CHAPTER XXXII.

"I'm afraid I shall have to let you tell me whatever you like," said Mrs. Feltham resignedly. "But what a stupid thing to say! I suppose you would have liked Nora to have come up to London alone?"

"Well, no, I shouldn't," he admitted. "But what I want to know is why she should leave the Hall all of a sudden, as if my presence had become absolutely poisonous?"

"Oh, it was not on your account," said Mrs. Feltham, murmuring the falsehood in her sweetest tones. "You see, Nora knew she had to get her own living—she is far too proud to accept it at any one else's hands—and she felt that the sooner she began to look out for something the better."

"Jack rumbled his hair and demanded, fretfully, "Where is she now?"

"Gone to look for a situation," replied Mrs. Feltham; and, blandly as the answer was made, it served to infuriate the questioner.

"I've never heard of such a piece of tomfoolery in my life!" he declared, pausing at the table to thump it and, at the same time, kicking a chair out of his path.

"Well, it may be; but that's no reason why you should break up our happy little home," Jack said.

"Sorry, Mabel—beg pardon; but I feel as if I could break up Buckingham Palace. Seriously, now, don't you think I have reason to cut up rough? Doesn't it look, now? Everybody say, that I've turned you out? You might have some consideration for my feelings, if you're none for my character."

"Well, come to that," murmured Mrs. Feltham, "you didn't have overmuch consideration for her feelings when you bolted off and preferred to earn your living as a navigator?"

"Navy—navy!" interjected Jack, savagely.

"Well, isn't the same thing, dear? Anyway, it was very dreadful to see you looking like one of the men you see working on the railway line or leaning against the public-house."

"For Heaven's sake keep to the point, Mabel!" remonstrated Jack impatiently. "And there's another thing. Why the bl— I mean, why on earth

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for women's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARAH SEAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice in regard to such ailments write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its forty years' experience is at your service.

CHAPTER I.
"MISS TOMBOY."

IT certainly was very hard upon Mr. Trevelyan. To most fathers of the average kind Kitty would have proved somewhat of a subject for anxiety and perplexity; but to the Honorable Francis Trevelyan she was the source of a perpetual mortification, surprise, and passive regret.

"How do you account for it?" one might be tempted to ask, as he asked himself, and all of his numerous and sympathetic friends.

"How do you account for it?" That was the question which he asked himself at least twice a day; which he had been putting to himself since the day when Kitty, the cause and chief point in the problem, had broken her first piece of crockery—the great china vase which had belonged to the Countess of Blessington, and had cost a Trevelyan five thousand pounds.

Kitty had not inherited it from him. No; the Honorable Francis, contemplating his languid figure and delicate effeminate face in the mirror which reflected his favorite chair in the rose drawing-room, could pronounce a mental but emphatic negative.

Not from him, who had scarcely for one day in his life felt the blood move through his veins at a pace greater than that of an oyster, who had been one of the cleverest specimens of the doce far niente school, when that school was at its height; who was now held up a type and pattern of the languid, impassable, and emotionless aristocrat. Not from him, whose chief excitement was the half-hour world gossip, which Tapley, the valet, every morning, breathed into his ear over the soft, ivory-backed hair-brush; whose chief end and aim in life had been to maintain the character of dilettante and fashionable idler; whose chief hope was—what? In the morning that the cook would not overboil the chocolate; in the evening that Tapley would not over-leave the mosele, and in the afternoon that no one and no thing would disturb his nap.

No; Kitty and he were the very opposite; they stood as pole and pole; she at the sweet, warm south, he at the cold, bloodless north. Had she taken it from her mother?

The Honorable Francis often asked himself that question, and though he did not answer it with such emphatic mental repudiation as when the question applied to himself, he could still put forward a negative. Mrs. Trevelyan had only been one degree less impassive, emotionless, and lymphatic than himself. He had chosen her as a fitting mate, one well able to uphold the great Rosedale character for perfect and aristocratic apathy, and she had not disappointed him.

Now these two almost perfect specimens of their class should, according to all the approved and tabulated rules and deductions, have produced a simply perfect brood of aristocratic frigidity and cold-blooded propriety.

Kitty should have been an Honorable Francis feminized, a model of languid grace and haughty insipidity. Poor Mr. Trevelyan. . . . Kitty was a tomboy.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Readily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save four-fifths of the money usually spent for cough preparations by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap to make, but it really has no equal for prompt, sure relief. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 3 1/2 ounces of Pinex (30 cents worth) from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and generally has the effect of annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, whooping-cough, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known of the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "3 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and "no. 1" on the wrapper. Guaranteed to give absolute relief or money refunded.

- (1) Parcels must not exceed eleven pounds.
- (2) Parcels should be addressed with the Regimental number, rank, name and surname of addressee, followed by the last known address of the Unit with which the individual was serving; for example:
No. 0978 Cpl. John J. Kent,

The Original address should be written on the FRONT of the parcel where the postage stamps and customs declaration are affixed, and the second or alternative address should be written on the BACK of the parcel.
- (4) If second address is not furnished at the time of posting and delivery cannot be effected, the contents of the parcel, unless of exceptional value or of a personal nature, will be turned over to the Military Authorities for distribution.
- (5) Parcels containing articles of personal nature or of special value will be returned if request for their return, in case of non-delivery, is made by the sender, such request to be written on the cover of the parcel at the time of posting.
- (6) The procedure outlined in (4) and (5) is adopted at the suggestion of the British Post Office, to prevent the waste of a large quantity of perishable food stuffs which form the contents of 90 per cent. of parcels sent to soldiers.
- (7) Parcels should be packed securely.
- (8) Attention is drawn to the Notice concerning Christmas parcels recently published by the Postmaster General. All Christmas mail B. E. F. should be posted in time to arrive at the Pay and Record Office, London, not later than the end of November.

GEORGE'S CONGRATULATIONS.

LONDON, Nov. 12.

King George has sent messages of congratulation to the Empire. To the King expresses his pride at the brilliant success which has crowned more than four years of effort and courage. Germany, our most formidable enemy, who planned the war to gain supremacy of the world, full of pride in her armed strength and of contempt for the small British Army that day, has now been forced to acknowledge defeat. He says: "I rejoice that in this achievement the British forces, now grown from a beginning to the finest army in history, have borne so manly and distinguished a part. Soldiers of the British Empire, in France and Belgium, the prowess of your arms, as in retreat as in victory, has won admiration of all, friends and foes, and you, by a happy historic fate, had you to conclude the campaign capturing Mons, where your predecessors of 1914 shed the first British blood. Between that date and this have traversed a long and weary path. Defeat has more than once stared you in the face; your ranks have thinned again and again by sickness and death; but your faith has never faltered, your courage has never failed, your hearts have never shown defeat. With your comrades you have won the day, and you have fought in more distant fields, in the mountains and valleys of Italy, in rugged Balkan ranges, under the burning sun of Mesopotamia, Africa, amid the snows of Russia and Siberia, and by the shores of the Dardanelles. I pray God, who has been pleased to lead a victorious end to the great war for justice and right, will prosper and bless our efforts in the distant future to secure for the nations to come the hard-won peace of freedom and peace."

His message to the Air Forces was: "Our far-flung squadrons down over home waters and in the Western and Italian seas, the Rhineland, the mountains of Macedonia, Gallipoli and Palestine, the plains of Mesopotamia, the desert frontiers of India and the wastes of Arabia, Sinai and Darfur, the breadth of the Royal Air Forces and its wonderful expansion and development will ever remain one of our most remarkable achievements of the Great War."

His work of the Naval Forces, the King said: "Never in its history has the Royal Navy done greater things or sustained its old glories and glory of the sea. With full and Soldiers of the British Empire, in France and Belgium, in the process of your arms, as you retreat as in victory, has won the admiration of all, friends and foe. Now, by a happy historic fate, you are to conclude the campaign of Mons, where your predecessors of 1914 shed the first British blood. Between that date and this day, you have won the day. Defeat has more than once starved in the face: your ranks have thinned again and again by sickness and death; but your will has never faltered, your courage has never failed, your hearts have never shown defeat. With your comrades you have fought in more difficult, in the mountains and valleys of Italy, in rugged Balkan passes, under the burning sun of Palestine, in Mesopotamia, Africa, amid the snows of Russia and Siberia, and by the Dardanelles. I pray that a victorious end to the great struggle for justice and right, will bring and bless our efforts in the months to come the hard-won freedom of peace."

GRATEFUL HEARTS.

grateful hearts the peoples of the British Empire salute the White, Red and Blue Ensigns and those who have given their lives for the Flag. I am proud to have served in the Navy; I am prouder still to be its head on this memorable occasion."

IN A HURRY FOR PEACE.

LONDON, Nov. 12. A message was sent by Foreign Secretary Solf to Secretary of State Lansing saying, "The armistice being concluded the German Government requests the President of the United States to arrange for the opening of peace negotiations. For the purpose of their acceleration the German Government proposes first of all to take in view the conclusion of a preliminary peace, and asks for a communication as to what place and at what time the negotiations might begin. As there is a pressing danger of famine the German government is particularly anxious for the negotiations to begin immediately."

EXCITEMENT DIED DOWN.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11. The excitement in Berlin on Sunday, owing to the isolated resistance of officers faithful to the former Emperor has subsided. The night passed quietly. The population is willingly obeying orders. Almost all the shops are open. The Soldiers' and Workmen's Council has decreed that all work shall be resumed on Tuesday. The Bourse is closed at present. In Saxony the Cabinet Ministers have announced that elections will be held in which both men and women will vote.

STILL RUNNING.

IN HOLLAND.

A tremendous crowd of sightseers had gathered, but the platform was strongly cordoned, and William Hohenzollern did not show himself.

UNDER PREVENTIVE ARREST.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 12. The Grand Duke of Hesse has been placed under preventive arrest, according to a Darmstadt despatch to the Dusseldorf Nachrichten.

ITALY'S ASPIRATIONS ACHIEVED.

General Diaz, addressing Premier Orlando, conveyed the congratulations of the army.

WERE ONLY BLASTING.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON THE MEUSE, Nov. 12.—Blasting by American engineers in a road-repairing detachment caused the German high command to send a message to the Allied high command Monday afternoon contending that the Americans had not ceased hostilities on Nov. 11th. The message sent by wireless to the Allied high command was timed 2 p.m. and read: "On the front of Stenay Beaumont, along the Meuse, Americans continue despite decision of armistice. Please order the stoppage of hostilities." The American answer to the German message reads as follows: "Received your radio. Orders have been given for American activities signalled on the Stenay Beaumont front to cease immediately." So the engineers did not blast during the remainder of Monday afternoon. Early this morning, however, they resumed their blasting. The explosions to-day did not bring any message from the Germans.

DISCUSSES GERMAN REQUEST.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. Before the usual Cabinet meeting, Secretary Lansing conferred with the President, and it is understood the German appeal was discussed by the President with the Cabinet.

TAKING NO CHANCES.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Nov. 11. (By the A.P.)—Orders announcing that the Armistice between the Allied powers and Germany had been signed and giving directions as to the future conduct of Allied soldiers along the line were sent to every corps this morning. They were transmitted to the units in the front ranks. The order follows: You will cease along the whole front at 11 o'clock on November 11, 1918, Paris time. No Allied troops will pass the line reached by them at that hour in the day until further orders. Division commanders will immediately sketch the location of their front line. This sketch will be returned to headquarters by the courier bearing these orders. All communication with the enemy both before and after the termination of hostilities is absolutely forbidden. In case of violation of this order severest disciplinary measures will be immediately taken. Any officer offending will be sent to headquarters for which he has been indicted. This will be laid on the fact that the arrangement is an armistice only and not a peace. There must not be the slightest relaxation of vigilance. Troops must be prepared at any moment for further operations. Special steps will be taken by all commanders to insure strictest discipline and that all troops will be held in readiness, fully prepared for any eventualities. Division and brigade commanders will personally communicate these orders to all organizations.

WANTS MURDERER EXTRADITED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. The extradition of former Emperor William of Germany, from Holland, his trial in England on the charge of murder for which he has been indicted. This was urged here to-night by former Ambassador Gerard in an impromptu address before a theatre audience. Asking whether a man should be allowed to escape who had killed so many people, that if they were stretched on the ground they would form a line almost around the entire world, Mr. Gerard answered his own question with an emphatic "I should say not." There is a treaty between Holland and England, Mr. Gerard declared by which they can extradite the Kaiser who has been indicted in England and try him before an English court. I guess we all know what the answer would be. When the hangman drops the trap he will be doing away with one of the world's greatest murderers.

"CONTEMPTIBLES" AVENGED.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN BELGIUM, Nov. 11. (By the A.P.)—Peace descended like a mantle over the battlefield at eleven o'clock this morning. The last big gun crashed its challenge and a great overpowering quiet replaced the turmoil of death and destruction. Coincident with the signing of the armistice by the desperate enemy the city of Mons capitulated before the relentless British pressure. Canadian troops under General Horne having captured the place. On this hallowed ground the troops are now resting on their arms, happy in the thought of the fitness of their final triumph, they had driven the enemy out by the same gateway through which Field Marshal Von Buslow and Field Marshal Von Kluck hurled their great armies against the valiant little force of "Contemptibles" in 1914. The population of Mons to-day paraded the streets cheering madly their deliverers. Their glad cries must have reached the ears of the Germans outside the walls of the town. Early this morning a crisp graphic order to cease fire at eleven o'clock was distributed to all units with further orders to maintain defensive precautions, but to have no intercourse with the enemy. The advance continued, the gunners racing forward to the advance batteries seeking the honor of firing the final shot. Punctually at eleven o'clock the firing stopped like clockwork. Fleets of British airplanes dropped showers of signal lights which descended with the momentous message to those below. There was joy in plenty among the British troops at the first blush of peace, but there was little in the nature of demonstrations. Tommy Atkins was unable to realize that the announcement was true, although his heart was burning with the hope of going back to his wife and baby in Blighty, so he stood and waited for something to happen he knew not what. This could not be the end. After all the shambles and terror he had been through one of these veterans and mud-caked veterans came to the correspondent's auto and as he sa-

Future Difficulties.

Two hemispheres have united in celebrating the Victory of the Allied arms over those of the Central Powers, and East joined with West, halting with joy the conclusion of the war and the supremacy of right. The huge struggle in which were let loose all the forces of destruction known to man is now comparatively ended, and the nations which have toiled and borne the burden of a strain, almost too great for feeble humanity to carry, may after a short respite turn to the industries of peace and settle down into the regular life of commerce, and the manufacture of other than guns and munitions of war. The universe has been relieved of the stress and welter of combat, and the Evangel of Peace falls sweetly on ears that have been long waiting the sound. Hearts pour out their thankful prayer and the incense of praise ascends to the throne of the God of battles by whose Almighty hand victory was given our arms. Well might all civilization join with the royal hymn singer of Israel in the words, "If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, now may Israel say: If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, when men rose up against us: then they had swallowed us up quick, but blessed be the Lord, who hath not given us as a prey to their teeth."

There yet remains much to be done however ere peace is made lasting. The state of chaos to which the world had fallen in the wake of the present past quadratum may not be brought into order in a short period, and as there are still hostile forces to be reckoned with ere a complete settlement can be effected, the present is no time to fold our hands and look on. Readjustment and restoration to pre-war conditions may not be made and brought about by concerted action of peoples and co-ordination of methods and systems. All must pull together and unity of purpose be spontaneous.

The conditions of the armistice leave no loophole whatever through which Germany can crawl, but Germany as a constituted Government and Germany as a disorganized warring country of factions, each one claiming the right to govern, are not to be considered in the same terms. As with Russia to-day so may the internal condition of Germany be tomorrow. Already are there symptoms of dissatisfaction developing. The Soldiers' Councils apparently are organizing for resistance, and just how strong or how weak these are, we have no means of knowing. The wireless message, intercepted by the British Admiralty, from the mutineers on the German warship Strasburg, shows that the spirit of revolution against the armistice is powerful, and that efforts are being made to resist it. With the entire German northern fleet, and the strongly fortified naval base of Heligoland in possession of the Soldiers' Councils we must concede that here are great possibilities for future trouble. Should these irreconcilables be sincere in their purpose, they can put up a most determined resistance, for a time, and should any of the ships which they have seized escape the naval cordon of the Allies and get into the Atlantic, taking the pirate's risk, they have the means of doing tremendous damage to our shipping. None of these things might come to pass but they are possible factors in putting off the final peace day. With the Socialistic element now in control in Germany, there is always a measure of doubt in the existing situation, as in the present unsettled and unstable form of government, principle may not enter very largely, and it is not impossible that the red flag of anarchy and nihilism may be yet raised. It will take some time to weld these discordant masses together, and during that process there will have to be strict watch and ward kept by the Allies. Many difficulties are yet in the way of the peace settlement, but having gone so far the Allies are not intending to turn back.

Mr. W. G. Verge, Millertown, arrived in the city yesterday, and is registered at the Crosbie.

Notes and Comments

Slander is a moth that eats holes in a good name.

The wooden status of Hindenburg at Berlin ought to come in handy now, coal being so scarce.

The influenza epidemic appears to be abating, but the food profiteers are still doing business at the old stand.

The destruction of Berlin and the execution of one hundred billion dollars indemnity would have been generous terms to have imposed on the beastly Germans.

What about the Wellington? Some startling reports are being circulated about this ship. Are they true?

It is also reported that the Government has a million dollars surplus on revenue account. Will there soon be some "givins out"? Complaints are being made that certain districts are not getting their share, and there are some awkward questions being asked.

The new Soviet Flag of Russia is said to have on it the letters "R. S. F. S. R.", which as an exchange points out is eminently fitting in the case of Russia, because "you cannot tell whether it is going or coming." And by the same token, and tokens, our late enemy Germany is in a similar state.

The joy bells will be well rung when the soil of Belgium and France is cleared of the pollution of the Hun. It will be the best retribution of the worst infliction in history.

The Allies have now taken the helm out of Wilhelm, but with the Socialists using another helm will there be any improvement in German manners and Kultur?

Receives New Appointment.

A few days ago Mr. C. H. Tranfield, of the Western Union Cable Co., received the appointment of General Superintendent for Newfoundland. Mr. Tranfield was formerly Superintendent of the Heart's Content Cable Office. His new position was, until recently, occupied by Mr. H. A. Saunders, whose illness prevented him from continuing the work. For twenty-nine years Mr. Tranfield has been connected with the Heart's Content Office, and four years ago he was appointed to the position recently held by him. Mr. Tranfield will make Heart's Content his headquarters. The Telegram extends congratulations to Mr. Tranfield on his well merited promotion.

The Klark-Urban Co.

The Klark-Urban Company is deservedly popular with the theatre-goers of St. John's because their effort has always been to present only the best procurable plays at the lowest possible price. For their opening play this year at the Casino they have secured "The Misleading Lady." It is the play that took New York by storm and ran through an entire season and continued over into the next. It is a comedy and a melo-drama, and very nearly a tragedy all in one. Packed with exciting situations and spiced with humor, it can not fail to please all who attend the opening performance Monday, Nov. 18th, health regulations permitting.

Police Seize Smuggled Booze.

Early yesterday morning, about 4.30, Constables Lee and J. Ezekiel saw two men near Bishop, Sons and Co.'s Cove where they were acting in a manner that aroused the officers' suspicions. Unseen themselves the policemen saw the suspects hurriedly cross the street into Adelaide Street, carrying three valises. From Adelaide they turned across George St., the officers shadowing them. The two men then entered a blind lane where they were cornered. When apprehended the men gave up their valises which contained 39 bottles of rye whiskey, and declared that they had brought it from Sydney in a local steamer, and had just then taken it ashore. The policemen took the contrabandists and their stimulants to the Emergency Hotel.

HIS MAJESTY'S INSPIRING WORDS.

An Hour of Solemn Thanks Giving for Gratitude to God. An Empire on its Knees in Prayer.

LONDON, November 11, 1918.

"At the moment when the armistice is signed bringing, I trust, a final end to the hostilities which have convulsed the whole world for more than four years, I desire to send a message of greeting and heartfelt gratitude to my Overseas Peoples, whose wonderful efforts and sacrifices have contributed so greatly to secure the victory which now is won. Together we have borne this tremendous burden in the fight for Justice and Liberty. Together we can now rejoice at the realization of those great aims for which we entered the struggle. The whole Empire pledged its word not to sheathe the sword until our end was achieved. That pledge is now redeemed. The outbreak of war found the whole Empire one. I rejoice to think that the end of the struggle finds the Empire still more closely united by the common resolve, held firm through all vicissitudes by the community of suffering and sacrifice by the dangers and triumphs shared together. The hour is one of solemn thanksgiving, and of gratitude to God, whose Divine Providence has preserved us through all perils and crowned our arms with Victory. Let us bear our triumph in the same spirit of fortitude and self-control with which we have borne our dangers.

GEORGE R. I."

Rebellious Sons.

The King of Roumania was recently reported to have condemned his son, the Crown Prince, to seventy-five days' imprisonment on account of a little affair of the heart and a marriage outside the ring of Royal affections. If the story be true the Roumanian monarch and his son have merely added a new chapter to an old story and a long story.
Kings and their heirs have often showed a tendency to differ. Henry II had a rebellious brood of sons, Henry V. was a wild and naughty prince in his youth; the heir to the throne in Hanoverian days was usually on the worst of terms with his father. Russia has always been a land of extremes, and in Russia this little tale of disagreement between the Royal father and the princely son was carried to its fullest extent. Peter the Great executed his own son. But Peter was probably a Bolshevik at heart. He believed in sentences of death as the cure for most of the troubles of a nation.

NOT FULLY RECOVERED.—Const. T. Murphy, who six weeks ago was injured by hooligans, has not yet recovered. His injured arm being still unhealed.

One egg well beaten is worth two partly beaten.
A little vinegar added to the water in which bacon or ham is boiled improves the flavour.

Wringing out a cloth in hot water and wiping the furniture before putting on furniture-cream will result in a high polish that will not finger-mark.
Dissolve a handful of common salt in half a gallon of water. Then cover the coils and allow to stand so treated will not only keep but will throw out more heat.
Cut onions quickly about 10 minutes in the air, and therefore they are excellent as a distasteful.

As satisfied with yesterday morning's celebrations, the Blue Puttees decided to hold another parade next night, and headed by the C.L.B. 150 of them left their club on Water Street and proceeded to the Park and New Gower Streets, Theatre Hill, Queen's Mill and King's Bridge Roads, thence the Government House grounds the King's Bridge entrance. The band also marched and both the other bands' music was stirring and inspiring. Thousands followed the parade to the concert, and a number of wounded Puttees drove in cabs, from where they set off fireworks. This, although not so big, and not prepared to do so, was much more enthusiastic, the civilians and soldiers being and cheering lustily. (That when they were not going up a hill, the next day.)

At the Government House, the parade was met by Mr. Horwood, the Administrator, who was accompanied by Lady Horwood and attended by Lt.-Col. Knox, A.D.C. Following the rendering of the National Anthem by the band, ex-Sergt. Harold Mitchell gave a short address, warmly commending the people on their efforts in upholding and supporting the King and the country. He then turned to his Excellency for commendation to the King, an address to the Veterans, expressing their appreciation of their services in which His Majesty conducted the affairs of the Empire during the greatest struggle the world has had the misfortune to witness. (Cheers for the King.) The Administrator spoke next, and told of his pleasure in welcoming the soldiers, both of their share in bringing about victory. The war had been won, but it was a peace-loving nation that had broken out into the peaceful occupations. The obligations had been achieved, and the conditions and policy of government which other colonial fighters, who soaked the soil of America in blood, and who were not of their own accord, had sought for gain or conquest, they were not of their own accord. "I congratulate you on your success," said Sir William, "and I may say, I envy you your part in the great struggle. The result to-day is tempered with sorrow and broken health has not been in vain. Those who had returned with a price of victory, and they are never to be forgotten. They, speaking,

Marshal Foch.
(From the St. John Telegraph.)
Another name has been added to the list of the world's great military commanders of all times. If Germany agrees to an armistice without further fighting, and while she has still a powerful army, it will detract nothing from the lustre of the name of Marshal Foch. His work has been accomplished. He has made it possible for the Allied armies to dictate the terms of peace. We are too near the events, and our minds too much distracted by day to day happenings of momentous interest to grasp fully the broad lines of strategy designed by him, and the military programme adhered to with abiding faith in the face of defeat as well as victory, until his enemies one after another threw up their hands in surrender. We can see now, however, the result of patience doggedly exercised until the time was ripe, and then the swift and terrible blows delivered at different fronts, all coordinated, and all leading up to and culminating in a deadly assault on all fronts, which in turn smashed Bulgaria, Turkey and Austria, and set the enemy in rapid retreat in France and Belgium. The history of war will contain no more brilliant chapter than that which will tell the story of the grim, silent, patient, tireless commander who, with an eye on every fighting front, never for a moment lost faith in his policy or in his armies, and made his moves as calmly and deliberately as if he were directing a general parade instead of the most momentous conflict in human history. Foch knew his generals and they knew him. More than that, the

NOTES.
In reporting yesterday's parade, we omitted mention of the N.B.S., a representative body, of which took part therein.
Monday night, hundreds of dollars worth of fireworks and stage powder were used in celebrating the Allies' victory.
A party of French naval sailors from the patrol boat in the stream, to the accompaniment of a banjo and lusty voices, paraded up and down the streets, followed by the usual small boy. Playing the Marseillaise in a lively manner, the gallant Frenchmen danced to the music as they marched.
These celebrations lasted well up to midnight. A horse became frightened on New Gower Street, and dashed up towards the west, narrowly escaping telegraph poles and other horses. No damage was done. Last night also great quantities of fireworks were set off and guns were fired, at intervals, from various naval units in port.
For an impromptu affair last night's demonstration was carried out fairly well, but there was lots of room for improvement. Nevertheless the Blue Puttees are to be congratulated upon having beaten the official demonstra-
"hands down."

"Sparks" of the Army.

The Work of the Wireless Signals Corps.
There are many regiments taking an active part in the war who come in to the official "limelight" but very little, who, nevertheless, do work of a highly important nature, and in this category can be placed the Royal Engineers' Wireless Signals, or "Sparks" of the Army.
An essential part of any wireless station, as everyone knows, is the aerial; but to erect an aerial in a very near the line is a ticklish business, for it must be so placed as not to be seen by the enemy.
The difficulty on some parts of the front, where a rise in the ground occurs, is easily overcome, but where there are no natural aids of this description the work entailed calls for great resource. A corps of broked trees however, is a "Sparks" paradise, for here he has the masts ready erected for his aerial wires, although the actual placing of the wires in position is far from being easy.
"Corporal Jones, take your station up to report to the battalion commander, and give us your position as soon as possible."
"Send Over Shells."

As these few words are spoken by the wireless officer, the men concerned look their instruments over, test batteries, and gather together the varied gear of the station in a very short time the station is on its way to report, being taken as near as possible to the "line" in a box-car of the weight of a wireless outfit is not so light as to be carried on one's little finger by means of a cord.
Having erected as near to battalion headquarters as is possible, its position is wireless back to the "control station," and then all day and night messages are being received and delivered to headquarters.
The battalion to which the station is attached may be subjected to a heavy bombardment or a surprise attack, and as likely as not all lines of communication are broken. "Out flashes the appeal to the artillery—'S.O.S.—S.O.S.—S.O.S.' (send over shells)," and shortly there comes a counter-bombardment which effectively stops the enemy, and may a battalion owes its life to "Sparks" and his S. O. S.
Thus is the average man's lot of a "French set." Cavalry have their own mounted wireless, Artillery have theirs for work of aeroplane spotting, but whatever their work is in connection with, you will find these men with many a decoration for devotion to duty; and when the official history of this war is written the world will read of the work of these men of whose existence it knew very little.

JUST A COLD.

By RUTH CAMERON.

I wonder if we shall ever again say so nonchalantly as we have in the past, "It's just a cold" or "Nothing but a cold" after this experience of what "just a cold" can grow into when it tries its over. I hope not. I hope that people will learn what a wise thing it is to get right at a cold with rest, warmth, fresh air, laxatives, and gargles, the first moment it begins to send that chilly feeling up and down one's spine, and to cause the familiar and unpleasant sensation in nose and throat. (Don't wait till the second moment and then tell me the treatment didn't work.)

Perhaps The Employer Will Say, "Take A Day Off."

I hope employers will learn that it is worth while to send the employee who shows signs of a cold, home at once with a pledge to spend the day in rest, rather than wait until he or she has to be out several days and until half a dozen others have been infected. (This is a thing which, my readers may remember, I advocated some years ago. Several employers at that time wrote in to say that they either had adopted that plan or were about to.)

Perhaps People Will Learn to Sneeze Properly.

I hope that people will come to realize that a sneeze, in spite of the funny noise it makes, is not really funny at all. I was delighted when I read in the newspaper that in some sections of the country people who sneezed or coughed in public places without covering their mouths with a handkerchief, were actually arrested. I hope public opinion (so many people think it is clever to dodge a city ordinance who would not for the world go against public opinion) will back up this movement, and make sneezing or coughing or spitting without protecting society by the use of a handkerchief, such a fearful breach of etiquette that no decent person will want to be caught doing it.

Perhaps We Shall Not Have Wholly Lost.

Suppose, because of our experience with a virulent form of cold, we should in the future get rid of one-quarter of the illness caused by "just a cold" neglected and generously handed around by careless coughers and sneezers. The economic gain alone would go into millions, to say nothing of the decrease in suffering and in the death rate.

If that could come about, it would surely mean that this very ill wind, which has been sweeping at a seventy-mile-an-hour rate through a large part of this continent has indeed blown to some good end.

Films by Wireless.
 The progress which has been made in cinematography during the last few years is nothing to the developments which experts confidently anticipate. They foresee the time when cinematography will be linked up with wireless telegraphy and other scientific inventions. Experiments are already being made with the telegraph—in America, needless to say. Quite recently a short film was telegraphed from Chicago to New York.

It is easy to imagine the outcome of experiments in this direction. Events taking place at the ends of the earth may be shown on screens in London the day after they are enacted. There is no limit to the possibilities. Some authorities are anticipating the time when, by the employment of wireless telegraphy, it will be possible to show a troupe of performers in a thousand different theatres at the moment of the actual occurrence.

THE LITTLE SOLDIER.
 They measured him and took his weight.
 They wrote him down as much too small.
 But little men have courage great.
 Which doctors cannot guess at all.
 His right to office they denied.
 "Not big enough to lead," they said.
 And home he came to us and cried,
 Refusing to be comforted.

Three times they offered him a place
 Where all in safety he might work.
 Three times he said, with upturned face:
 "I'll be a fighter, not a clerk."

At last the army took him in—
 "Buck private and he had his chance.
 And there was meaning in his grin.
 The day he sailed away for France.

"I'll show them, some day, dad," said he,
 "That all their measurements are wrong!
 That it is what men cannot see,
 That makes a fellow weak or strong.
 And ninety pounds of sterling grit
 Are worth two hundred pounds of bluff.
 I'm small but I will never quit,
 I'll show them that I've got the stuff."

"He was so small to lead," they said,
 Not large enough for shoulder straps,
 And now the word comes that he's dead—
 A smile upon his face, perhaps:
 For when his officers were killed
 At St. Mihiel, that bitter day,
 His missing captain's place he filled.
 "Come on!" he cried. "I'll lead the way!"

His chums are writing home to tell
 How Jamie led that faltering line
 Into the very jaws of hell.
 And cheered them on with courage
 "We was too small and under weight.
 He was too small and under weight.
 But now that he may fight no more,
 His soul is ranked among the great.

PAINFUL CHILBLAINS.

Cold and dampness work havoc with sensitive feet, therefore, they should be kept from moisture and penetrating cold. They should not be permitted to become wet with rain or slush for the latter will produce a flourishing crop of chilblains more quickly than any indiscretion.

Every precaution should be taken to keep the feet warm and dry. Inner soles counteract the effects of dampness and are available in varying grades of thickness, and every size. Cork soles are excellent and appear in various styles of walking boots. When these are not worn, a shoe with a substantial sole, not of paperweight, give the feet the necessary protection.

While cloth top shoes are fashionable they do not keep the dampness out and the heat in as leather does. A change of hoisery and shoes should be made the first possible moment after they have become wet. This is all essential. Rubbers are very trying and for this reason I suggest the wearing of sandals and cloth gaiters instead of rubbers which envelop the feet. The natural perspiration of the feet has no chance of being absorbed and consequently the moisture renders the feet sensitive to chilblains.

Another frequent cause of chilblains is a sluggish circulation to which persons of sedentary habits are prone. Cold feet and cold limbs result and of course it is but a short step to trouble. Walking daily for half an hour or longer in good weather is advised as a means of stimulating the circulation and as a means of encouraging deep breathing.

There are special exercises to bring the blood to the feet and limbs and these should be religiously followed night and morning. The diet likewise plays an important part and should be of simple, nourishing nature, calculated to enrich the blood and provide for sufficient warmth. Where the blood is impoverished, it is necessary to correct this condition before any tendency toward chilblains can be corrected.

George Washington's Seal.

It will surprise many people to learn that the seal used by George Washington when he signed the Declaration of Independence in 1776 is not in the archives at Washington. When the epoch-making document was signed, Washington used his own private seal, the matrix of which is of onyx, and on it is engraved an eagle. After adhibiting his signature, as a matter of course, Washington retained the seal, probably thinking little or nothing of its historic value. At his death, having no children, the seal passed, either by bequest or in the ordinary way of succession, to his adopted daughter, who in turn gave it to one of the d'Hautpoul family, in whose hands it has remained ever since, or, at least, until recently, when the Countess d'Hautpoul presented it to the American Ambassador in Paris as a national heirloom.

It goes without saying that the Countess has received from the Ambassador a letter acknowledging her graceful act in the lettered elegance which has characterized the correspondence of Ambassadors to Europe of the great Republic from the time of Franklin and Washington Irving down to the present time.

A most excellent evening wrap is of light plush edged with kid. Velveteen is much used to brocade chiffons, raddiums and marquisettes. So many one-piece dresses are made of a combination of materials.

WHAT'S THE USE.

The men in power make sad mistakes, and we can adopt the other plan, but what's the use? A thousand things were left undone in scores of ways we've wasted money and we can snort around like fun, but what's the use? Our airship program fell down flat; we've bailed up this and bailed up that; and we can lecture through a hat, but what's the use? With Bill's vim we're setting there, our costails flapping in the air; we still may wear the brow of care, but what's the use? We shook off all our peace time sloth and went abroad and cut a swath; we still may talk of soup and broth, but what's the use? We made some gorgeous breaks at first, and every blunder seemed the worst, and into tears we still may burst, but what's the use? There are a million reasons why we ought to wave our hats on high, we still may spring a briny eye, but what's the use? Our every thought and every mood should be tinged with gratitude; in doubts and fears we may be stewed, but what's the use?

The Price of Defeat.

Present methods of recruiting are very different from those employed by Captain H. R. Holmes, of the 26th Sikhs, in 1887.

Captain Holmes was a first-class, all-round athlete, with the reputation of being the strongest man in India at the time, and, knowing the Sikhs' fine sporting qualities, and their particular keenness for wrestling, he toured the villages in his district challenging all the young men to meet him in the ring.

Died of Sheer Disgust.

Hagenbeck's circus has suffered a severe loss. A train conveying the animals to Steglitz was derailed at the goods station here. It was then found that four valuable lions were dead. An examination established the fact that the lions had suffered no injury whatever, and it was concluded that they had died of sheer horror and disgust.—Berlin Vorwaerts.

ARRANGEMENTS TO ARMISTICE TERMS.
 WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 12.
 by Marshal Foch after his first meeting with the German plenipotentiaries, announced to-night by the department, include the delivery of German submarines, instead of the 180 specified in the original terms of the armistice. Another amendment specifies that "the countries on the left bank of the Rhine evacuated by the Germans shall be administered by the local troops of occupation. Instead of immediate withdrawal of German troops from Russia as originally provided, the amended terms specify that they shall be withdrawn as the Allies, taking into consideration the internal situation of the countries of Russia" shall decide the time for this has come.

Revisions made in the amount of corollary equipment to be delivered by the Germans to the Associated governments, including 25,000 tons of machine guns and 1,000 airplanes instead of 2,000. The number of railway cars to be delivered, however, is increased threefold from 50,000 to 150,000. It is against the delivery of this amount of rolling stock that Dr. Soeff, the German Foreign Secretary, has protested to President Wilson, asserting that the disposition of food in Germany to the population will be greatly hampered. Another amendment provides that the Allies and the United States give consideration to its proposals to the extent recognized as necessary. To assure the execution of the Armistice convention under the conditions the principle of a permanent international armistice commission will "act under the authority of Allied military and naval commands in chief." An amendment to the clause provides that all vessels designated to be interned shall sail to leave German ports within three days of the signing of the armistice. Directions for the voyage (to neutral ports or those of the neutral countries to be designated) will be given by wireless. Other amendments include "renunciation" instead of "abandonment" of the treaties of 1864 and 1871 with Prussia and of the 1871 and 1872 treaties with the Empire of Austria-Hungary. Evacuation of German forces operating in East Prussia within a period to be fixed by the Allies instead of within one month. German troops are required to withdraw immediately from Austria-Hungary as well as from Roumania and Bulgaria. Evacuation by the enemy of islands (left and right bank) shall be no ordered as to be completed within thirty-one days in all, after the signing of the armistice instead of thirty days.

Mr. Asquith seconding, declared "it was clear that the war was not only ended, but could not be resumed. He trusted we had entered a chapter of international history in which war would be regarded as an anachronism. The House could do nothing but acknowledge its gratitude to Almighty God."

APPROVE OF TERMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11. Unanimous approval of the armistice terms imposed on Germany was voted today by members of Congress. Did Child Wake Up Cross or Feverish.

Look Mother! If tongue is coated give "California Syrup of Figs" to clean the bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhea, remember, a gentle liver and bowels cleansing should always be the first treatment given. Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours, all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "cleanse" of the bowels. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Co."

Obituary.

MRS. GEORGE GOOBY.

On September 2nd, the Angel of Death called for another mother of "Foster's Point" in the person of Mrs. George Gooby. That mother who, three days ago, was to be found healthy and robust, but owing to the Spanish influenza, taking hold of her family, she, toiling for their good, developed the disease, and in a very short time was called from her beloved husband and circle of offspring to Him who will do all things for the good of His children. Yes! as is often said—a mother is missed. How sad to think of, that her sweet counsel will no longer be given, the mother's kind voice being hushed. She to-day lies mouldering in the clay. At the age of 46 years she—

"Left all for God, Self and the world and wealth At God's one word. Without question, without reserve, Without delay, Happy in death."

To the sorrowing husband and children we extend our heartfelt sympathy. To her mother residing at Elliott's Cove, Random West, who is today going through the valley of sorrow, we remember and bear her to Him who arranges all things aright, and controls our destinies. Also to the number of other relatives we extend much sympathy. The presence which has taken or shall take your dearest loved one from your sight, is only God's high ambassador sent to lead that loved one to the couch which God has spread for his beloved. Comfort your heart with those wonderful words: "He giveth His beloved sleep."

A Tribute to Premier Lloyd George.

The British Weekly says: "More and more the true history of this war is being revealed, and becomes more and more apparent that the Prime Minister has been the heart and soul of the War Cabinet, and that it is his action primarily that has led to the present position of hope. For this we need only quote the words of Marshal Foch to Mr. Lloyd George: 'I do not forget that it is in your persistent confidence I owe the position I now occupy.' As Mr. Garvin says, 'That testimony is final.' If there was to be any unified command, Great Britain had to set the example of subordination. Only Britain could subordinate herself, and she could do so only to a man of saving genius as her leader. It is putting the case mildly to say, reckoning the whole work of the last four years, the Allies' cause could never have reached its position today, without the personal effort of Mr. Lloyd George. The story will yet be written of the private opposition he had to face. We are free now to say that Salonica was retained by the efforts of Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Albert Thomas. At first the whole of the British Cabinet, following Lord Kitchener, was in favour of evacuation, but it was owing to the representations made by the statesmen we have mentioned that this was avoided and our victories in the East were made possible."

Mangin, the Marvellous.

A BULL-DOG FIGHTER WHO NEVER GIVES IN.

General Mangin, whose recent brilliant fighting has made him world-famous, has been called "Foch's counterpart." And, indeed, there is a striking similarity between the two men. Both give the same impression of great mental force combined with physical strength. Mangin has the same cool, clever, calculating brain and inflexible will; the same gift of swift decision and indifference to what anybody may think about him; and each has made the science of war a life-study.

In appearance General Mangin is of middle height, with a square-built, powerful frame; keen, steady eyes, and a square, massive face—a bull-dog of a man who revels in fighting, and who, when he has "got his teeth in," will never let go until he has shaken the life out of his victim. He is a man of iron, to whom fatigue seems rest when he is aware of it. Every morning he rises at five, and at seven is inspecting his lines. And through the long day, until midnight, his work is only interrupted by hurriedly-snatched meals. Map-reading is his special study, and he gives several hours daily to it.

Like most great men, he is sparing of words; his orders are brief, sharp and peremptory. He is a stern disciplinarian, but he is just and patient, and his troops adore him.

In August, 1914, General Mangin commanded a brigade; three weeks later, so swift was his promotion, he was in command of a division. And from that day to this his work has been so brilliant as it has been successful.

Grates Cove Notes.

Most of the Fins cases about here are now over it, and there is no reason to think that this good result has been brought about by the quality or potency of the medicine dispensed. One man, with a family of five, all in bed, was not given a single dose of physio, and there were others.

If there is any credit to be given for checking the disease, Dr. Dunn is the man who should receive it. Day and night alike, he was on all calls, and through his ministrations the sick were made well. Only ten deaths occurred, five of which were children.

The Telegraph Office here needs to be looked after a little more. Either close it up altogether or send a competent operator, so that we can make our wants of doctor or clergyman known, without having to ask favours of the Reid Newfoundland Co. This is not good enough for Grates' Cove. "ONE WHO KNOWS."

Will London Stand Alone.

Other Great Capitals Have Fallen.

We all hope that Berlin will fall before the end of the war. If it does, it will only be undergoing the fate it has experienced twice already. For all its boasts of impregnability, the Prussian capital was taken by the Russians during the Seven Years' War, and by Napoleon in 1806.

Rome has been captured several times, notably in 1527, when it was stormed and sacked by the Constable Bourbon. Constantinople was taken by Mahomet II. in 1453. Vienna fell a prey to Napoleon in 1805, and again in 1809. The Corsican also took Madrid in 1808 and Moscow in 1812. Lisbon fell in 1807.

Even Washington, which had been regarded as safe, was taken by the British in 1812, and set on fire—an insult which was avenged by the redoubtable General Andrew Jackson when he inflicted a terrible thrashing on us at New Orleans.

Farther East, Peking was seized by a joint European expedition in 1842, and the Summer Palace burnt as a punishment for some massacre of which the Chinese had been guilty. Delhi has changed hands several times, and was stormed by the British during the repression of the Mutiny in 1857.

Paris was surrendered to our Henry V. after Agincourt, and was occupied by the Allies in 1814, and again in 1815, following Waterloo. After the siege of 1870-71 it was only formally occupied by the Germans—a Prussian cavalry regiment rode into it and then promptly rode out again.

The only two great capitals which have never been occupied by enemy armies in modern times are Petrograd and London. Should the Germans enter the city of Peter the Great, London will stand proudly alone—the only big capital which has never been captured.

The British Army's Glorious Part.

(From the Rochester Times-Union.)

In reviewing the glorious results of the last three months' fighting, no American should fail to appreciate the work of the British Army. We are accustomed to giving credit to France, as a matter of course. We are naturally prompt to acknowledge the fine efforts of our own forces. We are generally a little slower, somehow, to give the British their due. It should be frankly acknowledged that the major part of the heavy fighting in this tremendous and prolonged drive has been borne by General Haig's army. The bulldog stubbornness of Haig and his men has been the biggest factor in smashing the western flank of the German army and rolling the invaders out of northern France and western Belgium. The other Allies have fought no less nobly and heroically, but the British have kept it more continuously and have had larger numbers engaged. The casualty lists as well as the roll of captured cities tell the tale. Up to the end of September the British had lost 700,000 men in killed, wounded and missing this year. In times of particularly heavy fighting they have lost more than 40,000 a week. They are still losing heavily. The American troops have done a good deal of hard fighting and suffered and losses, and yet our reported casualties so far are only about 60,000 since we entered the war. Those British losses, it must be remembered, come after four years of gruelling struggle, during which millions of men have fallen. The wonder is that they can keep it up.

He Blocked the Paris Road.

A Great General of France.

In the early days of July, 1914, two middle-aged men of military bearing might have been seen pacing, arm in arm, up and down the promenade of a small seaside resort in Finistere. One was Foch Professor at the Higher Military School in Paris; the other was Fayolle, who had just retired from his Professional Chair in the War College.

To-day the "arm-chair strategist," as Foch was then dubbed, is the world's greatest soldier and saviour; and the retired Professor is one of the most brilliant and famous of France's generals.

When the war-trumpets first sounded, Fayolle was recalled from his retirement and holiday-making to command a division in battle, and it was not long before he showed the world what stuff the Finistere idler was made of. Early in 1915, Carenay was assigned the almost superhuman task of sweeping the enemy out of Carenay.

How magnificently he accomplished the "impossible" after three hours of bombardment from a thousand guns, driving the last Hun out of his lair within a few hours, the world knows. It was one of the most amazing feats of the war, and it made Fayolle.

From that day one brilliant feat, many of them almost hopeless, has succeeded another. In the Somme fighting he performed prodigies, driving the Germans back from their "impregnable" position, and capturing 30,000 prisoners. He hurried back the enemy from Verdun; and at a critical moment finally blocked the road to Paris.

Iron of the Human Body.

"Eat plenty of spinach and egg-yolk," says the doctor.

His languid patient is pale-cheeked and evidently needs a tonic. There is reason to suspect that her blood is lacking in iron.

A few years ago the physician in such a case would have written a prescription for tincture of iron, to be taken three times a day, but medical science is getting away from drugs.

White of eggs is almost pure albumen, but the yolk is a highly complex substance, the iron it contains being doubtless provided for the benefit of the developing chick.

Lean beef, the cereal grains, beans and peas, apples, prunes and dandelion greens are rich in iron. Milk contains it, else young babies would soon die. Beef juice is good for children a little older, partly on account of the iron there is in it.

One naturally asks, what is the iron good for? The answer is that it seems to be essential to healthy cell growth. But first and foremost it is required by the red corpuscles of the blood, which are the carriers of oxygen. If the supply of it be not adequate, the lack is made manifest by pale lips and cheeks. There is a condition of "anemia."

Tincture of iron is not agreeable to take and is likely to discolour the
