The Romance of a Marriage.

CHAPTER XXXV.

"So it did," says Alice. "or I shouldn't have gone. I've always been a little nervous about the sea; but it looked like glass, and so it was until we got far out. But the trouble commenced before then. The yacht was an old, ugly thing, freshly done up, and the tar was wet; there wasn't a place you could sit on deck but it marked you. Poor May's dress is spilt, and Mr. Palmer's clothes, and Stancy—he was dressed in white flannel, and looked, before half-an-hour was over, as if he had been stoking a furnace."
 Paula laughs, and even Alice cannot suppress a miserable smile.
 "It's all very well to laugh; but it was serious. We might have been drowned, I tell you!"
 "How?" asks Paula.
 "Why—why," says Alice, trying not to speak spitefully, "Stancy had got an idea into his head that he could manage the vessel."
 "I see," says Paula, softly.
 "He—he is rather overconfident, I'm afraid," hesitates Alice, trying to make the best of it; "and—and no doubt it would have been all right, but a wind sprang up, and we got into a mess with the sails, and got into what one of the wretched men—I believe they were all intoxicated, half the champagne was missing—called a choppy sea; and—"
 A pause.
 "Well!"
 "Oh, we were all ill!—Mr. Palmer, and Stancy, and—that is right, laugh!" indignantly.
 Paula struggles with the laughter that threatens to break through the barrier of restraint, but she only partially succeeds.
 "I am very sorry, I am indeed, Alice. How miserable it must have been!"
 "Miserable! It was wretched! If you could have seen us lying about, helpless, covered with tar, and expecting to be drowned, even you"—angrily—"would have been sorry! And that wasn't all—"

"No!"
 "No. When we came in the tide was out, and we had to come to shore in boats, and the boats couldn't come quite to land, and we had to be carried in the men's arms or on their backs, and that finished my dress! One of the men—he was awfully intoxicated—dropped Stancy!"
 This time it is impossible to keep the laughter back, and Paula clasps her hands and collapses, and presently Alice laughs too.
 Alice stops suddenly.
 "You mustn't laugh to-night, mind."
 "To-night—why not?"
 "He wouldn't like it. You know how touchy he is."
 "Who?"
 "Who!" impatiently. "Why, Stancy. We are to dine at the hotel with them this evening."
 Paula is silent.
 "They were very kind," goes on Alice, struggling out of her wet and ruined dress. "In the midst of it Mr. Palmer crawled on his hands and knees to give me brandy. Ugh!—with a shudder—"I shall hate the smell of brandy for the rest of my life!"
 "And May—how is May?"
 "Oh, all right," says Alice, with sublime indifference. "Yes, be careful not to laugh when they tell you about it to-night, and don't hint that you think it was Stancy's fault, which you are sure to do, in that abominably rough way of yours, if you don't take care."
 "And—and you want me to go to-night?" says Paula in a low voice.
 Alice eyes her impatiently.
 "Want you to go? Anyone would think I had told you to go to prison! Of course you must go—I can't go alone. And at least I deserve a good dinner and a pleasant evening for all I have endured for your sake."
 "Well, I—will go," says Paula, gravely.
 "Yes, you had better," says Alice, with a significance in her tone. Then she colours, and says, with forced calmness, "Paula, there is a special reason why you should go to-night."
 "A special reason! What is it?" says Paula, looking up at her.
 Alice brushes her hair vigorously.
 "Because—Paula, my dear, I have got some good news for you."
 "Good news!"
 The colour flies to Paula's face, then leaves it pale and anxious. One wild hope flits to her heart—can it be news of Rick? But no—no good news of him can be possible for her.
 "Good news, the best possible," says Alice. "I wish you would sit down, and not stare so; I hate to be stared at while I am talking."
 Paula sinks into a chair, and drops her eyes to the slip of carpet that runs round the bed in the meagre, lodging-house fashion.
 "It—it is about Mr. Palmer," says Alice. "I think he meant to speak to me last night, only there wasn't an opportunity. He came and sat beside me in the cabin almost as soon as we had started, and of course before we were utterly wretched. He was very kind and—and quite opened his mind to me."
 Paula stares and colours.
 "Has he asked you to marry him?" she exclaims.
 Alice reddens.

WITH FINGERS! CORNS LIFT OUT

Freezone is magic! Corns and calluses lift right off— Doesn't hurt a bit!

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly that troublesome corn or callus stops hurting, then shortly you lift it out, root and all, without any pain, soreness or irritation. These little bottles of Freezone contain just enough to rid the feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and the calluses on bottom of feet. So easy! So simple. Why wait? No humbug!

"No. I wish to Heaven he had! Who on earth but you would have thought of that?"

"I beg your pardon. What was it, then?"

"It was about Stancy," says Alice. "Poor fellow! What a good fellow he is, with all his faults! It seems that the poor fellow has been rather wild lately, quite upset, in fact, and his father has been very much troubled about him. Mr. Palmer was naturally most anxious, and couldn't account for it, until they learnt that Stancy had something on his mind."

Paula is just about to remark that it must be a very small something, or Mr. Stancy's "mind" wouldn't hold it; but she wisely retrains.

"Something on his mind," repeats Alice, gravely and solemnly, "something that has made him reckless, and desperate, and—all that, and at last Mr. Palmer asked him pointblank, and the poor fellow admitted that he was in love."

Paula's eyes trace the pattern of the carpet.

"He admitted that he was deeply—deeply attached to a certain young lady, and that he should never be happy unless she consented to accept him, and—and—of course his father asked her name."

Silence for a moment.

"Now, Paula, of course you know who it is. There is no occasion for evasion or affectation; of course it was you."

Paula's lips open, but Alice holds up her hand.

"Stop a minute. Let me tell you all that passed. Mr. Palmer told me all this, and—with tears in his eyes—asked me if I thought there was any chance for Stancy. Fancy asking if there was any chance for Stancy! He Palmer, the son of one of the richest men of the day. I told him, of course with all proper reserve, that I thought there might be—"

"Alice!"
 "Hear me out; and he was quite overdone; he—said, of course, that Stancy, with his prospects, might have expected to look high—very high indeed, and that he might have married into the nobility; but under the circumstances, and to save Stancy, whose heart was set upon you, he would give way—hear me out!—and he was most liberal—liberal!—no, lavish and princely! He told me to tell you that he would settle three thousand a year on you, and give you a thousand pounds on the day of the marriage."

Silence, for the full effect of the offer to sink into Paula's mind.

"Three thousand—a year!" says Alice, with solemn intensity. "It is magnificent—three thousand for your own private use! Great Heaven! And more! a thousand pounds down to go what you like with—and no questions asked. I thought of Bob—poor Bob!—directly—"

A low, stifling cry breaks from Paula's white lips.

"I thought—I knew where that money will go! It will be the making of poor Bob, starving and struggling away at the other end of the world—"

"Don't—don't!" pleads Paula; but Alice knows her strong point too well to relinquish it.

"I thought, I know Paula's true, generous heart too well to fear that she will throw away the chance of making poor Bob happy. And I told him that I would speak to you, and we arranged that Stancy should try his fortune to-night!"

A pause.
 "So now, dear, you see why you must go don't you? Three thousand a year! Why, if he had offered to settle a thousand, it would have been amply sufficient, and all that could be expected. But three thousand! And that is, of course, not all. When he goes there will be oceans more. My dear, you are a very fortunate girl!"

Silence for a moment. Then Paula rises and looks at her, pitiously, imploringly.

"Alice—"

"Well!" with affected cheerfulness.
 "Alice, I—I cannot do this. It is impossible. Oh, I cannot, cannot! If you know what it is you ask; but you cannot—will not understand! Alice, not even for Bob's sake could I do this. Ask yourself—put yourself in my place! You know what has passed; you know—oh, it is hard to speak of it while you stand there, cold and scornful—but don't you know that when I said good-bye to—so Rick, all the love in my heart went with it; and that the mere thought of marrying anyone—stiffes me!" and she puts her hand to her throat as if, indeed, she were suffocating. "Let there—let there be an end of it!" she says, white and desperate. "I know all that the offer means, and, if it were possible, I would sell myself—"

"Sell—" breaks wrathfully, passionately, from Alice's scornful lips.

"Yes, sell!" says Paula, trembling.
 "But I don't complain; it is the way of the world! Everything can be bought now, everything—even women; but; but—oh, Heaven!—what is there in me that he should want to buy my trembling soul when there are so many thousands ready to sell themselves?"

With the brushes clenched in her hands, Alice confronts her.

"You—you refuse!" she says, white with passion. "Selfish, heartless girl! Leave my room—get out of my sight, or you will drive me mad!" and indeed she looks almost insane.

"Alice—"

"Go!" she says, pointing to the door. "You and I must part. I have borne with this farce long enough—go!"

Paula, pale but steadfast, goes slowly out, and leaves Alice statuesque, with the brushes outstretched and her soul in a frenzy. Baulked ambition, and worldliness, and greed—for she has said nothing about a certain generous "present" which Mr. Palmer has promised her—deplete themselves graphically on her face, which is distorted out of all its usual prettiness.

How long she stands thus wrestling with disappointment and rage she does not know; it may be an hour, or a half only, but she is roused by the opening of the door and turns to pour a fierce torrent of scorn upon Paula, when the volume is arrested on her lips, and the blood flits to her heart with a sudden amazement; for there is something in Paula's face which now is white as that of the dead—something in the dark eyes, hollow and fixed as if with despair, that gives the schemer a sharp stroke of hope.

"Well!" she says, with a breath, and her eyes swiftly glance at an open letter which Paula has in her clenched hand.

Paula comes up to her and stands quite firm and untroubled, and looks at her, with a far-way look in her eyes that seem to pass through Alice as if she were but a phantom.

"I have come back," she says in a low, hollow, mechanical voice.
 "Yes," eagerly, almost affrightedly.
 "I—have changed my mind."

A MODEL VERY ATTRACTIVE FOR SLENDER FIGURES.

Pattern 3101, cut in 3 Sizes: 14, 16, and 20 years, is here depicted. Its crepe de meteor was used for the development, with head embroidery for decoration. This would be nice in brown satin or crepe, with embroidery in colors. The 16 year size will require 5 1/2 yards of 36 inches material, with 3 yards of ribbon or material 1/2 inches wide, for the sash. Width of skirt at lower edge is 1 1/2 yard. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A SMART GOWN.

Pattern 3107 here illustrated is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 38 will require 5 1/2 yards of 44 inch material. Width of skirt at lower edge is about 1 1/2 yard. As here shown grey taffeta was used, braided with white soutache. One could have this in brown serge or satin, with worsted, head or chenille embroidery. Black velvet with facings of ivory satin, or taupe duvetyne with old blue pipings would be very attractive for this design. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

French Cabinet Will Consider Railway Strike.

Critical Situation in Japan -- Number of Candidates for U.S. Presidency -- Germans Advocate Repudiation of Versailles Treaty -- Berlin Now the Bolshevik Mecca -- Mixed Reception of Home Rule Bill.

GENERAL RAILROAD STRIKE ON.

PARIS, Feb. 29. Orders for a general railroad strike have been issued by the National Federation of Railroad men. Reports current last night that this action had not been taken, but confirmation could not be obtained until late this forenoon. The orders end in advising that the greatest calm be preserved, that all measures be taken to assure safety. Direction is also given that no damage be done. "Work will not be resumed except by order of the Executive Committee," is the concluding sentence of the order. A Cabinet meeting has been called for seven o'clock to-night.

NO FURTHER SYMPATHY FOR STRIKE.

PARIS, Feb. 29. Paris newspapers are unanimous to-day in declaring the public absolutely out of sympathy with the railroad strike. While expressing the hope that it will come to an end swiftly, the newspapers say they consider it to be the duty of every citizen to support the Government in the present struggle.

FRENCH RETREAT BEFORE THE TURKS.

LONDON, Feb. 29. An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Cairo announces that the Turks and Arabs have occupied Alexandretta, in southeastern Asia Minor. This, it is believed, may indicate that French forces in this region are steadily retreating before enemy concentrations on the Antioch-Marash line.

WILSON SIGNS RAILROAD BILL.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. President Wilson signed the Railroad Bill last night on the eve of the return of the roads to their owners and to private operation. In a proclamation issued at the time, the President vested in Walker Hines, director general of railroads, practically all the powers conferred on the executive by the bill.

SOMETHING DOING IN JAPAN?

LONDON, Feb. 28. "The Daily Telegraph says serious information was received here Friday night regarding situation in Japan." No details are given by newspapers.

NOT CONFIRMED.

LONDON, Feb. 29. In reply to inquiries relative to a statement printed in the Daily Telegraph this morning that "Serious information was received here Friday night regarding the situation in Japan. The Japanese Embassy declared this forenoon that it had no information of anything untoward occurring in that country.

MILLION REFUSED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. The House unanimously refused Saturday to appropriate a million dollars for use until July 1st in attempting to prevent smuggling of liquor over Canadian and American borders. The provisions for the appropriation had been inserted in the general efficiency bill by the Senate.

PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANTS.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 29. The names of Herbert Hoover, Major General Wood, Attorney General Mitchell Palmer, and Senator Miles Poindexter, were added Saturday to the list of those who will appear on the Presidential preference primary ballot in Michigan, April 5th. Petitions were received by the Secretary of State to place Hoover, Wood and Poindexter on the Republican ballot, and Palmer on the democratic ticket.

WILL VISIT ST. JOHN'S IN MAY.

HALIFAX, Feb. 29. Dr. W. T. Grenfell and Mrs. Grenfell are among the passengers on the steamer Carmania, which arrived here on Saturday from Liverpool and sailed to-day for New York. They have been in England for the last three months where the doctor has been lecturing. He will lecture in New York for a month, following which he will lecture in Canada, and after that in New England States. In early May he and Mrs. Grenfell will go to St. John's, Nfld., to work on new hospital projects. The object of Dr. Grenfell's lecture is to arouse interest in the work he is carrying on among the fishermen on Northern Newfoundland and Labrador coasts and secure endowments for the extension of his work. Dr. and Mrs. Grenfell proceeded on the Carmania to New York.

STEAMER IN DISABLED CONDITION.

SYDNEY, N.S., March 1. Cape Race received reports about 1 o'clock this morning that the American Shipping Board steamer Davidson County was sending out S.O.S. calls. The steamer was reported in a disabled condition in latitude 38.30 and longitude 33.30 west. The Davidson County sailed from Fayal.

IN PURSUIT OF BANDITS.

NOGALES, Ariz., Feb. 29. Deputy Sheriffs from Santa Cruz County and a posse from Tucson with bloodhounds, crossed the international line into Mexico last night in pursuit of bandits who killed Alexander Fraser and shot his brother, J. A. Fraser, in a raid yesterday, on their store at Montana camp. Fraser was born in Canada.

THE TREATY FIGHT.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 29. An entirely new turn in the treaty fight will be manifest in the Senate to-morrow as a result of President Wilson's statement to Democratic Senators that he would pigeon hole the treaty if the Lodge reservation to Article X should be adopted. Urgent pleas are being made to many of the irreconcilables to come in and vote for ratification of the Lodge reservations as a matter of party politics.

THE HOME RULE BILL.

LONDON, Feb. 28. The Press reception of the Home Rule Bill is rather mixed, but the Times recognizes the bill as based upon sound principles within limits, but says that it conveys the impression that the framers had not the full courage of their convictions. The Telegraph, Unionist, says nothing editorially, and the Morning Post declares that never since the compilation of the Athanasian creed has there been so inglorious a document. It prophesies that Ireland will remain hostile to the bill and will not give these islands any peace. It will only transfer the old conflict to a new battlefield. The Daily Chronicle, Liberal, approves of the bill, thinks that the financial terms are extremely generous and regards as most vital the part of the measure which enables the two Parliaments to come together at any time by agreement.

The Daily Mail, which has been a severe critic of the Government's Irish policy, thinks the bill good, but not good enough as regards dominion powers for the Irish Parliament. The Daily Graphic, Unionist, calls it a weakening with a bad family history and the Daily News, Independent Liberal, is silent.

PRAISE FOR GEDDES.

LONDON, Feb. 29. The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial about Sir Auckland Geddes' appointment as Ambassador to Washington, pays tribute to the distinction of his public service and refers to his relinquishment of the principality of McGill University as giving up a post which is one of the greatest prizes in Academic work and which his personal preference inclined him to make the crown of his career.

LAW-BREAKERS WILL BE PUNISHED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. All persons found violating the Federal Prohibition Enforcement Act will be proceeded against to the limit of the law irrespective of any state statutes legalizing the sale of liquors, it was announced to-day by Commissioner Roper of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

GERMANS NOW TRYING TO HOLD SHIPS.

BERLIN, Feb. 29. One hundred and twenty vessels, including eight battleships and a number of cruisers, were handed over to the Entente by the German Government under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles, according to an announcement made at a meeting of the Association of German fishermen at Hamburg to-day. The vessels, the announcement said, would be manned by officers of the German mercantile marine. Excitement prevails at German seaports as the time approaches for the delivery of the last German mercantile ships, and several unions have appealed to the Government advocating retention of the boats. It is claimed that reconstruction of industry may be impossible, and that new disturbances in the labor market are inevitable.

TESTING THE GERMANS.

PARIS, Feb. 29. The War Criminals Commission has decided to send to Germany the names of forty-six men for trial before German courts. This, it was announced, will be the test of good faith upon which the Allies have agreed. The list it is expected will be forwarded to Berlin within a week. The British selected the names of seven, accused mostly of submarine atrocities, France selected twelve, Belgium fifty, and Italy, Poland and Roumania four each.

ALLEGED TREATY PROPOSALS.

BUENO SAIRES, Feb. 28. What purports to be the basis of Great Britain's proposals to the Soviet Government of Russia which James O'Grady, British representative at Copenhagen, transmitted to Maxim Litvinoff, representative of the Moscow Government, are contained in a despatch from the correspondent of "La Nation" in Rome, as follows: "First, tacit recognition of the Maximilianist political regime. Second, non-interference by Great Britain with respect to the internal conditions of those countries, separated from former Russian rule, namely, Finland, Estonia, Lithuania, Ukraine and Poland. Third, non-interference by Great Britain in affairs of Siberia. Fourth, demobilization of Red Army. Fifth, a promise by the Bolsheviks to recognize the independence of Meridional Republics, especially Georgia. Sixth, non-interference by Russia with territories on frontiers of Georgia and Persia. Seventh, payment in gold for goods exported or imported between Russia and Great Britain. Eighth, a regime of commercial equality for Russia and Great Britain in autonomous States on the Western Front. The correspondent says the Moscow Government is disposed to accept several of these points but that it is firm against the fourth and sixth points."

BOLSHEVIKS MOVE TO BERLIN.

LONDON, Feb. 28. Many foreign Bolshevik leaders have arrived at Berlin during the past few days, according to a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from the German capital. The best known of the leaders is the Hungarian, Alexander Garbai, whose visit the despatch says, is believed to be connected with the establishment of an international Bolshevik organization with headquarters in Berlin.

WARNS SOCIALISTS AGAINST REVOLUTION.

STRASSBOURG, Feb. 29. Paul Faure, French socialist, amid great confusion warned the National Socialist Congress to-day against "premature revolution." He declared that the Italian party "although extremely well organized has not yet found revolution possible."

Odd Uses of Sawdust.

Sawdust, which most of us regard as waste, has many uses besides the manufacture of paper, for which a century-old invention is to be applied. Oxalic acid is made from it; it is used for packing as well as smoking fish. Carbonized, it makes a better filter than ordinary charcoal.

Box wood sawdust is used for cleaning jewelry, and rosewood sawdust is compressed into artificial ebony. Furriers use it for dressing skins, while even small fragments of some woods, such as pencil cedar, are made to yield perfumes.

A peculiarity of sawdust is that it sinks in water, although the wood from which it is cut floats.—London

Some Traditions of Newfoundland.

Handed Down From the Garnered Stories of the Forefathers of the Race. Tales of Daring and Prowess on Land and Sea. Some Glimpses of the Fishery as Carried on Two Hundred Years Ago in Burin, Trinity, Tilton Harbor and Fogo. A Just Tribute to His Grace the Late Archbishop Howley and Rev. Canon Smith Who Accomplished so Much in Gathering up the Traditions of Their Native Land.

H. F. SHORTIS.

In a country like Newfoundland, all thoughtful men will admit that tradition must play a most important part in its contribution to its history. If we are to depend upon documentary evidence alone, we should find the History of Newfoundland sadly wanting in completeness. Our people, especially those in the outports, have been remarkable for treasuring traditions, and their accuracy in handing them down from generation to generation. From their peculiar environments and mode of life, this love for the retrospective has been fostered by them from time immemorial. It was their only source of passing the time during the long winter months of enforced idleness, and it has grown and developed in them to the extent that the patriarch of a village or hamlet was looked upon as the historian of the place, and he was perpetuating what was told him by his great grand-father; and by these means deeds and adventures of the very first settlers were kept fresh in the memory of every generation. The people of Newfoundland are remarkable for the accuracy with which they hand down the traditions of their forefathers. They have an intense love for relating what was told them of their country by their ancestors. This has been almost forced upon them by their circumstances and environments. The Newfoundland story-teller is not satisfied in relating facts—he is careful to discuss details, which seem irrelevant, but on careful examination it is frequently found that what appeared at first to be side issues, and having no connection with facts themselves, are strongly corroborative of the facts related.

THE KEYNOTE OF RESEARCH.
I am of opinion that no man who undertakes to investigate past events can afford to cast aside tradition. Tradition in such matters is the keynote of research. It is a mistake to think that history is independent of tradition. Was Herodotus an eye-witness to all the events of which he wrote? Had he documentary proofs for every statement he made? Decidedly no! I venture to assert that Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" was not wholly based on documentary evidence. Men of broadest views and greatest intellect have held tradition in the greatest veneration. The earliest Fathers of the Church respected tradition, and surely few will be bold enough to deny that they knew what they were about. Let us look at the Irish race. Where will you find a people who are so wedded to tradition as those of Irish descent? The people of Ireland are, so to speak, enveloped in a halo of tradition. Everywhere you look, on Irish soil, you will find evidence of tradition, and I, for one, do not place less faith in the story of their virtues and their heroism on that account. The same may be said of Newfoundland. It has been my pleasure, in my spare moments all through life, to delve into the musty past, and preserve whatever was worth preserving of the deeds of my fellow-countrymen whilst in pursuit of their dangerous avocations, either on the ice-floes or the storm-tossed coast of Labrador. The deeds of warriors are emblazoned in fame, and handed down as heirlooms to posterity, whilst the risks and dangers encountered by Newfoundlanders in pursuit of their everyday calling are allowed to remain in oblivion, and be entirely forgotten. I fearlessly say that our fellow-countrymen are of a race as courageous as any to be found in any part of the world. This has been amply proven by our immortal Newfoundland Regiment and our Newfoundlanders in Britain's Navy during the Great War. They are nurtured in a familiarity with dangers so great as to make them rather court than avoid them. Yet nothing is said in contemporary history of their risks and prowess. While they have written in glowing terms of the material and social advantages of the Island, very little is said of the hardy natives by whom it is peopled. The old and worn-out heroes of the ice-fields are slumbering peacefully in the church-yard, and some rest beneath the ocean on which they fought and gained their hard-won victories. Even the implements of their prowess and energy have disappeared. The historic flint lock gun and the artistically carved powder horn no longer take the place of honor on the kitchen rack. They are now relegated to some out-house or unfrequented place, and, with the passing away of these, the last vestige of our illustrious forbears will have gone forever. The following poetic tribute to the outport planter is appropriate here:—

"He's gon' with kany and coatin' pants; with Hamburg boots and ne'er a collar;
He's gon' wid cook-room, pork and duff; gon' wid the good, old pillar dollar;
Gon' wid his chare at Christmas time; gon' wid his rum in the red canteen;
His cheerful vice and bresny song are bur'd low wid the outport planter."

But when 'counts be squar'd at the final day, and into the Ledger the Lord is sarchin' He'll say, "I find you cussed a sight, and once in a while you stuck the marchan';
But you clood the naked, the hungry fed; so go up first with the harps and chanter;
The place reserved for all good men, and honest, squar' outharbor planters."

INDIANS PROSECUTE SEALFISHERY.

Jacques Cartier, in his first voyage in 1534 (sent out to discover new lands by the French Government) was the first to navigate the River St. Lawrence, and found New France. He mentions meeting natives or Indians, who painted themselves red, and fished in boats made of the bark of birch trees. He met those Indians in the month of June in the Straits of Belle Isle. He says, "they take a great store of seals, and as far as we could understand, it is not their habitation, but they come from the mainland, out of a hotter country, to catch the said seals and other necessaries for a living." From an extract from a Report of Trade in Newfoundland, before a Royal Commission held in England in 1793, we get the following with regard to the export of seal skins:

From October 1st, 1788 to October 1st, 1787, 41,042 Skins.
From October 1st, 1787 to October 1st, 1788, 37,420 Skins.
From October 1st, 1788 to October 1st, 1789, 25,643 Skins.
From October 1st, 1789 to October 1st, 1790, 31,910 Skins.
From October 1st, 1790 to October 1st, 1791, 28,963 Skins.
There was very little said about the seal-fishery in this report, but it is mentioned in several places as being very important to Trinity and parts north of St. John's, and together with ship-building in the port of Trinity, it gave the merchants, carrying on business there, a great advantage over ports south, depending on the cod-fishery alone. This goes to show that there was a much larger seal-fishery carried on previous to 1805, than mentioned in any of the histories. By the merest accident I have come across an old and valuable document, dated 1824, which gives us an idea of how business was carried on in those days. It is written upon heavy parchment, nearly two feet square, and the handwriting which is in the hand of the late Mr. Thomas Hutchings, then of Gallian's employ, Trinity, and written with the obsolete grey goose quill, would put to shame an A1 graduate of Higher Education. The Mr. Hutchings referred to was an uncle of everybody's genial friend, Mr. George A. Hutchings, so long the trusted and confidential official of the time-honored firm of Messrs. Job Bros. & Co., of this city. The agreement is so venerable and quaint that I think a repetition will interest the readers of Evening Telegram. I do not think there is another such in existence, and it will give some idea as to how the business of the country was conducted in those far off days, and how a good man on a pan or with a sealing gun was appreciated by the employers. It is possible that many of the descendants of the fur crews, whose names figure on this ancient and valuable document, rescued from the dust of ages, may be still in the neighbourhood of Trinity, and, if so, I feel confident it will be perused by them with interest.

In Memoriam.

1176 EX-PRIVATE WM. SKEANS.

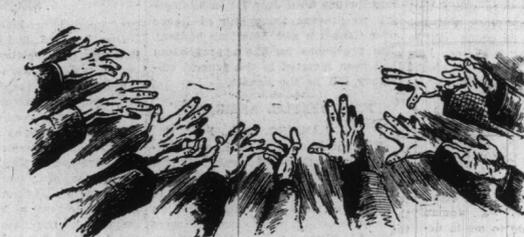

There passed peacefully away at the Jensen Camp on Friday, Feb. 20th, 1920, 1176 ex-Private William Skeans. "Billie" as he was favorably known amongst his many friends, enlisted with Ours in the early stages of the war, having left here with D. Co., on March 20th, 1915, aboard the troopship Stephano. Many of his soldier friends will remember his stalwart form, and bright sunny smile as he passed to and fro in the shadows of Edinburgh Castle. Having seen three years of active service, being once gassed, and twice wounded, last wounded during the battle of Monchy, April 14th, 1917; having contracted a heavy cold and later developing into that dreaded disease consumption, he was invalided home, arriving here on May 24th, 1918, and entered Jensen Camp with the hope that his health would be restored, he appeared at first to be getting better, but gradually his strength began to fall, and on Friday he breathed his last. Poor Will just entering in his 30th year in the prime of life and perfect manhood, it seems sad after all he suffered, just as the dawn of peace was once again settling itself on the world. That peace which he and many others, fought so valiantly for, another name shall be added to the long list of heroes, who died that others may live.

The late private Skeans in speaking to a friend at the Camp in the early part of last summer, said he was feeling fine, and spoke about "going to work, having several positions offered him, when he would be fully recovered. Again at a later date speaking to the same friend, he said he knew he was not getting better, (and one could see at a glance the poor fellow was fighting a losing battle, and the dread disease was making inroads on his once robust constitution) and his only wish was to die so as he could be buried on Sunday at his Kilbride, his native home. In this his wish was fully granted. His remains were conveyed to Kilbride on Saturday, and his funeral took place on Sunday from his uncle's residence, and was largely attended, many prominent men from the city attending. In his passing, Kilbride loses one of its best residents, and many a heart will feel sad to hear of his death. During his illness, poor Skeans was never known to complain, but always bore up bravely forgetting his own ills for the comfort of those around him. At the grave side prayers for the dead were recited by the Rev. J. Flynn, P.P., when all that was mortal, of a good man, a true soldier, and a sincere friend was given back to mother earth, there to await the final call.—R.I.P.

Dearest loved one, kind friends have laid thee, In the lonely graves embrace, To await the dawn of Resurrection, When again we'll meet thee face to face.—Inscribed by F. H.

Martyrs to Modesty.

One night, not long ago, though the thermometer registered 10 deg. of frost, snow was falling steadily, and an icy wind from the north swept the city, six men stood in their shirts on the roof of a building in Brooklyn, the child Long Island suburb of New York, and refused to descend. Two storeys beneath them flames and smoke revealed the presence of a fierce blaze which was quickly consuming the entire structure. The iron fire escape offered an avenue of escape, but although the women shouted to them to hurry, the shivering six refused to budge. The reason was to be found in the courtyard below, on which opened the emergency exits of the assembly rooms on the ground floor, where a dance had been in progress.

In the courtyard were 100 women and girls who had been hastily sent out into the yard when the fire broke out, and the ordeal of descending the fire escape in the face of dozens of upturned feminine eyes was too much for the chilled but truly modest occupants of the roof.

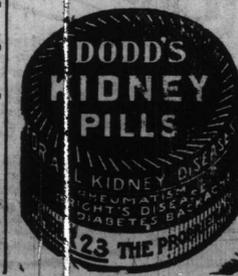

They were not health cranks, but candidates for admission to the Ridgewood Lodge of Masons. They had been ordered to strip to their shirts for the initiation and were awaiting a summons to the presence of members of the lodge when the fire alarm was given. Forgetting both ceremony and clothes the six rushed to the roof to escape the flames. Their predicament ended when a plank was pushed across to them from the next building. Over this they escaped with complete decorum.—London Daily Mail.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

CENTER-OF-THE-STAGE IT IS.

There's one thing I like about her," a woman said to me in describing an old friend. "she is always interested in any new friends I meet and ready to like them."

"Is that unusual?" I asked.

"Not at all," she countered. "And after I had thought it over, I could see that it was. Don't you think a great many people show a tendency to be antagonistic and prepared to criticize, when old friends of theirs make new friends and in their enthusiasm, want the old and new to meet?"

Always Something Wrong.

I have a friend who is very much this way. I have never yet introduced a friend to her whom she liked. There was always something wrong with her, something to criticize, something to make fun of, something to make her hold aloof. One was too gushing, another too reticent, another too anxious to please, another wore a sweater of a color she couldn't endure. At first, I thought this was merely because my old friend was exceedingly fastidious, which she really is about many things. But later I discovered that she was not so fastidious in her own choice of friends.

We Wonder.

The following paragraph by a gossip writer in an English journal is self-explanatory and illuminating: "Ladies are kindly requested not to smoke" is a notice printed in the programme of a Richmond theatre. This discrimination between the sexes is somewhat illogical, and decidedly old-fashioned. I am told that the Queen herself sets her guests at ease by smoking a cigarette with her after-luncheon coffee.

FIX STOMACH RIGHT UP

"Pape's Diapepsin" at once ends Indigestion, Gases, Sourness, Acidity

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

When your meals don't fit and you feel uncomfortable, when you belch gases, acids or raise sour, undigested food. When you feel lumps of indigestion, pain, heartburn or headache, from acidity, just eat a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the stomach distress is gone.

Millions of people know the magic of Pape's Diapepsin as an antacid. They know that indigestion and disordered stomach are so needless. The relief comes quickly, no disappointment, and they cost so little too.

IF I COULD LIVE IT OVER.

If I could live it over, live the days and weeks and years. And know the self-same laughter and the self-same time of tears, If life should bid me venture for a second time on earth, I'd want the self-same children gathered round the self-same hearth.

There are things I'd try to better, there are deeds I'd never do; I'd keep the happier highways where abide the friendships true, I'd make the most of laughter and the joys that came my way, But I'd want the self-same children at the ending of the day.

If I could live it over, I believe, with what I know, I could write my life in service and do better here below; I should hunger less for glory and the empty pomp of fame, But I'd want the wife and children and my friends to be the same.

I could change my way of living, I could start myself anew, And I fancy I could master what this time I've failed to do; Oh, I know that I'd be different and avoid the faults which mar, But I think I'd want my loved ones just about the way they are.

in Labor Dispute. Britain is Making Great Experiment

London.—With the establishment of a special industrial court to hear the application of the dockers for a wage increase, England has entered on the trial of a great experiment in social organization. The dockers strike of 1889 is still remembered for its violence and for the loss and distress it caused, and there could be no greater contrast than that between the open-air meetings and police charges of those days and the quiet, orderly proceedings in courts of justice of the present controversy.

The court is appointed by the Minister of Labor, under the act passed last year, and consists of a chairman, three representatives of capital, three of labor, and two of the general public. The chairman, Lord Shaw, of Dunfermline, is a hard-headed Scotch judge who has been Lord of Appeal for ten years, while the labor members of the court are Ben Tillett, M.P., who organized the Dockers' Union and in his fiery days was often in collision with the police in its cause, Robert Williams, one of the labor's extremists, as is Harry Gosling, both of the Transport Workers' Federation.

The tribunal sits in the court of criminal appeal and the argument is being carried on with all the dignity and formality of an ordinary trial. Witnesses, half drawn from the shipping trades and half from the ranks of the dock laborers, sit on the benches facing the line of white-haired men on whose decision such momentous issues rest. The dockers, though they might employ regular counsel, preferred to leave this case in the hands of their secretary, Ernest Bevin. For two days now he has been making his opening statement and has adapted himself skilfully to his environment. He argues like a veteran lawyer and steers clear of those appeals to passion and prejudice which are usual in labor disputes.

The increase in wages the dockers ask amount in the United Kingdom is nearly £5,000,000 per year and they contend shipowners could grant them this without undue loss to themselves. It is largely a mathematical problem, and however bitter the feelings it arouses, and Bevin presents it as entirely mathematical. He is armed with a mass of tables of figures and has analysed such technical questions as costings and handlings to a fine point.

COURTEOUS METHODS.

Every now and then Lord Shaw breaks in with a courteous question or two and sometimes Bevin and the chairman have a quite argument, but nothing fustlers the dockers' champion and he states his points and marshals his figures admirably.

When the turn of the shipowners comes they will entrust their case to the well-known barrister, Sir Lynden Macauley, K.C., and he will re-examine the dockers' witnesses. For them the hearing is expected to last a week or two, and if the present judicial tone can be maintained throughout, and if the findings show the court is not divided according to parties he held to have been made in settling industrial disputes.

Quite independently of the precise verdict found in the actual controversy, it will go far to make up for the disappointment felt at the outcome of the recent coal commission. The entire proceedings before that body were conducted in a partisan style and instead of one report it found four, which only emphasized the impossibility of reconciling labor's and capital's viewpoint. Incidentally Bevin's line of argument illustrates labor's new pretensions; he is demanding that more responsibility should be entrusted to the workers and is criticizing certain methods followed at the docks as archaic and uneconomic.

JOY AND GLOOM.

In happiness I used to go, afoot, both near and far; I never knew the depths of woe, until I bought a car. Oh, many verets and parangs behind me then I put, commingling with the cheerful gangs who also went afoot. I'd walk a road, perchance a perch, then meet some jocular jay, and we would lean against the church, and gossip half the day. I took in all the fragrant morn, when I went on my feet; I'd pause to view a field of corn, and then a stack of wheat. And here and there I'd rob a tree that luscious apples bore, or chase some busy honey bee that led me to its store. But now I ride in pomp and state, on tires with non-skid tread; my eyes are glaring, fixed and straight, upon the road ahead. And if anon I glance aside upon the landscape rich, the blamed old car is sure to slide and land me in a ditch. I drive my boat along the pike, and to the wheel I cling, and never see the things I like, or hear the birdlets sing. I do not see the cloud wreaths reel across the blinking stars; I'm hanging to the steering wheel, and dodging other cars. I ought to store my choo-choo cart and join the trudging flock, and yet 'twould break my foolish heart if I were doomed to walk.

Lest We Forget.

I will not drink from a German cup, Or deal with a German hand, I'll use no drugs with a German name, That grows on German land. I'll not forget those awful deeds To girls and little boys, No more I'll hang on Christmas trees, Those blood-stained German toys.

I will not take a German's word, He'll break it if he can, There is no love in a German heart, Or faith in a German man, This is my oath, when war is done, I'll swear to keep it true, And since I know you feel the same, I ask this oath of you.

The Greatness of Charity.

"If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels," wrote the great Apostle of the Gentiles, in his 1st Epistle to the Corinthian Church, "but have not charity I am become sounding brass." Let it be assumed that in the use of the word charity, which is rendered love in the Revised Version of the New Testament, St. Paul meant acts of benevolence, the giving of alms for the poor and in otherwise assisting the hungry and needy, and the interpretation of the text becomes at once manifest to all. It is in effect a command to give, for without the spirit of charity, human feeling is dead, and love which is synonymously related to benevolence is non-existent. "Charity," says Addison, "is a habit of good will, or benevolence in the soul which disposes us to the love, assistance and relief of mankind, especially of those who stand in need of it." It is the Divine Command given in the decalogue of our duty toward our neighbor, a duty, which in the sight of God, admits of no shirking, and is further amplified by the Redeemer of the race in the words spoken to the tempting Pharisee lawyer, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

In the City of St. John's today there are many persons absolutely dependent upon the charity of their neighbors. There are many homes wherein stalks the spectre of hunger. There are many women and children who suffer from lack of clothing and fuel, no less than food. There are widows and orphans who are forced to do things repugnant to their very souls in order to earn a coin to buy the wherewithal to sustain life. Is it generally known in the city that fatherless children beg empty bottles and worn rubbers and any other sort of junk from door to door, to be sold to dealers for a pittance to buy food? Does this seem the thing in prosperous St. John's, where wealth is freely and lavishly given for Education, the Churches, and Maternity Homes. Is it in keeping with that spirit of charity which we are supposed to possess that the poor and the needy, the fatherless and the afflicted, should be reduced to such extremities when there is so much of the goods of this world in the holding of the majority. Hunger and cold are not felt by those who are well provided for; but for the submerged tenth, who have nothing, and in many instances, are too proud to let their state be known, lack of food and clothing is very real and ever present. Those who have never suffered privation cannot realize the bitterness of it, and those who do often endure in silence.

The charitable institutions of the city are never weary of well doing, and many private citizens, and ladies bountiful are not niggardly in making donations for the amelioration of the poor. More than that they visit the homes of those whom they know to be in want and by gifts of food and money alleviate suffering and distress. But there are many who are never reached in this way: many of whom it is not known that actual want encompasses them, and the question is how to discover such deserving cases. There is apparently but the one method to be adopted, and that is for the charitably disposed to divide the city into sections and make a thorough visit of each. In this way only will the actual number of indigent cases be determined. Afterwards it will be easy to take measures for the relief of those so discovered. The clergymen of the various denominations know all those of their flocks who are in straitened circumstances, and do all they can to assist. But their alms and offertories are not large enough to do all that they wish. They need greater financial help in their work of Christian charity. Whose duty is it then to love "thy neighbor as thyself?" Have not each and everyone the right to share a portion of the burden of the command, and to "render unto God," remembering the beatitude "Blessed is he that considereth the poor and needy," and the reward which is promised for compliance thereto. When we neglect to find out and relieve those who are in want we are running counter to the injunctions of the Master, to whom is lent whatever is given to the poor. Therefore in the name of that charity which Christ's, let us bestir ourselves and not rest until every one in the city that is hungry is fed:

everyone that is naked, clothed everyone that is in prison, visited. In the practice of tangible charity and in the distribution of our substance "not grudgingly or of necessity," the standard set by St. Paul will be reached and we shall know the possession of that virtue, which is the greatest of the three.

Legends of National Emblems.

Most people are acquainted with the legend of St. Patrick and the shamrock, which has given Irishmen their special decoration. In somewhat similar manner most nations have equipped themselves with a symbolical plant to which is generally attached a legend to owe their symbol of a thistle to the fact that when a party of invading Danes were approaching the slumbering camp in the darkness, one of them trod on the prickly thistle, and announced his contact with it in rather loud tones, which awakened the Scots, who drove off the enemy.

Patriotic Welshmen decorate their caps with a leek on St. David's Day, March 1st, because that saint is supposed to have advised the Britons on the eve of a battle with the Saxons to wear leeks in their caps so as to distinguish easily, friends from foes. England has always been famed for her roses, but the adoption of the rose as the national symbol, does not seem to have taken place till Edward IV, introduced it on his seal. The lily of France has been traced to very early times, but probably owes its adoption to the Franks at the battle of Tolbiac, who crowned themselves with lilies after the battle.

Priest's Silver Jubilee.

Rev. C. H. Renouf, Rector of St. Patrick's Church, will in a short time celebrate his silver jubilee as a priest, having been ordained in 1895. A meeting of male parishioners was held in the Holy Cross School yesterday and a committee of fifteen appointed. This will consult with Father Renouf in reference to a fitting honoring of the occasion. The result of the meeting will be reported back at an early date.

Hockey Notes.

Secretary Jack Tobin had a wire from Mr. Smith, manager of the All-Star hockey team on Saturday evening, saying that it was impossible for his team to get away in time to play a series of games here, but that the All Vets were ready to leave by Rosalind, and asked for instructions. Secretary Tobin wired back for the Vets to come along. They are an excellent team and are heading the Dartmouth League. The following are the players: Mr. Capt. G. McDonald, M.C.; Hurley, Goldie, Martin, Beasley, Myatt, Eagles, Fraser, Stratford and Whelan.

Returning to France.

M. Paul Suzor, Vice-Consul for France for five years, leaves by the Kyle, accompanied by his family, for Chicago, where he remains for four months, relieving the Consul there. From Chicago M. Suzor proceeds to Paris where, after a holiday, he will take up a new position as his country's representative.

S. A. Territorial Leaders Arrive.

Colonel and Mrs. Martin, the new Territorial leaders for the Salvation Army in Newfoundland, arrived by the Kyle last night. They were met at the wharf by Staff Captain Thompson, the Chancellor, Adjutant Tilley, the Educational and Y. P. Secretary, and Adjutant Earle, of the Gower Street Citadel, with his band and a host of his people. Before the Colonel landed the band played a selection, and after the party had got into the shed and the Colonel was introduced to several members of the Army, the band then struck up another of their familiar tunes after which Colonel Martin thanked all those who had come to meet him, and closed in prayer, when all hands made off for their homes.

Colonel and Mrs. Martin's first appearance before the public will be on Wednesday evening, March 3rd, at 8 p.m., in the Methodist College Hall. His Excellency the Governor will preside.

To-Night's Play.

"The Wrong Mr. Wright" which was to have been staged last week, but had to be postponed owing to the indisposition of most of the principals, will be presented to-night. Mrs. Outerbridge, however, will not be able to take part owing to a severe illness. Her place, however, will be taken by Mrs. Baxter who with characteristic kindness consented to fill the gap. The C.C.C. band will be in attendance and all desirous of helping forward a charitable purpose are assured a very pleasant time at the Casino.

Geddes Regarded as a Jonah.
London, Feb. 21.—Commenting on reports that Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister of National Service and Reconstruction, has been offered the post of British Ambassador in Washington, the Times says: "We can sympathize with Premier Lloyd George's manifest desire to get rid of Sir Auckland, and jettison so compromising a Jonah from the ministerial tramp steamer but we do not agree that Washington is a suitable wharf for his reception. If failure is to be regarded a qualification for highest diplomatic appointments, surely there are respectable failures to be found in the ranks of professional diplomats, who have at least the advantage of some technical training."

Re-organizing Queen's College.

It will be noted with pleasure by our Church of England friends and others, that a definite and determined effort is being made to place Queen's Theological College on a sound basis, improving it generally along lines of modern requirement and usefulness. Rev. Dr. N. F. Facey, the present Principal, has outlined a scheme that is finding favor with those to whom it has been presented, and a large meeting of representative Churchmen in the city has recently decided to push on the enterprise vigorously. In the past, the College has been cramped in various ways, though its existence has been more than justified, and more than half the clergymen working in the Dominion to-day are Queen's College graduates. Newfoundland is not now regarded as a Missionary Diocese, and it will not be so easy in future to secure men from outside to fill the places of those who pass out, or to supplement the ranks. Besides there is no scarcity of men within our borders who are anxious to enter the Ministry if opportunities for equipment and study are provided. At present, missions and parishes are without clergymen, while very many of the missions and parishes have become so unworkable as to render efficient clerical work practically impossible. The people are calling for clergymen, and the funds for their upkeep are guaranteed. Dr. Facey's plan is to remodel the College, making provisions for at least twelve students and two or more lecturers. Having completed their college course at Queen's, students will have opportunity for a University post-graduate course in England or Canada, at their option. Matriculation at entrance to Queen's will be the same as for Durham University. The plan of those interested is to raise a sum of money sufficient to establish a competent endowment, and this considering the seventy odd thousand Churchmen in the Dominion, should not be a difficult undertaking. A committee has been appointed to arrange the details for collecting and other important matters relating to the scheme, and this work will be commenced without delay. It will be of interest to many to know that Dr. Facey, whose energy and interest are largely responsible for this forward movement, is a native of the Dominion, owing Trinity Bay as his birth-place. His own college career began at St. Augustine's, Canterbury; subsequently obtaining degrees at Durham, Cambridge and Dublin. Following a distinguished scholastic career he has returned to his home land, where his education and experience are to be expended in the advancement of his Church.

Supreme Court.

(Present: Mr. Justice Kent.)
Albert Soper, Appellant, and John Byrne, Respondent.
 On motion of Mr. L. E. Emerson for appellant, and by consent of Mr. H. A. Winter for respondent, it is ordered that this matter be set for Saturday, March 6th, at 11 a.m.
James J. Wade and William Dawe & Sons.
 On motion of Mr. Jas. J. McGrath for plaintiff, and by consent of Mr. L. E. Emerson for defendant, it is ordered that the matter be set for Thursday, March 11th, at 11 a.m.

(Before the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Johnston.)
In the matter of A. E. Hickman's Election Petition.
 A number of witnesses were examined and the hearing postponed till 8 this afternoon.

Weather and Ice Conditions.

 Wesleyville—W.N.W. wind, fair breeze, cold and clear; no ice in sight.

McMurdo's Store News.
 MONDAY, March 1, 1920.
 There is something about Page & Shaw's Chocolates which attracts the best of candy buyers. Page & Shaw's packages somehow have a neat business like appearance which appeals to those who prefer to buy candy rather than boxes, which prepares them for something good inside. The impression so made is confirmed by proof in the eating. We arrange, as far as conditions allow, to have fresh lots of these delicious sweetmeats constantly arriving, so that we always have Page & Shaw's in the pink of condition. In two pound, pound and half pound boxes.

Admiral's Cove

WELCOMES REV. C. A. MCCARTHY.
 On Feb. 7th, when Rev. C. A. McCarthy, who has recently been appointed Parish Priest to Renewa, paid his first visit to Admiral's Cove, he received a hearty welcome from the people. After Benediction he was presented with the following address: To Reverend Father McCarthy.
 Rev. and Dear Father,—We consider ourselves especially privileged to-day at being permitted so shortly after your arrival to greet you, and from those who are too infirm to attend devotions this evening, you receive the old old greeting, "A thousand, thousand welcomes."
 We know that changes are inevitable, and have learned to see God's Holy Will in the commands of our beloved Archbishop. Many a fervent "Deo Gratias" ascended from our glad hearts when we learned that the successor to our revered former pastor was to be again a priest from Holy Ireland. We cannot but think, as the Irish would say, that "St. Patrick had a hand in it," since his beloved land is so well represented here.
 We are here this evening, Father, to pledge you the same unswerving loyalty that we gave our former pastors—Your early visit to give us God's blessing and the advantages of Holy Mass has formed a link of appreciation and love that nothing shall sever.
 We ask God to bless your priestly work, and crown your every undertaking with success. We humbly assure you, that we are willing at all times to help in any work that will tend to beautify our parish.
 Yours respectfully, and devotedly,
 The People of Admiral's Cove.
 Father McCarthy thanked the people in a few well chosen words. During the night every house in "The Cove" was illuminated.

Forty-One Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegram.

At St. Thomas's.

At last night's service the Rector preached the eighth of his series of sermons on the ten commandments. He prefaced his address on stealing by referring to the apparent justification there is always in evidence for any sin committed, instancing as examples intemperance, licentiousness, laziness, etc., each sin being argued for by its adductors and partakers as being either essential or at least beneficial to them in some way or other. But the preacher also demonstrated plainly that where there is even the widest justification the reasons against the action or sin are far in excess of the temporary benefits, sin at the last always paying its wages—death. Touching on the theme of his sermon, the preacher stated that stealing had as much apparent justification as any other of the major sins, but likewise in common with the other sins, its dangers were greater than its apparent pleasures. Analyzing his subject more clearly he emphasised three points (1) Stealing of money; in this connection he included every kind of theft of money committed but more especially that theft by men and business corporations comprising possibly the highest in the Church of State, taking by unsuspected means the unlawful profits made by shrewd (?) business deals. The thief may be prompted and led by the most laudable motive but the suffering which he must of necessity inflict on others counteracts and annuls the good accomplished by the non-keeping of the eighth commandment. (2) There is the stealing of time. In those days of clamouring for higher wages, it is often said that the employee is intent on obtaining the highest price for his work—an action quite natural—but he often forgets or declines to remember punctuality and industry in his work, thus defrauding his employer and incidentally building for himself an ill reputation, for no employer would care to engage one who proverbially shirked his duty. (3) Stealing of character. Of the social aspects of this commandment this is undoubtedly the most objectionable and yet possibly the commonest breach. More so than in the other two, it does more mischief, wreaks more damage and does more irreparable harm than either of the foregoing. The theft of character was illustrated by the preacher declaring that were a scrupulous report of the most respected man in his congregation to be circulated the chances were that only a brief few of the whole would refuse to believe the same without positive proof, and fewer still would sympathise with the fallen, were the report true. Each and every point of the rector's address bore out his summary that all sin is meanness, and religion is good will, his closing words being more aptly appropriate at present than ever, "and the angel said glory to God in the Highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

"Bearing the Cross."

Rev. D. B. Hemmeon Preached Inspiring Sermon Yesterday.

Taking as his text the 21st verse of the 16th chapter of the Gospel of St. Mark, Rev. D. B. Hemmeon preached an eloquent and inspiring sermon at last evening's service at George's St. Methodist Church. "And they compel one Simon to bear His (Christ's) Cross." "Matthew, Mark and Luke," said the preacher, each stated that Christ carried His cross Himself. John is the only one who said that "One Simon" carried it. Although the contradictory statements may appear contradictory in reality they are not. The crosses of crucifixion of those days, in the first place, were not so heavy and ponderous as the Italian artists delighted to point them and it was possible for a healthy man to carry the cross, on which he was to be crucified. Now, Christ was carrying His Cross and His frail body becoming tired out, a countryman, by name Simon, who was on his way to the city, was ordered to carry Christ's Cross for Him. In those days the Roman soldiers had authority to press into any service anyone below a certain rank. For that reason, therefore, Simon had no alternative but to obey. Thus he, all unconsciously, shared the suffering and humiliation of Christ, and bore His Cross up the White Road to Calvary.

"How can that incident of the Cross, of compulsory service, be modernized? What modern parallel of the Cross is there? Is there a cross for every Christian to-day and does it cost as much, to-day as of old, to be a Christian?"

"In those days it was hard to be a Christian—it cost a lot. The Christian religion was very unpopular. It was at enmity with the State. To be a Christian was to be socially, politically, educationally inferior. Many prices had to be paid by Christians."

"There are a great many opinions of what Christianity is. All are agreed, however, that there is only one real Christianity. He who, in his daily life, most approaches the life of Christ, is the most like Christ, is the most Christian. It is as hard to-day as ever to be a Christian. The prices that must be paid to-day are as great, though different, as those of the time of Simon and after. Suffering goes hand in hand with Christianity to-day as it always did. One cannot be a good Christian and not suffer. The better Christian you are the more sacrifice you will make and the more you will suffer. And there are just as good Christians in the world to-day as there ever were.

Will Stage Popular Comedy.

The public generally will be glad to know that the B.B.S. Dramatic Company have secured and will stage on St. Patrick's Day an excellent Irish comedy "The Heart of Laddy Whack," a charming Olcott success. Under this famous producer had a continuous run of four years and proved a great attraction wherever played. The play strongly portrays Irish life and sentiment and is replete with genuine wit and humor. With the addition of some new talent to assist and the experience of other years to sustain them, we predict a performance this year by the B.B.S. troupe, that will be fully up to and probably excel the standard of other years.

Nfld. Dog Entered for Boston Show.

The Newfoundland dog has become almost extinct, despite the fact that 20 years ago it was the great popular canine household pet. In the largest and most variegated exhibit of dogs that the Eastern Dog Club has ever secured for an entry to the Boston dog show, Feb. 23, 24, and 25, there is just one Newfoundland entry, and even this surprised the bench show committee, because in the past few years they have been unable to get an entry.

Dr. M. J. Fenton, of Wellesey is the only exhibitor of a Newfoundland dog at the show, which opened Monday for three days. Dr. Fenton says his dog Buzz is a thoroughbred and the only one he knows of in this part of the United States.—Boston paper.

Higher Wages.

It is said that within a very short time demand will be made by longshore workers for a further increase in pay, and that night work will not be undertaken at less than $1.00 an hour. It is also said that the dry dock mechanics will seek an increase in their pay at a very early date.

BISHOP, SONS & COMPANY, Limited

Talks by Tiberius.

"THE POOR."
 The Poor ye have always with you; and it seems as if we shall always have them with us. We are bound by all the laws of humaneness to do all that lies in our power to alleviate the condition of the poor, but when we have done all, there will still be the Poor. Chas. Lamb wrote: "Shut not thy purse strings always against painted distress; act a charity sometimes. When a poor creature, outwardly and visibly such—come before thee, do not stay to enquire whether he be seven small children," in whose name he implores thy assistance, have a veritable existence. Rake not into the bowels of unwelcome truth to save his halpenny. It is good to believe this."
 There may be, and there are, fake cases of poverty, but that is no reason for lacking or for falling to exercise the sweet grace of charity. Of all graces, that of Charity has ever ranked very high.
 However, it is not so much our individual relation to the poor which is the objective of this article, as the relation of the State to the Poor. Whatever any individual may do by way of indiscriminate assistance to the poor, or whatever he or she, in sheer cold blooded indifference may do for those in need, the problem of State Charity is one yet to be faced by most Governments in General, and by the Newfoundland Government in particular. We will dismiss this phase of our subject by quoting:—
 "Let Be, Beloved—will taste somewhat this same poverty:—
 Try these temptations, grudges, gnawing shames
 For which 'tis blamed. How probe an unfeeling evil?
 Would'st thou the poor-man's friend?
 Must freeze with him."

States of America brought about by unemployment. With such exceptions we are not dealing. Apart from them, Distitution is individual and is met by individual cases of relief. On the other hand poverty is a social evil brought about by social conditions, a group of circumstances over which the individual has no control. The present High cost of living is beyond the control of any human individual, it is a social evil, we all suffer from it and feel our sufferings, (except the profiteers, and the rich). Some feel it very keenly, very keenly indeed; respectable people, well dressed people; respected people, are poor and some of them very poor. Such a condition is a challenge. It challenges the activities of all Social and Religious workers and organizations, and, what is more to the point, it challenges the best brains and ability of all statesmen, economists and industrial captains and managers.
 Being different and distinguishable, Poverty on the one hand calls for different and distinct treatment from Distitution on the other; there is a fundamental difference in dealing with them, i.e. difference of method. What that difference is, we shall not try to fully explain here and now, only to point out that distitution is largely a matter for individual philanthropy, while poverty is a matter for the State. We will now point out ways in which the State is responsible for poverty and in which the State can cure poverty, if such can be cured. I believe it can. I believe poverty to be a disease, a social disease, and demanding social and effective treatment, by State law.
THE CHURCH.
 Before passing on to the consideration of the "State" a little attention should be given to the attitude of the Church. The church at least is supposed to be sympathetic. The modern world needs to learn to treat the Poor Man as a Brother: not as a "case," or a delinquent; but as a member of the family. One Modern type of the Pharisee is the prosperous business man who thanks God that he is not as these sinners who need his help. He makes no allowance for differences in opportunity or environment. He will throw alms, but will not give Brotherhood. That is not the way out of the problem though. The Poor man in many cases has become the anarchist, because he has been treated with contempt and not with sympathy. The church must be sympathetic, and endeavour to create an atmosphere of Brotherhood, and sympathy. The church should also be efficient. If there is one institution that is expected to stand four square against all the abuses of our civil economic and industrial world, it is the Church. She represents the Master Mind that lays all forces level on a just and righteous basis, and where there is civic economic or industrial wrong, she must speak in firm rebuking tones. Only in this way can she justify her existence. She may, and does, relieve cases of distitution by means of her Charitable Organizations in co-operation with those of the State, but when we come to the question of the causes and cure of Poverty, her truth is more mighty than her organizations; her pen is mightier than her methods of relief. It is to the State we look in our final analysis for the cure. She is the cause and she has the remedy.

THE STATE THE CAUSE.
 Low Pay and Bad Health. It does not matter whether you say, "Low Pay and Bad Health," or "High Cost of living and Bad Health;" you mean the same thing. What is meant is this, the sufficient food; good food; good hygienic clothes, etc., and so on; as we have affirmed before, a matter of money, and to most people is a matter of wages. When people are compelled to live, as some people have to live in the poor sections of our modern cities, it is not to be wondered at that disease abounds among them. Take a concrete case for example. A man works in St. John's for $2 per day, and is a hard working man with wife and four children. His $2 per day means, at the most $12 per week; $50 per month, i.e. if he works a full day every working day for the month. Out of the $50 he pays House Rent, about $15; he cannot pay more. Here is his budget:—

 Rent $15, a poor house; wet.
 Coal $8, ½ ton at $16 per ton.
 Other fuel $2, oil and wood.
 Flour $8, $16 per barrel.
 Sugar $6, 24 pounds per week at 25c.
 Meat $4, 2½ pounds per week at 40c.
 Footwear $7, 1 pair cheap boots for one of family.—Total $50.
 What does that budget mean? No clothes renewed; insufficient variety and quantity of food, not enough warmth for body; no vegetables; a cold, damp, dark, dismal, unsanitary house. The inter-relation and inter-dependence existing between Bad Pay and Bad Health is very evident. It may be answered that not many men work for two dollars per day. I think that the city of St. John's would be shocked to know how many there are living within the bounds of the city, who work for that amount or thereabouts. There are dozens of professional men who are to-day working for only just a few cents per day above $3, and they try to meet their extra ordinary demands; yes working in Newfoundland. But suppose you give the workman a minimum of $4 per day; look again at his budget, give him a home, decent clothing and enough food; and he is still in debt each month. The aim is to show that the interdependence of poverty and disease, i.e. low pay and disease, is a fact, and makes a vicious circle. In the individual life, low pay means bad air, poor nourishment, lowered vitality, and industrial inefficiency. But industrial inefficiency means low pay. Out of this vicious circle the individual sometimes escapes upward, but many drop down into distitution. Looking at the larger social issues, there is the same struggle. Sickness causes distitution. Poverty causes and increases sickness. Disease causes Poverty, and out of this vicious circle a large group continually drops down into the social swamp of extreme and helpless misery. The circle cannot be broken by eliminating one segment. If you take out the poverty and leave the sickness, or take out the sickness and leave the poverty, the circle starts all over again. A joint attack must be made upon both. Poverty and disease are twin evils and each plays into the hands of the other. From each springs crime and vice. Diminish poverty and better health results. Diminish sickness and poverty is better met.
 The State is the Cause, for the State should demand for the Workingman a living wage; sanitary homes; an honest business deal; a law of Brotherhood, of equality, fraternity, and equity; and does not. There are problems admitted, but the cursed fear of losing a rich man's vote, renders statesmen and states, weak and helpless, and inefficient.
 The State has the cure for she is the cause. Let her prescribe for the disease.

Crew Had Hard Time.

"Schooner Lief, salt laden, 28 days from Oporto to the Marystown Trading Co., reached Spanish Room on Thursday evening having lost all her canvas during the previous night. The Violet Buffet came around Crony on Wednesday afternoon, but the wind died out and the strong current took her out again and she was dashed to pieces on eastern point of Mortier about 7 o'clock. After terrible suffering the crew reached Lance-au-Loup. This message was received from Marystown on Saturday by the Deputy Minister of Customs.

Grove's O-Pen-Trate Salve
Opens the Pores and Penetrates

A Remedy for Chest Colds, Head Colds, Sore Throat, Stiff Neck, Earache, Spasmodic Croup and kindred ailments. Apply freely to the skin just over the affected parts and rub it in.

GROVE'S
O-PEN-TRATE SALVE

is also an Excellent Germicide for the Nose and Throat.

It should be applied to the nostrils so that you will be continually inhaling the vapors while in the presence of patients who are sick with contagious diseases, or when you are entering crowded cars or other public places during an epidemic of Grip or Influenza. Any Grip or Influenza germs breathed through the nose are destroyed by this germicide salve before the germs can reach the throat.

FOR THE SICK

Place One Level Teaspoonful of GROVE'S O-PEN-TRATE SALVE in a hot saucer in the sick room. The Antiseptic Vapor rising from the heated salve makes breathing easy for the patient. It induces sleep and is a great comfort to anyone suffering with Spasmodic Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Diphtheria or Pneumonia. The Healing Effect of the Vapor relieves the patient and is very comforting. Price 35c per box. If your Druggist hasn't any, send 35c in postage stamps to Paris Medicine Company, 193 Spadina Ave., Toronto, and a full-size box will be mailed to you promptly.

Horsemen's Association Formed.

BIG RACING EVENT WEDNESDAY.

A large number of gentlemen interested in horses generally, met Saturday afternoon at the Board of Trade Rooms for the purpose of arranging a series of races on the coming Wednesday, March 3rd. On motion of Sir J. C. Crosbie, Hon. Dr. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines, took the chair, with Mr. A. H. Salter as secretary. An interesting discussion followed, and amid much enthusiasm it was decided to establish the Newfoundland Horsemen's Association, the following officers being elected: President—Hon. Dr. Campbell. Vice-Pres.—Sir J. C. Crosbie. Treasurer—Hon. H. J. Brownrigg. Secretary—A. H. Salter.

The above with the following will comprise the Executive: Hon. W. J. Higgins, K.C., Rev. Bro. O'Regan, H. Macpherson, R. Dowden, A. E. Parkins, G. R. Williams, M. Kelly, J. M. Brown, T. Volsey, C. J. Fox (Present of S.P.A.), M. Butler and O'Connell.

The question of Wednesday's races was then taken up, and it was decided to measure off regular half and three quarter mile courses on Quidi Vidi Lake. The finish will be roped off so as to avoid confusion. Messrs. M. O'Flannigan and Mr. Butler were appointed starters; Mr. W. J. Higgins, captain of the course; Rev. Bro. O'Regan, G. R. Williams and D. P. Duff, judges; Sir J. C. Crosbie, Hon. H. J. Brownrigg, T. Curran and A. E. Parkins, judges of the course, and C. E. Hunt and C. J. Ellis, official timekeepers. The programme will be:

1. Newfoundland Trotting Championship; winner of 3 of 5 heats.
2. Farmers' Race; open to entries; 2 of 3 heats.
3. Cabmen's Race; open to entries; 2 of 3 heats.
4. Pacing Race; open to entries 2 of 3 heats.

The prizes will be: For the championship, a silver cup presented by Dr. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines.

For the Farmers: 1st, $50 by Sir J. C. Crosbie; 2nd, a barrel of beef by Harvey & Co.; 3rd, a pure bred registered Ayrshire calf, presented by H. Macpherson, Esq.

Cabmen's: 1st, Five sacks of oats, by Rothwell and Bowring Ltd.; 2nd, $20; 3rd, a horse rug, by D. Baird, Esq.

Pacing: 1st, $20 by Hon. H. J. Brownrigg; 2nd, $10 by Hon. W. J. Higgins, K.C.

In the Farmers' Race the entries will be confined to horses whose owners live mainly by farming. Animals owned by truckmen, cabmen or expressmen will be excluded. The entrance fee for races will be $1. The public are particularly requested to make this first racing day under the auspices of the Newfoundland Horsemen's Association a great success and assist to this end by keeping off the course. The racing day it is intended, will be an annual event. Horses competing in the championship race will not be eligible for any other. Besides the prizes mentioned above, others have been presented by Messrs. R. A. Brehm, Steer Bros., and Job Bros.

The championship race on Wednesday will be between Mr. H. Macpherson's "Howard Mann" and Mr. Mat. Kelly's "Finisterre," though the entry of the well-known trotter Mansard owned by Mr. Jackson, of Briggs, and nephew of Howard Mann, would be welcomed by all horsemen. The heats in the races will be run alternately, that is no contest will be concluded right off as the strain would be too great on the horses. For all particulars as to entries, apply to Mr. A. H. Salter, at the Royal Stores, not later than 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.—C.C.M.

USING GASOLINE.—The people of King's Cove who have been short of kero oil during the winter, are using gasoline in their lamps according to letters recently received in town.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. Walter Day wishes to thank Drs. Cowperthwaite, Keegan and McNelly; Sisters Lerner and Doyle; Nurses Hampton, Squires, Hogan, Fitzma, Lester and Cashin; also the telephone girl Miss Cottner, of the General Hospital, for their kind and careful attention to his wife, during her stay at that institution.

His Neighbors Didn't Expect Him to Recover

Flu Pulled Gillette Down to 100 Pounds—Tanlac Picked Him Up to 148.

"For the benefit of others who are suffering from the after effects of influenza and are in a rundown condition, I want to tell of the wonderful results I have gotten from Tanlac," said George Gillette, 448 Logan Avenue, Winnipeg, a few days ago. Mr. Gillette is a motorman on the Winnipeg Street Railway and is well known having lived in Winnipeg for many years. "About a year ago," said Mr. Gillette in explaining his case to a Tanlac representative, "I had an attack of Flu that came near putting me out of commission. For six weeks I lay in bed, had to be propped up with pillows, and for eight weeks after I did get up I was unable to work a lick. I came out of the hospital weighing less than a hundred pounds. My wife could have easily carried me around in her arms and I have taken Tanlac and gotten well our neighbors have told us they had no idea I would live. The 'Flu' left me without any appetite and I ate so little that it was hardly any use for me to go to the table. My circulation was so poor and I was so weak that I really thought my heart was affected. I had terrific headaches nearly all the time and I simply thought my back would break it pained me so bad. Nothing helped me and I was just about ready to give up the fight.

"My wife had been keeping up with the Tanlac testimonials and brought me a bottle of that medicine. I had little hopes of it doing me any good, but it has completely overhauled me. It has built me up until I now weigh one hundred and forty-eight pounds and now, our neighbours who thought I could not live, come in to see us and go away praising Tanlac. My appetite is fine I eat just anything set before me and have gotten rid of the headaches, pain in the back, and all the other 'miserable' feelings that 'Flu' had me suffering from. I feel so strong and well now that after coming home from my run in the evenings I help my wife with her work and keep up the repairs about the house. Before taking Tanlac I could hardly sleep and always felt dead tired, but now I sleep like a log and get up in the morning, feeling fine and dandy. After getting such wonderful results I can't help praising Tanlac and I recommend it every chance I have." Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv.

SHE COULD NOT STAND OR WORK

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health and Stopped Her Pains.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it that I was unable to stand or work. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework. I was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took a course of treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and now I am strong and well again and my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the credit." —Mrs. JOSEPHINE KIMBLE, 365 West Race St., Portland, Ind.

Thousands of American women give this famous root and herb remedy the credit for health restored as did Mrs. Kimble. For helpful suggestions in regard to such ailments women are asked to write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

Freedom from Worry!

MR. MOTORIST.—Do you want to be rid of the tiresome feeling that haunts every long-distance run? Do you dread the innumerable punctures and blow-outs over our rough country roads? Join the Freedom from Worry Club by equipping your car with the ONLY tires made that use ASBESTOS mineral fabric instead of all COTTON or vegetable fabric.

Perfection Asbestos-Protected Tires,

It is waterproof, oil-proof, grease-proof and heat-proof.

It is not affected by the dozen and one things that seriously affect all other makes of tires. Use just ONE Perfection cover this season and convince yourself.
