Public Notice Regarding Coal.

I am instructed by the Tonnage Committee of the Executive Council to place before the General Public the soft coal situation at the present time and to ask all who are able to do so to co-operate with them in securing sufficient stocks. Coal steamers are now available, but will not be available later on. Therefore, it is necessary to stock within the period that they are available sufficient coal to carry St. John's over the winter till the opening of navigation next year.

The Coal Merchants have not sufficient storage capacity to enable this to be done, and the Tonnage Committee appeal to the public to assist in the matter by laying in their Winter supplies as soon as possible. Otherwise there will be a shortage of stocks next Winter. By order of the Tonnage Committee, July 23 T. A. HALL, Secretary.

A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XXVIII

"Hands up, both of you!" he said, quite calmly, and as if the affair were merely a question of give and take. "Hands up, or I'll shoot you as you stand."

Black Jake and his mate shrank away from the revolver that covered them and with flowery oaths threw up their hands.

"That's all right," said Heroncourt, in that deadly cheerful way which seems to belong exclusively to men of his class. "Now, you two fellows walk off. You've been guilty of attempted highway robbery, and I'm warranted by the unwritten law of this land in shooting you now; and, by the sun above us, I'll do it, if I see you again on the Dartford land! You know me, and you know that I will keep my word. Out of my sight and keep out of it."

Black Jake and his companion exchanged glances; the revolver was still covering them. Black Jake's hand stole towards his pocket; but Heroncourt's eyes were as keen as a hawk's.

"Stop that!" he said, sternly. "Keep your hands still—Mr. David Jones, relieve those men of their shooters—they are dangerous."

The little man stepped forward spryly, drew the revolver from Black Jake's pocket, and, after searching the other man, said succinctly:

"No weapon, sir."

"Right," said Heroncourt. "Now, march, you two men. And remember! I do not threaten in vain."

Black Jake and his companion slouched off, muttering curses in their beards, and Heroncourt turned to the little man.

"You'd better come on with me to the camp," he said, as he put away his revolver. "We'll ride back, turn and turn."

David Jones nodded. His face was pale, his blue eyes blinked strangely. "I suppose you know you've saved my life?" he said, as if he spoke with difficulty.

"Oh, it's all in a day's work," said Heroncourt. "But I like your pluck. Consider yourself engaged on the Dartford station, Mr. David Jones. Come on."

Mr. David Jones eyed his new master curiously, but all he said was:

"Thank you, sir."

CHAPTER XXIX.

Heroncourt rode on slowly to the lumber-station, with his new man walking by the side of his horse. It is not usual to question your hands about their past, so the conversation was only of a general character: about the seasons, the weather, the cattle, and so on.

When they reached the camp, Heroncourt found the men at work—very hard work: they had either seen or heard him approach. He inspected the camp, talked to the men, then suddenly he said:

If you make your coffee in a percolator, ask your grocer for SEAL BRAND COFFEE

FINE GROUND
(FOR USE IN PERCOLATORS)

The top of each can is marked as above.

In ½, 1 and 2 lb. Tins. Never sold in Bulk.

CHASE & SANBORN, MONTREAL.

"Who brought the liquor up here?" There was a dead silence; the sound of the axes was stilled, and they turned and looked at him like men caught in a trap.

"Ah, well, never mind," said Heroncourt. "Just bring it out here. I am rather in a hurry, so don't keep me waiting. I'll give you five minutes; if it is not produced by then, I'll discharge the camp. It would be foolish of you to compel me to do that, for you are getting higher wages than you would get anywhere else, and there is a long spell of work."

The men exchanged glances and murmured amongst themselves, then two of them brought a couple of cases, one unbroken, the contents of the other partly disposed of.

"Thank you," said Heroncourt. "Now, see here; I'm not a total abstainer myself, and I like a glass of good ale and a drink of whiskey; but you chaps are not content with moderation; you go on a regular bender. The work stops, and you take to card-playing and fighting." He nodded at two or three men, whose black eyes and bruised faces were indicative of a recent fight. "In fact, you can't be trusted with an unlimited supply, and I'm obliged to cut it off. Two of you fellows come and smash these cases for me."

There was a murmur—a sullen murmur—and dark looks were directed at Heroncourt, who sat at ease on his horse and smiled down at them easily.

"I don't want to rob any man," he said. "The value of this stuff shall be scored up to your credit; but away it goes, and at once. Bring your axes, you two, and make short work of it."

He nodded to two of the most scowling—there was something in the cool, insolent manner which rendered disobedience impossible; and, after a glance or two at their companions, they stepped forward reluctantly enough and smashed the cases and their contents with their axes.

"That's all right; thank you," said Heroncourt, as if they had cut down a tree or removed one at his orders.

For the first time the little man's eyes looked evasive and shifty.

"No offence, sir," he said. "Seemed to me you had a kind of look of a new chum about you."

"Well, as it happens, you are right," said Heroncourt, checking a sigh.

"It's wonderful what different kinds of men come out here," remarked David Jones, casually. "Things go wrong in England or they have a stroke of bad luck."

Heroncourt sighed outright at this thrust.

"Yes," he said, almost to himself. "Some of us have a stroke of bad luck. I hope that's not your case?" he asked.

"Oh, I was born unlucky," said the little man. "I'm a kind of Jonah, that's what I am. I've only got to go aboard a concern, and it goes down straight away." He laughed with a kind of grim humor. "After that, you'll be sorry for taking me on, sir."

"Oh, no," said Heroncourt, with a smile. "I don't believe in modern Jonahs; and I'm thinking that there's not very much in luck; the trouble a man runs up against in his life he has made for himself: in most cases, anyhow."

"I daresay," assented David Jones. They rode on for the rest of the way almost in silence; for Heroncourt was thinking of the bad luck that had robbed him of Maida and wrecked his life. At the hut, the master and the new man parted, David Jones going to the men's quarters and Heroncourt into the hut.

"I've got a new hand, Lucy," he said. "Picked him up on the road; he seems a decent old chap, and he's a rare plucked one. You and Mrs. Towser must give an eye to him and see that he is comfortable; he's not so rough as some of them."

Lucy threw up her chin.

"Oh, we'll take care of him, sir," she said. "He isn't the only one in the camp who wants taking care of; you've scarcely been out of that saddle for twenty-four hours; and I suppose it wouldn't take much to send you into it again."

She went down on her knees to take off his long boots; but Heroncourt laid his hand on her shoulder and held her back.

"That's not the work for a woman, Lucy," he said, with the smile which every woman likes to see on a man's face.

She looked up at him with a strange intensity in her child-like eyes and the blood rose slowly to her pretty face.

"Why not?" she asked, in a low voice. "There's nothing you wouldn't do."

"I've the bad luck to be a man, Lucy," he laughed.

There's economy in using H.P.—the odds and ends are made simply delicious with just a few drops of H.P. Sauce.

are an Englishman, I take it?" David Jones looked straight before him with his expressionless, pale-blue eyes, and nodded his head.

"Yes, a long while," he replied. "Long enough to reckon up the kind of gentry we've just left. Some of them would make trouble if they could; but you took 'em by surprise, sir!"

Heroncourt laughed.

"It was the only way," he said. "I wanted them to see that I wasn't afraid of them."

"No; I shouldn't think you were afraid of many things," David Jones said, slowly. "And yet I'm thinking that you haven't been out here long."

"Why do you think that?" asked Heroncourt, with some little surprise.

For the first time the little man's eyes looked evasive and shifty.

"No offence, sir," he said. "Seemed to me you had a kind of look of a new chum about you."

"Well, as it happens, you are right," said Heroncourt, checking a sigh.

"Why not?" she asked, in a low voice. "There's nothing you wouldn't do."

"I've the bad luck to be a man, Lucy," he laughed.

She still knelt on her knee, eyeing the boots wistfully, but Baxter came in with his military step, and, with a little moue and a shrug of her shoulders she arose and went on preparing the supper.

David Jones fell into his place with the ready adaptability of the colonist. Heroncourt had taken a fancy to the man, and whenever he came across him stopped and passed the time of day and spoke to him about his work. There was no doubt about his usefulness; he might have been a Jonah, but he was quick at turning his hand to anything, and Heroncourt found that he was as absolutely reliable as Gosford himself; he understood cattle and sheep, could ride like an Australian, and soon won the good graces of the women-folk by his readiness to do the numerous little things in and about the house which come more easily to the man than the woman. But he was not particularly sociable with the men, and though he of course ate his meals with them, preferred to smoke his pipe in the solitude outside. Heroncourt several times came upon him sitting under a tree with his hands clasping his knees, his hat over his brows and his whole appearance that of a man lost in thought.

To all appearances things were going smoothly at the camp, and Heroncourt was inclined to think that the threatened trouble had passed away like a summer cloud; but one evening while he was taking his go-to-bed pipe in the parlour, he was struck in a vague way by the quietness of the men on the other side of the partition. As a rule they were given to loud talking and laughing; but to-night their voices were lowered and there were long pauses in their conversation, pauses broken by a few words spoken almost in a whisper.

"The men are very quiet to-night, Lucy," he remarked, as she came into the room with his hot water.

She stopped to listen, with her head on one side.

"Yes, they are," she said. "They have been like that for the last two or three nights; ever since Jake and a couple of men came down from the camp."

"Oh, has Jake been here?" said Heroncourt, refilling his pipe.

"Yes," said Lucy, who did not know that Jake had been dismissed and threatened. "I saw him at the back of the yard, talking to some of the men. He turned his back and slouched his hat as if he didn't want me to see him; but it was bright moonlight and I saw him right enough, though he was gone the next minute. That was three nights ago."

"Ah! let me know if you see him again," said Heroncourt.

As he spoke, the men began to talk and laugh loudly, and it at once struck Heroncourt that, as neither he nor Lucy had spoken in a whisper, the men had heard them, and were noisy with intention.

After she had left the room, he went out quietly and patrolled round the house; but everything was as usual, and there was no one lurking about. Just as he was turning the corner, he came upon David Jones, who was sitting in his favourite attitude, with his back leaning against the rough log wall.

He touched his hat to Heroncourt, and Heroncourt, making him a sign, walked a little distance, and David Jones, after a cautious glance round him, and a lapse of a minute or two, rose, stretched himself, and strolled casually after him.

POLISH TROOPS

LONDON.—A Zurich despatch states that a telegram from the Polish Legation in London, which not only refused to accept military oath, but also included four Infantry, one Artillery and two Cavalry regiments aggregating a total of 10,000 men, was received by the forces under German control. It is believed that serious consequences will ensue. The German tend to bring up the question of the next sitting of the Reichstag, a significant and important amount of friction between Poland and Austria, that the German permitted the publication of reports in the Czarow newspaper, a Copenhagen paper, July 26th stated that the Polish Legation in London, headed by the German, while attempting to force false passports. General flight marks the culmination of a series of events which are likely to result in a general war between the Polish and German forces. German control.

POLISH TROOPS GIVING TROUBLE

LONDON, July 30.
A Zurich despatch to Reuter's says that a telegram from Cracow reports that not merely single units of Polish Legionaries refused to take the military oath, but whole regiments including four Infantry, one Cavalry, one Artillery and parts of other regiments aggregating a majority of all the forces under General Pilsudski. It is believed that serious consequences will ensue. The Polish party intend to bring up the question at the next sitting of the Reichstag. It is significant and indicates a certain amount of friction between Germany and Austria, that the Austrian censor permitted the publication of these reports in the Cracow papers and also abroad. A Copenhagen despatch on July 26th stated that General Pilsudski, organizer and former Commander of the Polish Legion, has been arrested by the German authorities while attempting to leave Poland on false passports. General Pilsudski's flight marks the culmination of differences between the Poles, who desire to form an independent Polish army and the German authorities who insist that Polish forces be under German control.

ROMANIAN REPORT.

LONDON, July 30.
The Romanian War Office reports: "On the 27th between the Valleys of the Casin and Putna we advanced some kilometres and occupied the villages of Sovr, Dragoslava, Neagra, Topenia, Valcausa and Calacu. We again took prisoners and some motor batteries and war material."

SMALL ENCOUNTERS.

LONDON, July 30.
The text of the official statement issued to-day says: There was nothing of special importance last night on the British front. There were small encounters between our own and the enemy's patrols in the neighbourhood of Bullecourt and Acheville.

VIOLENT ARTILLERY DUELS.

PARIS, July 30.
Last night there were violent artillery duels in the Aisne and Verdun regions of the French front. The French official statement issued this afternoon says that German airplane attacks at various points along the front were repulsed. The text of the statement reads: "The night was marked by rather fierce artillery actions, notably in the sector of Brayen-Lannois and Epine-de-Chevregny, in the region of the monument at Hurbelise, and on both banks of the River Meuse. Surprise attacks by the enemy at various points were repulsed by our fire."

BRITISH CRUISER SUNK.

LONDON, July 30.
The British cruiser Ariadne, eleven thousand tons, has been torpedoed and sunk. No further particulars are yet available. The Admiralty announces that 35 lives were lost on the Ariadne.

PRESS CRITICISM.

LONDON, July 30.
The statements by the German Imperial Chancellor and Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, which are regarded here as obviously made in collusion, dominate the news columns of the morning papers. They are generally treated editorially as an indication of weakness, while the absence of reference to the future of Belgium and Serbia is considered to exclude all credence in the desire for peace by understanding. Austro-German peace talk, unless accompanied by an undertaking to evacuate and restore conquered territory, is declared merely to be aimed at delaying America's preparations for war. Herr Michaelis' accusations against France are dismissed by some commentators as best left for refutation by the French, but discussed by others, one of which says the story is too thin even for Germans to believe. The Daily News, however, maintains that although the Chancellor's statements are valueless as evidence, they cannot be left unanswered and insists that a statement of aims to be formulated at the coming Conference of Allies must constitute an explicit disavowal of all thought of conquest for conquest's sake. The paper denounces the "ignorance of the folly of Sir Edward Carson's threat to drive Germany behind the Rhine," which it says has given Herr Michaelis a weapon which he was swift to use. "It is in the power of the Allies to render the weapon innocuous, even turning it against himself, but the repudiation of his charge must come quickly and in a form having no loophole for misinterpretation."

EXECUTING DESERTERS.

LONDON, July 30.
The correspondent of the Times at Russian southwest headquarters after describing the desertions and panic of Russian troops says: General Korniloff's measures against indiscipline have been approved and he is executing deserters by wholesale.

ENQUIRY OPENS AT SYDNEY.

SYDNEY, July 30.
The inquest into the death of the victims of the New Waterford catastrophe opened in the theatre here this evening. Coroner Hartingtop presided. The balcony and auditorium were packed to the full seating capacity. The first evidence adduced was that of Drs. Miller, Morrison and Macalder. Out of 67 victims who came under medical examination, all died from the effects of gas, according to the evidence of the medical men. John Flynn, examined, testified that he had been an employee of the mine for the past ten years. He made his report prior to the explosion and found gas in some of the rooms and cross-cuts. He felt that the gas conditions could be easily remedied by proper air regulations. He stated the air passages were sufficient, but direction inadequate. He made a regular report on July 24th for the morning of the 25th, and reported the mine in good condition. He felt that the mine was at an average condition. There was some gas, but not a sufficient amount under the conditions to be dangerous or unusual. A large

BERLIN PRESS COMMENT.

COPENHAGEN, July 30.
The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger commenting on the recent proceedings in the British Commons, says Asquith's enquiry as to whether we were ready to restore Belgium full freedom can only be meant as a rhetorical question, for Asquith must know that aside from a handful of dreamers nobody thinks of handing Belgium again to England and France. The Catholic organ, the Cologne Volks Zeitung, attempts to prove that the retention of Belgium and the annexation of regions in the east are indispensable to that protection of the German frontiers which Chancellor Michaelis has specified. Some of the radical newspapers, on the other hand, seek to give the impression that the Government is so bound by the Reichstag that the Entente Allies have only to propose peace without annexations or indemnities to obtain it.

PLAYING FOR PEACE.

VIENNA, July 30.
Reiterating that Austria-Hungary is ready to accept an honorable peace but that the dual monarchy in conjunction with its allies would fight to the last extremity if the Entente powers declined to enter negotiations on the basis of a peace of understanding, as recently outlined by the German Imperial Chancellor and the Reichstag, Count Ottokar Czernin Von Chudenitz, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister. In an interview today discussed at length peace possibilities. The Austrian statesman took occasion to reply to the speech made by David Lloyd George in London on July 21st, when the British Premier characterised the address delivered in the Reichstag by the German Chancellor as a sham. The Count said Lloyd George was mistaken when he represented the Reichstag peace resolutions to be "a piece of bluff."

STRIKE CALLED OFF.

CHICAGO, July 30.
The strike of Switchmen belonging to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, involving more than 2,500 men, was called off this morning after an all-night conference between representatives of the Switchmen and the railroads involved.

UNIFORMS FORBIDDEN.

DUBLIN, July 30.
Lieut. General Bryan Thomas Mahon, Commander in Chief of the British forces in Ireland, has issued an order under the Defence of the Realm Act forbidding the wearing of uniforms of a military character except by State forces, and carrying of weapons except for lawful employment or pastime. The order will immediately affect the volunteer bodies formed in recent years.

NEWSPAPERS SUPPRESSED.

PETROGAD, July 30.
There have been allotted to the Ministry of the Interior 7,000,000 rubles to meet the expenses of elections to the Constituent Assembly. Premier Kerensky has suppressed the newspapers "Justice," "Preveda," and "Justice for the Trenches," the German official organ of the Socialists' Democratic Workers' Party.

Sir,—I regret to inform you that the Admiralty has reported that Harold Coates, Leading Seaman of the Newfoundland Royal Naval Reserve, is missing. He was a member of the gun's crew of the s.s. Hermes which is now two months overdue. His next of kin is his father, Philip, of Fogo.

The Profits Tax.

SOME FIGURES.
Dear Sir,—So much has been already written about the iniquitous business tax that I hesitate to worry you with further comments on the subject, but would be much obliged if you would find space for one or two observations on this "live" matter, before any further "legislation" takes place.
I want to point out to the Finance Minister, the Hon. M. P. Cashin, that this contemplated 25 per cent. tax will not meet his ideas of augmenting the revenue, and with your permission, will endeavour to prove this contention.

To begin with, the business concern with a large capital will escape with a very small contribution, whilst a struggling concern with limited funds, will be severely dealt with.

We will take the case of one of our largest firms as a sample.
The concern I refer to is presumably operating with a capital of about $750,000. They are allowed 6 per cent. on this capital which amounts to $45,000. Supposing, for argument, this firm makes $50,000. This and next year they will be called upon to pay 25 per cent. on $5,000, the excess over the interest allowed on their capital; in other words they will contribute to the revenue under this tax the sum of $1,250.

Now, we will take the case of a smaller business with a capital of say $75,000. This firm probably makes $15,000 per year and after subtracting the 6 per cent. allowed on the capital

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

To-night's game between the Red Lions and Cubs is going to have a particular relish for the supporters of all the Clubs, as a win for the latter puts them running along with the B.I.S. and Wanderers; while if the Lions win it will tie them with the Cubs. This will be the last game of the first round, and on Thursday night the Wanderers and Lions will be the contestants.

from making, except that, as above stated, the player who takes every possible chance and in so doing commits "boots" or makes hasty and inaccurate throws, is the player nearest to the manager's heart. His positive blunders of hands and feet are overlooked, while the negative blunders of the head and heart made by "crazy" athletes are jotted down in the manager's mental notebook and not soon forgotten. Two years ago at St. George's Field, Charley Quick playing for the Lions, "booted" a hard grounder that let in a run which won the game for the Wanderers. "That was a bad place to make a slip" observed Manager Hiltz to other members of his team "but you all noticed that HE CAME UP GRINNING! I'll predict right now that he makes good." And Charley Quick did make good.

FIELDING RECORDS.

Managers of baseball teams differ more or less in their estimates of this or that player's skill, but on one point they stand together—they like a player who makes mistakes now and then (not dumb plays but physical errors) because they know that a fielder who "goes after everything" is bound to make slips occasionally. It is the player jealously guarding his fielding record who comes in for the manager's rebukes and distrust; and such players can point with more pride to their popularity average than to their fielding average.

of $75,000 or $40,000 is obliged to pay 25 per cent. on $10,500 or $2,625 under this insane tax, whilst the large concern owing to its wealth gets off with about half the amount. Was absurdity ever carried further?
No wonder business firms with large capital are not worrying about this legislation.
I am satisfied, Mr. Editor, to contribute to the war, and have done so from the start, but I see no system of collecting this business tax which will be fair to all concerned only the graded scale, which is in operation at present in the Death Tax, viz., the larger the amount the larger should be the contribution.

Memorial Windows in Placentia Church.

Two beautiful memorial stained glass windows are now in course of erection in the Church of the Sacred Heart, Placentia. These windows will adorn the Sanctuary, and are the work of the Lyon Stained Glass Window Co. of Toronto. The windows are emblematic of the Sacred Heart of our Divine Lord, to which the Parish Church is dedicated, and commemorative of two late esteemed Pastors, viz., Revs. Charles Irvine and Michael A. Clancy, both of whom labored well and faithfully in Placentia many years, and to whose energy and zeal the erection of the beautiful Parish church is mostly due. The present respected Pastor, Rt. Rev. Mgr. Reardon, at whose suggestion these memorial windows are being placed, expects to have the solemn function of the unveiling of the windows take place during the latter part of the coming month or early in September. His Grace Archbishop Roche has kindly consented to preside at the ceremony, and other church dignitaries will also be present on the occasion. The good people of Placentia are looking forward with much interest to this solemn event, an extended account of which will appear in the local papers in due time.—Com.

TUESDAY, July 31st, 1917.

The Duty of Parliament.

We publish to-day a letter of the first importance from the Chairman of the Recruiting Committee. It contains a resolution passed at a recent meeting of that Committee, which states that in the opinion of the Committee (which we believe is unanimous) some form of selective conscription must be adopted if the Newfoundland Regiment is to be maintained at strength. That opinion has not been formed hastily, spurted altogether from the general military situation and the experience of other countries or colonies—matters which might or might not properly come within the scope of the Committee's consideration—the genlemen forming it have gathered from the work of nearly three years an immense knowledge of local conditions, the limit of possibility of the voluntary system, which has led them to this conclusion. How thorough, conscientious and indefatigable that work has been we have had occasion to know, and the opinion based on it is the most competent in the country.

Our purpose in referring to this resolution now is not to discuss the pros and cons of selective conscription nor to express our own views, which we have already stated to be in accord with the Committee's, but to explain the position of the Committee.
The opinion expressed in the resolution was reached some time ago and the urgent need was appreciated of conveying it to the proper quarter, the Legislature. The correct channel was undoubtedly through the Patriotic Association. As the Chair-man's letter states, the efforts made to convene a meeting of that body have failed. We do not attempt to apportion the blame, though it belongs somewhere, but the extraordinary fact remains that it has been found impossible to call a meeting of the Association to consider the most important question that confronts the country at this hour. The Committee have accordingly taken the only course left open to them and made public their position and their views.
By so doing they both relieve themselves from responsibility for any failure that may mark the continance of the present system, including quite possibly the extinction of the Newfoundland Regiment, and place it where it properly belongs in any case, on the Legislature and, in particular, the Minister of Militia. If these latter take no action, and if the Regiment suffers losses which cannot be repaired—it is, we are proud to say, still in the front line on the eve of the greatest battle in history—the whole country will know whom to hold accountable.

The matter derives additional importance from the coincidence with this letter of another to the Governor from the officer in charge of the Forestry Corps in England, which appears in the News this morning and of which we have not been favored with a copy. It is easy to read in and between the lines of that letter the disappointment of the writer in our Forestry contribution and in the extent to which fulfillment has fallen short of promise. When the appeal was first mooted there was the usual glib talk and an almost definite assurance was given the authorities on the other side that 500 men would be forthcoming by the end of June. On that basis Mr. Beeton made his calculations and we can understand how they have been thrown out. He now asks for 1,000 men by the autumn and the manly and earnest spirit with which he asks ought to be irresistible.
We will not get that number by voluntary methods—let us make up our minds to it at once and in time. If ever there was a matter to which all the advantages of compulsory service applied and none of the objections, it is this one. The need is very great, it is in the old country which is protecting us day and night, it is for help which we are peculiarly fitted to give and which involves no hardship or danger but only pleasant and profitable employment. What injustice can be involved in compelling any fit man to such a duty, which it should be less a duty than a pleasure to perform?

But, as we have stated, the merits or demerits of the compulsory system are not our concern here. They are that of Parliament, to whom the issue is now plainly put. We shall know by the end of the week whether there is a single Man left in the ranks of those who profess to govern the country.

Lunenburg Fisherman Breaks His Leg.

from the Grand Bank to land one of her crew who was suffering from a broken leg. The unfortunate seaman is Philip Keyser and is a native of was at his post, the Captain standing by the wheel. In the height of the gale the schooner shipped a heavy sea and Keyser, who was standing in the fore part of the ship, was thrown with great force against the winch, and before he had time to regain his feet he was hit by another wave and knocked down and brought below, but in doing so his rescuers ran the risk of being washed overboard, as at the time the banking schooner was tossed madly in a raging sea. On reaching port Dr. Campbell boarded the ship and on examining the sufferer ordered him to hospital where he was taken in the ambulance.

A Sign for Your Door.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"Well, she said she'd come to-day and a n e never broke a promise yet." So the lady-who-always-k n o w s- somehow explained her tranquility in the face of the fact that the much needed seamstress had failed to show up at the usual time. "She never broke a promise yet,"— what an accolade for seamstress or queen?

And of how few people can you say it! It is astonishing to me to see how many promises are not only broken, but meant to be broken in the business world.

I thought business men were squarer than women.

I always knew there were crooks in business but I had an idea that among honest business men much more square dealing and straight forwardness than women are used to would be found. But as I see more of business I find that there are a host of business men who would want to fight if you called them dishonest and yet are constantly making promises which they are not, and know they are not, going to keep.

A man I know has been building a house. He expected to be in it at a certain date. A month later I met him and it was not finished. What happened?" I asked.

Man After Man Failed Him. "Nothing," he said. "That's the trouble. Man after man has promised me faithfully to come to work or to deliver goods on a certain day, and has failed me. Some of them weren't to blame but others never meant to do what they said. I'm out of patience with them. If they can't do a thing they can't, but they might have the decency to say so."

Now when a man makes a promise and something come up unexpectedly that makes it impossible for him to keep it one understands and forgives him. (Though one keeps one's highest respect and admiration for the man who overcomes such impossibilities).

What Else Is A Broken Promise? But when a man makes a promise, and with no justification of changed conditions, does not keep it I think that man deserves to be called a short and ugly term. For what else is a promise that one does not intend to keep but a lie?

I should think a reputation for being faithful to one's promises would be a business asset worth much gold.

"We never broke a promise yet,"— wouldn't that be an impressive sign for a business man to hang over his door. No charge for the suggestion. If anyone has the right to adopt it he may have it and more than welcome. I'm glad there are such men in the world.

I bought a horse with a supposedly incurable ringbone for $30.00. Cured him with $1.00 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $85.00. Profit on Liniment, $54.

PORK. Pork is a substitute for the campaign cigar which fills the halls of Congress with pure patriots.

There are a great many varieties of pork manufactured in this country at the expense of the plain people, but all of them serve the one beneficent purpose of re-electing to Congress some statesman who otherwise would be obliged to work out his poll tax.

In justice to Congress, however, it should be stated that a great deal of this pork is pickled right at home and shipped to Washington in the form of a popular petition calling for the erection of a $200,000 federal building in a town with four business houses, including the jail. One of the worst things that can happen to a Congressman is to present five or six of these petitions and see the public buildings committee draw their teeth in a cold-blooded and scientific manner.

A petition calling for the erection of a $200,000 federal building in a town with four business houses, including the jail.

The skillful use of pork has retained in public life many a man whose efforts in debate have been confined to a motion to adjourn. The statesman who is able to tap the pork barrel at will and extract therefrom army posts, post office sites and river and harbor appropriations has a great advantage over a humble colleague who is a strict vegetarian. Some of our might-lest pork-hunters find no trouble in being re-elected with a loud noise after throwing a few hundred thousand dollars of government currency into a project to make Catfish Creek navigable for its entire distance of eleven miles.

Owing to the snooping, prying ways of the daily press, pork is becoming less popular as a daily article of food. It is getting so that a Congressman can hardly rise with a motion to establish an Indian reservation in any of the New England states without being greeted with derision and told to sit down in one lump. This is one of the most discouraging features of our national life, and if persisted in promises to retire to painful and noiseless obscurity a large band of animated Prince Albert costumes.

Pork, like charity, begins at home. The only way to reduce the dimensions of the pork barrel is to curb the popular appetite for governmental pap. The more people read and think and talk, the less taxes they will have to pay for the other fellow's benefit.

Your Boys and Girls.

There are many people that expect children to be naughty when the restraining influence of the parents is removed. But what is the matter with those children who are just as good when the "cat's away", as they are at other times? You might think there is something uncanny about such children. But really they are quite normal and full of fun. I know them myself and can say that they have the same instincts for play and mischief as other children, yet there is a difference.

The difference is in the attitude of the parents, especially of the mother, toward the play of the children. The mother has learned to suppress her own instincts to say "don't" every time one of the children starts to do something that is not on her program. The children have the impulse to do a thousand things that seem foolish to you and me, but most of them are quite harmless and need not be stopped unless the adults are very selfish and irritable.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

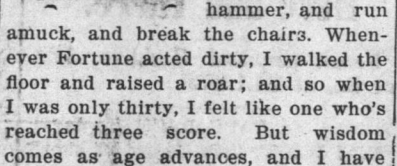

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. may 23, 17

British Shipbuilding.

Great Britain it is said, had 17,000,000 or 18,000,000 tons of shipping in 1914. After three years of war and despite the extraordinary methods adopted by the enemy, she still has between 15,000,000 and 16,000,000 — not counting the present product of her shipbuilding yards. It will take some time to starve the Motherland.

PATIENCE.

Be patient, though the load you carry grows heavier with every year; it does no good to raise Old Harry, 'em when our woes are at their worst. Once I was prone to cuss and clamor at every hitch in my affairs; anon I'd take the axe or hammer, and run amuck, and break the chairs. Whenever Fortune acted dirty, I walked the floor and raised a roar; and so when I was only thirty, I felt like one who's reached three score. But wisdom comes as age advances, and I have found that patience pays; and no unpleasant circumstances can roll the current of my days. When tiresome aunts come for a visit, or I have bolts or corns or gout, I say, "Misfortune's with me, is it? Well, it can't jar a cheerful scout." One faces trouble like a rabbit, one with a courage high and great; and grin like this is just a habit that any man can cultivate. One does his duty here so meekly he leaves behind a punk renown; one takes his burden up serenely, and chortles till he lay it down. No tribulation is so weighty that it can put me in a fix; and now that I am nearing eighty, I feel like one of twenty-six.

Summer School Notes.

Monday, July 30. Morning Session. St. Bonaventure's College.

The two periods before recess were given to lectures on teaching English Grammar to a school group from 10 to 12 years, by Dr. Brunt, and on School Management by Mr. Morehouse.

After recess Dr. Brunt took group B and dealt with some of the questions found in C.H.E. examination papers in School Management, while Mr. Morehouse lectured to A group on teaching Arithmetic.

At 11.45 a change was made in the regular time-table, and Dr. Brunt gave a short lecture in the Aula Maxima to both groups on "How to teach Spelling."

Afternoon Session, 2.15 to 4.15.

Mr. Morehouse continued his lecture on Arithmetic to group B, and Dr. Brunt gave a lecture to A group on School Management.

The teachers then lined up in their special divisions for Physical Culture. The ladies under Miss Worrall and Miss Curtis, and the men under Sergeant Major Hussey.

At 3.30 group B was taken by Mr. Morehouse for a walk countrywards where they had another opportunity of learning some useful facts from the book of Nature. During this period the A group was taken in Art by Miss Kelly.

Evening Session. Synod Building, 7.30-9. Instruction was given in the special subjects: English by Mr. Whiteway and Dr. Blackall, French by Misses Stirling and Carmichael, Geometry and Trigonometry by Rev. W. H. Thomas, Geometry by Miss Collins and Mr. Goodman.—Cor.

Rod and Gun.

Bonnycastle Dale writes of experiences with wildfowl on the Pacific Coast in the August issue of Rod and Gun, which is now on the newsstands, while in The Letter of the Law, Leslie Hayward describes entertainingly the experience of a typical Maritime province guide with a troublesome party in New Brunswick woods. A Day's Fishing in Timagami records a perfectly satisfactory outing by a number of Torontonians on one of the dog days of last summer. Other articles are King of the Stream, Canoe Racing, The Prairie Chicken, The Criminal, etc. In addition departments devoted to Guns and Ammunition, The Trap, Fishing, Kennel, etc. are well maintained. This representative Canadian sportsman's publication is put out by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Publisher, Woodstock, Ont.

GUESTS AT BALSAM PLACE.—George Brocklehurst, Carbonear; Miss Mary Jeffery, Whitbourne; Mrs. W. Forsey, Grand Bank; Mrs. A. Foote, Grand Bank.

Patriotic Football.

Before a fair attendance of spectators the St. Andrew's and C. E. I. Fellidians played to a draw last evening, each side having to its credit three goals. Notwithstanding that they had several substitutes in their ranks, the C. E. I. Fellidians simply put it all over their opponents for the first half hour and scored 3 goals.

During the second period the Saints notched up 3 goals, two of which were secured through penalty kicks. The latter part of the game was in favour of the C. E. I. who lost several opportunities.

Mr. W. J. Higgins refereed and the players were:—C.E.I.—Goal, Oliver; backs, Churchill, Simms; halves, Wilson, Drover, Reid; forwards, Jerrett, Miller, Stiek, Bastow, Ewing.

SAINTS.—Goal, Ewing; backs, Ellis, Chancy; halves, Sellars, Elton, Foster; forwards, Quick, Gushue, Kendrick, Bartlett, Heath.

The referee of the game was in the vicinity of $30.

Those smokes for our soldiers across the water have been much talked of, but the teams of old fellows have not formed up yet. Come, Jim Vinnicombe and Andy Carnell, get a gat on and let us know your line-up.

Mr. J. Bennett

COMING TO ST. JOHN'S.

The many friends here of Mr. John Bennett, the well known musician and cricketer who was dangerously ill at his home in Montreal, will be glad to hear that he is now convalescent and contemplates taking a health trip to his native land some time next month, a letter to that effect having been received by Mr. P. J. Haaly. It will be a happy coincidence if he gets here time enough to witness the patriotic match between two teams of old time cricketers on August 15th.

Slight fire.

At 9.45 o'clock last night the Central and Western Fire Brigades were called to the home of Capt. Davis, LeMarchant Road, where a slight fire caused by a lighted candle, had broken out. It happened that one of the family who was retiring for the night, was in the act of closing the window when the flame from the candle set fire to the curtain and in an instant the window drapings and shade had been consumed by the flames. Those in the house rushed to the room and by the aid of a few pails of water extinguished the blaze before the firemen reached the scene.

The Position of the Recruiting Committee

Recommends Selective Conscription. St. John's, July 30, '17. Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir,—I am directed by the Recruiting Committee to place before the public a brief statement of their views upon the necessity of filling up the ranks of the Regiment from time to time.

It is generally believed that the crisis has arrived, i.e. the time when an extraordinary effort will be necessary to reap the fruits of the toll and sacrifice of the past three years.

The Committee believing this have passed the following resolution:—"That whereas results of recruiting campaign throughout the Island have in the past been inadequate, it is the opinion of this Committee that if in future the strength of the Newfoundland Regiment is to be maintained, another method of securing recruits must be adopted, and recommend that some form of selective conscription be put in force."

With a view of submitting this resolution to the Patriotic Association a request was made for a meeting to be convened; but up to the present time this has not been done.

As the House of Assembly will shortly be prorogued, my Committee feel that after that no legislative action can be taken; and lest they should hereafter be blamed for neglect in the discharge of their duty I am directed to make this public announcement.

The Committee is well aware of the onerous legislation at present being devised in the Colony's interest; but at the same time they cannot permit any impression to be allowed to go abroad in a matter affecting the honour of the Colony and what is due to those who have fought and bled for it that the Committee have failed to discharge the trust which has been confided to their care.

I have the honor to be, Sir, Your obedient servant, W. B. GRIEVE, Secretary.

How to Economize in Home Baking

Use Royal Baking Powder in Place of Eggs

Fewer eggs may be used in many recipes, and in some cases left out altogether, by using an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted. The following tested recipe for corn bread is a practical illustration:

CORN BREAD

1/2 cups corn meal
1/2 cup flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar (if desired)
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1 1/2 cups sweet milk

DIRECTIONS—Sift the dry ingredients into bowl; add milk and melted shortening; beat well, and pour into well-greased pan or muffin tins and bake in hot oven about 25 minutes.

The old method called for 2 eggs

An Account of the Jensen Camp.

As the Jensen Camp has been in existence now for nine months and has done and is doing such good work, an account of its origin and continuation may be of interest.

Mr. Phil Jensen, while on his lecturing tour, met a returned soldier suffering from incipient tuberculosis. He wrote to those interested in Red Cross work, mentioning this fact, which led to the records of those who had returned being looked into, and it was found that there were other similar cases. The medical man in charge of the sanatorium for civilians was then asked to advise as to what could be done. The sanatoriums were filled, no place was available, but the doctor's proposition that a temporary camp be built was at once adopted; Captain Jensen was asked if he would give the proceeds of his following lectures to build this sanatorium, to which he at once agreed, and the Government consented to support it in the same way as the other sanatoriums.

A ward to hold ten beds was then erected with a sun sitting-room, and four patients entered on the opening day, October 30, 1916.

The site chosen by the doctor was on the Blackmarsh Road, a healthy quiet part, near woods, not disturbed by the dust of passing traffic and easily accessible at all times. This was to be their home, till the new sanatorium on the site of what is known as Bock's Farm was completed.

When the building was finished in February, the question of discontinuing the Camp was brought before the Committee, the following being present:—Hon. P. T. McGrath, Hon. M. P. Cashin, Mr. R. F. Howwood, Mr. Templeton, Mrs. Browning, Mrs. Paterson, Mrs. J. A. Clift, Mrs. C. Ayre, Miss Shea. The large number of civilian cases throughout the country was discussed, and the question was raised as to whether it would not be wise to continue the Jensen Camp for soldiers and sailors, leaving the new Sanatorium free to accommodate the very many civilian cases needing treatment.

ment. The representatives of the Government agreed that they would support the Camp to the extent per head which it would cost, if under one roof with the civilians. The Committee of the Jensen Red Cross Fund then offered to supplement the amount necessary, and it was unanimously decided to continue the establishment. We understand that the new Sanatorium is filled to its capacity, and that there are numbers of cases still throughout the country which more than justifies this decision.

Latterly it has been found necessary to enlarge the building to take 25 beds. This has necessitated the addition of a large dressing-room and a large sun sitting-room.

Another question has arisen during the past six weeks. The camp was built for incipient cases, but latterly cases have occurred where the disease was very far advanced, one especially, where the returned soldier lived only eleven days after his return from the front. These circumstances show us that the work must be extended for all must be well cared for.

Many other expenses are borne by the Jensen Red Cross Fund, but the United help and harmonious working of the whole Committee and Staff helps to make each undertaking a success. Twenty-three patients have entered the Jensen Camp in the last nine months; and, studying the entries of our boys into hospitals in Great Britain, their numbers will continue to be added to, but fortunately the incipient cases also gradually pass out fit, with care, to take up life's work again.

Attempted Suicide.

We learn that the Captain of the doomed liner Kristianiafjord tried to take his life thrice since the ship went ashore near Mistaken Point, but without success. On Saturday last when the storm raged and everything and everybody at the scene of the wreck had to run for shelter and the ship was pronounced to be a total wreck, he became despondent and jumped overboard and was rescued by the aid of ropes, after great difficulty. Heavy seas were running at the time and the escape from drowning was a narrow one. On two previous occasions the Captain of the big liner, who is a Norwegian naval man, it is said, attempted suicide with a loaded revolver and Household Notes.

Children can eat a very little well-cooked bacon now and then with great advantage. The crust for a lemon meringue pie should be baked before the lemon mixture is put into it. Dahlia roots may seem to be dry and dead, but when they are put into the ground they will grow. If grease is spilled on a wooden floor throw cold water over it instantly to harden the grease. The successful sponge cake depends on beating the eggs and sugar until all the sugar is dissolved. Keep a box of crayons and some old magazines to amuse the child who comes visiting with its mother. Before roasting a chicken it should be thoroughly washed with soap and water and then rinsed. A bookmark stuffed with shot is a handy thing to keep beside the kitchen recipe book to hold down the leaves. Washed and steamed prunes cut open and filled with whipped cream and crushed macaroons are delicious.

Will Pay All Claims.

Compensation Board Will Look After Dependents of Miners Killed at New Waterford. Every woman and child dependent upon the miners who lost their lives in the disaster at New Waterford, on Wednesday, will be provided for under the Nova Scotia Workmen's Compensation Act, and every man who was injured will also be paid. It is estimated that the amount of money required to look after these people will be in the vicinity of $200,000, but officials of the Workmen's Compensation Board state that the funds belonging to the coal mining class coming under the Act will be quite sufficient for this purpose. The total number killed was 79, and the injured nine. Of the killed some were single. Had all been married, with families, the total amount required to look after them would be about $350,000. Under the Act the widow of every miner who loses his life at work, receives $20 per month for life, unless she remarries, in which case she gets $480. The children receive $5 per month apiece, up to four children. If there are more the sum of $20 is divided monthly between them. In the case of single men who have been killed, the Act provides that their dependents, such as aged parents, young brothers or sisters, otherwise unprovided for, shall receive a monthly payment of 55 per cent of their dependency, as long as that dependency lasts. Just when the New Waterford accident occurred the question of holding a hearing of the Dominion Coal Co.'s application to "contract out" from the Act was being considered.

Boy Escapes Horrible Death.

BUT LOSES BOTH LEGS WHEN STEALING TRAIN RIDE.
There now lies at the General Hospital in a critical state a 14 year old boy named Edward Hurley of Patrick Street, as the result of a terrible accident in which he narrowly escaped death while stealing a train ride at the railway station last night. It happened about 9.35 o'clock as the shore train which had landed her passengers and luggage at the station was being shunted to one of the side tracks near the Promenade by engine No. 165, driver Kelly. Young Hurley, with several other lads, stood west of the trestle ready to jump on the cars as the train backed out. The victim however in attempting to reach the platform missed his footing and fell beneath the cars. The wheels of one passed over both legs, cutting off the left one and smashing the other so badly that it will have to be amputated. Driver Kelly who always has an eye out for such happenings noticed his train to give an unusual jump and fearing something had happened put on the emergency brake and stopped the train immediately. Getting out of the cabin he hurried along the track to see what had happened when to his horror he narrowly averted tripping over the lad Hurley, who then lay unconscious in a pool of blood beneath the train. Driver Kelly realising what had happened ordered a doctor be phoned for immediately; in the meantime, picking up the sufferer, he laid him in one of the coaches where first aid was given. Dr. Anderson was quickly on the scene and after temporarily binding the wounds had him rushed to the hospital in the ambulance which in the meantime had also reached the scene. Shortly after reaching the institution the left leg, which was broken and badly mangled, was amputated and the sufferer under the circumstances spent the night as well as could be expected, though the chances of his recovery are slight. On inquiring at the hospital this morning we were informed that the patient was then resting and that it was necessary to amputate his other leg. The unfortunate fate of the lad Hurley should be a lesson to others, who have been in the habit of joy riding at the railway station.

COLD STORAGE MENTIONED IN AMERICAN BUSINESS PROFITS
LED WITH REVENUE
By a "stroke of the pen" the business Profits Tax Bill has aroused the most intense interest of the whole country, and politicians and their supporters have been coupled with the bill. This was made known by a statement at yesterday afternoon of the House of Assembly. Most of the time of the day was occupied in dealing with Resolutions to give effect to the bill for the encouragement of business Profits Tax. The Resolutions that were adopted in large concessions to the Newfoundland Company only if they were discussed in the Chamber "let the cat out of the bag" there was the prospect of the granting to this party of any big concessions in the matter and the matter was discussed in the Chamber in the Evening Telegram. The Resolutions were made up and provided for any first individual to enter into the building of cold storage, putting up of our less expensive fish. As the Resolutions much importance we must with.

1.—The Act 10 Edw. Chapter 31, entitled: "For giving Cold Storage" shall be by adding thereto the following provisions nine and ten, that is to say—
9.—(a) For the purpose of in the creation of a market of our less well-known fish, turbot, caplin and plaice, lawful for the Government to contract with any person to pay (hereinafter in this "the Company") engagements connected with the business of cold storage, and to supply the Company with the best supply of the Company, one cent per pound on all than codfish, halibut and the ported by the Company.

The Cat Let Out
of the Bag.

JUGGLING WITH LEGISLATION—COLD STORAGE MEASURE SUB-MITTED IN AMENDED FORM—
BUSINESS PROFITS TAX COUP-LED WITH REVENUE ACT.

By a "stroke of the pen" the Business Profits Tax Bill, which has aroused the most intense indignation of the whole country, excepting the politicians and their adherents, has been coupled with the Revenue Act. This was made known by the Govern- ment at yesterday afternoon's sitting of the House of Assembly.

Most of the time of the House was occupied in dealing with Cold Storage Resolutions that were drafted offered Resolutions that were drafted offered large concessions to the Reid-Newfound- land Company only, but before they were discussed in the Legislature somebody "let the cat out of the bag." There was widespread criticism over the granting to this private concern of any big concessions and inducements, and the matter was ventilated in the Evening Telegram. The result was that the Government "smelt a rat" and adjourned the proceedings of the House for four days. Meanwhile the Resolutions were made more general and provide for any firm, company or individual to enter into a contract for the building of cold storage plants and putting up of our less well known fishes. As the Resolutions are of much importance we print them here- with.

1.—The Act 10 Edward VII (1910) Chapter 31, entitled: "An Act Respec- ting Cold Storage," shall be amended, by adding thereto the following as sec- tions nine and ten, that is to say:—

9.—(a) For the purpose of assisting in the creation of a market demand for our less well-known fishes, such as turbot, caplin and plaice, it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to contract with any person, firm or com- pany (hereinafter in this Act called "the Company") engaged in the busi- ness of cold storage and other busi- ness connected with the fisheries and bait supply of the Colony, for the granting to the Company of a bonus of one cent, per pound on all fish other than codfish, halibut and herring, ex- ported by the Company from its cold storage warehouses or plants in any one year of such a term, not to exceed ten years in all, as may be fixed by such contract.

(b)—The maximum amount of the bonus payable to the company under the last preceding sub-section in any one year of the said term shall be calcu- lated, whichever is the greater, either

(1) according to the capacity of the cold storage plants or ware- houses to be erected by the com- pany in compliance, with the conditions of such contract, in which case it shall not exceed Four hundred dollars for a stor- age capacity of One Hundred Thousand pounds of fish and so on in proportion to the storage capacity of the said plants or warehouses;

(2) at the rate of one-half cent per pound on all fish other than codfish, halibut, and herring ex- ported by the company from its cold storage plants or ware- houses in any one year of such term; provided however that the total bonus payable in any year under any such contract shall not exceed the sum of Seventy-five thousand dollars.

(c)—Every such contract shall be subject to and shall contain the fol- lowing conditions, namely:—

(1) That all cold storage plants and warehouses thereby requir- ed to be erected shall be com- pleted and in operation within five years from the date of such contract.

(2) That the Company shall reserve in each of its warehouses situa- ted outside St. John's ten per cent of the entire cold storage space of such warehouse for the storage of bait, and in its ware- house, if any, in St. John's, such space, not exceeding ten per cent of the entire cold storage space thereof, as may be fixed by such contract for the same purpose, and shall keep such reserved spaces available for the cold storage of such bait as the Governor in Council may from time to time be desirous of storing therein, and store such bait therein free of charge.

(3) That the Governor in Council may from time to time permit the Company to use any part or the whole of such reserved storage space upon such terms as may be agreed upon, and if the consideration for such per- mission shall at any time take the form of the supply of bait by the Company to the Govern- or in Council, such bait shall be supplied at its cost to the Com- pany, without allowance for any rental charge for the storage thereof, and in the event of any dispute as to the cost price of such bait the same shall be de- termined by a Board consisting of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, a representative nomi- nated by the Company, and a representative nominated by the Newfoundland Board of Trade.

(4) That the Company shall sell bait to Newfoundland vessels engaged in the Bank fishery at a price to yield to the Company a reasonable profit above the cost of such bait delivered to the purchaser or his agent, such price to be fixed by the Board hereinafter mentioned.

(5) That the Company shall not export any squid, caplin or her- ring for any other than food purposes, nor shall it within the Colony sell any fishes for bait to any but Newfoundland fish- ermen, and on the other hand the Governor in Council shall not supply any bait to vessels engaged in the Bank fishery.

10. No payment of bonus shall be made under the preceding section except upon the certificate of the Audit- or-General of Newfoundland. In or- der to obtain such certificate the Com- pany shall furnish the Minister of Fi- nance and Customs at the end of each year during the said term of years a full and correct statement of the quantities of each such fish exported by the Company for the preceding year and shall afford all proper facilities to the Auditor General to make a com- plete examination of the books, ac- counts and vouchers of the Company relative thereto in conjunction with an auditor to be appointed by the Company. In the event of any dispute arising between the two auditors in relation to the said statement, the same shall be referred to the deter- mination of a public chartered ac- countant as umpire, to be appointed by the two auditors. The award of such umpire shall be final and conclu- sive.

The Premier, the Introducer, spoke at some length on the Resolutions predicting wonderful possibilities for the new industry. He said that $75,000 for the encouragement of such a vast enterprise was only a mere flea bite and pointed out that heretofore capitalists were frightened away from embarking their capital into cold storage plants because of the risks involved. He hoped that the new in- dustry would prosper and felt sure that any large outlay in the way of encouragement would be amply just- ified.

Mr. Downey followed and said he was always a public chartered ac- countant of cold storage. He was aware of the great market abroad that was open to receive our caplin and smelt from personal experience and showed that there was now $16,000 worth of smelt exported annually from Stephenville on the West Coast. Incidentally he mentioned that he had promoted a cold storage company to be intiated here, but last June when he heard of the plant at the Reid premises he abandoned his project.

Mr. Coaker also spoke in favour of the Resolutions and said that the en- couragement offered was not too gen- erous.

A Bill giving the Resolutions effect was then read a first and second time.

The Bills respecting Prohibition and Food Control were sent from the Up- per House with amendments and were concurred in; an amendment to the Public Service Electric Company was deferred.

The Judicature Act and the Central and Hr. Grace District Court Bills passed all stages as did also the Pub- lic Service Act.

The Revenue Act, in the absence of the Finance Minister, who is on the Southern Shore, was deferred and the Business Profits Tax Bill was coupled with the Revenue Bill.

If the Finance Minister is back from the wreck most of the remaining business will be disposed of in the As- sembly this afternoon.
