CHAPTER XVI.
Eve's Daughter.

"My dear child!" she exclaimed, and held Norah at arm's length, as if to convince herself that the girl was whole and sound. "I couldn't stay away from you another hour, dear," she said, "and so I have brought my friends with me," and she introduced two ladies, who, by the way they greeted Norah, had evidently heard her praises sung by Lady Ferndale.

There were also two other ladies who had come to make their introductory call upon Norah; and the earl, standing with the "reception" smile upon his face, watched Norah beneath his brows closely.

But though her thoughts had been sent scattering by the unexpected visitors, she regained her composure after a minute or two, and presided at the tea-table with the quiet self-possession which Lord Ferndale declared was one of her greatest charms.

"I was in despair when they told me you were out, dear," said Lady Ferndale, who had seated herself on a low chair beside Norah's table, and kept looking at the beautiful face, and glancing with covert triumph at her friends, as much as to say, "Did I exaggerate? Isn't she altogether charming?"

"Where have you been, dear?" she asked.

Norah's face flushed slightly.

"For a walk," she replied.

"In such a heat!" said Lady Ferndale. "Ah, well, I did it when I was your age," and she sighed.

Norah smiled down at her.

"Are you so very old?" she said.

Lady Ferndale laughed.

"Not too old to enjoy myself, dear; and I've come to ask you to help me. We are going to have—what shall I call it, Mary?" she broke off, addressing one of her friends, Lady Mary Marley; "not a harvest home. No, but a kind of tenants' fete."

"In this heat?" said Norah, with a smile.

Lady Ferndale laughed.

"Well, it's my husband's idea. He is never happy unless he has the people eating or dancing, or both, round him. We are going to make it quite a—may I say, jollification, Lord Arrowdale?" and she nodded at the earl mischievously.

"All words assume a grace on Lady Ferndale's lips," he retorted, with a bow.

Lady Ferndale made a little grimace.

"Well, a jollification. Awful word, isn't it, dear? A great big marquee is going to be put up on the lawn, and we—all of us—are to dance in it. I tell my husband that it will be sure to tumble down upon the top of us, but he says that it will make all the more fun. You'll come, won't you, Lord Arrowdale?"

The earl's face was a study.

"Most certainly," he responded; "especially if there be any prospect of rescuing Lady Ferndale."

"I never can get any advantage over him," said Lady Ferndale, under her breath, to Norah. "He is always equal to the occasion. Very well, then," she went on, aloud; "then that's settled. I do hope you'll enjoy yourself, dear."

"I am sure I shall," said Norah.

"Perhaps it would be as well to know the date of the—jollification," remarked the earl, softly.

"Wednesday week," said Lady Ferndale, promptly; then she bent forward and whispered: "Norah, I have asked your Mr. Cyril Burne."

Norah had resolved that she would not blush at the sound of Cyril's name; but the color came into her face notwithstanding.

"You have asked him?" she said, trying to speak indifferently, and succeeding better than she hoped.

Lady Ferndale nodded.

"Yes, I called at Mrs. Brown's as I came along. I thought somehow that you would like me to call on him even before I reached you, dear."

Norah made a slight gesture of assent.

"He behaved so admirably. I heard it all from Jamieson, the coachman. It was beautifully done! And he was so thoughtful and considerate in sending me that note. I have been telling your father all about it, but, of course, he sees nothing to admire in it. What do you think he said?"

"I don't know."

"That it was what any one of the ploughmen would have done."

Norah sighed.

"And—did you see him?" she asked, rather guiltily.

"Mr. Burne? No. He was out painting, they said; but I left him an invitation, and Ferndale is going to call on him. He says that he is a very lucky young man."

Norah started, but Lady Ferndale ran on:

"And that if he had only insisted upon seeing you home, it would have been he who would have rescued you."

"But Lord Ferndale would have been inside the carriage," said Norah smiling. "Still, please tell him that I thank him all the same."

"I shall tell him nothing of the kind. I altogether decline to carry soft messages from you to him. He is quite infatuated enough, as it is."

Norah laughed, and the brightness in her face caught Lady Ferndale's attention.

"You seem very happy to-day, my dear," she said; "has anything happened?"

Norah felt the crimson burning her face and neck, and her eyes fell.

"Why, you have come to see me," she said.

Lady Ferndale bent forward and kissed her, making her feel a mass of dissimulation.

"My dear, you are simply irresistible. You got that trick of repartee from him," and she nodded toward the earl, who was talking to the others, who were listening in rapt attention as if to an oracle; "but the pretty speeches sound genuine from your lips. And was Mr. Burne very much hurt, dear?"

Norah arranged the tea cups before her, and kept her eyes down.

"Yes, I am afraid so," she replied. "He is obliged to wear his left arm in a sling."

"Then you've seen him," said Lady Ferndale. "Of course, he called to ask after you this morning."

Norah was silent, her heart beating, and Lady Ferndale got up.

"Come and see us as soon as you can, my child," she said, as she kissed her, "and mind, Wednesday week!"

But even then it seemed as if she could not tear herself away, and half an hour passed before the carriages drove off.

The earl stood with Norah on the step, waving his hand to the departing guests, and Norah thought that he looked, if not pleased, at any rate, a little less cold than usual. As a matter of fact, the self-possession and tact she had shown in the face of so many unexpected visitors had pleased him and flattered his vanity.

Norah arranged the tea-cups before her, and kept her eyes a little too exuberant, but—er—her position gives her great latitude. By the way, Norah, this Mr. Cyril Burne—

Norah stood still and turned pale, but the earl was engaged in admiring his hands, and did not notice her face.

"Lady Ferndale tells me that she is, so to speak, taking him up. She seems to think that he behaved very well in last night's stupid accident."

"Yes, he did, papa," she said, in a low voice.

He looked at her with raised eyebrows, as if he did not need any confirmation of Lady Ferndale's opinion.

"Yes; she seems to be inclined to pay him some attention. I understand that she has asked him to this—this gathering. Under the circumstances, perhaps you had better treat him as a chance acquaintance, and—er—not completely cut him, as I desired you to do."

Norah's heart beat fast, but she wisely kept silent and merely bowed her head. "Treat Cyril as a chance acquaintance!"

She repeated the words to herself as she ran upstairs, and his name was on her lips as she opened the door of her boudoir.

Then she stopped short, for Becca South was sitting at the table at needlework.

She looked up demurely as Norah entered, then bent over her needle again.

"Why, Becca, you poor girl, have you been working all this time?"

"Yes, my lady," said Becca.

"And this lovely afternoon, too!" exclaimed Norah, pityingly. "Pray run out and get a little fresh air."

Then when Becca, with a gesture as if she were thankful to change her position, got up and left the room, Norah threw herself into a chair beside the window, and gave herself up to the joy, the unspeakable delight of thinking of him.

Cyril walked home upon air. He stopped several times, just as Norah had done, but to ask himself what he had ever done to deserve such happiness.

Norah his! It seemed too good to be true, and to assure himself that he was not dreaming, he took out the faded rose and kissed it. Norah his! The thought was so huge, so overwhelming, that he could scarcely realize it, and he entered the little sitting-room in a kind of blissful dream.

Two letters were lying on the table. One was a pretty-voiced little note of invitation from Lady Ferndale, and his first thought as he read it was: "Will Norah be there?"

Concluding that, at any rate, there was a chance of her being present, he sat down and wrote an acceptance. Then he opened the other letter.

It was from the "true, tried" friend, Jack Wesley.

"Dear Cyril," it ran—"if you have any sanity remaining, come up at once. Business—Jack."

At another time—say yesterday, for instance—Cyril would have decided that he had no sanity left, and would have refused to leave the neighborhood of his goddess; but now things had changed. Norah was his, and he only waited for the big success he spoke of to her to go to the earl and ask for her. Business had suddenly become of novel importance to Master Cyril.

He decided that he would go up at once—that is, to-morrow morning. Then he asked himself how he should let Norah know. He could not write, lest the letter should fall into the earl's hands, and he was not likely to repeat the mistake of sending a message by any third person, as he had done before.

"If I go up by the first train," he mused, "I shall be able to be back by night. Who knows, I may stand a chance of catching a glimpse of my darling! I will neither send a message nor write to her."

Girls! Have Wavy, Thick, Glossy Hair Free From Dandruff

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments—try this!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scrub robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—go dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

CAPTURE OF BARSILL

LONDON, Nov. 17. The capture by the British of the town of Barsill, on the eastern end of the Macedonian front, is announced officially. Barsill is one and a half miles S.E. of Barakli Juma, which the British captured recently in renewing the offensive along the Struma front. This part of the Macedonian campaign is being fought in north-eastern Greece over ground which the Bulgarians occupied several months ago, taking over Greek forts and establishing themselves well to the east of the Allies' right flank. After several attempts the British forced a passage of the Struma and have now occupied a number of towns, pushing eastward about four miles beyond the river at some points.

If the Poles resisted, or if the projected Polish army proved unsatisfactory to the general staff, the Emperor would annul his promise to create a new kingdom. WASHINGTON, Nov. 17. Wilson held a meeting of the cabinet to-day for the first time for more than two months. Secretary Lansing said he had no new information on the submarine activities on which any action by the American Government could be based.

CANADA'S TOTAL RECRUITS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 17. Canadian recruiting figures for the last two weeks, with Alberta not yet heard from, were 2,876, an increase of 10 over the preceding fortnight. Since the start of the war the total number recruited has been 374,507.

CORRESPONDENT TALKS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17. Frederiek Palmer, the war correspondent designated by the British war Office to represent the entire press of the United States, returned to-day on the steamer New Amsterdam, for a rest before going back to the front. It is Palmer's opinion that the Allied offensive against the Germans and the battle of the Somme will end only when the war itself ends. It will continue for two, perhaps for three years. He was told by the staff of the Allies they had no expectation of breaking the German line this year. He said that aeronautic activity in England is such that he has seen as many as fifty aeroplanes fly across the Channel in one day to replace the great losses in air machines at the front. Every day, he added, at least thirty-five machines cross. He made a journey himself in the official aeroplanes known as the Channel bus, which flies back and forth daily. Of the work of the Tanks at the front, Palmer spoke in highest praise, saying their charges upon the trenches saved thousands of lives. There is only one historical comparison for the Somme battle, and that is Verdun, said Palmer. It has long since passed Verdun in the intensity

The War Week by Week.

By OBSERVER.

After a period of comparative tranquillity, fighting of great intensity has burst out on several fronts and has been marked by important results. The most notable features of a busy week are the British successes on the Aisne over a new section and the carrying well forward of the advance upon Monastir. Elsewhere activity is manifest but without anything decisive being reported from either side.

In the guarded but uneasy comments of the Berlin press the seriousness of the great British gains in the West is reflected. They have been made on a portion of the front which had earned for itself the reputation of being impregnable. Beaumont Hamel, Divion and Beaucourt, with all the intervening ground, presented a veritable network of fortifications, laborately fortified. For several reasons their capture is an encouragement to us, not the least of which is the proof it affords of the immense supremacy now attained by the Allies in every element of the fighting. Germany may well argue to herself and intelligent Germany probably does, that the attack which can take such places as these can take any. Tactical gains extend to the front of the British advance upon Bapaume in a most valuable manner and also pinch in still more the German retreat, which may at any time become untenable. Thus it will be noted, the line of the offensive extends more and more, giving the defenders an increasingly harder task, which is precisely the policy best adapted to the present conditions.

The usual counter-attacks have followed against the captured positions with the usual failure. The greatest fury, however, of the enemy has been expended against the French south of the Somme. It will be remembered that a few days ago the French, without any preliminary bombardment, advanced and seized Pressoire and other places near Chaules. The feat was a brilliant one and its importance cannot be gauged by the magnitude of the efforts the Germans have made to annihilate it. No less than a division and a half of picked troops were flung against the French lines, from November, held and hurled them back. The action indicates the growing fear of the Germans in respect of the whole where the advance of the French threatens to cut the railway to Peronne. We shall not be surprised if the major efforts of the French are directed for a time to this area.

With nothing further of importance from the Carso or the Russian front, we find matters working up to a climax in Rumania and striking vic-of the fight, the numbers engaged, the loss in killed, wounded and in volume of artillery fire. In the Somme sector 6,000 British, French and German guns have been in action the same day. Within one period of twenty-four hours there have been at least 150,000 casualties, counting those on both sides. So far, in this engagement, 1,100,000 men have been killed. Next summer the British are prepared to lose 1,000,000 men, if necessary. They will then have twice the present gun-power. When will the war be over? I only know that next year will be bloodier than this. The week before I left France I talked with General Joffre and Sir Douglas Haig and with such Army Corps leaders as Sir Henry Rawlinson on the Somme, and Generals Nivelle and Maughn, who planned and executed the brilliant attacks which recovered Forts Douaumont and Vaux at Verdun. Their idea was the same that I have found everywhere—a fight to the finish.

COLLISION ENQUIRY.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 17. The collision which caused the merchant submarine Deutschland to abandon her return voyage to Germany almost at the outset early to-day, when the convoy tug T. A. Scott Jr. was sunk with her crew of five, was the subject of Federal investigation. To-night the United States inspectors of steam vessels, led by Captain Wiley, heard through witnesses the conditions under which the submarine slipping out of the harbor during darkness so that she might submerge in neutral waters before daylight, ran down the tug which was acting as protector of Cape Rock, just outside this port. This testimony, which came from Capt. Koenig, from J. Krapohl, his chief officer, and from Hans Klesse, chief engineer, was given in secret, but became known through statements outside the chamber. The collision was an accident. The survivors who would discuss the matter agreed it was due to a combination of swift currents, which carried the tug off its course to the submarine in darkness, which was to be the submarine's medium of safety. Before the inspectors will fix the blame for the loss of the Scott and her crew they will hear the testimony of Capt. Frederiek Hiltch, the official of the Eastern Forwarding Co., who was the only survivor on the tug.

SENTENCE OF DEATH.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 17. A despatch from Beirut, Syria, says that the war tribunal has passed sentence of death on Hussein Kamal Pasha, Sultan of Egypt, on the ground that he has placed under foreign rule constituent parts of the Turkish Empire. The death sentence has been confirmed, the despatch says, by an Imperial decree, Abbas Hilmi, who was Khedive of Egypt when the war began, espoused the cause of Turkey and was deposed in December, 1914, and the British Government proclaimed the appointment of his uncle, Hussein Kalam as Sultan.

According to the Evening Sun much interest is being shown in the dinner of the Canadian Club to Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada, on Nov. 20, at which ex-President Taft is to be one of the speakers, it being the first time they will have occupied the same platform since Premier Borden's party gained power in Canada in opposition to the Reciprocity Act which Taft when President, endeavored to have adopted in both countries. Taft is expected to outline his plan of the league to enforce peace, and as Sir Robert will be a large figure in the councils of the Empire after the war, this dinner will have much significance.

The Belgian Deportations.

In many of the actions of Germany during late days some see a defiant challenge to the United States. Things more surprising and less true have been said. There are already welcome signs in America of a firmer, if not a changed, attitude towards the war and Germany's conduct. President Wilson is reinstated and the German vote disappears as even a remote influence upon his decision. Much, too, has been said that compels attention to the effect that the Allies have been mistaken in their antagonism towards him, and it has been pointed out that the election of Hughes would not have been the unmitigated blessing to our cause that some have thought. Certainly, his economic policy, about the only one that he defined clearly, would have interfered directly with the blockade of Germany, which it is more than ever necessary now to apply with increasing severity; and his denunciations of German methods of warfare have not had a convincing spontaneous ring. Added to which is the fact that after the first mistake in accepting the extraordinary status of the submarine which it has now acquired in warfare, Wilson has adhered firmly and consistently to it and will probably continue to do so.

The Marins case is not yet disposed of by any means and Germany has offered America no explanation. The latest outrage in removing Belgian civilians and workmen to Germany is only calculated to arouse extreme resentment and hostility throughout the United States. Farly in reputation of their Government's failure to protest in any way when that country's neutrality was first set at naught, but mostly from credible feelings of pity and sympathy, the American people have been active and generous in their work of relief, and the case of Belgium is one which they have taken very much to heart. There is such a thing as the universal feeling of a nation finding expression in official utterances and acts by its government, as Germany may soon discover. Washington has already shown its hand and received the responsive approval of Britain. None of the Allies has ever asked for active intervention by the United States, but they have looked for their moral support, and the moral support of a great neutral means much in these times. More quickly, too, than we may expect it is apt to translate itself into an active one, and he makes a great mistake who imagines that America is incapable of action. War she may not desire, but she can do a very great deal without firing a shot. Not the slightest shadow of justification can be shown by Germany of this latest tyranny, abhorrent to the practice of nations and the instincts of humanity, and she makes little effort to show one. However strongly America may protest, she is not likely to be heeded or the practice discontinued, but the matter will not tend to expedite or make easier a settlement of the Marins trouble.

White Bay Fishery a Failure.

Government Must Act Quickly.

We learn from a gentleman in the city who has recently returned from White Bay that the fishery along that part of the coast has been absolutely a failure during the past season and as a consequence many a fisherman with a large family to support is at his wits' end as to how he is going to keep the lean gray wolf from the door during the long dark winter months. Some of the fishermen have not secured more than five quintals of fish since last May. People living in St. John's are accustomed to say, why don't those people go to work at Grand Falls, Bell Island and other places? But have those same city folks ever considered the fact that these very same fishermen have not the means whereby to go to these places and seek work, and should they manage to do so, who is going to keep their wives and children supplied with firewood while they are absent from home? As our informant is a gentleman of great experience in relation to the condition under which our outport people live, we hasten to bring this matter to the attention of the Government, which we hope will act quickly, as there is no time to spare.

Caught Red-Handed.

Last night Richard Gray, an undesirable character, went on board the Moravian steamship Harmony returned from visiting the various mission stations along the Northern Labrador Coast. She brought a full cargo of cod, herring, oil, tapers and other products of the far north. The little steamer met with very unfavourable weather since leaving here which forced her to shelter several times during the voyage. Winter with all its forces has set in and the Esquimaux have gone inland for the winter hunt. During the past month a number of old seals were secured, but not in such plenty as in other years at this season. However, inland game and sea birds are fairly plentiful and with a good supply of provisions at the various stations the inhabitants will not fare badly this winter.

DID YOU KNOW RILEY?

James Whitcomb Riley, of whom Mary E. Wilkins Freeman said: "One might as well try to make a home attractive without flowers as without the grace of James Whitcomb Riley's verses."
Of whom Booth Tarkington said: "He was the first and the foremost distinctly American poet and at the time of his death he was the greatest American."
And of whom a Poet has sung: "The world was gettin' dreary, there was too much sigh an' frown in this vale o' moral strivin', so God sent Jim Riley down."
An' He said: "Go there an' cheer 'em in your good old fashioned way. With your songs of tender sweetness, but don't make your plans to stay Cos you're needed up in Heaven, I am lendin' you to men Just to help 'em with your music, but I'll want you back again."
An' Riley came, an' mortals heard the music of his voice
An' they caught his songs o' beauty an' they started to rejoice
An' they leaned on him in sorrow, an' they shared with him their joys - An' they walked with him the path-ways that they knew when they were boys.
But the Heavenly angel missed him, missed his tender, gentle knack Of making people happy, an' they wanted Riley back.
Here are his Poems:—
Riley Child Rhymes—A collection of the favorite child-rhymes, including "Little Orphan Annie," etc.
Riley Love Lyrics—The favorite passionate and tender love poems, including "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," etc.
Riley Farm Rhymes—The many poems by Mr. Riley in which is mirrored his love of the great outdoors.

BERLIN, To-day. General von Beseler, Governor General of Russian Poland, has issued an order at Warsaw with regard to the organization of the Jewish religious body in Poland by which self-government is given to the Polish Jews.

LORD CECIL ON DEPORTATIONS.

LONDON, To-day. In a statement made to the Associated Press yesterday, Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, uttered a vigorous protest against the German's deportation of Belgians and declared the people of France and England, no less than the people of Belgium, hoped that American public opinion will show itself, not only in a few short days or weeks of protests and criticisms, but in a steady pressure upon the invaders of Belgium, to conduct war against the soldiers of the Allies in the trenches and not against the helpless civilians whom they have in their power. Lord Robert reviewed the measures taken by the Entente Allies to provide relief for the Belgians and characterized as a lie what he termed Germany's attempt to justify its action by saying that England was responsible for unemployment in Belgium.

WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-day. In West Wallachia the advance of the Austro-Hungarians continues steadily. Campaigning, eighty miles northwest of Bucharest, the Roumanian capital is within the grasp of the invaders. A battle is taking place within a few miles of Campulung, which is at the head of the railway along the river which penetrates the plains west of Bucharest. Petrograd says the forces of General von Falkenhayn have taken the town of Li-venit about five miles northwest of Campulung. An attack against the Roumanian position at Albecchi, less than three miles northwest of Campulung, was repulsed. More than 2,100 prisoners were taken by the Austro-Hungarians in the latest operations in Wallachia, 1,500 alone being captured in engagements south of the Rotherburn Pass, and toward Rimnik, west of Freadal, the invaders, Berlin says, broke the Roumanian position. Rungul, a mountain in Moldavia east of Kodivastarehly has been carried by Bavarian troops. The town of Barakil on the right bank of the Struma River and the eastern side of the Macedonian front has been occupied by the British. On the western Macedonian front in the Monastir region Berlin reports all attacks of the Entente forces were repulsed. The Franco-Serbian offensive in the region of the Cerna River, Paris states, continues with success. Several positions were occupied by the Entente forces and the Bulgar-German attacks repulsed. The Franco-Serbians captured 400 prisoners on Nov. 15th, Paris adds. Little activity is reported on the Somme front, the two latest official reports from Paris report no infantry activity. London claims an extension of the British front along the Ancre east of Beaumont. Berlin records the repulse of British attacks on the northern part of the front. Except for the capture by the Russians of several heights near Jacobeni west of Kimpolung in Bukovina, neither Petrograd nor Berlin report any great activity on the eastern front. In Dobruja apparently there has been little fighting. Berlin states that Roumanian artillery fire captured the region of Silistria on the Danube below Tchernavoda has increased.

MORE SHIPS SUNK.

LONDON, To-day. Lloyds announce the Italian steamer San Giovanni, supposed to be sunk, 1269 tons gross. The steamers Stylian Bebbs, 3603 tons and the Ioannic, 2823 tons, were sunk by a submarine. The agency also announces the Danish steamer Thersa, 332 tons, the British steamer Trovarrak, 2998 tons sunk.

FERRIFIC EXPLOSION IN ARCH-ANGEL.

BERLIN, To-day. Seven ammunition steamers were recently blown up in the harbour of Archangel, according to a Russian newspaper published in Anchangel, says an Overseas News Agency, which quotes the newspaper as saying, "This evening Archangel was terrified by an appalling noise. It seemed the whole port was in flames. At 6.15 p.m. seven ammunition steamers which arrived in the morning were blown up. Iron fragments of ships fell 700 yards away. The port for several minutes resembled a burning volcano. Pieces of glowing iron fell in all parts, and establishments were endangered (deleted by Russian Censor). These 37 storehouses were razed. The damage is established at (suppressed by Censor) million rubles, according to the latest statements (number suppressed by Censor). Corpses found number seven hundred and sixty-three. Several injured persons were taken to hospital. However the number of victims will be found to be considerably larger when the ground has been cleared. Access to the port district continues to be forbidden. A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Stockholm, which is dated Nov. 16, is quoted in a Stockholm newspaper as saying the Russian ammunition steamer Barbecent was blown up in the harbor of Archangel, causing the death of 150 persons and wounding 550.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, To-day. An official issued by the British War Office to-night re the fighting in France, follows:—"On our new front north of the Ancre there is nothing to report except intermittent enemy shelling especially in the neighborhood of Beaumont. Prisoners taken since November 13 have reached a total of 6,199. To-day we heavily bombarded the enemy trench lines in the vicinity of Loos and Hulluch. Yesterday much successful work was accomplished by our aeroplanes; two important junctions of the enemy's lines of communication were bombarded and railways, billets, and aerodromes attacked with bombs, and machine gun fire, both night and day. The enemy aircraft showed more enterprise than usual, with the result that three of his machines were brought down on our side the line and two on his own side. At least five more were driven to the ground damaged. Three of our machines are missing.

ROUMANIAN RETIRE BEFORE SUPERIOR FORCES.

LONDON, To-day. The Roumanian retirement some kilometers south of Tirghiu-Jiu, says a Reuter despatch from Bucharest, is due to the continued reinforcement of the enemy and above all to the superiority of the enemy artillery. On the left bank of the Alt, the enemy tried by crossing the mountain range to join hands with the forces operating on the Campulung side, where the German attacks were bloodily repulsed.

SERBIAN SURRENDERS.

SALONIKI, To-day. A Serbian official to-day says: "Yesterday there was violent fighting favorable to us despite fog and snow-storm. All the enemy attempts to recapture their lost positions by counter-attacks failed completely. The Bulgarians retired to the River Distritza. On Hill 1378 we have taken 300 additional prisoners. On the left the Franco-Russian troops advancing on Monastir have occupied the villages Vilushina, Porodina and Jabynal. The prisoners the Serbians alone captured since Nov. 10 aggregate 3,900, including 1,000 Germans. During the same period the Serbians captured eight heavy and sixteen field guns. We have captured since Sept. 14 a total of 71 guns.

CANADIAN ARTILLERIST KILLED.

HAMILTON, Ont., To-day. Lady Taylor to-day received word that her son, Capt. George Taylor, head of an ammunition column with the 33rd Howitzer Battery in France was killed in action. Capt. Taylor was considered one of the best artillery officers in Canada.

WINTER IN FRANCE.

PARIS, To-day. The first snow of the season began falling to-day in Paris and also on some parts of the battle front. Freezing weather has replaced the humid rainy season along the whole western fighting area, with the temperature to-day from 5 to 12 degrees below freezing point. A successful raid was made on Ostend and Zeebrugge this morning by British naval air-planes and seaplanes, says an Admiralty announcement. Many bombs were dropped with good results on docks and shipping, the announcement says, and all the machines returned safely.

2.00 P.M.

PARIS, To-day. A military conference of the generals of the Allied Powers was held at the French Army headquarters on Thursday at the same time that a political conference was being held at Paris. Sir Douglas Haig and General Robertson represented Great Britain; General Galitzin, Russia; General Porro, Italy; General Rudemann, Roumania; General Raabitch, Serbia; General Nagai, Japan; Generalis Joffre and Castelnau, France.

The Heroic Three

Who Brought the Yacht Vigilant Across the Atlantic. London, Nov. 12.—The Belhaven correspondent of the Central News, telegraphs the following remarkable story of the sea: "One of the most extraordinary voyages has just been completed by the 'Vigilant', a little American tug, belonging to New York, and bought from St. John's Nfld., for Cardiff. Two days out from St. John's, which she left a week ago last Sunday, the 'Vigilant' experienced terrific weather, and on the fifth day she sent S. O. S. calls, the captain fearing she would founder. The Holland-American liner Ryndham picked up the signals, and proceeded to her assistance. "The captain and twelve of the tug's crew were taken off by the Ryndham, which was bound for Rotterdam, but three men refused to leave. They were the second mate, Robert Ferguson, a Canadian, the third engineer, Thomas Walsh, an Irishman, and an American fireman, named John Smith. "Taking control of the ship, these three men overcame tremendous difficulties, and actually succeeded in bringing her within sight of the Irish coast, where they were picked up by a British patrol vessel. Ferguson was locked in the wheelhouse, and the other two in the engine room. The terrible weather prevented them moving, and they remained at their posts for fifty hours, without food, water or sleep. Several parts of the ship were smashed in the gale, including the shaft of the dynamo in the engine room. This caused the tug to be in total darkness by night, and added to the horrors of the situation."

And Margaret Responded.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"The doctor wants Margaret to take some of this medicine twice a day in milk. I know it won't do her any good, but I know it won't hurt her either."

"She doesn't like milk, you know, and she is terribly stubborn about medicine."

"Then she gave a worried glance toward four-year-old Margaret, changed her tone to the wheedling accents mothers use when children have the upper hand of them, and said:

"Now, dear, don't you want to be a good girl and take some of this lovely medicine that's going to make you all well?"

But Margaret shook her head stubbornly. "Don't like the old medicine," she said, "don't like milk."

She was living up to her mother's expectations.

The seed her mother had planted had taken prompt root. She was expected to object to taking the medicine and she was fulfilling that expectation.

Such is the power of suggestion. True, she might have objected anyway. But if her mother, without letting the child see that she expected her to object, had advanced upon her firmly with the manner of one who intends to be obeyed without teasing or fuss, don't you think the result would have been different?

I do. I think there is more in the power for good or evil in suggestion than we realize.

You suggest to a child what you expect of him and he responds to your suggestion.

A Mother Who Was Too Resigned.
I once knew a girl who was inclined to be untidy and careless with her clothes. Her mother, instead of trying to root out the bad habit, accepted it with a weary resignation.

"Rita never will take any care of her clothes," she would say.

And when Rita tore her dress or lost her hair ribbons the familiar comment was, "That's just like Rita."

The result was that Rita came to expect untidiness of herself and to regard the fact that it was just like her as a kind of justification.

She could have been made to feel that she was being selfish.

If she had been made to see how much trouble her carelessness caused, and to realize that it was just a form of selfishness and that her parents expected better things of her, might she not have done more to overcome it?

Having his table dislikes recognized and talked about, fixes them more firmly in a child's mind. Many a dislike which might be cured by having the food presented to him with the suggestion that he is going to like it this time, is forever fixed in his mind by hearing his parents say: "Oh, Henry doesn't like cucumbers," or "Rena never eats fish."

We are all influenced by what is expected of us, and children, being in a more pliant state of mind, are the most susceptible to such influence.

Country Crowded With Artillery.

Impossible to Conceal Battery Positions, Says Major E. G. M. Cape in Letter—Shook Shakes Earth—Has List Giving Locations of 820 German Guns—Had some Casualties, But no Deaths.

In a letter to a friend in Montreal, Major E. G. M. Cape, officer commanding the 107th Canadian Siege Battery, gives some vivid glimpses of active service conditions. The letter, which was written early in the present month from "somewhere in France," reads in part:

"We moved forward again about two weeks ago to our present position. We certainly feel that we have the upper hand of the Hun in every department. In the air our machines are everywhere, bringing us information as to the enemy's dispositions and driving away any of his machines which attempt to cross the line. We have all the high ground now; the consequence is that the enemy has very little chance to observe us either from the air or from the ground. A great line of our balloons stretches away as far as the eyes can reach, and a clear day it is possible to count 40 from our battery position. The whole country is filled with troops. In front is the infantry and field artillery, then the heavies and siege, and behind, stretching for miles, are masses of jeeps and reserves only waiting to take their place in the fighting line. Every hillside and every valley is filled with troops living in all sorts of ways, but for the most part pretty well exposed to the weather.

Opposite to 820 Gms. You will have read in the papers of the attacks on the supposed impregnable positions of Theval, Monquet Farm, Zöllern Redoubt, Concolette and so forth. These positions, upon which the Germans have spent two years of thought and labor, and which they considered impregnable, are one by one falling to the strength of our artillery and to the valor of our infantry attacks. The artillery here is wonderful. We are so crowded that it is impossible to pretend to cover or conceal the battery positions. Battery after battery is ranged, almost gun to gun, in successive tiers, with the lighter guns in front. When a bombardment opens up, the whole earth trembles with the vibration of the guns, and the trench attacked is blotted out by a storm of fire, smoke and dust. It seems incredible that any human being could live through such a storm. Many of the prisoners that are coming back are in a dazed condition. They speak of the terrible effect of our artillery fire on the nerves and morale of those who have to endure it. I do not, however, want you to be under the impression that the fight is altogether one-sided. I have a list before me now giving the exact locations of 820 German guns directly opposed to us. There are, of course, a great many more that we do not know about.

The successes of the last few weeks have been won at a heavy price, but we do feel that we are inflicting greater losses upon the Hun than we are ourselves receiving. The Canadian corps has done splendid work. If we only have three or four months more of good weather, there is no saying what we might do here, but in this country when the rain comes the shell-tor slopes become a sea of mud through which it is almost impossible to walk. Under such conditions any serious offensive is impossible.

"You will, I know, be pleased to hear that the battery is doing good work and making a creditable name for itself. Our men have all turned out splendidly—I am very proud indeed of them. They have never yet had an occasion which they have not risen to. We have had a number of casualties, but so far, fortunately, not one man has been killed."—Montreal Gazette, Nov. 9.

There are some Newfoundlanders attached to the 107th Canadian Siege Battery, amongst the number being Arthur R. Martin who went to Canada four or five years ago.

Money Back.

"Your money back if things don't suit," our grocer says, in all his ads; but when I bought some wormy fruit for which I paid my hard-earned scads, he did not cheerfully refund; his whisksers he began to comb, and tightened up his summerbund, and talked until the cows came home.

"Those prunes," he said, in heated terms, "were fresh when taken from the shelf," implying that I put the worms into the doggone prunes myself. I pulled his ears and tweaked his nose, and said, "We'll just forget those prunes, but never more, till life shall close, will I spend here my p'nyunes." A lot of merchants make that bluff, "Your money back, if things don't please," but when you call to get the stuff, they hand you out the same old wheeze. But now and then a merchant bold makes good and never takes a gim; you say that man's as good as gold, and name your infant after him.

Fads and Fashions.

Many of the newest turbans dare to be trimmed with wings and braids. A very pretty costume is a skirt of blue velvet topped with a coat of red.

The new dress trimmings combine colored braids, gilt souches and silks.

Parisians declare themselves in favor of straight sleeves or no sleeves at all.

Evening turbans of tulle are back again, and are apt to have a touch of silver.

A stock of velvet or satin with falling jabot of lace is fashionable neckwear.

Every now and then there is a reminiscence of the Orient about an evening gown.

A charming tricorné toque is made of nothing in the world but chenille braid.

"One of the Best"

ONE of the most distinguished actuaries in America has pronounced The Mutual Life of Canada to be one of the best managed companies on the continent. The result of good management is good dividends—this is the final test of the life company. It is not high interest alone, but high interest combined with low expense, that creates dividends. Mutual Life dividends are paid in any one of three ways—in cash, by a reduction of the amount of the premiums, or by an increase in the amount of insurance, all these being of the same actual cash value. It follows that one of the best investments a man can make is to secure an endowment policy in the Mutual payable to the assured on maturity. Under these policies it frequently turns out that splendid interest is realized in addition to the protection.

Not only does the Mutual excel in profits, but the terms of its policies are most liberal and include every modern feature; a Mutual Life policy is one of the finest securities a man can hold.

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

INCOME TAX.

I see that several prominent members of the Government have intimated that an income tax is being considered. Whether Sir Edward will risk the loss of a general election by inaugurating it next session, is doubtful. If he does it is not likely that this tax will replace our present method of indirect taxation, but will be added thereto. In this case I can only think that it will be applied to large incomes, though extra taxation is resented by rich as well as poor. Perhaps it will be a partial concession to the Opposition, who advocated the taxation of war profits last session. In itself there is no fairer tax on a people and it is much superior to our way of taxing the imports. If our present system a man who is struggling to bring up a family, feed them and clothe them decently, pays as much into the Treasury and feels it more than his next door neighbor who gets double his salary and has only a small family. It is true in an absolute sense that our surpluses are drawn from the people who can least afford to pay the excessive taxation that is added to every article they purchase. The man with a six hundred dollar income has to buy food, and clothing. The man with a two thousand dollar income buys the same. The latter may buy better food and clothing than the former, but generally speaking, each pays practically the same amount into the Revenue. It is manifestly unfair and inequitable. I do not, however, imagine that the Government will disturb the tariff in any way next session, with the election impending next fall. The Family Herald (which always seems to know of our financial affairs before we do) announces a surplus for Newfoundland of $468,000.00 to June 30th, 1916. With the added duties and the surtax and the usual increase in prices of goods, I am surprised that the surplus is not more. It is a bubble prosperity, however, and may be pricked at any moment. This accounts in a good measure for the high prices ruling for the past years. The original cost of articles has increased wonderfully, and this in turn brings in larger duties to the Revenue, and the merchants in their turn increase their profits, so that the consumer's price is a long way from the original cost of an article. Between duty and profit I question if we are not paying over 60 per cent. taxes on most articles. That is, for every dollar we spend, sixty cents of it is divided between the Customs and the merchant. That is one reason why the Tariff needs adjustment that will level up the rich man's contribution to the same proportion as the poor man pays now.

WHO PAYS!

It will need courage to do this. We are only commencing to dream now of the true Imperial spirit of each for all and all for each. We are fighting to down German militarism and to protect small States. But now that we are in it, we are also fighting for our own country, its property, its riches, its resources. Do we all realize this? Are there Rich Slackers? We have borrowed five million dollars from Americans, of whom some speak with contempt because of their elastic neutrality. Have we not five millions of money here? Shall we not lend it to our State to help her in this time of trouble. And without a red cent of interest? The interest on this loan from Americans will be paid by whom? It will be added to the burdens that already bear too heavily on the common people, the ordinary salaried man. And after the war those who kept the Germans from coming in to take all our property and money, will have to work hard to pay interest and Capital and even be refused an eight hour day, while the rich profiteer and slacker sits back and thanks Providence that his property is safe? Is this cricket? Would that all clergymen would speak as Rev. Mr. Guy, who would refuse profiteers police protection, while there are mothers whose food consists of tea and bread without butter.

The whole world is up in arms against unholly war-profits. England, Canada, Australia, Scotland, all are legislating and trying to tackle the problem—but here we let such things run until it is too late to catch up with them. I cannot understand why the Government does not act. I do not think I protest too much on this matter. I have read the Editor's timely leader on Economy with interest, but it does not go far enough. It is not enough for us to know that there is plenty of flour in the market and therefore we should not grumble at any profit the merchants exact for it. Keeping pace with the market abroad, when it means a profit of $4.00 a barrel, is an action of indelible disgrace to any firm, especially in these war times. I would also, that the

The Best of Health and Spirits

Who could ask for greater blessings! And yet almost everyone may enjoy both if they take the precaution to observe the ordinary rules of health.

Keep the bowels regular—never allow Constipation to become a habit. Many people are miserable in mind and body because of chronic Constipation. They are really poisoning themselves—because the waste matter which remains so long in the body, poisons the stomach, the kidneys and the blood.

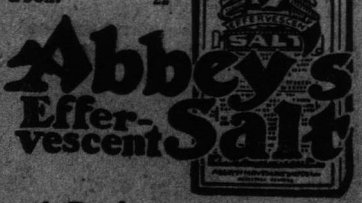

A teaspoonful of Abbey's Effervescent Salt in a tumbler of warm water, daily, corrects Constipation—regulates the bowels—keeps the kidneys active, the blood pure, stomach clean and the skin fresh and clear. For over a quarter of a century it has been a household remedy throughout Canada.

Made in the laboratories of the Abbey Effervescent Salt Co., Montreal.

A Medical Officer of Health, of London, Eng., says: "I take it every morning and it keeps me in the best of health and spirits."

To overcome excessive Nervousness, take Abbey's Vita Tablets, 50c a box.

All Druggists and Dealers.

Editor, appreciated the fact that most of those who grumble at the price of flour are not those who can afford to fritter away twice as much in unnecessary. Forced economy in grocers' and butchers' bills has already taken place in the great army of workers getting from $400.00 to $500 a year. Of course there are those of both sexes who can be extravagant, but the times have pretty well steadied them.

RISE IN WAGES.

I am glad for the Longshoremen's sake that the Employers' Protective Association has given them an advance in wages. I hope that other employers, though not up against a Union of their employees, will follow suit and that the clerks, office hands, and all labourers will receive a like increase in wages. They all need it and need it badly.

DOGS.

The latest association for dogs is causing a long smile to many people. Dogs are splendid animals, especially the big Newfoundland and others who have proved their worth in times of need. They should be cared for by their owners and treated kindly as all dumb animals. But surely in these days of so many struggling Associations is there any need of this one? I know that in many places in the Island it would be better if sheep were allowed to live instead of dogs, and if we considered the advantage of the poor man more, goats would take the place of dogs in the city. Many a family that now economizes in milk would have more of that necessary and nourishing food if goats were permitted, under certain conditions.

Dog Association! Why not a Children's Association? Try and send more children to school. Try and lift them out of bad surroundings. Give them a chance. I saw a young lad the other day who had a little dog on a chain. And the poor little beast had a coat on! Not fur, but cloth! Perhaps Nature had made a mistake in his case, and forgotten to provide him with a winter coat as most dogs have! And I dare say many a child had to stay home that day because there was no warm coat to wear.

Don't Neglect Your Cough.

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if left alone, to the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a Cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known, where serious complications and fatal illness have had their start from a neglected cough or cold. "Don't neglect your cough." Stafford's Phoronone Cough and Cold Cure is what you should take. For sale at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price 50c., postage 5c. extra.

"Walking the Plank"

THE COVE WHARF.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Mr. Editor.—In last Monday's issue of your paper I read in the Reporter's "Here and There" notes a short paragraph re the Cove wharf, but it is neither here nor there as regards the real state of things. It looks, Mr. Editor, as if public opinion had gone to the winds in this portion of the District of St. John's East. It is more than a year ago since the outside portion of this Public Wharf was carried away by a heavy sea, and nothing has since been done to repair the damage. The consequence is, that now at low tide the mail and passenger boat cannot get near the wharf, and it is no uncommon sight to see ladies having "to walk the plank." I wonder, Mr. Editor, would the People's Government supply a gangway? It would be cheaper than a magisterial enquiry when a drowning occurs one of those rough days. Too much praise cannot be given to the Captain and crew of the steamer, as well as to the Cove cabin for their kindness to travellers.

Yours truly,

THE HON. TREASURER'S REPORT.

As Treasurer of the Women's Patriotic Association of Newfoundland, I submit the report of the Finance Committee for the year ending August 15th, 1916. I append a balance sheet to the report showing total receipts and expenditures. It will be seen from this that we began the year on September 1st, 1915, with a balance in Bank of $2,270.91. In addition to this we received in subscriptions from all sources $32,588.66, giving us in all $34,859.57 for expenditure.

Of these receipts, sales, concerts, teas, dances, lectures and other public performances accounted for $12,564.88, Money Boxes $408.02, direct subscriptions from St. John's and Outports $19,624.71. Of this latter amount $4,000.00 was donated in four subscriptions of $1,000.00 each, $4,300.00 in subscriptions of $100.00 and over, $2,000.00 in donations of $50.00 and over and $1,000.00 in amounts of $25.00 and over. Thus $11,900.00 was donated by 123 subscribers, leaving only $3,314.71 to be subscribed by the rest of the public.

Of the total amount subscribed $6,879.43 was earmarked for the Red Cross Branch.

The total expenditures were $27,287.13. The analysis of the account in the balance sheet shows sufficiently clearly how the money was spent. The result of the year's work leaves us a balance to go forward to next year of $7,722.44.

It is to be hoped that the Association will receive the support which has been hitherto accorded to it, and that the coming year will see a hearty response to the mute appeal of our soldiers and sailors at the front and the help. But we are especially grateful to Messrs. G. N. Read, Son & Watson who during their busiest period found time to audit our accounts and the balance sheet certified by them is laid on the table for your approval.

On behalf of the Finance Committee (Signed) KATHERINE EMERSON, Honorary Treasurer.

Prize Day at St. Bonaventure's College.

The annual distribution of prizes and entertainment of St. Bonaventure's College took place at the Casino Theatre yesterday afternoon. The hall was occupied to the full by the pupils of the school, their parents, friends and guests. Among those present were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson, His Grace Archbishop Roche, Rt. Rev. Mons. McDermott, Rev. Dr. Greene, Rev. Dr. Carter, Rev. Fr. Pippy, Rev. Fr. Kelly, Very Rev. Fr. Renouf, Rt. Hon. Sir E. F. Morris, Mr. Justice Kent, the Christian Brothers and many others.

The programme opened with a play very creditably presented by a large cast of pupils. It was entitled "Rome under Valerian," by Anthony Mætre and the setting and costumes evidenced great taste and much careful preparation. The parts were evenly balanced and so well sustained that equal prizes must be given to all the players. M. Cashin as Valerian, L. Fitzgerald as Macrian, H. Summers as Lawrence the Archdeacon, W. Sullivan as Quintilian, A. Gibbs as Terentius, B. O'Donnell as Nollia and P. Keegan as the very amusing slave Metellus, all deserving of special mention. The performance in every respect reflected credit upon Mr. Hutton, the director, and Mr. T. P. Halley, the stage manager.

Following the play, Rev. Brother Ryan, President of the College, read the annual report. It was a brief but eloquent document, showing the school to be in excellent condition in all branches of education, intellectual, moral and physical. The attendance roll was the highest in the history of the college. The last school year showed a brilliant record. Reference was made to the number of old boys who had offered for King and Country, and particular mention made of Capt. Jas. Donnelly, M.C., Capt. M. Frank Summers, Lieut. S. Norris and Lieut. R. Shortall, who had given their lives to the cause. After the report had been read, the prizes were distributed to the successful pupils. Following is the list:

CANADIAN TRIBUTES TO OXO CUBES

The following letters have been received from Canadians who have proved the great value of OXO during the War.

OXO Cubes are handy for emergencies. They need no cooking or special preparation. An OXO Cube in a cup of hot water and a few biscuits makes a light meal which sustains for hours, while for enriching and improving stews and other dishes, OXO Cubes are simply wonderful.

In the home OXO Cubes are remarkable economisers, and in many little ways they save dollars a year.

From one of the 1st Infantry Brigade.

"We have completed a trip in the trenches which has been one of the coldest this winter; in fact, one night we had zero weather. Just before going into the trenches I received a parcel which contained some OXO Cubes, and I can assure you I was very thankful. It was a real treat to get off sentry duty and make a cup of OXO, as it warms one up and helps to keep one fit. It only takes a few minutes to make a hot cup of good OXO."

From one of the 24th Canadians:—

"I was out with a barbed wire party last night, and when I got back a parcel was waiting. Every item was a winner. The OXO was great; just try it about 2.30 some cold nasty morning after being out nearly six hours."

THE OLD MAID.
 The old maid is a thoughtful, far-seeing female who looks over the husbands she has known and realizes that it might be worse.
 Ever since the landing of the Mayflower it has been a popular pastime to poke fun at the old maid. Man had always believed that if woman were left to her own resources she would languish like a withered sunflower, and that on that account it was a charitable act to marry one now and then. It is a terrible humiliation to a proud, pigeon-chested sultor to ask some woman to marry him in order that he may put her in a gilded cage at $12.50 per week, and then be informed that she is not haunter after any more relatives to support.
 The old maid has always been subject to the suspicion that she would marry anybody unsought and unseemly, but thousands of men could testify to the contrary if they were not afraid of incurring a riot at home. For some reason or other every wife likes to believe that she was the first woman her husband proposed to, and no man has ever been found who dared to deny it and still retained his skull in its original position.

The modern old maid earns more money than a union brick-layer.

inal bald and unbleached condition. We shudder to think what would happen if a few of the more prominent old maids in every community would dig down into an old hair trunk and publish a few of the ardent and ungrammatical love letters written by husbands who have lost their hair and independent aspect.

Now that woman is beating man to everything except the sport shirt, the old maid who earns her own living and has money out at interest is being looked upon with more reverence. Few people nowadays wonder why the old maid doesn't get married and become the author of twins. The modern old maid earns more money than a union bricklayer and would rather live alone than try to make her salary stretch around the upkeep of a nine-room house and the elastic, unfettered appetite of a husband troubled with chronic indigestion.

Before shedding any tears over the lot of the old maid, remember that she does not have to wrestle with the breakfast dishes, the balky corn broom or the deceptive gasoline oven. While a husband is a nice thing to have, we should try to avoid the harrowing fear that somebody is trying to steal him.

Consider the Hen.

(From the Milwaukee Journal.)
 The scarcity of the food supply and the present high prices ought to stimulate the farmers to unusual efforts to improve agriculture. The burden of high-priced meat, one of the main essentials of the American diet, would be greatly relieved if eggs were low-priced and abundant. The American production of eggs could be doubled in a year by the proper scientific feeding. Census statistics in Missouri show that in that State hens lay an average of sixty-three eggs a year. In these days when that lays 200 eggs a year is becoming common among expert breeders and feeders, the farm hen which probably supplies 30 per cent or more of our egg production, is still stolidly producing about one-half or one-third the number of eggs that she ought. Some hens have been bred which have produced more than 300 eggs each per year, or almost an egg a day. This is five times the Missouri average.

A productive hen requires seventy to eighty pounds of food of the right kind per year, whereas the average farm hen which must scratch for most of her living does not get more than 40 or 50 pounds of food in a year. Farmers in Missouri who practice scientific feeding doubled their egg production almost immediately. Could there be better evidence than this that every city and country poultryman can get results by scientific feeding? Fifty thousand poultrymen of the State begin this winter feeding poultry to-morrow, much to their own advantage in the way of profits and also to the great advantage of the consumer, who would thus be provided with one of the best substitutes for meat.

Your Boys and Girls.

Experiments on fifteen hundred babies recently conducted at a New York Clinic seemed to prove that after six months a child thrives best on artificial food. Up to six months the heaviest babies are breast fed, but after that age the artificial fed youngsters gain more quickly.
 At the end of one year from birth the heaviest babies were those which were breast fed until the supply gave out, usually in from twenty-seven to thirty-two weeks, when they were weaned in a fortnight and put on artificial food.
 The next in weight were the babies artificially fed from birth, and the lowest in weight those that have been fed from the breast for the year; the low weight being caused by a mild form of starvation after the first six months.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I would like to know if it is proper to wear my bowler cap to breakfast when visiting?" asked Marie.
 "If your hostess appears at breakfast wearing a negligee and a cap, you may feel free to do so, but do not wear one if you are attired in a gown," advised her friend.

If All Played Out, Try This Prescription.

When that overpowering weariness and a never-rested feeling comes over you, it shows some serious disorder is undermining your health. The cure is simple. Build up the system and nourish the body back to health by pure wholesome blood.

The one sure means of doing this is with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are a marvellous aid to appetite, convert all you eat into nutriment and tissue-building material. This a weak body is supplied with new nerve fibre, hardy muscle and firm flesh. Lasting good health is sure to follow. If you really want to get well and stay well, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box at all dealers.

Insomnia

WE can live without food, but not without sleep. Many will recall Dr. Tanner's 40 days without food, but who could live a single week without sleep and retain their reason.

It is during sleep that the nervous system is restored, and the nerve force, consumed by the activities of the day, is replaced.

Sleeplessness is one of the first and one of the most torturing symptoms of nervous exhaustion.

With sleeplessness you find nervous headaches, tired, wornout feelings, indigestion, lack of energy and strength. You are nervous and irritable, and cannot compose yourself to rest or sleep.

The nerve force in the body is at low ebb, and the feeble, wasted nerve cells must be nourished back to health and strength by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

You must not confuse this food cure with drugs taken to produce sleep, for it works in an entirely different way. It is not a quick relief, but a restorative, upbuilding treatment. As the nerves are revitalized sleep comes naturally with its soothing influence and hastens recovery.

Sleeplessness

Mrs. Edson Brock, Trenholmville, Que., writes:—"I want to state that I have never taken anything to do me so much good as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I am never without it in the house. I was so nervous I could not sleep, but now I sleep soundly at nights and wake up feeling refreshed and ready for the day's work. I used the Nerve Food for months, and found that it just suits my needs, and has built up the system wonderfully. I know it is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food that has brought about the great change in my condition, and I am thankful for it."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.
