CHAPTER XXVI. ALONE IN LONDON.

"I am up in London on business," she said, "important business. What have you come up after me for? Is Moorcroft burned down? I shouldn't be at all surprised, Jacob's allowed some tramp to throw matches about. Well, I can't go back at once. I've most important business.—Dear me! How pale and thin you look! You've been smoking! Now, don't deny it; I know you have; it always makes boys ill, and serve them right!"

"You've not had my letter, ma'am?" she asked.

"Letter, what letter?" said Miss Deborah. "I've had no letter; at least, I don't remember any. Did you write?"

"Yes," said Nora, almost in despair. "I left Lonsway with Captain Marks, a lump rose in her throat. 'Oh, was he saved?'"

"Captain Marks?" responded Miss Deborah vaguely. "Oh, yes, you mean the man who was picked up off Porlash.—Whatever the matter with the boy?—for Nora turned aside and covered her face with her hands to hide the tears of relief and thanksgiving.—'Oh, I remember; you were with him. It was very foolish of you, you might have been drowned. We were very anxious about you. It was very foolish to go sailing in a fog; but men are silly creatures, always so reckless and thoughtless. You must tell me all about it while we are having lunch.'"

It was then four o'clock in the afternoon, and Nora, instinctively falling into her old groove of guide and protector, led Miss Deborah to one of the tea-places where, if Miss Deborah had not been absorbed in turning over her book, she would have been surprised by Nora's appetite. By this time she had got to regard Nora's presence in London as a matter of course, and asked no further questions.

It appeared that the old lady had started out to do some shopping; but as she had long since forgotten what it was she wanted to buy, they walked about, looking at the shops, until Nora suggested that they should go home, wherever that might be.

"I suppose you had better," assented Miss Deborah. "Now I come to think of it, where are you staying, or have you only just come up? I can't think how you found it; it was really very clever of you, Cyril. However," she went on, "I daresay they can give you a room where I am staying.—Brown's Hotel, Norfolk Street."

Nora, who had not the least notion where Norfolk Street was, fell back on the useful formula. "Ask a policeman," keeping a tight hold on Miss Deborah's arm while she did so, got the old lady into a "bus, and so made her way to the hotel. A room was procured for Nora. Miss Deborah had engaged a private sitting-room, and presently Nora went down to it. The old lady was seated at the table, with some papers spread out before her. She looked up at Nora's entrance, and nodded absently.

"Oh, here you are!" she said. "I am going over some papers connected with the business which brought me to London. It's business connected with a very old and dear friend of mine. I came up to see Sir Joseph Ferrand, but he is not in London. Fortunately there was a gentleman in his office who is acquainted with the business. He was very kind and considerate, and he has promised to come and see me and go into the matter, so that I might not have to go to that dreadful City again. Yes, he was most considerate; an extremely polite man, but rather strange. I forgot his name, a most peculiar name, but it doesn't matter; he'll be here.—What is the time, Cyril?"

"Half-past five," replied Nora.

"I think that is the time he said he would come," said Miss Deborah.

"Did you get the money for the rents from Lonsway?" Nora asked after a pause.

Miss Deborah wrinkled her brow and thought for a moment.

"Oh, yes, Captain Marks gave it me. Why you didn't bring it yourself I can't understand."

As any attempt at explanation would have been hopeless, Nora was silent, and Miss Deborah went on.—

"Speaking of money, you'd better take charge of mine, Cyril, or I am sure I shall lose it." As she carried her purse in the bottom of her reticule there was good reason for her fears. "You had better get yourself some clothes—you seem to me to look very shabby. I must see you some more wages; but never mind that now; get what you want, and we can settle up afterwards."

As she was speaking, there came a knock at the door, and a servant announced—

"Mr. Stripley."

Mr. Stripley entered in his usual manner, his hat held in both hands, his head thrust forward, his huge nose stretched in a deprecatory grin. His eye darted from Miss Deborah's placid countenance to Nora, who was staring at him in natural surprise; and he seemed slightly disconcerted.

"My boy, Cyril," said Miss Deborah. Mr. Stripley ducked at Nora, who rose and left the strange pair together.

CHAPTER XXVII. ELIOT'S NEW FRIEND.

Eliot was more than a foot when he found that Cyril had gone without wishing him good-bye, but he did not deem the boy heartless; he knew how much Cyril hated a scene, and that he had shirked the pain and the fuss of a farewell.

Eliot missed him terribly, and wandered about for the first day or two like a sheep that has lost its lamb, wishing to goodness that he could follow the lad who had crept into his heart, and whom he had such good reason for loving. As usual, he sought relief in work. Cyril had not finished the plans, and Eliot went at them with a will. As is always the case, on drafting them a second time he hit upon further improvements, and he stuck at them until he considered they were fit to submit to Mr. Trunton.

Of course, he seized upon this excuse for leaving the island; but he had to wait until the boat came. When it arrived one morning he was surprised to see that it had a strange captain. Eliot, all unsuspecting the terrible news he was to hear, trotted lightly down the rocks and hailed the skipper.

"Good-morning," he said. "A different boat this time. The Happy Lucy is in dock. I suppose the boat you were with Captain Marks, I trust."

The man looked at him curiously, and then said gravely—

"Of course, you haven't heard, sir," he said. "Captain Marks has been very bad; but he's pulling round. It was a nasty shock, and it got upon his mind, as you might say. It's rather trying, but he's run down, specially in a fog."

Eliot, his face growing pale, stared at the man.

"Run down?" he said. "When? Not the day he last sailed from Lonsway?"

"The same, sir," said the man quietly.

Eliot put out his hand behind him to steady himself against the rock.

"The lad—Cyril! He—he was picked up also?"

The captain shook his head, and Eliot sank on to the rock and covered his face with his hands.

"Leastways," the man hastened to add, "I don't say that he wasn't; but nothing's been heard of the young gentleman. I'm sorry to hear such bad news, sir. It's the loss of the lad, the uncertainty as to what's become of him, that's bowled Captain Marks over so completely. That boy might 'a been his own son, seen' the way he took on. Cheer up, sir; no news is good news, specially at sea."

Eliot got up, and crept away out of the man's sight. He was stunned and overwhelmed by the news; and it was some time before he could get up and get the few particulars which the captain could give him. He tried to assure himself that Cyril had been picked up; but his heart was as heavy as lead, and he endured a sense of bereavement as keen as if he had lost his nearest and dearest relative.

He carried the sad tidings to the farm and the quarry, and he had hard work to keep from breaking down. He could not bear to hear Cyril's name on their lips, and he got his things together, and so he went, fled from the island, where he had been so happy, but the memory of which would always be associated in his mind with the loss of the boy whom he had grown to love so deeply.

On reaching Porlash he at once went in search of Captain Marks, who, broken and weak over the story of the wreck, and eagerly and anxiously discussed the possibility of Cyril's having been saved; but it was a negative kind of comfort, and Eliot, with a sad heart, went on to Mr. Trunton at Neleworth, intending to proceed thence to Miss Deborah, and the chance of her having received some tidings of Cyril. Mr. Trunton had heard the news of the loss of the Happy Lucy, and was inclined to believe that Cyril had been saved.

"It's no use your going to Moorcroft," he said. "Miss Ralton is in London—has gone there on some business. Now, about these plans, Mr. Graham—I shouldn't let this matter weigh upon me if I were you. He's sure to have been sighted by some passing vessel, and we shall get tidings of him presently."

With an utter lack of enthusiasm Eliot produced his plans and explained them. Mr. Trunton was more than interested.

"I believe you have hit upon a good thing," he said; "there's money in it. You seem to have grasped the thing pretty thoroughly."

"Cyril helped me," murmured Eliot, rather to himself than to Mr. Trunton.

"And, of course, we shall ask you to look after the business for us," Eliot shook his head decisively.

"Thanks," he said. "I couldn't go back to Lonsway."

"I shall go to London," said Eliot. "I may hear something of my friend at Lloyd's or the shipping office; but I am going to Moorcroft first."

"All right," said Mr. Trunton. "If I can't see you, I'll write you; though, as I tell you, Miss Deborah isn't at home."

"There may be a telegram," said Eliot.

"Quite so, quite so," said Mr. Trunton. "About London, now. There's a man there who can help us in this scheme of yours. You go up and see him, show him the plans and tell him just what you told me. Of course, I pay your expenses. Later on we can talk about a salary; we might arrange it by way of commission. We'll see about that. I should like you to go and see Miss Ralton, but I don't know her address, nor does that old fool of a man of hers. She's gone off without leaving it; just like her eccentricity. I'll give you a letter to the man. I spoke with you and you can go on to London from Porlash. Here's some money; write, if you want any more. Pray cheer up, Mr. Graham. And after all, he added, as a gentle reminder, "the boy wasn't a relative of yours."

The colour rose to Eliot's face.

"He was the best and truest friend a man ever had," he said. "I can't say I saved my life at the risk of his own."

He went on to Moorcroft and saw Jacob, who was seated in the porch with a pipe in his mouth. No letters or telegrams had come from Miss Deborah during her absence; and he could not give Eliot her address, for the best of all reasons. Like Mr. Trunton, Jacob desisted to believe that the boy was lost. Proffering hospitality, he asked Eliot into the house while the horse was fed.

"If you'd like to wash your hands, come upstairs," said Jacob. "Here, you go up, sir, and I'll get some hot water. I'm maan and boy and maid in this house!"

Take the Dentists' Advice Use COLGATE'S

COLGATE'S Does ALL a safe Dentifrice Should Do—it cleans the teeth.

No dentifrice can take the place of the dentist. Any preparation that seeks to do the dentists' work usually contains strong drugs or harsh grit—harmful to the enamel of the teeth. And think of the effect of such risky chemicals on the tender membranes of your mouth!

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream cleans thoroughly, safely, washing the teeth without harmful grit, or the use of strong drugs.

You, too, should use COLGATE'S—it's safe.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY DON'T WE DO IT OFTEN?

Did you ever get up very early in the morning without wondering, once you were fairly up, why you did not do it often?

A few days ago I had the chance to make a four-hour motor trip if I would get up earlier than I usually rise. I wanted to make that trip as it represented an opportunity to get to a place I had to reach and which would have been tedious and expensive to reach by train. But oh, how I hated to get up so early in the morning!

I got everything in perfect readiness for a quick get-away the night before. I stuck the alarm clock under the bed, waked every half hour expecting to hear it go off, and finally fell into my first deep sleep of the night an hour before I had to get up.

LETTER FROM MRS. WAKELIN

Tells Remarkable Story of Sickness and Recovery.

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered greatly from weakness, seemed to be tired all the time, and had no ambition to do anything gossy place. My nerves were in bad shape, I could not sleep at night, and then came a breakdown. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and several of my friends advised me to use it, and I surely put new life into me. Now I am quite able to do all my own work, and I would strongly advise every suffering woman to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial."—Mrs. CHARLES WAKELIN, 273 Christie St., Toronto, Ont.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no straggler—it has stood the test for more than forty years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Incorporated), Lynn, Mass.

The Rust Record.

The greatest waste in the whole world is rust. It costs Great Britain alone £32,000,000 yearly!

When the oxygen of moist air combines with the sensitive surface of a metal it produces an oxide. This is rust and nothing else.

Aluminium is the only metal that will not rust. Gold is generally taken to be a rustless metal, and it is true that it will not combine with oxygen of itself—without aid, that is. Given the aid, it will rust.

Ornamental steel—that with a purplish or lilac colour—is the worst rusted, because the colour tinge has been produced by part-oxidation, and the process began artificially is continued naturally.

Dry air will cause rust, but the metal has to be at a high temperature. A poker which has been made red-hot will rust when it cools. Grate-bars do the same. The flakes that come from red-hot iron when it is hammered are but rust.

The best preventive of rust is fat-oil (one part) mixed with restified spirits of turpentine (five parts), and applied with a sponge. The highest steel polish on mathematical instruments remains absolutely unaffected if this solution is applied.

Tinware is rendered practically immune from the rust flend if, when new, the ware is smeared with pure lard and baked in a hot oven.

Say "Diamond Dyes" Take No Other Dye

Unless you ask for "Diamond Dyes" you may get a poor dye that streaks, spots, fades and gives that dread look. Every package of Diamond Dyes contains simple directions for home dyeing or tinting any new, rich, fadeless color into garments or draperies of any material. No mistakes! No failures!

Cut six-inch square pieces out of any rich pastry and on each put a spoonful of jam. Pinch together the corners and drop into deep hot fat. Fry and drain.

To 1 cup of shredded pineapple add the pulp of 2 oranges, 2 cups fresh strawberries, ½ cup strawberry syrup, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Sweeten, chill and serve in sherbet glasses.

Nujol For Constipation

GOOD health cannot be maintained if constipation is allowed to poison the system.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir—I am being slowly forced to the conclusion that reporters like poets are born and not made. Whoever is the Telegram reporter of the Football League matches, if he was deliberately trying to injure the league and to damp the public's enthusiasm in the game, he could not go about it in a better way. The games are always poor. He always complains. The other night he went as far as to anticipate a poor game. What can be his object? He is like a man with a grudge, never satisfied. He entirely misses the great point that whether the games are good or bad, it hardly matters a row of beads to daylight in which to beat "A Jes" lies in the east of him that hears not him that makes it." A song sung with not a note in it correct, sometimes gives more pleasure to the singer and his audience than would the soul-entrancing strains of Caruso. It all depends upon the humor you are in. So with the games. If all depends upon the view of the chit-chatting, many go not for the service, but to criticize the sermon, to get the latest in fashion, to keep a date or an appointment. There are some, of course, who are devout enough to go to say their prayers, but everybody who goes to church, does not necessarily go for that purpose. Some go to make a good appearance. So with those who attend the Football, Baseball and other matches. Many young ladies and gentlemen attend those matches, because of their great drawing power, they enjoy themselves more than they do at the game and before. Older people attend because, on a fine night, it is a pleasant place to attend or sit smoking their pipes, watching the games of all kinds that are going on in the field and especially on the grand stand. They have had considerable experience in all the games and want to see if the boys and girls of to-day can play them as well or better than they did in their day. No better place could be got to take the same of watching the boys striving for victory on St. George's Field on a fine summer's evening, and now that the Hon. Mr. Anderson has the honor of daylight in which to do it, it is better still for the older people, while detrimental to a lot of fine work that the younger people could get in when you come to think of it. I want to get home by nine o'clock when it is hardly dark instead of ten as formerly, when it was as black as Erebus. Your reporter is not properly instructed that the object aimed at is not to develop the leagues or get funds, or provide amusement for spectators or anything of the kind. The object is to develop the players and get them to participate in healthy outdoor sports, which will develop them physically and mentally and fit them for the battle of life, which is so strenuous, in these later days. Anything that makes that end is praiseworthy, anything that does not is not. The league, the crowds, the receipts are secondary, the games and the development of the youth are primary. When you attend to the game and the players you are damping their enthusiasm. You are making them ashamed to play, you are deterring them and not encouraging them. When a mother wants her child to learn to write she does not start in knocking the child's work. No matter how poor it may be she gives words of encouragement knowing the child is doing its best. So with beginners at any sport. Encourage them to participate in the games, do not discourage them. I would sooner look at a crowd of youngsters of from five to eight years of age, with their coats for posts, not knowing a rule of the game, but enjoying it, nevertheless, than the league match which would decide the Championship for the year. In the one case they are playing for the love of the game, in the other they may be playing for the medals, the desire to be top of the league, all good in their way, but to a certain extent selfish. If I were participating in the games no one would be more anxious than I to be top of the league, but I should also remember that it is only an incident and not the object of my playing. To generate good feeling, to develop generalship, health, judgment, self control and other qualities, these are the objects of the games, and the league getting the ground, putting up the cup and medals, bringing the crowd together help to do this, and for doing so the officers deserve the gratitude and thanks, not only of the players, but of the city and the country, for they are doing a great deal to make good-living, many men of the excellent material that this city and country produces so abundantly. Before I leave the matter of the games, I wish to say that the league is under large expense and thus have much to do with their money, and it is very unfair for charitable and other organizations to butt in and get players to play for them, and so take interest from the league games. The league,

WHEN THE CAR WAS NEW.

When the car was new and shiny Pa was careful as could be. He'd polish up the window glass each evening after tea, and if there was a finger mark upon the glossy door, He'd get a piece of underwear and shine it up some more.

He'd sweep the carpets every day and oil each separate part. He'd always rub and shine a bit before he'd make a start. And twice a week in rubber boots and overalls of brown He'd spend upon the car so he might have the cleanest car in town.

But that was in the long ago, and now a date or an appointment, to keep. There's mud upon the running gears and in the manifold. The axles now are thick with grease, for Pa declines to soil His hands or scrape his knuckles bare to give it dope and oil.

The bus has lost the shine it had, its many young ladies and gentlemen attend those matches, because of their great drawing power, they enjoy themselves more than they do at the game and before. Older people attend because, on a fine night, it is a pleasant place to attend or sit smoking their pipes, watching the games of all kinds that are going on in the field and especially on the grand stand. They have had considerable experience in all the games and want to see if the boys and girls of to-day can play them as well or better than they did in their day. The league, as a league, will doubtless as formally deservingly cases it is as unfair to ask the league, or the players, to play for objects outside the league, as it would be for the projectors of those movements to ask a bank manager permission to get a rake off from every customer entering his bank to do business.

Yours sincerely,

Rural Route, No. 1, Mascouche, Que.

Sirs,—I feel that I should be doing a wrong if I neglected to write you. I have had four tumors growing on my head for years. I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago, but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thimble on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your liniment for another purpose and saw on the label good for tumors. Well, I tried it and kept at it for exactly two months, with the result that it has entirely removed all trace of the tumor, and we it is now that they had been cut fifteen years ago, no mark would be seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.
(Signed) FRED C. ROBINSON.
P.S.—I am a farmer and intend using Minard's Liniment on a mare for some time. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

Unfair to Outports.

A few issues ago the Standard commented on the grant of the Government of some $150,000 to relieve the unemployed of St. John's. Some city papers, recognizing that the amount was a loan chargeable to and repaid by the Municipal Council or the city debt. The Standard pointed out that the money would probably be tacked on to the Colonist's debt and not remain unpaid by the City Council. The action of the city fathers has borne out our statement, the Council repudiating the burden and refusing to have anything whatever to do with it, not even to the extent of being responsible for the pay given to the men who worked out an amount of $150,000 to St. John's District with 30,000 people, while the outports received direct relief. 'Twas ever thus, and will be until the Outports take up the equitable distribution of the Government expenditure. The majority does not rule in this tight little island.—Mr. Grace Standard.

Magna Charta Day.

On June 15th, 1215, seven hundred and sixteen years ago, there was gathered in a field of the little village of Runnymede, near Windsor, England, a vast concourse of important personages, gathered to witness or to hear about an act that was to be performed by no less a personage than the King of England...

The Advocate's Crocodile Tears.

In its solicitude for "the poor men who cannot afford to import their goods" the Advocate must have ruined a crocodile tears last night. Sir John Crosbie, as becomes one ever watchful for his country's welfare, pointed out to the Government the loophole in the Sales Tax which would allow those sufficiently wealthy to import their own personal goods and thus escape the tax.

The War Memorial.

The meeting of the Executive Committee appointed to attend to the matter of the War Memorial was unavoidably postponed yesterday and will be held at 4 p.m. Friday in the Board of Trade Rooms. Arrangements have been made with different stores in the city to open receiving contributions for the memorial. The actual solicitation of the seven is not due to their area, population or wealth, nor to the fact that they border the four corners of the earth, but their unity rather is one of spirit and language, for these seven are the exponents of Christianity and Democracy, and with all that those words imply in freedom, both civil and religious.

Feildians Draw With Stars.

GAME PLAYED IN UNPLEASANT WEATHER. A scene occurred in the House of Commons last night when Jos. Devlin, who represents Falls Division of Belfast, moved the adjournment to call attention to the lack of discipline of the Crown Forces in Belfast on Sunday morning. Mr. Devlin described what was a cowardly crime on the part of recent men, and accused Government of setting up tribunals to cloak these crimes. He charged that Crown Forces were dragging men from their homes and assassinating them, and he further charged that the Government was doing nothing to bring the assassins to justice.

Anniversary of Successful Flight.

Aloock and Brown Fly Atlantic. Just two years ago to-day the great adventure of a non-stop transatlantic flight in a heavier than air machine was an accomplished fact. The honours belong to Capt. J. Aloock and Lieut. Brown who, starting from Clifden, Ireland, sixteen hours and twenty minutes after leaving Newfoundland.

Large Ship Coming.

The S.S. Kaiser I Hind owned by the P. and O. Steam Navigation Co., is due to arrive here on 17th for bunker coal. The Kaiser is a ship of 1,450 tons gross and is making a tour of the world. The ship has large first class passenger accommodation, and it is learned she has a full list on the trip. The ship will take 500 tons of coal at this port and is scheduled to resume her voyage at noon on the 23rd inst.

Tobacco Factory Re-Opened.

The Imperial Tobacco Co. (Nfld.) Ltd. plant will resume operations beginning Thursday, June 16th, in the St. John's and cigarette departments at full time until August 1st. The Management hopes to restore the permanent schedule on or about the 1st of September.

TO-DAYS MESSAGES.

In the Central District Court.

Fred J. Roll vs. H. E. Brooks. This is a claim for $112.50, money payable by the defendant to the plaintiff, for commission on sale of Defendant's house.

Unemployed Threaten Violence.

Mr. Ayre informs the Telegram this morning several of the members of the unemployed workers called on him and told him that there were one thousand men idle, when and their dependents were practically starving, that they were becoming so restless and impatient that they were threatening to throw overboard the stores on Water Street. Mr. Ayre endeavored to get in touch with the Premier and Lieut. Brown who, starting from Clifden, Ireland, sixteen hours and twenty minutes after leaving Newfoundland.

A Despicable Act.

A man, one of the unemployed, working on relief works, was yesterday arrested and brought to town on a charge of larceny. This man had been handed the wages of a sick friend who had asked him to bring the money to him but instead of doing so, he handed over $5 of the $15.50 received and dumped for Trinity Bay. A warrant having been made out for his arrest he was taken in custody and appeared before Judge Morris this morning.

Saints vs. Britons.

The Saints and Britons clash tonight in what is for each team the second League game for the season. Goal, Joyce; backs, Carmichael, Callaghan; halves, Clouston, Foster, Brown; forwards, Young, B. Sawyers, Munn, Elton, H. Sawyers.

Landing Cargo.

The lubricating and oil in No. 1 hold of the S. S. Charlott is being landed on Shaw's wharf, the work starting this morning. The packages in the hold are difficult and the stevedores have some difficulty in getting them hooked up. The special post is put in by the Reid Co. is kept going at such a speed as to keep the water at a level that will not cause too much pressure on the cross bulkhead.

Shipping Notes.

No news of the disabled steamer Carplake has been received since yesterday, when she reported being 230 miles off in a dense fog. S.S. Fern sailed this morning for Sydney to load coal for this port. S.S. Canadian Explorer, with a cargo of salt from Spain, is outside waiting for the fog to lift before entering port.

DEMAND MADE FOR WORK.—The Committee of the Unemployed met yesterday afternoon and drafted a letter to the Prime Minister, which it is understood, demanded that something be done for the unemployed within a definite time, as the latter were chafing under the delay, and saw no prospect of relief under the present scheme.

DULL SESSION OF HOUSE. Early Cables

Government Member Protests Against Sales Tax.

The surprising incident in yesterday's session of the House was the unusual sight of a Government member protesting against a measure introduced by his party. Mr. John Cheeseman (Barn) is the first member of the Government to speak his mind courageously and in a good cause and he deserves to be heartily commended upon the stand which he has taken with respect to the iniquitous Sales Tax.

The House met at 3.15 p.m. The motion for the Suspension of the Rules of the House was removed from the Order Paper.

The Prohibition Plebiscite Bill was read a first time.

The Fishery Supplies Bill was also given its first reading.

Questions were next dealt with but nothing of any interest occurred.

The Prime Minister informed Sir Michael Cashin that the matter of contributing towards the War Memorial would be considered by Committee in Council. He entered into a lengthy dissertation on the question of War Memorials.

Mr. Bennett explained what was now being done in the matter of a Dominion War Memorial.

Mr. Bennett actually made use of his voice again and is rapidly drawing away from the ranks of the silent members. He thought that something more than a block of stone or granite was necessary as a memorial and was in favour of an Educational Building.

Mr. Bennett again asked the Government to reconsider the policy of dismissing game Wardens. The salmon fishery had saved a great many from destitution this year. He knew one man who had made $400 off salmon this year. Over 300 tons of salmon were to leave here next week cold storage on S.S. Digby. He urged the Government to quick action in this matter.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Amendment to the maintenance of Public Roads Act.

Sir John Crosbie made a fiery speech on the Bill. He objected strongly to the proposed $10,000 grant and showed that the Prime Minister was ruling in a manner more autocratic than any other leader of the House. Referring to the Sales Tax he said it would destroy the whole trade of the country. All the big Canadian stores will benefit by this tax for everybody will import direct from them to avoid the taxation. And the Government asked for money for roads! He absolutely objects to allow the $10,000 vote for a motor road to go through. If this thing were not taken seriously by Government members then he would say to them that they had sold their birthright, their country and themselves.

After further discussion had ensued Sir John asked that the grant be repealed.

The Prime Minister agreed to defer it for one year.

Mr. Cheeseman placed himself on record as being opposed to the grant. He went further and declared that the Sales Tax was absolutely impossible in its present form. This, coming from a Government member, was all the more welcome because it was unusual, was practicing a false economy.

Sir John Crosbie congratulated Mr. Cheeseman on proving himself a man.

Mr. Moore supported Sir John Crosbie's motion. He had driven over a road recently which the Motor Association had never touched, and it was better than any road they had had anything to do with.

Mr. Fox emphasized the need for relief for the unemployed and suggested that the $10,000 be used to provide work for these men. Great extravagance had been practiced in other directions, but now the Government was practicing a false economy. Many motorists had decided not to use their cars if there were no grant, and rather than that this should happen, the grant should be provided, for it would help the unemployed and further perfect uncompleted roads.

Mr. Bennett again referred to the policy of retrenchment on the Game and Inland Fisheries Board, and he now said that to withhold this $10,000 road grant was also false economy. He regretted that Sir John Crosbie had made this motion for the suspension of the grant.

After some further debate the Committee rose and reported progress.

The House was shortly afterwards adjourned until 3 p.m. to-day.

ARAB RULE FOR MESOPOTAMIA

LONDON, June 14. The British Government intends to replace British Administration in Mesopotamia with an Arab Assembly and an Arab ruler during the coming summer, Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

The ruler will be elected by the people. This statement was made when introducing the supplementary estimate of £27,000,000 for Governmental expenses in the Middle East. Emir Feisal, son of King of Hedjaz, had inquired if his candidacy would be acceptable, the Secretary said, and Great Britain had replied that no obstacle would be placed in his way, and that if he were elected he would have Great Britain's support. Consequently Emir Feisal had already left Mecca for Mesopotamia. Mr. Churchill argued that the policy of working with the Sherifian family of Hedjaz was advantageous, and would not be detrimental to France. It would be fatal to the interests of both if France and England failed to co-operate, he declared.

TO-DAY'S COAL STRIKE RAILTOT.

LONDON, June 14. Unfavourable reports concerning the attitude of miners from the Forest of Dean, Lancashire, Cheshire, and Welsh coal fields, on the new proposals of the owners, on which a ballot is to be taken to-morrow are being received. Nottingham miners have decided to abstain from voting on the ground that they were called on strike without being consulted. On the whole, however, the optimistic feeling is being maintained that the two-thirds majority required to continue the strike, will not be obtained. In the course of a speech to-day, Joseph Birkin, a notable north country labor leader, thanked God for the failure of extremists among the miners, who thought to Russiasize the country. The demands for a national wage pool had been a political idea from the first, he said, so why did leaders now waste time in taking a ballot, instead of admitting defeat. Leadership among the miners certainly seems to have become nervous, as witnessed the decision in many District Councils, not to give the men advice concerning the ballot. Workers in these sections ascribe this to cowardice on the part of the leaders.

CONVENTION OF SURGEONS.

TORONTO, June 14. Upwards of 150 of the most distinguished surgeons of the United States will attend the annual Convention of the American Surgical Association, which opens here at Toronto University this morning.

AFTER THE ARCH CRIMINAL.

PARIS, June 14. Senator Duplantier put before the French Senate to-day an interpellation on "what measures the French Government intends to take concerning the execution of the Treaty of Versailles relative to bringing William Hohenzollern, ex-Kaiser of Germany, to trial for his 'crime against humanity'." The Senator asked that date for the discussion of his interpellation be fixed immediately. Amid tremendous tumult, Alexander Berard, who was presiding over the Senate when the interpellation was introduced, the Senate's President, ruled that a date could not be decided until Premier Briand, who did not attend the session, was present.

LABOUR LEADERS' WARNING.

DENVER, June 14. Warning against agitation that might disrupt the United States Labor movement, James H. Thomas, British Labor leader, told the American Federation of Labor Convention to-day, that it could not solve the Irish problem. "For one hundred years we, in Ireland, have been confronted with the problem of Ireland, and if we, at home, cannot solve that problem let me ask now how do you, 3,000 miles away, expect to solve it?" he said.

Thomas, who is President of the International Federation of Trade Unions, addressed the Convention as the fraternal delegate from the British Trades Union Congress.

BOLSHES CATCH A TARTAR.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 14. Prince Ibrahim Chamyl, head of the Daghestan Insurgent Mountaineers of the Northern Caucasus, has taken up arms against the Bolsheviks in the Caucasus and declares he will not surrender until liberty has been re-established there. He has defeated Soviet detachments in several fights recently. Prince Chamyl commands an army of twenty thousand Tartar insurgents.

UNINTENTIONAL DISCOURTESY.

PARIS, June 14. The U.S. Government has been reminded through diplomatic channels that the League of Nations has received no answer to its invitation to the United States to send a representative to discuss mandates. The Council of the League meets at Geneva on June 17.

LLOYD GEORGE'S ILLNESS.

LONDON, June 14. In the House of Commons last evening, Austen Chamberlain announced that members of the British Parliament would be given an opportunity to discuss the Agenda of the Empire Premiers' Conference on Friday. Postponement of this Conference till next week was rendered necessary because the medical advisers of Premier Lloyd George had forbidden him to resume work yesterday for a week, it was announced to-day.

ASCOT RACES.

ASCOT HEATH, June 14. The Ascot stakes of two thousand Sovereigns over a course of two miles run here to-day, was won by Sir H. Dunlop's "Spartan." J. Shepherd's King's Idler was second, and W. M. G. Singer's Chatter was third.

Unemployed Still Registering.

The staff of the Labor Registration Bureau in the Militia Building is being kept quite busy attending to the large numbers who are daily registering there. Already over 500 names have been registered by Major Butler and his hard working assistants. A number of men were given work yesterday on the Topsall Road, and before the end of the week it is hoped to have 100 men employed. Conditions show no change at present but before long it is hoped there will be more satisfactory arrangements.

To-Night's Dance.

A dance is being held to-night in the C.C.C. Hall by the officers, warrant officers and N.C.O.'s of the C.C.C. in aid of camp funds. Last year it was not found possible to hold camp but an effort is to be made to have a 10 days outing this year, particularly as the corps will be celebrating its silver jubilee. It is to be hoped that all who can will attend the dance and help to make it a success.

FOOTBALL FIVES.—In the semi-finals of the football fives, in connection with the St. Bon's Sports, played on the College Campus yesterday evening the Cadets defeated the C.E.I. and will therefore play in the finals this afternoon at the Sports.

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delicate fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

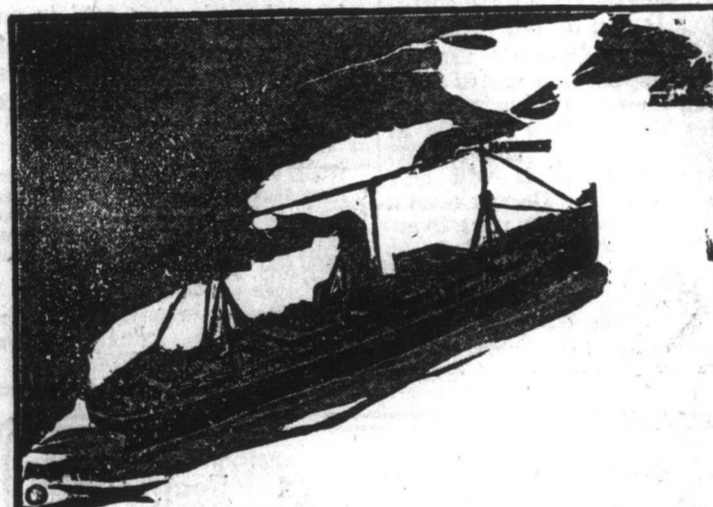

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

Outport Man Wins Hard Fight After Years of Trouble

Bonavista Man Had Suffered Since He Was A Boy But Can Eat Anything Now.

"When a man has suffered from stomach trouble like I have almost all my life he knows how to appreciate a good medicine like Taniao," said Josiah Penny, Outportman of Bonavista, while on a visit to St. John's.
"I never could have believed that any medicine would make such a difference in a man's health. I suffered from attacks of acute indigestion ever since I was a boy of thirteen and, while I have never been what would be called a invalid, I have been kept miserable for years with a bad stomach. I didn't eat any breakfast for many years, and ate a very carefully selected diet at other meals, but there was very little if any improvement in my condition. At last my whole system seemed to go wrong; my kidneys ached, both me and I was generally run down."
"Taniao has done more for me than all the medicines I have ever taken put together, and I have tried almost everything. I eat heartily now three times a day, especially at breakfast, and I never have a trace of indigestion. My whole system has been toned up and strengthened, and I actually can't remember feeling as well and strong as I do right now. There is no doubt in my mind about Taniao being the best of all medicines for stomach trouble."

Labor Organizations Favor June 24.

At a meeting of the Unemployed workers held on Saturday night last, the question of the observance of June 24th as Newfoundland's National Day was considered, and it was unanimously decided that the 24th should be kept as a holiday. As this meeting represented fourteen hundred workmen, who represented seven thousand men, women and children, that is quite a considerable portion of the citizens of St. John's. Many of those workers are also members of the L. S. F. U. It is generally admitted that if that body were permitted to express an opinion, they would be unanimous in declaring for the day in which their country was discovered.

Lift Right Off without Pain
Magic! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Doesn't hurt a bit.
Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses.

Moral Hazzard Again.

The Philadelphia Patrol recently found, upon answering a call on an upper floor in a good, modern fireproof building, that the stock, which was chiefly ladies' garments, had been well soaked and practically ruined by water and smoke, although the fire was only a minor one, and no water had been thrown on the fire or stock either by the fire department, as it had not arrived, or by sprinklers, as the building was not in this class. The assured evidently was out to collect a big water damage loss, but he overlooked the fact that the ever watchful eye of the Insurance Patrol would almost certainly detect the attempt.—Spectator.

Little to Choose Between Fighters.

FAVORITE RING BOUTS OF THE PAST

New York.—With difference in weight of about 20 pounds when they meet in the ring three weeks hence Dempsey and Carpenter will otherwise appear almost equal in build and stature. If both were to mix it among a few collegiate athletes, football players and oarsmen, probably neither would be picked out as being unusually big or formidable in general make up. Dempsey stands 6 feet 1 1/2 inches in height, just two inches taller than the French champion and while Carpenter will weigh about 170 pounds in fighting condition, Dempsey expects to enter the ring slightly under 180 pounds.

The champion's shoulders are broad, while Carpenter's are sloping in shape, but otherwise the bodily measurements of the pair do not differ to any marked extent.

Experts who have seen both men are satisfied that they will be well matched in speed and cleverness, but the majority believe that Dempsey will carry by far the heavier weight in his blows. Dexterity and suppleness are claimed as advantages for the Frenchman, by his followers, but just how hard a punch he can deliver is still a problem.

Dempsey showed in his bout with Willard at Toledo that his blows possess enormous pushing power, but his more recent encounters with Bill Brennan at Madison Square Garden did not demonstrate that he still retains the forceful punch necessary to successfully stand off a man of Carpenter's undoubted ability and cleverness.

Just how good the challenger is or how hard a blow he can land is problematical to the majority of American stifle patrons, who have seen him in action. His only bout here, that with Levinsky in Jersey City last year, did not afford much of a line on Carpenter's prowess. Levinsky, always a clever boxer, made practically no serious effort to defend himself on that occasion and went down and out and was an easy victim for the Frenchman in the fourth round.

Nearly 20 years have elapsed since Queensbury rules and glove contests were substituted for the London prize ring code governing pugilistic contests for championship titles. In most of the bouts fought for the heavy-weight championship since the change took place, there was a decided advantage in stature between the principals, but this did not always carry victory with it.

Beginning with the Corbett-Sullivan battle at New Orleans in 1892, the big Boston man was massive in proportion to the little, supple and extremely clever Californian, but the smaller man bore the big champion down and annexed the title in the 21st round.

Corbett was one and one-half inches taller, but 15 pounds lighter than Sullivan, who stood 5 feet 10 1/2 inches and weighed about 200 lbs.

Some Famous Bout.

Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons were more evenly matched in height and age. Corbett was half an inch taller and four years younger than the Californian, but he was nearly 20 pounds heavier than Fitz when the latter knocked him out and won the title at Carson City, March 17, 1897.

Two years later James J. Jeffries, of huge build and outweighing Fitzsimmons by fully 50 pounds, won the title in 11 rounds from Bob at Coney Island and five months later, November, 1899, Jeffries got a referee's decision over Tom Sharkey in a 35 round bout in the same arena. Sharkey was several inches shorter and about 20 pounds lighter than the then champion.

Corbett challenged Jeffries twice for the title, but was knocked out by the bigger man each time, once in 23 rounds and the next time in 10 rounds.

Jack Johnson, the negro, who defeated Jeffries at Reno, Nev., in 1910, was nearer to the big man's size than any of the other heavyweights who had met him for the title in the previous ten years. Johnson was three years younger, one inch shorter and only ten pounds lighter than the Ohioan. Johnson scored a knockout in 15 rounds.

Strawberry jam and finely-chopped pecans are delicious spread between thin slices of whole wheat bread.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Your old methods of teeth cleaning

See what this new way does. Watch your teeth whiten—note how clean they feel. Millions have learned in this way how much film removal means. It is something that you should know.

You must fight film
Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. It clings to the teeth unless you combat it, gets between the teeth and stays.

It forms a dingy coat which dims the luster of the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film. And, despite the daily brushing, very few escape them. The old brushing methods do not effectively fight film.

New ways to combat it
Dental science has now found ways to combat film. The methods are embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. It has proved so effective that leading dentists everywhere are now advising it. And millions of people have already adopted it.

Pepsodent CANADA
REG. IN
The New-Day Dentifrice
A scientific film combater, combined with two other modern requisites. Now advised for daily use by leading dentists everywhere. Supplied by druggists in large tubes.

Pepsodent, with every use, brings the discolored, stained, yellow teeth highly polished. It stimulates the healthy flow—Nature's great tooth-protecting agent.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That to digest the starch deposits which cling to teeth and often form acid. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Modern authorities regard these effects as essential aids to Nature, in view of the average diet. To bring these effects twice daily means such protection as you have not known before.

See and feel them
The results can be seen and felt. They are delightful, and this 10-day test will bring them 20 times.

Send the coupon for it. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects, and this booklet we send you will tell you what they mean.

Do this now in justice to yourself. Learn how much this new-day method means to you and yours.

Many Fake Yarns About Big Fight.

New York.—"Any fast man with a good left will beat Jack Dempsey." So says Bill Brennan, who has fought the world's champion twice and stayed with him longer than any other boxer.

Georges Carpentier, the French challenger, who hopes to win the title from Dempsey in Jersey City on July 2, has the speed all right, and he's trying now to get the good left, according to "secrets" drifting from the Massachusetts camp.

In his public bouts for the newspapermen, the Frenchman has been specializing on rights, but in his private sessions he is doing the work all from the other side.

Willie Lewis, the veteran middleweight, who once fought the Frenchman and later acted as a trainer for him, whispered several things in Carpentier's ear about that left.

The usual training camp rumors are starting to be passed around now. The secrecy of the Carpenter camp makes it an ideal source for wild stories.

A few days ago it was whispered around that Journe landed one on the Frenchman's jaw and knocked him out. Then it was said that Italian Joe Gans found the Frenchman's stomach too inviting; that he became "unclubby" in his sparring bout and was reprimanded by Manager Desamps.

Both of the yarns probably caused some amusement in the Carpenter camp, if they were not started there with intent.

The usual rumors of "fixed fight" are also being passed around. The "take a flop" for a "cool million" dollars.

The tale Dempsey can lose the fight and still be American champion. If Dempsey loses the motion pictures will be worth five to ten million dollars in Europe, where the continentals would pay anything to see their hero do it on the screen. If Dempsey wins the pictures will be worth nothing. So the champion will turn up his toes and get a million outside of his cut at the gate.

Other rumor-spreaders have it that Carpentier has told his friends not to bet on him, that he couldn't win, and that he was just going to take one of the champion's swings for $500,000. Rumors and rumors. They are just as necessary for the fight as the four posts and the ring ropes.

"MAIN STREET."

The "M a i n Street" boom is dying down—and I won't worry when it's dead—and once again the country town begins to raise its humbled head.

P o o r country towns! The home of hicks, whose souls can't rise above the dust, where all aesthetic games and tricks are looked upon with disgust. In gopher towns I've lived and loved, and there I learned to swat the lyre, and as along Main Street I shoved, I a whole lot to admire. And there I've known the finer gents, great fellows, large of mind and heart; I wonder why they pitched their tents so far from Culture and from Art? The far from Culture and from Art? The country town inspires the jokes of specialists in caustic mirth; but there you'll often find the folks who are the salt of this old earth. The country town has many rubes, who on their idle errands trot, and if you only look for boobs, as Lewis did, you'll find a lot. But if you look for other kind, strong men who ornament the race, and women gracious and refined, you'll find them, also, in the place. Go, visit now the Hall of Fame, and mark the High Nobs look-
