The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $981,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does so other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

'Margaret,' The GIRL ARTIST, OR, The Countess of Ferrers Court.

CHAPTER XVIII.

It was maddening. And indeed as he reeled away from the group he looked like a man dem-tent.

Suddenly he heard a shout and staggered back. A man came running toward them with something in his hand. He held the wet and dripping articles on high and surveyed his companions gravely. "The old 'un's right!" he said slowly. "Here be the poor lady's cape and hat!"

Austin Ambrose tore them from the man's hand. "Are you sure?" he gasped. "Yes," came a grave chorus. "We seek her wear 'em, time and again. They're hers, and she's lost, poor soul!"

Austin Ambrose walked away with the hat and cape in his hands. At the back of the beach; on the quay, was a small inn, through whose red curtains the light shone cheerily. He pushed open the door and entered with unsteady gait. The little place was full of sailors and fishermen, all talking about the sad event, and recalling the shudder fatality of two years ago. As he entered they became suddenly silent.

"Give me some brandy!" he said, hoarsely. The landlady mixed him a glass of hot brandy-and-water, and he took it in both hands and drank it; then he sank on to a seat, and with tightly compressed lips stared at the door.

For the time he was unconscious of the presence of the others, deaf to their voices, which arose again in a hushed tone.

"It's the awfullest night," said one, "the awfullest! The poor gentleman's out in it, too! Farmer James have gone down the road to look for him. He's afraid the colt will be scared by the lightning."

"Ah," said another; "not come back yet, poor gentleman? What a terrible story it will be to tell him. They beat long been mated, have they?"

"Hush!" said a warning whisper, and the speaker nodded to the crouching figure. "Her brother, most like," he added, in a whisper. "He's took all a-back, poor fellow."

There was silence again, then they commenced to talk once more, and still Austin Ambrose sat still and motionless.

Suddenly the door was flung open, and a short, active-looking man dashed in. "Why, Farmer James!" cried one or two, "what's amiss, man?"

"Give me time!" panted the farmer. "It's a night of bad news, boys! The colt's come home—without him!"

The men sprang to their feet, and looked at the speaker aghast. "Without the gentleman, farmer?"

"Ay," he said, solemnly, wiping the perspiration from his face. "I met the colt tearing down the road to the stable with the saddle empty. A lantern, missis, quick. Who'll lend a hand, boys?"

One and all turned out and proceeded to do something between a trot and a run into the road.

At a little distance the colt stood, wet and trembling, held by a boy.

HER HOME NO LONGER CHILDLESS Operation Not Necessary after Taking the Great Medicine for Women.

Miller's Falls, Mass.—"Doctors said I had displacement very badly and I would have to have an operation. I had a soreness in both sides and a pulling sensation in my right side. I could not do much work the pain was so bad. I was also troubled with irregularity and other weaknesses. My blood was poor. We had been married four years and had no children.

After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I became well and strong and was saved from the operation. We are now the parents of a big baby girl and I praise your remedies to others and give you permission to publish my letter."—Mrs. JOSEPH GUILBAULT, 37 Bridge Street, Miller's Falls, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is famous for restoring women to normal health and strength. When this is done wives no longer despair of having children.

A woman should be reluctant to submit to a surgical operation until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. If you have a case that needs special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

They paused a moment to stare at it and then passed on.

Austin Ambrose, uninvited by them, joined the group and ran with them. They stopped a moment where the two roads joined, the one Blair had taken in the morning, the other he was returning by in the evening.

"Let's divide," said a man; but the farmer stooped down and examined the road.

"No occasion," he said; "here's the colt's hoof marks. This is the road she came!"

Hurrying along, they climbed the narrow lane, and the foremost, a young lad carrying the lantern, stopped with a cry at the motionless form lying in the road.

There was a hush as the men crowded round. The farmer knelt down and examined it for a moment, then he looked up.

"I'm afraid he's dead," he said gravely. "Is it foul play, do 'ee think, Farmer James?" inquired one of the men.

"Foul play!" the words ran round. "Why do 'ee say that?"

The man, a small, sharp-eyed old fellow, pointed to the road.

"Looks as if there'd been a struggle," he said. "But no matter now. Take that gate off its hinges, lads, and lay him on it. We'll carry him down to the Holme."

The gate was torn off its hinges—how little they guessed that it was not for the first time that night!—and some coats laid upon it; then they stooped to raise poor Blair.

As they did so, Austin Ambrose slid forward. At the sound of the words "foul play," he had aroused. All was lost: Margaret dead, Blair dead; all his toil and ingenuity thrown away. But if these rustics were suspicious it was time to think of his own safety.

"Let me see!" he said, in a low voice. "He—he is a friend of mine. Who said 'foul play'?" If it thought so—but, no! Look!" and he pointed to the stirrup through which the foot was thrust. "My poor friend was thrown from the saddle; the mare bolted and must have dragged him. His foot is still in the stirrup."

"That's true," said one. "Ah! it that stirrup leather had slipped out sooner—"

Almost in silence they carried him down to the small farm called the Holme; and the good-hearted people roused from their beds did their best for him.

In a short time he was undressed and put to bed.

Austin Ambrose, calm and self-possessed, but very sorrowful, showed the affliction of a brother.

"I am afraid it is all over!" he said, as they gathered round the bed and looked at the handsome face and stalwart form, which many of them had seen depart in the morning so full of life and happiness.

After a time the doctor came. He was an old man, who had worn himself out in the hard practice of a wild country-side. Accidents were his daily experience, and he felt to work in the cool, business-like way acquired by custom.

White and breathless, Austin Ambrose, who had been permitted to remain during the examination, waited for the verdict. It came at last.

"He's not dead," said the old doctor, gravely, "and that's about all that can be said. It was a terrible blow!" Austin Ambrose's lips contracted, and his eyes sought the old man's weather-beaten face keenly.

"A blow, doctor?" he said, gravely. "Yes," was the reply; "he was struck on the back of the head, sir." Austin Ambrose uttered an exclamation.

"Oh, impossible, doctor!" he said. "Who should do such a thing? My poor friend had not an enemy in the world."

"Plunder?" said the old man, questioningly. Austin Ambrose shook his head.

"His purse, watch, jewelry, even the things he purchased at Infracombe, are untouched. Besides, we found him lying, his foot still entangled in the stirrup, as you have heard."

"Humph!" said the doctor, still at work with restoratives. "Well, he must have fallen on the back of his head; but—he looked puzzled and frowned thoughtfully—but it's very strange. If I hadn't known what you have just told me, I should say that he had been struck, and that if he should die, the coroner's verdict would have to be 'Wilful Murder!'"

Austin Ambrose's lips twitched, but he shook his head and sighed.

"Thank Heaven that I have no such suspicion—it would be too dreadful! No, my poor friend was thrown and dragged by the frightened horse. It is, alas! too common an accident."

"Yes, yes, just so," said the doctor. "It's a pity, a thousand pities, for he is a splendid fellow," and he looked with sad admiration on the stalwart form. "What is his name?"

Austin Ambrose hesitated a moment. "His name is Stanley. He is a very dear friend of mine," he added, "and only recently married."

The old doctor started. "You don't mean to say that he's the husband of the unfortunate young lady who was drowned off Long Rock this morning?"

Austin Ambrose nodded, the doctor sighed.

"Well, sir, I'll do my best to bring him back to life; but it will be cruel kindness, I fear, under the circumstances. Poor young fellow! But if he should die he will be spared the misery awaiting him!"

"You—you think there is no hope of her escape?" faltered Austin. The doctor shook his head.

"There may be a faint hope, for him," he said, pointing to the bed. "But for her there is none, none whatever. She was seen on the rocks; they tell me that her cape and hat have been found washed ashore. No; if he should die they will not be long apart. But you look worn out, sir. You had better get some rest."

Austin Ambrose shook his head. "I will not go until—" and he stopped significantly.

For the remainder of the night they watched beside the still form. Life was in yet, beating faintly, like a flickering lamp; but the dawn came and Blair still remained hovering between the shores of the River of Death.

The morning passed. The whole village was in a state of excitement over the two accidents; that they should have happened on the same day, and to man and wife, seemed phenomenal, and every one of the inns drove a roaring trade with the crowds of excited men.

There was the chance, too, of another fatality, for the Days' boat had disappeared, and it was rumored that she had gone down in the storm.

Toward evening, however, the crowd collected on the beach for the boat had been sighted.

Austin Ambrose had left Blair for a short rest, but he could neither sleep nor remain quiet, and his restless feet had dragged him to Appleford.

He stood just on the edge of the crowd watching the boat with lustre eyes that shone dully in his pallid face.

There was a rush and a cheer as the boat came in, and two or three men ran out into the water—it was smiling calmly enough now—to haul her in, but as her keel touched the beach, Day held up his hand.

"Don't cheer, lads," he said, gravely. "I've had news."

"Ay, ay, we can guess, James," said a voice, "you've seen the poor lady."

Day started and glanced at his wife, who sat in the stern, her shawl to her eyes.

"Tell 'em, you," he said, in a whisper. She raised her head.

"Yes," she said, with a sob, "I've seen the poor lady. We saw her on the rocks, almost at the last moment."

"And you couldn't get near?" said a man.

She looked round. "Do you think we'd be here without her if there'd been half a chance?" she said, reproachfully.

"Ay, ay!" said the old boatswain. "Well, well, that settles it, and that's some't of a comfort! The poor soul is gone! Don't 'ee cry, missis!" he added as he helped Mrs. Day out of the boat.

It so happened that as she stepped on the beach she was near Austin Ambrose.

He had been listening in a kind of stupor, his eyes wandering from Mrs. Day's face to her husband's.

At the moment of her landing he was so near that her arm touched his. As it did so his eyes fell upon the shawl which she had been pressing to her eyes.

The sun was shining full on it, and in the dull vague fashion peculiar to his frame of mind his eyes was following the pattern.

Suddenly he started, and a light shone in his eyes.

"Let me help you," he said, and gently but firmly he laid his hand upon her arm covered by the shawl.

And, as he did so, the light gleamed still more brightly in his face, for he discovered that the shawl with which she had been wiping away her tears—was dry!

A Wonderful Bath.

The wounded soldier whose wound has become stiff furnishes one of the great problems of the present day. At the Grand Palais in Paris, under the supervision of Dr. Jean Camus, Director of Physical Treatment, there is a so-called "whirlpool bath" for the arm and the leg. By means of it a whirl of water at very high temperature—120 deg. F.—and pressure is applied to the limb for about twenty minutes. The relief to pain is remarkable. After the bath the limb can usually be manipulated with freedom, and so the bath is now invariably used as a preliminary to treatment by massage and by mechanical instruments. There is reason to believe that by this treatment the saving to the French Government in pensions is very great, so many apparently hopeless cases are being rescued. The saving has actually been put at as high a figure as £80,000 per month.

It Stops the Twinges of Rheumatism, Lingers the Muscles, Eases the Joints

Amazing Relief Comes at Once—Cure Every Time.

USE NERVILINE.

Aching joints and sore muscles are common in rheumatic people. Inflammation is deep in the tissues. You might use a dozen remedies and derive less relief than Nerviline will give you in half an hour.

Nerviline is a pain-subduer that works do not altogether describe. It is fully five times stronger than most remedies, not that it affects the skin unfavorably—no, its great power is due to its wonderful penetrative quality—it strikes in deeply, but never burns or blisters.

Just rub Nerviline into sore muscles, stiff joints, and note the glow of comfort, the ease of pain that follows. You are astonished, delighted; this is because words do not express the promptness and permanency with which Nerviline cures every ache and pain in the muscles and joints.

Marvelous, you'll say. Natural, we say, because Nerviline is different, stronger, more penetrating, a true pain-subduer. Just try it and see if it doesn't cure rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, strains and spasms.

The large 50c. family size bottle is far more economical than the medicinal size. Get it to-day. Sold by dealers everywhere.

GinPills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Why They're Used

As Mrs. Ripley, of Williamsfield East, says: "Before I had taken GinPills, I suffered dreadfully with my back and had suffered for twenty years. I have tried everything but got no relief until I took GinPills. I am now 48 and feel as well as I ever did in my life. There is nothing that can hold a place with GinPills for Pain in the Back, to which women are subject."

GinPills are 50c. the box or 6 boxes for $2.50 at any drug store. If you want to try GinPills write for free sample to

New Orchid Named "Princess Patricia".

Discoverer Offers It for Sale for the Benefit of Canadian Red Cross at New York Show.

(New York Herald.) A new orchid, named for the Princess Patricia of Connaught, was the centre of attraction yesterday at the second day of the fourth annual International Flower Show in Grand Central Palace. The new bloom is white. It was raised by Clement Moore, of Hackensack (N.J.), after several years of experiment. The flower attracted so much attention that the judges awarded a silver medal for it.

Moore has given the flower to the Canadian Red Cross and it will be sold at auction in the tea room on next Wednesday which is "Canadian Day." The management received a telegram yesterday from Ottawa stating the Princess Patricia would attend the show on that day if she could arrange to leave her mother, who is ill.

SAXON "SIX"

A big touring car for five people

The Saxon high speed motor design gets more power on less gasoline than used to be possible with a bigger motor. To-day in your touring car of course you want a "Six." No lesser motor can give you the same even pull—smoothness—power—flexibility. Except for starting the car, shifting is practically unknown to Saxon "Six" owners. The yacht-line body of the Saxon "Six" exemplifies the latest in motor car fashion. The Saxon "Six" is a big car for five people—plenty of room in driving compartment and tonneau. The long, resilient, cantilever springs assure riding comfort. If you seek speed the Saxon "Six" has it. "It laughs at hills." The car is absolutely phenomenal in its power and flexibility and our dealers welcome any test you care to invite. We are perfectly confident that the Saxon "Six" for power—speed—flexibility—acceleration—hill climbing—quietness—smoothness—coolness—comfort—economy will outperform any car in its price class. Ask to be shown. EQUIPMENT—Electric lighting and starting system, two head lights, dash light and tail light, one-man top, windshield, electric horn, speedometer, extra rim, tire irons, tools and jack.

SAXON ROADSTER

The Saxon roadster is absolutely modern and up to the minute—yet it embodies no experimental features. There is nothing freakish about it. It is a tried and proved car. It has been tried in the hands of 30,000 users—in engineers tests—in public contests—and anywhere it has made good. And do not overlook the Saxon virtue of economy. The Saxon costs the least to run of any car yet produced. It averages 30 miles per gallon of gasoline and 75 to 100 miles per pint of oil. Half a cent a mile is the Saxon average for car operation—one-fourth of a cent per passenger. Buy an automobile that is stylish and modern, just as you would buy a hat—a gown—or a suit of clothes. There is only one car in the world with these most desirable qualities. That car is the Saxon roadster. EQUIPMENT—Top, windshield, two gas head lights, oil tail light, gas generator and bulb horn. Electric starting and lighting system, with Exide battery furnished on new cars.

How To Tell Whether Tea and Coffee are Causing your Troubles

It seems easy to leave off drinking tea or coffee and note the results. But you say, "I can't do without my morning cup," so the dreary days follow one another, the same old pains and aches slowly growing a little worse. Do you dare think of the road ahead if that downward tendency keeps on, and why shouldn't it unless you change the daily habit?

Suppose to-day you assert your right to crush habit and start a new and healthful life. It's easy to quit tea and coffee and take on the pure-food drink made of clean, whole wheat roasted with a bit of molasses. It contains no CAFFEINE—the drug in tea and coffee that causes so much trouble.

Postum is not only free from drugs, but it has fine color and aroma, and a snappy, winning flavour that makes it easy for anyone to give up tea and coffee.

There are two forms of Postum. The original Postum Cereal must be well boiled; instant Postum is a soluble powder—a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water with sugar and cream, makes a delicious cup instantly.

Grocers everywhere sell both forms—they are equal in taste—and the cost per cup is about the same.

Evening Telegram

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
W. F. LLOYD, Editor

MONDAY, April 17th, 1916.

A Hearty Welcome.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM joins in welcoming back the men of our regiment who have been so long away from their families. They have faced death upon the deep, the hall of shrapnel on their landing on Gallipoli, the trying conditions of lack of drinking water and general unsanitary conditions on the Peninsula, the hall of bullets, shrapnel and high explosive shells, and the terrible risks of the evacuation. Some of their comrades they have left behind on that foreign shore, others are still in hospital, and others are now in France facing the Hun on that front. The returning heroes, however, have had a pleasant trip to the full, until their very wounds are their only reminder that they are capable of doing at the front. Now they have come home and their very presence and the honorable wounds they bear upon their bodies will be a great stimulus for others to take the places they have performed vacated in the ranks. Now they are at home, they will tell their story and "show how fields are won," and their soldiers' tales will do far more than an ordinary recruiting meeting conducted by civilians to fire the young men who have not yet offered to do their "bit," to join the colors and do their part. The passage of the returning heroes, since their arrival at Port aux Basques has been a veritable triumphal progress through the country. St. John's was determined to do its part as the Capital of the country in giving a royal welcome to this band of heroes. The whole city is gay with bunting. The citizens were determined that they should have a triumphal march through the city from the Railway Depot to Government House, where they were received by the Governor, and on their way they received the plaudits of citizens generally.

Those Missing Men.

NO TRACE OF THEM.
The Minister of Marine and Fisheries received the following message sent yesterday from Capt. Jacob Koen of the S. S. Cabot, concerning the missing men Scamell:
"Yesterday went N. E. from Baracks 20 miles, struck the edge of ice followed it 15 miles S. E. of Punks; saw nothing; heavy sea, ice all broken up; strong N. E. wind and thick snow to-day. Arrived at Seldom out of storm."

VILLA'S FATE.
WASHINGTON, To-day.—Definite information regarding the fate of Villa, is eagerly awaited by Administration officials to-day.

AMERICAN NOTE READY.
WASHINGTON, To-day.—The American Government's statement of its case against Germany in the submarine controversy, is being prepared by the State Department. It is expected to be ready for transmission to Berlin.

BELGIANS STILL EFFECTIVE.
PARIS, To-day.—German statements that the Belgian army had been reduced to a sixth of its effectiveness and has been replaced by British troops, is denied in a semi-official statement given out at Havre, the seat of the Belgian Government. It is stated that the Belgian Army occupies a section of the front, that its morale is very good, and that it is only asking a chance of proving its superiority over its enemies.

ARTILLERY ACTIVITY AT VERDUN.
PARIS, To-day.—French positions in Avocourt Wood and on front from Deadman's Hill to Cumeres were bombarded yesterday. There were infantry attacks, the official report of to-day says, to the east of the Meuse. The night was calm, except for artillery activity at Haudoumont Wood.

NEW GREEK CRISIS.
NEW YORK, To-day.—A cable to the Tribune from London says Greece is again the theatre of a crisis which this time seems to be of greater magnitude and gravity than those which already have made that country a political storm centre. The cause is simple and dramatic. Britain and France have decided to transport the Serbian army said to number 150,000 men from Corfu of the west coast of Greece to the Salonika front. To do this the use of the Greek railway from Patris through Athens to Voleis Demad is indispensable, owing to the perils that must be met with, if the journey were entirely by sea. The Athens Government has refused to consent to the use of the Thessalonian line, but the Allies are adamant. They have not only informed Greece that the railway will nevertheless be used, but also according to Athens advices have threatened strong measures should the Hellenic rulers seek to thwart the plans necessary to their operations in the Balkans. The Central Powers, on the other hand, plainly told Greece that if the passage of the Serbian army is permitted, it will be regarded as an unfriendly act. Under firm pressure from both sets of belligerents the Government thus finds itself in a remarkable dilemma, the sequel to which will be watched with interest.

MARVELS OF PAPER.
Wood pulp, the importation of which into this country is now being cut down by nearly one-half, is not by any means the only raw material available for the manufacture of paper. It is the handiest, and by far the cheapest, that is all. It has been estimated that there are only a very few, are either too expensive in themselves, or else they cost too much to manufacture into paper. Thirty of forty years ago practically all paper was made from old rags, and these are still extensively used for the best qualities of writing-papers, etc. Probably the one substance that can be readily utilised for paper-making, and which, nevertheless, is not used, is the papyrus reed, from which paper takes its name. But even this is not certain, for the processes used in the production of certain kinds of paper are trade secrets. Thus the methods employed to produce the thin, tough, opaque variety, known as "Oxford Indian Paper," have never been divulged. It was first made at the Clarendon Press paper-mills in 1875, and was used for printing an edition of the Bible. But the process of its manufacture was, and is, a mystery, for each workman is familiar only with his own stage. Similar precautions, too, are taken to preserve inviolate the secret of the manufacture, at the Laverstock Mills in Hampshire, of the paper on which the Bank of England notes are printed.

ARRIVAL AT ST. JOHN'S. This was a red-letter day in St. John's, it being the occasion of the reception to the soldiers of the Newfoundland Regiment who were invalided home on account of wounds received in action, or who through illness were unfit for active service. The entire populace turned out in right royal fashion to bid warm welcome and extended heartiest greetings to Terra Nova's heroic sons who have done their duty so nobly and well for Empire and Homeland. Perhaps never before was there witnessed such tangible expressions of whole-hearted patriotism, deep scaled loyalty and sincere devotion to the Empire. It was a memorable event which will be indelibly written in our history as long as Newfoundland is Newfoundland.

THE OFFICIAL LANDING. Through the efforts of the energetic Women's Patriotic Association, co-operated with by the Red Nfld. Co., elaborate preparation were made for the official landing, which was set down for ten o'clock this morning. Support was also given by citizens and the town generally and every business house and private residence vied with each other in providing patriotic displays, all having the one object of doing honor to our brave lads in the best way possible. Long before the appointed hour this morning thousands of people, young and old, rich and poor, filled the approaches to the railway station, and were eager to view and cheer the home-coming heroes on arrival.

The station was suitably decorated for the occasion. Indeed there was a contingent of volunteers of "T. Co., Legion of Frontiersmen and the hands of the C.L.E., C.C.C., Highlanders and Salvation Army. Punctually at ten o'clock, the train pulled into the station amid thousands cheering from the immense concourse of people. The two special cars containing the invalided soldiers were draped with flags of the Allied nations. The young warriors were met on landing at the station platform by the Premier, Mayor, Ladies of the W.P.A., officers of the City Brigades and clergy, and other prominent people. The C.L.E. band rendered in fine style "Keep the Home Fires Burning" followed by appropriate selections from the C.C.C. and Highlanders. Warm handshakes were exchanged with the wounded men, who did not show the least signs of down-heartedness, despite their ailments, but on the contrary wore a cheery smile. As they were approached by wives, sweet hearts, mothers and fathers, some happy and touching reunions were enacted. Thus the soldiers formed up in front of the railway station and were again cheered vociferously by the multitude assembled, the continental call being "Three Cheers for our Newfoundland Heroes." Addresses were made by the Premier, Sir E. J. Walsh, and Chairman of the City Commission, W. G. Gosling, who on behalf of the people of Newfoundland and of the citizens of St. John's, extended a hearty and cordial welcome to the wounded soldiers on their return to their native land. Congratulatory tributes were made to the lads for their work at Gallipoli and other historic places during their absence and pathetic reference made to those who had made the supreme sacrifice. Both speeches closed with rousing and enthusiastic cheers for the subjects of the demonstration. The procession then formed up as follows: In front were a number of automobiles containing the wounded men; those who previously returned from active service on land and sea, and received honorable discharges; parents and relatives of those who have been killed in action and of others who have received battle scars; also by members of the W.P.A. and recruiting committee. Following these were the bands, the Volunteers now in training and scores of carriages. The route of parade was down Water St., Prescott Street along Duckworth Street, thence via Ordnance Street and King's Bridge Road to Government House grounds by the eastern gate. Along the entire way there was splendid manifestations of loyalty and patriotism on all sides. Copious displays of bunting were evident at every store, workshop, residence and shipping, which together with the volleys of musketry that belched forth and the tooting of whistles and horns amid incessant outbursts of cheering, made a magnificent demonstration that will long be remembered.

AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE. A large draft of Naval Reservists, under Commander McDermott, and a platoon of volunteers awaited the incoming parade from the depot. Here to were assembled the Premier, members of the Executive, members of the Legislative, the clergy, leading business men, and the members of the W.P.A. After the cheering volunteers had taken up their places, the soldiers and sailors formed a semi-circle and the wounded and invalided soldiers were received by His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Capt. Abraham. A section of the semi-circle was cut out, and three sides of a hollow square was formed, and then His Excellency accompanied by the Prime Minister and the Bishop of Newfoundland inspected the soldiers and sailors, closing it by inspecting the returned heroes who were in the centre of the hollow square. His Excellency then delivered the speech appended, after which there was a general salute, the National Anthem and cheers were given for the King.

the Governor, and the wounded soldiers. Afterwards the returned were entertained at Government House, being waited on by the ladies of the W.P.A.

HIS EXCELLENCY'S SPEECH OF WELCOME.

Commander MacDermott and Men of the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve.

Our duty is to welcome you on their return to their Homeland men of the Newfoundland Regiment and of the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve who have been disabled by wounds received in action or by illness contracted while on active service; the first to return among us who bear proof of their courage, loyalty and loyalty to the Crown which we have long claimed to be a special heritage of this most Ancient Colony.

As Governor, I am proud to meet you here, and that we have the hearty thanks due to them for vindicating anew the right of Newfoundland to this glorious day and their names accorded the proudest place in the island's monuments. This day we mean to show that we honor and reverence those who have fallen, and that we honor and shall cherish those who, like yourselves, may have suffered in the fight and that we honor and shall cherish those who still fight for the battle to the end, whether they return unscathed or bear on them honourable scars.

Our daily prayer—our hourly hopes in the one matter which counts in our lives above all others, is that the principles on which our British Race has risen to its present proud position, the principles on which our British Empire is founded and governed, the principles for which our Allies and our sister British nations fight may be vindicated by a victorious conclusion of the struggle. The war is not of our seeking; never in our history have we driven more earnestly for peace. But we have our quarrel just; and we can show to the marvel of the World that all portions of the British Race and all Races and Creeds marshalled under the protection of the Union Jack have come forward as one man to defend our Rights.

This is the spirit in which you see us assembled here to-day. This is not a "duty call" at Government House. You have been welcomed by a mighty concourse of your fellow citizens. You see me surrounded by the leaders whom you have chosen. Here are Ministers who carry on the Government, and the Councilors who represent the people, and the Members of the Legislative Council are here, your elected representatives in the House of Assembly, the Judges of the Supreme Court; the Municipal Commissioners of this fine old city; those who hold the King's Commission; all these are here. More by my side are the leaders of the Christian Churches to which you belong and to which you are the God-fearing rectitude which is marked a feature of Newfoundland life and to whose guidance we owe the respect that you bear among soldiers, not merely for cool courage and patient endurance, but for the priceless quality of gentleness and consideration for others.

Here are present the Officers of the Volunteer Corps who at Gallipoli and by dogged resolution laid the foundation of military training against war and peace. And here too are the Boy Scouts being trained, in due course, to take your places as our first line of defence. Here are the men who have shouldered the responsible burden of guiding public opinion to the press.

All these are here, and there are others, members of the Patriotic Association to whom has been assigned the organization of our Armed Forces and their well being. And still more, there are women who represent the care and industry and devotion of all the Women of Newfoundland, working members of that marvellous organization which has welded them all together under the one association of the Women of Newfoundland, whose bond of union is their love for you.

To you who have returned this day from the War and to those who have arrived before you, by ones and twos and threes, and who are now ranged by your side, having performed their duty like brave men, like Christian men, like Newfoundlanders, proudly we accord our welcome.

And to you who stand marshalled in array around the Veterans, who have volunteered to fight our battles in the King's Forces and who will, with other Britons and our gallant Allies, fight your way to Victory; we accord—just as heartily, the thanks of all our people from every town and from every hamlet, from every hour in every Bay. Of a surely I can testify to the world that, when the Call came, the sons of Newfoundland have responded gallantly, and there is none to dispute that you are the worthy scions of your grand old stock.

No Breaks in French Lines

AFTER GERMAN GRAND ASSAULT.

The Onslaught on Verdun is the Most Tremendous Ever Witnessed in History, But the French Line, Still Holds, Though the German Losses are 10,000 Men.

By Arthur S. Draper. (Special Cablegram to The Halifax Herald and The Evening Mail.)

London, April 16.—For more than forty hours the French have withstood the German grand assault on Verdun. The battle which began about Bethincourt on Sunday, now rages on the entire line about the fortress from Avocourt to Chimiers, west of the Meuse to Champeauville and Fouaumont and Vouz, east of the river. Against the most tremendous assault ever delivered in history, the French line holds. The first days of the battle at Douaumont the French offensive in Champagne last spring, the Teuton drive through the Russians on the Duna, are blotted out in the rain of death loss by the Germans to-day.

It holds like the British line, at Ypres by the sheer strength of flesh and bone against shell and steel. The French trenches have been shattered, their parapets swept away, their shelters literally blasted out of existence, and still there is no appreciable dent in the front.

The net result for this staggering expenditure of German shells and German blood is just 200 yards of trenches. Early in the assault these were captured on the slope of Hill 295, north of LeMort Homme. Since then the tide of battle has shifted back and forth, but never has its crest threatened so much as the French line.

Abandoning all the caution that has marked the last three weeks of the operations about Verdun, the Germans are throwing the last ounce of their strength into the assault. By sheer weight of numbers and shell they hope to overwhelm the French as they sought to overwhelm Douaumont, as they did overwhelm the Russian line, again in the great retreat.

In to-day's assault Paris estimates that no less than three army corps with one or two extra divisions, took part. The greatest force was concentrated in the sector between Avocourt and Bethincourt, where Hill 304 is the objective. By outflanking this position, the whole French salient would be jeopardized. The second heavy attack was at LeMort Homme, against which once before the Germans had vainly hurled themselves, while a third drive was launched nearer the Meuse at Gamber. This spread the river to Champeauville and Douaumont, but Paris reports indicate that it is largely a secondary operation.

No longer weakened by the necessity of defending the Bethincourt salient, extending into the lowlands beyond LeMort Homme, the French followed their usual tactics by seeking to inflict the greatest possible loss on the Germans. For this morning was ever more cunningly devised than the trenches arranged by General Petain taking advantage of all hills, ridges and edges of woods so that the attackers would always be forced to advance across open ground or through ravines swept by French fire.

Following the actions of the night, the first German attack to-day was launched between Hancock and Bethincourt on the French positions south of the Forges brook. It was by troops massed in close columns. Three times during the day the Germans attempted to reach the opposing trenches, but were unsuccessful. The same results attended the assault between LeMort Homme and Chimiers.

Paris estimates that half of the troops engaged in these charges were swept away. In some quarters the German losses in to-day's battle alone are put at between 40,000 and 50,000 men. The cost of a single day's fighting exceeds that of the whole battle of Getysburg or Waterloo. Practically the whole of the German reserves are believed to have been wiped out in the series of actions culminating to-day. And the end is not yet in sight.

Thus despite the great strain endured, while the battle rages in the balance, Paris is more confident of the result to-night than it has been for days. The withdrawal from Bethincourt is freely called a victory. The absence of French counter attacks is taken as an indication that General Petain has the situation well in hand and that it is in no sense critical.

A distinguished American who returned to London to-night from France, where he had exceptional opportunities for gaining inside information, told me to-day that optimism was never greater in Paris.

Queer, Isn't It?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"This too shall pass away." Do you sometimes find yourself outside of familiar things and catch a glimpse of an utterly different viewpoint of them from the one you are accustomed to taking, an objective, impassive viewpoint?

For instance, after an evening at cards during which you had been elated and depressed by turns and intensely interested all the time, did you ever suddenly see that the cards were just little bits of pasteboard with painted figures on them, and wonder at yourself that you could have spent three hours and all that thought and emotion in putting them down in one order or another?

And possessions of one sort or another, why should we work so hard to collect the superfluity of them we crave, when, after all, "you can only wear one tie, and one eyeglass in your eye, and one coffin when you die, don't you know?"

Trying To See The Wheels Go Round. It is a dangerous thing to take one's pleasure apart and try to find what makes the wheels go round; if you aren't careful you will find yourself left with a mechanical, lifeless thing in which the wheels no longer do go round.

And yet, is it not also a dangerous thing never to get such a perspective on life, to just go on living and never ask "why" of anything?

Too much philosophizing, too much of the objective vision may make us discontented; too little makes us stupid.

The wise man is he who can look upon life objectively and learn therefrom philosophy for his disappointments without losing zest for his work and his pleasures.

And yet, can philosophy and zest ever subsist together? I wonder?

With My Letter Friends.

Question—Will you please take pity on my ignorance and tell me through the daily column about these three men—Sir Arthur Pinero, Eugene Walter, George M. Cohan?

Answer—Sir Arthur Pinero is an English dramatist, one of the foremost dramatic writers of the age. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is his best-known play. Eugene Walter is an American dramatist. "Paid in Full" is probably his best-known work. George M. Cohan is an American actor and dramatist. Farces and musical comedies are his forte. He is enormously popular and successful.

Rod and Gun.

Fishing is given first place in the April issue of Rod and Gun, the majority of the stories in this early spring number dealing with a subject which at this time of the year makes a special appeal to the out-of-door man. Besides the stories in which fishing plays a prominent part, and other stories in which fishing does not occur, the department edited by Robert Page Lincoln under the heading "Fishing notes," contains much that is of practical value to the angler, among the articles being one on "The Trail of the Angling Canoeist," Guns and Ammunition, edited by A. B. Gelkie, is replete with information for the gun crank or enthusiast. "The Trap" contains the latest records of trap-shooting events and some reminiscences of a well known Toronto shooter, "Johnny Townson," while under the heading of the Kennel there is much to interest dog lovers, the Alredale being the subject under discussion this month. Rod and Gun is published at Woodstock by W. W. J. Taylor, Limited.

Your Boys and Girls!

If children are taught to use a spoon properly, that is to hold it correctly, there will be no further trouble when at table. The handle should never be held in the palm, but the end should slightly protrude beyond the middle of the hand. With a child this means a smaller spoon, but the habit once given can never be taken away.

Much work and confusion can be avoided when the children, undress at night if each one is made the possessor of a small hat tray or clothes tree. These come in white enamel and stand about four and a half feet high and have eight branches, a branch for each article of wearing apparel. Clothing will be well aired, the room kept in neatness and order and everything ready in its place in the morning. The children love these accessories and it is a good way to teach them orderliness and hygiene.

UNAPPRECIATIVE MAN.

WALY MASON

"My husband," sighed the weeping wife, "has made a ruin of my life. He does not seem to yearn or long for Higher Things, like Art and Song. The sordid things to him appeal; he'd rather have a good square meal, than sit with me through dreamful days, reciting Robert Browning's lays. A noble painting on the wall makes no appeal to him at all; with scorn he'll pass the picture by, and say he'd rather have a pie. Because the bread is always hard, because his porterhouse is charred, because the coffee's weak and thin, he'll make a most unseemly din. He can't be made to realize that noble odes beat oyster fries, that Ibsen's pen, surcharged with ink, surpasses sausage in the link, that Handel's grand harmonic bars beat a schweitzer cheese or liverwurst. So here I sit upon the floor, and weep and wail forevermore!"

Pleads Guilty of Having Three Wives.

"Count," Maker of Munitions, Saw No Hope in a Trial.

New York, April 7.—Publicly confessing that he was "very much married," Max R. Lynar, who posed as a "Count" and used many names, appeared before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions here and pleaded guilty of bigamy. He had three wives and admitted that he was born in the United States, although he has posed for years as a foreigner. He was continued on his bond of $10,000 and sentence will be pronounced next Tuesday.

More than three of Lynar's wives have been heard of, but the District Attorney has no official record of them. Among the names used by the prisoner were Max Chimang, Count London, Max Schimank, Count de Passey and Max Lynar London.

The first wife of the defendant was Amelia Wendt, whom he married in Poughkeepsie in 1890. By this marriage there is a son, now a young man. His next wife was Rose O'Brien of Albion, N.Y. He married her in 1912. His last wife was Lila Florence Allendorf, whom he married in the City Hall here last year. When arrested Lynar was living with his last wife.

Lynar's second wife, who was supposed to be missing, was ready to testify and information came to the defendant that the evidence of his bigamous marriage was available, and therefore he decided to plead guilty.

Lynar broke into a broad smile when he was asked: "Are you married?"

His answer, "Very much married," brought a titter from the spectators. Judge Rosalsky elicited the information that Lynar was not exactly a fugitive from justice in Germany, but that he had forfeited a bond of 200 marks for an assault, on a man who had interfered with his pleasure while sleighing. After that he returned to this country.

Lynar came under the observation of government officials some time ago when they were investigating his connection with foreign affairs. The prisoner had always insisted that he was a nobleman by birth but had spent much of his time in this country. He is a manufacturer of war supplies at Newburgh and is 42 years old.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them. I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. "Truly a shop with an individuality."

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X Lamp and GASTHEAM Radiators fill all light and heat requirements.

The Passover.

Pesach, or Passover, begins on Monday Evening, April 17th, and is observed for seven days by Reform and Eight Days by Orthodox Congregations.

It is the first festival of emancipation in the history of civilization. Its commemoration is based on the Biblical narrative which tells how the people of Israel enslaved in Egypt were led from bondage to freedom by the great leader Moses.

The Passover festival speaks for the sanctity of the home as well as for self-respect and liberty. The Jews accordingly assemble in their homes on this festival, and signalize it by a solemn service in which the story of the ancient struggle for emancipation is recounted with pious fervor. This Seder, as it is called, is unique in spirit and form. It is earnest and yet happy, and its ritual, though archaic, symbolizes the facts of human experience in all conditions of life. The roasted lamb reminiscent of the paschal lamb of the first Passover; the bitter herbs calling to mind the hard labour of the Israelite slaves; the unleavened bread, known as the "bread of affliction," symbolizing the hasty departure from Egypt; the roasted egg, recalling the individual sacrifice which was offered in the Temple; the mixture of grated apples, nuts and wine, suggesting the clay from which bricks were made by the enslaved people, and the parsley and salt water, symbolic of growth and the fertilizing freshness of spring, invest the domestic ceremony with a real and forceful meaning. A beautiful and most suggestive part of the service is the Open Door, through which the messianic prophet Elijah enters every home that night, a splendid expression of the great ideal which the prophets of Israel announced will become real some day when men will cease to hate and begin to do justice.

It is customary to remove all leaven out of the household in preparation for the feast. Leaven is the symbol of the sordid, and refers to those who are unemancipated from the commonplace things. During the feast, only matzoh and not bread, are eaten. The distinctive spirit of the feast finds expression even in the specific food.

The Haggaiah, the order of the domestic service, read on the night when the family gathers about the common table, comprises the narrative of the exodus from Egypt, the account of the oppression which the ancient Israelites endured, and is not without its covert allusions to the pathetic story of Israel in more recent times in the midst of the unkind nations. The Haggaiah also includes a special group of psalms and a number of mediæval poems.

The Passover is the most ancient of the Jewish holidays and perhaps the most ancient of all holidays in the history of religion, and no holiday is so near to the truth of human life as it is.

Neuralgia Headaches and Extreme Nervousness Caused Keenest Suffering—Lasting Cure by Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Once the nervous system gets run down everything seems to tend to make it worse. You worry over your condition, are unable to get the required rest and sleep, noises excite and irritate you and the future is most discouraging. The nervous system does not get the proper nourishment from the food you eat, so you must have something else to lift you out of the run-down condition. You may find that your experience coincides with the writer of this letter and be encouraged to buy Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to the test. You will make no mistake in employing this food cure, for, acting as it does, hand in hand with Nature, it is bound to do you good. Mrs. Jas. Jensen, Wynne, Alta., writes: "About ten years ago I was troubled with severe attacks of neuralgia and nervousness, and was for several months so bad that I could not get a night's rest. I used several medicines recommended by the druggist. My doctor also prescribed, but nothing he gave me brought any relief. Instead I got worse and worse until I could scarcely do anything or bear the least bit of noise. My nerves were all upset." read about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and get me some. Although I had no faith in it, I began its use, and after a few doses began to sleep well and the neuralgia left me entirely. I used six more boxes and have never had any troubles from neuralgia or the nerves since. "This is to certify that I know Mrs. Jensen and believe his statement to be true and correct. ### Herman Winter Gets Conard Line

Company Had Been Criticised for Retaining Office of German Parentage.

New York, April 7.—Hermann Winter announced yesterday that he had severed his connection with the Conard Line as assistant to the general agent in the United States. Mr. Winter said that he took this step at the request of the company on account of criticism directed against the company regarding the retention of an official of German parentage and previous connection with a German steamship company in its service. Mr. Winter, who is the best known steamship man in the country, is a native of the United States. He was born in Baltimore, and his parents who had come to this country twenty-four years before his birth, were naturalized citizens when he was born.

After removing to New York with his parents he was educated in private school, from which he was graduated. He then entered the employment of Geilrich and Co., American representatives of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, and worked his way up to the position of manager of the passenger department of that line.

He resigned in April, 1911, and, at the invitation of the Conard Line, accepted the position of assistant to the general agent. He began his work by making a two months' tour through the United States to familiarize himself with the steamship and immigration needs, and in November of the same year he was sent by the company to represent the American interests of the Conard Line at the international conference of steamship men in London.

On account of his experience in steamship matters, he was often chosen as representative and spokesman to decide upon the interests of various transatlantic lines at conferences held here and in Washington.

Charles J. Summers, general agent for the Conard Line in this country, expressed great regret at Mr. Winter's withdrawal from the company.

The Truly Remarkable Schr. Vigilant.

Hanging in the trustees' office of the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, at 49 Wall Street, is a photograph of the 133-year-old American schooner Vigilant. This schooner, it is remarkable for the fact that, at last accounts she was still in use, seemingly as sound as on the day she was launched. Additional interest in the Vigilant arises from the fact that Anton A. Raven, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Atlantic, sailed on her sixty-seven years ago, in the Caribbean.

The following is a brief history of the Vigilant: The schr. Vigilant was built in Baltimore in 1783 and is somewhat similar to pilot boats, perhaps a little larger, and was specially used during the war with Great Britain, commonly called the War of 1812. She was used as a privateer, and was quite successful in capturing British merchant vessels, which were taken into Baltimore. At the close of the war, she was sold and, as was the practice at that time, was used as a slaver, taking quite a number of negroes from the coast of Africa. On her last expedition, she was chased by a British vessel of war and ran into the port of St. Thomas in the West Indies. She entered the harbor and sailed towards an outlet in the southern part of it, evidently with the view of getting out of the port from that direction, but was stranded there and then the officers and crew disappeared and many of the negroes were distributed on the plantations, which was quite a thriving business at that time. She was not seriously damaged and was subsequently sold to St. Thomas. She was then used as a packet, plying between St. Thomas and Santa Cruz, which is just about forty miles South-east of St. Thomas.

She has had a remarkable career, not having been injured in any way during this period, and is still plying between these two ports. An officer of the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Co., sixty-five years of age, who was on the schooner from St. Thomas to Santa Cruz and he is still alive.—Marine News.

"William the Darned."

Never, in the long history of the human race, has a man had such a magnificent opportunity of proving himself a great world benefactor as was presented in July of last year to the Emperor of Germany. But his soulless ambition and insane conceit had so hardened his heart against all humane considerations, so warped his judgment of relative values, and so blinded his eye to the moral purposes and spiritual issues of life, that when the supreme moment came, and all the highest interests of humanity urged him to follow the path of noble rectitude, he could only make "the great refusal." And his reward will be that as long as time shall last, in every country on the face of the earth, "men who love honour, men who do not lie," applying to him the words of exulting indignation used by Wm. Watson in describing the late Sultan of Turkey at the time of the Armenian massacres in 1896, will speak, with shuddering horror and ineffaceable scorn of "William the damned on his infernal throne."—Rev. E. D. McLaren, D. D., in The Westminster Review (Vancouver, B.C.).

New Blacklisted Ships List.

London, April 6.—The total net tonnage of blacklisted neutral shipping on the latest list reaches 115,000 as against 80,000 on the previous list. The present issue represents the fourth list, which cancels all previous issues. While exceptions prevent the total withdrawal of this tonnage from allied trade, enough has been withdrawn to form a serious factor in the existing shortage of tonnage.

The estimates of $150,000 worth of cargoes condemned by prize courts is shown to be greatly exaggerated by returns just completed by the Treasury for the consideration of Parliament. Figures in the returns, which include only courts in the United Kingdom up to the end of March, show that condemned cargoes brought a total of $2,423,375, while proceeds from cargoes of freight uncondemned and still awaiting adjudication and release represent a total of $10,561,335. Much of this, according to the returns, represents perishable cargoes, which had to be sold, and therefore a large proportion of this sum may yet reach the original owners.

It is expected that the figures in the returns when reports are received from Colonial Prize Courts, especially those from Alexandria, where many German ships have been condemned. There is not the remotest possibility however that the grand total will reach the estimate of 150,000,000.

SHIPMENT OF HORSES.—Several fine horses came in on the mail and accompanied by a driver that reached town at 9 p.m. Saturday. The purchaser, Mr. Thos. Curran, was at the station to look after the animals.

RYLES PASSENGERS.—The S. S. Kyle reached Port aux Basques at 9.25 a.m. yesterday with the following list of passengers:—Rev. Rev. Bishop Power, E. F. Garneau, M. Black, C. P. Smith, J. A. Duke, D. L. Irish, Mrs. W. French, J. White, W. E. Loroux.

"GOOD CLOTHES."

We all like to wear what we call "Good Clothes." Now good clothes are costly—not dear—but they become dear if they have to be discarded practically unworn. The French Dry Cleaning Process meets the difficulty. We can afford to buy the best and most beautiful fabrics without being extravagant, because of their quality we can rely on being able to have them restored by this process to their original beauty quite often enough, to enable them to be eventually discarded without a lament.
