Fiduciary relationship—Statute of Limitations—Cancellation of agreement—Notice—Subsequent to judgment — Infringement, Barr Cash and Package Carriers Co. v. Hamilton Brass Manufacturing Co., 3 O. W. R. 762, 6 O. W. R. 432.

Co-hetrs—Form of action.]—An heir has no right to sue one of his co-heirs en redution de compte, but the only action which he can bring is an action en compte et partage. Renaud v. Delfausse, 5 Q. P. R. 230.

Contestation—Maladministration—Exception to Form—Demurrer.]—The party seeking an account may, in his contestation of the account rendered, urge all acts of maladministration committed by the accounting affected by the two former judgments. A motion to amend the petition so as to include specifically any necessary conclusions against the judgment of the 30th September, 1901, had been refused in the Court below, and was renewed on the appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada:—Held, that, as the facts set forth in the petition necessarily involved a correstation of the accountant's reports dealt with in the first judgment, the case was a proper one for the exercise of the discretion allowed by s. 63 of the Supreme Court Act, and that the amendment to the conclusions of the petition should be permitted nune pro tune. Hill v. Hill, 24 Occ. N. 73, 34 S. C. R. 13.

Pleading—Account Rendered before Action.]—When the rendering of an account, with vouchers and deposit of the balance, is, by the plea, alleged to have been made beiore the institution of the action, the plaintiff cannot inscribe in law, but must discuss (débattre) such account, Nizon v. Nizon, Q. R. 24 S. C. 316.

Pleading—Incidental Demand — Omissions from Principal Demand.]—Omissions made by the plaintiff in framing an action en reddition de compte may, notwithstanding Arts, 516 and 522, C. P., be the subject of an incidental demand. Roe v. Hood, 4 Q. P. R. 333.

Right of Action for—Privity—Pledge of Debentures—Subsequent Claim on Proceeds.]—A contractor for work to be done for a company who have agreed to pay him by handing over the proceeds of their debentures, which have been transferred for the purpose of securing a loan, the contractor consenting that the lender shall be paid before him out of the proceeds of the debentures, has a right of action for an account against the latter. Fosbrooke v. Murray, 6 Q. P. R. 122.

Redemption — Trustee in possession — Master's report—Appeal, Hull v. Allen, 1 O. W. R. 151, 782, 6 O. W. R. 961.

Re-opening—Delay—Contract—Error.]—The appellants contracted with respondents to furnish them with electric lighting at three quarters of a cent per ampere hour, the bill to be rendered mouthly. At this time the current was 52 volts, but it was soon after doubled, without any notice to the respondents, and without any change in the lighting. Accounts were rendered at the original rate during about two years and a half, when the appellants pretended that, in consequence of the increase of the voltage, the quantity of the light furnished was doubled, and the action was to recover the value of the additional light from the date of the change;—Held, affirming the judgment in Q. R. 16 S. C. 377, that, the appellants having, during a lengthened period, placed their own interpretation upon the contract, and the respondents having thereby been deprived of any opportunity to abandon the agreement, it was too late for the appellants to complain that they had followed a wrong principle in calculating the light furnished. Royal Electric Co. v. Dovis, Q. R. 9 Q. B. 445.

Sale of Hotel Business—Counterclaim for balance of purchase money—Deductions—Resale of assets—License—Trust—Goodwill—Chattel mortgage—Seizure—Sale—

Onus. Boucher v. Capital Brewing Co., 5 O. W. R. 270, 686, 6 O. W. R. 70.

Consolidation of Actions — Stay of proceedings—Parties—Jury notice. Murphy v. Bradie, 1 O. W. R. 429, 681, 2 O. W. R. 106, 3 O. W. R. 508.

Discontinuance—Counterclaim — Cause of Action—Jurisdiction.]—Where the plaintiff discontinues his action after the defendant has delivered a counterclaim, the defendant may proceed with his counterclaim as if it were an action; the plaintiff will then be in the same position as a defendant served with a writ of summons; and if the counterchaim is one which the defendant could assert only by virtue of the plaintiff having come into the jurisdiction and sued the defendant, he should not be allowed to proceed with it as a term of permitting the plaintiff to discontinue. Dominion Burglary Guarouter Co. v. Wood, 22 Occ. N. 151, 3 O. L. R. 335.

Discontinuance — Practice as to — Return of Writ—Motion to Dismiss.]—The provisions of Art. 276, C. P., as to desistment, are not limitative, and the form prescribed by the Article is not obligatory. 2. A planitiff who desists from his demand before return of the writ, is not obliged to return his action upon the day fixed in order to be in a position to state that he has desisted. 3. A motion for dismissal made after desistment is of no effect. Lauterman v. Vineberg. 5 Q. P. R. 127.

Dismissal for Default of Doing an Act—Necessity for Further Order.]—Upon an appeal from an order of the Master in Chambers upon a motion to dismiss the action for default of an undertaking:—Held, per Meredith, C.J., that where an order is made for the doing of an act, or, in the alternative, that the action should be dismissed, and default is made in the doing of the act, the order operates to put an end to the action, and no further order is necessary, and, the action being dead, the Court has no power to relieve from the Action that under the remnstances the action should be dismissed, declined to consider that under the remnstances the action should be dismissed, declined to consider the physical of the necessity of a further application or the power to relieve from the Act of the Action Stoudh and Mica Co. v. Logan, 1 O. W. R. 107, 174, 22 Occ. N. 159, 3 O. L. R. 434.

Dismissal for not Going to Trial— Joined of Issue Served but not Filed.— An application for a judgment, as in case of nonsuit, was refused where it appeared that the plaintif had not filed a joinder of issue, though one had been served. Gallagher v. Wilson, 21 Occ. N. 54, 35 N. B. Reps. 238.

Dismissal for Want of Prosecution—Party in Default—Coats, |—1. A party interested who is bound to continue a suit is not entitled to a mise en deneure, the law itself putting him in default to do so. 2. When a continuance of suit is not effected by the party interested, the party remaining in the case may bring an action to compel him to continue the suit, without any previous demand, and is entitled to the costs of such suit. Judgment in Q. R. 21 S. C. 48 reversed as to costs. Arcand v. Yon, Q. R. 22 S. C. 502.

Local Venue — Real Action — Stins of Control of States of Action — Stins of Degun an action accompanied by a saisie conservatoire, claiming $700 as the price of wood seized, and demanding, as a subsidivry matter, that they should also be paid the price of the wood upon the sale of it to be made by the Court:—Held, that such action was not a real action, within the meaning of Art. 100, C. C. P., and could not be begun in the place in which the thing seized was situated. Auger v. Moreau, Q. R. 20 S. C. 285.

AdvertIsement for Labourers—Promise of Employment.]— The defendants had published in a Seattle newspaper this advertisement:—"Wanted, first-class machinists, Apply Vancouver Engineering Works, Ltd., Vancouver, B.C."—Held, that the advertisement did not contain a promise of employment within the meaning of the Alein Labour Act, as amended by 1 Edw, VII. c. 13, s. 4. Downie v. Vancouver Engineering Works, Limited, 24 Occ. N. 284, 10 B. C. R. 367.

Chinese Immigrants—Transit—Railway Company—Detention.]—Where immigrants of Chinese origin are merely passing through Canada, under a contract with a railway company for their transportation to a point or destination beyond the limits of Canada, the railway company (under the provisions of 63 & 64 V. c. 32 (D.), since repealed by 3 Edw. VII. c. 8), were justified in detaining them, and in refusing them permission to remain in Canadian territory, they not having complied with the provisions of 63 & 64 V. c. 32, then in force, applicable to Chinese immigrants entering Canada with intention to remain therein. Wing Toy v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., Q. R. 13 K. B. 172.

Chinese Immigrants, who are refused admission in the United States, and do not appeal from the decision so rendered against them, are not entitled to a writ of habeas corpus, while being transported from the United States to China, in conformity with the agreement between the United States and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, Chew v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., 5 Q. P. R. 453, 6 Q. P. R. 14.

Chinese Immigration Act, 1900
Departation of Chinamen—Habeas Corpus.]
—Held, that where a Chinaman, who contracts with a transportation company for his passage from China through Canada to the inted States, on the understanding that if he is refused admittance to the States he will be deported to China by the company, is refused admittance to the States and is being deported, he will not be granted his discharge on habeas corpus proceedings, as the contract is not illegal, and under the Chinese Immigration Act, 1990, deportation is proper. In re Lee San, 24 Occ. N. 162, 10 B. C. R. 270.

From Summary Conviction — Notice of Appeal—Description of Offence.]—A notice of appeal from a conviction for playing in a common gaming house, which describes the offence for which the appellant was convicted as "looking on while another was playing in a common gaming house," is insufficient. Rew v. Mah Yin, 9 B. C. R. 319.

Magistrate's Conviction—Entry—Recognizance.]—An appeal from a summary conviction cannot be received or heard unless the recognizance required by s. 71 (c) of the Summary Convictions Act has been entered into on or before the day on which the appeal is entered for hearing. Regina v. King, 7 B. C. R. 401.

Procedure on Appeal — Water Clauses Consolidation Act—Gold Commissioner;]—The appeal under s. 35 of the Water Clauses Consolidation Act, from the decision of the Gold Commissioner to a County Court Judge, is a trial de novo. In re Ross and Thompson, 24 Occ. N. 34, 10 B. C. R. 177.

Small Debts Court—New Witness.] — An appeal from the Small Debts Court is by any of a rehearing, and witnesses may be called although not called at the trial. Malkin v. Tobin, 7 B. C. R. 386.

Summary Convictions Act, B.C. — Necessity for entry of appeal. Gibson v. Adams (B.C.), 2 W. L. R. 72.

II. BRITISH COLUMBIA — APPEAL TO SU-PREME COURT,

Amending Judge's Notes of Evidence.]—On the hearing of an appeal from the decision of a County Court Judge, counsel for the appellant applied to introduce further evidence alleged to have been omitted from the Judge's notes of evidence taken at the trial. The Court refused the application, holding that where a party desires to introduce, on an appeal, evidence alleged to have been omitted from the Judge's notes of evidence, he should first apply to the Judge to amend his notes. Rendell v. MeLellan, 23 Occ. N. 57, 9 B, C. R. 328.

Appeal Book—Paging:]—The pages of appeal books should be numbered at the top of the pages. Haggerty v. Lenara Mount Sieker Copper Mining Co., 22 Occ. N. 106, 9 B. C. R. 6.

Costs—Appeal Partly Successful.]—An appellant who is substantially successful is entitled to the costs of appeal. The fact that a respondent is successful in some parts of an appeal is not sufficient to deprive an appellant who is substantially successful of his costs. Centre Star Mining Co., v. Rossland Miners' Union, 24 Occ. N. 198, 10 B. C. R. 48.

Decision of County Court on Appeal from Magistrate's Court.]—An appeal does not lie, even by leave, to the Supreme Court from the order of a County Court Judge made on appeal to him from the decision or conviction of a magistrate under the Provincial Summary Convictions Act. In re Lambert, 7 B. C. R. 396.

Entry of Appeal—Extension of Time—Application—Forum.]—An appeal was not entered in time for the sittings of the full Court for which the notice of appeal had been given, and an application was made to extend the time and for leave to enter the appeal for next sittings:—Held, that when the full Court is sitting, such an application is properly made to it. Mecredy v. Quann, 9 B. C. R. 117.

given before trial, but when the appeal came on to be heard the trial had commenced, though it had not been concluded. The Court refused to interfere. Dunlop v. Hancy. 7 B. C. R. 455.

Introducing Fresh Evidence on Appeal.]—Motions by the appellants to admit in the full Court further evidence on the hearing of appeal from a judgment at the trail were dismissed:—Held, that an application to admit further evidence which might have been adduced at the trial, should be supported by the affidavit of the applicant indicating the evidence desired to be used, and setting forth when and how the applicant came to be aware of its existence, what efforts, if any, he made to have it adduced at the trial, and that he is advised and believes that if it had been so adduced, the result would probably have been different. Marino v. Sproat, 23 Occ. N. 31, 9 B. C. R. 335.

Notice of Appeal — Extension of Time for—Waiver—Security for Costs.] — The Court has no jurisdiction to extend the time limited by s. 76 of the Supreme Court Act of British Columbia, as amended by Acts of 1899, c. 20, for giving notice of appeal. A respondent by applying for security for the costs of appeal does not walve his right to object that the appeal was not brought in time. Lung v. Lung, 8 B. C. R. 423.

Notice of Appeal—Grounds not Argued —Abandonment—Misdirection— Particulars,]—Points not argued, although included in the notice of appeal, will be considered as abandoned. Grounds of appeal should be so particularized that the opposite party will know beforehand what he has to meet, and when "mis-direction" is alleged, particulars should be stated. Warmington v. Palmer, 22 Occ. N. 126, 8 B. C. R. 344.

Notice of Appeal—Sittings—Time.]—A final judgment was pronounced and entered on the 27th February; notice of appeal for the January sitting of the full Court was given on the 24th October. A sitting of the full Court commenced, necording to the statute, on the 3rd November:—Held, that the appeal was brought in time. Tradera National Bank of Spokane v. Ingram, 24 Occ. N. 198, 10 B. C. R. 442.

Preliminary Objection—Notice of.]—
Notice of a preliminary objection to an appeal to the full Court must be served at least one clear day before the time set for the beginning of the sittings. McGuire v. Miller, 9 B. C. R. 1.

Place of Hearing — Notice of Appeal—Striking out—Forum, — Under the Supreme Court Act, as amended in 1902, an appeal and a Victoria case can be heard by the full Court sitting in Vancouver without consent. Per Drake, J.—A single Judge has jurisdiction to order a notice of appeal to the full Court to be struck out. Raser v. McQuade (No. 2), 11 B. C. R. 169.

Refusal to Entertain — Interlocutory Order — Action Decided Pending Appeal — Costs.]—This was an appeal from an interlocutory order, and, pending the appeal, the action had been tried and decided. The full Court ordered that the appeal be struck out of the list, refusing to accede to the request of the appellant's counsel, who wanted the appeal to go on to decide the question of costs. Faucest v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., 22 Occ. N. 39, 8 B. C. R. 219.

Reversing Findings of Facts—Trial without Jury—Commission Beidence—Company—Contract—Ultra Vires.]—In an action in the Yukon for damages for breach of contract, tried without a jury, the evidence for the defence being evidence for the devidence for the defence being evidence taken on commission, the suggested that the contract sued and not with one Minn as alleged by the defence, and gave judgment for the plain-tiffs:—Held, reversing the finding and allowing the appeal, that the Judge had failed to appreciate the commission evidence. Per Drake, J., that the question of ultra vires, not having been revised in the Court below, was not open on appeal. McKay v. Victoria Yukon Trading Uo., 22 Occ. N. 163, 9 B. U. R. 37.

Right of Appeal—Award—Workmen's Compensation Act. Lee v. Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. (B.C.), 1 W. L. R. 527.

Right of Appeal—Decision of Judge on Appeal from Cont of Revision—Preliminary Objection—Costs.]—See In re Vancouver Incorporation Act and Rogers, 23 Occ. N. 72, 9 B. C. R. 373.

Right of Appeal — Party Interested—Who is—Rivers and Streams Act, s. 12.]—Section 12 of the Rivers and Streams Act provides that if a "party interested" is dissatisfied with the judgment of the County Court Judge he may appeal to the Supreme Court: — Held, that "party interested" means one who was a party to the proceedings before the Judge appealed from. In re Smith, 23 oc., N. 58, 9 B. C. R. 329.

Right to Intervene—Water Record.]—Any one affected by a decision appealed from under s. 36 of the Water Clauses Consolidation Act, may be let in on the hearing of the appeal, even though the month for giving notice of appeal has expired. Such person may make his application on the hearing of the appellant's motion for directions. In re Water Clauses Consolidation Act, 21 Occ. N. 192, 8 E. C. R. 17.

Security for Costs—Stay of Proceedings.]—An order for security for costs for an appeal to the full Court should provide for a stay of proceedings until security is given. Kettle River Mines, Limited v. Bleasdell, 22 Occ. N. 163, S. B. C. R. 350.

Small Debts Court—Appeal from—Finality of, I—Appeal to the Full Court from a judgment in the County Court on an appeal from the Small Debts Court:—Held, that the appeal given by s. 29 of the Small Debts Court Act to either a Judge of the Supreme Court, or to the County Court, is final. Larsen v. Coryell, 24 Occ. N. 413, 11 B. C. R. 22.

Summary Convictions Act — Case Stated—Transmitting Case to District Registry—Condition Precedent.]—Appeal by way of case stated under the Summary Convictions Act. The appellant had not filed the case in the proper District Registry (New Westminster), as required by s. 86 of the Act, but he did, according to leave obtained, file the case in the Vancouver Registry:—Held, when the appeal came on for hearing, that the transmission of the case to the proper registry, as required by s. 86, is a condition precedent to the jurisdiction conferred by ss. 90 and 92, and, as that provision of s. 86 had not been compiled with, the Courts could not entertain the appeal. Morgan v. Edwards, 29 L. J. M. C. 108, followed. Cooksley v. Nakashiba, 21 Occ. N. 492, 8 B. C. R. 117.

Time—Date of Decision—Entry of Order.]—An order deciding a garnishee issue was dated the 26th March, settled by the Judge on the 15th July, and entered on the 25th July. Notice of appeal was served on the 19th July: —Held, that the appeal was brought in time. Manley v. Mackintosh, 10 R. C. R. S4.

Time—Extension after Expiry—Jurisdiction.]—On this appeal the question of the Court's jurisdiction to extend the time limited for appeal after the time limited had once expired came up, and counsel for the appellant wished to argue that the Court had such jurisdiction and that the decision in Sung v. Lung, S Brit. Col. L. R. 423, was wrong. The Court announced that, if it became necessary to decide the point, all the Judges would be summoned to hear argument.—A decision on the point was not necessary, so it was not argued. Noble Five Mining Co, v. Last Chance Mining Co, v. 23. Occ. N. 252, 9 B. C. R. 514

Yukon Appeal—Final Judgment—Right of Appeal—Leave to Appeal to Privy Council —Costs.]—In an action by executors against the appellant to recover certain sums or money due to their estate, the Judge of the Territorial Court, at the request of the plaintiffs, selected one of the items, and adjudicated on the evidence taken that the action in respect thereof be dismissed:—Held, that this was, within the meaning of the Yukon Territorial Act, 1899, s. S. a final judgment in respect thereof, notwithstanding that the remaining items in suit were referred, and the costs were reserved. No appeal therefrom to the British Columbia Court lay after the expiration of 20 days. Special leave having been granted to appeal from a decree of the Supreme Court of Canada on a petition stating that the construction of the said statute was a matter of general public importance, without stating that it had been repealed:—Held, that, as the omission was immaterial and bona fide, the appellant should not be deprived of his costs. Judgment in Belcher v. McDonald v. Belcher, [1904] A. C. 429.

Yukon Cases—Insount in Controversy—Counterclaim, 1—Appeal from a judgment in the Territorial Court of the Yukon Territory. The plaintiffs sued for $$498$ damages sustained by their steamer as the result of a collision with the defendants' steamer. The defendants counterclaimed for damages. At the trial the plaintiffs' claim was dismissed, and the defendants on their counterclaim got judgment for $735. The plaintiffs appealed:—Held, that the appeal must be limited to the judgment on the counterclaim, as the claim was not for an appealable amount. Canadian Decelopment Co. v. Le Blanc, 21 Occ. N. 300, 8 B. C. R. 173.

Terms—Appeal Books.]—The Court may extend on terms the time for appealing to the February Court of the Co

Yukon Cases—62 & 63 V. c. 11, s. 7— Application to Pending Cause.]—The Act 62 & 63 V. c. 11, giving the right of appeal to the Judges of the Supreme Court of British Columbia sitting together as a full Court in cases from the Yukon, as therein specified, does not apply to a case tried before the Act came into force and decided after. Canadian and Yukon Prospecting and Mining Co. v. Cascy, 7 B. C. R. 373.

Yukon Cases—62 & 63 V. c. 11, s. 7—Application to Pending Cause.]—The Act 62 & 63 V. c. 11, s. 7, which gives a right of appeal to the Supreme Court of British Columbia in cases from the Yukon Territory, as therein specified, applies to an action pending when the Act came into force, but tried and decided afterwards. Courtnay v. Canadian Decelopment Co., 21 Occ. N. 61, 7 B. C. R. 377.

III. EXCHEQUER COURT OF CANADA—AP-PEAL TO.

Salvage Action—Judgment of Local Judge in Admiralty—Practice—Remission for Further Evidence,—Under the provisions of Rules 159 and 162 of the general Rules and Orders regulating the practice and procedure in Admiralty cases in the Exchequer Court of Canada, the Court, in entertaining an appeal from the decision of a local Judge in Admiralty in a salvage case, may direct that further evidence be taken before the local Judge in order to dispose of an issue raised on the appeal. In such a case the appeal is by way of rehearing, Fermont 8, 8, Co. v. The "Abby Palmer." 24 Occ. N. 387, 9 Ex. C. R. 1.

IV. NEW BRUNSWICK—APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

County Court Appeal—Interference—
Assumed Findings of Fact—Rejection of Beidence—Absence of Projudicc.]—On an appeal from the judgment of a County Court, where the Judge has tried the cause without a jury and entered a judgment for the respondent, and the return does not contain a statement of his findings on the facts, it will be assumed by the appellate Court that he found the facts in favour of the respondent, and the judgment will not be disturbed if there is evidence to justify such finding. A judgment will not be reversed on appeal on the ground that evidence could not have been prejudiced by the rejection. Johnson V. Jack, Johnson V. Bank of Nova Scotia, 35 N. B. Reps. 492.

Court Appeal—Right of Appeal —Neglect to Move for New Trial.)—The Court will not refuse to hear an appeal because the appellant neglected to take out a summons for a new trial in the County Court until the time had expired for which the signing of judgment had been stayed, and did not ask for a further stay or offer any excuse for the delay, no term having elapsed. Read v. McGirney, 36 N. B. Reps. 513.

Findings of Fact—Equity Judge—Review.—In an equity appeal, where the Judge in Equity, in the opinion of the appellate Court, disregarded or did not give due weight to evidence of witnesses taken under commission, the Court may review his findings on the facts as well as the law. Fairweather v. Lloyd, 36 N. B. Reps. 548.

Grounds for Appeal — Costs — New Trial.]—It is not a ground for an appeal from an order for a new trial of a County Court action because the verdict was against the weight of evidence, that costs should not have been imposed in granting the new trial. Macrae v. Broun. 36 N. B. Reps. 353.

Matrimonial Cause—Adultery—Credibility of Witnesses—Question for Trial Judge,]—In the Court of Divorce and Matrimonial Causes the amount of credence to be given to the witnesses is entirely for the Judge who hears the case. Therefore on the trial of a libel filed by the wife for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii on the ground of the adultery of the husband, when the presiding Judge accepted the evidence of a single witness to prove the adultery, as to which fact she was not corroborated, though on other matters she was, and entirely rejected the uncontradicted statements of several witnesses called to prove immoral conduct on the part of the wife:—Held, that he had a right so to do, and the Court on appeal would not on that account disturb the decree. Bell v. Bell, 34 N. B. Reps, 615.

Right of Appeal—County Court—Decision of Judge.]—Where questions of fact, which have not been passed upon by the Judge below, are not involved, an appeal will lie directly to the Supreme Court from a decision of a County Court Judge. Patterson v. Larsen, 36 N. B. Reps. 4.

V. NORTH-WEST TERRITORIES—APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

Costs—Leave to Appeal — Time to Inscribe.]—Rules 500 and 501 of the Judicature Ordinance are independent of each other; Rule 501 does not apply to an appeal as to costs: by virtue of Rule 500, an appeal as to costs lies irrespective of any of the limitations contained in Rule 501, (1) without leave, where, by law, the costs are not—and (2) with leave, where, by law, the costs are —left to the discretion of the Court or Judge. Where, therefore, the grounds of appeal were that the Judge had ordered costs to be paid out of a fund, out of which he had no power to order them to be paid:—Held, that leave to appeal was not necessary. Time for inscribing appeal, and calargement of time, discussed. In re Demaurez, 4 Terr. L. R. 281.

Ground not Taken Below—Notice of Appeal.)—On appeal to the Court in banc, counsel for the defendants (appellants) having sought to raise for the first time the point that, although there had been a dedication of the land in question as a highway, such dediention was made and accepted subject to such obstructions as existed upon it at the time of dedication, the Court considering that the point was not covered by any of the grounds stated in the appellants' notice of appeal:—Held, that the appellants were not at liberty to raise the point at this stage. Town of Edmonton v. Brown, J Teyr. L. R.

Leave to Appeal—Powers of Court in banc—New Trial—Neglect to Give Evidence.]—The Judicature Ordinance, R. O. 1888 c. 58, s. 435, provides that "no appeal shall lie from the judgment or order of the Smill he from the Judgmen of order of the Court presided over by a single Judge or of a Judge of the Court to the Court in banc, without the special leave of the Judge or Court whose judgment or order is in question, unless the title to real estate or some interest therein is affected, or unless the matter in controversy on the appeal in matters of contract exceeds the sum of $500 and in matters of tort exceeds the sum of $200, exclusive of costs; or unless the matter in question relates to the taking of an annual or other rent, customary, or other duty or fee, or a like demand of a general or public nature affecting future rights; Held, that, where a trial Judge had not granted leave to appeal in a case in which, by virtue of this section, leave to appeal was necessary, the Court in banc had no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal, or to give leave to appeal, even, semble, had it appeared that the Judge had said that the applicant might apply to the Court in banc for leave. Semble, where a party fails in his case by reason of his neglecting to give necessary evidence, of which at the time of the trial he had knowledge, he should be allowed a new trial to permit him to supply the evidence, only under special circumstances. Chalmers v. Fysh, 1 Terr. L. R. 434.

Notice of Appeal—Amendment—Special Leave.]—Notwithstanding that the case is of such a character as to require special leave to appeal, the Court in bane has nower to amend the notice of appeal by adding a ground not taken when leave was granted; such an amendment is a matter for the exercise of the discretion of the Court, and such discretion will not, in such a case, be exercised without very great precautions. Western Milling Co. v. Darke. 2 Terr. L. R. 40.

Notice of Appeal—Amendment of, 1—As a general rule on the argument of an appeal leave to amend the notice of appeal will be given for the purpose of correcting errors of dates and other trifling natters and on special terms. Seasmith v. Murphy, 1 Terr. L. R. 311.

Notice of Appeal—Time.]—See In re Donnelly, 5 Terr. L. R. 270.

Right of Appeal—Amount in Controversy.)—The plaintiff sued for $617.85, and defendants with their defence, while denying liability, brought into Court $337 as being sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff claim; the trial Judge found the plaintiff claim; the trial Judge found the plaintiff court, leaving, with an adjustment of interest, a balance due to the plaintiff of $182.43:—Held, that the amount in controversy exceeded $200, and the defendant was entitled to appeal without special leave. McDougall v. McLean, 1 Terr. L. R. 436.

Security for Costs of—Grounds for ordering—Poverty of appellant—Disposition of property. Dakota Lumber Co. v. Rinder-kuecht (N.W.T.) 1 W. L. R. 481, 2 W. L. R. 86, 278.

VI. NOVA SCOTIA—APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

County Court Appeal — Findings of Jury — Necessity for Intermediate Application.]—An appeal was taken directly to the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia from the findings of the jury in a case tried in a County Court:—Held, following Belden v. Freeman, 21 N. S. Reps. 106, that there should have been an application in the first instance to the Judge of the County Court for a new trial, and that the appeal should have been from his decision on that application, rad that the present appeal must be quashed. White v. Hissix, 35 N. S. Reps. 432.

Right of Appeal—Decision of Commissioner of Mines—Guashing appeal—Judgment—Estoppel — Mandamust,]—Where an appeal from a decision of the Commissioner of Mines for Nova Scotia, on an application for a lease of mining land, is quashed by the Supreme Court of the Province, on the ground that it was not a decision from which an appeal could be asserted, the judgment of the Supreme Court is final and binding on the applicant, and also on the Commissioner, even if he is not a party to it. The quashing of the appeal would not necessarily be a determination that the decision was not appealable, if the ground had not been stated. In the present case the quashing of the appeal precluded the Commissioner on his successor in office from afterwards contending that the decision was appealable. If the Commissioner, after such appeal is quashed, refuses to decide again upon the application for a lease, the applicant may compel him to do so by writ of mandamus. Drysdale v. Dominion Coal Co., 24 Occ. N. 106, 34 S. C. R. 328.

Right of Appeal—Order in Chambers — Discretion of Judge — Refusal to Allow Cross-examination.] — On an application at Chambers to set aside, as false, frivolous, and exatious, the pleas pleaded by the defendant to an action brought against him as the acceptor of a bill of exchange discounted by the plaintiffs, the defendant applied for leave to cross-examine the manager of the plaintiffs on the affidavit upon which the motion was founded:—Held, that the matter was one within the discretion of the Chambers Judge, and that there was no appeal from his refusal to permit the cross-examination applied for.

Right of Appeal—Waiver—Enforcement of Judyment.]—The plaintiff recovered judyment for damages against the defendant, taxed costs, and made a demand under threat of issuing an execution for the amount of damages and costs. The defendant paid the amount. Subsequently the plaintiff appealed from the judyment, asking for an increase of damages:—Held, that it was not competent

Conditional Allowance of—Reduction of Damages—Election—Further Appeal.]—
After the plaintiff's damages had been assessed by a jury, the trial Judge dismissed the action. The plaintiff appealed, and the Court of Appeal ordered that, if the plaintiff elected to reduce the damages assessed by the jury, her appeal should be allowed with costs, and judgment entered for her for the reduced amount with costs, or otherwise that there should be a new trial:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to have a clause inserted in the order of the Court protecting her, in the event of an appeal by the defendant to the Supreme Court of Canada, against her election to reduce the damages. Effect of Allowing — Non-appealing Party—Costs.]—Action to restrain a township corporation and a contractor from constructing a drain authorized by by-law of the township. The judgment of the High Court granted an injunction against and ordered costs to be paid by both defendants, and ordered the corporation to indemnify the contractor if he paid them. The corporation appealed to the Court of Appeal, making the contractor a respondent; the latter appeared at the hearing of that appeal, but did not himself appeal. The appeal was that the action should be dismissed as against both defendants, but the contractor should have no costs of the appeal. Semble, that he should have his costs below against the plaintiff. Peterkin v. McFarlane, 6 A. R. 254, Re Gabourie, Casey v. Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252, Esdaile v. Payne, 40 Ch. D. 520, and Dilke v. Douglas, 5 A. Extension of Time for—Application to Opposite Solicitor—Unreasonable Refusal—Coste.]—Rules 799 and 891, prescribing the times for filing and serving notice of appeal and serving the appeal case, enable the appellant, whenever necessary, to obtain further time from the Court or a Judge; and that being so, the solicitor requiring further time should, in general, before applying to the Court, apply to the solicitor for the respondent, explaining the occasion for it, and the latter ought, in every proper case, to grant the request; any other course of conduct only occasions unnecessary and useless costs. And where application for an extension was made to the solicitor, and, in the opinion of the Judge who heard a motion to extend the time, unreasonably refused, an order was made extending the time and staying execution, without costs to the respondent. Bodine v. Hove, 2.1 Occ. N. 154, 1 O. L. R. 208.

Extension of Time — Application to Opposite Solicitor — Unreasonable terms — Costs.] — Where the respondent's solicitor refused, except upon more stringent terms than the Court would impose, to extend the time for delivery by the appellant of the draft appeal case and reasons of appeal, and the appeal and, declining to accept the terms, moved before a Judge of the Court of Appeal and obtained an order extending the time, the costs of such motion were made costs to the appellant in the appeal. Leave to Appeal—Case tried with Jury.]
—On an application under s. 76 (a) of 4
Edw. VII. c. 11 (O.) for leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal direct from a judgment at the trial before a Judge and jury in a case of sufficient importance and difficulty, in addition to the amount of the judgment (§2,500), to justify an appeal, it was objected that the section did not apply to the case of a trial with a jury, but only to trials by a Judge without a jury :—Held, that the plain object of the section was to avoid a double appeal; that it should receive a liberal construction; and that the judgment at or following upon the trial where the issues of fact are tried by a jury is the "judgment, order, or decision" of the Judge within the meaning of the section; and leave to appeal was granted. Leave to Appeal—Order Striking out Jury Notice—Powers of Judge in Chambers—Conflicting Decisions.]—In an action of covenant upon two mortgages, the defence was that the defendant had been induced to execute them by false and fraudulent representations. The defendant filed and served a jury notice, which was struck out by a Judge in Chambers, whose order was affirmed by a Divisional Court. A motion by the defendant for leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal was refused:—Held, that the order sought to be appealed against involved no question of law or practice on which there had been conflicting decisions or opinions by the High Court, or by Judges thereof; R. S. O. c. 51, s. 77, s.-s. (4), cl. (c). The power of a Judge in Chambers to strike out a Jury notice has never been doubted. People's Building and Loon Association v. Stanley, 22 Oce. N. 254, 4 O. L. Public Schools -Leave to Appeal Selection of School — Grounds of Appeal.]—Motion for leave to appeal from the order of a Divisional Court allowing an appeal from an order of a Judge in Chambers and granting a mandamus to a township corporation requiring them to pass a by-law for the issue of debentures for $1,000 for the the issue of a school site and the erection of a school house:—Held, that the circum-stance of the first order having been made in Chambers, and the additional fact that the applicants for leave to appeal were the respondents in the Divisional Court, and would have been entitled to appeal as of course if the motion had been heard in the first instance by a Judge sitting in Court, were material factors — when coupled with reasons of a substantial kind for questioning the judgment complained of—in affecting the discretion to be exercised. An important question was raised as to the true construction of a somewhat obscurely phrased section of the Public Schools Act. Plausible grounds of objection to the construction placed by the Divisional Court upon the legislative provisions in question were presented. Questions relating to the validity or invalidity or binding effect or otherwise of an award purporting to be made in pursuance of these provisions were also involved; and the matter was of some public interest. v. Boyd, Leave to Appeal - Question of Costs-Solicitor-Payment by Salary-Taxation of Costs against Opposite Party-Right to Costs -Municipal Corporation - By-law. | solicitor of a municipal corporation was appointed under the terms of a by-law which provided for his receiving a yearly salary of $1.800 for all services performed by him, including costs of litigation incurred on behalf of the corporation, and any costs awarded to the corporation were to be paid over to the city treasurer. This by-law was amended by a by-law providing that all costs payable to the corporation in any action should be paid to the solicitor as part of his remuneration, in addition to his salary. After the passing of the amending by-law the corporation claimed to have the right to tax profit costs in an action against the corporation, which had been dismissed with costs by a judgment given before the passing of such amending by-law. -Leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal from an order of a Divisional Court (22 Occ. N. 408, 4 O. L. R. 656) refusing to allow such profit costs, having been moved for:— Held. that, having regard to the litigation and the decisions on the subject, leave should not be granted .- Semble, that the date of the judgment governed the plaintiffs' liability to costs. Leave to Appeal-Special Circumstances — Defamation — Misdirection — Evidence — Damages—Discretion.]—Upon motion by the defendant for leave to appeal from an order of a Divisional Court affirming the judgment at the trial, upon the verdict of a jury awarding the plaintiff $100 damages in an action for libel:—Held, that the defendant had failed to shew special circumstances. The verdict was small, and the jury seemed to have arrived at it upon a charge to which the only exception urged was a reference to a former action, and, if the Judge erred in not passing that over, there was nothing to shew that any substantial wrong was occasioned by it. The weight of authority was against the proposition that a defendant in a libel action may set up in mitigation of damages acts and doings of the plaintiff arising long after the alleged libel, and not having reference to it; but the matter was to some extent one of the exercise of discretion by the trial Judge, and leave to appeal against that ought only to be given in exceptional cases. Downey v. Stirton, 21 Occ. N. 155.

Leave to Appeal — Status of Judicial Officer, 1 — A Divisional Court reversed an order of a Judge in Chambers, which stayed proceedings in these actions and dismissed a motion for a reference to the drainage referee a an official referee. The Divisional Court decided that the drainage referee was an official referee for the purposes of the Arbitration Act. — Held, that leave to appeal should be granted on the ground that the decision involved the status, jurisdiction, and authority of a judicial officer, and the validity of the proceedings which might be taken by him under the order of the Divisional Court. McClure v. Tounship of Brooke, Bryce v. Tounship of Brooke, 22 Occ. N. 254, 4 O. L. R. 102, 1 O. W. R. 274, 324, 855.

Leave to Appeal-Taxation of Costs-Several Causes of Action-Judgment.]-An application by the defendant for leave to appeal from an order of a Divisional Court dismissing an appeal from an order of a Judge in Chambers upon appeal from taxation of costs. The action was for slander. The statement of claim contained four paragraphs setting forth the slander in various ways. There was a verdict and judgment with costs for plaintiff on two paragraphs, and the same for the defendant on the other two. The de-fendant contended that the general costs should be apportioned throughout. But the taxing officer taxed to the plaintiff the general costs of the cause, less costs applicable to the paragraphs on which he failed, and to the defendant the costs of the issues arising on the latter, and his ruling was affirmed:

Held, not a case in which leave to appeal should be granted. There is no good reason why a judgment framed as was the judgment here, should not lead to the same result as the former Rule of Court, Sparrow v. Hill. Reg. B. D. 479, and Jenkins v. Jackson. [1891] 1 Ch. 89, referred to. Davis v, Hord, 22 Occ. N. 285, 4 O. L. R. 466, 1 O. W. R. 418, 471,

R. 298, reversing the judgment of Anglin, J., at trial, 4 O. W. R. 121. Leave to appeal refused, the judgment being for $75 only, and could not be increased even were the proposed appeal successful. The question was whether there were special reasons for treating the case as exceptional and allowing a further appeal: 4 Edw. VII. c. 11, s. 76 (1) (g). Clipsham v. Town of Orillia, 5 O. W. Notice of Appeal-Extending Time.]-Under the present practice relief will be granted against a slip in practice, such as in this instance the failure to give notice of appeal in time, whenever the justice of the case requires it, and no injury to the opposite party which cannot be compensated for by costs or otherwise has resulted. In considering what justice requires in such a case, regard is to be had to the bona fides of the applicant; the delay, whether great or trifling, as affecting the question of prejudice to the opposite party; and, especially where the application is made after default, whether the appeal appears to be groundless or frivolous. Where, therefore, a bona fide intention to appeal had been made out, the points raised were open to argument, and the delay was yery short, no sittings of the Court having been lost, leave to serve notice of appeal was given. Ross v. Robertson, 24 Occ. N. 216, 7 O. L. R. 464, 3 O. W. R. 158, 513.

Notice of Appeal—Time—Pronouncing or Entry of Judgment.]—A judgment in a mechanics lien action, tried by a local Master, was signed on the 12th March, but dated the 24th February, being the day on which the Master had signed a memorandum of his findings, a copy of which he on the same day sent by mail to the solicitors for each of the parties. The memorandum contained no reference to the costs of the action, but they were disposed of by the judgment as signed. There was no arrangement between the solicitors and the Muster that his findings were to be sent by mail:—Held, that the month within which notice of intention to appeal from the judgment must, by Rule 199, be given, ran from the signing of the judgment on the 12th March. Right of Appeal — Loan Corporations Act—Intra Vires—Penalty—Prohibition — Conviction.]—Appeal by defendants under s.s. 4 of s. 117 of the Loan Corporations Act R. S. O. 1897 c. 205, from their conviction by the police magistrate for the city of Toronto of the offence of having, acting as agents for the preferred Mercantile Company of Boston (incorporated), entered into a contract contrary to the provisions of s. 117:—Held, confirming the conviction, that there was no right of appeal. Res v. Pierce, 25 Occ. N. 70, 4 O. W. R. 411, 5 O. W. R. 431, 9 O. L. R. 374.

Right of Appeal—O der of Judge Removing Stay of Execution—Discretion—Grounds for Removal.]—An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from an order of a Judge thereof, in Chambers, under Rule 827, directing that the execution of the judgment appealed from shall not be stayed pending the appeal. Such an order is not a purely discretionary one; a proper case must be made out for allowing the respondent to enforce what has not yet become a final judgment, the appeal being a step in the cause. A Judge in Chambers having ordered the removal of the stay, his order was reversed by the Court, where the appeal appeared to be prosecuted in good faith and on substantial grounds, and the effect of an execution would practically be to close up the appellant's business. *Centum Cycle Co. v. Hill, 22 Oct. N. 233, 24 Oct. N. 208, 1 O. W. R. 229, 377, 401, 639, 2 O. W. R. 1025, 3 O. W. R. 255, 254, 4 O. L. R. 92, 393, 7 O. L. R. 411.

Right of Appeal—Practice on Appeal—Companies—Outario Winding-up Act—Final Order.] — Section 27 of the Ontario Joint Stock Companies Windings-up Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 222, contains the code of proceedings on an appeal from any order or decision of the Court under that Act, no provision being made in the Consolidated Rules or elsewhere. There is no provision that reasons for and against the appeal are required, or any delivery or settlement of the proposed case. The practice when the case has combefore a single Judge has been to send up the original papers and have the appeal heard upon them. Semble, that an order of a County Court Judge rescinding an order previously made by him under s. 41 of the above Act for the dissolution of a company, is a final order, and therefore an appealable one. Security for Costs of Appeal-Joint Appeal—Security Furnished by One Party—Payment into Court—Abandonment—Motion for Payment Out—Costs—Set-off—Increased Security.]—Two defendants appealed to the Court of Appeal from a judgment of the High Court; the notice of appeal was a joint one; and $200 was paid into Court, as secur-ity for the respondents' (plaintiffs') costs of appeal, by one of the appellants, but in the name of both and for the joint benefit:— Held, that the appellant who had paid the money in was not entitled, upon abandoning his appeal, to have the money paid out to his appeal, to have the money paid out to him, the other appellant desiring and intending to avail himself of the deposit and to proceed with the appeal. The first appellant's motion for payment out being dismissed with costs to the other appellant, and it appearing that by the judgment appealed against the first appellant was entitled to be independed by the other against all amounts. indemnified by the other against all amounts payable by the first under the judgment, and to recover from the other any amount so paid and his costs of the action, &c.:—Held, that the costs of the motion should be set off against anything the first appellant might already have paid, or might ultimately have to pay, under the provisions of the judgment referred to, as the result of the appeal. Held, under the circumstances of the case, that the appeal would be more expensive than usual, and that the security should be increased to $400, but that, upon the true construction of Rule 830, s.-ss. 1, 4, 8, where security is given by payment into Court, it cannot be increased to more than $400. Cencannot be increased to more than $49.0. Cer. Nature Oycle Co. v. Hill. 22 Occ. N. 253, 24 Occ. N. 209 1 O. W. R. 229, 377, 401, 639, 2 O. W. R. 1025, 3 O. W. R. 255, 354, 4 O. L. R. 92, 493, 7 O. Security on Appeal—Extension of Time for Allocance and Setting Down Appeal—Delay—Meris.]—After judgment was given declaring the plaintiff entitled to the value of certain bonds, which the defendants had failed to deliver over, such value to be determined by a reference to the local Master, and after a long interval, without anything having been done under the reference, it was transferred to the Master in Ordinary, and, after the finding of the Master, and appeals and cross-appeals therefrom, the plaintiff for the first time claimed interest on such value from the date of the breach, and moved to have the judgment amended so as to include such interest. The motion was refused, whereupon the plaintiff gave notice of appeal to the Court of Appeal, but did not furnish the necessary security until after the time for appealing had elapsed:—Held, that, in the circumstances, the time for the allowance of the security and the setting down of the appeal should not be extended. Ray V. Port Arthur, Duluth and Western R. W. Co., Ray V. Middleton, 24 Occ. N. 334, 7 O. L. R. 737, 2 O. W. R. 345, 3 O. W. R. 160, 724.

Security on Appeal—Money Paid into Court—Payment out after Purpose Answer-ed—Further Appeal.]—A party who has paid money into Court as security upon his appeal to the Court of Appeal is entitled, after his appeal has been allowed with costs, to take the money out, although his opponent is prosecuting a further appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada or the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. An appeal to the Court of Appeal is a step in the cause, but a further appeal is not so. Certaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 22 Occ. N. 253, 24 Occ. N. 293, 1 O. W. R. 229, 377, 401 639, 2 O. W. R. 1025, 3 O. Settlement of Book — Appointment—Onus.]—Having regard to Rules 798 et seq., relating to appeals to the Coart of Appeal, the burden of procuring from "the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof" (Rule 798), an appointment to settle the appeal case or book, the parties being unable to agree, is upon the appellant. Rule 801 (3) enables the respondent to move in the matter, if so disposed; but it is the appellant's duty to enter the case with the registrar and set down the appeal for argument; this he cannot regularly do without depositing the appeal books (Rule 812); and before they are deposited they must be settled. Suspension of Injunction Pending Appeal. Taylor v. Township of Collingwood 3 O. W. R. 368, 553, 6 O. W. R. 261.

Stay of Proceedings—Judgment—Certificate. 1—After the decision of the Court of Appeal has been certified by the registrar, the case is no longer pending in the Court of Appeal, and, by Rule S18, the subsequent proceedings are to be token as if the decision had been given in the Court below. A Judge of the Court of Appeal has, therefore, no power, under the Judicature Act, R. S. Time-Late Entry-Refuse of Consent-Confirmation - Responsibility for Delay -Costs.]-The defendants on the 19th May gave notice of an appeal to the Court of Appeal from a judgment delivered on the 22nd April, and gave security on the 22nd May. Reasons for appeal were not served till the 10th September, and reasons against appeal not till the 13th October. The next sittings of the Court of Appeal was set for the 10th November. The appeal case was not prepared in time to enter the case on the 6th November, and the plaintiff's solicitor refused to consent to its being entered on the 10th for the sittings beginning on that day. The for the sittings beginning on that day. case was entered without consent on the 17th November, and a motion was made to confirm the entry :- Held, that the plaintiff's solicitor should have consented to the proposed entry on the 10th November, and the subsequent entry should be confirmed; and, as both par-ties were nearly equally blameable for delay, there should be no costs. VIII. ONTABIO — APPEAL TO DIVISIONAL COURT OF HIGH COURT.

County Court Appeal—Final Order.]—A motion by the defendant to set aside a judgment for default of defence in a County Court action as irregular and void, was dismissed by the County Court Judge, who gave the defendant leave, on payment of $5, to move on the merits for leave to defend:—Held, that this was a final order and that an appeal lay therefrom. County Court Appeal—New Evidence.]—Under Itule 498, the High Court may entertain an application, in a proper case, to admit new evidence on a County Court appeal, notwithstanding R. S. O. c. 55, s. 51, s.-s. 3, under which such an application must be made before the County Court, and this although the time for applying for a new trial had expired. Butler v. McMicken, 21 Occ. N. 71, 32 O. R. 422.

County Court Appeal—Order Dismissing Appeal from Taxation of Costs—Final or Interlocutory.]—An order made by the Judge of a County Court in a County Court netion dismissing an appeal from a ruling as to the scale of costs upon taxation of the plaintiffs' costs of the action awarded by the judgment, is in its nature interlocutory and not final, within the me uning of s. 52 of the County Courts Act, a. S. O. 1897 c. 55, and no appeal lies therefron, to a Divisional Court of the High Court, Blakey v. Latham, 43 Ch. D. 23, followed. Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195, distinguished. In Kreutzlger v. Brox, 32 O. R. 418, the question of the right to appeal was not raised or considered. Leonard v. Burrocas, 24 Occ. N. 219, 7 O. L. R. 316, 3 O. W. R. 186.

County Court Appeal—Order Dismissing Motion to Commit—Finality.]—An appeal by the plaintiffs from an order of the Judge of a County Court dismissing a motion by the appellants to commit the defendant for refusing to be sworn and examined as a judgment debtor, upon the ground that a proper foundation had not been laid for his examination by a return of nulla bona to a fi, fia., or an addiavit stating that such would be the return:—Held, that no appeal lay, because the order appealed against was not in its nature final, but merely interlocutory, within the menuing of s. 52 of the County Courts Act, R. S. O. c. 55. New Hamburg Mannifacturing Uo. v. Barden, 21 Occ. N. 377.

County Court Appeal—Proceedings not Certified.]—Held, by Meredith, J., dissenting, that an appeal from an order in a County Court action was not properly before the Court because the proceedings were not certified. Lucas v. Holliday, 24 Occ. N. 365, 8 O. L. R. 541, 3 O. W. R. 732.

County Court Appeal—Right of Appeal
—Order Refusing to Vary Minutes of Judgment—Duty of Judge to Certify Proceedings
—Set-off of Costs.]—An order of a County Court Judge in an action in a County Court dismissing an application to vary minutes under Con. Rule 625 (2) is an interlocutory and not a final order; and no appeal lies from it to the High Court. Semble, per Britton, J., in Chambers, that the fact that there may be no appeal from such an order is to reason why the Judge should not certify the papers; the question whether or not there is an appeal from such an order is for the Court appealed to, and such certificate should as a rule be given upon request; the Judge's duty being ministerial only .-Semble, also, that the setting off of costs (which was the matter in question on the motion to vary the minutes) is no part of what is ordinarily understood as settling minutes of judgment .- A motion for a mandamus to the Judge to certify the proceedings was dismissed by Britton, J., and the dismissal was affirmed by the Court. In re Taggart v. Bennett, 23 Occ. N. 224, 6 O. L. R. 74, 2 O. W. R. 184, 419, 513.

in a County Court action, a motion by way hat a or his of appeal from or to set aside such judgment and to enter judgment for the defendants, or in the alternative for a new trial, was to a would made to the senior Judge; and on such apl lay, peal the judgment was set aside and judgnot in ment entered for the defendants dismissing the action:—Held, that an appeal lay to the Divisional Court by the unsuccessful party to ntory. mburg such appeal; and the fact that a new trial in the alternative was asked for was immaterial. > Divisional Court-Surrogate Court-Notice of Appeal from-Description of Appellate Court.]-On a motion to quash an appeal to a Divisional Court subsequent to the passing of 58 V. c. 13, s. 45 (O.), on the ground that the notice of appeal did not specify the Court to which the appeal was taken, and that the bond filed followed the Surrogate form "To the Court of Appeal:" -Held, that the intention to appeal expressed in the notice was sufficient, and that the words "the Court of Appeal" in the bond might be read as an equivalent of "the proper appellate tribunal;" and a motion to quash was dismissed. Taylor v. Delaney, 22 Occ. N. 136, 3 O. L. R. 380, 1 O. W. R. 208, > Division Court Appeal-Certified Copy Proceedings-Filing-Notice of Appeal Time-Extension.]-An order refusing a new trial of a Divisional Court plaint was made on the 25th August; the cierk certified a copy of the proceedings on the 29th August, and it was filed in the High Court on the 4th September; notice of appeal was not given for the October sittings of the High Court (Divisional Court); but on the 12th October the appellant obtained an order in the Division Court extending the time for filing the certified copy of the proceedings, and on the 17th October obtained and filed another copy, and gave notice to the opposite party of having done so and of the appeal for the November sittings :- Held, that the order extending the time was inoperative because the certified copy had already been filed; and, the delay in giving notice of appeal not having been accounted for, the appeal must be quashed. Heise v. Shanks, 21 Occ. N. 139, 1 O. L. R. 48.

> Division Court Appeal - Notice of rounds-Failure to Give-Amendment.] Where the defendants appealing from the judgment of a Division Court, procured and filed a certified copy of proceedings within the two weeks prescribed by s. 158 of the Division Courts Act, and set down the appeal to be heard at an unnecessarily early sit-tings of a Divisional Court of the High Court, but neglected to give the plaintiff notice of the setting down of the appeal and of the grounds of it, the Court, upon objection taken by the plaintiff when the appeal came on for hearing, postponed the hearing until the next sittings, for which the defendants were still in time, in order that they might give a proper notice. Semble, that so soon as the certified copy of the proceedings is fled, if filed within the proper time, and the case is set down, if set down within p-2 the proper time, and for the proper Court, the appeal is properly lodged, and the other matters are matters done in the appellate Court, as to which the Court may have the power of amendment or enlargement of the time. Smith v. Port Colborne Baptist Church Trustees, 21 Occ. N. 163, 1 O. L. R.

Division Court Appeal—Notice of Setting Down.]—The giving of the notice of setting down for argument and of the appeal and of the grounds thereof, required by s. 158 of the Division Courts Act, is a condition precedent to the right to appeal to a Divisional Court from a judgment in a Division Court, and where this notice has not been given the Divisional Court has no jurisdiction to deal with the appeal. A motion for a new trial was refused :-Held, that "the sum in dispute upon the appeal under s. 154 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, was $83.90, and, as it did not exceed $100, a motion to quash an appeal to the High Court was allowed. Petrie pear to the right Court was anowed. Fetriev. Machan, 28 O. Motion to Quash Appeal-Acquisition of Lands at Tax Sale-Sale by Tender-Resolution of Council to Accept Lower Tender -Action by Higher Tenderer to Restrain Sale —Insufficient Reasons for Accepting Lower Tender.]—This was a motion to quash appeal by defendant corporation to a Divisional Court from the judgment of Magee, J., upon an action to restrain defendants, the corpor-action of the City of Belleville, from proceed-ing with a sale to defendant Caldwell of certain lots acquired by the corporation under the Assessment Act in satisfaction of arrears of taxes. This action was dismissed by Street, J., and the plaintiff appenied to a Divisional Court, which held (5 O. W. R. 310), that the plaintiff was entitled to succeed, unless the defendant corporation could prove at a further trial good reasons which induced them to sell to defendant Caldwell. The defendant corporation elected to have a further trial, and it took place before Magee, J., without a jury, at Belleville, on 2nd May, 1905:—Held, plaintiff not entitled to have his offer accepted nor to prevent the corporation from selling for less than the amount of his offer, but he was entitled to an injunction to restrain them from closing the sale to Mr. Caldwell on the basis only of the action of the special committee or of the council, 6 O. W. R. 1. Upon motion to council, 6 O. W. R. 1. Upon motion to quash above appeal, it was held that the mere payment of money as directed by a judgment is not a bar to an appeal from that judgment by the party making such payment, (reference to Pierce v. Palmer, 12 P. R. 308), and if the existing injunction was removed and the appellants were declared to be at liberty to carry out the sale, there was nothing to support the contention that the defendant Caldwell could not purchase the lands in question; also that there was nothing to prevent his co-defendants from taking steps by appeal to relieve themselves from an onerous judgment which they allege to have been pronounced in error. S. v. c. 38, notwithstanding the provision or Con. Rule 825 that no security for costs shall be required on a motion or appeal to a Divisional Court. In re Wilson, Trusts Corporation of Ontario v. Interference on Appeal — Concurrent Findings of Fact by Courts Below.] — See Archambault v. Archambault, [1902] A. C. 575.

Jurisdiction—Judgment—Reference to Court for Opinion—Leave to Appeal.]—Held, following Union Colliery Co. v. Attorney-General for British Columbia, 27 S. C. R. 637, that the opinion of the Court rendered under R. S. M. c. 28, upon a constitutional question submitted by an order of the Lieutenant-Governor in council, was not a judgment, decree, order, or sentence within the meaning of the Imperial order in council of the 26th November, 1892, relating to appeals from the Court of Queen's Bench for Manitoba, and that such Court has no jurisdiction to grant an application for leave to appeal to this Majesty in Council under that order from such an opinion:—Held, also, that, although it was shewn that the enforcement of the Liquor Act would deprive the province of a revenue far exceeding £300 per annum, and would prejudicially affect the very large investments of persons engaged in the liquor traffic, it could not be said that any questions respecting property or civil rights to the value of £300 were involved in the decision sought to be appealed from. Leave to Appeal — Amount involved. Centre Star Mining Co. v. Rossland-Kootenay Mining Co. (B.C.), 1 W. L. R. 313, 336.

Leave to Appeal — Forum for Application—Security]—A petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council cannot be granted by a Judge in Chambers unless sufficient security is offered at the same time. Palliser v. Consumers' Cordage Co., 7 O. P. R. 299.

Leave to Appeal—Mines—Constitutional Question—Cross-appeal without Notice—Consolidation—Security—Cost of Printing Record.]—The suppliants obtained leave to appeal from the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada, 23 Occ. N. 34, 32 S. C. R. 585, dismissing three petitions of right, and in part reversing the judgment in 7 Ex. C. R. 414. The Board also granted the Crown leave to cross-appeal, and directed that the Supreme Court record should be accepted; that the security deposit should be fatoo in each case; that each side should bear one-half the cost of transcribing and printing the Privy Council record; and that the appeal and cross-appeal should be heard together, upon one printed case lodged on each side. Chappelle v. The King, Cormack v. The King, Tweed v. The King, 23 Occ. N. 163.

Leave to Appeal—Rescission—Petition.]

Leave to Appeal—When Granted.]—See In re Tomey Homma, 21 Occ. N. 424, 8 B. C. R. 76.

Ontario Appeal—R. S. O. 1897 c. 48, s. 1.

Admission of Appeal—Order of Court—
Appealable Case.]—Under R. S. O. 1897 c. 48, s. 1, it is essential that an appeal to the King in council should be admitted by the Court or Appeal. The Court is bound to exercise its judgment whether any particular case is appealable or not; and where it appears by its order that it has left that question open, the appeal is incompetent. Gillett & Co. Limited v. Lumsden, [1905] A. C. 601.

Right of Appeal — Amount in Controversy—Patent of Invention.]—An action for infringement of a patent of invention, wherein the plaintiff claims an injunction and $15,000 damages, which he consents in writing to reduce to $25, in order to escape costs of an enquete, is not, whatever may be the value of the patent, a cause in which an appeal lies as of right to the Privy Councit. Came v. Consolidated Car Heating Co., 4 Q. P. R. 256, Q. R. 11 K. B. 114.

Security—Delay—Extension of Time—Record Returned.]—Where leave to appeal to the Pricy Council has been granted by the Court of King's Bench sitting in appeal, from a judgment rendered by the latter tribunal, and a delay having been fixed for putting in security, the delay has expired without security being furnished, and without any application having been made for an extension of the delay before the expiration thereof, and the record has thereupon been transmitted to the Court below, the Court of King's Bench, or a Judge thereof, has ceased to have jurisdiction over the cause, and cannot grant an application, made subsequently, for the extension of the delay for putting in security. Asbestos and Asbestic Co. v. William Sciuter Co., 21 Occ. N. 251, 3 Q. P. R. 491, Q. R. 10 Q. B. 01.

Stay of Proceedings — Motion for.] — A Judge in Chambers of the Supreme Court of Canada will not entertain an application to stay proceedings pending an application for leave to appeal from the judgment of the Court to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. Adams v. Bank of Montreat, 31 S. C. R. 223.

X. QUEBEC-APPEAL TO CIRCUIT COURT.

Judgment of Board of Delegates — Choice of Forum for Appeal.—Where an appeal from a judgment of a board of delegates of two counties may be taken either in a district like that of Montreal, in which every juridical day is a term day, or in another district like that of Iberville, in which the terms are fixed by proclamation of the Crown, during certain months of the year, the appellant is absolutely free to take his appeal in either of such two districts. 2. It is the situation of the municipalities in different districts which fixes the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of one or other of such dwincits. 3. The time for lodging an appeal under Art. 1070, C. Mr. is always only a modality of the procedure followed us to time in the district in which the appellant is taking his appeal. 4. To decide the contrary would be to deprive the appellant of his choice between the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of the district of Montreal and of that of the district of Iberville. Arbee v. Lussier, Q. R. 20 S. C. 548.

XI. QUEBEC—APPEAL TO COURT OF KING'S BENCH.

Abandonment—Fresh Appeal—Payment of Costs.]—Where, owing to the neglect of the appellant to furnish security within the time fixed, an appeal has been declared to be abandoned, the appellant cannot launch a fresh appeal from the same judgment before paying the costs of the first appeal. Cain v. Bartels, Q. R. 10 K. B. 323.

Abandonment—Notice—Intervention.]—An abandonment of an appeal is only valid when notice thereof has been served upon all the parties to the cause. Where notice has not been served upon all the parties, the appeal is to be regarded as pending, and there is nothing to hinder a person from intervening to protect his right in appeal. Mc-Nally v. Prefontaine, 3 Q. P. R. 401.

Inscription—Incomplete Record—Power of Superior Court to Set aside,]—The Superior Court has no jurisdiction to grant a motion to set aside an inscription in appeal, upon the ground that the appellant since the inscription has not taken the necessary proceedings to complete the record and bring it before the Court of Appeal. Bayard v. Royal Electric Co., 6 Q. P. R. 318.

Inscription—Time—Service of Notice—Omission of Date.]—The delivery of the inscription of an appeal to the registrar and the serving of notice thereof on the opposite party on the last day allowed by law, is a valid inscription of an appeal.—The inscription of an appeal may be notified by a bailiff of the Superior Court. The omission of the date of the judgment appealed against in the inscription is not a fatal irregularity, provided that the judgment has been otherwise designated. McAvoy v, Willig, Q, R, 14 K.

Leave to Appeal — Interlocutory Judy-ment—Husband and Wife—Separation—Reconciliation, ——In an action for separation from bed and board, a judgment declaring that the allegations of reconciliation have been proved, reserving to the parties the right to discuss the consequences of the reconciliation upon the proceeding pending between them, is not an interlocutory judgment from which an appeal can be permitted under art. 46, C. P. Christin v. Lafontaine, 6 Q. P. B. 207.

Leave to Appeal—Custody of Children.]—A judgment refusing to the wife the custody of her children pending an action for separation from bed and board, is one from which leave to appeal will be granted, although such an appeal would appear to be unwise. Lachapelle v. Lacroix, 7 Q. P. R. 307.

Leave to Appeal—Interlocutory Order— Time—Prosecution of Appeal,]—Obtaining leave to appeal from an interlocutory judgment of the Superior Court does not, by the inception of such appeal, entitle the party obtaining such leave to the 6 months provided by article 1200, 6 P. C., for an appeal to the Court of King's Bench, and if he does not prosecute such appeal within a reasonable time after obtaining such leave, be 10se the right to make it. Hoffung v. Porter, 7 L. C. J. 301, followed. Hasburger v. Gutman, Q. R. 13 K. B. 369.

Leave to Appeal—Interlocutory Judgment — Waiver of Appeal — Compliance with Order.]—Even if a judgment granting to a foreign plaintiff an additional delay to file a proper power of attorney comes under any of the conditions stipulated in Art. 46. C. P., leave to appeal shall not be granted when it appears that the plaintiff has compiled with part of the order of the Court below, by furnishing security for costs, and has also, one day only after the expiry of the delay, filed a power of attorney, which, however, is insufficient. Canadian Asbestos Co., 5 (B. R. 65.

Leave to Appeal—Interlocutory Order—Exception to Form.]—When a plending has been disallowed upon demurrer or exception to the form and there appears to be a reasonable doubt as to the correctness of the judgment, leave to appeal will generally be accorded, almost as a matter of course; but the contrary rule prevails when it is the demurrer or the exception itself which has been disallowed. Ogilvie v. Fraser, 3 Q. P. R. 546.

Motion to Dismiss Appeal—Forum.] A motion to dismiss an appeal on the ground of non-transmission of the record within the time allowed therefor should be made before the Court of King's Beneh, the appellate Court, and not before the Superior Court, which is disseised of the cause by the inscription in appeal and the security. Wright v. Phillips. 4 Q. P. R. 37.

Right of Appeal—Conviction on Summary Trial—Recorder's Court.]—No appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench, Crown side, from a conviction by a Recorder's Court upon a summary trial under s. 783 of the Criminal Code. Rex v. Portugais, Q. R. 10 K. B. 567.

Right of Appeal — Interlocutory Judgment.]—In matters in which no appeal lies, such as those mentioned in arts. 43 and 1006. C. P., there is no appeal from an interlocutory judgment any more than from a final judgment. orier v. David, 4 Q. P. R. 417.

Right of Appeal — Interlocutory Judgment-Leave to Prove New Facts — Discretion.]—No appeal lies from an interlocutory judgment by which a Judge, in his discretion, permits or refuses to permit a party to prove by way of supplementary defence or reply material facts arising after the contestation. Dupuis v. Dupuis, 5 Q. P. R. 59.

Right of Appeal—Interlocatory Judyment—Removal of Cause to Another District.]—An appeal lies from an interlocatory judgment maintaining a declaratory exception and remitting the record to the Court of another district. Gosselin v. Belley, 4 Q. P. R, 233.

Right of Appeal-Final or Interlocutory Judgment—Husband and Wife—Separation
—Construction of Will—Reference.]—In an action for separation from bed and board, a judgment holding that a provision in the will of the defendant's father, that the movable and immovable properties bequeathed may not in any manner be liable for the support and maintenance of his wife, does not provide for the exclusion of said properties from the community then on the death of the testator existing between the parties, and ordering the report to be referred back to the practitioner appointed by the Court to take an inventory of the property and assets of the community of property existing between the plaintiff and defendant, and ordering the said practitioner to include therein the properties and immovable effects belonging to the said estate, and revenues thereof derived from the movable property from the time of the testator's death to the time of the dissolution of the community of property, is an interlocutory judgment not falling under the condi-tion imposed by paragraph 2 of art. 46, C. P., and may be remedied by a final judgment. Stewart v. Cairns, 5 Q. P. R. 235.

Right of Appeal—From Circuit Court.]—There is no appeal to the Court of King's Bench from the judgment of the Circuit Court of the chef-lieu of a district. Senécal v. Corporation de L'He Bisard, 3 Q. P. R. 389.

Right of Appeal—Lapse of Time—Petition of Right—Power of Crown to Waive Delay, I—A petition of right was dismissed by the Superior Court, Quebee, on the 3rd June, 1890. The petitioner some time afterwards applied to the Lieutenant-Governor in council for redress for the grievance complained of in the petition of right, whereupon an of June, to we an ag an ag Court pealir ing be no ob ex pr not c the e: and c Held, lowin that the c had; 10 K an order in council was passed on the Sth June, 1899, whereby the Crown purported to waive the petitioner's delay in instituting an appeal from the judgment of the Superior Court and to consent to the petitioner's appealing nunc pro tunc. On such appeal coming before the Queen's Bench the Crown took no objection to the jurisdiction, but the Court ex proprio motu, raised the point that it was not competent to entertain an appeal after the expiration of the delays prescribed by law, and dismissed it for want of jurisdiction:—Held, by the Supreme Court of Canada, following Cimon v. The Queen, 23 S. C. R. 64, that it was competent to the Crown to waive the delay, and the Court of Queen's Bench had jurisdiction. Lord v. The Queen, Q. R. 10 K. B. 97.

Right of Appeal — Mandamus — Municipal Councillor — Declaration — Right to Scat.] — No appeal lies to the Court of Queen's Rench from a judgment of the Superior Court in an action of mandamus, under the provisions of c. 40, s. 3, C. C. P., to compel a municipal corporation to recognize the plaintiff as a duly elected and qualified member of their municipal council and to reinstate him in that position, from which they had removed him without lawful cause; and additional conclusions asking for a declaration by the Court of the illegality of the resolution of the council professing to effect the removal, and that defendant abstain pending the suit from acting under the alleged illegal resolution, do not change the nature of the action or remove it from the conditions and restrictions of c. 40, C. C. P. Village of Lorimire v. Bédard, Q. R. 10 K. B. 95.

Right of Appeal—Mandamus — Secrelary-freasurer of municipality — Taxes.] — No appeal lies to the Court of Queen's Bench from the judgment of a Superior Court granting a mandamus to the secretary-treasurer of a municipal corporation commanding him to receive municipal and school taxes at the time of a municipal election over which he is presiding. In re Mosan and Petitelere, 3 Q. P. R. 345.

Right of Appeal—Municipal Matters—Interlocutory Judgment.]—Article 1006, C. C. P., which states that no appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench from any final judgment rendered under the provisions of c. 40 in matters relating to municipal corporations and offices, also excludes an appeal from an interlocutory judgment in such matters. (County of Wright v. Tremblay, Q. R. 12 K. B. 308.

Right of Appeal—Municipal Matters—Superior Vourt—Final Judgment—Exceptions—Circuit Court.]—There is an appeal from every final judgment of the Superior Court, even in an action to quash a resolution of a municipal council. The only exceptions are those indicated in art, 1006, C. F. C.; and in cases mentioned in arts, 4178 and 4316, R. S. Q., concerning town corporations.
There is no longer an appeal from the Circuit Court of a county town either in municipal matters or others, since the passing of 49 &
50 V. c. 18. Lachance v. Corporation of Ste.
Anne de Baupré, Q. R. 10 K. B. 223.

Right of Appeal—Order of Judge—Revision of Taxation.]—No appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench against a decision of a Judge of the Superior Court, in Chambers, reviewing and confirming the taxation by the prothonotary of the costs adjudged in favour of one of the parties. La Valle and Richelieu R. W. Co. v. Menard, Q. R. 11 K, B. 1, 3 Q. P. R. 133.

Right of Appeal — Prohibition — Rejusal.]—An appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench from a decision refusing to grant a writ of prohibition. Gaynor and Green v. Lajontaine, 7 Q P. R. 240.

Security—Time—Extension.]—After the expiration of the time fixed by law and the order of a Judge for furnishing security on appeal, a motion to extend the time will not be granted. Larocque v. Rosenthal, 5 Q. P. R. 380.

Time for Appealing — Expiration of—Waiver—Petition of Right.]—The provisions of arts. 1020 and 1209, C. C., limiting the time for inscription and prosecuting of appeals to the Court of Queen's Bench, are not conditions precedent to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the appeal, and they may therefore be waived by the respondent. Cimon v. The Queen, 23 S. C. R. 62, referred to. Art. 1220, C. C., applies in proceedings by petition of right Lord v. The Queen, 21 Occ. N. 253, 31 S. C. R. 165.

Time for Appealing — Interlocutory Judgment—Sale of Immovables by Sheriff.]— The time for appealing from an interlocutory judgment begins to run from the day of the pronouncing of the judgment, and not from its transmission to the prothonotary. 2. A judgment ordering a sheriff to sell en bloc immovables seized is a final judgment, from which an appeal lies de plano. Connolly v. Stanbridge. 4 Q. P. R. 188.

XII. QUEBEC-APPEAL TO SUPERIOR COURT IN REVIEW.

Certificate of Filing Petition for Review—Leave to Serve—Faulty Certificate—Powers of Amendment.]—A party who omits to serve, with his petition for review of a judgment, the certificate of filing by the phothonotary, may obtain leave to serve and itle such certificate. 2. If the certificate of filing by the prothonotary does not indicate the date on which the petition has been deposited, such certificate will be sufficient if the record shews the date and if no projudice results to the opposite party, the Judge having, by virtue of the provisions of the new Code of Procedure, very large powers of allowing amendments in matters of procedure. Hereton v. Chaboi, Q. R. 18 S. C. 154.

Inscription for Review—Notice—Service—Filing—Time.]—The fact that notice of inscription in review was served on the opposite party within the eight days allowed for making the deposit, but not returned into Court within such delay, is not a ground for rejecting the inscription, and a motion to reject such inscription will be dismissed, where it is shewn that the notice, after service has been filed on the nearest following juridical day after the expiration of the eight days. McDonald v. Vimeberg, 3 Q. P. R. 548.

Inscription for Review — Signature— Solicitor.]—An inscription of a case for review, in order to be valid, must be signed by the solicitor for the appellant, and not in his name by another whom he has authorized. Drouin v. Rosenstein, 3 Q. P. R. 563.

Jurisdiction to Hear Appeal — Security—Dispensing with.]—The deposit required for the purposes of review is not necessary to give jurisdiction to the Court, and the solicitors for the respondent may, by their consent, relieve the appellant from making it. Jutras v. Corporation de St. Francois, Q. R. 19 S. C. 206.

Leave to Appeal — Motion for—Time— Vacation.]—The time allowed for making an application for leave to appeal from an interlectory judgment runs during the long vacation. Poirier v. Uty of Montreal, 7 Q. P. R. 278.

Parties to Appeal—Defendant on Garantie.)—The cause was set down for review by the plaintiff. The defendant moved to set aside the setting down and to remit the cause to the district of Arthabasca, on account of the default of the plaintiff to make the defendant en garantie a party to the appeal, she having appeared and pleaded to the principal demand, which was the subject of the appeal; the principal defendant having also pleaded thereto:—Held, that the defendant en garantie was not a necessary party. Gastonguoy v., Savoy, 3 Q. P. R. 398.

Right of Appeal — Circuit Court—Appeal—Mount involved.]—There is no appeal from the Circuit Court of the chief place in a district, even if, in an action between landlord and tenant, it has decreed the cancellation of a lease for more than $100. Palliser v. Consumers' Cordage Co., 7 Q. P. R. 280.

Right of Appeal—Death of Defendant—Inscription in name of—Nullity—Motion to Amend,1—This cause was taken en délibéré sur le mérite on the 10th June, 1899, and final judgment was rendered on the 27th November, 1899. During the délibéré the defendant died, and after the judgment his solicitors, in ignorance of his death, inscribéd the case for review in the name of the deceased. The plaintiffs' solicitors made a motion to set aside the inscription, upon the ground that only the legal representatives of the defendant could make it. The solicitors for the defendant ende a cross-motion to substitute in the inscription the names of the executors of the defendant's will:—Held, reversing the decision of the Court of Review, that the inscription was void, and the motion to amend it could not be granted. Fraser v. Price, Q. R. 10 K. B. 511.

Right of Appeal—Final Judgment—Dismissal of Intervention.]—A judgment of the Superior Court which dismisses an intervention is a final judgment from which an appeal lies to the Court of Review. The word "final" in art. 52, C. P., borrowed from the English language, and evidently mal-a-propos, corresponds to the word "définitif" applied, in French civil procedure, to appeals from judgments. Renaud v. Pilon, 4 Q. P. R. 65.

Right of Appeal—From Circuit Court— Judgment Quashing Resolution of Municipal Council.]—A judgment of the Circuit Court, sitting at Montreal, quashing, under art. 100, C. M., a resolution of a municipal council which declared the seat of a councillor to be vacant, cannot be reviewed before three Judges of the Superior Court. Clermont v. Corporation of St. Martin, Q. R. 18 S. C. 220.

Right of Appeal—Future Rights—Municipal By-law — Telephone Company.] — A judgment of the Circuit Court condemned the defendants to pay a penalty of $25 for failure to raint their poles creeted within the limits of the municipality pinintiff, as provided by a by-law ordering telephone and other poles to be painted and to be kept painted thereafter:—Held, that the demand (which was for $50) did not relate to a matter "in which the rights in future of the parties may be affected," within the meaning of art. 44, cl. 3, of the Code of Procedure, and therefore no appeal lay in such case to the Court of King's Bench sitting in appeal from a judgment of the Circuit Court; and consequently such judgment was not susceptible of revision by the Court of Review. (Art. 52, C. C. P.) Town of Conticook v. People's Telephone Co., 21 Occ. N. 331, Q. R. 19 S. C. 353.

Right of Appeal—Habeas Corpus.]—No appeal lies to the Court of Review in matters of habeas corpus ad subjiciendum. Lorenz v. Lorenz, 7 Q. P. R. 149.

Right of Appeal—Inscription for Review—Tutor—Judgment.]—Article 306, C. C.. which forbids a tutor to appeal from a judgment without having been authorized to do so by a Judge, upon the advice of a family council, does not apply to an inscription for review, which is only for a re-hearing before the same Court presided over by three Judges. Becaumont v. Lamonde, 5 Q. P. R. 113.

Right of Appeal—Interlocutory Judg-mur-Dismissal of Exception—Objection to Appeal—Costs.]—A judgment dismissing an exception to the form is only an interlocutory judgment, and is not appealable to the Superior Court in Review. 2. If the respondent in review has not complained by motion that the judgment is only interlocutory, but has raised this point only in his factum and his argument, the inscription in review will be set aside with costs only of a motion to set uside. Migneron v. Yon, 4 Q. P. R. 179.

Right of Appeal—Order Striking Out Plea—Stated Case.]—There is no appeal to the Court of Review from a judgment striking out one of two pleas filed by the defendant on a conjoint statement of the case under art. 512, C. P. Grenier v. Connolly, 7 Q. P. R. 212.

Security—Consent to Irregular Deposit—Validity of Inscription—Solicitor's Authority to Consent.]—In the case of an inscription for review, if the attorneys of the respondent consent to the deposit required by art. 1196, C. P., remaining in the hands of the attorney for the appellant, the Court of Review will not, ex mero motu, declare the inscription irregular and void, especially if the Court is of opinion that the judgment of first instance should be allimed on the merits. Semble, that in a case where the Court of Review was disposed to reverse the judgment below, it would order that proof should be given of the authority of the attorney to consent on behalf of his client. Security—Deposit—Amount of — Amount in Controversy.]—An inscription for review in an action to set aside a lease containing a contract for sale, when the value of the immovable in question is more than $400, must be accompanied by a deposit of $75, and the Court will order the party who inscribes to supplement his deposit of $50. Marsolais v. (Grenier, 4 Q. P. R. 392.

Security for Costs—Amount of,]—Although an action may appear to be in the nature of a possessory action, if the amount claimed is less than $400 it belongs to the second class of the tariff, and a deposit of $50 made with an inscription in review is sufficient. Morin v. Gapaf. 7 Q. P. R. S2.

Security for Costs—Amount of — Petition of Creditor.]—A petition of a creditor of an insolvent to be put in possession of effects belonging to the petitioner which are in the hands of the currator, falls under the head of actions of the second class; and an inscription for review must be accompanied by a deposit of $75. Brothers v. Desmarteau, 6 Q. P. R. 484.

Security for Costs—Amount of—Several Respondents.]—Where there are several defendants who have appeared and pleaded separately in the Court of first instance, the plaintiff who has failed must with his inscription for review make as many deposits as there are defendants. Acer v. Percy, Q. II. 24 S. C. 232.

Security for Costs—Amount of—Several Respondents.]— Where several defendants have appeared and pleaded separately, a plaintiff, whose action has been dismissed and who is appealing, must make as many deposits upon appeal as there are distinct defences. Ace v. Percy, Q. R. 24 S. C. 232, followed. Germano v. Mussen, 6 Q. P. R. 249.

Security for Costs — Deposit—Amount Involved.)—The amount in Itigation spoken of in art. 1196, C. P., must exceed the amount due under the judgment for principal, and does not include the amount of costs. 2. In the case of an appeal by the defendant to the Court of Review from a judgment for less than $400 in an action brought for a sungreater than $400, the amount in Itigation is less than $400, and the deposit necessary is $50. Saunders v. United Factories, Limited, 6 Q. P. R. 34.

Security for Costs — Deposit—Title to Land—Amount Involved.]—The plaintiff sued to obtain a good title to a property which he alleged that he had bought from the defendant at the price of $159 and improvements, which he alleged were worth $350:—Held, that he must, under art, 1106, C. P., make a deposit of $75 to obtain a review of the judgment dismissing his demand. David v. Chenevert, 6 Q. P. R. 24.

XIII. SUPREME COURT OF CANADA—APPEAL TO.

Acquiescence — Exception — Motion to Vary Minutes—Costs.]—Where a respondent, on an appeal to the Court below, has falled to set up the exception resulting from acquiescing in the trial judgment, as provided by art. 1220 of the Code of Civil Procedure, he cannot, afterwards, take advantage of the same objection by motion to quash a further appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. An application to vary the minutes of judgment, in respect of matters which had not been mentioned at the hearing of the appeal, was granted but without costs. Chambly Manufacturing Co. w Willett, 24 Occ. N. 204, 34 S. C. R. 502.

Allowance of — Application of money paid into Court on appeal to Court of Appeal — Contract—Construction—Conditions—Certificate of engineer — Repairs to pavements of streets — Municipal corporations. City of Hamilton v. Kraemer-Iricin Rock Asphalt and Cement Paving Co., 1 O. W. R. 111, 2 O. W. R. 25, 3 O. W. R. 343, 347.

Allowance of—Forum—Judge of Court of First Instance.]—When judgment is rendered by the Court of Review affirming a judgment of the Superior Court, sitting in a rural district, the party who wishes to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, and furnish security for costs, must apply for leave to do so to the Judge of the district where the action was brought. Daidle v. Quebec Southern R. W. Co., 6 Q. P. R. 403, Allowance of—Leave to appeal—Necessity for—No application for. Bisnaw v. Shielas, 3 O. W. R. 309.

Allowance of —Motion to Extend Time—Jurisdiction of Single Judge of Court Appealed from.]—A Judge of the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to extend the time for the allowance of the security proposed to be given upon an appeal intended to be brought from the judgment of that Court of the Supreme Court of Canada in a case where no such appeal can be brought without leave; although it be impossible to move for such leave owing to the fact that neither Court sits in vacation. But the power of the full Court of Appeal or of the Supreme Court to grant leave or to allow the appeal under the provisions of 60 V. c. 24 (0.), doos not depend upon a single Judge making such an order. Tabb v. Grand Trunk R. W. Co., 24 Oct. N. 335, 8 O. L. R. 281, 514, 4 O. W. R. 116, 135

Amount in Dispute.]—In an action by the lessee of lands leased for 4 years and 9 months at a rental of $250 per annum, to have the lease cancelled as being simulated:—Held, that no amount of $2,000 or upwards was in dispute, and that, as the appeal did not relate to any title to land or tenements nor to annual rents within s. 29 (b) of R. S. C. c. 135, it could not be entertained by the Supreme Court of Canada. Frechete v. Simmoneau, 20 Occ. N. 433, 31 S. C. R. 12.

Amount in Dispute.]—Where the Court of King's Bench affirmed the judgment of the Superior Court dismissing the action, but varied it by ordering the defendant to pay a portion of the costs:—Held, that, though $2.117 was demanded by the action, the defendant had no appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, as the amount of the costs which he was ordered to pay was less than $2.000.

Allan v. Pratt, 13 App. Cas. 780, and Monette v. Lefebvre, 16 S. C. R. 387, followed. Beauchemin v. Armstrong, 24 Occ. N. 111, 34 S. C. R. 285.

Amount in Dispute—Assessment—Title to Land.]—In proceedings by the city of Montreal to collect the amount assessed on the defendants' land, an opposition to the science, aligning that the claim was prescribed, was maintained, and the city sought to appeal to the Supreme Court:—Held, that there was nothing in controversy between the parties but the amount assessed on the defendants' land, and that being less than $2,000, the Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. City of Montreal v. Land and Loan Co., 24 Occ. N. 79, 34 S. C. R., 270.

Amount in Dispute—Future Rights.]—In an action for séparation de corps, the decree granted separation and ordered the fushand to pay $1,500 per year alimony. It was paid for some years, and the husband having died his widow brought suit to enforce payment from his universal legatees. The Court of King's Beneth arving reversed the Judgment of the Superior Court in her favour, she sought to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada:—Held, that, as she was only entitled to one year's alimony when the suit commenced, the appeal would not lie, notwithstanding the fact that if she had succeeded in the King's Bench she could have executed the judgment for more than $2,000. The amount demanded establishes the right to appeal, and if that is less than $2,000 the appeal will not lie, though more than $2,000 may be recovered:—Held, also, that future rights were not bound by the judgment appealed from by reason of its effect on her right to further payment of the alimentary allowance. Winteler v. Davidson, 24 Occ. N. 79, 34 S. C. R. 274.

Amount in Dispute—Life Pension.]—Action for $62.50. the first monthly instalment of v life pension, at the rate of $750 per annum claimed by the plaintiff, for a declaration that he was entitled to such annual pension from the defendants, payable by equal monthly instalments of $62.90 each, during the remainder of his life, and for judgment for such payments during his life. It was shewn that the cost of an annualy cound to the pension claimed would be ever $7,000:—Held, following Rodier v, Lapierre, 21 S. C. R. 69, Macdonald v. Galivan, 28 S. C. R. 258, La Banque du Peuple v. Trottier, ib. 42c. O'Dell v. Gregory, 24 S. C. R. 631, and Talbot v. Guilmartin, 39 S. C. R. 482, that the only amount in controversy was that of the first monthly instalment, and that the Supreme Court of Canada had no jurisdiction to hear an appeal. Lapionte v. Montreal Police Beaucolent and Pension Society, 35 S. C. R. C. R. 5.

Amount in Dispute — Reddition de Compte—Contestation.]—An action en reddition de compte concluded with a demand for $1,000. The defendant filed an account for over $8,000, and by his pleas claimed a small balance as due him. The plaintiff replied by contesting several items of the account filed, and, abandoning his former conclusions, claimed whatever should be found due him on the contestation. He recovered $2,200 in the Superior Court, which the Court of Queen's Bench affirmed. On appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada:—Held, that more than $2,000 was in controversy, and the appeal would lie. Motion for approval of security granted with costs. Bell v. Vipond, 21 Occ. N, 328, 31 S. C. R. 1755.

Amount in Dispute—Retraxit.] — The judgment appealed from condemned the defendants to pay $775.40, the balance remaining after deducting $1,524.60 realized on a sale of property made by consent pendente lite. The amount demanded was $2,300.20, so that the plaintiffs full claim was in fact sustained:—Held, that, as the amount recovered was different from that demanded, and the amount of the original demand exceeded $2,000, the Supreme Court of Canada had jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. Joyce v. Hart, 1 S. C. R. 321, Levi v. Reed, 6 S. C. R. 482, and Laberge v. Equitable Life-Assurance Society, 2 S. C. R. 328, Mitchell v. Trenholme, ib. 331; Lachance v. Société de Préf ét des Placements, 26 S. C. R. 200, and Beauchemin v. Armstrong, 34 S. C. R. 285, distinguished. Dufresne v. Fec, 35 S. C. R.

Amount in Dispute—Statutes—Repupmancy,]—Paragraph (f) of s. 1 of 60 V. c. 34 (D.), which provides that, where an appeal from the Court of Appeal for Ontario depends on the amount in dispute, such amount shall be understood to be that demanded, and not that recovered, if they are different, has no operation, being repugnant to (c), which requires the matter in controversy on the appeal to exceed $1,000 to give jurisdiction. Where two clauses of the same statute, coming into force at the same time, are repugnant, the clause placed last in point of arrangement cannot be held to supersede the other as expressing the latest mind of Parliament. Hunter v. City of Ottawa, 20 Occ. N. 431; S. C., rub nom. City of Ottawa V. Hunter, 31 S. C. R. 7.

Amount in Dispute-Title to Land-Future Rights-Extending Time. 1 - L. had given a mortgage to the Standard Loan and Savings Co. as security for a loan, and had received a certain number of the company's All the business of that company was afterwards assigned to the defendants. and L. paid the latter the amount borrowed with interest, and $460.80 in addition, and asked to have the mortgage discharged. The company refused, asserting that L., as a shareholder in the Standard Co., was liable for its debts, and demanded $79.20 therefor by way of counterclaim. An action by L. for a declaration that the mortgage was paid and a declaration that the mortgage was paid and for repayment of the $460.80 was dismissed (3 O. L. R. 191, 22 Occ. N. 60), but on appeal the Court of Appeal ordered judgment to be entered for L. for $47.04 (5 O. L. R. 471 23 Occ. N. 165, 2 O. W. R. 370). The defend ants appealed to the Supreme Court :- Held. that the appeal would not lie; that no title to lands or any interest therein was in question; that no future rights were involved within the meaning of s. 1 (d) of 60 & 61 V. c. 34; and that all that was in dispute was a sum of money less than $1,000, and therefore not sufficient to give jurisdiction to the Court:—Held, also, that the time for bringing the appeal cannot be extended after the expiration of the 60 days from the pro-nouncing or entry of the judgment appealed from. Amount in Dispute—Waiver—Consent.]
—The case on appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada cannot be filed unless security for the costs of the appeal is furnished as required by s. 46 of the Act. The giving of such security cannot be waived by the respondent, nor can the amount fixed by the Ac' be reduced by his consent. Holstein v.
Cockburn, 35 S. C. R. 187.

Appeal per Saltum—Extension of Time—Jurisdiction of Judge of Court Below.]—A Judge of the Court appealed from has no jurisdiction to extend the time for appealing per saltum to the Supreme Court of Canada. After the expiration of 60 days from the signing, entry, or pronouncing of judgment, leave to appeal per saltum to the Supreme Court of Canada cannot be granted. Barrett v. Le Syndicat Lyonnais du Klondyke, 33 S. C. R. 667.

Bond—Form of,]—In addition to the defects to which attention was drawn in Jamieson v. London and Canadian L. and A. Co., 18 P. R. 413, and Young v. Tucker, ib. 449, the form of bond given in Cassels Practice, 2nd ed., p. 220, is also defective in not setting forth to whom the penalty is payable, and also in not stating that the bond is signed and sealed by the obligors. Liscomb Falls Co. v. Biskop, 24 Occ. N. 186.

Bond—Insufficiency—Time tor Filing New Bond—Extension—Judge of Court Below.]—If a security bond given to guarantee the costs of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada is found insufficient by the Registrar of that Court, and a delay is granted by him to furnish another bond, a Judge of the Court of King's Bench can enlarge the delays for perfecting the appeal. Armstrong v. Bauchemin, G Q. P. R. 128.

British Columbia—New Trial.]—An action and counterclaim in the Supreme Court of British Columbia. Judgment was given for the plaintiff upon his claim (which was not in dispute), and the counterclaim was dismissed. The counterclaim was for damages for breach of contract to deliver 37 cars of hay, and the trial Judge held that the letter of acceptance of the plaintiff's offer to sell was conditional, and the parties were never ad idem. On appeal to the full Court his judgment was reversed, and a new trial of the counterclaim ordered. The case was tried anew before a Judge with a jury, and a verdict for the defendants (plaintiffs by counterclaim) was given. The plaintiff moved for leave to appeal per saltum to the Supreme Court of Canada:—Held, that, even if the full Court had, by its judgment directing the new trial, determined the question as to the existence of an enforceable contract, the plaintiff might still succeed before the full Court, and so it was not a case for granting leave to appeal per saltum. Oppenheimer v. Brackman and Ker Milling Co., 21 Occ. N. 275.

Constitutional Question — Abandonment.]—Where a motion to quash an appeal has been refused, on the ground that a decision upon a constitutional question is involved, the subsequent abandonment of that question cannot affect the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Canada to entertain the appeal. Pharmaceutical Association of Quebec v. Livernois, 21 Occ. N. 8, 31 S. C. R. 43.

Delays Occasioned by the Court Jurisdiction-Controversy Involved-Title to Land.]—An action au petitoire was brought by the corporation of the city of Hull against the respondents claiming certain real property the respondents claiming certain real property which the government of Quebec had sold and granted to the city corporation for the sum of $1,000. The Attorney-deneral for Quebec was permitted to intervene and take up the fait et cause of the plaintiffs, without being formally summoned in warranty. The judgment appealed from was pronounced on the 25th September, 1903. Notices of appeal on behalf of both the plaintiff and the intervenant were given on the 3rd November, and netices that securities would be put in on the 10th November, 1903, on which latter date the parties were heard on the applications for leave to appeal and for approval of securities before Wurtele, J., who reserved his decision until one day after the expiration of the sixty days immediately following the date of the judgment appealed from, and on the 25th November, 1903, granted leave for the appeals and approved the securities filled—Held, that the plaintiffs could not be prejudiced by the delay of the Judge, in deciding upon the application, until after the expiration of the sixty days allowed for bringing the appeals, and, following Couture v. Bouchard, 21 S. C. R. 281, that the judgment approving the securities and granting leave for the appeals must be treated as if it had been rendered within the time limited for appealing when the applications were made and taken en ddélibéré:—Held, also, that, as the controversy between the parties related to a title to real estate, both appeals would lie to the Supreme Court of Canada notwith-standing the fact that the liability of the intervenant might be merely for the reimbursement of a sum less than $2,000. Attorney-General for Quebec v. Scott, 24 Occ. N. 110. 34 S. C. R. 282.

Discretion—Amendment — Formal Judgment.]—The Supreme Court should not interfere with the exercise of discretion by a provincial Court in refusing to amend its formal judgment. Such amendment is not necessary in a mining case, where the mining regulations operate to give the judgment the same effect as it would have if amended. Uresee v. Fleischman, 24 Occ. N. 51, 34 S. C. Interlocutory Judgment — Quebec.]— The Court of King's Bench, or a Judge thereof, has no jurisdiction to grant leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment of the Court of King's Bench, confirming an interlocutory judgment of the Superior Court. Desaulniers v. Payette, Q. R. 12 K. B. 182.

Leave to Appeal-Appeal per Saltum-Winding-up Act—Defective Proceedings.] — Leave to appeal per saltum, under s. 26 of the Supreme Court Act, cannot be granted in a case under the Dominion Winding-up Act. An application under s. 76 of that Act, for leave to appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, was refused where the Judge had made no formal order on the petition for a winding-up order, and the proceedings before the full Court were in the nature of a reference rather than of an appeal from his decision. In re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., 25 Occ. N. 136, 36 S. C. R. 494.

Leave to Appeal - Criminal Case.] -The Act of the Dominion Parliament respecting appeals from the Court of Appeal for Ontario to the Supreme Court, 60 & 61 V. c. 34, applies only to civil cases. Criminal appeals are still regulated by the provisions of the Criminal Code. Motion by the prisoner for leave to appeal from the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 4 O. L. R. 223, 22 Occ. Leave to Appeal-Matters Not of Public Importance.]—A member of an Order held a benefit certificate entitling him, if he reached the age of seventy years or became entirely disabled, to receive a sum of money based on the membership of the Order. On reaching the age stated, he demanded the amount, and, on the Order refusing to pay, brought an action therefor, the defence to which was, that he had stated his age incorrectly in his application for membership, and violated certain conditions, which, however, the Court held were not set out nor referred to in the certificate. A judgment for the plaintiff at the trial was affirmed by the Court of Appeal, and, the amount recovered being under $1,000, the defendants moved the Supreme Court for special leave to appeal under 60 & 61 V. c. 34, s. 1 (e):—Held, that the questions involved not being of public the questions involved not being of public importance, and the judgment of the Court of Appeal (2 O. L. R. 79, 21 Occ. N. 372) appearing to be well founded, the leave would not be granted. Fisher v. Fisher, 28 S. C. R. 494, followed. Harprove v. Royal Templars of Temperance, 22 Occ. N. 1, 31 S. C. R. 385. (See, also, S. C., 2 O. L. R. 126, 21 Occ. N. 492.) Occ. N. 432.)

Leave to Appeal—Special Leave—Railway Act, 1903—Order of Board of Railway Commissioners—Jurisdiction.]—Where the Judge entertained doubt as to the jurisdiction of the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada to make the order complained of, and the questions raised were of public importance, special leave for an appeal was granted, on terms, under the provisions of s. 44 (3) of the Railway Act, 1903. Montreal Street R. W. Co. v. Montreal Terminal R. W. Co., 35 S. C. R. 478.

Leave to Appeal-Special Leave-60 & 61 V. c. 34, s. I (D.)]-Special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Court of Appeal for Ontario (60 & 61 V. c. 34, s. 1 (D.)) may be granted in cases involving matters of public interest, important questions of law, construction of Imperial or Dominion sta-tutes, a conflict between Dominion and provincial authority, or questions of law appli-cable to the whole Dominion.—Even if a case is of great public interest and raises important questions of law, leave will not be granted if the judgment complained of is plainly right, Lake Erie and Detroit River R. W. Co. v. Marsh, 35 S. C. R. 197, 24 Occ. N.

Leave to Appeal-Time expired-Application to Judge in Chambers — Subsequent application to Court — Election of forum — Appeal — Discretion. Hamilton v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 2 O. W. R. 175, 806, 3 O. W. R. 851, 4 O. W. R. 299, 416, 5 O. W. R. 162.

Leave to Appeal - Time Expired -Special Circumstances.]—The appellants allowed the delay of 60 days, from date of judgment rendered by the Court of King's Bench, to elapse without applying for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court. quently, they obtained leave to appeal to the Privy Council. They now moved for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court, and offered to desist from its appeal to the Privy Council if the present motion was granted:—Held, that the "special circumstances" referred to in s. 42 of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, are circumstances which would make it unreasonable to impute the failure to act within the prescribed time to the negligence of the party seeking the appeal, e.g., illness, absence, ignorance of the rendering of the judgment, inability owing to poverty to find sureties within the prescribed delay, but not circumstances which did not prevent the application from being made within the proper delay. City of Montreal v. Montreal Street R. W. Co., Q. R. 11 K. B, 325.

Matter in Controversy-Assessment of Damages—Costs.]—Leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the Court of Appeal in Lashley v. Goold Blcycle Co., 23 Occ. N. 304, 6 O. L. R. 319, reversing the judgment of Ferguson, J., 22 Occ. N. 372, 4 O. L. R. 350, was sought by the defendants, on the ground of hardship, the judgment being for $1,000 only, exclusive of the costs, which had accumulated until they exceeded $2,000, and also on the ground that the damages had been assessed by mere guess, and were not justified by any reasonable calculation warranted by the circumstances of the case. Leave was refused. Goold Bicycle Co. v. Laishley, 35 S. C. R. 184.

ment of to the udgment v. Goold R. 319, i. J., 22 bught by ardship, exclusive ed until e ground by mere reasoncircumrefused. S. C. R. Matter in Controversy—Séparation de corps—Money Demand.)—In an action by a wife for séparation de corps for ill-treatment, the declaration prayed that the husband be condemned to deliver up to the wife her property, valued at $18,000. The judgment in the action decreed separation and ordered an account as to the property:—Held, that no appeal would lie to the Supreme Court from the decree for separation. O'Dell' v. Gregory, 24 S. C. R. 661, followed. And the money demand in the declaration, being only incidental to the main cause of action, could not give the Court jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. Talbot v. Guilmartin, 20 Occ. N. 322, 30 S. C. R. 482.

New Questions Raised on Appeal—Jurisdiction of Vourt Belov.].—Questions of law appearing upon the record, but not raised in the Court below, may be relied upon for the first time on an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, where no evidence in rebuttal could have been brought to affect them had they been taken at the trial. Gray v. Richardson, 2 S. C. R. 431, and Scott v. Phenix Assurance Co., Stu. K. B. 354, followed. An objection that a Judge of the Court below had no jurisdiction to render a judgment from which an appeal is asserted, is not proper ground on which to question the jurisdiction of the appellate Court to entertain the appeal. McKelvey v. Le Roi Mining Co., 23 Occ. N. 61, 32 S. C. R. 664.

New Trial — Alternative Relief — Finat Judgment, 1—In an action on a policy of insurance on the life of the plaintiff's husband, the defence being misrepresentation and concealment of material facts, the plaintiff obtained a verdict, though the defendants' counsel contended that there was no case to go to the jury. On appeal to the Court of Appeal the defendants claimed judgment for them or in the alternative a new trial, and a new trial was granted (6 O. L. R. 434, 23 Occ. N. 86, 2 O. W. R. 78, 4 O. W. R. 351). The defendants then appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada to obtain the larger relief:—Held, that the appeal did not lie; that it was not an appeal from the order for a new trial; and that the judgment refusing to dismiss the action was not final. Dillon v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, 24 Occ. N. 47; Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, 24 Occ. N. 47; Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, v. Dillon, 34 S. C. R. 141.

Ontario — Divisional Court — Constitutional Question.]—Under s. 26, s.-s. 3, of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, leave to appeal direct from the "final judgment" of a Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice for Ontario may be granted in cases where there is a right of appeal to the Court of Appeal for Ontario; and the fact that an important question of constitutional law is involved, and that neither party would be satisfied with the judgment of the Court of Appeal, is sufficient ground for granting such leave. Ontario Mining Co. v. Seybold, 31 S.
C. R. 125.

Ontario—Single Judge of High Court.]—On appeal by B, and others, whose lands were expropriated by the company, to the High Court from the award of arbitrators appointed to determine the value of their lands, the amount of the award was increased: 21 Occ. N. 208. The company, having no right of appeal to the Court of Appeal, according to a late decision of that Court. In re Birely and Toronto, Hamilton, and Buffalo R. W. Co, 25 A. R. SS, 18 Occ. N. 128, applied to a Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, in Chambers, for leave to appeal direct from the decision of the High Court, under s. 23, s.-3, of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act. The application was referred by the Judge to the full Court:—Held, that, to give jurisdiction to a Judge to grant leave to appeal per saltum under s. 26, s.-s. 3, of the Act, it is essential that there should be a right of appeal to the Court of Appeal, and it not being shewn that there was such a right in this case, the motion should be refused. In re Brennan and Ottavae Electric R. W. Co., 21 Occ. N. 309; 31 S. C. R. 311.

Order Dismissing Opposition — Previous Non-appealable Order for Security—Rea Judicata—Review.]—An order requiring opposants \(\text{a} \) fin de charge to funish security that lands seized, if sold in execution subject to the charge, should realize sufficient to satisfy the claim of the execution creditor, was held to be interlocutory and non-appealable: 33 S.-C. R. 340. Upon default of such security, the opposition was dismissed in the Court below: — Held, on appeal, that the order was the only one which could properly have been made, and that the merits of the former order could not be reviewed. Desaulniers v. Peyette, 35 S. C. R. 1.

Order for New Trial—Weight of Evidence—Discretion—New Grounds of Appeal.]
—The Court below ordered a new trial upon the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence:—Held, that this was not an exercise of discretion with which the Supreme Court of Canada would refuse to interfere; and the verdict of the trial was restored. The argument of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada must be based on the facts and confined to the grounds relied on in the Court below. Judgment in 35 N. S. Reps. 94, sub nom. Confederation Life Assn. v. Brown, reversed. Confederation Life Assn. v. Brown, reversed. Confederation Life Assn. v. Brown, reversed.

Order on Petition for Leave to Intervene.]—There is no appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from an order on a petition for leave to intervene in a cause, the proceeding being merely interlocutory in its nature. Hamel v. Hamel, 26 S. C. R. 17, followed. Connolly v. Armstrong, 35 S. C. R. 12, S. C. R. 13, S. C. R. 14, S. C. R. 1

Petitory Action—Order Defining Boundary Line.]—Where, in an action au petitoire and en bornage, the question as to title has been finally settled, a subsequent order defining the manner in which the boundary line between the respective properties shall be established is not appealable to the Supreme Court of Canada. Cully v. Ferdais, 30 S. C. R. 330, followed. City of Hull v. Scott, 34 S. C. R. 617.

Printed Case—Expense of—Parties.]—Held, that in determining the amount to be paid by the party seeking to use for purposes of an appeal to the Supreme Court the appeal books printed by the opposite party, the lact that the party to pay has paid for the copies of the stenographer's notes used in the Divisional Court is not to be considered. If there were no printed books, he would have to print for the Supreme Court, and in paying for the books already printed he is only paying a different person. The question is how much he should pay in order to get the thirty copies he needs for the Supreme Court. No general scale can be formulated. The thirty books do not represent the whole value of the printer's charge. The books retained by the party printing, or of which he has got the benefit, as well as the bulk of the book and the number actually printed, etc., have to be taken into consideration. The sum of $95 haved as approximately representing the proportion settled in previous cases. Teetzel v. Dominion Construction Co., 18 P. R. 16, followed. Trusts and Guarantee Co. v. Hart. 21 Occ. N. 494.

Public Interest — Correctness of Judgment.]—Special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Court of Appeal for Ontario may, under 60 & 61 V. c. 34, s. 1 (e), be granted in cases involving matters of public interest, important questions of law, construction of Imperial or Dominion statutes, a conflict between Dominion statutes, a conflict between Dominion and Provincial authority, or questions of law applicable to the whole Dominion. Even if a case is of great public luterest and raises important questions of law, leave will not be granted if the judgment complained of is plainly right. Marsh v. Luke Eric and Detroit River R. W. Co., 24 Occ. N. 363.

Questions of Fact.] — Upon issues raised as to matters of fact, the Supreme Court of Canada declined to disturb the concurrent findings of the Courts below, while on a question of law reversing the judgment in Q. R. 21 S. C. 241. Citizens' Light and Power Co. v. Town of St. Louis, 34 S. C. R. 495.

Questions of Fact.)—There is no rule of law or of procedure which prevents the Supreme Court or an intermediate Court of appeal from reversing the decision at the trial on the facts. In an action for the price of a tombstone, the defence was that it was not of the design ordered. The trial Judge dismissed the action, but his judgment was reversed by the Court of Appeal (1 O. W. R. 602); and the Supreme Court of Canada affirmed the reversal. Levis v. Dempster, 23 Occ. N. 179, 33 S. C. R. 292.

Questions of Fact—Concurrent Findings of Courts Below.]—A judgment based on concurrent findings of fact in the Courts below ought not to be disturbed on appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada if the evidence be contradictory. D'Avignon v. Jones, 32 S. C. R, 650.

Questions of Fact—Final Judgment—Right of Appeal—Leave to Appeal to Privy Council—Costs.]—In an action by executors against the appellant to recover certain sums of money due to their estate, the Judge of the Territorial Court, at the request of the planitifs, selected one of the items, and adjudicated on the evidence taken that the action in respect thereof be dismissed:—Held, that this was, within the meaning of the Yukon Territorial Act, 1899, s. 8, a final judgment in respect thereof, notwithstanding that the remaining items in suit were referred, and the costs were reserved. No appeal therefrom to the British Columbia Court lay after the expiration of 20 days. Special leave having been granted to appeal from a decree of the Supreme Court of Canada on a petition stating that the construction of the said statute was a matter of general public importance, without stating that it had been repealed:—Held, that, as the omission was immaterial and bona fide, the appellant should not be deprived of his costs, Judgment in Belcher v. McDonald, 33 S. C. R. 321, reversed. McDonald v. Belcher, 11904 J. A. C. 429,

Quantum of Damages—Interference by Court Below — Restoration of Verdict.] — See Coghlin v. La Fonderie de Joliette, 24 Occ. N. 110, 34 S. C. R. 153.

Question of Fact—Trial by Judge without Jury—Findings of Fact—Evidence—Reversal by Appellate Court.]—In an action for damages for personal injuries, the trial Judge, who heard the case without a jury, and before whom the wincesses were heard, held that the expert evidence of the witnesses for the defence was entitled to credit, and dismissed the action. The judgment was reversed in the Court of Review, and the reversal upheld by the Court of Queen's Bench, upon a different appreciation of the weight of evidence by the Judges in those Courts. On appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada:— Held, that, as the judgment at the trial was supported by evidence, it should not have been so reversed. Judgment appealed from reversed and judgment of trial Judge restored. Village of Granby v, Menard, 21 Occ. N. 7, 31 S. C. R. 14.

Refusal to Interfere—Matters of Procedure.] — The Court, following its usual practice, refused, on an appeal, to interfere with the action of the Courts below in matters of mere procedure, where no Injustice appeared to have been suffered in consequence, although there might be irregularities in the issues as joined which brought before the trial Court a demande almost different from the matter actually in controversy. Finnie v. City of Montreal, 22 Occ. N. 356, 32 S. C. R. 335, C. R. 335.

Refusal to Interfere—Matters of Procedure—Partnership—Account.]—The jungment appealed from held that in an action pro socio, it was sufficient for the plaintiff in his statement of claim to allege facts that would justify an inquiry into all the affairs of the partnership and the liquidation of the same, without producing full and regular accounts of the partnership affairs—Held, that the appeal involved merely a question of procedure in a matter where the appellant had suffered no wrong, and, therefore, that the appeal should be dismissed. Higgins v. Stephens, 22 Occ. N. 135, 32 S. C. R. 132.

Refusal to Interfere—Matters of Procedure—Verditc—Weight of Evidence,]—The Court refused to interfere with a decision of the Court of Appeal for Ontario in a matter of procedure, viz., whether a verdict of a jury was a general or special verdict. The Court also refused to disturb the verdict on the ground that it was against the weight of evidence, after it had been affirmed by two tribunals below. Balfour v. Toronto R. W. Co. 1. O. W. Right of Appeal — Amount in Controcray—Conditional Renunciation, 1—Where a conditional renunciation reducing the amount of the claim to a sum less than $2,000 has not been accepted by the defendant, the amount in controversy remains the same as it was upon the original demande, and, if such demande exceeds the amount limited by s. 29 of the Supreme Court Act, an appeal will lie. Montreal Water and Power Co. v. Davic, 25 Occ. N. 5, 35 S. C. R. 255.

Right of Appeal — Amount in Controcresy.]—The Supreme Court of Canada has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal in a suit to annul a proces-verbal establishing a public highway, notwithstanding that the effect of the proces-verbal in question might be to involve an expenditure of over $2,000 for which the appellants' lands would be liable for assessment by the municipal corporation. Dubois v, Village of Ste. Rose, 21 S. C. R. 65. City of Sherbrooke v, McManamy, 18 S. C. R. 594, County of Verchères v, Village of Varennes, 19 S. C. Right of Appeal - Amount in Controversy—Claim and Counterclaim — Leave to Appeal.]—The plaintiffs claimed $1,500 damages for delay in delivery of iron. The defendants, besides denying the charge of nondelivery in due time, counterclaimed for $1,223 demurrage. At the trial judgment was given for the plaintiffs for $1,000, and the counterclaim was dismissed. Upon appeal to the Court of Appeal the judgment was varied by limiting the damages to the fall in the price of iron during a considerably shorter time than that fixed in the Court below, the amount to be ascertained on a reference, Upon a motion by the defendants to allow a bond given by them as security upon an appeal by them to the Supreme Court of Canada, the plaintiffs' counsel stated that the plaintiffs claim on the reference would be less than $1,000, and contended that no appeal lay:— Held, however, that, as the plaintiff claimed $1,500, and was not limited by the judgment of the Court of Appeal to any particular sum, the matter in controversy on the appeal exceeded the sum of $1,000, so that the appeal lay. Held, also, that upon the counterclaim the sum of $1,223 was involved, and that an appeal lay in respect thereof. The Court of Appeal declined to grant, ex cautela, leave to appeal to the Supreme Court, the case not being one in which leave, if it were necessary, ought to be granted. Frankel v. Grand Trunk R. W. Co., 22 Occ. N. 229, 3 O. L. R. 703, 1 O. W. R. 254, 339, 396.

Right of Appeal — Amount in Controversy—Contrainte par Corps—Insolvent;]—On a contestation of a statement of an insolvent trader by a creditor claiming a sum exceeding $2,000, the order appealed from condemned the appellant, under art. $88, C. P. Q., to three months' imprisonment for secretion of a portion of his insolvent estate, to the value of at least $6,000:—Held, that there was no pecuniary amount in controversy, and there could be no appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. Clement v. Banque Nationale, 33 S. C. R. 343.

Right of Appeal — Amount in Controversy—Interest before Action.]—A judgment for $1,000 damages, with interest from a date before action brought, is appealable under 60 & 61 V. c. 34, s. 1 (c.). McNevin, v. Canadian Railway Accident Ins. Co., 22 Occ. N. 223, 32 S. C. R. 194.

Right of Appeal—Controverted Election—Judgment Dismissing Petition—Want of Prosecution.]—There is no right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment dismissing a petition against the return of a member of the House of Commons for want of prosecution within six months prescribed by R. S. C. c. 9, s. 32, the Controverted Elections Act. In re Richelicu Dominion Election, Vanasse v. Bruneau, 22 Occ. N. 193, 32 S. C. R. 118.

Right of Appeal-Controverted Election -Petition-Lost Record-Substituted Copy-Judgment on Preliminary Objections-Discretion of Court Below - Jurisdiction.] - The record in the case of a controverted election was produced in the Supreme Court of Canada on an appeal against the judgment on preliminary objections, and, in re-transmission to the Court below, the record was lost. Under the procedure in similar cases in the province where the petition was pending, a record was reconstructed in substitution for the lost record, and, upon verification as to its correctness, the Court below ordered the substituted record to be filed. Thereupon, the respondent in the Court below raised preliminary objections, traversing the correctness of a clause in the substituted petition, which was dismissed by the judgment appealed from:—Held. that, as the judgment appealed from was not one upon a question raised by preliminary objections, nor a judgment upon the merits at the trial, the Supreme Court of Canada had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, nor to review the discretion of the Court below in ordering the substituted record to be filed. In re Two Mountains Dominion Election, Ethier v. Legault, 22 Occ. N. 192, 32 S. C.

Right of Appeal—Doubt—Allowance of Appeal. City of Hamilton v. Hamilton Street R. W. Co., 4 O. W. R. 47, 207, 311, 411, 5 O. W. R. 151, 6 O. W. R. 206, 375.

Right of Appeal — Extradition—Prohibition—Statute — Public Policy — Criminal Proceedings.1—A motion for a writ of prohibition to restrain an extradition commissioner from investigating a charge of a criminal nature, upon which an application for extradition has been made, is a proceeding arising out of a criminal charge within the meaning of s, 24 (g) of the Supreme Court Act, as amended by 54 & 55 V. c, 25, s, 2, and in such a case no appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada. In re Wendhall, 20 Q. B. D. 832, and Hunt v. United States, 166 U. S. 424, referred to. Appeal quashed with Costs. In re Gaynor and Greene, 25 Occ. N. 116; Gaynor and Greene v. United States of America, 36 S. C. R. 247.

Right of Appeal—Final Judgment.]—
The trial of an action to adverse an application for a certificate of improvements for a mineral claim was begun, but before the plaintiff closed his case, an adjournment was granted to permit him to put in proof of the measurement shewing the extent of the encroachment of one mineral claim on the other, During the course of the trial it appeared that the map or plan filed by the plaintiff un-der s. 37 of the Mineral Act of British der s. 37 of the Mineral Act of British Columbia, was not made as a result of a sur-vey, but from measurements taken by the plaintiff's brother. The defendants then urged a dismissal of the action, contending that the map or plan was of no effect, but the trial Judge ordered it to be filed as part of the evidence, and declined to deal with its effect at that stage of the action. The defendants appealed from the trial Judge's refusal to dismiss the action, to the full bench of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, and there contended that the action should have been dismissed, and that a postponement should not have been granted, because the plaintiff had not filed with the Mining Recorder a map made as a result of a survey. With this view the majority of the Court agreed, and directed a judgment to be entered dismissing the action and allowing the appeal. From this judgment the plaintiff appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada:— Held, that under the interpretation of the words "final judgment" in the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, s. 24, the judgment appealed from dismissing the action was a final judgment. Paulson v. Beaman, 22 Occ. N.

Securion ment appoint immediate

Right of Appeal—Future Rights—Toll-bridge—Exclusive Limits—Infringement of Privilege.] — The plaintiff's action was for $1.000 damages for infringement of his toll-bridge privileges, in virtue of 58 Geo. III. c. 20 (L.C.) by the construction of another bridge within the reserved limit, and for the demolition of the bridge, etc. The judgment appealed from dismissed the action. On a notion to quash the appeal would lie to the Supreme Court of Canada. Galarneau v. Guilbault, 16 S. C. R. 579, and Chamberland v. Fortier, 23 S. C. R. 37, followed. Motion refused with costs. Rouleau v. Pouliot, 25 Ce. N. 97, 36 S. C. R. 26.

Right of Appeal—Interest of Appellant—Parties—Sale of Substituted Lands—Res Inter Alios Acta—Res Judicato.]—Where a person who might have an eventual interest in substituted lands had not been called to the family council nor made a party in the Superior Court to proceedings for authority to sell the lands, the order authorizing the sale was held to be res inter alios acta, and not to prejudice his rights, and therefore he could not maintain an appeal therefrom. Prevost v. Prevost, 25 Occ. N. 2, 35 S. C. R. 193.

Right of Appeal—Leave—Order Postponing Hearing of Demurrer—Infringement —Exchequer Court.]—Unless an order upon a demurrer be a decision upon the issues raised therein, leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada cannot be granted under the provisions of ss. 51 and 52 of the Exchequer Court Act, as amended by 2 Edw. VII. c. 8. Toronto Type Foundry Co. v. Mergenthaler Linotype Co., 36 S. C. R. 593.

Right of Appeal—Matter in Controversy—Future Rights — Hypothec for Rent Charges.]—In an action for the price of real estate sold with warranty, a plea alleging troubles and fear of eviction under a prior hypothec to secure rent charges on the land, does not raise questions affecting the title nor involving future rights so far as to give the Supreme Court of Canada jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. Bank of Commerce v. Le Cure et les Marguilliers de la Nativité. 12 S. C. R. 25, Wineberg v. Hampson, 19 S. C. R. 309, Jermyn v. Tew, 28 S. C. R. 301, Frachter v. Simoneau, 31 S. C. R. 490, distinguished. Carrier v, Sirois, 25 Occ. N. 121, 36 S. C. R. 221.

Right of Appeal—Matter in Controversy—Removal of Executors — Acquiescence in Judgment,1—The Supreme Court of Canada has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal in a case where the matter in controversy has become an issue relating merely to the removal of executors, though by the action, an account for over $2,000 had been demanded and refused by the judgment at the trial, against which the plaintiff had not appealed. Noel v. Chevrefils, 309 S. C. R. 327, followed. Laberge v. Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, 24 S. C. R. 59, distinguished. Donohue v. Donohue, 23 Occ. N. 147, 33 S. C. R. 134.

Right of Appeal—Matter Originating in Superior Court—Confirmation of Tax Sale Transfer.]—The confirmation of a tax sale transfer by a Judge of the Supreme Court of the North-West Territories, under s. 97 of the Land Titles Act, 1894, is a matter or proceeding originating in a Court of superior jurisdiction, and an appeal will lie to the Supreme Court of Canada from a final judgment of the full Court affirming the same: Sedgewick and Killam, JJ., contra. City of Halifax v. Reeves, 23 S. C. R. 340, followed. North British Canadian Investment Co. v. Trustees of St. John School District No. 61, N. W. T., 35 S. C. R. 431.

Right of Appeal—Order for Security—Final Judgment.]—A judgment granting a motion ordering an opposant à fin de charge to give security that the real estate advertised for sale will be soid for a sufficient price to enable the hypothecary creditors to be paid in full, is an interlocutory judgment, and a Judge of the Court of King's Bench cannot grant leave to appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court of Canada. Desaulniers v. Payette, 5 Q. P. R. 394.

Right of Appeal—Order for Security—Final Judgment.]—An order requiring opposants à fin de charge to furnish security that lands seized in execution, if sold by the sheriff subject to the charge claimed, should realize sufficient to satisfy the claim of the execution creditor, is not a final judgment, and no appeal lies from it to the Supreme Court of Canada, Desaulniers v. Payette, 33 S. C. R. 340.

Right of Appeal—Order Quashing Bylaw—Appeal de Plano—Leave to Appeal.]— Appeals to the Supreme Court from the judgments of the Court of Appeal for Ontario are exclusively governed by the provisions of 60 & 61 V. c. 34, and no appeal lies as of right a prior he land. he title to give sdiction mmerce lativité. 1, 19 8. Right of Appeal—Possessory Action— Landlord and Tenant—Rent.]—In a possessory action, with conclusions for $200 damages, the defendant admitted the plaintiff's ages, the defendant admitted the plaintiff's title and claimed the right of occupying the premises as her tenant. The judgment appealed from affirmed a judgment dismissing the possessory conclusions and adjudging $200 for rent:—Held, that the defendant had no right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. Davis v. Roy, 33 S. C. R. 345.

Right of Appeal—Recusation of Arbitator.]—No appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench, confirming a judgment of the Superior Court, which dismissed a recusation of an arbitrator appointed in an expropriation by a railway company. Vallée Est du Richelieu R. W. Co. v. Menard, 5 Q. P. R. 179.

Right of Appeal—Special Leave—Judge in Chambers—Appeal to Full Court.]—No appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from an order of a Judge of that Court in Chambers granting or refusing leave to appeal from a decision of the Board of Railway Commissioners under s. 44 (3) of the Railway Act, 1903. Williams v. Grand Trunk R. W. Co., 25 Occ. N. 113, 36 S. C. R. 321.

Right of Appeal — Yukon Territorial Court — Decisions of Gold Commissioner — Finality of Judgment—Mining Lands.]—The Supreme Court of Canada has jurisdiction to bear appeals from the judgments of the Terri-torial Court of the Yukon Territory, slitting as the Court of appeal constituted by the Ordinance of the Governor in Council, in respect to the hearing and decision of disputes affecting mineral lands in the Yukon Territory. The Governor in Council has no jurisdiction to take away the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada provided by 62 & 63 V. c. 11 (D.) Hartley v. Matson, 23 Occ. N. 39, 32 S. C. R. 575.

APPEAL

Special Leave-Error in Judgment-Concurrent Jurisdiction - Mandamus - Malicious Prosecution.]—Special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Court of Appeal for Ontario, under s. 1 (e) of 60 & 61 V. c. 34, will not be granted on the ground merely that there is error in such judgment. Such leave will not be granted when it is certain that a similar application to the Court of Appeal would be refused. The Ontario Courts have held that a person acquitted on a criminal charge can a person acquired on a criminal charge can only obtain a copy of the record on the finat of the Attorney-General. S., having been re-fused such fiat, applied for a writ of man-damus, which a Divisional Court granted (21 Occ. N. 432, 2 O. L. R. 315), and its judgment was affirmed by the Court of Appeal (22 Occ. N. 360, 4 O. L. R. 394):—Held, that the mandamus having been granted, the that the mandanus having been granted, the public interest did not require special leave to be given for an appeal from the judgment of the Court of Appeal, though it might have had the writ been refused. The question raised by the proposed appeal is, if not one of practice, a question of the control of provincial Courts over their own records and officers, with which the Supreme Court should not interfere. Attorney-General v. Scully, 23 Occ. N. 60, 33 S. C. R. 16.

Special Leave—Forum.]—A Judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia may grant special leave for an appeal to the Su-preme Court of Canada although he did not sit as a member constituting the full Court which rendered the judgment appealed from. Oppenheimer v. Brakman and Ker Milling Co., 32 S. C. R. 699.

Stay of Proceedings—Order Granting New Trial.]—The defendant appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Nova Sectia, sitting in bane, granting a new trial. Security on the appeal having been given and allowed, an application was made by the defendant to stay execution and all other proceedings. No opposition was made to the stay of execution. but the plaintiffs objected to a stay of the trial and of all other proceedings:—Held, that the trial and all other proceedings should be stayed pending the appeal, and a Judge of the Court appealed from had jurisdiction to impose such a stay. Bartlett v. Nova Scotia Steel Co., 22 Occ. N, 261.

Supplementary Evidence — Objections not Taken at Trial — Amendment of Pleadings.]-On the hearing of the appeal, objection was taken for the first time to the sufficiency of the plaintiff's title, whereupon he tendered a supplementary deed to him of the lands in question:—Held, following Exchange Bank of Canada v. Gilman, 17 S. C. R. 198. that the Court could not allow the production of the document, as fresh evidence could not be admitted upon appeal:-Held, also, that the defendant could not raise the question as the derendant could not raise the question as to the sufficiency of the plaintiff's title for the first time on appeal. It appeared that the allegations and conclusions of the plaintiff's declaration were deficient, and the Court un-der s. 63 of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, ordered all necessary amendment to be made thereto for the purpose of determining the real controversy between the parties as disclosed by the pleadings and evidence. Judgment in Q. B. S Q. B. 534 varied. City of Montreal v. Hogan, 21 Occ. N. 6, 31 S. C. R. 1.

Leave to Enter after Judgment.]—Judgment had been entered in default of appearance, and before the return of a summons for an order for the examination of the defendant as a judgment debtor, the defendant as a judgment debtor, who took out a summons for a stay of proceedings, on the ground that the parties had settled the action:—Held, that the summons must be discharged on the ground that leave to enter an appearance should have been obtained. Chong Man Chock v. Kai Fung, 21 (ve. N. 320, 8 B. C. R. 67.

Limitation of—Submission to Judgment—Irreputative,]—The indorsement on the writ of summons was for a declaration that certain lands (described), being the lands intended to be devised to the plaintiff by the will of J. P., but erroneously described therein, were freed and discharged from the conditions and obligations to which they were subjected by the will in favour of the defendant, and from all bequests, legacies, and other payments charged thereon by the will in favour of the defendant, and for damages against the defendant for wrongful refusal to execute a quit-claim deed of the lands when tendered to him for execution. The appearance entered by the defendant was limited to that part of the plaintiff's claim which asked for dranges against the defendant and for costs. The appearance also stated as follows: "Without admitting that the plaintiff is entited to the declarations asked for in the writ of summons herein, the defendant in Junke no objection to the making of the declarations asked for, and the defendant is also willing to execute a quit-claim deed in favour of the plaintiff of the lands devised to the plaintiff of the plaintiff (except as to the claim for damages) with costs, Padget v. Accounts of Province of Canada—Common School Fund and Lands—Jurisdien of Arbitrators—Deed of Submission—Construction. 1—By agreement of submission dated the 10th April, 1893, the provinces of Ontario and Quebee referred to a statutory tribunal the "ascertainment and determination of the amount of the principal of the common school fund and the method of computing" interest thereon, and of the amount for which Ontario was liable. The fund was established by 12 V. c. 200 (C.), and consisted (inter alia) of the proceeds of public lands received by Ontario and paid to the Dominion:—Held, that a claim by Quebec that Ontario should be debited with uncollected prices of land sold by it, being a claim for wilful neglect and default and in the nature of damages, not suggested in but heterogeneous to the matters actually specified in the submission, was not, on its true construction, included therein. Appointment of Third Arbitrator-Parot Appointment-Agreement-Revocation -Injunction, 1-Certain rights and easements of the plaintiffs were expropriated by a gas company under an Act enabling the company to make such expropriation and providing for the determination, by arbitration, of amount of remuneration to be paid. The plaintiffs appointed C. to be one of the arbitrators, and the company appointed B. The plaintiffs claimed a declaration that D., who was alleged to have been agreed upon by C and B. as the third arbitrator, was not duly appointed, and an injunction to prevent him from acting, (1) because the appointment of D. was not agreed to by C., (2) because the appointment was not made in writing, and (3) because the appointment, if agreed to by C, in the first instance, was revoked by C withdrawing his consent thereto before action brought:—Held, that the onus of establishing the grounds relied upon was upon plaintiffs. The question as to whether C. did or did not assent to the appointment of D. was one of fact, and, the finding of the trial Judge on the point being adverse to the plainfulfs, and the weight of evidence being in favour of the finding, there was no reason for setting it aside. In the absence of anything to require the appointment of the third arbitrator to be made in writing the same law would govern as in the appointment of an umpire under a submission, which may be ampre under a submission, which may be made by parol if no particular mode of ap-pointment be prescribed. D. having been ap-pointed, and having consented to act, his ap-pointment could not be revoked by subsequent dissent of the parties, Kedy v. Davison, 34 N. S. Reps. 233.

Building Contract—Completion of Work—"All Matters in Dispute"—Arbitrators—Delegation of Duty]—The action was to recover a balance on a building contract, alleging completion. The defendant denied completion, and counterclaimed against the plainitiff on several grounds. After the record had been entered for trial the parties entered into an agreement to refer to two named arbitrators and a third one to be appointed by the latter "all matters whatsoever in dispute" between them. The arbitrators thus appointed having made their award in the plaintiff's favour, he moved, under Rules 754-764 of the King's Bench Act, to have the award made a judgment of the Court:—Held, dismissing the motion with costs, that the award was bad on the following grounds:—1. It shewed on its face that the work under the plainting contract had not been completed, so that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover anything at all in this action. 2. From evidence taken on the hearing of the motion it was clear that the arbitrators had not taken into consideration "all matters whatsoever in dispute," but had failed to deal with a number of such matters which had been brought to their attention. Bowes v. Fernie, 4 My. & Cr. 150, Wilkinson v. Page, 1 Hare 276, and Russell on Arbitration, Ste de, p. 472, followed. 3. The arbitrators had attempted to delegate to another person (unascertained) their authority to decide whether the sum of $110, part of the amount awarded, should or should not be paid: see Tandy v. Tandy, 9 Dowl. 1044. Blakeston v. Wilson, 23 Occ, N. 27, 14 Man. L. R. 271.

British Columbia Arbitration Act-Setting aside Award—Misconduct of Arbitra-tor—Partiality — Evidence — Jurisdiction of Majority-Decision in Absence of Third Arbitrator-Judicial Discretion.]-A reference under the British Columbia Arbitration Act der the British Columbia Arbitration Act authorized two out of three arbitrators to make the award. After notice of the final meeting, the third arbitrator failed to attend on account of personal inconvenience and private affairs, but both parties appeared at the time appointed and no objections were raised on account of the absence of the third arbitrator. The award was then made by the other two arbitrators present:—Held, reversing the judgment in 10 B. C. R. 48, 23 Occ. N. 272, that, under the circumstances, there was cast upon the two arbitrators present the jurisdiction to decide whether or not, in the exercise of judicial discretion, the proceedings should be further delayed or the award made by them alone in the absence of the third arbitrator, and it was not incon-sistent with natural justice that they should decide upon making the award without refer-ence to the absent arbitrator;—Held, further, that, although the third arbitrator had previously suggested some further audit of certain accounts that had already been examined by the arbitrators, there was nothing in this oricumstance to impugn the good faith of the other two arbitrators in deciding that further delay was unnecessary. Where it does not appear that an arbitrator is in such a position with regard to the parties or the matter in dispute as might cast suspicion upon his honour and impartiality, there must be proof of actual partiality or unfairness in order to justify the setting aside of the award. In re Doberer and Megaw's Arbitration, 24 Occ. N. 113, 34 S. C. R. 125.

Clerical Error in Award—Motion to Refer Back—Railway Act of Ganada.]—Motion for an order referring back to the arbitrators, to enable them to correct a clerical error, an award made under the Dominion Railway Act:—Held, that if the Provincial legislation (R. S. O. 1897 c. 62) applied, the notion was needless, the arbitrators having power (s. 9 (c)) to correct the mistake. If that legislation were not applicable, there was no power to remit the award, nor to correct the error upon this motion. Except under power conferred by statute, or by the parties, the Courts would not correct errors in awards, either directly or through the arbitrators; and the Railway Act of Canada does not authorize the re-opening of a reference. Disqualification of Arbitrator - Interest as Ratepayer — Vertiorari.] — By the Nova Scotia Acts of 1902, c. 80, the corporation of the town of Glace Bay were empowered, for the purpose of obtaining a water supply, to enter upon any lands in the county of Cape Breton, and it was provided that the damages, if any, payable to the owner of such land, should be determined by arbitration. Objection was taken to the award of damages, on the ground that C. F., one of the arbitrators appointed under the Act, was not a disinterested party, he having been assessed as a ratepayer in the town:—Held, that if the arbitrators were acting in a judicial capacity, c. 39, R. S., applied, and the fact of one of the arbitrators being a ratepayer afforded no valid objection to the award made by him; that, if the arbitrators were not acting in a judicial capacity, a writ of certiorari would not lie to remove into the Supreme Court any award made by them. Rex v. Town of Glace Bay. 24 Occ. N. 140, 36 N. S. Reps.

Section 45 of the Act does not apply to such an application, but only to applications to set aside awards. An order under s. 13 is necessary when the reference has been made out of Court. Municipal Corporation — Purchase of Electric Light Plant—Appointment of Sole Arbitrator—Notice—Arbitration Act — Municipal Act.]—By an agreement between the town corporation and the assignor of the company for the establishment and operation for ten years of an electric light plant in the town, it was provided that the town might at any time during the ten years purchase the plant at a valuntion fixed by three arbitrators, appointed by each party choosing an arbitrator and they two a third in case of dispute, or by a majority of them. Where a submission provides that the reference shall be to two arbitrators, the Act R. S. O. 1897 c, 62, s. S (b), gives power to the party who has appointed an arbitrator (if the other makes default as specified) to appoint that arbitrator as sole arbitrator; and it is provided that the Court or Judge may set aside any such appointment:—Held, that notice of the appointment of the sole arbitrator should be given to the party in default, who, if not notfield, is not called upon to move against the appointment:—Held, also, that the agreement was not to be read as suspending the choice of a third arbitrator till there should be a dispute, but it imported that the three arbitrators should act from the outset; and therefore s. S (b) did not apply. Excelsior Life Ins. Co. v. Employers' Lability Assurance Corporation, 2 O. L. R. 301, and Gumm v. Hallett, L. R. 14 Eq. 555, considered. S. O. 1897 c. 62. he having failed to comply with the terms of a previous order of 22nd June, 1904, which required him to find and award as to the ownership of the property included in an instrument dated 5th January, 1901, and he had not complied with that order by vesting the property in the Lake Superior Power Co. as the owner thereof. Setting Aside Award - Misconduct of Arbitrator-Waiver.]-A party to an arbitra-tion does not waive his right to object to an award on the ground of misconduct on the part of an arbitrator by failing to object as soon as he becomes suspicious and before the award is made; he is entitled to wait until he gets such evidence as will justify him in impeaching the award. Where two out of three arbitrators go on and hold a meeting. and make an award at a time when the third arbitrator cannot attend, it amounts to an exclusion of the third arbitrator, and the award is invalid. A party by attending at such a meeting and not objecting (although he knew of the third arbitrator's inability to attend) does not waive his right to object afterwards. Per Hunter, C.J.—It is not necessary that there should be absolute proof of misconduct before an award will be set aside on that ground; it is enough if there is a reasonable doubt raised in the judicial mind that all was not fair in the conduct of one or more of the arbitrators. In re Doberer and Megaw's Arbitration, 23 Occ. N. 272, 10 B. C. R. 48.

Stated Case - Matter "arising in the Course of the Reference"—Construction of Contract—Revoking Submission—Discretion Special Qualifications of Arbitrators—Questions of Law.]—Arbitrators were appointed under the arbitration clause in an agreement between two companies, whereby, inter alia, one agreed to provide the other daily with a certain quantity of cordwood, which the latter agreed to carbonize into charcoal and to deliver to the former to the maximum quantity of 85,000 bushels per month. The arbitration clause provided that in case of any dispute in regard to the meaning or construction of the agreement or of the mutual obligations of the parties or of any other act, matter, or thing relating to or concerning the carrying out of the true spirit, intention, or meaning of the agreement, the same should be deter-mined by arbitration. One of the claims referred to the arbitrators was for damages for short delivery of charcoal, a shortage being claimed whatever the proper construction of the agreement in that regard. On an application by one of the parties, under s. 41 of the Arbitration Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 62, for a direction to the arbitrators to state a special case upon which the Court should determine the true construction of the contract as to the amount of charcoal called for per month under it-a matter upon which they had reached and announced a conclusion :- Held, that, the claim referred to leaving the proper construction of the agreement open, this was a question of law "arising in the course of the reference," within the meaning of s. 41, and a special case might properly be directed as to it. 2. That a special case having been directed as to the principal question, it might properly be made to include two other questions' in dispute, though, had they been the only questions which the applicants desired to have stated, it would not have been proper to direct a case as to them. 3. A party to a reference is not entitled ex debito justitiæ to have a special case directed whenever a question of law arises in the course of a reference; it is a matter in the discretion of the Court. 4. There is no general rule that when the arbitrators are specially qualified to de cide a question of law, this direction should not be given, at ail events where the arbitrators have ruled upon the question, Semble. that different considerations apply to the exercise of the discretion to give leave to revoke a submission (s. 3 of the same Act)-a discretion which is to be exercised only under exceptional circumstances. In re Rathbur Co., and Standard Chemical Co., 23 Occ. N. 66, 5 O. L. R. 286, 2 O. W. R. 36, 385, 3 O. W. R. 698, 724, 6 O. W. R. 690.

Statement of Case by Arbitrators -Time-Remitting Back Award.] - After an award is made it is too late to make an application for an order under s. 1 of the Arbitration Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 62, directing the arbitrators to state a case for the opinion of the Court as to the admissibility and relevancy of evidence, or for the arbitrators to state a case for the opinion of the Court. The only case in which the Court will remit matters referred to an arbitrator for re-consideration under s. 11 are: (1) where the award is bad on the face of it; (2) where there has been misconduct on the part of the arbitrators; (3) where there has been an admitted mistake, and the arbitrator himself asks that the matter may be remitted; and (4) where additional evidence has been discovered after the making of the award. Where arbitrators received and gave effect in their award to certain evidence, and after the making of the award gave a certificate to the making of the award gave a certificate to that effect, and that they were in doubt as to whether they should have received the evidence:—Held, that the case did not come within any of the above four cases, and that an order to remit the matter back to the arbitrators should be refused. In re Grand Trunk R. W. Co. and Petrie, 21 Occ. N, 529. 2 O. L. R. 284.

Stay of Action-Partnership-Agreement to Refer-Enforcement, 1-Application by defendants to stay proceedings in an action by the personal representatives of a deceased partner to have the survivors account. Under partnership articles a sole arbitrator was appointed in case one of the partners should die before the expiration of the partnership term :- Held, granting the order to stay proceedings, subject to plaintiffs being permitted at any time upon such material as they deem sufficient, to apply for appointment of a receiver or for an injunction. The right not limited to an application after award was made, reserving, however, a general liberty to apply at any time for the protection of the partnership property and to prevent the improper use or disposition of it pending the settlement of the matters in question. Time for Making Award - Power to Extend — Umpire.] — By the terms of an agreement for submission to arbitration the agreement for submission to arbitrary and agreement for submission of a factor and said arbitrators should nominate and appoint, "so as the said arbitrators or umpire do make and publish his and their award ready to be delivered on or before the 10th day of August next, or on or before any other day to which said arbitrators or umpire shall, by writing indorsed on these presents, enlarge the time for making such award or umpirage: per Ritchie, J., and Graham, E.J., that un-de: the terms of the agreement, the power of the arbitrators to consider and deal with the questions submitted absolutely terminated on the 1st August, after which date the umpire was the only person who had authority to make an award:—Held, also, that the arbitrators had no authority to extend the time within which the umpire could make his award, and that, as such time, if not legally extended, expired on the 10th August, and the umpire did not attempt to extend it until the 20th September, the award made by him the 20th September, the award made by him was irregular and void, and the plaintiff could not recover:—Held, also, that the provisions of the Arbitration Act, Acts of 1895 c. 7, s. 2 (e), were not applicable, a contrary inten-tion being expressed in the submission which fixed the date before which the arbitrator was to make his award or extend the time: -Held, also, that the section, if applicable, would not assist the plaintiff, as the umpire did not begin to extend the time until the 20th September, and the authority of the arbitrators had terminated more than a month previously. McDonald, C.J., and Meagher, J., contra. Holmes v. Taylor, 33 N. S. Reps.

ARCHITECT.

Contract to Prepare Plans—Work not Proceeded with—Commission on Estimated Cost.]—The plaintiff was engaged by the defendants to prepare plans and specifications for an hotel building to cost not more than $4,000 or $5,000, for which he was to receive a commission of two per cent, on the cost, with one per cent, additional for superintendence. Instructions as to size, number of rooms, &c., were given by the defendants. Before the plans were completed changes were made, by additions to the original plan, involving an additional expenditure of $1,500. The plans were approved of by the defendants, when completed, and tenders called for, and the work partly proceeded with. It was then found by the defendants that, owing to an advance in the price of materials, the building would cost much more than they had expected, and the work was stopped:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover from defendants the stipulated cost of the building with the additions agreed upon. Hutchinson v. Convey, 34 N. S. Reps. 554.

Fees—Action for—Counterclaim for negligence—Questions of fact—Appeal. Russell v. McKerchar (Man.), 1 W. L. R. 138.

Fees—Tariff—Association of Architects— Registration.]—An architect, in order to avail himself of the tariff of the Province of Quebec Association of Architects, in support of a claim for services as architect, must establish that he is registered as a member of the association under the Act 61 V. c. 33 (Q.) Beaulieu v. Lapierre, Q. R. 26 S. C. I.

Mistake in Estimates — Liability.] — Decision of Irving, J., S B, C. R. 7, holding the defendant, an architect, not liable for loss caused by error in estimates, affirmed by the full Court. Grant v. Dupont, S B. C. R. 223.

ARREST.

Affidavit to Hold to Bail—Residence of Parties.]—In an action for false imprisonment of the plaintiff it appeared that he was arrested upon a capias issued by a justice of the peace:—Held, that the affidavit upon which the capias was granted was sufficient, although it did not state the places of residence of the parties so as to shew jurisdiction. Temperance and General Life Assec. Co. of North America v. Ingraham, 35 N. B. Reps, 510.

Application for Discharge - Onus -Intent to Defraud — Former Absconding — Insolvency—Bond — Restoration,] — The expected departure from Ontario with intent to defraud is an essential ingredient of the case to be made out by the applicant for an order of arrest, but it is a question of fact, and the Judge may infer it from the facts and circumstances shewn by the affidavits. The decision of the Judge who grants such an order is subject to review, but the onus of shewing that he was wrong rests upon the party who complains of it. Under the circumstances of this case the order was rightly made. The former conduct of the defendant in respect to the same debt was a fact or circumstance to be taken into consideration on the question of intent. The impecunious or insolvent condition of the defendant does not, of itself, minimize or rebut the fraudulent intent.

Attachment-Affidavit-Cause of Action -Subsequent Attaching Creditor-Motion to Sussequent attaching creator—author to Set Aside Prior Attachment — Status.]— An application by a subsequent attaching creditor to set aside a previous attachment under the Absent or Absconding Debtors Act, on the ground that the affidavit upon which the previous attachment was made did not disclose a cause of action, and was not nade by the plaintiff or his agent. The affidavit was made by the first attaching creditor's solicitor, and set forth that the defendant was indebted for "money lent, for goods sold and delivered, and for board and lodging," stating the amount due under each head:—Held, that the affidavit on which the first attachment issued was not made by the plaintiff or his agent, as required by the statute, and the affidavit did not shew any cause of action against the defendant; and that the notice of application to set aside the attachment might be amended by adding these grounds of motion; and the application was granted. Carr v. Carr, 21 Occ. N. 312.

Attachment—Costs—County Court Appeal.] — The Supreme Court will not, as a general rule, grant an attachment to enforce the payment of the costs of an appeal from the judgment of a County Court. The costs should be certified and application made to the Court below. MacPherson v. Samet, 34 N. B. Reps, 559.

Bail Bond-Discharge-Exoneretur.] Application for an order to deliver up the bond, given on the defendant's arrest, to be cancelled, the action having been dismissed:— Held, that the order should be for the entry of an exoneretur on the bond, not for the delivery up of the bond, following the old practice (Allison v. Desbrisay, Cochrane 19), there being no specific Rule in the Nova Scotia Judicature Act, on the subject. Watson v. Leukton, 23 Occ. N. 336.

Bail-Renewal-Default -- Re-arrest, 1 -Default by a defendant arrested upon capias to renew the bail (a bondsman having died), as directed by the order of the Court, is a good ground for ordering him into the custody of the sheriff. Beliveau v. Boschen, 4 Q. P.

Capias-Affidavit-Amendment-Time and Place of Debt.]-The affidavit required for the issuing of the writ of capias is not a proceeding susceptible of being amended. 2. Such affidavit must mention the time and place where the indebtedness occurred, within the limits of the provinces of Quebec and Ontario. Julien v. Chuna, 5 Q. P. R. 413.

Capias-Affidavit-Debt.]-A capias will be quashed upon petition if the affidavit does not shew that the debt for which it was sued out is a personal debt, or if it does not indicate the place at which the debt was created or became exigible. European Importing Co. v. Mallekson, 6 Q. P. R. 255.

Capias-Affidavit-" Immediately."] -An affidavit for capias must set forth that the defendant is immediately about to leave the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, and a capias issued upon an affidavit merely, stating that the defendant is about to leave the said provinces, will be quashed on petition to that effect. Kidd v. MacKinnon, 5 Q. P. R. 177.

Capias - Affidavit - Information.] Where, in an affidavit made to obtain a writ of ca. re., the plaintiff swears that he is in-formed of the facts upon which he relies to secure the issue of the writ, he must give the name of the person who has furnished him the information, and if he fails to give it the writ of capias will be quashed upon the petition of the defendant. Lemieux v. Bussière, Q. R. 18 S. C. 499.

Capias -Affidavit-Intended Departure-"Immediately."]—The omission of the word immediately," in the affidavit for capias, in connection with the intended departure of the debtor, is fatal, and the capias will be quashed and set aside. Kidd v. McKinnon, Q. R. 20 S. C. 300.

Capias-Affidavit-Residence of Parties-Place where Debt Contracted.]—When it appears by the affidavit for capias that the plaintiff as well as the defendant resides in the province of Quebec, it is not necessary to allege specially that the debt was con-tracted within the Province. Beauchemin v. St. Pierre, 5 Q. P. R. 484.

Capias — Affidavit to Hold to Bail — Essentials — Residence of Parties — Place where Debt Created or Payable.]-It is not sufficient to state only that the debtor resides in the province of Quebec, to give a right to a capias against him; but it is essential to indicate the place where the debt was created or is payable and that such place is within the limits of the province of Quebec or of Ontario. D'Amico v. Galardo, 7 Q. P. R. 234.

Capias - Affidavit to Hold to Bail -Falsity of Allegations in—Answer Setting up New Facts—Inscription in Law.]—A special answer setting up new facts will not be per mitted on an application to set aside a writ of capias based on the irregularity of the affidavit and the falsity of the allegations contained in it; such an answer will be struck out on an inscription in law. Demers v. Girard, 7 Q. P. R. 134.

Capias — Affidavit to Hold to Bail — Insufficiency of.]—A capias issued upon an affidavit which does not state that owing to the secretion charged, the plaintiff will be deprived of his recourse against the defendant, is illegal, and will be quashed on petition. Hochar v. Drimer, 7 Q. P. R. 156.

Capias — Affidavit to Hold to Bail — Particulars of Damages,]—An affidavit for the issue of a capias in an action for damages should state the time and place where the acts which caused the damage were committed. Gourra v. Gourra, 7 Q. P. R. 157.

Capias-Assignment by Debtor-Previous Fraudulent Acts.]-A debtor who has made an assignment for benefit of creditors cannot be arrested on a capias for fraudulent acts committed before his assignment. Demcrs v. Meunier, 7 Q. P. R. 274.

Capias-Debt - Partnership - Plaintiff Claiming Fixed Sum — Defendant Leaving Province.] - In an action accompanied by capias ad respondendum, the plaintiff made affidavit, and also alleged in his declaration that the defendant was personally indebted to him in the sum of $100, the plaintiff being entitled to one-fifth of the profits of a partner-ship, of which he and the defendant were members, which partnership had realized $500 profits, and that the defendant was about to leave the provinces of Quebec and Ontario with the entire sum. On inscription in law: -Held, that by the alleged illegal appropriation of the entire profits and the intended departure therewith, the defendant's possession of the sum of $500 had changed its nature, and that, without the previous institution of an action pro socio, a personal indebtedness existed on the part of the defendant to a copartner entitled to a share of the sum illegally appropriated, which was sufficient to justify the issue of a capias under art. 895, C. C. P. Ferries v. Vathakos, Q. R. 25 S. C. 530.

Capias - Demurrer - Exception.] - A demorrer to a capias will not be struck out on exception to the form, the defendant being at liberty to demur instead of proceeding by petition to quash. Todd v. Murray, 3 Q. P.

Capias — Description of Defendant — Change of Residence—Stamps.]—In a writ of capias after judgment, it is sufficient to give the same description of the defendant as that contained in the original writ of summons, although the defendant may have meanwhile changed his place of residence; and such a writ is sufficiently stamped, if it bears the stamps required on an alias writ. Edgerton v. Lapierre, Q. R. 27 S. C. 20.

Capias - Execution in Another Province.] When the Superior Court has jurisdiction with respect to the subject matter of the principal action, it can issue a writ of capias for execution in the province of Ontario, because the code of procedure has only re-enacted the provisions of the laws of the old province of Canada, of which Ontario formed part. Gravel v. Lizotte, 7 Q. P. R. 201.

Capias-Petition to Quash-Deposit-Incidental Capias-Declaration-Time,1 - A petition to quash a capias, based not upon the grounds mentioned in art. 919, C. P., but upon formal grounds, is subject to the deposit required with preliminary exceptions. 2. The declaration of an incidental capias must be deposited at the office of the Court within three days after service of the writ. Rad-ford v. Hickey, 5 Q. P. R. 311.

Capias-Satisfaction of Debt and Costs-Plaintiff Proceeding After-Exception to the Form.]—When a person arrested on a capias delivers a certain sum in money and goods to the bailiff in satisfaction of the debt and costs, the plaintiff's proceeding on his writ of capias without returning to the defendant the goods delivered to the bailiff, unlawful though it be, is not such an irregularity as can be taken advantage of by an exception to the form. Wilkins v. Marchildon, 7 Q. P. R. 31.

Capias-Security Money-Payment Over Motion.]-A plaintiff, who has succeeded upon a capias, cannot demand by motion that the deposit made with the sheriff by way of security shall be paid over to him. Rosen-berg v. Belankow, 5 Q. P. R. 378.

Capias—Setting Aside—Irregularity—Action for Malicious Prosecution.]—Action for malicious prosecution. The plaintiff was arrested at Yarmouth under a capias issued under the provisions of the Towns Incorporation Act. The capias was set aside by a stipendiary magistrate, and the plaintiff discharged, because the amount of his travelling fees was not indorsed on the writ, as is required when the person summoned or arrested lives out of the county. The plaintiff then brought this action. The plaintiff urged (1) nullity of the capias; (2) that the affidavit was not made bona fide and that it was false in two particulars, viz., because no debt was due, and because there was no ground for the affidavit, the ordinary method of procedure, by summons, being all that was requisite:—Held, that the capias was not void, and that the affidavit was made bona fide. Irwin v. Lawson, 21 Occ. N. 354.

Capias—Writ of Summons - Fadure to Serve—Expiry—Nullity—Waiver—Costs.] -A writ of capias is essentially a writ of summons as well as one authorizing an arrest, and the articles governing the writ of summons, save any special exception made by law, apply to it. Where a writ issued after judgment has not been served within six months after its issue and no Judge's order extending its life has been made within the six months, the writ becomes non-existent. The absolute nullity of the writ is not a mere irregularity which, under art 176, C. P., would be waived by failure to invoke it within the delays prescribed for filing preliminary exceptions, but where such nullity is not so invoked, costs will not be granted. Demers v. Girard, 7 Q. P. R. 214.

Ca. re. - Affidavit - Debt - Identity of Plaintiff.]—The affidavits leading to an order for ca. re, must shew that there is a debt due from the defendant to the plaintiff. It is not sufficient to shew that there is a debt due from the defendant to one who bears the same name as the plaintiff. A statement in an affidavit that deponent has caused a writ of summons to be issued against defendant, without stating in what action the writ was issued, is not sufficient to shew that plaintiff and deponent are one and the same person. Wehrfritz v. Russell, 9 B. C. R. 79.

Ca. re. - Costs - Set-off - Stay of Execu-Motion to set aside an order for arrest, it being shewn that the defendant did arrest, it less sawn that the province. The Judge directed that the order for arrest be set aside with costs. The plaintiff asked that the costs be set off against the judgment which the plaintiff expected to recover against the defendant. Order for costs to the defendant. but execution therefor stayed for 30 days. Resnick v. Pettis. 24 Occ. N. 238.

Ca. re.—Execution in Another Province.]

—A debtor about to leave the province of Ontario may be arrested there upon a capias, by a bailiff of one of the Courts of the province of Quebec. Schmidt v. Carbonneau, 6 Q. P. R. 211.

Ca. re.—Form of Writ—Summons to Set Aside—Appearance—Costs—Terms.] —Held, on a summons to set aside a writ of ca. re, that it was bad because it did not state the nature of the cause of action. 2. It is not necessary for a person arrested under a writ of ca. re, to enter an appearance before applying for his discharge. 3. The defendant having asked for costs, the order for his discharge should provide that no action be brought against the plantiff or the sheriff by reason of the capias or the arrest. v. Russell, 22 Occ. N. 217, 9 B. C. R. 50.

Ca. re,—Irregularity or Nullity—Waiver by Giving Bail.)—After the issue of the writ in an action, a summons was issued initituded "in the matter of an intended action:"—Held, that it was wrongly intituded. A Judge has power to direct a summons to be issued and made returnable in a registry other than that where the writ was issued. By the giving of special bail, a defendant arrested on a capias waives his right to object to the writ. Tanaka v. Russell, 22 Occ. N. 128, 9 E. C. R. 24.

Ga. re.—Partnership Action.] — There is no ground for the issue of a capias in a partnership action in which a fixed sum is claimed from the defendant, being the plaintiff's share in the profits of the partnership, the whole of which the defendant has appropriated. Ferrica V, Vathakos, 6 Q. P. R. 388.

Ca. re. — Service Out of Province — Validity.] — The service, in the province of Ontario, of a capias issued in the province of Quebee, according to the permission of a deputy prothonotary, allowing the service to be made in Ontario on any day and at any hour, is valid. Bernard v. Carbonneau, 6 Q. P. R. 194.

Ca. sa.—Concurrent Writ—Expiry of Original—Invalid Arrest—Application for New Writ—Concealment of Material Facts.]—A concurrent writ of ca. sa. should not be issued after the original writ with which it is concurrent has expired by lapse of time under Con. Rule 874, and a concurrent writ so issued will be set aside as having been improperly issued. The right to make a motion to be discharged from custody upon the merits and upon the ground of concealment by the plaintiff of material facts upon the application founded upon Con. Rule 1047, is confined to the case of an order for arrest made before judgment, and does not extend to a ca. sa. The defendant had been arrested under an invalid concurrent writ of ca. sa., and was in the custody of a sheriff, to the knowledge of the plaintiffs' solicitor, who prepared an affidavit entirely suppressing the fact of the arrest, upon which he obtained an order for and issued a new writ of ca. sa. Upon an appeal to a Divisional Court from an order of a Judge in Chambers refusing to set aside the latter order and writ, and a motion to be discharged:—Held, that the application should not be treated as an appeal upon new material from the discretion of the Judge who made the order, as such an application, having for its object the setting adde of the order and writ, must upon the authorities have failed: Damer v. Busby, 5 P. R. at p. 389. It was really an application to the undoubted jurisdiction of the Court to set aside, in fits discretion, orders which had been made by the wilful concealment or perversion of material facts; and a clear case had been made out and the order and writ should be set aside and the prisoner discharged from custody. Merchants Bank v. Sussex, 22 Occ. N. 387, 4 O. L. R. 524, 1 O. W. R. 572, 584.

Ca. sa.—Description of Plaintiff—Fee.]—In a capias issued after judgment the plaintiff may be described as he was in the original action, and this even if he has changed his demicil since the institution of the action. 2. Upon a capias after judgment the fee is the same as upon an alias writ. Edgerton v. Lapierre, 6 Q. P. R. 434.

Cause of Action—Tort—Negligence.]—
Under the provisions of paragraph 4 of art.
S33, C. P. C., a defendant in an action for personal wrong is subject to arrest; in this case the claim was for damages resulting from injuries sustained by plaintiff by a bicycle ridden by the defendant. Chouinard v. Raymond, Q. R. 18 S. C. 319.

Gereive Imprisonment — Judicial Surety—Age Privilege—Personal Natice—Property—Time — Appeal,] — A person who becomes security for costs on an appeal bond is a judicial surety and consequently has no age privilege exempting him from coercive imprisonment; art. 833, C. C. P. 2. The appearance of the surety, to oppose the issue of a rule nisi for coercive imprisonment, is equivalent to "personal notice" under art. 837, C. C. P. 3. Discussion of the personal and immovable property of the surety, who has made default to pay his bond, is not necessary before the institution of proceedings against him for coercive imprisonment. 4. The creditor is not obliged to wait during the six months allowed for an appeal from a judgment against the surety, before taking proceedings against him for coercive imprisonment. Burland v. Lamoureux, Q. R. 25 S. C. 98, 6 Q. P. R. 106

Coercive Imprisonment Jurisdiction— Amount of Judgment — Adding Costs to.]— The costs cannot be added to the damages adjudged to make the amount up to $50 in order to justify an application for arrest in an action for personal wrongs. Campbell v. Justice, 7 Q. P. R. 78.

Coercive Imprisonment — Order for— Notice of Proceeding on—Petition to Set Aside Order.]—A petition against a judgment will not be entertained, where it is alleged that such judgment was not in fact rendered, if the petitioner has not inscribed en faux against such judgment. 2. No notice to the party is required before putting into execution an order for coercive imprisonment upon a writ or order of the Court in terms of art. 838, C. P. Clément v. Bilodeau, 6 Q. P. R.

Tecquarity.] — Proceedings—Irequarity.] — Proceedings—leading to coercive imprisonment ought to be marked with certainty and full regularity and no rule will be maintained if the proceedings are irrequiar. Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Canada V. Lionais. 6 Q. P. R. 359.

Coercive Imprisonment — When Writ may Issue.]—A writ of contrainte par corps can only be enforced necording to law (ordinance 1637, title 34, article 11) fifteen days after "signification" of the judgment which orders it; and, at all events, fifteen days after the date of the judgment. Demers v. Payette, Q. R. 28 S. C. 534.

Contrainte par Corps—When Claimable —Action for Damages—Malice.]—An action for damages against a person who has out of malice closed a tap used for the purpose of supplying his co-tenant with water, is not an action in which the plaintiff can claim contrainte par corps in default of payment of the damages awarded; and a claim for that relief will be struck out upon demurrer.
Phaneuf v. Knight, 5 Q. P. R. 70.

Contrainte par Corps—Executor—Account.]—Civil imprisonment of a testamentary executor will not be ordered in an action in contestation of his account and to recover the alleged share of the plaintiff in the reliquat of such account. Morris v. Mechan, 6 Q. P. R. 43.

Contrainte par Corps — Judgment — Moneys Collected—Judicial Authority.]—To be subject to arrest by virtue of art. 833, C. P., a person must have had the care of moneys or other effects by virtue of judicial authority, and not otherwise. 2. A secretary-treasurer engaged by the syndies of a parish to raise the amount of a note for the construction of a church is not subject to arrest upon a judgment condemning him to restore moneys received by him in such capacity. Syndies of the Parish of 8t. Antoine de Longueuit v. Gingras, 3 Q. P. R. 557.

Contrainte par Corps — Judgment Debtor — Concealment of Property.]—Held, affirming the judgment in Q. R. 16 S. C. 233. that in the law of the Province of Quebec, even since the new Code of Procedure, the capias and respondendum still exists, and may be issued not only before but after judgment, as a means by which a creditor may arrest his debtor who, in order to defraud and cause the creditor to lose his remedy, conceals and abstracts his (the debtor's) property. 2. Article 897, C. P. C., does not contradict art. 832. The latter only applies to contrainte par corps, while the former refers to a capias, two absolutely different things. Elliott v. Quebec Bank, Q. R. 9 K. B. 532.

contrainte par Corps — Releaso — Assignment of Property — Security — Time.] — A debtor in respect of damages adjudged against him for slander, and upon the point of being imprisoned under a writ of contrainte par corps, may obtain a stay of the writ if he makes an assignment of his property, provided that he furnishes security to place himself in the custody of the sheriff whenever he shall be required to do so. But the transfer of the property effected by the contrainte par corps does not permit of his being released before the expiration of the time allowed to creditors to contest it. Fréchette v. Prevost, 4 Q. P. R. 404.

Contrainte par Corps—Right to—Personal Injuries—Accident, — Injuries caused by a simple accident resulting from the negligence of a person, without any intention on his part to injure, are not personal injuries on account of which coercive imprisonment can be ordered against such person. Charirand v. Smart, Q. R. 23 S. C. 304, 5 Q. P. R. 173.

Contrainte par Corps—Service on Defeudunt's Attorney.]—After judgment against the defendant in an action for libel, the plaintiff made a motion for a rule nisi for contrainte par corps:—Held, that service of notice of such motion upon the defendant's attorney ad litem, authorized by an order of the Court, was legal and valid. Lumb v. Kellan, 4 Q. P. R. 42.

Contrainte par Corps—Writ—Exhaustion—Deputy-prothonolary.)—A writ or order of the Court or Judge for coercive imprisonment is exhausted by the imprisonment of the debtor, followed by his liberation, and no new arrest or imprisonment can thereafter be executed in virtue of the said writ. 2. A writ or order for coercive imprisonment cannot be issued by a deputy-prothonotary of the Court, and an imprisonment effected in virtue thereof is illegal. Gaudet v. Archambault. 6 Q. P. R. 27.

Commitment in Civil Matter—Habeas Corpus — Jurisdiction — Irregularities — Valuation of Goods—Bailiff—Contrainte par Corps—Costs.]—A person who is restrained of his liberty under a warrant of commitment granted in a civil matter by a Court or Judge having jurisdiction, is not entitled to liberation under a writ of habeas corpus (art. 1114, C. C. P.), and more particularly where no excess of jurisdiction is shewn. 2. Even if it were assumed that, notwithstanding the terms of art. 1114, the Court has power to inquire into the regularity of the proceedings, the absence in the rule and commitment of a valuation of the goods, upon payment of which the guardian in default to produce goods would be entitled to be released, cannot be invoked by him as a ground for asking his liberation,—such valuation, under art, 658. C. C. P., being a right to be exercised by the guardian in default, and not a duty imposed upon the seizing creditor. 3. A bailif of the Superior Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the sheriff, for the execution of a writ for coercive imprisonment. 4. The fact that the writ of contrainte par corps, under which the petitioner for habeas corpus is detained, calls on him to pay, in addition to the debt and taxed costs, the costs of the writ of contrainte and of the arrest and commitment of the petitioner, is not an irregularity. Exe p. Kenotasse, Q. R. 13 K. B. 185, 6 Q. P. R. 89.

Discharge—Terms—Action — Costs— Discretion.]—Where an order to arrest is made upon materials which justify it, although the defendant may be discharged from custody under it upon fresh affidavits, the Judge may, in his discretion, impose terms of bringing no action, and may withhold costs. Sullivan v. Allen, 21 Occ. N. 161, 1 O. L. R. 53

Disobedience of Decree for Payment of Money.]—Where the defendant made default in paying to the plaintift, under the decree of the Court, a sum of money received by the defendant as a donatic mortis causa in favour of the plaintiff, an order was gramed for an execution against als bedy. An order for an execution against the body of a party in default under a decree for payment of money will not be granted where the Court is satisfied that the party in default also means, and has not made a fraudulent disposition of his property, and his arrest is sought for a vindictive purpose, or to bring pressure to bear upon his friends to come to his assistance. Thorne v. Perry, 21 Occ. N. 542, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 276.

Intent to Quit Ontario—Alimony—Desertion of wife—Return to Ontario—Fraudulent Intent—Discharge—Terms—Restraint on disposition of property. Southorn v. Southorn, 2 O. W. R. 1189, 3 O. W. R. 51.

Intent to Quit Ontario—Discharge—Disposition of property. Thompson v. Greene, 3 O. W. R. 310.

Intent to Quit Ontario—Intent to Defraud—Foreigner. Henry v. Ward, 1 O. W. R. 222, 655, 2 O. W. R. 422.

Intent to Quit Province-Negativing Order Set Aside—Appeal—Inference—Effete Order—Costs.]—The defendant was arrested under an order for arrest granted on the affidavit of the plaintiff's solicitor that he had probable cause for believing, and did believe, that the defendant, unless he was arrested, was about to leave the Province. The order for arrest was set aside, and the bond directed to be delivered up to be cancelled by order of a Judge, who was satisfied, on reading the affidavits produced before him, that the defendant, at the time of his arrest, was not about to leave the Province :-Held, that the order was one that the Court on appeal would not interfere with. 2. Following Hunt v. Harlow, 1 Old. 709, that a statement of belief that the defendant is about to leave the province being all that is required under the practice to procure an order for arrest, the defendant is entitled to be discharged if he negatives that intention, unless the plaintiff can state facts from which it can be clearly inferred that it was the intention of the defendant to leave. 3. That such an inference was not to be drawn from affidavits merely tending to shew that defendant was keeping out of the way to avoid service of an order for his examination under the Collections Act. -4. That it would be futile to allow the plaintiffs' appeal, as, at the time the order for the defendant's examination under the Collections Act was served, the order for arrest was effete, and the bond cancelled, and no stay of proceedings had been obtained, and the liability of the sureties could not be restored. 5. That while the defendant was entitled to have the plaintiffs' appeal dismissed with costs, the costs must be set off against the plaintiffs' judgment in the action, McLaughlin Carriage Co. v. Fader, 34 N. S. Reps. 534.

Judgment against Married Woman— Proprietary, liability—Form of order—Intent to quit Ontario. Doull v. Doelle, 4 O. W. R. 525, 5 O. W. R. 238, 253, 413, 6 O. W. R. 39.

Judgment Debtor—Application for Discharge—Interest in Real Estate—Growing Crops—Tenancy by the Uurtesy.]—A judgment debtor, having made application to be discharged from custody under an execution issued out of a justice's court, in the course of his examination disclosed that he and his wife resided upon land of which his wife had the fee, and that there were growing crops upon it created by his labour;—Held, that, as this disclosed an interest in real property that could not be taken under an execution issued out of a justice's Court, the debtor could not be discharged. The husband's estate of curtesy exists during the lifetime of the wife. Exp. Geldert—In re Geldert v. Jour. 34 N. B. Reps. 612.

Order for Discharge - Jurisdiction -Facts Appearing in Order—Disclosure—Certiorari. 1-An order of discharge made by a clerk of the peace under 59 V. c. 28, s. 32 (N.B.), which states that the party discharged had been in custody in the county of Victoria by virtue of an order of render made by the police magistrate of the district of Andover and Perth Civil Court; that due notice of disclosure had been given; and that the hearing took place at the time and place mentioned in the notice; and is signed by the clerk of the peace for the county of Victoria, is a sufficient statement on the face of the order of the territorial jurisdiction of the officer making the same, and will not be quashed on certiorari. If there is evidence from which the officer making the order for discharge might be satisfied that a full disclosure had been made, the Court will not set aside the order, even though not satisfied that the disclosure is a full one, or of the bona fides of it. Rex v. Straton, Ex p. Porter, 36 N. B. Reps. 388.

Order for Imprisonment of Debtor—Right of Appeal—Certiorari—Debtor Diceating Himself of Property—Payment of Another Debt—Statement of Grounds for Order—Evidence Given in Former Proceeding.—The fact that, by 61 V. c. 28, s. 8 (N.B.), amending 59 V. c. 28, an appeal to the Supreme Court is given from an order of imprisonment under ss. 46, 48, 49, 51, and 53 of the latter Act, does not deprive a party affected by such order of his right to a certiorari, and the Court will grant the writ, if in their opinion and discretion, the circumstances warrant it. An order for imprisonment made by a County Court Judge on the ground that the debtor, since being arrested and held to bail, has divested himself of the Rew v. Forbes, Ew p. Dean, 39 N. B, Reps. 580.

Order for—Notice to Defendant.]—Under art. 837, C. P. C., an arrest cannot be allowed except upon a special order granted by the Court after notice personally served on the party liable to arrest. Ridgeway v. buckworth, Q. R. 18 S. C. 126.

Personal Injuries-Judgment-Damages -Res Judicata-Assignment for Creditors. -The law understands by injury what is said, written, done, or omitted with the design of offending some one in his honour, and by the word personal it includes trespass even without the design of dishonouring. 2. Arrest cannot be ordered for damages caused to some one in his property only. 3. A judgment awarding damages to a person as well for rehabilitation of the molestation to which the defendant has exposed him, as for compensation for the loss of time and disbursements which he has incurred, without making a distinction between these two heads of damages, attributes no part of the sum awarded to personal injuries; and if it did so, it would not afford the answer of res judicata to an application for the arrest of the defendant for non-payment of the sum fixed by such judg-ment. 4. A debtor who makes an abandonment of his assets, regular and not contested, ment of his assets, regular and not contested, is exempt from arrest for a cause arising before the filing of his schedule. Bédard v. Grosboillot, 3 Q. P. R. 372, Q. R. 18 S. C.

Privilege-Witness-Order for Committal -Habeas Corpus - Order under Collection Act-Excessive Fees-Remedy.]-The appliact—Excessive Frees—Remeay.]—The appli-cant was arrested at the city of Halifax, at which place he resided, by the sheriff of the county of Halifax, under an order for his arrest, on the 11th February, 1904, while he was going to his place of business and returning to his home, about three-quarters of an hour after he had left the Police Court at Halifax, where he had attended to prosecute and give evidence as a necessary and material witness for the Crown in a prosecution instituted by himself the previous day for an aggravated assault committed on him on the 6th February, 1904. On a motion to discharge the prisoner from custody, the sheriff to an order in the nature of a habeas corpus, mader R. S. N. S. c. 181, "Of securing the Liberty of the Subject," returned the above order for arrest as the cause of the prisoner's detention :- Held, dismissing the application, that, in all the circumstances, and as the Judge's order was of a punitive and quasicriminal character, the prisoner as a witness was not privileged from arrest under it. 2. That the order was one that could not be impeached under habeas corpus proceedings.
3. That in view of s. 37 of the Collection Act. which makes the judgment of the Judge upon the appeal under the Act final, the prisoner's remedy, if any, was either to tender the amount properly due or to sue for the pennity for taking excessive fees provided by s. 2 of R. S. N. S. c. 185, but that in any event, under s. 40 of the Collection Act, even if the present application lay, as the evidence taken upon the examination shewed that there was ground for making this order, the application should be refused. In re Brine, 24 Occ. N. 145.

Privilege-Execution-Inferior Court -Action on Limit Bond—Assignment by Sheriff on Same Day—Holiday—Sitting of Court, -The arrest of a person, having privilege by reason of his being an officer of a Superior Court, under an execution issuing out of the City Court of S., is not void, nor does such privilege afford any defence to an action on a limit bond entered into by such officer in order to obtain his discharge. If two things are done upon the same day, it will be assumed that that which ought to have been first done was so done; therefore in an action upon a limit bond by the assignee of the sheriff, it was held, in the absence of proof to the contrary that, though the assignment and the writ commencing the action was dated upon the same day, the bond was assigned before the writ was issued. The assignment by the sheriff being a mere formality, only going to shew that the assignee was satisfied with the security, the date thereof was immaterial. Where a Court was by statute bound to sit on a certain day in each week unless Christmas Day, New Year's Day, or any other legal boliday should fall upon such day: — Held, that a day proclaimed by the Governor-General and the Lieutenant-Governor as a holiday for a general public thanksgiving was a legal holiday within the meaning of the Act, and that the Court was not bound to sit upon such a day. Dibblee v. Fry, 35 N. B. Reps.

Simple Arrest—Motion to Quash Writ— Impeaching Debt.]—By the new code of procedure, on a petition to quash a simple writ of arrest, the existence of the debt may be impeached; one of the essential allegations of the affidavit made on obtaining the writ being the existence of a debt. Action for—Bar—Conviction,]—A defendant charged with having committed an assault with intent to do bodily harm, on being asked by the justice whether he would be tried before him summarily or by a jury, elected to be so tried by him, and pleaded guilty. This was objected to by the prosecutor, when the justice stated that he would first ascernain the extent of the assault. After hearing the evidence he adjudicated upon the case and drew up a conviction imposing on the defendant a fine and costs, which the later paid:—Held, that the justice was action; under the special statutory authority for the trial of indictable offences conferred by 9s. 783 (c) and 786, under which the defendant is not relieved from civil proceedings for the same assault. Clarke v. Rutherford, 2 0, 1s. R. 206.

Action for Justification — Trespass — Onster—Damages.]—A plaintiff, who knew the rules of an industrial establishment in which persons from outside were not allowed to speak or communicate with the employés, without special permission, cannot recover from the defendant, manager of such establishment, damages for assault and battery, where the manager ordered him to leave the premises, and, upon his refusal to do so, used ordinary force to eject him; and even if the plaintiff should shew that he was seriously injured by such assault, the action will still be dismissed if it is established that in the course of the resistance and alteraction the plaintiff assailed the defendant. Mckillerick v. Sangster, 3 Q. P. R. 449

Action for—Particulars.] — The plaintiff son the 9th April, 1903, on the 8.8. "Dahome," then being in Demerara; also for an assault and battery on the sasault and battery on board the "Dahome," then being on the high sens:—Held, that, as the month of April might cover an assault and battery other than that of the 9th, there ought to be particulars in order to prevent surprise at the trial. An assault is such an easy thing to commit that notice of the particular occasion should be given. Watson v. Leukton, 23 Occ. N. 247.

Justification-Removal of Intruder from Legislative Building—Authority of Speaker— Licensee—Damages.]— To an action for assault, the defendant pleaded that he was chief messenger of the House of Assembly, and that it was one of his duties as such to preserve order and decorum in the House, and about the precincts and corridors there of; that the plaintiff was creating a distur-bance in the House, etc., and interfered with the members of the House in the discharge of their duties, and that the defendant, having first requested the plaintiff to cease making such disturbance, which the plaintiff refused to do, removed her, using no more force than was necessary; that the House of Assembly, through the Speaker, ordered the defendant to remove the plaintiff. It appeared on the trial that, at the time of the alleged assault, the House was not in session, and the jury were instructed that the defence that the defendant was an officer appointed for the purpose of preserving decorum, referred to a disturbance while the House and Committee were in session. The jury found in favour of the plaintiff and assessed the damages at $500 :- Held per Townshend, J., that the alleged assault having taken place outside the portion of the province building exclusively assigned to and occupied by members during the session, the Speaker had no authority, as such, to interfere with the plaintiff, and the justification pleaded by the defendant, that he acted under the orders of the Speaker, would not protect him; that while the damages awarded were high, that was a matter peculiarly for the jury. Per Meagher, J., that no sufficient justification had been established, and the verdict could not be disturbed. Per Graham, E.J., that the plaintiff was only entitled to be, or remain, in and about the corridors, by virtue of some license, express or implied; that questions should have been submitted to the jury as to whether the plaintiff was there bons fide transacting business; whether a reasonable time had not expired; and whether there was not a disturbance constituting an abuse of the license; that either the Speaker or defendant had a right to request the defendant to depart, and had a superior right, which would justify her removal on her re fusal to go; that evidence of the defendant acting in the preservation of order was proper evidence to be submitted to the jury. Per Me-Donald, C. J., that the sergeant-at-arms, or any officer of the House, under the direction of the Speaker, may remove from the House and its precincts, during the session of the legislature, any person who obtrudes himself into the House, or its corridors, or remains there without permission, and in defiance of orders, causing annoyance, discomfort, or interruption to members; that the plaintiff being in the House against the orders of the Speaker, and conducting herself in such a manner as to incommode members in the transaction of public business, her removal was justified. Hubert v. Payson, 36 N. S. Reps. 211. Reversed, 24 Occ. N. 168, 34 S. Reps. 211. C. R. 400.

Police Constable-Acting Virtute Officii -Malice-Reasonable and Probable Cause-Excess of Violence-R. S. O. 1897, c. 88.]-The defendant, a police constable of a city, on being directed by the clerk of the market having the superintendence of the market grounds and buildings, and of the persons, horses, and vehicles frequenting it, acting in the supposed performance of, and with a bona fide intention of discharging his duty without any malice, compelled the plaintiff. a driver of a watering cart, to move with his cart from a position he had taken in the market place, in consequence of which a scuffle ensued in which the plaintiff was assaulted and injured. In an action for the assault, the jury found in favour of plaintiff and awarded $300:—Held, on appeal. that the defendant came within the protection afforded by R. S. O. 1897 c. 85, which applies afforded by K. S. O. 1884 c. S5, Which applies even to officers acting illegally, where they do so in the supposed performance of their duty, 4 O. W. R. 4, 24 Occ. N. 349, 8 O. L. R. 251. Judgment appealed by plaintiff to the Court of Appeal, which restored the judg-ment at the trial. Keliev v. Barton, 26 O. R. 608, affirmed in 22 A. R. 522, followed. Moriarity v. Harris, 6 O. W. R. 232, 10 O. L. 6410. R. 610.

I. ASSESSMENT ROLL.

Contestation-Prescription - Interruption - Injunction.] - The contestation of a special assessment roll by a person named therein has not the effect of interrupting prescription as regards other persons subject to such assessment. 2. Even where the party contesting obtains a temporary order enjoining the city against making any collection under the roll attacked, prescription is not in-terrupted as regards other persons named in the assessment roll, where the making of such order is not objected to by the city, and where no steps are subsequently taken by the city to obtain its rescission. City of Montreal v. Land and Loan Co., Q. R. 23 S. C.

II. CHARGE ON LAND.

Cost of Road-work-Personal Liability of Purchaser.]—A municipal corporation has no right of action to recover the costs of roadwork against the subsequent purchaser of the land assessed, but must first take judgment against the person liable for such work. Township of Roxton v. De Lorimier, Q. R. 24

School Rates — Hypothec—Registration—Judgment—Sale — Interest — Costs — Prescription.]—School rates constitute a privileged claim upon immovables (art. 2009, 2011 C.C.), and are exempt from the formality of registration (art. 2084, C.C.). 2. Where, under a specific provision of the law, a hypothec exists without registration, a judgment upon the debt does not need to be registered in order to preserve the hypothec, nor does sale purge the property therefrom. 3. The hypo-thec also covers interest and the costs of a personal judgment against the debtor, such interest and costs being accessories of the debt (art. 2017, C.C.). 4. An action and judgment against the principal debtor interrupt the three years' prescription as against those who acquire the property from him. West-mount School Commissioners v. Pitt, Q. R. 24 who acquires land after the imposition of a school assessment upon it, is not personally liable for the payment thereof, although the assessment is a special charge upon such property, bearing hypothec without registration. Koxton School Commissioners v. De Lorimier. Q. R. 24 S. C. 48.

School Rate-Illegality-Quashing.] -A motion to quash the rate brought into the Supreme Court by certiorari, 24 Occ. N. 95. In preme Court by certorart, 24 Oct. 3. 700 in fixing the rate the assessors levied no poll tax. as required by law, thus increasing the tax on property of all the rate-payers:—Held, that the whole rate should be quashed. "Owner"—Agent for Mortgagees—Conditional Purchase.]—The plaintiff agreed with mortgagees in possession of the mortgaged land to purchase it at a sum equal to principal, interest, and costs, such purchase to be carried out so soon as the mortgagees should obtain a final order of foreclosure, and in the meantime that he should, as their agent, manage the property:—Held, that the plaintiff, who had not been assessed for the property in question, and against the name the erty in question, and against the name the taxes in question had not been charged on the collector's roll, was not an "owner" of the premises within s. 35, s.s. 3, of the Assessment Act. R. S. O. 1897 c. 224, whereby the collector is authorized to levy unpaid taxes "upon the goods and chattels of the owner of the premises found thereon;" and such taxes could not be levied upon his goods. Lloyd v. Walker, 22 Occ. N. 256, 4 O. L. R. 112, 1 O. W. R. 383.

"Owner" - Agreement for Purchase -Fart Performance—Local Improvement Rates Distress Warrant - Abandonment of Distress.]-A purchaser, who has gone into possession and made part payment of the purchase money under an agreement for the sale of land unexecuted by the vendor, which provides for payment by the purchaser of the taxes, rates, and assessments rated or charged from the date of the agreement, is an "owner" within s. 135 of the Assessment Act, and is liable for the taxes accruing during his occupancy, although they may been assessed against a former owner. Local improvement rates grouped with other taxes under the Assessment Act, and included in the collector's roll, are taxes, in a broad sense, and may be collected or realized by uniform statutory process. 2. A warrant of distress specifying two bailments is unobjectionable. 3. Where one bailiff had rightly entered and seized, and had afterwards withdrawn by reason of the misstatements of the owner, it was held competent for another bailiff to return forthwith and continue the first lawful taking. McDougall v. McMillan, 25 C. P. 75, 92, 10llowed. Sawers v. City of Toronto, 22 Occ. N. 25, 380, 2 O. L. R. 717, 4 O. L. R. 624, 1 O. W. R. 656.

Notice or Demand — Removal of Goods -Warrant for Distress — "Good Reason to Believe "-Onus.]-It is essential to the validity of a notice or demand under R. S. O. c, 224, s. 134 (1), that it should, as required c. 224, s. 134 (1), that it should, as required by s.-s. (2), contain a schedule specifying the different rates, etc. The question whether the collector has such "good reason to be-lieve" a ratepayer is about to remove his goods as would justify him in obtaining a magistrate's warrant of distress under s. 135 (4) is one for the jury, the onus being upon the collector to prove that he had:—Held, under the circumstances of this case, that he had not, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages for illegal distress. Me-Ainnon v. McTague, 21 Occ. N. 207, 1 O. L. R. 233.

Personal Property — Illegal Distress— Action for—Mortgagee's Bailiff.]—Under s. 135 a (1) 3 added to the Assessment Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 224, by 62 V. (2) c. 27, s. 11, goods which are not in the possession of the person assessed in respect of them cannot be distrained for the taxes assessed against them. Goods which had been mortgaged were when seized in the possession of the mort-gagee's bailiff, who had taken possession upon default :- Held, that the bailiff had a right to bring an action for illegal di Donahue v. Warrant-Payment under Constraint Illegal Arrest-Action for |-A warrant for taxes alleged to be due to the defendants was issued by the town treasurer and placed in the hands of a constable for collection. The constable went to the plaintiff's place of business to collect the amount, but, it being Saturday night, an arrangement was made be-tween the constable and plaintiff that the latter would go up on Monday morning and see about the taxes. The plaintiff went to the treasurer's office and contended that the amount claimed in the warrant had been paid, but, as the treasurer insisted that the amount had not been paid, the plaintiff handed him the amount claimed. It appeared that the amount in dispute was due in respect of a property which the plaintiff sold to Y., who agreed to pay the taxes upon it, and paid the same to the treasurer, intimating that it was paid on account of the plaintiff's property, but that the treasurer appropriated the amount in payment of a like amount due by Y. person-ally. The plaintift brought an action for illegal arrest, and claimed as special damage, "amount wrongfully extorted from the plaintiff, as set forth in paragraph 4 of the pleading, $8.25." Paragraph 4, referred to, detailed the issue of the warrant "whereby the plaintiff was unlawfully compelled to pay an illegal demand of the defendants, to wit, the sum of $8.25:" — Held, that, even on the plaintiff's own evidence, the action must fail. Book Debts.]-Book debts are assessable in the city of St. John under s. 121 of 52 V. c. 27 (N.B.), as amended by 63 V. c. 43. Railway bonds secured by mortgage are not exempt under these Acts. Rex v. Sharp, Exp. Turnbull, 35 N. B. Reps. 477.

Canadian Pacific Railway — Branch Lines—Buildings—"Superstructure" —Valu-ation.]—Clause 16 (relating to exemption from taxation) of the agreement between the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the Government of Canada, as embodied in 44 V. 1, is not applicable to the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, but is applicable only to the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and to such branches thereof as the company was authorized by clause 14 of the agreement to construct from points on the main line, and does not extend to other distinct lines of railway which the company may there have been subsequently authorized to construct. Under the Ordinance respecting the Assessment of Railways, C. O. 1898 c. 71, s. 3, the round-houses, station, or office buildings, section houses, employees' dwellings, freight sheds, and other buildings of like nature belonging to a railway company and situated upon it, are not included in the term "superstructure," but may be assessed separately as personal property under the Muni-cipal Ordinance. Such buildings should not be valued as part of the railway as a going concern, and as having a special value as such, but merely at what they are worth separate and distinct from other portions of the rail-When only two and a half stalls of a round-house were situated within the municipality, and the round-house was shewn to cipality, and the round-noise was supersymmetry, and the round-noise was fixed at $2,250. Held, that the word "law," as used in s. 14,
of the province relating to assessment, there being nothing in the context to restrict its meaning; that the word "county" must be read as meaning the whole geographical area of the county, including any city or town within its borders; and that the wording of the statute made it clear that, with the exception specifically mentioned, the exemption given to the plaintiffs was intended to apply to all taxation, whether general assessment for the county or local. "All personal property of military persons residing in government buildings, or barracks," etc.:—Held, that a private house in the city, under lease to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the War Department, for the purpose of being used as a place of residence by a military person, for whom there was no suitable accommodation in any barracks in Halifax, was a "govern-ment building" within the meaning of the statute, and that personal property contained in such building was exempt from taxation for civic purposes. Railway-General Assessment Act-Construction-Application to Railways of Coal struction—Application to Railways of Coal Company.]—The Assessment Act, R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 73, s. 4, s.-s. (p), (as amended by Act of 1902, c. 25), exempts from taxation "the road, rolling stock, bed, track, wharves, station houses, buildings, and plant used ex-clusively for the purpose of any railway either in course of construction or in operation under the authority of any Act passed by the legislature of Nova Scotia:"—Held, that this exemption extended to all lines of railway built, owned, or operated by the plaintiffs, including road bed, right of way, piers, and plant and appurtenances of extensions sought to be assessed by the defendants, but not to lands which formed no part of the land used exclusively for railway purposes, or which, having been at one time so used, had been abandoned or appropriated to other purposes, or to a steamer used solely for the company's own purposes.—It could not have been the intention of the legislature, in granting exemption, to permit a general system of railways and connections to be so cut up that certain parts should be liable to taxation while other parts were exempted. Neither is it sufficient to deprive a company of the benefit of exemption that, at the time in question, only coal mined by the company is carried over one of its extensions, there being provision under the Railway Act to compel it, if necessary, to carry freight for any other person or company. under 52 V. c. 27, s. 135, though one of the three trustees in whom it invested, is resident abroad. Railway bonds, secured by a mortgage, are not mortgages within the meaning of s. 121, as amended by 63 V. c. 43, and are not exempt from taxation. Rew v. Sharp, Exp. Levin, 35 N. B. Reps. 470.

Railway Lands—School Taxes—By-law—Validating Statute.]—In 1881 the plaintiffs passed a by-law, No. 148, providing for a bonus to the defendants in consideration of certain works to be undertaken by the defendants, and also providing that the defendants should be forever exempt from all "municipal taxes and rates, levies and assessments, of every nature and kind." In 1883 the Legislature of Manitoba passed an Act raking yalid by-law No. 148 of the city of Winnipeg, describing it as a by-law for a bonus, but omitting all reference to the exemption clause:—Held, affirming the judgment in 12 Man. L. R. 581, 19 Occ. N. 287, that the statute made valid the whole by-law 148, that relating to exemption from taxes, as well as the portion recited in the Act:—Held, also, reversing the judgment, that under the by-law school taxes were included in the exemption from "all municipal taxes." City of Winnipeg v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., 20 Occ. N. 433, 30 S. C. R. 508.

School Taxes—Recovery of Taxes Paid by Mistake—Court of Revision]—Certain of the plaintiff's lots were by by-law of the defendant municipality "exempted from payment of taxes," for the year 1899 and other years. The said lots were assessed for taxes for the said year "for school purposes only." Thereafter the plaintiff received from the defendant a statement and demand for payment within 30 days of the taxes on the said lots for the said year, and "in consequence of the said demand" paid the same:—Held the taxes on the said demand paid the same:—Held to exemption from taxation for school purposes, this did not amount to such an involuntary payment as would entitle the plaintiff to recover the amount so paid. O. 1897 c. 224, the income derived from property vested in trustees must be regarded for the purpose of assessment as their own income, and is subject to assessment although the trustees have no personal interest in it. Its ultimate destination and mode of expenditure are immaterial, and the obligation of the trustees to pay it to the beneficiaries is not a debt to be set-off against it:—Quare, whether the amendment to the section by 63 V. c. 31. 8, affects the question. Assessment by Wrong Name-Mistake in Acreage—Directory Statute—Time for Assessing—Notice—Order in Council—Exceptional Tax—Powers of Legislature of Territories.]-The defendants were sued by their proper corporate name, but were assessed as "the Hudson's Bay Company:"—Held, that the assessment was not void, no injury being shewn; nor would an error in acreage avoid the assessment. The statute is merely directory on these points. 2. Under s. 17 of c. 17 of the N. W. T. Ordinances of 1899, in a district constituted under s. 14, the assessment may be made at any time of the year; and, although the district was only constituted on the 21st July, 1899, under an Ordinance which came into force on the 24th April, 1899, an assessment made on the 24th July, 1899, for the whole year 1899, was valid. 3. The formalities prescribed by s. 3 of c. 73 of the Consolidated Ordinances are annecessary, except the publication in the Gazette of a notice of the order constituting the district; and a mistake in the number of the district in the publication in the fluorer of the district in the publication in the Gazette was not fatal. 4. The district was legally constituted by order in council of the 21st July, 1899; the area was independent of municipalities and villages within its boundmunicipalities and vinages within its boundaries. 5. The Ordinances respecting public improvements enacted by the Legislative Assembly, under the provisions of which this district was constituted and the assessment complained of made, rendering taxable equally and without exception or discrimination all lands within its limits, do not infringe upon the condition of clause 11 of the Imperial order in council of the 23rd June, 1870, by exceptionally placing a tax upon the lands in question; and from such construction there has been no departure by the Ordinances referred to. McGovan v. Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson's Bay, 21 Occ. N. 64.

Conditions Precedent-Notice-Dominion Lands-Personal Liability.]-On the 9th May, 1899, an order in council was passed and published in the Gazette ordering that a certain defined area should be formed into a local improvement district:—Held, that as the lands comprised exceeded 72 square miles, me tands comprised exceeded 72 square miles, the authority for creating it was to be found in s, 14 of c, 17 of the Ordinances of 1899, ameading the Local Improvement Ordinance, R. O. c, 73:—Held, that the conditions pre-scribed by R. O. c, 73, as to municipalities in the district, population, and notice of in-tention to erect a district, did not apply to districts formed under s, 14 of the Ordinance of 1899, 2. That, although the district was districts formed under s. 150 the district was for 1899. 2. That, although the district was not constituted till May, 1899, the levy of the whole of the taxes for that year was authorized by the Ordinance. 3. That the defendance ants were properly assessed as occupants of Dominion lands comprised in a lease, and the fact that the lands were not enclosed and that the defendants permitted the stock of other persons to run or graze upon them did not relieve them from liability as occupants. 4. That it is the owners or occupants, and not the lands, that are to be assessed. Cross-kill v. Sarnia Ranching Co., 21 Occ, N. 577.

VII. PROPERTY ASSESSABLE.

British Columbia Assessment Act—"Income.]—Held, that, on the true construction of the British Columbia Assessment Act (R. Income of Foreign pany—Investments.]—An pany, having its head office in Scotland, had ceased to do any new business in Canada, but invested some of its money there, and had an agent in Toronto who collected premiums on the old business and adjusted losses, and also employed a solicitor in Toronto and maintained an advisory board to look after investments, none, however, being made without reference to the home board. Payments of interest on some investments were made to the solicitor and by him deposited to the credit of the company in a Toronto bank, and other payments were remitted by the borrowers by draft direct to the company :-Held, that the money paid into the bank was in the possession of an agent for the owner, a person non-resident within the Province, within the meaning of s, 11 of the Assessment Act, and was personal property of an incorporated company, within s. 39, and was therefore as-sessable, Toronto being "the usual place of business" of the company, within s. 40 business" of the company, within s. 40. Income of Government Officials.]—The income which a person receives as an employé of the Government of the North-West Territories is taxable, by virtue of the Municipal Ordinance, notwithstanding, that the General Revenue Fund of the Territories, from which income is paid, is formed in part of a grant from the Dominion Government made "for schools, official assistance, printing, etc." Robson v. Town of Regina, 4 Terr. L. R. 80.

Income of Locomotive Engineers.]—
The enrings of railway locomotive engineers who receive pay according to the number of miles they run their locomotives, are not "income" within the meaning of that term as used in the Assessment Act prior to the Amendment of 1901, and are therefore not liable to taxation. Decision in 9 B. C. R. 60 reversed. In re Assessment Act, 9 B. C. R. 200.

Interest of Lessee from Crown—Local Improvements—Sidevalk,]—Under an agreement of the 20th March, 1889, entered into by the Crown, as representing the University of Toronto, and the city of Toronto, confirmed by 32 V. c. 53 (O.), College street in the city of Toronto has become so far a public highway of the city as to make the interest of a lessee from the Crown of land fronting on that street liable to assessment for the due proportion of the cost of the construction, as a local improvement, of a sidewalk in front of the leased land, even though the lease has been made before the agreement. Land and Improvements Belonging to Dominion Government—Assessment of Occupier of — Description — Municipal Clauses Act—Court of Revision—Appeal—Action.]—The defendant was the occupier of one of several stores on the ground floor of a building belonging to the Dominion Government, and was assessed under s. 108, s., s. 4 (a), of the Municipal Clauses Act, for taxes in respect of land and improvements. The assessment roll described the property as "parts of lots 1, 605, and 1, 607, block 1; measurement 23 x 66; Government street; land, $12,650; improvements, $920; total, land, $12,650; improvements, $920; total, $13,570:"—Held, that the defendant was an occupant of part of the improvements only, and not of the land. 2. The assessment was invalid because the lands and improvements were insufficiently described. 3. The Act provides no procedure for such an assessment.—4. Where an assessment is illegal, the person assessed is not bound to appeal to the Court of Revision, but may successfully raise the question of his liability in an action to recover taxes. City of Victoria v. Bouces, 22 Occ. N. 218, 8 B. C. R. 363.

Land and Plant of Companies—2 Educ. VII. c. 31, s. 1 (O.)—Application to Oil Company.)—The provisions of s. 18 of the Assessment Act, as amended by 2 Edw. VII. c. 31, s. 1, relating to the assessment of the land and other property to be regarded as land, of certain companies, apply only to companies of the specific description therein mentioned, and therefore do not apply to such a company as the Canadian Oil Fields, Limited, carrying on the business of procuring and transmitting crude petroleum. Land and Plant of Companies-Elec tric Railway Company—Cars—Res Judicata —Court of Revision—Appeal.]—Under R. S. O. 1897 c. 224, the personal property of the appellant railway company is exempt from assessment (s. 39, s.-s. 2), while its real estate (s. 2, s.-s. 9) includes everything affixed to the land, and all machinery or other things so fixed to any building as to form in law part of the realty :--Held, that its electric cars are personal estate, inasmuch as they are not part of the railway and are not fixed in any sense to anything which is real estate:—Held, also, that a decision between the same parties by the Court of Revision, established under s. 62 of the above Act, and of the Courts in appeal therefrom, to the effect that the electric cars were assessable, is not res judicata. By s. 68 the jurisdiction of those Courts is confined to the amount of assessment, and does not extend to amount of assessment, and does not extend to validate an assessment unauthorized by the statute. Judgment of the Court of Appent (1 O. W. R. 441, 2 O. W. R. 579, 6 O. L. R. 187, 22 Occ. N. 206), reversed. Bank of Montreal v. Kirkpatrick, 2 O. L. R. 113, overruled. Toronto R. W. Co. v. The defendant company contended that it did not come within the provisions of the by-law in question, since it took no risks in the city, although its chief office was there:—Held, that the issue of a policy in Montreal was the acceptance of a risk in the city, even though the property thereby insured was situated outside the city. Local Tax — Insurance Company — Agency.]—In an action against an insurance company under the Fire Companies' Aid Amendment Act of 1871, which applies only to Victoria, for taxes due by it as a company issuing policies within the city limits, it was held at the trial, dismissing the action, that the plaintiff had failed to establish agency:—Held, by the full Court, dismissing plaintiff's appeal, that the action was misconceived; that the tax sought to be recovered was not on the company directly, but in respect of a special form of agency described in the statute; and the evidence negatived the existence of such an agency. Dovoler V. Union Assurance Society, 9 B. C. R. 196.

Local Improvements-Sidewalk -General By-law—Irregularities in Procedure.]—
The defendant corporation provided, by a by-law under s. 667 of the Municipal Act, that every petition for or against the construc-tion of a sidewalk as a local improvement should be left with the clerk of the coun-cil, whose duty it should be to examine it, and to report at the next meeting of council whether it was sufficiently signed, what real property would be benefited, and the respective frontages, and the probable lifetime and probable cost of the sidewalk. A petition for the construction of a sidewalk as a local improvement was handed to the clerk, who examined it and came to the conclusion that it was signed by two-thirds of the owners. It was on the same day presented to the council, who resolved that the petition should be granted, and that the clerk should determine forthwith whether the petition was sufficiently signed. The clerk immediately reported that it was sufficiently signed, and his report was received and adopted, but he aid not report as to the other matters. council then proceeded under s. 672 to have the work done, and on its completion the clerk prepared, and certified to the correct-ness of, a schedule of the frontages and assessments, etc., and the council passed a by-law directing the assessment of the lands, and subject to appeal to the Court of Revision, adopted the particulars set out in the schedule and directed notice to be given to the owners affected:—Held, that the assessment was valid, the clerk's failure to observe the provision as to reporting at the next meeting of the council being a mere irregularity and not a fatal objection. Judgment of Falconbridge, C.J., 2 O. W. R. 732, affirmed. Canada Co. v. Tosen of Mitchell, 24 Occ. N. 210, 7 O. L. R. 482, 3 O. W. H.

Lottery—Permit—Date of Payment—Exorbitancy—Constitutionality.]—The date at which a tax, under the form of a permit, imposed on every person or company carrying on the business of a lottery, ought to be paid, is sufficiently indicated when the by-law imposing it declares that such permit is a tax payable annually within the periods fixed by the city charter, that it will expire on the 1st May after it has been issued, and will be renewed every ear upon demand—2. A tax cannot be called exorbitant when it does not exceed the amount fixed by the charter of the city for the particular thing to which such tax applies.—J. The Leckhatture has power to authorize the imposition of taxes, under the form of permits, to persons or companies carrying on lotteries, Societé des Ecoles Gratuites v. City of Montreal, Q. R. 19 S. C. 148.

The plaintiff did not live in the city, but performed his daily duties there:—Held, that he was not liable to the tax, and was entitled to recover back the amount paid. Desjardins V. City of Quebec, Q. R. 18 S. C. 434.

Special Assessment Roll—Contestation—Prescription—Interruption—Injunction—Rescission.]—Under the former charter of the city of Montreal (52 V. c. 79), the contestation of a special assessment roll, by a person assessed therein, had not the effect of interrupting prescription as regards other persons subject to such assessment.—2. The fact that the person contesting the roll obtained a temporary order enjoining the against making any collection under the roll attacked, did not constitute an interruption of prescription as regards other persons assessed by the same roll, where such order was made without objection on the part of the city, and no steps were subsequently taken by the city to obtain the rescission of the order. Judgment in Q. R. 23 S. C. 401 affirmed. City of Montreal V. Land and Loan Co., Q. R. 13 K. B. 74.

Assessment Act—Imperative Provision—Separate Assessment of Distinct Lots.]—Section 109 of the Assessment Act, which in effect provides that if the assessment is for more than 200 acres the statute labour shall be rated and charged against every separate lot or parcel according to its assessed value, is imperative and not merely directory. Where, therefore, on an assessment of 600 acres, instead of the amount chargeable against the several lots owned by the plaintiff being rated and charged against each lot, a bulk sun was assessed for statue labour and charged against the whole of them, the assessment was held invalid. Description of Lots-Block Assessment Plan — Owner — Defects — Curative provisions.]-An assessment of lots as lots 436 x 660 " is invalid as not identifying them. An assessment of lots en bloc after they have been sub-divided by registered plan, and without shewing the known owner against whom particular parcels are assessable, is invalid as disregarding the essential requirements of R. S. O. c. 224, s. 13. The requirements of ss. 147, 152-5, inclusive, as to the duties of the collector, treasurer, clerk, and assessor, with reference to the list of lands liable to be sold, were not complied with; and the defects were not cured by s, 208, which makes the tax deed binding if the land is not redeemed in one year, nor by s. 209, by which the deed is valid if not questioned within two years. The judgment of MacMahon, J., two years. The judgment of MacMallon, 3., 32 O. R. 274, 21 Occ. N. 30, affirmed for the reasons therein stated, as regards the in-validity of the tax sale in question:—Held, however, that the language of s. 218 of the Assessment Act, R. S. O. c. 224, has no application to cases where the taxes have not been lawfully imposed, or where the taxes for which the land was sold were not in arrear. grantee of the tax purchaser was, therefore, not entitled to the lien which he claimed in respect of the sums alleged to be due for taxes for the years 1890 and 1891, for there was in these years no valid assessment, and therefore no taxes in arrear as to them; but the case as to 1892 and 1893 was on a different footing; for the assessment for those years was a valid one and not affected those years was a valid one and not affected by the error in the statement as to the depth of the lots, which might be rejected as falsa demonstratio, and the taxes for 1892 and 1893 were, therefore, validly imposed and in arrear at the time of the sale. Omission to Furnish List of Lands to be Sold — Limitation Sections of Assessment Act—Port Arthur Special Act—Conveyance by Owner after Sale—Repeal of Act after Action Brought.]—The omission of the beasurer of the municipality to furnish to the clerk a list of the lands liable to be sold for taxes is a futal objection to the validity of a sale for taxes, and neither the limitation sections of the Assessment Act, nor the provision of the special Act relating to sales for taxes in Port Arthur, 63 V. c. 86 (O.), are a protection to the tax purchaser. The owners of land sold for taxes conveyed it after the tax sale to the plaintiff, who then brought an action against the tax purchaser to set aside the sale. The statute 32 Hen. VIII, c. 9 was in force when the conveyance was made, and when the action was brought, but was repealed before the trial of the action;—Held, that the prohibition of the statute applied, and that the action could not be maintained. Judgment of Ferguson, J., 1 O. W. R. 369, affirmed. Ruttan v. Burk, 24 Occ. N. 85, 7 O. L. R. 56, 3 O. W, R. 167.

Re South Vancouver Tax Sale, 9 B. C. R. 572.

Purchaser at - Liability for Taxes of Purchaser at — Intolling for Tasks of Year of Sale—Statutes—Amendment.]—Certain lots in the city of Calgary were on the 27th June, 1896, sold for arrears of taxes due thereon for certain years prior to 1896; the sales were duly confirmed by the Court, and on the 10th July, 1897, and 27th June, 1898, the purchaser received certificates of title in due form from the Registrar of Land Titles, and entered into and remained in possession of the lots as owner. The lots were duly assessed for taxes for the year 1896, but no rate was struck until after the sale. The said taxes for 1896 remained unpaid for two years. Section 81 of the Ordinance Incorporating the city of Calgary provides that the transfer from the treasurer to the purchaser shall vest in the purchaser all the rights of property of the original holder of the land, and purge and disincumber it from all incumbrances of whatever nature other than existing liens of the city and the Crown :-Held that the lots in question were liable to be sold for taxes for the year 1896, and that, under 51 of the same Ordinance, the purchaser was personally liable to the city for the amount of the taxes. Section 81 was amended by Ordinance 1900 c. 39, s. 4, by the addition after the word "Crown" of the words "including all taxes unpaid upon such land at the day of the date of such transfer, and whether imposed before or after the day of the date of the tax sale at which said lands were sold:"—Held, that this amendment did not raise the presumption that the section as it originally stood had not the same meaning: that the amendment was probably made to remove doubts that may have existed. Sale by Provincial Assessor—Property of Municipality—Purchaser—Agent — Fiduciary Relationship,]—The city of Nelson was incorporated in March, 1897, and in September, 1898, land situated therein was sold by the provincial assessor for taxes for the years 1896 and 1897, levied under the provisions of the Assessment Act —Held, setting aside the tax deed, that there was no authority to hold the tax sale, as the Assessment Act does not apply to municipalities. In July, 1897, a real estate agent on behalf of the owner, negotinted with a prospective purchaser, but the attempted sale fell through, and after that the agent and the owner ceased to have any dealings with each other. In September, 1898, the agent bought the property at a tax sale at a very low figure:—Held, that at the time of the sale the agent was not in a fiduciary relation to the owner. McLeod v. Waterman, 10 B. C. R. 422.

Sale of Wrong Lot — Reconveyance by Purchaser—Recognition of Validity of Sale—Third Parties.]—The sale of anything belonging to another person is radically void; thus the sale of an immovable made in error, for municipal taxes due upon the adjoining immovable, is void, and does not purse the hypothees by which the immovable sold is affected. 2. In this case the reconveyance which the true owner obtains from the purchaser or his assigns is not to be interpreted as a recognition of validity of such a sale; and, even where a sale is recognized as valid by the true owner, such recognition can only be considered as a new sale made by the true owner and not affecting the rights of third parties. Humphrey v. Desjardins, Q. R. 24 S. C. 250,

Time for Redemption-Statute-Retroactivity—Constitutional Law.[—Section 80 of the charter of the city of Calgary (Ordinance 33 of 1893) provides that if land sold for taxes be not redeemed within one year after the date of the sale, the purchaser shall be entitled to a transfer, which shall have the effect of vesting the land in him in fee simple or otherwise, according to the nature of the estate sold; and s. 81 provides that the transfer shall not only vest in the purchaser all rights of property which the original owner had therein, but shall purge and disincumber such land from all payments, lien charges, mortgages, and incumbrances whatever, other than existing liens of the city and the Crown. Certain lots in the city of Calgary were sold for taxes on 16th April, 1900, and a transfer was given to the purchaser on 8th May, 1901, the owners not having offered to redeem with in the year:—Held, that s. 2 of Ordinance 12 of 1901, "an ordinance respecting the Confirmation of Sales of Land for Taxes," passed 12th June, 1901, giving a right to redeem at any time before the hearing of the application for confirmation, is not retrospective, and that the original owners could not take advantage of its provisions. Held, futher, that ss. 80 and 81 of the charter of the city of Calgary are not ultra vires as being in conflict with ss, 54 and 57 of the Land Titles Act, 1894. Wilkie v. Jellett, 2 N. W. T. Reps. XI. VALUATION OF PROPERTY.

Appeal from Assessment — Value of Lands and Buildings—Burden of Proof. — Under ordinary circumstances, it is incument upon an appellant who complains that he is assessed too high to shew that the property is not worth the amount for which he is assessed, but where, although this is not shewn, it appears that, under the general scheme of assessment, lands of a particular description are assessed generally at a certain fixed sum per acre, and that the appellant's lands of that description, which are of no greater value either by reason of their situation or otherwise, are assessed at a larger amount, the assessment should be reduced to accord with the general scheme of assessment. A school district assessor assessed certain of the appellant's lands at $800, and the dwelling houses thereon at $2,000:—Held, that the assessment should stand, although the more correct course would have been to assess the whole as "land" and place a single value upon both soil and buildings as "land." In re Canadian Pacific R. W. Co. and MacLeod Public School District, 5 Terr. L. R. 187.

Appeal—Onns.] — In assessment appeals the onus is upon the appellants who assert that their property is assessed at too high a figure, to prove it affirmatively. Re Mc-Dougall and Town of Edmonton, Re Carruthers and Town of Edmonton, 5 Terr. L. R. 465.

Appeal against Whole Assessment Notice.]— The provisions of the Municipal Ordinance respecting appeals against the assessment of third parties do not authorize a ratepayer to appeal generally against the assessment of very person on the assessment roll, without designating the names of all the ratepayers in a written request to the secretary-treasurer to notify them of the appeal. Re Heiminck (P.) and Town of Edmonton. 5 Terr. L. R. 459.

Companies Ordinance-Gas and Water Company — Mains and Pipes — Real Estate — Land — Fixtures — Exemptions — Double Taxation.] — Where a waterworks company were assessed for certain lots, and company were assessed to be commonly opposite the entry under the heading on the assessment roll, "Value of lot in parcel without improvements," was placed "$315," and under the heading "value of buildings or other improvements," was placed $$410,000." and in this latter sum it was intended to include the company's water mains and pipes laid on the streets of the city:—Held, follow-ing Consumers' Gas Co. of Toronto v. City of Toronto, 27 S. C. R. 453, that the company's water mains and pipes were assessable as "land." (2) That, however, the form of the assessment did not include the mains and pipes, and that the attempted assessment of them was ineffective, and that the roll could not be amended, in view of the fact that the value of the mains and pipes had not been made a question in the proceedings. (3)
That the fact that the city charter gave power to assess the shares of the company did not prevent the city from exercising the power also given thereby to assess any part of the company's real or personal property. (4) That the fact that the mains and pipes were laid under the authority of an agreement with the city in that behalf did not exempt them from assessment, Calgary Gas and Waterworks Co. v. City of Calgary, 2 Terr. L. R. 447.

Contestation of Roll—Limitation of Actions—Interruption—Statute.]—The prescription of three years in respect of taxes provided by the Montreal city charter, 52 V. c., 79 (Q.), runs from the date of the deposit of the assessment roll, as finally revised, in the treasurer's office, when the taxes became due and exigible, and the prescription is not suspended or interrupted by a contestation of the assessment roll, even although the con-

Discrimination against Non-residents—Petition to County Court Judge—Authority of Agent of Ratepayer—Time for Petition—Objection Made to Assessors—No-tice—Waiver—Payment of School Tax—Certiorari-Grounds.]-In a petition for relief by a non-resident ratepayer under 44 V. c. 9 (N.B.), it is sufficient evidence of authority to warrant the County Court Judge in act-ing, that the person petitioning describes him-self as the agent of the person aggrieved in the matter of the assessment, and swears to the truth of the statements in the petition. The time within which the petition must be presented under the Act does not begin to run until after the assessment complained of has been made up from the corrected list and filed with the county secretary, and then within one month, either from notice of the assessment from the county officer charged with the duty of giving notice, or from the time the person assessed first heard or knew of such assessment. It is no objection to an application under the Act that objection to the valuation of the property was made to the assessors under C. S. c. 100, s. 59, and that the objection might have been further prosecuted before the valuators under s. 68. Where one of the objections under the Act is that the property of residents had been greatly undervalued, the effect of which was to increase the rate of non-residents, it is not necessary that the residents, the valuation of whose property is attacked, should have notice of the application. The right to apply for relief from general county taxes is not waived by payment of the school tax. The petition under the Act must contain facts from which it can be collected that the petitioner aggrieved, or must state the fact. The specific grounds upon which a certiorari is granted must, under Rule 7, Mich., 1899, be stated, and a general statement, i.e., "also all other grounds taken at the hearing in the Court below." is objectionable. Improvements — Selling Value.] — The measure of value of improvements for purposes of taxation prescribed by s. 38 of the Vancouver Incorporation Act, 1900, is the actual cash selling value, and not the cost. In re Municipal Clauses Act and J. O. Dunsmuir, S. B. C. R. 361, followed. In re Vancouver Incorporation Act, 1900, and B. T. Rogers, 9 B. C. R. 373, not followed. Income — Basis of Assessment — Exemption.]—Although a person assessed for income tax under the Municipal Ordinance was not daring the previous year a resident of the municipality, the previous year's income, wherever earned, may be taken as a basis for determining the amount for which he should be assessed. Income to the extent of $600 is exempt. Lamontaigne v. Town of Macleod, 5 Terr. J. R. 199.

International Bridge — Assessable Value, 1—In assessing for the purpose of taxation that part of a bridge, crossing the Niagara river, lying within a township in Canada, regard cannot be had to its value in proportion to the value of the franchise or of the whole bridge, or to the cost of construction, but only to the actual cash price obtainable for the land and materials situate within the township. In re Bell Telephone Company Assessment, 25 A. R. 351, and In re London Street Railway Company Assessment, 27 A. R. 85, applied. In re Queenston Heights Bridge Company Assessment, 21 Oc. N. 112, 1 O. Lands Acquired for Railway — Real Value — Farm Purposes — Village Lots.] — The railway company had acquired a parcel of land of more than 200 arpents for the purposes of their railway, but, changing their intention, they leased it as a farm, by a lease for a year, renewable from year to year, with the condition that it should not be used except for the purposes of pasturage, for which it was quite unfit. The company had prepared a plan of subdivision of the land into lots, and had made application to the corporation and the government to have it adopted and registered. They had also advertised the sale of the property in lots:—Held, that the land should be valued for assessment purposes according to its real value, and not according to the value which it might have for agricultural purposes only. In re Canadian Pacific R. W. Co. and Village of Verdun, Q. R. 20 S. C. 194.

Measure of Value—Municipal Clauses Act, B.C.1—The measure of value for purposes of taxation prescribed by s. 113 of the Municipal Clauses Act is the actual cash selling value, and not the costs. In re Dunsmuir, 8 B, C. R. 361, Modification by Judge—Error in Principle.] — The Judge ought not to vary the valuation of a property made upon oath by the assessors of a municipality, unless it has been made in consequence of an erroneous principle, or is so evidently erroneous that a competent and honest man could not arrive at the same result. Bogy v. Town of St. Louis, Q. R. 20 S. C. 149.

Railway Lands-Right of Way.]-Held, following Rouse v. Great Western R. W. Co., 15 U. C. R. 168, that the grading of a railway could not be assessed, and that in order to ascertain the value of the railway property, consisting of the right of way and station houses and yards, a fair test was to take the average value per acre of the tier of lots through which the railway ran, and, after making a deduction from that for the value of buildings and improvements on the farm, to value the railway lands at the same value per acre as the lots through which they passed. Applying this rule, and taking the value of each lot adjoining, it was found that (including the buildings upon them) the lots were assessed at an average value of $45 per The railway company's lands, valued at this figure, were found to be worth $5,175, from which a deduction of $387, being 7½ per cent., was made on account of the average difference in the value of buildings on the adjoining farms. Subtracting this amount from $5,175 left a balance of $4,788, at which the assessment of the railway company's lands was fixed. In re Township of Chatham and Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., 21 Occ. N. 534.

advantage" are to be considered in addition to an annual rental in fixing the value for orassessment purposes, and persons making use of valuable lands for the purposes of a garden,

Valuation Roll—Petition to Set Aside— Partiese—Interest.]—Valuators must proceed strictly according to law, and it cannot be said, in answer to a petition to set aside a valuation roll, that they have acted in the exercise of their discretion or according to an established practice. 2. It cannot be alleged that the party who contests a valuation roll is acting in the interest of other persons, unless it is also alleged that the petitioner himself is without any interest whatever. Leitch v. Toxen of Westmount, 5 Q. P. R. 225.

Valuation Roll—Revision — Time—Statute—Directory Provisions.] — The terms of art. 740a, M. C., so far as regards the revision of the valuation roll "in the months of June or July," are directory only, and the nunicipal council charged by law with the duty of revision, is not divested of authority to make such revision where the time specified in the article has expired before the duty has been performed. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co. v. Allan, Q. R. 19 S. C. 57.

Valuation Roll—lilegality—Quashing—Juscrial—Notice—Over-Qualution.]—By virtue of s. 4376, R. S. Q., a Judge in Chambers has jurisdiction on petition to quash a valuation roll for illegality. 2. The facts that the names of persons who are not owners are inscribed upon a roll as such, or that the properties are valued above or below their real value, constitutes an illegality. 3. In such case notice should be given to the persons whose names it is sought to strike off. Truchon v. Touch of Unicoutimi, Q. R. 25 S. C. 55.

Vancouver Incorporation Act, 1900, ss. 38, 56— Valuation of Improvements—Itode of—Decision of Judge on Appeal from Court of Revision—Appeal from.]—No appeal lies from the decision of a Judge on an appeal from the Court of Revision, had unders. 36 of the Vancouver Incorporation Act. An objection to an appeal on the ground that the Court has no jurisdiction to hear it is not a preliminary objection within s. 83 of the Supreme Court Act. Although the full Court last no jurisdiction to hear an appeal, it has jurisdiction to award costs in dismissing it. Under s. 38 of the Vancouver Incorporation Act. 1900, all ratable property for assessment purposes shall be estimated at its actual cash value, as it would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor.—In estimating the value of an expensive residence built by its owner, it is fair to assume that the owner will not permit his property to be sacrificed, and therefore a valuation approaching to nearly the actual cost is not excessive. In re Vancouver Incorporation Act and Rogers, 23 Occ. N. 72, 9 B. C. R. 373.

Waterworks Company-Valuing Plant — I Edw. VII. c. 29, s. 2 — Retroactivity— Construction.]—Held, that the statute 1 Edw, VII. c. 9, s. 2, amending the Assessment Act by inserting ss. 18a and 18b, is not retroactive, and therefore does not affect the assessment in question, which was made by the ment in question, which was made by the assessor and confirmed on appeal to the Court of Revision for the city, before the Act came into force; but doubted, even if the Act is retroactive, whether in any way it affects or changes the principle of assessment governing corporations like the appellants. All that it enacts is, that the property shall be valued as a whole, or as an integral part of a whole, instead, as formerly, by wards separately. Thus it leaves untouched and unaltered the law laid down in In re Bell Telephone Company Assessment, 25 A. R. 251, In re London Street Railway Company Assessment, 27 A. R. 83, and In re Queenston Heights Bridge Assessment, 1 O. L. R. 114, that as real property it shall be estimated at its actual cash value, as it would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor. This standard by the Act of last session is now applied to the property in its larger area as extended by the statute, but the standard remains the same :- Held, also, that the evidence of witnesses fixing value by wards (when one of the elements of such value is the possibility of a franchise in such ward, distinct from other wards, being obtained at some future time), is too remote to prevent the application of the law as settled by the cases, as also is the chance at some future time of getting a franchise to connect the wards with one another: In re Stratford Waterworks Co. and City of Stratford, 21 Occ. N. 479.

Wild Lands-Valuation-Assessor Acting on Instructions from Superior Officers Exemption—Jurisdiction of Court of Revision.]—In assessing 500,000 acres of wild land, consisting largely of inaccessible mountains and valleys, the assessor acted on in-structions received from his superior officers and fixed the value at $1 per acre for the whole tract. On appeal to the Court of Revision and Appeal, evidence was taken, and an average value of 45 cents per acre was fixed. An appeal was taken to the full Court, on the grounds that the valuation was too high, and that, so far as some of the lands were concerned, they were exempt from taxation under the company's Subsidy Act, and on the argument counsel for the company asked the Court to fix the assessable value of the lands at the specific sum of $47,986.23 :- Held, per Drake, J., that, as some of the land was of some value and some of it of no value, the fixing of a flat rate was not a compliance with s. 51 of the Assessment Act, 1903, and that the assessment should be set aside with costs. Payment of Taxes under Protest — Appeal from Assessment — Judgment Confirming—Res Judicata — Estoppel — Money Had and Received,]—J., having been assessed in 1896 on personal property as a resident of St. John, N.B., appealed without success to the appeals committee of the common council, and then applied to the Supreme Court of New Brunswick for a writ of certiorari to quash the assessment, which was refused. An execution having been threatened, he then paid the taxes under protest. In 1897 he was gain assessed under the same circumstances, and took the same course, with the exception of appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment refusing a certiorari, and that Court held the assessment void and ordered the writ to issue for quashing: 30 S. C. R. 122, 20 Occ. N. 11. J. then brought an action for repayment of the amount paid for the assessment in 1896:—Held, affirming the judgment of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, 21 Occ. N. 52, that the judgment refusing a certiorari to quash the assessment in 1896 was res judicata against J., and fie could not, recover the amount so paid. Jones v. City of St. John, 21 Occ. Validity of Assessment-Special Tribunal—Failure to Appeal—Proof of Assess-ment—Pleading—Evidence.]—In an action to recover the amount claimed to be due for rates and taxes, the defendant pleaded among other things that, at the time of the assessments, defendant was not the owner of more than a me-quarter interest in the ship assessed:— Held, following Town of Westville v. Munro, 32 N. S. Reps. 311, that the defendant having received notice of the assessment, if he was dissatisfied therewith, should have brought the matter before the assessment appeal Court, established for that purpose by s. 341 of the Halifax City Charter, 1891, and, having failed to do so, that the assessment was conclusive, and could not be attacked in an action to recover the amount assessed. The only evidence before the Court of the assessment and the rate due thereon was the city collector's certificate of taxes unpaid, and s. 362 of the city charter, which provides that all rates and taxes shall become due on the 31st May in each year, and that it shall be the duty of the city collector, immediately thereafter, to take proceedings, &c. There was no evidence to prove the collector's signature to the certificate, or that he was col-lector:—Held, that the evidence was wrongly received:—Held, nevertheless, that, as the defendant in his defence admitted that he was assessed for the amount claimed, and that the rate alleged to be due on such assessment was correct, it was not necessary for the plaintid's to prove the assessment or the rate due thereon. Alimentary Allowance — Claim for Maintenance of Natural Child—Ancestors.]—The obligation resulting from a natural relationship does not extend to the ancestors of the father and mother of the natural child. 2. Alimentary debts, for the payment of which an income bequeathed for alimentary purposes may be attached, are such as are due to a creditor who has furnished aliments to the operson entitled to the allowance and his family, and not those which such person may be under an obligation to furnish for his natural child. McAulay v. McLennan, Q. R. 23 S. C. 419.

Alimentary Allowance—Pension.] — A pension granted by the Montreal Harbour Commissioners to a sick pilot, from the "Decayed Pilots' Fund," is an alimentary allowance, and is exempt from seizure, under art. 599, s. 9, C. C. P., except for an alimentary debt. 2. An alimentary pension can only be seized for an alimentary debt incurred while the pension is in force, and not for a debt incurred before the pension began to run. Hamelin v. Perrault, Q. R. 21 S. C. 51.

Bank Deposit—Attachment for Debt of Depositor—Claim of True Owner—Intercention.]—The fact of a person depositing sums of money in his own name in a bank does not take away from the true owner of seth sums the right of recovering such sums. The true owner, as a third party, may assert his rights of recovering such sums. The true owner, as a third party, may assert his rights by intervention in a garnishing cause, and have annulled the salie-arret of such sums by the garnishing creditor. Stephens v. Higgins, 5 Q. P. R. 1.

Costs Due to Solicitor—Agreement with client to throw off — Fraud upon creditors. Waller v. Malone, 3 O. R. 774, Damages for Personal Injuries—Alimentary Ulaim — Limited Attachment.] — Damages awarded as compensation for personal wrongs, bodily injuries, and medical attendance rendered necessary thereby, are in the nature of an alimentary claim, and are not attachable for a debt other than one which has been created for the purpose of assuring the payment of such damages or the preservation of the plaintiff's right thereto. Lafond v. Marsan, Q. R. 24 S. C. 22, 5 Q. P. R. 326.

Damages for Personal Injuries — Judgment—Alimentary: Provision — Attachment before Judgment.]—The right of a person injured in an accident to recover from the person who caused the accident the damages suffered, is a purely personal right, and cannot be exercised by the ordinary creditors of the person injured. But when the person injured exercises the right the amount of damages or indemnity recovered is not in the nature of an alimentary provision, but becomes part of the property or means of the injured one; and therefore such a sum may be seized or attached by his creditors, and they may proceed by way of attachment even before judgment in the action brought by the person injured. Molsons Bank v. Lionnis, 8 D. C. A. 176, followed. Judgment in Q. R. 25 S. C. 188 reversed, and judgment in Q. R. 24 S. C. 282 restored. Cochrane v. McShane, Q. R. 13 K. B. 505, 6 Q. P. R. 435.

Equitable Assignment—Disputed facts—Issue, Wilkinson Plough Co. v. Perrin, 2 O. W. R. 541.

Fees of Bailiffs—Exemptions—Liability of Solicitors.]—The fees of bailiffs are attachable in their entirety, and are not included in the exemptions which are cumerated in art. 599. C. P. C. In spite of stipulations previously made to the contrary, solicitors are personally liable to the bailiffs they employ for payment of their fees, and that although they have not received payment from their clients. Lachance v. Casault, Q. R. 26 S. C. 90.

Income from Trust Fund—Assignment of Fund and Income.]—An attaching order under 45 V. c. 17 will not lie against the income of a trust fund, unless there are trust moneys actually in the hands of the trustees at the time the order is served; nor will an attaching order operate upon debts of which the judgment debtor has divested himself by assignment, even though the assignment may be void as against creditors under 13 Eliz. c. 5. Exp. Black, 34 N. B. Reps. 638.

Insurance Money — Foreign Corporation Garnishee — "Within the Province."] — The judgment debtor was insured under an accident policy in a company incorporated under a Dominion statute, having its head office at Toronto, represented in the province of Prince Edward Island by a local agent, who had authority to solicit applications and forward them to the head office of the company for approval. The insured, having met with an accident, gave the required notice, and furnished the necessary proofs of claim to the company according to the conditions in the policy. After the proofs of claim had been received at the head office, a copy of an attaching order was served upon the local agent in Prince Edward Island:-Held, that the insurance company was a foreign corporation within the meaning of s. 30 of 44 V. c. 4, s. 4 (P.E.I.). 2. That the company was within the province and doing business therein by an authorized agent. 3. That there was an attachable debt due by the compan to the judgment debtor within 48 V. c. 4, s. 1. Seaman v. Seaman, 25 Occ. N. 109.

Insurance Moneys—Hypothecary Creditor—Contingent Debt.]—The indemnity due by an insurance company, in case of fire, is a simple debt resulting from a contingent contract, and, except in the case of an assignment of the anticipated indemnity, an hypothecary creditor has no preferential claim upon such indemnity, and therefore the indemnity cannot be attached in the hands of the insurance company. Money of Union — Judgment against Members of Unincorporated Association in Representative Action — Trust.] — Action against an association. Certain members were authorized by the Court to defend the action on behalf of themselves and all other members:—Held, 1. that the association was not a corporation, individual, partnership, nor a corporation, individual, partnership, nor as quasi-corporate body. 2. That its members could not be sued by their adopted name. Certain costs were ordered to be paid by defendant members. The plaintiffs sought to garnishee a certain account at the Dominion Bank, headed "Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' Lunion, No. 30 ".—Held, could not be garnished, as order that the defendants shall pay anoney, without more, cannot be enforced against the property of any one except the defendants themselves. Metallic Roofing Co. of Canada v. Local Union, No. 30, Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers Insternational Association, 10, W, R. 373, 444, 2 C, W, R. 183, 260, 819, 844, 5 O, W, R. 95, 709, 6 O, W. Proceeds of Exempted Chattels.]—The proceeds of chattels exempt from seizure and sale under execution, but voluntarily sold by a debtor, are attachable. Slater v. Rodgers, 2 Terr. L. R. 310.

Purchase Money of Land — Issue between Judgment Creditor and Claimant — Scope of —Praudulent Conveyance—Husband and Wife.]—An issue was directed to try the question whether certain moneys in the hands of a garnishee were, at the time of the service of the garnishee summons, the moneys of the plaintiff in the issue, as a creditor of the judgment debtor, as against the defendant in the issue, the wife of the debtor—The moneys were the balance of the purchase price of land sold by the judgment debtor's wife to the garnishee:—Held, per Rouleuu, J., the trial Judge, 13 Occ. N. 472, that the Court on such an issue could not inquire into the question whether the land, having formerly been that of the judgment debtor, land been fraudulently conveyed to his wife. On appeal to the Court in bane:—Held, reversing the judgment of Rouleau, J., who adhered to his former opinion, that the Court could as inquire. Hull v. Donohoe, 2 Terr. L. R. 52. Reversed and judgment of Rouleau, J., restored, 24 S. C. R. 683, 15 Occ. N. 356.

Rent—To Whom Duc—Heirs of Deceased Landlord—Executors — Devolution of Estates Act.]—Five plaintiffs, claiming as heirs-atlaw of their father to be owners of a lot of land, brought an action for specific performance, which was dismissed with costs, subsequently taxed at $200,40. After the trial one of the plaintiffs, G. R., died, and probate of his will was granted to a sister and co-plaintiff, M. S., and the action was revived in the names of the remaining plaintiffs and M. S. as his executrix, and an appeal against the judgment was also dismissed with costs. It appeared that G. R. owned one-half of the lot, and the father the other half, and that the lot had been leased to a tenant by M. O'R., one of the plaintiffs, as administratrix of the estate of the father, who died in or before 1896, and M. S., as administratrix of the estate of the father, who died in or before 1896, and M. S., as administratrix of the estate of G. R. No caution was resistered under the Devolution of Estates Act:—Held, that the rent due from the tennut was garnishable for the costs payable by the plaintiffs. Macaulay v. Rumbull, 19 C. P. 284, commented on. McDonald v. Sullicon, 23 Occ. N. 45 5 O. L. R. 87, 1 O. W. R. 721, 723, 784, 840, 849; Reilly v. McDonald, 1 O. W. R. 193, 784, 840, 849; Reilly v. McDonald, 1 of the province is insolvent, a creditor garnishing the employee's salary will be allowed to have the other creditors called in and notified to file their claims. Gagnon v. Rowan, 7 Q. P. R. 52.

Salary—Deposit of Portion Attachable— Further Attachments.]—The deposit of the portion of salary attachable under 3 Edw. VII. c. 57, s. 1, has the effect of preventing further attachments, and this without the debtor requiring to give notice of such deposit to his creditors. Godin v. Flanagan, 7 Q. P. R. 6.

Salary — "Due or Accruing Due."] — Where the salary of an employee was a fixed amount per month payable at the end of the month:—Held, that a garnishee summons served on the last day of the mouth did not bind the current month's salary, inasmuch as no part of the amount was due, that is, recoverable by the employee, till the last day of the month had expired, nor was any part accruing due, inasmuch as the li_bility of the employer to ply was contingent upon the completion of the month's service by the employee. Main v, McInnis, 4 Terr, L. R. 517.

Salary of Court Stenographer—Fees for Depositions, 1 — Amounts due to official stenographers for depositions taken in Court are regarded as salary, and are attachable to the extent of one-fith. Létourneau v. Collin, 4 Q. P. R. 122.

Salary of Harbour Master — Public Officer.] — The harbour master of Montreal, having by virtue of his office to administer a part of the public domain of the Crown, and acting in the general interest of commerce and navigation, must be considered as a public functionary, and his salary is not seizable under execution or attachable. Cochrane v. McShane, Q. R. 24 S. C. 283.

Salary of Municipal Officer—Payment in Advance—Set-off—Equitable Assignment— Service — Costs.] — Upon an application to garnish the salary of an officer of a municipal corporation, it appeared that by virtue of a by-law his salary was payable monthly, and that the practice of the corporation was to pay all salaries on the first day of the month. The attaching order was served on the 30th April, between ten o'clock in the morning and one o'clock in the afternoon. The judgment debtor, before the service of the order, had been paid in full all his salary for the month of April, under an arrangement between him and the treasurer of the corporation that advances should be made on account of salary and stopped from the debtor's cheque at the end of the month :-Held, that nothing was due to the debtor by the corporation at the time of the service of the attaching order, for there had been actual payment of the salary by the corporation; or, if not payment, an advance by the corporation which they could set off against a claim for salary; or, if the moneys advanced were to be regarded as misappropriated by the treasurer or the clerk and advanced personally by him to the debtor, there was a good (though verbal) equitable assignment of the salary by the debtor to the treasurer or clerk; and, per the Master in Chambers, a debt in respect of the salary, in any event, would not have accrued due until after the service of the attaching order: — Held, also per Meredith, C.J., in Chambers, that the judgment debtor and the corporation, by its responsible officers, had so misconducted themselves that they should be deprived of costs, although the order of the Master in their favour was in other respects affirmed. Wilson v. Fleming, 21 Occ. N. 334, 1 O. L. R. 596.

Salary of Partner, |—Where a garnishee partnership declares that the defendant is a member of the partnership and draws from it a weekly salary, the partnership will not be ordered to deposit any sum in Court, to its prejudice, but the attachment will be declared effective. Do Claude v. Hemond, 4 Q. P. 18.

Salary of Sheviff—Judgment by Default—Opposition.]—The salary of a sheriff is insaisissable; and even where the Government has paid several instalments of salary to a garnishing creditor, the sheriff, even when the attachment has been made absolute upon default of his appearance, may, by way of opposition to the judgment, have it set aside. Mongeau v. Arpin, Q, R. 18 S. C. 395.

Salary of Teacher—Exemption—Application after Death—Crown—Provincial Government—Public Officer.]—The salary of a teacher (instituteur) being by law exempt from attachment, the exemption subsists in favour of his children in respect of arrears due him at the time of his decease. 2. Monej in the hands of the Government of the Province of Quebec cannot be attached unless in the case of salaries of public officers. Beauchemin v. Fournier, 4 Q. P. R. 138.

Wages—Exemption—Board money — Deductions—Construction of statute. Gordon v. Seabrooke (Y.T.), 2 W. L. R. 105.

Wages of Mariner—Exemption—Master of boat plying on inland waters. N. A. T. and T. Co. v. Seaton (Y.T.), 2 W. L. R. 559.

Wages—Set-off.]—Upon a declaration of the garnishees that the judgment debtor is employed by them as a driver; that he has the use of a waggon and two horses every day, "the understanding being that he gives us every evening the half of the daily profit;" that since the service of the attaching order they have paid him $11.54, half of the receipts since made, while he still owes them $48:—Held, that the half of such receipts represents daily wages, and the part of such wages which can be seized may be garnished, and the attachment of it should be declared valid. 2. That a set-off cannot be made to the prejudice of the garnishors, between the wages of the debtor and arrears of receipts due by him to the garnishees before the attachment. Payfer v. Reauchamp, 3 Q. P. R. 347.

ngainst the garnishee, the latter may, instead of proceeding regularly, file a declaration that he submits his rights to the Ceurt, at the same time stating, with documents in support of his statements, the previous proceedings which prevent him from paying what he owes to the plaintiff, namely, the garnishing proceedings pending, a judgment already given requiring him to pay one-fifth to a creditor, and the fact that another creditor has made a motion for a declaration that the whole salary of the plaintiff is exigible. Noel v. Corporation of Pilots for the Harbour of Quebec, 5 Q. P. R. 30

Affidavit — Information and Belief — Grounds.]—The affidavit for attachment en mains tierces, when founded upon information or belief, must state the grounds of such belief and the sources of such information, and in the absence of such statement the seizure will be quashed on petition. Duclos v. Beaumier, Q. R. 20 S. C. 237.

Affilavit—Irregularity—Claimant—Judge by Consent Trying Issue Summarilly—Appeal —County Court.]—The plaintiffs in County Court proceedings issued several garnishee summones, and subsequently in Supreme Court actions judgment creditors of the dendants in the County Court actions issued attaching orders, against the same garnishees. The judgment creditors in the Supreme Court actions contended that the Supreme Court actions contended that the County Court garnishees summonses ever hullities, as they were issued on an afflavit which did not comply with the statute, and all the interested parties agreed that the County Judge mikel decide the matter in summary way. He held that the County Judge was in effect an arbitrator; and no appeal lay from his decision, Fer Brake, J.—(1) The afflavit leading to a garnishee summons must verify the plaintiffs cause of action, and a garnishee is entitled to question the validity of the proceedings at the hearing. (2) The defect in the afflavit was an irregularity only, and payment into Court by the garnishees was a waiver by them of their right to object. (3) The plaintiff may specify in one afflavit several debts proposed to be garnishee. Harrisv. Harrisv. Harrisv. Harris, 22 Occ. N. 73, 8 B. C. R. 307.

Ante-judgment Summons — County Court—Debt or Liquidated Demand—Affidavit Verifying Debt.]—An application by the defendant to set aside a garnishee summons (and service) issued before judgment, and for payment out of Court of moneys paid in by the garnishee, was granted. Section 102 of the County Courts Act, R. S. B. C. 1897 c. 52, provides that "a plaintiff, at the time of issuing a summons for a debt or liquidated demand, or at any time thereafter previous to judgment, upon filing ... an affidavit verifying the debt ... may obtain a summons "(i.e., garnishee summons), etc. The summons was issued claiming $2.50 for hire of horse and sleigh, together with $60 damages for the destruction of the sleigh through the defendant's negligence. The affidavit verifying the debt ran: "My claim against the defendant for the sum of $2.50 for hire or rig hired by the defendant from me on the 14th day of February last, and for the sum of $300 damages for the destruction of the said rig or vehicle." Lindburg v. McPherson, 21 Occ. N. 425.

Attachment before Judgment — Affidavit—Requisites of.]—The allegation, "the plaintiff verily believes that unless a writ of attachment before judgment be served upon the garnishees he will lose the amount owing him," in an affidavit for the issue of a writ of attachment before judgment, is sufficient and equivalent to the form of art, 895, C.C., which says "that the pluintiff will thus be deprived of his recourse against the defendant." The affidavit need not give the reasons of belief and the sources of information of the deponent, unless these relate to withdrawal or concealment by the defendant. Bois v. Fels, 6 Q. P. R. 447, Q. R. 27 S. C. 34.

Attachment before Judgment—Petition to Quash—Irregularities—Quality of Deponent.]—The defendant's remedy by petition to quash an attachment before judgment is collateral to the regular methods of defence, and must be strictly connified to the grounds permitted by art, 1919, C. P. 2. The petition to quash cannot allege irregularities in the writ and indorsement, default to leave copy of affidavit and declaration or the quality of the deponent, which are properly matters for exception to the form. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co. v. Frappier, G. Q. P. R. 1862.

Bailiff—Offer of Security—Refusal.]—A bailiff who makes a seizure under a saisie-arrêt before judgment, cannot refuse to restore the goods seized to the defendant, if the latter offers good and sufficient sureties in accordance with art. 938, C. P., under the pretence that he has no power to appraise the security. Schwartz v. Rameh, 6 Q. P. R. 396.

Contestation—Insolvency of Defendant—Pleading—Amendment—Costs—Distraction—Scale of Costs.]—In a contestation of an attachment by the defendant, it is immaterial to the issue whether the original debtor whose heirs have been condemned by judgment on the principal action, was solvent or not. 2. A paragraph struck out from a pleading upon an inscription in law, will not be reinstated by amendment at the trial. 3. A writ of attachment after judgment cannot be issued for costs without the consent of the attorneys in whose favour distraction of costs was granted. 4. The costs awarded upon a contestation of attachment, maintained as far as costs are concerned, will be governed by the amount of the costs for which attachment was improperly issued. Montreal Land and Mortagog Co. v. Heirs of Mathieu, 6 Q. P. R. 329.

Contestation—Undue Delay.)—The garnishing creditor will not be allowed to contest, after the delays, the declaration of a garnishee, if he has shewn no diligence in the matter. Meloche v. Lalonde, 7 Q. P. R. 161.

Corporation Garnishee—Declaration by Attorney—Art. 686, C. P.]—When in answer to an attachment in the hands of a corporation, such corporation makes its declaration by an attorney under a general authorization, no question under art. 686, C. P., can be put to such attorney. Brodeur v. MacTavish, 7 Q. P. R. 235.

Debtor Suing Garnishee—Discharge of Garnishee.] — The fact that the judgment debtor has, since the declaration of the garnishee, brought an action against him, does not interrupt the latter's right to be discharged from the attachment if he owes nothing. In re Banque Ville-Marie, 7 Q. P. R. 169.

Declaration of Garnishee—Conditional Debt—Discharge.]—If a garnishee declares that he owes nothing to the judgment debtor, but that there is a contract between them under which the judgment debtor is allowed to take insurance risks for the company of which the garnishee is an agent, the judgment debtor and the garnishee are not entitled upon such declaration to have the attachment proceedings dismissed, as they would be if the garnishee had declared simply that he owed nothing. Queere, is there ground, in the case of a conditional debt, to claim dismissal of the proceedings on the ground that the garnishing creditor has not had it declared that the attachment is binding. Lamothe v. Piche, 5 Q. P. R. 180, Declaration of Garnishee — Contestation by Debtor—Status.)—A debtor has no interest to support a motion for the rejection of the declaration of a garnishee, on the ground that the necessary stamps have not been affixed to it, or that the garnishee has not the status to make such declaration. Montreal Loan and Mortgage Co. v. Mathieu, 7 Q. P. R. 84.

Declaration of Garnishee—Contestation of—Claim for Damages.]—A garnishee is not obliged to declare hypothetical and possible debts; his declaration is sufficient if it admits debts of which he knows the cause and the amount. 2. Facts which may serve as the basis of an action for damages by a defendant against the garnishee do not justify a contestation of the declaration of the garnishee, when the additional claim of the defendant against the garnishee is not liquidated nor established nor stated in any manner, and when the garnishee cannot be presumed to have known it at the time of his declaration. 3. In this case, the garnishee, being indebted to the defendant in the sum of $100 by virtue of a judgment, was not obliged to declare that, besides such sum, he owed $200 as damages caused to the defendant by the allegations of a certain plea which he allegad to be false; and a contenstation of the declaration of the garnishee based upon default of declaring something else besides an ascertained debt, was dismissed upon inscription in law.
Germain v. Dussault, 5 Q. P. R. 96.

Declaration of Garnishee — Contestation of — Requirements.] — When a tiers-saist has declared that he owes nothing, it is not sufficient to allege, in contestation thereof, that it is false: a contestation of a declaration of a tiers-saist has for its object a different leaks of facts whereon to determine the Ilasis of facts whereon to determine the Ilability of the garnishee from that furnished by his declaration; it must, if for less than the amount of the judgment, set forth the exact amount of the alleged indebedness; it must be as sepcific as, and proved like, the contents of the declaration in an ordinary suit, and it creates a real cause, in which the tiers-saisi is a defendant. Canadian Congregational Missionary Society v. Larivière, 4 Q. P. R. 200.

Declaration of Garnishee—Default of -Judgment — Appeal — Relief on Terms.]—
A garnishee who has appealed from a judgment against him by default, and whose appeal has been dismissed, may still be relieved from his default to make a declaration upon paying all the costs incurred, including those of the appeal. Saunders v, Bocckh, 5 Q. P. R. 416.

Declaration of Garnishee — Judgment — Moneys accruing due — New declaration.]—In order that an attachment after judgment in the hands of a third party be binding, it must be so declared by judgment; in the absence of a contestation of the garnishee's declaration within the legal delays, and of a demand within the same delay to have the seizure declared binding, a writ of attachment is without effect against the garnishee as regards the sums which may eventually become due; and a motion then made to make him declare de novo will be rejected. Decelles v. Lafleur, § Q. P. R. 439.

Declaration of Garnishee — Judgment—Reduction on Appeal — Payment of Solicitor's Costs—Set-off.]—A garnishee, who has declared that he was adjudged to pay to the defendant $100 damages by a judgment from which he has appealed, cannot afterwards, after the amount of the judgment has been reduced by the Court in review to $50, with costs of the hearing and review against the defendant, allege by a subsequent declaration that he has paid his solicitor the $50 allowed to him by the later judgment, which has been garnished before the decision. Pleffer v. Campeau, $5 Q. P. R. 135.

Declaration of Garnishee—Place of Making,]—The declaration of a garnishee made in a district other than that where the writ of saisie-arrêt was issued, without notice to the garnishing creditor, will on motion therefor be rejected. Duchesne v, Quintal. 7 Q. P. R. 103.

Deciaration of Garnishee—Place of Making—Taxation of Costs.]—When a garnishee lives in a district other than the one in which the attaching process has been issued, he may come to make his declaration before the clerk of the Court from which the writ has issued, and then he has the right to tax all his travelling and hotel expenses, and, besides, $3 per day for each day he is absent from home in making his declaration—and this although the expense of making his declaration before the prothonotary of his domicil would not have been so great. Blouin y. Perrault, Q. R. 25 S. C. 439.

Declaration of Garnishee — Time for Contesting — Dismissal of Attachment Proceedings — Separate Orders in Favour of Judgment Debtor and Garnishee — Inscription in Review — Deposit — Desistment.]—In a summary cause the time for contesting the declaration of a garnishee is two days. 2. A plaintiff who complains of judgments dismissing his proceedings against the defendant and the garnishee, upon two separate motions, must make separate inscriptions in review in respect of each judgment and make a deposit in each case, in default of which his inscription will be set aside. 3. adjudicate upon the validity of the desistment; that must be dealt with by the Court of first instance. Lamothe v. Piche, 5 Q. P. B. 164.

Declaration of Garnishee — Uncertainty as to Amount Oucing — Motion for Judgmont.]—Although a seizure may have been declared tenante, the plaintiff is not entitled to inscribe for judgment on the garnishee's declaration when the garnishee states that he owes the defendant nothing, and is not ready to say what portion of certain moneys in his first declaration stated to have been received from the defendant's attorneys, is returnable to them. Baumar v. Carbonneau, 7 Q. P. R. 213.

Default of Service on Debtor — Motion to Dismiss.]—A debtor who has been served with attachment process after judgment cannot appear and demand dismissal of the attachment. Fafard v. Marsan, 5 Q. P. R. 488.

Denial by Garnishees of Liability to Judgment Debtor — Cross examination of allidavits—Refusal to answer to liability of third person—Allegation of identity of third person with debtor. Smith v. O'Dell, 6 O. W. R. 47, 179.

Deposit by Garnishee — Amount — Costa.]—The garnishee who fails to deposit a certain sum of money, in accordance with a order served upon him, cannot be condemned, in the absence of any mention in the record of other creditors of the Judgment debtor, to pay any greater sum than the amount he should have deposited, and the costs of order and of the inscription for judgment against him. Laforce v. Grant, 6 Q. P. R. 370.

Desistment—Notice — Practice.] — A garnishee, who receives a notice of desistment from a saisle-arrêt before the day of its return, cannot by motion demand an act of desistment and dismissal of the proceeding; if he believes the desistment to be insufficient, he must apear at the process office and so declare. Montreal Land and Mortgage Co. v. Heirs of Mathieu, 6 Q. P. R. 274.

Desistment — Notice — Withdrawal— Contable — Where a garnishing creditor desists from the attachment proceedings without mentioning that the attachment was made with costs, and without giving notice of such desistment to the attorneys of the garnishee, a motion by the latter for withdrawal of the attachment will be granted with costs. Levy V-Arkbulatoff, 5 Q. P. R. 338.

Issue in Course of Action—Service on Defendant—Absence from Jurisdiction.]—An attachment of debts issued in the course of an action is itself an action separate and distinct from the original action, and if, since the commencement of the action, the defendant has left the Province, service of the attachment should be made upon him as it would be in an action, Service made upon him at the record office, in accordance with the provisions of Art, 85, C. P. C., is a nullity. Wasby v. Brown, Q. R. 19 S. C. 424.

Judgment against Garnishee—Setting

Default—Prothonotary Entering—Long Vacation.]—A garnishee against whom judgment by default has been improperly entered, may apply to have it set aside.—When called upon to make its declaration by a writ which does not state either the day or hour when it should be made, he must be considered as not properly before the Court; no default can be charged against him, and no judgment can be pronounced against him for default of a declaration.—The prothonotary has no jurisdiction to sign judgment against a garnishee who has made default, and the Court itself cannot pronounce such judgment against him during the long vacation. Crapeau v. Tremblay, Q. R. 27 S. C. 99, 156.

Judgment Debt — Execution — Stay — Payment into Court.]—The fact that the debt of the plaintiff for which he has recovered judgment against the defendant has been attached does not hinder him from proceeding to execution of his judgment, and if the defendant desires to escape such execution, he has only to pay the amount into Court. Lamb v. Keilan, 4 Q. P. R. 42.

Judgment by Default against Garnishee—Irregularity in Service—Right of Appeal — Return—Consent.]—A garnishee against whom a judgment has gone by default, without service of process personally or at his domicil, has the right to move against such judgment by way of appeal. 2. A party who garnishees after judgment cannot return his writ of saisie-arrêt after the three days following the day for such return without the consent of all the parties to the cause, and the consent of one of the defendants alone is insufficient. Perrin v. Tate, 5 Q. P. R. 116.

Judgment by Default against Garnishee — Opening Up—Terms—Costs.]—A garnishee against whom judgment has been given by default, and who wishes to open up the judgment, must pay the costs of the motion and of the proof of the disbursements incurred upon his default, and a supplementary fee, if that was necessary. St. Denis v. Goulet, 4 Q. P. R. 318.

Judgment in Action for Debt or Liquidated Demand—Claim for proceeds of sales by agent — Goods sold — Rule 384. Stimson v. Hamilton (N.W.T.) 1 W. L. R.

Nature of Creditor's Claim—Notice to Debtor—Alimentary Debt.]—A creditor desiring to garnish moneys declared insatissables, by proving that his claim is of an alimentary nature, cannot so prove without notice to the debtor as well of the proof to which he intends to make as of the inscription for judgment. Gratton v. Mc-Cready. 4 Q. P. R. 155.

Petition to Quash Saisie-arret Before Judgment—Judgment Debtor—Parties — Conclusions.] — A creditor cannot, by means of a saisie-arret before judgment restrain the tier-saisi from paying certain sums to his debtor, made a party to the preceeding as mis-en-cause but against whom no conclusions are taken. 2. A petition to quash the sanisie-arret on the part of the mis-encause is the proper proceeding in such a case. Duckett v. Bayard, 5 Q. P. R. 218. Priority of Attaching Creditor—Aliegation of Insotreety by Other Ureditors —Salary of Municipal Employee.]—A creditor who has obtained judgment on an attachment after judgment, has the right to make in preference to all other creditors of the debtor, the amount awarded him by this judgment, which operates as an assignment or subrogation in his favour.—An allegation of insolvency ought to be made by such other creditors before such judgment on attachment has been recovered, if they wish to obtain the benefit of art, 694, and that although the subject matter of the attachment is the salary of the municipal employee mentioned in paragraphs 10 and 11 of art. 599, C. P. Mailloux v. Blackburn, Q. R. 27 S. C. 91.

Remedy of Crown.]—Order 45 of the English Rules respecting garnishee process is not applicable to a proceeding by information by the Crown. The Crown's remedy is by writ of extent. Regina v. Connolly, 21 Occ. N. 270, 7 Ex. C. R. 32.

Requisites of Saisie-arret After Judgment — Salary — Declaration of Garishee—Costs.]—If a wir of attachment after judgment does not state the nature and place of the debtor's occupation, it does not constitute a seizure of salary which can be declared tenante, and a motion to that effect will be dismissed. — 2. However, if the garnishee by his declaration has set forth the fact that the defendant was in his employ on salary, a motion to have seizure declared binding will be dismissed without costs, as the seizing creditor had some reason to believe that the seizure was recognized as one of salary. Drowin v. Brunelle, 5 Q. P. R. 371.

Saisie-arret— Affidavit for—Information and Belie', I.—An affidavit in support of a saisie-arrêt before judgment which is simply based upon the belief of the deponent as to the loss of recourse by the plaintiff, in place of positively affirming such loss as a fact, is insufficient, and the saisie-arrêt will be set aside on petition. Michaud v. Clement, 5 Q. P. R. 25.

Saisie-arret—Non-service — Motion to Discharge,]—A motion by the defendant for the discharge of a saisie-arrêt because it has not been served nor returned, will be dismissed with costs, because the defendant cannot apply for the discharge of a writ which has no existence, Devlin v. Charlebois, 4 Q. P. R. 281.

Saisie-arret — Notice of Desistment — Costs. 1—1f a plaintiff desists from a saisie-arrêt and gives notice of his desistment, without mentioning the costs to the defendant and the garnishee the defendant has a right to demand the dismissal of the saisie-arrêt by motion, and with costs. Bank of British North America v. Laporte, 5 Q. P. R. 67.

Saisie-arret—Second Writ—Exception de Litispendance, |-To afford ground for an exception de litispendance against a second saisie-arrêt after judgment, while the first is pending, it must apear that the second write attached the same debt as the first writ. Leith v. Hall, 4 Q. P. R. 398.

Saisie-arret—Time for Plea to—Inscription]—In summary causes a defendant has two days to plead to the saisie-arrêt; if he does not plead thin this time, the plaintiff has two days to contest the declaration of the garnishee; after this time, he may, if he does not contest it, inscribe the case for judgment in terms of the declaration, Goldberg v. Griffin, 4 Q. P. R. 376.

Saisie-arret—Wages—Occupation of Defendant—Neglect to State.]—Where in an attempt to garnish wages alleged to be due to a judgment debtor, the writ of snisie-arret did not state the occupation of the defendant, as required by art. 678, C. C. P., the service of such writ was held to be of no effect, De Sièges v. Painchaud. Q. R. 20 S. C. 230.

Salary of Civil Servant—Motion to Declare Attachment Valid.]—The attachment of the salary of a civil servant is regulated by s. 9 of Art, 599, C. P.; and Art. 697 does not apply thereto. A motion to declare the attachment of a salary binding will be dismissed as useless, Garand v. Boileau, 4 Q. P. R. 158.

Salary—Writ of Attachment — Requirements of.]—A creditor cannot attach his debtor's salary, wages, or commissions without stating in the writ of attachment the nature and place of the debtor's occupation, and consequently he cannot contest the garnishee's declaration, alleging that commissions have become due to his debtor, if the writ of attachment does not meet the requirements of law regarding seizures of salaries and wages. Sieyes v. Painchaud, 3 Q. P. R. 552.

Service-Officers of Bank-Priorities.]-Interpleader proceedings were taken by the Bank of Nova Scotia to determine the priority of attaching process served on it by two creditors of an absconding debtor. Order IX., Rule 8, of the Judicature Act provides that process may be served on a corporation by serving the same on the principal officer thereof or on the clerk or secretary. One of the creditors served the president and secretary of the bank at its head office. The other creditor, before making any service in the same manner, and before the service of the first mentioned creditor, served the process on the manager of the branch of the bank in which the absconding debtor's money was deposited, and he contended that he thereby acquired priority :- Held, that priority must be given to the first service on the president at the head office, Kinsman v. Onderdonk, 22 Occ. N. 262.

Service of Saisie-arret — Domicil of Jupment Debtor—Death—Garnishable Debt —Proceeds of Sheriff's Sale—Subsequent resale.]—Article 135 of the Code of Proceeds which authorizes service upon the heirs of a person deceased within the previous six months, at the former domicil of deceased, applies to proceedings against the heirs, and not to the service of a saisie-arret issued against the deceased himself, on a judement obtained against him, the fact of his death, at the time of the service of the saisie-arret, being known to the plaintiff.—2. Service of Salsie-arret — Effect of— Payment to Debtor Alter Service—Payment again to Creditor — Declaration—Contestation.]—It is the service of the writ of saisiearret which establishes the claim of the garnishor against the garnishee. 2. From the moment of the regular service of the saisiearret, the garnishee is prevented from paying to the judgment debtor, and, if he does so, will be obliged to pay a second time, whether he knew or not of the service being made; that is the consequence of the change made by Art, 679 of the new Code of Procedure in Art, 615 of the old. 3. When a garnishee commences his declaration by denying that he wes anything to the judgment debtor, and afterwards it is clearly established that he did owe him and had paid him after the service of the saisie-arrêt, it is not necessary to contest his declaration; the Court will order the garnishee to pay again. Montambualt v. Lapointe, Q. R. 23 S. C. 413.

Set-off Between Defendant and Garnishee.]—A debt due by the defendant to the garnishee which did not become due until efter an attachment, cannot be set off against the debt of the garnishee to the defendant, being the debt attached. Hogue v. Ogilvic. 4 Q. P. R. 317.

Suit by Another Claimant—Interpleader, [—The person who owes a sum of money which has been attached in his hands cannot be ordered to pay it to another claimant, so long as the attachment subsists; therefore, such debtor may plead to an action by the other claimant the fact of the attachment, and ask the Court to decide to whom it should pay the sum claimed and to order the claimant to pay the costs of the action. Shannon v. North American Life Assurance Co., Q. R. 19 S. C. 321.

Writ of Saisie-arret - Mis-en-cause Transferee of Debtor—Petition to Set Aside Writ.]—The plaintiff, a creditor of the defendant, having judgment against him, issued a saisie-arrêt in respect of moneys in the hands of M. et al, also making C. F. B. et al. parties (mis-en-cause). By this writ of saisie-arrêt the garnishees and the mis-encause were ordered to appear and declare what property they had in their hands belonging to the defendant and what sum of money they owed him. In a declaration annexed to the writ, but to which the writ did not refer, the plaintiff alleged that C. P. B. had acted collusively with the defendant and as his prête-nom in certain transactions with some of the garnishees, by virtue of which a sum of money was deposited in the hands of a firm of solicitors, the other garnishees, The claim in the declaration was that the garnishees should be ordered to declare what sum they had paid or were to pay by virtue certain acts of sale really entered into with the defendant but nominally with his son, C. F. B., and that the mis-en-cause should be ordered to appear and declare whether the debt was really due to the defendant or to C. F. B. The latter petitioned for the quashing as to him of the writ of saisie-arret:—Held, that the plaintiff could not, by means of a writ of saisie-arret, prevent the payment to the mi*-en-cause of the sum which appeared to be due to him on the facts of the acts, but that the plaintiff should have proceeded against the n.is-en-cause by way of a direct action to set aside the transaction, or by contesting the declaration of the zarnishee.—2. That the mis-en-cause had the right by petition to demand the quashing of the writ. Duckett v. Bayard, Q. R. 25 S. C. 150.

III. OTHER CASES.

Division Court — Cheque — Payment Stopped—Payment into Conrt—Sale of Goods.]—A vendor of goods, after receiving payment therefor, fraudulently sold them to another purchaser, who bought in good faith, giving in payment his cheque drawn on a bank at T. but cashed at a bank in O. on payment being guaranteed by an indorser. The second purchaser on being served by the first with a garnishee summons issued out of a Division Court, stopped payment of the cheque, and paid the amount into Court. The indorser, meanwhile, paid the bank at O.:—Held, that he was entitled to the money paid into Court, Wilder v, Wolf. 22 Occ, N. 293, 4 O. L. R. 451, 1 O. W, R. 481.

County Court—Garnishee Summons Before Judgment—Partnership Action.]— An application by the defendant to set aside a garnishee summons issued under s. 102 of R. S. B. C. c. 52, which enables a plaintiff at the time of issuing a summons for a debt or liquidated demand, or at any time previous to judgment, upon filing an affidavit, &c., to obtain a garnishee summons. The action was brought to have a partnership dissolved and for an account and payment:—Held, that the action was not for a debt or liquidated demand; and the garnishee summons was set aside. Walter v. Rooke, 50 L. J. Q. 470. Howell v. Metropolitan District R. W. Co., 51 L. J. Ch. 158, and Randall v. Lithgow, 53 L. J. Q. B. 518, referred to. Cicognia v. McHeather, 22 Occ. N. 309.

Fraudulent Collusion - Setting Aside Judgment.]-Although a judgment validating a garnishment constitutes a judicial transfer of the sum garnished, the garnishee (in this case the wife of the defendant) who after case the wife of the decidant) was arrect service of such judgment, has settled with the attaching creditor by means of an exchange of properties and a dation en paiement, will be ordered—at the suit of a creditor prior to the attaching creditor, and upon proof that the attachment and the judgment were the result of a fraudulent agreement to defraud the creditors of the defendant, with the knowledge of the garnishee and attaching creditor-to deposit in the record office for distribution the sum which she owes to the defendant, and the exchange of properties and the dation en paiement will be set aside. Leroux v. Préfontaine, Q. R. 19 S. C. 315.

Insolvency of Debtor-Judgment Making Garnishment Absolute-Attack Upon by Another Creditor,]—After the creditor who has issued a writ of saisie-arrêt has obtained, without fraud, a judgment ordering the garnishee to pay him the amount which the garnishee acknowledges he owes the debtor, another creditor of the latter cannot, by tierce-opposition, cause such judgment to be annulled on the ground of the insolvency of the debtor; the allegation of insolvency must be made before the judgment making absolute the saisie-arrêt, Manscau v. Bruyere, Q. R. 11 K. B. 16.

Insolvency of Debtor — Opposition by Other Creditors—Knowledge of Attaching Creditor.]—In order that there may be ground for an opposition à fin de conserver, based upon the insolvency of the debtor, after judgment has been given upon a writ of saisiearrêt, it is necessary that the attaching creditor should have known of the insolvency of the debtor. Dansereau v. Bradshaw, 4 Q. P. R. 198.

Purchase Money of Land - Deed -Acknowledgment — Estoppel — Burden of Proof.]—Where there is an acknowledgment under seal in a transfer of land that the consideration or purchase money has been paid, the vendor cannot, in the absence of fraud, maintain an action at law against the purchaser for such purchase money; he is estopped by his deed. Baker v. Davey, 1 B. & C. 704, and Donohoe v. Hull, 24 S. C. R. at p. 689, followed. The vendor may proceed in equity, but in rem. by asserting a lien on the land sold for the purchase money (and as incidental to that relief may have a personal order against the deficiency, it any, as in Sanderson v. Burdette, 16 Gr. 119, 18 Gr. 419, and in Shelly v. Shelly, 18 Gr. 495. But the Court has no power in garnishee proceedings to give effect to such lien, or to order the purchaser to pay over the purchase money to the creditor of the vendor:—Held, also, in an issue arising out of a garnishing application, that the onus of proving the indebtedness of the garnishee to the judgment debtor was upon the judgment creditor, and he failed to satisfy it. Genge v. Wachter, 20 Occ. N. 158, 4 Terr. L. R.

Solicitor's Lien - Costs in Court not Having Jurisdiction—Distribution of Moneys Attached—Insolvency — Opposition — Third Party-Prescription.] - There is no lien for costs incurred by an advocate before a Court which has been declared to have no jurisdiction, notwithstanding the contentions of the parties to the contrary. 2. Article 673 applies, in the case of the alleged insolvency of the debtor, to all distributions of money which do not represent immovable property and for which he is not accountable by law. 3. When a garnishment has been declared binding there is no occasion for a subsequent judgment ordering the garnishee to pay over moneys attached, the amount, unless there is an allegation of bankruptcy, being distributable according to art. 697, C. P., and especially so if there is a seizure after a prior judgment. 4. An opposition by a third party is not prescribed, whatever be the date of the judgment attacked, if the third party has had knowledge of it only within a year. Royal Electric Co. v. Palliser, 3 Q. P. R. 340.

ATTACHMENT OF GOODS.

Affidavit for Writ—Wife of Plaintiff.]

—A writ of attachment had been issued upon the filing, with the fiat, of an affidavit of the wife (commune) of the plaintiff. Upon motion of the defendant to set aside the attachment, upon the ground that a wife in such position cannot testify on behalf of her husband:—Held, that the affidavit required to obtain the issue of a writ of attachment is not evidence in the action, and may be made by such wife. Roberge v. Roberge, 3 Q. P. K. 403.

Affidavit—Person to Make.]—An affidavit leading the issue of a conservatory attachment ought to be subscribed by one of the persons authorized to subscribe such an affidavit in case of an attachment before judgment. Marchand v. Globensky, 7 Q. P. R. 94.—

Attachment before Judgment—Afticavit—Sufficiency,]—The following statement in an affidavit: "That the said (defendant) said and declared to this deponent that he was going to sell everything and decamp from the country in order not to pay him (deponent); and the said deponent is, besides, credibly informed and believes that the said (defendant) is concealing and selling and is about to conneci and sell his property with the intention of defrauding his creditors, and particularly the said deponent, and the sources of my information are that one B, a milkman, affirms that the said (defendant) said and declared to him that he would sell all his property in order not to pay the deponent his said debt: "—Held, sufficient; and that a saisie-arrêt before judgment containing this allegation should not be quashed upon petition. Lefebvre v. Rochon, 5 Q. P. R. 443.

Conservatory Attachment — Contestetion—Assignment for Creditors.]—The plaintiff issued a writ of conservatory attachment against the defendant. After the execution of the writ, the defendant made an abandonment of her property, and a provisional guadian was appointed to her estate. The defendant contested the conservatory attachment by an exception to the form:—Held, that after the abandonment the defendant ceased to have any interest in prosecuting the exception to the form. Ledoux v. Simpson, 4 Q. P. R. 57.

Conservatory Attachment — Ordinary Creditor—Lien—Huster and Servant—Claim for Wrongful Dismissal—Clerk in Store — Affidavit,]—A salisie-conservatoire can issue only at the suit of one who claims a right of property in or a special lien upon morable effects, and not at the suit of an ordinary creditor who has only the general lien resulting from arts, 1980 and 1981. 2. A clerk has not, under arts, 1994 and 2006, a lien upon the inerchandise in the shop where he serves to secure the payment of damages for wrongful dismissal. 3. Such a claim being one for unliquidated damages, the affavit made in order to obtain the writ of salise-conservatoire should state the nature and the amount of damages claimed and the facts giving rise to the claim, and should be submitted to the Judge, without whose order the writ cannot be issued. Poirier v. Ornsteis, Q. R. 19 S. C. 182, 3 Q. P. R. 487.

Conservatory Attachment — Sale of Goods—Refusal to Deliver.]—The purchaser who has not yet received the goods sold to him, and on account of which he paid certain sums, cannot seize, by way of conservatory attachment, goods of the same nature and quality, owned by the defendant, and which he plaintiff alleges to be the defendant's only asset. 2. Conservatory attachment can only issue in virtue of an express provision of law. Papin v. Long, 4 Q. P. R. 140.

Defendant Out of the Country—Goods Claimed by Wife and Offered for Sale by Her.]—A right of conservatory attachment arises when the defendant insolvent has left the country, and his wife has offered his goods for sale and claims a title thereupon. Lefebrer v. Picard, 7 Q. P. R. 233.

Interest of Partner in Grain—Possession. Clemens v. Bartlett, 1 O. W. R. 342.

Science before Judgment—Defendants about to leave Province — Amount of Claim only Disputed.]—An attachment before judgment may be issued when the defendant, a foreigner, intends to depart with all his effects without paying the plaintiff's claim, of which he disputes the amount only. Lemieux v. Le Cirque Sells and Downs, 7 Q. P. R. 273.

Setting Aside—Fraudulent Intent—Non-disclosure—New Evidence.1—The plaintiff's affidavit, upon which an order for attachment of goods was granted, stated that he had road reason to believe and did believe that the idendant had disposed of her real estate with intent to defraud her creditors, and that she was about to dispose of her personal property with the same intent, and was about to leave Manitoba pass soon as the goods should be disposed of 't giving the source of his information). The defendant, on motion to set-side the order, by affidavit denied having lad the intention to leave Manitoba permanently, and gave reasons for leaving temporarily. In reply the plaintiff swore to a dattel mortrage on the defendant's property, and a seizure thereunder:—Held, that the sare fact that the defendant had disposed of her real estate raised no inference of fraud; the affidavit of the plaintiff in reply disclosed facts on which his belief of intent to defraud was properly grounded; but these facts, being within the plaintiff's knowledge at the time of the original application, should then have been disclosed. The fact of the plaintiff's knowledge of the original application, should then have been disclosed. The fact of the plaintiff's knowledge of the original application, should then have been stated. Neton v. Beryman, 21 Occ. N. 485, 13 Man. I. R. 563.

Setting Aside—Procedure—Grounds.]— A defendant cannot set aside, upon petition, a mine-conservatoire, except by attacking it on "Blairi or establishing that the goods seized "a extenpt from seizure; other grounds should be taken by pleading to the merits. Lefteur . Beautin, 3 Q. P. R. 442.

Costs of Judicial Sale — Right to Retain.]—Whether there is or is not opposition a fin de conserver, the bailiff who has made a judicial sale has the right to keep his costs out of the moneys which he returns, provided such costs have been taxed. Turgeon v. Shannon, 4 Q. P. R. 274.

Fees of—Responsibility of Advocates for—Partnership—Registration—Profits.] — Advocates are personally responsible for the fees of bailiffs employed by them in connection with the cases which they are conducting before the Courts. Such liability, where a partnership of advocates exists, is joint and not joint and several. 2. A partnership of ballifs does not fall under arts. 1834 and 1835, C. C., and registration of such partnership, not being required or authorized by law, is without effect. Therefore the provisions of art. 1835, as to disproof of the allegations of the declaration of partnership, do not apply to a declaration of partnership made by a firm of balliffs so far as their business as balliffs is concerned. 3. Although balliffs cannot act, in the performance of their duties, under a partnership name, they are not precluded from forming a partnership as regards the financial returns from their individual work, nor from contracting, as a partnership, for the payment of individual services rendered by one or several of them. Decelles v. Basin, Q. R. 19 8, C. 339, 4 Q. P. R. 92.

Incorporated Society — Trial of Members — Domestic Tribunal — Appeal, — It is only the board of examiners of the corporation of bailiffs of the district of Montreal who have the right to try in the first instance members of that corporation accused of breaches of the rules, and the Superior Court has no jurisdiction except upon appeal. Montreal District Bailiffs' Corporation v, Proulx, Q. R. 24 S. C. 244.

BAILMENT.

Agistment of Cattle—Contract—Liability for Loss—Exception as to Disease—Death from Disease by Mismanagement.]—The plaintiff, who owned 47 head of cattle, made an agreement with the defendant to feed, salt, and winter them for $4.59 per head: the defendant to feed the cattle sufficient good feed to bring them through the winter in good condition, and to deliver them to the plaintiff in the spring of 1904 as soon as there was green pasture sufficient to feed the cattle. The defendant agreed that he would be responsible for the loss of any of the cattle through getting lost or killed or any other way, except dying from ordinary disease. While in the defendant's charge 29 of the cattle died; he housed them in a building so low and small that there was not sufficient ventilation. They were so crowded at night that they became overheated; as a result they were chilled when turned out and contracted colds resulting in catarrh, which caused their deaths. The defendant was warned by a veterinary surgeon that the building was not large enough:—Held, that the exception from liability provided by the agreement, in case of death from ordinary diseases, could not be held to apply to disease resulting directly, as was the case here, from the defendant's own mismanagement. McLenaghan v. Hood, 25 Occ. N. 19, 1 W. L. K. 422.

Agistment of Cattle—Loss of—Reasonable Care—Price Paid—Custom of Locality—Negligence.] — Although one who takes animals to pasture them should give them the care of a "bon père de famille," the extent of this obligation is, nevertheless, dependent on the price paid for such pasturage, and the custom of the locality. Therefore, it is unreasonable to expect that for a moderate price a man should watch the animals constantly; and if one of them disappears, it is the owner who should bear the loss, at least, unless he can prove negligence on the part of the owner of the land. Nadon v. Pesant, Q. R. 26 S. C, 384.

Destruction of Goods Stored, by Fire—Liability of Bailee.]— The respondents, butchers, had caused to be slaughtered by the appellants, as they were bound to be by the by-laws of the city of Montreal, eighteen hogs, which they had the right to leave in the ichouses of the appellants during the following night and for at least twelve hours without paying for storage. During such night and while the meat was in the ice-houses, a fire consumed the abattoris, and the respondent's meat was destroyed:—Held, that the storing of such meat was not a necessary storing. 2. That the appellants having proved that they had used in the care of such meat the diligence of a bon père de familie, and that the fire had occurred by reason of no fault of theirs, they were not responsible for the loss suffered by the respondents. 3. That the appellants were not obliged to prove the origin of the ire. La Compagnie de L'Union det Abattoirs de Montreal v. Leaue, Q. R. 10 K. 3, 289.

Fire—Dunages—Sale of Goods.)—The defendants agreed to make for the plaintiff certain tools used in making hubs of a special kind, and, in consideration of being allowed to use the tools, to make also a number of the hubs:—Held, that the use of the was an unconditional appropriation thereof to the contract, so that the property in them had passed to the plaintiff: that while using them the defendants were ballees thereof for him and a ter ceasing to use them, gratuitous bailess; that the defendants, having neglected to send the tools to the plaintiff after repeater requests, were liable to him in damages; but that these damages were nominal only, and that the plaintiff could not, upon the destruction of the tools by an accidental fire while retained by the defendants, recover from them their value, that destruction not being damage

Negligence-Storage-Duty of Periodical Examination.]—The defendants were keepers of an elevator, and on the 24th April, 1897, received from the plaintiff a quantity of corn for storage, and stored it in several large bins. On the 22nd May, 1897, desiring to use one of these bins (No. 49) for another purpose, the defendants removed the corn over into another bin, and in so doing discovered that it had become heated, whereupon, by exposing it to the air, they stayed the process of heating, and the corn recovered. They also notified the plaintiff by telegram of the discovery in the bin No. 49, but they did not themselves examine the remainder of the corn to see whether it also was becoming heated, nor did the plaintiff ask them to do so. When, on the 3rd June, the corn was run out to be shipped, a quantity of it was found to be in advanced condition of fermentation: Held, that the defendants had been guilty of negligence, under the above circumstances, and were liable to the plaintiff for the loss sustained by him. Dunn v. Prescott Elevator Co.. 22 Occ. N. 257, 4 O. L. R. 103, 1 O. W. R. 75, 404.

Stable-keeper—Injury to Horse—Negligence—Contract—Estoppel.] — The plaintiff's mare, kept for him in an open stall in the defendant's stable, was kicked by a kept in the adjoining open stall, which had broken his halter shank during the night and got loose. This horse had got loose in the stable on several previous occasions, and on one of such occasions, the plaintiff's mare had received a slight injury to one of her legs, which defendant supposed had been caused by the same horse. In the opinion of the majority of the Court, it was not proved that the horse was a vicious one, or that he had ever broken a halter shank before, or that the shank he broke on that night was not as strong as halter shanks usually are. The plaintiff's halter shanks usually are. The plaintiff's mare shortly afterwards died as the result of the kicking :- Held, that the defendant was not liable for the loss; Perdue, J., dissenting. After the first injury, the plaintiff's son, in the absence of his father, asked the defendant to put his father's mare in a box stall, saying that his father on his return would pay the extra charge. The defendant did so, but, a day or two before the injury, put the mare back into the same open stall without the knowledge of the plaintiff or his son:—Held, that there was no contract binding on the defendant to keep the mare in the box stall; Perdue, J., dissenting. I. ABANDONMENT BY INSOLVENT.

Contestation of Schedule — Fraud — Pleading.]—Where an insolvent's schedule is contested for fraud, and the insolvent in his reply to the contestation explains his acts in order to justify them, the contestant will be allowed to rejoin to this reply alleged facts connected with the allegations of his contestation in order to explain and justify them, and these allegations will not be struck out on the ground that they should have formed part of the contestation itself. Bessette v. Ball, 5 Q. P. R. 233.

Contestation of Schedule — Summary Procedure—Inscription—Notice—Filing—Service—Time, —The rules and times for taking the different steps in the matter of the contestation of a schedule are those applicable to summary procedure. 2. An inscription on the merits in every case must first be filed at the office of the Court, and notice must afterwards be given to the opposite party. 3. In a summary matter an inscription upon the merits filed less than three clear days before that fixed for the hearing is illegal and will be set aside upon motion, even when the notice of inscription has been given to the opposite party three days before that fixed for the hearing, such notice being irregular because the inscription had not been filed at the office of the Court at the time that it was served. Dufour v. Ames-Holden Co., 6 Q. P. R. 38.

Creditors' Claims—Contestation—Filing
—Subrogation—Exception to Form—Tierceopposition.]—The original of a contestation of claim must be filed with the curator, and it is not enough to file a copy. 2. An allegation in such a contestation that the contestant has been subrogated to different creditors of the insolvent cannot be attacked by exception to the form upon the allegation that it is not supported by documents justifying it. 3. The fact that certain grounds of contestation of a claim really amount to a tierce-opposition, while the contestant is not in a position to claim as a tiers-opposant, is also a ground of substance which cannot be discussed upon an exception to the form. Beaudoin v. Lamothe, 5 O. P. R. 356.

Creditors' Claims—Filing with Prothonotary—Fee.]—By virtue of art, 44 of the tariff of prothonotaries, a prothonotary has a right to charge a fee upon a claim sworn to and filed with him, for the purpose of authorizing the creditor filing it to vote at a meeting held for the nomination of a currator, etc., pursuant to art. 867, C. P. In re Beaudoin, Q. R. 23 S. C. 179, 5 Q. P. R. 291.

Declaration of Insolvent — Place of Filing—Domicil—Nullity,]—To constitute a valid abandonment of property, the declaration and statement of the debtor must be filed in the office of the Superior Court for the district in which the debtor has his principal place of business or his domicil. 2. If the declaration and statement are filed in any other district than the above, the abandonment is illegal, and all proceedings therein are null and void. In re Rivard, Q. R. 22 S. C, 190.

Demand of Abandonment—Contestation—Petition—Deposit—Practice — Hearing.]—The contestation of a demand of abandonment is not governed by the rules governing pleadings, but is made by summary petition, which need not be accompanied by a deposit, even if it questions the jurisdiction of the Court in the office of which the demand is filed. 2. If a debtor, by his petition, urges that a delay was granted to him by the creditor demanding abandonment, the adjudication on his petition, and on a motion to reject the same, will be deferred until after proof is made by both parties of their respective allegations. Mussen v. Filton, 5. O. P. R. 170.

Demand — Retired Trader — Refusal to Assign—Arrest—Capias.]—It is not necessive that a person be actually engaged in trade when a demand of abandonment is made upon him. Even where he has ceased for several years to carry on trade, he is nevertheless subject to a demand of abandonment based on a commercial debt contracted by himself or his firm while he was enaged in trade; and consequently, in such case, under art, 895, C. C. P., he is liable to arrest under capias for refusal to make an abandonment. Carter v. McCarthy, Q. R. 6 Q. B. 499, followed, and Roy v. Ellis, Q. R. 7 Q. B. 222, distinguished. Perkins v. Perkins, Q. R. 22 S. C. 72.

Landlord's Claim for Rent—Dietribution of Insolvent's Estate—Effect of 61 V. c. 46—Retrospective Legislation.]—Where insolvent tenants judicially abandoned Laeir property for the benefit of their creditors, and statute law (61 V. c. 46) at the date of the abandonment restricted the lessor's preference to two years' rent, ranking them as ordinary creditors for the balance, while no such restriction was enacted by the law as it stood at the date of the leases:—Held, that the existing statute applied to all liquidations which arose after its enactment, and governed the lessor's privilege unless expressly excepted therefrom. Judgment in In re Bulmer, Beaudry v. Ross, Q. R. 12 K. B. 334, reversed. Ross v. Beaudry, [1905] A. C. 570.

Pretended Abandonment—Frauduleut Conduct—Judyment—Estoppei, 1—A pretenied abandonment, whereby the defendant states that he has no assets whatever, cannot avail against a judgment of the Court declaring that the defendant has fraudulently done away with his property, and absconded from the Province, especially where the said pretended abandonment has been initiuted and filed in another cause, where the plaintiff was not a party, and has not been followed by the appointment of a curator or any other proceeding. Roumithac v. Viance, 3 Q. P. R. 362.

Provisional Guardian—Change of,]—The fact that a provisional guardian, appointed by the prothonotary, is a creditor for a sum less than the claim of another creditor is not a sufficient cause for the Court to substitute the other creditor for him. 2. The Court will not order a change of provisional guardian except upon proof of incompetence or dishonesty. In re Bonhomme, Q. R. 22 8. C. 22.

Purchase of Estate by Wife of Insolvent—Agreement with Creditor.]—An agreement by the wife, separated as to property, of an insolvent trader, to pay one of his creditors $100, and also to compensate any loss he might sustain by the insolvency, in consideration of his assistance in financing the purchase by her of her husband's bankrupt estate, does not come within the prohibition contained in art. 1301, C. C., where such purchase was carried out, and the wife continued the business in her own name. Carter v. Walker, Q. R. 23 S. C. 123.

Trader—Compulsory Abandonment,] —A trader who neglects to pay at maturity the claims of two of his creditors, which compose more than half of his debts, will be ordered to make an abandonment of his property. Lemay v. Parizeau, 6 Q. P. R. 40.

II. ACT OF INSOLVENCY.

Second Hypothec — Vente à rémériImpairment of First Security, 1— A debtor having on the 8th May, 1901, executed an instrument hypothecating his immovables for an advance payable at the end of three years, subsequently, in order to defray the costs of an action, the existence of which his creditor knew at the time of the loan, and which was afterwards decided against him, borrowed from another person the amount necessary to pay these costs, and gave to this new creditor a vente à rémére upon the immovables already hypothecated. He was sued by his first creditor upon the hypothec not yet due, and for a declaration that he was insolvent and had impaired the security which he had given:—Held, that, in executing the vente å réméré, he had not made himself insolvent.

O. 1897 c. 147. is not within the jurisdiction of a Division Court. In re Bergman v, Armstrong. 23 Occ. N. 14, 4 O. L. R. 717, 1 O. W. R. 790.

Demand—Cessation of Payments—Costs.]
—The cessation of payments is an essential condition of a demand for an assignment of property for the benefit of creditors. However, if the defendant, by his default, has eccasioned the demand for an assignment, and has not since discharged his obligation, but, on the contrary, has caused considerable expense to the creditor requiring the assignment, the demand for an assignment will be dismissed without costs. Hetu v. Poirier, 4 Q. P. R. 242.

Demand — Contestation — Discovery by Debtor, 1—There is no provision of the Code of Civil Procedure whereby a debtor, contesting a demand of assignment made upon him, can be ordered to exhibit and give communication, to a creditor of his books of account, letterheads, or any documents or books of whatsoever nature. Wistar v. Dunham, 5 Q. P. R. 79.

Demand—Contestation—Time—Order Extending.]—The plaintiff having made a demand upon the defendant for an assignment of his property, the latter did not contest the demand within the time fixed by art. 857, C. P. C. Afterwards, by leave obtained ex partefrom a Judge of the Superior Court, he filed a contestation, and the plaintiff asked to have the contestation dismissed as having been filed too late:—Held, that art. 205, C. P. C. applies to proceedings for the assignment of property, as well as to all other causes, and that the plaintiff, not having appealed from the order allowing the filing of the contestation, could not, by reason of its filing after the time allowed, demand the dismissal of it. Mussen v. Filion, Q. R. 24 S. C. 308.

Demand — Petition to Set Aside — Affi-davit—Notice of Presentation.]—There is no need of an affidavit in support of a petition to set aside a demand for an assignment of property, even if the facts relied upon do not appear upon the record. 2. It is not necessary to give notice of the presentation of such petition for a day fixed, a notice of filing it as part of the record being sufficient. Dufreane v. Superior, 5 Q. P. R. 28.

Demand—Service of—Irregularity—Demand Based on Debt Assigned—Proof of,1—A demand for assignment of property served at the residence of the manager of the debtor, will not be dismissed on an exception to the form, if it is shewn that it was sent to the debtor, and that he has not been prejudiced by the irregularity of the service. A demand for assignment based on a debt transferred to the creditor in writing under seal, will be dismissed if the creditor does not prove the writings containing the assignment, which, by themselves, are not evidence against the debtor. Smith v. Timbers, 7 Q. P. R. 29.

Execution after Time Provided in Deed-Originating Summons - Costs.] - A proceeding by originating summons to determine the rights of certain creditors who executed a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors after the expiration of the time provided in the deed, but before any dividend was paid. Some of the creditors had not learned of the assignment until after the time had elapsed; others had sent instructions and power of attorney to execute within the time, but the same miscarried, and the execution did not take place until after the time had clapsed. The assignment contained no re-lease:—Held, on the authority of Whitmore v. Turquand, 3 D. F. & J. 107, Haliburton v. DeWolfe, 1 N. S. D. 12, and Douglas v. Samexecuted after the expiration of the time limited in the assignment, but before payment of a dividend, were entitled to participate pari passu with the creditors of parterpare pari passu with the creditors who executed within the period. Held, also, following Gunn v. Adams, S. C. L. J. 211, that the costs of all parties should be paid out of the estate. Capstick v. Hendry, 22 Occ. N. 35.

Exemptions — Alien—Costs.] — An alien is entitled to the statutory exemption of a part of his property from seizure and sale under execution. He is not barred therefrom by s. 3, s.-s. 1, of the Naturalization Act. Where an alien made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors of all his property not exempt by law, an order for payment of the costs of certain proceedings by the creditors out of a fund representing the value of his exemptions, was reversed. In re Demaurez, 21 Occ. N. 457, 5 Terr. L. R. 84.

Form of Assignment—Acceptance—Action by Assignee.] — A debtor, by indenture dated the 10th July, 1900, mortgaged all his real estate to the defendant; at and before the giving of the mortgage the debtor was, and knew himself to be insolvent; he had borrowed heavily and was largely in debt. On the 26th July the debtor made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors generally, to the plaintiff, who was a member of a firm who were creditors of the debtor. There was no evidence of acceptance of the benefits of the assignment by any creditor except the plaintiff, or even of communication of it to any other:—Held, that it was not necessary for the purpose that the assignment should be in the language of s. of the Assignments Act, R. S. M. c. 7; the assignment was the proper person to bring an action to set aside the mortgage; he was a creditor and entitled to the benefit of the assignment; this circumstance rendered it irrevocable. Schwartz v. Winkler, 2.1 Occ, N. 574.

Incomplete Assignment — Seisure of Immovables—Stay of Execution — Art. 772, C. C. P. (old text.)]—Judgment in Q. R. S. Q. B. 517 affirmed. Birks v. Levis, 30 S. C. R. 618.

Interest of Debtor in Estate — Receivership order—Costs—Lien. Reinhardt v. Hunter, 6 O. W. R. 421.

Judgment-Execution-Sheriff - Sale of Land.]-Under a writ of fieri facias a sheriff seized the interest of a judgment debtor Incertain lands, and advertised the interest for sale. Three days prior to the time fixed for the sale the judgment debtor made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors pursuant to the provisions of R. S. O. 1897 The assignee gave notice to the sheriff of the assignment and asked for a statement of the costs incurred to that time. No tender of the costs was made or undertaking given to pay them, and the sheriff proceeded with the sale, and sold the land to the plaintiff. The assignee, notwithstanding the sheriff's sale, assumed to sell the land to, and executed a conveyance in favour of, the defendant's son, who allowed the defendant to remain in possession as his agent:—Held, that the assignment for the benefit of creditors did not stand in the way of the sheriff proceeding to sell under the writ of execution, and that the sen dauer the writ of execution, and that the sale by the assignee was nugatory and void, and the sheriff's vendee entitled to possession of the land, Gillard v. Milligan, 28 O. R. 645, followed. Elliott v. Hamilton, 22 Occ. N. 412, 4 O. L. R. 585, 1 O. W. R. 705, 2 O. W. R. 141.

Mortgage by Insolvent — Purchase of Mortgaged Land by Assignce—Ignorance of Existence of Mortgage—Subsequent Action to Set Aside—Statutory Presumption.]—Plaintiff was assignee in law of the Vandear estate, and sued in that character to vacate a mortgage to the defendants for $250 made by the insolvent, a few days before the assignment, upon a farm already mortgaged to the Huron and Erie Loan Co. for $3,690. The defence was that the farm was sold by the assignee and purchased on his behalf for $4.200 in March, 1897, and is now vested in him as owner. The learned Judge ruled that such was his legal position, and declined to regard his status as sufficient to justify the maintenance of this action. No doubt, qua owner, he coul. not attack the prior registered mortgage—qua assignee for creditors he can impeach the mortgage under the statute then in force, 54 Vict. e. 20, s. 2, s. s. 2 (b). The mortgage for $250 was to secure a bill of costs of the mortgagees; it was made on 15th October, 1896, but it was not registered until 10th February, 1897. The assignment for creditors was executed on 21st October, 1896. creations was executed in 248 October, 1889. The assets were all realized and distributed on a dividend of 7 per cent, about 124 July, 1897. The farm was sold, subject to the first mortgage, on 13th March, 1897, and the conveyance taken, through a nominal purchaser, to plaintiff in August, 1897. After providing for the first mortgage, there came out of the purchase money a balance of $600, which was paid by plaintiff and distributed among the creditors. Defendants filed their claim as creditors (but without disclosing the mortgage), in December, 1896, and received their share of the dividend in June, 1897. It was proved the plaintiff had no notice nor knowledge of the $250 mortgage till October, 1897, after the estate had been wound up and distributed. Plaintiff took possession of the farm with knowledge of the creditors of the purchase by him, and so remained until disturbed by notice of the exercise of the power of sale in defendant's mort-gage on 10th May, 1903, and then this action was begun to invalidate the instrument or to stay proceedings thereon. At trial before Judge (without jury), the action was dismissed without hearing evidence for was dishissed without hearing evidence for the defence, holding that plaintiff could not maintain the action:—Held, on appeal (evi-dence for the defence being heard), that neither Vandecar nor the defendants entered into the transaction with the knowledge or intent which would bring it within the mischief of the statute, 54 Vict. c. 20, s. 2, s.-s. 2 (b), and that it was extremely doubtful (b), and that it was extremely doubtful whether Vandecar was at the time insolvent, the appearance of anything extraordinary in the defendants' dealings with their security being accounted for by the proverbial carelessness of lawyers in the conduct of their own affairs. Craig v. McKay, 4 O. W. R. 274, 6 O. W. R. 160, 25 Occ. N. 10, 8 O. I. R. 651, Partnership Assets Only — Creditors' Trust Deeds Act. 1—An assignment by a firm for the benefit of creditors which is construed by the Court to be an assignment of partnership assets only, may be a good and valid assignment within the meaning of the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act. Eastman v. Pemberton, 7 B. C. R. 459.

Preferential Claim—Wages of Assignor—Creditors' Trust Deeds Act—Contractor.]—The plaintiff contracted with cannery proprietors (a) to supply labour and pack salmon at a stated price per case, i.e., by piece work; and (b) to act as foreman of the laboures supplied by him, at a salary of $50 per month. The proprietors having assigned for the benefit of creditors, the plaintiff sought to enforce the preference given by s. 36 of the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act in respect to both the salary and the piece work:—Held, that the preference must be restricted to the salary. As Tam v. Robertson, 23 Occ. N. 238, 9 B. C. H. 505.

Preferential Claim — Wages — One Month — Computation — Statutes.]—By the Creditors' Trust Deeds Act, 1901, an assignee is required to pay in priority to the claims of ordinary creditors the wages of persons in the employ of the assignment at the time of the assignment, or "within one month before." The assignment was made on the 27th November, 1901:—Held, that a workman who

Property of Third Person in Hands of Insolvent—Recovery—Petition,—Property not belonging to the debtor which is in the creditors' possession by virtue of an abandonment, can only be recovered by the person entitled thereto on a petition by himself, and the curators will not be allowed to obtain an order authorizing them to transfer the same to the person who pretends to be the owner thereof, in a matter where such owner is not a party and where the owner-ship is disputed by other creditors, In resimpson and Gagnon, 6 Q. P. R. 419.

Provisional Guardian — Change of— Creditors.]—The fact that the provisional guardian named by the prothonotary in the case of an assignment for creditors is a creditor for less sum than that claimed by another creditor is not a sufficient ground for an order of the court to replace the provisional guardian by the other creditor,—2. The court will not order a change of provisional guardian except upon proof of incompetence or dishonesty. In re Bonhomme and Burnett, 5 Q. P. R. 40.

The curator to an assignment of property may recover from the insolvent property which the insolvent has not given up or which he has secreted, but the curator cannot exercise against the debtor rights of action which belong individually to each one of his creditors (Art. 931, C. P.) for the balance of the claims of such creditors against the debtor, by way of garnishment of the party paid out of the proceeds of the property given up by the debtor. Desmarteus v. Viau, 4 Q. P. Right to Rank on Estate—Annitant—Attachment of Debts—Assignments Act1—An insolve it made an assignment to the defendant for the benefit of creditors, pursuant to R. S. O. 1897 c. 147. Previous to the assignment the defendant for the benefit of creditors, pursuant to R. S. O. 1897 c. 147. Previous to the designment the defendant had covenanted with the plaintiffs to pay to J. R. $100 per quarter on the first day of each quarter during her astural life—Held, that the growing payments were in the nature of corvilagent debts: and that the plaintiffs were not entitled under R. S. O. c. 147 to rank upon the estate of the insolvent for the present value of each payments. Grant v. West, 23 A. R. 353, and Mail Printing Co. v. Clarkson, 25 A. R. 1, followed. Rights of Curator.]—Where by the marriage contract a prefixed or conventional dower payable in one sum, has been stipulated in favour of the wife, she is not entitled to rank for that sum as a conditional obligation, in competition with the creditors of her insolvent husband, before the opening of the dower by the death of the husband.—2. A prefixed dower, or any other right derived from the husband, does not come under the terms of Art. 2029, C. C. The only way in which such rights can be protected is by special conventional hypothec, which must describe the property affected.—3. The curator in an insolvent estate is entitled to bring action for the radiation of the registration of a hypothec affecting the insolvent's immovable property, where such registration is illegal, without waiting to see whether the estate is sufficient to pay all the creditors in full. Bilodeau v. Benoit, Q. R. 20 S. C. 241.

Sale of Land Under Execution.]—After an assignment of his property by a debtor for the benefit of his creditors, and the nomination of a curator, a creditor of such debtor cannot cause his lands to be seized and sold, but such lands must be sold by the curator or upon his authority. Guitmond v. Gravel, Q. R. 19 S. C. 568, 4 Q. P. R. 17.

Sheriff of Another District-Validity —Setting Aside—Costs of Action to Set Aside Deed.]—An assignment to the sheriff of the Superior Court for the district of Quebec by a merchant who lives and carries on business in the district of Three Rivers is absolutely void; and so are the appoint-ment of a trustee and inspectors and all other proceedings thereunder. Any one concerned can on an application to the Superior Court at Quebec, on producing such assignment, have it declared void; and it is sufficient to give notice to the trustees and inspectors, without giving notice to the insolvent .- Such application was allowed with costs to the applicant without saying against whom. The costs of such application are costs incurred in the common interest, and the applicant can claim them "par privilege" from the proceeds of a sale by the sheriff of the lands of the debtor, although such sale was made by virtue of a writ of fi. fa. issued by another creditor after the cancellation of this assignment-The prothonotury, in preparing his scheme of tribution, ought to consider whether hypothecs reported by the registrar are legal; and if it appears by his certificate that a hypothec mentioned in it cannot be a legal clarge on the land sold, he should not take it into account.-The plaintiff in an "action who has set aside, as a fraud paulienne. patinenne. Who has set aside, as a fraud upon creditors, a deed of sale of land made by the debtor, has a good privilege for his costs on the proceeds of the sale of the land; but the prothonotary can only rank him for it, if he claims it by a protest in order to preserve it. The procedure to be followed in a dispute as to the order or ranking of claims is different from that of a dispute of a claim on the merits. Rousseau v. Ricard, Q. R. 26 S. C. 176.

Voluntary Assignment—Property Passing.]—Quere, whether the general rule that property in which a bankrupt has no beneficial interest does not pass to his trustee applies, so far as the legal title is concerned, in the case of a voluntary non-statutory assignment for the benefit of creditors. MacArthur v. MacDowall, 1 Terr. L. R. 345.

Voluntary Assignment for Creditors—Action by assignee to set aside mort-gage made by assigner — Cause of action. Dichl v. Wallace (N.W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 24.

IV. COMPOSITION.

Collateral Securities -- Reservation-Effect of.]-The respondent having assigned Effect 01.1—The respondent naving assigned to the appellants, as collateral security for advances, a sum of $5,000 owing to him by the Merchants Telephone Co. (the "mise-en-cause"), became financially embarrassed and compromised with his creditors at 75 cents on the dollar. The appellants executed the deed of composition, but added these words, "special reserve being made as to the securities which we hold." They then accepted They then accepted from the respondent 6 notes for 75 per cent. of their claim, and returned to him all the negotiable securities they had received from him as security for their claim. The first three notes were paid at maturity, and, as the appellants had received from the "m se-en-cause," under the assignment mentioned, an amount equal to the amount of the last three notes, the respondent called upon the appellants to give up these notes and re-transfer the debt assigned to them. The appellants refused, contending that the reservation in the composition deed was, according to commercial custom, to be considered as made in respect of their total claim, and that the agreement to accept 75 cents in the dollar did not extend to col-lateral securities:—Held, that the reserva-tion did not imply the obligation on the part of the respondent to pay even out of the collateral security which he had given the 25 cents which the appellants had abandoned by executing the deed of composition; that its effect was only to assure to the appellants, even as to such security, payment of their original claim, in case the respondent should fail to pay the composition notes at maturity; and that commercial usage, urged by the appellants, could not be admitted, in face of the express terms of the reservation, which was the contract between the parties. Banque d'Hochelaga v. Beauchamp, Q. R. 13 K. B. 417.

Composition Deed—Acceptance by creditor of dividend under—Subsequent action for balance of claim—Proviso as to acceptance by "all the creditors." Shepherd v. Murray, 3 O. W. R. 733.

Composition—Payment to Creditors as Inducement to Consent—Recovery Back—Set-off,]—Under our law deductions voluntarily made by creditors to their debtors do not leave a natural debt existing, and in this regard there is no difference between deductions agreed to between traders and the like between other persons. 2.—A payment made by a debtor to his creditor to induce him to sign a composition is contrary to public policy, and therefore is void as the contract itself, and may be recovered back; and such recovery may be by way of set-off. 3.—It is too late for the plaintiffs to oppose set-off when the cause has been submitted to the Court on the merits, when the parties have proceeded to trial upon the whole cause, and the Court is in a position to adjudiente at the same time upon the existence of the two debts and to liquidate them by its judgment. There is then nothing in the way of a set-off, and the Judge should order it. Kirouec v. Mattais, Q. R. 18 S. C. 158.

Compromise—Secret Agreement—Bribery -Inspector.]-A commercial firm having made an abandonment of its property for the benefit of its creditors, a secret arrangement was made whereby a particular creditor, without any legal right to preference or priority. was secured an advantage over the other creditors, through the assistance of one of the inspectors of the insolvent estate, to whom was promised a sum of money for his personal use, upon his advising the ac-ceptance of a proposal for the purchase of the estate upon a composition at a rate on the dollar to be paid to the creditors of the estate generally. The preferred creditor was, under the concealed arrangement, to receive an amount greater than the rate of the composition proposed, such additional sum to be paid by a third person who took no direct interest in the estate purchased :-Held, that the agreement was fraudulent void; that the proposed payment by and the third person was as much a fraud upon the general body of the creditors as if it had been promised by the insolvent firm it-self; and that the additional sum could not be recovered by the creditor so preferred:— Held, also, that the promise of the payment to the inspector was a bribe, and, for that reason alone, the transaction to induce which it was given should be adjudged corrupt, fraudulent, and void. Brigham v. Banque Jacques Cartier, 20 Occ. N. 371, 30 S. C.

Construction of Deed-Novation-Reservation of Collateral Security-Delivering up Evidence of Debt. |- By deed of composition and discharge, the defendants agreed to accept composition notes in discharge of their claim against the plaintiff, at a rate in the dollar, a special reservation being made as to the securities held for the debt due by the plaintiff. The original debt was to revive in full, on default in payment of any of the composition notes. Upon receiving the com-position notes, the defendants surrendered the notes representing the full amount of the claim:—Held, reversing the judgment appealed from, that the effect of the agreement, coupled with the reservation made, was that the debtor was to be discharged merely from personal liability on payment of the composition notes, but that the securities were to be still held by the defendants for the purpose of reimbursing themselves, if possible, to the extent of the balance of the original debt:-Held, also, that the surrender of the original notes by the defendants did not extinguish the debts they represented, and, in the circumstances, there was no novation. Beauchamp v. La Banque d'Hochelaga, 25 Occ. N. 96; La Banque d'Hochelaga v. Beauchamp, 36 S. C. R. 19.

V. CURATOR OF INSOLVENT ESTATE.

Appeal by Curator — Leave—Costs—Creditor — Divident Sheet—Dispute.]—The trustee of an insolvent estate has no right without the leave of the Court, on notice to the inspectors, to appeal from a judgment against him; the Court of Review may reject an appeal for this reason, although not invoked by the opposite party; the trustee who inscribes such an appeal, without the authority of a Judge, must bear the costs thereof, which he is ordered to pay personally; and a creditor, not of the insolvent, but of the trustee as such, has no right to dispute a dividend sheet prepared by the latter. Slater Shoe Co. v. Marchand, Q. R. .7 S. C. 123.

Appointment — Vacant Succession—Notice to Persons Interested—Intercention,]—The appointment of a curator to a vacant succession may be demanded by any "person interested," and that expression includes, besides creditors of the estate and specific or universal legatees, debtors who may have an interest in discharging their debts, and even persons who wish to being actions against the estate.—2. It is not necessary, in making such an appointment, to notify any person as opposed in interest, but it is necessary to notify every person interested for any reason, who may have the right to intervene for the purpose of seeing that it; curator is regularly appointed and that he gives the necessary security. In re Watson and Trudeau, 6 Q. P. R. 247.

Appointment of Curator—Vote to Creditors—Wife of Insolvent—Claim for Dower.]

—A stipulation for a fixed sum for dower does not render the wife a creditor of her hashand, but she becomes a conditional creditor of her husband's estate. Therefors, a wife cannot, on Pic. ground of her dower, be allowed to voie as a creditor upon the appointment of a curator, to property assigned by the husband. In re Couture and Gaudreau, 6 Q. P. R. 438.

Authorization to Defend Petition for Property of Estate. |—The curator of an insolvent estate cannot, without the consent of the creditors or the inspectors, and the authorization of a Judge, reply in writing to a summary petition to recover possession of goods which are in his hands by reason of the assignment. Rouce v. Hyde, 5 Q. P. R. 64.

Creditors' Claims — Communication to Other Creditors.]—The curator to an abandonment of property is bound to communicate to creditors information concerning the claims filed by other creditors, and documents accompanying these claims. Williamson v. Steemon. 5 Q. P. R. 407.

Creditors' Claims — Contestation by Curator—Defect in Service—Curing by letter—Subsequent Order.]—A letter written by the advocate of the curator to a creditor whose claim is contested, upon whom the contestation has not been served, informing him that such a contestation has been filled, and that he must attend to it or otherwise judgment will be given against him, cannot cure a defect in service of the contestation, especially when there is no proof that the letter reached the creditor. 2. The service upon a creditor whose claim is contested, who has not appeared and who is not represented by an advocate, of an order to answer sur faits et articles, to which order he does not appear, cannot cure a defect in service of the contestation. In re Moisan, Q. R. 22 S. C. 423.

Creditors' Claims—Contestation by Curator—Order Pour Faits et Articles—Default of Appearance—Signature of Advocate.]—An order pour faits et articles was returned on 6th May. The creditor whose claim was contested made default. He did not appear by attorney. Indorsed on the order were these words: "By consent, continued to 7th instant. 6th May 1901, F. P. T. R. & Co., attorneys for contestant. P. Cantin." The Court takes judical notice of the signature of advocates; therefore, it is informed that "P. Cantin" is the signature of an advocate. But that advocate not having appeared for the creditor whose claim was contested, there was nothing to shew that he had signed for the creditor or as being authorized by him.—Held, therefore, that the curator could not infer from the fact that the signature "P. Cantin" was there, as acquiescence by the creditor in the proceedings of the curator, or an act curing the default of service of the contestation. In re Moisan, Q. R. 22 S. C. 423.

Creditors' Claims—Contestation by Curator—Second Dividend Sheet—Contestation—Petition to Set Aside Judgment—Lis pendens.]—The curator prepared a second dividend sheet collocating the creditors for 17 per cent. In consequence of a judgment of default against a creditor, V., setting aside the collocation which the first dividend sheet had awarded, the curator completely omitted to collocate this creditor in his second sheet. At that time the creditor was not aware of the judgment upon his collocation on the first sheet. He thereupon contested the second sheet, demanding to be collocated upon it. Afterwards he became aware of the judgment upon the first sheet, and he thereupon presented a petition against that judgment: Held, that there was no lis pendens by the contestation of the second dividend sheet; that the petition and the contestation of the second sheet were two distinct proceedings. In re Moisean, Q. R. 22 S. C. 423.

Creditors' Claims—Contestation by Curator—Service—Judgment by Default—Void Service—Petition to Set Aside,]—The curator to an abandonment, having made and issued a first dividend sheet in which a creditor, V., was, with other creditors, collocated for 15 per cent., and having afterwards, with the necessary authorization, contested the collocation and the claim of V., must transmit the contestation to the prothonotary at once, and the contestation must be served on the creditors. 2. Such contestation not having been served, a judgment by default against the creditor maintaining the contestation will be rescinded upon petition. 3. The petition, although intituded "petition for review," if it contains all the material necessary for an ordinary petition will be conducted as the contained of the contestation, the bailiff, by mistake, serves upon him a copy of the contestation of collectation of another creditor, it is the same as if he had not been served at all, 6. Upon motion for leave to contest the report of service by the bailiff, a Judge will order preuve avant faire droit; and upon proof of the falsity of such report, it will be set aside. In re Moisan, Q. R. 22 S. C. 423.

Creditors' Claims—Delay in Filling—Distribution.)—A creditor who has not filed a claim with the curator to an abandonment of property, is not on that ground deprived of the right of resorting to the proceeds of the sale of the insolvent's goods for payment, but. if there still remain moneys to be distributed, he may demand payment of his claim in preference to other creditors to an amount in proportion to that which has been paid to them, and to be collocated at so much on the dollar with the other creditors for what remains due. In re Brais, Q. R. 22 S. C. 470.

Curator of Insolvent Estate — Payments to Privileged Creditors—Collocation—Formalities.)—The curator of an insolvent estate ought not to pay money received from the proceeds of the property of the insolvent, even to a privileged creditor, before all the formalities required by Art. 880, C. P., for the preparation of the memorandum of collocation have been observed. 2. The Court or a Judge should not as a general rule order the curator, although he is subject to the Court's summary jurisdiction, to depart from this Art. 880, C. P. In re Smith and Gagnon, Q. R. 22 S. C. 372.

Curator ad hoe—Conscil—Judiciaire—Winsh of Person Intereste': —The Court will not appoint a curator as hoc to a person under conseil judiciaire, to permit him to litigate interests opposed to those of the conseil judiciaire, when it does not appear that the person has himself expressed a desire to litigate. Meunier v. Meunier, 6 Q. P. R. 201.

Disputing Landlord's Lien.] — The curator to an insolvent estate has a right to attack a privilege claim by shewing that part of what is supposed to be rental goes to the repayment of a loan, and therefore does not constitute a privileged claim. In re Mercier and Pauzé, 3 Q. P. R. 483.

Execution Against Lands of Insolvent—Sale—Curator.]— After an abandonment of property of a debtor for the benefit of his creditors, one of the creditors cannot, in the execution of a judgment obtained against the debtor, cause to be seized and sold, without the consent of the curator, of the other creditors, or of the Court, the immovable property of the debtor, but the seizure and sale of the immovables must be made at the instance of the curator, Birks v. Lewis, Q. R. 8 Q. B. 517, discussed. Demers v. Gagnon, Q. R. 11 K. B. 498.

Goods in Hands of Curator—Seizure by Creditor — Saisie-gageric.] — Goods belonging to an insolvent estate and which are legally in possession of the curator to the estate, cannot be seized by a creditor of the insolvent. 2. Nor can such goods be seized by a creditor of the insolvent, by a writ of saisie-gagerie, even after they have been legally sold by the curator.—Forrest v. Letellier, Q. R. 24 S. C. 215.

Insolvent Estate — Claim—Contestation—Proof,]—When a creditor files a sworn claim, which is contested by the curator of the insolvent estate, it is for the creditor to prove his claim at the hearing, and the affidavit which be filed with his claim is not sufficient for that purpose. In re Teasier dit Lavigne, 6 Q. P. R. 179.

Insolvent Estate — Action by Curator—Authorization—Inspectors.]—A curator to an insolvent estate, who has taken the advice of the inspectors upon the advisability of a suit, and obtained the approval of a minority of them, may, with the approval of a Judge, institute suit on behalf of the estate. Desmarteau v. Steel, 6 Q. P. R. 149.

Insolvent Party to Action—Substitution of Curator—Application for—Wherein made.]—An authorization to litigate an action in the name of a party who has become insolvent since the institution of the action must be obtained upon petition made in the matter of the insolvent estate, and not in the action in which the curator proposes to litigate in the place of the insolvent. Clark v. Wilder, 5 Q. P. R. 24

Opposition to Science—Leave.]—The curator to an insolvent estate has a right to oppose the seizure and sale of the insolvent's property seized in execution of a judgment obtained against another person, and may do so without leave of the Judge. Paquette v. Dish 3, 30, P. R. 480.

Transfer of Debt—Attack by Another Creditor—Purchase of Claims by—Litipious Rights, 1—A creditor of an insolvent debtor has no status to maintain that the assignee of another creditor of the same debtor has not given valuable consideration, and that notice of the transfer his not been given to the debtor. 2.—Nothing in the law prevents the curator of an insolvent estate from purchasing from creditors of such estate the claims which they have against it. 3.—The plea of "litiglous rights" can only prevail where the debtor making it offers to reimburse the purchaser the amount he has disbursed. Johnson v. Sharsucood, 3 Q. P. R. 473.

VI. ENAMINATION OF INSOLVENT OR THIRD PARTY.

Advocate — Cross-examination — Discovery.]—By virtue of Arts, 882 and 883. C. P. C., a creditor of the insolvent, or the curator, with the authorization of the inspectors, may subpena the debtor to appear before the Judge or the prothonotary, and

The insolvent is not entitled to be represented or; assisted by an advocate upon such examination, and at any rate the advocate of the insolvent has no right to cross-examine him; the examination authorized by these Articles being only preliminary information to the creditors or to the curator. In re Riopelle and Kent, 4 Q. P. R. 180.

Insolvent a Party—Right to be Present—Cross-Examination.]—Under Art, 883, C. P. C., the insolvent has the right to be represented by counsel at the examination of persons whom the curator deems capable of furnishing information regarding the insolvency; moreover, such person may be cross-examined on behalf of the insolvent in the manner and form prescribed by Art. 340, C. P., the insolvent being considered a party to the proceedings. Cohen v. Kent, 7 Q. P. R. 26.

Refusal to Answer — Contempt of Court.]—An insolvent cannot be imprisoned for contempt of Court because he refuses to answer one question put to him by the curator while under examination, Naze v. Kent, 5 Q. P. R. 94.

VII. PREFERENCE.

Bill of Sale—Levy by Sheriff—Action or Proceeding"—Pressure—Presumption.]— In an action against a sheriff for the conversion of goods levied upon by him under executions issued on judgments recovered against R., the plaintiff's title to the goods depended upon a bill of sale from R.—The evidence shewing that R. was an insolvent, and the effect of the giving of the bill of sale being to give the plaintiff's a preference over the other creditors of R., and the levy made by the defendant having been made within sixty days from the giving of the bill of sale:—Held, that the levy was "action for the transfer, within the meaning of R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 145, s. 4, and that, under the provisions of s.-s. (2), the bill of sale must be presumed to have been made with intent to give an unjust preference, and to be such preference, whether made voluntate the creditors represented by the defendant, it was utterly vold. Shediac Boot and Shoe Vo. v. Buchanan, 35 N. S. Reps. 511.

Bill of Sale—Pressure — Authority of Partner.]—A firm composed of three members being insolvent and being indebted to the plaintiffs and also to the defendants, one of the members of the firm, under a threat of an action by the defendants, executed a bill of sale of all the firm's assets under which the defendants immediately took possession; Held, that the bill of sale was not a fraudulent preference, but was given bonn fide under pressure, and that the member of the firm who executed it had implied authority to do so, or his partners had ratified his act or were estopped from denying his authority. McClary Mfg. Co. v. Howland, 9 B. C. R. 479.

Chattel Mortgage—Attack on—Time— Presumption—Satisfaction of Onus—Good Faith—Notice—Knowledge, Keenan v. Richardson, 1 O. W. R. 333.

Chattel Mortgage by Insolvent Debtor-Registration—Bills of Sale Ordinance—Preferential Assignments Ordinance—Absence of intent to defeat creditors — Pressure—Which has such effect." Ross Brothers Limited v. Pearson (N. W. T.), 1 W. L. R. 388, 575, 2 W. L. R. 259.

Confession of Judgment-Pressure Absence of Collusion — Presumption.]—The defendant in consideration of a promise by a trader to pay to the defendant a sum of money on account of indebtedness within a given time or to give security, and believing the trader to be solvent, gave him on credit a further supply of goods. Subsequently the trader, becoming insolvent, announced the fact to his creditors. The defendant thereupon reminded the trader of his promise to him, and urged and induced him to give a confession of judgment for the amount of his indebtedness to the defendant, and to execute an assignment of his book debts to him:— Held, that the confession of judgment, having been obtained by pressure and without collusion, was not within s. 1 of 58 V. c. 6, and that the assignment of book debts, having been obtained by pressure, was not within s. 2. The presumption created by s. 2 (a) of the Act does not arise where the sixty days therein mentioned have expired at the date the writ of summons in the suit is sent to the sheriff for service, though the sixty days had sherin for service, though the sixty days and not expired at the date of the teste of the writ. Amherst Boot and Shoe Co. v. Sheyn. 21 Occ. N. 415, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 236.

Debt not Due—Set-off.]—The state of insolvency of a debtor fixes the position of his creditors, and on account of such insolvency core one of them can obtain a preference over the others. 2. One of such creditors, who is at the same time a debtor of his debtor, but whose debt is not yet exigible, cannot, by renouncing the benefit of the term by which the debt to him is not yet due, and by asserting a set-off, acquire such a preference. Ville-Marie Bank v. Vannier. 1 Q. R. 20 S. C. 545.

Equitable Mortgage or Assignment of Insurance Moneys—Suit by Creditors of Assign to Set aside.]—On and previous to the 4th August, 1903. C. was indebted to the defendant for money lent; on that date he demanded security and C. handed to the defendant two interim receipts for insurance on the hotel owned by C., and pledged them to the defendant as security, and he was the holder thereof at the time the hotel was burned. Shortly after the fire C. arranged with one

S. to rebuild the hotel, and he authorized collect the insurance moneys. then (26th August) agreed with the defendant that if he would hand over the insurance documents he held to S., the latter would pay the defendant out of the insurance $600 and guarantee payment of the balance due the defendant; pursuant to the same end the defendant handed over the documents. About the 5th September C. decided not to rebuild the hotel, and on that date gave to the defendant an assignment of the insurance moneys in S.'s hands, to the extent of $2,200, to secure the defendant, and, as C. stated, to take the place of the original arrangement. assignment was attacked by C.'s credi 's creditors :-Held, that by the dealings that took place between the parties on the 4th August the intention was that C, should pledge to the defendant the insurance on the hotel to secure the claim of the latter. The papers handed over were believed by both parties to represent actual insurance, and the transaction was intended to operate as a security in favour of the defendant. It might be regarded either as an equitable mortgage or an equitable assignment. The three transactions of 4th August, 26th August, and 5th September were all connected together; the transaction of the 4th August could not be successfully attacked, and the plaintiffs could not confine their attack to one detail out of several. S. became a trustee of the proceeds in favour of the defendant; that trusteeship arose when the insurance papers were delivered to S. Ferguson v. Bryans, 24 Occ. N. 194.

Extension Agreement — Secret Advantage — Voluntary Payment — Action by Assignce—Status.]—S., a trader, in August, 1899, procured the consent in writing of his creditors to payment of his debts then due and maturing, by notes at different dates extending to the following March. V., one of the creditors, insisted on more prompt payment of part of his claim, and took from S. notes, agreeding in September, which S. agreed in writing to pay at maturity, and did pay. In November, 1899, S. assigned for the benefit of his creditors, when the arrangement between him and V. first became known, and the assignee and other creditors brought an action to recover $70S from V. as part of the insolvent estate:—Held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 3 O. L. R., 5, 21 Occ. N. 551, and that at the trial, 32 O. R. 216, 20 Occ. N. 437, that S. having paid the notes voluntarily without oppression or coercion, could not himself have recovered back the amount, and his assignee was in no better position. Langley v. Van Allen, 22 Occ. N. 222, 32 S. C. R. 174.

Imprisonment of Insolvent.]— A debrow who arranges with one of his creditors, his relative, to make an assignment for the benefit of creditors, after having handed over to his relative goods in payment of part of what he owes him, and moreover does not give the names of all his creditors, will, upon proof of these facts, be committed to gaol as provided by art. 888, C. P. In re Thibault and Gardner, 4 Q. P. R. 259.

Knowledge of Insolvency—Pressure.]
—Where there is good consideration a mortgage comprising the whole of a debtor's property will not be set aside, notwithstanding that the mortgagor is in insolvent circumstances, to the knowledge of the mortgage, and that the effect of the mortgage is to defeat, delay, and prejudice the creditors, if there is pressure. Adams v. Bank of Montreal, S B, C, R, 314, 32 S, C, R, 719.

Payment in Ordinary Course of Business — Power of attorney. Goulet v. t. reening, 1 O. W. R. 550.

Payment of Salary—Fraud on Creditors—Attachment of Salary,]—A contract by which the wife of an insolvent is to receive from a third person for services to be rendered by her husband a certain salary and a part of the profits of the business of the third person, is void as being made in fraud of creditors. Accordingly, the creditors of the husband can seize in execution or attach the salary due under such contract. Orsali v. Aubry, Q. R. 24 S. C. 320.

Pressure—Intent.]—In giving the chattel mortgage impeached in this action it appeared that the dominant motive of the debtor was to make an arrangement for continuing his business, the defendant having induced him to give it by promises of assistance in carrying him along and in arranging with other creditors, although not in any definite way enforceable in a Court of law -Held, that, under s. 33 of the Assignments Act, R. S. M. c. 7, as amended by 63 & 64 V. c. 3, s. 1, there must still be the intent on the part of the debtor to prefer the particular creditor, in order to set aside the impeached conveyance: and, while the effect of it may be to place that creditor in a more advantageous position than other creditors, and the debtor may recognize at the time that such will be the effect, yet if he gave it for some other puror in the hope that he might thus be pose or in the hope that he might thus be enabled to avoid insolvency, it cannot be considered that he gave if with intent to give a preference, and the security should stand. Stephens v. McArthur, 19 S. C. R. 446, New Prance and Garrard's Trustee v. Hunting, 118971 2 Q. B. 19, S. C., sub.nom. Sharp v. Jackson, [1899] A. C. 419, Lawson v. McGeoch, 20 A. R. 464, and Armstrong v. Johnson, 32 O. R. 15, followed. Although the averaging act delayers that a regime face preamending Act declares that a prima facie presumption of an intent to prefer is to arise from the effect of such a transaction, this does not justify the Court in looking only to the effect and refusing to attach any weight to the proved facts as to the actual intent. The presumption being only prima facie may be rebutted by evidence:—Held, also, that the Court need not determine whether the preferred creditor was acting bona fide or really anticipated that the other creditors could be arranged with and the business continued, it being only the debtor's mental attitude that should be considered. Codville v. Fraser, 22 Occ. N. 123, 14 Man. L. R. 12.

Pressure—Intent—Notice.]—A debtor mortgaged all his real estate to the defendant, and shortly afterwards made an assignment to the plaintiff for the benefit of his creditors senerally. Before the giving of the mortgage he was and knew himself to be insolvent. On the day the mortgage was given the defendant went to the debtor and asked for payment, and the debtor informed him he could

A debtor lefendant, ssignment creditors mortgage insolvent. in the ded for payhe could make none, and then gave the mortgage. The evidence was contradictory as to whether there was a request for security:—Held, that when the debtor gave the mortgage he was in insolvent circumstances; the execution of it had the effect of giving the defendant a preference over the unsecured creditors; it must be presumed that the mortgage was executed a preference. Stephens v. McArthur, 19 S. C. R. 446, followed. 2. At and before the execution of the mortgage, the defendant had notice of the insolvency and of the mortgage heing made with intent to give him a preference over other creditors and having such effect. Pressure — Knowledge of Insolvency— Yukon Ordinance, — The effect of s. 2 of the Yukon Ordinance, c. 38, Consolidated Ordinances, 1902, is to remove the doctrine of pressure in respect to preferential assignments, and, consequently, all assignment made by persons in insolvent circumstances come within the terms of the Ordinance. In order to render such an assignment void, there must be knowledge of the insolvency on the part of both parties and concurrence of intention to obtain an unlawful preference over the other creditors. Molsons Bank v. Halter, 18 S. C. R. S8, Stephens v. McDonald, 29 S. C. R. . 587, referred to. Benatlack v. Bank of British North America, 36 S. C. R. 120.

Promissory Notes—Composition—Costs of Action.]—I. Where a creditor, who was also one of the inspectors of the insolvent estate, exacted promissory notes from the insolvent as a condition of his assent to a composition of the insolvent as a condition of his assent to a composition of the insolvent as a condition of his assent to a composition of the insolvent as a condition of his assent to a composition of the insolvent as a condition of the Transfer by Insolvent Debtor - Attacking-Time-Division Court Proceeding-Collateral Inquiry-Pressure-Evidence of.] A garnishee summons was issued from a Division Court on the 22nd January, 1900, wherein the primary creditor claimed from the primary debtor $200 upon a due bill, and whereby all debts due from an insurance company to the primary debtor were attached. The primary debtor had recovered a judgagainst the insurance company on the 7th December, 1899, and had assigned the judgment on the same day to the claimant. No formal notice of the proceedings in the Division Court or of any contest as to his rights was ever given to the claimant, but he appeared in the proceedings on the 6th July, 1900, and consented to an adjournment of them, and afterwards appeared again before the Judge, when his rights under the assignment were tried, and judgment was given against him setting aside the assignment as an unjust preference:—Held, on appeal, that the transfer to the claimant was not attacked when the summons was issued, nor until the claimant appeared in the proceedings, and, therefore, it was not attacked within sixty days, and its validity could be supported by proof of pressure in procuring it:—Held, also, Falcoubridge, C.J., dissenting, that, as it appeared from the evidence both of the primary debtor and the claimant, that the latter had asked the former for security shortly before the security was given, and that the security given was that which was promised, there was pressure inducing the giving of the security, and it should be upheld, notwithstanding that the claimant was merely liable for a debt of the primary debtor which it was expected he should pay, as he did, and notwith-standing that he was not present at the time the assignment was made to him, it having been drawn by his solicitor. Moisons Bank v. Halter, 18 S. C. R. 88, and Stephens v. McArthur, 19 S. C. Z. 446, followed. Murphy v. Colvell, 22 Occ. N. 111, 3 O. L. R. 314, 1

Transfer of Goods—Presumption.] —
The statutory presumption of the invalidity of a preferential transfer of goods is rebutted by shewing that it was entered into by the transfere in good faith and without knowing, or having reason to believe, that the transferor was insolvent. Dana v. McLean, 21 Occ. N. 555, 2 O. L. R. 486.

VIII. OTHER CASES.

Action for Debt—Dejence—Discharge in Bankruptey in England.]—A plea that the defendants were adjudged bankrupt, and a certificate of discharge granted, in England, under the Bankruptey Act, 1883, is a good answer to an action for a debt provable against the defendants in bankruptey, brought in New Brunswick by the subject of a foreign state who had never resided or been domiciled within British Dominions. Nicholson v. Baird, N. B. Eq. Cas. 195, considered. Ford v. Steveart, 35 N. B. Reps. 508.

Assignments Act, Manitoba - Action by Assignee—Preference—Novation—Executed Contract—Non-rescission.]—M. & Co. were indebted to the defendant G., amongst other creditors, and were pressed by G. for other creditors, and were pressed by G. for payment. The defendant L. offered to buy M. & Co.'s stock, and approached G. to find out whether, if he did so buy, G. would accept him as debtor in the place of M. & Co. G. agreed to do so, and L. bought the stock, and bound himself to M. & Co. to pay their debt to G., and to procure the latter to release them, M. & Co., from that debt. He paid M. & Co. in cash the difference between the purchase price of the stock (82% cents on the dollar) and the amount of their debt to G.; he also bound himself to G. to pay to M. & Co,'s debt to them, and procured from G, and delivered to M. & Co., a release in full of their debt to G. There was thus a complete novation as to the debt due to G. A few days later, and within 60 days after the novation, M. & Co. assigned under the provisions of the Assignments Act, for the benefit of their creditors, to the plaintiff. G. did not know M. & Co. to be insolvent, and entered into the arrangement with L. in good faith :- Held, that it was doubtful whether such a novation could be attacked under the Assignments Act.
The contract had been partly performed on L.'s part, and wholly on that of G. The latter had released M. & Co. absolutely, and in so doing had also released one B. from his covenant which G. held, to pay the liability to G. of a former firm, which M. & Co. had assumed, and $1,200 of which was still unpaid, at the time of the assumption of M. & Co.'s debt by L. and was included in that debt. G. had lost recourse against M. & Co. and the members of that firm. Even if the plaintiff could by this action consent that G., if the novation were set aside, should be at liberty to rank on the estate and receive dividends, the Court could not restore to G. his rights as against the members of the firm of M. & Co. as those had been released in good faith, and it could not restore the claim against B. Neuton v. Lilly, 24 Occ. N. 250.

Assignments Act, Manitoba—Action by Creditors—Time—Amendment—Statute of Limitations—Preference—Assignment of Insurance Moneys.]—The plaintiffs brought action on the 2nd November, 1903, on "behalf of themselves and all other creditors of C.

. who are willing to join in and contribut towards the payment of the expenses thereof," to set aside, as a fraudulent prefer-ence, an assignment by C. to the defendant, dated the 5th September, 1903, of certain moneys payable under fire insurance policies to secure the defendant's claim against C. C. had not assigned under the Assignments Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. S. On the 4th December, 1903, the plaintiffs amended by adding after the words cuoted, "and the same is brought for the benefit of the creditors generally of the said debtor:"—Held, that there was no suit brought for the benefit of the creditors generally, or of such as had been injured, delayed, or prejudiced, to impeach the transaction in question, until the amendment of the 4th December was made, which was more than 60 days after the date of the impeached transaction; and that this objection was fatal, notwithstanding the provision in s. 48 (b) that "in case any amendment of the statement of claim be made, the same shall relate back to the commencement of the action for the purpose of the time limited by the 40th section hereof."—The right to sue and the relief to be given are created by the statute and must be construed strictly. The amendments referred to in that provision must, in strict construction, be confined to allegations of law or fact upon which the relief is to be founded, and that provision presupposes an action to have been commenced in the form provided within 60 days,-On the merits, also, the findings of fact were that the impeached assignment was not a fraudulent preference within the meaning of the Act, as it was only the last of a series of transactions all connected together which should be treated as a whole, and so treated, were not open to attack. Ferguson v. Bryans, 24 Occ. N. 194, 15 Man. L. R. 170.

Assirnments Act, Ontario—Assignee for Creditors—Removal—Notice of Motion—Grounds—Evidence—Proposed Examination of Assignee—Judicature Act and Rules,]—Where a summary motion is made under s. S. (1) of the Assignments and Preferences Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 147, to remove an assignee for the benefit of creditors, the notice of motion should state the grounds, or they should at least appear in the material filedin support of the application. The ordinary procedure in an action is not applicable to such a notion; and where an appointment to examine the assignee in support of the application, under Con. Rule 491, was taken out and served, it was held that he was not obliged to attend upon it, the officer having no authority to issue it. In re Wilson, 24 Occ. N. 20, 6 O. L. R. 594, 2 O. W. R. 1033.

Greditor—Inspector—Promissory Notes—Fraud.]—A creditor of an insolvent estate was appointed one of the inspectors thereof. A compromise was proposed, but this inspector would only agree to the same upon the insolvent giving him promissory notes in return for his assent to the arrangement. An action was subsequently brought on these notes:—Held, that the notes were null and vold, both because they were made in fraud of the other creditors, and also as being against public order; and that, therefore, no action could be maintained on them, either by the creditor himself or by a prête-nom. Cartier v. Geaser, 22 Occ. N. 416.

Debtor of Insolvent—Acquisition of Claim—Net-off.]—A debtor of an insolvent (not in bankruptcy) may acquire the claim of a third person against such insolvent, and, after notice of the assignment of the claim, there may be a set-off between the two claims. Villeneuve v. Matte, Q. R. 11 K. B. 192.

Distribution of Assets of Insolvent—Procedure—Allegations—Proof—Oppointion—Acknowledgment—Error of Law.,]—It is not necessary that the allegation of the intion, should be supported by a deposition under conserver, or in an opposition en distribution, should be supported by a deposition under oath, in order to authorize an appeal by creditors; such deposition is required only for the purpose of proving that the sum claimed by the opposant is justly due.—2. An acknowledgment based upon an error of law may not be invoked against the party who made it. Décary v. Brodit Pominville, Q. R. 19 S. C. 563, 4 Q. P. R. 20 S.

Extension Agreement — Secret Advantage—Voluntary Payments.] — The defendants, while ostensibly entering into an extension agreement, took secretly from the debtor notes at short dates for a large pertion of their claim in favour of their nomine. These notes the debtor paid, and shortly afterwards made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, the general extension payments not having been met:—Held, that the other parties to the extension agreement, sing in their own names, and in the name of the assignee, under an order, could not recover back the amount paid. A discrepancy between two statements made by the debtor,—one made 31st December, 1900, shewing a surplus of $1,227, and the other, made 26th July, 1901, shewing a deficit of $1,849, while it raises a presumption of mismanagement of his business and of extravagance in his expenses, does not shew conclusively any omission to enter property belonging to him, in the statement filed with his declaration of abandonment, or secretion of any part of his property. Bryce v. Wilks, Q. R. 11 K. B. 404.

Goods in Possession of Insolvent --Agreement between Insolvent and Vendor Construction—Sale or Agency for Sale—Bills of Sale Act.]-Certain goods were supplied by the defendant to a trading company, and it was arranged between the company and the defendant that the company might sell the whole or any part of the goods to whomsoever they chose, and for such price and on such terms as they might see fit; but they were, whenever a sale was made, to pay in cash to the defendant the price of the article sold, according to a price list which was furnished to them by the defendant when the goods were from time to time delivered to the company. The company had also the right, whether they had made a sale or not, to become the owners of the whole or any part of the goods at the prices named in the list, and they had also the right at any time to return the whole or any of the goods which remained unsold. The company made a statutory assignment to the plaintiff for the benefit of creditors, and the defendant took back the goods:—Held, in an action for re-turn of the goods or damages for their conversion, that the goods were not at the time of the assignment the property of the com-pany, but were in their possession either as ballees or agents of the defendant, with the right, of and when they elected to buy, to become the purchasers of the whole or any part of them at the prices mentioned in the part of them at the prices mentioned in the price list. Ex p. White, L. R. 6 Ch. 397 and 8. C. in appeal sub-nom. Fowle v. White, 21 W. R. 465, 29 L. T. N. S. 78, explained and distinguished;—Held, also, that s. 41 of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R. 8. O. 1897 c. 148, did not apply to this case; it refers to the contract of the sub-new forms of the sub-new forms. it refers to sales or transfers in the nature of sales, by which the possession is to pass of sairs, by which the possession is to pass presently, but not the property in the mer-chandise until the agreed price or considera-tion is paid. Insolvent Estate—Claim of Inspector—Meeting of Creditors.]—If the inspectors of an insolvent estate are equally divided as to the advisability of contesting a claim of their co-inspector against the estate, the Judge will order the curator to call a meeting of the creditors to decide upon the advisability of contesting the claim at the expense of the estate. In re Duese and Walsh, 6 Q. P. R. S5.

Insolvent Estate—Contestation by Creditors—Illegal Collocation.]—Any creditor has a sufficient interest to contest illegal collocations, although it does not at the time appear whether he himself would be collocated in case those claiming to be creditors should be ruled out.—By such a contestation the creditor may allege a series of fraudulent acts calculated to defeat the just claims of the contestant, and, in particular, the non-existence of certain claims appearing as discharged by the trustee in the interest of the insolvent, in order to pay him back the amount. In re Malouf and Beaulieu, 7 Q. P. R. 152.

Insolvent Estate — Creditor's Claim— Contestation—Costs—Fund for Payment.]— A creditor whose claim is contested is not entitled to an order providing that no part of the moneys which will come to him out of the insolvent estate shall be made to contribute to the costs of the contestation. Insolvent Estate—Liquidation—Mandate—Assignment—Froud on Orceditors.]—An insolvent debtor may employ some one to liquidate his property for the benefit of his creditors. That is a mandate and not an assignment.—2. Even if he makes a voluntary assignment of all his property, it will be declared void only if made in fraud of creditors. Chouinard v. Caron, Q. F. 25 S. Insolvent Estate-Sale of Timber by Insolvent - Rights of Workmen - Woodmen's Liens - Rights of Claimants - Duty of Assignee.] - The privilege conferred by art. 1994c, of the civil code, on woodchoppers, for securing the payment of their wages, ceases when the timber passes into the manus third person, who has purchased it, obtained third person, who has purchased it. But this delivery of it, and paid for it. But this privilege is not lost by a sale of the timber cut, if, in fact, there has not been delivery, and the wood remains in the possession of the vendor, and the same is the case when the purchaser has made advances to the vendor, exceeding the amount realized by the subsequent sale of this timber by the assignees in insolvency of the vendor.-A contract of sale of such timber entered into before and during the time it is being cut, for which the consideration is advances and past due debts, is not in fraud of the rights of unpaid workmen, for their right in respect of the timber is preserved notwithstanding such sale, -In this case, the timber in question had been sold by direction of the Court, by the assignees in insolvency of the lumberman, and the proceeds of the saie paid into Court until the final disposition of the matter. By the judgment of the Superior Court, pay of this timber had been declared the exclu .ve property of the claimants, and part to be subject to the workmen's right:—Held, that the assignees were not bound to pay over directly to the claimants the proceeds of the sale of that part of the timber belonging to then; but they ought to make a regular distribution of it by way of an ordinary dividend. BANKS AND BANKING.

Advances-Security-Bank Act-Chattel Mortgage-Insolvency - Assignment - Conversion.]-H. held a chattel mortgage (unregistered) on G.'s sawmill, with the machinery and lumber therein, and all lumber which thereafter might be brought upon the premises, G., having an order for a large quantity of lumber from a contractor, applied to the bank for an advance. By agreement with the bank, G. assigned the contractor's order to his bookkeeper, and agreed to cut logs at a price fixed and deliver them to the book-keeper at the millside. The latter assigned to the bank all moneys to accrue in respect of the contract, which assignment was agreed to the contract, which assignment was agreed to by the contractor, and also assigned to the bank four booms of logs, by numbers, pur-porting to act under s. 74 of the Bank Act. Two or three days later G. made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, previous to which the logs had arrived at the mill and were mixed with other logs of G. The greater part had been converted into lumber when H. seized them under his chattel mortgage:—Held, affirming the judgment in 7 B. C. R. 465, that no property in the logs assigned to the bank had passed to G., and H. could not claim them .- Shortly before G.'s assignment, his bookkeeper transferred to the bank a chattel mortgage from G. to secure $800 :- Held, that the assignee had been guilty of no acts of conversion, and was not liable to pay the bank the balance due on this mortgage. The mortgage was not given to secure advances, and did not give the bank a first lien. The bank were in the same position as if they had received the mortgage directly from G. when he was notoriously insolvent. Merchants Bank of Halifax v. Houston, 21 Occ. N. 401, 31 S. C. R. 361.

Bank Act, s. 46—Inspection of Customor's Account—Evidence in Action—Company—Manager—Private Liabilities—Winding-up—Liquidator—Promissory Notes—Consideration)—Section 46 of the Bank Act, 1890, 53 V. c. 31 (D.), does not enable a bank to reause to disclose its transactions with one of its customers, when the propriety of those transactions is in question in a court of law between the bank and another customer who attacks them, and shews good cause for requiring the information he seeks. The company had an account with the bank (claimant), and the manager of the company (who had power to sign notes for the company) had also an account at the same office of the bank. The claim of the bank against the company in winding-up proceedings included a number of promissory notes made by the manager and indorsed by the company. dator shewed that notes so made and indorsed had been charged at maturity to the company's account by the direction of the manager, and that renewals of these notes formed part of the bank's claim:—Held, that the liquidator, in examining the agent of the bank for the purpose of shewing that the original consideration for several of the notes included in the bank's claim was an advance to the manager for his own private purposes, and that the agent, knowing these notes to be the private debt of the manager, had, at his request, charged them, to the company's account, was entitled to refer to the manager's own account with the bank, though the manager was not a party. Held, also that there was nothing to prevent the liquidator, who stood in the place of the company, from impeaching the consideration for the notes of fered in proof by the bank, just as the com-pany itself might have done, but no further. Held, also, that periodical acknowledgments given by the manager to the bank of the correctness of the company's account could not be set up as a bar to an inquiry into the account, where specific errors in it were charged, to the knowledge of the bank. In re Chatham Banner Co., Bank of Montreal's Claim, 22 Occ. N. 22, 2 O. L. R. 672.

Banker's Lien—Overdrawn Accounts— Partner's Separate Account—Costs—"Good Cause"—Scale of Costs.]—Decision of Martin, J., 21 Occ. N. 576, 8 B. C. R. 143; in favour of the plaintiff in an action for damages against a bank for refusing to pay a cheque, affirmed by the full court:—Held, that there was no good cause for depriving the plaintiff of costs, but his costs should be on the scale of the County Courts, the recovery being for $199.97, and interest. Richards v. Bank of British North America, 21 Occ. N. 567, 8 B. C. R. 143, 209.

Bill of Lading-Draft Attached-Examination of Goods—Surrender of Bill—Conversion—Pleading — Amendment — Costs— Measure of Damages.]-The judgment in 4 Terr. L. R. 498 affirmed on the merits with a variation in form and as to costs:—Held by the majority of the Court, that had the consignees, as in Shepherd v. Harrison, L. R. 5 H. L. 116, sent the bill of exchange, with the bill of lading attached, directly to the defendant, they might have sued for the price on the basis of the defendant's acceptance of the goods, or for damages on the basis of a conversion. In the former case the defendant could have set up the defective quality of the goods in diminution of the price. In the latter case the measure of damages would have been the value of the goods to the consignors, which would probably be the same as in the former case. The bank, as the holders of the bill of lading, were in no better position than the consignors. Imperial Bank v. Hull, 4 Terr. L. R. 498, 5 Terr. L. R. 313.

there. A number of applications were sent in by him to the head office, which, with the exception of five, were fictitious. As to these five the insurances subsequently lapsed, of which the company were kept in ignorance. Afterwards N., representing that the insured were dead, and the claims payable under the policies, sent in to the head office claim papers, filling in the names of the claimants and forging their signatures thereto, whereupon cheques for the respective amounts made by the company in favour of the alleged claimants, and payable at a branch of the defendbank, were sent to N., whose duty it was, on the receipt, to see the payees and pro-cure discharges from them. The indorse-ments of the payees' names were forged by N., the genuineness of the signatures on most of the cheques being certified to by his attestation. The cheques were presented to and paid by the bank in good faith, to whom or how did not appear, the amounts thereof being charged to the company :-Held, Maclaren, J.A., dissenting, that there was no evidence that the bank were aware that N. had any connection with the transactions out of which the cheques arose, and that they were not entitled to rely on his identification of the payees or attestation of their signatures :-Held, however, that, under the circumstances, the cheques must be regarded as payable to fictitious or non-existent persons, and therefore, under s.-s. 3 of s. 7 of the Bills of Exchange under s.s. 3 of s. 1 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, payable to bearer, and that the bank had the right to pay and charge the com-pany with the amounts. Collateral Securities-Account of-Payments on-Evidence-Reversal of Finding of Fact.]-A creditor who has received collaterals as security for a debt is bound, after payment of the debt, to return them or account to the debtor for their face value, in the absence of evidence to shew that the respective amounts of them could not be collected. Driffil v. McFall, 41 U. C. R. 313, followed. The County Court Judge disallowed certain sums of money which the defendants swore the plaintiff bank had received on cer-tain collateral securities held for them, because their evidence shewed that these sums had first been received by defendants, and they were unable to give dates and particulars of the payments to the bank, and had no books or memoranda to support their statements, and he was of opinion that they should have given undoubted evidence of the times of receipt and payment to the bank, or in some other way brought home to the bank conother way clusively the receipt and non-credit of the money, but his verdict was not based on any finding that the defendants were unworthy of belief as witnesses :- Held, that, under the circumstances, it was proper for the Court above to review the finding of the County Court Judge upon the evidence, and that, taking into consideration the bank's duty to produce or account for the collaterals, which it had failed to do, and the presumption to be drawn from such failure, the defendants had sufficiently proved the receipt of said moneys by the bank, and were entitled to judgment. Union Bank v. Elliott, 22 Occ. N. 331, 14 Man. L. R. 187.

Directors—False Reports—Right of Action—Statutory, Suspension—Prescription—Demurrer,—The recourse of creditors against the President or directors of the Banque du Peuple, for false reports, etc., was suspended by 60 & 61 V. c. 75 and 62 & 63 V. c. 123. 2. The right of action against the directors of the Banque du Peuple, personally, was not taken away by 62 & 63 V. c. 123. 3. A director cannot invoke such Act by way of demurrer, but only by a plea to the merits, 4. Quere:—Can short prescriptions be pleaded by way of demurrer, when the time required for the acquisition thereof appears to have elapsed? Préfontaine v, Grenier, 4 Q. P. R. 21.

Discount of Notes-Excessive Rates of Interest-Payment by Cheques on Overdrawn Account, Afterwards Met. 1-The plaintiffs, a banking corporation subject to the provisions of the Bank Act, discounted notes made by the defendant, one of their customers, and also allowed him to overdraw his current account. The notes were payable on demand, and purported to bear interest at 20 per cent. per annum. The defendant also agreed pay interest at that rate on his overdraft; afterwards the rate was reduced to 18 per The defendant from time to time gave the plaintiffs cheques to pay interest accrued; when the cheques were given, the accounts they were drawn against had already been overdrawn. But each account was at some date after the giving and charging up of such cheques on it changed into a credit balance in the defendant's favour by deposits or by collections made by the plaintiffs for the defendant's account. Those cheques covered such interest up to the 31st January, 1902.—The plaintiffs credited themselves with interest at 24 and 18 per cent. up to 31st January, 1902, and alleged that it was paid them by the above cheques:—Held, that judgment should be entered for the plaintiffs, with a reference to the Master to take the accounts. The defendant did not recall the cheques or stop payment of them. They were given to the plaintiffs as creditors of the defendant, and not as his bankers. They were in effect directions to the plaintiffs as the defendant's bankers to pay the amounts to themselves as creditors as soon as there should be available funds at his credit with them, as his bankers, to pay them with, and they were in fact paid out of such funds when available; and the defendant could not recover the excess over seven per cent.—From the 31st January, 1902. the plaintiffs could charge the defendant with interest at the rate of five per cent. only, that being the legal rate. Bank of British North America v. Bossuyt, 23 Occ. N. 338.

Interest—Cheques — Payment — Excessive Rate, 1—The defendant borrowed large sums of money from the plaintiff bank, by way of overdraft and on promissory notes. Having agreed to pay interest, first at 24 per cent. and afterwards at 18 per cent. per annum, the defendant from time to time gave the bank cheques on his current account to pay the interest at those rates respectively up to the 31st January, 1902. When cheques were given, the account had When such ready been overdrawn, but it was afterwards changed into a credit balance in the defendant's favour by deposits or by collections made by the bank for the defendant's acdeemed to have been payment of the interest, and that the defendant could not recover back such interest or any part of it, although it was in excess of the 7 per cent. rate which the Bank Act permits a bank to charge; also, that, under ss. 80 and 81 of the Bank Act, the bank were not entitled to sue for and recover interest accruing after the 31st January, 1902, at 7 per cent. per annum, but could only recover interest at the legal rate of 5 per cent, per annum from that date on the principal then due. Bank of British North America v. Bossuyt, 23 Occ. N. 338, 15 Man. L. R. 266,

Lien of Bank on Cu-tomer's Money—Application—Insolvence of Customer—Promissory Notes.]—A bank has a lien on all moneys, funds, and secarities deposited, for the general balance of a customer's account. Where, therefore, a bank held two promissory notes of a customer, one payable three months after date, and secured by an indorser, and another payable on demand without any indorser, upon which the customer had made a payment, nothing being paid on the indorsed note, and on the customer's death there was a credit balance in his favour in the bank, which the bank applied toward payment of the unindorsed note:—Held, that the bank were justified in doing so, notwithstanding that it appeared at such time that the customer was insolvent. In re Williams, 24 Occ. N. 91, 7 O. L. R. 156, 1 O, W. R. 354, 2 O. W. R. 47, 3 O. W. R. 251.

Lien of Bank—Forest Product — Hanufactured Wood.]—A bank cannot, under s. 74 of the Bank Act, obtain a lien upon the products of the forest for a pre-existing debt.— 2. Manufactured wood, that is to say, wood transformed into joists, planks, plinths, and mouldings, does not constitute a forest product within the terms of s. 74; Hall, J., dissenting on this point; and Wurtele, J., pronouncing only on the first point. Molsons Bank v. Beaudry, Q. R. 21 S. C. 212.

Money Given to Notary — Failure of Bank in which Deposited—Loss. by Whom Borne—Negligence.]—The plaintiff gave the defendant, a notary, $412, with special instructions to use the same in payment of a hypothecary claim. The defendant used all due diligence to find the domicil of the creditor, but was delayed for a considerable period by the fact that he (the defendant) had not received from his principal the power of attorney which was necessary before he could complete the transaction. In the interval he deposited the money in trust at the branch of the Ville Marie Bank at Chambly. By the time the power of attorney reached the defendant the bank had closed its doors. The plaintiff sued the defendant for the money so deposited:—Held, that the defendant not haying been negligent, the money was properly deposited in the bank, and was there at the risk of the plaintiff. Tempest v. Bertrand, 21 Occ. N. 131, Q. R. 19 S. C. 365.

Power of Bank to Take Security-Bill of Sale — Sale of Goods — Recovery of Price—Bank Act—Liability of Purchaser— Consideration—Warranty.]—Under s. 68 of the Bank Act security may be taken from the owner of horses for an existing debt by a bill of sale of the horses which expressly states that it is taken only by way of additional security for the debt, and s. 64 of the Act does not prevent the bank from recovering on promissory notes made in its favour by a person who purchases the horses from the transferor. Section 12, s.-s. 1, of the Sale of Goods Act, 1896, does not prevent the re-covery by the bank of the price of horses sold under such circumstances; for, under s. that the seller of goods has a right to sell them could be treated only as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for repudiating the contract:--Held, also, under the circumstances, that the contract of sale between the vendors of the horses and the defendant was completed; that the property in the horses had passed to him; and that he was liable for the price agreed on. Bank of Humilton v. Donaldson, 21 Occ. N. 317, 13 Man. L. R. 378.

Promissory Note—Indorsement for Collection—Subsequent Indorsement—Rights of Parties—Cheque by Indorser for Collection—Refusal to Honour—Dumages.]—A bank to which a promissory note is indorsed "for collection," becomes, for that purpose, the agent of the indorser, to whom it is bound to account for the amount collected. The signature of another party, under that of the indorser, does not affect the relative rights and obligations growing out of such restrictive indorsement. The bank is bound to pay a cheque drawn for a part only of funds collected by it under the foregoing circumstances, and is liable in damages for refusal to do so. Perrecult v. Merchants Bank. Q. R. 27 S. C. 149.

Taking Security for Past Debt -Transfer of Goods—Agreement—Title—Purchaser—Execution against Debtor.]—B., being indebted to a bank, gave them a document purporting to be a warehouse receipt, and also a general transfer or bill of sale. The bank took possession of a portion of the goods covered by the documents and removed them, and was proceeding with the removal of others of the goods, when the removal was forbidden by one of B.'s clerks. Two actions of replevin, brought by the bank to recover possession of the remainder of the goods, were compromised by B., who agreed that the bank should take the goods and sell them, credit him with the amount received :- Held, that, notwithstanding any irregularities under the Banking Act, the title of the bank was complete under the compromise made between the bank and B., and that the plaintiff, who purchased a portion of the goods from the bank, was entitled to recover against the defendant sheriff, who levied on the goods under an execution against B.:-Held, also, assuming it to be correct that the security on the goods held by the bank was void under the provisions of the Act, not being for a present advance, but for a past due debt, and that the bank were not entitled to hold such Winding-up of Bank—Liquidator—Action on Promissory Note—Amendment—Intersecution—Costs.]—The liquidator of a bank in liquidation has no status to sue one of the debtors of the bank upon a promissory note which fell due before the winding-up order, but the action must be brought in the name of the bank. 2. The liquidator cannot, by way of amendment, add the bank as a party in an action which he has begun in his own name. 3. An intervention is not a separate and distinct demand, but is grafted upon the principal action, and must fall with it when that action is void ab initio. 4. In this case the intervention having been useless because founded upon grounds already set up by the plaintiff, the Superior Court was right in dismir sing it with costs. Judgment in Q. R. 18 S. BARBERS' ASSOCIATION.

Act of Incorporation-By-law-Annual Dues—Liability for—Penalty — Alternative Remedy.] — The defendant took a license as barber pursuant to the terms of the Act of incorporation of the plaintiffs (62 V. c. 90), and paid his annual dues until 1903; but, since then, refused to pay them, contending first, that he was no longer a member of the association, and, secondly, that, if he was a member, he could only be sued for the penalty of $10 imposed by the by-laws for their in-fraction:—Held, that he who takes a license as barber, becomes a member of the association and cannot, at his pleasure, withdraw from the obligations imposed on him by the association by virtue of the Act, and that the adoption of a by-law imposing a penalty is only an additional means of enforcing payment by those in default. In the present case the plaintiff association had the alternative of suing to recover the amount of the fee according to art. 13 of the charter, or of claiming the negative by virtue of the by-law. Filiation — Paternity — "Preuve Testi-moniale"—"Faits Constants" — Admissions by Putative Father—Denial of Allegation of Mother—Preponderance of Evidence.]—In an inquiry as to the paternity of a natural child, preuve testimoniale complémentaire will be admitted, if, in his answers, the defendant, when he is examined as to the facts and circumstances or as a witness, admits facts which raise presumptions or point with suffi-cient force to render probable the allegation that he has had carnal intercourse with the mother of the child and that he is its father; and in this case the facts admitted by the defendant constituted a set or continued succession of circumstances, which, taken altogether, give birth to a very strong suspicion that the defendant had carnal relations with the mother of the child at the date of its conception, and continuing until nearly up to the time of its birth. The facts thus admitted become, from that moment, "faits constants" satisfying the requirements of art. 232 of the Civil Code, and sufficient for the admission of "preuve testimoniale complémentaire" the paternity of the defendant. Whether the facts admitted are such or not is a question of fact to be decided by the Court (Demo-lombe t. 5, No. 235). Articles 241, 232, 233, and 234 of the Civil Code, which change the method of proof in force up to the time the code came into force, in the matter of proof of paternity, have not made any change in what up to that time was considered as raising presumptions or grave suspicions of a nature to make it probable that sexual relations existed between the mother and supposed father of the child, and consequently of the paternity attributed to the defendant. Despite the fact that the only "preuve complémentaire" adduced may be that furnished by the evidence of the mother, plaintiff in the case, esqualité de tutrice to her child, who swears positively that the defendant is the father of her child, notwithstanding that the defendant on his side swears with no less assurance that he has never had sexual intercourse with the plaintiff, yet the undisputed fact of the birth of the child added to the admissions of the defendant when heard as a witness, give to the plaintiff's evidence a sufficiently preponderating force to justify the judgment in favour of the latter. In the absence of evidence contradicting that of the plaintif, proof of the identity of the child of which she is the mother and whose fatherhood she attributes to the defendant, established by the commony or the mother alone, is sufficient, and this notwithstanding the fact that in the certificate of baptism, the child is represented as being of unknown parents ("né de parents inconnus."). Rattigan v. Robillard, Q. R. 26 S. C. 222. testimony of the mother alone, is sufficient, 7750

Proof of Paternity—Commencement of Proof in Writing—Deposition of Mother—Ad-mission of Father—Presumption.]—A deposition on oath before a justice of the peace by the mother of an illegitimate child cannot serve as the commencement of proof in writing, according to the terms of art. 233, C. C. in an action for the declaration of paternity in an action for the declaration of paternity subsequently begun by the child's tutor, al-though such deposition has been made part of the record without objection from the oppo-site part. 2. However, it matters little whether the existence of "the facts thence appearing," which may, in such an action, authorize proof by witnesses (art. 232, C. C.), be demonstrated before or during the country, it's arough that each facts be settle. enquête; it is enough that such facts be established and proved before the oral evidence is admitted. 3. When, in such an action, the defendant admits carnal relations with the child's mother, but at a date outside (though very near) the period fixed by art. 227, C. C., as that of the longest gestation, such avowal of the defendant constitutes a presumption and an indication resulting from "facts thence appearing," and weighty enough to determine the admission of proof by witnesses; and then, if it appears that the mother has not had relations with other men about the time of conception, the Court will give credit to her declaration under oath that the defendant is the father of her child, especially if such declaration is supported by circum stances and evidence supporting it. McAulay v. McLennan, Q. R. 20 S. C. 205.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.

Expulsion of Member—Good Cause.]—A resolution of a benevolent society decreeing the expulsion of a member who has sued the society before a civil Court, instead of submitting his grievance to an arbitration tribunal established by the rules of the society, is not contrary to public order, nor oppressive, nor unreasonable, and the expulsion is valid. St. Joseph de St. Hyacinthe Union v. Cabana, Q. R. 10 K, B. 324.

Misstatement of Age—Rules Regulating Mode and Amount of Payment.] — A benevolent society's certificate provided for payment to the plaintiff, upon his total disability or upon his attaining the age of seventy years, out of the total disability fund, in accordance with the laws governing the fund, sums not exceeding in the aggregate $1,000. In his application, upon which it was declared the certificate was founded, the plaintiff gave his age as fifty-four, when it was in fact fifty-five, the latter age being within the age allowed for entrance, and the assessments and fees chargeable being the same for both ages. The plaintiff attained the age of seventy on the 10th December, 1809, and brought this action on the 15th May, 1900, asking for payment of $1,000. The jury found that the plaintiff sage was made in good faith and without any attention to deceive:—Held, that the certificate was binding, and that the plaintiff was entitled to payment thereunder upon in fact attaining the good seventy, but that the "laws governing the fund" applied though not set out, and that under them the plaintiff was entitled.

Rules — Construction — Participation of Member in Benefits.]—The 12th rule or by-law of the relief society established in connection with the mines of the Dominion Coal Co., provided that "in omember shall participate in the benefits of the society until two full months after the date of his first payment:"—Held, that a member was absolutely excluded from any participation in the benefits of the society in case of illness or accident happening within the period of two months, and that the right to participate only began in cases where the inability to work was due to causes arising after the lapse of the two months. McDonald v. Dominion Coal Co.'s Relief Fund, 36 N. S. Reps. 15.

Sick Benefits — Majority Vote—Condition Precedent — Gratwily.] — The plaintift sued the defendants for sick benefits, being a member of the association in good standing, and producing the certificate of a physician as to his illness. By s. 1, article 11, of the constitution of the society, it was previded that "every member is entitled in the constitution of the society, it was produces certificate special conditions and provided hobitain massiority vote of either a special representation of the society authorizing the payment of such benefit claim." The majority of the meeting voted against payment of the claim:—Held, that a majority vote was necessary before the claim could be collected, being a condition precedent to the right to recover, and that the payment of stek benefits was simply a gratuity. BILLS OF EXCHANGE AND PRO-MISSORY NOTES.

Absence of Consent of Maker—Mistake as to Nature of Instrument—Holder for Value—Damages.]—A promissory note being a contract, the consent of the parties to it is of its essence as in other contracts. If a person signs a note wishing to sign and believing that he is signing an order for goods, the note is completely void even in good faith, Quere, whether, where one who has so signed a note has done so negligently, he can be sued for damages for quasi-tort by such bolder. Jacquez Cartier Bank v. Lalonde, Q. R. 20 S. C. 43.

Acceptance-Account Stated-Mistake -Opening Account-Pleading-Amendment.1-Acceptance of a bill of exchange is evidence of an account stated to the amount of the bill. In order to open a second account it is necessary to particularize specific errors in the account. In an action by the drawer of bills of exchange against the acceptor, the defendant pleaded generally that he accepted the bills under a mistake as to the state of the account. This defence was struck out, with leave to the defendant to amend on terms of filing an affidavit verifying the facts to be set out in the proposed amended defence. The proposed amended defence alleged that when the defendant accepted the bills ne did so under the mistaken idea that he was indebted to the plaintiff in the amount thereof; that such mistaken belief was occasioned by the plaintiff having represented to him, by statements of account in writing and by drawing the bills, that he justly owed the plaintiff that amount, whereas, in fact, he was not indebted to him in any amount; that the derendant had dealt extensively with the plaintiff for over six years; that in course of such dealings plaintiff had, without defendant's knowledge or consent, made many exorbitant and illegal charges, and that if accounts were taken it would be found that the defendant was not indebted to the plain-tiff in any amount. This proposed defence and any amount. This proposed defence and a counterclaim based on the same allega-tions, for an account, were held bad; and were not allowed to be filed, and there being, therefore, no defence on file, judgment was given for the plaintiff. Clark v. Hamilton, 5 Terr. L. R. 178.

Accommodation Acceptor—Release—Payment by Drawer.]—The plaintiff agreed to sell certain cattle to M., on condition that M. would procure some one to accept a draft for the amount, and a second draft given in renewal of the second, but afterwards refused to do so at the instance of M., when the decome insolvent. The plaintiff furnished all the money used to retire the second but the testing the second by the decome insolvent. The plaintiff furnished all the money used to retire the second draft with the exception of $10 paid by M.:—Held, that the defendant was not relieved from his lability on the second acceptance by the payment made by the plaintiff, and that the plaintiff w.s. entitled to judgment for the amount of the acceptance, less the $10 paid by M. Held, that the case was distinguishable from one where the acceptor accepts for the accommodation of the drawer, who takes up the bill at maturity and negotiates it to someone who sues the acceptor. Dill v. Wheatley, 34 N. S. Reps. 526.

Accommodation Indorser — Action for Indemnity Against Maker—Condition Precedent—Notice of Dishonour.]—The obligation of the indorser of a promissory note is a conditional obligation, the condition being that the note shall be protected and that notice of protest shall be given to him. Therefore, he has no right of action against the maker for indemnity in respect of his obligation, even after the note has fallen due, if it has not been protested and notice of protest given to him. Trottier v. Rivard, Q. R. 23 S. C. 526.

Accommodation Indorser — Wife indorsing the benefit of husband—Absence of independent advice—Notice to plaintiffs — Benefit for plaintiffs. Bank of Montreal v. Scott, 3 O. W. R. 523, 6 O. W. R. 411.

Accommodation Indorsers — Co-surrities—Contribution—Order of Indorsements.] —The plaintiffs and defendant were both accommodation indorsers of a promissory note. The plaintiff was the payee, but, when the instrument was given to him to indorse, the defendant's name was already on the back of it, and the plaintiff indorsed under the defendant's indorsement. Each testified that his liability was to be secondary to that of the other—not that they so agreed with each of them. The contribution of them respectively.—Held, that, being surrities for the one debt, the rule of equitable contribution applied, and the plaintiff, having paid the debt, was entitled to recover only half of it from the defendant. Macdonald x. Whitfield, 8 App. Cas. 733, discussed. Steavy v. Stayner. 24 Occ. N. 300, 7 O. L. R. 684, 3 O. W. R. 244, 557.

Accommodation Indorser—Waiver of Notice of Protest,1—Action on a promissory note against the defendant O, as indorser, The defendant pleaded that he was only a guarantor on the note, and had received none of the proceeds thereof, and that, as he had received no notice of protest, he was discharged from all liability. The evidence shewed that when the note fell due Q, had gone to the plaintiff, offered a renewal note, and had asked for time in which to pay:—Held, that this action on the part of Q, was a waiver of protest under the Bills of Exchange Act. Smith V, Lang, 22 Occ. N. 418.

Accommodation Maker — Conditional Delivery—Bank—Notice to Agent)—In an action brought by the plaintiffs against the defendant M., as indorser of a promissory note made by S., and as joint and several maker with S. of two other promissory notes, the defence chiefly relied on was that the notes were signed by M., and delivered to the plaintiffs' agent under a special agreement, of which the plaintiffs had notice, that they were not to be used until they lad been indorsed or signed by certain other parties, as co-sureties. The evidence shewed that the defendant S. was largely indebted to the plaintiffs' agent, for which the plaintiffs were anxious to obtain collateral security, and that the notes were taken for that purpose, and not as ordinary discounts; also, that the signature of the defendant M. to the notes was obtained by the plaintiffs' agent, under instruction from the cashier of the bank; also, that, at the time the notes were signed, the plaintiffs' agent was told by M. not to take them unless the other signatures were obtained, and replied, "that is all right;" also, that the notes were signed in the defendant's office, and that no part of the transaction took place in the office of the bank:—Held, setting aside the findings of the jury, that the signature of M. was obtained in the course of the business of the agency, and within the scope of the agency, and within the scope of the agency and within the scope of the transaction took plain the scope of the transaction took plain the signature of M. was obtained must be held to be the knowledge of the bank. Held, also, that if the agent, acting under the authority of the cashier, applied to the defendant M. to sign the notes, and, in order to induce him to do so, agreed to any condition, or did anything to lead M. to believe that they would not be used by the bank until another person had signed them, the bank would be bound, although the conduct of the agent was unauthorized, and knowledge thereof was concealed from their officers. Commercial Bank of Windsor v. Minth. 34 N. S. Resa, 426.

Accommodation Maker — Holder for Value—Equities—Defects in Title—Agreement for Renewal—Parol Evidence—Agreement—Signature—Amendment — Parties, 1— The trial Judge found that the promissory note sued on was made by the defendant for the accommodation of K., the payee, subject to the conditions that: (1) it was not to be used at all except in a certain stated event; (2) it was to be negotiated, if at all, only at a certain named bank; and (3) it was renewable for the stated period, which had not expired at the commencement of the action. He also found that the second and third of these conditions had been broken; that the plaintiff acquired the note, though for value, after maturity, from one C., the trustee for the benefit of the creditors of K., and not from a certain bank which, at the time of the arrangement whereby he acquired the note, actually held it as a collateral security for an indebtedness of K.:—Held, that these conditions were "equities attaching to the note," and their breach "defects in the title of the person who, negotiated it;" that the from a certain bank which, at the time of note was affected by them in the hands of both C, and the plaintiff; and that therefore the plaintiff could not recover. The nature and effect of an accommodation note discussed. Where a note is subject to an discussed. Where a note is subject to an agreement for renewal, if the renewal is not contemplated, except on the happening of an event not within the knowledge of the holder alone, the obligation of offering to renew is on the party entitled to renew. The necessity for such offer and the time within which it must be made discussed. In this case there was a continuing offer to renew, and a continuing refusal to accept a renewal. The character of the evidence of notice of defects in title discussed. Where it is made to appear that a note, transfer, or other writing is merely an incident in or part of a larger agreement, and there is no writing a larger agreement, and there is no writing in which the parties professed to set down all the terms of their agreement, oral evidence of the agreement is admissible. Signature is a conventional mode of declaring a writing to be the record of an agreement; but it is not essential, except where made so by statue. The fact that cuch a writing is directed to a third party does not prevent its being taken as the record of such an agreement. On the plaintiff's application an amendment was allowed adding the bank, with its consent, as a co-plaintiff, on the terms that the bank stand on the title of the plaintiff. MacArthur v. MacDouall, 1 Terr, I., R. 345.

Accommodation Maker Renewal Note Accommodation Marker - Renewal Noise Obtained by Fraud of Principal Maker — Right to Sue on Original Note — Division Court—Power to Amend — Evidence.]—The defendant joined in making a promissory note, as the payees, the plaintiffs, knew, for the accommodation of his co-maker. When it became due, the latter brought a renewal note, purporting to be signed by the defendant, which the payees accepted, and gave up the original note stamped "paid." The primary debtor becoming insolvent and dying, and the plaintiffs failing to get payment of the renewal note out of his estate, they sued renewal note out of his estate, they sued the defendant upon it, in a Divisional Court, where there was a trial by jury. The defend-ant swore he never signed the renewal note, nevertheless, there was a verdict for the plaintiffs. A new trial was then granted, resulting in a verdict for the defendant. A further new trial then being granted, the Judge at the trial allowed the plaintiffs to claim in the alternative upon the original note, as well as claiming upon the renewal note, and to amend their claim accordingly. The jury then returned a verdict for the plaintiffs on the original note. The defendant applied for a new trial, which was refused, and he then appealed to this Court: -Held, that the Division Court Judge had jurisdiction to amend the plaintiffs' claim as he had done, under Rule 4 of the Division Courts.—2. That the renewal note being a forgery, so far as the defendant's signature was concerned, and the plaintiffs, therefore, having been induced by the primary debtor's fraud to give him up the original note, the plaintiffs retained a right to recover in equity on the original note.—3. That cover in equity on the original note,—5. I nat a witness was entitled to refer to entries in the books of the primary debtor, made by him or under his direction, to refresh his memory. Accord and Satisfaction — Agreement to Accept Land in Payment of Debt—Solicitor's Authority — Agent's Authority.]—One C., a commercial traveller in plaintiffs' employ, called on defendant and pressed for payment of an overdue promissory note. Defendant offered to give a parcel of land in payment, and C. in company with defendant inspected the land, C. wrote polaritiffs submitting the proposition and giving a specific description of certain land. Plaintiffs wrote a solicitor instructing him to prepare a conveyance thereof. The solicitor, finding that there had been a misdescription in the letter to plaintiffs, accepted a conveyance of the land actually shewn by defendant to C.: —Held, in an action on the note, that plaintiffs were bound as by an accord and satisfaction and could not recover. Pither v. Manly, 9 B. C. R. 257.

Action for Money Demand—Plea of Bill of Exchange—Reply that Bill not Paid—Mecessity for Deposit of Bill.]—Where the defendant pleads that the plaintiff has drawn upon him a bill of exchange for the amount of the claim, the plaintiff may reply that the bill is overdue and unpaid, and this without depositing the bill in Court; the neglect to deposit will only affect the costs. McKee v. Falardeau, 5 Q. P. R. 159.

Action for Money Lent-Proof that Note Given—Production of Note—Proof of Loss—Indemnity—Costs.]—Where, in an action of a loan the defendant admits the loan, but alleges that he gave a promissory for the amount, and this admission note constitutes the sole proof of the loan, it cannot be divided. 2. A person who, on making a loan of money, receives a promissory note for the amount, cannot maintain an action upon the loan without producing and tendering to the debtor the note so given, or in the event of its being lost, without proving the loss, and obtaining an order out proving the loss, and obtaining an order that its loss shall not be pleaded by the de-fendant upon plaintif giving security to the satisfaction to the Court or Judge against the claim of any other person upon the note. 3. Although the defendant is entitled, in the absence of compliance with the above in the absence of compliance with the above conditions, to ask for the dismissal of an action brought simply for the recovery of the loan, yet where he has declared his readiness to pay on proof of loss being made, and indemnity given, the Court, in order to avoid further litigation, may treat the case as an action on a lost note, and give judgment for the plaintiff on condition that s curity be given according to law,—the defendant's costs in such case to be paid by plaintiff. Action on Defence — Agreement—Vio-lation—Condition—Parol Evidence of.]—To the plaintiff's claim against the defendant, as maker of a promissory note for $238.58. the defence was set up that in consideration of the defendant's forbearance to commence proceedings, in the Probate Court, for proof in solemn form of the will of A. C., the plaintiff agreed to advance the defendant, on account of a legacy to which she was entitled, as guardian of her infant children, a sum of money, to be expended in repairs to property of the said children, and that the plaintiff, not having the money required for that purpose, requested the defendant to sign a note for the amount, which note was dorsed by the plaintiff to a firm which had done a portion of the repairs, and that note was given on the understanding that the plaintiff would pay it when it became due, and would deduct the amount from the amount payable to the defendant, as guardian of her said children; and in answer to the plaintiff's claim on a second note, sum of $150, the defendant, on the trial, sought to give evidence to shew that the note, although expressed to be payable on demand, was made subject to a condition that the defendant should not be called upon for payment, unless her children should before a legacy to which they were entitled under the will of A. C., should become payable:—Held, that the defendant, having violated her agreement by commencing proceed-ings in the Probate Court, and having succeeded in setting the will aside, could not set up the agreement as a defence to the plaintiff's action on the first note; and that the second note being absolute on its face, evidence could not be given to vary its terms, there being no evidence to shew that it was given on a condition, or as an escrow, or only to be treated as a note in a certain event. Poirier v. Arnault, 5 Q. P. R. 1:39.

Action on Promissory Note—Pleading—Irregular Protest—Affidavit.]—A plea to an action against the indorser of a promissory note, alleging that notice of protest was not regularly given, should set out especially the irregularity complained of; and, further, such plea must be supported by affidavit establishing the facts alleged: Art. 208, C.C.P. Western Loan and Trust Co. v. Ross, Q. R. 12 K. B. 226.

Action on Promissory Notes-Defence -Composition and Discharge-Payment into Court - Costs.]-The defendant, being in difficulties, procured from all his creditors, among whom were the plaintiffs, a deed of composition and discharge, on the terms that within 60 days he should give them secured promissory notes representing 75 cents on the dollar. Before the expiration of the 60 days, the defendant, under pressure from his creditors and by an arrangement with them, sold his entire assets on certain terms, which netted to the creditors 641/2 cents on the dollar, payable and paid by the purchaser's promissory notes. All the creditors except the plaintiffs, upon receiving the 641/2 cents on the dollar, gave a formal discharge to the defendant. The plaintiffs sued upon the promissory notes for the balance of their original debt, or, alternatively, for the dif-ference between 641/2 and 75 cents on the dollar. The defendant pleaded several de-fences and paid the amount representing this rences and paid the amount representing this difference into Court together with costs up to defence. The jury found in answer to certain questions: (1) that the plaintiffs did not receive the 64% cents in full of their claim; (2) that they did receive it on account of the 75 cents; and (3) that the 64½ cents was not paid on account of the original claim:—Held, that the plaintiffs' right of action on the promissory notes was defeated by the agreement for composition and discharge, the agreement for composition and discharge, although its terms had not been fulfilled; and the action was dismissed with costs. Effect of payment into Court upon form of judgment and disposition of costs, discussed. Houland v. Grant. 2 Terr. L. R. 158, 26 S. C. R. 372.

Alteration-Joint and Several Liability Principal and Surety-Judgment.]-The insertion by the holder of a promissory note signed by several persons, some of whom are sureties for the others, of the words "jointly and severally," before the words "promise to pay," is a material alteration which avoids the note, and the subsequent cancellation of the words by the holder does not do away with the effect of the alteration, even though the makers of the note do not know of the alteration until after the cancellation. promissory note given to the holder after the alteration and cancellation, in renewal of the original promissory note and in ignorance thereof, cannot be enforced, there being no consideration to support it. Accepting in renewal of a promissory note, some of the makers of which are, to the knowledge of the holder, sureties of a promissory note not signed by one surety, discharges the co-sureties. A judgment recovered against debtors in their firm name for the amount of the debt is not a bar to the recovery of judgment against them individually upon a promissory note given by them as collateral security for the same debt. G. began this action against L., the drawer of the cheque, claiming the amount of the cheque—Held, that G., having charged the cheque to the account of D. and having notified him of it, had ceased to be the owner of it, and had no right of action against L., the cheque having become again the property of D.; and the latter only could recover against L. Schofield v. Earl of Londesborough, 11896] A. C. 514, followed.—2. Chaques—Forged Indorsements—Fraud of Agent of Insurance Company—Pagment by Bank.]—N. was the assistant superintendent of a life insurance company, as well as its local agent at one of its branches, having sole control of the business there. A number of applications sent in by him to the head office were, with the exception of some five, on the lives of fictitious persons, and, as to these five, the insurances had subsequently lapsed, of which fact the company were kept in ignorance. Afterwards N representing that the insured were dead and the claims payable under the policies, sent in to the bead office claim papers, filling in the names of the fictious claim-ants and forging their alleged signatures thereat, whereapon cheques for the respective amount: made by the company in favour of the alleged claimants and payable at a branch of the defendants' bank, were sent to N., whose duty it was, on the eleghances from them. On except of these decayes from them. On except of these decayes from them. On except of these seemed to the bank and paid in good faith, the amounts thereof being charged to the ompany's account:—Held, that the company were sificeted by what had been done by N. so as to preclude them from disputing the right of the bank to pay the cheques and charge the plaintiffs with the amounts therede, London Life Ins. Co. v. Moloson Bank, 25 Occ. N. 155, 5 O. L. R. 407, 1 O. W. R. 347, 2 O. W. R. 343, 3 O. W. R. SSS.

Cheque — Payment Refused — Right of Hölder Against Dravece.]—One R. gave the plaintiff, in payment of a debt due, a cheque drawn on the defendant bank. Upon presentation payment of the cheque (which was not accepted) was refused, the clerk stating that, as it was for the balance of the sum to R.'s credit, his pass-book must be produced before payment. Within a few days R. became insolvent, and the plaintiff lost payment of his debt. The bank admitted that there were funds of R.'s to meet the cheque when presented, and it was not set up that production of the pass-book when the balance was withdrawn was a custom of the bankers:

—Held, that the plaintiff had no right of action against the defendant for damages

Cheque—Specific Purpose — Payment—Application to Other Purposes — Notice — Trust.]—The appellants made a cheque for $400 payable to the order of the respondents, intending that it should be applied as a deposit on account of a purchase of material which they wished 10 obtain from the respondents through the intervention of A. They handed the cheque to A. for this special purpose, and the word "deposit" appeared on the face of the cheque. The respondents indorsed and used the cheque, and applied the amount on an old claim which they had against A. Another cheque of the appellants, for $100, made payable to the respondents or bearer, was treated in the same manner:—Held, that by using the cheque for $400 payable to their order, the respondents became accountable to the appellants for the amount; they became trustees of the makers of the cheque, with the usual liability attaching to such relationship. And the subsequent cheque, although payable to the respondents or bearer, being part of the same transaction, and being used after notice that it had been obtained by false representations, the respondents should also be accountable therefor. Leipschatz v. Montreal Street R. W. Co., Q. R. 9 Q. B. 518.

Collateral Security — Pledge—Subsequent Debt—Tacking.]—The plaintiff received from the defendants a promisory note at four months, dated the 21st January, 1895, for $450, as collateral security for an advance of $250 to one of the defendants, M. The plaintiff also received from the defendant M. two notes for $125 each, both dated 24th January, 1895, one at three and the other at four months, to cover the $250 advance. On the 8th February, 1895, the plaintiff received from M. another note for $150 at four months for a new advance. The note at three months became due on the 27th April, 1895, and one of the defendants paid $25 on account and gave a renewal note for $100 at four months:—Held, that the sum of $100, represented by the renewal note, only became due after the note for $150, and that the plaintiff was entitled, under the circumstances stated, to the benefit of the second paragraph of Art, 1975, C. C., which says that "if another debt be contracted after the pledging of the thing and become due before that for which the pledge was given, the creditor is not obliged to restore the thing until both debts are paid." Consideration—Purchase of seed grain—Warranty, implied or express — Breach — Findings of trial Judge, Lawton v. Reid (N. W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 240.

Consideration — Advances by Father to Som — Gift — Expectation of Death.] — A promissory note, freely signed by a son, who has had advances from his father, by which he engages, at the request of his father, by which he engages, and wished to provide for his daughter's futrice, to pay her (his sister) a sum of mone, or annuity for a certain number of years, is founded on valuable consideration and ought not to be regarded as a gift made by the father to the daugher during a supposed mortal illness, and, therefore, void as yielded to in consequence of the expected death of the father. Brulé v. Brulé. Q. R. 26 S. C. 77.

Consideration—Failure of.]—The plaintiff and defendant were joint makers of a note for the defendant's accommodation. The defendant gave the plaintiff the note sued on in consideration of the plaintiff undertaking to pay the joint note. When this action was brought the plaintiff and not been called on to pay nor had he paid the joint note, but after he brought this action and before the trial he had paid it:—Held, that the plaintiff could recover. Ruffee v. Shaw, 21 Occ. N, 507.

Consideration—Sale of Animals—Defective Title—Affirmance after Discovery of Defect.)—The defendants bought cattle from the plaintiff, gave her the promissory note sued on for the price, and took and kept the cattle, all parties believing that the plaintiff had an absolute title to them. It was subsequently ascertained that the plaintiff had only alife interest in the cattle. After learning this fact, the defendants paid a year's interest on the notes, and neither returned nor offered to return the cattle:—Held, that the defendants were liable on the notes, as there was no fraud and no total failure of consideration. They were bound to repudiate the transaction at once on learning of the defect in the plaintiff's title, if they wished to object, and must by their conduct be held to have elected, with knowledge of the facts, to affirm their purchases. Primeau v, Mouchelin, Primeau v, Pantel, 15 Mann. L. R. 390, 1 W. L. R. 434.

Consideration — Settlement of Disputed Account — Subsequently Discovered Error in Account.] — The defendant was agent of the plaintiff to collect rents and profits of a wharf property. On the termination of the defendant's agency, the plaintiff brought an action for an accounting, which was settled by the defendant agreeing to pay the plaintiff the sum of $376, by paying $125 in cash and giving his note for the balance, and by the plaintiff agreeing to assign to the defendant all debts due in respect to the property during the period covered by the agency. The defendant refused payment of the note given by him on the ground that, before it became due, it was discovered that $100 had been paid the plaintiff on account of one of the debts assigned to the defendant, and that the defendant was entitled to credit for this amount on the note:—Held, Graham, E.J., dissenting, that, as the defendant's attorney had knowledge of the error, before the compromise which resulted in the giving of the note was effected, and as by the compromise the plaintiff was prevented from going fully into the accounts, and perhaps establishing a greater hability on the defendant's part, she was entitled to recover the full amount of the note. Worrall v. Peters, 35 N. S. Reps, 26.

Consideration — Stock dealings — No actual transactions — Knowledge — Acquiescence—Request to pay. Carpenter v. Pearson, 2 O. W. R. 526, 3 O. W. R. 483.

Countermanding Payment -Holder for Value without Notice—Rights of Subsequent Holder with Notice—Holder in Due Course.] — The defendant R., having given his cheque for $491.25 to the defendant D., the latter indorsed it to the defendant DeG., who deposited it to her credit in a savings bank, which in its turn accepted it and paid $450 to her, and credited her deposit with the balance. But payment had been countermanded by the maker the day after signing the cheque; and, as a consequence, when, in the ordinary course of business of the bank, and without unreasonable delay. the cheque was presented at the bank on which it was drawn, payment was refused, plaintiff, the teller who had received this cheque on deposit without its being marked "accepted," contrary to the rules, was held for the amount by the savings bank, but the latter handed over the cheque to him, thus subrogating him to its rights with a view to his having recourse against the par-To this action the makers and the indorsers pleaded that the plaintiff was not a holder in due course, since he became a holder after refusal of payment and after he had notice of it :-Held, that the indorsers could not raise the question whether he was a holder in due course or not, the cheque not being tainted with any illegality. (2) That DeG. was a holder in due course, since she had become a holder before the cheque could have been presented for payment; and, as a consequence, the savings bank and the plaintiff taking title through her possessed all the taking title through her possessed all the rights of a holder in due course against the maker and indorsers. (3) That the maker and prior indorsers must pay the whole amount of the cheque to have a right to it and to be discharged from it; although the savings bank had retained the balance of DGC selections. DeG.'s deposit, that was a personal matter between them. Gauthier v. Reinhardt, Q. R. 26 S. C. 134.

Delivery—Consideration—Onus.] — Motion by the plaintiffs for summary judgment under Rule 616 in an action upon a promssory note. The defendant in his examination for discovery admitted the making of the note, and said that he left it with the officers of the Consolidated Pulp and Paper Company, to be used by them in procuring an advance from the plaintiffs, the payees of the note, for the purposes of the company, and that the note was, instead, deposited with the plaintiffs by the officers of the company as security for past advances. Fraud was not alleged, Notice to the plaintiffs of the terms on which the note was given was not alleged, and the only defence was want of consideration:—Held, that the onus of the defence lay on the defendant, and he had failed to sustain it: Watson V. Russell. 3 B. & S. 34; Bills of Exchange Act, s. 21, s.-s. 3. Ontario Bank v. Young, 21 Occ. N. 565, 2 O. L. R. 761.

Demand—Prescription—Payments—Parol Evidence—Indorsements on Note.]—A promissory note in these terms, "12 janvier, 1896. A demande je promets de payer A.... la somme de....d'ici au 15 février sans intérêt. et après le 15 avec intérêt à 6 par cent.," is payable on demand from the day of its date. 2. Where a promissory note is payable on demand, prescription runs from the date of the note, and not from the date of demand of payment. 3. Proof by parol is inadmissible of payments alleged to have been made by the maker on account of the note, for the purpose of establishing interruption of prescription. 4. Indorsements on a note of payments on account have no effect against the maker as regards proof of interruption of prescription. Buchand v. Lalumière, Q. R. 21 S. C. 449.

Duress—Verdict of Jury.]—In an action against the maker of a promissory note, the local manager of the plauntiff bank, the defence was that he had been coerced by the head manager, under threats of dismissal and criminal prosecution, into signing the note to cover up deficits in customers' accounts in which he had no personal interest. His evidence at the trial to the same effect was denied by the head manager:—Held, that the jury having believed the defendant's account and given him a verdict, which the evidence justified, such verdict ought to stand. Judgment of Court of Appeal (16th October, 1901, unproported) affirmed. Western Bank v. McGill, 23 Occ. N. 30, 32 S. C. R. 581.

Effect of Indorsement — Maker—Proof of Signature—Presentment—Notice of Dishonour.] — An indorsement of a negotiated problem of the property of the makers of the mote, the plaintiff failed to prove the signature of one of the makers of the note, and the action, as far as the note was concerned, was dismissed as to that maker, although a judgment was recovered on the chatch mortgage. At the trial a defendant, an indorser of the note, although represented by counsel, gave no evidence, and judgment was given against her. She appealed to a Divisional Court, and her appeal was dismissed. She now applied for leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal The plaintiff gave evidence at the trial that, in payment for "the property" sold, he received a mortgage and the note in question and cash for the balance; that the note was not paid at maturity and was protested after presentment and notice sent. It was cutended that no one could tell what notice was sent or to whom: — Held, that it should be inferred from the evidence, in the absence of any weakening of it by cross-examination, that that presentment was made on the day the note became due, that payment was refused, and that due notice of dishonour was given; and leave to appeal was refused. Wiedeman v. Guittard, 22 Occ. N. 129.

Estoppel—Forgery—Discount — Duty to Notify Holder.] — E. & Co., merchants at Montreal, received from the Dominion Bank, Toronto, notice in the usual form that their note in favour of the Thomas Phosphate Co. for $2,000 would fail due at that bank on a date named, and asking them to provide for it. The name of E. & Co. bad been forged to the note, which the bank had discounted. Two days after the notice was mailed at Toronto the proceeds of the note had been drawn out of the bank by the payees:—Held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal, Dominion Bank v. Ewing, 7 O. L. R. 90, 24 Occ. N. 80, 1 O. W. R. 634, 3 O. W. R. 127, Sedgewick and Nesbitt, JJ., dissenting, that on receipt of the notice E. & Co. were under a legal duty to inform the bank, by telegraph or telephone, that they had not made the note, and not doing so they were afterwards estopped from denying their signature thereto. Forged Cheques—Crown — Forgeries by Clerk in Government Department—Liability of Bank-Duty of Customer to Check Accounts -Deposit of Cheques in Other Banks-Liability Over - Estoppel - Alteration of Position.]-Action to recover $75,705, the aggregate amount of 12 cheques forged by Abendens Martineau, a clerk in the Department of Militia at Ottawa. These cheques were drawn Militia at Ottawa. These cheques were drawn upon the defendants, and were paid by them and charged against the account of the Receiver-General of Canada. The Quebec Bank, the Sovereign Bank, and the Royal Bank, were brought in by defendants as third parties, and relief over against them claimed, the forged cheques having been deposited by Martineau in these banks at Ottawa, and having been presented for payment to de-fendants by or through these banks. All Dominion Government moneys are deposited, with defendants, as with other banks, to the credit of the Receiver-General of Canada. Each of the forged cheques was in due course forwarded by the bank with which it was deposited to the Ottawa clearing-house. was then charged up to the Bank of Monwas their charged up to the Bank of Moli-treal (defendants), and sent on to that bank, which debited it in the Militia Department "Letter of Credit Account." On the follow-ing day (the second after it had been originally deposited by Martineau), it was, with other cheques, transmitted by the Bank of Montreal to the Militia Department, accompanying the daily sheet or statement, in nature of a pass book, which the bank furnished to the Department:—Held, I. Plaintiff entitled to recove: from defendants the amount claimed, $75,705, with interest from the respective dates; the component parts were charged against the account of the Receiver-General of Canada. From this, however, there was deducted $12,443.77 found upon Martineau when arrested, which was taken possession of by the Dominion Government. 2. The third party banks were not liable as indorsers, nor upon warranty or representation that the cheques were genuine. But in turn the Royal Bank had to pay defendants $250, and the Quebec Bank $5, the respective amounts still to Martineau's credit. His account had been closed with the Sovereign Bank. Rew v. Frand—Holder in Good Faith.]—According to findings of fact at the trial, the evidence did not clearly shew that the promissory notes sued on had been signed by the defendants, and it was proved that, if they had signed them, they did so without knowing that they were promissory notes and in the belief, induced by the false representations of the agent of the payee, that the documents they signed were petitions to the government for a road:—Held, following Foster v. McKinnon, L. R. 4C. P. 704, and Lewis v. Clay, 7T. L. T. 653, that, notwithstanding the language of ss. 29 and 38 (b) of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1880, the defendants were not liable to the plaintiffs, although they were holders in good faith, for value and without notice of any defect or fraud, and had acquired the notes during their currency. Holder—Action—Ratification.]—Where a promissory note was delivered by McG., the holder, to P., whose name McG. wished to use in the collection of the note, and, subsequently and before the note was due, McG. got it from P., telling him that he was going to place it with a banker, and he had better direct him to collect it. P. never gave any direction to collect it, and did not, before commencement, authorize the action, but he subs quently ratified it, stating he would have authorized it in the first instance if he had been asked to do so:—Held, in an action on the note in the name of P., that he was entitled to recover as holder. Potter v. Morriscy, Potter v. Creaghan, 25 N. B. Reps. 465.

Holder for Value—Holder for Collection—Pleading.] — In an action based upon a promissory note, where the defendant pleads that plaintiff is not a regular holder for value, the letter may reply that he holds the note for collection on behalf of the last indorser, and such answer will not be rejected on motion, as changing the basis of the action. The Standard Bank of Canada became holders as collateral security. The bank stamped on the back over the indorsement the words, "Pay Standard Bank of Canada or order," thus converting it into a special indorsement to that bank. The plaintiffs took over the account, depositing the note, receiving the note and other securities, paying therefor $13,800. The note was again stamped "Pay to the order of the Sovereign Bank of Canada," over the words already there, "Pay Standard Bank of Canada or order," ra as to partly obliterate them, but not so that both indorsements could not be plainly made out. On these facts it was held that the intention of the two bank managers was to transfer to plaintiffs became the holders of the note and entitled to maintain the action. Sovereign Bank v. Gordon, 4 O. Indorser-Note Payable to Another-Absence of Indorsement by Payee — Liability — Notice of Dishonour—Presentment — Waiver - Indorser Becoming Administrator of —Indorser Becoming Administrator of Maker,—The defendant A. M. put his name on the back of a promissory note made by M. M. to the order of the plaintiff; which was then delivered to the plaintiff;—Held, that the defendant A. M. was an indorser of the note, liable as such to the payee and entitled to notice of dishonour, M. M. died before maturity of the note, and the defendants A. W. and H. was a paintiffed two of his admin. M and H, were appointed two of his administrators; after their appointment and before maturity, they had a conversation with the plaintiff in respect of the note, and the plaintiff swore that he told them when it would be due, and one of them asked for an exten-sion of time, which was granted. The defendant A. M. swore that the plaintiff told him not to worry, that he would not look to him not to worry, that he would not look to him for payment, but take whatever the estate was able to pay, and he did not ask for an extension, nor did he hear the defendant H. ask for any. The defendant H. could not remember what took place:—Held, insufficient to prove that the defendant A. M. waived presentment or notice of dishonour. waived presentment or notice of dishonour. The plaintiff also, before maturity, pursuant to administrators advertisement for creditors, filed with their solicitor a copy of the note and a statutory declaration that it was unpaid:—Held, that this is not such a present-ment as is required by s. 45 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890:—Held, also, that, notwithstanding that the indorser became one of the deceased maker's administrators before maturity of the note, presentment and notice of dishonour were nevertheless necessary. Fraser v. McLeod, 2 Terr. L. R. 154.

Indorsement — Parol Evidence to Vary Contract—Inadmissibility.] — Parol evidence will not be received to shew that a person who in indorsed a promissory note to another for valuable consideration stipulated at the time that he was not to be liable on the indorsement, that he would be contradicting the contract which such indorsement by s.-2 of s. 55 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, imports. Joint and Several Notes—Release of Co-maker — Reservation of Rights — Subsequent Deed — Implication. [— One of five makers of a joint and several promissory note was absolutely released by the holder, by an instrument under seal, no reservation of rights against the other makers, but the plaintiff sought to recover against one of them, upon the ground that it was intended that there should be a reservation, and that this was recognized by a subsequent instrument under seal, to which the maker who had been released was not a party, but the defendant was, whereby it was stipulated that the individual liabilities and indebteness of the defendant to the plaintiff should not be abandoned:—Held, that the defendant was discharged by the release of his co-nuker, and that the effect was not changed by the subsequent instrument. Bogort v. Robertson, 24 Occ. N. 348, 8 O. L. R. 261, 3 O. W. R. 758, 6 O. W. R. 896, 11 O. L. R. 295.

Joint Makers -- Action against Both -Judgment against One — Subsequent Action against Other—Former Action—Amendment -Lapse of Time. 1-The defendants G. and —Lapse of Time.;—The detendants G. and N. were sued jointly as makers of a promis-sory note for $25. The writ of summons, which was issued in January, 1885, was served on the defendant N., and the defendant , accepted service. N. appeared and pleaded, but, by arrangement, nothing was done in G. In November, 1885, N. withdrew his defence, and confessed the action, and final judgment was entered against him, on which some payments were made. In 1899 the plaintiff commenced proceedings against the defendant Commenced proceedings against the defendant G., who, under an agreement reserving his rights, appeared and pleaded: — Held, that the judgment entered on confession against the defendant N. was an answer to the claim the derendant N. was an answer to the claim subsequently made against the defendant G. McLeod v. Power, [1898] 2 Ch. 295, follow-ed:—Held, further, that the action having been brought against defendants as joint debtors only, the position of G. in the suit was not affected by the fact that the note in question was a joint and several one, and that the plaintiff, in another suit, might have some claim against G. alone. Per Townshend, J.—The plaintiff could not succeed without an amendment, and no amendment should be permitted after the lapse of fifteen years. Per Meagher, J., dissenting:—As the years. Fer meagner, it, dissenting, reception of the note was not objected to on the trial, or the existence of the judgment against N. urged as an answer, a stage had been reached when the form of action was been reached when the form of action was not material; also, that, as either objection, if raised upon the trial, could have been curved by amendment, the facts should by looked at rather than the form, and the dedefendant G, should not be permitted to succeed on a mere technicality. Judgment against one Indorser—Insolvency of Another Indorser—Acceptance of Part of Claim and Transfer of Same—Release from Transferee.]—A bank, by their prête-nom H., had recovered judgment against L., the first indorser, and A., the second indorser, of a promissory note. A. having failed, H. filed with the curator of A.'s estate a claim based on this judgment. Shortly afterwards the bank accepted a certain sum from A.'s daughter, by way of composition, and transferred their claim to her, retaining, however, possession of the note. Afterwards, by an agreement between them, she released L. from all claims which she might have against him by virtue of the transfer mentioned:—Held, that the transfer by the bank was of their entire claim under the judgment, that is, its right of recovery against all parties to the note, and not a release by the bank of their rights against the insolvent only; and that the discharge to L, was valid as against the bank and all claiming under them. Langlois v. Harel, Q, R. 13 K. B. 475.

Liability of Indorser — Agreement to become liable — Absence of indorsement by payee—Action by payee—Authority of decided cares, Stater v, Laberce, 5 O, W, R, 420, 539, 6 O, W, R, 628, 10 O, L, R, 648.

Lost Note—Action on—Security, 1—The payee of a lost promissory note cannot sue upon the note, simply effering to reimburse the maker if the note is found, but he must effer to give security that the maker shall not be troubled on account of the note. 2. This rule applies as well to the case of a nonnegotiable note which is probably destroyed, as to that of a negotiable note which is simply lost. Pillow and Hersey Co. v. L'Espérance, Q. R. 22 S. C. 213.

Lost Note—Action on—Security — Plead-ing—Striking out—Costs,]—In an action on a promissory note alleged to have been destroyed by error, where the plaintiff declares that he has offered to the defendant and is still ready to give him security against any liability thereon, and the defendant, after denying all the allegations of the action, further pleads want of security, and sets up facts tending to establish that he is not liable, a motion to set aside such defence will be dismissed, but without costs, Rowan v. Ross. 3 Q. P. R. 391.

Material Alteration - Renewal-Conflict of Evidence-Appeal.]-To an action on a promissory note the defendants pleaded that the note sued on was given in renewal of a prior note for a larger amount, and that the original note was rendered void by being materially altered by the addition thereto of a charge for interest, of which alteration the defendants had no knowledge at the time of making the renewal note. There was a conflict of evidence as to the alteration referred to, but the plaintiff's version was supported by the appearance of the note itself, which appeared, on the face of it, to have been all written at the one time, with the one ink, and in the one handwriting, and bore no evidence of having been altered. The appearance of the note being consistent with the plaintiff's evidence, and hardly reconcilable with that of the defendants, and the trial Judge, after seeing and hearing the witnesses, having accepted the plaintiff's version :-Held, that there was no reason for interfering with his decision. Order on Debtor-Acceptance-Unincorporated Body-Officers-Personal Liability-Mechanics' Liens-Drawback,1-The plaintiff brought an action on the following document: brought an action on the following document:
"The Board of Managers, Presbuterian Church, Moose Jaw. Plense pay H. McDougail the sum of $817.85 on my account and oblige me. James Brass;" which was accepted as follows: "Accepted. D. McLean, Chairman; A. E. Potter, Treasurer," It was found as a fact that McLean and Potter were members of the board, an unincorporated body:—Held, that the document was a bill of exchange; and, following Owen v. 10 C. B. 318, that McLean and Potter were personally liable thereon. Brass was the contractor with the board for the erection of a If the contract had been completed, $817.85 would have been owing to him; but the trial Judge found that it had been left uncompleted to the value of $80. This was allowed to be set off against the amount of the plaintiff's claim; and it was contended that the defendants were entitled further to retain 10 per cent. of the contract price for thirty days after the completion of the contract, under the provisions of the Mechanics' Lien Ordinance :- Held, that the defendants were not so entitled. McDougall v. McLean, 1 Terr. L. R. 450.

L., Co.: "—Held, Wetmore, J., dissenting, that evidence of the circumstances surrounding the making and the accepting of the note was admissible for the purpose of shewing who was intended to be liable on the note. That, on the terms of the note and the evidence of the surrounding circumstances in this case, the defendants were liable. The defendants carried on a lumbering business in partnership. R. was their manager at the place of operations. The partnership kept in the vicinity of their mill a boarding-house, at which their workmen boarded, and a store for the safe to them of supplies. R. ordered goods which were used in the boarding-house, the store, or the mill:—Held, that the ordering of the goods was within the scope of R.'s authority, and that the defendants were therefore liable. Payment-Accord and Satisfaction-Mistake-Principal and Agent.]-On being pressed for payment of the amount of a promissory note, the defendant offered to convey a lot of land (which he then shewed to the plainof land (which he then shewed to the plain-tiffs' agent) to the plaintiffs in satisfaction of the debt. The agent, after inspecting the land, made a report to the plaintiffs, but gave an erroneous description of the property to be conveyed. On being instructed by the plaintiffs to obtain the conveyance, the plaintiffs' solicitor observed the mistake in the description and took the conveyance of the lot which had actually been inspected at the time the offer was made. More than a year after-wards the plaintiffs sued the defendant ou the note, and he pleaded accord and satisfac-tion by conveyance of the land. In their reply the plaintiffs alleged that the property conveyed was not that which had been accepted by them, and at the trial the plaintiffs re-covered judgment. On appeal to the full Court the judgment at the trial was reversed and the action dismissed: — Held, affirming the judgment in 9 B. C. R. 257, that the plaintiffs were bound to accept the lot which had been offered to and inspected by their agent in satisfaction of the debt, and could not recover on the promissory note. Pither not recover on the promissory note. Pith v. Manley, 23 Occ. N. 64, 32 S. C. R. 651.

Place of Payment—Place of Making straigliction of Courts of Another Province straigliction of Domicil—Statutes.]— Action on possissory notes dated and payable at Monthal in the province of Quebec. Plea to the jurisdiction, the defendant alleging that he was domiciled in Ontario and served there, and that the cause of action did not arise in Quebec because the notes were made and signed in Ontario, although dated at Montreal:—Held, that 63 V. e. 38 does not affect prior elections of domicil made tacity in a note by virtue of 52 V. e. 48, in force when the notes were made. 2. That the election of domicil was one of the terms of the contract, and a right could not be affected by a subsequent statute. Merchants Bank of Halifax v. Graham, 3 Q. P. R. 415.

Pledgee of Promissory Note—Holder—Exchange.]—1. A pledgee of a promissory note given as collateral security, is a holder in good faith. 2. A promissory note given in exchange for another note which had been handed over by the owner for collection, is the property of the person who owned the note for which it was given in exchange. Belanger v. Robert, Q. R. 21 S. C. 518.

Prescription—Notarial Note on Brevet —Term.]—A promissory note made before a notary en brevet, signed by a farmer, in favour of a person who is not a trader, for money lent, is subject to a prescription of 30 years. Robert v. Charbonneau, Q. R. 22 S. C. 466, Prescription—Part Payment — Proof of —Payment by Curator of Insolvent, —In a commercial matter part payments, amounting to a tacit acknowledgment, having the effect of interrupting prescription, may be proved by witnesses. 2. Article 1235, C.C., line 1, does not apply to a promissory not, the proof of promissory notes and bills of exchange hems, by the terms of Art. 2341, subject to the law existing in England in 1849. 3. The payment of dividends by the curator of a person who has made an assignment of his property, has the same effect as to interrupting proscription as a payment made by the debtor himself. Boulet v, Metayer, Q. R. 23 S. C. 289.

Prescription — Statute of Limitations—Abduotedgment — Executor de Son Tort — Payments by — Bills of Exchange Act — Dominion and Provincial Legislation.]—A payment or acknowledgment by an executor de son tort cannot be relied upon to prevent the Statute of Limitations from operating as a bar, where the action in which it is set up is brought against the lawful personal representative of the deceased. But where the executor de son tort has made payments of interest in respect to a promissory note, within six months before the action commenced, and the holder of the note brings action against him to make him answerable to the extent of the goods of the deceased come to his hands, it is not open to the defendant, for the purpose of preventing a payment giving a new start to the Statute of Limitations (which effect it would have if made by the lawful personal representative), to rely on his having been a wrongdoer and not the true representative. As between himself and the plaintiff, as respects payments made by the executor de son tort and their effect, the latter is to be treated as the true representative of the deceased. The Bills of Exchange Act does not deal with the consequences which are to flow from the character which, according to its provisions, is attached to the promise which a bill or note contains, and therefore these consequences fall to be determined according to the law of the province in which the liability is sought to be enforced. Cook v, Dadde, 23 Occ. N. 325, 6 O. L. R. 608, 2 O. W. R. 336.

Presentment — Pleading — Waiver — Amendment—Jurisdiction of County Court.]
—The plaintiffs inserted the defendant's advertisement in two of their publications for the sums of $10 and $15 respectively. Separate agreements were made in respect to each publication, but the agreements were made and signed, gave the plaintiffs his promissory note for the sum of $25 payable four months after date at the defendant's office. The plaintiffs' statement of claim contained claims based upon the note and upon the original consideration :—Held, that the claim based upon the note and upon the original consideration was within the jurisdiction of a County Court. The defence that the note was not presented for payment, and that while it was current, the remedy upon the consideration was suspended, must be pleaded. If the defendant were allowed to amend by pleading such defence, the plaintiffs should also be allowed to amend by alleging that presentment was waived by subsequent promises in writing to pay. Something was to be inferred from the duty of a clerk whose duty it was to make presentments, and who testified that he had done so in the case in question. Sharp v. Power, 33 N. S. Reps., 371.

Protest—Waiver—Curator of Insolvent.]
—The curator appointed upon an abandonment of property under the Code of Procedure has no authority, more particularly, as in the present case, without leave of a Judge of the Superior Court or the advice of the creditors or inspectors, to waive on behalf of the insolvent protest of a promissorynote indorsed by the latter, and a waiver under such circumstances does not bind the indorser. Judgment in Q. R. 25 S. C. 474 affirmed. Denenberg v. Mendelshon, Q. R. 23
S. C. 128.

Protest—Waiver—Curator of Insolvent.]

—The curator to an abandonment of property has no right to waive protest of a promissory note of which the insolvent is the indorser. Molsons Bank v. Steel, Q. R. 23 S. C. 316, 5 Q. P. R. 84.

Protest—Waiver—Form of Pleading,]—
The words "I hold myself responsible for the note," written and signed by the indorser upon the face of the note, amount to a waiver of protest; and a declaration alleging this fact is sufficient law. Ranger v. Aumais, 5 Q. P. R. 184.

Power of Attorney—Renewal of Accommodation Note—Indorament by Agent—Authority of Agent—Extension of Time for Payment.]—A power of attorney given by one person to another authorizing the latter to attend to the affairs of the former, does not empower the attorney to indorse a promissory note for the accommodation of the maker thereof, although such note may be a renewal of an accommodation note indorsed by his principal. The holder of a promissory note who consents to a renewal thereof is deemed to extend the time, so far as the maker is concerned, for payment, to the time the renewal falls due. An indorser of a promissory note has a right to avail himself of an extention of time given to the maker. Molsons Bank v. Cooke, Q. R. 27 S. C. 130.

Purchase Price of Shares—Misrepresentations as to value—Confidential adviser—Agency—Evidence. Atlas Loan Co. v. Davis, 5 O. W. R. 31.

Renewal — Consideration—Acknowledgment of Value—Connection.]—The company respondents sued on a promissory note signed by the appellant and payable to the order of the respondents, for value received. The respondents admitted that they paid no cash consideration to the appellant for this note. but stated that it was given in part renewal of a previous note for a similar amount, which appellant executed in favour of one S., and which was indorsed and transferred to respondents, with another of like amount in settlement of the overdrawn account of who was their general manager :- Held, that where the connection between the first note, for which valid consideration was received, and the notes given in renewal thereof. is clearly established, want of consideration is not a valid defence to an action by the payee against the maker on a renewal note in which the latter acknowledges to have 2. Such connection may be received value. proved, as in this case, by a consecutive and uninterrupted series of dates in the payee's books in regard to the transaction, together with the probability that the payee would not have surrendered a valid note without re-ceiving a valid renewal. 3. Even in the ab-sence of positive proof that the first note was indorsed by S. to the company, the Court may reasonably presume that such was the case from the fact that it was delivered to the company and was in custody of the company's cashier, together with the fact that the note now sued upon was given by appellant for value received and was payable directly to the company. Ross v. Western Loan and Trust Co., Q. R. 11 K. B. 292.

Release—Proof by Entries in Books—Transfer Without Indorsement - Notice of Transfer.]—Where the payee and the maker of a promissory note agree that it should be released, but the note is afterwards transferred by the payee, with other assets, to a company incorporated to take over the business of the payee, the maker may prove the release of the note by entries made in the company's books, with the knowledge and under the direction of the payee, and by corroborative verbal evidence of other officers of the company. 2. When a promissory note is transferred after maturity, not by indorsement, but by being included in a general transfer of the assets of a business, the person acquiring the note must have notice of the transfer served on the maker before a right of action exists in favour of such transferee. Security for Debt—Husband and Wife—Perent and Child—Undue Influence—Lack of Independent Advice—Conspiracy.]—C., a man without means, and W., a rich money lender, were engaged together in stock speculations. W. advancing money to C. at a high rate of interest in the ourse of such business. C. being eventually heavily in the other's debt, it was agreed between them that if C. could procure the signatures of his wife and daughter, each of whom had property of her own, as security, W. would give him a further advance of $1,000. Though unwilling at first, the wife and daughter finally signed promissory notes in favour of C. for sums aggregating over $7,000, which were delivered to W. Neither of the makers had independent advice:—Held, reversing the judgment to the Court of Appeal, Adams v. Cox. 2 O. W. R. 93, 3 O. W. R. 32, 4 O. W. R. 15, 5 O. W. R. 419. Taschereau, C.J.C., dissenting, that, though the daughter was 23 years old, she was still subject to the dominion and influence of her father, and the contract made by her without independent advice was not binding:—Held, also, Taschereau, C.J.C., and Killiam,—J., dissenting, that his wife was also subjected to influence by C. and entitled to independent advice, and she was, therefore, not linble on the note she signed. Per Sedgewick, J., that the evidence produced disclosed that the transaction was a conspiracy between C. and W. to procure the signatures to the notes, and that the wife of C. was decived as to his financial position and the purpose for which the notes were required. Therefore the plaintiff could not recover. Cow v. Adams. 25 Occ. N. 25, 35 S. C. R, 333.

Even if it were brought into force, it was annulled by the repugnant legislation of the Bills of Exchange Act, although not mentioned in the repealing schedule to the Act. The Canadian Bills of Exchange Act was intended to modify and alter as well as to codify the law relating to bills of exchange, cheques, and promissory notes. BILLS OF SALE AND CHATTEL MORT-GAGES.

Absolute Transfer - "Defeasance"-Oral Understanding—Property Remaining in Grantor's Possession—Filing—Renewal.]— The defendant, a constable, levied upon goods and chattels in the possession of S. under an execution issued on a judgment recovered against S, by M. At the time of the 'ey the goods were covered by a bill of sale to the plaintiff to secure $150. The document purported on its face to be an absolute transfer, with a right to immediate possession, but it was referred to in the affidavit as a bill of sale, and the evidence shewed that there of sale, and the evidence shewed that there was an understanding, not reduced to writing, that S. should get the property back on payment of the amount secured. After the filing of the bill of sale, the property was allowed to remain in the possession of S.—Held, that the fact of the property remaining in the possession of the grantor was not a fraud in itself, but a matter for the consideration of the trial Judge, and he having found that the amount named as the continuous contraction. sideration was due from the grantor to the grantee, and that the transaction was not tainted with fraud, and the amount of property transferred not being excessive, there was no reason for disturbing his finding. The same principle would apply to the fact The same principle would apply to the lace that the provision for redemption of the pro-perty covered was not reduced to writing. The oral agreement for the return of the property was not a "defeasance" in the sense in which that term is used, and the section of the Act which requires every defeasance to which a bill of sale is subject to be filed with it, was not applicable. The bill of sale having been made and filed prior to the of sale having been made and filed prior to the passage of the Bills of Sale Act of 1899:— Held, that it was validly filed subject to the special clause as to the filing of a renewal statement, and, the time prescribed for the filing of a renewal statement not having elapsed, that the bill of sale was in no way affected by such provision. Frazer v. Mur-roy, 34 N. S. Reps. 186.

Chattel Mortgage — Renewal—Change of possession—Parent and child—Execution creditor: Goodyear v. Goodyear, 1 O. W. R. 405.

Chattel Mortgage Renewal—Statement of Payments—Repetition.]—In an interpleader matter between an execution creditor and a chattel mortgage of the execution debtor, the validity of the renewals of a chattel mortgage was questioned, on the ground that, while the first renewal statement shewed all the payments made during the year and the total amount due, the subsequent renewal statement began with the total amount due in the preceding statement, and did not repeat the payments there set out and credited:—Held, sufficient. Christin v. Christian, 1 O. L. R. (334, 50 llowed. Kerr v. Roberts, 17 Occ. N. 337, overruled. Judgment of MacWatt, Co.J., in the 2nd Division Court, Lambton, 3 O. W. R. 327, affirmed. Rogers v. Consideration—Indorsement of Promissory Note.]—Under s, 56 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, a person who indorses a promissory note, not indorsed by the payee, is liable as an indorser to the latter. Judgment of the Court of Appeal, 2 O. L. R. 63, 21 Occ. N. 375, on this point reversed. The provisions of the Ontario Bills of Sale Act requiring the consideration of a chattel mortgage to be expressed therein is satisfied when the mortgage recites that the indorsement of a note is the consideration, and then sets out the note. Only the facts need be stated, not their legal effect. Judgment of the Court of Appeal on this point affirmed. Robinson v. Mann, 22 Occ. N. 2, 31 S. C. R. 484.

Description — Construction — Ejusdem Generis Rule.]—Held, that the following description in a chattel mortgage, "All office fixtures, lamps, desks, chairs, furniture, stationery, and all goods, chattels, and effects now in the store and office of the mortgagors," did not include a safe, the general words being restricted by the preceding words. Goldie v. Taylor, 2 Terr. L. R. 298.

Document Having Effect of Bill of Sale—Taking Possession Under—Necessity for Filing—"Hirer, Lessor, or Bargainor."] —Action for a declaration that a transfer of goods from the defendant to his brother, was void under c. 11 of the Acts of 1898, and ss. 1, 3, and 4 of R. S. N. S., 5th ser., c. 92, because it was not filed. By the document in question the defendant transferred a stock of goods in store to the amount of $1,500, and agreed to pay for the same by paying notes of B. & Co. to the amount of $500, and by giving ten notes for the balance of $100 each, one payable every six months. The document concluded: "The said G, H. to hold the goods in store, and whatever goods may come in after shall become the property of the said G. H. until the said G. H.'s claim is paid in full. If I fail to pay any of the above named notes, the said G. H. can take over possession of the business and all stock in the said store at time of me failing to meet or pay above or aforesaid named notes." This document was not filed, and was not accompanied by any affidavit. After G. H. had taken possession of the stock of goods under the power, plaintiffs attached the goods as the property of an absent or absconding debtor, and sought to have the transfer set aside.—Held, that the document in question came within the term "bill of sale," as defined by R. S. X. S. c. 92, s. 10, and should have been filed, and was liable to be defented for non-filing up to the time that G. H. took possession under it:—Held, also, that G. H. did not come within the category of a "hirer, lessor or bargainor," within the meaning of s. 3 of c. 92, and that such section had therefore no application. Manchester v. Hills, 34 N. S. Reps. 512.

Failure to Renew-New Bill-Previous Agreement—Validity — Absence of Fraud — Statute of Frauds—Possession—Affidavit — Commissioner - Solicitor,]-A bill of sale given in connection with the sale of a business held by the vendor for the benefit and protection of the plaintiff, who had indorsed certain promissory notes given by the vendee in payment of the purchase money, having expired, in consequence of failure it under the provisions of the Act, the plaintiff, in pursuance of an agreement made at the time of the sale, demanded and received a second bill of sale, to secure the amount for which he remained liable in respect of the original indorsements, as well as certain amounts for which he had become liable as indorser of other promissory notes. There being no question of insolvency on the of the maker at the time the second bill of sale was given, and no fraudulent purpose, and the terms of the agreement being accurately set forth:—Held, that there was no pretence for holding the bill of sale void under the Statute of Elizabeth; that the fact that the plaintiff had taken possession under that the plaintin and taken possession at the his bill of sale, and was in possession at the time the sheriff made his levy, was sufficient, in the absence of fraud, to enable the plaintiff to maintain his action; and, following Creighton v. Reid, 27 N. S. Reps, 72, that the affidavit to the bill of sale was not bad because it had been sworn before the solicitor by whom the bill of sale was pro-Mosher v. O'Brien, 37 N. S. Foreign Chattel Mortgage — Remoral of Goods to Territories—Non-registration—Rights of Mortgage—Bona Fide Purchaser.]—A chattel mortgage made in a foreign country upon goods there, which is valid and binding there as against not only the mortgage, but also subsequent mortgage and purchasers, is valid and binding to the same extent in the Territories, notwithstanding that the provisions of the Bills of Sale Ordinances of the Territories have not been compiled with. Where, therefore, good been being in a foreign country were comprised in such a mortgage and subsequently removed to the Territories, and there taken by the agent of the mortgagee out of the possession of a bona fide purchaser for value without notice to the mortgagor, and the latter surfue agent for conversion;—Held, that the plaintiff could not succeed. Renewal — Statement—Affidavit—Payments—Principal—Interest.)—The objection taken to the validity of a chattel mortgage was, that the renewals were not stifficient, in that (1) they were not signed by the mortgage, and (2) were not upon their face sufficiently explicit in regard to the payments made. On the back of each statement was an affidavit, signed by the mortgage and soort by him, referring to the statement upon thich it was indorsed:—Held, following Barber v Maughan, 42 U. C. Sale or Exchange of Mortgaged Property-Verbal License-Ordinary Course of Business.]-The defendant, a farmer, executed a chattel mortgage to one M., whereby he assigned all the goods, chattels, and property mentioned in a schedule, and also any and all the property that might thereafter be bought to keep up the same, in lieu thereof and in addition thereto, either by exchange or purchase. The instrument also contained a proviso that the defendant should remain in possession of the mortgaged property until default, with power to use the same in the ordinary way while so in possession, but with full power, right, and authority to M. to enter and take possession of the property in case of default of payment, or on the death of the defendant, or in the event of the seizure of the property at the suit of any creditor, or in the event of the defendant disposing of or attempting to dispose of or make away with said property or of any part thereof without the written consent of Included in the property mortgaged was a stallion, which a few months after the execution of the mortgage and before any default on the part of the defendant, but without the written consent of M., he exchanged with the plaintiff for a horse belonging to him. After the exchange the plaintiff, having discovered that the stallion was covered by the mortgage, attempted to avoid the transaction, sending the stallion back to the defendant and demanding the return of his own horse, which the defendant refused to deliver:—Held, that, as the mortgage must be taken to contain the whole contract entered into between the defendant and M., the Judge of the Court below was in error in giving any effect to a mere verbal license, which any effect to a mere verbal license, which preceded the mortgage and was not in harmony with many of its provisions; and that it was clearly a condition of the mortgage, and the intention of the parties thereto, that the defendant should be allowed to sell or exchange the mortgaged property, provided such sale or exchange was in the ordinary course of the defendant's business, and, as whether this exchange had been in the ordinary course of the defendant's business or not was a question of fact which had not been passed upon by the Court below, there should be a new trial in order to have that point determined. Taking Possession—Bills of Sale Act—Defeasance—Authority of Partner to Execute Bill—Locus Standi of Creditor,]—Where the goods comprised in a bill of sale were within 21 days after its execution bona fide taken possession of by the bargainee, the Bills of Sale Act was beld not to apply, and it was immaterial that the bill was subject to a defeasance not contained in it. Semble, that a judgment creditor of the bargainors (a partnership) had no locus standi to attack the bill on the ground that a member of the firm had no authority to execute the bill on behalf of the firm:—Held, that he had implied authority, or that his act was ratified, or that his partners were estopped from denying his authority. Transfer of Ownership of Goods — Possession Retained—Rights of Creditors— Fraud—Preference—Pressure.]—The defendant, by an agreement in writing, transferred to the opposant, his creditor, the ownership of his furniture, as security for the opposant's claim. The transfer was made subject to a ciaim. The transfer was made subject to a right on the defendant's part to recover the ownership, on paying the amount of his in-debtedness, for which he had given the opposant a demand note. By the contract transferring the effects, it was agreed that the opposant should have the right to take possession of the effects if the note were not paid, and that the effects should be left in the defendant's possession until he made de-The note had not been paid, but some small payments had been made on account, and judgment had been obtained by the opposant on the note. The effects transferred having been seized in the defendant's possession by the plaintiff, a judgment creditor, the opposant claimed them as his property, under the transfer :- Held, that where there is no evidence of intention to defraud or of simulation, a debtor from whom his creditor demands security, can, for the purpose of furnishing such security, transfer to the creditor the ownership of movable effects, so as to give the latter, without his taking possession of the movables transferred, a good title thereto as against other creditors of such debtor, including even a creditor anterior to the one whose claim was secured by the t Creed v, Haensel, Q. Breach—Agreement to Exchange Land—Infant—Indennity, 1— The plainiff and an infant owner of land entered into an agreement for the exchange of land, the land of the plaintiff being subject to a mortrage, the interest upon which to a certain date hagreed to pay, nothing being said in the agreement as to payment of the interest after that date. The defendant gave a bond to the plaintiff conditioned to be void if the infant owner, after arriving at the age of twenty-one years, should convey his land to the plaintiff, and agreements to be done and performed him as the said agreement mentioned. The infant went into possession of the plaintiffs' land, but, the interest after the anaddate not having been paid, the land was sold by the mortgagee before the infant attained the age of twenty-one years, and the infant upon attaining that age did not convey his land to the plaintiff:—Held, though the infant was mpliedly bound to indemnify the plaintiff against payment of interest after the named that the plaintiff against payment of interest after the named date, yet that right of indemnify the Breach — Penalty—Damages—Commencement of Action — Subsequent Breaches.] — Held, per Tuck, C.J., McLeod and Gregory, J.J., that in an action on a bond conditioned for maintenance, where the breach assigned is refusal to maintain, the plaintiff may recover the whole penalty as damages. In assessing the damages the jury are not limited to those suffered up to the time of the issue of the writ; but they may take into consideration the damages up to the time of the trial, and that there has been a complete breach of the condition. Per Hannungton, Landry and Barker, J.J., that judgment may be entered for the penalty upon which subsequent breaches may be assigned up to the commencement of the action. Bartheliotte v. Trespass—Line Fence—New Trial—Onus.]—The plaintiff and defendant were owners of adjoining lots of land, the title to which was derived from the same original grantor. The plaintiff's lot was described as being bounded on the north by the south line of the defendant's lot. In an action for trespass the plaintiff complained that the defendant. In erecting a new fence, had placed it on a line different from the line of the fence which existed previously, and which was admitted to have been on the true line between the two lots. The question whether the defendant had, as a matter of fact, departed from the old line or not, having been left undetermined:—Held, that there must be a new trial. Per Weatherbe, J. (dissenting), that the burden was upon the plaintiff to prove the south line of the defendant's lot.

BROKER.

Action by Stock-broker — Gaming Transaction—Contract Void.]—The plaintiff, a stock-broker, brought an action against the defendant for a balance alleged to be due on account of certain transactions. The defendant pleaded that the alleged contract was illegal, and therefore null and void. The evidence shewed that the corn and cotton which were the subjects of the alleged contract were never delivered, and that there was no intention that they should be delivered:—Held, that the contract sued on was a gaming one and was therefore prohibited by law. Forget v. Ostigny, [1895] A. C. 318, distinguished. 2. That the broker, having knowledge of the nature of such contract, had no recourse against his client for moneys advanced in furtherance of such contract. 3. That, even if the defendant had recognized his debt and offered his property to cover the same, as alleged by the plaintiff.

such acknowledgment was of no effect, as the debt claimed resulted from an illegal contract. 4. That, in any event, the responsibility of a person speculating in stocks to his broker is limited to his margin, unless he has given contrary instructions. Morris v. Brault, 23 Occ. N. 120, Q. R. 23 S. C. 190.

Gaming Contract-Principal and Agent Mandate-Speculation-Delivery of Goods.] —Held, reversing the judgment in 23 Occ. N. 120, Q. R. 23 S. C. 190, that where a broker enters into a transaction on the stock exchange for the purchase or sale of goods in behalf of a customer, and the transaction takes place in the ordinary course of business, the broker's sole interest being his commission, he is entitled to recover from the customer the amount of the loss resulting from the operation. 2. The broker's claim is not restricted to the amount of margin in his hands, but, in the absence of any contract to the contrary, includes the entire loss. 3. A contract does not fall under the head of gaming contract merely because it is entered into in furtherance of a speculation. It is a legitimate commercial transaction to buy a commodity, in the expectation that it will rise in value, and with the intention of realizing a profit by its resale. 4. Where a real contract of purchase has been made and carried out by a broker on behalf of a principal, delivery of the goods to the broker by transfer of warehouse receipts is delivery to transfer of warehouse receipts is delivery to the principal, just as much as if it had been made directly to himself. Morris v. Brault, Q. R. 24 S. C. 167.

Shares—Advance by Brokers—Margins— Speculative Shares—Fall in Price—Sale without Notice to Customer - Damages -Measure of-Intention of Customer to Retain Shares—Price at Time of Trial—Unreasonable Delay in Objecting to Sale.] — Action for moneys advanced by plaintiffs as defendant's brokers to protect shares bought by plaintiff for defendant on margin. The bought note delivered by plaintiffs to defendants at the time of purchase contained the following stipulation: "When carrying stocks for clients we reserve the right of pledging the same or raising money upon them in any way convenient to us." The price of stocks purchased at first advanced. and plaintiffs returned defendant's deposit and advanced him an additional $4,000 upon the stock. Afterwards the price fell and stock was sold (without notice to defendant) at a loss. Then plaintiffs notified defendant of the loss, and at the same time rendering a bill for balance due them on the transaction. Then this action was brought: Held (5 O. W. R. 328, 9 O. L. R. 631), plaintiff entitled to recover the amount of their advances, with interest on them at the rates shewn in the account rendered, deducting the shewn in the account removed, usuactus, the dividends received and the proceeds of the sale of stock. There was no evidence to shew that the defendant would not have held the stock until the trial. The Court prethe stock until the trial. The Court pre-sumed that he would have done so, therefore held: That the defendant was not entitled to recover any damages for the wrongful to recover any damages for the wrongful sale of the stock by plaintiffs, as the rtock at the time of the trial could have been bought very much below the prices at which it was sold by plaintiffs. Judgment appealed, but dismissed with costs. Ames v. Sutherland, 6 O. W. R. 20, Shares-Purchase on Margin - Depreciation - Sale by Broker - Notice - Acquiescence.]-The defendant instructed the plaintiffs' manager at Winnipeg to purchase for him, on a margin of 3 per cent., 100 shares of Erie Railway stock. The plaintiffs, through their agents, bought the shares on the New York Stock Exchange, and the agents thereafter held them subject to the control and order of the plaintiffs. The defendant was informed within an hour of the purchase and the price paid. The next day he received the usual advice note of the transaction, in which it was stated that on all marginal business the plaintiffs reserved the right to close transactions when margins are running out, without further notice, Two weeks afterwards the price of the shares began to fall, and the margin became so small that the manager telegraphed the defendant at Gladstone to send $500 additional margin; and later on the same day, the margin being entirely lost, he telegraphed the defendant to put up $1,000 further margin. Defendant re-plied to these telegrams: "Will attend mes-sage, down to-morrow." The manager gave no express notice that he would sell the shares unless the margins demanded were put up, but waited until the delivery of the mail from Gladstone the next morning. not having heard from the defendant, he telegraphed to have the shares sold, which was done at a loss of $1,150:—Held, that there was an actual purchase of the shares for the defendant, and it was not necessary that the shares should have been actually transferred on the books of the railway company, either to the defendant or to the plaintiffs.

2. There was an actual sale of the shares regularly made on the defendant's account, according to the usages of the stock-broking business. 3. The plaintiffs were entitled, under the terms of the notice sent to the defendant, to sell the shares, without notice to him, when the margin was exhausted, as the defendant, not having objected to these terms, must be taken, after a reasonable time, to have assented to them. had in reference to this transaction. Evidence went against defendant upon each contention. The questions of law were (1) As to the right of plaintiffs to hypothecate the stock for advances made to them:—Held, there was the right of hypothecation. (2) Were the shares sold by Chandler & Co. to the plaintiffs in December defendant? Shares so that he was entitled to call that a conversion and to compel plaintiffs to account as of that date? [Reference to Clarkson v. Smider, 10 O, R. 568]:—Held, plaintiffs never parted with the stock so as to prejudice defendant, and always had such control of a sufficient amount of the stock as would enable them to deliver it to defendant upon demand and upon payment of balance due by him. Stock was sold without instructions from defendant, as the memorandum of the bought note permitted them to do. Held, plaintiffs entitled to what they paid Chandler & Co., but to no profit on that sale (a sale for their own benefit). Plaintiffs apparently paid 1-16, equivalent to $18.75. Credit to defendant of $56.25. A greater rate of interest than the statutory 5 per cent, and that not compounded was not allowed. Otherwise judgment for plaintiff for principal, interest and costs. Stock Dealings on Margin—Obligation of Broker to Sell.]—There is no obligation on a broker, in the absence of the customer's orders, to sell shares during a falling market after he has demanded further margins and received no reply from his customer; and therefore if he does not sell the stock under such circumstances he has no responsibility for any loss that may arise to the customer. Kerr v. Murton, 24 Occ. N. 293, 7 O. L. R. 751, 3 O. W. R. 801.

Stock Transactions—Contract with Customers—Purchase of Shares on Maryin—Sale—Default—Notice, —Operations on the stock market consisting in the purchase of shares upon margin are operations permitted by law and cannot be compared to gaming or betting. 2. Stock brokers are not obliged to give notice to their customers that they are about to sell their customers that they are about to sell their stocks if they do not furnish margin to cover sudden fluctuations of the market. 3. A demand for margin by telegram does not create, as regards the brokers, the obligation not to sell the stock of the customer where the latter has consented to turnish the margin demanded, and has informed the broker of his consent. Belieuv , Lagueuar, Q. R. 25 S. C. 91.

Conviction — Autrefois acquit — Commencement of Prosecution—Sale by Agent—Consent of Defendant—Constitutional Lauvarialistion of Parish Court Commissioners.] Where a person is convicted of an offence under the Caunda Temperance Act, committed at a time falling within the period covered by a previous information upon which he was acquitted, in order to sustain a plea of autrefois acquit he must shew that the offence for which he was convicted and that for which he was acquitted were identical. The laying of the information is the commencement of the prosecution. Whether the sale of the liquor was by the consent or contrary to the order of the defendant is a question for the magistrate. Section 108 (dd) of the Canada Temperance Act, R. S. C. c. 106, in so far as it attempts to confer upon parish court commissioners jurisdiction to try offences against the Act, is ultra vires of the Parliament of Canada. Ex p. Flanagan, 34 N. B. Reps. 577.

Conviction—Certiorari—Sale of Liquors—Delivery by Agent.]—Trenholm was the agent of the Dominion Express Company at Botsford in the county of Westmoreland.

One S. T. had ordered from L., a merchant residing and doing business in Amherst, Nova Scotia, some whisky, directing that it should be forwarded to him at Botsford, by express C.O.D. The company in due course of business sent the package to S. T., the purchaser, and it was delivered to him at Botsford by Trenholm, the company's agent, to whom S. T. paid the price and charges, which were remitted in the ordinary way to the company's agent at Amherst. Upon these facts Trenholm was charged and convicted for selling liquor contrary to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act:—Held, that there was no sale by Trenholm, and, even if a delivery was necessary to complete the sale, it only completed a sale which took place in Amherst, and with which Trenholm, as in no way concerned. Exp. Trenholm, 21 Occ. N. 55.

Conviction-Costs and Expenses-Variance between Minute and Conviction—Conveyance to Gaol—Criminal Code.]—A conviction for selling intoxicating liquors, con-trary to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act, provided for the imprisonment of defendant for the period of forty days "unless the said sums (the penalties and costs of conviction) and the costs and charges of the said distress and of the conveying of the said M. D. V. to the common gaol shall be sooner paid:"—Held, that the expression be somer paid: —Held, that the expression "costs and charges" in the conviction, and the expression "costs and the expenses" in the Criminal Code, s. 872 (a), mean the same thing. There was a variance between the minute of conviction and the conviction -the minute providing for payment of the costs of conveying to gaol, and the conviction for the "costs and charges of the said distress and of the conveying," &c. Held, that as the provision was properly at out in the conviction, and its insertion in the minute was unnecessary, the variance was immaterial. A second conviction for a similar offence omitted the provision as to the costs of conveyance to gaol :- Held (Meagher, J., dissenting), that the conviction was bad and must be set aside with costs, not having been made in conformity with the terms of the Code, s. 872 (a). Regina v. McDonald, 26 N. S. Reps. 94 (where the imposition of costs under the provisions of the Summary Convictions Act, R. S. C. c. 178, s. 66, was held discretionary), distinguished. Regina v. Vantassel, 34 N. S. Reps. 79.

Convictions-Motion to Quash-Convictions not Properly Before Court - Certiorari.]—An application to quash two convictions for violations of the Canada Temperance Act was made, upon reading an affidavit of the defendant, and an order made by a Judge for a return of papers, and the return thereto. The order and return were made in connection with a previous application of the defendant for his discharge from imprisonment:—Held, that there being no writ of certiorari, and no proper return thereto, the matter was not properly before the Court, and the Court had no jurisdiction to quash the convictions:—Held, that the mere fact of the papers referred to being found on the files of the Court was not sufficient to constitute a cause in Court, in respect to which the application to quash the convictions could be made: - Semble, that a writ which required the sending up of papers in two distinct causes would be liable to attack on the ground of multifariousness. Rex v. McDonald, 35 N. S. Reps. 323.

Conviction—Several Prosecutions Pending at Same Time—Evidence—Influence on Magistrate.]—The defendant was summoned to appear before a stipendiary magistrate to answer two informations for selling intoxicating liquor, in violation of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act. Evidence was heard in both cases, and both cases were then adjourned until a subsequent day, when judgment was given, convicting the defendant under one information, and quashing the other:—Held, that the conviction must be quashed, the magistrate having heard evidence in both cases, and had them pending before him when he made the conviction; the evidence in the one case, although dismissed, being calculated, in the circumstances disclosed, to influence the magistrate in the case in which the defendant was convicted. Regina v. McBerney, 26 N. S. Reps. 337. followed. Rew v. Burke, 36 N. S. Reps. 327. followed. Rew v. Burke, 36 N. S. Reps. 327. followed. Rew v. Burke, 36 N. S. Reps. 327. followed. Rew v. Burke, 36 N. S. Reps. 327.

Conviction—Third Offence — Date of— Conviction for Second Offence.] — An information for a first offence against the Canada Temperance Act was laid on the 13th May, and a conviction had thereon on the 27th May, for an offence on the 8th May. Information for a second offence was laid on the 6th August, and a conviction had thereon on the 19th August for an offence between the 1st June and the 11th July. An information for a third offence was laid on the 10th October, and a conviction had thereon on the 2nd November for an offence on the 12th July :- Held, per Hanington and Landry, JJ., that a third offence to be punishable as such must be one committed after a conviction for the second offence, and the third conviction in this case was bad .-Per Barker and Gregory, JJ., that the con-viction was bad because the information for a second offence had not been laid before the commission of the offencee for which the third conviction was made.-Per McLeod, J., that, as the conviction was for an offence committed on a different day from the first and second offences, and after information was laid for a first offence, it was good. Red v. Marsh, Ex p. McCoy, 36 N. B. Reps.

Conviction-Third Offence - Failure to Shew Offence Committed after Information for First Offence-Affidavits-Form of Conviction-Separate Offences.]-The defendant was convicted by a magistrate for unlawfully selling intoxicating liquor within a town between the 15th March, 1904, and the 5th April, 1904, contrary to the provisions of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act, then in force in and throughout the county of Cumberland, the conviction being a conviction as and for a third offence against the second part of the Canada Temperance Act. On application for a writ of certiorari the chief point argued was that it did not appear from the conviction that the offence for which the defendant was convicted, was committed after an information laid for the first offence, as required by R. S. C. c. 106, s. 115 (d). Affidavits were read in reply shewing that, although it was not so stated in the conviction, such in fact was the case:— Held, that the affidavits were receivable:-

Held, that the provisions of the statute having been complied with, although it was not so stated in the conviction, the conviction in form "V" provided by the Dominion Act, 1888, c. 34, s. 14, was sufficient. Regina v. Ettinger, 32 N. S. Reps. 43, and Regina v. Ettinger, 32 N. S. Reps. 181, referred to—Held, also, that the conviction was not invalid although it did not therein appear that the second and third convictions were for separate offences. Rex v. Swan, 24 Occ. N. 239.

Conviction — Stipendiary Magistrate of County—Offence in Town—Jurisdiction.]—
The defendant was convicted of a violation of the Canada Temperance Act by selling intoxicating liquor at Sydney in the county of Cape Breton. Sydney is an incorporated town within the county of Cape Breton. The convicting magistrate was appointed to be "a stipendiary magistrate in the county of Cape Breton:"—Held, that the magistrate had jurisdiction. Rex v. Coneay, 21 Occ. N. 336.

"County"—Incorporation of City—Reduction of Arca.]—The word "county," for the purposes of the Canada Temperance Act, simply means "geographical area," and there is therefore no reason for construing the Act in such a way as to effect a reduction of the prohibited area, when a city incorporated under provincial legislation is carved out of it.—By order in council dated the 15th October, 1881, the second part of the Canada Temperance Act, 1878, was declared to be in force and take effect in the county of Cape Breton. In the year 1904, by Act of the legislature of Nova Scotia passed in that year, the city of Sydney was incorporated. The defendant was convicted of having unlawfully kept intoxicating liquor for sale in the city of Sydney, contrary to the provisions of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act, then in force in said city—Held, affirming the conviction, that, so far as the Canada Temperance Act was concerned, the word "county" was to be read as applying to the county as it existed when the Act was brought into force by order in council, and that the incorporation by the provincial legislature of a portion of the territory as a town or city would not have the effect of displacing the operation of the Act. Rev. v. McMullin, 25 Coc. N. 108.

Dismissal of Charge—Appeal to County Court — Costs of Appeal — Addition of to Penalty.]—Upon the trial of an information charging the defendant with a violation of the provisions of the second part of the Candal Temperance Act, before two justices of the peace, the justices dismissed the charge and made a formal order of dismissal. From the order so made the prosecutor appealed to a County Court, which quashed the order made by the justices, convicted the defendant of the offence charged, and ordered that he pay, in addition to the fine imposed, &c., the prosecutor's costs, amounting to the sum of $27.10, and that the same be levied by distress, &c.—Held, (Ritchie and Henry, JJ., dissenting) that the County Court Judge land jurisdiction to include in the penalty imposed the costs of appeal to that Court. Regima v. Haubolt, 33 N. S. Reps. 165.

Illegal Sale of Liquors — Action for Price.]—In an action for the price of intexicating liquors sold by the plaintiff to the defendant at North Sydney, in the county of Cape Breton, it was admitted that the plaintiff knew that the Canada Temperance Act was in force in North Sydney, that the defendant was then carrying on a business in intoxicating liquors, thet the order for the liquors was given by the defendant to an agent of the plaintiff at North Sydney, but subject to the approval of the plaintiff, and that the defendant purchased the liquors as a retail dealer for sale in that country:—Held, that there was sufficient ground to justify a judgment for the defendant. Ross v. Morrison, 36 N. S. Reps. 518.

Jurisdiction of Provincial Magistrates-Conviction - Justices of the Peace Adjournment-Proof of Service-Delay in Hearing.]-The defendant was convicted before two justices of the peace for the county of Kings of the offence of having unlawfully kept for sale in his hotel at K., in said county, intoxicating liquors, contrary to the provisions of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act then in force in said county:-Held, that the Provincial Legislature having made provision for the appointment of justices of peace, and having conferred jurisdiction upon them to impose penalties and punishments for the enforcement of provincial statutes, it was competent for the Parliament of Canada, by statute, to provide that punishments and penalties for the enforcement of laws of the Parliament of enforcement of laws of the Parliament of Canada might be recovered and inflicted be-fore these Courts. Therefore the Magistrates had jurisdiction. The justices having met at the hour appointed did not lose jurisdic-tion by the fact of their having adjourned, the hearing until a later hour of the same day. Proof of the service of summons being a part of the hearing, it was not necessary that the justices should have had such proof before them as a preliminary to making the adjournment. The delay in the hearing of the case from the hour of ten o'clock in the morning until about two o'clock in the afternoon of the same day was not unreasonable. Rex v. Wipper, 34 N. S. Reps.

Jurisdiction of Stipendiary Magistrates-County and Town.]-The defendant was convicted by the stipendiary magistrate for the county of Cape Breton, of the offence of having kept for sale upon his premises intoxicating liquors contrary to the provisions of the second part of the Canada Temperance Act. The offence was committed within the limits of the town of Sydney, an incorporated town in the county of Cape Breton. Under the provisions of R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 33, relative to the appointment S. 1900 c. 33, relative to the appointment and authority of stipendiary magistrates, it is enacted that "every stipendiary magis-trate shall have jurisdiction, power, and authority throughout the whole of the county for which he is appointed:"—Held, that, in the absence of legislation giving exclusive jurisdiction to the stipendiary magistrate for the town of Sydney, the words of the statute must be construed as including that part of the county embraced within the limits of the town. Section 14 of c. 33, which was relied upon as indicating a contrary intention, was not to be given such a construction, but was merely intended to give certain powers to stipendiary magistrates for the counties, where exclusive jurisdiction had been conferred upon the magistrates for incorporated towns. Rex v. Giovanetti, 34 N. S. Reps. 505.

Offences against—Sale of Liquor Outside County — Delivery and Collection of Price — Agent.]—The agent of an express company in the county of W., where the Canada Temperance Act was in force, in the ordinary course of business, delivered a parcel containing intoxicating liquor to the person to whom it was addressed, and collected from him the price thereof, the liquor, by the buyer's instructions, having been sent to him by express, c. o. d. The sale of the liquor was effected at a place outside of the county of W.:—Held, that the agent could not be convicted of selling intoxicating liquor contrary to the provisions of the Act. Regina v. Cahill, Exp. Trenholm, Exp. Mitton, 21 Occ. N. 55, 35 N. B. Reps. 240.

Previous Conviction — Evidence—Defendant Represented by Counsel.]—On application to quash a conviction for a fourth offence against the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act, on the ground that the question whether the defendant had been previously convicted was not addressed to him, as required by s. 115 (a) of the Act:—Held, dismissing the application with cests, that it was not necessary that the question referred to should be addressed to the defendant in a case where he was represented by counse!—Held that, if the defendant could be adequately represented by counse in pleading to and trying the main case (which it was clear he might be, under ss. $50, $54, $55, $56, and $57 of the Code), he could equally be represented by counsel in respect to this inquiry. Rex v. O'Hearon, 34 N. S. Reps. 491.

Search Warrant—Execution by Prosecutor—Order for Destruction of Liquors.]—The prosecutor of a charge of keeping liquor for sale contrary to the Canada Temperance Act, being personally liable for costs in the event of the prosecution failing, is, though a peace officer, disqualified from executing a search warrant or an order for the destruction of the liquor for the keeping of which for sale the information was laid. Exp. McCleare, 20 Occ. N. 89, 35 N. B. Reps. 100.

Second Arrest on Same Warrant.]—
The prisoner, who had been arrested under a warrant to serve a sentence of imprisonment for an offence against the Canada Temperance Act, was, upon his own request, suffered to go at large for a time by the officer who had the execution of the warrant. Shortly afterwards he was again arrested upon the same warrant and conveyed to the county gaol to serve his term of imprisonment. Upon an application for an order in the nature of a habeas corpus:—Held, by the full Court, that the second arrest upon the same warrant was legal, and that the order should be refused. Exp. Doherty, 35 N. B. Reps. 43. [But see a subsequent decision in the same case, 20 Occ. N. 20.]

CARRIERS.

Agreement for Carriage of Goods—Cost of Transport—Bills of Lading—Non-delivery of Goods—Danages.]—The appellant had made an agreement with the agent of the respondent company, at a fixed price and under penalty, for the delivery of goods which were to be forwarded from Paris, France. The respondent, having brought a package to Montreal, addressed to the appellant, refused to deliver it unless the appellant paid $11.84 for disbursements and expenses of conveyance, but did not produce the bills of lading and way bills, which had been sent to him at New York:—Held, that the respondent company could not, arbitrarily and before the delivery, impose on the appellant the payment of this sum, without verification and right of subsequent reimbursement for any overcharge, if there was any, and that the respondent should make to the appellant am indemnity for damages which the non-delivery had caused him. Poindron v. American Express Co., Q. R. 12 K. B. 311.

Express Company—Liability for Damaged Goods—Connecting Lines—Bill of Lading—Clause Limiting Liability.] — An express company is not responsible for damages to goods intrusted for carriage, when the accident happened on another and connecting line of transfer, and the bill of lading contained a clause by which the company was relieved from any liability if the loss or injury happened at a place beyond its lines or control. Neil v. American Express Co., Q. R. 20 S. C. 25%.

Expressman License — Liability for Goods Destroyed by Fire.]—An expressman duly licensed under a by-law of the police commissioners of a city, and carrying goods for hire, is a common carrier, and as such liable for the loss of the goods by fire not caused by the act of God, or of the Kine's enemies, or by the inherent quality of the goods. Culter v. Lester, 21 Occ. N. 295.

Ferryman — Transportation of Animals—Liability.]—1. To render a person liable as a common carrier he must exercise the business of carrying as a public employment, and must undertake to carry goods for all persons indiscriminately, and hold himself out, either expressly or by course of conduct, as ready to engage in the transportation of goods for hire as a business, not merely as a casual occupation. Therefore, the owner of a boat propelled by oars and rowed for hire across a river, from time to time, by employees usually occupied in other ways, does not fall within the definition of a common carrier. 2. Where a traveller put his horses upon a ferry boat of the above description, with side-rails only 15 inches high, saw the risk to which his animals were exposed, and kept them under his own charge during the crossing, he is not entitled to recover from the owner of the ferre boat the value of a horse which became frightened.

jumped overboard, and was drowned, where the accident occurred through no fault or omission or commission on the part of the carrier or his employees, but from the restless disposition of the horse and the inability of the owner to keep him quiet. Roussel v. Aumais, Q. R. 18 S. C. 474.

Injury to Goods — Liability — Negligence — Contract — Owner — Consignor.]
—A carrier cannot stipulate that, by reason of the tariff of charges for the transport of goods being reduced, he shall not be responsible for damages which may be caused to the goods carried by the fault or negligence of his servants, but when such a stipulation has been made, the owner of the goods damaged in conveyance has to prove that the damage was caused by such fault or negligence, 2. The owner of goods is bound by the contract of carriage signed by the person forwarding them. Drainville v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., Q. R. 22 S. C. 480,

Ship — Bills of Lading — Stipulation against Liability for Thefts.] — The owner may lawfully stipulate for immunity from liability for thefts committed on board his ship, even by the captain of the crew. the damage of which the shipper or consignor complains falls apparently within the scope of a stipulation against liability in the bill of lading, the plaintiff must prove some default on the part of the carrier personally to entitle him to recover. Mathys v. Man-chester Liners, Q. R. 25 S. C. 426.

Ship - Contract Limiting Liability-"Wearing Apparel," Meaning of Question First Raised on Appeal.]—The plaintiff was a passenger for Dawson on the defendants' line of steamboats, and his ticket contained the proviso: "Baggage liability limited to the proviso: "Baggage liability limited to wearing apparel only. Each ticket is al-lowed 150 lbs, of baggage free, and not ex-ceeding $100 in valuation, and half tickets in like proportion. All exceeding this rate and valuation will be charged for. This company shall not be held accountable for merchandise, notes, bonds, documents, specie, bullion, jewellery or similar valuables, nor stores to be landed under designation of baggage, unless bills of lading are regularly signed, and freight charges paid thereon, and under no circumstances shall this company be held responsible in case of loss of baggage for over $100, unless extra charge has been paid on excess of valuation." He paid $10 excess baggage. Part of the baggage, including a sealskin jacket, a lady's dress, men's suits, and wolf robes, to the value of $655. was lost. The plaintiff sued for the full amount, and the defendants pleaded that their under the contract was limited to Dability under the contract was limited to $100:—Held, by Crair, J., and by the full Court (Irving, J., dissenting), that the defendants were liable for more than $100, but under the Carriers' Act for not more than $500:—Held, also, on appeal, that the contention that the defendants were not liable for certain articles were the wearing acrosses. for certain articles, not the wearing apparel of the plaintiff himself, was not open to the defendants, as that point was not raised in the pleadings nor taken at the trial. Remarks of Drake and Martin, JJ., as to what is included in the term "wearing apparel. which must differ according to different circumstances and climates. Wensky v. Canadian Development Co., 21 Occ. N. 601, 8 R. C. R. 190.

Ship-Failure to Notify Consignee-Liability for Damages-Action in Name of Consignor.]-Cheese was consigned to the Hochelaga Bank at Montreal, and at the foot of the bills of lading were written the words "Notify James Irvine, Gould Cold Storage, Montreal." Irvine was the selling agent for the factory from which the cheese came, and the usual course was (as evidenced by previous transactions) that the cheese was only to be delivered to him by the bank upon pay ment of the draft attached thereto, and usument of the draft attaced hereto, and case ally drawn upon Irvine payable at the Hoche-laga Bank. As the bank thus had very little to do with the matter, the carriers com-menced to regard Irvine as the only person with whom they had the deal. On the occasion in question the carriers did not give any notice to the bank, but stored the cheese according to the instructions of Irvine, who subsequently sold it and absconded with the proceeds of the sale:—Held, that the re-ceipt of the bank or its order for delivery was the only discharge which could terminate the liability of the appellants as carriers, and that the fact that the latter were di-and that the fact that the latter were di-rected on the bills of lading to "notify James Irvine" should have warned them, in any event, against dealing with him as the consigne:—Held, further, that, while a right of action probably did exist in the bank as consignees, it was concurrent with the right of the consignor, since the bank only acted as agents of the shipper to collect his drafts for the price of the cheese, and had neither purchased nor made advances on them. And this common law doctrine is not impaired by 52 V. c. 30, s. 1. Montreal and Cornwall Navigation Co. v. L'Ecuyer, 21 Occ. N. 249.

Special Contract-Variation-Authority Agent—Limiting Liability—Sale of Goods
-Conversion—Damages.]—Conditions in a shipping receipt relieving the carrier from liability for loss or damage arising out of the "safe keeping and carriage of goods," even though caused by the negligence of the carriers' servants, without the actual fault or privity of the carriers, and restricting claims to the cash value of the goods at the port of shipment, do not apply to cases where the goods have been wrongfully sold or converted by the carriers. A shipping receipt, with terms as above, was for carriage by the defendants line and other connecting lines, and made the freight payable on delivery of the goods at the point of destina-tion. The defendants had previously made a special contract with the plaintiff, but delivered the receipt to his agent at the point of shipment with a variation of the special terms made with him in respect to all shipments to him as consignee during the ship-ping season of 1899, the variation being shewn by a clause stamped across the receipt, of which the plaintiff had no know-ledge. One of the shipments was sold, at an intermediate point on a connecting line, by the company in control, on account of non-payment of freight: — Held, that the plaintiff's agent at the shipping point had no authority to consent to a variation of the special contract, nor could the carriers vary it without the concurrence of the plaintiff: that the sale amounted to a wrongful conversion of the goods by the defendants; and that they were not exempted by the terms of the shipping receipt from liability for Acquiescence in Conviction—Bar.]— The acquiescence of the accused in a conviction made by a justice of the peace, in a matter for summary trial, deprives the accused of his remedy, by certiorari, even when moved for within the proper time. Meunier v. Beauchamp, 5 Q, P. R. 280.

Assessment Roll — Return—Default—Proceedings of Ministerial Character—Superseding Writz Improvidently Issued.]— A writ of certiorari was directed to the road commissioners of district 17 in the municipality of Halifax, to remove the record of the assessment roll of said district assessing the inhabitants for road taxes, and the return made to the county treasurer of persons who had made default. A writ was also directed to the stipendiary magistrate for the county to remove the record of a return of defaulters who had not paid or commuted their taxes, and the warrant of distress issued by him thereon. There was a motion to quash or set aside the assessment roll, the warrant of discress, etc. appeared that the allowance of the writs had not been opposed, and there was no motion to set aside the orders, or to quash the writs or either of them. The amount of the tax was fixed by law, the value of the property by the county assessors, and the rate of assessment by the county council; and the stipendiary magistrate, in issuing his war-rant of distress against defaulters, was not called upon to exercise any judicial funccanned upon to exercise any judicial func-tion:—Held, that the proceedings were of a purely ministerial character, and were not a proper subject for certiforari:—Held, that, the process having improvidently issued, the Court had power of its own motion to set it aside, and that, in the circumstances appearing, the writs should be superseded and the returns thereto taken off the files of the Court. The affidavits filed shewed an intention to attack the legality of the formation of the district under Acts of 1900, c. 23, and the appointment of the commissioners :-Held, that this could not be done in this form of proceeding. Rew ew rel. Corbin v. Peveril, 36 N. S. Reps. 275.

tion—In-—Appeal rari and to raise the question of want of jurisdiction, e.g., whether proper service has been made and jurisdiction over the person acquired, or whether the justice was disqualified through interest. A statutory provision taking away the right to certiorari does not deprive the Superior Court of its power to issue the writ to quash a proceeding on the ground of want of jurisdiction. 3. When there is a defect in the jurisdiction of justices or inferior courts, the common law right of certiorari should not be refused merely because a new trial might be had by means of an appeal. 4. Even where an appeal is pending, a certiorari for want of jurisdiction should not be refused unless the question of jurisdiction is being raised on the appeal, 5, A writ of certiorari may be claimed by the Crown as a matter of right on application of the Attorney General, without the production of any affi-6. Except where applied for on behalf of the Crown, a certiorari is not a writ "of course," and the Court must be satisfied that there is a sufficient ground for issuing it. 7. No more latitude is given the Court for the exercise of its discretion in granting or refusing a certiorari than in respect to other applications which are in the discretion of the Court. Re Ruffles, 35 N.

Motion for — Preliminary Objection— Dismissal — Second Application.]—Where an application for a writ of certiorari has been dismissed, the Court will not entertain another application for the same purpose, although the first was dismissed on a preliminary objection. Rew. Geiser, 9 B. C. R. 508.

Motions to Maintain and Quach Writ.]—In a matter of certiorari, an inscription alone is sufficient, and a motion made by the petitioner to maintain the certiorari, and another made by the respondent to quash the certiorari, will both be dismissed with costs as useless. Levesque v. Assein, 6 Q. P. R. 63.

defendant, who desires to proceed, shall give one calendar month's notice to the other party of his intention to proceed. The defendant, pursuant to the order of a Judge, removed a conviction made by a magistrate into the Court, and took no further steps in the matter. The informant aroved to quash the certification by the defendant for upwards of a year:—Held, that the informatt must first give one month's notice of intention to proceed. Rex v. McDonald, 23

Motion to Quash for Delay — Practice—Costs.]—To an application by the Prosecutor to quash a certiforar removing a conviction for delay in proceeding it is not an answer that the defendant had given notice of motion to quash the conviction before the launching of the motion to quash the writ, as long as the delay is unexplained. Costs were given against the defendant. Rex v. McDonald, 23 Occ. N. 95.

Petition for—Service.]—A petition for a writ of certiorari must be served on the parties interested, and a notice of its presentation must be given to them. Rex v. Warren, Q. R. 25 S. C. 31.

Prosecution — Diligence — Extension of Time. 1—There must be continuous diligence throughout the stages of applying for a writ of certiorari, causing it to issue, and proceeding to judgment upon it; and where the delay fixed for the return of the writ is allowed to lapse without any step being faken to obtain a new order, the petitioner cannot afterwards obtain an extension of the delay; and especially where more than two years have lapsed since the expiration of the delay, and the reason for not complying with the original order is not shewn. Joannette v. Weir, Q. R. 26 S. C. 288.

Recorder's Court Jurisdiction—Review of Judgment.]—Certiorari does not lie to review the decision of the recorder in a case in which he has jurisdiction, and the Superior Court will not upon certiorari inquire whether his judgment is right or wrong. Wolf v. Weir, 4 Q. P. R. 430.

Recorder's Court—Removal of Conviction—Remody by Appeal.]—A certiorari will not be granted to remove a conviction or order of a recorder, when there is an appeal to the Court of King's Bench on its criminal side. O'Shaughnessy v. Recorders' Court, 6 Q. P. R. 287.

Recorder's Court — Writ to Recorder Personally—Objection.]—A writ of certiorari against a decision of one of the recorders for the city and district of Montreal, may be directed to the recorder personally and not necessarily to the Court, and if objection to its being so directed could be taken at all, it could only be taken by the recorder himself and not by the party in whose favour the judgment complained of was given. Poirter v. Weir, 7 Q. P. R. 60.

Removal of Cause from Inferior Court—Grounds—Want of Jurisdiction—Irregularity—Injustice.]—The only duty of a superior Court, on an application for certiorari, is to determine whether the inferior Court has acted within the limits of its jurisdiction, and whether it has complied with the practice and principles of law, and it will not be granted upon the latter ground if the applicant does not shew that he has suffered an injustice. Therefore, the application will be dismissed and the conviction of the lower Court sustained when the applicant alleges only that justice has not been done and the decision of the lower Court is erroneous, without alleging any grave irregularity in the proceedings. Carpentier v. Lapointe, Q. R. 25 S. C. 305.

Removal of Conviction. Notwithstanding Statue — Jurisdiction.]—Notwithstanding the amendment to s. 7 of the Ontario Summary Convictions Act, by s. 14 of 2 Edw. VII. c. 12, taking away the right to certicari, a conviction made by a magistrate without jurisdiction may be removed by certicari; and where the offence for which a conviction is made is found not to come within the statute defining the offence, or the municipal by-law defining the offence is not within the statute which gives the power to pass a by-law, there is such absence of jurisdiction as warrants the issue of a certiorari. Rex v. 8t, Pierre, 22 Occ. N. 233, 4 O. L. R. 76, 1 O. W. R. 365.

Review of Decision of Inferior Court—Grounds.]—There is no appeal to the Superior or Circuit Courts by way of certiorari from decisions of Courts of inferior jurisdiction, on the ground of mal jugé, or where the Judge of the lower Court has failed to properly appreciate the evidence, Calvert v. Perrault, O. R. 26 S. C. 94.

School Rates—Judicial Act.]—An application to bring up by writ of certiorari the school rate fixed by the trustees of the section, was granted. In re Cape Breton School Section No. 121, 24 Occ. N. 95.

Security — Deposit—Preliminary Objections.]—A deposit by the accused with the proper officer of $100 cash, though unaccompanied by any written document, is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of Rule 13 of the Consolidated Rules of Courts, 1895. After a writ of certiorari has issued preliminary objections thereto should be raised promptly and by means of a substantive motion to quush the writ. Regina v, Davidson, 21 Occ. N, 98, 4 Terr. L, R, 425.

Time for Issue—Extension.]—A party who has obtained an order for a writ of certiorari, must cause the same to be issued and returned within the delay fixed when his application was granted, and cannot, by motion, obtain leave to issue it afterwards. Joannette v. Butler, 6 Q. P. R. 146.

CHAMPERTY.

Contribution to Costs of Appeal Members of Family—Agreement to Divide Lands in Question—Succession Rights— Litigious Rights—Deed—Description.]—The appellants who were desirous of recovering certain property, known as the Dorval Islands, which had formerly belonged to an ancestor, entered into an agreement with ancestor, entered into an agreement with the respondents, who were all connected with the same family by relationship or marriage, by which, in consideration of each contributing one-tenth of the cost of taking an appeal to the Supreme Court, they agreed to transfer to each of them one-tenth of what might be recovered in the suit. The appeal was successful, and the present action was brought by the respondents to be declared proprietors of their shares of the island :-Held, that the agreement was not champertous, all the par-ties contributing to the cost of the appeal having an interest to see the property re-stored to the family, and either a direct or contingent expectancy of succeeding thereto. To constitute champerty there must be an unlawful interference of a third person to support litigation in a matter which in no way concerns him, for a compensation consisting of a share of the amount recovered. 2. Art. 710, C. C., had no application to this inasmuch as the rights sold by the appellants were not succession rights. 3. Art. 1582, C. C., cannot be invoked by the party who has sold a litigious right, to annul his own contract. 4. The real estate in question constituting a distinct and separate area, and bearing a single cadastral number, a special description thereof in the deed of sale was unnecessary. Meloche v. Deguire, Q. R. 12 K. B. 298.

Deed of Land — Contract—Joinder of Claims—Partition — Specific Performance — Litigious Rights—Retrait Successoral.]—The heirs of M, induced several persons related to them, either by consanguinity or by affinity to assist them as plaintiffs in the prosecution of a law suit for the recovery of lands belonging to the succession of an ancestor, and, in consideration of the necessary funds to be furnished by these persons, six of the respondents and the mis-en-cause entered into the agreement sued on by which the plaintiffs conveyed to each of the seven persons giving the assistance one-tenth of whatever might be recovered should they be successful in the law suit. In an action au petitoire et en partage by the parties who furnished such funds, for specific performance of this agreement:—Held, reversing the judgment in Q. R. 12 K. B. 298 (Davies, J., dissenting), that the agreement could not be enforced, as it was tainted with champerty, notwithstanding that the consanguinity or affinity of the persons in whose favour the conveyance had been made, might have entitled them to maintain the suit without remuneration as the price of the assistance:—Held, further, that there could be no objection to the demande au petitoire being joined in the action for specific performance. 2. That the defence of retrait de droits litigieux could not avail in favour of the defendants, as it is an exception which can be set up only by the debtor of the litigious right in question. Powell v. Watters, 28 S. C. R. 133, referred to. 3. That, as the conveyance affected a specific share of an immovable, the exception of retrait successoral could not be set up un-der Art. 710, C. C. Baxter v. Phillips, 23 S. C. R. 317, and Leclerc v. Beaudry, 10 L. der Art. 419, C. C. Baxter V. Finnips, S. S. C. R. 317, and Leclerc V. Beaudry, 10 L. C. Jur. 20, referred to. 4. That the laws relating to champerty were introduced into Lower Canada by the Quebec Act, 1774, as part of the criminal law of England, and as a law of public order, the principles of which and the reason for which apply as well to the province of Quebec as to England and the other provinces of the Dominion of Canada. Price v. Mercier, 18 S. C. R. 303, referred to. Meloche v. Deguire, 24 Oct. N, 75, 34 S. C. R. 24.

Interest in Mineral Claims-Transfer Consideration — Prior Litigation.] — In Briggs v. Newswander, 32 S. C. R. 405, the plaintiff was held entitled to a conveyance from the defendants of a quarter interest in certain mineral claims. In that action Newswander et al. were only nominal defendants, the real interest in the claims being in F. After the judgment was given the plaintiff conveyed nine-tenths of his interest to G., the expressed consideration being moneys advanced and an undertaking by G. to pay the costs of that action and another brought by Briggs, and by a subsequent deed, which recited the proceedings in the action and the deed of the nine-tenths, he conveyed to G. the remaining one-tenth of his interest. the consideration of that deed being $500 payable by instalments. In an action by G. against F. for a declaration that he was entitled to the quarter interest:—Held, affirming the judgment in 10 B. C. R. 309, that the transfer to G. of the nine-tenths was champertous, and the Court would not interfere to assist one claiming under a title so acquired:—Held, also, that the transfer of one-tenth was valid, being for good consideration and severable from the remainder of the interest. Giegerich v. Fleutot, 25 Occ. N. 7, 35 S. C. R. 327.

Void Agreement - Parties Entitled to take Advantage of—Res Judicata—Estoppel by Conduct—Costs.]—The laws of maintenance and champerty, as they existed in England on the 19th November, 1858, are in force in British Columbia, and an agreement for a champertous consideration is absolutely null and void. The defence that an agreemuniand void. The defence that an agree-ment is champertous and therefore void is open to others than those who are parties to the agreement. Per Hunter, C.J., it is not open to a man to stand by and assist another to fight the battle for specific property to which he himself claims to be entitled, and, in the event of the latter's defeat, claim to fight the battle over again himself. He is not bound to intervene, and if he does not, he must accept the result so far as concerns the title to the property. At the trial the plaintiffs obtained judgment declaring that the defendant was a trustee of an undivided onequarter interest in two mineral claims; on appeal by the defendant the plaintiffs' interest was declared to be only one-fortieth. The Court allowed the defendant the costs of the appeal, but allowed no costs of the trial to either side. Briggs and Giegerich v. Fleutot, 24 Occ. N. 299, 10 B. C. R. 309.

Action by Assignee—Claim for damages by defendant — Set-off — Counterclaim—Consideration—Notice. Lillie v. Thomas (N.W. T.), 1 W. L. R. 467.

Assignment of Legacy—Rights of assignee for creditors of legatee—Interpleader, Lamb v. Secord, 2 O. W. R. 43.

Equitable Assignment — Consideration —Notice—Appropriation of fund to specific purpose. Hunter v. Wilkinson Plough Co., 2 O. W. R. 1029.

Equitable Assignment — Form of — Solicitor.]—No writing or particular form of words is necessary to constitute an equitable assignment; an intention to pass the beneficial interest being all that is required. Hughes v. Chambers, 22 Occ. N. 333, 14 Man. L. R. 163, approved. A client who was indebted to a solicitor for costs incurred, instructed him that, on the receipt by him of certain moneys which he was to collect for the client, he was to pay certain obligations, including his own bill of costs:—Held, that this constituted a good equitable assignment. Re McRee Estate. 6 O, L. R. 238, 2 O. W. R. 220, 268, 409, 618.

Equitable Assignment—Oral promise to repay overdraft at bank—Specified source. Ray v. Oliver, 2 O. W. R. 988.

Litigious Rights — Offers—Contract — Conditions — Action by Contractor before Completion of Work.] — A defendant may plead at the same time the nullity of the obligation invoked against him and the fact that it constitutes a litigious right. 2. Offers made on condition that the party to whom they are made gives a quittance upon receipt of the sum offered, are legal offers. 3. If in a contract for the performance of work it is stipulated that the contractor will be paid in the course of the work to the extent of 75 per cent, of the value of the work done as certified by the architect charged with the superintendence of the work, and the balance 30 days after completion, such contractor cannot, without having finished the work, sue for such balance, even where he offers to deduct the costs of the work remaining to be done. 4. The smallness of the price paid for an assignment of a debt is a circumstance which raises a presumption that the claim is a liti-gious one. 5. The litigious character whch a claim has at the time of its first transfer a claim has at the time of its first transfer remains attached to it if it is again trans-ferred by the first transferee. Crevier v. Evans, Q. R. 21 S. C. 309.

Money Order - Indorsement of - Parol Assignment-Interpleader. | - The defendant, under contract to build for one W., purchased the materials from the plaintiffs, who subsequently got judgment against him, and who garnished the moneys due from W. to the defendant under the contract. Moneys due the contractor were to be paid on the certificate of the architect. Before the garnishee proceedings the defendant had accepted the following order drawn upon him by a firm to whom he was indebted on a sub-contract:
"Please pay to Champion & White the sum sub-contract: of $270, and charge the same to my account for plastering Place Block, Hastings street, W., in full to date;" upon which order the defendant indorsed a memorandum addressed to the architect as follows: "Please pay that order and charge to my account on contract for Robert Walker block on Hastings street, city:"—Held in interpleader, that, apart from order, there was a parol assignment specifically appropriating to the assignees the sum in question, of the moneys to arise out of the contract. British Columbia Mills Lum-ber and Trading Co. v. Mitchell, 21 Occ. N. 363, 8 B. C. R. 71.

Money Payable "in Respect of the Contract"—Damages for Interference with the Work — Attachment of Debts.] — Held, affirming the decision of Street, J., 23 Occ. N. 334, 6 O. L. R. 428, 1 O. W. R. 138, 358, that the assignment to the claimants of the moneys to become due and payable "in respect of a certain contract "for municipal drainage work, included the damages awarded to the contractor by the judgment in Bourque v. City of Ottawa, 23 Occ. N. 203, 6 O. L. R. 287, and therefore these moneys were not attachable by a judgment creditor of the contractor. Graham v. Bourque, 24 Occ. N. 54, 6 O. L. R. 700, 2 O. W. R. 927, 1182.

Non-acceptance — Action by Assignor.]
—A creditor who assigns a debt due him to a creditor of his own, does not thereby lose his right of action against his debtor, so long as his creditor has not accepted the assignment. Legault v. Désaulniers, 5 Q. P. R. 444.

Notice—Cause of Action.]—Where a debt has been assigned by way of mortgage, but no notice in writing of the assignment has been given to the debtor, the cause of action still remains in the assignor. Okell v. Dickson, 9 B. C. R. 151.

Notice—Knowledge—Notice of Action.]—
1. A sale or transfer of a debt does not invest the transferee or purchaser with a right of action against the debtor, unless the transfer has been signified to him. 2. The necessity for such signification is not removed by proof of the debtor's knowledge of such transfer. 3. Signification of the action is insufficient and does not take the place of the signification to which the debtor is entitled. Maple Leaf Rubber Co. v., Brodie, Q. R. 18 S. C. 352.

Notice—Notary—Notice of Action.]—It is not necessary that notice of the transfer of a debt should be given by the instrumentality of a notary. 2. The service upon the debtor of process in an action brought in the name of the assignee, claiming payment of the debt, is a sufficient notice of the transfer. Judgment in Q. R. 11 K. B. 251 reversed. Bank of Toronto v. St. Lauvence Fire Ins. Co., Q. R. 12 K. B. 550, [1903] A. C. 59.

Notice — Service — Notary.] — It is not necessary that service of a notice of a transfer of a debt should be made through the instrumentality of a notary. Bayard v. Drouin, Q. R. 22 S. C. 420.

Notice—Sufficiency—Notarial Act—Debtor—"Third Person."]—Under arts. 1570 and 1571 of the Civil Code of Lower Canada, signification to the debtor of the act of sale of his debt need not be by a notarial act. Quære, whether the debtor is a "third person," within the meaning of the latter article, against whom signification was necessary in order to perfect possession. Murphy v. Bury. 24 S. C. R. 668, doubted. The institution of an action against the debtor is of itself a sufficient signification of the transfer of the debt. Judgment of the Court of King's Bench, Quebec, affirming judgment in Q. R. 21 S. C. 251, reversed. Bank of Toronto v. St. Laurence Fire Ins. Co., [1903] A. C. 35.

Notice of Transfer of Debt—Necessity for—Action—Service of Process.]—A transferee of a debt cannot sue his transferor's debtor for the recovery of the same without first serving a copy of the transfer on the debtor, or, at least, serving a copy thereof on the defendant, with the action. Service of process in the action alone is not sufficient notice of the transfer, and is not a sufficient compliance with the law. Karn (D. W.) Co. v. Lough, Q. R. 26 S. C. 64.

Notice to Debtor - Judicature Act Sufficiency of Notice.]—H., to whom the defendants owed $184,93 being $124.80 for oak lumber, and $60.13 for basswood lumber, assigned his claim to the plaintiff. The only notice which the plaintiff gave the defendants of this assignment stated that he had an order from H. for the amount due in respect to a purchase of oak lumber bought by the defendants' agent. At the same time an account of H.'s against the defendants in the matter went to shew that, as above stated, only $124.80 was due for oak lumber, while the balance, $60.13, was for basswood lumber. The plaintiff drew on the defendants for the amount, and the defendants refused to accept the draft, on the ground that they had no order from H. to pay the $184.93. Thereupon the present action was brought:—Held, that, though there was sufficient to put the defendants upon inquiry in the notice they received, as to an assignment to the plaintiff of the money due by them to H., yet it was not

The statute requires the notice to be express notice in writing, and there should be nothing equivocal about it, nothing to put the debtor in doubt whether the whole debt or only a part of it has been assigned. The notice here feel short of this requirement. McMillan v. Orillia Eaport Lumber Co., 23 Occ. N. 244, 6 O. L. R. 126, 2 O. W. R. 529, Order for Payment of Money — Equitable assignment — Existence of fund. Kelly v. Wilson, 2 O. W. R. 508.

Power of Attorney—Death of Grantor—Revocation.]—Pending a suit upon a mortgage for forcelosure and sale of the mortgage premises, the mortgagor executed and delivered a writing in favour of a creditor authorizing him to collect, recover, and receive, and apply on account of 'his debt, any surplus from the sale, and declaring that the power might be exercised in the name of the grantor's heirs, executors, and administrators, and should not be revoked by his death. The sale resulted in a surplus. Before the sale the mortgagor died:—Held, that the writing was not an equitable assignment, but a power of attorney revocable by the grantor's death. Ex p. Welch—Chapman v. (idifillan, 21 Occ. N. 96, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 129.

Requirements — Intention.] — To constitute an equitable assignment of a chose in action neither writing nor any particular form of words is required, but any words or acts from which it is to be inferred that there was an intention to pass the beneficial interest are sufficient. Hughes v. Chambers, 22 Occ. N. 333, 14 Man. L. R. 163.

Right of Action—Partics—Prête-nom.]—Held. affirming the judgment in Q. R. 24 S. C. 119, that where fraud is not alleged, the transferee of a debt, under a transfer duly served upon the debtor, is entitled to sue for the recovery of such debt in his own name, although, in fact, the claim was transferred to him for collection only. Deserves v. Dastous, Q. R. 24 S. C. 119.

Right to Sue in Name of Assignor—Acceptance of Assignee by Debtor — Novation,—The plaintiffs had transferred to another loan company their claim against the defendant as Subsequently the defendant accepted the transferees as his creditors, and by agreement became their debtor: — Held, that, in these circumstances, the transferees had no right of action in the name of their transferors against the defendant, although the deed of transfer, to which the defendant was not a party, authorized the transferees to use the name of the transferors; the transferees must bring the action in their-own name. Montreal Loan and Investment Co. v. Plourde, Q. R. 23 S. C. 399.

Sale of Goods by Partnership — Subsequent Incorporation—Delivery by Incorporated Company—Necessity for Signification of Transfer.]—Where goods are sold by an unincorporated commercial firm, representing the incorporated commercial firm, representing the experimental company, and as society of the goods, signification of the transfer from the contract of sale by making delivery of the goods, signification of the transfer from the firm to the company is not necessary to entitle the company is not necessary to entitle the company to bring suit against the purchaser for the amount of the debt. Intention to effect novation is not apparent from the fact that the note of a third party was accepted on account of the debt, for which note a receipt was given in these terms: "Received from J. V. (the debtor) the note of M. S. & Sons for $100 at 30 days, on account of pony and buzz planer;" and in the event of the note not being paid at maturity the creditor retains his recourse against the debtor for the debt. Cowan v. Vezina, Q. R. 26 S. C. 7.

Trading Corporation — Competency as Trustee—Objection by Debtor.]—A trading corporation, created by letters patent under the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act, has power to take an assignment of a chose in action and hold and collect it by suit for the benefit of the assignor. In re Rockwood, etc., Agricultural Society, 12 Man. L. R. 655, Regina v. Reed, 5 Q. B. D. 483, and Ashbury Railway Carriage Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653, distinguished. A debtor who has no interest in an assignment of the claim against him, and is in no way prejudiced by it, cannot raise any objection to the competency of the assignee to take the assignment and to sue upon the claim. Walker v. Bradford Old Bank, 12 Q. B. D. 511, followed. Stobart v. Forbes, 20 Occ. N. 446, 13 Man. L. R. 184.

Transfer Pendente Lite—Action—Parties.] — Where the plaintiff has transferred his debt after issue joined, he may, nevertheless, continue the action and obtain judgment in his own name. Larivière v. Town of Richmond, Q. R. 21 S. C. 37.

Validity—Assignee not Named—Evidence to Supply Omissions.]—By an informal instrument in writing an insolvent debtor professed to assign all his interest in certain specified property and "all moneys due to me from any source whatever," but did not in the operative part of the instrument name the assignee, who was indicated only by these words at the end of the document: "And I hereby appoint the said G. D. B. my irrevocable attorney. . . . to receive any and all moneys owing to me from any source whatever." G. D. B. was the agent of the plaintiffs to whom the insolvent was indebted, and the insolvent was indebted, and the insolvent was indebted, and the insolvent was indebted and the insolvent to G. D. B. in an unsigned letter in his own handwriting, in which he wrote, "I have made an assignment of everything to you." A debt due to the insolvent having be-n attached by the defendants, who were also creditors, the plaintiffs claimed the amount under the assignment to their agent, and an issue was directed:—Held, that the letter could be looked at to ald the assignment, and the assignees name should be read in; and, herefore, the plaintiffs were enabled to the money. Newell v. Bradford, 3T. L. J. C. P. 1, Catling v. King, 64 L. J. Ch. 384, Warner v. Wilmington, 25 L. J. Ch. 622, Re Bacon's Will,

Validity-Notice-Bank Act-Statute of Elizabeth — Execution—Interest in Partner-ship—Sale—Action — Parties.] — Action by husband and wife to set aside an assignment to a bank by the husband's execution debtor of his share or interest in the assets and business of a partnership. The assignment business of a partnership. The assignment was made in February, 1896, as security for a past due debt exceeding the amount of the assignor's interest in the partnership. husband recovered judgment against the assignor in May, 1896, in an action brought before the assignment, and placed execution in the sheriff's hands in July, 1896. Under that execution, the sheriff, without making any actual seizure of the partnership assets, purported to sell and convey to the wife in October, 1896, all the undivided share or interest of the assignor exigible under execution in the partnership assets or business. This action was begun in November, 1898:—Held, that the assignment was not invalid under the Bank Act, nor under the Statute of Elizabeth. there being no evidence that it was made with intent to delay and defraud the husband in his action against the assignor. Under the law as it stood at the date of the assignment, notice thereof to the assignor's partners was not necessary to its validity. Per Armour, C.J.O.—Debts are not included in the expression "goods, wares, and merchandise," as uesd in the Bank Act. The effect of placing the execution in the sheriff's hands was to bind the goods of the partnership, so that they were liable to be seized, but no seizure of any specific assets having been made, and all the assets of the partnership having been sold, realized, and disposed of, the execution creditor lost any benefit which he might have de rived from the seizure of specific assets and the sale thereunder of the undivided interest of the execution debtor therein; and nothing passed to the wife by the sale to her. Expulsion of Member—Domestic Tribunal—Injunction.]—The plaintiff sought an injunction restraining the trustees of St. Peter's Church, in Berlin, from enforcing a resolution, passed by them, expelling him from membership in the church, on the ground of certain actions of his, not necessary to mention here. No notification was given calling upon the plaintiff to attend the meeting at which the resolution was passed, nor was he made aware in any way of the intention of the trustees to expel him. The plaintiff's civil rights were not affected by the expulsion:—Held, that the civil Courts would not, after an adjudication by the domestic tribunal depriving the plaintiff of his membership, investigate the legality or regularity of the proceedings, and the action must be dismissed, Pinke v. CIVIL ENGINEERS, CANADIAN SOCIETY OF.

Statute Incorporating—Qualification of Members—Practising—Admission—Mandamus—Interference by Court.]—The statute incorporating the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers gives the right to become a member to every one who practised as a civil engineer in this province at the time of the passing of the Act. The plaintiff, claiming to have satisfied this requirement, presented a have satisfied this requirement, presented a request for admission containing allegations of fact to satisfy the law, verified by his own deposition under oath. On the refusal of the society to comply with his request, he prayed that a peremptory writ of mandamus be issued to effect his purpose:-Held, that it was not for the Court to decide whether the plaintiff was qualified as a civil engineer, or whether he had pursued the studies and possessed the knowledge requisite for a civil engineer, but only whether he had practised as a civil engineer at the time of the passing of the Act. (2) That he who has himself done work requiring the special knowledge of a certain profession is not by reason of that alone deemed to have practised such profession, but the contrary is the case with one who has devoted himself to the practice of a profession for the public and who in fact practises it, though his clientele may be very limited. (3) That the deposition on oath of the plaintiff did not constitute conclusive and irrefutable proof of the facts contained in it. but that it was only a formality to prevent but that it was only a relative process applications, and only raised a presumption which might be refuted by evidence to the contrary. Authority to Make Rules—Expulsion of Member—Regularity of Admission—Meeting—Two-thirds Vote.]—A club for amusement, etc., organized under arts. 5487 et seq. of the R. S. Q., by which such association is authorized to make rules and regulations respecting the admission and expulsion of its members, has authority to adopt a rule promembers, has authority to adopt a rule providing for the expulsion of any member who commits an act "derogatory to the honour and interests of the club," although no definition be given in the rule of what constitutes such acts. 2. Where a social club has formally passed a resolution expelling a member for acts derogatory to the honour and interests of the club, it cannot afterwards, in defence to an action of the member for the rescission of the vote of expulsion, be allowed to justify such expulsion on the ground that the plain-tiff had never been regularly admitted a mem-ber, 3. Where the rule of the club provides for the expulsion of a member by a two-thirds vote at a general meeting regularly called, the resolution of expulsion must be voted for by two-thirds of the active members of the club present at the time the resolution is put to the meeting. Lemarche v. Le Club de Chasse à Courre Canadien, Q. R. 19 S. C. 470, 4 Q. P. Liability for Article Stolen,] — The plaintiff, who was not a member of the defendant club, went there upon the invitation of a member and put his coat in the cloak room. It was taken away during his absence in another part of the club, and he sued for its value and for money paid to detectives in attempting to recover it:—Held, that, as the defendants were a club, and did not fall under the provisions of the Civil Code respecting innkeepers, keepers of boarding-houses, and hotel-keepers, under similar circumstances, they were not liable for articles brought upon their premises. Martel v. Military Institute Club, 23 Occ. N. 119.

Life Member—By-law Exacting Further Fees—Ultra Vires.]—The plaintiff was duly elected a life member of the defendant club, and paid $50, the fee demanded by the by-laws. Subsequently, at a meeting of the members of the club, a by-law was adopted that every life member should pay an additional sum of $25 for that year only, and that any life member who failed to do so should be expelled from the club simply by a resolution of the board of directors to that effect. The plaintiff contended that the by-law was ultra vires, and asked that the Court should declare it to be so:—Held, that the by-law was ultra vires, and that the plaintiff was therefore not bound by it, nor could his status be thereby affected. Purchase and Sale of Land-Irregu-Furchase and Sale of Land—tregularities in Proceedings.—A mining company subject to the provisions of the Ontario Companies Act. R. S. O. 1897 c. 1897. and the Ontario Mining Companies Incorporated Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 197, has power to buy and sell land, and a sale in good faith of all the land owned at the time by the company is not necessarily invalid, for there is nothing to prevent the business of the company being continued by the purchase of other land. Nor continued by the purchase of other land. Nor can such a sale made in good faith be re-strained at the instance of a dissentient minority of shareholders on the ground that irregularities have occurred in the conduct of the proceedings of the company leading up to the sale, or on the ground that the approving majority are also shareholders in a rival company, and are in carrying out the sale furthering the interests of that rival company. July at a directors' meeting, when only two directors were present, authorizing the pre-sident and secretary of the company to secure an option from Robert, the company paying $15,000 down, the balance of the purchase money being $260,000, the company having the right, if it did not wish to make further payments, to abandon the property, forfeiting the $15,000 already paid. On the 18th July a deed of sale pure and simple was executed between Robert and the company and by a deed of declaration it was provided that the company would abandon its purchase before the 30th November following and lose the $15,000, reconveying the property to Robert. At a subsequent directors' meeting minutes of the meeting of the 17th July were adopted. The company allowed the stipulated period to pass, and on the 4th December, at a meeting of directors, a resolution was passed authorizing the prea resolution was passed authorizing the pre-sident and secretary to deed back to Robert the property which the company had pur-chased from him on the 18th July, and on the same day a protest was served by the com-pany on Robert offering to reconvey the proparty.—Held, that the company, by virtue of its charter aforesaid, had power to acquire the property in question. 2. That the company could not allege against the validity of the purchase the lack of a quorum at the meeting of the 17th July, and that it had represented it to be a regular meeting of its directors. 3. The resolution of the 17th July was sufficient authority for the purchase in question, with power for the company to re-convey before the 30th November. Mathieu, J., dissented on this point. 4. The resolution and protest of the 4th December were sufficient ratification of the purchase of the 18th July, even supposing that this deed would not have been authorized by the resolution of the 17th July and this ratification was not subject to the conditions of Art. 1214. C. C. Montreal and St. Lawrence Light and Power Co. v. Robert, Q. R. 25 S. C. 473.

II. FOREIGN COMPANIES.

Authority to Representatives—Directors—Advecates.]—The authority which a foreign company gives to its advocates or to its representatives ought to be the act of the company itself, or of its directors sitting as a board of direction and acting for the company, and not that of a majority of the directors acting individually. 2. An authority given by an insurance company to one of its servants, authorizing him to inspect the agencies and to sue, does not authorize him to give advocates the authority, required by Art. 177, C. P. Kavanagh v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Co. 4, Q. P. R. 229.

Authorization to Advocates—Power of Attorney—Form—Date.] — A foreign company may give a general power of attorney to their advocates for all the causes in which they are or may be concerned. 2. A power of attorney signed in the name of such foreign company by the presidents and the secretary before a notary in England, and sealed with the seal of the company, is valid until proof to the contrary, and there is no need to annex to it a resolution of the board of directors of the company authorizing the officers to sign and seal such power of attorney. 3.

The power of attorney may be subsequent in date to the institution of the action. Great Northern R. W. Co. of Canada v. Furness, Withy, & Co., 6 Q. P. R. 404.

Extra-Provincial Corporations which have not taken out a license under s. 6, 63 V. c. 24 (Ont.) are forbidden by the legislature to sell their goods in the province, and s. 14 provides that so long as such extra-provincial corporation remains unlicensed it cannot maintain any action in any court in Ontario. Bessener Gas Engine Co. v. Mills. 4 O. W. R. 325, 25 Occ. N. 12, 8 O. L. R. 647.

Shareholders-Enforcement of Rights -Jurisdiction—Plaintiff Out of the Province— Inspection of Books — Proof of Foreign Statute—Rules of Construction—Protection of Public.]-A shareholder in a company incorporated under the laws of a foreign state, but having its principal place of business, offices and works in Nova Scotia, may maintain an action in this province to enforce the performance of duties imposed upon the company in relation to its shareholders. The non-residence of the shareholder is no bar to such action. There is no distinction between a foreign and a domestic corporation in respect to the relief asked in such case, and, notwithstanding the rule not to interfere in matters of internal management, the Court has power to compel the inspection of books in proper cases. Proof of a foreign statute by admission is as effective as proof by an expert in hac verba. In the absence of proof to the contrary, it will be assumed that the rules of construction in the foreign state are the same as in this province. There being no individual right of action to enforce compliance with the provisions of statutes of this province intended for the protection of the public, the decree appealed from was varied to this extent. Merritt v. Copper Crown Co., 36 N. S. Reps. 383, 22 Occ. N. 239.

III. JUDGMENT AGAINST.

Collusion of Directors - Rights of Minority Shareholders — Application to Set Aside Judgment—Action.]—At a meeting of directors of the defendant company a resolution was passed that an action brought by the plaintiff, who was president of the company and held a majority of the shares, against the company, should not be defended; that the plaintiff should be allowed to take judgment for the amount of his claim with interest; and that an account rendered to the plaintiff by the secretary of the company should be withdrawn and treated as rendered without authority. There was ground for inferring collusion, and a question as to whether the collision, and a question as to whether plaintiff was entitled to recover anything in his action against the company:—Held, that the judgment entered against the company was properly set aside, and that the applicant G., the secretary of the company, was properly permitted to defend and plead a counterclaim permitted to defend and plead a counter-tain on behalf of the company. Northwest Trans-portation Co. v. Beatty, 12 App. Cas. 596, distinguished:—Held also, as to the remedy in equity, that if the plaintiff's claim was not properly due, and the directors, repre-senting a majority of the shareholders, were acting collusively in allowing judgment to go by default, G. could, on behalf of himself and Organization — Service of promoter— Claim for payment against co-promoters— Share of municipal bonus, Brown, 6 O. W. R. 204.

Undertaking to Subscribe for Shares—Liability to Co-promoters.]—The defendant wrote a letter to A., who was desirous of organizing a driving park company, undertaking to subscribe for $1.000 of stock in a ompany to be formed, subject to the conditions that before the formation of the combines that perfect the formation of the combines that before the formation of the combines that the co pany an amount of $7,000 be guaranteed, and that this subscription be obtained within three months from date. Subsequently the defendant cancelled this letter, and refused to sign the stock book. In an action for a first call, instituted by all the underwriters on the stock book, before the incorporation of the company:—Held, that an action for a first call could not be maintained on the defendant's letter, until the company had been organized. In the absence of a special contract on the part of and between the coadventurers, no legal call can be made prior to the organization of the corporation, because until then there is no board of directors capable of making a call. Caselais v. Picotte, Q. R. 18 S. C. 538.

O. 1897 c. 191, stock may be forfeited, where the amount payable on a call for stock is not paid within the time limited by the special Act incorporating the company, or by letters patent, or by a by-law of the company. Where, therefore, no time was limited in the statute, or letters patent, or in the by-law making the call, such call was held to be illegal, and an attempted forfeiture of the stock ineffectual. An assignment by a shareholder for the benefit of his creditors excepted shares in companies not fully paid up and declared the assignor a trustee of such shares for the same such shares for the Calls—Representatives of Deceased Share-holder—Defences to Action.]—In an action by an incorporated company to enforce, against a shareholder's legal representatives, a call on shares subscribed for by the decujus, the defendants cannot plead that the conditions of the Act of incorporation have not been complied with, and that the company has for more than a year carried on the business of insurance in violation of the conditions of the statute incorporating it. Victoria-Montreal Fire Ins. Co. v. O'Neil, 5 O. P. R. 4.

Cemetery—Rights of Owners of Lots.]—The petitioner acquired two graves in the cemetery of a company. Subsequently he acquired two other graves. Owners of lots for which they had paid $20 were entitled by law to become shareholders in the cemetery company, and the petitioner had paid more than this amount. But the four graves did not form a complete lot on the plan of the cemetery, there being a fifth grave belonging to another person in the same lot. On

The distinction between a "lot" owner and a "grave" owner, which had always been recognized since the organization of the company, though not set forth in the charter or by-laws, was a reasonable one, and the owner of one or more graves forming only part of a lot was not entitled to be classed as a shareholder, or to have the graves entered as a lot in the books of the company. Hart v. Mount Royal Cemetery Co., Q. R. 18 S. C. 515.

Certificates — Binding Statement in— Purchasers—Discount.] — A portion of the shares in a joint stock company, purporting on the face of their certificates to be of a certain par value and paid up, were allotted to three promoters. One of them sold part of his allotment at a discount and had them transferred by the company direct to the purchasers, who were not aware that the shares were not really paid up:—Held, in an action by the company, that the purchasers were not liable for the discount on such shares, inasmuch as the company were bound by their statement in the certificates that the shares were "fully paid and non-assessable." Deposit of Certificates -Bailment-Trust—Detention.]—The plaintiff loan company became the holder of 525 shares in the capital stock of a coal company, and of 50 shares in a steel company, and deposited the certificates for the shares with the defendant trust company for safe-keeping. The defendant trust company executed and delivered to the plaintiff loan company a document under seal by which they hold in their safe deposit vaults to the order of the loan company any dividends received in respect thereof, and guaranteed to the loan company that the certificates would be kept safely in deposit vaults and delivered upon demand under proper authority. The document also provided for the remuneration of the trust company. The certificates were put into the name of the trust company. It appeared that 375 of the shares had been acquired by the plaintiff loan company under an agreement with the Atlas Loan Co., who had an interest in the prospective profits to be derived from the sale of the shares. While the certificates were in possession of the defendant trust company both loan companies were ordered to be wound up under the Dominion Act, and the defendant trust company were appointed liquidators of the Atlas Loan Co., and the plaintiff trust company liquidators of the plaintiff loan company. After the commencement of the liquidations, the plaintiff trust company, as liquidators, demanded the certifi-cates from the defendant trust company, but the latter refused to deliver them up, and this action was brought for damages for the detention: - Held, that the defendant trust company were merely bailees and not trustees; but, if they were to be regarded as trustees, the failure to hand over the certificates was not such a breach of trust but for which they ought fairly to be excused under 62 V. (2) c. 15, s. 1 (0.); owing to their dual character, they did not act with singleness of purpose, and therefore acted honestly and reasonable; and the direction of the Master in Ordinary, to whom was referred the winding-up of the Atlas Loan Co., that the whole 575 shares should be retained by the defendant trust company as liquidators, was made without jurisdiction and did not protect them as trustees, 2. The plaintiffs were entitled to damages for the detention (delivery having been made pending the action), based on estimates of what had been lost by the detention; and the measure of damages was the highest price of the shares represented by the certificates between the demand and the delivery. Elvin Loan and Savings Co. v. National Trust Co., 24 Occ. N. 55, 2 O. W. R. 1159, 7 O. L. R. 1, affirmed in 5 O. W. R. 406, 10 O. L. R. 41.

Deprivation of Shares — Remedy— President of Company.)—A company which, along with its president, appropriates to itself shares of its capital to the prejudice of a shareholder, is bound to indemnify the shareholder against the injury caused to him. Acer v. Percy, 5 Q, P, R, 401.

Judgment Creditor-Action, by against Shareholder - Transfer of Shares - Evidence.]-Judgment creditors of an incorporated company, being unable to realize anything on their judgment, brought against H. as a shareholder, in which they failed, from inability to prove that he was owner of any shares. They then brought action against G., in which evidence was given, not produced in the former case, that the shares once held by G, had been transferred to H., but were oby 6, and been transferred to H., but were not registered in the company's books:— Held, affirming the judgment in 33 N. S. Reps. 77, that the shares were duly trans-ferred to H., though not registered, as it ap-peared that H. had acted for some time as president of and executed documents for the company, and the only way he could have held shares entitling him to do so was by transfer from G.:-Held, also, that, although there appeared to be a failure of justice from the result of the two actions, the inability of the plaintiffs to prove their case against H, in the first could not affect the rights of G. in the subsequent suit. The company in which G. held stock was incorporated in 1886 and empowered to build a certain line of railway. In 1890 an Act was passed authorizing additional works to be constructed, increasing the capital stock, appointing an entirely different set of directors, and giving the company larger powers. One clause re-pealed all Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent therewith. G. had transferred his shares before the latter Act came into force. The judgment against the company was recovered in 1895:—Held, that G. was never a shareholder of the company against which such judgment was obtained. Hamilton v. Grant. 20 Occ. N. 450, 30 S. C. R. 566. See also Hamilton v. Holmes, 33 N. S. Reps. 100 n.

Offer to Sell — Acceptance—Attempted withdrawal — Promissory note — Liability. McDowell v. Macklem, 4 O. W. R. 482.

Payment for Shares — Equivalent for Cash—Written Untruct.]—M. and C. each agreed to take shares in a joint stock company, paying a portion of the price in cash and receiving receipts for the full amount, the balance to be paid for in future services. The company afterwards failed:—Held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 27 A. R. 396, 20 Occ. N. 300, that, as there was no agreement in writing for the payment of the difference by money's worth instead of cash, under s. 27 of the Companies Act, M. and C. were liable to pay the balance of the price of the shares to the liquidator of the company. Union Bank v. Morris, Union Bank v. Code, 22 Occ. N. 45, 31 S. C. R. 504.

"Payment in Cash" — Transfer of Business, 1—A company incorporated to take over a business carried on by the defendants in partnership, entered into possession, and in payment for his relative interest in the business each defendant received a corresponding number of shares at par value:—Held, that the payment for the shares was a "payment in cash" within the meaning of s. 50 of the Companies Act, and as the purchase price was fair, the shares were fully paid up. Tanner v. Covean, 9 B. C. R. 301.

Payment—Transfer of Business Assets—Debt Due Partnership — Set-off — Counter-claim—Accord and Satisfaction — Liability on Subscription for Shares—R. S. B. C. c. 44, ss. 50, 51.]—On the formation of a joint stock company to take over a partnership business, each partner received a proportion-ate number of fully paid-up shares, at their par value, in satisfaction of his interest in the partnership assets:—Held, reversing the judgment in 9 B. C. R. 301, Davies, J., dubitante, that the transaction did not amount to payment in eash for shares subscribed by the partners, within the meaning of ss. 50 and 51 of the Companies Act, R. S. B. C. c. 44, and that the debt owing to the shares could not be set-off mor counterclaimed by them against their individual liability upon their shares. Fothergill's Case, L. R. S. Ch. 270, followed. Turner v. Covan, 24 Occ. N. 115, 34 S. C. R. 160.

Power to Interfere in Ordinary Management. |—The shareholders in a company lacorporated under the Companies Act, 1890, have no power to interfere in the ordinary management of the company by the trustees, who have the exclusive right of exercising ordprorate powers and of making by-laws. Banamuir v. Colonist Printing and Publishing Co., 9 B. C. R. 200.

Preference Shares — Interest — Dividends.]—The Halifax Academy of Music, a holy corporate, in pursuance of a resolution of shareholders to that effect, issued preferential stock, the same to be a first charge upon the property of the company and its earnings, and to bear "interest" at a stated rate, payable half-yearly. For a number of years there were not sufficient earnings to pay interest or dividend: to either the preferred or common stockholders. Latterly, however, the earnings increased, and a contest arose between the holders of the preferential stock and the holders of the common stock, the latter contending that the former should not be paid interest or dividends for the years during which there were not sufficient earnings for the purpose;—Held that the holders of the preferential stock are entitled to receive out of the earnings what is called cumulative interest covering the past years in which dividends or interest remained unpaid on the preferential stock before any dividends are paid on the common stock. Urockett v. Academy of Music, 22 Occ. N. 301.

Preference Shares — Memorandum Incorporating Agreement by Reference—Special Voting Powers, 1—The previsions of the Companies Act, 1890, that the members and stockholders of a company incorporated under it shall be subject to the conditions and liabilities in the Act imposed and to none others, and that in the election of trustees each stockholder shall be entitled to as many votes as he owns shares of stock, do not render it ultra vires of a company to validly stipulate in its memorandum of association that a certain limited class of stockholders shall have the privilege of electing a majority of the trustees, and such stipulation may be contained in a document incorporated merely by reference in the memorandum of association. Per Drake and Martin, JJ.: — Preference stock means stock that has any advantage over other stock and is not confined to stock having a preference in regard to the payment of dividends. Per Hunter, C.J., and Martin, J..—The preference stock menioned in s. 1 of the Companies Act Amendment Act, 1891, means stock having a preference in regard to the payment of dividends and not merely superior voting powers. Dunsmuir v. Colonist Printing and Publishing Co., 9 B. C. R. 275.

Reserve Fund - Dissentient Minority -Director — Investment — Trustec—Purchase and Resale — Profits.] — It is an elementary principle that a Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with the internal management of companies acting within their powers. The to it; but if a majority of its shares are controlled by those against whom relief is sought, the complaining shareholders may sue in their own names, but must shew that the acts comown manes, on this saw that the acts con-plained of are either fraudulent or ultra vires. A company formed by letters patent under Canadian Act 27 & 28 V. c. 23, is not bound to divide all its profits on each occasion amongst its shareholders. It can legally peserve any portion thereof at its own discretion, and a Court has no jurisdiction to regulate it. Whether the undivided portion is retained to credit of profit and loss or carried to credit of a reserve, it may lawfully in the absence of any express power, be invested on such securities as the directors may select, subject to the control of a general meeting, but not restricted to such investments as trustees are authorized to make. It is not ultra vires for a company to invest in the name of a sole trustee. He is strictly accountable, but the dissentient shareholders are not entitled to an injunction against the directors and the company in respect of such investment so long as it appears to be born fide. Where a director purchased property without mandate from the company and under such circumstances as did not make him a trustee thereof for the company, and thereafter resold the same to the company at a profit —Held, that whether or not the company was entitled to a rescission of the contract of resale, it was not entitled to affirm it and at the same time treat the director as trustee of the profit made. In re Cape Breton Co., 26 Ch. D, 221, 29 Ch. D. 795, approved. Judgment in 21 Occ. N, 16, 27 A. R. 540, varied. Burland v. Earle, [1902] A. C. 83, Subscription — Allotment — Failure to Organize Company — License — Insurance Act.]—To constitute a binding contract to take shares in a company, when such contract is constituted by application and allotment, there must be an application by the intending shareholder, an allotment by the directors of the company of the shares applied for, and a communication by the directors to the applicant of the fact of the allotment having been made. The subscription for stock amounts to nothing more than an offer, and requires to be completed by an allotment of stock to the subscribers. The company in question here never was organized; it had no business existence; it never had stock to allot; it never had directors; and therefore it never could make an allotment:—Held, also, that, as no license was obtained by the company from the Minister of Finance within two years from the passing of the Act incorporating the company, such Act expired and ceased to be in force on the 13th June 1900, and the company cased to exist. The Insurance Act, R. S. C. c. 124, s. 24. Hodgins v. O'Hara, 22 Occ. N. 29, 133.

Subscription — Condition — Notice of Allotment—Contributory,1—Where an applicant had agreed to take shares in a company conditional on his receiving certain moneys which would enable him to pay for them:—Held, that he had the right to withdraw his application, as he did, not having received any formal notice of allotment, by informing the company of his inability, owing to non-receipt of the moneys, to pay for the shares and that he was not liable as a contributory. In re Publishers' Syndicate, Mallory's Case, 22 Occ. N. 162, 3 O. L. R. 552, 1 O. W. R. 142.

Subscription—Conditions not Fulfilled—Representation of Agent of Company—Hatteriality—Lutruth.]—Action brought by incorporated body to recover $500, the amount of 5 shares of plaintiff's capital stock for which the defendant subscribed on 20th April. It was induced to be considered to the subscribed of the subscribed of the subscribed of plaintiff's upon, that Mr. G. A. Cox and Mr. H. A. Massey had each subscribed or promised to subscribe for $10,000 of stock, upon the condition that subscriptions for $50,000 were obtained on or before 1st January, 1893; that defendant's subscription was required in order to assist in making up what was still required of the $50,000, and that his subscription would not be binding unless the $50,000, including the subscription of Messrs, Cox and Massey, were fully subscribed on or before 1st January, 1893. It was proved that neither Mr. Cox nor Mr. Massey had subscribed or promised to subscribe for $10,000 each, either conditionally or unconditionally, nor did they do so at any time after defendant's subscription, nor was $50,000 subscribed on or before 1st January, 1893:—Held, that the representations were proved to have been made; that, by reason of them, defendant was induced to subscribe for the stock "as a sort of escrow; it was not to be effective nor operative unless the $50,000 was obtained within the limited period of time." The circumstances of this case seem to bring it within the rule laid down in Wallis v, Littell, 11 C. B. N. S. 303, Ontario Ladies' College v, Kendry, 5 O. W. R 605, 10 O. L. R. 324.

Subscription—Contract by Decd—Delivery—"Issue"—"Allotment"—Calls—Resolutions—"Offer"—Preference Shares.)—Held, reversing the judgment of Lount, J. 2O, L. R. 309, 21 Oec. N. 509, that the defendant's undertaking to take shares in the plaintiff company, when issued and allotted, being by deed, for valuable consideration, and being delivered to an agent of the company, was not revocable as a mere offer would be, and that the resolutions of the company and the letters to the defendant were a sufficient "issue" and "allotment" of the shares. Xenos v. Wickham, L. R. 2 H. L. 296, followed: Nasmith v. Manning, 5 A. R. 129, 5 S. C. R. 417, distinguished:—Held, also, that (provision having been made therefor in the memorandum and articles of association,) the preference shares of the company were lawfully created. Nelson Coke and Gas Co. v. Pellatt 22 Oec. N. 382, 4 O. L. R. 481, 1 O. W. R. 595.

Subscription—Mining Company—Shares—Failure of Consideration—Abandonment of Enterprise — Promissory Notes — Effect of Renewels.]—Action on bill of exchange for $3,046.85 drawn by plaintiffs and accepted by defendant. Defendant pleaded an entire failure of consideration, and counterclaimed for $3,000 paid by him to plaintiffs on 17th September, 1899, to take up a promissory note which had been made by him to plaintiffs, upon the ground that the consideration had entirely failed: — Held, plea good defenc. Plaintiff argued that the effect of two renewals was to estop the defendant from the defence of want of consideration in the original note:—Held, if an original note is voidable for failure of consideration in the original note renewals will cure the defect, unless some new consideration is introduced, and that a mere compliance with defendant request to renew does not constitute such consideration:—Held defendant entitled to recover back his $3,000 paid on other note. Subscription—Prospectus—Unreasonable Delay—Departure—Res Judicata.]—On the 28th January, 1899, the defendant and others subscribed for a certain number of shares of subscribed for a certain number, the stock of a projected company, the purpose of which was to build an hotel. The prospec-tus stated that it was intended to apply for a charter forthwith, and to commence building as soon as $40,000 of the stock had been subscribed, and that the buildings were estimated to cost about $45,000, and to be ready for opening at the beginning of the summer season of 1899. The company, however, was season of 1840. The company, novelet, not formed, nor was anything done towards getting the hotel ready for occupation by the time mentioned. Prior to the 24th October, time mentioned. Prior to the 24th October, 1899, only $28,700 had been subscribed, but 1889, only $25,000 had been subscribed, but additional subscriptions obtained on that date and shortly afterwards brought the total up to $40,150. On the 24th November, 1899, letters patent of incorporation were issued. About the 1st July, 1900, the hotel was com-pleted, and cost about $15,000 more than originally contemplated:—Held, that, as the undertaking had not been proceeded with within a reasonable time from its inception, and as the defendant had not at any time the 1st October, 1899, agreed to be bound by his subscription, or approved of then proceeding with the erection of the hotel, or that it should cost the sum it was afterwards erected for, he could not now be held bound to pay for the shares. Semble, that a in an undefended action brought by the defendant against the company, declaring that the defendant was not a shareholder, was not a defence to this action, brought by other subscribers to compel the defendant to pay for the shares he had subscribed. Lency to the applicant:—Held, while by s. 28 of the Act the directors may refuse to allow the entry to be made of any transfer of shares of stock in any such book whereof the whole amount has not been paid in, but their power does not extend to fully paid up shares. Order for the transfer of the 2 shares to the applicant. Re Benson and Imperial Starch (9., 5 O. W. R. 591, 10 O. L. R. 22.

Transfer—Certificate—Lien — By-laws.]
—A provision in a certificate of ownership of paid up shares issued by a company incorporated by special Act, that "the articles of the company are part and parcel of this contract," is not sufficient to make applicable to a purchaser in good faith of the shares a by-law of the company purporting to give to the company a lien on all shares held by any shareholder for "any and all amounts that may be owing by the shareholder or his assigns to the company," and the purchaser is, upon compliance with the necessary formalities, entitled to be registered as transferse. Order of Ferguson, J., 3 O. W. R. 136, affirmed, In re McKain and Canadian Birk-beck Investment and Savings Co., 24 Occ. N. 128, 7 O. L. R. 241, 3 O. W. R. 335.

The widow, however, used the shares in good faith, and to the best advantage of the minors, in settling debts of the estate, which was virtually insolvent:—Held, that the children having benefited to the full value of the shares, or more, and having madeno offer of restitution of such benefit, had no claim against the transferor, or against the-company itself, to recover the shares or their value; arts. 1011, 1139, 1144, C. They signed powers of attorney authorizing an agent of the company "to receive from the vendors a transfer" of shares and to sign an acceptance. No transfers were made, but the powers of attorney were pasted in the transfer book. Several months afterwards a director filled in opposite the names of the appointees transfers of shares as from himself, and procured the agent as their attorney to accept the transfers, for which the agent was paid a commission out of the company's funds :-Held, in winding-up proceedings, that the transfers were invalid and the director was a contributory in respect of the shares which he purported to transfer. The payment of the commission to the agent was bad, and the director was liable to refund it. Shortly after the incorporation of the company, at a meeting of the provisional directors, who were then the only shareholders, a resolution was passed authorizing the payment to one of the provisional directors, afterwards a director, of $300 out of capital, for alleged services. It did not appear that any service had been rendered by him. The minutes of this meeting were confirmed at a subsequent shareholders' meeting. At the time no profits had been made and nothing paid on account of the stock. No by-law was passed. The payment was subsequently made:—Held, that the director was bound to refund. VII. TRANSFER OF ASSETS.

Effect of.]—A transfer of the assets of one joint stock company to another does not merge the two companies into one. Maple Leaf Rubber Co. v. Brodic, Q. R. 18 S. C. 352.

VIII. WINDING-UP.

Action against Company — Leave of Court.]—An action brought against a company in course of winding-up, without the permission of a Judge will be dismissed upon exception to the form. Sowey v. Electric Printing Co., 5 Q. P. R. 105.

Action against Company — Leave of Court.)—An action brought against a bank in liquidation, without the previous authorization of the Court, will be dismissed upon exception to the form. Marcotte v. Turcot, 4 Q. P. R. 342.

Action against Company — Rights of Shareholders—Contestation in Winding-up— Litispendence — Fraud and Negligence of Officers — Validity of Warehouse Receipts — Principal and Agent—Liability of Both.]— By by-law of a cold storage company, the president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer had power to sign all negotiable instruments, One of the officers of the company, thus expressly authorized, signed and issued fraudulently a number of warehouse receipts previously signed by the other officer of the company, who had to be a party to them. There were no goods in storage to represent these receipts:—Held, that a shareholder of a com-gany, from the day in which it is put in liquidation, must be considered a creditor, on a contestation of a claim made against the company, and he is entitled to demand, direct action, what he might have demanded on a contestation of a claim against the company. 2. Litispendence cannot be pleaded, to such direct action, on the ground that a contestation of the claim has been filed in the hands of the liquidator, where the contestation was filed subsequent to the institution of the direct action. 3. Whenever the very act of the agent is authorized by the terms of the power, that is to say, whenever, by comparing the act done by the agent with the terms or the power intrusted to him, the act is in itself warranted by the terms used, such act is binding on the principal as to all persons dealing in good faith with the agent. The apparent authority is the real one. Consequently, warehouse receipts of a cold storage company, signed fraudulently by one and negligently by another of the company's officers expressly authorized to sign such receipts, are valid as between the company and third persons acting in good faith. 4. The liability of the company being that resulting from an offence, the fact that other persons may be responsible does not diminish the liability of the company, which is jointly and severally liable with the others responsible for such offence. Ward v. Montreal Cold Storage Co., Q. R. 26 S. C. 310.

Action by Liquidator — Dismissal— Leave to Appeal.]—The liquidator of a company in liquidation, whose action has been dismissed, may, with the leave of a Judge, appeal from that judgment to the Court of Review. Montreal Coal and Towing Co., Standard Life Assurance Co., 6 Q. P. R. 243.

Action by Liquidator — Motion for Liquidator — Notice to Proposed Defendant, — A petition whereby the liquidator of a company asks to be allowed to sue one of the debtors thereof, need not be served upon the debtor, before its presentation to the Court or Judge. Comic Opera Co. of Montreal v. Desaulniers, 7 Q. P. R. 83.

Action for Calls-Counterclaim for Rescission—Leave to Proceed Refused—Leave to Appeal.]—Previous to an order for the windg-up of the company under the Dominion Winding-up Act, an action had been brought by the company against a shareholder for unpaid calls, and the shareholder had delivered a defence and counterclaim praying that his application for shares should be cancelled on the ground of misrepresentation and of false and fraudulent statements in the prospectus: -Held that the shareholder could have in the winding-up proceedings all the relief that he claimed by his defence and counterclaim; and his application for leave to proceed in the action notwithstanding the winding-up order, action notwithstanding the winding-up order, was refused, but leave to apply again was reserved. Dictum of Strong, C.J., in In re Hess Manufacturing Co., 23 S. C. R. 644, at pp. 665-6, explained. Leave to appeal from the order of a Judge in Court affirming the dismissal by the referee of the application for leave to proceed, was refused. In re Paken-ham Pork Packing Co., 24 Occ. N. 18, 6 O. Agreement between Liquidator and Claimant—Creditors—Setting Aside—Mala Fides—Mettings of Creditors.)—An arrangment entered into between the liquidator of a company in liquidation and a claimant under s. 61 of R. S. C. c. 129, and authorized by the Court, is binding on the creditors of the company, and others interested; it can only be attacked on the ground of mala fides. The purpose of 62 & 63 V. c. 43, which permits meetings of and consultations of creditors in certain cases, is not to repeal or modify s. 61, but to amplify it. Ward v. Mullin, Q. R. 14 K. B. 49.

tribute to the assets of the company can only be worked out by virtue of a fresh call made by the liquidator, which must be based upon the amount necessary to discharge the debts of the company and the costs of liquidation, which would render useless the former calls, but the shareholder will be permitted to plead these grounds in the action continued by the liquidator. Claim for Money Lent—Power to Borrove—Delegation of Powers—Manager—Seal of Company.] — The vice-president and the manager of a loan and savings company instructed a broker to buy shares of the company's stock "to keep it up." He did so, paying a ten per cent. margin upon the purchase with the funds of the company paid to him by cheque, and the balance by a loan obtained on the shares bought, which were transmitted on the shares bought, which were transmitted on the shares bought, which were transmitted of the shares bought, which were transmitted on the shares bought, which were taken to wind up the company to the form proceedings were taken to wind up the company to the lender—Held, that the manager and vice-president had no power by delegation or otherwise to borrow money for the company, and that the affixing of the seal to the document referred to was an unauthorized act of the manager; and, therefore, the claim of the lender to prove as a creditor of the company for the amount advanced upon the stock could not be allowed. Claims of Creditors — Delay in Pre-senting—Excuse — Merits — Leave to Renew Application—Statute.]—In the winding-up of a life insurance company, the liquidator's list of claimants was filed in the Master's office on 5th June, 1900, and a proper advertisement was published requiring claims to be delivered to the liquidator on or before the 7th May, 1900. On the 19th April, 1901, the claimant applied to the Master to amend the list of claimants by increasing the amount for which he was entitled to rank:-Held, that the claimant coming in after the time allowed for filing claims, was bound to shew upon affidavit some prima facie case of merit, and to explain the reasons for his delay in coming in with his claim. The claims of creditors should not be shut out so long as there remains unadministered a portion of the fund applicable for their payment. Even where an application is dismissed for want of an affidavit shewing merits and explaining delay, the dismissal may well be without prejudice to a further application upon proper material but in this case the rights of the claimant had been entirely cut off by an enactment of the Legislature, to which a retrospective effect had been given, and it would, therefore, be of no assistance to the claimant to permit him to renew his application. In re Merchants' Life Association of Toronto, Hoover's Claim, 22 Occ. N. 21.

Claims of Creditors — Lien on Goods Sold—Right of Liquidator—Conditional Sales Act—Bills of Sale Act.]—The claimants sold the company a machine upon an order signed by the company, the conditions of which were that the company should pay a part of the price in cash and the balance in instalments, with interest on such instalments payable with the last of them, and that the title should not pass to the company until the moneys payable by them under the order, as well as under any other orders which might be given by the company to the claimants, should be paid. At the time of the commencement of the winding-up of the company, one instal-ment, the interest, and a further sum for goods ordered after the first order, remained unpaid. The liquidator came into possession of the machine, and sold it to H., subject to an alleged lien in favour of the claimants for the amount of the unpaid instalment only :-Held, that the rights of the claimants under the contract still existed, and were not affected by the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, or by the Act respecting Conditional Sales of Chattels, nor by the liquidator's sale to H and they were entitled to recover the full amount due under the terms of the order out of the estate. Claims of Creditors—Secured Creditors—Withdraucal.] — Creditors holding fully secured claims and content to rely thereon, without seeking to share in the distribution of the other assets, cannot be compelled to file their claims in the winding-up proceedings under the Dominion Winding-up Act, R. S. C. c. 129, and have them adjudicated upon therein; and where such creditors without any intention to submit to such adjudication, had filed with the liquidator affidavits proving their claims, leave was given them to withdraw such claims, leave also being given to one of such creditors, who had an unsecured debt, to file a claim limited thereto. Contributory - Consideration for Shares -Appeal-Reversal of Judgments Below.]-H. and others, interested as creditors and otherwise in a struggling firm, agreed to purchase the latter's assets and form a company to carry on its business, and they severally subscribed for stock in the proposed company to an amount representing the value of the business after receiving financial aid which they undertook to furnish. A power of attorney was given to one of the parties to purney was given to one of the parties to purchase the assets, which was done, payment being made by the discount of a note for $2,000 made by H., and indorsed by another of the parties. The company having been formed, the assets were transferred, and the formed, the assets were transferred, and the note was retired by a note of the company for $4,000, indorsed by H., which he after-wards had to pay. H. also, or the company in Buffailo of which he was manager, advanced money to a considerable amount for the com-pany, which eventually went into liquidation. After the company was formed, in pursuance of the original agreement between the parties, stock was issued to each of them as fully paid up according to the amounts for which they respectively subscribed, and in the winding-up proceedings they were respectively placed on the list of contributories for the total amount of said stock. The ruling of a referee in this of said stock. The ruling of a referee in this respect was affirmed by a Judge of the High Court (3 O. W. R. 190), and by the Court of Appeal (4 O. W. R. 379, sub nom. Re Baden Machinery Manufacturing Co.):— Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, Davies and Nesbitt, JJ., dissenting, that, as all the proceedings were in good faith, and there was no misrepresentation of ma-terial facts, and as H. and S. had paid full value for their shares, the agreement by which they received them as fully paid up was valid, and the order making them contributories should be rescinded:—Held, per Davies and Nesbitt, JJ. that, as H. and S. did not pay cash or its equivalent for any portion of the shares as such, the order should stand;— Held, also, that it is the duty of the Supreme Court, if satisfied that the judgment in appeal is erroneous, to reverse it even when it represents the concurring view of three or any number of successive Courts before whom the case has been heard. On receipt of the application the secretary of the company placed Hill's name on the "shareholders' list" of the company, notified him of the receipt of his application and drew on him for $10, the first payment, which he paid :—Held, all these acts must be regarded as evidence that the directors, instead of passing a by-law, had "otherwise ordained" the allotment of the 1 share of stock to Hill, and the responsent was therefore placed on the list of contributories in the winding-up of the company, to the amount of $90. Creditors' Claims - Shareholders Con-Creators' Claims — Snareholders Contributing to Reserve Fund.]—By s. 17, s. s. 6, of the Loan Corporations Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 205 "it shall be lawful for any such corporation to constitute and maintain a reserve fund out of the earnings or other income of the corporation not required for the present liabilities of the corporation."
By a by-law of the above named company it was provided that "a reserve fund shall be maintained consisting of the sums already set apart and forming such fund, together with such sums as may be contributed and added thereto, or as the directors shall, from time to time, deduct or retain from the undivided profits, and together with the pro-fits and increase of such sum." An amount equal to 26 per cent, of the amount of the capital stock of the company having been, previously set apart as a reserve fund, the shareholders of the company were, in 1901, invited by the directors to make it up to 100 per cent, by contributions to the reserve fund. No further by-law was passed. Many of the shareholders paid to the company sums which were credited to the reserve fund, and upon which they received interest at dividend rates:—Held, that in the winding-up of the company the creditors who had so contributed were not entitled to rank as creditors upon 'the assets of the company in antors upon the assets of the company in respect of the sums so contributed. Creditor — Compromise with Liquidator — Account—Jurisdiction of Master.] — An appeal by a bank from an order of the Master in Ordinary, in proceedings under the Winding-up Act, directing the bank to furnish the liquidator with an account of all moneys received from the proceeds of the insurance moneys referred to in an agreement between the bank and the liquidator, and an account of all expenditures, and directing the bank to credit and allow the liquidator the amount of the counsel fees taxed in the bills of costs in certain actions brought for the recovery of insurance moneys. The agreement provided that the bank should pay over to the liquidator ten per cent, of the net proceeds from all insurance policies; that the liquidator was not to question the validity of the assignment of the policies to the bank; and that the liquidator was to instruct counsel to appear for the bank and as formally representing the bank, but in the interest of the creditors, and assist to the fullest extent possible the recovery of the claims:—Held, that the agreement was a mere compromise between two persons at arms' length. The bank was simply an outsider compromising with the liquidator, and upon the facts nothing had occurred to confer any jurisdiction upon the Master. In re John Euton Co., 21 Occ. N.

Greditors Opposing Petition—Neglect to Enter Appearance—Costs,1—Held, that creditors and debenture holders who neglected to enter an appearance to a winding-up petition, as required by Rule 56 of the Winding-up Rules passed by the Judges on the 1st October, 1896, but who appeared by the counsel on the return of the petition, which was dismissed with costs, were not entitled to costs. The fact that their counsel was heard without objection by the petitioner's counsel makes no difference. In re Albion Ironworks Co., 10 B. C. R. 351.

Debenture-holders — Mortgage — Receiver,]—In a suit to enforce a mortgage to secure debentures issued by the defendant company, a receiver was appointed. Subsequently a winding-up order was made against the company, and official liquidators were appointed. The liquidators disputed the validity of the mortgage and the extent of the property covered by it:—Held, that the receiver should not be discharged. An order appointing a receiver on behalf of debenture-holders secured by the mortgage was varied to be limited to property described in the mortgage. Bank of Montreal v. Distribution of Surplus-Shareholders By-laws - Resolutions.1-A municipal water company, incorporated under the On-tario Joint Stock Companies Act, sold their undertaking and franchise to the municipality, and passed a resolution providing for payand passed a resolution providing for payment at par value to the shareholders of the stock allotted to them in proportion to the amounts paid on their respective shares and for payment of the liabilities and the costs of winding-up, &cc., and directing that the surplus should be distributed amongst the surplus should be distributed amongst the members according to their interest. By bylaw of the company, holders of second pre-ference shares were to be paid dividends at 6 per cent., and for a period of five years were not to participate further in the profits of the company. In case of default in payment of any dividend, the deficiency was to be paid out of the net profits of succeeding years, and no dividend was to be paid on the ordinary stock until such deficiency should be fully paid. Second preference shareholders also had the right, under the by-law, upon foregoing their secured dividend of 6 cent, to surrender their shares and receive cent., to surrender their shares and receive the par value thereof, or a corresponding number of ordinary shares, in which case they would have the same rights and privi-leges as the ordinary shareholders; but non-of them exercised this option. The by-law also provided that, in the event of the com-pany being wound up, if any surplus of the control exercised of the company was to be recapital assets of the company was to be returned to shareholders, the holders of second preference shares were to be paid the full amount of their shares and all dividends before the return of the capital of any ordinary shares, "and, subject thereto and to the ary snares, "and, subject thereto and to the first preference stock, the holders of the ordin-ary shares shall be entitled to such surplus of the capital assets:"—Held, that the second preference shareholders were not entitled to share in the surplus assets :-Held, also, that the surplus was divisible among the ordinary shareholders in proportion to the amount of stares. — Order ding.] aty Court fidavit of one of the liquidators, declaring that the association should be and was dissolved. On the 21st June, 1902, upon the application of a certain dissatisfied shareholder, an order was made by the Judge revoking his former order, and also another order which had been made by him on the 7th April, 1902, that no action should be proceeded with against the association except by leave of the Court:— Held, that the order of the 21st June, 1902, was an appealable order, for, even if the appeal to the Court of Appeal given by s. 27 of the Winding-up Act was to be restricted in its construction to appeals from final orders, yet the order of the 21st June, 1902 might be properly described as a final order, since it put an end to the order of dissolution theretofore made:—Held, also, Maclennan, J.A., dissentiente, that the County Court Judge had no authority to make an order such as the one of the 21st June, 1902, inasmuch as he had no other material before assuce as he had no other material before him when making the order than he had when making that of the 24th March, and there was no reason for saying that he had been misled in making the former order or that any fact had been suppressed; and that, therefore, the proper way to have attacked any fact had been suppressed, therefore, the proper way to have attacked the order of the 24th March was by appeal, and not by application to the Judge to reand not by application to the stuge to reschid it after it had been acted upon and become effective. Liquidator — Appointment—Notice.] — The appointment of a liquidator for a company will be set aside if some one interested succeeds in shewing that such appointment has been made without notice to the creditors, contributories, and shareholders of the company. Stimson v. North-West Cattle Co_0 , 5 Q. P. R. 181.

Liquidator-Bond of-Money Received as Assignee—Appeal—Finality of Certificate.]
—After the assignee for the benefit of creditors of an incorporated company had sold part of the assets and received the proceeds, he was appointed liquidator under the Winding-up Act and gave security by a bond which recited all the proceedings and orders, and was conditioned to be void if the liquidator should duly account for what he should receive or become liable to pay as liquidator Held, that the funds and property in the hands of the assignee became vested in him as liquidator upon his appointment as such, and that the sureties were responsible for his subsequent misappropriation thereof. bond provided that the certificate of the Master in Ordinary of the amount for which ter in Ordinary of the amount for which the liquidator was liable should be sufficient evidence of liability as against the sureties, and should form a valid and binding charge against them:—Held, that the sureties had the right to appeal from the certificate in accordance with the usual precision of the accordance with the usual practice of the Court. In re Army and Navy Clothing Co. of Toronto, 22 Occ. N. 11, 3 O. L. R. 37.

Claim Accruing before Liquidator Winding-up — Bank—Use of Name—Amend-ment.]— Under the Dominion Winding-up Act, 1886, ss. 15 and 31, a company in liquidation retains its corporate powers, including the power to sue, although such powers must be exercised through the liquidator under the authority of the Court. The liqui-dator must sue in his own name or in that of the company, according to the nature of the action; in his own name where he acts as representative of creditors and contribuin that of the company to recover either its debts or its property. Where liqui-dators sued in their own name to recover a debt due to the company :- Held, that the error was one of form, which the Court had power to amend under ss, 516 and 521, C. C. P. The defendant having admitted the debt and pleaded set-off, and not having ex-cepted to the form of the action, leave to amend should have been given in the sound exercise of judicial discretion. Judgment in Q. R. 12 K. B. 120, affirming judgment in Q. R. 19 S. C. 556, reversed. Kent v. Community of Sisters of Charity of Providence, [1903] A. C. 220.

Liquidators — Partnership — Action against Interrogatories.] — A company in liquidation owed $642.74 for business taxes to the corporation of the City of Montreal, who sued the liquidators, G. and C., for recovery of that amount. G. and C. were made parties, not as joint liquidators, but as carrying on business together as liquidators under the firm name of G. & C. Upon default of the liquidators to answer interrogatories, the Superior Court ordered the interrogatories to be taken pro confessis and gave judgment in favour of the plaintiffs. The defendants appealed:—Held, that a liquidator appeinted for a company in liquidation possessing only the powers of a judicial sequestrator, has no status to represent in an action the members of the company, who still have the free exercise of their rights, and must sue or defend themselves before the courts. 2. Besides, in this case, the joining of the liquidators as members of a partnership of liquidators was irregular and illegal. 3. The service upon the liquidators by serving one of them at their place of business was also irregular and illegal. 4. A partnership of liquidators is a distinct entity; its members are joint liquidators as individuals and not as partners; and therefore the firm cannot be required to answer interrogatories in the name of the company of which they are liquidators. 5. The interrogatories served upon the liquidators could not affect the rights of the members of the company and could not be regarded as proof of default, because the admission which resulted from default of an answer could not be made by the liquidators, and exceeded their powers. Ctty of Montreal v. Cagnon, Q. R. 25 S. C. 178, 6 Q. P. R. 197.

Leave to Proceed with Action—Judg-ment against Company.] — The fact that prior to a winding-up order judgments against the company being wound up were registered, will not deprive a mortgagee or a debenture holder of his right to obtain leave to proceed with an action to enforce his security. In re Giant Mining Co., 10 B. C. R. 327.

Leave to Bring Action—Secured Creditors—Proving Claims.]—A secured creditor has a right to apply for and obtain leave to bring an action to enforce his security, but it is not optional for him to either prove his claim in a winding-up or else proceed with an action to enforce it, and if he does commence an action it is still compulsory on him to proceed before the liquidator under ss. 63 et seq. of the Act. In re Lenora Mount Sicker Copper Mining Co., 23 Occ. N. 162, 9 B. C. R. 471.

Mechanics' Liens — Priority—Jurisdiction to Order—Notice.] — The holders of mechanics' liens filed against mineral claims owned by a company, which was subsequently ordered to be wound up, recovered judgment thereon in a County Court on the day on which the winding-up order was made. In the list of creditors made up by the liquidator the lien claimants did not appear as secured creditors, but as judgment creditors. The winding-up order was made on the petition of H., a surveyor, who held the field notes of the survey made by him, and who afterwards proposed that he advance the moneys necessary to obtain Crown grants of the claims, and retain a lien on them until he was paid; the liquidator applied to the Court for leave to accept the proposal, and an order was made, without notice to the lien holders, giving H. a first charge on the claims for his debt and the amount advanced by him; afterwards, on H.'s application, an order was made, on notice to the liquidator, but without notice to the lien-holders, that the claims be sold to pay his charge. The lien-holders did not appeal from either of the last orders, but applied for leave to enforce their security, and that they be declared to have priority over H.:—Held, that the order giving H. priority over the lienholders was made without jurisdiction, and the lien-holders were not bound by it. Re Maple Leaf Dairy Co., 2 O. L. R. 590, followed. A company will not be compulsorily wound up at the instance of unsecured creditors, where it is shewn that nothing can be gained by a winding-up, as, for example, where there would not be any assets to pay liquidation expenses. On the hearing of a winding-up petition which was dismissed, the petitioner did not avail himself of an opportunity to examine the officers of the company:—Held, on appeal, that it was too late then to grant an inquiry. In re Okell and Morris Fruit Preserving Co., 9 B. C. R. 153.

Order for — "Just and Equitable"—Sharcholder's Petition — Contributory,—An order for compulsory winding-up may be made under s. 5 of the Companies Winding-up het, 1898 (B.C.), notwithstanding the winding-up is opposed by the company. In winding-up proceedings instituted by a shareholder it appeared that shares had been unlawfully issued at a discount and at different purchasers; that the substratum was gone and that the company was unable to carry on business; that there was a question as to the liability of the company to the principal shareholder, who had always been in practical control of the company:—Held, that it was just and equitable that the company should be wound up. Petition — Appearance — Costs — Waiver.]—A shareholder in the company applied for a winding-up order; the petition, which was dismissed with costs, was opposed by the company, and also by certain deben-ture holders and creditors, who appeared by separate counsel. Rule 56 of the Windingup Rules, passed by the Judges on the 1st October, 1896, provided that "no contributory or creditor shall be entitled to attend any proceedings before the Court, unless he is entered in a book called the 'appearance book." The debenture holders and creditors had not entered an appearance :- Held, that the Rule applied to proceedings before the petition had been dealt with, as well as to proceedings subsequent to a winding-up order, and so the creditors who had not entered an appearance were not entitled to costs, The fact that their counsel was heard, without objection by the petitioner's counsel, made no difference. C. c. 129, as amended in 1890 by 62 & 63 V. c. 43, s. 4, by certain shareholders for a winding-up order, on the ground that the company were insolvent, the act shewing the insolvency being alleged to be the exhibiting by the company of a statement shewing their inability to meet their liabilities, the doing of which is by s. 5 (c) of the Act made an act of insolvency:—Held, that the inability to meet liabilities means liabilities to creditors as distinguished from liabilities to shareholders. In re United Canneries of British Columbia, Limited, 23 Oc. N. 254.

Petition by Shareholder — Liabilities —Statement—Balance Sheet.].—By s. 5 (c) of the Winding-up Act (Dominion) a company is deemed insolvent "if it exhibits a statement shewing its inability to meet its liabilities:" — Held, that the inability to meet liabilities means liabilities to creditors as distinguished from liabilities to creditors as distinguished from liabilities to shareholders. In this respect a shareholder stands on the same footing as a stranger. Where an action is brought by the liquidator of a company in liquidation, in his own name, he is personally liable for costs; the fact that he obtained leave from the Court to sue will not relieve him of his llability in this respect. But the sheriff having, convertishanding, proceeded with the sale under the execution against lands of the company, and executed a deed of the same to the purchaser:—Held, that there was no jurisdiction in the Court under the Winding-up Act to make an order summarily declaring the sale void, such a case not coming within the classes of cases which, under the Act, may be dealt with in a summary manner by a Judge in the winding-up proceedings. Cancellation of Letters Patent-Action by Attorney-General—Order in Council Pendente Lite—Injunction—Crown — Extrajudicial Opinion.] - An action having been brought by the Attorney-General against an incorporated company for a declaration that they were carrying on an illegal business and for forfeiture of their charter, the Attorney-General, while the action was pending, summoned the defendants before him to shew cause why their charter should not be revoked by order in council :- Held, that, whether the right of cancellation of letters patent of incorporation be now only statutory (see R. S. O. 1897 c. 191, s. 99), and merely a power, not a duty, or whether the prerogative right still subsists, the bringing of an action does not clothe the Court with jurisdiction to restrain the exercise of the power. The Court strain the exercise of the power. The Court has no jurisdiction, at the suit of a subject, to restrain the Crown or its officers acting as its agents or servants or discharging discretionary functions committed to them by the Sovereign. It is not proper for a Judge to express an extra-judicial opinion as to the mode in which the discretion of the Attorney-General should be exercised. Attorney-General for Ontario v. Electric Lighting Companies—Statutory Powers—Concurrent Exercise in same Territory—Distance between Wires.]—Where the Legislature has given to two companies similar powers, to be exercised over the same territory, the Court must necessarily conclude that the Legislature has intended to give the companies current powers; in such a case the Court, submitting to the legislative authority, should not intervene between the different companies unless and until one of them has infringed the rights acquired by the other. 2. In the case of two companies carrying on the business of electric lighting over the same territory, it seems that according to experts a distance of three feet between their wires is a sufficient distance to prevent any immediate danger. Promoters—Profit.]—The owner of a patent in April, 1898, induced the defendants to take an interest in it with a view to introducing the patented article into public use.
They subsequently decided to form a company. An actual assignment to the defendants was executed in June, 1898, pending the issue of the letters of incorporation, the expense of which the defendants undertook to bear; and by agreement of even date they agreed to sell to the company, when incorporated, the patent and all improvements, in consideration of the company paying them $5,000, and crediting $4,500, in respect to 500 shares subscribed or to be subscribed by them. In August, 1898, after incorporation of the company, an instrument was accordingly executed by the defendants, and the company adopted and confirmed the agreement above mentioned, and the patent was assigned to the company, and the $5,000 paid:—Held, that the defendants were entitled to retain the $5,000 as against the company, as they did not become promoters until after they had become entitled by agreement to inter-ests in the patent, which were afterwards and before incorporation actually transferred to them. Semble, that, even if the defendants had acquired their interests without consideration, that would be of no consequence to the company unless acquired for them. Judgment of Boyd, C., 2 O. W. Managing Director — Powers—Breach of Trust—Pleading — Charges of Fraud—Failure—Coats.] — The defendant promoted the formation of the plaintiff company for the manufacture of pulp, upon the understanding that slab wood from his saw mill should be used as fuel and pulp wood. The defendant was made managing director, and without orders, but with the knowledge of all the directors except P., erected, at a cost of about $17,000 to the company, a fuel house and conveyors thereto from his saw mill for the conveyance of mill-wood. The expenditure was necessary if the company were to use mill-wood. The defendant supplied the company with mill-wood under an agreement that it should be paid for on the basis of its relative value to round wood for pulp and coal for fuel. The wood was invoiced by the defendant at $2 per thousand of mill cut, on account of which he paid himself $52.301.30, leaving a balance due of $10,580.57. The mill-wood was of a poor quality. No practical test was made of its relative value. In the absence of any other than an approximate estimate, the Court held it should be charged at $1.90 per cord for pulp wood and 90 cents per cord for fuel wood, on which basis the defendant had overpaid himself $2,432.32. The defendant resigned his position as managing director at the end of ten months, and the company refused to use mill-wood. The company sought to charge the defendant with the cost of the fuel house and conveyors, which were no longer of use, as an unauthorized and improper expenditure, and made for the defendant's benefit. The defendant had always been willing to have the price of the mill-wood determined by an actual test. Charges of fraud against the defendant were preferred in a number of sections of the bill, which were unsupported at the hearing:—Held, that the defendant should not be charged with the cost of the fuel house and conveyors; that the decree in the plaintiffs' favour for the balance due by the defendant on overpayment should be without costs; and that the defendant should have the costs of the sections of the bill aligning fraud. Returns to Provincial Treasurer Taxation—Default — Penalty — Navigation Company — Agents—Pleading—Amendment.] -In an action against two defendants, described as incorporated companies, for the recovery of penalties for non-compliance with the requirements of art. 1149, R. S. Q., the plaintiff restricted his demand to the penalties for 300 days between two stated periods. The action was dismissed in the first Court, as to the first defendant, on exception to the form based on the ground that no such corporation as that described in the writ existed The other defendants had not pleaded, and the plaintiff subsequently caused an amended declaration to be served on the attorneys, alleging that the defendant first mentioned was an unincorporated company, and claiming the same amount of penalties for a different period of 300 days, and as to which the pre-scription enacted by art. 2615, R. S. Q., had accrued at the date of the service of the amended declaration unless prescription had been interrupted by the service in the original action: — Held, affirming, but for different rensons, the judgment in Q. R. 22 S. C. 510, that prescription under art, 2615 was not interrupted by the service of process in the original action inasmuch as the period for which the penalty was claimed therein, was not the same as the period claimed for in the amended declaration, and, moreover, the latter claim included a period for which the plaintiff had abandoned his claim in the original action. Further, the original action being brought against the defendant as the agent of an incorporated company, whereas the amended declaration alleged that the defendant was the agent of an unincorporated company, such amendment should not have been allowed, inasmuch as it changed the nature of the demand within the meaning of art. 522, C. Selection of Test Actions.] — Fortyfour actions were brought by different persons against the defendants for damages caused by the death of relatives in an explosion extending over a large area of the defendants' coal mine, and the plaintiffs applied to consolidate these actions with twenty-nine other actions, one of which had been chosen as a test action. On account of the workmen who were killed not all being of the same class, and also on account of the different conditions in the different parts of the mine where deaths occurred, the defendants contended that the action would not be a fair test of all the others:—Held, that the defendants should have the right to select four actions as test actions for those of the same class. Ellyn v. Crox's Nest Pass Coul Co.

css-Reiuals,]umber of ms, and corporations, to recover damages for an alleged conspiracy against the plaintiff, and for an injunction restraining "the defendants and each of them from continuing to boycott the plaintiff and from continuing to conspire to injure his business, trade, and credit."—Held, that there was no conspiracy to do any act, or for any object, or to use any means, illegal if done or pursued or used by an individual. The combination was not unlawful by reason of its being a combination of several, because it was in the exercise of defendants' own rights of trading in competition with the plaintiff and the "McIntyre block people" and for the protection of those rights. The plaintiff had no absolute right to trade free from competition or free from the right of the defendants to combine to compete effectively with him or the "McIntyre block people" by the use of means not unlawful in themselves. The combination and the pursuit of its objects, therefore, did not affect any legal right of the plaintiff or operate to do him a legal injury. Gibbins v. Metcalfe, 23 Occ. N. 308, 1 W. L. R. 139.

Customs Legislation—Conflict with Imperial Enactment—Duty upon Foreign-built Ship—Construction of Statustes—Croun—Interest—Tort—Everant of Croun,—The Parliament of Canada has legislative authority to impose a customs duty upon a foreign-built ship to be paid upon application by her in Canada for registration as a British ship. 2, The provision in item 409 of the Customs Tariff Act of 1897, which purports to impose a duty upon a foreign-built ship upon application by her for a Canadian register, is not a clear and unambiguous imposition of the duty, such as would support the right of the Crown to exact the payment of such duty. Deportation of Immigrants—Constitutional Law—Powere of Dominion Parliament—Alien Labour Act.]—Certain immigrant was employed by one the Pere Marquette Railway Company at St. Thomas. Attorney-General of Canada ordered him to be "Returned to the country whence he came:"—Held, Anglin, J., that the Alien Labour Act, s. 6 of 60 & 61 Vic. c. 11 (D.) as amended by 1 Edw. VII. c. 13, s. 3, was ultra vires. Re Gilhula, Re Cain, 6 O. W. R. 124, 10 O. L. R. 469. Reversed, [1906] A. C.

Dominion and Provincial Lands—Military Reserve—Litigation Between Dominion and Province—Public Inquiry — Evidence.]—Held, on the facts, that it was shewn that Deadman's Island was a military reserve, called into existence by properly constituted authority, and therefore, that it belongs to the Dominion and not to the province. Litigation between the Dominion and a province respecting the right to administer certain public property should not be conducted in the same way as a suit between subjects, but should rather be regarded as a public inquiry, in which it is incumbent on all the Crown officers to come forward with all the evidence in their possession, and any properly authenticated documents bearing on the issues should be admitted in evidence. Dominion Civil Servants - Judgment Debtors—Salaries—Payment of Judgments Out of, by Instalments—Ultra Vires—Discre-tion.]—K., M., and W., were officers of the government of Canada and were in receipt of annual salaries amounting to $1,800, $400 and $700 respectively. K., upon being examined before the Judge of a County Court, was, under 59 V. c. 28, s. 53, ordered to pay the amount of the judgment against him by instalments at the rate of $5 per month. M. and W., being examined before the Judge of another County Court, were, under the same section, ordered to pay the amounts of the judgments against them by instalments at the rate of $5 and $10 per month respectively:—Held, Landry, J., dissenting, that the provisions of 59 V. c. 28, s. 53 (N.B.), authorizing the Judge or other officer before whom the examination is held, upon it being made to appear to him that the judgment debtor is unable to pay the whole of the debt in one sum, but is able to pay the same by instalments, to make on order that the debtor shall pay the amount of the judgment debt by instalments, in so far as it is sought to apply the same to salary or income derived from office or employment under the Government of Canada, is ultra vires of the Provinment or Canada, is ultra vires of the Provin-cial Legislature, and therefore, that orders against K., M., and W., should be quashed. 2. That in the cases of M. and W., there being no evidence or charge of fraudulent conduct on their part, the circumstances shewed such an improper exercise of discretion on the part of the Judge that the orders made by him should be quashed on that ground as well. Exemptions from Taxation — Land Solidies of the Canadian Pacific Railway— Extension of the Boundaries of Manitoba—Statutes — Contract — Grant in Prasenti—Cause of Action—Jurisdiction—Waiver.] — The land subsidy of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company authorized by 44 V. c. 1 (D.) is not a grant in præsenti, and, consequently, the period of 20 years of exemption from taxation of such lands provided by clause 16 of the contract for the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway begins from the date of the actual letters patent of grant from the Crown, from time to time, after from the Crown, from time to time, after they have been earned, selected, surveyed, allotted, and accepted by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The exemption was from taxation "by the Dominion, or any province hereafter to be established, or any municipal corporation therein:"—Held, that when, in 1881, a portion of the North-West Territories in which this exemption attached was added to Manitoba, the latter was a province "thereafter established," and such added territory continued to be subject to the said exemption from taxation. The limitation in respect of legislation affecting the territory so added to Manitoba, by virtue of the Dominion Act 44 V. c. 14, upon the terms and conditions assented to by the Manitoba Acts 44 V. (3rd sess.) cc. 1 and 6, are constitutional limitations of the powers of the legislature of Manitoba in respect to such added territory, and embrace the previous legislation of the Parliament of Canada relating to the Canadian Pacific Railway and the land subsidy in aid of this construction. Taxation of any kind attempted to be laid upon any part of such land subsidy by the North-West Council, the North-West Legislative Assembly, or any municipal or school corporation therein. is Dominion taxation within the meaning of clause 16 of the Canadian Pacific Railway contract providing for exemption from taxa-tion. Per Taschereau, C.J.C.:—In the case of the Springdale School District, as the whole cause of action arose in the North-West Territories, the Court of King's Beach for Manitoba had no jurisdiction to entertain the action or to render the judgment appealed the action or to render the judgment appealed from in that case, and such want of jurisdic-tion could not be waived. But it is not a public harbour; something more is necessary to convert an open river front into a public harbour than the erection along it of four or five wharves projecting beyond the shallows of the shore. The existence of improvements in the river bed in front of the town, belonging to the Dominion Government, afforded no reason for the entire control of the ferry across the river being held to be in the Dominion Government. Ferry-Exclusive Privilege - North-West Territories Legislative Assembly-Municipal Institutions — Property and Civil Rights— helegation of Powers — License — Tolls — Highway — By-law—Private Ferry.]—The Legislative Assembly of the Territories has power to pass an Ordinance providing for the issue of an exclusive license to ferry over a navigable river and for the imposition of Such power is conferred upon the Assembly by one, if not both, of the following provisions of the Dominion Order in Council of 26th June, 1893—made under the authority of the North-West Territories Act ity of the North-West Territories Act— which authorizes the passing of Ordinances in relation to:—3. Municipal Institutions in the Territories—subject to any legislation by the Parliament of Canada as heretofore or hereafter enacted. (See B. N. A. Act, s. 92, s.s. 8.)—8. Property and civil rights in the Territories-subject to any legislation by the Parliament of Canada on these subjects. (See B. N. A. Act, s. 92, s.-s. 16.)—The power of the Legislative Assembly to dele-gate its powers discussed. The question of the extent of the jurisdiction of the Legis-lative Assembly over surveyed highways, the control of which has been given by Parliament to the Legislative Assembly, discussed.

A municipality having by Ordinance been given, with respect to a certain portion of a pavigable river, all the powers of the various officers named in the Territorial Ordinance respecting ferries :- Held, that it was not necessary for the municipality to exercise its powers by by-law; and that an agreement with and a license to, the licensee, both under the corporate seal of the municipality, were sufficient. The plaintiff held an exclusive license for a ferry. Another ferry was operated within the plaintiff's territory by an unincorporated association of persons, which issued tickets to its members to the amount of their respective "shares" in the association :- Held, that this latter ferry was not a private ferry, and that the plaintiff's fight was thereby infringed. C. c. 95, s. 4, authorized to use trap nets having leaders of 10 fathoms, for the purpose of taking deep sea fish other than salmon, in the public waters of St. Margaret's Bay, in the province of Nova Scotia), in setting his net within the distance prohibited by the general fishery regulations of Nova Scotia, under penalty provided by the Act, it was held, following Attorney-General of Canada v. Attorney-General of Ontario, [1898] A. C. 701, that the Act, so far as it empowered the granting of exclusive rights of fishery over provincial property, was ultra vires; and the fact that the plaintiff had a leader of 25 fathoms length attached to his trap, whereas he had only paid license fees in respect to one of 10 fathoms, was not an illegality relevant to the plaintiff's case, and was too remote to prevent recovery of damages. The foreshore of Vancouver harbour is under the jurisdiction Vancouver harbour is under the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada, either as having formed part of the harbour at the time of the union of British Columbia with the Dominion, or by reason of the jurisdiction of the Dominion attaching at the union. The Parliament of Canada has power to approximate the property of the property of the parliament of Canada has power to approximate the property of the property propriate provincial public lands for the purposes of a railway connecting two or more provinces. The Act respecting the Canadian Pacific Railway, 44 v. c. 1, should not be construed in the same way as an ordinary Act of incorporation of an ordinary railway company, but it should be interpreted in a broad spirit, and bearing in mind the objects sought to be accomplished. Per Hunter, C. Incorporation of Company-" Works for the General Benefit of Canada "-Pre-amble-Expropriation of Land.]-A company was incorporated by a Dominion statute, which recited that "it is desirable for the general advantage of Canada that a company should be incorporated for the purpose of ntilizing the natural water supply of the Niagara and Welland rivers, with the object of promoting manufacturing industries and inducing the establishment of manufactories in Canada, and other businesses," and that the contemplated works would interfere with the navigation of the Welland river. The Act then expressly authorized the construction of certain works and the expropriation of land for such purposes, incorporating certain sections of the Railway Act of Canada; and also authorized the company to enter into certain contracts extending beyond the limits of the province. The Act was subsequently amended by the Dominion Parliament, and recognized by the Legislature of Ontario:— Held, that the preamble shewed by implication the intention of Parliament to give the power to deal with public property of the Dominion and to expropriate private property in the province, and the reason for doing so; and was a parliamentary declaration that the formation of the company for the purthe formation of the company for the purposes mentioned was for "the general advantage of Canada." Subject Crown as representing the province, subject only to certain privileges of the Indians reserved by the treaty. The Crown can only dispose thereof on the advice of the Ministers and under the seal of the province. Catharines Milling Co. v. The Queen, 14 App. Cas. 46, followed. The Dominion Government having purported, without the consent of the province, to appropriate part of the surrendered lands under its own seal as a reserve for the Indians in accordance with the said treaty:—Held, that this was ultra vires the Dominion, which had, by s. 91 of the British North America Act, exclusive legislative authority over the lands in quesregistative authority over the lands in ques-tion, but had no proprietary rights therein. The consent of the province having been subsequently provided for by a statutory agreement between the two governments, the special leave to appeal granted upon the representation of the general public importance of the question involved would probably have been rescinded if a petition to that effect had been made. Liquor Act of Ontario, 1902-Referendum—Power of Legislature—Trial of Of-fenders — Constitution of Court—"To Conduct the Trial"—County Judge — Issue of Summons—Adjournment for Sentence.]—On a motion to quash a conviction for attempting to put a paper other than a ballot paper authorized by law into a ballot box, contrary to the provisions of s. 191 of the Ontario Election Act and s. 91 of the Liquor Act, 1902 :- Held, that the reference by the Legislature of such a question as that mentioned in s. 2 of the Liquor Act, 1902, to the vote of electors, instead of the Legislature itself deciding it, is unusual, but well within the powers of the Legislature:—Held, also, that the intention of the Legislature under s.-s. 4 of s. 91 was to create a tribunal with authority to try certain specific offences; that the Court so created had power under the words "to conduct the trial" to bring the party charged before the Court, try him for the offence, and sentence him if found guilty; that the County Judge appointed to conduct the trial does not act as a County Judge, but as a Court specially created; that it was intended that he should act out of his own county in holding the actual trial; that he may issue his summons in his own county or elsewhere; and has power, after finding the accused guilty, to adjourn the Court to a subsequent day for the purpose of passing sentence. Section 191 of R. S. O. 1897 c. 9 is wide enough not only to meet the case of an-offending returning officer or deputy returning officer, but that of any other person, Rex v. Walsh. 23 Occ. N. 186, 5 O. L. R. 527, 2 O. W. R. 222, 3 O. W. R. 31.

Lottery — Contract — Illegal Consideration,] — The Provincial Legislatures have no jurisdiction to permit the operation of lotteries forbidden by he criminal statutes of Canada A contract in connection with a scheme for the operation of a lottery forbidden by the criminal statutes of Canada is unlawful, and cannot be enforced in a court of justice. The illegality which vitiates such a contract cannot be waived or condoned by the conduct or pleas of the party against whom it is asserted, and it is the duty of the Courts, ex mero motu, to notice the nullity of such contracts at any stage of the case and without pleadings. Per Girouard, J., dissenting. In Canada, before the Criminal Code, 1892, lotteries were mere offences or contraventions, and not crimes, and consequently the Act of the Quebec Legislature is constitutional. L'Association St. Jean Baptiste de Montreal v. Brault, 21 Occ. N. 5, 30 S. C. R. 598.

Magistrates' Courts — Jurisdiction — Melgation of Powers — Powers of Police Magistrate — Summary Trials — Criminal Code, s. 785.]—Section 785 of the Criminal Code confers on the police and stipendlary magistrates in the province of Ontario, in case of a person charged with having committed an offence for which he may be tried at a court of the general sessions of the peace, power to try the offence summarily with the consent of the party charged. The Criminal Code Amendment Act, 1900, extended the power to police and stipendiary magistrates of cities and incorporated towns in every other part of Canada; —Held, that the Court would take notice of the offence summarily with the consent of a city in New Brunswick had power to try such offences, though there was no court of general sessions of the peace, and that the police magistrate of a city in New Brunswick had power to try such offences, though there was no court of general sessions of the peace in that province. An Act of the provincial legislature which creates each and every stipendiary or police magistrate a Court, with all the powers and jurisdictions which any Act of the Parliament of Canada has conferred, or may confer, or which any Act of Parliament purports to confer upon any stipendiary or police magistrate within the province, is not a delegation of the power conferred exclusively on the provincial legislature by the British North America Act, 1807, and is intra vires the provincial legislature. protection of bona fide purchasers pendente protection of bona nde purchasers pendente lite, are of purely local character, and do not extend their application to the Yukon Terri-tory by the introduction of the English law generally as it existed on the 15th July, 1870, under s. 11 of the North-West Territories Act, R. S. C. c. 50. Under the provisions of the Land Titles Act, 1894, s. 126, a bona fide purchaser from the registered owner of land, subject to the operation of that statute, is not bound nor affected by notice of lis pendens which has been improperly filed and noted upon the folio of the register containing the certificate of title as an incumbrance or charge upon the land. The exception as to fraud referred to in s. 126 of the Act means actual fraudulent transactions in which the purchaser has participated, and does not include constructive or equitable frauds. Assets Co. v. Mere Robb. 21 Times L. R. 311, referred to and approved. In an action to set aside a conveyance as made in fraud of creditors, the defendant, desiring to meet the action by setting up that there was no debt due, and, consequently, that no such fraud could exist, must allege these objections in his pleadings. the present case the defendant, having failed to plead such defence, was allowed to amend on terms, Taschereau, C.J.C., dissenting. Representation of Provinces in House of Commons — British North America Act, s. 51—Readjustment of Repre-sentation—Construction—"Aggregate Popu-lation of Canada."] — Section 51 of the British North America Act, 1867, directs after each decennial census a readjustment of the representation in the Dominion House of Commons of the four provinces constituted by that Act. It provides as the rule of readjustment that Quebec shall have the fixed number of 65 representatives, and that each of the other provinces shall have that number which bears the same proportion to its population as 65 bears to that of Quebec. its s.-s. 4 prohibits a reduction of the number of the representatives in the case of any province, unless the proportion which the number of its population bore to the number of the aggregate population of Canada at the last preceding readjustment is ascertained at the then latest census to have been diminished by one-twentieth part or upwards:—Held. on a case submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada as to whether New Brunswick was protected from reduction of its members, that on the true construction of s.-s. 4 the expression "aggregate population of Canada" relates to the whole of Canada as constituted by the Act, and therefore includes, not merely the four provinces constituted by proclamation issued under s. 3, but also all the provinces subsequently incorporated and admitted into the Union by order in council under s. 146:—Held, also, with regard to the province of Prince Edward Island, which had under s. 146 been admitted into the Union by order in council directing that it should have six members, its representation to be readjusted from time to time under the provisions of the Act of 1867, that s.-s. 4, on its true construction, did not protect that number from reduction until an increase thereof had been previously effected. Statute Authorizing Monopoly -Municipal Corporation—Resolution — By-law -Contracts with Electric Companies.] -On the 4th April, 1887, the council of the city of H. had, by a simple resolution, permitted the grantors of the appellant company to erect in that city poles for the purpose of electric lighting, under the same restrictions and rules as in the city of O., and under the control of the committee of roads as regards the of the committee of roads as regards the position of the poles. By virtue of this resolution the grantors placed poles and wires in the city and furnished electric light to the eity and citizens. On the 7th May, 1894, by by-law, the city of H. accorded to the grantor of the respondent company for 35 years the exclusive privilege of building and operating an electric railway, and of establishing in the city a system of he ting and lighting, either by electricity or natural gas or otherwise. It was stipulated that the city granted these exclusive rights in so far as they possessed them and had the right to grant them. by-law was confirmed by statute 58 V. c. 69 (Q.), the Act of incorporation of the respondent company, which enumerated, among the privileges granted, the exclusive right of furnishing and distributing electric light to the city, to its inhabitants and all industries or manufactures which were or should be established there :- Held, that the statute in question, relating to a purely local undertaking, was within the competence of the legislature, in spite of the fact that it had the effect of in spite of the fact that it had the effect of sectuding for a limited time the competition of rival undertakings. 2. That by the by-law of the 7th May, 1894, the city had not revoked the permission which it had granted by the former resolution, and had not delegated the power of revoking it, and that the respondent company could exercise the powers authorized by the resolution, until revoked by the city. Sunday Observance—Powers of Provincial Legislatures — Police Regulations.] Section 1 of 62 V. c. 11, whereby the sale of real or personal property or the exercise of any worldly business or work on Sunday is published, is within the authority of the Legislature of New Brunswick. Therefore, where G. was convicted under the above section of selling cigars on Sunday a rule nisi for a certiorari to bring up the conviction was discharged. The fact that the Parliamant of Canada can make the doing of such an act on Sunday a crime, and prohibit it under the general criminal law, does not necessarily shew that a local legislature has no jurisdiction to deal with it under its powers to make regulations of a police or nunicipal nature. A subject matter of legislation, though falling within some of the classes intrusted to the federal Parliament by s. 91 of the British North America Act, may likewise, when looked at from another point of view, come within some of the classes, over which, by s. 92 of the same Act, the Provincial Legislatures have exclusive jurisdiction. Neither the statute nor the by-law has the effect of modifying or abrogating the criminal law. 3. The statute and by-law are limited to the city of Montreal. 4. The imposition of imprisonment provided for by the by-law, under the authority of s. 124 of the statute, is legal. 5. Under the provisions of cl. 15 of s. 92 of the B. N. A. Act, and of cl. 8 of the same section, the provincial legislature could, as it has done by ss. 123 and 124 of the above statute, delegate to the council of the city of Montreal the power to pass a by-law prohibiting the opening of theatres on Sunday is prohibited by the statute, and is a contravention of the by-law. Sunday Observance—Retherence to Supreme Court — Legislative Jurisdiction.] — The statute 54 & 55 V. c. 25, s. 4, does not empower the Governor-General in council to refer to the Supreme Court of Canada, for hearing and consideration, supposed or hypothetical legislation which the legislature of a province might enact in the future: Sedgewick, J., dissenting.—The said section provides that the Governor in council may refer "important questions of law or fact touching specified subjects," "or touching any other matter with reference to which he sees fit to exercise this power."—Held, Sedgewick, J., dissenting, that such "other matter" must be ejusdem generis with the subjects specified. Legislation to prohibit on Sunday the performance of work and labour, transaction of business, engaging in sport for gain, or keeping open places of entertainment, Is within the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada. The second section of the N. W. T. Ordinance, c. 12 of 1901, providing for an extension of the time for redemption of lands sold for taxes, deals with procedure only, and is retrospective, and saves the rights of mortgages prior to the tax sale so as to permit them to come in as interested persons and redeem the lands; Sedgewick and Killam, JJ., contra. Telegraph Companies-Tax on-Application to Interprovincial Company—Action to Recover Tax—Parties—Collector of Revenue Attorney-General-Intervention-Appeal Formal Objections not Taken Below. 1-The statute of the legislature of Quebec imposing an annual tax of $2,000 upon every telegraph company having a paid-up capital exceeding $50,000, and maintaining a line of telegraph for the use of the public in the province, is intra vires of the legislature. 2. The appellant telegraph company, although incorporated by Parliament and carrying on an interprovincial line of telegraph, that is to say, in all the provinces of Canada, except British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, having a paid-up capital exceeding $50,000, must pay this annual tax of $2,000, inasmuch as it carries on business in the province of Quebec by reason of its there using a part of its lines for messages from one point to another within the province. 3. An action brought by a collector of revenue in that capacity for the recovery of this tax is to be regarded as brought under the direction of the Attorney-General, who is dominus litis, and therefore the intervention of the Attorney-General to sustain the constitutionality of the statute, is an unnecessary and useless proceeding, for which he could not, under the circumstances, be allowed costs.

4. The Court of Appeal will not take into consideration objections which have regard rather to the form than to the substance, if they have not been taken in the Court below, Great North Western Telegraph Co. v. For-tier, Q. R. 12 K. B. 405.

Habeas Corpus — Disobedience—Peace Officer—Return.]—A peace officer upon whom a writ of habeas corpus has been served, directing him to produce a prisoner who is in his custody, is not guilty of contempt of Court in neglecting to produce the prisoner, when, in good faith and for reasons which he believes to be valid, he does not do so. 2. Motion to Commit-Order on-Attachment — Apology — Variation of Order Pro-nounced—Appeal—Criminal Matter.] — During the pendency of an action for libel, the defendant called a public meeting at which the subject matter of the action was discussed. and he also published articles in his newspaper commenting upon the libel. The plaintiff made application to punish the defendant for contempt. The Judge who heard the motion filed a memorandum of his reasons for granting it. He subsequently granted an order giving the plaintiff liberty to issue a writ of attachment, and he directed that the defendant should publish an apology in his newspaper. The defendant appealed, and on the appeal it was contended that the Judge had no jurisdiction to make the direction as to the apology; also that the order for the writ should not have departed in its terms from the memorandum filed by the Judge:-Held, that the appeal must be dismissed. The Court has no jurisdiction to rehear or alter the order after it has passed, provided it accurately expresses the intention of the Judge: Preston Banking Co. v. Allsup, [1895] 1 Ch. 141. The order as granted expressed the intention of the Judge. Besides, the proceeding was criminal, and there was no appeal open to the defendants: O'Shea v. O'Shea, 15 P. D. 59; Ellis v. The Queen, 22 S. C. R. 7. Grant v. Grant, 24 Occ. N.

Motion to Stay Appeal by Defendants in Contempt — Disobedience to Injunction—Unincorporated Association — Service—Costs.]—On a motion by the plaintiff to stay a pending appeal by the defendants from an order dismissing an application to set aside service of the writ of summons on an individual for the defendant association, on the ground that the association was not an incorporated body or a partnership and could not be served as a body, the plaintiff alleging that the defendants were in contempt disobedience of an injunction :- Held, following Metallic Roofing Co. of Canada v. Local Union No. 30. Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' International Assn., 23 Occ. N. 152, 5 O. L. R. 424, that the association was not a body capable of being sued or being served, and so was not capable of being enjoined or of committing a contempt, and that, as the very object of the appeal was to determine whether it could be sued and served with process, it could not be determined whether a contempt had been committed without hearing the appeal:-Held, also, that the rule is not universal that persons guilty of contempt can take no step in the action; a party, not-withstanding his contempt, is entitled to take the necessary steps to defend himself, and, as the defendants here were ordered to appear within ten days on pain of having judgment signed against them, they had the right to shew, if they could, that the service upon them was not permitted by the practice; and the motion was refused under the circumthe motion was refused under the circumstances without costs. Fry v. Ernest, 9 Jur. N. S. 1151, and Ferguson v. County of Elgin, 15 P. R. 399, followed. Small v. American Federation of Musicians, 23 Oct. N. 188, 5 O. L. R. 456, 2 O. W. R. 26, 33, 99, 278, 310.

Newspaper Comment — Conduct of Revising Officer.]—The publication of newspaper articles reflecting on the conduct of a revising officer acting under the Election Act in such a way that they might have been made the subject of proceedings for libel, but not in the circumstances calculated to obstruct or interfere with the course of justice or the due administration of the law, does not constitute a contempt of Court panishable by summary proceedings. Skipworth's Case, L. R. 9 Q. B. at p. 233, Hunt v. Clarke, 58 L. J. Q. B. 439, and The Queen v. Payne, [1886] 1 Q. B. 577, followed. In re Bonnar, 23 Occ. N. 269; Rev v. Bonnar, 14 Man. L. R. 481.

Order for Costs and Apology-Power of Judge to Vary-Appeal.] - On motion for an attachment for contempt for the publication of newspaper articles touching a matter before the Court, and liable to inter-fere with the fair trial thereof, the Judge before whom the motion was made allowed it with costs, and concluded his judgment by saying that the defendant must, in addition to paying the costs, undertake not to publish or circulate anything calculated or liable to prejudice the course of justice in respect to the action, while pending, and that he must also publish in an early number of "The Truth," (a paper conducted by the de-"The Truth," (a paper conducted by the defendant), an expression of regret for having published therein anything touching this action. The order taken out was in different terms, requiring the defendant to deposit with the prothonotary of the Court a statement, under his hand, stating his regret at having made such a publication, and under-taking not to publish further comments upon this suit, etc.:—Held, that, as the order was not drawn up at the time judgment was delivered, there was no necessity for following the terms of the written decision, but that it could be varied in any way that seemed proper to the Judge; and that the case was one in which an appeal would not lie. Grant v. Grant, 36 N. S. Reps. 547.

Order for Imprisonment — Appeal — Discretion.]—Where the trial Judge has exercised his discretionary powers in a matter of procedure by ordering that a party who was in contempt of Court for refusing to produce effects unlawfully removed by her, should be imprisoned until the effects should be produced, the Court of King's Bench, or a Judge thereof, will not be disposed to allow an appeal from such exercise of discretion, and particularly where the course adopted by the Court below was apparently the only practical remedy available to enforce obedience to its orders. 8t. Pierre v. Belisle, Q. R. 12 K. B. 270.

Pending Criminal Proceeding—Information—Contemptous Design,1—The question whether a contempt has been committed is for the sole decision of the Court; and the fact that the contemnor denies any disrespectful or contemptuous design to reflect on proceedings pending before the Court, will not justify him if such comments appear to the Court to amount to a flagrant contempt. 2. Proceedings are pending in a criminal case from the time the information has been laid and so long as any proceedings can be taken. Where the jury have disagreed and a new trial has been ordered, the cause is pending until ended by a verdict or otherwise. Rex v. Charlier, Q. R. 12 K. B. 385.

Preliminary Inquiry by Magistrate-Refusal of Witness to Answer—Relevancy of Question—Alteration of Document.]—1. Under s. 585 of the Criminal Code a magistrate would not be justified in committing a witness to gaol for refusal to answer a question unless it were in some way relevant to the issue, as that section only applies when the refusal is made "without offering any just excuse," and the form of the warrant of commitment referred to in that section contains the words, "now refuses to answer certain questions concerning the premises now put to him." 2. If B. is charged with making an alteration of a document received from A., the question put to A. on his examination as a witness on the trial of B. as to the person from whom he, A, had received this document, would not be material if the document is produced; but, if it cannot be found, proof of its contents would have to be given, and that might involve, as a part of the claim, information as to the source from which A had obtained the document, and it could not be held that the question was not in some way material. In re Ayotte, 15 Man. L. R. 156, 1 W. L. R. 79.

Publication of Newspaper Article—Comment on Pending Election Perition—Pre-judice—Petition—In Prosecuted—Abuse of Forms of Court.]—Motion to make absolute an order nisi to commit editor of newspaper for contempt of Court in publishing in the newspaper an article commenting on matters alleged to be in question upon a petition pending against respondent to avoid his election as member for North Renfrew in the Legislative Assembly of Ontario: — Held, such an application should only be granted where it clearly appears that the course of justice has been, or is likely to be, restricted or impaired to the prejudice of the applicant unless summary punishment is inflicted upon the offender. If an article is merely libelous, or if it is even strictly contempt of Court, but not of such a nature as to impede the course of justice, then the applicant mast resort to what other remedies, if any, the law gives him, and cannot successfully invoke the summary, and as it has been called, arbitrary, remedy now sought. The proceedings on both sides were so manifestly a sham, and a user of the forms of the Court for some purpose other than of the real trial of the charges, that contempt of Court is not predicable of anything reflecting upon the parties to them. In seena non in fors resagitur, and whether the play is damned or applauded, is no concern of a Court of justice. Motion dismissed with costs on these grounds only. Re North Renfrew Provincial Election, Re Macdonald, 4 O. W. R. 244, 9 O. L. R. 79.

Refusal to Produce Effects — Order for Imprisonment—Leave to Appeal.]—Leave to appeal from an order condemning a party to a civil cause to imprisonment until he produces certain effects which he has refused to produce in obedience to the Court's order, will not be granted. on the ground. The phintiff, owing to nonsupply of lime, abandoned the work, though it was found on the evidence that the defendant had got what he bargained for, with some shortcoming, for which damages would' compensate him: — Held, that although the plaintiff was not entitled to succeed on his claim under the original special contract, he was entitled to recover on a quantum meruit, and the pleadings were directed to be amended accordingly. Burns v. Ussherwood, 4 Terr. L. R. 389.

Appointment of Sequestrator — Cancellation.]—The Court has no power to appoint a sequestrator to carry out the work undertaken by a contractor, nor to authorize the owner to take possession of the works, the remedy of the owner being the cancellation of the contract. Macdonald v. Hood, 7 Q. P. R. 72.

Cause of Action, where Arising—Sale of Goods—Place of Delivery—Superior Court—District.]—In the absence of agreement to the contrary, goods sold should be delivered and the price paid at the domicil of the purchaser. 2. Default of delivery of the goods sold and of payment of the price constitutes a cause of action. 3. An action can only be begun before the Court of the place where the cause of action arose (if such Court is not that of the domicil of the defendant), when all the causes of action arose in the same place. Lipschitz v. Rittner, 4 Q. P. R. 311.

Condition Precedent as to Subletting - Consent of Municipal Council Pleading.]-Where a contract with a municipal corporation provides that it shall not be sub-let without the consent of the corporation. it is incumbent on the contractor to obtain such consent before sub-letting, and if he fails to do so he cannot maintain an action against a proposed sub-contractor for not carrying on the portion of the work he agreed to do. In an action against the sub-contractor, the latter pleaded the want of assent by the council, whereupon the plaintiff replied that the assent was withheld "at the wrongful request and instigation of the defendant and in order wrongfully to benefit said defendant and enable him, if possible, to repudiate and abandon the contract." Issue was joined on this replication:—Held, that the only issue raised by the pleading was whether or not the de-fendant had wrongfully caused the consent to be withheld, and that the plaintiff had failed to prove his case on that issue. Judgment of the Court of Appeal. 27 A. R. 135, 20 Occ. N. 198, affirmed. Ryan v. Willoughby, 21 Occ. N. 2, 31 S. C. R. 33.

Company—Contract before Incorporation—Agent—Authority—Consensus—Evidence.]—In the absence of a new agreement made by a company after its incorporation, a contract made before its incorporation by a person purporting to contract for the company is not binding on the company, although the parties afterwards carry out some of the lems of the contract and act on the supposition that it is binding on the company. In re Sully, 33 Ch. D. 16, followed. A person who enters hat a contract, expressly as agent for a principal, impliedly warrants his authority; and if he has in fact no such authority he may be sued under that implied contract, and is bound to make good to the other Damages-Costs-Evidence - Discretionary Order by Judge at Trial-Interference by Court of Appeal.] — The trial Court con-demned the defendant to pay $122.50 damages for breach of contract for the sale of goods, but, in view of unnecessary expenses caused in consequence of exaggerated demands by the plaintiffs, which were rejected, they were ordered to bear half the costs. On an appeal by the defendant, the Court of King's Bench varied the trial Court judgment by adding $100 exemplary damages to the condemnation and giving full costs against the defendant :-Held, reversing the judgment appealed from that, in the absence of any evidence of bad faith or wilful default on the part of the defendant, there was no justification for the addition of exemplary damages nor for interference with the judgment of the trial Court. Coghlin v. Fonderie de Joliette, 24 Occ. N. 110, 34 S. C. R. 153.

Damages—Future Services.]—The plaintiff agreed to give a course of lessons in the cutting work of a tailor to the defendant, who was to pay the plaintiff $100 by payments to be made at intervals during the course. The defendant took several lessons, but refused to continue them:—Held, that the plaintiff could recover from the defendant only the price of the lessons which he had actually given, and not the price of the whole course; his remedy in respect of the whole course; his remedy in respect of the future lessons being for damages for the defendant's non-performance of his agreement, Dulude v. Jutras, Q. R. 18 S. C. 327.

Damages—Profits—Mode of Estimating.]—
In an action for damages for breach of contract plaintiff gave evidence that he estimated his profit at from 15 to 20 per eent, on the total amount of the contract, or from $75 to $80, but on cross-examination he failed to give any data by which the accuracy of his estimate could be tested, while the person who actually did the work gave evidence that his profit was about $$35:—Held, that the burden was on the plaintiff to shew grounds which would justify the Court in adopting his estimate, and that, in the absence of such evidence the amount of damages allowed must be reduced from $$70$, at which it was fixed by the trial Judge, to $$35$; and that an allowance could not be made for the plaintiff's time, that being one of the elements forming the basis on which the profit is to be calculated, or for material provided for the purpose of carrying out such contract, except in so far as such material was shewn to be useless for any other purpose. The measure of damages is the profit which the plaintiff might rensonably look for. Love v. Robb Engineering Co., 37 N. S. Reps. 320.

Mining Claim - Agreement for Sale -Construction — Enhanced Value()—By an agreement in writing, signed by both parties, B. offered to convey his interest in certain mining claims to N, for a price named, with a stipulation that if the claims proved on development to be valuable and a joint stock company was formed by N. or his associates, N. might allot or cause to be allotted to B. such amount of shares as he should deem By a contemporaneous agreement, N promised and agreed that a company should have a reasonable amount of the stock acare a reasonate amount of the stock ac-cording to its value. No company was formed by N., and B. brought an action for a declaration that he was entitled to an un-divided half interest in the claims, or that the agreement should be specifically performed:—Held, reversing the judgment of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, 8 B. C. L. R. 402, that the dual agreement above mentioned was for a transfer, at a nominal price, in trust to enable N. to capitalize the properties and form a company to work them, on such terms as to allotting stock to B. as the parties should mutually agree upon; and that on breach of said trust B. was entitled to a reconveyance of his interest in the claims and an account of moneys received or that should have been received, from the working thereof in the meantime. cars at a named railway station, whence it was to be conveyed by rail to the works of the defendants. In a large portion of the rock delivered there was a deficiency of seven per cent. of "apatite" which is pure phosphate, but the defendants received and used it at their works. In an arction to recover the balance of the contract price:—Hela, that the plaintiff must be held to have warranted that the rock would contain the percentage of apatite called for by the contract. 2. That the defendants, having received and used the rock, were liable for the value of the apatite which it contained, to be ascertained at the station for delivery, and not where it was used; and, there being no evidence of further loss, the damages sustained by the defendants were seven per cent. of the freight paid by them for forwarding the rock by rail to their works, to be deducted from the amount of the plaintiff's claim in the action. Architect's Certificate - Finality-Action-Condition Precedent. | - The written contract between the parties provided that the plaintiffs were to erect and complete a building for defendant according to certain drawings and specifications by a fixed date, and to the satisfaction of an architect named, to be certified by him under his hand forthwith after completion. It also provided for payment on the certificates of the architect of 85 per cent, on the work done from time to time, and that the balance unpaid on the completion of the work should become payable within one month after the architect should have certified. The architect gave two so-called final certificates, the first of which was in part as follows: "I hereby certify that D. Bros. are entitled to $416,36, less $4.25, which amount may be held back till the items of work in the following list are done." It proceeded to specify the items covered by the $4.25, and added: "Note.—I consider the guarantee in specification will cover any leak in roof." The contractors had in the specification guaranteed the roof for five years against ordinary wear and tear. Annexed to and forming part of the certificate was a statement shewing that in arriving at the sum of $416.36 a deduction of $50 had been made for "bad floor, &c." The second and last certificate of the architect was as follows: "This is to shew that by certificate given by me on 23rd January, 1900. I certified that D. Bros, were entitled to $416.36, from which the amount of $4.25 was deducted to cover some small items left undone. These have now been attended to, and I therefore certify that D. Bros. are entitled to $416,36 in full of contract and extras:"-Held, that the two certificates should be read together, and being so read they shewed that in respect of the floor and roof the work had not been properly completed, and did not constitute a certificate that the contract work had been completed to the satisfaction of the architect; and such a certificate was a condition precedent to the plaintiff's right to recover. Davidson v. Francis, 22 Occ. N. 328, 14 Man. L. R.

Architect's Certificate - Liability of Owner — Delay in Completion — Penalty Clause—Waiver.]—Where, under the terms of a building contract, the work is to be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of the architect, who is given authority to grant a final certificate, and the architect certifies to its completion :-Held, that, in the absence of fraud or collusion, the certifi-cate of the architect is so far binding upon the proprietor that he cannot contend that the work was not done in accordance with the plans and specifications, and it is immaterial whether the proprietor had knowledge of his intention to grant it or that he consented to or forbade its being granted; if the certificate is untrue, the remedy is against the architeet. A provision in a building contract that the architect's certificate should not lessen the contractor's total or final liability, was held, as a matter of construction, to apply not to the final certificate, but only to progress certificates. A provision in a building contract for liquidated damages for non-com-pletion within the prescribed time, subject expressly to a further reasonable length of time for delays caused by changes in the plans and specifications, is not discharged by delays caused by such changes. Aliter, if no provision has been made for such extensions. Where the contract gives to the architect authority to settle all disputes, matters about which no dispute had been raised when he gave his final certificate are not concluded thereby. As a matter of construction it was held that the contract gave the architect no authority to grant extensions of time on account of changes in plans, except upon a dispute arising. Where the contractor is to "pay or allow to the proprietor" a certain sum as liquidated damages, it is not necessary that it should be retained from the contract price or fixed by the final certificate. Delay in the completion of the contract caused by proprietor's neglect to complete work which it was necessary should first be done before the contractor could continue work under the contract, does not operate to discharge the contractor from the penalties unless notice of the contractor's work having reached the stage at which the proprietor reached the stage at which the proprietor should do his part of the work had been received by him. Neither the proprietor's entering into occupation of the building on completion of the work, insuring it, nor making payment on the contract price, after the time for completion, and after actual completion of the work, operates as a waiver of the penalty clause. Though perhaps on the giving of his final certificate the architect became functus officio, his estimate of the proper allowances to be made was accepted reasonable and allowed by the Court, reduction of the penalties payable for delay in completion. McLeod v. Wilson, 2 Terr. L. R. 312.

Delay-Extras-Penalty - Alterations Written Order of Architect—Onus—Disputed Items — Appeal.] — A building contract contained a provision that the work should be completed by the contractor by a specified date, with a penalty of $5 a day, as liquidated damages, for each day that the work should remain unfinished after that date. It was agreed, on the part of the defendant, that the contractor should be put in possession of the premises, and should be furnished with the lines and levels, by another fixed date, and that, for every day thereafter, he should be entitled to have two days added to the time for the completion of his contract. It was further agreed that the contractor should have no action for damages, or otherwise, against the defendant by reason of said delay: -Held, that the clause of the contract denying the plaintiff's right to an action for denying the plaintin's right to an action for damages applied to the giving possession of the premises only, and not to the delay in furnishing lines and levels and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover for extra work resulting from the latter delay:—Held, also, that the delay in putting the plaintiff in possession of the premises, and in furnishing lines and levels, and delay caused by extra work which he was called upon to do, relieved the plaintiff from the obligation to complete his work by the date agreed, and that the defendant was debarred from en-forcing payment of the penalty. One of the clauses of the contract provided that, if alterations were required in the work, a fair and reasonable valuation of work added or omitted should be made by the architect, and that the sum payable to the plaintiff should be increased or diminished by such amount, be increased of diminished by such already, provided that, where the amount was not agreed upon, the contractor should proceed with the work on the written order of the architect, and that the amount payable therefor should be fixed as further provided: Held, that alterations under this clause only required a written order where the architect and contractor differed as to the valuation: that the furnishing of plans by the architect, shewing additional work, was a "written within the meaning of the contract; that the burden was upon the plaintiff of shewing that work claimed for as extra was ordered by the architect. In determining the amount to which the plaintiff was entitled for extra work the trial Judge had the assistance of an assessor, but the Court, on appeal, were not furnished with the assessor's report, or with the reasons for allowing the plaintiff different items claimed by him :-Held, that the Court could not adopt the views of the trial Judge and the assessor, as to disputed items, in these circumstances, but must connems, in these circumstances, but must consider the different items and the evidence bearing upon them, and that the amount allowed, being excessive, should be reduced. Extras — Certificate of Architect.]—The certificate for additional work given by the architect of the owner after the completion of the work will avail, instead of the authorization in writing of the owner required by art. 1690, C. C. Bayard v. Drouin, Q. R. 22 S. C. 420.

Extras—Oral Testimony—Tender.]—F. had contracted with L. to build a warehouse and do certain repairs, by an agreement in writing, giving certain details of the work to be done, but unaccompanied by a plan. The contract price was $1,100. F. claimed $22.55 for extras which he maintained were authorized by L., but which L. denied. At the trial F. offered oral evidence in support of his claim for extras, and L. objected, setting up art. 1890:—Held, that art. 1690 of the Code must be interpreted strictly. (2) When it is a question of a contract unaccompanied by plans and definite specifications, but relating to building and repairing buildings, either erected or to be erected, described in a writing giving certain details of the work to be done, it is not a case for the application of art. 1690, and oral evidence may be adduced to grove the doing of work outside the contract, and the cost thereof, without the production of any writing authorizing them. Corriveau v. Roy, Q. R. 15 S. C. 90, followed. (3) A tender to avail should be made in the terms of art. 1163, C. C., and especially in legal tender, if it is a question of money, and including the amount of the costs, if made after action brought. Ferland v. La-famme, Q. R. 27 S. C. 66.

The fact that the plaintiff's tender was made for the purpose of deceiving other tenderers did not estop the plaintiff from disputing its bona fides as against the defendant. Failure by the owner to supply material which the contract provides he shall supply, discharges a penal clause. Where a building contract provides for the certificate of an architect and no architect is appointed the provision is inoperative. Degagne v. Chave, 2 Terr. L. R. 210.

Specific Sum — Destruction of Building before Completion—Quantum Meruit.]—The defendant, who had taken a contract for the erection of a dwelling house at $4.650, accepted the plaintiff's tender to do the plumbing and tinsmithing work for $500; but before the completion of the plaintiff's contract, though after he had done work up to $488, the building was destroyed by fire. The defendant had received two sums of $1,500 on account of his contract, but he denied that any portion of it was for work done by the plaintiff. In an action by the plaintiff to recover the $488 on a quantum meruit:—Held, that where, as here, the contract is to do work for a specific sum, and this applies as well to original as to sub-contracts, there can be no recovery until the work is completed, unless the failure to do so is caused by the defendant's fault; and, as the plaintiff admitted the non-completion by suing on a quantum meruit, and there was nothing to shew any fault on the defendant's part, there could be no recovery. The contractor died after doing part of the work, and the plaintiff thereupon agreed to deliver at the plaintiff thereupon agreed to denver at the house "all the material referred to in the late (contractor's) contract, and all the con-late (contractor act are to apply." The ditions of that contract are to apply." The superintendent of the work was a relative of and indebted in a large sum to the defendant, and the plaintiff did not know this. Disputes having arisen, the superintendent of the work gave to the plaintiff under the defendant's instructions a certificate that the plaintiff had furnished all the material according to specifications, "except small matcoronic to specimentons, except small mat-ters which I will adjust under the terms of the contact:"—Held, that as to the extra material furnished by the plaintiff, the con-dition as to the superintendent's certificate dition as to the superintendent's certificate did not apply; and that at all events the certificate in fact given put an end to the contract and relieved the plaintiff from doing anything further under it, so that the non-completion of the "small matters" in dispute formed no defence:—Held, also, per Armour, C.J.O., that the relationships, family and financial, of the superintendent to the defendant should have been disclosed to the plaintiff, and that under the circumstances the plaintiff was not bound to obtain a cer-tificate at all. Default—Application of Alternative Rate of Payment.]—A contract between a newspaper proprietor and a customer, for 12,000 lines of advertising to be furnished within a raw, based upon a price of four cents a line in advertising, if the conditions of the contract as to prompt payment, &c., be strictly complied with bys.the customer, and of fifteen cents per line in case of failure to comply with such conditions, is an alternative contract, and where the customer makes default to comply with the conditions, the other party is entitled to recover the higher alternative rate for the work actually done. Arrelie 1976, C.C. does not apply to such case, the claim not being based upon the enforcement of a penalty but upon the application of a condition. Berthiaume v. Kent, Q. R. 11 K. B. 212.

Extras—Authority of Agent — Setting side Findings of Jury, I—M. contracted to orect a building in Vancouver for the defendant, a Milwaukee company, the contract providing that no extras would be allowed unless their value was agreed upon and indexed on the contract. S., who had intended to occupy the building for the purposes of a butling company, of which he was a member, ordered extras, but no indorsement there was made on the contract. In an action of was made on the contract. In an action by M. for the price of the extras, the jury found "that S., as authorized agent for the company, ordered the extras for it, and that it did either hold out or permit S. to hold himself out as its agent for the purpose of ordering extras:"—Held, that such indorsement on the contract was a condition precedent to the plaintiff's right to recover. Divisibility — Completion.]—By a contract to remove spans from a wrecked bridge in the St. Lawrence, the contractors agreed "to remove both spans of the wrecked bridge and put them ashore, for the sum of $25,000, to be paid $5,000 as soon as one span is re moved from the channel, and another $5,000 as soon as one span is put ashore, and the balance as soon as the work is completed. it being understood and agreed that we push the work with all possible despatch, but if we fail to complete work this season we are to have the right to complete it next season:"—Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal (21st September, 1901), Taschereau and Davies, JJ., dissenting, that the contract was divisible, and the contractors, having removed one span from the channel and put it ashore, were entitled to the two payments of $5,000 each, notwithstanding that the whole work was not completed in the second season. Electric Lighting-Action for Price-Statutory Regulation—Reading of Meter— Duplicate for Purchaser — Condition Precedent—Waiver.]—The Dominion Acts, 1894, c. 13, s. 13, s.-s. 2, enacts that "Whenever a reading of a meter is taken by the contractors for the purpose of establishing a charge upon the purchaser, the contractor shall cause a duplicate of such reading to be left with the purchaser." In an action by the plaintiff company to recover the price of electric lighting and rent of meter :- Held, that the burden was upon the plaintiff to shew compliance with the Act, and that non-compliance was not excused by the fact that the person to whom the duplicate reading was required to be delivered might not be able to understand it. 2. That an offer to com-promise, made on the part of the defendant, could not in any sense be treated as a waiver of the right conferred by the statute, 3. That the fact of previous bills having been paid could not be taken as dispensing with the requirement of the statute for more than the particular bills paid. Cape Breton Electric Co. v. Implied Covenant — Intention of Parties.]—The plaintiff contracted with the defendant for 330 hours' dredging in the harbour of St. John, with a specific dredge and appliances, and for so much longer as the city might require, on giving notice at the expiration of that period, to be paid for at the rate of $400 per each 11 hours, subject to deductions and allowances agreed upon for time lost, (1) when the dredge was unable to work by reason of injury to the plant or machinery, and (2) where the work could not go on by reason of stormy weather. The water was too deep at high tides for the dredge to work, and there was, therefore, delay caused in this way. Both parties were aware at the time the contract was made that the high tides would interfere with the work, but' there was no provision for any deduction or allowance on that account:—Held, that a verdict for the plaintiff, ordered on a construction of the contract that there was an implied covenant that the defendants should pay for the time lost by reason of the high tides, was erroneous, and should be set aside and a new trial granted. Connolly v. City of 8t. John, 36 N. B. Reps. 411, 35 S. C. R. 186.

Lease of Lund or Hire of Goods— Fixtures—Services.]—A contract by which a person grants to another the use of an engine and boiler affixed to land, with, in addition, a place to deposit wood, is a lease of an immovable, even where the contract provides for payment of a lump sum for the use of the engine and boiler and the wages of the son of the lessor, whose services are leased by the same contract to the lessee. Lande v. Sylvestre, Q. R. 24 S. C. 233.

Municipal Works — Specifications — "From" and "to" Streets—Plan.] — The words "from" and "to" streets mentioned in specifications for the construction of works undertaken by an agreement in writing, as shewn on a plan annexed to and declared to form part of the contract, are not necessarily exclusive. Where the agreement provided that the works should be constructed "along Notre-Dame street from Berri street to Lacroix street as shewn on the said plan." these words mean, "as far as the plan shews along Notre-Dame street, but not exceeding the most distant side of Lacroix street." City of Montreal v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co. 23 S. C. R. 396.

Option—Refusal.]—A contract stipulating that the first party shall have the hauling of all ore shipped up to 15,000 tons, and not less than 10,000 as required by the second party, does not bind the second party to supply more than 10,000 tons. Haggerly v. Lenora Mount Sicker Copper Mining Co., 22 Occ. N. 196, 9 B. C. R. 6.

Printed and Written Clauses.]— A lessee of a building entered into a contract with an electric light company for the supply by them to him of light for the building. The contract, drawn on a printed form used by the company, contained a provision that it was "to continue in force for not less than 33 consecutive calendar months, from date of first burning, and thereafter until cancelled (in writing) by one of the parties hereto," the whole of this clause, except the figures "36," being printed. A subsequent clause, wholly in writing, under the printed heading "Special conditions, if any," provided that the contract was "to remain in force after the expiration of the said 35 months for the term that the party of the second part (the lessee) renews his lease for the (building)," with certain provisions as to nayment of the expense of wirins:—Held, that there was no rule of law requiring more weight to be -iven in a contract of this kind to a written provision than to a printed one; that their fair menning was that the Public Work-Finding of References-Claim of Contractor-Repétition-Waiver,1 -The specifications accompanying a call for tenders for the widening and deepening of canals formed a part of the contract subsequently entered into, and provided that no part of the work could be unwatered during the season of navigation, but might be at the close of navigation. The contractor claimed payment for extra work and increased cost by reason of the refusal to unwater during the winter months :-Held, that the contractor might be called upon to work under water during the time the canal was closed to navigation, as well as when it was open, and was not entitled to extra payment therefor, especially as no demand was made for unwatering. The contractor was entitled to payment at a specified rate for removal of earth and at a higher rate for "earth provided, delivered, and spread in a satisfactory manner to raise towing path where required." He claimed payment at the higher rate for over 200,000 cubic yards, and the resident engineer re-turned 69,000 as falling under the above provision, and the Government allowed 23,000 yards. The Exchequer Court Judge referred it to the registrar of the Court and two engineers, who reported that the amount allowed by the Crown was a sufficient allowance, and their report was confirmed by the Court: — Held, that the Supreme Court would not overrule the judgment of the expert referees. Other clauses of the contract required the contractors to make and repeal their claims in writing within fourteen days after the date of each monthly certificate during the progress of the works, and every month until adjusted or rejected. By the order in council referring the claims of the appellant to the Exchequer Court these clauses were waived "in so far as the repeated submission of claims is re-quired:"—Held, that the waiver did not relieve the contractor from making a claim after the first monthly certificate issued subsequent to its having arisen, but only from repeating it after the following certificate. Pumpore v. The King, 24 Occ. N. 163.

Sale of Goods—Delivery—Place—"At," Meaning of,]—A tender by H. to supply coat to the town of Goderich, pursuant to advertisement therefor, contained an offer to deliver it "into the coal shed at pumping station, or grounds adjacent thereto, where directed by you." (Meaning by a committee of the council.) The tender was accepted, and the contract afterwards signed called for delivery "at the coal shed." A portion of the coal was delivered, without directions from the committee, from a vessel upon the dock, about 89 feet from the shed, and separated from it by a road:—Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal (15th November, 1901, unreported), that the coal was not delivered "at the coal shed." as provided by the contract signed by the parties, which was the binding document:—Held, also, that if the contract was to be decided by the terms of the tender, the delivery was not in accordance therewith, the place of delivery not being "at the pumping station or grounds adjacent thereto." (See, also, 20 Occ. N. 303.) Holmes v. Town of Goderich, 22 Occ. N. 222, 32 S. C. R. 211.

Sale of Homestead and Stock-Entire Contract—Invalidity as Regards Homestead —Conversion.]—The plaintiff signed a writ-ten memorandum as follows: "I hereby agree ten memorandum as follows: "I hereby agree to sell, and make and execute the necessary papers to convey, all my right, title, and in-terest in (describing his homestead, for which he had not been recommended), also (3 horses, a waggon and a plough), and any other implement or chattel of which I am now the owner to (the defendant) for the sum of $480 to be paid as soon as the necessary papers are executed." The defendant, without the plaintiff's knowledge, took posses-sion of the horses; the plaintiff immediately objected to this. The plaintiff sued for conobjected to this. The plaintiff sued for conversion and the defendant counterclaimed for damages for breach of the agreement :- Held, that the contract was an entire one, and that the contract was an entire on that, according to its terms, the property in the personal property would vest only on a proper conveyance of the land. (2) That the agreement, being one for the assignment of an unrecommended homestead, was void. and that, although an agreement may be void in part and valid in part, yet this being an entire contract was wholly void. Judgment was therefore given for the plaintiff for damages for conversion of the horses; and the defendant's counterclaim for damages for breach of the agreement was dismissed. Flannaghan v. Healy, 4 Terr. L. R. 391.

Sale of Timber—Terms of Payment,]—The appellant held rights in unpatented lands and agreed to sell the timber thereon to respondent, one of the conditions as to payment therefor being that, as soon as the Crown grant issued, the respondent should "settle" a judgment against the appellant, which, they both understood, could at that time be purchased for $5500. On the issue of the grant, about six months afterwards, the judgment creditor refused to accept $500 as full settlement at the latter date, and he took proceedings to enforce execution for the full amount. The execution was opposed on behalf of the appellant, the respondent becoming surery for the costs and being also made a party to the proceedings:—Held, affirming the judgment in 10 B. C. R. S4, that the agreement to settle the outstanding judgment was not made unconditionally by the respondent, but was limited to settling it for $500, after the issue of the Crown grant for the land :-Held, also, Davies, J., dissenting, that the costs incurred in unsuccessfully opposing the execution of the judgment, upon being paid by the respondent, were properly chargeable against the appellant. Supply of Electric Power-Continued Existence of Property—Condition Precedent.]

—Where, under the terms of an agreement, the plaintiffs were to supply the defendants with electric current to a specified amount of horse power, to be used by them for operating their machinery, and for use in their business, and for no other purpose, the limitation was held to be for the purpose of tation was near to be for the purpose of confining the use of the power to the defendants' premises, and not to any existing mill thereon, so that the fact of such mill being afterwards destroyed by fire did not dispense with the defendants' obligation to receive and pay for the power. Uncertainty—Findings of Fact—Appeal.]
The findings of a trial Judge on questions of fact will not be disturbed unless it appears clearly that such findings are erroneous, In an action on a contract to furnish supplies to be used in floating one of the de-fendants' steamships, where the evidence was of a contradictory character, the trial Judge, as to certain amounts claimed, found in favour of the defendants, on the ground that if the plaintiff wished to make a contract under which he would be fully paid, whether the services were or were not performed that should have been clearly expressed in that should have been clearly expressed in his tender and not left in doubt:—Held, that the decision ought not to be disturbed. Barrey v. Allan, S. S. Co., 36 N. S. Reps. 307.

Work and Labour-Substituted Contract-Consideration-Extras. 1 - The plaintiff, who had contracted to supply materials tiff, who had contracted to supply materials for re-seating a church, contended that, under the terms of his contract to furnish, among other things, "pew ends, divisions, seat, lining," book racks," for a lump sum, "seat, lining," should read "seat-lining," and that, under this term, he was only bound to furnish materials of which the seats were to be constructed. The defendant's contention was that the "lining was intended to so over. be constructed. The defendant's contention was that the "lining was intended to go over the old wainscoting:"—Held, that to admit the plaintiff's contention would be to ignore the actual reading, and to give an unusual and improper meaning to the word "lining" so as to materially vary the terms of the contract; and a promise, if any, to pay for such lining as an extra could not be supported, the performance by a contractor of what he is already bound to do not being a consideration to support such a promise; and quære, whether the settlement in this way of a bona fide dispute between the parties, as to the meaning of the terms used, would constitute sufficient consideration for the alleged promise to pay. 37 N. S. Reps. 330. Dempster v. Bauld.

V. ENFORCEMENT.

Adoption of Illegitimate Child-Pro-Adoption of Illegitimate Child—Promise to "make her Heir"—Statute of Frauds—Part Performance.]—The plaintiff was the illegitimate daughter of D. C. K. The plaintiff's mother and D. C. K, lived together for several years, but finally separated. The mother died in 1897. The plaintiff lived with her grandmother until the latter's death. On the "1st April, 1899, the plaintiff wrote to D, C. K, telling him of her mother's death and asking him to write to her. Some time. and asking him to write to her. Some time and asking him to write to her. Some time afterwards he wrote to her addressing her as "Dear daughter," singing himself as "Your auxious father." In a postcript he added, "Now I have agreed to become your real solid father as hard and fast as you can wish." A close correspondence followed, which resulted in the plaintiff going to Winnipeg to live with her father; he met her at the station, took her to his house, and they lived together as father and daughter until he died suddenly on the 6th June, 1903. After his death a will was found dated the 5th December, 1881, by which he bequeathed all his property to another. So far as known, D. C. K. had not, at the time of his death any relative existing. The plaintiff swore that her father told her on various occasions that all his property would be hers when he died; that he would make a will to that effect. Friends were called as witnesses, who stated that D. C. K. told them he would make his will in the plaintiff's favour and make her his heir:—Held, specific performance will be enforced by the Court of an agreement in writing, though not in formal terms, whereby the father of an illegitimate child offered, if she (plaintiff) would come to him and live with him as his daughter, to keep her and leave all his property by will to her, the agre-ment having been acted upon by the parties and fully performed on the part of the plain-tiff, and the omission to make the promised will being attributable to mere negligence and procrastination, no contrary intention on the part of the father appearing; in spite of Lie want of mutuality, the complete performance by the plaintiff sufficed to take the case out of the Statute of Frauds. Kinsey v. National Trust Co., 24 Occ. N. 104, 15 Man. L. R. 32.

Non-compliance with Statutory Duty -Imperative Statute-Penalty.]-Action to recover the price of electric lighting. defendant pleaded non-compliance with the Electric Light Inspection Act, 57 V. c. 39. s. 13, s.-s. 2, which is as follows: "Wherever a reading of a meter is taken by the contractors for the purpose of establishing a charge upon the purchaser, the contractors shall cause a duplicate of such reading to be left with the purchaser." The plaintiffs did not leave duplicate readings with the defendant, and only left a memorandum shewing the amount due and the number of kilos, etc. The trial Judge held the statute to be merely Promise to Transfer Shares-Consideration-Measure of Damages-Interest.]-The plaintiff was superintendent of the blast furnaces of a company of which the defend-ant was the president. The plaintiff's con-tract of employment was for no definite period, and the employment could be terminated upon two months' notice by either party. During the plaintiff's employment the defendant promised him a certain number of the shares of the capital stock of the company if the production of the blast furnaces was increased to a certain number of tons, and he gave the plaintiff a memorandum containing the figures mentioned. The blast furnaces produced the necessary number of tons, and on two occasions the defendant sent the plaintiff certificates for shares "with my compliments." The furnaces continued to produce the requisite number of tons, but the defendant failed to deliver any more shares, and thereupon this action was brought to recover damages for breach of the contract. The shares of the capital stock of the com pany had gone up in value, and then had gone down between the time when the stock sould have been delivered and the date of the trial:—Held, that the stock delivered was not a mere gratuity; that there was a contract for the delivery of the stock, and consideration for the same. It was not a case of assessing the damages at the highest price reached between the date of refusal and the trial, but simply a case in which their market value at the time when the stock should have been delivered should determine the amount of damages. Interest should not be allowed. Means v. Whitney, 24 Occ. N. 93, 237, Restraint of Trade—Sale of Goods—Sipulation that Vendee shall Re-sell at Fixed Price—Validity—Interest of Vendor—Termination of Contract — Injunction.]—An agreement between the manufacturer of an article and the retailer thereof that the latter will sell the article at a fixed price, is not unlawful nor in restraint of trade, nor against the public interest, when the manufacturer has an interest in entering into the agreement by sharing in the profits of sales or otherwise. When no time is specified for the duration of an agreement of this kind, either party may terminate it without the consent of the other. One who seeks an injunction to prevent some one doing something—in this case to prevent freedom of trade in the Wampole p.eparation—must prove, as must every plaintiff, an actual and tangible interest in bringing the action, and, as well, that, unless an interlocutory injunction is granted, he will suffer serious and irreparable injury. Wampole v. Lyons, Q. R. 25 S. C. 390. See S. C., Q. R. 14 K. B. 58.

Statute of Frauds—Oral Promise—Payment of Debt—Consideration—Assignment of Chose in Action—Notice.]—S, in consideration of B.'s giving him a confession of judgment and other security for a debt due by B. to S., gave B. an oral promise to pay two promissory notes of B. in favour of A. B. assigned his right of action against S. to the plaintiff, the executive of A.—Held, that the promise by S. to pay the notes was an original promise, founded on a new consideration, and was not a promise to pay the debt of another within the Statute of Frauds, and need not be in writing. That the assignment was good under the Supreme Court Act, 1897, s. 150 (N.B.), and the plaintiff might bring an action without notice of the assignment before action brought. Allen v. Shehyn, 35 N. which S, agreed to pay a portion of the purchase money on the execution of the agree-ment, and the balance in yearly instalments, with interest subject to the condition that if S, failed to pay any of the instalments, with interest, as agreed, the payments made would be forfeited and the plaintiff would be at liberty to resume possession; and subject to the further condition that S. would not cut more than a specified quantity of lumber in any one year. In an action of replevin brought by the plaintiff against the defendant sheriff, who had levied upon a quantity of lumber on the premises, under executions issued at the suit of creditors of S., the plaintiff tendered evidence to shew that all lumber cut by S. was to be sold, and the proceeds, after deducting certain disbursements, paid to the plaintiff on account of the purchase money, and that the title to the land and lumber was to remain in the plaintiff until the rayments agreed to be made by S. were completed: — Held, that the evidence was not admissible, the effect of it being to vary the written contract:—Held, further, that a bill of sale of the lumber made by S, to the plaintiff, while writs of execution, of which the plaintiff failed to shew that she had not notice, were in the hands of the sheriff, was void, as made contrary to the provisions of the statute. Blaikie v. McLennan, 33 N. S. Reps. 558.

VII. ILLEGALITY.

Hiring Conveyances - Parliamentary Elections — Evidence — Ratification.] — The plaintiff, a livery stable keeper, sued the defendant on an account for horses and rigs furnished by him to the defendant, who was a candidate at an election for a member of the House of Commons of Canada. The evidence shewed that to the knowledge of the plaintiff his account was for horses and rigs furnished by him to the defendant during the time he was a candidate and solely for the purposes of and in connection with the election:—Held, following Luke v. Perry, 12 P. 424, that the contract of hiring was an executory one and that it came therefore within the terms of s. 131 of the Dominion Elections Act, which is incorporated with the North-West Territories Representation Act, by 57 & 58 V. c. 15, s. 10, and that the con-tract was therefore void in law, and the plaintiff could not recover. The plaintiff also sued the defendant on an account for Lorses and rigs furnished by one P., some of them to the defendant, others to the defendant's wife, and some to both of them, which account P. had assigned to the plaintiff. These horses and rigs were not clearly shewn to have been furnished in connection with the election, though the evidence led to a strong suspicion to that effect :-Held, that when the defendant seeks to rely upon provisions of the statute to avoid liability upon an executory contract alleged to have referred to or arisen out of an election, nothing should be intended in favour of such a defence, and it must clearly appear that such contract did refer to an election neld under the Act. Evidence of ratification discussed. Parslow v. Cochrane, 4 Terr. L. R. 312.

Lettery—Recovery Back of Moneys Paid—Statute.]—The respondent, having obtained from the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec, authorized to that effect by a statute of the legislature, the privilege of carrying on a lottery to assist a work recognized by the legislature as being a laudable and useful public work, delegated his powers to the appellant, on the condition that the latter should pay him $5,000 per year. The appellant carried on the lottery for two years, realizing considerable profits, and during this time paid the respondent $10,000. The carrying on of the lottery having been declared filegal, the appellant sued to recover back the $10,000 which he had paid to the respondent. Both parties admitted the unconstitutionality of the statute by virtue of which the lottery had been authorized:—Held, that the payment in question having been made voluntarily and not by mistake by the appellant, who had made considerable profits by virtue of his contract with the respondent, the appellant, who alleged the illegality of the contract, could not, the contract having been executed on both sides in good faith, recover the sums which he had so paid. Brautt v. L'Association 81. Jean Bapitste, Q. R. 12 K. B. 124.

Performance in Unlawful Place -Municipal Regulations — By-laws — Music Halls—Licensing.]—Cafés-chantants — that is to say, establishments in which intoxicating liquors are sold and in which vocal or instrumental music, or both, are furnished with the object of attracting passers-by—being prohibited by the by-laws of the city of Montreal, a contract by which the services of a person have been retained to provide music in such a café-chantant is void, because it has for its object a thing prohibited by law, and, therefore, a musician who has been dismissed cannot maintain an action for wrongful dismissal. 2. By-law No. 236 of the city of Montreal, which imposes a license fee of $50 a year upon museums, halls for concerts, dances, theatrical performances, and other amusements, does not apply to caféschantants, or drinking shops were music is given for the purpose of attracting passersby, in such a way as to withdraw them from the prohibition of by-law No. 36 of the same city. Morel v. Morel, Q. R. 19 S. C. 123.

Scotland, but they had no power to accept orders or make sales, the scope and extent of their agency being limited to receiving orders and transmitting them to the plaintiffs, whose officers alone had power to decide whether they would accept the orders and forward the goods or not. In the course of their business E. & Co, received orders from the defendant for a quantity of whisky, and, the orders sharing been transmitted to the plaintiff, the whisky was delivered to a circle at Halifax and Truro, in the Province of Nova Scotla. In an action brought against the defendant on his acceptances given for the price of the whisky, the defendant and sought to escape liability on the ground of illegallity, pleading that the plaintiffs-carried on business in Halifax without?

-Held, further, that, in the absence of a statutory enactment to the contrary, the law requires actual knowledge on the part of the vendor of the illegal purpose on the part of the vendee, and assuming that the plaintiffs' secretary, who was at one time in the province, acquired some knowledge of the law then in force, this fact did not raise a presumption that he or the plaintiffs knew, at the time the orders were received, or delivery was made, that such law still existed, or that the defendant intended to dispose of the goods illegally, Craigellachie Distillery Co. v. Bigelow, 37 N. S. Reps, 482.

Statutory Prohibition—Penal Statute—Unalesate Purchase—Liquor License—Unarantee—Validity of—Forfeiture.]—An agreement guaranteeing payment of the price of intoxicating liquors sold contrary to statutory prohibition is of no effect. Threshing Wheat - Weights and Meawres Act—Burden of Proof—Voluntary Payment—Appropriation of Payments — Appeal—Question of Fact.]—The chief part of the plaintiff's claim was for the price of threshing oats and wheat for the defendant, and the defence was that the quantities were ascertained in a manner prohibited by the Weights and Measures Act, R. S. C. c. 104, and that therefore the plaintiff could not recover. It appeared from the evidence that the oats threshed had been measured by the bag, but it also appeared from a statement rendered to plaintiff by defendant that he had credited the plaintiff with the amount of his account for threshing the oats, and charged the plaintiff with certain items dated prior to any other credit to the plaintiff and amounting to about the same as the price of threshing the oats:—Held, following the rule in Clayton's Case, 1 Mer. 610, that the defendant had appropriated the amount of his charges in settlement of the price of threshing the oats, and, following Hughes v. Chambers, 14 Man. L. R. 163, 22 Occ. N. 333, that he could not now set off such amount against the price of threshing wheat. As to the threshing of the wheat, the bargain was that the defendant was to pay by car measurements, if it was clean, if not, then by bag measurement, neither of which modes would be legal under the statute; but the defendant in the statement rendered to the plaintiff had credited him with the threshing of 4,597.20 bushels of wheat at 51/4 cents per bushel. The defendant gave no evidence, and there was no express testimony that the wheat had been D-11 measured by the bag, but the trial Judge held that the proper inference was that the measurement had been by the bag, and he dismissed the plaintiff's claim:—Held, following Hanbury v. Chambers, 10 Man. L. R. 167, 14 Occ. N. 321, that the trial Judge was not bound to draw such inference in a case where it would enable the defendant to evade payment of an honest claim; that, as there was no conflict of testimony, the appellate Judge was free to follow his own views as to the conclusions to be drawn from the evidence; that the defence raised should not prevail without strict proof of a violation of the Act; and that there was no such proof in this case. Fox v. Allen, 23 Occ. N. 28, 14 Man, L. R. 358.

Unduly Lessening Competition-Trade Association—Criminal Code, sec. 520 (d)— "Cheque Conditional Deposit."]—The Brantford Coal Importers' Association was an organization composed of all the coal dealers organization composed of all the coal dedicts in the town of Brantford. They had agreed to sell coal at a fixed price, and for breach of such agreement were to forfeit $1 for each and every ton of coal so sold. Among other contracts put up at auction among the members of the association was one for the public schools of the city, and the defendant was schools of the city, and the detendant was declared the purchaser thereof at $212, and on the 19th June, 1901, he forwarded his cheque to plaintiff for that amount, it being marked "cheque conditional deposit;" the condition being referred to in the letter accompanying the cheque as follows: "That the contract for the city schools is to be awarded to me, and the same commenced and binding tenders received on the 20th day of the current month. Defendant was awarded the contract and was paid the contract price the contract and was paid the contract price fixed by the association, but owing to a disagreement arising the defendant notified the bank not to pay the cheque. Action brought upon the cheque. Defence: 1. That the cheque was given conditionally. 2. That the Brantford Coal Importers' Association was an organization coming within sec, 520 of the Criminal Code, and that the transactions out of which the alleged cause of action aroses were illegal and beintiff of action arose were illegal, and plaintiff could not recover. On appeal the trial judg-ment was reversed and defence held good, the Divisional Court finding that there was an agreement by the members of the association 'unduly lessen competition in the sale of coal," and that the association was an illegal one within sec. 520 of the Criminal Code, therefore plaintiff could not recover. Hately v. Elliott, 5 O. W. R. 261, 9 O. L. R. 185.

Unlawful Consideration—Public Policy—Monopoly—Trade Combination—Interest—Judicial Notice—Lause of Another Province.]—Action to recover advances with interest under an agreement which defeated the policy of the Government of Ontario seeking the cheap manufacture of binder twine, obtained a monopoly, and increased the price of its production. The defence was the general issue, breach of contract, and an incidental demand of damages for the breach. The judgment appealed from maintained the action and dismissed the incidental demand, giving the plaintiffs interest according to the terms of the contract:—Held, that, under the provisions of the Civil Code, the moneys so advanced could be recovered back, but that interest before action could not be allowed thereon, as the law merely requires that the parties should be replaced in the positions they respectively occupied before the illegal transactions took piace: Taschereau and Gwynne, J.J., dissenting. Rolland v. La Caisse d'Economie de Notre-Dame de Quebec, 24 S. C. R. 405, discussed, and L'Association St. Jean Baptiste de Montreal v. Brault, 30 S. C. R. 589, referred to:—Held, also, that laws of public order must be judicially noticed by the Court ex proprio motú:—Held, further, that, in the absence of any proof to the contrary, the laws of another province must be presumed to be similar. Consumers' Cordage Co. v. Connolly, 21 Occ. N. 331, 31 S. C. R. 244.

VIII, MAKING THE CONTRACT.

Acceptance-Purchase of Goods-Acceptance by Delivery.]-The plaintiff, who had had previous dealings with the defendants, wrote to them on the 5th May, asking them if they were going to buy cucumbers that year, and what they were going to pay for them; adding, "please let me know, as 1 want to make a contract with someone for them, as I want to put in quite a few this year." The defendants replied: "We are pleased to learn that you are going to do a lot of growing this year, and will be pleased to take all you grow at the same price as last year. We will see you later on and make final arrangements." Nothing further occurred until the following August, when the plaintiff sent several loads of cucumbers to the defendants, who accepted them and paid for them, nothing being said at the ime of any contract between the parties :that the defendants' letter was not an offer open to acceptance by the plaintiff, or by the delivery of cucumbers to them by the plaintiff, but a statement of their readiness to enter into an agreement with the plaintist upon terms to be arranged. Carlill v. Carbello Smoke Ball Co., [1893] 1 Q. B. 256, distinguished. Baston v. Toronto Fruit Vinegar Co., 22 Occ. N. 232, 4 O. L. R. 20, 1 O. W. R. 301.

Agent—listification.]—A contract made by an agent is complete before he has advised his principal of it, and before the latter has sent a ratificatio, to the other party to the contract. Hibbara v. Thompson Co., 5 Q. P. R. 372.

Cause of Action, where Arising — Crorspondence—Place of Making—Sale of Goods—Place of Delivery—Superior Court—District.]—A contract by correspondence is completed at the place where the acceptance is received, to the knowledge of the acceptor. 2. An action for damages on account of the insufficiency and poor quality of goods sold may be begun in the district in which such goods ought to be delivered, inspected, and paid for. Recees v. McCullock, 4 Q. P. R. 285.

Correspondence — Acceptance—Mailing —Post Office Act—Place of Payment—Domicil—Delicery of Goods Sold.]—An offer was made by letter dated and mailed at Quebec, the defendant's acceptance being by letter dated and mailed at Toronto. In a suit upon the contract in the Superior Court at Quebec, the defendant, who was served, substitution-ally, opposed a judgment entered against him by default by petition in revocation of judgment, first by preliminary objection taking exception to the jurisdiction of the Court over the cause of action, and then, consti-tuting himself incidental plaintiff, making a cross-demand for damages to be set off against the plaintiff's claim :-Held, that, in the Province of Quebec, as in the rest of Canada, in negotiations carried on by correspondence it is not necessary for the completion of the contract that the letter accepting an offer should have actually reached the party making it, but the mailing in general post office of such letter completes the contract, subject, however, to revocation of the offer by the party making it before receipt by him of such party making it before receipt by min of such letter of acceptance. Underwood v. Maguire, Q. R. 6 Q. B. 237, overruled. Article 85 of the Civil Code, as amended by 52 V. c. 48, providing that the indication of a place of payment in any note or writing should be equivalent to election of domicil, at the place so indicated, requires that such place should be actually designated in the contract. Magann v. Auger, 21 Occ. N. 329, 31 S. C.

Correspondence — Parties in Different Provinces — Jurisdiction.]—Where the contract upon which the action was based arose out of a proposition made by the defendants at Kingston and sent to the plaintiffs at Montreal by letter, and accepted by the latter, also by letter:—Held, that it was made at Kingston and the Courts of the district of Montreal had no jurisdiction, Beaubien Produce and Milling Co. v. Richardson, 3 Q. P. R. 464.

Correspondence — Place of Contract— Parties in Different Provinces—Breach—Sale of Goods-Property in Province- Jurisdiction.]-1. A contract by correspondence is not complete until the answer of the person to whom the offer is made has reached him who makes the offer. 2. Offer and Acceptance — Telegrams — Completion—Mutualty,1—On the 7th December, 1897, the plaintiff telegraphed defendant asking for quotations for white and mixed oats delivered at Truro, N. S. On the same day the defendant replied offering white oats for 3c2, per bushel, in bulk, and 34½c, in bags, and mixed oats for one-half cent less. On the following day the plaintiff telegraphed the defendant confirming purchase of "29,000 bushels of onts, at 32c, and mixed 31½c, bagged, even four bushels, in my bags." On the same day the defendant replied "Cannot confirm baged—am asked half cent for bagging.—bags extra." Plaintiff replied on the same day, "All right; book order; will have to pay for bagging."—Ileld, (Mengher, J., dubitante) that the defendant by his last telegram, which was thus accepted, kept on foot the offer previously made, and that the telegram constituted an offer by the acceptance of which the parties reached the same terms. Summer v. Cofe, 32 N. S. Reps. 179; reversed 30 S. C. R. 379, 20 Occ. N. 324.

Offer in Writing — Acceptance — Concluded: Agreement — Proviso as to Formal Contract.]—The defendants by advertisement Controct. — The derinding by discrimental invited tenders for lighting the city buildings for five years. The plaintiffs tendered to supply the necessary light for $945 per anam. The city council by resolution accepted the plaintiffs' tender, and the city clerk on the plaintiffs notify. the 18th May wrote to the plaintiffs notifying them thereof, and adding:—"The necessary contract will be prepared as soon as possible." No formal contract was ever signed by the parties. The plaintiffs supplied the defendants with gas, and sent in quarterly accounts for $236.25, which were paid by the defendants. The plaintiffs' presided by the defendants. dent made inquiries about the formal con-tract from time to time from the city clerk and the chairman of the finance committee, and this state of things continued for nearly two years, when the plaintiffs wrote to the defendants, submitting that there was no existing contract, because the formal contract had never been executed, and also making certain complaints. They also claimed payment on the basis of a quantum meruit, contending that there was no binding contract: -Held, that by the offer of the plaintiffs and the acceptance of the defendants there was a concluded agreement; that the words at the end of the acceptance did not qualify the acceptance or leave it conditional on the execution of a contract. The conduct of the plaintiffs shewed that they did not so con-strue it, for they immediately after the acceptance entered upon and performed their part of the agreement without first requiring any formal contract, sent in their accounts for eighteen months on the basis of the contract being in existence, and were paid accordingly. Ottawa Gas Co. v. City of Ottawa. 21 Occ. N. 528.

Place of Making — Cause of Action — Jurisdiction.]—An action to recover a sum of money paid to his principal by an agent for the sale of goods on commission, in excess of what is due, cannot be brought at the place in this province where the money so paid was deposited to be transmitted by the bank, if the contract between the parties was not entered into at the same place, but in another province. Hamel v. Stapleton, 5 Q. P. R. 247.

Place of Making — Correspondence — Superior Court—Territorial Jurisdiction.]— A contract by correspondence is made at the place where the acceptance is sent, by letter or telegram, to the party making the offer. Schmidt v. Crowe, 5 Q. P. R. 361.

Place of Making—Purchase of Goods—Superior Court—Territorial Jurisdiction.]—A contract made by telephone for the purchase of goods to be forwarded by the vendor, at the expense and risk of the purchaser, is not regarded as having been made at the place from which the goods are sent. 2. The receipt by the vendor of letters confirming the purchases made by telephone is not sufficient to give jurisdiction to the Court of the district in which these letters are received and from which the goods bought have been sent. Walker v. Gervais, 5 Q. P. R. 330.

Place of Making—Sale of Goods—Circuit Court — Territorial Jurisdiction.] — Where an order is given to a travelling sulesman to have sent by a carrier goods which are at the warehouse of the vendor and are afterwards delivered to the traveller to be forwarded to the purchaser, the contract is made at the place from which the goods are forwarded, and the Court of the district in which that place is situated has jurisdiction in an action for the price of goods so sold and delivered, Gravel v. Gendreau, 5 Q. P. Rt. 360.

Purchase of Goods—Correspondence—Acceptance — New Terms.] — On the 2nd October, O. handed the company's purchasing agent the following letter:—"I can offer you thirty cars of timothy hay, at $10.50 per ton, on cars at Chewelah, subject to acceptance in five days, delivery within isx months. P.S.—I also agree to furnish seven cars of timothy hay at $10 per ton if above offer for 30 cars is accepted." On the 5th October the company mailed to O. an answer as follows:—"We would now inform you that we will accept your offer on timothy hay as per your letter to us of the second instant. Please ship as soon as possible the orders you already have in hand, and also get off the seven cars at $10 as early as possible, as our stock is very low. Try and ship us three or four cars so as to catch the next freight here from Northport. We will advise you further as to the shipment of the 30 cars. Should we not be able to take it all in before your roads break up, we presume you will have no objection to allowing balance to remain over until the farmers can haul it in. Do the best you can to get some empty cars at once, as we must have three or four cars by next freight." This letter was received by O. on the 8th October:—Held, per McColl, C.J., and Martin, J., that the company's reply was not a complete acceptance. Per Walkem and Irving, JJ., that it was a complete acceptance. Oppenheimer v. Brackman and Ker Milling Co., 9 B. C. R. 343.

Want of Consensus - Misrepresentation.]—The defendant, negotiating with the plaintiffs' agent for the purchase of a stacker, was asked to sign an order for one. The agent filled up a form of order, and the defendant said to him: "Now, if there is anything in this order that binds me to keep the stacker if it does not give satisfaction, I won't sign it." To which the agent replied that there was not, that he could take the stacker out and keep it ten days, and if it did not give satisfaction he need not settle for it, but could bring it in and leave it on the agent's platform at B. The defendant then signed the order without reading it, as he was in a hurry to catch a train. terms of the order only one day's trial of the machine was allowed, and the buyer, if it did not give satisfaction, was to return it to the plaintiffs at C. There was a printed direction at the top of the order to give the purchaser a duplicate, but none was given to him. On receipt of the machine the defendant tried it, and, not finding it to work satisfactorily, returned it within ten days to the agent at B. At the trial the agent admitted that, at the time the order was signed, he thought it provided for a ten days' trial:— Held, that there was no such consensus ad idem between the parties as is necessary to create a binding contract, and that the ver-dict of the County Court Judge in favour of the defendant in an action by the plaintiffs for the price of the machine should be susfor the price of the machine should be sustained, and the plaintiffs appeal dismissed with costs. IX. NOVATION.

Account of Debt—Receipt—Liability of Debtor.]—Intention to effect novation is not apparent from the fact that the note of a third party was accepted on account of the debt, where a receipt was given as follows: "Received from J. V. (the debtor) the note of M. S. & Sons for $100 at 30 days, on account of pony and buzz planer." In the event of the note not being paid at maturity the creditor retains his recourse against the debtor for the debt. Covan v. Vezina, Q. R. 26 S. C. 7.

Substitution of Third Party—Relief Over.]—A party, who is bound under a condition which has not been fulfilled, and whose obligations have been assumed by a third party accepted by the plaintiff, cannot, if he is sued for non-execution of the contract which he has thus transferred, bring in en garantie the third person who has been substituted for him. Veilleux v. Atlantic and Lake Superior R. W. Co., 5 Q. P. R. 290.

XI. RESCISSION.

Cancellation in Part — Construction —Municipal Works—Deductions — Deferred Payments — Interest—Payments in Advance -Rebates-Damages.]-Article 1691, C. C., does not give the owner of works being constructed under a contract at a fixed price the power of cancelling the contract in part and maintaining it as to another part; it must be cancelled in toto or not at all. A municipality agreed to pay for works by promissory notes, payable in two years without interest, to be delivered to the contractor on the completion of the works, and to bear a date assumed to be the mesne date of completion of the works as carried on in detail. The mesne date was settled as 15th December, 1899, and the notes for the balance due were delivered in 1900:-Held, that interest on advance payments made before 15th December, 1899, was payable only from that date: but the interest should be calculated on the basis of the actual amounts of the advance payments made, and not on the basis of the actual cost of the works. Certain of the tain of the works were not executed by orders from the municipality, and on this head reduction was made from the plaintiffs' claim. It appeared that the plaintiffs had, at least tacitly, consented to this diminution, and made no protest in respect thereof:that, under the circumstances, the plaintiffs could not claim the sum in question as damages under Arts. 1065, 1691, C.C. Town of Maisonneuve v. Banque Pro-vinciale du Canada, 33 S. C. R. 418.

Conduct—Injunction — Parol Agreement—Statute of Frauds — Part Performance—Services—Quantum Meruit—New Trial.]—Previous to 1880 meruit—New Trial.]—Previous to be employed in the care and management of the defendant's business, and in return the defendant was to afford the plaintiff support and maintenance during the defendant's Business, and the support of the defendant. The plaintiff entered upon his duties and continued to perform his side of the agreement until August, 1897, when, by an injunction order, issuing out of the Equity Court, made in a suit in which both the plaintiff and the defendant were parties, he was restrained from any longer interfering with the care or management of the defendant's business, and was compelled to quit the island. He accordingly handed over to one B., who was acting under a power of afterney from the defendant, all the property of the defendant in his possession, and, treating the conduct of the defendant as equivalent to a rescission of the agreement, in the same month of August brought an action against

The jury found that the defendant had annulled and put an end to the agreement on the 3rd August, 1897. the day the injunction order was issued, and the day the injunction order was issued, and a verdict was found for the plaintiff. In December, 1897, some months after the com-mencement of the action, the defendant made a deed of the island in question to B. upon certain trusts, the nature of which did not appear in evidence:—Held, that, although neither the obtaining of the injunction order nor the making of the deed to B. was sufficient to sustain the finding of the jury as to the annulment of the agreement, and the plaintiff ought, therefore, in strictness, to be nonsuited, yet, as there was a point of view of the facts which had not been presented to the jury, and under which the plaintiff might be entitled to recover on a quantum meruit, the case should be further investigated, and there should therefore be a new trial; Tuck, C.J., and McLeod, J., dissenting. Frye v. Frye, 34 N. B. Reps. 569.

Deceit and Fraud-Evidence-Concurrent Findings of Lower Courts—Duty of Second Court of Appeal.]—A sale of timber limits to the plaintiff was effected through a broker for a price stated in the deed to be $112.500, but the vendor signed an acknowledgment that the true price, so far as he was concerned, was $75,000. At the time of the execution of the deed a statement was made shewing how the purchase money was to be paid, and the vendor signed an agreement that out of the balance of the $112,500, viz., $46,502.02, the plaintiff was to get $37,-500, i.e., the amount of the difference be-tween the true price and that mentioned in the deed. The vendor refused to pay over this $37,500, on the ground that the plaintiff and the broker had conspired together to deceive him as to the actual price to be obtained for the limits, and that the sale was not in fact to the plaintiff for $75,000, but to the plaintiff's principals, the grantees in the deed, for the full consideration of $112,-500, and that the plaintiff and the broker were acting fraudulently and seeking by deceit and artifice to deprive him of the full price at which the sale had been effected. In an action to recover the $37,500 from the vendor:—Held, affirming the judgment ap-pealed from, that the acknowledgments signed by the vendor settled the rights of the parties, unless there was very strong evidence to the contrary, and, as there was no such evidence, and the circumstances, as found by the Courts below, tended to shew that the plaintiff was entitled to the money in dispute as the natural result of the transactions between the parties, the case was one in which a second Court of appeal would not be justified in disturbing the concurrent find-legs at the trial and of the Court appealed from Veilleux v. Ordkovy, Price v. Ordway, 24 Occ. N. 109, 34 S. C. R. 145.

Duration—Right to Cancel — Repugnant Clauses.]—A contract for supplying light to a hotel contained the following provisions: "This contract is to continue in force for not less than 36 consecutive calendar months from date of first burning, and thereafter until cancelled (in writing) by one of the parties hereto. . . . Special conditions if parties the expiration of the said 36 months for the expiration of the said 36 months for the term that the party of the second part renews his lease for the Russell House." After the expiration of the 36 months the lease was renewed for five years longer:—Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, I O, L. R. 73, 21 Occ. N. 105, that neither of the parties to the contract had a right to cancel it against the will of the other during the renewed term. Ottawas Electric Co. v. 8t. Jacques, 22 Occ. N. 77, 31 S. C. R. 636.

Improvidence — Absence of independent advice. Rogers v. Rogers, 2 O. W. R. 673, 3 O. W. R. 587.

Misrepresentations - Sale of Mining Areas-Evidence-Speculative Property.] in an action to set aside a sale of gold bearing areas purchased by the plaintiffs from the defendant, who was joint owner with H., the plaintiffs relied upon evidence shewing that they were induced to make the contract by certain representations as to value contained in a report prepared by H. and handed by the defendant to L., who was acting for the plaintiffs, as a means of inducing the sale. Evidence was given on behalf of the defendant to shew that at the time the report was handed to L., he was given to understand that the defendant could not say anything as to its correctness, and that L. must verify it for himself. The trial Judge decided the action in favour of the defendant, and on appeal the Court in banc was divided, both as to the effect of the evidence and as to the admissibility of evidence taken (under an order) after the judgment of the trial Judge. Leckie v. Stuart, 34 N. S. Reps. 140.

Non-fulfilment of Obligations—Parties Both in Default.]—In order that the rescission of a contract may, by virtue of art. 1065 of the Civil Code, be adjudged against a party who has not fulfilled the obligations of it, it is necessary that such rescission should put the parties as they were before the contract, and it will not be adjudged if its effect will be to enrich one party at the expense of the other. 2. If one party has failed to fulfil his obligations as much as the other, the cannot demand against the other the rescission of the contract. Dupuis v. Dupuis Q. R. 19 S. C. 500.

Threats—Apprehension.]—In order that a father may have the right to rescind a contract which he has made, on the ground of threats to his daughter, it is necessary that these threats shall have produced an apprehension in him which is the sole reason of his consenting to execute the contract. The apprehension of his daughter, if he himself did not share it, has no effect upon the contract. Groux v, Vinet Q, R, 24 S. C. I.

XII. SALE OF GOODS.

Delivery—Place—"At," Meaning of,] — A Goderich, pursuant to advertisement therefor, contained an offer to deliver it "into the coal shed at pumping station, or grounds adjacent thereto, where directed by you. (Meaning by a committee of the council.) The tender was accepted, and the contract afterwards signed called for delivery "at the coal shed." A portion of the coal was delivered, without directions from the committee, from a vessel upon the dock, about 80 feet from the shed, and separated from it by a road:—Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal (15th November, 1901, unreported), that the coal was not delivered "at the coal shed," as provided by the contract signed by the parties, which was the binding document:—Held, also, that if the contract was to be decided by the terms of the tender, the delivery was not in accordance therewith, the place of delivery not being "at the pumping station or grounds adjacent thereto." (See, also, 20 Occ. N. 303.) Holmes v. Town of Goderich, 22 Occ, N. 222, 32 S. C. R. 211.

Lowest Wholesale Price-Special Discount.]—By contract in writing whereby the defendants agreed, for 3 years from the date thereof, to purchase for their business surgical instruments manufactured by the plaintiffs only, the latter contracted to supply their products at "lowest wholesale prices and for all goods furnished from New York to allow a special discount of 5 per cent. from the prices marked in a catalogue handed over with the contract:—Held, that under this agreement the plaintiffs could allow to purchasers of their goods in large quantities a greater discount from the wholesale prices than 5 per cent, without being obliged to give the same reduction to the defendants. give the same reduction to the detendants. Sale of Monument — Sample — Evidence, —In an action for the price of a tombstone, the defence was that it was not of the design ordered. It had been ordered from photographic samples, and an order form was filed in, which, when produced at the trial. contained the words "E. M. Lewis Reporter Design," which the defendant asserted were not in it when it was signed by him, but which were there two or three hours later when handed to one of the vendors by their foreman who had taken the order and filled in the form. The evidence at the trial was conflicting, and the Chancellor, trying the case without a jury, dismissed the action. His judgment was reversed by the Court of Appeal (1, 0, W. R.

662):—Held, per Taschereau, C.J., that the evidence established that the words in dispute were in the order when it was signed, and the plaintiffs were entitled to recover:—Held, per Sedgewick and Davies, J.J., Mills, J., hassitante, that, even if these words were not originally in the order, the circumstances disclosed in evidence shewed that the design supplied was substantially that ordered; and the judgment appealed from should stand. XIII. STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Absence of Writing — Novation.]—M., who had agreed with the defendants and a number of other lumber manufacturers to drive down their logs for them, the defendants' contract being an oral one, arranged with the plaintiff to act for him; the obliga-tion to drive the defendants' logs to continue to a named date, for which the plaintiff was to be paid a specified sum, and if M. did not then arrive and take over the drive, the plaintiff was to continue it and to be paid a specified sum per day for himself and those employed by him. M. did not arrive, and the drive was continued by the plaintiff. Subsequently, M. having some difficulty in paying his men, an oral agreement was entered into between M. and the defendants, whereby in consideration of M. assigning over to them the amounts due him by the defendants and other manufacturers, the defendants undertook to continue the drive and to pay the existing as well as the indebtedness thereafter to be incurred, the plaintiff being instructed and agreeing to continue the drive on these terms :- Held, by Robertson, J., that there was a new contract founded on new and substantial consideration, so that the Statute of Frauds did not apply. Failure to State Terms-Nudum Pactum-Conditions-Impossibility of Performance. |-The plaintiff, having recovered judgment for $542.50 against O'B., issued a garnishee order against the defendant, and an issue having been ordered the trial Judge held that the agreements between O'B, and the defendant, by virtue whereof the alleged indebtedness arose, did not comply with the Statute of Frauds, inasmuch as the parties had omitted to state therein the terms actually agreed upon, and decided the issue in favour of the defendant :- Held, on appeal, that the promise made by the defendant and now sought to be enforced against him was nudum pactum. 2. That O'B, and the defendant in reality came to an agreement in ignorance of the fact that its performance, in view of the conditions it was contingent upon, was impossible. Manley v. Mackintosh, 10 B. C.

Interest in Land-Part Performance-Reidence. — M. leased land to his two sons S. and W., of which 50 acres was to be in the sole tenancy of W. In an action by M. against S, for waste by cutting wood on the 50 acres, the defence set up was that by parol agreement, in consideration of S. conveying 100 acres of his land to W., he was to have a deed of the 50 acres, and having so conveyed to W., he had an equitable title in the latter. M. admitted the agreement. but denied that the land to be conveyed to 8. was the 50 acres: -Held, per Nesbitt and Idington, JJ., that the conveyance to W. was a part performance of the parol agree-ment, and the Statute of Frauds was no answer to the defence. The majority of the Court held that, as the possession of the 50 acres was referable to the lease as well as to the parol agreement, part performance was not proved, and affirmed the judgment appealed from in favour of the plaintiff (37 N. S. Reps. 23) on this and other grounds. Meisner v. Meisner, 25 Occ. N. 101, 36 S. C.

Master and Servant--Employment for an Indefinite Term—Damages.]—A sub-contract to employ a person as a salesman so long as the employer's contract with third persons might remain in force, that contract being terminable at any time, is not within the Statute of Frauds, for the sub-contract may or may not continue for a year. Such a sub-contract does not come within s. 5 of the Master and Servants Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 157. The employers' contract came to an end by the voluntary dissolution of their firm:—Held, that this voluntary dissolution operated as a wrongful dismissal of the plaintiff under his sub-contract, and that, although the probable duration of the contract and consequently of his sub-contract would have been, apart from the dissolution of partnership, quite uncertain, he was entitled to substantial and not merely nominal damages. Glenn v. Rudd. 22 Occ. N. 113, 3 O. L. R. 422, 1 O. W. R. 116.

Memorandum — Signature—Conflicting Evidence.]—Action for damages for breach of a contract for the delivery of flour. The writings relied on were; (!) paper signed by plaintiffs and addressed to defendants, to enter order for 2,000 barrels of flour and to have option for 3,000 barrels more with delivery as required. (2) The entry made in the contract book of the defendants in these words; "1904. Dec. 30. By 2,000 P. Rose $4.10—cash discount of one per cent." This appeared as one of a series of orders under heading on the page of Nasmith Co., and formed an item of an account which began in the book in 1890. On the fly sheet of the book was stamped the name of defendants with words in red ink above it, "New account, 1st June, 1902:"—Held, that the contract sued on by the plaintiffs was not proved against defendants according to the requirements of the Statute of Frauds. Nasmith Co. v. Alexander Bronen Milling and Elevator Co., 4 O. W. R. 451, 25 Occ. N. 38, 9 O. L. R. 21.

Oral Agreement for Use of Roadway —Part Performance—Evidence — Unsigned Draft of Agreement.] — Where the defendants' predecessors in title induced and allowed the plaintiff's predecessors in title to remove their house and fence and give up their land for the purpose of improving the entrance to the street in the way they wished, there was sufficient part performance to take an oral agreement for the use of a roadway. though relating to an interest in land, out of the Statute of Frauds; and unsigned drafts of such agreement containing alterations providing for the part maintenance of the way by the plaintiff's predecessors in title, which obligation is entirely disclaimed by the plaintiff, are not admissible in evidence where they were not shewn to the parties to the agreement when giving evidence, and no explana-tion as to them was sought from the parties. Fairweather v. Lloyd, 36 N. B. Reps. 548.

Promise to Become Answerable for Debt of Another — Form of Action—Pleading.]—In an action against the defendents M, and G, for work done and materia's provided by the plaintiff for the defendants, at the defendants' request, the evidence shewed that the defendant G, entered into a contract with the defendant M, for the building of a house, and that the defendant M, employed the plaintiff to do the work of painting and glazing. M, failed to make payments to the plaintiff as agreed, and the plaintiff thereupon went to G, who told him to go ahead and he would see him paid:—Held, that, as there was no evidence to shew that t'.e defendant M, was to be discharged, the promise made by the defendant G, was within s, 4 of the Statute of Frauds, and, not having been made in writing, could not be enforced:—Held, that, in view of the form of action, there was no necessity for pleading the statute, and that judgment was rightly given in favour of the defendant G. Oral Contract-Sale of Interest in Tim-Oral Contract—Sale of Interess in 1 mber Limit—Part Performance — Statute of Frauds — Amendment — Partnership.]—
The plaintiff, who had an interest in a contract for driving logs, brought an action against the defendant, who had an interest in a timber limit, alleging that by an oral agreement the defendant had agreed to give him (the plaintiff) half his interest in the timber limit in consideration of an interest in the log driving contract. It was shewn that the defendant had received an equal share with the plaintiff ($2,330.27) of the profits of the driving contract. The defendant alleged that this was a return for his services in driving the logs, and denied any agreement to pay the plaintiff any share of the profits from the timber limit:—Held, that a contract for an interest in a timber limit is a contract for an interest in land within the Statute of Frauds. That the That the division of the profits of the driving contract was not a sufficient part performance to take was need a sunctiful party performance to take the case out of the statute, as it, at the most, could only be regarded as payment of the purchase money. That there was no evi-dence that the timber limit was held as partnership property, and, even if it was so, that it did not follow that a transfer by one partner of his interest would not be within the statute. Had the evidence of the alleged agree-ment been clear and satisfactory, leave to amend and recover the consideration paid on the footing of the contract might have been given. But, as the verdict of the jury was so manifestly against the evidence, the action was dismissed, and leave given to the plaintiff, if so advised, to bring a new action to can, it so duvised, to ring a new action to establish the oral agreement and recover the purchase money. Sale of Timber-Terms of Payment.]-The appellant held rights in unpatented lands and agreed to sell the timber thereon to respondent, one of the conditions as to payment therefor being that, as soon as the Crown grant issued, the respondent should "settle" a judgment against the appellant, which, they both understood, could at that time be purchased for $500. On the issue of the grant, about six months afterwards, the judgment creditor refused to accept $500 as full settlement at the latter date, and he took proceedings to enforce execution for the full amount. The execution was opposed on behalf of the appellant, the respondent becoming surety for the costs and being also made a party to the proceedings:—Held, affirming the judg-ment in 10 B. C. R. 84, that the agreement to settle the outstanding judgment was not made unconditionally by the respondent, but was limited to settling it for $500, after the was inneed to setting it for $5000, after the issue of the Crown grant for the land:
Held, also, Davies, J., dissenting, that the costs incurred in unsuccessfully opposing the execution of the judgment, upon being paid by the responden; were properly chargable against the appellant. *OBrien V. Mackintosh, 24 Occ. N. 115, 34 S. C. R. 160.

Towing—Delivery of Logs—Lost Logs— Payment for.] — Under a contract to tow logs, the owner of the tug is entitled to be paid only for the logs delivered; and where the special term that he is to be paid for logs "lost or not lost" is relied on, it must be proved specifically. Appliances for Work-Use of by Contractor—Tacit Permission—Injury by defects in—Action against Contractor—Relief Over against Owner-Evidence.] - A contractor who undertakes a work at a fixed price, by contract containing no stipulation as to the construction of scaffolds necessary for such work, although such scaffolds have been previously erected by the owner for use in other works being executed at the same time, is considered to have contracted with the tacit understanding that he may use the scaffolds, especially if he makes use of them with the knowledge and approval of the owner.—Therefore, if, in consequence of defects in the construction of such scaffolds. an accident happens, the contractor, being sued on account of injuries sustained thereby, has a right to call upon the owner of the scaffolds for relief over.—2. The costs of the scaffolds as compared with the contract price, as well as the uselessness of having new scaffolds, are properly the subject of evidence in such an action. Tardivel v. CONTRACT.

Smelting—Sampling Ores — Mine Owner's Representative—Authority—Ores Improperly Sampled — Method of Estimating Values.]-A contract between mine owners and smelter owners provided inter alia that the ores supplied by the former to the lat-ter should be sampled within one week after shipment. The evidence shewed that "automatic" or machine sampling had displaced the old method of "grab" or "shovel" sampling and had been in vogue for about twenty years:—Held, per Hunter, C.J., and Walkem, J., that the contract was entered into on the footing that the sampling was to be done automatically. Per Drake and Irving, JJ.—The contract permitted any mode of sampling, so long as it was done properly. and the true value of the ore was arrived at. A mine owner's representative at a smelter for the purpose of watching the weighing and sampling of ores, so that the mine owner may be satisfied as to the cor-rectness of the weight and sampling, has no authority to consent to a method of sampling not allowed by the contract. the smelter returns of ore of average character sampled either negligently or in a manner not contemplated by contract, shew a value below the average, the probable value of the ore will be estimated by the Court by taking the average value of a certain number of lots immediately before and after the lots in dispute. Warranty - Heating of Building-Conwarranty Heating of Building-Con-struction—Judge's Charge-Condition Prece-dent—Allowance for Defects—Admissions— Mistake—Substantial Performance—Waiver -Quantum Meruit.]-Action to recover the contract price of putting a hot water heating apparatus into a building for the defendant. The contract provided "as the essence" that "the heating of the entire building shair, easily and without forcing the boilers, maintain throughout the building a temperature of not less than 65 degrees Fahrenheit in the most severe cold." The trial Judge charged the jury (inter alia) that the contractors were bound to supply system which would easily maintain 65 degrees without forcing the boilers; that they were bound to put in a radiating surface to the percentage named in the contract in any event, and if a greater surface was necessary, in order to produce the 65 degrees, they were bound to furnish it; that the maintenance of the 65 degrees was necessary to entitle the plaintiffs to recover; that if the jury found that the system was not the jury found that the system was not capable of maintaining the required temperature, they must find for the defendant, and must not take into consideration the question of the amount which would be required to alter the system to render it capable of giving the required temperature; that the defendant was not bound by an adnission in a letter as to the amount due by him, so long as the plaintiffs had not altered their position by reason of the admission, and the defendant was not precluded from shewing that the admission was a mis-take. The jury found a verdict for the defendant:—Held, that there had been no misdirection. The questions of the "substantial performance" of a contract and of the waiver of a special contract and the substitution of a new contract to pay according to a quantum meruit, discussed. Toronto Radiator Mig. Co, v. Alexander, 2 Terr. L. R. 120.

Water Power-Construction of Dam-Agreement to Pay for Damages by Flooding
—Indemnity—Protective Works.]—Owing to the condition of the locality and the character of certain improvements made for the purpose of increasing the water power at Chambly rapids, in the Richelieu river, the parties entered into an agreement respecting the construction of dams and other works at the locus in quo, and it was provided that the company should assume the responsibility and pay for all damages caused by "flooding of land, bridges, or roads, if any, as well as all other damages caused" to the plaintiff "during or by reason of" to the plaintill during or by reason of the constructions: — Held, reversing the judgment appealed from, that, under the agreement, the plaintiff could recover only such damages as he might suffer from time to time in consequence of the floods at certain seasons being aggravated by the constructions in the stream, and that, in the special circumstances of the case, the Courts below erred in decreeing the construction of below erred in decreasing the protective works, inasmuch as the company were entitled to take the risks on payment of indemnity as provided by the contract. Chambly Manufacturing Co. v. Occ. N. 204, 34 S. C. R. 502. v. Willet. 24

Work and Labour-Substituted Contract-Consideration - Extras.]-The plaintiff, who had contracted to supply materials for re-seating a church, contended that, under the terms of his contract to furnish, among other things, "pew ends, divisions, seat, lin-ing, book racks," for a lump sum, "seat, lining," should read "seat-lining," and that, under this term, he was only bound to furnish the materials of which the seats were to be constructed. The defendant's contention was that the "lining was intended to go over the old wainscoting:"-Held, that to admit the plaintiff's contention would be to ignore the actual reading, and to give an anusual and improper meaning to the word "lining" so as to materially vary the terms of the contract, and a promise, if any, to pay for such lining as an extra could not be supported, the performance by a contrac-tor of what he is already bound to do not being a consideration to support such a promise; and quære, whether the settlement in this way of a bona fide dispute between the parties, as to the meaning of the terms used, would constitute sufficient consideration for the alleged promise to pay. Dempster v. Bauld, 37, N. S. Reps. 330.

Agreement for Maintenance — Consideration — Conveyance of Property — Evidence to Vary Agreement—Reformation—Detinue—Damages. — In an action to recoverertain personal property which, it was alleged, the defendant unlawfully detained. the defendant relied upon an agreement, entered into between the plaintiff and him, whereby the plaintiff, in consideration that the defendant would provide him with sufficient and comfortable maintenance during his lifetime, agreed to convey to the defendant his real and personal property. The document put in evidence in support of the dement put in evidence in support of the de-fence set up contained no reference to per-sonal property:—Held, that parol evidence could not be introduced to vary the terms of the written document, and that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment; and if, through fraud or mistake, the personal property was omitted from the written agreement, the defendant had his remedy in a proper action to have the agreement reformed. The damages assessed for the detention of the personal property being excessive, the Court directed a reference back to the County Court Judge who had tried the action, to make a new assessment, Guiou v. Thibeau, 36 N. S. Reps. 542.

The defendant failed to deliver the goods to a steamer of the Cunard line, as agreed, at Liverpool, but delivered them to a slow and inferior steamer of another line, on account of which acceptance of the goods was declined, and the contract of purchase cancelled. An action for damages was brought in the Supreme Court at Halifax :- Held, that the Court had no jurisdiction, and that the action must be dismissed. Hart & Son, Limited, v. Condition Precedent—Right of Action.]—In a contract-for the construction of works, it was provided that the works should be fully completed at a certain time and that no money should be payable to the contractors until the whole of the works were completed. In an action by the contractors for the full amount of the contract price, the trial Judge refused leave to amend the claim by adding a count for quantum merrit; found that the works were still incomplete at the time of action; but entered judgment in favour of the plaintiffs for a portion of the contract price, with nine-tenths of the costs. The defendant alone appealed from this decision, and the judgment was affirmed by the Court of Review:—Held, reversing the judgment appealed from that, as the whole of the works had not been completed at the time of the institution of the action, the condition precedent to payment had not been accomplished, and the plaintiffs had no right of action under the contract. Whiting v. Blondin, 24 Occ. N. 203, 34 S. C. R. 453,

Consideration — Public Exhibition — Competition for Medal — Competition Instituted by Manager of Exhibition — Scope of Duties.]—Three proprietors of blends of tea, exhibiting their teas at a public exhibition held by the defendant society, allowed their teas to be judged by a committee appointed by the society, in competition for a gold medal offered by the society. During the exhibition each of the competitors served the public gratuitously with samples of made tea, and tea was served by them to the committee in the same way that it was served to the public. The committee having awarded the medal to the plaintiff, a competitor :- Held, that there was consideration for the offer, entitling the plaintiff to the medal. Where the executive of the above society adopted a resolution to award medals to all displays of merit or excellence of goods on exhibition, the awards to be made by regularly appointed judges, and the general manager of the exhibition, who was a vice-president of the executive, and a member of a committee of three to appoint judges, thereupon arranged the above competition, and, with a co-member of the committee to select judges, named the judges for the competition, it was held that the competition must be taken to have been instituted by the society. Dominion Lands Act — Assignment of laterest in Homestead before Patent Issued—leadility of Agreement.] — The defendant made a homestead entry of land, and afterwards, finding cement upon it, made an agreement with the plaintiff to give him a one-balf interest in all cement deposits on the land. The plaintiff claimed a declaration that he was the owner of a half interest in the lands, and that the defendant should be ordered to covey to him. The defendant raised the point that the agreement between him and the plaintiff was illegal and void, being in contravention of the provisions of the Dominion Lands Act, R. S. C. c. 54, s. 42, as amended by 60 & 61 V. c. 29, s. 5:—Held. that a nonsuit should be entered, without costs. The invalidity of the agreement went to the root of the whole action, and the plaintiff could not recover. In the present case the point involved was not merely a penalty imposed upon an infringement of some provision of the statute, nor a mere prohibition; the statute says positively that the act in question, viz., every assignment or transfer of homestead rights and every agreement to assign or transfer any homestead right, or any part thereof, after patent obtained, made or entered into before the issue of the patent, "shall be null and void." Cumming v. Cumming, 24 Occ. N. 406.

Exchange of Lands-Change of Boundary Line—Executed Agreement—Removal of Fence—Enforcement against Successors in Title—Deed—Mistake in Description—Ad-verse Possession—Statute of Limitations.]— The predecessors in title of the plaintiff and defendant, for the nursoss of "againstice" defendant, for the purpose of "squaring" their respective lots of land, entered into an oral agreement to make a change in the direction of the boundary line between them, and to exchange the triangular pieces of land lying between the old line and the new. The arrangement so entered into was completed by the erection of a new fence on the substituted line, and by the making of improvements. By an inadvertence in drawing the plaintiff's deed, the original instead of the amended description was followed:—Held, that both the plaintiff and defendant were bound by the arrangement entered into by their predecessors in title; that the defendant had acquired equitable rights which the Court would protect; and that, irrespective of the Statute of Limitations, the fact that, at the time of the conveyance to the plaintiff, the land claimed was in the adverse possession of another party, was sufficient to prevent her from tecovering. The plaintiff became a member in United States and took vows of poverty, chastity and obedience required of an "aspirant," in which condition the plaintiff remained until dismissed.

In 1901 she was transferred to Mount Hope Institute at the city of London, Ontario, where she remained until the following month of June, when, in consequence of great dis-turbance and destruction of property in the Institute, ascribed to her, she was removed to Longue Pointe Insane Asylum in the Province of Quebec, upon certificate of two physicians that she was insane. Here she remained until the following September, when she was declared cured and was discharged. During this time the Mother Superior reported these facts to the society in France, and obtained a release from her yows for the plaintif, and on being released from the asylum she exc cuted a release under seal, before a notary in the city of Montreal, whereby, in con-sideration of $300, then paid her, she released the society, the Mount Hope Institute and Les Dames Religieuses du Sacre Cœur. and all persons members of the society, from and art persons memoers of the society, from all actions, debts, etc. Shortly after the plain-tiff brought this action against the society, the Mount Hope Institute, and Elizabeth Sheridan, claiming wages, damages for wrongful dismissal, false imprisonment and imputations of insanity; contending that she was not insane at any time:—Held, in answer to not mane at any time:—Head, in answer to several defences—I. That there was jurisdic-tion; 2. That the defence of the Statute of Frauds falls, see McGregor v. McGregor, 2I Q. B. 424; 3. Action dismissed as against the Mount Hope Institute (it being clearly a separate corporation, incorporated by a Canadian statute), on grounds that plaintiff never had any contract with this Institute, and for had any contract with this Institute, and for some reason was also dismissed against the Mother Superior of that Institute; 4. The document executed in Quebec held binding, the plaintiff failing to shew that the defendants had taken any undue advantage of her. Archer v. Society of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, 2 O. W. Remuneration for Services—Quantum. White v. Harris, 3 O. W. R. 352, 620.

Seal—Undisclosed Principal—Partnership—Amendment.]—P. sold mining areas, and was paid part of the price. The purchaser signed an agreement under seal that he would organize a company to work the areas and give P. stock for the balance at the market price. H. organized a company, which received a deed of the land and did some work, but finally ceased operations. Only a small part of the stock was sold, and none was given to P., who brought an action against the purchaser H., in which he alleged that the latter was a partner of the purchaser, and that the agreement was signed on behalf of both. The purchaser did not defend the action:—Held, that no action could lie against H. on the agreement under seal not signed by him, even if it was for his benefit, and a seal was not necessary. The Court refused to interfere with the discretion of the Court below in refusing an amendment to the statement of claim. Porter v. Petton. 23 Occ. N. 213, 33 S. C. R. 449.

Services as Agent—Promise of employment—Recovery of money for breach, Manning v. Small, 2 O. W. R. 264.

Services by Near Relatives—Implied Right to Remuneration — Presumption.] — The presumption against an implied right to remuneration for services rendered by near relatives arises only when the persons rendering the services, and those to whom they are rendered, are in effect living together as members of the same household, but even where this is not the case the implied right to remuneration may in the case of near relatives be negatived on very slight grounds. The Court held on the facts in this case that the plaintiff, a married woman who left her own home to nurse her sister, was not entitled to remuneration for her services. Mooney v. Grout, 23 Gec. President of Company—Detention of Books — Terms of giving up. Strathroy Petroleum Co. v. Lindsay, 1 O. W. R. 356.

Proof of Plaintiff's Title—Contract—Statute of Frauds—Pleading.]—In an action for dar 4s for the conversion of goods, the plaintiff i just prove an unquestionable title in himself, and, if it appears that such title is based on a contract, the defendant may successfully urge that such contract is void uder the 'Statute of Frauds, though no such idefence is pleaded. It is only when the action is between the parties to the contract which one of them seeks to enforce against the other, that the defendant must plead the Statute of Frauds if he wishes to avail himself of it. Judgment in 32 N. S. Reps. 450, affirmed. Kent v. Ellis, 21 Occ. N. 153, 31 S. C. R. 110.

Purchase of Goods—False Pretences of Supposed Agent of Purchaser—Contract—Consensus.]—H. fraudlently represented to the plaintiffs that he was the agent of the defendants sent by them to make a purchase of goods. He was not, in fact, in the defendants employment; they did not send him to make the purchase, nor did they know he was going to make it; but, on the contrary, after he had so fraudulently obtained the goods, they purchased the goods from him and said him in full without knowing where he had purchased. The goods were afterwards sold by the defendants in the ordinary course of business;—Held, that the property in the goods did not pass to the defendants, and they were liable to the plaintiffs or conversion. Cundy v. Lindsay, 3 App. Cas. 459, applied. There was no contract between the plaintiffs and defendants—no consensus ad idem—and no contract between the plaintiffs and H. Eby-Blain Co. v. COPYRIGHT.

Book—Absence of Registration—Pirating—Injunction—Change of Title.]—The author of a work not protected by registration as provided by law has no exclusive right of republication; and is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the republication and sale of the work by another without the author's consent, or to recover damages for such republication. 2. The fact that in republishing the work the title was changed to one which was disagreeable to the author and wounded his susceptibilities, does not give him the right to restrain the sale of such republication,—particularly where both the original work and the republication appeared under a pseudonym and it was not proved that the author was known to the public under such pseudonym. Angers v. Leprohon, Q. R. 22 S. C. 170.

Book—Infringement—Counterfeit — Prescription—Damoges — Profits—Costs—Witness Fees,]—The infringement of copyright duly registered, by the publication of a counterfeit book of a similar character, largely composed of material taken from the copyrighted work, and the sale of copies thereof, constitutes an offence successive and continuous, and the short prescription of Art. 2261, C. C., does not apply. 2. The owner of the copyright is entitled, by way of damages, to all the profits realized by the counterfeiter on the sale of counterfeit copies, and also to the costs of expert witnesses who were engaged to establish infringement. Beauchemin v. Cadieux, Q. R. 22 S. C.

Books — Infringement—Imperial Act—Colonics — Importation of Foreign Reprints — Assignment of Proprietorship—Necessity for Registration — Status to Maintain Action.] — At the time of an author's death he was the owner of and entitled to the copyr'; it in a book for the British Dominions including Canada, and after his death such copyright and ownership was assigned and transferred to the plaintiffs by those upon whom they devolved. The defendants had imported copies of the book from the United States of America and were offering them for sale in Canada:—Held, that s. 17 of the Imperial Act to Amend the Copyright Act, 5 & 6 V. c. 45, prohibiting the importation of foreign reprints by any person, not being the proprietor of the copyright or some person authorized by him, is in force in Canada; and the palantiffs were therefore entitled to prohibit the importation of foreign reprints into Canada. 2. Foreign Reprints - Notice to English Commissioners of Customs—Entry at Stationers' Hall—Encyclopædia — Prima Facie Evidence — Imperial Acts — Agreement — License—Assignment—Registration.] — Section 152 of the Imperial Customs Act, 1876, 39 & 40 V. c. 36, requiring notice to be given to the Commissioners of Customs, of copyright and of the date of its expiration, is not in force in this country, notwithstanding the statement to the contrary in the note to table IV. of the appendix to vol. 3 of R. S. O. 1897. That statement is no part of the enactment of the legislature, but is intended merely as a reference, so that the Imperial Copyright Act of 1842, 5 & 6 V. c. 45, is left to its full operation; Garrow and Maclaren, J.J.A., dissenting. Smiles v. Belford, 1 A. R. 436, followed. A certified copy of the entry at Stationers' Hall of an encyclopædia is prima facie evidence of ownership under ss. 18 and 19 of the Act of 1842, and it is not necessary in making a prima facie case to prove the facts whereby such are made conditions precedent to the vesting of the copyright in one who is not the author. An agreement in writing whereby the plaintiffs, for value, gave certain other persons the right to print and sell a work at not less than certain fixed prices for the remainder of the term of the copyright, except the last 4 years thereof, and under which the plates used in printing were delivered over, which, with all unsold copies, were to be redelivered on the expiry of the greement, and in which it was agreed not to announce the publication of another edition before such last mentioned period, expressly reserving the copyright to the plaintiffs:— Hield, to be a license, and not an assignment Held, to be a license, and not an assignment and so not to require registration under s. 19 of 5 & 6 V. c. 45 (Imp.) Judgment in 5 O. L. R. 184, 23 Occ. N. 68, 1 O. W. R. 743, 2 O. W. R. 117, affirmed. Black v. Imperial Book Co., 8 O. L. R. 9, 3 O. W. R. 467, affirmed. The court, however, declining to decide whether or not Smiles y. R. 467, affirmed. The court, however, de-clining to decide whether or not Smiles v. Belford, 1 A. R. 436, was rightly decided. Imperial Book Co. v. Black, 35 S. C. R.

Infringement — Historical work—" Pirating." Liddell v. Copp-Clark Co., 2 O. W. R. 16.

Literary Preperty—Dictionary—Nomenclature—Infringenent—Evidence — Presumption.]—An historical, biographical, and geographical dictionary, containing a selection of articles treating in an original manner subjects taken from the public domain, may be the subject of copyright. It is the same with the nomenclature of such dictionary, it being the result of a work of choice. The infringement may be shewn by any kind of evidence, and notably by the resemblance between the two works, but the presumption which results from that is less strong when the works in question are compilations. However, when, besides the resemblance, the animus furandi appears in the author of the second work, the presumption which results from it is evidence of infringement. It matters little that the second work is an improvement upon the first, and contains additional information, the improvements additional information, the improvements not effacing the wrong. Upon the question not effacing the wrong. of literary property English jurisprudence must prevail over French when there is a divergence between the two. Beauchemin v. Cadieux, Q. R. 10 K. B. 255. Affirmed 31 S. C. R. 370.

Musical Compositions—Authorship—Infringement — Pleading — Assignment — Notice,]—A company alleging that they are the registered owners and proprietors of certain Canadian copyrights, covering certain musical compositions, may answer allegations that they are not the authors, of the musical compositions, by saying that the British proprietors of the copyrights assigned the same of them, and that they gave legal notice of such assignment to the Minister of Agriculture before registration in Canada. Anglo-Canadian Music Publishing Assn. v. Dupuis, 5 Q. P. R. 351.

Newspaper—Infringement — "First Publication."]—A newspaper printed and issued at a place in the United States, copies of which are deposited in the post office there addressed to subscribers both in that country and England, cannot be considered to be first published or even simultaneously published, in England, so as to come within the provisions of the Imperial Act 5 & 6 V. c. 45, requiring first publication in the United Kingdom to entitle the publishers to British copyright. Grossman v. Canada Uyele Co., 23 Occ. N. 48, 5 O. L. R. 55, 1 O. W. R. 546.

Operatic Composition — Proof of Proprietorship — Infringement — Indemnity — "Place of Dramatic Entertainment" — Liability of Performers and Committee—Registration—Damages—Costs.]—Held, that the proprietorship of the plaintiff in the operatic composition in question was established by the evidence; and that the evidence also established that the opera performed by the defendants was the identical composition of which the plaintiff had the sole right of representation. Boosey v. Davidson, 13 Q. B. 257, and Lucas v. Williams, [1882] 2 Q. B. 117, considered, 2. The town hall, where the defendants performed the open, was a "place of dramatic entertainment within the meaning of the statute, tickes for admission of the public having been sold. Russell v. Smith, 12 Q. B. 217, and Duck v. Bates, 13 Q. B. D. 846, followed. 3. C. c. 62; the Imperial Act, 5 & 6 V. c. 45, applying to Canada by express enactment; and the Dominion Act having no provision relating to the right of dramatic representation. Smiles v. Belford, 25 Gr. 590, 1 A. R. 439, followed. 5. As to the question of damages and costs, the Imperial Act, 51 & 52 V. c. 17, applies and the damages should be of such amount as the Court considers reasonable, and the costs in the discretion of the Court. Carte v. Dennie, 21 Occ. N. 68, 267, 5 Terr. L. J. 30.

Pleading—Notice of Objections—Imperial Copyright Act, 1842.]—Section 16 of the Imperial Copyright Act, 1842 (5 & 6 V. c, 45) provides that the defendant in pleading shall give to the plaintiff a notice in writing of any objections on which he means to rely on the trial of the action. Section 26 allows the pleading of the general issue:—Held, that s, 16 is complied with if the objections intended to be relied on are taken in the statement of defence. Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. Works of Fine Art—Imperial Statute.]—The Imperial Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862, confers on British subjects and persons resident in British dominions copyright in pictures, drawings, and photographs. It extends to the whole of the United Kingdom, but does not extend to any part of the British dominions outside the United Kingdom. Tuch & Sons v. Friester, 19 Q. B. D. 629, approved. I. GENERALLY-RIGHT TO COSTS.

Adjournment of Trial.]—No costs of an adjournment of the trial of an action will be allowed to the successful party, where the adjournment was caused by reason of there being no court room available, Macdonald v. Perry, 10 B. C. R. 326.

Appeal — Point not Raised Below.]—
Where an appeal is allowed on a point of law not taken at the trial or in the notice of appeal, but open on the pleadings, it is not in strictness successful, and no costs of the appeal will be allowed but, as the appealant should have succeeded at the trial, he will be allowed the costs of it. Byron N. White Co. v. Sandon Waterworks and Light Co., 10 B. C. R. 361.

Appeal — Offer of Settlement.]—Where the amount of a judgment is reduced on appeal, and pending the disposition of the appeal the respondent offers to accept in settlement an amount smaller than the original judgment but greater than the reduced judgment, the appellant will be allowed the costs of the appeal. Dallin v. Weaver, 8 B. C. R. 241.

Attorney's Fees—Discretion.]—The fee to be allowed attorneys upon questions of law submitted to the Court under Art, 509, C. P., is in the discretion of the Court. Pare v. County of Shefford, Q. R. 24 S. C. 50.

Conviction — Discharge of Prisoner — Order for Payment by Informant.]—The defendant was convicted for stealing the property of B., and was sentenced to be imprisoned in the city prison of the city of Halifax. An order made by the Judge of a county court, under N. S. Acts of 1897 c, 32, s. 2, for the defendant's discharge, under a writ of habeas corpus, directed that the informant B. pay to the defendant his costs of the application and order for his discharge. There was outhing to shew that B. was the informant, except a statement to that effect in the affidavit of the defendant, upon which the application for the order was made, which was not borne out by either the conviction or the commitment:—Held, that the order was wrong, and must be set aside. Per Meagher, J., that B. was not bound to appear in answer to the summons for the writ of habeas corpus, and that the fact of his not appearing was not to be regarded as conduct or acquiescence justifying the imposition of costs. Quære, also, whether the Judge land jurisdiction to make the order. Regina v. Bowers, 34 N. S. Reps. 550.

Conviction—Motion to Quash.] — In a motion to quash a conviction, such conviction being in a criminal matter, and not merely for a penalty imposed by or under provincial legislation, no jurisdiction is conferred on the High Court to give costs to the applicant against the prosecutor or magistrate. Rev. Bennett. 22 Occ. N. 290, 4 O. L. R. 205, 1 O. W. R. 360.

Criminal Libel—Depositions not Used at Trial—Abortive Trial.]—The prosecution was for criminal libel, and the defendant, in support of his plea of justification, obtained a commission and had the evidence of certain witnesses out of the jurisdiction taken, for use at the trial. The order granting the commission provided that the costs of the commission be reserved to be dealt with by the trial Judge. The evidence was used at the first trial, and the jury disagreed. At the second trial the jury again disagreed. At the second trial the defendant was acquitted, but the evidence was not used, owing to the private prosecutor giving evidence and admitting substantially what was stated by the witnesses in their depositions before the commissioner:—Held, that, as the commission evidence was not put in by the defendant as part of his case, the defendant was not entitled to the costs of the abortive trials. Rex v. Nichol, 22 Occ. N. 75, 8 B. C. R. 276.

Declaration of Garnishee — Striking out—Option.]—A garnishee having made default in the completion of his declaration, the attaching creditor made a motion to strike out such declaration or to give the garnishee the option of continuing and completing it:—Held, that the costs of such motion should be paid by the garnishee. Garbacht v. Silvernan, 4 Q. P. R. 439.

Depxiving Defendant of Gosts—Discretion — Good Cause—Rule 359 (4) — Appeal.]—Plaintiff, a widow, claimed insurance under policies on her late husband's life, in favour of his mother, which by his dying declaration and attempted disposition she was to receive $1,500, and that if these policies were not altered by Mr. A. through illness and reliance on the assurance that his wishes would be arrived out, it would like the surface of the plaintiff worto. Joseph runstrong, the deceased husband's brother, requesting a settlement. He replied that the policies were always in favour of the mother and refused settlement. Action was commenced against mother of her husband. After it was discovered that the policies had been assigned by mother to her son Joseph. Motion was then made under Rule 430 (4) to discontinue action without costs. Motion graated owning to the letters written to the plaintiff's solicitor, which deceived him by leading him to believe the policies were in the mother's name, which was not true. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 4 O. W. R. 223, 301, 25 Occ. N. 74, 9 O. L. R. 14.

Depriving Successful Party-Conduct -Acquiescence-Custom.]-In an action for damages for an alleged interference with a fishing berth, judgment was given in favour of the defendant, but he was deprived of costs, it appearing that both the defendant and plaintiff acted throughout as if they thought the fishing berth in controversy was in Lunenburg county; that it had, up to the time of action, been under the charge and control of Lunenburg officers; that the defendant attempted to take it up according to the custom of fishermen followed in that county; that he attended before the fishery officers of that county when they attempted to settle the dispute between himself and the plaintiff, and did not question their jurisdiction; and that the defence that the berth was not in Lunenburg but in Queen's county was not in Linenburg out in Queen's county was not pleaded, nor the objection taken until the trial:—Held, that this was not a case in which the discretion of the trial Judge should be reviewed. Semble, that the parties were bound by the custom assented to by them and the dicision of the fisheries officer. Selig v. Nouce, 36 N. S. Reps. 99.

Depriving Successful Party — Nolle Prosequi—Powers of Trial Judge.]—Where a nolle prosequi had been entered as to certain defendants before trial, and a verdict was afterwards obtained against the remaining defendant, the trial Judge, under s. 373 of the Supreme Court Act, granted a certificate depriving the first mentioned defendants of their costs:—Held, that the certificate was authorized by the section. Mellon v. Municipality of Kings, 35 N. B. Reps. 291.

Depriving Successful Party—43 Eic. c. 6.—County Courts.]—The statute 43 Eliz. c. 6, authorizing a Judge to certify to deprive a plaintiff of costs, is in force in New Brunswick, and is made applicable to County Courts by s. 68 of the County Courts Act, 1807. Worman v. Crystal, 35 N. B. Reps. 562.

Joint Judgment for Costs—Execution for Whole Amount Against One—Opposition—Deposit.]—A party adjudged jointly with several others to pay the costs of a proceeding, may oppose an execution against him for the whole costs; such an opposition, accompanied by a deposit of an aliquot part of the costs, will not be struck out on motion. Populager v. Muir, 6 Q. P. R. 445.

Lien—Creditors' Action to Preserve Fund,—Costs incurred in a creditors' action in preserving for creditors property which had been fraudulently tre-sferred, are a first lien upon the fund recovered, and are allowed as between solicitor and client. Lien-Salvage-Partition-Property Made Insaisissable.]-The defendant and his mother owned certain immovables in undivided shares. The defendant's undivided portion had been devised to him by his father a tire d'aliments and with a clause making it insaisissable, and burdened with a substi ution. R., the mother's advocate, brought an action of partition of these immovables against the defendant and the curator of the substitution. By the judgment in that action the lands were divided, and three-fourths of the costs were to be paid by the defendant. R., to recover his costs against the defendant, had caused to be seized an undivided third of the immovables which by the partition fell to the lot of the defendant. The plaintiffs, the advocates of the defendant, The plaintiffs, the advocates of the defendant, had made opposition to R.'s seizure, alleging that he had been paid and invoking the insaissabilité clause. R. pleaded that he had not been paid, and that the clause did not apply to his debt, his services having preserved the property to the opposants. The served the property to the opposants. opposition was dismissed, and the undivided third was sold. R. had his costs of the opposition taxed at $125.57, but upon revision the amount was reduced to $54.57. The plaintiffs now sued the defendant for their costs of the opposition which they had made for him and their costs of the motion for the revision of R.'s costs, and obtained judgment for $147.80, under which they caused to be seized the remaining two-thirds of the defendant's portion of the immovables. He made an opposition, invoking the insaisissabilité clause. The plaintiffs pleaded to the opposition that their debt was for costs which they had incurred in good faith to protect the first third from R.'s seizure, which made tan alimentary debt; that it mattered not that the opposition to R.'s seizure had been dismissed; and that their debt was a first assussed; and that their debt was a first charge upon all the alimentary property of the defendant:—Held, that, as R. did not contest the insaisissabilité clause, but only said that it did not apply to his debt, the opposition to R.'s seizure was of no utility as regards the property seized in this action, any more than as regards that seized by R.: that there was no relation between the claim of the plaintiffs for their costs and the property seized in this action; and, therefore, the claim of the plaintiffs was not alimenary nor was it a charge upon property which was insaisissable. Pouliot v. Michand, Q. B.

Mechanics' and Wage-earners' Lien Act—Costs Subsequent to Judgment.]—Action to enforce liens under the Mechanics' and Wage-earners' Lien Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 110. At the trial judgment was given in favour of the plaintiffs, declaring that Humphries was entitled to $240.60 and Philphanother plaintiff, to $81.65. The costs of the plaintiffs down to and including the trial, were taxed at $190.16 and inserted in the judgment. The defendant was ordered to bay the above sums; in default the lands to be sold, with a reference to the Master. The lands were sold and the purchase money add into Court. The plaintiffs then brought in a subsequent bill of costs covering the proceedings subsequent to the judgment, which but the subsequent to the judgment and but was taxed at $220.30, inclusive of disbursements. The costs up to judgment and the subsequent costs together amounted to $419.10, of which $228.75 was costs other D—12 than disbursements, while the total amount of the liens enforced amounted to only $322.25. The defendant appealed from the taxation of the plaintiffs' subsequent bill of costs, contending that under the Act the plaintiffs were entitled to costs only to an amount equal to 25 per cent, of the amount of the judgment, besides actual disbursements, and that the amount of costs allowed far exceeded this :-Held, that a plaintiff seeking ceeded this entered, that a plaintin seeing to enforce a lien may do so by an action in the King's Bench, following the ordinary procedure in actions in that Court. Nothing in the Act ousts the general jurisdiction of the Court to enforce a lien. The plaintiff may, instead of following the ordinary procedure, adopt the summary procedure, in ss. 31, 32. In the present once the interest In the present case the judgment was drawn up in a very peculiar manner, an attempt being made to adopt the form of judgment upon a summary trial, although the action was set down and tried in the ordinary manner. The sale was carried out by the Master, and the judgment empowered him to tax and add to the plaintiffs' claims the subsequent costs of the proceedings. Under the terms of the judgment the taxing officer properly allowed the ordinary costs of a sale conducted in the Master's office. Humphries v. Cleave, 24 Occ. N. 374.

Mise en Demeure—Advocate's Letter—Presentation of Draft—Lis Pendens.]—When a debt is payable at the domicil of the debtor, a demand of payment made by an advocate's letter is not a mise en demeure sufficient to compel him to pay the costs of it, if he is afterwards sued by his creditor. 2. The presentation at the place of business of the debtor of a bill of exchange drawn by his creditor for the amount of the debt, constitutes a mise en demeure sufficient to fix him with the costs of a suit begun against him. 3. A proceeding which has not been entered in Court is not a cause, and cannot be set up in support of a plea of lis pendens, if the debtor is afterwards sued for the same cause of action. Lay v. Cantin, Q. R. 23 S. C. 405.

Offer to Suffer Judgment by Default—standing that she had received notice of an offer to suffer judgment by default within the ten days allowed to her by the statute for its acceptance, carried the cause down to trial and obtained a verdict therein for a sum exactly equal to the amount mentioned in the offer. On a motion to review the taxation of the plaintiff's costs:—Held, that the making of the offer in no way operated as a stay of proceedings, and the taking of the cause down to trial by the plaintiff was not equivalent to a rejection thereof; and that she was, therefore, entitled to have the costs of the trial allowed to her on taxation. Quere (per Tuck, C.J.):—If the verdict had been for a less amount than that for which the offer to suffer judgment was made, could the plaintiff after verdlet have accepted the offer and signed judgment for the larger sum? Sharp v. Woodstock School Trustees, 21 Occ. N. 56, 35 N. B. Reps. 243.

Opposite Party — Liability of Client—Corporation Solicitor—Change in By-law.]—By arrangement between the defendants and their solicitor he was to receive a salary of $1.800 a year, for all services, including the costs of any litigation in which the defendants should be engaged. The present action against the defendants was dismissed with costs on the 14th September, 1901, and the defendants brought in their bill for taxation:—Held, following Jarvis v, Great Western R. W. Co., S. C. P. 280, and Stevenson v, City of Kingston, 31 C. P. 233, in preference to Galloway v, Corporation of London, L. R. 4 Eq. 90, and Henderson v, Merthyr Tydfil Urban District Council, [1900] I Q. B. 434, that in view of the above agreement with their solicitor, the defendants could not tax their costs against the plaintiffs:—Held, also, that the rights of the defendants must be governed by the circumstances which existed on the 14th September, 1901; and a by-law of the defendants subsequently passed could not affect those rights. Olfawa Gas Co. v. City of Ottates, 22 Oc. N. 408, 4 O. L. R. 656, 1 O. W. R. 647, 637, 2 O. W. R. 579.

Paymont of Costs—Leave to Bring New Action — Husband and Wife — Action for Separation — Authorization.] — A wife who has brought an action for separation from bed and board, can not be authorized to bring another without having discontinued the first and paid the costs. An application for leave to discontinue an action will only be granted on its being stated that such discontinuance is with costs. Armiston v. Dick, 7 Q. P. R. 304.

Petition — Moneys Deposited in Expropriation Proceedings.]—The corporation of the city of Montreal cannot be ordered to pay the costs of a petition to withdraw money from the custody of the prothonorary of the Superior Court, in consequence of an expropriation. In re City of Montreal and Collins, 6 Q. P. R. 204.

Quashing Conviction—Nominal Prosecutors.)—Where an appeal under the Towns Incorporation Act, 1896, from a conviction by a police magistrate, was allowed, and the conviction quashed on the ground that the magistrate had refused to hear material evidence, the Court refused to make the order without costs against the town of Grand Falls, who took no part in the prosecution, and were only parties by virtue of the Act requiring the prosecution to be in their name. Tunner v. Mockler, 36 N. B. Reps. 245.

Railway—Expropriation of Land—Abandonnent.]—The word "desist" in C. S. C. c. 66, s. 11, s.-s. 6, has the same meaning as "abandon" in 51 V. c. 29, s. 158 (D.), i.e., to leave off or discontinue. Whether voluntarily or compulsorly makes no difference: if the railway company case operations to expropriate land and give a new notice as to other operations, that is desistment or abandonment, and the company must pay costs to the land owner. Solicitor's Letter before Action—Costo of—Tender.]—Since the passing of 3 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. b, the debtor who has received a letter demanding payment from his creditor's attorney, must pay the fee therefor fixed by the tariff, and a tender by him to such creditor of the debt only is not sufficient. Rayer v. Bélanger, Q. R. 27 S. C. 95, 7 Q. P. R. 97, Special Case in Action to Recover Succession Duty—Coats Payable by Crons where Unsuccessful.]—In litigation under the Succession Duty Act express power is given to the High Court to deal with the costs thereof; and where, therefore, the trustees of an estate had paid, or were enaly to pay, all the duty which could properly be claimed against it, they were held entitled against the Crown to the costs of a special case and an action by the Attorney-General to recover higher duties; but only one set of costs was allowed to the trustees and beneficiaries. Attorney-General V. Toronto General Truste Corporation, 23 Occ. N. 194, 5 O. L. R. 907, 1 O. W. R. 807, 2 O. W. R. 271.

Summons for Summary Judgment.)—Summons for judgment under Order XIV. The right to judgment was not disputed, but it was contended on behalf of the defendants that the plaintiffs were not entitled to any more costs than they could have got by taking judgment in default of defence, as the time for filing the defence had expired before the summons was issued:—Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to the costs of the summons. Diamond Glass Co. v. Okell Morris Co., 22 Occ. N. 190, 9 B. C. R. 48.

Trespass to Land—Nominal Damages—Depriving Successful Plaintiff of Costs—Discretion—Appeal.]—In an action for damages for breaking and entering the plaintiff sclose, and destroying and injuring his grass and crops, and permitting cattle, calves, and other animals to break and enter. &c., the trial Judge found that the trespass committed was a very trifling one, that the action was the result of ill-feeling and of previous litigation, and that no substantial injury to the plaintiff's property was suffered. COSTS.

Right of Action for — Liability of Client—Fees Paid to Solicitor].—Counsel in British Columbia have the right to maintain an action for their fees.—Where a solicitor, contrary to his client's expectation, does not pay over to a counsel fees received from his client, the client is still liable to the counsel. British Columbia Land and Investment Agency v. Wilson, 9 B. C. R. 412.

Second Counsel—Written Argument.]—
Where a case is submitted to the Court upon factum by the consent of parties, a second counsel fee will not be allowed, even if, at the time the case is mentioned to the Court and consent given to the factum being put in, the advocate and counsel were both present and robed. Societé des Artisans Canadiens Français v, Hébert, 5 Q. P. R. 372.

III. DISTRACTION.

Execution—Party to Cause—Consent of Advocate—Opposition.]—In order that a party may have execution against the opposite party for his costs, as to which there is a distraction in flavour of his advocate, it is necessary that the consent of the advocate should appear by writing upon the flat, the writ of execution, and the procesverbal of the seizure—2. If this consent in writing does not appear as above, the party issuing execution, not being a creditor for these costs, cannot seize in his own name, and therefore an opposition to the seizure based upon this default is well founded and will be maintained. Martin v. County of Arthabaska, Q. R. 23 S. C. 297.

Execution—Solicitor—Client's Right.]—When an attorney demands a writ of execution for his costs which are subject to distraction, and signs the praceipe as attorney for the party whom he represents, it will be assumed that he has been paid, and that he thereby authorizes his client to issue execution in his name.—2. If he has so permitted his client to issue the execution in his name, he has no right to contest in his own name an opposition made to a seizure under the execution. Martin v. County of Arthabaska, Q. R. 22 S. C. 302.

IV. INTERLOCUTORY COSTS.

Appeal—"No Order as to Costs"— Meaning of.1—From an interlocutory order made in the action an appeal was taken.
Before the hearing of the appeal, the plaintiff lost his interest in the case by allowing the mineral claim in question to lapse, and so the full Court "struck out the appeal—no order as to costs." Subsequently the plaintiff's action was dismissed with costs, and the defendants claimed the costs of the appeal, which the registrar disallowed on taxation:—Held, following 1n re Hodgkinson, [1895] W. N. 85, the the statement
"no order as to costs" means that each party must pay his own costs. So also where the Court refuses to make any order as to costs. MeCune v. Botsford, 22 Occ. N. 340, 9 B. C. R. 129.

Appeal—Practice.]—In interlocutory appeals, when a party is allowed costs, they are payable forthwith. Star Mining and Milling Co. v. Byron N. White Co., 22 Occ. N. 104, 9 B. C. R. 9.

Conclusion of Litigation.]—There is no fixed rule in British Columbia that in all cases costs of interlocutory proceedings shall not be payable until the conclusion of the litigation. Jones v. Davenport, 7 B. C. R. 452.

Motion for Summary Judgment—
"In any Event."]—A summons for judgment under Order XIV, was discharged with costs, but the question as to whether or not the costs should be payable forthwith was reserved:

— Held, that if the case is not within the Order, or there are circumstances which render it improper to grant the application, or the plaintiff knew the defendant relied on a contention which would entitle him to unconditional leave to defend, the summons will be discharged with costs in any event, but not payable forthwith. Where leave to defend is given, costs, as a general rule, will be in the cause. It is only in exceptional circumstances that costs will be ordered to be paid forthwith. In Chambers applications, generally, costs are made payable by the unsuccessful party in any event, but not forthwith. City of Victoria v. Bosces, 21 Occ. N. 151, 8 B. C. R. 15.

Set-off—Solicitor's Lien.]—A defendant is entitled to set off interlecutory costs in the same cause, payable to him by the plaintiff, against the damages and costs recovered against him in the final result of the cause; notwithstanding the plaintiff's attorney's lien, which only attaches on the general result of the action. Anderson v. Shaw, 35 N. B. Reps. 280.

V. LIABILITY FOR COSTS.

Contestation as to Costs—Costs of,]—A party who prays that the costs of an application be borne by another party, who is under no obligation to him, thereby forcing the latter to appear and contest, will be condemned to pay the costs of such contestation. Gingras v. Boon, 6 Q. P. R. 37.

Desistment from Action—New Action—Partnership—Costs of Former Action.]—
A plaintiff who has desisted from an action against a single defendant, will not be ordered to pay the costs of that action before beginning a new action based upon the same claim against a commercial partnership of which the original defendant was a member. St. Laurent v. Doran, 5 Q. P. R. 449.

Partnership Action—Joint and Several Liability of Defendants—Commercial Case—Pleading—Conclusions.—The plaintiff sued the defendants, a commercial partnership having a collective name, en reddition de compte. The undertaking of the defendants which was the subject of the action was an absolutely commercial affair. Thus the action was itself of a commercial nature, and it necessarily followed that the liability of the defendants was a joint and several one. Nevertheless, the plaintiff did not claim upon a joint and several liability, and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff without any mention of that liability. Some time afterward the plaintiff's attorney issued in his own name as advocate an execution against the defendants for his costs of the action, and, the defendant partnership having no property of its own, he caused to be selzed property of two of the defendants for the total amount of his costs, that is to say, without dividing his costs. Each of these two defendants made opposition to the sei-zure, contending that there was no joint and several liability as to costs, inasmuch as the plaintiff had not alleged such liability, and that it did not exist as regards costs :--Held that in order that there may be joint and several liability among several defendants ordered to pay costs, even in commercial causes, where such liability plainly exists, and in spite of the fact that costs are as a general rule the accessory of the action, the plaintiff should have alleged a joint and several liability; in default of an allegation and claim to this effect, even in commercial affairs, there is no joint and several liability as to costs between several defendants condemned to payment of such costs by the judgment in the action. Beaubien v. Rioux, Q. R. 21 S. C. 232, 4 Q. P. R. 214.

Third Party—Rule 214—Discretion—Appeal.1—Rule 214 gives power to the Court or a Judge to order a plaintiff whose action is "smissed to pay the costs of a third party brought in by the defendant, as well as the costs of the defendant. Such an order is in the discretion of the Court or Judge, and there is no appeal from it, unless by leaved as provided by the Judic-ture Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 51, s. 72. Russel v. Eddy, 23 Oc. N. 168, 5 O. L. R. 381, 2 O. W. R. 164.

VI. SCALE AND QUANTUM OF COSTS.

v. Collerette, f

Attachment of a contestation the class of action is fixed by the amount claimed by the contestant.—2. The fact that the contestation seeks to have the seizure declared binding does not change the class of action.—3. Even if the amount claimed by the contestation is below $100$, if the same is tried before the Superior Court, the winning party is entitled to charge stamps and depositions as in a Superior Court case.—4. The debtor, and the manager of the company garmishee, cannot be allowed for on taxation of costs against the contestant, as witnesses. Sieyes v. Painchaud, 6 Q. P. R. 369.

Amount Involved—Judgment.]—If an action or an incidental demand is maintained for a certain amount only, with costs, and the judgment declares that the amount ranated would have been larger but for the plaintiff's consent, the costs of such action will, nevertheless, in the absence of any adjudication to the contrary, be taxed as in an action for the amount of the condemnation. Collins v. Clare, 6 Q. P. R. 381.

Amount Involved—Pension.] — An action to reduce an alimentary pension is classed, as regards the scale of fees, according to the amount of monthly payments of the pension in question. Lavigne v. Pouliot, 6 Q. P. R. 138.

Amount Involved — Revendication of Policies, —In an action in revendication for the recovery of insurance policies, where the ampany appears and s'en rapporte à justice, costs should be granted according to the face value of the policies, and not according to the actual value of the policies as title deeds. McDuff v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 6 Q. P. R. 133.

Appeal—dmount Juvolved—Costs Belevel,—Where a tutor brings, in his capacity as such, an action for damages, which is dismissed with costs against him personally, appeals, and succeeds in having the personal judgment against him set aside with costs, the amount in Hitgation in appeal is the amount of costs which the tutor has been adjudged to pay personally, and not the amount in question in the original action.
Garnier v. Armand, 6 Q. P. R. 45.

Appeal—Amount Involved—Costs Belont,—When an appeal is taken by the plaintiff from a judgment dismissing his action, which was one of the first class, but ordering the defendant to return him some effects claimed, the class of action is determined by the amount for which the action was brought. Armstrong v. Beauchemin, 6. P. R. 51.

Appeal—Nuisance — Abatement — Penelly,1—An action in which the claim is, that the defendants be ordered immediately to cease allowing evil odours and smoke to sue from the restablishment, or in default that the plaintiff shall be allowed to abate the nuisance by employing necessary means for such purpose, and that the defendants to ordered to pay $100 with costs, is similar, as regards costs in the Court of King's Pench, or a proceeding by writ of prerogative, and as consequently a first-class action.
Town of St. Paul v. Cooke, 6 Q. P. R. 48.

Appeal from Judgment of Drainage Referee.]—The costs of an appeal to the Court of Appeal from the decision of the Drainage Referee in a proceeding under the Drainage Act initiated before him should (if awarded to either party) be taxed on the scale applicable to appeals in cases begun in the High Court of Justice. Decision of a Divisional Court, 19 P. R. 188, 20 Occ. N. 329, reversed. In re Township of Metcalfe and Townships of Adelaide and Warveick, Ix re Township of Colchester North and Township of Gosfield North, 21 Occ. N. 403, 2 O. L. R. 103.

Appeal under Public Instruction Act.)—In an appeal under Art. 482 of the Public Instruction Act, the costs of the advocates must be taxed pursuant to Art. 105 of the tariff of the Superior Court as regards the general fee, and as in an action of the fourth class in the Superior Court as regards the other costs. Guay v. St. Jerome and St. Monica School Commissioners, 5 Q. i. R. 124.

Assault—Small Verdict—Certificate of Trial Judge—Review by Court.]—The Court has jurisdiction to review the discretion exercised by a Judge in certifying under 60 V. c. 28, s. 74, that there was good cause for bringing the action in the Supreme Court.—Where an action for assault and battery was brought in the Supreme Court, and the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff for only $35, but the trial Judge granted a certificate under the above section, on the ground that the plaintiff's attorney had reasonable grounds for thinking that the title to land would be brought into question:—Held, that a sufficient case had not been made out to induce the Court to interfere. Cormier v. Boudreau, 36 N. B. Reps. 6.

Attachment of Debts—Amount Attached.]—The costs on an attachment after judgment must be taxed according to the amount sought to be recovered from the garnishee, and do not follow the costs of the principal action. Latour v. Latour, 5 Q. P. R. 306.

Attachment of Debts—Amount Attached.)—Where a contestation of the declaration of a garnishee is dismissed, the class of action will be fixed by the amount of the judgment which the contestant could have obtained against the garnishee if the declaration had shewn that the lutter was indebted to the judgment debtor, and this although a part of such sum was insaiss-sable. De Sieyes v. Painchaud, 5 Q. P. R. 363.

Attachment of Debts—Contestation of Declaration of Garnishee — Amount Involved.)—The fee allowed to a garnishing creditor upon a contestation of the declaration of the garnishee, which has been maintained without the garnishee having replied to it, is the fee applicable to an uncontested action, and not that of a contested action, and is regulated by the sum which the garnishee is ordered to pay. Ettenberg v. Kelly 5 Q. P. R. 428.

Attachment of Debta — Saisie-arrêt— Amount Claimed, 1—A saisie-arrêt is a new cause or proceeding, and the costs of a judgment maintaining the disavowal of the advocate who has issued the saisie-arrêt, are to be determined according to the amount for which the writ of saisie-arrêt has been issued, Lafrance v. Parent, Q. R. 21 S. C. 415. Certiorari—Order—Fee on.]—The costs of advocates or attorneys in a case of certioral vacation of the second class in the Superior Court. 2. No fee is allowed upon a judgment ordering the issue of a certiorari. Areand v. Montreal Harbour Commissioners, 5 Q. P. R. 410.

Claim and Counterclaim — Jury. Coulter v. Sweet, 2 O. W. R. 1.

Class of Action—Administrator.]—An action whereby the plaintiff appointed by a foreign tribunal administrator to a decedent estate, seeks to have his quality recognized in this country, against a sequestrator appointed by our courts to the property situate in this country, will be considered a first class action for taxation purposes, if it appears that the property situated in this country amounts to more than $1,000. Lavoignat v. Mackay, 3 Q. P. R. 479.

Class of Action—Garnishee—Amount of Judyment Against.]—When the contestation of the declaration of a garnishee is maintained without hearing, upon default of the garnishee to reply to such contestation, the attorney of the contestant has a right to tax against the garnishee the fee provided by Art. 4 of the Superior Court tariff; and the class of action is determined by the amount of the judgment rendered against the garnishee. Ettenberg v. Kelly, Q. R. 19 S. C. 143.

Class of Action—Interest.]—The costs on an appeal from a judgment for $200 with interest and costs, which is reversed, the action being dismissed by the Court of Appeal, are costs of an action of the fourth, and not of the third class. Sauriol v. Clermont, 3 Q. P. R. 477.

Class of Action—Partition and Salc— Price Obtained—Opposition.]—When an immovable has been sold in an action for partition and sale for a price exceeding $4,000, the costs of an opposition A fin de distraine and of the contestation thereof should be taxed as in an action of the first class, with the additional fee of $30 which the tariff gives in actions for more than $4,000. Latour v. Latour, Q. R. 19 S. C. 159, 3 Q. P. R. 418.

Class of Action—Validity of Seizure—Amount in Question,—Upon a contestation as to the validity of a seizure en mains tierces, the class of action depends upon the amount seized, and the taxation of the bill according to the class of the original action will be revised accordingly. Jones v. Moodie, 3 Q. P. R. 354.

Class of Action—"Value in Contest"— Interest and Costs.]—Neither interest nor costs can be added to the amount in litigation as part of the "value in contest" for the purpose of determining the class of action to regulate the scale of taxation of costs. Barber-Ellis Co. v. Burland, Q. R. 10 K, B. 218.

Class of Action—"Value in Contest"— Judgment.] — Where the judgment appealed from was against the appellant for a specific amount, and the respondent did not take a cross-appeal, the "value in contest," for the purpose of determining the class for taxation of costs, is the amount for which judgment was rendered against the appellant by the Court below. McGarvey v. Dougall, Q. R. 10 K. B. 217.

Class of Action—" Value in Contest"— Judgment—Costs, —In determining the class to which a case belongs for the purpose of taxation of costs, only the amount of the condemnation in the judgment appealed from, irrespective of costs, is to be taken into consideration. Sauriol v. Clermont, Q. R. 10 K. B. 219,

Class of Action — Value in Contest—Opposition — Dismissal on Motion—Absence of Appearance—Fee—Scale of.]—Where an opposition is dismissed upon motion, and the plaintiffs attorney has not filed an appearance in writing to the opposition, he is not entitled to a fee de comparution. 2. The fee upon an opposition dismissed upon motion is that of an action dismissed upon preliminary exception. 3. The class of action to which an opposition belongs is regulated by the value of the effects claimed by the opposition, and, in the absence of other evidence, the amount mentioned in the opposition as representing the value of the effects thereby claimed should be regarded as the true one. Les Curé et Marquilliers de Laprairie v. Proulx, 4 Q. P. R. 33.

Company — Removal of Liquidator—Appeal.]—The fees in appeals on a petition to remove a liquidator appointed to a joint stock company are the fees of a second-class and not of a first-class action. Stimson v. North-West Cattle Co., 5 Q. P. R. 239

Contestation in Garnishment— Amount in Controversy,]—The fees upon a contestation of the declaration of a garnishe, where it is sought by the garnishment proceedings to avoid a gift of immovables of the value of $500, and to condemn the garnishese each to pay $122, are the fees of an action of the second class. Brunet v. Bergeson, 4 Q. P. R. 419.

County Court Jurisdiction—Ascertainment of amount—Set-off. Smith v. Toronto General Hospital Trustees, 6 O. W. R. 999.

County Court Jurisdiction - Trespass to Land-Amount Involved-Title to Land.] -Plaintiffs were owners of the remainder in farm valued at $1,500, and defendant Reece was life tenant thereof, and defendant Payne a purchaser from her of timber on the farm. The action was for an injunction and damages for cutting and removing the timber. The trial Judge found for plaintifs (1 O. W. R. 516), and assessed the damages at $400, to be paid into Court and paid out to plaintiffs on death of defendant Reco. who was to have the interest in the meantime. This judgment was varied by a Divisional Court (2 O. W. R. 160, 23 Occ. N. 107, 5 O. L. R. 356), by directing that defendants should at once pay to plaintiffs $180. The defences having raised the question of title to an interest in land of a greater value than $200, and therefore the action would not be maintainable in a County Court by virtue of s.-s, 1 of s, 22 of the Act, cherefore plaintiff's costs were taxed on the High Court Whitesell v. Nichol v. Pooley, 9 B, C. R. 363.

Detention of Goods—Judgment for Return—Damages.]—The plaintiff in an action for detention of a horse, alleged to be of the value of $1,000, recovered judgment for its return and $10 for damages:—Held, against the contention of the defendant, that costs should be taxed as in an action under $100, or on the lower scale of the tariff; that, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the value alleged in the statement of claim should be treated as the real value for purposes of taxation. Allison v. Christie, 2 Terr. L. R. 279.

Division Court Jurisdiction — Ascertainment of Amount—Promissory Note.] — Held, that the debt in this case was not comizable by a Division Court, the claim being for more than $190 and not ascertained by the signature of the wife (the principal debtor); that the note signed by the husband could not be treated as an ascertainment, it not having been signed by him as her agent, but on his own behalf; and therefore the costs should be on the scale of the County Court in which the action was brought. Davidson v. McClelland, 21 Occ. N. 188, 32 0. R, 382.

Division Court Jurisdiction—Balance Dee on Contract Signed by Defendant—Estimist Eridence.]—In an action in a County Court for $87.50, the balance due on a building contract of $475, signed by the defendant, where extrinsic evidence was required to shew performance of the contract by the plaintiff, and for $27.35 upon an open account, as against which the defendant was allowed upon his counterclaim $25 for defective work and material:—Held, that a Division Court would have had no jurisdiction, and that the plaintiff was entitled to his costs on the county Court scale. In re Graham v. Tominson, 12 P. R. 307, and In re Sawyer-Massey Co. v. Parkin, 28 O. R. 662, not followed. Kinsey v. Roche, 8 P. R. 515, approved. Mechanic V. McDermid, 15 A. R. 287, followed. Kreutsiger v. Broz. 210 Ce. N. 139, 32 O. R.

Interim Injunction.]—The costs of an interlocutory injunction will be taxed as in an action of the same class as is the action of which it is an incident. Jodoin v. Village of Belail. 7 Q. P. R. 222.

Interim Injunction — Municipal Bylaw.]—The fees upon a petition for interlocutory injunction in an action to set aside a municipal by-law, are fees of second, not of first-class actions. Village of Belwil v. Jodoin, 7 Q. P. R. 77.

Jurisdiction of County Court—Ascer-isingent of Amount — Action for Price of Goods—Reduction of Claim by Trial Judge.]—In an action in the High Court for $340,—In an action in the High Court for $340 by the plaintiff to the defendant, $450 of which was paid before action, the trial Judge lound that the sale was made as contended by the plaintiff, but reduced the amount by $20 for some logs not received by the defendant:—Held, on an appeal from the ruling of a taxing officer, that the plaintiff was entitled only to County Court costs, and the defendant to a set-off. The sum of $340 being an ascertained amount, the reduction of it by the trial Judge did not affect the ascertainment. Brown v. Hose, 14 P. R. 3, distinguished. Lovell v. Phillips, 23 Occ. N. 114, 5 O, L. R. 235, 2 O. W. R. 119.

Jurisdiction of County Court—Ascertainment of amount—Promissory note—Consideration. Baldwin Iron and Steel Works (Limited) v. Dominion Carbide Co., 2 O. W. R. 76, 170.

Jurisdiction of County Court—Ascertainment of amount. Williamson v. Township of Elizabethtown, 2 O. W. R. 977, 3 O. W. R. 742.

Jurisdiction of County Court—Ascertainment of amount of money demand. Bastedo v. Simmons, 2 O. W. R. 866, 955.

Jurisdiction of Division Court — Account—Balance — Ascertainment — Settled account. Taggart v. Bennett, 2 O. W. R. 184, 419, 513.

Lump Sum — Injunction Motion.] — The costs of the advocates of the respondent under a judgment dismissing, after hearing a petition for an injunction, were fixed upon application to the Judge at $50. National Typographic Co. v. Dougall, 5 Q. P. R. 162.

Motion for Particulars—Prothonotary.]
—A motion for particulars is an ordinary motion. 2. If an action is discontinued after such a motion, the costs of the defendant's advocate will be those of appearance and motion and not those under art. 7 of the tariff. 3. The fee of the prothonotary is also that of a motion, and not of an exception. Gingras v. Finley, 5 Q. P. R. 118.

Order as to — Jurisdiction of Trial Judge, — In a Supreme Court action, the trial Judge has no jurisdiction to order costs on the County Court scale on the ground that the action might or should have been brought in the County Court. Russell v. Black, 10 B. C. R. 326.

Payment into Court - Inquiry as to Creditors' Claims — Certificate for County Court Costs—Set-off—Discretion.] — Under 59 V. c. 19, s. 3 (O.), the equitable jurisdiction of the County Courts, which had been taken away by the Law Reform A & of 1868. was restored to that Court, so that it equitable jurisdiction where the subject matter involved does not exceed $200. An action having been brought to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of certain lands to the defendant, a lis pendens was registered, and by a consent order was vacated on payment of $300 into Court, with a provision that creditors should file their claims. Claims were filed to over $200, adjudicated upon by the Master, and fixed at $189.47, the amount found to be due to the plaintiff being $96.20, for which judgment was given with costs on the lower scale; the Master giving a certificate that his ruling was that the plaintiff was entitled to costs on the County Court scale, without any right of set-off:—Held, that the Master's order as to costs should not be interfered with. *Halliday v. Ruther*ford, 23 Occ. N. 200.

Petition—Contestation—Counsel Fees.]—
The fees of an advocate upon a petition under art, 876, C. P., upon which there has been contestation by writing, inscription, examination, and hearing, are the fees of an advocate in an actic of the second class, but there can be no fee at the hearing. Moreau v. Gelinas, 4 Q. P. R. 380, Petition to Appoint Sequestrator.]—All the fees on a contested petition to appoint a sequestrator are governed by s. 102 of the tariff, not by s. 12 or 28, and the attorney is entitled to all the fees of a third-class action. Chalmers v. Shoe Wire Grip Co., 5 Q. P. R. 73.

Petition to Quash Municipal By-law Interlocutory Injunction — Taxation—Items.]—On a motion for the revision of the taxation of the respondent's costs of a motion for an interlocutory injunction incident to a petition to quash a by-law, made by virtue of art, 4858, R. S. Q., the Court will allow a general free of $50, and will disallow a fee draudition; a demand for an injunction grafted on an action of this nature, is itself of the same nature, and the costs thereof ought to be tared as of the second class; the amount payable to the prothonotary on the answer to an application for an interlocutory injunction is $1, as fixed by art, 24 of the tariff, and not the amount payable on a pleading on the merits; and the Court can not, on a taxation, refuse to allow the fee payable on each affidavit filed in support of the petition or against it. Cameron v. Town of Westmount, 7 Q. R. R. 58.

Petition to Set Aside Injunction Order.]—The costs of an advocate upon a petition to set aside a judgment granting an interlocutory injunction before issue of the writ of summons, not being provided for by the tariff, will, under art. 12 of the tariff, be taxed upon the scale applicable to analogous proceedings; and a petition to set aside a judgment in an ordinary case is an analogous proceeding. Ozone Co. of Toronto v. Massicotte, 5 Q. P. R. 176.

Revendication of Insurance Policies —Amount Involved.]—In an action of revendication of insurance policies, which represented the face value of over $200, the costs should be granted according to the actual value of the titles, not according to the value which the titles represented. Bouchard v. Hétu, 6 Q. P. R. 44.

Superior Court — Intervention on Appeal.]—The costs of contestation of an intervention on appeal (to the King's Bench) will be taxed according to the tariff of the Superior Court which would apply to such contestation if it were made in the Superior Court. McNally v. Préfontaine, 4 Q. P. R. 125.

Supreme Court—County Court.] — The costs of an action in the Supreme Court, which might have been brought in the County Court, are not necessarily taxable on the County Court scale. Royal Bank of Canada v. Harris, 8 B. C. R. 398.

Taxiff—Interpretation—Class of Action.]—The allowance of costs, being a matter of statutory declaration and not of right, cannot exceed the limits defined by the text of the statute. Therefore subdivision 7 of the second class of the tariff must apply to the allowance of costs in an action for the rescission of a winding-up order and appointment of a liquidator to a company, although financial interests may be involved in the suit, which, if they formed the subject of the conclusions of the action, would bring it within the first class for the purposes of taxation. Stimeon v. North-West Cattle Co., Q. R. 12 K. B. 365.

Transfer of Action.]—Where a cause begun in the Circuit Court is transferred by the Court, of its own motion, to the Superior Court, by virtue of arg 171, C. P., the costs will be on the scale appropriate to the amount in controversy in the action. Item 108 of the tariff has no application, there having been no evocation. Duval v. Moffatt, 3 Q. P. R. 405.

Transfer of Action—Security for Costs—Event—Revision of Traustion—Jurisletien,]—The fee of the defendant's attorney on a declinatory exception which was maintained, the Court ordering the transmission of the record to another district, is that previded for by art, 7 of the tariff. 2. When a motion for security for costs is granted, costs to follow suit, and the record is subsequently transmitted to another district, the costs will follow the final judgment in the case, and not the judgment maintaining the declinatory exception and ordering the transmission of the record. 3. Where, in an action brought at Montreal, where the transmission of the record to Quebec was ordered, the probability at Montreal, taxed the defendant's Nils of costs, the Judges of the district of Metrical are competent to revise such taxation notwithstanding the judgment ordering the transmission of the record. Canadian Mutual L. & I. Co. v. Tanguay, 3 Q. P. R. 438.

Trespass to Land - Title-Pleading-Amendment-Terms-Discretion.]-In an ac tion in the High Court for trespass of land, of greater value than $200, the plaintiff alleged his tenancy and occupation; the defendant, in his statement of defence, denied both, and asserted title and right to possession in himself, and also pleaded leave and license. About two weeks before the trial the defendant gave notice of motion for leave to amend by withdrawing his denial of the defendant's tenancy, and occupation, and expressly admit-ting both, and withdrawing his own claim to right of possession. Leave to so amend was granted at the trial, terms as to costs being reserved. The jury found against the defence of leave and license, and assessed the plaintiff's damages at $1, for which verdict was entered :-Held, that the original defence raised an issue of title, and it not having been amended until the trial, the plaintiff was obliged to go to trial in the High Court, and was entitled to his costs on the scale of that Court:—Semble, also, that as a matter of discretion under Rule 1130, and perhaps also as a term of allowing the amendment, the same disposition of the costs would be made. Black v. Wheeler, 24 Occ. N. 294, 7 O. L. R. 545, 3 O. W. R. 439.

Where an action for damages for flooding and other trespasses to the plainti.'s lands stuated in the Parry Sound district, was brought in the High Court, and the title to the land was brought in question, and, though no evidence was given as to its value, it could not reasonably be contended that it did not exceed $200, and clause (d) of s.s. 2 of s, 9 of R, S. O. c. 109, giving jurisdiction to inferior Courts, where the land is under such value, not applying to such district, and the Judge at the trial having found for the plaintiff and directed judgment to be entered for him for $100 damages, with the costs of the Court having jurisdiction to such amount, without any set-off, the plaintiff was held entitled to tax his costs on the High Court scale. Decision of Anglin, J., 3 O. W. R, 601, affirmed. Neely v. Parry Sound River Improvement Co., 24 Occ. N. 349, S. O. L. R. 128, 3 O. W. R. 601, 788.

Trespass to Land — Value of Land—Payment of $I$ into Court—Acceptance by Plaintiff.)—In an action for trespass to land, valued at over $200, in which the plaintiff claimed $1,000 damages, and no question of title to land was raised, the defendant paid $I$ into Court, and the plaintiff accepted it:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to his costs on the High Court scale. Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195, followed. Chick v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 12 P. R. 58, and Tobin v. McGillis, ib, 60 n., commented co. McKelvey v. Chiiman, 23 Occ. N. 114, 50 d. L. Withdrawal of Part of Claim—Tastion of Costs—Witness Fees—Foreign Witnesses.]—The fact that the planitif, in an action against the defendants to recover $1,165.28, being $776.85 for the value of goods which had been intrusted to the defendants to be carried, but had not been delivered by them, and $388.46 damages caused by the default to deliver, has filed a retraxit in the course of the suit for $388.73, because the goods have been delivered to him after the commencement of the action, does not take away the right to have his costs taxed as in an action of the first class. 2. The taxation of witnesses subpensed out of the jurisdiction may be revised even when no objection has been made when such costs were being taxed, if the total amount of the costs, as taxed, exceeds the cost of a commission to examine such witnesses. Rothelid v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., Q. R. 21 S. C. 318, 5 Q. P. R. 33.

rallway company, until the end of 1904; and, at the time he commenced his action,
he worked for this company at Cross Lake, in the province of Ontario. The writ of summons described him as of Montreal; and the place of his domicil or residence before his arrival at Montreal was not shewn. The defendant having, by "dilatory exception," demanded security for costs and procuration:
—Held, that the plaintiff did not reside at Cross Lake, his being in that place not constituting a residence within the meaning of Art, 179, C. P. C. The residence of a party is the place where he usually and ordinarily dwells and has a fixed abode. Cills v. Cordasco. O. R. 26 S. C. 68.

Absent Plaintiff—Intention to Return.]—The fact that the plaintiff proposes to return to reside in the Province of Quebec, while he does not actually reside there, does not withdraw him from the obligation to give security for costs. Marino v. Youngheart, 6 Q. P. R. 355.

Absent Plaintiff — One of Several.]—Where one of the plaintiffs lives in the United States, he will be ordered to give security for costs. Kirk v. Lamontagne, 6 Q. P. R. 157.

requiring the plaintiff within three months and scosts ... "—Held, that the agent must be someone having personal knowledge of the facts constituting the defence, and the allegation of the existence of a good defence must be positive. An affidavit by the defendant's advocate that he verily believes the defendant to have a good defence is insufficient on both grounds. Stimpson v. Koss. 5 Terr. L. R. 485.

Increase—Inadequacy — Rules. Dever v. Fairweather, 1 O. W. R. 389.

Increase in Amount - Costs Thrown Away by Postponement of Trial — Amend-ment.]—While the practice as to granting additional security for costs has been relaxed in favour of the granting of such security, the plaintiff, however, must not be checked at every stage of the action by security being ordered dollar for dollar for all costs incurred, or which might be incurred, without regard to the conduct of the parties. On the commencement of an action security to the amount of $200 was ordered. After the action had proceeded, $300 further security was ordered; and, on a commission to take evidence being issued, a further sum of $100. On the action coming on for trial the de-fendants were granted leave to amend their pleadings, and, on the plaintiffs stating that they were not ready to proceed on the amend-ed record, the trial was postponed, the costs of the day being made costs in the cause to the successful party. The defendants then obtained an order from a local Master directing $600 further security to be given. On an appeal to a Judge, the order was set saide:—Semble, that the application for additional security should have been made to the Judge at the trial at the time the post-The first of the first of the first of post-ponement was asked for, Standard Trading Co, v. Infant Plaintiff in Jurisdiction
Adult Plaintiff and Next Friend out of durisdiction — Separate Claims — Appearance—
Præcipe Order, — Action by the father of an infant as next friend and also on his own behalf to recover damages resulting to the father and the infant from an injury to the infant for which it was alleged defendants were liable. The father resided in England, and the infant in Ontario, as shewn by indorsement on writ of summons. Defendants moved for an order for security for costs. Order granted and in default of security being given it directed that the claim of the father be struck out. Felgate v. Hegler, 4 O. W. R. 439, 5 O. W. R. 91, 9 O. L. R. 315.

Infant Plaintiff—Injury to — Action— Joinder of parent—Next friend—Both plaintiffs out of Ontario. Topping v. Everest. 2 O. W. R. 744.

Inscription for Review — Amount of Deposit—Amount Involved.]—Where there is a contest between two creditors of an insolvent as to priority, and judgment has been given declaring one claim prior to the other to the extent of less than $400, the deposit to make when inscribing in review of such judgment is $50, although the two claims aggregate more than $4,000. In re Cantucell, 6 Q. P. R. 195.

Insolvency of Plaintiff—Appeal.] — On an application made by the defendant for security for costs of an appeal by the plaintiff, it appeared that the action had been dismissed with costs, but that no costs had been paid, and that, to an execution issued therefor, return had been made that the plaintiff had no property, within the jurisdiction or elsewhere, to respond the execution. It also appeared that the plaintiff had made an assignment for the general benefit of creditors, and that, on an examination before commissioners, it was shewn that he had no real or personal property, book debts, or assets, that none of his creditors had been paid, and that anything recovered in the action would belong to his creditors—Held, following the practice laid down in Chitty's Archold, p. 3393, that the case was one in which the plaintiff should be ordered to give security. Shand v. Eastern Canada S. & L. Co., 33 N. S. Reps. 241.

Judgment Dismissing Action for Default of — Assignment by Defendant for Benefit of Creditors—Admission of Claim.]—An order was made for security of costs to be given within three months. During this period the defends at made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. The plaintiffs filed their claim with the assignee, and understood, apparently wrongly, that the claim was admitted. Judgment was afterwards signed by the defendant dismissing the action for non-compliance with the order for security. On motion by the plaintiffs the judgment was set aside on 'crms. Macherson Fruit Co. v. England, 5 Terr, L. R. 388.

Libel—Newspaper—Proof of insolvency of plaintiff—Frivolous action—Criminal charge. Gordon v. Star Printing and Publishing Co., 6 O. W. R. 887.

"Libel Contained in a Newspaper.")—The defendant was a country correspondent of the St. Thomas Times, and the action was for an alleged libel, contained is one of his periodical contributions to the paper. A local Judge having ordered the plaintiff to furnish security for the defendant's costs under R. S. O. c. 68, s. 10, on the ground that the alleged libel was "contained in a newspaper:"—Held, on appeal, reversing the order, and following Egan v. Miller, T Occ. N. 443, that only the editor, publisher, or proprietor of a paper is entitled to security for costs under s. 10, and not a mere correspondent. Neil v. Norman, 21 Occ. N. 293.

Long Vacation — Jurisdiction—Opposition.)—The Court has no jurisdiction, in long vacation, to hear a motion for an order requiring security for costs to be given by an opposant à fin de charge. Payette v. Comic Opera Co., 6 Q. P. R. 362.

Money Padd into Coux—Payment out to Successful Party — Proposed Appeal,—Money paid into the High Court by the plaintifis as security for the defendants' costs was ordered by the Master in Chambers to be paid out to the defendants after they had, by the judgment of the Court of Appeal (7 O. L. R. 110), been allowed the costs of the action against the plaintiffs, notwithstanding that the plaintiffs proposed to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. To retain the money in Court would amount to a stay of execution, and if that were desired, the plaintiffs should apply to the Court of Appeal. Rules $27, 832, considered, and the absence of any Rule corresponding to English Order 58, Rule 16, remarked on. Centeur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 22 Occ. N. 253, 24 Occ. N. 209, 1 O. W. R. 255, 344, 4 O. Motion — Formalities.]—A motion for security for costs is a preliminary exception, and must comply with all the formalities required therefor. Turner v. Fee, 6 Q. P. R. 139.

Municipal Corporation — Action Against.]—The deposit of $10, required by Art, 793, C. M., in an action against a municipal corporation, is only as security for costs, and the obligation to make the deposit is not a condition procedent to bringing the action. Précost v. Village of Ashuntic, Q. R, 24 S. C. 408.

Municipality — Action Against — Leposit.]—In an action for damages against a municipality for injuries from an accident upon a street pavement, by reason of the neglect of the municipality to keep it in repair, the plaintiff, if he is not a ratepayer of the municipality, must deposit in the hands of the clerk of the Court a sum of $10 at the time of the issue of a writ of summons as security for costs. Lalonge v. Corporation of $t. Vincent de Paul, 5 Q. P. R. 26.

Nominal Plaintiff — Administrator — Fatal Accidents Act.]—An administrator appointed for the purpose of bringing an action for the benefit of another under s. 3 of the Fatal Accidents Act, R. S. O. c. 168; is not a mere nominal plaintiff bringing such action for the benefit of somebody else, in the sense of the rule which entitles a defendant to security for costs upon shewing that such nominal plaintiff is also insolvent. So held by Meredith, C.J., (dubtante), and by a Divisional Court, in a case where, if the action had been brought in the name of the person beneficially entitled, he would have been required to give security for costs, because out of the jurisdiction, which gave ground for suspecting that the actual plaintiff was put forward for the purpose of enabling the person beneficially interested to escape liability. Sharp v. Grand Trusk E. W. Co., 21 Occ. N. 188, 1 O. L. R. 200.

Nominal Plaintiff—Insolvency—Ejectment — Demise to plaintiff for purpose of enabling him to sue—Indemnity. Gribbon v. King and Spohn, 6 O. W. R. 756, 843.

Nominal Pl:Intiff—Proof of Want of Interest — Inference—Periyur,)—Very clear proof should be given of the lack of substantial interest of the plaintiff in litigation begun by him, before the Court should intercept it at the outset by an order for security for costs. And where, although it was shewn that the plaintiff was without means, it was not established by any legal evidence, but was rather a matter of conjecture and inference, that he was merely a nominal party suing for the benefit of some one outside of the litigation, a motion for security for costs was refused. There may be strong suspicion or even probable inference that the action, if successful, may enure to the benefit of the outsider; but where the contrary is shewn by all the parties to the transaction, the Court hesitates to find perjury for the purpose of ordering security for costs. Prichard v. Pattison, 21 Occ. N. 80, 1 O. L. B. 37.

Partnership — Non-resident Partner—Power of Attorney—Costs of Motion.]—In non-resident member will be ordered to give security for costs; but no power of attorney will be required in such case, the resident partner being presumed to have sufficient authority; and the costs of a motion for security for costs which is contested, will go against the contesting party. Brown v.

Petition of Right — Application by Crown—Limited Company — Practice.]—Sec-tion 69 of the Companies Act, 1862, 25 & 26 V. (U. K.) c. 89, provides that, where a limicompany is plaintiff in any action, any Judge having jurisdiction in the matter may, if it appears by any credible testimony that there is reason to believe that if the defendant be successful in his defence the assets of the company will be sufficient to pay the costs, require sufficient security to be given for such costs, and may stay all proceedings until such security is given. By s. 7 of the English Petition of Right Act, 23 & 24 V. c. 34, it is, among other things, provided that the statutes and practice in force in perthat the statutes and practice in force in per-sonal actions between subject and subject shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, ex-tend to petitions of right. The practice in the Exchequer Court is in this respect the same as the practice in England. In a proceeding by petition of right in the Exchequer Court application was made for security for costs under the provision first mentioned. for costs under the provision lists. There was nothing to shew that it had ever been acted on in a proceeding by petition of right in England:—Held, that the question of the application of the provision first mentioned to such cases was not sufficiently free from doubt to justify the granting of the application. Plaintiff Ceasing to Reside within Jurisdiction — Proceedings after Judgment —Procuration.]—A plaintiff who, after obtaining judgment in his favour, ceases to reside within the province of Quebec, and then proceeds to enforce his judgment by garnishment, may be ordered to furnish security for costs, but not a procuration. Lavallée v. Lavallée, 7 Q. P. R. 35.

Plaintiff Coming into Jurisdiction-Relief-Terms.]-A foreign plaintiff obliged to furnish security for costs may, if he comes to reside in the province of Quebec before the expiration of the time within which he is or-dered to furnish security, be relieved of his obligation on paying the costs of the order and of his motion. Radford v. Brophy, 5 Q.

Plaintiff Leaving Jurisdiction — Temporary Absence.]—When in the course of a suit the plaintiff leaves the province of Quebec, security for costs will not be ordered unless a change of residence is clearly established, and proof of mere temporary absence will not suffice. Plaintiff Out of Jurisdiction-Delay in Applying.]—The action was begun on the 12th February, 1901; statement of claim delivered on the 10th June, 1901; statement of defence on the 20th June, 1901; and the action was set down for trial at a sittings beginning on the 16th September, 1901. The trial was, by consent, adjourned until the winter sittings, the defendants desiring to examine one C. who was present when the plaintiff was injured. On the 25th September, 1901, the plaintiff came from Pittsburgh to Toronto and submitted himself to examination by the defendants for discovery. He then stated that he was living at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, that his family were there, and that he did not intend to return. After the injury on account of which the action was brought, the plaintiff was brought to Toronto, August, 1900, where he lived until August, 1901, when he went to Pittsburgh. After the examination for discovery in September the defendants issued a commission to Montreal to examine C. as a witness, and he was examined thereunder early in December. In the same month the plaintiff examined the defendants for discovery, and gave notice of trial for a sittings beginning on the 6th January, 1902. The defendants launched a motion for security for costs on the 19th December, 1901:—Held, that the delay in moving after the information obtained in September, 1901, was not sufficiently explained by the allegation that the defendants were waiting until after the examination of C., in order that they might be able to swear to a defence on the merits. Plaintiff Out of Jurisdiction-Return -Ordinary Residence.]-The plaintiff was a British subject, and was always a resident of Ontario until his second marriage in 1896, since when he had been living and working part of the time in the State of Michigan and part of the time in Ontario; he had no property or means in Ontario; his wife had a home in Michigan, and after his marriage he made that his place of residence so far as possible, and had no other place of residence. possible, and had no other place of residence. When this action was begun in March, 1901, the plaintiff was at his wife's home in Michigan, and his solicitor indorsed that as his place of residence on the writ of summons. In January, 1902, after delivery of statements of claim and defence, the defendants obtained under Rule 1199, on præcipe, an order for security for costs. The plaintiff and his wife had then come to Outario for the winter and were boarding at an hotel. The plaintiff stated on affidavit that he had come to reside permanently in Outario:—Held, that the plaintiff actually resided out of Outario when the præcipe order was made: but, security not having been given, he might be relieved from that order if he was now actually, and intended to remain, a resident of Outario. Upon the evidence, however, such was not the case; the plaintiff's place of residence was in Michigan, and was likely so to remain:—Held, also, that if the præcipe order were set aside, an order under Rule 1198 (b) for security for costs, on the ground that the plaintiff's ordinary place of residence was at his wife's home in Michigan, would be properly made. Public Officer—Police Sergeant—Information.]—Held, that the defendant, a police sergeant, laying an information against a cab-driver for using obseene and grossly insulting language, was an officer or person fulfilling a public duty and acting in the performance of such public duty, within the meaning of R. S. O. c. SS, s. 1, and was therefore entitled under R. S. O. c. S9 to security for costs of an action brought against him by the cab-driver for falsely and maliciously laying such information. Earcs v. Wesbitt, 21 Occ. N. 190, 10 O. L. R. 244.

Public Officers — Policemen — Action against—Trespass—Warrant,]—The defendants, police officers, having a warrant to arrest a man, by mistake entered the house of his neighbour, the plaintiff, to execute the warrant, but did not actually arrest the plaintiff, and withdrew on finding their mistake. The plaintiff sued for trespass and assault:—Held, that, as the defendants were acting in good faith under warrant, and had complied with the requirements of s. 2 of R. S. O. 1897 c. S9, they were entitled under that Act to an order for security for costs. Lewis v. Daiby, 22 Occ. N. 112, 3 O. L. R. 301.

Qui Tam Action—Preliminary Exception—Deposit—Chambers Motion.]—A motion for security judicatum solvi in a qui tam action is a preliminary exception which must be accompanied by the deposit required by Art. 165, C. P., even since the amendment by 1 Edw. VII. c. 24.—2. The fact that a motion is brought before a Judge in Chambers does not change the nature of it, and if it is not accompanied by a certificate of the deposit required by law, it will be dismissed. Raymond v. Larouche, 6 Q. P. R. 39.

Real Property Act-Petition-Caveator out of Province — Property in Province — Mortgage — Pracipe — Irregularity,] — A caveator proceeding under the Real Property Act by way of petition to establish a claim to the land after service of notice at the instance of the applicant for a certificate of title must, as a general rule, be treated as the plaintiff in the proceedings, and, if he is resident out of the jurisdiction, must give security for the caveatee's costs. 2. That the caveator's claim in respect of a registered mortgage on the land, upon which he swears there is money owing and unpaid. will not take the case out of the general rule, if the caveatee in good faith disputes that there is anything due or owing on the mortgage. 3. Under such circumstances the ownership of the mortgage within the jurisdiction will not relieve a caveator from the necessity of furnishing other security for costs. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 18 P. R. 55, distinguished. Objection was taken to the regularity of the præcipe, being the first proceeding taken by the caveatee in the matter, for want of the indorsement of his place of residence and description upon it, as required by the practice of the Court :-- Held, that under Rule 335 of the King's Bench Act, no effect should be given to the objection, as it was purely technical, and it did not appear that the interests of the caveator had been or could be affected by the irregularity, if it were one. Lang v. Smith, 14 Man. L. R. 258.

 Residence Abroad—Both Parties.]—A defendant who resides abroad can require a plaintiff residing abroad to give security for costs, under Art. 179, C. P. Robert v. Schiller, 3 Q. P. R. 390.

Residence Abroad — Both Parties — Rival Claimants of Fund.] — Where both plaintiffs and defendants were resident out of Ontario and both claimed a fund of $500, bequeathed by a will, both were required to give security, each to the other, for the costs of an issue directed to be tried. In re La Compagnie Générale d'Eaux Minérales, [1891] 1 Ch. 451, followed. Re Societé Anonyme des Verreries de l'Étoite, 10 Pat. Cas. 250, distinguished. Sinclair v. Campbell, 21 Occ. N. 382, 2 O. L. R. 1.

Residence Abroad — Business in Province,] — Plaintiffs residing in the province of Ontario, although having a place of business in the province of Quebec, must give security for the defendant's costs of an action begun in the latter province. Ross v. International Hydraulic Co., Q. R, 18 S. C. 439.

Residence Abroad—Defendant Out of Jurisdiction—Surrogate Court Proceedings—Real Actor.]—The plaintiff applied to a Surrogate Court for grant to him of letters probate as the executor named in a will. The defendant having filed a cavent and entered an appearance, the plaintiff delivered a statement of claim praying the Court to decree probate of the will in solemn form, and the defendant delivered a statement of defence disputing the factum of the will. The plaintiff then obtained an order for the removal of the proceedings into the High Court: — Held, that, according to the practice and procedure of the High Court, which was applicable, the plaintiff was not entitled to security for costs from the defendant, who was out of the Jurisdiction. Ward v. Benson, 21 Occ. N. 531, 2 O. L. R. 336.

Residence Abroad — Forcign Company, — An American steamship company having its head office in Seattle was the lessee of certain premises in Victoria, where applications for freight and passage could be made to an agent:—Held, that the company was a foreign company within the meaning of s. 144 of the Companies Act, and was bound to give security for costs. Alaska Steamship Co, v. Macaulay, 8 B. C. R. 84.

Residence Abroad—Opposition — Contestant, 1—Where an opposition is filed to a seizure in execution of a judgment, the opposant is the person who "institutes a proceeding" within the meaning of Art. 29, C. C., and he is not entitled to ask for security for costs from the plaintiff contesting the opposition on the ground that he resides out of the province. Chenel v. Jobin, Q. R. 18 S. C. 393, 3 Q. P. R. 355.

Residence Abroad—"Plaintiff"—Claim by Defendant against Co-defendant.]—Where a defendant proceeds under Rule 215 to seek relief from a co-defendant which he would not be entitled to upon the pleadings and proofs between the plaintiff and defendant, he is a "plaintiff" within the meaning of Rule 1198, and, if resident out of the jurisdiction, is liable to an order for security for costs. Walmsley v. Griffith, 11 P. R. 139, considered. Molsons Bank v. Sawyer, 21 Occ. N. 27, 19 P. R. 316.

Residence Abroad—Return to Jurisdiction—Costs of Motion.]—If, between the service of a notice of motion for security for costs and the presentation thereof, the plaintiff becomes a resident of the province, the motion for security for costs will not be granted, but the costs thereof will follow the result of the suit. Martel de la Chesnaye v. Leduc, 3 Q. P. R. 385.

Residence Abroad — Temporary Residence in Jurisdiction.] — A foreigner usually residing abroad who, before the order for security is granted, has come to reside temporarily within the jurisdiction for the purpose only of prosecuting his action, cannot be compelled to give security for costs. Violette v. Martin, 20 Occ. N. 88, 35 N. B. Reps. 74.

Residence Out of Province—Family in Province—Business Out of,1—The plaintiff was manager of a joint stock company, carrying on business in Ontario, with his head office at Woodstock. His wife and family resided at Woodstock. He was agent of the company at Detroit, but visited his family once a fortnight, and sometimes once a month, but not as a rule for fonger than a day and a half at a time:—Held, on motion for security for costs under Rule 1198 (a), that the plaintiff under the above circumstances must be taken to reside in Ontario. Moflatt v. Leonard, 23 Occ. N. 306, 6 O. L. R. 383, 2 O. W. R. 787, 3 O. W. R. 683, Residence Out of Province—Petition for Interlocutory Injunction.]—A motion for an interlocutory injunction.]—A motion for an interlocutory injunction made by petition before the issue of the writ of summons, is not an action or a suit or a process, and the party making such motion cannot, even if he does not reside in the province of Quebec, be ordered to furnish security for the costs of the petition. Ozone Co. of Toronto v. Lyons, 5 Q. P. R. 238.

Residence Out of Province—Plaintiff a Judgment Creditor of Defendant.]—Where plaintiff, a resident out of the jurisdiction, having a judgment in the St. John County Court against the defendant for 867.75, which was defeated by certain conveyances made by the defendant, brought a suit to have the same set aside as fraudulent and void, he was ordered to give security for costs. Gould v. Britt. 23 Occ. N. 231, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 453.

Residence Out of Province — Rule 1198 (b).]—A man of about thirty years of age, who had since childhood lived in the United States, came to Toronto in October, 1902, to inspect for his employers, brokers in New York, a branch office in Toronto. He was then instructed by his employers to act as telegraph operator in the Toronto office. These brokers gave up business in a few weeks, and he then was employed as a telegraph operator by their successors. The business of the successors also came to an end within a few weeks, and in connection with that business the plaintiff was accused by the defendant of fraud, and arrested, this action for damages being brought in consequence thereof. He was an unmarried man, and had been in the habit of living with his mother in Kansas City when out of employment, and he stated on cross-examination that he would return to the United States if he could find employment there:—Held, that under these circumstances the defendant was entitled to security for costs of the action. Kavanaugh v. Cassidy, 23 Occ. N. 224, 5 O. L. R. 614. S. C. sub poun. Cavanagh v. Cassidy, 2 O. W. R. 27, 143, 303, 391.

Several Defendants—Separate orders for security — Compliance with — Sufficiency—Further order. Urquhart v. Aird, 4 O. W. R. 501, 6 O. W. R. 155, 506.

Several Defendants — Solicitor defending by partner—Right to profit costs—Increased security—Measure of—Costs of examination for discovery, Carew-Gibson v. Millar, 3 O. W. R. 417.

Slander Imputing Unchastity to Married Woman—Action by husband and wife—Separation of causes of action—Pleading. Clark v. Cameron, 6 O. W. R. 831.

Stay of Proceedings—Non-payment of interlocutory costs—Dismissal of interlocutory motions with costs payable forthwith—Vexatious or frivolous motions. Keogh v. Brady, 6 O. W. R. 552, 846.

VIII. SECURITY FOR-DISPENSING WITH,

Appeal to Court of Appeal—Poverty of Appellant—Infancy—Divisional Court.]—Security for costs of an appeal to the Court of Appeal was dispensed with, under the power given by Rule 826, where the appellant was an infant suing by her next friend, and unable, by reason of poverty, to give or procure security, the circumstances being that her action had been dismissed by the Judge at the trial, following a reported decision of a Divisional Court, with which the appellant would be met if she appealed to a Divisional Court, which she was at liberty to do without giving security. Fahey v. Jephcott, 21 Occ. N. 155, 1 O. L. R. 198.

IX. SECURITY FOR COSTS-PRACTICE AS TO.

Affidavit — Information.]—An affidavit in support of a motion for security for costs, in which the deponent does not say that he personally knows that the plaintiff no longer has his domicil in the province of Quebec, but simply that some one has told him so, is insufficient. Bourassa v. Confederation Life Assn., 4 Q. P. R. 284.

Affidavit of Merits—Discretion—Cross-examination.]—The practice under R. 520 of the J. O. (C. O. 1898 c. 21), as to security for costs, differs from the English practice in making it obligatory upon the defendant to file the affidavit of himself or his agent alleging he has a good defence on the merits. Quere, whether it is necessary to set out the grounds of defence. This Rule leaves the granting of the security to the discretion of the Judge under the circumstances of each case. The Judge may order the deponent to be cross-examined upon his adfidavit as to the nature of the alleged defence before deciding the motion. Judget the circumstances of this case the Judge was held to have exercised a proper discretion in refusing security. Clark v. Hamilton, 21 Occ. N. 323, 5 Terr. L. R. 110.

Appeal — Chambers Orders.]—An order was made in Chambers allowing the plaintiff to amend his writ, and another order was also made dismissing the defendant's application to set aside the writ. The defendant by one notice appealed from both orders:—Held, two separate appeals, and that security for costs as of one appeal was insufficient. Sehl v. Tugwell, 7 B. C. R. 359.

Appeal to King's Bench.—Application of Security to Further Appeal,—The bond given by a surety for the effective prosecution of an appeal to the Court of King's Bench, and the undertaking therein to pay the amount of the condemnation which may be ordered if the judgment appealed from be confirmed, applies to a confirmation by the Court to which the appeal is made. The obligation of the surety in such case becomes extinct if the judgment be reversed by the Court of King's Bench, and does not revive if the judgment of the Court of King's Bench be subsequently set aside by a higher Court. Judgment in Q. R. 19 S. C. 571 affirmed. Guertin v. Molleur, Q R. 21 S. C. 261.

Application to Increase Amount— Waiver of Objection.]—A respondent by applying to increase the amount of security for costs upon an appeal waives his right to object that the security was not originally furnished in time. In re Oro Fino Mines, Limited, 7 B. C. R. 38.

Continuance of Original Security Pending Appeal.]—The plaintiffs, resident outside the jurisdiction, lodged in Court an undertaking as security for costs. At the trial the plaintiffs succeeded, and the defendants appealed, but before the determination of the appeal the plaintiffs applied for a release of the undertaking:—Held, that the security should stand pending the appeal. Bird v. Vieth, 7 B. C. R. 511.

Dilatory Exception—Deposit — Certificate—Notice—Amendment.]—A motion for security for costs is a dilatory exception, and cannot be granted unless notice of the prothonotary's certificate attesting that the deposit required by law has been duly made, has been given to the opposite party.—2. The Court cannot remedy such omission by permitting the party moving for security to give notice of the deposit and certificate. Wistar v. Dunham, 4 Q. P. R. 195.

Extension of Time for Giving, after Expiry—Mistake of Solicitor.]—An order for security for costs contained the following provision: "That in case default is made in giving security within the time aforesaid, this action be dismissed with costs." After the expiry of the time limited, plaintiff's solicitor moved to have the time enlarged, on the ground that it was by reason of a mistake on his part, that security was not given in time:—Held, that, notwithstanding the expiry of the time limited in the order, a Judge had jurisdiction to enteriain an application on behalf of plaintiff to enlarge the time, to enable him to comply with the order. Ordicay v. Le Blanc, 33 N. S. Reps. 185.

Inscription en Faux—Amount of Deposit—Increase or Reduction.]—The Court, after having fixed the amount of a deposit to be made by a party who inscribes en faux cannot increase or reduce such amount, especially when the cause is before the Court upon such inscription. Léveillé v. Kauntz, 5 Q. P. R. 101.

Merits of Defence-Discretion.]-The defendant, who was sued on three bills of exchange, moved for security for costs on an affidavit that he had a good defence to the action on the merits, and that he had overjurisdiction. The plaintiff did not cross-ex-amine the defendant on this affidavit, but filed affidavits shewing admissions of the indebtedness by the defendant. These affidavits were not answered or explained. Rule of Court in force in the Territories requires an affidavit of merits: - Held, that the Judge ought not upon an application for security to try out the merits of the defence, but he may, in his discretion, inquire whether the alleged merits are not a mere pretence; and the defendant in this case having disclosed the nature of his merits, the discretion of a Judge in refusing to order security for costs should not be interfered with on appeal. Clark v. Hamilton, 21 Occ. N. 323.

Motion—Notice — Certificate.]—Upon a motion for security for costs, it is not necessary to give notice of the certificate of the prothonotary that the deposit required has been made. Wilder v. Wilder, 4 Q. P. R. 433.

Motion—Notice — Certificate—Deposit.]
—Where, in the notice of the presentation of a motion for security for costs, no notice is given of the certificate of the prothonotary that the deposit required by law has been made, the motion will be rejected with costs. Robertson v. Cobban Mfg. Co., 4 Q. P. R. 345. But see Tongain v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., tb. 284, 303.

Motion—Notice — Certificate—Deposit.]

—Upon a motion for security for costs, it is not necessary to give notice of the certificate of the prothonotary that the necessary deposit has been made. Tougain v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., 4 Q. P. R. 303.

Motion—Time—One Plaintiff Out of Jurisidiction—Coats of Contexted Motion.]—A motion for security for costs and production of power of attorney, notice of which has been given for the 1st September, may be presented on the 10th September, that being the first day of the sittings of the Court.—2. A co-plaintiff out of the jurisdiction is subject to the obligation of furnishing security and producing a power of attorney. Semble, that in such circumstances a plaintiff who contests the demand of security and power of attorney will be adjudged to pay costs. Slater Shoe Co. v. Trudeau, 5 Q. P. R. 120.

Non-compliance with Order—Neglect to indorse order with notice under Rule 329—Notice not applicable. Thomas v. Olark (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 512, 2 W. L. R. 126.

Order for—Time for Furnishing—Default — Dismissal of Action — Extension of Time.]—It an order granting a motion for security for costs does not fix the time within which such security is to be furnished, a second motion for the dismissal of the action on the ground of the default of the plaintiff to obey the order, will not be granted, but the Court will allow further time to the plaintiff to furnish the security required by the first order. Grenier v. Jacques Cartier Pulp and Paper Co., 5 Q. P. R. 84.

Penalty—Action for—Alien Labour Act.]
—The plaintiff in an action brought to recover the penalty provided by the Alien Labour Act (60 & 61 V. c. 11, 1 Edw. VII. c. 13) is bound to give security for costs. Lawrin v. Raymond, 7 Q. P. R. 209.

Power of Attriney—Stay of Proceedings—Dilatory Exception—Certificate—Deposit—Vacation.]—Although the defendant may apply to a Judge or the prothonotary, out of term, for a stay of proceedings until security be given, he can only invoke the absence of a power of attorney to obtain a stay of proceedings until its production, by means of a dilatory exception, which can only be urged by a motion presented to the Court. 2, Such dilatory exception cannot be presented unless accompanied by a certificate from the prothonotary establishing the deposit in his office of the sum fixed by the rule of practice, and the defendant cannot afterwards apply orally to make such deposit, the making of such deposit not having the effect of making a motion addressed to the Judge or prothonotary a dilatory exception. 3. The Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a motion for security for costs and power of attorney between the 30th June and 1st September. Mitchell v. Meldon, 5 Q. P. R. 83.

Preliminary Plea—Deposit.]—A motion by which a defendant demands security for costs is a preliminary plea, and cannot be made without a deposit. 2. The Court has no right to give to a defendant who has not made such deposit time to make it. Macdonald v. Victoria Montreal Fire Assec. Co., Q. R. 18 S. C. 468.

Preliminary Plea — Deposit — Law Stamps.]—A motion for security for costs, even when not accompanied by a demand of procuration, is a preliminary exception, and will be dismissed if made without a deposit and with nothing more than the stamps requisite for a motion. Taylor v. Victoria Montreal Fire Ins. Co., 3 Q. P. R. 467.

Proceeding against Defaulting Witness.]—A witness against whom a rule nisi is asked for default of appearing, cannot require a bond as security for costs and power of attorney to be given, such a proceeding not being the institution of an action. In re May v. Isachekawa, 7 Q. P. R. 107.

Rule 1198 (c)—Previous action for same cause against another defendant. Heyder v. New Ontario S. S. Co., 6 O. W. R. 886.

Several Defendants—Pracipe Orders.]
—One of the defendants having obtained on praceipe an order for security for costs, the plaintiffs complied with it by paying $200 into Court, after which another defendant, without notice of the previous order or of the payment into Court thereunder, obtained an order on praceipe for security for costs on his own behalf:—Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to obtain an order providing that the security given by them should stand as security for the costs of all the defendants, but were not entitled to have the second order for security set aside as irregular. Syracuse Smelting Works v. Stevens, 21 Occ. N. 441, 20 occ. N. 441, 21 Co. L. R. 141.

Stage when Ordered—Exchequer Court of Canada.]—Under the present practice of the Court an order for security for costs may be made at any stage of the proceedings in a cause. Wood v. The Queen, 7 S. C. R. 634, referred to. Boston Rubber Shoe Co. v. Boston Rubber Co. of Montreal, 21 Occ. N. 279, 7 Ex. C. R. 47.

Stay of Proceedings until Given — Authority of Solicitor — Time for Motion — Deposit, 1—A motion for a stay of proceedings in an action until the plaintiff should give security for costs and until his attorneys should produce a special procuration, is in the nature of a dilatory exception, and it should be made within the time allowed for preliminary pleadings, and accompanied by a deposit, even since the amendment made to Art. 165, C. P., by I Edw. VII. c. 34 (Q.) Singer Mfg. Co. v. Young, Q. R. 19 S. C. 396.

Time—Delay—Deposit.]—A motion for security for costs can be made pendente lite, upon producing an affidavit stating that, since the institution of the action, the plaintiff has ceased to reside in the Province of Quebec. 2. Such motion will be granted if made within three days after the defendant has been informed of the plaintiff's change of residence. 3. Such motion need not be accompanied by the deposit required by Art. 165, C. P. Vanier v. Hurtubise, 4 Q. P. R. 53.

Time—Notice—Surety—Attorney for.]—
If a party required to give security for costs does not furnish it on the day fixed, such party cannot afterwards give it except after a new notice of one clear day to the opposite party. 2. A judicial surety cannot be represented by an attorney for the purpose of giving security. Deliste v. McCrea, Q. R. 21 S. C. 419.

Trust Company's Bond.]—A trust company cannot force a party to accept as security for costs a bond executed by the company for a specific amount, nor force the prothonotary to accept such security. Ashworth v, Montreal and Atlantic R. W. Co., 5 Q. P. R. 29.

X. TAXATION.

Abandoned Appeal—Order.]—The production of the notice of the abandonment of an appeal will be sufficient authority for the taxing officer to tax the respondent's costs of the appeal, and an order is not necessary. Fry v. Botsford, 9 B. C. R. 165.

Acquiescence—Fee on Foreign Commission—Settlement of Action.]—The receipt of a cheque in payment of fees taxed, and the signature to an acknowledement thereof, do not amount to acquiescence in the taxation when the cheque has not been presented for payment, the advocate having the conduct of the cause not finding the amount of it sufficient. 2. The advocate of one party who does not join in a foreign commission, nevertheless, has a right to the fee provided by art. 98 of the tarilf, if he has received instructions, examined the documents, etc. 3. A fee, upon the hearing is not allowed in a cause declared to have been settled between the parties upon the day on which it has been called for hearing. Seasmencin v. Pillow Hersey Manufacturing Co., 6 Q. P. R. 320.

Action Dismissed as Regards One Plaintiff—Several Defendants—Defence in Law, 1—Where an action brought by two plaintiffs is dismissed, upon defence in law, as to one of them, each of the two defendants is entitled only to half the costs of an action adjudicated after the filing of a plea to the merits. Major v. Paquet, 6 Q. P. R. 210.

Actions Tried Together — Separate Fees.]—Where several actions for damages have been joined for the purposes of examination and hearing, and judgments have been given for different amounts, it cannot be said that the examination and hearing have been absolutely the same in the different actions, and therefore a separate fee may be allowed in each action. Ritson v. Arnold, 6 Q. P. R. 239.

Actions Tried Together — Separate Fees.]—When several issues are united for trial, and there is only one enquête and examination of witnesses, one argument, and one judgment on the several issues, the attorriey is not entitled to fees of enquête and argument as if there had been separate trials. Demers v. Sanche, 6 Q. P. R. 241.

Affidavits—Irregular Filing.]—The costs of affidavits for use on a motion in the Weekly Court, filed with the Clerk in Chambers, instead of in the Registrar's office, as required by Rule 102, should nevertheless be taxed, if otherwise taxable, where such affidavits have been before the Court on the motion and are recited in the order made thereon. Surgeon Falls Electric Light and Power Co. v. Town of Surgeon Falls, 21 Occ. N. 33, 19 P. R. 286.

Affidavits — Motion for Interim Injunction.]—In the absence of any objection of the adverse party or of any remark of the Judge as to the number of affidavits filed in support of or against a petition for an interim injunction, the successful party is entitled to a fee upon each affidavit. Brault v. Lambert, 6 Q. P. R. 402.

Appeal to Full Court — Costs not Specifically Awarded—Statute.]—The costs of an appeal may be taxed to the successful party although not specifically awarded by the judgment. Supreme Court Act (1983-4), s. 20, s.-s. 7. Kickbush v. Cawley, 11 B. C. R. 151, 1 W. L. R. 18.

Appeal to Privy Council -Costs Incurred in Canada—Taxation — Rule 1256— Non-retroactivity.] — Rule 1256, providing that when the costs incurred in Canada of an appeal to the Privy Council have been awarded, and have not been taxed by the awarded, and have not been taxed by the registrar of the Privy Council, they may be taxed by the senior taxing officer, and the axation shall be according to the scale of the Privy Council, is not to be construed as applying to a case in which the judgment enfitling a party to costs was entered before the Rule was made. The quantum of costs, as well as the right to them, is ascertained at the time of the judgment, and the quanum cannot, without the clearest words, be altered by a subsequent change in the tariff, or by the creation of a tariff which had no existence until after the judgment. Earle v. Burland, 24 Occ. N. 355, 8 O. L. R. 174, 3 o. W. R. 702.

Compensation for Lands Taken for Railway — Arbitration — Claimants severing—Estates under will. Re Murphy and Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, and Pontypool R. W. Co., 6 O. W. R. 361.

Conservatory Intervention—Leave to Contest, 1— The original plaintiff, who obtains leave to contest, after inscription exparte, a conservatory intervention, will be endered to pay the difference between the fees provided by art. 8, and those provided by art. 10 of the tariff. Williamson v. Bradshaw, 6 Q. P. R. 385.

Costs of Appeal—Dismissal as to One pray—Half Feex.]—Where an appeal is dismissed upon motion as to one of the parties only, the advocate's fee will be the whole fee fixed by the tariff, and not merely the laff of such fee. Leduc v. Parish of St. Losis de Gonzague, 5 Q. P. R. 448.

Counsel Fee — Adjournment of Hearing of Appeal — Nepotiations for Settlement.]—
After an appeal was opened, it stood over at the suggestion of the Court in order to give the parties an opportunity to settle; the agoliations for settlement were unsuccessing; and the appeal was ultimately dismissed with costs:—Held, that the successful party as entitled (1) to a counsel fee (under item 24 of the tariff of costs) on the first day's learing, and (2) to an allowance for costs of the negotiations for settlement under item 3 of schedule No. 4. Milton v. District of Surey, 10 B. C. R. 325.

Counsel Fees—Adjournment of Trial.]— Event as otherwise specially provided, only as connsel fee can be taxed in an action. Seth fee must be taxed on the completion of the action, and cannot be taxed before that event is reached. Where on a motion for a continuance, based upon the absence through illness of the defendant, who was alleed to be a necessary and material witness is his own behalf, the continuance prayed for was granted on payment by the defendant of costs of the day:—Held, that a counsel is was improperly allowed as part of such osts; and an appeal from an order reviewing the taxation and striking out the item was dismissed. Acadia Loan Corporation v. Weathearth, 37 N. S. Reps. 316.

Counsel Fees—Demand of Abandonment —Contestation.]—The fees upon a contestation of a demand of abandonment are those

Counsel Fees—Exception to the Form.]
—The fees of an advocate upon an exception to the form dismissed are those mentioned in item 23 of the tariff of the Superior Court, and not fees appropriate to a simple motion. Fonderic de Drummondville v. Robillard, 3 Q. P. R. 378.

Counsel Fees — Revising Pleadings.]—
The fee allowed by item 230 of the tariff for settling and revising refers to a party's own pleadings, and not to the pleadings received from the opposite party, and the allowance on a taxation of a fee of $10 to the plaintiff on receipt of the statement of defence, as "fee to counsel advising thereon," is improper, but, in a special case, a fee may be allowed under item 229. Blair v. British Columbia Express Co., 11 B. C. R. 153.

Counsel Fees Paid to Partner of Litigant — Affidavit of Payment made by Counsel-Disallowing Costs of-Brief-Correspondence.]-Where counsel fees were paid by a member of a firm of barristers and solicitors, to his partner for the latter's services as counsel in an action in which the former was defendant, under a prior agreement to pay such fees as would be payable to counsel outside the firm :-Held, that such counsel fees should be taxed to the defendant against the plaintiff under a judgment dismissing the action with costs. Henderson v. Comer, 3 U. C. L. J. O. S. 29, followed. Upon the taxation the defendant made an affidavit of payment of fees to his partner, and the latter also made an affidavit, upon which he was cross-examined :-Held, that the defendant was not entitled to tax the costs of or occasioned by the latter affidavit :- Held, also, per Britton, J., that the discretion of the taxing officer in allowing the defendant the costs of briefing correspondence between the parties, should not be interfered with on appeal, although the correspondence was not used at the trial. Johnston v. Ryckman, 24 Occ. N. 221, 7 O. L. R. 511, 1 O. W. R. 720, 2 O. W. R. 1088, 1113, 3 O. W. R. 198.

Counterclaim — Instructions — Brief—Counsel Fees—Outs of Taxation and Appeals.]—In an action to which the defendant pleaded a counterclaim, the plaintiff was held entitled to the costs of the action, and the defendant to the costs of the counterclaim:—Held, that the defendant, as part of her costs, was entitled to tax a counsel fee, and that the fact that there was no reply to the counterclaim was not material, it being the existence of the defence to the action which determined whether it was a case for a counsel fee or not:—Held, following Atlas Metal Co. v. Miller, [1898] 2 Q. B. 506, that the defendant was not entitled to tax "instructions to sue," but was entitled to tax "instructions for counterclaim." With respect to the amount of "brief" and "counsel fee" taxed, the taxing master's judzupent ought not to be disturbed, especially after it had been affirmed by a Judge. The "one-sixth rule" (O. 63, r. 23) is imperative, and there being in this case no reason for departure from it, the appeal of each party should have been and should now be dismissed with costs. Bauld v. Fraser, 36 N. S. Reps. 21.

Criminal Libel — Action — Stay — Criminal Code, ss. 833-5]—N., after his acquittal (at the third trial) on a charge of criminal libel, proceeded to tax his costs as provided by the Criminal Code, and moved before the trial Judge for the costs of some commission evidence used at the first trial. The motion was dismissed (22 Occ. N. 275, 8 B. C. R. 276, Rex v. Nichol), and it was decided that the prosecutors were not liable for the costs of the two abortive trials. As there was no appeal from that order, N. abandoned the taxation, and commenced this action for his costs. The defendants applied for a stay of proceedings:—Held, that the plaintiff should not be allowed to pursue both remedies at once, but, as in the other proceeding there was no appeal, this action should be allowed to proceed, provided that the plaintiff would undertake to abide by such order as might be made at the trial with regard to the costs of the taxation proceedings thrown away, and in the event of the plaintiff giving such undertaking the taxation proceedings should be stayed. Nichol v. Pooley, 22 Occ. N. 127, 9 B. C. R. 21, 363.

Deposition in Circuit Court.] — The costs of a deposition taken, on consent of parties by stenography, cannot be taxed in a Circuit Court. Lewis v. Hudson's Bay Co., 6 Q. P. R. 97.

Desistment—Fee on Hearing — Inscription.]—When the plaintiff desists from his demand after inscription for hearing on the merits, the defendant has no right to the fee upon the hearing allowed by art. 36 of the tariff. Bigras v. Viau, 6 Q. P. R. 332.

Distribution of Costs—Several Causes of Action—Judgment, 1—The judgment in an action for slander provided "that the plaintiff do recover against the defendant in respect of the matters set forth in the 3rd and 5th paragraphs of the statement of claim the sum of $1 and costs to be taxed," and "that the defendant recover from the plaintiff in respect of the matters set forth in the 4th and 6th paragraphs of the statement of claim his costs to be taxed."—Held, affirming the decision of Meredith, C.J., that the taxing officer rightly taxed under the judgment to the plaintiff the general costs of the cause, except so much of them as were occasioned by the causes of action upon which he failed, and to the defendant only the costs of the issues upon which he succeeded, the latter being set off. Sparrow v. Hill, 7 Q. B. D. 362, 8 Q. B. D. 479, followed. Davis v. Hord, 22 Occ. N. 285, 292, 4 O. L. R. 466, 1 O. W. R. 418, 471.

Distribution—Part failure—Jurisdiction of taxing officer—Objection—Waiver. Pugh v. Hogate, 3 O. W. R. 799, 4 O. W. R. 212.

Double Fees — Cross-demurrers.]—The defendant answered the action by a demurrer and by a special plea; the plaintiff demurred to the latter; and the parties were heard upon these two issues of law. The demurrer of the defendant was overruled with costs, and the demurrer of the plaintiff was allowed with costs. The prothonotary allowed the plaintiff, pursuant to art. 24 of the Superior Court tariff, a fee upon the demurrer of the defendant and another upon the plaintiff's own demurrer, seeing that he had succeeded upon the two issues. This was affirmed upon revision. Luneau v. Luneau v

Examination for Discovery—Rulng of senior taking officer—Appeal—Time—Extension—Rules 767, 774. Mann v. Crittenden, 6 O. W. R. 799, 11 O. L. R. 46.

Exhibit—Specially Obtained Document.]
—The costs in relation to an exhibit which forms part of the documents of title of the party who files it, should not be included in taxation unless it is stated that such copy has been specially ordered and obtained for the purpose of filing it in the action, Lavoignat v. Mackay, 5 Q. P. R. 498.

Ex Parte Cause—Notice of Tazation—Necessity for—Execution—Opposition.]—Jn an ex parte cause in the Circuit Court it is not necessary to have the bill of costs taxed adversely before issuing execution. An opposition based solely upon want of notice of taxation, without any allegation of overcharge, will be dismissed with costs. Poirier v. Girard, 4 Q. P. R. 124.

Illegal Bond — Leave to Regularize — Costs of Adverse Party.] — If a judgment permits an appellant to complete a security bond which has been declared illegal, the costs of the respondent comprise the attendance when the security was given, unless the judgment specifies that costs of motion only are granted, Gelinas v. La Compagnie du Magasin du Peuple, 7 O. P. R. 98

Instructions for Affidavit—Affidavit or Production—Order—Review.]—The following items were allowed to the plaintiff against the contention of the defendant: I. Instructions for affidavit of writ of replevin. 2. Two separate affidavits on production by co-plaintiffs, where they resided in different parts of the country. 3. An order postponing trial on the application of the defendant, on terms of payment of costs, taken out by the plaintiff, where the defendant had neglected to take out order. An application by the defendant to have deducted from the bill certain costs of the day, alleged to have been improperly allowed on a previous traxition not appealed from, was not entertained. Allison v. Christic, 2 Terr. L. R. 279.

Items—Copies of Interlocutory Orders—Rehearing of Motion.]—In the district of Montreal the practice is to put upon the record copies of all the judgments rendered in the course of the pendency of a cause; and the costs of such copies will be taxed. 2. If a motion seeks for a condemnation in a case in which the opposite party has not conformed to an order of the Court, there is ground for presenting anew the motion in the case in which the order has not been excuted, and, therefore, to claim a fee for rehearing. Motion to Review - Limitation Regeific Objections—Reference of Whole Bill to Taxing Officer at Toronto as upon Revision—Erroneous Practice—General Objection to all Items - Delegation of Judge's Duty to Taxing Officer.]-Defendants, being dissatisfied with a taxation, delivered, pur-suant to Rule 1182, to plaintiff and to the taxing officer, objections in writing to the maxion. Besides specifying as objected to, a large number of items in the bill, giving reason therefor, concluded with the following general complaint: "The defendants also complain that the bill generally is exorbitant. that the allowances as a rule are too large, asi that altogether too much has been taxed for folios, attendances, etc., etc." The local axing officer confirmed his previous taxation but did not state his reasons for his so doing, Palconbridge, C.J., in Chambers, referred plaintiff's bill of costs to the senior taxing officer at Toronto to be taxed as upon a revision of taxation and to report. On appeal from this order it was held: A Judge in Chambers, upon an application to him under Rule 774 to review a taxation, has no jurisdiction to delegate the duty which the rule imposes upon him, to a taxing officer at Toronto, or to anyone else. He may take the opinion of that officer as to any and all matters arising upon the application, for his own information, but the parties are entitled to have his opinion, and his alone, in determining the questions raised by the appeal. Quay v. Quay, 11 P. P. 258, overruled. Compbell v. Barker, 2 O. W. R. 504, 5 O. W. R. 372, 9 O. L. R. 291.

New Tariff.] — Plaintiff taxed, in 1806, is costs of recovering judgment, and on appeal it was ordered that there should be a new trial and that the costs of the first trial should follow the event. Plaintiff, inally, in 1901, recovered judgment with costs:—Held, that the costs of the first trial were not now taxable under the new tariff, which came in force in 1807, but that the sit axation must stand. Semble, costs incred before the new tariff came into force are still taxable under the old tariff. Harris t. Dunnmuir, 9 B. C. R. 317.

Notice Quantum of Costs - Intervention -Insolvent Estate-Curator.]-If a party, who has received notice that a bill of costs will be taxed, does not attend upon the day fixed in the notice, but merely urges his reasons against the taxation in a letter addressed to the prothonotary, the party who has given the notice, and who has not had his bill taxed at the time fixed, may have it taxed later, at his pleasure, in the absence of his opponent. 2. Upon an intertention made by the curator of the insolvent estate of the defendants upon a saisie conservatoire, and where such curator contests, hot the claim of the plaintiff, but only his right to the effects seized, the bill of costs of the curator, whose intervention has been maintained, will be taxed pursuant to art. @ of the tariff, and not merely as if it was for costs of a petition to set aside the seizure. Semble, that costs incurred by a curator in litigating a proceeding in the name of an issolvent are payable by the unsuccessful jary in such proceeding, and not out of the insolvent estate, except in case of default of the unsuccessful party to pay them. Auger v. Montambault, 5 Q. P. R. 21.

Opposition—Amendment—Fees.]—It. at the first contestation filed, the opposant is allowed to file an amendment to his opposition, necessitating the filing of a new contestation, the opposant will not be entitled thereby to two fees on contestation and two additional fees, but only to such fee as the Court will allow him, the costs of the amendment having been reserved. Canada Industrial Co. v. Kensington Land Co., 6 Q. P. R. 237.

Opposition—Dismissal.] — The fee on a motion to dismiss an opposition is that of an ordinary motion and not of a preliminary exception. Giguère v. Payette, 6 Q. P. R. 178.

Opposition—Dismissal.]—The fee of the advocate of an execution creditor who obtains, upon motion, the dismissal of an opposition, is the fee appropriate to an opposition dismissed upon preliminary exception. Smith v. Lapointe, 6 Q. P. R. 216.

Partition Proceedings—Taxed costs— Special circumstances. McLaughlin v. Mc-Laughlin, 1 O. W. R. 378, 424.

Petition for Revision — Desistment from Taxation.]—A party who has had a bill of costs taxed to him adversely, may, after a petition for revision of the taxation has been presented and taken into consideration, desist from the certificate of taxation obtained by him, upon paying the costs of the petition for revision. Bergeron v. Brunet, 5 Q. P. R. 429.

Railway Act—Delegation by Judge—Re-view of Taxation—Principle of Taxation— Items—Desistment—Arbitration.]—The usual and convenient course in regard to costs of proceedings under the Railway Act, 51 V. c. 29 (D.), provided for by ss. 154 and 158, is not for the Judge to tax in the first instance. but to relegate the bill of costs to an officer conversant with the practice of taxation to ascertain what has been properly incurred; and his conclusions may be adopted or varied by the Judge. If lands are taken compulsorily the costs should be allowed in larger measure than in ordinary litigation, but in a case of mere desistment, it is enough if the bill is fairly taxed: Held, with regard to items in dispute upon taxation—1. That a consent to take possession was not part of desistment proceedings, and the costs of it were properly disallowed. 2. That costs of steps taken to appoint a third arbitrator were not costs of the land owner; the appointment was a matter to be arranged by the two arbitrators already named. 3. That "instructions for brief," upon arbitration should be allowed. 4. That what was actually disbursed in witness fees to a necessary and material witness as to value should be allowed. 5. That the quantum of the counsel fee upon the arbitration was in the discretion of the taxing officer, and should not be interfered with. 6. That "instructions to move for costs of arbitration" was properly disallowed by the taxing officer, in the discretion given by item 38 of the tariff of the Supreme Court of Judicature. 7. That the costs of a formal order for taxation and its incidents, and not a mere fiat or direction to tax, should be

Registration of Judgment—Copy—Appeal.]—Held, on appeal from the taxation of the prothonotary, that the party who obtains judgment has a right to have a copy of it made and to have it registered, and the expense forms part of the costs of the cause and may be recovered from the adverse party, if the judgment, as in this case, is confirmed, or if the opposite party does not appeal. Luneau v. Luneau, Q. R. 19 S. C. 146.

Rehearing—Fee on Enquête.]—After a cause has been dismissed at the hearing, and a rehearing has become necessary, the parties are entitled to a fee upon the rehearing, but not to a second fee upon the enquête. Coke v. Arnold. 6 Q. P. R. 238.

Review — Abandoned Appeal — Briefs — Connael Fec.]—On the 20th May the plaintiffs gave notice of appeal, to come on at the November sitting of the full Court, from an order requiring them to give security for the costs of the action. On the 3rd June the appeal was abandoned:—Held, on a review of taxation, that the respondents were entitled to tax briefs and a counsel fee. Counsel fee under the circumstances fixed at $10. A taxation may be reviewed under Rule 583, as well as under Rule 790. Fry v. Botsford, 22 Occ. N. 378, 9 B. C. R. 207.

Review-Irregular Proceedings - Insufficient Affidavit on Production-Several Subpanas.]-It is not open to a party on taxation of costs to take objections which could or should have been taken by application to set aside the proceedings, or by way of appeal. On this principle costs were allowed as follows: (1) The costs of an order de bene esse, irregularly obtained, were allowed to the defendant, where no application had been made to set it aside, and the plaintiff's advocate had attended on the examination; (2) the costs of an insufficient affidavit on production, where an application for a better affi-davit had been dismissed and no appeal taken; (3) the costs of an order to examine the plaintiff issued ex parte and without notice, where an application to set it aside had been refused, and the grounds of the refusal were not shewn on the review. A subpona for each of several witnesses may be allowed where they reside in different parts of the country, and the same original cannot be conveniently produced to them all. Craig v. New Oxley Ranche Co., 2 Terr. L. R. 277.

Severing Defonces — Items — Setting Aside Judgment—Fi. Fa. Lands—Examination for Discovery.] — Where an action is brought against two or more defendants, and any defendant separates in his defence, and the judgment is against all the defendants, the law is, that each of them is liable to the plaintiff for all costs taxed by him as properly incurred by him in the maintenance of his action, except as to costs caused to him by so much of the separate defence of any defendant as is and can be a defence for that defendant only as distinguished from the other defendants. The rule in Stumm v. Dixon, 22 Q. B. D. 99, 529, applied to an action on a contract. In a naction against two joint makers of a promissory note, who, though they set up substantially the same defence, severed in their defences.—Held, that on the taxation of the plaintiffs costs the following items should be allowed as against both defendants: (1) costs of a concurrent writ of summons against one of the defendants: (2) costs occusioned by the separate defences of each defendant; (3) costs of the examination for discovery of one of the defendants, although, as the other defendant had not been notified of the intention to hold the examination, the depositions were not admissible in evidence against him. Where a judgment by default was set aside, and the defendant was given leave to defend on payment of costs:—Held, that the defendant was liable to pay the costs of a fi. fa. lands issued concurrently with a fi. fa. goods. Lougheed v. Parrish, 4 Terr. L. R. 54.

Solicitor's Letter before Action.]— a debtor is not obliged to pay the costs of a letter before action received from an advocate. Rioux v. Phisance, Q. R. 21 S. C. 495.
574. Lay v. Cantin, Q. R. 23 S. C. 495.

Solicitor's Letter before Action. —A debtor who receives a solicitor's letter, cannot, as against the solicitor, or the creditor, be required to pay a fee for such letter. Robson v. Smith, 5 Q. P. R. 232.

Special Fee—Allowance by Judge.]—A Judge will not take cognizance of a bill of costs and allow a special fee, until the bill has been taxed by the prothonotary. Campbell v. Montreal Street R. W. Co., 7 Q. P. R. 79.

Supreme Court of Canada — Staping Taxation, 1—At the trial the plaintiffs action was dismissed, but the full Court allowed an appeal by the plaintiffs. On appeal the Supreme Court of Canada allowed the appeal of a defendant, W., and ordered the plaintiffs to pay him the costs of that appeal and also all costs in the Court below, except in so far as he was to be regarded as the representative of the mortgage security, which costs were reserved till final decree. By the same judgment the action was dismissed as against W., except in so far as it was considered to be in the nature of a mortgage action for the purpose of enforcing a security:—Held, reversing an order staying the taxation of W.'s costs of appeal to the full Court sitting the stap of the Supreme Court of Canada instead, Merchants Bank of Halifax v. Houston, 22 Occ. N. 339, 9 B. C. R. 158.

Tariff—Provisions of—Circuit Court.]— Where an action is dismissed upon motion for peremption, after the filing of a plea to the merits, Art. 8 of the tariff of fees of advocates in Circuit Courts applies to the taxation of the costs, and not Art. 9. Moody v. Lachance, 6 Q. P. R. 99.

and hearing for each of the causes, but only reduces the costs of stenography and witness fees. 2. Witness fees may be allowed for the person declared elected by a judgment systaining a quo warranto, if he is not otherwise a party to the proceeding. 3, Where the defendant is designated in the writ of summons as absent, the balliff will not be allowed on taxation for searches for this defendant. Henry v. Sanderson, 6 Q. P. R. 191.

Triple Costs—Justice of the Peace—Appeal — Witness Feez,—The triple costs which the unsuccessful plaintiff is condemned to pay in an action under Art, 2555, R. S. Q., do not include triple costs of review, nor triple witness fees. 2. The Judge has no discretion to exercise under this provision of the law, and when he adjudges that a penal action against a justice of the peace is not well founded, and dismisses it, he must allow triple costs to the defendant. 3. Where the judgment of first instance dismisses the action with costs, and the plaintiff appeals to the Court of Review, which simply affirms the judgment with costs, triple costs should not be taxed by the prothonotary. 4. But where the judgment of first instance dismisses the action without costs, and the defendant appeals from such judgment and claims triple costs, the Court of Review will grant them to him, and the prothonotary should tax them. Luneau v. Janeau, 3 Q. P. R. 505.

Withdrawal of Action.] — When a cause inscribed for hearing on the merits is, during the sitting of the Court, withdrawn with cests, by the plaintiff, the defendant has a tight to the same fees as if the action had been dismissed (item 9, tariff C, C), but without fees of the hearing (items 10 and 11, C, C.), if no witness is present in Court, the defendant having been notified that the action would be thus withdrawn. Gosselin v. Girona, Q, R. 19 S, C. 145, 3 Q, P, R, 370.

XI. WITNESS FEES,

Advocate—Experts—Parties.] — An advocate duly admitted to practise, but whose name is not upon the roll, has the right, nevertheless, when he is called as a witness and his title of advocate given to him upon the subpena, to be considered an advocate, and upon taxation a professional witness fee will be allowed. 2. If witnesses swear that they had in a cause the quality of experts and such declaration is not contradicted, expert witness fees will be tazed. 3. The manager of a company, party to the cause, is to be regarded as an ordinary witness if called as such, and a witness fee will be allowed on taxation. Canada Industrial Co. v. Kensington Land Co., 3 Q. P. R. 379.

Allowance by Trial Judge—Revision—Special Expenses.] — The Court has no power to revise the taxation of a witness made in open Court at the trial; counsel must then urge their objection, and, if required, seek the remedies available as to judgments of the Court. 2. If a party wishes to recover special expenses incurred in connection with a suit, taxation after judgment is not the proper proceeding therefor. Buchan v. Montreal Bridge Co., 5 Q. P. R. 337.

Experts—Damages.]—The plaintiff cannot tax as part of the costs of an action the fees of experts called to prove his claim; witness fees in respect of such experts may be taxed, reserving to the plaintiff the right to claim as part of his damages the fees which he has paid. Crawford v. City of Montreal, Q. R. 19 S. C. 323.

False Affidavit of Increase-Taxation Setting Aside Certificate — Affidavit Information and Belief — Refusal to Make Affidavit - Compulsory Examination. The English practice requiring prof of actual payment of witness fees as a condition precedent to their being allowed on taxation of costs, should be fol-lowed. Where on an affidavit that witness fees have been actually paid they are allowed on taxation without objection on the ground of falsity of the affidavit, the proper mode of attacking the allowance is by an appli-cation by way of motion to the Court, and not by way of review of the taxation. such an application, an affidavit of information and belief, stating the grounds thereof, is sufficient foundation for a motion to set aside the certificate of taxation and refer it back to the taxing officer to ascertain whether or not at the time of the taxation the witness fees in question had in fact been paid. There is authority under Rule 267 of the Judicature Ordinance (C. O. 1898 c, 21) to order a person who has refused to make an affidavit to attend for examination under oath. L. R. 180. Grindle v. Gillman, 4 Terr.

Female Witnesses.]—Witness fees may be taxed in respect of women who are witnesses, at the same rates as men. Hersey v. Chapman, 6 Q. P. R. 319.

Parties.]—A witness subpensed but not called by the party who has subpensed him cannot be allowed for on taxation against the opposite party without his consent. 2. A party called as a witness is regarded as an ordinary witness and has the right to tax a fee for himself. Royal Electric Co. v. 7 upéré, Q. R. 19 S. C. 29.

Revision — Commissioner — Foreign Commission — Fee Charged.]—Taxation of witness fees will be revised on petition to a Judge, if good ground is shewn. 2. There is no tariff of charges for commissioners executing commissions outside of the province. 3. A fee of $50 for a commission in an action of the first class is not excessive. Hereey v. Chapman, 6 Q. P. R. 273.

Revision.]—Where it is admitted that a witness complained of the insufficiency of the amount of his taxation, and it is established that he was examined as an expert, he is entitled to have his taxation revised after judgment rendered, and this with costs against the party who subpœaned him, although judgment was in favour of such party. Taxation of — Counsel fees—Delay at trial. John Abell Co. v. Long, 1 W. L. R. 24.

Taxation of—Effect of—Action for.]—
The taxation of a witness fee in a cause is equivalent to a judgment in favour of the witness, and such judgment may be enforced against the party who has subpeaned the witness. A fresh action does not lie to recover the amount; the witness has simply to issue an execution. Paradis v. Labbé. 4 Q. P. R. 415.

Taxation of—Execution for—Action by Witness.]—A witness, whose witness fees have been taxed in an action, has, according to Art. 336, C. P., the right to an execution for the amount taxed against the party who subpensed him, but he has not the right to bring an action for such amount. Paradis v. Labbé. Q. R. 21 S. C. 211.

Taxation of—Motion to Revise.]—The taxation of a winess being, under Art. 336, C. C. P., equivalent to a judgment on which he is entitled to sue out execution, the Court has no authority to revise or reduce such taxation. Lessard v. Meunier, Q. R. 20 S. C. 337.

Taxation of—Motion to Revise—Time.]
—The taxation of the fees of a witness who is heard in open Court, takes place in the presence of the Court, and constitutes a judgment which may be executed in the manner and after the delay prescribed by the Court (Art, 335, 336, 370, C. C. P.) And even if such taxation were considered a judgment by the prothonotary, and not by the Court, in this case the application to revise was made too late, the time for objection being while the taxation was being effected. Campeau v. Ottava Fire Ins. Co., Q. R. 20 S. C. 239, 4 Q. P. R. 197.

Taxation of—Payment—Affidavit of increase — Travelling expenses — Railway passes.— Kerr v. Canadian Construction Co., 5 O. W. R. 168.

Taxation of — Plaintiff Coming from Abroad to Give Evidence—Travelling Expenses — Subsistence Money — Plaintiff Remaining after Trial.]—Appeal by defendants from taxation by the deputy clerk of the Crown at Hamilton of plaintiff's costs of the action, in respect of the allowance of plaintiff's travelling expenses from England to Toronto to attend the trial for the purpose of giving evidence on her own behalf and in returning to England, and of the further allowance to her of subsistence money at the rate of $1.25 a day, from 24th September, 1904, to 9th April, 1905, during which time the plaintiff remained in Ontario, so as to be here to give evidence at a new trial, should it be so ordered by the Divisional Court. Appeal allowed as to the travelling expenses of plaintiff in coming from England to give her evidence on her own behalf and of returning to England, and the per diem allowance for the time necessarily occupied in doing so, but not for subsistence money after the trial, as there would have been no difficulty in her returning to Toronto in time for the new trial if one had been ordered. Tattersall v. People's Life Insurance Co., 6 O. W. R. 284, 10 O. L. R. 537. See also 5 O. W. R. 307, 6 O. W. R. 756, 9 O. L. R. 611.

Taxation of — Revision,]—The trantion of a witness constitutes a judgment in his favour which entitles him to execution against either of the parties; it is copied in the bill of costs, but not taxed with if, and cannot be revised on a motion for the taxation of the bill without notice to the witness. Campeau v. Ottawa Fire Ins. Co. 4 Q. P. R. 197, followed. Magann v. Grand Traink R. W. Co., 4 Q. P. R. 348, Q. R. 21 S. C. 72.

Defence to Criminal Charge—Acquittal—Action by Judge.]—The plaintiff had been riminally prosecuted by the defendant for a Bled, and had been acquitted by the verdict of a jury. At the time the verdict was green no demand was made for costs against the prosecutor; and the plaintiff afterwards brought this action to recover the costs of his defence to the criminal proceedings.
The Judge who tried this action ordered that the costs in question should be taxed by the Judge who had presided at the criminal trial, and this having been done, the setion again came on for hearing:—Held, that the plaintiff could could be the subgestion disbursements against the defendant by an ordinary action, although he had not asked osts at the time the erdict was rendered.
That the Judge who had presided at the riminal trial could be the properties of the costs.

Makey v. Hughes, Q. R.
19 S. C. 367.

Dismissal of Action—Costs of Declinators Exception—Bringing in Guarantor.]—
A plaintiff whose action has been dismissed with costs, "except, however, the costs occasioned by the appel en guarantie," is neverheless responsible for the costs of the declinatory exception taken by the principal defendant, whose action en guarantie has also been dismissed, for the purpose of bringing in his guarantor. Robert v. Rocheleau, 4 Q. P. R. 39.

Extra-judicial Seizure Under Chattel Mortgage — Statutory limitation of costs—Contract to avoid—Penalty—Recovery by sction of excessive costs charged and deducted. Yukon Hardware Co, v. McLennan (Y.T.), 2 Wo. L. R. 294.

Fisheries Act — Conviction—Penalty—Remission by Minister of Uronen—Power to Remit Costs—Magistrate—Mandamus.]— R. was convicted under s. 18 of the Fisheries Act, as amended by the Act of 1898, and fined $20 and costs. Both fine and costs were remitted under s.-s. 6 of s. 18, which provides that "persons aggrieved by any such conviction may appeal by petition to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who may remit penalties and restore forfeitures under this Act." G, the prosecutor, applied to the convicting magistrate for a warnat of distress for the costs, contending that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had no power to remit the costs. The magistrate refused to issue the warrant, and a mandamus was moved for:—Held, by Tuck, C.J., Hanington and McLeod, JJ., that the Minister had no power to remit the costs, and it was the duty of the magistrate to issue the warrant of distress for their recovery, and that the mandamus should go:—Per Barker and Gregory, JJ., that, the penalty having been remitted, the magistrate land no power to proceed to collect the costs; or, at all events, his right was so doubtful that the Court, in the exercise of its discretion, should refuse the mandamus. Per Landry, J., that the term "penalties" in the section included costs as well as fine, and the Minister therefore had power to remit the costs. The Court being thus equally divided, the rule for the mandamus dropped. Ex. p. Gilbert, 36 N. B. Reps. 492.

Judgment after Third Trial—Costs of Previous Trials—Counsel Fee — Order for Judgment—Form of.] — On a motion by the plaintiff for an order for judgment on the verdict of the third trial of the action, a question arose as to the right to the costs of the former trials, and also as to the form of the order, the question of damages having been referred to a special referee:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to an order for an interlocutory judgment, in the form in Chitty's Forms. 2. That a counsel fee could not be fixed. The former rule as to costs of the previous trials is not now law. It seems to have been a Rule of Court, Hilary Term, 1853, and there was also an express Rule in the C. L. P. Act, 1854. Creen v, Wright, 2 C. P. D. 354, and Field v. Great Northern R. W. Co., 3 Ex. D. 262, make the costs of the former trials the plaintiff's costs. Bartlett v. Nova Scotia Steel Co., 25 Occ. N. 130.

Mortgage Action — Redemption—Costs of appeal in former action—Attempt to add to claim—Dismissal without costs. Nelson v. Nelson, 2 O. W. R. 956, 3 O. W. R. 884.

Motion for Summary Judgment. Lawrence v. Smith, 2 O. W. R. 521.

Motion to Stay Proceedings upon Judgment at Trial Pending Appeal—Costs in cause. Stonor v. Lamb (Y.T.), 2 W. L. R. 514.

Offer to Suffer Judgment by Default—Time of Offer.]—An action for false imprisonment was entered for trial at the Carleton Circuit, which opened on the 24th April, 1900. The trial actually took place on the 24th and 25th April, the first and second days of the Circuit. On the 17th April, seven days before the trial began, and eight before the jury found their verdict, the defendants filed and served an offer and consent to suffer judgment by default, under 60 V. c. 24, S. 185, for the sum of 875, the same amount as the jury gave as damages in their verdict:—Held, that, as the plaintiff, under s. 185, is entitled to ten days determine whether or not she will accept the offer, if the defendants see fit to delay making their offer until less than ten days before the trial and verdict, they are not entitled to have advantage as to costs of the provisions of s. 184; and therefore the plaintiff was entitled to costs of the trial. Sharp v. Woodstock School Trustees, 21 Occ. N. 56.

Order for, after Judgment—Mortgage—Disclaimer — Defence.]—The plaintiff brought an action against the defendant as mortgagee, and asked that the defendant should be ordered to abandon or to pay the debt of the plaintiff, with costs against the defendant personally if he contested the action. The defendant did contest the action; judgment was against him upon his defence; but it only ordered him to abandon, or to pay the debt, principal, interest, and costs, in default of abandoning within the time fixed. The defendant then abandoned, and the plaintiff made a motion for an order upon the defendant personally for costs:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to such order, although final judgment had been rendered. Marchand v. Chaputt, Q. R. 19 S. C. 322.

Partnership Action. Youngson v. Stewart, 2 O. W. R. 112, 270.

Partnership Action.—Dissolution —Deduction from assets—Indebtedness of plaintiff to defendants—Set-off. Bockfinger v. Murray (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 260.

Payable by which Party — Contested Collocation.]—The costs of a contestation of a report on distribution will be awarded against the defendant when the circumstances of the case shew that such contestation has been provoked rather by his fault than by the error of the other parties. Belgarde v. Carrier, 3 Q. P. R. 513.

Receiver — Partnership — Advance by Partner—Priority. Merritt v. Nissen, 1 O. W. R. 456.

Referee's Report—Exceptions.]—Where exceptions to a referee's report were allowed in part, no costs to either party were allowed. Lawton Saw Co. v. Machum, 21 Occ. N. 133, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 191.

Right to—Dismissal of action for seduction—Death of plaintiff's daughter—Discretion—Dismissal without costs. Hiscock v. McMillan, 2 O. W. R. 913.

Setting Aside Regular Judgment by Default—Terms—Appeal.]—The defendant was permitted (30 N. S. Reps. 393) to supplement his affidavits and renew an application to set aside a judgment against him in a County Court for default of plea. He thereupon filed an affidavit disclosing a good defence on the merits, and renewed his application, which the plaintiff opposed. The Judge of the County Court, being of the opinion that the plaintiff, in opposing the application, acted unreasonably and oppressively, set aside the judgment with costs to be paid by the plaintiff;—Held, that he erred in doing so; that the order must be so far modified as to give the plaintiff the costs of the judgment, and execution if any, and the defendant the costs only occasioned by the plaintiff opposing the renewed application; that, the judgment having been resularly entered, the defendant's application was to the indulgence of the Court, and could only be allowed on payment of costs thrown away. Piper v. King's Dyspepsia Curc Co., 20 Occ. N. 407, 33 N. S. Reps., 278.

Supreme Court of Canada—Execution—Leave.]—Where a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada has been certified to the clerk of the Court below, as provided by R. S. C. c. 105, s. 67, it becomes a judgment of the Court below, and it is not necessary to obtain leave to issue an execution to enforce the payment of costs awarded to the applicant by such judgment. Ex. p. Jones, 20 Occ. N. 87, 35 N. B. Reps. 108.

I. BRITISH COLUMBIA—COUNTY COURTS,

Attachment of Debts—Summons.]—A garnishee summons in a County Court may be issued based on a default summons as well as on an ordinary symmons. Joveet v. Watts. 24 Occ. N. 36. 10 B. C. R. 172.

Equitable Jurisdiction — Action for Rent-Void Lease, 1—It is part of the equitable jurisdiction of the Court to enforce payment of rent when the lease is void, and when the value of such lease, if valid, would exceed $2,500, a County Court has no jurisdiction. British Columbia Board of Trade Building Assn. v. Tupper, 8 B. C. R. 291

Jurisdiction—Discovery — Oral Examination.]—A County Court Judge has no jurisdiction to grant an order for an oral examination for discovery except in the case of a failure to answer interrogatories. Roberts v. Fruser, 22 Occ. N. 438, 9 B. C. R. 296.

Practice—Setting Aside Judgment—New Trial.]—A County Court Judge has no power to grant a new trial merely because he is dissatisfied with the verdict; he is to be guided in granting a new trial by the same principles as the full Court:—Held, on the facts, that there was evidence to support the verdict, and a new trial should not have been granted. Hutchins v. British Columbia Copper Vo., 23 Occ. N. 340, 9 B. C. R. 535.

Right of Crown to Choose Forum——It is a prerogative right of the Crown to bring a suit in a County Court, even though as between subject and subject such Court would not be open by reason of the defendant not residing or the cause of action not residing within the territory of such Court. Rex v, Campbell, 8 B. C. R. 208.

Stay of Proceedings—Mining Jurisdiction—Prohibition.]—On an application for prohibition:—Held, allowing the application, that s. 34 of the County Courts Act, which provides, inter alia, that if any action of tort the plaintiff shall claim over $250, and the defendant objects to the action being tried in the County Court, and gives certain security, the proceedings in the County Court shall be stayed, applies to proceedings in the County Court, under the mining jurisdiction of that Court. Muirhead v. Spruce Creek Mining Co., 24 Occ. N. 414, 11 B. C. R. 1.

Texritorial Jurisdiction—Judgment by Default—Application to Sct Aside and for Leave to Defend—Waiver.]—In a plaint in the County Court of Yale it appeared that the defendants resided in Vancouver, outside the county of Yale, and the plaintiff's claim was described as being "against the defendants as makers of a promissory note for $179.12 dated 12th March, 1902, payable two months after date." Judgment for the plaintiff was signed in default of a dispute note, but afterwards the defendants filed a dispute note, but afterwards the defendants filed a dispute note (what it contained was not shewn), and applied to the Judge to have the judgment set aside and for leave to defend on the merits. On the hearing of the application it appeared that the Court had jurisdiction, as the note sued on was produced on affidavit, and it shewed on its face that it was made and payable within the county of Yale:—Held, that County Court process should shew jurisdiction on its face, but the defendants, by filing the dispute note, and applying for leave to defend on the merits, had waived their right to object to the jurisdiction. Beaton v. Sjolander, 23 Occ. N. 161, 9 B. C. R. 439.

II. BRITISH COLUMBIA — SMALL DEBTS COURTS.

Jurisdiction—Judgment Debtor—Committal—Notice of Motion—Solicitor—Waiver.]—A notice by a judgment creditor's solicitor of an application to a magistrate of a Small Debts Court for an order to commit a judgment debtor because of failure to pay instalments ordered to be paid on the return of a judgment summons, is a nullity.

—A judgment debtor by appearing pursuant to such notice does not vaive his right to object at any stage. In re Wasslock, U B, C. R. 433.

III. BRITISH COLUMBIA—SUPREME COURT.

Full Court—Motion for Judgment—Reference by Trial Judge,]—At the conclusion of the trial of an action for damages for personal injuries, the trial Judge did mot set in the property of the conclusion of the trial of the conclusion of the trial Court as they might be advised. Both parties accordingly moved the full Court for judgment, the arguments being confined to the question of the liability of the defendant company:—Held, per Walkem, Drake, and Irving, Jat, that the full Court is an appellate Court and has no jurisdiction to hear a motion for judgment on the findings of a jury referred to it by a trial Judge. Per Martin, J. (dissenting), that, as the question of jurisdiction was not raised by counsel nor by the Court, the case should be dealt with on its merits, and that judgment should be entered in favour of the defendant company. McKeleey v. Le Roi Mining Co., 22 Qce. N. 42, 8 B. C. R. 288.

Full Court—Place of Sitting,]— Held, Drake, J., dissenting, that special sittings of the full Court may be held either at Victoria or Vancouver to hear appeals in actions, irrespectively of where the writs of summons were issued. Yale Hotel Co, v. Vancouver, Victoria, and Eastern R. W. and Navigation Co., Grand Forks and Kettle River R. W. Co, v. Vancouver, Victoria, and Eastern R. W. and Navigation Co., 9 B. C. R. 66.

Rule Nisi to Quash Conviction— Forum.]—The full Court will not hear a motion for a rule nisi to quash a conviction; the motion should be made to a single Judge. Rex v. Tanghe, 24 Occ. N. 198, 10 B. C. R. 297.

IV. MANITOBA-COUNTY COURTS.

Jurisdiction-Title to Land-Gravel on Highway-Municipal Corporations-Costs.] —1. A claim of a municipality for damages for the taking by a railway company of sand and gravel from alleged highways and allowances for roads in the municipality, not in its actual possession or occupation, if disputed, raises a question of the title to a corporeal hereditament within the meaning of s. 59 of the County Courts Act, R. S. M. c. 33, and the jurisdiction of the County Court to adjudicate on such claim is ousted when such a question of title is bona fide raised, notwithstanding the provisions of ss. 615 and 644 of the Municipal Act, R. S. M. c. 100, giving the right of possession of such roads to the municipality and power to pass by-laws for preserving or selling timber, trees, tone, or gravel on any of such roads.—2.
Under the enactment substituted for s. 315 of the County Courts Act by 59 V. c. 3, s. 2, an appeal to this Court lies from the decision of a County Court Judge on the question of jurisdiction as well as from all other decisions in actions in which the amount in question is $20 or more. Fair v. McCrow. 31 U. C. R. 509, and Portrain v. Patterson, 21 U. C. R. 527, followed.—3. Although the action in the County Court failed for want of jurisdiction, the plaintiff should be ordered to pay the costs of it under s. 1 of c. 5 of 1 Edw, VII. and also the costs of the appeal. Municipality of Louise v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., 22 Occ. N. 124, 14 Man. L. R. 124.

V. NEW BRUNSWICK-CITY COURT

Fees — Control Over, by City Council — Commissioner—Servant of Crown,]—G., having applied to the commissioner of the City Court of Moncton for a summons, was refused unless he first paid the fee for the issuing thereof. Relying upon a recommendation in a report of the finance committee of the city council of the said city, which was received and adopted by the council, G. then moved the Court for a rule nisi calling upon the commissioner to shew cause why a man-damus should not issue to compel him to issue the summons without the fee being paid or tendered in advance. The recommendation was as follows: "Your committee would recommend that hereafter any and all claims within the jurisdiction of said Court may be sued and judgment therein taken without the payment of costs in advance, but that the same be retained out of the first moneys col-lected on the judgment:"—Held, that, as the commissioner was an appointee and servant of the Crown, and in no way responsible to the city or under its direction or control, it the city of under its direction or control, it could not by resolution create any duty or obligation upon the commissioner to issue the summons without the fee therefor being prepaid.

2. That the report and its adoption amounted to nothing more than a recommendation to the commissioner, which he was at liberty to act upon or not according to his discretion. Ex p. Grant, 35 N. B. Reps. 45.

Judgment of —Estoppel by—Review by Courty Court—Action against Bail—Jurisdiction of Supreme Court—Relief of Bail.]—The Supreme Court has jurisdiction to try an action against bail given in a cause originating in an inferior Court, and has power to give such relief to the bail as justice may require. The former practice of the King's Bench in England of refusing to try such actions and of compelling them to be brought in the inferior Court has never been followed in this province.—The judgment of an inferior Court is not conclusive as between the parties and their privies upon the question of jurisdiction; therefore, where an action was brought in the Supreme Court against bail given in a cause, which had been commenced and tried in the City Court of Saint John, and the defendant by plea denied the judgment of the City Court from offering such proof, and that, as the plaintiff had chosen to rely entirely upon the estoppel, he must fail. The fact that the judgment relied upon by way of estoppel had been affirmed upon review by a County Court Judge made no difference. Jack v. Bonnell, 35 N. B. Reps, 323.

VI. NEW BRUNSWICK-COUNTY COURTS.

County Court Judge—Order on Review from City Court—Certiorari, —If an order made by a County Court Judge on Review from a City Court is manifestly wrong, it will be set aside on certiorari, notwithstanding that the Judge had jurisdiction. Rev. v, Forbes, Ew p. Bramhall, 36 N. B. Reps. 333.

Jury—Questions Left—Verdict—Duty of Judge.)—Section 138 of the Supreme Court Act, N. B., 60 V. c. 24, authorizing the Judge on the trial of a cause to direct the jury to answer questions submitted, and enter a verdict on the answers given, applies to County Courts. When this course is adopted, it is the Judge's duty to enter the verdict for the party in whose favour the questions are answered. Steeces v. Dryden, 35 N. B. Reps. 555.

Jury — Questions — Verdict — Supreme Court Act.) — Section 158 of 60 V. c. 24 (New Brunswick Supreme Court Act.), providing that the Judge, instead of directing the jury to give either a general or special verdict, may submit questions of fact and enter a verdict on the questions answered, applies to the County Courts. Read v. Mc-Gieney, 36 N. B. Reps. 513.

Motion to Set Aside Verdict—Grounds—Appeal—Nonsuit.]—On a motion against a verdict in a County Court, it is not necessary to serve a statement of the grounds of the motion and the authorities relied upon.

—The Supreme Court, on appeal, may order a nonsuit to be entered, though no leave has been reserved at the trial. Miller v. Gunter, 36 N. B. Reps. 330.

New Trial—Damages—Consent to Reduction.]—The power of ordering a new trial, unless the plaintiff consents to a reduction of the damages, is vested in the Judges of the County Courts Act. Vanbuskirk v, Vanwart, 36 N. B. Reps. 422.

Review from Justice's Court—Territorial Jurisdiction.]—A Judge of a County Court has jurisdiction to hear a case on review from a Justice's Court though the case was tried in a county for which he is not the County Court Judge. Rex y. Wilson. Ex p. Irving, 35 N. B. Reps. 441, explained and commented upon. Ex p. Graves, 35 N. B. Reps. 587.

VII. NEW BRUNSWICK-PROBATE COURT.

Powers of Judge — Order for Sale of Land to Pay Debts — Administration of Estate—Accounts — Deficiency of Personalty — Ascertainment — Appeal—Status of Appellant—Order Extending Time.]—A Judge of Probate is not warranted in granting a license to sell real estate to pay debts, unless be is judicially satisfied by proof, and finds the amount of the personalty and the amount of the debts, and thus ascertains what the deficiency is. A bald adjudication that there is a deficiency based on a list of attested accounts, and the evidence of the petitioner that they were filed against the estate, is not sufficient. A party aggrieved by a decree of a Judge of Probate may appeal therefrom, although he did not appear in the Court below. An order extending the time for appeal made ex parte is not a nullity, and, if not set aside, the Court will hear an appeal taken under it. In re Welch, 36 N. Reps. 628.

VIII. NEW BRUNSWICK — SMALL DEBTS COURT,

Review—Afidavit — Agent of Party—Amount Involved—Forum for Review—Finality of Order.]—The affidavit that substantial justice has not been done, made on review proceedings from a judgment of the Small Debts Court of Fredericton, may be made by the attorney or agent of the party reviewing under 45 V. c. 15, s. 1. There is no authority under C. S. N. B. c. 60, or amending Acts, to review the finding of a justice or the jury on a question of fact where the amount involved in the suit does not exceed $40 in debt and $8 in tort. The Judges of the Supreme and Courty Courts are of co-ordinate jurisdiction in matters of review under c. 60, and orders made within their authority are final. Rew v. Wilson, Exp. McColdrick, 30 N. B. Reps. 339.

IX. NORTH-WEST TERRITORIES — SUPREME COURT.

Admiralty Jurisdiction — Maritime Lien.]—The Supreme Court of the North-West Territories has concurrent jurisdiction with the Exchequer Court of Canada in Admiralty matters, inasmuch as the Court of Chancery in England had on the 15th July, 1870, concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Admiralty. Kelly v, Alaska Mining and Trading Co., 4 Terr. L. R. 18.

Jurisdiction—Stated Case — Lieutenant-Governor.]—Case stated by the town corporation and the Attorney-General for the North-West Territories for the opinion of the Court, pursuant to s. 250 of the Judicature Ordinance, respecting a matter in difference between the corporation and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of the North-West Territories as to by-law No. 180 of the town. Quare, whether the Court had power to entertain the stated case, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council not being a proper party to a cause or matter, and there being no legislation in the Territories casting upon the Court the duty of advising the Executive. Judge Substitute — Authority.]—Johnston, Co.J., of District No. 1, being unable through illness to attend to his judicial duties, designated Savary, Co.J. of another district, to act in his place and stead, under s. 12 of c. 9 of the Nova Scotia statutes of 1889, which empowers a Judge, when unable to act by reason of illness, etc., to call in and designate any other County Judge.

and provides that "such Judge, so called in and designated as aforesaid, shall have the same power as the regular Judge of such Court would otherwise have had." Savary, Co.J., heard the application in this case, and reserved his decision. Johnston, Co.J., died, and after his death Savary, Co.J., gave judgment granting the application:—Held, that he had power to do so. In re Gough, 21 Occ. N. 92.

Transfer of Action to Supreme Court—Affidavit of Merits—Insufficiency.]—The plaintift, upon affidavit of his own, made application for the transfer of the cause from a County Court to the Supreme Court. As to the merits he simply stated that he had a good cause of action on the merits, without setting forth the facts upon which he based his action:—Held, that the requirements of s. 43 of the County Courts Act, R. S. N. S. c. 156, were not compiled with, and the application must be dismissed with costs. Sproule v. Ross, 21 Occ. N. 395.

XI. NOVA SCOTIA-DIVORCE COURT.

Turisdiction — Rectitution of Conjugal Rights—Altimony—Court of Appeal—Quorum—Amendment—Powers of Provincial Legislature—Statute.]—The Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in Nova Scotia has jurisdiction in respect to a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights, and can order alimony for the wife pendente lite.—An amendment altering the quorum of the Court of Appeal, making it unnecessary for the Judge Ordinary to sit as a member, is within the jurisdiction of the provincial legislature.—Such intention is clear from reading the Act, as originally printed (Acts of 1866, c. 13, s. 6) and as reprinted in the appendix to the Revised Statutes (4th series) c. 120, appendix A. King v. King, 37 N. S. Reps. 201.

XII. NOVA SCOTIA-PROBATE COURT.

Jurisdiction - Gift-Determination to—Parties—Evidence — Administration.]— In settling an estate in the Probate Court the Judge, at the instance of next of kin of deceased, undertook to dispose of the sum of $1,000 which the administrator-a brother of deceased-contended had been given him by deceased, two years before her death, as gift for his two sons. Evidence was tendered by the administrator to shew that the had been invested for the two boys, by paying off a mortgage, and that the fact of the investment had been communicated to the donees:—Held, that the Judge had power to hear and consider evidence at any time before making his final decree, and that he was wrong in refusing to receive the evidence tendered. Per Townshend and the evidence tendered. Per Townshend and Ritchie, JJ., that the Judge went beyond his jurisdiction in dealing with and deciding the question of gift or no gift, where the rights of third parties had intervened who were not before him, and to compel the appearance of whom he had no process; and his de-cree must be set aside. XV. ONTARIO-DIVISION COURTS.

Action against Executors de son Tort-Ascertainment of Amount Involved-Jurisdiction-Declaration of Representation-Prohibition.] — Motion by defendants for prohibition to a Division Court. The action was brought against defendants as executors de son tort, to recover the amount of $165.97 de son tort, to recover the amount of $105.37 on an account rendered, and damages against defendants for wrongfully interfering with and selling and otherwise converting the chattels and effects of the deceased:—Held. that the defendants had so intermeddled with the estate of deceased as to render them the estate of deceased, as to render them liable as executors de son tort, although acting with good intent and at the request of the widow of the deceased. The amount sued for brings the case within the enlarged jurisdiction of the Division Courts under R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, s. 72, and a question arises under s.s. (d), "Where the amount, or original amount of the claim, is ascertained by the amount of the claim, is ascerained by the signature of the defendant or of the person whom, as executor or administrator, the defendant represents:" — Held, defendants could not represent deceased until they had been declared by the Court to be executors. It is not the intention of the statute that in one and the same proceeding the declaration is to be made which alone could make a defendant liable, and before that point is reached defendant is not to be clothed in advance with the representative character so as to confer jurisdiction on the Court to make the declaration and pronounce the judgment against him. Order granted for prohibition without costs. Re Dey v, McGill, 6 O. W. R. 329, 10 O. L. R. 408.

After-judgment Summons-Committal
-"Ability to Pay"-Prohibition.] - Judgment was recovered at the trial by the plaintiff in a Division Court action, no order being at that time made for payment in in-stalments. Subsequently the defendant was examined upon an after-judgment summons, and was ordered to pay $15 a month. Default having occurred, he was again brought before the Judge on a shew cause summons and committed to gaol for twenty days :-Beld, that it was to be assumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that there had been a finding on proper evidence of the existence of the conditions justifying the making of an order of committal; and that prohibition would not lie. Judgment of Anglin, J., 3 O. W. R. 725, affirmed. Per Meredith, C.J.—"Ability to pay" in s.-s. 5 of s. 247 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. 6 secr. 0. 1897 c. 60, covers the case of a dishonest debtor who can by working earn the means to pay the debt, and contumaciously refuses to do anything. Per Anglin, J.—An order for committal is not made as punishment for disobedience of a specific order for payment and in the nature of a committal for contempt, but is granted as a punishment of the fraudulent conduct of the debtor in having refused or neglected to pay the judgment debt, though having had the means and ability to pay. It is therefore not necessary before a committal order can be made that there should be an order on after-judgment summons and disobedience of that order. The judgment itself is sufficient foundation for the order to commit. In $re\ Kay\ v.\ Storry,\ 24\ Occ.\ N.\ 313, 8\ O.\ L.\ R.\ 45, 3\ O.\ W.\ R.\ 78$

O. 1897, it is not necessary to have a nulla bona return made by a bailiff of the Division Court in which the judgment was recovered before an execution against lands can be issued—a return of nulla bona by a bailiff in such Division Court being sufficient. Burgess v. Tully, 24 C. P. 549, and Jones v. Paxton, 19 d. R. 163, discussed. Judgment of Ferguson, J., 3 O. W. R. 74, reversed. Turner v. Tourangeau, 24 Occ. N. 350, 8 O. L. R. 221, 4 O. W. R. 12.

Garnishee Resident Out of Province — "Carrying on Business" in Province — Person Transacting Business as Agent for Another—Garnishee Submitting to Jurisdic-tion—Assignee of Fund Garnished Interven-ing — Status of Intervener.] — Appeal by primary creditors in a garnishee matter from order and judgment of the presiding Judge determining that the garnishee, R. A. Newman, who resided in Detroit, Michigan, but was alleged to carry on business at Windsor, Ontario, was not subject to be made a party to garnishee proceedings. The garnishee's wife owned in her own right property in the county of Essex, some of which was rented, The garnishee acted as agent for his wife in managing her property, and he employed a solicitor practising in Windsor to collect rents and superintend repairs, make leases, The garnishee entered into a contract in his own name, with the primary debtor for the building by the latter of a house on the property of the garnishee's wife, upon which $667.09 remained due to the primary debtor. The latter was indebted to a number of per-The solicitor before mentioned, as solicitor for all these creditors, except one Mctook garnishee proceedings under s. 190 of the Division Courts Act, and accepted service for Newman, the garnishee. McKee (a creditor having an equitable assignment of the debt from the primary debtor) intervened and contested the right to take these proceedings. on the ground that Newman neither resided nor carried on business within the jurisdiction of the 7th Division Court. The garnishee by his attorney admitted that he carried on business in the said county, and he voluntarily submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court. He also admitted that he was indebted to the primary debtor in a certain sum, and he was willing to abide by the decision of the Judge of the Court:—Held, per Britton, J., and Falconbridge, C.J., reversing the trial Judge, that McKee had failed to shew "any just cause why the debt sought to be garnished should not be paid over or applied in or towards the satisfaction of the claim of the primary creditor." Appeal allowed with costs, Street, J., dissenting. Nelson v. Lenz, 6 O, W. R. 21, 9 O. L. R. 50.

Garnishment of Married Mar's Wages — Exemption—Evidence of Marriege — Repute—Prohibition.]—In an action in a Division Court, where the Judge held that evidence of repute was not sufficient to prove that a primary debtor was a married man, and so entitled to the $25 exemption provided for by R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, ss. 180, 181:—Held, that the Judge did not decide upon a state of conflicting facts, but upon a theory that the best evidence must be given, and that it was a wrong assumption in point of law. and prohibition should be ordered. Elsion v. Rose, L. R. 4 Q. B. 4, followed. In reconcept of the control of the co Judgment, Clerkeal Error in—Jurisdiction to Correct—Prohibition—Neu Trial—Consent.] — Judgment upon promissory note for $70. By a mere slip, the Judge in making his minute of the judgment wrote "judgment for deft.," instead of "judgment for plfs," About three weeks afterwards the Judge's attention was called to the mistake and he corrected it, the solicitors at the trial consenting. Immediately after the trial defendant was notified by his solicitors of the result, and told him that there was not much use in applying for a new trial. Defendant then retained a new solicitor, who without informing himself of the facts of the case, moved for prohibition. Motion dismissed with costs. Re North American Life Assurance Co, v. Collins, 5 D. W. R. 342, 9 O. L. R. 579.

Judgment Summons — Form of Affi-davit—Prohibition.]—An affidavit, by a plaintiff in a Division Court action desiring to issue a judgment summons, stating that "the sum of $65.50 of the said judgment remains unsatisfied, as I am informed and believe," the judgment being for more than $65.10, is not such an affidavit as is required by s. 243 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, and prohibition will lie to restrain proceedings upon a judgment summons issued pursuant to such an affidavit. Friendly v. Needler, 10 P. R. 267, distinguished. In re Barr v. Jurisdiction—Amount over $100—Ascertainment—Necessity for Extrinsic Evidence—4 Edw. VII. c. 12, s. 1 (O.)—Application of Pending Action—Prohibition.]—Motion by defendant for prohibition to a Division Court upon ground that the Court had no jurisdiction, the amount in question being over $100, and not ascertained by the signature of the defendant:—Held, that other and extrinsic evidence beyond the mere production of the document and the proof of the signature to it would have to be given to establish the claim of the plaintiff. The amending provision contained in 4 Edw. VII. c. 12, s. 1, must be regarded as being declaratory and inapplicable because these proceedings were launched in the Division Court before the Act was passed. Order made for prohibition. Re Thom v. McQuitty, 4 O, W. R. 522, 25 Occ. N. 42, 8 O. L. R. 705.

Jurisdiction—Amount over $100 — Ex-trinsic Evidence — Promissory Note — Indorser.]-Motion by plaintiffs for an order in the acture of a mandamus to the junior Judge of a County Court to compel him to try an action in a Division Court. The action was brought against the indorser of a promissory note to recover the amount of the note, which was more than $100:—Held (5 O. W. R. 420), that extrinsic evidence would have to be given by plaintiffs to enable them to succeed upon their claim, namely, evidence of dishonour and notice, and that, therefore, the amount sued for (being over $100) was not ascertained by the signature of defendant within the meaning of s. 72 of the Division Courts Act, as amended by 4 Edw. VII. c. 12, s. 1 (O.). Motion refused. Appeal by plain-tiffs on grounds that the amending Act is merely a legislative declaration in favour of the narrower interpretation theretofore placed upon s. 72, and that it was not the intention of the legislature to take away the jurisdiction of the Division Court, unless it was necessary for plaintiffs to give evidence of the kind pointed out in Kreutziger v. Brox. 32 O. R. 418, for the purpose of establishing their claim. Appeal allowed and order made for plaintiffs. Re Slater v. Laberce, 5 O. W. R. 539, 9 O. L. R. 545.

—The defendant gave two notes for $75 and $62 respectively on a form which contained an undertaking to give further security, and in the event of default in giving the security that the notes might be treated as due. The plaintiffs demanded further security, and, not receiving any, brought an action on the notes before the time mentioned in them for their maturity had expired:—Held, that, nowith-standing the plaintiff had to prove a breach of the undertaking to give security before he could recover on the notes, the Division Court had jurisdiction to entertain the action.

The plaintiffs had no security for their claim:—Held, that the remedy upon the promissory note in ques tion was not extinguished, and the plaintiffs could sue in a Division Court for the amount of it as a separate cause of action, giving credit for a proportionate part of the dividend paid, without offending against the provisions 79 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1807 s. 60, forbidding the dividing of a cause of action. Harvey v. McPherson, 23 Occ. N. 260, 6 O. L. R. 60, 2 O. W. R. 251, 511.

Jurisdiction-Evidence-Nonsuit - Appeal—Termination of Action—Mandamus.]— The plaintiff claimed $212 for wages, and gave credit for payments thereon, suing for a balance of $58. The defendant, by counter-claim, alleged a large account of $744.58, and claimed a balance in his favour of more than $100. The Judge entered a nonsuit after hearing the evidence of one witness, who disclosed the nature of the account:—Held, that the Judge at the trial having found that the evidence given shewed that the case was beyond the jurisdiction of a Division Court, and ruled that further evidence should not be given, and the plaintiff having submitted to this and a judgment of non-suit, with costs, having been entered, and the plaintiff having moved to set aside the nonsuit and for a new trial, which motion was refused, an application for a mandamus did not lie. Regina v. Judge of Southampton County Court, 65 L. T. N. S. 320, distinguished. That the plaintiff had no right of appeal in this case under the Division Courts Act might be a defect of legislation, but it did not enlarge the remedy by mandamus:—Held, also, following Williamson v. Bryans, 12 C. P. 275, that mandamus does not lie where there is nothing pending before the Court below. In re Ratcliffe v. Crescent Hill Timber Co., 21 Occ. N. 234, 1 O. L. R.

Jurisdiction-Foreign Defendant vice on—Form of Summons—Prohibition.]— Section 87 (1) of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, which provides that an action may be brought in a Division Court, notwithstanding that the residence of the defendant is out of the province, applies as well to foreigners as to British subjects. No practice being provided therefor by that Act, by s. 312, the practice of the High Court under Con. Rules 103 and 312 is to apply. The form of summons issued in this action was beld to be a compliance with such rules. Decision of McMahon, J., 3 O. W. R. 585, affirmed. In re Coy v. Arndt, 24 Occ. N. 339, 8 O. L. R. 101, 3 O. W. R. 585, 658.

Jurisdiction - Foreign Garnishee.] The primary creditor and the primary debtor resided within the jurisdiction, but the garnishee resided in British Columbia, and did not carry on business in Ontario. At the hearing the garnishee appeared by his agent, and raised no objection to the jurisdiction. The debtor disputed the creditor's claim, and the detror disputed the creditors claim, and the jurisdiction, and the Judge on the latter ground refused to proceed:—Held, that the Judge was right. The principle upon which a defendant in an action who is not subject to the jurisdiction confers it by appearing, has no application to a garnishee proceeding under the Division Courts Act. Such a proceeding is a species of execution designed to ceeding is a species of execution dasgard to enable a creditor to reach property of his debtor not exigible in the ordinary way, and from the nature of the thing it is to be expected. pected that it would be confined to cases where the garnishee is resident in Ontario or might be sued therein; and, moreover, the language of the Act clearly confines the right to that class of case. Jurisdiction-Lease -- Covenant to leave in repair — Breach—Damages—Prohibition— Transfer to High Court, Re Powell v. Dancyger, 1 O. W. R. 63.

Jurisdiction—Proof of Contract—Lease -Company—Prohibition.]—In an action for breach of contract brought in a Division Court, in order to give the Judge jurisdiction to determine the action on the merits, the fact of the making of the contract and its breach within the jurisdiction, must first be breach within the jurisdiction, must first be established. Where, therefore, after a valid lease of certain premises held by a company had been duly put an end to, and the key delivered up to the landlord, the company's agent, without any authority from the company, orally agreed with the landlord for the renewal thereof for the year at an increased rent, and received the key, but the company rent, and received the key, but the company refused to agree to the lease, when the key was handed back to the landlord, and no actual occupation of the premises by the company took place:—Held, that no contract was proved, of which a breach had arisen within the jurisdiction of the Court; and prohibition was therefor properly granted. Decision of Anglin, J., 3 O. W. R. 589, af-firmed. In re Wilkes v, Home Life Associa-tion of Canada, 24 Occ. N. 339, 8 O. L. R. 91, 3 O. W. R. 675, 744.

Jurisdiction - Rent-Costs.] - Rent payable under a lease of land is an incorporcal hereditament, and where the right or title to it comes in question, a Division Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an action to recover it, even where the amount in question is only $60; and therefore this action was properly brought in a County Court, and the successful plaintiff was en-titled to costs on the scale of such Court. Kennedy v. MacDonnell, 21 Occ. N. 233, 1 O. L. R. 250.

Jurisdiction-Splitting Cause of Action -Mortgage—Interest Post Diem—Damages -Prohibition.]-The plaintiffs on the 2nd November, 1901, brought an action in a Division Court for one year's interest due the 1st February, 1901, and for interest on that interest, amounting together to $81.50, due on a mortgage, principal of which was overdue:—Held, that the interest sued for, being interest post diem, was not due the plaintiff qua interest, but was recoverable only by way of damages, and the case did not come within the provisions of s. 79, s.-s. 2, of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. c. 60:—Held, also, that the plaintiffs, if entitled to recover interest from the 1st February, 1900, were entitled to recover as their damages interest down to the date of the issue of the summons, so that the sum to which they were then entitled would be about $140, which sum was divided for the purpose of suing in the Division Court, and that is forbidden by s. 79; and prohibition was granted. S. O. 1897 c. 60, which requires that, before such notice is given, the time for the filing of a dispute notice should have first expired:—Held, also, that there was two clear days notice of the motion, for the King's birthady and Sunday, which intervened, would not be excluded. Con, Rule 345, whereby, where the time is less than six days, Sundays and holidays must be excepted, does not apply to Division Courts, and no similar provision is contained in the Division Courts Act or Rules; but, in any event, the objection was cured by an enlargement procured by the defendants tow clear days irrespective of such holiday. Right to Jury—Claim—Counterclaim— Amount—Prohibition.]—The plaintiff sued in a Division Court for $14 for rent; and the defendant, besides filing a dispute notice, counterclaimed for $60 damages for tort, and asked for a jury, but the County Court Judge refused to place the case on the list for trial by jury. On an application for prohibition:—Held, that the filing of the counterclaim did not entitle the defendant to have the plaintiff's claim tried by a jury but s. 160 of the Division Courts Act, R. 8. O, 1897 c. 60, did entitle him to that right in respect to his counterclaim; and prohibition as to the latter was directed to issue, subject to the right of the Judge to order that the counterclaim be the subject of an independent action under Division Court Rule 108. In re Fraser v. Ham, 24 Occ. N. 233, 7 O, L. R. 449, 3 O. W. R. 447.

Service of Summons—Right of Plaintif to Serve—Right of Bailtiff—Mandamus to Clerk.]—Plaintiff moved for mandamus to compel a Division Court clerk to deliver the summons and copy to the plaintiff instead of the bailiff of the Court, to have it served. Motion refused (6 O. W. R. 146) on grounds that plaintiff had no such right in a Division Court case as is accorded to plaintiff in the High Court and County Courts. Appeal by plaintiff from above order dismissed with costs. Wilson v. McGinnis, 6 O. W. R. 397, 10 O. L. R. 98.

Territorial Jurisdiction-Cause of Action-Flooding Land-Erection of Dam -Prohibition.]-In a Division Court action the plaintiff's claim was for damages for injuries caused to his lands, which were situate within the limits of the division in the Court of which his action was entered, by reason of their having been overflowed and his crops damaged by waters alleged to have his crops damaged by waters anged to have been unlawfully brought by the defendants to and cast upon his lands. The backing of the water was alleged to have been caused by a dam which the defendants had erected on their own lands, situate beyond the limits of such Court :- Held, that the erection of the dam was part of the cause of action, and therefore the whole cause of action did not arise within the jurisdiction of the Division Court in which the action was brought; and prohibition was ordered. In re Doolittle v. Electrical Maintenance and Construc-tion Co., 22 Occ. N. 136, 3 O. L. R. 460, 1 O. W. R. 202.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Garnishee —No Garnishabel Debt—Conferring Jurisdiction—Costs.] — Where an action is entered under s. 190 of the Division Courts Act in the division where the garnishee resides, the primary debtor residing in another and disputing the jurisdiction of the Court—there is jurisdiction to give judgment against the primary debtor, even where the action is dismissed as against the garnishee. In re Holland v. Wallace, S. P. R. 186, and In re McCabe v. Middleton, 27 O. R. 170, considered. Semble, that if a primary creditor, for the purpose of obtaining a judgment against the primary debtor in a Court of his own choosing, names a friend as garnishee. the Judge may properly take that into consideration under his power over costs under s. 213 of the Act. Lented v. Congdon, 21 Occ. N. 160, 1 O. L. R. 1.

XVI. ONTARIO-HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

Divisional Court—Composition of—Two or three Judges. Minns v. Village of Omemee, 1 O. W. R. 90, 362.

Divisional Court—Reference of Motion to—Power of Master in Chambers—Agreement of Parties.]—The Master in Chambers has no power to refer a motion before him to a Divisional Court, but the Court may properly hear a motion so referred, if both parties agree to its being heard. Rushton v. Grand Trunk R. W. Co., 23 Occ. N. 295, 6 O. L. R. 425, 2 O. W. R. 654.

Divisional Court—Single Judge—Proper Forum—Special Case — Arbitration Act — "Opinion" — "Final Decision."]—A single Jade has no jurisdiction to pronounce the opinion of the Court upon a special case stated by arbitrators pursuant to s. 41 of the Arbitration Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 62. The effect of cl. (a) of s.s. 1 of s. 67 of the Jadicature Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 51, and of Rule 117, is to require that such a case heard before a Divisional Court, as being a proceeding directed by statute to be taken before the Court, and in which the decision of the Court is final. "The opinion of the Court is final. "The opinion of the Court is final. "The opinion of radicision as to the rights of parties or a decision amounting to a judgment or order; and it is a "final decision" because it is the end of the proceeding and cannot be reviewed by an appellate Court. In re Ged-des and Cochrane, 21 Occ. N. 436, 2 O. L. R. 145.

Proper Forum—Application for Mandamss to Justice of the Peace—Judge in Court—Divisional Court.]—The order absolute which may be granted by the High Court under s. 6 of the Act to protect Justices of the Peace and others from Vexatious Actions, R. S. O. 1897 c. 88, is not final, but is appealable, and the application for such order is therefore to be heard before a single Judge, sitting as the High Court, and not before a Divisional Court. In re Rex v. Mechan, 22 Occ. N. 133, 3 O. L. R. 361, 1 O. W. R. 136, 248.

XVII. ONTARIO - SURROGATE COURTS.

Grant of Administration—Applications in Different Courts.]—Where applications for letters of administration to the estate of a deceased person are made in more than one surrogate Court, preference will be given to that made by the person nearest in the order in which administration is usually granted; and in this case jurisdiction to proceed was conferred on the Surrogate Court in which administration behalf of creditors, in another county. In re Tougher, 22 Occ. N. 98, 3 O. L. R. 144.

Guardian—Passing Accounts—Interest.]
—There is no authority in the Judge of a Surrogate Court to pass the accounts of a mardian of an infant appointed by such Court. Section 18 of 63 V. c. 17 (O.) does not apply, such guardian not being a trustee within the meaning of the section:—Held, also, that, under the circumstances of this case, six per cent. interest was a fair rate to charge the guardian on the moneys in his hands. Murdy v. Barr, 21 Occ. N. 526, 2 O. L. R. 310.

XVIII. QUEBEC-CIRCUIT COURTS.

Establishment of New Court—Pendings—Opposition.] — Where an action was begun and judgment given in it before the statute of 1893 establishing the new Circuit Court for the district of Montreal, the filing of an opposition to the judgment after that statute should be authorized by a Judge of the new Circuit Court, and not by a Judge of the Superior Court. Kollmeyer v. Donohue, Q. R. 19 S. C. 65.

Evocation to Superior Court—Pleading.]—An action brought in a Circuit Court upon promissory notes may be evoked by the plaintiff to the Superior Court when the defendant pleads that those notes were given in part payment of a thing sold by the plaintiff, for over $100, and that the sale is null, the thing sold being defective and valueless,
2. Par. 3 of art. 1130, C.P., is not limitative, but simply provides for a special case. Tults
v. Dallon, 3 Q. P. R. 523.

Evocation to Superior Court — Practice.]—The Superior Court cannot remit a cause to the Circuit Court merely because the party asking to have it brought up to the Superior Court has not inscribed upon his evocation; the evocation must be unfounded. L'Association des Barbiers de la Province de Québec v. Lizotte, 4 Q. P. R. 70.

Exclusive Jurisdiction — Action for Taxes—School Taxes,]—In a suit in the Superior Court to recover municipal taxes to an amount exceeding $100, accompanied with a demand for school taxes, a declinatory exception asking the dismissal of that portion of the demand which is for school taxes, on the ground that the Circuit Court has exclusive jurisdiction, will be maintained, notwith standing art. 170, C. C. P., it being impossible in such a case to transmit the whole record to the Circuit Court. Toxenship of Dudswell v. Quebec Central R. W. Co., 19 S. C. 116.

Exclusive Jurisdiction—Transfer from Superior Court—Amount in question—Land-lord and Transn—Repairs—Cancellation of Lease—Damages—Costs.]—An action between landlord and tenant in which the tenant demands repairs, or in default the cancellation of the lease, and in either event $12.50 for damages, is of the exclusive competence of the Circuit Court, and the incompetence of the Circuit Court, and the incompetence of the Superior Court being ratione materie, the Court should of its own motion send the cause before the competent tribunal. 2. In this case the action of the plannitif having been declared ill-founded by the tribunal of first instance, the plannitif should bear the costs of contestation in the Superior Court as well as the costs of review, although the incompetence of the tribunal was not pleaded. Lafranchise v. Caty, Q. R. 19 S. C. 185.

Jurisdiction—Action to Cancel Lease— Remission to Circuit Court.]—An action in which a tenant demands the cancellation of a lease as a rent of $168, and $85 for damages, is of the competence of the Circuit Court, and will be removed to that Court from the Superior Court upon a declinatory exception. Grosbois v. Bienville, 4 Q. P. R. 409

Jurisdiction-Amount in Controversy-Addition of Taxed Costs-Subsequent Costs-Fi. Fa. Lands—Seizure and Sale—Hypothecary Creditor.]—The Circuit Court sitting at Montreal cannot prosecute, against immovables, the execution of its judgment for a sum not exceeding $40, and the want of jurisdiction in that respect is absolute and material. 2. The taxed costs of the action allowed by the judgment may be added to the amount recovered so as to make up the sum exceeding $40; but subsequent costs, that is, costs of a fi. fa. goods, or the expense of such a writ, or the expense of an execution on growing crops, or the expense of a return of nulla bona, may not be added. 3. The clerk of the Circuit Court, in such a case, has no authority to issue a fi. fa. lands, and such a writ is therefore void. 4. The seizure and sale of the defendant's immovables, in virtue of such a writ, are void. 5. An hypothecary creditor of the execution debtor, who has had no knowledge of the seizure or sale, and who is prejudiced by it, has a right to obtain, by petition, the avoidance of the sale and setting aside of the writ. Masson v. Danserreau, Q. R. 18 S. C. 141.

Removal of Cause From—Benefit Society—Future Rights of Member.] — An action for the recovery of benefits from a charitable association by one of its members may be removed to the Superior Court, such action having an effect on the future rights and interests of the plaintiff, and deciding for the future his status as a member of the association. Gagné v. Victoriaville Society of St. John Baptist, 4 Q. P. R. 382.

Removal of Cause From—Amount in Controversy—Future Rights.]—An action to recover an alimentary pension of $2.25 a week, for 47 weeks, may be removed from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court, the judgment to be rendered in such action being one which will affect the future rights of the parties. Roach v. Duggan, 4 Q. P. R. 289.

Removal of Cause From—Jurisdiction of Court — Reacission of Lease — Future Rights.]—There may be evocation when a Circuit Court is competent. If it was not competent, there would be no ground for evocation, but for declination. 2. An action by which the plaintiff claims the rescission of a lease, and $99 for damages and rent due, is within the competence of the Circuit Court. 3. Where the lease is of a flour mill, and a saw mill, and the reht is to be paid half out of the products of the mills, and the lease has still three years to run, and it appears in the action that the half of the products which belongs to the defendant for the three years yet to run represents the value of more than $100, the defendant has the right to have the case removed to the Superior Court, inasmuch as his future rights in question are of greater value than $100. Morneau v. Verret, Q. R. 20 S. C. 399.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Cause of Action—Promissory Note.]—In an action upon a promissory note dated at Montreal, and made payable at Montreal, although really signed at Quebec, where the defendants have their domicil, the whole cause of action arises in the district where the note is made payable, especially where the arrangement by which the note was given in part payment of an anterior debt was entered into at Montreal. Lécesque v. Roy, 3 Q. P. R. 380

Territorial Jurisdiction — Defamation — Place Where Letter Received.]—An action based upon a letter containing defamatory words sent from the district of Three Rivers to the address of a person living in the district of Arthabaska, where the letter is received and read, may be brought in the latter district. Marcotte v. Thérien, Q. R. 22 8. C. 315.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Place of Sole of Goods.)—A sale of goods in genere is made at the place where the goods have been weighed, counted, or measured, and an action based on a sale may be begun at the place where such operation has taken place. Gravel v. Durocher, 4 Q. P. R. 435.

XIX, QUEBEC-COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

Procedure—Commissioner Sitting During Part af Hearing—Married Woman Defendant—Authorization.]—Where the husband of a woman separate as to property, being summoned alone before a Commissioner's Court, appears before that Court and pleads not the want of authorization, but other grounds of defence, his appearance and plea are equivalent to acts of authorization of his wife as a party before the Court. 2. A cause which has been completely heard by one Commissioner only, can be adjudged only by him, although another Commissioner has also sat through a part of the hearing. Res v. Warren, Q. R. 25 S. C. 78.

XX. QUEBEC-COURT OF KING'S BENCH.

Quorum of Judges—Judgment—Jurisdiction.]— Article 1241 C. P. Q., permits four Judges of the Court of King's Bench.
Quebec, to give judgment in a cause hearb efore five, when the fifth Judge, after hearing the case argued, excused himself as diqualified: Davies and Nesbitt, JJ., contra.
Angers v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, 35 S. C. R. 330.

XXI. QUEBBC—RECORDER'S COURT OF MONTREAL.

Jurisdiction — Salary — Forfeiture — Certiorari, 1 — The Recorder's Court of the city of Montreal has jurisdiction to entertain a cause in which salary is claimed, and this although the contract contains clause providing for forfeiture of a certain amount in case of default in execution of the contract. 2. The Superior Court cannot upon certiorari take cognizance of a question of law concerning the retention, as in a case of forfeiture, of a certain part of a salary, the question not having been raised before the Recorder's Court. XXII. QUEBEC-SUPERIOR COURT.

Case Reserved — Verdict of Jury.]— Held, by Lemieux, J., that the Superior Court in Review has absolute and unrestricted power to judge of the merits of a cause which has been reserved, without regard to the verdict of the jury: Art. 496, C. P. C. Ferguson v. Grand Trunk R. W. Co., Q. R. 20 S. C. 54.

-Circuit Court—Transfer of Action from—Validity of—Inscription.]— When an action is transferred by the Circuit Court to the Superior Court under art. 171, C. P., an inscription for judgment upon the validity of such transfer cannot be had under art. 1130, C. P., as on an evocution. Westmount School Commissioners v. Mallette, 7 Q. P. R. 43.

Inscription in Review—Appeal—Tutors —Authorization.]—An application for review in an appeal within the meaning of art. 306, C. C.; and, therefore, an inscription before the Court of Review made by tutors, withent the authorization of a Judge or of the probhonotary upon the advice of a family council, is illegal and void. Beaumont v. Lamode, 6 Q. P. R. 6.

Jurisdiction-Action against Executor -Domicil of Deceased-Place of Service.1-An action brought in respect of a succession against a testamentary executor, as such, is of the exclusive competence of the Court of the district where the testator had his domibrought in the Court of a district where he chanced to be temporarily at the time of his The service on the executor should be made in the district where he has his business office. Article 94, C. P. C., applies to purely personal proceedings as to which the Code contains no special or exceptional provision; the proceedings relating to successions are indicated in arts. 1362 et seq.; and, therefore, the tribunal of the place of decease and of the place where the property of the succession is situated has, to the exclusion of all others, save in certain cases here inapplicable, jurisdiction over the proceedings, chard v. Bernier, Q. R. 17 S. C. 540.

Jurisdiction — Action for Negligence beath of Child in another Province—Residence of Company—Attornment to Jurisdicion.)—The father and mother can in their personal names sue the author of their son's bath, either under the laws of Manitoba or under the laws of Quebec. The defendants having a place of business in the city of Moutreal, having accepted the jurisdiction and pleaded to the merits, the laws of Quebec must be applied when the question involved relates to procedure. Boon v. Canadian Sorthern R. W. Co., 7 Q. P. R. 239.

Jurisdiction—Amount Involved—Charge on Land, —An action by which an amount set than $100 is claimed, but in which a dim is also made to have certain immovables charged with payment of that sum, and to have the defendant ordered to give up the lanks in default of paying the amount, is an action which must be brought in the Superior Company of the paying the amount claimed, spaces of the paying the paying the amount claimed, spaces of the paying of $1. Paul de Montrel V. Suburban Land Co. of Montreal, 6 Q. P. R. 444.

Jurisdiction—Cause of Action—Place of Hiring—Wrongful Dismissal.] — Where an employee, hired in the province of Ontario to work in the district of Pontiac, alleged that he had been wrongfully discharged in the latter district, and suffered damage from frost bites, etc., while on his way back from the shanties where he had been working, the whole cause of action did not arise in the province of Quebec. Landry v. Hurdman, Q. R. 25 S. C. 378.

Jurisdiction — Circuit Court — Amount Involved—Arrearages of Annual Settlement.] — A Circuit Court held at the chief town of a district is not competent to entertain a personal action for $12 for arrearage of an annual settled rent. 2. The Superior Court is competent to entertain such an action, which may, therefore, originate in a Superior Court. Lebel v. Langlois, Q. R. 22 S. C. 239.

Jurisdiction—Contract—Sale of Goods —Place of Making.] — Although offers to purchase goods may be sent by letter or telegram from the province of Ontario, such offers are to be deemed to be made as to the vendor at the place where they are received, and the contract then becomes completed there by their acceptance. Wherefore the Courts of the place of acceptance, which, in this case, was also the place of delivery of the goods, are competent to entertain an action for the recovery of the price of such goods. Timossi v. Palangio, Q. R. 26 S. C.

Jurisdiction Over Foreign Defendant Property in District—Writ of Summons— Absence of Allegation of such Property— Waiver by Plea-Examination of Defendant Questions as to Property.]—A non-resident defendant may be sued in a district where he owns shares of stock, and against residents of which he has claims, such claims and stocks constituting property in that district within the meaning of art. 94. C. P., s. 4. 2. Although the plaintiff should regularly, in order to make the jurisdiction of the Court, by reason of the defendant having property in the district, appear on the face of action as instituted, have set forth in the writ of declaration that the defendant had property in the district, yet if the defendant, by his exception, tenders an issue to the plaintiff as to the existence of such property, by alleging that he does not come under any of the provisions of art, 94 which would justify the institution of the action before the Court seised therewith, and moreover meets the allegation of the plaintiff's answer, in which it is formally stated that the defendant has property in the district, not by any objection thereto as being made in the answer, but by a denial of its truth. he must be held to have waived any objection based upon the absence of allegation of said fact in the writ or declaration. 3. The defendant has no right to object to cross-inderemant has no right to object to cross-in-terrogatories on a commission rogatoire tend-ing to elicit evidence of property of his in the district. Kinsela v. Kinsela, Q. R. 25 S. C. 270, 6 Q. P. R. 137.

Order of Judge—Place of Making.]— Held, per Blauchet, J., that a notice given to the opposite party of the presentation of a petition to a Judge, elsewhere than at the chief place of the district, and an order made upon such petition, are illegal and void. Connolly v. Stanbridge, 4 Q. P. R. 186.

Removal of Action from Gircuit Court—Future Rights.]—Under Art. 55, C. P., an action for 899 begun in the Circuit Court in respect of matters which might affect future rights, cannot be removed to the Superior Court. Roy v. Ferland, Q. R. 23 S. C. 1, 5 Q. P. R. 188.

Removal of Action from Circuit Court — Landlord and Tenant — Rental Value.]—A tenant to whose demand his landlord pleads that the rental value of the demised premises is not that alleged in the declaration, cannot have the case removed from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court. Shearer v. Marks, Q. R. 22 S. C. 472, 5 Q. P. R. 304.

Removal of Action from Gircuit Court — Motion — Declaration—Future Rights.]—There is no ground for removing a cause from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court except in the cases provided for in Art. 49. C. P. 2. When the ground for removal does not appear by the demand, the declaration for removal counters or a deposition establishing prima facie, that the action is removable . 3. Removal of a cause is granted only where there are future rights relating to the party who makes the motion for removal. Corporation D'Aqueduc de Richmond v. Johnson, Q. R. 22 S. C. 65.

Removal of Action from Circuit Court — Municipal Taxes—Appeal—Future Rights.]—There is no appeal from a judgment rendered by the Circuit Court in a municipal matter, and, therefore, a defendant, sued for municipal taxes, cannot, even if his defence effects future rights, have the case removed into the Superior Court. Tozen of Nicolet v. Imperial Oil Co., 5 Q. P. R. 205.

Removal of Action from Gircuit Court—Stage of Cause.]—A defendant who wishes to have a suit removed into the Superior Court, must do so before filing his defence on the merits. Commissioners of Railteays at the Barriers of Montreal v. Penniston, 5 Q. P. R. 445.

Removal of Action from Recorder's Court—Notary—Agent for Sale of Land.]—A notary, sued for having acted as agent for the sale of immovables, cannot before the trial demand by certiforari the removal of the cause from the Recorder's Court of Montreal to the Superior Court, the proof of the agency for the sale of immovables and the nature of the transaction being within the competence of the Recorder's Court. Laliberte v. City of Montreal, 5 Q. P. R. 395.

Removal of Gause into — Action for Fine—Practising as Advocate.]—A defendant, sued in the Circuit Court by the Bar of Montreal for the recovery of a fine of less than $100 for the illegal exercise of the functions of an advocate, who pleads that he is a member of an association of licensel accountants, and that such association has a tariff for legal collections, may have the cause removed to the Superior Court. Territorial Jurisdiction—Cause of Action—Contract—Sale of Goods.]—In an action for the price of goods based upon a sale made by a travelling salesman of the plaintiff, the whole cause of action arises at the place where the sale is made, and not at the domicil of the plaintiff, the merchant who receives the order. Ferroneric du Canada Cic. v. Delorme, 6 Q. P. R. 215.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Cause of Action — Promissory Note,]—An action upon promissory notes dated at Montreal and made applie at Montreal, but really made in the district of Beauce, where the defendant has its domicil and where he has been served with process, is not well begun in the district of Montreal, and the record will be transferred upon exception taken to the jurisdiction, to the Court of the district of Beauce. Lapierre v. Beaudoin, 3 Q. P. R. 386.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Contract of Correspondence—Sale of Goods—Transfer to Proper District.]—A plaintiff, complaining that a specific article delivered to him by the defendant, in pursuance of a contract by correspondence, and forwarded to a customer of the plaintiff, does not conform to the order, cannot bring his action in the district of the domicil of the customer, who refuses to accept the article. 2. In a case where an article sold is refused by the purchaser, who puts it at the disposition of the vendor and claims damages from him, such article does not constitute property so as to give jurisdiction to the Court of the district where it is. 3. Semble, that, whatever may be the judisdiction of the Courts in the matter of contracts by correspondence, if the defendant demands the transfer of the record from the district where the order was sent, such transfer will be granted. Forman v. United Electric Co., 4 Q. P. R. 148.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Contract—
Placo of Making.]—When a commercial traveller makes a sale on condition that it is approved by his employer, and it is so approved, the sale is to be considered as made in the place where the order is taken and not in the place where it is approved. Rock City Tobacco Co. v. Girard, Q. R. 26 S. C. 453.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Contract—Place of Making—Agreement for Mainten-ance.]—When a son in consideration of a conveyance to him of certain land by his father and mother has agreed to support them for the remainder of their lives, a suit against him by one who has performed the obligation in his place, ought, supposing it be well founded, to be brought at the place where the contract was made, and not at the place where such services were rendered. Theoret v. Brunet, 7 Q. P. R. 138.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Contract—Place of Making—Election of Domicil.]—An action cannot be tried before the Court of the district where the contract was made, if the parties, in their contract, have elected domicil in another district, and agreed that all suits at law arising therefrom should be tried in the latter district. St. Laurent Latierie Co. v. Cotté, 6 Q. P. R. 153.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Contract—Sale of Goods—Place of Making.]—Action cannot be brought in the Court of the place where the order for goods was accepted, where it appears that the person who necepted on behalf of the defendant had not due authority to do so, and the defendant has repudiated the order, especially if the order did not constitute a complete contract of sale. Superior v. Columbia Phonograph Co., 7 Q. P. R. 211.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Contract—of Hiring—Place of Hiring.]—An action for damages by a day labourer against his employer for wrongful dismissal, loss of salary and time, and suffering, may be begun in the district in which the agent of the employer engaged the plaintiff. Pepin v. Turner. Lumber Co., 5 Q. P. R. 178.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Exception to—Transfer or Dismissal.]—A defendant who objects to the jurisdiction of the Court should ask for the transfer of the action to the competent tribunal, if such exists. He may ask for the dismissal of the action, if he deposit the amount claimed, but if he prays for the dismissal of the action without making such deposit, his motion déclinatoire will be declared irregular and dismissed with costs. Beauport Brasserie Co. v. Belisle, Q. R. 18 S, C. 433.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Foreign Defendant—Administration of Foreign Estate—Place of Service—Property in Jurisdiction.]—A defendant who is a foreigner may be ordered to render an account of the property of an inheritance originating in a foreign country, before the Court of the district where process in the action has been served upon him, and wherein it is alleged he has property. Debigaré v. Debigaré, 7 Q. P. R. 179.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Place of Contract — Promissory Notes.]—A plaintiff suing on several promissory notes may bring his action in the district where one of the notes is dated, even when this note is in renewal of a previous note made, like the others sued upon, in a different district, that in which the defendant resides, in payment of the price of goods sold in the latter district, Guertin v. Roy, 6 Q. P. R. 206.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Place of Contract—Mandate—Principal and Agent.]—A mandatary who sues his principal for indemnity against expenses which he has incurred in the execution of his mandate, may begin his action in the district where the contract of mandate was made. 2. When a person instructs another person to intrust a mandate to a third person, the contract of mandate with the third person is considered to have been made, not at the place where the instructions were given, but at the place where the instructions executed and the mandate intrusted to the agent. McDonald v. Rainville, Q. R. 24 S. C. 133.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Pleading — Exception—Reply to—Motion to Strike Out.1—The fact that the cause of action arose in the district in which the action has been begun should appear in the declaration, and, if that is denied, the plaintiff cannot, in his reply to an exception to the jurisdiction, allege additional facts to support the jurisdiction. Quere, whether a motion to strike out a party of the reply to an exception is subject to the same delay and formalities as of the reply to an exception is subject to the same delays and formalities as preliminary exceptions. Merchants Bank of Halifas v. Graham, 4 Q. P. R. 55.

Territorial Jurisdiction—Promissory Note.]—An action on promissory notes dated at one place and made at another, cannot be brought, in the absence of other circumstances giving jurisdiction, in the Court of the district where they were dated. Cardinal v. Picher, 7 Q. P. R. 147.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Right of rémèré—Situation of Land.]—An action by which a creditor claims, among other things, to exercise the right of rémèré, which his debtor, now deceased, had reserved to himself, may be begun in the district in which the immovable which is subject to the right of remêré, is situated. Boisclair v. Proteau, 5 Q. P. R. S1.

Territorial Jurisdiction — Service of Writ of Summons—Balliff—Residence of Defendants.]—The service upon a defendant in the district of St. Hyachine by a balliff of such district of a writ addressed to one of the balliffs of the district of St. Francois, is void. 2. The real defendants cannot be taken away from the jurisdiction of the tribunal to which they are amenable by adding a defendant with the sole object of being able to cite the real defendants before another tribunal, Gagnon v. O'Bready, Q. R. 18 S. C. 283.

COVENANTS IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

Branch—Dissolution of Partnership—Use of Firm Name—Soliciting Customers—Advertisement — Colourable Imitation—Injunction.]—On the dissolution of a co-partnership under the name of "M. Bros. & M.," the defendant sold his interest to the plaintiff, including the right to the use of the firm including the right to the use of the firm that the plaintiff should have eight name that he that the plaintiff should have been considered by would not interfere with the plaintiff use of such name. Subsequently the defendant commenced business under the name of "M. Bros. & Co," and published in an advertisement addressed to his "old customers" as well as to "any new ones who may favour me with their partonage," in which he stated that he had merely sold his interest in the retail store in H., and that he would continue to wholesale pinnos, etc., from his warehouse there:—Held, that the name adopted by the defendant was calculated to deceive persons into the belief that they were dealing with the plaintiff; that it was a colourable imitation of the name under which the plaintiff was doing business, and that it was a violation of the contract that the defendant would not in any way interfere with the use of such name by the plaintif; and that the advertisement contained misrepresentations and concealments, and was calculated to deceive the public into the belief that he represented the business of the old firm; and the plaintiff was entitled to an order restraining the defendant from using the name adopted by him, and from soliciting the old customers of the firm. McDonald v. Miller, 37 N. S. Reps. 46.

Breach—Engaging in business — Carrying on business—Evidence—Onus—Business carried on in name of another. Kerr v. Bowden (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 28.

Breach-Injunction-Damages - Waiver -Assignment of Covenant.]-The defendant covenanted with the plaintiff that he would not directly or indirectly engage in the drug business in a certain village, or within a radius of ten miles therefrom, during a term of five years, and that he would not open or have part in a third or further drug store during a term of ten years. The plaintiff sold his share in the drug business to the defendant, and actively promoted a part-nership between him and his (the plaintiff's) son which was continued for some months, when the defendant sold out to his son. plaintiff afterwards acquired the business and sold it to his co-plaintiff, by bill of sale, reciting the covenant, and extended its benefit to the purchaser, and covenanted with him to save him harmless from a breach of the covenant by the defendant. In an action to restrain the defendant from carrying on a third drug store which he had opened:— Held, that for the first five years there were two concurrent severable covenants, and that while the plaintiff might by his conduct have waived a breach of the first, not to enter into business during the five years, he had not waived any breach of the second, not to open or have part in a third store :-Held, also, that the covenant was assignable, and that the right to enforce it did not and that the right to enforce it did not terminate by reason of the plaintiff having gone out of business; and an injunction was granted restraining the defendant from opening, carrying on, or having part in, a third store for the ten years. Berry v. Days. 23 Occ. N. 221, 5 O. L. R. 629, 1 O. W. R. 809, 2 O. W. R. 384.

Dissolution of Partnership — Agreement Not to Engage in Competing Business —Breach—Interlocutory Injunction.] — A partnership existed between members of the plaintiff company and the defendant for the purpose of carrying on a general tobaco business. Upon the dissolution of this partnership the plaintiff company was incorporated, the business being transferred to it, and the former partners binding themselves not to enter in any other business or to compete with the company. Subsequently defendant withdrew from the company, being paid in stock both for his share in the partnership, for his goodwill, and for his refraining from competing with the company. The defendant afterwards established a small business almost next door to the plaintiff company's place of business, the new business being carried on in the name of his brother, J. Granda, although the latter was at that time in Spain, and knew nothing about the matter until his return. The plaintiff company applied for an interlocutory injunction restraining the defendant from buying tobacco or otherwise taking part in a business of the new concern:—Held, that the defendant had violated his undertaking by making purchases for J. Granda. Interlocutory injunction granted. Cook v. Brischois, 2 Q. P. R. 162, followed. Granda Hermanos y Ga, v. Granda, 23 Occ. N. 118.

Dissolution of Partnership—Continuence of Business—Customers—Advertising—Name—Injunction.]—The plaintiff and defendant carried on business in the city of Halifax, under the firm name of Miller Bros. & Macdonald. In 1902 the partnership was dissolved by agreement, whereby all the interest of the defendant in the firm business was transferred to the plaintiff, "together with the goodwill, firm name," etc., and "including every matter and thing in which the co-partnership money of the said Miller Bros. & Macdonald has been placed or invested," It was also agreed that the defendant should not "carry on business under said name or in any way interfere" with the use of such name by the plaintiff. The defendant subsequently went into business as "Miller" "cos. & Co.," and published a circular in the papers advertising the fact "for the benefit of my old customers:"—Held, that defendant was not at liberty to appeal to the customers of the old firm, nor to use a name so similar to the one prohibited; and an injunction was granted. Macdonald v. Miller, 23 Occ. N. 290.

I. EVIDENCE.

Admissibility — Confession — Employment of Detectives to Obtain.]—The prisoner being suspected of having been guilty of the murder of G., but not being under arrest, detectives associated with him, worked themselves into his confidence, and, by representing to him that they were members of an organized gang of criminals engaged in profitable operations, induced him to seek for admission to their ranks. They then intimated to him that he must satisfy them that he was qualified for such admission by shewing that he had committed some crime of a serious nature, whereupon, according to their evidence, he asserted that he had killed G. as the result of an altercation. The detectives were not peace officers, no charge was then pending against the prisoner, nor did he know that the detectives were such:—Held, that an inducement held out to an accused person in consequence of which he makes a confession must be one having relation to the charge against him, and must be held out by a person in authority, in order to render evidence of the confession inadmissible; that both these grounds of objection were wanting in this case, and that, therefore, the evidence of the confession was rightly received. Rex v. Todd, 21 Occ. N. 417, 13 Man. L. R. 364.

Admissibility — Conspiracy — Previous Acts of Accused.]—The accused were charged with having conspired to fraudulently obtain from the Merchants Bank of Halifax various sums of money by certain false pretences. The Crown called as a wintess the manager of another bank to prove that at the same period the accused obtained other sums from that bank in the same manner. Counsel for the accused objected to the admission of this evidence as being irrelevant, and as tending to prejudice the minds of the jurors by proving the prisoners to have committed a crime other than that with which they were then charged:—Held, that acts similar to those charged, but committed against other persons, might be proved in order to shew that at the time of the commission of the offence charged the accused knew that they done acting unlawfully. Regina v. McCullough and McGillis, 21 Occ. N. 306.

Admissibility—Perjury—Judge's Notes of Perjured Evidence.]—Held, that, on the trial of a charge of perjury, the production of a book purporting to contain full notes of the evidence taken by the trial Judge (who was proved to have actually taken notes) in the case in which the perjury was alleged to have been committed, and proved to be in the Judge's handwriting, and to be signed by him, afforded, in view of the N. W. T. Act, R. S. C. c. 50, s. 69, proper and sufficient evidence of the statement in respect of which the perjury was assigned. Regina v. Mills, 11 Occ. N. 28, 1 Terr. L. R. 207.

Admissions of Prisoner—Confession—Constable—Caution.]—The prisoner was arrested on a charge of stealing S.'s gun, and in answer to questions put to him by a constable, who did not caution him, he made certain statements; he was afterwards charged with the murder of S., and on his trial the Crown sought to put in evidence his answers:—Held, not admissible. Rex v. Kay, 11 B. C. R. 157.

By-law — Copy—Costs—Time for Payment—Justice of the Peace.]—A by-law of a town council which is not authenticated in accordance with the provisions of Art. 4380, R. S. Q., cannot be admitted in evidence, and a copy which does not import that the original has been signed by the president and the secretary-treasurer cannot be made the basis of a prosecution. 2. A conviction by a justice of the peace which gives only eight days to a party to pay the costs which he is adjudged to pay, in contravention of Art. 4598, R. S. Q., will be quashed upon appeal to the Superior Court. Tasse v. Beaubien, 4 Q. P. R. 372.

Canada Evidence Act, 1893—Husband and Wife—Competency of Witness—"Communication"—Statute — Privilege — Direcmunication — Statute — Privilege — Birco-tions by Legal Adviser—Reference to Han-sard Debates—Method of Interpretation.]— Under the provisions of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, the husband and wife of a person charged with an indictable offence is not only a competent witness for or against the person accused, but may also be compelled to testify; Mills, J., dissenting. Evidence by the wife of a person accused, of acts per-Evidence by formed by her under directions of his counsel, sent to her by the accused to give the directions, is not a communication from the husband to his wife in respect of which the Canada Evidence Act forbids her to testify; Mills, J. dissenting. Per Girouard, J., (dissenting). The communications between husband and wife contemplated by the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, may be de verbo, de facto, or de corpore. Sexual intercourse is such a communication, and in the case under appeal neither the evidence by the accused that bloodstains upon his clothing were caused by having such intercourse at a time when his wife was unwell, nor the testimony of his wife in contradiction of such statement as to her condition, ought to have been received. Per Mills, J. (dissenting):—Under the provisions of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, and its amendments, the husband or wife of an accused person is competent as a witness only on behalf of the accused and may not give testimony on the part of the Crown. Per Taschereau, C.J.:—The report of debates in the House of Commons are not appropriate sources of information to assist in the interpretation of language used in a statute, Gosselin v. The King, 23 Occ. N. 210, 33 S. C. R. 255.

Confession—Admissibility—Statement to Person in Authority.]—Several church choir boys were implicated in an alleged assault on a Chinese boy, and a few days later the rector of the church held an inquiry, and calling the boys separately into the vestry from another room where they were detained in charge of the verger he told them they were to speak the truth and that their statements were to be used for the purpose of that inquiry only. He took their statements in the presence of the bishop and the choirmaster. One of the boys was afterwards tried for assault:—Held, on the trial, that the rector was a person in authority, and the statement was not voluntary and so not admissible in evidence. Rea v. Royds, 24 Occ. N. 283, 10 B. C. R. 407.

Conspiracy — Hypothetical Testimony — Fraud.]—On a trial for conspiracy to defraud a railway company by fraudulently obtaining information of the secret audits about to be made and furnishing the same to conductors of cars to enable them to be prepared for the audits, proof that information of this nature might be given by one conductor to another for purposes other than to defraud the company, was properly excluded, because such evidence would be merely hypothetical, and could not disprove the object of the compliancy, or throw any doubt on the evidence which had been adduced to shew the object which the parties had in view. Judgment in Q. R. 12 K. B. 488 affirmed. Rex v. Carisa, Q. R. 12 K. B. 485.

Depositions at Preliminary Inquiry—Absence of Magistrate.]—Depositions taken at a preliminary inquiry, in the absence of the margistrate before whom the case is proceeding, have no legal value whatever; and therefore the commitment by the magistrate of a prisoner for trial, the bill of indictment founded on his illegal commitment or on the illegal depositions, and the true bill and indictment reported by the grand jury, are null and wold, Rex v, Traynor, Q, R, 10 Q, B, 63.

Depositions Taken at Preliminary Inquiry — Incomplete Cross-examination— Waiver.]—At a preliminary inquiry before a magistrate on a charge of indecent assault on a female, the latter's depositions were taken, the prisoner being represented by counsel, but before her cross-examination was concluded the proceedings were adjourned to a fixed date on account of her illness. Meanwhile, after consulting the county Crown attorney, the magistrate determined to send the case to Sarnia, and so telegraphed to the prisoner's counsel, asking a reply whether he would come up or not. Counsel replied that if the magistrate intended to send the prisoner to trial at any rate, it would be no use his coming, and accordingly he did not further attend the proceedings. On the day to which adjournment had been made, the magistrate went out to the residence of the witness, and obtained her signature to her depositions as already taken, neither the prisoner nor his counsel being present, and afterwards resumed the inquiry at his own office, the prisoner being present, but not the witness, and on the evidence already taken the prisoner was committed for trial. At the trial the witness was proved to be too ill to attend, and her depositions taken as above were tendered by the Crown and admitted:—Held, that, in view of s. 687 of the Criminal Code, the depositions were improperly received in evidence, the prisoner's counsel not ever having had a full opportunity of cross-examining the witness, and not having waived that right, as contended by the Crown. Rex v. Trevanne, 22 Occ. N. 385, 4 O. L. R. 475, 1 O. W. R. 587.

Foreign Language — Translation—Documents — Extracts from Registers—Evidence of Bad Character.]—A conviction for nurder will not be set aside because the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution, given in a language of which the defendant was ignorant, was not translated to him, where he was defended by counsel speaking and thoroughly acquainted with the language of the witnesses, and where neither the defendant nor his counsel asked that the evidence be translated. 2. before the trial, of the intention to produce certain documents, does not apply to certified extracts from the registers of acts of civil status, which were produced merely to explain the alias of the person killed. Such extracts are admissible without notice. 3. Syidence of bad character or of misconduct of the prisoner, not relevant to the issue before the Court, can only be introduced by the Crown in reply or rebuttal. The admis sion of such evidence as part of the case for the prosecution, before any evidence of good character has been adduced for the defence, is improper, irregular, and illegal, and con-stitutes sufficient ground for setting aside the conviction. The illegality is not covered by the failure of the prisoner or his counsel to object to the evidence at the time, or by the fact that his counsel cross-examined the witnesses on their statements. 4. Even after evidence of the prisoner's good character has been made by the cross-examination of Crown witnesses, the prosecution is only entitled to prove his general reputation and not particular acts of misconduct. Rex v. Long. Q. R. 11 K. B. 328.

Joint Indictment of Husband and Wife for Murder — Evidence—Admission or Confession of Wife Implicating Husband -Admissibility in Whole-Caution to Jury -No Evidence against Husband - Counsel No Evidence dynams Hussand Commerce Representing Attorney-General — Right of Reply where Prisoners Adduce no Evidence, 1 —Two prisoners tried jointly for murder of their infant son. The matron of the gaol gave as evidence the confession of the wife in the police station after being cautioned. Argued, the evidence could not be given at their joint trial as the husband was not there when confession was made. Falconbridge, C.J., admitted the evidence at the trial, but informed the jury it was not evidence against the male prisoner. At the request of the male prisoner the case was reserved for the opinion of the Court of Appeal upon the following questions: 1. Was the alleged statement of the female prisoner to the witness, the gaol matron, properly admitted as evidence, when the prisoners were tried to-sether? 2. No evidence being adduced by either prisoner, had the counsel for the de-fence the right of reply? Falconbridge, C.J., ruling at trial that the counsel for the Crown, who claimed to be acting on behalf of the Attorney-General, had the right of reply:— Held, as to the first question, that the evidence was properly admitted, and as to the second question, until Parliament sees fit to withdraw the right of reply, the Crown, through its representative, can assert the privilege. And it must be left to counsel, in the judicious exercise of his discretion, to decide whether he will claim it. Rex v. Martin, 5 O. W. R. 317, 9 O. L. R. 218.

Perjury—Indictment—Description of Offence — Improper Admission of Criminating Ansucra before Judicial Tribunal—Coroner.]
—A count alleging perjury before a coroner—omitting any reference to the coroner's Jury—was held sufficient in view of s. 611. s.ss. 3 and 4, and s. 723, of the Criminal Code. A new trial was granted on the ground of the reception of evidence of an admission made by the accused in answer to questions put to him as a witness on the inquest before the coroner's jury, it being held that 5.5 of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, compelled the witness to answer, and protected him against his answers being used in evidence against him in any criminal proceeding thereafter instituted against him other than a prosecution for perjury, in giving such evidence, and this without the necessity for the claim of privilege on the part of the witness. (But see now 61 V. c. 53, s. 1). Regina v. Thompson, 2 Terr. L. R. 383.

Perjury in Civil Action—Depositions—Indictment—Form.]—A person charged with perjury committed in a civil action is entitled to have in evidence those parts of his testimony in the civil action which may be explanatory of the statements in respect of which the perjury is charged. Where the indictment did not follow the statutory form, and laid the charge in an involved manner, but contained the essential averments, it was held sufficient, the unnecessary matter being considered surplusage. Rex v. Coote, 24 Occ. N. 257, 10 B. C. R. 291.

Proof of Alibi — Misdirection.]—Where the defence to a criminal charge is an alibi, it is misdirection to tell the jury that the onus is on the prisoner to prove it to their entire satisfaction, and to shew beyond all question or reason that he could not have been present at the commission of the crime. Rew v. Myshrall, 35 N. B. Reps. 507.

Right to Re-examine Witness.]—The right to re-examine follows upon the exercise of the right to cross-examine, and, even if inadmissible matter be introduced in cross-examination, the right to re-examine remains, and the rule holds good where the witness volunteers the statement. If it be desired to avoid re-examination upon such matter, it must be expunged at the instance of the party cross-examining; while it remains as part of the testimony, the right to re-examine upon it also remains. Ruling of Meredith, C.J., at the trial, reversed, and a new trial or dered. Rew v. Nocl. 23 Oc. N. 298, 6 O. L. R. 380, 2 O. W. R. 488, 776.

Several Charges-Hearing Evidence on Second before Deciding First-Conviction.] -The prisoners were tried before the County Court Judge on two separate charges of re ceiving, on two separate days, stolen goods knowing them to be stolen, and of house-breaking and stealing on the second of two days. At the close of the case for the Crown on the first charge, on the 23rd December, the Judge found a prima facie case of receiving, and adjourned the case a week to let in evidence for the defence. Meanwhile he proceeded with the trial of the second charge, and remanded the prisoners for sentence. On the 30th December he tried them on the third charge, and acquitted them on it. On the 31st December he sentenced them on the first two charges. The Judge certified that he came to his finding on the first charge before hearing the second, and was not conscious of having been biassed on the latter, by the evidence given on the first:—Held, that, inasmuch as the circumstances of the three charges were altogether different as to time and place, and the only identity was in the and place, and the only identity was in the persons charged, and in respect to the principal witness—and in viev of what the learned Judge stated, and nrowithstanding the expediency of not mixing up criminal charges—the convictions should be upheld. Rea v. Bullock and Stevens, 24 Occ. N. 9, 6 O. L. R. 663, 2 O. W. R. 436, 901. Testimony of Accused—Cross-exumination—Previous Convictions.]—An accused person, who on his trial for an indicable offence is examined as a witness on his own behalf, is, except so far as he may be shelded by some statutory protection, in the same situation as any other witness as regards liability to and extent of cross-examination, and may be cross-examined as to previous convictions. Res. v. D'Aoust, 22 Occ. N. 228, 3 O. L. R. 653, 1 O. W. R. 344.

II. PARTICULAR OFFENCES.

Advertising Medicine Intended to Prevent Conception-Evidence to Support Conviction—Functions of Judge and Jury— Acquittal—New Trial.]—The evidence of the Crown, upon an indictment for an offence against s. 179 (c) of the Criminal Code, shewed that the defendant conducted a large business in various proprietary medicines, including a certain emmenagogue or medicine for stimulating or renewing the menstrual flow. This medicine was put up in boxes, in the form of tablets, and sold under the terms of an agreement, duly proved, between the defendant and the manufacturer. was produced as made up for the purpose of sale, with a brief printed description of the contents on the outside, across which a warning in red ink and large type was printed, not to use the tablets during pregnancy. Inside the box was a printed sheet or circular giving full directions for the use of the tablets; and a separate advertising circular referring to the tablets and describing their purposes and operation was also proved. In the "directions" there was this statement: "Thousands of married ladies are using these tablets monthly. Ladies who have reason to suspect pregnancy are cautioned against using these tablets." The Judge at the trial directed an acquittal, reserving a case for the Crown upon the question whether the evidence offered would support a conviction. A verdict of not guilty was accordingly returned:—Held, that the jury could have legitimately inferred from the language used that the tablets were thereby represented as a means of preventing conception; and therefore it would have been right to have left the case to the jury; and a conviction might have been supported. It is for the Judge to determine whether a document is capable of bearing the meaning assigned to it, and for the jury to say whether, under the circumstances, it has that meaning or not. The Court declined to direct a new trial. Rew v. Karn. 23 Occ. N. 219, 5 O. L. R. 704, 2 O. W. R. 335.

Alien Labour Act—Written Consent of Judge to Prosecution—Requisites of Consent —Jurisdiction of Magistrate.] — Appeal by defendant from a conviction by a magistrate (acting with the written consent of the junior Judge of the county of Carleton) for unlawfully and knowingly assisting the importation of an alien and foreigner into Canada under contract and agreement made previous to his importation to perform labour and services in Canada contrary to 60 & 61 V. c. 11 (D.), as amended by 61 V. c. 2 (D.), and 1 Edw. VII. c. 13 (D.):—Held, the written consent did not comply with the intention of the statute, as it should contain a general statement of the offence alleged to have been committed, mentioning the name of the person in respect of whom the offence is alleged to have been committed, and the time and place, with sufficient certainty to identify the particular offence intended to be charged. Conviction quashed. Rew v. Breckenridge, 6 O. W. R. 501, 10 O. L. R. 459.

Alternative Offences—Summary Trial
—Jurisdiction—Place of Imprisonment.]
—On application to discharge the defendant upon a writ of habeas corpus, it appeared that he was tried before the stipendiary magistrate for the city of Halifax, under the provisions of the Code relating to summary trials, and was convicted of the offence of stealing a quantity of whisky, of the value of $9, "in and from a certain railway building, to wit, a certain building," and was adjudged, for his said offence, to be imprisoned in the city prison, in the said city of Halifax, for the space of nine months. Under the Code, s. 351, every one is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable to 14 years imprisonment, who steals anything in or from any railway station, or building, &c.:—Held, that there was but one crime charged, and that the place of detention was a proper place within the meaning of the law; Weatherbe, J., and Graham, E.J., dissenting. Rex v. White, 21 Occ. N. 310, 34 N. S. Reps.

Arson—Intent to defraud insurance company — Evidence — Previous fire. Rex v. Beardsley, 5 O. W. R. 584, 805.

Assault - Teacher and Pupil-Criminal Code-Punishment-Excess.]-The Criminal Code, s. 55, authorizes parents, persons in the place of parents, schoolmasters, etc., to use force by way of correction towards any child, etc., under his care, "provided such force is reasonable under the circumstances," but by s. 58, "everyone by law authorized to use force is criminally responsible for any excess." The defendant, a teacher in one of the public schools, was charged before a magistrate with assaulting, beating, and ill-using J. O., one of the pupils under his care, and was acquitted on the ground that there was no evidence of malice on his part or of permanent injury to the child :-Held, that the only question properly before the magistrate was whether the punishment was reasonable in the circumstances, or, in other words, whether there was excess: — Held. that there is no warrant in the Code for the test applied in the American case of State v. Pendergrass, 31 Am. Dec. 365, and adopted by the magistrate, that it is necessary for the prosecutor to prove either that the person inflicting the punishment was actuated by malice or that his act resulted in permanent injury to the child. Rex v. Gaul, 24 Occ. N. 135, 36 N. S. Reps. 504.

Assaulting Police Officer — Arrest of Suspect-Resisting—Warrant, 1—Where the defendant, arrested by a provincial constable, who believed that a robbery had been committed, and that the defendant was one of the persons who committed it, and who, being asked to shew his authority, produced and read a warrant against F, E. and others, for breaking and entering a shop and stealing a quantity of goods therefrom, seeing that his Rew v. Sabeans, 37 N. S. Reps. 223.

Bigamy — Defence—Dissolution of Former Marriage — Decree of Foreign Court—Validity—Domicit.]—Upon an indictment of the defendant for bigamy the defence was, that she had been divorced from her husband by the decree of a foreign Court:—Held, that the marriage being a Canadian one, and the domicil of both parties being in Canada, and not having been changed, although they both resided for a short time in the foreign country previous to the making of the decree, the marriage was not dissolved, and the defence failed. Mayurn v. Magurn, 3 O. R. 570, 11 A. R. 178, and Lemesurier v. Lemesurier, 11895] A. C. 517, followed. Rex v. Woods, 23 Occ. N. 220, 6 O. L. R. 41, 2 O. W. R. 788.

Charging Crime—Sufficiency of Charge—"Unlawfully did Steal."] — The prisoner was summarily tried on the charge that he on a certain day "unlawfully did steal one piece of Oregon pine wood, of the value of $5.40, the property of His Majesty the King." The prisoner having been convicted, a case was reserved as to whether the charge on which he was tried was bad by reason of the omission to charge the offence as having been committed "fraudulently and without colour of right:"—Held, Weatherbe, J., dissenting, that the words "unlawfully did steal," in the charge, meant and included everything necessary to constitute the offence of theft or stealing as defined by $8.305 of the Code, and that the conviction, so far as this question was concerned, was right. Rev v. George, 25 N. S. Reps. 42.

Circumstantial Evidence-Reserved-Nature of-Weight of Evidence-Trial.1-The defendant was tried and convicted on a charge of theft upon evidence shewing that the prosecutor's money had been stolen; that the defendant was employed upon the same ship and slept in the same "square; that the defendant had asked the prosecutor for a loan of money a day or two before and had been refused; that the defendant was seen with money in his possession on the day the prosecutor's was stolen; but no attempt was made to identify the money seen in the defendant's possession with that stolen, nor was it shewn that the defendant knew where the prosecutor kept his money; the defendant, however, made to a third person a false statement as to the source from which he got the money he had: —Held, Weatherbe, J., dissenting, that there was some evidence to support the conviction, 2. That a question reserved the conviction. 2. That a question reserved for the Court, "Whether the convicting Judge was justified in drawing from the facts stated a presumption sufficiently strong to justify him in adjudging the defendant guilty, not a proper question to reserve; such a question could only come before the Court on a motion for a new trial. 3. Per Graham, E.J., that the case was one in which the Court should exercise its power under the Criminal Code, s. 746, to order a new trial. But per Meagher, J., that the remedy by case reserved and that by motion for a new trial were not open to the accused at the same time. Regina v. McIntyre, 31 N. S. Reps. 422; Regina v. MacCaffery, 33 N. S. Reps. 232.

Conspiracy — Preventing person from working at his trade—Sufficiency of evidence —Refusal to admit to trade union—Notification to employer — Discharge of workman. Rea v. Day, 6 O. W. R. 470, 577.

Conspiracy - Trade Combination - Preventing or Lessening Competition—Criminal Code, s. 520 (d)—"Unduly"—Conviction— Evidence Justifying—Association of Traders - Constitution and By-laws - Limitation of Time for Prosecution—Continuing Offence— Appeal from Conviction—Cross-appeal by Crown.]—Defendant was president of the Ontario Coal Association, an organization having as its object the protection of its members against the shipment of coal direct to consumers by producers. Members agreed not to sell coal for less than certain fixed prices, and not to buy nor sell with dealers in coal who sold direct to consumers, or who refused to maintain the prices fixed by the association. A claim for 50 cents per ton might be made against any member who made any irregular sales of coal, and the mem-ber was to be expelled from the association on refusal to pay the penalty so fixed. membership list and a non-membership list were published by the association, which was sent to their wholesale friends so they might be on the lookout so as to guard against irregular shipments. There was evidence that coal dealers in Buffalo had refused to sell coal wholesale to non-members of the association in Ontario. Defendant was convicted under s. 520 (d) of the Criminal Code, which enacts that every one is guilty of an indictable offence, etc., who conspires, combines, etc., to unduly prevent or lessen competition in the production, manufacture, purchase, barter, sale, transportation, or supply of any article or commodity which may be a subject of trade or commerce. Defendant apsubject of trade or commerce. Defendant appealed to the Court of Appeal in the manner provided by s. 5 of 52 V. c. 41; and the Crown cross-appealed, seeking a conviction upon the other counts:—Held, (1) defendant was rightly convicted. The plain object of the association was to restrict and confine the sale of coal by retail to its own members, and to prevent anyone else from obtaining it for to prevent anyone else from obtaining it for that purpose from the operators and shippers. (2) The objection that the prosecution was too late, and was barred by s. 930 of the Code failed, as the offence was a continuing one (and if applicable to indictable offences it did not apply):—Held, the cross-appeal of the Crown should be dismissed, as 3, 5 of the Act only applied to an appeal from a conviction. Rew v. Elliott, 5 O. W. R. 163, 9 O. L. R. 648. L. R. 648.

Conspiracy to Defraud—Indictment—Overt Acts — Name of Person Defrauded — Preliminary Proof—Witness — Discrediting.] In an indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud, it is not necessary to set out over acts done in pursuance of the illegal agreement or conspiracy, nor is it necessary to name the person defrauded or intended to be defrauded. Before the acts of alleged conspirators can be given in evidence, there ought to be some preliminary proof to shew an acting together, but it is not necessary that a conspiracy should first be proved. A party may not introduce general evidence to impeach the character of his own witness, but he may go on with the proof of the issue, although the consequences of so doing may be to discredit the witness. Rex v, Hutchinson, 11 B. C. R. 24.

Conversion of Chattel by Finder — Pawning — Criminal Intent — Question for Jury.]—The prisoner was convicted of stealing a watch. The evidence shewed that he found the watch, and a few hours afterwards on the same day pawned it for a small advance. The Judge told the jury that, if the prisoner found the watch, and afterwards disposed of it to his own use, he was guilty of theft; it made no difference whether he discovered the owner or not. He also told them that the raising of a temporary loan on anything found constituted a theft. The following questions were reserved for the opinion of the Court:—1. If the prisoner found the goods and afterwards disposed of them to his own use was he guilty of theft? 2. Does the raising of a temporary loan on anything found constitute theft? In answer the Court said: "Not necessarily as a matter of law. Whether or not the conversion by the finder to his own use of goods found by him is a guilty conversion is a question for the jury, upon consideration of all the circumstances. . . The direction of the Judge to the jury in this case was equivalent to a direction that as a matter of law the accused was guilty; the finding was therefore rather a finding by the learned Judge than by the jury, and for that reason cannot be upheld." Regina v. Slavin, 21 Occ. N. 54.

Distributing Obscene Printed Matter Distributing Obscene Frinted matter—Criminal Code, s. 179 (a)—Knowledge of Contents — Meaning of "Obscene."]—Case reserved under s. 743 of the Criminal Code. Prisoner was indicted under s. 179 (a) for distributing obscene printed matter, "To the Public; The Evil Exposed; The Plot against Prince Michael Revealed," The Judge found the offence proved as charged, and reserved th following points for the opinion of the Court of Appeal: 1. Is the printed matter complained of obscene within the meaning of s. 179 (a) of the Criminal Code? 2. Did the prisoner, without lawful excuse, distribute such obscene printed matter? Held, affirming the conviction, that the word "obscene," as used in s. 179 (a) means the doing of any indecent act in a public place; s. 179 (b), publicly exhibiting any disgusting object; and s. 180 (c), transmitting by post any letter or circular concerning schemes devised or intended to deceive the public, or for the purpose of obtaining money under false pretences. This part of the Code strikes at conduct involving sexual immorality and indecency, and it is in that sense that the word is used in s. 179. The whole of the printed matter, disgusting as it is, is set forth in United States v. Mabs, 51 Fed. Rep. 41. Rew v. Bearer, 5 O. W. R. 102, 9 O L. R. 418.

Disturbing Public Meeting — Municipal Election—Criminal Code.]—Article 173 of the Criminal Code, which declares it an offence to disturb, interrupt, or disquiet any assemblage of persons met for religious worship, or for any moral, social, or benevolent purpose, by profane discourse, by rude or indecent behaviour, or by making a noise, does not apply to a meeting of electors called by one of the candidates during a municipal election. Articles 2946 to 2964, R. S. Q., sufficiently provide for the preservation, of order at public meetings other than those mentioned in art, 173, Criminal Code. Rex v. Lavvie, Q. R. 21 S. C. 128.

Evidence—Answers Tending to Criminate—Claiming Privilege]—The prisoner, being a manager of a branch store for the sale of goods supplied by a factory of his employers, arranged with the checker at the factory to load certain goods on a waggon going to the branch store, without keeping the usual check on them which his employers' system demanded, and had the goods delivered to a customer of his branch:—Held, that he was properly convicted of theft as defined by the Criminal Code. If a witness when called upon to testify does not object to do so upon the ground that his answers may tend to criminate him, his answers are receivable against him (except in the case provided for by s. 5 of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, as amended by 61 V. c. 53) in any criminal proceedings against him hereafter, but if he does object he is protected. Rex v. Clark, 22 Oc. N. 90. 3 O. L. R. 176.

Evidence—Possession of Stolen Goods—Crown Case Reserved.]—A Crown case was reserved to determine the question whether, when stolen goods are found in the possession of a prisoner, and he gives to those who find him a reasonable account of how became by the goods, it is incumbent upon the prosecution at the trial to shew that the prisoner's account is untrue:—Held, that, in the absence of any evidence to shew that such account was in fact given, the Court was not in a position to determine the question reserved. Regina v. McKay, 34 N. S. Reps. 540.

False Pretences — Evidence — Admissibility.] - On an indictment charging the accused with having obtained goods by false pretences from a company named, with intent to defraud, so soon as it has been proved that he did the act charged, evidence of false representations made to persons other than the president and general manager of such company, on other and distinct occasions, is admissible, to shew that the accused, at the time he made the false representations to the president and general manager of the company, on whose information the prosecution was brought, was pursuing a course of similar acts, and to prove guilty knowledge of the falsity of the pretence charged in the indictment and the intention with which the act charged was done. Rex v. Komiensky, Q. R. 12 K. R. 463.

False Pretences — Obtaining Execution of "Valuable Security"—Lien Note.] — An ordinary "lien note" is a "valuable security" within the meaning of s. 360 of the Criminal Code. Rex v. Wagner, 5 Terr. L. R. 119.

False Pretences—Obtaining Goods Unlawfully—Sale of Hired Goods—Nature of Offence.] — Where the defendant hired a bicycle, of the value of $20, representing that he wished to use it to go to L., for the purpose of visiting his sister, and, instead of returning the bicycle, sold it to C.:—Held, that evidence which shewed these facts was not sufficient to support a conviction for having "unlawfully, and by false pretences, obtained from L. one bicycle, of the value of $20," the prosecutor not having been induced and not intending to part with his right of property in the goods, but merely with the possession of them, and there being no representation as to a present or past matter of fact. Rev. Nonc., 36 N. S. Reps. 531.

Fortune Telling—Criminal Code, s. 396.]
—Deception is an essential element of the offence of "undertaking to tell fortunes" under s. 396 of the Criminal Code; and to render a person liable to conviction for that offence there must be evidence upon which it may be reasonably found that the person charged was, in so undertaking, asserting or representing, with the intention that such assertion or representation should be believed, that he had the power to tell fortunes, with the intent in so asserting or representing of debuding and defrauding others. In this case the evidence set out in the report was held to be sufficient. Rex v. Marcott, 21 Occ, N. 431, 2 O. L. R. 105.

Frandulent Packing—Conviction for— Fruit Marks Act—"Faced or Shewn Surface.")—The mere having in possession for sale packages of fruit fraudulently packed within the meaning of s. 7 of the Fruit Marks Act, 1901, 1 Edw. VII, c. 27 (D.), is an offence thereunder, though no one is imposed on thereby nor any fraud intended. Semble, that the "faced or shewn surface," within the meaning of the section, is not limited to the branded end of the package. Res v. James, 1 O. W. R. 520, 22 Occ. N. 39, 4 O. L. R. 537.

Fraudulent Removal and Concealment of Goods — Indictment — Date of Offence—Evidence of Similar Acts—Judge's Charge.]—The accused were convicted by the jury at the trial on a count for concealing certain household goods for the purpose of defrauding the insurance company by which they had been insured, by representing that they had been destroyed by fire, and collecting the insurance money upon them; also on a count which alleged a removal of the goods on or about the 11th September, 1900, for a like fraudulent purpose. Both counts were framed under s. 354 of the Criminal Code, 1892. Evidence was given at the trial shewing the removal of some of the goods in question on the 13th August, 1900, and of others on the 11th September, and in his charge to the jury the trial Judge did not distinguish between the goods removed on 13th August, and those removed on 11th September, but left the case to them in such a way that they could convict on both counts or on either of them as to both sets of goods. In stating a case, the Judge certified that, in his opinion, the evidence of the removal of goods on the 13th August materially influenced the verdict of the jury—Held, that the conviction of the accused on the count for concealment was right and should be affirmed, but that, although the evidence of the removal in August was probably admissible for the purpose of shewing a criminal intent in the September removal, yet the conviction for the removal should be set aside, on the ground of misdirection by the Judge in telling the jury that they could convict for the removal in August, as the trial might not have been a fair one. Rex v. Hurst, 22 Occ. N. 68, 13 Man, L. R. 584.

Fraudulent Sale — Fraudulent Conversion — Indictment.] — The defendant was indicted for theft. The indictment set out that, being intrusted by E. R. H. with a power of attorney, he did fraudulently sell certain bank shares belonging to said E. R. H., and did fraudulently convert the proceeds of the sale to a purpose other than that for which he was intrusted with the power of attorney. After the conviction the defendant moved in arrest of judgment because it was not stated in the indictment that the power of attorney was for the sale, etc., of any property, real or personal, as provided by art. 309, Criminal Code. The Judge reserved the question for the decision of the Court of Appeal:—Held. 1. That the indictment was sufficient, it not being necessary to describe the whole power of attorney; and, further, the alleged omission was only a part omission, and any defect resulting therefrom was cured by verdict. 2. The fraudulent sale and the fraudulent conversion did not constitute two offences, but one specific offence, viz., that of theft. Regina v. Futton, Q. R. 10 Q. B. 1.

Gaming—Keeping Common Gaming-house—Pevidence of Offence — Occupant of Premises.]—The evidence disclosed that two or three police officers saw several men in a stable sitting around a table, and one of the constables saw dice being thrown and heard somebody say "eleven wins;" and a constable said that, when the police entered the place, the men tried to get out and scattered the money that was on the table, and that the prisoner was in charge of the money on the table. The prisoner gave evidence on his own behalf, and also called witnesses to shew that the game they were playing was "poker." The prisoner said he suw no dice; that he did not own the place, nor did he act as banker at the game. Two of the witnesses for the defence said that a game of "craps" (played with dice) was going on at the same time, but in another room; and another witness for the defence said he had been in the place at other times and had seen the prisoner acting as banker at gambling games there:—Held, that this evidence went to shew that the place was used as a gaming house; and had there been any evidence that the prisoner was the owner, lessee, or occupier of the premises, there was ample evidence to shew that it was a place used for playing at games of chance, and so a common gaming-house.

But the prisoner denied being the keeper of the place, and, unless from the fact sworn to, that the prisoner was in charge of the money for the game, the evidence as to the person who kept the place was as strong against any of the others found there as against him: ss. 196 and 198 of the Code. Rex v. Duffy, 21 Occ, N. 477.

Goods under Seizure-Innkeeper's Lien -Abandonment-Tender-Evidence. 1 - An hotelkeeper who locks up the room of a guest containing the latter's luggage and effects, for non-payment of charges for board and lodging, and who notifies the guest thereof, and requires him to leave the hotel on the same day or pay the bill, thereby places the guest's luggage, etc., under "lawful seizure and detention," in respect of the landlord's common law lien; and the taking away of such luggage by the guest without the landlord's authority is "theft" under s. 306 of the Criminal Code. (But see now 63 V. c. 46, s. 3, sched.). The landlord does not, by afterwards granting permission to the guest to remove some specified articles, and by allowing him free access to the room for that purpose, abandon such seizure and detention as regards the other effects, and the owner who removes any luggage, as to which the permission does not extend, is guilty of "stealing" the same under s. 306 of the Criminal Code. The fact that the amount in respect of which a lien is claimed is in excess of the amount legally due does not dispense with the necessity of a tender of the amount legally due, nor invalidate the lien. Circumstantial evidence of Regina v. Hollingsworth, 4 Terr. L.

Housebreaking—Breaking and Entering—Misdirection—New Trial.]—The defendant was convicted under s. 410 of the Criminal Code for breaking and entering the dwelling house of D., with intent to commit an assault upon W. The only evidence of the breaking was that, immediately after the accused left the house, a window in the dining room and one in the back porch were found wide open, sufficiently to allow a person to pass through, that when the family retired on the previous night the window in the dining room was entirely closed, and the window in the porch open only a few inches and resting upon a can, and that plants growing below the porch window, which had not been disturbed the previous evening, were broken, as if they had been trodden upon. Apart from this evidence it was left uncertain by which window the accused entered. The trial Judge directed the jury that the lifting of the porch window from where it rested, as well as the lifting of the dining room window, was, under the Code, a "breaking" of the dwelling house:—Held, that the direction as to the lifting of the porch window was erroneous, and that the conviction must be set aside:-Held, that the prisoner should not be discharged, but that there should be a new trial, Rew v. Burns, 36 N. S. Reps. 257.

Hlegal Fishing — Fisherics Act — Evidence—Complaint—Indefiniteness—Conviction—Distress—Imprisonment.] — Evidence that a person was seen on the river in a cance between ten and eleven o'clock at night with the appliances commonly used in illegal salmon fishing, is, in the absence of any explanation of the situation and where the charge is not denied on oath, sufficient to justify a conviction for illegal fishing under the Fisheries Act. A complaint charging the accused with having been engaged in illegal fishing in contravention of the Fisheries Act is too indefinite to support a conviction for illegal fishing under the Act. Imprisonment may be adjudged under the Act for default in payment of a penalty imposed without awarding a distress. Rex v. Frazer, Ex p. Dixon, Ex p. Lennon, 36 N. B. Reps. 109.

Hlegal Voting — Municipal Elections—Indictable Offence — Information — Police Magistrate — Mandamus.] — Voting in more than one ward at a municipal election by general vote, contrary to the provisions of 1 Edw. VII. c. 26, s. 9 (O.), is an indictable offence, and mandamus lies to a police magistrate having territorial jurisdiction, to compel him to consider and deal with an application for an information for such an offence. In rec Rew V. Mechan, 22 Occ. N. 179, 3 O. L. R. 567, 1 O. W. R. 136, 248.

Importing Alien Labourer - " Knowingly "—Conviction—Amendment — Evidence of Alienage—Person Born Abroad of Britsh - Conviction of the defendant for Parents.] that he did unlawfully prepay the transportation, and assist and encourage the importation and immigration of an alien and a for-eigner from the United States into Canada under contract and agreement made previous thereto to perform labour and service in Canada by working at a factory, quashed as clearly bad on its face, inasmuch as the conviction did not state that the defendant "knowingly" did the acts charged, nor in fact did the informa-tion charge him with having "knowingly" done them, as required under 1 Edw. VII. c. 13, s. 3:-Held, also, that this omission from the information and conviction of one of the mere irregularity or informality or insufficiency within the meaning of s. 889 of the essential elements of the offence was not a Criminal Code. It was not a matter of form merely, but of substance, and a fatal and incurable defect in the conviction. Semble, also, that the person imported by the defendant was not an alien, but a British subject, the presumption from the only facts in evidence being that he was born of British parents residing in the United States. Rex v. Hayes, 23 Occ. N. 88, 5 O. L. R. 198, 2 O. W. R.

—Conviction—"Wilfully," omission of—Habeas corpus—Amended conviction and commitment substituted — Refusal to discharge prisoner — Appeal to full Court, Manitoba. Rex v. Barré (Man.), 2 W. L. R. 376.

Indecent Act — Information — "Unlorfully"—" Wilfully."]—It is not sufficient in an information laid under s. 177 of the Criminal Code, to allege the "unlawful" commission of an indecent act; it is essential that the accused be charged with having committed it "wilfully." A commitment based on an information which merely alleges that the act was committed "unlawfully" will be quashed and the prisoner discharged. Be p. O'Shaughnessy, Q. R. 13 K. B. 178. R. 58

Keeping Bawdy House — Criminal Code.]—A female cannot be convided of unlawfully keeping a bawdy house, under s. 198 or s. 783 of the Criminal Code, unless it is seem that the house or room in question is occupied or resorted to by more than one female for purposes of prostitution. Singleton f. Ellison, [1895.] 1 Q. B. 607, followed. Rez v. Young, 22 Occ. N. 211, 14 Man. L. R. 58.

Keeping Bawdy House — Nature of Offence—Evidence—Uriminal Code, s. 195.]— 1. A woman, living by herself in a house, therein, unless it is shewn that one or more therein, threes it is stewn that one of most the terms of the purposes of postitution. Rex v. Young, 14 Man. L. R. S., and Singleton v. Ellison, [1895] 1 Q. B. 907, followed. 2. In order to support a conviction for keeping a bawdy house, it is not sufficient to shew the bad reputation of the house and its inmates and that men resorted to it in the night, but actual proof must be given of some act or acts of prostitution, though definite proof of one may be sufficient. Regina v. St. Clair, 3 Can. Crim. Cas. at p. 557, followed. 3. Section 195 of the Criminal Code, 1892, does not change the law, as it was before the Code, as to the essential ingredients of the offence of keeping a bawdy house, and is intended merely to define the nature of the premises within which a bawdy house may be kept, and not to state what acts constitute such keeping. Rex v. Osberg, 15 Man, L. R. 147, 1 W. L. R. 121.

Keeping Bawdy House-Criminal Code. 1. 195-What Constitutes Offence-Place of Resort for Prostitutes.] — Crown case reserved, Magistrate found that a certain house was kept by defendant for the purposes of prostitution, but there was not sufficient evidence to shew that any other women resorted thereto for such purposes. The question reserved was whether, in these circumstances, the magistrate was right in convicting defendant under s, 195 of the Criminal Code, or whether he should have applied the ruling in Rex v. Young, 6 Can. Crim, Cas. 42, and acquitted defendant :- Held, Code has not changed the law as to what constitutes the ofence of keeping a common bawdy house, and that a woman living by herself in a house cannot be convicted of the offence unless other women than herself resort to it for the purpose of prostitution. Rex v. Mannix, 6 O. W. R. 265, 10 O. L. R. 303.

Keeping Bawdy House—Offence—Conviction—Vagrancy—Criminal Code, s. 207.
Res v. Leconte, 6 O. W. R. 970.

Keeping Bawdy House Offence Depictly—Continuity,—The defendant was convicted by the scipendiary magistrate for the city of Halifax of the offence of "keeping a disorderly house, that is to say, a common bawdy house, on the 21st April, 1901, and on divers other days and times during the month of April, 1904," and was fined the sum of $54, and in default of payment of the fine was adjudged to be imprisoned with hard labour for the term of four months—Held, dismissing application for a habeas capus, that the offence as charged did not constitute more than one offence; and that he word "keeping" implied a continuous D—15 offence. Rex v. Keeping, 34 N. S. Reps. 442. (See also S. U., 21 Occ. N. 508, 34 N. S. Reps. 443n.)

Keeping Common Betting House — President of incorporated race association— Criminal Code, ss. 61, 197, 198—"Party to offence"—Lease of betting privileges—Knowledge and acquiescence of accused—Absence of participation. Rev v. Hendrie. 6 O. W. R. 1015, 11 O. L. R. 202.

Keeping Common Gaming House — Conviction — Evidence to sustain — Keeping for gain—Resort of persons to house—Game of chance. Res v. Mah Kee (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 37.

Keeping Common Gaming House — Gain"—Payment for Refreshments—Profit " Gain - Misdirection - Acquittal of Defendant -Crown Case Reserved—New Trial, 1 — The defendant was indicted for keeping a common gaming house, contrary to ss. 196 (a) and 198 of the Criminal Code. The evidence shewed that the defendant was the manager of a cigar shop, in the rear of which was a room to which persons, chiefly customers, commonly resorted for the purpose of playing "poker." Out of the stakes on most of the hands a sum of five cents was withdrawn to cover the expenses of refreshments consumed by the players. No charge was made for the use of the room. The "rake-off" did not more than cover a fair price for the refreshments. The proprietor or manager derived an indirect advantage from the sale of cigars to the players, from 50 to 100 being sold to them in the course of a night's play:—Held, that "gain" may be derived indirectly as well as directly, that by what the defendant allowed to be done in the room mentioned, the profits of his usual business were increased more or less owing to the sale of the goods in which he dealt, and so he might be found to have kept the room for gain, though the gain was confined to the profits on the cigars which he sold to the players. The question of what is a keeping for gain ought not to be em-barrassed by the consideration of whether the amount the defendant receives is an actual substantial profit to him over the price of the cigars which he sells and the refreshments which he furnishes to the players. The direction of the Judge at the trial to the jury, upon which the defendant was acquitted, was found to be wrong, upon a case reserved by the Crown, but the Court declined to order a new trial. Rex v. James, 2 O. W. R. 342, 23 Occ. N. 220, 6 O. L. R. 35.

Reeping Disorderly or Common Betting House—Race track of Incorporated Association—Betting at.)—The defendant was tried before a police magistrate upon a charge of keeping a disorderly or common betting house, found guilty, and convicted. A case was stated by the magistrate after leave granted, in which he reported that it was shewn that a house was kept and used for betting between persons resorting thereto and the keeper; that the accused appeared, and he found him to be the keeper; that the house was owned by a joint stock company, of which the accused was president, and was situated on the race track of an incorporated association; that there were about thirty persons betting with the accused and his assist-

Lottery—Disposing of Property by Chance—Device—Verdict.]—Upon a case reserved for the opinion of the Court as to whether the interposition of a condition that the winner of a prize in a lottery should shoot a turkey at fifty yards in five shots, or, if a lady, that she could choose a substitute to shoot for her, would prevent a conviction unders. 205 of the Criminal Code, 1892, it was stated that the evidence shewed that any person could easily shoot a turkey under the circumstances:—Held, that it was a question for the jury whether the making of that condition was intended as requiring a real contest of skill, or merely as a device for covering up a scheme for disposing of the property by lot; that the verdict of guilty involved a finding that it was merely a device; that the evidence set out in the case justified that finding; and that the conviction should be affirmed. Rew v. Johnson, 22 Occ. N. 125, 14 Man. L. R. 27.

Malicious Neglect to Provide Necessaries—Child's Death — Want of Provide Medical Aid—Aiding and Abetting.]— The prisoner, an elder of the sect "Catholic prisoner, an elder of the sect "Catholic Christians in Zion" or "Zionites," was indicted for aiding and abetting and counselling in his actions one who neglected to provide two of his young children under six years of age with medical attendance and remedies when sick with diphtheria. Both children died. The prisoner knew that the children had diphtheria, and knew that it was a dangerous and contagious disease; that the ordinary remedies would have prolonged their lives, and in all probability would have resulted in their complete recovery :- Held, that medical attendance and remedies are necessaries with in the meaning of ss. 209 and 210 of the Criminal Code, and anyone legally liable to provide such is criminally responsible for neglect to do so. So also at common law. Concientious belief that it is against the teachings of the Bible and therefore wrong to have recourse to medical attendance and remedies is no excuse, Rex v. Brooks, 22 Occ. N. 105, 9 B. C. R. 13.

Maliciously Killing Cattle—Rebutting Implied Malice—Mens Rea—Verdict—Refusal of Judge to Receive.]—On a charge of unlawfully and maliciously killing cattle (under R. S. C. c. 43), it appeared that the animal was killed by the prisoners, when it was in a helpless and dying condition, and that the prisoners thought it was an act of mercy to kill it:—Held, that the killing was not malicious; that the implication of malice was rebuttable, and had been in fact rebutted, a mens rea on the part of the prisoners being disproved. Power of trial Judge to refuse a particular verdict considered. Regina v. Mennel, 1 Terr. L. R. 487.

Manitoba Grain Act-Offences Against Station Agent-Allotting Cars to Shippers. —Where a farmer who is not an elevator owner, lessee, or operator, has grain stored in a special bin in a farmer's elevator at a railway station where grain is shipped, and has also grain stored in another elevator at the same point, in common with other grain, for which he holds storage tickets, it is not a violation of the Manitoba Grain Act and amendments for the station agent to refuse to recognize the farmer as an applicant and to recognize his order in the order book for a car or cars to ship out his grain. 2. Where a farmer has made order for cars in the order book at the station, and all applicants for cars who had made order prior to his had each obtained one car, but not sufficient cars to fill the orders, while the farmer had not yet been allotted a car by reason of the shortage, and the agent out of the next cars which arrived refused to award him a car, but awarded them to those who had already received each one car, there was a violation of the Act. 3. Where each of the prior appli-cants had been supplied with one car at the time when the farmer gave his order, but on the day previous there had been a surplus of cars after each prior applicant had been given one, and such surplus was distributed among them, but their orders still remained unfilled, it was not a violation of the Act for each agent to allot to each of the prior applicants a car from a lot which arrived to be loaded on the day of the farmer's appli-cation, and to refuse him one. 4. Where a farmer who had grain to ship made order for one car in the order book, requiring it to be placed at the loading platform to be loaded, and the agent allotted a car each to the elevator companies having elevators at the point, but whose orders were subsequent to the farmer's and refused to allot him one, there was a violation of the Act. In re Castle and Beniot, 23 Occ. N. 143.

Manslanghter — Endangering Hunan Life—Indictment of Corporation.]—Under s. 213 of the Criminal Code a corporation my be indicted for omitting, without lawful excuse, to perform the duty of avoiding daner to human life from anything in its charge or under its centrol. The fact that the consequence of the omission to perform such duty might have justified an indictment for manslaughter in the case of an individual, is not a ground for quashing the indictment. As s. 213 provides no punishment for the offence, a corporation indicted under it is liable to the common law punishment of a fine. Judgment in 7 B. C. R. 247, 20 Occ. N. 289, affirmed. Regina v. Manslaughter — Parent's Omission to Provide Necessary Medical Treatment for Child-Legal Duty-Lawful Excuse-Religi-ous Belief—"Necessaries" — Admission of ous Betiel—"Necessaries"— Admission of Evidence — Judge's Charge.]—The word "necessaries" in s. 209 of the Criminal Code, which enacts that "everyone who has charge of any other person unable by reason of detention, age, sickness, insanity, or any other cause, to withdraw himself from such charge, is under a legal duty to supply that person with the necessaries of life," includes proper medical aid, assistance, care, and treatment. And, therefore, where the jury found that the prisoner, a Christian Scientist, had with out lawful excuse omitted to provide medical treatment for his infant child, under sixteen years of age, when it was reasonable and proper that such treatment should be provided, and that the child died from such neglect: -Held, that the defendant had been guilty of an indictable offence under s. 210 of the Code, which enacts that everyone who as parent, guardian, or head of a family, is under a legal duty to provide necessaries for any child under sixteen, is criminally responsible for omitting without lawful excuse to do sq. etc. Remarks upon the Judge's charge as 10 "authorized" medical aid and upon the admission of evidence of cures believed to have been wrought by Christian Scientists, even as shewing good faith. Municipal Corporation - Market Fees -Right to Possession.]-The defendant, a market clerk in the employment of the city of Montreal, had collected divers sums from persons exchanging market stalls, by representing that these sums were due and payable to the city on the exchange of their stalls for others. No such sums were payable to the city, and none were paid over to the city by the defendant. On conviction of the defendant for theft from the city of Montreal: -Held, Bossé and Hall, JJ., diss., that the conviction could not be sustained. To constitute the offence of stealing, whether under s. 305, or 319 (a), or 319 (c), of the Criminal Code, there must be a right existing at the time of the taking, either to the ownership or to the possession of the property taken, which right the city of Montreal did not possess in the present case. Murder—Absence of direct evidence — Corpus delicti—Presumption of death—Crown counsel—Right of reply—Comment on failure of prisoner to testify—Crown case reserved —New trial. Rev v. Charles King (N.W. T.), 1 W. L. R. 348, 576.

Murder-Constructive Offence-Unlawful Purpose - Common Design - Evidence -Judge's Charge-Finding of Jury-Verdict-Mistrial.]-The prisoner and two other men were in lawful custody in a cab, when loaded pistols were thrown in by an unknown person, and all three endeavoured to escape by using the pistols. In the struggle which ensued one of the constables in charge of the three men was shot and killed by one of the prisoners. The trial Judge told the jury that there was no evidence of common design up to the moment the pistols were thrown in, yet if at that moment, before the shot was fired that killed the constable, the three men resolved to escape from lawful custody, each was responsible for the acts of the other. The jury after some consideration asked the Judge to repeat his charge as to the resolu-tion to escape, and he did so in different words. The jury did not agree as to whether the prisoner actually fired the shou which killed the constable, but found the which killed the constant, but found the prisoner guilty on what their foreman called the second "count," and their verdict was recorded with their consent as one of "guilty," with a clause added as to their inability to agree as to whether the prisoner fired the shot:—Held, having regard to the evidence and s. 61 (2) of the Criminal Code, that the offence being murder in the actual perpetrator, was murder in the prisoner, even if he were not the actual perpetrator. 2. That there was nothing in the charge nor in the subsequent instructions to the jury, both of which must be read together, of which the prisoner could properly complain. 3. That the finding of the jury was a proper one, and there was no mistrial. The foreman in speaking of "counts" was referring to the two branches of the case; but the verdict was that recorded and acknowledged. Rex v. Rice, 22 Occ. N. 225, 4 O. L. R. 223, 1 O. W. R. 399.

A justice of the peace swore an Indian way. interpret the statement the woman to make; a constable then was about asked questions through the interpreter, and a doctor wrote down what the interpreter said the woman's answers were. The doctor and the justice of the peace then signed the statement. To some of the questions the woman indicated her answers by nodding her head. At the trial the statement was tendered as a dying declaration, and the doctor, the justice of the peace, and the constable identified the statement; the interpreter de-posed that he interpreted truly, but he gave no evidence as to what the woman really did say:—Held, disapproving Regina v. Mitchell, 17 Cox C. C. 503, that the statement was admissible as a dying declaration; also that it had been properly proved. An Indian wo-man's statement that she thinks she is going to die is a sufficient indication of such a settled hopeless expectation of immediate death as to render the statement admissible as a dying declaration. A dying declaration may be obtained by means of questions and answers, and if it is reduced to writing it is sufficient if the answers only appear in the writing. Rex v. Louie, 23 Occ. N. 274, 10 B. Murder - Evidence of Guilt-Continued Murder — Evidence of Guill Convinues Silence of Prisoner—Story in Witness Box —Inference — Judge's Charge—New Trial— Evidence in Rebuttal — Cumulative Testi-Evidence in Resourcat — Cumulative Team-mony,]—The prisoner, who was tried and convicted of murder, although he had ample time and opportunity to tell all he knew concerning the crime both to the authorities and others, maintained a complete silence respecting it, with the exception of some bald assertions of his innocence, until he went upon the witness stand at the trial to give evidence on his own behalf, when he admit-ted being present at the doing of the deed, but charged it upon one G., a young com-panion, who was with him, and who, before and at the trial, had alleged the prisoner's guilt. The Judge, in charging the jury, told them that they were entitled to take this continued silence of the prisoner into consideration, and after deciding whether or not such silence proceeded from a consciousness of guilt and a desire to spring a defence upon the Crown, which it might not be able to meet, they might therefrom draw an inference as to his guilt or innocence. He further instructed them that this continued silence of the prisoner was an element that might assist them in determining the amount of credence that ought to be given to the story told by the prisoner in the witness box :-Held, that the charge was correct in both respects; and even if erroneous, as in the opinion of the Court no substantial wrong or miscarriage had been occasioned thereby, such error was cured by proviso (f) of s, 746 of the Code. The witness G., in the original case of the Crown, swore that the murder had been committed about three o'clock in the afternoon, and that he and the prisoner were back in the city about five o'clock. swore that the crime was not committed until about five o'clock, and that the clocks were striking six when he and G. were coming back to the city. The Crown, by permission, then called a witness to contradict the prisoner as to the time of G.'s return to the city: and the Judge allowed the prisoner's counsel to put in a witness in reply:—Held, that the evidence so put in by the Crown was contradictory; and further, as it was in the discretion of the Judge in what order he would receive evidence, and as the prisoner had had the opportunity of replying, of which he had taken advantage, that a new trial on the ground that such evidence was cumulative should be refused. Rew v. Higging, 36 N. B. Reps. 18.

Murder — Judge's Charge—Murder or Manslaughter — Benefit of Doubt.]—Where the Judge in a trial for murder concludes his charge thus.—"The verdict of the jury is generally resumed in a few words, in the solemn words of guilty or not guilty," he is not supposed to direct the jury to bring in but one of the two verdicts of guilty or not guilty of murder, if in other parts of his charge he has sufficiently pointed out the distinction between murder and manslaughter, and instructed them as to their duty to find whether the prisoner acted with or without intent to kill. Where the Judge considers that no doubt exists, he is not obliged to instruct the jury that the prisoner is entitled to any doubt they may entertain, such a course being more likely to impede than to assist them in the discharge of their daty. Rex v, Fouquet, Q. R. 14 K. B. ST.

Murder—Manslaughter — Definitions — Judge's Charge — Failure to Instruct Jury — Failure to Object to Charge — New Trial-Evidence-Rebuttal.]-It is the duty of the Judge in a criminal trial with a jury to define to the jury the crime charged and to explain the difference between it and its cognate offences, if any. Failure to so instruct the jury is good cause for granting a new trial, and the fact that counsel for the accused took no exception to the Judge's charge is immaterial. 2. After the cases for the Crown and defence were closed, the Crown called a witness in rebuttal, whose evidence changed by a few minutes the exact time of the crime as stated by the Crown's prewhich tended witnesses and weaken the alibi set up by the accused:-Held, that to allow the evidence was entirely in the discretion of the Judge, and there was no legal prejudice to the accused, as he was allowed an opportunity to cross-examine and meet the evidence. Rex v. Wong On and Wong Gow, 24 Occ. N. 384, 10 B. C. R.

Obstructing Distress—Onus on Crown to Proce Legality of Distress—Criminal Code, 1, 144, (2), 1—Section 144 (2) of the Criminal Code enacts that everyone is guilty of an offence . . . who resists or wilfully obstructs any person . . . in making any lawful distress:—Held, that it devolves on the prosecution under this section to prove the existence of all the ingredients which go to make up the offence, one of which is the legality of the distress, as for example, in this case, that there was rent in arrear. It was necessary therefore for the Crown to shew that rent was due and in arrear. Rew. 7, Harron, 24 Occ. N. 10, 6 O. L. R. 608, 2 O. W. R. 908.

Obstructing Divine Service — Indictment—Proof of Lawful Authority—Ownership of Church Building.]—1. An indictment, under s. 171 of the Criminal Code, for unlawfully obstructing or preventing a clergyman or minister, by threats or force, in or from celebrating divine service or otherwise officiating in any church, chapel, &c., is sufficient without allegation that the clergyman or minister obstructed was, at the time of the offence, in lawful charge of the church, the offence, in lawful charge of the chapel, &c. 2. To support a prosecution under that section, however, it must be proved at the trial that the clergyman or minister obstructed was, at the time of the alleged offence, either the lawful incumbent of the church or was holding service with the permission of the lawful authorities of the church. 3. A church building erected by a congregation of one religious body remains the property of those who adhere to that body, although a majority of the congregation afterwards decides to join another or religious body, and assumes to appoint a clergyman or priest to hold services in the church, and those who are opposed to such appointment may lawfully prevent or obappointed the person so appointed from officiating in the church. Obstructing Officer—Science of Chattel—Conditional Sale.]—The retaking of possession of a chattel by the vendors thereof under the provisions of a conditional sale agreement, is not a science within the meaning of the Criminal Code, s. 144, s.-s. 2 (b), so as to subject the purchaser of the chattel, who is good faith disputes the right to retake it, to the penalty prescribed in that sub-section, Res v. Shand, 24 Occ. N. 125, 7 O. L. R. 190, 3 O. W. R. 293.

Obstruction of Officer of Law-Bailiff -Executing Writ of Replevin - County Court - Absence of Jurisdiction,]-Section 204 of the County Courts Act, R. S. M. c. 33, does not authorize the issue of a writ of replevin out of the County Court of any County Court division except that in which the goods to be replevied are situate. For the construction of the provision in that sec tion as to the Court out of which the writ is to issue, it is proper to look at the prior is to issue, it is proper to look at the prior enactments of which that section is a revi-sion; and in that light the words "other-wise ordered" should be held to apply only to an order changing the place of trial and not to give power to order the issue of the writ out of the Court for any County Court division other than that in which the goods to be replevied are situate. An order of a County Court Judge for the issue of a writ of replevin out of such other County Court, and the writ issued thereunder, are wholly ultra vires and void, and afford no protection to the officer attempting to execute the writ; and the owner of the goods described in the writ cannot be convicted under s. 144 of the Criminal Code, 1892, for unlawfully obstructing or resisting the officer in the execution of his duty, because he by force prevented the balliff from taking the goods under the writ. Ownership - Evidence-Depositions of Witness at Preliminary Inquiry.] - Held, Rouleau, J., dissenting, upon a Crown case reserved after a conviction for theft, that the production of the steer's hide with the prosecutor's brand and earmarks only upon it, and the evidence of the prosecutor that he and the evidence of the prosecutor that he had owned and had never parted with the steer from which the hide had come, were sufficient to justify the trial Judge in finding that the steer in question was the property of the prosecutor. (Sec. 63 & 64 V. c. 40, s. 707 A, and 1 Edw. VII. c. 42, s. 707 A.):—Held, per curiam, that evidence that a witness at the preliminary inquiry was a corporal in the N. W. M. Police, that he had been sworn in as a member of Strathcona's Horse, that he had left the post at which he had been stationed to join the latter force, and that, in the opinion of the deponent, if he had left the latter force he would have returned to such post, which fact would thereupon have become known to the deponent, was sufficient evidence of the absence of such witness from Canada to justify the admission as evidence at the trial of the deposition of such witness taken at the preliminary inquiry; and that the question was one to be decided by the trial Judge. Regina v. Forsythe, 4 Terr. L. R. 398.

Perjury—Affidavit in Pending Civil Cause
—Several Charges—Duty to Consider Affidavit as a Whole—Charge not in Information —Consent—Literally True Statement—Croven Case Reserved—Form of.]—The defendant was convicted in a County Judge's Criminal Court on several charges of perjury, alleged to have been committed in connection with an affidavit sworn to in a cause pending in the Supreme Court. One of the charges was not contained in the information in the magistrate's Court, but was preferred by the Crown presecutor before the Judge of the County Court, without the latter having in any way expressed his consent to the preferring of the charge as required by the Code, s. 773. Another charge was that defendant falsely swore that a sum of money was not received by him, whereas it was received by the firm of which the defendant was a mem-There was no allegation that the defendant, knowing that the money had been received, corruptly swore, etc., and the statement as sworn to appeared to have been literally true: —Held, that both convictions were bad, and must be set aside :-Held, also, that the different allegations being contained in the one affidavit, the Judge was wrong in considering each charge separately, without reference to the other allegations in the affidavit, and that he was bound to weigh the statements as a whole in arriving at a conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner:—Held, also, that it was not competent for the Judge to submit a question as to whether there was legal evidence to sustain the conviction, and send up the evidence for review, but that he must state the effect of the evidence to support a certain charge and reserve the question as to its sufficiency in point of law:—Semble, that the charge of perjury should not have been brought during the pendency of the civil action in the Supreme Court. Rew v. Cohn, 36 N. S. Reps. 240.

Perjury-Attempt to Incite-Bail - Recognizance—Jurisdiction of Justice of the Peace—Criminal Code.]—A defendant charged with offering money to a person to swear that A., B., or C. gave him a certain sum of money to vote for a candidate at an election, was admitted to bail and the recognizances taken by one justice of the peace :- Held. that the offence was not an attempt to commit the crime of subornation of perjury, but something less, being an incitement to give false evidence or particular evidence regardless of its truth or falsehood, and was a misdemeanour at common law, and that the recognizance was properly taken by one justice, who had power to admit the accused to bail at common law, and that s. 601 of the Code did not apply. The common law jurisdiction as to crime is still operative, notwithstanding the Code, and even in cases pro-vided for by the Code, unless there is such repugnancy as to give prevalence to the later law. Rex v. Cole, 22 Occ. N. 132, 3 O. L. R. 389, 1 O. W. R. 117.

Perjury—Evidence of Clerk and Stenogramsher—Proof of Proceedings in which Offence Committed—Record Book — Imperfect Proof — New Trial—Substantial Wrong or Miscarriage,—Crown case reserved by the Chairman of the General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Brant. The prisoner was convicted for perjury. The only evidence was that of the Clerk of Assize, who swore the prisoner was called as a witness at a certain trial; and that as Clerk of Assize be had sworn the prisoner on said trial, and he produced his record book which he kept as Clerk of Assize, in which he had entered as a witness sworn on said trial the name of the prisoner, whom he identified as a witness who had been sworn by him; and that of the court stenographer as to the evidence the prisoner had given at the said, trial:—Held, the law had simplified the proof in such cases under s. 691 of the Criminal Code, viz., "A certificate containing the substance and effect only of the indictment and trial for any offence, purporting to signed by the Clerk of the Court or other officer having the custody of the records of the Court whereat the indictment was tred, would be sufficient proof of the crime for which the prisoner was tried. This was absent and the conviction was not according to law, since the crime was not legally proved. The saving clause (s. 746 of the Code that the conviction ought not to be set aside as no wrong or miscarringe had been done in the mistake), which was invoked by the Crown, did not apply and the conviction was reversed and a new trial granted. Res v. Drummond, 6 O. W. R. 211, 10 O. L. R. 546.

Perjury—Judicial Proceeding—De Facto Tribunal—Juriadiction.]—An information under R. S. Q. Art. 5551, for trespass upon lands in the county of Huntingdon, in the district of Benuharnois, was laid, heard, and decided before the recorder of Valleyfield, an ex officio justice of the peace within the whole district, but who did not reside in the county where the offence was charged to have been committed, and was, therefore, without jurisdiction to hear the case, as R. S. Q. Art. 5561, provides that such offences shall be cognizable only by a justice or justices resident within the county where the offence has been committed:—Held, affirming the judgment in Q. R. 11 K. B. 477, that the hearing of said charge by the recorder, acting as a justice of the peace having power to hear it, was a judicial proceeding within the meaning of s. 145 of the Criminal Code, and that the appellant was rightly convicted for perjury committed by him upon such hearing, not withstanding that the recorder had no jurisdiction over the subject matter of the complaint. which was held in a public hall, and was accompanied by all the particulars and circumstances of a prize-fight. Complainant submitted that the accused came within the provisions of the statute; and on behalf of the defendants it was contended that the encounter was merely a scientific boxing parade, and moreover a sham fight not forbidden by law:—Held, that, as the proof adduced established that the encounter in question was accompanied by all the circumstances and elements which constitute a prize-fight, the defendants committed an infraction of the law, Criminal Code, so. 92-95, for which they must be found guilty. Rape Evidence-Complaint-Particulars of—Interval—Civil Action — Relations with Accused after Offence.]—1. On a trial for rape, the fact that the injured person made a complaint and the particulars or details of the complaint are admissible as evidence in chief for the presecution to confirm the testimony of the injured person and disprove consent on her part; and mong the parti-culars the name of the person whom she accused of the offence may be stated. 2. While the injured person should make her complaint as soon as possible after the commission of the offence, yet no specific time for such complaint being fixed by law, evidence may be admitted of a complaint made by her to her mother seven days after the offence; but the jury may and should weigh the interwhen considering the probability of its truth. 3. Evidence that civil suits for damages based on the alleged commission of rape, have been instituted by the tutor of the injured person (a minor) on her behalf, and also by her mother, may be excluded as irrelevant on the trial for rape, unless it be first proved that the injured person and her mother had stated or let it be inferred, that the accused was innocent of the offence charged, and that they had appeared to be desirous of extorting money from him. In such case, the fact that civil actions had been instituted would be corroborative evidence. Judgment in Q. R. 9 Q. B. 147 confirmed. 4. Evidence that the accused and the injured person were on friendly terms after the commission of the alleged offence, and that she angrily resented the interference of her mother when the latter wished to put an end to such intimacy, should have been admitted, such evidence being important to enable the jury to judge whether or not there was consent on the part of the person injured. Judgment in Q. R. 9 Q. B. 147 reversed. Rew v. Riendeau, Q. R. 10 K. B. 584.

Receiving Stolen Goods — Conviction for-Charge of Theft.]—Under s. 713 of the Criminal Code, a conviction for receiving stolen goods cannot be sustained where the charge was housebreaking accompanied with theft. Regina v. Lamoureux, 21 Occ. N. 49, Q. R. 10 Q. B. 15, Receiving Stolen Property — Indict-ment for—Prior Conviction for Stealing — Right to Inspect Information and Depositions.]—By s. 11 of R. S. O. 1897 c. 324, "a person affected by any record in any Court in this province, whether it concerns the King or other person, shall be entitled, upon payment of the proper fee, to search and examine the same, and to have an exemplification and a certified copy thereof made and deli-vered to him by the proper officer." The applicant was committed for trial at the Sessions upon three charges of receiving cattle stolen from C. and two other persons, knowing them to have been stolen. At the previous Sessions three persons were convicted of having stolen cattle from C., one of whom and two others were also convicted at the same Sessions of having stolen cattle from S. No charge was pending against the applicant of having received cattle stolen from S.:— Held, that in such cases the question is whether the applicant would be affected by the records which he sought to examine, and that, while he might be so affected as regards the cattle stolen from C., and so entitled to the inspection asked for, he was not as re-gards those stolen from S. In re Chantler and Clerk of Peace of Middlesez, 24 Oct. N. 355, S. O. L. R. 111, 3 O. W. R. 761.

Resisting Bailiff — Distress for rent — Necessity for proof of rent in arrear—Lawful distress—Rescue before impounding. Rex v. Harron, 2 O. W. R. 903.

Resisting Distress — School Taxes—Evidence—Notices—Canada Evidence Act—"Proceeding."]—On the trial of an accused on a charge of having unlawfully resisted and wilffully obstructed an official trustee of a school district in making a lawful distress and seizure, the production of the tax and assessment rolls of such school district, with entries thereon of the dates of the mailing of the notice of assessment, and of the tax notice to the accused, and of the posting of such tax roll, initialled with what purports to be the initials of the official trustee of such school district, is evidence of the mailing of such notices and of the posting of such tax roll. Such prosecution is a "proceeding" within the meaning of s. 2 of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893. Rev. v. Rapup. 5 Terr. L. R. 307.

Seduction of Girl under 16—Evidence — Corroboration — Functions of Judge and Jury.]—In a prosecution under the Criminal Code, s. 181, for the seduction of a girl under 16, in addition to the evidence of the girl, evidence was given by other witnesses to the following effect:—That the accused and the girl were found in a house alone; that the accused came out partly dressed; that he was then leaving sheep (which were in his charge) unattended and refused to go with the witness to go where the sheep were; that before he was charged with any offence he stated to the witness "that he had been advised if he could get the girl away and marry her, he would escape punishment:" Held, that the girl was corroborated in some material particulars by evidence implicating the accused, within the intention of the Criminal Code, s. 684. Semble, that the fact that the accused, in giving evidence on his own behalf, stated that he had first had connexion with the girl at a date after she had reached 16, while one of the witnesses for the prosecution stated that the accused, two months before that date, had admitted with reference to the girl that he had "got there," might, though this admission was made after the girl had reached 16, be taken into consideration with the other facts as tending to implicate the accused. Whether there is any corroborative testimony is a question for the Judge, but if there is any such testimony, the sufficiency of it, and the weight to be given it, is for the jury, unless of course the corroboration is so slight that it ought not to be left to the jury at all. Regina v. Wyse, 2 Terr. L. R. 103.

Seduction — "Under Promise of Marriage" — Direction to Jury — Mistrial — New Trial.] — The words "under promise of marriage" in 50 & 51 V. c. 48, s. 2, substituting a new section for R. S. C. c. 157, s. 4 (Criminal Code, s. 182), signify "by means of a promise of marriage." Where therefore the trial Judge directed the jury that the intention of the section was to impose a punishment for the seducing of young women under 21 by men over 21 to whom they were engaged, and the jury rendered a special verdict as follows: "The verdict is that the prisoner promised to marry F. S. in June, 1892, with the intention of carrying out his promise, but in November of the same year he seduced her, at the same time renewing his promise of marriage, and in our opinion no other man had connection with her;"—Held, that there had been a misdirection and therefore a mistrial; and a new trial was ordered. Regina v. Walker, 1 Terr. L. R. 482.

Selling Beverage in Bottle with Name of Another on it — Unregistered Name—Criminal Code, s. 449 (b).]—Defendant, a ginger ale and soda water manufacturer, filled four bottles having another like manufacturer's name permanently affixed thereon, and placed them upon the market for the purpose of sale. Defendant was con-victed therefor under Criminal Code, s. 449 (b), which enacts that "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence who, (b) being a manufacturer, dealer, or trader, or a bottler, without the written consent of such person, trades or traffics in any bottle or siphon which has upon it the duly registered trade mark or name of another person, or fills such bottle or siphon with any beverage for the purpose of sale or trade. Defendant pleaded name not duly registered. Plea admitted:— Held, it was not necessary that such name should be registered as a trade mark, the object of the legislation evidently being to prevent, as far as possible, the easy com-mission of a fraud of that kind. In the French version of the Code the words are "la marque de commerce dûment enregistrée ou le nom d'une autre personne," which more plainly indicate that the words "duly regis-tered" are confined to the trade mark and do not apply to the name; s.-s. 2 of s. 449 supports this construction. Rew v. Irvine, 5 O. W, R. 352, 9 O. L. R. 389.

Shooting with Intent-Justification — Questions for Jury-Misdirection.]—The defendant, who was employed as watchman and special constable, was in the act of arresting for committing a disturbance, when he received a blow from behind which cut his head. Turning, he saw M. immediately behind him, and, supposing him to be the person by whom the blow was struck, tried to son by whom the blow was struck, tried to arrest him. M. ran away, followed by the defendant, who had in his hand a small stick. Near the station of which the defendant was in charge, this stick was wrested from him by E. P., who had followed with a from him by F. r., who had followed with a number of others, and, in the disturbance which followed, during which, according to the defendant, one of the persons present raised a stick in a menacing manner and threatened to smash his brains out, the defendant drew a revolver, and fired two shots, one of which struck E. P.:—Held, setting aside the conviction of the defendant for shooting with intent to do grievous bodity harn, that it was misdirection on the part of the trial Judge to charge the jury that there was no concerted attack upon the defendant, and no assault at the time the shots were fired, that the assault was over, and that those present were not within striking distance, these being questions for the jury. The assault upon the defendant having been admittedly committed without provocation, the questions for the jury were: (1) whether the defendant had any intention of causing grievous bodily harm, and if not, (2) whether he used any more force than was necessary -Held, further, that, under the Code, s. 45. defendant being justified if the force used by him was not meant to cause death or grievous bodily harm, or was no more than was necessary for the purposes of self-defence, and there being evidence which, if believed, would have enabled the jury to find for the defendant, the trial Judge erred in charging the jury that there must be evidence that the defendant could not otherwise preserve himself from death or grievous bodily harm. Theft—Conversion—Misda-vetion.]— The mere fact of a person converting to his own use goods found by him does not of itself as a matter of law make him guilty of theft. Where, on the trial of a charge of theft, the jury after retiring asked the question. "Does raising a temporary loan on anything found constitute theft?" and the Judge answered "Yes:"—Held, that the answer was equivalent to a direction that as a matter of law the accused was guilty, and was a misdirection. Theft — Evidence of former offence — Acquittal—Judge's charge. Rex v. Menard, 2 O. W. R. 900.

Theft-Juvenile Offender - Imprisonment -Warrant of Commitment-Defect-Amendment - Discharge.] - The defendant was detained under a warrant of commitment from a magistrate, reciting a conviction of the prisoner before that magistrate, for the offence of fraudulently and without colour of right taking and converting to his own use one stove of the value of $5, the property of one W., with intent to deprive said W. absolutely of the said stove. A return to an order in the nature of a habeas corpus made under R. S. N. S. c. 181, shewed that the prisoner was detained under a warrant of commitment made the 9th January, 1903, a copy of which was annexed, and that he came into the custody of the keeper of the home, under said warrant, on said last mentioned day, and was etained on said warrant until the 22nd January, 1903, when, being still in custody, the magistrate caused to be delivered to the keeper of the home a certain other warrant of commitment, under which the prisoner had been detained ever since: — Held, ordering the discharge of the prisoner, that the return to the order was bad, because neither it nor the second commitment shewed that the magistrate intended to amend the first war-rant, or substitute the second one for it. In re Elmy v. Sawyer, 1 A. & E. 843, fol-lowed. Rex v. Venot, 23 Occ. N. 71.

Theft-Magistrate's Conviction-Juvenile Offender-Place of Imprisonment-Duration of Sentence - Discharge - Order for Further Detention-Circumstances.] - The defendant, a youth of over 17 years of age, was charged before a magistrate with stealing a small sum of money out of the contribution box of a church. The magistrate's return shewed that the defendant pleaded guilty, and was committed for two years to the Provincial Reformatory. He was taken to the Reformatory and sent on to the Central Prison and kept there in custody under the warrant of commitment to the Reformatory. On a motion for his discharge on the return of a habeas corpus:—Held, that there had been a miscarriage of legal directions in sending a lad of over 17 years of age to the Reformatory and in sending him on a sentence of two years to the Central Prison. Held, also, that 8. 785 of the Criminal Code is intended to comprehend summary trial "in certain other cases" than those enumerated in s. 783, and that when the offence is charged, and in reality falls under s. 783 (a), it is to be treated as a comparatively petty offence with the extreme limit of incarceration fixed at six months under s. 787:—Held, also, that, under the circumstances, this was not a case for further detention or the direction of further proceedings under s. 752; and an order for the defendant's discharge was stanted. Rex v. Haynerd, 23 Occ. N. 48, 5 0. L. R. 65, 1 O. W. R. 799.

Theft - Post Letter and Money - Evidence — Confession — False Statements — Person in Authority — Decoy Letter — "Post Letter" — Addresses to Jury — Order of - Reply - King's Counsel Representing Attorney-General.] — Prisoner convicted for stealing a post letter and of theft of money. At the trial the post office inspector was about to testify with respect to a statement or confession made to him by the prisoner, when counsel for prisoner objected, and was allowed to examine the inspector as to the circumstances in which the statement was made. Upon testimony thus elicited counsel for the prisoner contended that it was shewn that the statement or confession was not admissible, because it was made as he contended to a person in authority, and was procured by means of threats or inducements, or by false statements made by inspector to the prisoner. The statement was admitted in evidence. Counsel for prisoner also objected that the letter was not a post letter within the meaning of the Act 1 Edw. VII. c. 19, s. 1, it having been written by the inspector as a decoy. Prisoner called no witnesses and his counsel contended on that ground he had the right of reply. Trial Judge ruled against him and Crown replied: —Held, 1. That there was no evidence that the confession was obtained by means of threats or inducements held out, and evidence was properly admitted; 2. The letter in question was a post letter within the meaning of the Act; 3. Crown always had the right of reply if its representative saw fit to use it. See as to this last point, Rex v. Martin, 5 O. W. R. 317, 9 O. L. R. 218; Rex v. Ryan, 5 O. W. R. 125, 9 O. L. R. 137.

Unlawful Assembly—Street Meeting—Conviction — Proof of Obstruction—Yagrancy.]—The mere fact of holding a meeting in a street does not necessarily imply the impeding or incommoding of peaceable passengers, and proof of actual impeding or incommoding is essential to justify a conviction.

2. Article 207 of the Criminal Code does not apply to persons of general good character, but is intended to apply to loose, idle, and disorderly persons (aux vagabonds, aux desceuvrés, on aux debauchés.) Rex v. Kneeland, Q. R. 11 f. B. 85.

Unlawful Making Contracts for Sale of Stocks — Keeping Common Gaming House — Stock Transactions on Margin — Agent for Broker — Evidence — Onus — Criminal Code—Aiding and Abetting.]—De-fendant was convicted upon charges of unlawfully making contracts purporting to be for the sale of stocks, goods, wares, or merchandise, in respect of which no delivery thereof was made or received, without the bona fide intention to make such delivery, with intent to make gain or profit by the rise or fall in price of the stocks, goods, etc., contrary to s. 201 of the Criminal Code, and of being a keeper of a common gaming house contrary to said section. The following were submitted for the opinion of the Court of Appeal:-1, Does the evidence given on behalf Appeal:—1, Does the evidence given on benair of the Crown prove an offence against sec. 201 of the Criminal Code, under which the indictment was laid? 2. he is charged in said counts except the payment of his commission, which was a fixed amount, and was payable to him whether the price of wheat or of the stock, the subject of such transaction, rose or fell or remained stationary, can the conviction upon such counts or either of them be sustained? 3. Does the evidence shew that the contracts charged in the first and second counts of the indictment were made within the Dominion of Canada and can the conviction upon said counts be sustained? 4. Was the evidence of J. G. Beaty and Clarence W. Cady, received by the County Court Judge upon the trial of the accused, admissible as evidence, and having been received should such conviction be sustained? 5. Could defendant properly be convicted of an indictable offence under s.-s. 3 of s. 201 of the Criminal Code? 6. Is defendant liable to a penalty or punishment in respect of an offence under s.-s. 3 of s. 201 of the Criminal Code, by virtue of s. 951 or otherwise, under the Code or under the com-The evidence shewed that from the mon law. beginning of January, 1904, until the information was laid, some time after 1st March in the same year, defendant was occupying a room or office in the town of Niagara Falls, Ontario, in which he was carrying on a business under the name and style of Harkness & Co. The nature of the business was learned from a circular issued by defendant, a copy of which was put in as evidence. It was headed "Office of Harkness & Co., Brokers, Stocks, Grain, and Provisions." Defendant was not a member of the stock exchange at New York nor Chicago, and he did not deal directly with either of these cities. He claimed to be a branch or agency of a firm of operators known as Richmond & Co., whose head office was in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, with a branch in Buffalo, N.X. Defendant swore that he did not know whether any member of the firm of Richmond & Co. was a member of either of these exchanges. When giving orders the persons who dealt with defendant deposited with him sums of money, never exceeding a margin of 2 per cent. in the case of stocks or 1 per cent, in the case of grain or provisions, out of which the defendant received a commission from the Buffalo office. Each order was telgraphed to the Buffalo office, and the next day defendant handed to office, and the next day defendant handed to the customer a paper, signed "Harkness & Co., brokers," containing, amongst other things, a uotification to the customer as follows: "Mr. ——, You have bought from Richmond & Co., Pittsburg, at the price named in this memorandum, for delivery on demand, subject to the contract "..." In the and provisions above and herein." In the margin appear the words: "I consent and margin appear the words: "I consent and margin appear the words: "But demand, subject to the contract and notice the customer was not required or expected to sign, and apparently never did sign it. Save this document, there was no delivery. and it was proved that in answer to a quesand it was proved that in answer to a ques-tion put to him by the Chief of Police, to whom he was explaining the nature of the business, defendant stated that he did not deliver goods or stock—the people did not do business that way. If the stocks, grain, or provisions held by the customer went up in price, he directed defendant to sell out and received back his deposit with the profit. If the price declined below the margin, the customer either put up a further deposit or let his first deposit go and bore the loss. Defendant remitted the amounts he received each day to Richmond & Co., Buffalo, who remitted to him the sums payable to customers on the result of transactions closed out during the day :- Held, with regard to defendant's position, that he is only an agent receiving a commission and is therefore not liable. Upon his own admissions his office is a branch of Richmond & Co.: he was engaged in soliciting, attracting, or inducing persons to deal with Richmond & Co. through him in illegal transactions, and as the County Court Judge has found, he had a guilty knowledge of the nature of the deal-There was no purchase shewn on the exchange for or on account of the customer, exchange for or on account of the customer. There was nothing but a contract or agreement with Richmond & Co., to which the defendant was a party, with knowledge of its real nature. The customer and Richmond & Co., through and by the aid of the defendant, have committed the offence prohibited by s. 201 (1) (b), and defendant has done acts for the purpose of aiding them to commit the offence and has abetted them in the commission of the offence. At common law one who aided and abetted in the commission of an offence thereby rendered himmission of an onence hereby rendered misself liable as a principal. Then s. 61 of the Criminal Code expressly declares that every one is a party to and guilty of an offence who does or omits an act for the purpose of aiding any person to commit the offence or abets any person in commission of the offence. That is to say, by aiding or abetting in the commission of an offence, he becomes a party to and guilty of the same offence. Thus he becomes a party principal, and there appears to be no reason why he should not be indicted or charged as a principal under the Code. See Regina v. Campbell, 2 Can. Crim. Cas. 357. Upon the evidence it must be held that the contracts charged in the first and second counts of the indictment were made in Canada-according to the holding of the majority of the Judges of the Supreme Court in Pearson v. Carpenter, 35 S. C. R. 380. The conviction of defendant under s.-s. (3) of s. 201 was properly made. By that sub-section it is declared that every office or place of business wherein is carried on the business of making or signing or procuring to be made or signed, or negotiating or bargaining for the making or signing of such contracts of sale or purchase as are prohibited by this section, is a common gaming house, and every one who as principal or agent occupies, uses, one who as principal or agent occupies wannings, or maintains the same, is the keeper of a common gaming house. All the questions should be answered in favour of the Crown, and the conviction should be affirmed. Rew v. Harkness, 6 O. W. R. 219, 10 O. L. R. 555.

criminal offence under s. 507 unless the act of damage is done "without legal justification or excuse, and without colour of right." —Held, that "colour of right is desired, would be a legal justification or excuse. Upon the evidence in this case, there was on the part of the defendant such an honest belief, reasonably entertained, in the existence of a right of way over a lane on the complainant's land, as satisfied the terms of the statute, and rendered the conviction bad for want of jurisdiction:—Held, also, that the convicting magistrate erred in disregarding plans of the locus because they were not registered. Where lots are sold in sections pursuant to a plan of the whole made by or for the owner of the whole, according to which he sells the parts, the plan is good to establish such a lane among the different sub-owners, whether registered or not. Rex v. Johnson, 24 Occ. N. 267, 7 O. L. R. 525, 3 O. W. R. 221, 222.

Wounding with Intent to Disable-Indictment—Proof of Lesser Offence — Ver-dict—Actual Malice—Criminal Code, ss. 241. 242.1-Upon an indictment for wounding by shooting with intent to disable, under the Criminal Code, s. 241, the jury is properly instructed that if such intent is negatived the accused may still be convicted of the simple offence of wounding under s. 242, if the jury find that the accused pointed a loaded gun at another and fired it, and either knew or ought to have known that it was loaded. A verdict returned upon such in-dictment of "guilty without malicious in-tent" is a verdict of guilty of such lesser of-To constitute the offence of wounding under s. 242, it is not necessary to prove actual malice; it is sufficient that the act was unlawful. As s, 109 of the Code declares that a person who without lawful excuse points at another person any firearm is guilty of an offence, the wounding resulting from the discharge of a firearm so pointde is an unlawful wounding within s. 242. Rer v. Slaughenwhite, 37 N. S. Reps. 382. Rerersed by the Supreme Court of Canada, which held that a verdict of "guilty without malicious intent" is an acquittal. Slaughenwhite v. The King, 35 S. C. R. 607.

III. PROCEDURE.

Appeal—Leave—Acquittal by Magistrate—Application by Prosecutor—Perjury—Corroboration.] — A motion by the prosecutor, under s. 744 of the Criminal Code (as amended by 63 & 64 V. c. 46), for leave to appeal from the decision of a police magistrate acquitting the defendant of perjury, and refusing to reserve for the opinion of the Court of Appeal the question whether there was corroborative evidence of the prosecutor in any material particular, and whether the magistrate exercised a legal discretion under s. 791 of the Code in declining to adjudicate summarily upon the case, and had jurisdiction to try the defendant, who was a client of the County Crown Attorney, in the absence of counsel for the Crown, was refused, under circumstances and for reasons appearing in the report. Reav v. Burns, 21 Occ. N. 202, 1 O. L. R. 336.

Appeal — Leave — Forum.]—Since the passing of 63 & 64 V. c. 46, s. 3, amending s. 744 of the Criminal Code, the accused may apply directly to the Court of Appeal to obtain leave to appeal. Rew v. Trépanier, Q. R. 10 K. B. 222.

Appeal - Leave - Practice - Oath for Chinamen-Form of-Perjury - Confession —Threat or Inducement—Voluntary Confes-sion—Judge's Ruling—Review.]—The prisoner, a Chinaman, had been convicted of per-jury:—Held, that leave to appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeal should not be lightly granted and the lightly granted, and the representative of the Crown should be served with a notice of motion setting out the grounds of appeal.—Quære, whether the ruling of a Judge as to the admissibility of a confession is open to review by the Court of Criminal Appeal:— Held, on the facts, that before making his confession the prisoner was duly cautioned, and that the confession was admissible in evidence, although, on an occasion previous to his making it, an inducement may have been held out to him. When a witness without objection takes an oath in the form ordinarily administered to persons of his race or belief, he is then under a legal obligation to speak the truth and cannot be heard to say that he was not sworn. Perjury may be assigned in respect of statements given in evidence by a Chinaman, who was not a Christian, where the oath was administered to him by the burning of paper and an ad-monition to him "that he was to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, or his soul would burn up as the paper had been burned." Rex v. Lai Ping, 25 Occ. N. 22, 11 B. C. R. 102.

Appeal-Leave-Reserved Case-Grounds for Granting—Remarks of Judge—Prejudice —Jurors—Evidence.] — Held, affirming the judgment in Q. R. 12 K. B. 368, that a verdict cannot be impeached in consequence of an observation made by the Judge presiding at the trial, unless such observation was calculated to influence the jury against the defendant; and, consequently, the fact that the Judge remarked to the defendant's counsel while the jury was being sworn, "if you continue to challenge every man who reads the newspapers, we shall have the most ignorant jurors selected for the trial of this cause, is not a proper ground for granting leave to appeal, such remark having no tendency to influence the jury against the defendant, and being without importance. 2. An observation by the Judge presiding at the trial of a criminal case, in his charge to the jury, to the effect that "about 40 or 50 witnesses had been examined for the purpose of establishing the defendant's good character, and that it was very strange that it should take 40 or 50 witnesses to establish it," is not an irregularity which can constitute a ground for granting leave to appeal, the presiding Judge having the right to express his opinion of the evidence, which, however, may or may not be accepted by the jury. The essential point is that the whole evidence be submitted to the jury, who decide finally as to the innocence or guilt of the accused. 3. An appeal from the verdict to the Court of King's Bench sitting in appeal lies only upon questions of law arising either on the trial or on any of the proceedings preliminary, subsequent, or incidental thereto, or arising out of the direction of the Judge. It of lowed. In re McArthur's Bail, 23 O. R. 65, followed. In re McArthur's Bail (No. I), the right of appeal does not exist, viz., where 2 Terr. L. R. 413. it is alleged that one of the jurors was prejudiced against the prisoner: where it is alleged that the verdict was the result of an improper arrangement entered into between the jurors, these being questions of fact; or where it appears that no application was made to the trial Judge to reserve the question for the opinion of the Court of Appeal. Rev v. Carlin, Q. R. 12 K. B. 483.

Appeal - New Trial-Jury-Conflict of Testimony - Perverse Verdict-Opinion of Trial Judge.]-On a charge of theft a new trial was refused although the verdict was contrary to the view of the trial Judge, the evidence being conflicting, but the Court being of opinion that the verdict of guilty was one which reasonable men could properly find. In deciding the question of reasonableness of the verdict the opinion of the trial Judge is entitled to and ought to receive great weight; but it is not conclusive. Regina v. Brewster (No. 2), 2 Terr. L. R. 377.

Arrest of Prisoner in Foreign Country without Warrant - Detention and return to Ontario to answer charge of theft-Habeas corpus - Custody under oral remands—Justice of the peace—Jurisdiction—Police magistrate. Rew v. Walton, 6 O. W. R. 905, 11 O. L. R. 94.

Arrest under Warrant-Escape-Right to Re-arrest under same Warrant.] - The prisoner had been arrested at Amherst by one of the police of that town, under a warrant. After his arrest he escaped, and left the town for some weeks. When he returned he was re-arrested under the same warrant: -Held, that, at the most, the escape in this case was negligence on the part of the officer, and that he did not contemplate a voluntary abandonment of his prisoner, but negligently trusted to the latter's promise to surrender himself under the warrant; therefore, he might be re-arrested. Rew v. O'Hearn, 21 Occ. N. 355.

Bail - Estreat-Motion to vacate-Delay—Adjournment of hearing without notice to sureties — Conflicting affidavits. Rex v. Bole, 5 O. W. R. 68.

Bail - Estreat - Sittings of Court -Non-appearance—Notice.] — In a recognizance of bail the expression "the next sittings of a Court of competent criminal jurisdiction," means the next sittings fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in council in pursuance of the N. W. T. Act, s. 55. The fact that a special sitting was held in the interval pursuant to the N. W. T. Amendment Act, 1891. s. 12, s. s. 2, for the trial of a designated prisoner confined in gaol and awaiting trial. did not affect the obligation of the accused to appear at the next sittings fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor. No notice to the bail of intention to estreat or to produce the accused is necessary. Regina v. Schram, 2 U.

Bail - Right to-Discretion of Judge. |-All Superior Courts of criminal jurisdiction. or one of their Judges, and also, in the province of Quebec, a Judge of the Superior Court, have authority to admit to bail persons accused of any crime whatsoever (including treason and capital offences), but as respects indictable offences which, before the enacting of the Criminal Code, were felonies, it is within their discretion to grant or re-fuse the application for bail. With respect to indictable offences which were formerly misdemeanours, the accused is entitled to be admitted to bail as a matter of right. 2. The propriety of admitting to bail for indictable offences which were formerly classed as felonies should be determined with reference to the accused person's opportunities for escape, and to the probability of his appearing for trial. To determine this point it is proper to consider the nature of the offence charged and its punishment, the strength of the evidence against the accused, his character, dence against the accused, his character, means, and standing. Where a serious doubt exists as to his guilt the application for ball should be granted. If, on the evidence, it stands indifferent whether he is guilty or innocent, the rule generally is to admit him to bail: but if his guilt is beyond dispute, the general rule is not to grant the application for bail unless the opportunities to escape do not appear to be possible, and it is consequently almost certain that he will appear for trial. The fact that the application for bail is not opposed either by the Attorney-General or the private prosecutor may also be taken into account by the Court or Judge. Rex v. Fortier, Q. R. 13 K. B. 251, 23 Occ. N. 115.

Comment of Crown Counsel on Failure to Call Wife of Accused-Conviction Quashed-New Trial.]-On the trial of the defendant on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, counsel for the Crown commented upon the fact that the defendant's wife, who had been a witness on the preliminary examination before the magistrate, was not called. On a Crown case reserved :-Held that the comment in question was not justified by the fact that it was made in reply to an explanation offered by counsel for the defendant to account for the omission to call the wife, and that the conviction must be set aside:—Held, that the defendant should not be discharged, but that there should be a new trial. Rew v. Hill, 36 N. S. Reps. 240.

Costs - Private Prosecutor - Attorney General—Nolle Prosequi—Effect.] — Where a nolle prosequi has been entered by the Attorney-General, upon an indictment in the name of the King at the instance of a private prosecutor, and the accused is thereupon discharged, judgment is, within the meaning of art. 833 of the Criminal Code, given for the defendant, and he is entitled to recover costs from the private prosecutor. Rex v. Blackley, Q. R. 13 K. B. 472.

Crown Case Reserved-Academic Questions.]—The Court of Appeal should not be asked, by a reserved case, to solve questions on which the validity of a conviction does not necessarily depend. Rex v. Woods, 23 Occ. N. 220, 6 O. L. R. 41, 2 O. W. R. 338.

Crown Case Reserved—Application for—Grounds — Misapprehension of Jurors—Statements by.]—It is no ground for stating a reserved case, after a trial and conviction, that two of the jurors who joined in the verdict of guilty did so under a misapprehension; and it is contrary to principle to allow the statements of jurors, even under oath, to be used for the purpose of an application for a reserved case. Rex v. Mullen, 23 Oc. N. 169, 5 O. L. R. 373, 2 O. W. R. ISI.

Crown Case Reserved — Leave to Appeal.]—Where there has been an acquittal, the trial Judge should leave the prosecutor to apply for leave to appeal, rather than reserve a case. Rex v. Karn, 23 Occ. N. 219, 5 O. L. R. 704, 2 O. W. R. 335; Rex v. James, 23 Occ. N. 220, 6 O. L. R. 35, 2 O. W. R. 342.

Crewn Case Reserved — Acquittal — Case Reserved at Instance of Crovon—Insanity.] — The defendant was indicted for theft under s. 305 (a) of the Criminal Code. The act of theft was admitted, but it was contended that there was evidence of insanity at the time the act was committed. The trial Judge charged the jury that there was no such evidence, and that the case did not come within s. 736 of the Code. The jury having found the prisoner not guilty, two questions were reserved for the opinion of the Court: (1) Whether there was evidence of insanity as required by s. 736. (2) If not, whether there should be a new trial. The Court was moved to quash the case reserved, on the ground that where there had been an acquittal the Crown could not have a case reserved or an appeal:—Held, that the melion must be dismissed, and the reserved case proceeded with, to ascertain whether there was evidence of insanity sufficient in law for submission to the jury. Rex v. Phinsey (Wo. 1), 36 N. S. Reps. 264.

Crown Case Reserved—Form of Charge—Theft — County Court Judge's Criminal Court — Court in Banco — Jurisdiction of Qsorum.] — The Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, composed of a quorum of four Judges only, has jurisdiction to hear and decide a Crown case reserved stated by the Judge of a County Court sitting in his Criminal Court. The prisoner was charged with unlawfully stealing goods, but the charge did not allege that the offence was committed fraudulently, and without colour of right:—Held, affirming the decision appealed from, that the offence of which the prisoner was accused was sufficiently stated in the charge. George v. The King, 35 S. C. R. 376.

Crown Case Reserved — Jurisdiction—
Overtion of Fact—Gaming.]—The Court of King's Bench, sitting as a Court for the bearing of cases reserved by Criminal Courts, has jurisdiction only to pronounce upon a question of law, under facts proved, and mentioned in the reserved case. Consequently, where the question stated in the reserved, and settle of the consequent of the co bition of the Criminal Code, the Court declared that it was without jurisdiction in the matter. Rex v. Fortier, Q. R. 13 K. B. 308.

Crown Case Reserved — No Trial.]—
The nec.sed was a letter carrier, and, being suspected of retaining letters containing money, a fictitious one-was prepared, which, it was alleged, was afterwards found in his possession. He was committed for trial. At the trial counsel for the accused contended that the charge laid was not founded on the evidence adduced at the preliminary trial, in-assunch as the proof then taken did not shew that the document stolen was a post-letter which had been deposited in the post office, within the meaning of the amendment to the Post Office Act, 52 V. c. 20, s. 2. s. 1, or of s. 326 (c) of the Criminal Code. The trial did not take place, but the trial Judge reserved the question thus raised for the opinion of the Court:—Held, that a question of law can only be reserved when there has been a trial and conviction. Reav v. Trépanier, 21 Occ. N. 248, Q. R. 10 Q. B. 175.

Crown Case Reserved—Power of Magistrate.)—The prisoner, with his own consent, was tried summarily before the stipendiary magistrate for the city of Halifax, under s. 786 of the Criminal Code, and was convicted of the offence of stealing property of the value of less than $10. At the trial, the magistrate, at the request of the prisoner, reserved a question for the opinion of the Court, under s. 742 and following sections, a reserved case can be stated only by a Court, or a Judge having jurisdiction in criminal cases, or by a magistrate in proceedings under s. 785:—Held, that, as s. 785 had no application to the case in question, and the provisions of s. 900 of the Code had, admittedly, not been compiled with, there was no proper case before the Court upon which the Court had authority to give an opinion. Regina v. Hances, 33 N. S. Reps. 389.

Crown Case Reserved — Weight of Evidence—Acquittal of Prisoner—Insanity.]
—The prisoner was indicted for theft and was acquitted on the ground of insanity.—Held, following R. v. McIntyre, 31 N. S. Reps. 422, that the trial Judge cannot reserve a case depending upon the weight of evidence, and that the question reserved, whether there was evidence of insanity as required by s. 736 of the Code, was within the principle decided; that the question of the weight of evidence is entirely for the jury; and that the provision for granting a new trial, where the verdict is against the weight of evidence, cannot be invoked on the part of the Crown. Rev v. Phinney (No. 2), 36 N. S. Reps. 288.

Election by Prisoner as to Trial— Power of Prosecuting Officer to Receive—Depositions—Perusal of — Magistrate's Signature,! — Where there is no Judge of the County Court residing in a county, the prosecuting officer or counsel appointed under the provisions of R. S. 1900 c. 195, s. 1, is empowered to take the election of a prisoner, under the Code, s. 766, to be tried before the Judge of the County Court. The power given to such officers to conduct all criminal business on behalf of the Crown includes all process necessary to bring the prisoner to trial, and the making of his election is one necessary act in these proceedings. Where all the depositions, or copies thereof, taken against the prisoner, and returned into the Court before the trial, were handed to the prisoner's counsel for perusal.—Held, that it was no cause of complaint that the papers so handed were mixed up with other papers, there being no serious difficulty in understanding the to the particular offence with which the prisoner was charged.—Held, also, that depositions to which the magistrate had affixed his signature were not to be rejected because such signature was possibly objected in the most correct place. Quare, whether an indictment found by the grand jury should be quashed because depositions are impropely taken. The King v. Traynor, 4 Can. Crim. Cas. 410, questioned. Res v. Jodrey, 25 Occ. N. 100.

Grand Jury — Constitution of — Indictment.]—A sheriff, when about to summon, pursuant to s. 48 of the Jurors' Act, one of the jurors drafted to serve on a grand jury, ascertained that the juror was demented and did not summon him:—Held, that the grand jury was not legally constituted, and that an indictment found by the jurors who had been summoned must be quashed. A motion to quash such an indictment is not an objection to the constitution of the grand jury within the meaning of s. 656 of the Criminal Code. Rex v. Hayes, 23 Occ. N. 342, 9 B, C. R. 574.

Grand Jury—Constitution of—Qualification of Juror—Prejudice—Motion to Quash Indictment—Reserved Case.]—An objection to the qualification of an individual member of a grand jury is not an objection to the "constitution" of the grand jury within the meaning of s, 656 of the Criminal Code, and so cannot be raised by motion to quash the indictment. The question as to whether or not a grand juror is prejudiced, is for the Judge of Assize to decide, and his decision to be reviewed on a stated case. Rex
v. Hayes, 11 B. C. R. 4. See S. C., 23 Occ.
N. 342, 9 B. C. R. 574.

Grand Jury—Formation and Number— True Bill—Rejection.]—Where eleven grand jurors answered their names when the roll was first called, but only ten were impanelled and sworn (one having failed to answer on the second calling), the grand jury was properly formed; and the accused, having suffered no prejudice thereby, cannot, on that ground, move for the rejection of the true bill found against him. Rex v. Fouquet, Q. R. 14 K. R. 87.

Grand Jury — Indorsing Names of Witnesses on Indictment—Abortion—Form of Indictment.]—The provisions of s. 645 of the Criminal Code, requiring the names of all witnesses examined by the grand jury to be indorsed on the bill of indictment, are directory only, and an omission so to indorse does not invalidate the indictment. An indictment under s. 273 of the Code charging accused "with unlawfully using on her own person... with intent thereby to procure a miscarriage" (without stating whose miscarriage) is sufficient. Rex v. Holmes, 22 Occ. N. 437, 9 B. C. R. 294.

Grand Jury-Swearing in - Foreman-Omission to Initial Names of Witnesses -Effect on Indictment-Submission of Record Depositions - Crown Case Reserved.1 - 1 It is essential that, at the time the foreman of the grand jury is sworn, the other jurors be present and hear the oath taken by their foreman. And, therefore, where it appeared that none of the other jurors were in the box at the time their foreman was sworn, that there was no certainty that the oath taken by him was heard by them, that the other jurors were only sworn, afterwards, to observe the same oath which their foreman had taken, and that objection was duly made by motion to quash, before the arraignment of the defendant, the indictment found by the grand jury was held to be null and void. 2. The omission by the foreman to initial the names of the witnesses examined before the grand jury, as required by law, is a fatal defect, and has the effect of annulling the in-dictment. 3. The submission of a record to dictment. the grand jury, in order that they may examine certain exhibits, and verify certain statements made by witnesses examined be-fore them, is not a fatal irregularity, where it is proved that the decision of the grand jury was arrived at without reference to the depositions contained in such record. 4. The objections to the indictment above mentioned are proper grounds for a reserved ca Bélanger v. The King, Q. R. 12 K. B. 69,

The grand jury may examine the Crown witnesses in whatever order they choose, and the examination of a single one of such witnesses is not an irregularity nor an illegality, where it is admitted that the witness was able to establish a complete admission on the part of the accused. 3. Since the coming into force of the Criminal Code, it is not necessary that the first juror sworm should be added to the board of verificateurs who are to pass upon the challenge of the second juror: s. 88, Criminal Code, Rex v. Indictment—Particularity—Statement of Offence—Preferring of Indictment — Order—Grand Jury.]—Where a person is charged with an offence, the indictment should describe it with such particularity as will enable the accused to know exactly what he has to meet. An indictment which stated the offence in the language of the section of the Criminal Code supposed to have been violated, without setting out the particular facts constituting the offence, was quashed, for wait of particularity, and also because it was not preferred in accordance with s. 641 of the Code. The Attorney-General did not in person or even by his authority prefer he indictment, and the informal direction of a Judge to the foreman of the grand jury, recognized by a formal order after the fusion ment had actually been preferred, was insufficient. Indictment for Wounding Intent and for Common Assault-Motion to Quash — Jury — Peremptory Challenges.]—The defendant was indicted under ss. 241 and 265 of the Criminal Code on two counts charging (1) that he in the city of Halifax on the 13th November, 1903, with intent to do grievous bodily harm to one W., did unlawfully wound the said W., and (2) that he did in the city of Halifax on the 13th November, 1903, unlawfully assault one W. After arraignment and before pleading to the indictment, the prisoner's counsel moved to quash it, on the ground that the clerk of the Crown had not sent the depositions taken on the prisoner's preliminary examination, before the grand jury of the county of Hali-fax, as required by s, 760 of the Criminal Code. When the jury were being sworn, the prisoner claimed the right to 16 peremptory challenges, on the ground that these counts would, before the Code, have been for a felony and misdemeanour respectively, and, as s. 626 (1) and (2) of the Criminal Code abrogated the common law rule as to their nonjoinder, he was, under the above section, being tried on two indictments:—Held, that the indictment was properly found. 2. That the prisoner was entitled under s. 668 of the Criminal Code only to 12 peremptory challenges, being the largest number allowed him on the first count of the indictment, it not being necessary for the Crown to add a count for common assault in order to get a conviction for that offence, if the evidence war-ranted it. The prisoner was then tried and acquitted on both counts in the indictment. Rex v. Turpin, 24 Occ. N. 183.

Jury—Exclusion of, during Inquiry as to Admissibility of Dying Declaration—Comment on Prisoner's Failure to Testify.] — Motion for leave to appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeal:—Held, that the jury should not be excluded during the preliminary inquiry as to whether certain evidence is admissible as a dying declaration. 2. A prisoner at his trial has the option of making a statement not under oath or of giving evidence under oath. 2. A direction to the jury that an accused has failed to account for a particular occurrence, when the onus has been cast upon him to do so, does not amount to a comment on his failure to testify, within the meaning of s. 4, s.-s. 2, of the Canada Evidence Act, 1883. Rev. A.ho, 25 Occ. N. 50, 11 B. C. R. 114.

Jusy — Polling — Separating — Refreshments.]—In a prosecution for felony it is discretionary with the trial Judge to permit or refuse to allow the jury to be polled. The prisoner being convicted of felony, the circumstances that two of the jurors had during the trial, but before the Judge's charge, been allowed to separate for a short time from the other jurors in the custody of one of the constables who had been placed in charge of the jury, and during such separation to hold a short conversation, not referring to the cause, with a stranger to the proceedings, and to partake, at their own expense, of intoxicating liquor, insufficient in quantity to cause intoxication, were held not to constitute sufficient ground for discharging the prisoner, or for a new trial. Regina v. McClung, 1 Terr. L. R. 379.

Jury-Right of Accused to Inspect Panel Provincial Statute - Absence of Dominion Legislation—Criminal Procedure.] — Appeal from order dismissing appellant's application for a mandamus to the sheriff of Middlesex commanding him to shew to appellant or his agent for examination the panel of jurors at the Middlesex Sessions, for the purpose of determining whether it would be necessary to strike a special jury for the trial of appellant upon a charge of receiving stolen cattle. Argued that s. 85 of c. 31 C. S. U. C. is still the law in criminal matters, because being matter of criminal procedure the Legislature had no power to pass 58 V. c. 15, s. 3 (O.), now R. S. O. 1897 c. 61, s. 94, imposing restrictions upon the disclosure of the manes of the jurors and inspection of the panel, to relate to criminal matters:—Held, Osler, J.A., dissenting, affirming the judgment refusing the mandamas. Re Chantler and Cameron, 5 O, W. R. 574, S. C., sub nom. In re Chantler, 9 O. L. R. 529.

Motion for New Trial — Leave]. — A motion for a new trial in a criminal cause can be made before the Court of Appeal only upon leave therefor granted by the Court before which the trial has taken place. Rex v. Fouquet, Q. R. 14 K. B. 87.

Nuisance—Prosecution—Municipal Corporation—Indictment—Preliminary Inquiry—Prohibition — Chancery Division.] — 1. A prosecution of a municipal corporation for a nuisance in not keeping a public street in repair can only be by indictment, under s. 641, s.-s. 2, of the Criminal Code. 2. A preliminary inquiry cannot be taken before a magistrate for the purposes of s.-s. 2, 3. The Judges of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice for Ontario have jurisdiction at common law and by virtue of 28 V. c. 18, s. 2 (D.), in prohibition in criminal cases, notwithstanding that no Rules have been made under s. 533 (b) of the Code, and notwithstanding the provisions of s. 754. Motion for a rule nist to set aside order of Ferguson, J., prohibiting a police magistrate from proceeding, refused. In re Repina v. City of London, 21 Occ. N. 71, 32 O. R. 326.

Preliminary Inquiry before Magistrate — Discretion—Evidence—Re-opening.]—In a criminal matter the preliminary enquête before the magistrate in respect of an offence which may be prosecuted by way of information. is not, properly speaking, the enquête of the complainant, but that of the magistrate. 2. At the time of the preliminary hearing, after the enquêt of the prosecution has been declared closed, and nothing has been shewn against the accused, and even after the parties have been heard as to the legal effect of the evidence, the magistrate has a discretion to permit the prosecutor to reopen the enquête to make more ample proof. Betanger v, Mulcena, Q. R. 22 S. C. 37.

Private Prosecutor — Right to Take Part in Proceedings.]—Held, on motion for a certiorari, that, though it is the right of everyone to make a complaint with a view to the institution of criminal proceedings, and also, under certain circumstances, to prefer a bill of indictment, yet the prosecutor is no party to the prosecution, and cannot insist that he, or counsel retained by him, shall aid in the conduct of the prosecution. Res v. Gilmore, 23 Occ. N. 208, 6 O. L. R. 286, 2 O. W. R. 710.

Reognizance — Estreat — Notice,] — A recognizance was entered into by the defendant and his surety before a stipendiary magistrate conditioned to keep the peace and to appear, before the magistrate on a day named.

The defendant falled to appear, and to the dependant or to his surety: —Held, per Granu, E.J., McDonald, C.J., concurring, following Regina v. Creelman, 25 N. S. Reps. 404, that notice was necessary, and that the properly made:—Held, otherwise per Townshend, J., and Mengher, J., following the dissenting opinion in Regina v. Creelman, 25 Regina v. Regina v. Regina v. Regina v. Regina v. Regina v. Greelman, 28 Regina v. Greelman, 28 Regina v. Greelman, 28 Regina v. Greelman, 28 Regina v. Rooke, 11 Times L. R. 163, referred to and distinguished. Crown Rules 84, 86, and S.7, and Criminal Code, so, 916-922, discussed. Rew v. Barrett, 36 N. S. Reps.

Restitution of Stolen Property—Absence of Identification at Trial.—The prisoner was envirted for stealing from the persence of the accordance of the trial the prosecutor testified that bank notes of the value of $70 were taken from him, and he gave the denomination of the notes, which included one for $20. Another witness testified that when the prisoner was arrested and brought to the police station she was searched and a $20 bank note and some smaller notes, amounting in all to $25, were found upon her. The money was not produced at the trial nor any evidence given to identify the notes found on the prisoner with the stolen notes. After the trial, upon the ex parte application of the prisoner, an order was made by a Judge in the County Court Judge's Criminal Court, directing that the money found on the prisoner should be restored to her. A motion was made to set aside the order, whereon judgment was reserved. The Judge died without delivering judgment. The motion was renewed before his successor, who dismissed the application to set aside the exparte order, and made an order for restitution to the prisoner, on the ground that the money was not produced and identified at the trial as part of the stolen property. Regina v. Haverstock, 21 Occ. N. 482.

Suspended Sentence — Estreating Recognicance—Locus Standi,]—The defendant was in 1887 convicted of libel, and released from custody upon entering into a recognizance with sureties to appear and receive judgment when called upon. The private prosecutor obtained a rule nisi calling on the defendant to shew cause why he should not be ordered to appear at the next assizes to receive judgment, on the ground that he had failed to be of good behaviour since entering into the recognizance, by reason of his having published further libels:—Held, that it is only upon motion of the Crown in such cases that the recognizance of the defendant and his bail are estreated, or judgment moved against the offender:—Held, also, that, apart from this, under the circumstances, the prosecutor must be left to his remedy by action or indictment against the defendant in regard to the libels complained of. Rev v. Young, 21 Occ. N. 463, 2 O. L. R. 228.

Trial — Juror — Order to Stand by— Time.]—The direction to a juror to stand by is practically a challenge for cause, and therefore the order to stand by must be given at a time when a challenge could be made; and, inasmuch as the right to challenge must be exercised before the juror has taken the book in order to be sworn, the direction to stand by can only be given before the juror has received the book. Rex v. Barsalou, Q. R. 10 Q. B. 180.

Trial-Jury-Influence Upon, by Judge's Remark—Conspiracy — Evidence —Reserved Case—Prejudice of Juror—New Trial—Affidavits-Misconduct.] - A verdict cannot be davits—Misconduct.]—A verdict cannot be impeached in consequence of an observation made by the Judge presiding while the trial was proceeding, unless such observation was calculated to influence the jury against the defendant; and consequently, a remark of the presiding Judge to the defendant's counsel while the jury was being sworn, that "if you continue to challenge every man who reads the newspapers, we shall have the most ignorant jurors selected for the trial of this ignorant jurors selected for the cause," is not a proper ground for a reserved case, it having no tendency to influence the iury one way or the other. 2. On a trial for jury one way or the other. 2. On a trial for conspiracy to defraud a railway company by fraudulently obtaining information of the secret audits about to be made and furnishing the same to conductors of cars to enable them to be prepared for the audits, proof that information of this nature might be given by one conductor to another for purposes other than to defraud the company, was properly excluded, because such questions could not disprove the object of the conspiracy or throw any doubt on the evi-dence which had been adduced to shew the object which the parties had in view. 3. An observation by the presiding Judge, in his charge to the jury, to the effect that "about forty or fifty witnesses had been examined for the purpose of establishing the defendant's good character, and that it was very strange that it should take forty or fifty witnesses to establish it," is not an irregularity which can constitute a ground for granting a reserved case. 4. A new trial should not be ordered in consequence of remarks made by a juror tending to shew prejudice, unless it be shewn that he was so prejudiced as to be unable to give the defendant an impartial trial. 5. An application for a new trial on the ground of improper conduct of the jury must be supported by affidavits clearly setting forth the alleged irregularity, and, in the absence of full proof under oath, the presumptions of the proof trial proof under oath, the presumptions of the proof under oath the proof under tion is that the jury properly performed its duty. 6. The affidavits of jurors are not adduty. 6. The affidavits of jurors are not aumissible to impeach their finding, but are admissible to support and confirm the presumption that the proceedings of the jury were correct, and that there was no misconduct. Rew v. Carlin, Q. R. 12 K. B. 368.

Trial—Jury—Right to—Assault—Criminal Code.]—A person charged with assault occasioning actual bodily harm contrary to s. 262 of the Criminal Code is not entitled under s. 67 of the North-West Territories Act, to be tried with the intervention of a jury. Section 66 extends to all minor of fences included in the several offences specifically enumerated therein. Rex v. Hostetter. 5 Terr. L. R. 363.

Trial—Offence Other than that for which Prisoner Committed,)—Held, that, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 773 of the Criminal Code, 1892, a Judge should not.

against the wish of a prisoner, give his consent, at the trial before him without a jury which the prisoner has elected to take, to any charge being preferred in the indictment unless it is clear that, while it may be more formally or differently expressed, it is substantially the same charge as the one on which he was committed for trial. Rew v. Carriere, 22 Occ. N. 187, 14 Man. L. R. 52.

Trial—Place Other than Court House.]—At the trial of an indictable offence the presiding Judge has the power to order the Court to be adjourned to a place in the county other than the Court house, for the purpose of allowing the jury to hear the evidence of a witness who was unable through illness to leave his home. Rex v. Rogers, 36 N. B. Reps. 1.

Trial—Right of Jury—Stealing Cattle.]—Although the punishment which may be awarded on a conviction for stealing cattle is greater than that which may be awarded on a conviction for stealing certain other classes of property, a person charged with lawing stolen cattle the value of which does not, in the opinion of the trial Judge, exceed $290, has not the right to be tried by Jury. Regina v. Pachal, 20 Occ. N. 192, 4 Terr. L. B. 310.

Trial — Speedy Trial of Indictable Offeaces—Election as to Mode of Trial—Time for—Indictment.] — When, in the ordinary course, an indictment has been found for an offence with which a person who is either in cistody or on bail, has been charged, and such indictment has been returned into Court and has been filed of record, the Court is regularly and exclusively seised of the case, and the accused has no right then to ask for a speedy trial and to remove the case and the indictment and the other documents forming the record to the special Court for speedy trials, Rex v. Komiensky, Q. R. 12 K. B. 432.
