Prices are only Relative
REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.
They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.
They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.
They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."
If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.
You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.
REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.
We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.
We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.
REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GARGET IN COWS.

THE HEIR OF Lancewood

CHAPTER XXI.

Evil days were coming for Lancewood. One summer evening Vivien was in the garden—in her own special nook—where the roses and the gladioli grew, where the old sun-dial stood, and the white doves fluttered round the fountain. Sir Arthur had sent Mr. Dorman to find her, and he found her standing by the sun-dial, looking intently at the house. He told her that Sir Arthur wished to see her.

"I will go," she said; "but, Mr. Dorman, stand by me here and look at the clouds—they are blood-red."

"It is the sunset," he returned; "that lurid red is a color often seen before thunder and rain."

"But see," she cried—"they are all blood-red; and how long they hang over the Abbey! See what a curious shadow they cast over it. I have been watching them until I feel nervous. Stand here by me and look yourself."

He stood by her side, and they watched together in silence the peculiar appearance of the skies. The sun was setting in great crimson clouds, and they shone like lurid flame over the Abbey.

"Do you know," said Vivien, turning to Gerald, "I feel a strange foreboding of coming evil; those clouds seem charged with misfortune, heavy with danger. I do not like that lurid light over the Abbey; it is like a danger signal."

"You are nervous, Miss Neslie," observed Gerald.

"No, that is not a weakness of mine," she replied. "I do not feel frightened, but I feel sure there is misfortune coming."

They walked back to the house talking earnestly.

"Where is Sir Arthur?" asked Vivien.

"I left him in his study—and it struck me, Miss Neslie, that he was not looking well."

She went quickly to the study, Sir Arthur's own room, where no one ever entered without permission. He sat there, and she was struck by the peculiar expression of his face.

"Vivien," he said, "your mother's picture hangs in your boudoir, does it not?"

"Yes, papa," she replied, wonderingly.

"I have a fancy for seeing it; will you come there with me?"

"Yes," she replied again; and they went through the broad corridors to Vivien's apartments.

"Close the door," said Sir Arthur; and in silence his daughter obeyed him.

The sunbeams that shed a lurid light outside cast a golden shadow within, and this golden hue seemed to linger lovingly on the picture of the fair dead woman. Sir Arthur sat down before it. Vivien stood by his side. She lovingly clasped her arm round his neck, as of old, before the stranger had come between them.

"It is a beautiful face, Vivien," remarked Sir Arthur; "how sad and dreamy the eyes are, how sweet the lips! I have never seen such a face."

"Nor I, papa," she said, quietly.

"I could not rest until I had seen it," he continued. "I had such a strange dream last night about your mother, Vivien—it was not night, but morning—dawn—such a strange dream; it has haunted me all day."

"What was it, papa?" she asked, struck by something indescribable in his face and voice.

"I dreamed that I was dead—nay, Vivien, do not start—it was only a dream. I dreamed that I was dead, and that my spirit was wandering through long corridors, in a dim, uncertain light. Suddenly there came over me a great glow, and, looking onward, I saw gates of shining pearl; all beyond was a sea of gold, and in the midst of it stood your mother fair and young as I knew her first. Her face was all radiant, and he hands were outstretched to me. 'M. love, my love!' she said—and her voice was so sweet, Vivien—so sweet. But just as I drew near to her I saw all the light and radiance die from her, and she seemed to be looking at something beyond me. 'Oh, my love, my love,' she cried again, 'you are not alone!' and turning round, I saw Valerie, with a smile on her face. I tried to speak, but your mother, Vivien, held up her hand and faded slowly from my sight in the golden sea. The dream made me very unhappy."

"Still, papa, as you said to me, it was but a dream."

"Vivien," he said, sadly, "I have often longed to speak to you, to ask you if you have quite forgiven me for the blight that I have brought on your life. It was a blight, my dear, noble child, although you have never reproached me with it. It was cruel to you. I ought not to have re-married. I cannot tell now why I did so."

"If little Oswald grows up a good man, papa," she observed, cheerfully, "all will be well."

"Ah, that if! How much depends upon that little word 'if.' It is like what I saw in my dream. Pure, sweet face! Would to Heaven it were shining by my side."

The wind from an open window disarranged some papers, and Vivien crossed the room to close it. When she returned Sir Arthur lay fainting in his chair. It was Gerald Dorman who first heard her loud cry for help, and came quickly to the room.

"My father has fainted," she said. "Oh, Mr. Dorman, help me!"

But Gerald, looking at his face, knew that he had been seized by the cold, relentless hand of Death. They carried him to the room he was never to leave again, and evil days dawned for Lancewood. They sent far and near for doctors. Dr. Armstrong came first, and he announced that the illness would prove fatal; Sir Arthur would die—not perhaps at once—but might linger a few days—but there was no hope of recovery. There were weeping and wailing among the servants when the news was communicated. Gerald Dorman heard it with tears—Lady Neslie with nanchalance. As she was still to be mistress of the Abbey, it was not so much a matter of moment. She listened to the doctor's remarks, and, while assuming a sad and woe-begone expression, was mentally occupied in trying to think how she could evade wearing a widow's cap.

"It is so ugly, so unbecoming," she thought. "No matter what Vivien says, I will not wear one."

For three days and three nights Sir Arthur lay dying, and during the whole of that time his daughter scarcely left him. If she was one moment out of his sight he seemed anxious and uneasy. He tried to utter her name, and did not rest until she sat by him, holding his hand. They kne walso that he liked to have Gerald Dorman with him—his eyes rested peacefully on Gerald's face. To Vivien, it seemed that he had, during the first two days of his illness, forgotten all about his second marriage. She heard him murmur her mother's name over and over again. When Lady Neslie, for the sake of appearances, visited the sick room, his eye wandered over her face and figure without the least gleam of recognition; but on the third day, when death was nearest, memory returned to him.

"Vivien," he whispered, "where is she—my wife Valerie?"

Vivien offered to go in search of her, but he would not let her. Then he took his daughter's hand in his own.

"My dear, noble girl," he said, "I am leaving you quite alone. What shall you do, my darling?"

"Do not think of me, papa," she answered, "think of yourself. I am strong and self-reliant. I shall get through life."

"Your life is all blighted," he said sadly; "and by me, Vivien. I remember what you said—evil days at dawn for Lancewood. But promise me, darling, that you will never leave it—at least until you marry—and leave it for a home of your own."

"I promise, papa," she replied. "Nothing shall drive me from home unless I marry, and that is not likely."

"I know that I am dying," he said. "Even if no one has told me, I should have read it in your face. Ah, you love me, Vivien—you mother loved me! I know that I am dying, and dying. I say to you that I leave the honor of my house in your hands."

She bent down and kissed the white face.

"I shall remember," she said. "I will guard it even with my life."

"And, Vivien, that little boy who takes your place, my darling—do your best for him. I have neglected him. I gave it up long ago. I was sorry for you. Do your best for him; but, above all, guard even with your life the honor of your house. Mine has been a wasted life," he said after a time. "I had no heart for anything after your mother died."

Then he wished to see the secretary, and Gerald Dorman, with tears in his eyes, stood by the dying man.

"You have been a faithful friend to me," said Sir Arthur; "you will find that I have not forgotten you, Gerald. I wish you to remain here to attend to everything. Lady Valerie does not understand all about the estate. You will make this your home."

"Always," he replied.

"And," added Sir Arthur, clasping the hand he held, "you will take care of my daughter."

"I will," and in those two words Gerald Dorman registered a vow to live and die for her.

Sir Arthur died as the sun was setting—died holding Vivien's hand, looking into her face, praying with her, clinging to her, until consciousness left him. In that supreme moment no stranger came between them—there was nothing but the old love; while Lady Neslie, in a distant room, was indulging in mild hysterics and choice wines to cure them.

CHAPTER XXII.

The ending of a human life is but as the falling of a leaf from a tree. Sir Arthur Neslie was dead; and when those who had cared most for him summed up his life there was but little to record about it. He had lived and loved—had made mistakes and had despaired of rectifying them. The noblest trait in his character had been his love for the fair, noble wife whom he had lost years before; his character had seemed to deteriorate after her death. Now he too was placed in the family vault where the Neslies of Lancewood slept. The day of his funeral was one not soon forgotten at the Abbey. There was no sunshine, but a cold, drizzling rain. The world looked gray and desolate; there was not even a gleam of blue in the sky.

"Such a day to be buried on!" the servants said, as though the dead man could note the darkness of the sky and the absence of the sun.

The Abbey was cheerless within and without. There was no sound outside save that of the steady down-falling rain beating on the ground. Inside all was gloom. The blinds were drawn; the servants, dressed in deepest mourning, moved about noiselessly; there was the muffled step of the mourners; there were the depressing—almost terrible—paraphernalia that serve merely to add to the bitterness of death.

There were two who mourned the dead man; one was Vivien, the other Gerald Dorman. Lady Neslie did all that decorum could expect; she shut herself into her own room, where she was supposed to be undergoing paroxysms of grief, but where, in reality, she amused herself by reading a French novel. She professed herself too much overcome even to see anyone. But she was able to study the effect of her mourning. "It became her"—and she clasped her hands in devout thankfulness.

"I was so afraid, Marie," she said to her maid, "that I should look horrible in black."

Master Oswald, in his nursery, passed the morning in a violent struggle with his two nurses, stoutly refusing to put on the black dress provided for him—"It was ugly, and he hated it"—which mutiny, on being reported to miladi, caused her to smile and say—

"The dear child has so much sense; black is very unpleasant. But remember he is Sir Oswald now, and he must do as he likes."

The long black procession moved silently through the park, the rain falling on the waving plumes. So the late master of Lancewood passed from the home where his feet should never tread more, while the daughter who had loved him as she had loved no one else lay weeping in her darkened chamber—weeping as though her grief could never grow less. She thought of what Lord St. Just had said about time. Would time ever bring healing to her? Would her terrible heartache ever cease? Would her awful sense of desolation ever depart?

Drudgery.

By the adoption of modern gas appliances you may abolish drudgery from your home.

GAS COOKERS eliminate the drudgery of lighting fires, the handling of coal and ashes, and enable you to prepare meals in half the time required with old-fashioned appliances.

GAS WATER HEATERS are indispensable in every well-regulated household.

GAS LIGHTING is best for the eyes and the pocket.

THE PERFECTION GAS IRON is a recent addition to labour, time, and money saving appliances. This Nickel-plated Gas Iron may be had complete with stand and a length of metallic tubing for the small sum of $3.00, and should be in every household.

With the "PERFECTION GAS IRON" a whole day's ironing was done at a cost of five cents, give better results, and do more work in half the usual time. It is always hot and ready, clean and smooth. OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Aug. 5.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
The French Government reports enemy attacks repulsed in Argonne and the Vosges.
The Russian Government reports retirement in the Ostroloka sector of the Narva front, and from the Blonie line to Warsaw position.
Reports just received from German sources announce the fall of Warsaw. Near Lublin, after most desperate fighting, dense German masses fell back in disorder.

BONAR LAW.

THE FALL OF WARSAW.

LONDON, Aug. 5.
Warsaw has fallen and the Germans already are in occupation of the Polish capital. News of the falling came by wireless to German headquarters, and was followed by cables of confirmation from Berlin, crediting the capture of the city to the forces commanded by Prince Leopold of Bavaria, after a stubborn fight with the Russian rearguard.
With the admission in last night's official statement that the Russian forces defending the Blonie front had been withdrawn, all hope that Warsaw could be saved was abandoned. The outer line of forts, to which the Russians withdrew, are only six miles from the centre of the capital, and these defences were carried last night the inner line of defences being captured in time to enable the victors to enter the city this morning.

THE ATTENTION OF BRITISH OFFICIALS.

LONDON, To-Day.
The effect of the fall of Warsaw now is absorbing the attention of British officials and public. It is expected that the German Emperor and Empress will make a royal entry, in accordance with plans long abandoned. What part of the Army, Grand Duke Nicholas may be able to extricate from the entangling line of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's coming from the north, is problematical. It is believed this pressure from the north was one of the chief reasons for compelling the final abandonment of Warsaw, in order to permit the Grand Duke to send reinforcements to save his fight with the Russian rearguard. The occupation of Warsaw will have the effect of releasing large German forces, long concentrated for the reduction of the city, and permit them to turn westward for renewed operations against the Anglo-French Allies. DARKEST BETTRE DAWN.

LONDON, Aug. 5.
Speaking to ten thousand Welshmen at Bangor this afternoon before he heard of the fall of Warsaw, David Lloyd George referred to the situation in the east in these terms: "I have viewed it with anxiety, but not with dread. I can see a ray of hope in the dark horizon, the regeneration of the great people of Russia. Our enemies do not understand what they are doing in the east. Their mighty cannon are shattering rusty bars that fettered South Russia. Look at Warsaw. What is happening behind that? The Russian people are shaking themselves free from the stifling debris; their mighty limbs are preparing with new spirits and new hope for new lands. Austria and Prussia are doing to-day for Russia what their military ancestors did for France. They are hammering a sword that will destroy them."

ITALY WILL AID DARDANELLES.

PARIS, Aug. 5.
News from the Dardanelles indicates that Italy is about to join with the other Allies in the effort to force a passage to Constantinople. It has been learned that an Italian officer has arrived at the headquarters of the British Expeditionary Force in the Mediterranean with orders to concert measures of naval and military co-operation against Turkey.

ACTIVITY IN ANATOLIA.

PARIS, Aug. 5.
An armoured cruiser, two cruisers, torpedo boats, and an aeroplane ship of the French fleet, demonstrated on Aug. 3rd and 4th off Sigandik and the Scala Nova Coast of Anatolia. On Aug. 3rd Sigandik was bombarded. The custom house and part of the fortifications were destroyed. On the following day an armoured cruiser bombarded the fortifications of the Turkish quarter of Scala Nova, a fortified town west of that town, while other vessels of the squadron shelled and destroyed the village of Spelia. It is supposed to be the supply depot of the submarines of France's antagonists. The foregoing information is contained in a statement given out today by the French Minister of Marine.

IN THE CAUCASUS.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 5.
An official communication concerning operations in the Caucasus, says that in the direction of Olti the Turkish forces expelled from the North region towards Sari Kanysh. We occupied, after a fight, the villages of Kars and Ardost. In the region of Alschkert there was an obstinate engagement.

LOYAL INDIA.

SIMLA, India, Aug. 5.
Throughout India, intercession services are being held in churches, mosques and temples, all sections of British and Indian communities participating. It is estimated that a million pounds have been subscribed to the British War Loan throughout Bombay and Calcutta.

JULY'S SHIPPING TOLL.

LONDON, Aug. 5.
The monthly statement of the Board of Trade shows that during July 46 British steamships with an aggregate tonnage of 48,712, were sunk by German warships, with the loss of 33 lives. Four steamers, whose tonnage totalled 4,705, were sunk by mines with 19 deaths. German warships also sank 15 sailing vessels, with aggregate tonnage 5,746.

GERMAN SPY-FORGER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.
Ignatius Lincoln, a former member of the British Parliament, and a self-confessed German spy, who was arrested at Brooklyn yesterday, on a Federal warrant, charged with forgery amounting to five thousand dollars, is held for further hearing on Aug. 19th. When arraigned in the U. S. District Court to-day this date was set after the Attorney, representing the British Consul, told the Court that extradition papers and depositions would be made.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, Aug. 5.
The British steamer Costello, 891 tons, has been sunk. The crew, with the exception of one man, was saved.

LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, Aug. 5.
The Germans are in possession of Warsaw. The Bavarian troops, having taken successively the Blonie lines and outer and inner fortresses of the town itself, the Russians only fighting rearguard actions to allow their main army to make good its escape. While to the Bavarians, commanded by Prince Leopold, has fallen the honor of taking over Warsaw, the real conquerors are the troops fighting under Field Marshal Von Hindenburg. Along the Narva River to the northeast, the Austro-Germans have crossed the Vistula, south of the city, and the armies of the Austrian Archduke Joseph Ferdinand and the German Field Marshal Von Mackensen, are advancing northward between the Vistula and the Bug Rivers. The Russians are fighting desperately and stubbornly to check the progress of these four armies, and have had several successes, inflicting heavy losses on their pursuers, but they are being steadily pressed back, which made the longer occupation of Warsaw harder. Although the steadiness of the Russian troops and their fierce counter-attacks have gained time for them, it is problematical whether the whole Russian army will succeed in reaching new positions chosen for it, or whether, if it should get there, it will not find those positions turned by the Austrians, who have crossed the Bug southeast of Cholm, and the Germans, under General von Scholtz and Von Gallwitz, who have crossed the Narva. At the northeastern end of the line of Russian communications is further threatened by General Buelow, who is advancing toward Dvinsk on the Vlna-Petrograd railway. Indeed, the Austro-Germans have sent their traps to catch and destroy the Russian army, but none of them was sprung, but one, which was so near to closing, that Grand Duke Nicholas was forced to evacuate Warsaw, and now is fighting with all his might to prevent the other from cutting off his retreat. Thus far he has seemingly been successful, for although the Germans claim the capture of large numbers of prisoners, the aggregate is small when compared with the immense forces engaged. In addition the Russian guns are apparently well on their way to the rear. From refugees who left Warsaw some days ago and have arrived at Moscow, it has been learned that Warsaw, even at that early date, had been doomed. Factories have been stripped of their machinery, and all war stores have been removed to the interior of Russia. The Russians are also preparing to evacuate Riga, the port on the Gulf of that name to the north. The arrival of Germans ten miles south of that city, has already been the cause of the civilian population departing. While expressing the fullest confidence in the future, British military critics make no attempt to belittle the Germans in the effect their success will have.

To Carpers and Grousers.

"Think of the daily unregarded heroism of the sea-service which goes about its work with a dogged contempt for the German submarines, and of the fishermen who go straight on with the toll of the sea, though their remorseless persecutors sink their smacks or rake them with shot and shell.

"I confess I lose all patience with the carpers and grousers when I see around me on all sides these splendid signs of the courage and dutifulness of our own people," says Mr. J. A. Spender in the Westminster Gazette.

Intercessory.

A year of blood has swept across the earth,
A year of war has shocked the souls of men;
Oh! God of battles, great Jehovah, when Shall cease the strife and Peace again have birth?
When shall Thy wrath, Oh Lord! be satisfied,
How long, how long, Thy mercy be denied?
The nations feel Thy hand upon them
laid,
Europe groans beneath her scourge
of woe,
And many a mighty head is bowed in supplication that the storm be stayed.
Still hosts, opposing hosts, meet on the plains
And o'er the stricken world red-handed slaughter reigns.
Lift up thy hands, Oh England of our heart!
As did the prophet on the hills of Sore,
When battle filled the valleys lap
with gore,
Oh, God of Israel's arms, the same
Thou art
To-day as when the sun was stayed in heaven,
Till unto Judah's blade the victory was given!

Oh! Strength of armies lend us now

thine aid
James Mary, join our supplicating
prayer,
And Michael, who the hosts of Hurled from on high, to ruin, thine be

Shine forth, armies now, they stand

Fishery Report.

The following reports of the codfishery for the week ending July 31st are now posted at the Board of Trade room:—
July 31st—From B. Perry (Catalina)—Six boats, 40 dories and skiffs and 77 traps are fishing, and the catch to date is 3,200 quintals, with 1,200 for last week. Prospects are very poor and caplin bait is getting scarce, though there is just a sign of squid. Nothing is being done on this account.
July 31—From B. Lawton (Knights Cove Point to South Head of Keels)—Only 14 traps and no skiffs are fishing. Prospects for book and liners are the poorest for years. The trap fishing for the week was fairly good. The catch to date is from 150 to 250 qts. per trap, but for the book and liners practically nothing. Excellent reports are received from Keels and around the southwest side of the bay, Fred Bartlett securing good hauls.
July 31—From A. Ingraham (Ram-ga)—Prospects are poor and there is no bait, though plenty squid can be seen but it will not fig. The total catch is 3,250 qts. and for last week 50.
July 31—From F. Curlew (Remon-tre East to Belleoram)—There is some squid for bait, but codfishery prospects are not encouraging. The catch to date is 15,320 qts., with 40 for last week. The lobster fishery is closed.
MEN SAFE.—Five men belonging to a schooner from Random, T.B., who left Bay Bulls for Gull Island in a motor boat on Wednesday morning last, and for whom much anxiety was felt, turned up safely at Bay Bulls last evening.

The Fall of Warsaw.

After repeated attempts during the greater part of twelve months, Teutonic forces have occupied the Polish capital. It is a triumph for the Kaiser and will do much to buoy up the spirit of the enemy. The Russians have no doubt reduced as far as they could the military value of the capture, by destroying whatever of military value they could not remove. Its capture marks the culmination of a campaign which has resulted in turning back the Russian forces which were some months ago rushing through the passes of the Carpathians into the plains of Hungary, driving them out of almost the whole of Galicia, recapturing Premysl and Lemberg and overrunning Poland. The military value of the capture, however, is not to be measured by the degree of success in paralyzing the Russian armies. How far the Grand Duke Nicholas has succeeded in keeping his armies intact will be probably disclosed during the next few weeks and at what cost the Teutonic success has been gained will also soon be evident. It may be that the success is a Punic success, and that the success of the Germans has weakened them so much that they may not be able to do much more either in the Eastern or Western theatres of war. It is evident enough that the Russian falling back has been due to lack of munitions, and the lack of the latter affords a reason of the desperate attempt of the English and French on the Dardanelles to afford relief to the Russians. The fall of Warsaw is clearly connected with the delay in forcing an entrance to the Black Sea. These are hard facts, but they have to be faced. The war is proving itself a war of munitions, and Britain is now only getting into her stride. Britain is tackling the munition problem and the army problem on a truly Imperial scale; and from now onward she will appropriate more and more to the strength of Germany and prove the deciding factor in the struggle. It is becoming more and more evident that Kitchener knew well what he was about from the first. He had to create armies, equip them, train them and at first there was neither equipment nor means of training men on a large scale. He is getting the equipment and he is getting his trainers of men. He said it would be a long war and that he would require more and more. He spoke of three years as the time required to accomplish the task

Modern Battles.

(By Senator Charles Humbert.)
In this article Senator Humbert, the well-known French statesman, gives an interesting French impression of British effort to overcome the shell shortage.
Everyone who has been present at a battle agrees that there is but one thing that counts—fire capacity. Intensity of bombardment, the number of shells that can be hurled upon a given point, the power of the explosives used.
As was stated recently in an English newspaper, if the artillery preparation is sufficient, miles of ground can be won by troops armed with walking sticks, whereas without this preliminary artillery action it is sheer madness to make an attack across the open even against positions defended by troops inferior in number and quality to the attackers.
Just the same remark was made to me the other day by an officer who had come back from the neighborhood of Verdun. "Infantry can never gain a position permanently," he said, "except when they can carry it with the aid of the artillery. From the outset of this war, England has made a truly magnificent effort towards organizing a military army of which she scarcely possessed the first rudiments. Without resorting to compulsory service she has enlisted millions of men, trained them, equipped them, embodied them, armed them. What does it matter if during this great part of her task she has paid more attention to the problems of effectiveness than to that of munition? But now she sees clearly what she needs to win through. Nothing will stop her. In every crisis of her history England has always discovered the men needed to achieve the task that lay before the country, no matter how difficult that task might be.

When you come to think of it, there is nothing extraordinary about this aspect of modern warfare. The whole of modern life has been transformed. Machinery has displaced the workman of old time, who was an artisan and almost an artist, by mechanics who can do nothing without their engine.
Just in the same way the warrior of former days was estimated according to his strength, his activity, his skill, his courage. Nowadays his chief value lies in the use that he can make of mechanical equipment, without which he would be doomed to ineffectiveness and to death.

The English ought to be particularly capable of adapting themselves to this kind of warfare. Not only were they the first to pass through the process of evolution that led to the modern industrial State, but furthermore their tastes and their efficiency in naval matters make it easier for them to understand the importance of progress in mechanics, in the science of ballistics, in chemistry, and in the military arts. For on the sea naval warfare is only waged with machines, gigantic machines, in whose construction the most delicate problems and the most abstruse sciences are involved. It is not sufficient any more, as it was in the old sailing days, to be a good seaman, skilful to take advantage of wind and tide, bold in boarding. To-day things are simpler and sterner. Your ships must be as speedy as possible, as well armoured as possible, and capable of hurling the greatest possible quantities of shells and explosives. Engine-speed and weight of broadside are the determining factors in the battle-efficiency of a dreadnought.

Land warfare nowadays follows the same rules. Calibre and range of guns, their mobility, their rate of fire, the quality of explosive with which their shells are charged, the facilities of supply afforded by the Army organization and the railway system, the capacity of factory output—these are the factors you have got to take into consideration. Your artillery, moreover, must be able day and night to pound certain clearly defined objectives; it must be able to shift its ground, concentrate at a given spot, follow up an attack. All that again brings in the questions of motor-tractors, range-finders, field telephones, searchlights, aeroplanes, wireless installations, etc.

There is no need to labor the point. The English public already grasps these problems. But what I do want to say is that I have the most complete confidence in the results of the efforts that our brave and powerful English allies are making. Some people have been astonished that they have not yet developed all the power, all the energy, all the activity of which they are capable. For my part this has not surprised me, because I know that what has kept them back is just one of the greatest of the national qualities of the English—their habit of experiment.
Your nation has always had marvellous success in enterprises of commerce, of industry, and colonization, just as it has given exceptional proof of natural genius in the physical sciences. All this is due to your habit of experiment, to those rules of the abstract which as long as three centuries ago were engaging the at-

His Grace Archbishop Roche's Visit TO THE ANCIENT CAPITAL.

If there is one thing more than another that Newfoundland Catholics excel in, it is the great respect shown to the clergy of their church. This was proved in a marked degree on Saturday last on the occasion of the first visit of the Rt. Rev. E. P. Roche since his elevation to the Archbishopric of St. John's. When the train arrived at Dunville every man, woman and child was at the station and showed their joy by hearty cheers for His Grace and accompanying clergy. The station was nicely decorated with fir boughs and white flowers, strings of bunting spanned the track, and flew from every top, while large mottoes of ferns and wild roses placed beside the track enhanced the beauty of the scene.

When His Grace and suite detrained at Jersey Side, the whole population including the Star of the Sea in full regalia were there to greet him. After three lusty cheers and a cheer had been given for His Grace and suite the great concourse of people, the largest ever seen in Dunville, wended its way to the Presbytery headed by the Star Band discoursing appropriate airs. To add to the splendid natural scenery an avenue of trees of a uniform size and height had been planted on either side of the road from the station to the slip, and again from the ferry wharf on the town side almost to the Presbytery, thus testifying that the people thought nothing too much trouble to do. Innumerable flags floated from every house and flagstaff, and beautiful arches with appropriate mottoes spanned the streets in many places. Near His Grace's former home was a beautiful arch in the centre of which was a miniature house, and on the opposite side of the arch, "Home, Sweet Home" in Latin was written.

On Sunday Pontifical High Mass was celebrated, the celebrant being Monsignor St. John's Cathedral, Mather and Flaherty, as Deacon and Sub-Deacon, respectively; Father Sheehan was Master of Cereemonies while Fathers McGrath and Verrier assisted at the Throne.

After Mass the Citizens' Address with purse, and the address of the Star of the Sea were presented. The former was read by Magistrate O'Reilly and the latter by W. J. Walker, President of the Star of the Sea. His Grace replied in chaste and beautiful language thanking the people for the magnificent reception accorded him and for their loyalty and devotion to the grand old Catholic Church. In his address which was remarkable for its purity of style, grandeur of diction, and clear enunciation, he referred to the landing of the saintly Bishop of Quebec, St. Vallier, on the shores of Placentia over two hundred years ago, and establishing here the nucleus of that Church which has continued to flourish to the present day. A large Basque population then occupied the place, and though historical vicissitudes broke for a while the continuity of events, yet it may be said that the spark of faith then enkindled has never been extinguished. He referred to the modern tendency of the world to material issue, and the scouting of things supernatural and spiritual. He trusted that the people of the Ancient Capital would never tend towards the material, and exhorted them to cultivate these ideals of Catholicity and patriotism which our forefathers cherished and fostered.

He also referred to the marked progress Placentia had made since his last visit and complimented our esteemed Parish Priest, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Reardon on the great work performed since his advent to the parish, the beautifying of the church exteriorly and interiorly, the erection of the Nuns' Chapel, the establishing of schools in the suburbs as well as the boys academy were mute testimonies of his zeal for the honour and glory of God and the cause of education.

At seven o'clock Pontifical Vespers and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament took place when the Church was full to its utmost capacity.

At eight o'clock His Grace motored through the town to view the Illuminations and pyrotechnic display. Bonfires blazed from Daffy, Castle Hill, Jersey Side and Pavey's. The rockets shot into the sky in all directions and almost every house was literally ablaze with lights. When everyone did so much to honor Archbishop Roche it may be inevitable to particularize, but the artistic and elaborate decorations and brilliant illuminations of Magistrate O'Reilly's, Messrs. Ryan and Bonia's residences deserve special mention.

The Sacrament of Confirmation was administered yesterday to a large number of children, before which His Grace impressed on the applicants the obligations which were now expected of them, and discoursed a most eloquent and befitting sermon to all present.

Dunville, Aug. 3rd, 1915.

Your Boys and Girls.

No garment should bind or restrict the chest of your girl. The ribs, especially in youth, are very elastic, and much of the development of the lungs depends upon their flexibility. Neglect of proper breathing and free exercise out of doors will bring rigid, unyielding walls. Unless the chest expands readily and properly, the muscles gradually weaken, the back becomes aged and rounded, and the body actually suffers from malnutrition.

Such abnormalities are acquired unconsciously. A girl may fall into the habit of carrying one shoulder higher than the other, or she may bend forward at the shoulders, or there may be a slight curvature of the spine. In all these conditions the breathing space is lessened. An improper attitude when writing or reading will often ruin a woman's figure. This is especially true of a girl who is growing.

Neck-wear Always Pleases.

There's no woman who can have too many dainty neckwear pieces, and you're sure to find something in the attractive lot now showing at our store to please.

Hollywood Garden Party

The annual Garden Party in the Church fund at Hollywood, held at Dunphy's Farm, Wednesday was fairly well attended, and was not an ideal one for our amusement. The guests and were made as happy and comfortable as possible, and all enjoyed themselves thoroughly well. The refreshment tables were well treated and the Rev. Pastor F. and his committee were united in their efforts to make their guests enjoy themselves—the young men in games of football, and shooting, while the older men repaired to the Star Hall, which part of the day's business was timed. Tens and refreshments served and the big dance commenced, all of which considerably increased the day's proceeds to the sum of $250. Among the guests were Rt. Rev. Monsignor Rev. R. M. Sheehan, P. SO EASY TO CRITICISE.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

If it were as easy to construct as it is to criticize, Rome would have been built in half a day.
If it were as easy to do something worth while as it is to poke fun at something worth while, I should not have to wait long for the millennium.
The girl who thinks it is clever to criticize was turning over the pages of a magazine, "Not a story here that isn't commonplace," she snapped.
An article on the girl in the office came in for disdain next. "Never read anything so silly in my life. Such overstatements! No girl would dream of leaving fifteen minutes early every night, they certainly don't in our office" (as if that settled it for the rest of the world).
She Should See My Mail!
The column for young girls in need of advice she fairly sniffed at. "Imagine anyone actually writing in and telling such intimate things as these girls do. I don't doubt they make up the letters in the office" (she should see my mail).
In the housekeeping department she ridiculed the color scheme suggested for the living-room with all the cynical superiority of a girl who once studied art for one year.
On the fashion page she picked out one rather unattractive hat and held up the whole page to ridicule on the strength of that.
Yet There Was So Much Good In It!
After she laid the magazine down I

Pte Joe Doran Writes

FROM STOB'S CAMP.
Mr. Edward Doran, of Trepasser, is in receipt of the accompanying letter from his son Joseph who enlisted with F Company of the Newfoundland Regiment.

Stob's Camp, Hawick, July 11, '15.
My dear Mother,—We arrived at Stob's Camp yesterday after a very pleasant passage across the Atlantic. On the way over we went to an island in the Azores called Flores, it is a Portuguese possession and very pretty, everything in bloom just the same as the gardens would be at home in August. We were also at Gibraltar for three days and had a good time there. Our commanding officer gave us two hours leave there (Gibraltar) and we certainly enjoyed it, the weather was very warm but we didn't mind that much. The weather here is much the same as it is at home. I like the camp life fine; you would certainly call it a pretty sight if you could only see hundreds of camps set up only a few feet from one another. Twelve men are in a camp and each camp is commanded by a non-commissioned officer. There is not one bit of confusion with meals, everything is worked with such order and all get meals at the same time. We get good food and lots of it so don't worry one bit about me, mother, we are getting every comfort and our officers are all very nice. Please God we will all meet again soon. Hoping every one at home are well and that they are doing well with the fish. With fond love to father, Tom, Maggie, Mary Ann and self.
I remain your loving boy,
JOE.

Coroner's Inquest Opened

INTO CHICAGO STEAMSHIP DISASTER.

The List of Dead and Missing now totals 1,220—Members of the crew first Witnesses Called.

Chicago, July 27.—With the taking of testimony by the Coroner's Jury, the first open investigation into the capsizing of the steamer Eastland started today. At the same time investigations were being conducted by the State Grand Jury, the Federal authorities and the City Council, while the State Public Utilities Commission issued an announcement that it would not conduct an investigation as it had planned, the reason given being that the matter was fully covered by other investigators.

Secretary of Commerce, William C. Redfield arrived today and took up what he promised would be a thorough inquiry. He said he welcomed the most searching investigation possible and that if an inspector were at fault no one was more interested in it than he.

The funerals of the victims continued to be held today, although the great majority will be buried tomorrow.

The work of searching the river and the Eastland's hull for bodies continued with unabated energy today.

At noon the official list of dead and missing was:

- Identified dead 822
- Unidentified dead 5
- Missing, Western Electric Company list 393

Total 1,220

The first witnesses to arrive at the Coroner's inquest were members of the crew of the steamer, under guard of policemen. No charge has been formally placed against the men, who are being detained as witnesses.

The Coroner's Jury was empaneled last Saturday and later inspected the steamer and the bodies of the victims.

Representatives of State Attorney Hoyne, owners of the steamer, and scores of lawyers who appeared in behalf of various interests, occupied seats near Coroner Hoffman.

The first witness called was Robert Moore, a passenger on the Eastland. Moore said he arrived at the Eastland at seven o'clock in the morning and was on the boat when it overturned. He was asked by Coroner Hoffman to describe what he saw.

"As I went on board I saw a great quantity of water rushing out of a pipe on the side of the boat. The first sign of listing I saw at about 7:15. I was on a rail on the second deck and the refrigerator in the bar tipped. There was eight or ten minutes interval between the time the boat began listing badly and the time it finally overturned.

"There was ample time, I think, to have emptied the boat had the warning been given.

"There was no warning. When the boat went over I was thrown into the water and was rescued with a number of others."

The witness said that all the decks were crowded, particularly the upper deck, and declared positively that there was no rush across the deck before the boat overturned.

"There was no excitement," said the witness until the list became dangerous.

Harbor Master Wecker testified that heaved at the Eastland's wharf two minutes before the steamer was due to start and saw that the boat was listing to port. He said he called to Captain Pederson of the Eastland, to trim the vessel, shouting that he would not open the Clark Strubridge until the boat was right.

Mr. Weer said the captain tried to right ship, but seemed unable to take her into the ballast tanks fast enough. The Harbor Master stated that the captain should have been able to trim her from three to six minutes before listing had been with the rest.

"I never the Eastland listed so heavily as was Saturday morning," said Mr. Wecker. "The boat first listed abeam degrees, then came back slightly and again started over, and kept going. A boat that is difficult to heel under all circumstances is not as a cranky boat, and I have heeled the Eastland to be cranky plenty."

MOISE DEROSCE, Hotel Ke, St. Philippe, Que.

"I don't think the Eastland should have been allowed to carry more than 600 passengers because it did not have enough draft and stability to carry larger load. Only last Tuesday I saw Captain Pederson that his boat was trimming and it was constantly rolling on its ears. He said that twin screws kept the Eastland in even keel while under way.

"After arrest I heard Captain Pederson that he tried for seven minutes to trim the steamer, but not get water into the ballast tank fast enough. I don't believe Pederson realized the danger until the final plunge came."

Mr. Lieutenant Harbor Master, testified he saw the dangerous list of the steamer and called the police all departments, returning to the pier to see passengers leaping from decks to the river.

Mr. Laird he saw many of the crew on the wharf side while the ship was listing.

Efforts to check up the total dead made no progress today. The official list of dead again totalled 824.

Possibly the Best Way.

(Boston Post.) It is hinted from Berlin that the German Government may not make any reply at all to the last American note, regarding such a course as the most dignified and fit under the circumstances. That is possibly the best way. The note was not such as called for a reply. It stated positions. It made clear that it was Germany's next move, not in words, but in deeds. Even the question of reparation for the lives and property of Americans lost through the torpedoing of the Lusitania may well await another and less excited time. So, if Germany refrains from further submarine outrages against American citizens and conducts her sea warfare according to the rules of international law, which she shows every sign of doing, all will be well.

SUPERB VITAGRAPH DRAMA AT NICKEL THEATRE. A new programme will be given at the Nickel Theatre to-day. It will be equally as good as the other charming programmes given there of late. "The Hazard of Helen" will be continued. The great feature for to-day, however, is a superb drama by the Vitagraph artists entitled: "For Another's Crime." Leo Delaney, Leah Baird and Roger Lytton are in the leading characters. "The Closing Web" is a beautiful two-part social drama. "How Heroes are Made" is the comedy. Forbes Law Duguid the great baritone singer will be heard in a new song. Mr. Duguid certainly deserves the good things said of him. Don't forget the big matinee for the little ones to-morrow.

BRITISH THEATRE.

The vociferous applause which greeted the termination of Madame Olive Timmons' great singing at the above Theatre last night, was a whole-hearted testimony to this celebrated artist's splendid work. Her rendition of the beautiful song "The Rosary" was indeed a work of art whilst the manner in which she interpreted the charming "petite chanson" "Come Out Mr. Sun-Shine" displayed wonderful technique and marvellous voice control. Mr. P. J. McCarthy played the accompaniments with his well known customary skill. Madame Timmons will be heard to-night in new selections.

AT THE CRESCENT.

Harvey Collins, directed from New York's big theatres, arrived by the Stephano, yesterday to the Crescent Picture Palace for a short season. Mr. Collins possesses a fine tenor voice and Crescent patrons who heard him sing "A Little Bit of Heaven" yesterday were delighted. To-day's picture programme is up to the Crescent's usual standard. A fascinating drama entitled "The Hopeless Game" is presented by the Lullaby Company in two reels, beside four other interesting pictures. Mr. Collins sings "A Little Bit of Heaven" again to-day. Don't miss hearing him. The usual extra pictures will be shown at the big Saturday matinee. Send the children; the Crescent staff will take good care of them.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There was a crowded house at each performance last night at the ever-popular little theatre, and all enjoyed the good programme. The little singer was loudly applauded and had to respond to the hearty encores. To-night there will be an entire change of pictures all the pick of the market and carefully selected to suit all patrons. Always a good show and a clean, comfortable theatre to enjoy an evening to be found at "OURS."

Meeting of Patriotic Association.

A meeting of the Patriotic Association was held at the Board of Trade Rooms last night. His Excellency the Governor presiding. Upwards of fifty members were present. His Excellency announced that the Majors recently appointed to the Newfoundland Regiment have already taken up their duties. He spoke of the good work done by the Aeroplane Committee and paid a worthy tribute to the patriotism of those who contributed to the Fund. He also referred to England's appreciation of her oldest colony's gifts, mention of which has already been made in the Press. He then read the accompanying letter from Sir Spencer Ewart, the Commanding Officer of the forces in Scotland:— Headquarters Scottish Command, Edinburgh, 19th July, 1915.

Dear Sir Walter Davidson,— I am very much obliged for your Excellency's kind letter of July 1st. I can assure you that it has been a very great pleasure and honour to me to have had the Newfoundland Regiment under my orders during its period of training in this country. When the Battalion first arrived it was quartered at Fort George, but subsequently I moved it to Edinburgh, as it seemed appropriate from an imperial point of view that the soldiers of Newfoundland should garrison our ancient Castle for a time. The Battalion has conducted itself to my entire satisfaction, and I have the authority of the Lord Provost of Edinburgh for saying that its presence in our Scottish Capital has been much appreciated by the people. The Lord Provost himself was present at the station to welcome your officers and men in the name of the City of Edinburgh on their arrival here from Fort George. The Newfoundland Regiment is composed of the best possible material, all ranks being of fine, sturdy physique, and I shall be glad to see the career of the battalion when it goes to the front with the greatest interest, being convinced that every officer and man will do his utmost to uphold the honour of his regiment, of Newfoundland, and of the Empire. It was a great pleasure to me to be present at the Ceremonial parade at Stob's Camp, when Lady MacGregor presented the regimental colour to the Battalion and the entire sure that all ranks are animated by a desire to emblazon upon the colour honours of which Newfoundland may for all time be proud. I shall feel much obliged if your Excellency will convey to my Ministers my cordial thanks for the kind letter which you have addressed to me. Yours sincerely, SPENCER EWART.

The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer of the Aeroplane Fund Committee were then read and adopted.

The report of the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. J. A. Clift, K. C., showed that the sum of $34,848.56 had already been received and acknowledged, that sufficient was in sight to make the total $40,764.19 and that $21,705.21 had already been expended in the purchase of two aeroplanes. This leaves a balance of $19,058.98 not including subscriptions to be received from Botwood and the employees of the Reid Mfd. Co., which should make the total about $21,000.

The report of the Reserve Force Committee was presented by Sir Joseph Outerbridge and was adopted. This report showed that 145 men have passed the medical examination and have been accepted for G Company, now in training. Since the formation of the Reserve Force Committee 2141 have volunteered and 1114 of these have been sworn in for service abroad. The Equipment and Musickery Committees are performing their work most satisfactorily and the recruits are making excellent progress. Sir Joseph Outerbridge then read communications received from the Captain of H. M. S. Calgarian, Sir William McGregor, Col. B. McCalmont the General Staff Officer of the 12th Reserve Infantry Brigade to which our regiment has been attached, all of whom spoke very favourably of the conduct of the men and their proficiency in drill, which reflects much credit on the officers who trained them.

It was decided that the work of the Aeroplane and Machine Gun Fund should continue for the present, the balance to be devoted to Machine Guns particularly for the Newfoundland Regiment. Information is being sought from the War Office as to the cost of the machine guns with which the Newfoundland Regiment are being equipped. After a vote of thanks had been passed to the Press, and to Mr. W. J. Edgar for his services as Asst. Treasurer of the Aeroplane Committee, the meeting adjourned.

NOON. MINERS STRIKE AT MONS AND CHARLEROI. HAVRE, To-day. Miners in Mons district have gone on strike. According to reports received here, groups of miners collided with German soldiers and a serious riot followed, during which two Germans and seven miners were killed. Disorders are also reported from Charleroi. The disturbance there resulted from the high cost of food, the stores having been pillaged. German troops are said to have charged a crowd of civilians which had congregated, killing ten and wounding forty. Four battalions of Landstrum have been sent to Mons and two to Charleroi. Intense unrest is reported to prevail throughout the region. The rich coal mining district of which Mons is the centre is called Borinage and the miners are known as Borinages.

1.45 P.M. INTERN GERMAN MISSIONARIES. LONDON, To-day. The British Government has decided to intern or report all German missionaries in London. OBSERVING GERMAN ADVANCE. LONDON, To-day. Discussing the situation around Riga, the Petrograd correspondent of the Morning Post says: The Russian military forces seem merely to be observing the German advance and falling back before it. Germans now are fifteen miles further east than yesterday. Their aeroplanes have dropped numerous bombs on Riga and the main body of German troops have succeeded in getting beyond a difficult swamp region which was the city's chief natural defence. They are now in good forest country through which they are being guided by local Germans. Riga's population is fifty per cent. German.

Portia Back From the Westward. The S.S. Portia, Capt. Joe Keen, arrived in port from the Westward at 11 a.m. to-day after having made all ports of call to Bonne Bay, going and returning. Fine weather was experienced during the whole trip, and the ship did not lose one hour due to fog. On Wednesday last on the return the Portia encountered a strong North-East breeze which continued all the way to this port. She brought about 1,000 packages of freight, including 400 cases of oil; and the following passengers in saloon—Misses Lee, Aggar, M. Parsons, J. Hartigan, K. Ducey, C. Ducey; Messames Lee, W. J. Poor Fishery West. According to reports brought along by the Portia from the westward the fishery prospects are not at all encouraging. Very little is being done by the shore fishermen along the coast, except at Channel and Rose Blanche, where the fishermen are doing well. Missing Men Safe. Three fishermen, John Power, Jess Power and John Costello, who were reported missing since the storm of Tuesday last, have turned up safely, having reached Petty Harbor on Tuesday night. Sergt. Cookson's Va'or.

A member of the Princess Patri-cias, signing himself "One of those left," has written to the London Times to call attention to Sergt.
Cookson's gallantry during the fierce fighting in May. This man, he writes, "deserves the greatest honor for his unflinching and conspicuous gallantry during the whole of those terrible days, as it was indeed chiefly owing to his coolness and indomitableness that Lieut. Niven, after Major Gault, D. S. O., had been knocked out, was able to save the entire position; it was Sergt. Cookson who got the vital despatch through for reinforcements and brought them up when volunteers were called for this perilous task, and I guess no one living to tell the tale of those days of real hell will ever deny the justice of honoring this brave man who fought as a Gordon Highlander in South Africa with those who have given prominence to."

Porthole Flash.

Excuses of Sentenced White Star Steward.
Charged with conduct likely to cause the destruction of or damage to the White Star liner Megantic and with being in possession of military clothing, Leslie Joseph Minter, an eighteen-year-old ship's steward, was at Liverpool yesterday sentenced to two months' imprisonment.
It was stated that while the Megantic was on the way from Plymouth to Liverpool Minter was seen at midnight on May 25 to open a porthole and use a flashlight. Some time before two German submarines had been observed. When brought before the captain Minter said he was trying to see Holyhead with a torchlight, but it was pointed out that he was on the wrong side of the ship to see Holyhead.
Minter admitted that he opened the porthole but denied using a flashlight, though he admitted that he had one in his baggage. The military clothing was left in the steamer by soldiers.
He was stated to be the son of a London Post Office official and to have had an adventurous career. — Daily Mail, July 22.

AT ANY PRICE.
The score I watch that foolish war, and wonder what they're fighting for, the more I read of crimson rain, and endless windrows of the slain, the more I hope that
war may cease;
the more I boast
the dove of peace.
They say that follow isn't nice who whoops for peace at any price; he lacks all patriotic pride, he has a thimble soul inside, they quote that wheeze Sir Walter said, "Breathes there a man with chapel so dead," and say the chap will cut no ice who talks of peace at any price. But ere I'd see my brothers killed, my uncles with cheap bullets filled, my cousins sent across the Styx, my martyred aunts piled up in ricks, I'd let some bully twist my nose,
and lean his weight upon my toes.
I'd gladly wade around in slime, and think I played the wiser game. The price of peace can't seem too high to one who sees those legions die, where Europe's crimson rivers flow through blasted lands that shriek of woe. Oh, Peace, long may you hover here, e'en though the cost is pretty dear! One glance at Europe should suffice to show you're cheap at any price!

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"When invited to a friends to an informal dinner how long should I remain after the meal is over?" asked Ned.
"An hour or even two would be all right to stay, especially as you say it is an informal one," advised his sister.
JUST FOR A MINUTE.
Dr. Wintongram Ingram, the Bishop of London, England, is possessed of a somewhat cynical wit. He was once engaged in conversation with a very bumptious man, who was boring him terribly.
"What a fine life a bishop's must be!"
exclaimed the bore, enthusiastically.
"I would give anything to change places with your lordship for just one hour to experience what it must be like."
"Ah," replied Dr. Ingram, fervently,
"I wish you could this very moment!"

Lessen Your Living Expenses!

"Be economical," is the cry in England, and this slogan has the same significance in Canada. We all must economize. There is more actual waste in our dress expenses than any other item. When a garment becomes soiled we throw it aside, when for a few cents it could be restored to original freshness and beauty by Dry Cleaning.
A saving of at least 25 per cent. in the expense of dressing is possible by using the processes of Dry Cleaning and Dyeing.

Our agents will gladly give you full particulars.
